City's Bond Issues Are Again Voted

By ALVIN TAYLOR, City Editor. It's all official again. Greenville voters have approved for the second time a $275,000 bond issue to provide funds for capital improvements.

held a second time. City officials had obtained verbal approval by the Local Government Commission and that date was used in official papers. However, the state officials ruled that the date of approval should have been the date the papers arrived at the Raleigh office.

Plans are to use the piece of equipment for various street work including the opening of First St. Opening of First St.—This phase of the bond issue calls for the installation of an 18-foot fill on First St., installation of drainage, curb and gutter and paving of the street to carry it from its present terminus to Woodlawn. Total: $24,000.

Hammar skjold Asks For Broad Powers In Dealing With Nasser

By MAX HARRELSON. UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammar skjold today asked the General Assembly to give him broad powers to work out with Egypt agreements on the deployment of the Middle East police force.

ser had agreed to proceed immediately. If the Assembly approves, "to explore jointly concrete aspects of the functioning of UNEF (the U.N. Emergency Force), including its stationing and the question of the lines of communication and supplies."

Hammar skjold told the Assembly the functioning of the force had been hampered by the fact that "as yet no withdrawals have taken place in compliance with the resolutions of the General Assembly" adopted Nov. 2 and 7.

foundation "on which the cooperation could be developed and necessary agreements on various details be elaborated."

Reports reaching Syria from Lebanon said widespread violence had erupted in Beirut and the Lebanese army was called out to restore order. Tanks were reported patrolling Beirut's streets after the French-owned Bank of Syria and Lebanon was bombed by unidentified persons.

Going To Court In Dock Walkout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government decided today to apply in New York federal court this afternoon for an order to stop striking longshoremen from insisting on a coast wide bargaining unit.

The National Labor Relations Board authorized its attorneys to seek a temporary restraining order against the International Longshoremen's Assn., and Union President William Bradley.

They will ask for an order barring the union from insisting on a coast wide or multiple port contract and prohibiting the I.L.A. from continuing its strike for that purpose.

They are the first of 5,000 to come here for permanent resettlement under orders of President Eisenhower. Four other plane loads are expected Thanksgiving Day and Friday.

Russians Shooting Border - Crossers

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Russian soldiers are shooting down Hungarian refugees in efforts to prevent them from escaping into Austria, a U.N. agency reported today.

A statement issued in Geneva by a spokesman for the office of U.N. high commissioner for refugees reported that nearly 52,000 Hungarians have fled to Austria since the rebellion began, including 8,000 who arrived in the Eisenstadt area during the past few days.

Find N. C. Water Supply Adequate

RALEIGH (AP)—An inventory of North Carolina's water resources compiled by the State Board of Water Commissioners was released by Gov. Hodges today.

It says flatly, "A better bill should be enacted for irrigation." The report said, "The present bill does not define terms such as creeks, rivers, ponds and lakes. This lack of definition brings up the question of just who should have a permit. There is no penalty for those not having a permit, so no legal reason for enforcement."

Adlai Says Dixie Should 'Decide'

RIDGELAND, S.C. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson says, "It's about time that a lot of people in the South decided whether they are Democrats or Republicans."

Jack Key Given Twenty Months In Assault Case

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP)—Jack Key, 22-year-old North Carolina State College student who had been charged with raping his schoolteacher girl friend, was sentenced today to 20 months for assault on a female.

Lost Money And Trailer To Fire

The trailer headquarters of a traveling dog salesman at Ballard's Crossroads was destroyed this morning in a fire that also burned $414 in bills. The salesman escaped serious injury.

Band Boosters Hear Report On Tree Sales

The Greenville High School Band Boosters Club at its regular meeting Tuesday night heard a progress report on the advance Christmas tree sales.

A committee composed of Joe Dudley, chairman, Mrs. John Rooker and Mrs. Michael Luskin will draw up plans for distribution of trees which will go on sale about December 8.

President W. W. Smiley expressed appreciation for fine job done on sales and urged further assistance when the trees arrive.

Reports were heard from the secretary, Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, and the treasurer, Mrs. H. F. Steinbeck. It was also reported that Mrs. Percy Cox had contacted the Women of the Moose and had been assured of a sizeable contribution.

Band members will assist the Civitan Club in the sale of fruit cakes profits which will go to the band. Band Director J. E. Rodgers announced that the band will participate in the local Christmas parade on November 28.

The meeting was adjourned until January since the club does not hold a meeting in December.

Shower Fetes Miss Cameron

Miss Mildred Cameron of East Carolina College and Broadway, whose marriage to Z. O. Whitford, Jr. of Newport News and Ayden will take place in December, was honored at a miscellaneous shower Friday night.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Dalton Smith and Miss June Smith.

A color note of green and yellow was carried out in decorations throughout the Smith home.

Party sandwiches, bridal cakes, roasted nuts, mints and punch were served from the dining table which was covered with a lace cloth. The center arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums was flanked by green tapers.

Punch was poured by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Whitford, Sr. A corsage of white mums was presented the bride-elect from the hostesses. Guests showered her with gifts of china, crystal, silver and linens.

Instruction School Scheduled Saturday

Greenville Chapter 149, O.E.S. will be host to the Seventh District School of Instruction to be held here at the Masonic Temple Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m.

Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m. Mrs. Alya Ray Taylor, DDGM, and Preston Cuthbertson of Kingston, DDGP, will preside.

Mrs. Marise Conyers, Worthy Grand Matron of Tarboro, and Ed Hood of Booneville, Worthy Grand Patron of Grand Chapter of North Carolina, will attend along with other distinguished guests.

Members who wish to attend the luncheon should call Mrs. Annie Stocks, 3972, by Friday noon.

Mrs. Hadley Club Speaker

Howell Shows Slides At Meet

The Faculty Wives Club of East Carolina College held its third meeting on Tuesday evening in the Mamie Jenkins Alumni-Faculty Building.

Mrs. J. H. Rose introduced Jerry Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Howell, faculty members. Jerry gave a review of his trip to Alaska this summer and showed many beautiful slides of the Northland.

The Thanksgiving Day theme was used in decorations and refreshments were served by the hostess committee: Mrs. Alton Finch, chairman; Mrs. Richard C. Todd, assistant chairman; Mrs. R. L. Boone, Mrs. James W. Butler, Mrs. C. G. Dawson, Mrs. Thomas Hagwood, Mrs. James B. Mallory, Mrs. Thomas Miller, Mrs. W. E. Marshall, Mrs. Howard G. Porter, Mrs. J. H. Rose and Mrs. H. D. Rowe.

The next meeting of the Faculty Wives Club will be held on January 15 when Mrs. J. M. Crane and Mrs. John G. Navarra will be co-chairmen of the hostess committee.

The End of the Century Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. S. Moye as hostess.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, presided over a short business session and exchanged the books. The program chairman then presented Mrs. Emily Moye Hadley as guest speaker.

Mrs. Hadley used as her subject the superb adaptation of Shaw's "Pygmalion," "My Fair Lady." The book was written by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Lowe composed the music.

Mrs. Hadley presented the play in an excellent and understanding manner, her personality adding zest to the interpretation.

Following the program, the hostess served a salad course with dessert and coffee. Guests for the afternoon were Mesdames George Hadley, J. L. Winstead, J. J. Perkins, C. H. Richardson, Frank Longino and W. F. Young.

To Make Debut In Capital City

Miss Patsy Madry, 1955 graduate of Greenville High School and now attending Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, is being presented tomorrow night at the National Debutante Ball and Thanksgiving Dinner in Washington, D. C.

The ball, now in its seventh year, is being held at the Sheraton-Park Hotel and highlights the winter social activities in the capital city. Miss Madry is one of approximately fifty debutantes from the states participating. She is being escorted by Barry Sullivan of Yale University.

Sponsors for the ball include such notables as Mrs. Eisenhower, Chiefs of Staff with their wives and Cabinet members and wives.

Thanksgiving Supper Enjoyed

Thirty-five children and adult guests attended the Thanksgiving Supper presented by the Junior Club No. 13885 of the Modern Woodmen of America on Monday night at 7 o'clock.

The supper took place at the meeting hall on Broad Street.

Lib Sutton, president of the club, presided and Stella Boyd, secretary, read the minutes.

Larry Stox Sr., junior director, conducted a short quiz program. He also presented a gift to Lib Sutton for being "The Most Outstanding Junior for 1956."

V. L. Baker presented a gift to Mr. Stox for his fine work with the junior club for the past year. A Christmas party is planned by the club for December.

Miss Hoover Honored At Tea

Mrs. Ernul K. Willis honored Miss Josephine Hoover at tea Friday afternoon.

Miss Hoover will be the December bride of Blake Lewis Jr. of Washington.

Welcoming guests at the Willis home, 1807 Beaumont Road, and introducing them to the receiving line was Mrs. Ed Gibbs.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Willis, the honoree, Mrs. Blake Lewis and Mrs. Guy Stowe of Washington, N. C., mother and grandmother of the bridegroom-elect.

Mrs. Joy Harris invited guests into the dining room where Miss Nancy Wike poured punch. Assisting in serving were Mrs. J. B. Boyd and Mrs. Jimmy Harris.

The dining table, covered with a white cutwork cloth, was centered with a miniature wedding party mounted on satin and encircled with ivy and pink and white chrysanthemums. Pink tapers in silver candelabra flanking the arrangement completed the table decorations.

On the buffet white chrysanthemums in a fan shaped arrangement were placed.

Punch was poured from an antique cut glass punch bowl. Guests served themselves to mints, nuts and bridal cakes iced in green and white.

Decorations in the living room featured a white high-topped shoe encrusted with pearls and rhinestones from which white net sprinkled with matching stones spilled. On the coffee table beside this arrangement was a white Bible.

Mrs. Willis presented the honoree a corsage of white carnations and a gift of china in her chosen pattern as a hostess gift.

The guest list included some thirty guests from Washington and local friends.

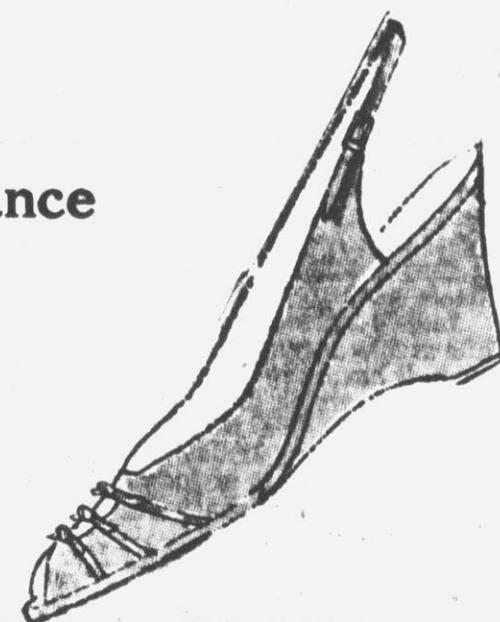

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. James Meredith.

The Calendar Not The Same Today

Remember the good old days when the calendar had simply 12 months divided neatly into 52 weeks and 365 days. There was nothing to clutter it up save Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving and maybe another day here and there especially set aside with good reason.

That day has long disappeared, and O how we wish for its return particularly when we look at the new calendar for another year.

The calendar is no longer made up of 52 orderly weeks.

It's a jumble of special days, special weeks, special months and special seasons which have multiplied like rabbits until few of them have any special significance any more. They serve little more than to confuse the poor guy who looks at the calendar to see what day it is.

The other day we were looking over a list (by no means a COMPLETE list) of special weeks and months during the year, with a few of the more special days thrown in. Just out of curiosity we counted 'em. How many were there?

Crammed into those 52 weeks are no less than 326 special weeks, days and months.

Now we go along with Christmas, Thanksgiving,

Easter, Independence Day, Labor Day, Boy and Girl Scout Week and a few of the other special weeks.

But for the life of us, we can't see cluttering up the calendar with things like "Odorless Decoration Week", "National Can Opener Week", "National Canned Hamburger Month", "Large (Economy) Size Week", "Take Tea and See Week."

Perhaps we're a bit old fashioned, but we shrink from "Certified Washable Week", and so far as we are concerned they can take "National Soft Water Week" and pour it down the drain of "National Water Systems Month."

It would suit us too if they would take "National Potato Chip Week", "Good Breakfasts Month", "Kraut and Frankfurter Week", "Dried Fruits Week", "National Rice Week", "National Canned Salmon Week", "International Wheat Bread For Toast Week", "National Frozen Foods Week", "Mayonnaise and Salad Dressing Week" and several of the others and combine them all into the established "Super Market Month". It would at least make the calendar a little more appetizing.

What the world wouldn't give for an old-fashioned calendar with just 12 months, 52 weeks and 365 days!

Sign Of Possible New Responsibility In India

For all the darkness which has evolved out of the Middle East so far as the Western World is concerned, there has developed one bright spot in Asia which could mean much to the Free World in its battle against communism.

India's Prime Minister Nehru has issued his strongest criticism to date toward Russia in condemning Kremlin action in Hungary and asserting the Hungarian people are "bound to triumph" in their efforts for freedom.

In the eyes of most Western nations, Nehru has leaned toward Russia during troubled times between freedom and communism. In the Korean conflict India was regarded as more friendly toward the communist position than that of the free world. On occasions subsequently India has, in the opinion of the West, taken a stand more partial to Russian desires.

Now, however, Nehru has condemned Russia's action in Hungary. He has called for withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary, and he has declared that Russia's rape of Hungary has "powerfully affected" the Kremlin's influence "in Eastern European Countries, in noncommitted countries and even among people in the Soviet Union itself."

Although Nehru has more severely criticized action of the British and French in Egypt than he has Russia's move in Hungary, his recent statements lend hope that India has not been taken in completely by Kremlin doubletalk in recent years. The statements suggest that India has been shocked into the realization that nothing is sacred to the Kremlin except its ultimate goal of world domination.

India's influence in Asia cannot be overestimated. While it has leveled harsh words at the British and French, it has likewise spoken out against the Kremlin in a manner which has not been previously evident. If India's new attitude, if the words of Nehru accurately reflect a change in India's attitude toward Russia, we see a maturing sense of judgment which may develop into a powerful influence for preventing communist domination in Asia.

A Time To Remember To Whom We Owe All

Thanksgiving is not just a day off from work, a huge meal with the family circle, an extra day of rest after the harvest. It is all these things to be sure, but it is much more also.

Thanksgiving is the season in which, more than in any other, there wells in the hearts of men a deep seated feeling of gratitude for all the things the past year has brought. The time of Thanksgiving is the time when men express appreciation for the outpouring of gifts from the Almighty and acknowledge in secret prayers and humble spirit that their hands alone have not brought them the fruits of life they enjoy.

It is the season when men look back over the year which has brought seed time, growth and harvest. The year which has brought prosperity, hardship, happiness, grief, unrest and contentment. It is the time of realization that man alone is not master of his own destiny; that in spite of his scientific achievement man alone cannot create a seed, produce one leaf or ripen a fruit for harvest. In every achievement of man there is the unmistakable sign of a greater power.

Thanksgiving is the season when man pauses in the whirl of activities to give thanks for all the blessings of life, for the laughter of a child, the love of a home, the comforts of prosperity and the sobering influence of hardship. Each man in his own way celebrates Thanksgiving. Each for his own blessings gives thanks.

'Golden Egg' Seen In Food Processing

RALEIGH — The various developments in processing technology during the last few decades have been a tremendous boon to North Carolina's food industries which subsequently have become a large part of the state's diversified economy.

Now one of the most revolutionary of all developments in food technology, the advent of the antibiotic age of food processing, may soon give a "shot in the arm" to the state's multi-million dollar fisheries industry.

Already the development is being regarded as a "golden egg" in the state's huge broiler and turkey industries. Not now, because the same process hasn't been officially cleared as yet for fish and seafood, but sometime in the not too distant future, it may enable the fisheries industries along the North Carolina coast to begin shipping fresh fish and seafoods to new and distant markets never economically feasible before.

This isn't based on fantasy, but fact. Even now, for instance, fishermen in Canada — where the industry is really tremendous — are doing this. It followed recent clearance by the Canadian government of the use of the antibiotic process, "Acronize", on fish.

The process involves the use of the antibiotic aureomycin (chemical name, chlortetracycline) to make fish actually fresher than can be attained with ordinary refrigeration methods alone and keeps fish fresher for at least one week longer than is the case now.

The antibiotic process, developed by American Cyanamid Company, simply does in another way what refrigeration does — halts the growth of bacteria responsible for the deterioration of fish from the time it is caught to the time it reaches the consumer. It does not supplant, but supplements, refrigeration.

The antibiotic process on fish in the United States isn't permissible commercially as yet and can't be until it is given clearance by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which nearly a year ago gave the green light for use of Acronize in the tremendous U.S. poultry processing industry.

Broiler production alone in the United States tops the billion mark, and annual production in this fantastically growing industry is forecast to reach two billion birds by 1961. North Carolina is one of the large broiler producing states.

"Acronize PD," as the formulation for the poultry industry is known, represented the arrival of the antibiotic age of food preservation in the United States, since it is the first antibiotic product for use on food for human consumption ever to get FDA clearance.

In about a year's time Acronize has stimulated the poultry processing industry by permitting plants to extend their market in many cases, and making available to consumers in many areas poultry of a "farm-freshness" entirely new to them.

Additional formulas of Acronize are now being developed for use on read meat and other perishable food products. It is considered to hold greater possibilities for the fish industry than perhaps any other.

For instance, industry sources estimate that at least 17 per cent of the big catch of fish and shellfish in Canada spoils before boats ever dock at the pier, and another six per cent is lost before the fish reaches the market.

The advent of the use of the antibiotic process on fish in the United States would mean for North Carolina fishermen that fishing vessels could stay out longer and range farther out to sea to tap new and unexplored schools of fish.

The most important commercial fish and seafood in North Carolina now are shrimp, menhaden, oysters, mullet, shad, flounder and crabs, although a great variety of fish are caught. The process now cleared by the Canadian government for use on fish and shellfish involves the addition of about 4.5 grams of Acronize to the freezing cans (along with the necessary water) to make a 300-pound cake of ice. The Acronize is used in such small amounts that it has been impossible to detect any remaining in the fish after they are cooked.

Pioneer work in adapting antibiotics to the role of keeping fish fresh longer was done by Dr. Hugh L. A. Tarr and fellow scientists at the Canadian Fisheries Experiment Station, Vancouver, B.C. Their tests started in 1943, showed penicillin was without value for this purpose. By 1950, Dr. Tarr could see promise in the field and in 1955 he reported to a world scientific congress on antibiotics that Aureomycin was five times more effective in retarding food spoilage than any other antibiotic available.

Opinions In Brief

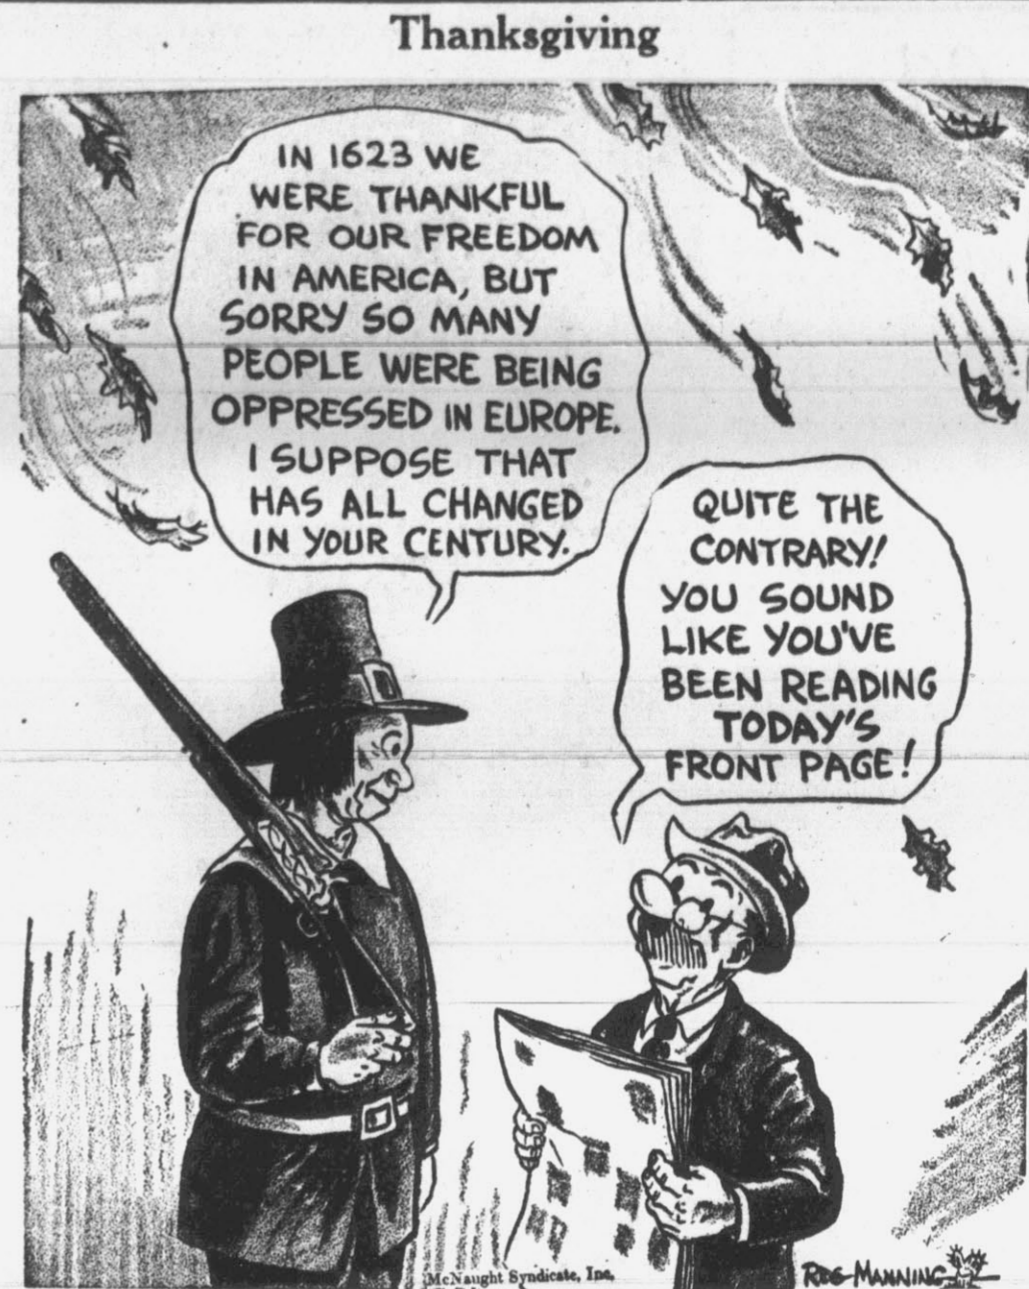

PLENTRY OF ENERGY

A few countries, of which England is one, are embarking on all-out "crash" programs to produce electricity from atomic energy—despite the fact that such programs almost inevitably must be wasteful, and that the end result may be a huge investment in facilities which will quickly become obsolete.

The United States, happily, does not require that kind of atomic program. Here the work can go ahead in an orderly manner, with a minimum of waste and error.

The reason is that we have an abundance of other energy sources—from which to produce power—the most important of those sources being coal. Britain, by contrast, is finding it impossible to mine enough coal for her needs—hence the emphasis on the atom.

The use of coal in power generation is increasing at a rapid pace. It is expected that this trend will continue for a great many years to come. Coal is not only an efficient producer of energy, but it is also an economical one. Extraordinary progress has been made in getting more and more electricity from a given amount of coal.

They Harvested The Sesame

Remember those Sesame seed Frank Diener and his father-in-law, Lonnie McGowan planted last summer?

The pair harvested them Monday. After the big harvest had completed the approximately one-half acre, Diener and McGowan found they had approximately four 50-pound bags of the seed. However the seed are mixed with a considerable amount of bits of stalk and leaves. That means Diener will have to take the bags to Goldsboro where a seed separator is available. There, the unwanted stalk and leaves will be removed and only the seed will remain.

In case you don't know, Sesame seed are tiny things that look somewhat like tomato, and they have a nut flavor and bakers use them in considerable quantities for cookies and other bakery products.

Diener is in the bakery business with his father at People's Bakery and it was for that reason that he persuaded his father-in-law to grow the seed.

McGowan sowed the crop around the first of June. The stalks didn't come up and the seed were sowed a second time around the middle of June.

Whether the crop will be a money maker remains to be seen. Bakers pay about 25 cents per pound for the tiny seed.

Diener says that after the seed are separated he expects around a 100 pounds of seed to remain.

Anyway Diener and McGowan consider the crop a success just on the basis of Monday's harvest. The amount of money the crop brings will determine how successful.

Dixieland Is Nearly Classical

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Right at the peak of the rock 'n' roll madness, an older and less barbarous form of music is enjoying a new renaissance.

They used to call it jazz—and they still do.

If anybody thought the rowdy strains of rock 'n' roll would doom jazz to the musical graveyard, they low-rated the vitality of the Dixieland school of horn blowers and their robust disciples. By the sacred horns of the legendary Big Band era — "He just put that horn to his lips, man, and blew himself straight up to heaven" — jazz is entering a new golden age.

Just 30 years ago jazz was regarded as the juvenile delinquent of the musical world. Today it is the darling of the intellectuals. It is accepted as an art form; it is taught in colleges.

A jazz band led by Dizzy Gillespie even went abroad, with the blessing of the U.S. State Department, to tour for the American way of life.

Jazz is doing well, too, in the realm of the big dollar. Its practitioners are in top demand. Old jazz records are high-priced collectors items, and some 85 companies turn out a total of more than 1,000 new platters each year.

A leading historian of the field, Leonard Feather, has just compiled "The Encyclopedia Yearbook of Jazz," which is a fine prose pudding full of rich plums for fans who like to argue the merits of Count Basie versus Duke Ellington.

Personally, like many other tone-deaf musical illiterates, I thought that rock 'n' roll music was a form of jazz — a sort of retarded stepchild.

While admitting there is a fringe area where it is hard to draw a line between the two, Feather prefers to point out that the best jazz is closer to classical music.

"Rock 'n' roll bears the same relationship to jazz that wrestling bears to boxing," he said. "Rock 'n' roll is not very rarely jazz; it is very rarely music. Its present popularity is a passing fad about which the parents of America need hardly concern themselves."

Rock 'n' roll seems to have a firm grip on millions of high school students. Who, then, are American's jazz fans? Surprisingly, only a few are oldtimers nostalgic for the roaring 20s and the threadbare 30s.

A poll by Feather showed that about half were of college age, only 6.4 per cent were over 30.

Two-thirds of the fans reported they spent from 5 to 20 hours a week listening to jazz music, although one woman reported, "I try for at least 112 hours a week," and another said she devoted 84 hours a week to jazz and 30 to classical music.

Nearly half said they spent from $2 to $5 a week on jazz records, but one fan said his weekly outlay was $25 to $30.

The most cheering note in the whole poll to purist Feather was this: 78.6 per cent of the jazz fans expressed a violent dislike

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE GREAT NOW

Sir William Osler, often referred to as the greatest physician in medical history, had much to say on problems of practical living. He was himself a radiant personality, known and admired throughout the entire scientific world. He knew how to get the most out of every living, to be unspooled by fame, and to carry on his work in a spirit of dedication.

Above everything, he urged people to live their lives day by day and not to be anxious about tomorrow. In his own experience, he attributed his success to the fact that every day he settled down to the work before him, closed the door on yesterday, refused to open it upon tomorrow, and did the best he could with the tasks that were before him. "Life," he declared, "is important when it is lived in the Great Now."

Of course there is a danger in living one's life wholly in the "Great Now." The pleasure lover lives in the present, and so does the person who gives scant respect to the promptings of his conscience. But Osler was right in his claim that worry over yesterday, anxious foreboding over tomorrow, and the many distractions of today can ruin one's purposeful activity. Assuming that a person is honest and sincerely wants to do right, then Osler's counsel about the "Great Now" is 100 per cent sound and the only workable scheme for happy, purposeful living.

Jesus recognized this when he declared, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Other Editors Are Saying.. Civil Defense Becomes Urgent

(Henderson Dispatch)

For years a well meaning State Civil Defense organization in Raleigh has been attempting to stir interest in all counties of the State, and more especially in the east, and in the larger population centers, in the establishment of an effective, workable organization to function in an emergency. At most it has made little headway. There has been too much complacency and too much of a feeling that it is unnecessary.

But the crisis may lie just around the corner. Suddenly and without the slightest note of warning, the men in the Kremlin may launch upon a wild, reckless stroke in a massive effort to subjugate the world. They may lose the atomic and hydrogen bombs they are supposed to have in such abundance. All this may not happen, and please God may the world be spared from it. But it could come — and may.

War may be averted. But who can say but that we are on the very brink? We are so close to it that we cannot afford to assume we are safe and secure.

Under these circumstances, it is highly important, indeed it appears to be almost imperative, that the free world awake to the very real peril it faces.

These cities and counties which do not have Civil Defense units will be wise if they establish them without further delay. Those which do have such organizations will be equally smart if they strengthen their groups as speedily as possible.

It may be at best a leap in the dark. But at least it would be a start in doing all that can be done against a possible sad day of emergency and death. Unless the Middle East trouble is settled promptly, and the threat removed or greatly minimized, we shall be sampling with our own lives if we refuse to heed the warnings on the eastern horizon. Madmen are playing with fire, and the torch could at any moment set off an explosion.

Administration's Power Plans Change

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Fabulous water-power resources now flowing wastefully to seas and lakes may soon be harnessed for residential and industrial use as a result of the public power faction's tremendous victories on November 6.

The Administration's "partnership" program, which benefited the private utilities, may undergo modification in favor of Federal and state development.

The shift contemplated by Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton will not be due entirely to the defeat of several conservative Republicans in the so-called reclamation states of Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, Colorado and Arizona, where so many White House favorites were repudiated, largely on the power issue. The Morse-McKay and Magnuson-Langlie rebuffs were especially significant.

EISENHOWER TO COMPLY WITH POPULAR EXPRESSION It will result also from President Eisenhower's responsiveness to the popular will and mandate. Unlike certain stubborn predecessors, he will not wage a last-ditch, delaying action. He will comply with the ballot-box expression, insofar as it remains in his power. Most of the last undeveloped projects are now before the Federal Power Commission, Congress and the courts.

The most significant and fortunate aspect of this prospect is that the fierce, 50-year struggle over proper and efficient use of our great rivers will come to an end. Besides contributing to economic progress and human comfort, it may remove from politics an issue that has clouded the atmosphere and invariably operated in favor of the Democrats.

Ironically, now that the problem approaches a politico-economic solution, the public power groups cannot agree among themselves, especially on the Niagara River development. Under a treaty with Canada, the Senate reserved to itself the final say over any disposition of the project by the Federal Power Commission.

FPC LICENSE SOUGHT The reservation was sponsored by Senator Herbert H. Lehman of

New York, a Roosevelt-Truman public power disciple, who then wanted Uncle Sam to handle construction and operation. It is opposed by Governor Averell Harriman's New York Power Authority. That agency seeks a license direct from FPC, and maintains that the Lehman restriction is unconstitutional.

Another Roosevelt-Truman lobby, the National Rural Electrification Association, opposes the New York State Power Act provides for preferential service to residential consumers, but not to Clyde T. Ellis' co-operatives. The Federal Act has such a stipulation.

Three New York Republicans back Harriman, and their influence may carry great weight. They are former Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Senator Irving M. Ives and Attorney General Jacob K. Javits, whose declaration for state development helped to elect him to the Senate over Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Even Kids Will Know Results

By ELMER ROESSNER

If present international difficulties mature into a full-scale war, even kids in the fifth grade know what will happen at home. There is a set of plans and proclamations in Washington, with duplicates in a few key places around the country in case the Capital is puffed off the map, that will restrict us all. Restrict is scarcely the word.

Prices and wages will instantly be frozen, materials placed under controls, rationing of almost everything except alcohol imposed and nonessential industries rapidly attenuated. An immediate job-freeze will be quickly replaced with job direction. The next big war, kiddies, will be for real.

But what of a localized conflict, an undeclared war, a new Korea?

What will happen then depends largely on the size and scope of the struggle, and where it takes place. It will depend also on the extent of the United States involvement.

GAS RATIONING POSSIBLE

If there is an conflict in the Middle East on approximately the same scale as the war in Korea, the effects may be much more severe than they were during the Korean campaigns.

Despite all the reassurances that have been made recently, gas rationing would come pretty quick. In fact, it may come if the hubbub in Egypt continues, or breaks out again, along recent lines.

We have plenty of gas and oil in the continental U.S., plus large additional supplies available from Latin America. But we cannot get away from the fact that rupture of the Suez Canal, and dynamiting of pipelines is sharply cutting supplies of oil in Western Europe. Rationing, or something pretty close to it, is already being put into effect.

NO SUDDEN CHANGE

Immediate rationing is not likely. The government will try to work things out and, in fact, may be able to arrange a fair amount of oil for Europe without too much dislocation at home. But while we may be able to spare plenty of oil to keep the continental cars put — putting along, it will be a different matter to supply our allies with reserves needed to maintain their own armed strength.

It is generally believed that governmental reserves in Europe are at a pretty high level. Diplomats and military men have seen the present trouble shaping up for some time. But if it becomes necessary to double or triple these reserves, rationing will be fast approaching here.

First, regional shortages will develop. Then, almost as if in response to public demand, ration areas will be set up, especially on the eastern seaboard.

That much we can have without direct American involvement.

Once our troops are committed, things will be tightened up. Draft calls will be stepped up and, even more disturbing, men with special skills will be called back into the service. The idea, now brewing in the Defense Department, is to take only the superior men but to keep them in training and service longer will get considerable backing.

What will happen beyond that point will depend only on the developments in the theater of war.

One thing to keep in mind: It is virtually impossible to have rationing without price controls, or price controls without rationing. And, as we found out in World War II, it is practically impossible to ration or control one product without similar restrictions on every related and alternate product.

But enough of this. Happy Thanksgiving to you! Eat heartily!

Kasper Freed Of Charges He Incited Rioting

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP)—Segregationist John Kasper has been freed of charges growing out of rioting over racial integration of Clinton High School.

Kasper, 27-year-old executive secretary of the Seaboard White Citizens Council at Washington, D.C., broke into a broad smile when the jury announced the verdict. The all-male jury deliberated 45 minutes.

Kasper had been charged by the state with sedition and inciting to riot because of his activities against the admission of 12 Negroes to Clinton High School under a federal court order Aug. 27.

He had pleaded innocent, and denied the charges. Had he been convicted, the top sentence would have been a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Sixty-eight witnesses — 58 of them for the defense — paraded to the witness stand during the six-day trial.

Correction

In the report of Monday's Police Court in this paper Tuesday, an error occurred in the second paragraph, which should read as follows:

James R. Freeman, Negro, 1501 W. Fourth St., larceny of pipe, 30 days on the roads suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and pay $5 to J. J. Perkins. For larceny of a bed from Julius Snead, the court gave Freeman 30 days on the roads (consecutive), suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is to pay $17 to Julius Snead and behave for two years.

Missing: One Four-Ton Tree

DETROIT (AP)—The Department of Public Works is looking for its four-ton Christmas tree.

It was growing near a Detroit intersection and had to be moved to make way for an expressway. DPW members had loosened the roots and planned to set the tree for the Christmas season on the lawn in front of DPW headquarters.

It disappeared before they could haul it away.

Jaywalking Test Proved A 'Flop'

MAYSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Mayville Jaycees have decided their jaywalking contest was a flop.

In the last three weeks, three of their members have been walking through the downtown business section, jaywalking whenever possible. They carried five and 10-dollar bills with them.

They said any resident could have collected $15 cash just by saying, "you are jaywalking." But nobody did, and to top it off, they said, nearly everyone else was jaywalking, too.

Vets Of World War I To Meet

KINSTON — Dr. J. Philip Malone of Gastonia, Junior Vice Commander of the North Carolina Department, Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A., Inc., and authority on veterans affairs will be the chief speaker at a rally of all World War I veterans in the Lenior County Courthouse in Kinston Friday night, at 7:30 o'clock.

The Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A., Inc., while comparatively new has been making excellent progress during the past four years. They have expanded its operations into 45 states and territories with more than 700 local Barracks, the Department of North Carolina was formed on March 25th, this year and today they have instituted 30 local Barracks. Headquarters of the National Organization is located in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Malone, stated today, that the Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A. is seeking the same policy of treatment by the Government, that is now accorded the Civil War veterans, Spanish-American War veterans and veterans of World War II, obtaining for veterans of World War I the benefits, privilege and preferences which they, through patriotic service and sacrifice to their country in its time of need, "have earned and to which they are justly entitled."

Dr. Malone was also quick to emphasize that his organization was in no way in competition to other veteran organizations, "we will cooperate fully and in a harmonious manner with all veterans' organizations to the end that the best interest of all veterans can best be served" he said. But, he added that "the time has come when the veterans of 1917-18 should get together before its too late. Our organization is exclusive in the fact that our rolls was closed 38 years ago."

World War I veterans in Lenior and surrounding counties are urged to attend the Friday night meeting in Kinston.

1956 Olympic Games Are Opening Action Thursday

Melbourne Conditions Expected To Be Muddy

By TED SMITS
MELBOURNE (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh opens the 16th Olympic Games tomorrow before a sellout 110,000 and there was hope Melbourne's nasty spring weather would turn to warm sunshine.

The dissonance that has plagued the games from the start seems to have melted away amid final preparations for the stately ceremony. More than 4,000 athletes from 68 nations will compete in 16 sports between now and Dec. 8. Major honors are expected to go to the United States and Russia, with Australia and Hungary vying for third place in the unofficial point standings.

For the past seven years, the Melbourne games have been the center of controversy. At the start they were a political football and preparations went so slowly Avery Brundage, International Olympic Committee president, threatened to move the games to another country. Then, in recent weeks, the troubled situation in the Middle East and Hungary brought the withdrawal of seven nations. But to the throngs on the gaily decorated streets of Melbourne all this was forgotten today. The ceremonies, which follow rigid protocol, begin at 3 p.m. Australian time, tomorrow when the Duke of Edinburgh enters the great oval of the Melbourne Cricket Club and service bands play the national anthem.

Then comes the march of athletes in their uniforms of many colors — with team officials, a total of 5,000 men and women. As thousands of pigeons are released, the duke reads the simple words that start this great sports festival. "I declare open the Olympic Games of Melbourne celebrating the 16th Olympiad of the modern era."

Then comes the dramatic arrival of the Olympic torch that was kindled in Greece and brought by plane to Australia. From Darwin to Melbourne it was carried by 2,830 athletes, each running one mile. There will be a brief dedication address by the Archbishop of Melbourne and recitation of the Olympic oath, then, after the national anthem, the athletes march out. Actual competition begins at 4 p.m. when Korea meets Nationalist China in basketball. Russia plays Canada in the second game of the evening.

Full-scale competition starts Friday in track and field, fencing, the modern pentathlon, rowing, field hockey, soccer, weightlifting, and boxing.

Pappy Waldorf
Has Resigned
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf, dean of Pacific Coast Conference football coaches, announced his resignation to his California squad last night.

The 54-year-old Waldorf, head man at California since 1947, said there was "no pressure on me to quit and this was merely the step I've contemplated for quite a while."

He announced the resignation before Cal's big game against Stanford Saturday "to avoid speculation about my future and to prevent pressure on the university."

Waldorf, whose three-year contract expires July 1, has been under fire by alumni groups two years. His salary has been estimated at $15,000 a year.

Trick Golfers To Perform At Club Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:00, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, two of the Nation's top trick shot golfers will give an exhibition. The exhibition will be free of charge and the general public is invited to attend.

Chuch Lewis and his five-year-old professional golfer daughter Linda, have performed throughout the United States over the past several years and have been acclaimed the world's top artists of the green. Lewis performs such tricks as hitting moving balls, hitting from a sitting position, and a so-called Machine gun trick-hitting three swinging balls.

Linda, who started playing golf at the tender age of eight months, is the world's youngest professional. She and her father will do such amazing stunts as the following: hitting off elevated tees, hitting two balls at one time, hitting with a kneeling position, hitting with no backswing, using a seven-foot club, using a club with a buggy whip shaft, using a driver with swivels in the shaft.

On one occasion, Linda employs the trick shot of hitting the ball from her father's mouth. Once asked if she ever took any teeth with her swing, she smiled and said, "Don't give me any ideas."

The California pair have been brought to Greenville by the Greenville Golf and Country Club for the enjoyment of the Greenville public.

Duke Expecting Seventh Victory Over Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Rugged Duke will be seeking his seventh straight victory over North Carolina when they meet Saturday. Odds makers figure the Blue Devils have the power to turn the trick.

North Carolina has shown improvement in recent weeks, but it is doubtful that the Tar Heels can muster enough defensive prowess to stop quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, halfback George Dutton and the host of other Duke backs.

The game will mark the close of a disappointing season for the Tar Heels, who have won two, lost six and tied one. Duke, which has shown flashes of old Blue Devil power at times, has a 4-4-1 record.

Jurgensen, 190-pound ace from Wilmington, and Ed Sutton, hard-running North Carolina halfback from Cullowhee, heads 20 seniors who will be playing in this colorful series for the first time.

Ten players from North Carolina and 10 from Duke bow out. The Tar Heels and other Duke foes will be glad to see the pesky Jurgensen graduate, for he has been a major factor in Duke's offense. Duke Coach Bill Murray has described the husky redhead as one of the best backs he has ever seen.

A knee injury against Virginia kept Jurgensen out of the Tennessee game. He came off the bench to spark Duke to a 14-6 victory over "SMU" in a brief action against North Carolina State and played for only two plays against Pittsburgh.

Newcombe Chosen MVP

NEW YORK (AP)—Pitcher Don Newcombe, whose 27 victories made him the biggest Brooklyn winner in 32 years, was voted today the Most Valuable Player in the National League for 1956 by the Baseball Writers Assn.

The big right-hander edged out his mound mate Sal Maglie by a scant 40 points. Seven players received first-place nominations by 94 voting writers. Five accumulated more than 100 points.

Not since Hank Sauer nosed out Robin Roberts and Joe Black in a three-way battle for the 1952 award has there been such a close race. The 30-year-old Newcombe, who lost only seven games all season and but two of his last 20 decisions, topped the list with 223 points. His subpar World Series performance — he was knocked out of the box in both starts — did not figure in the balloting.

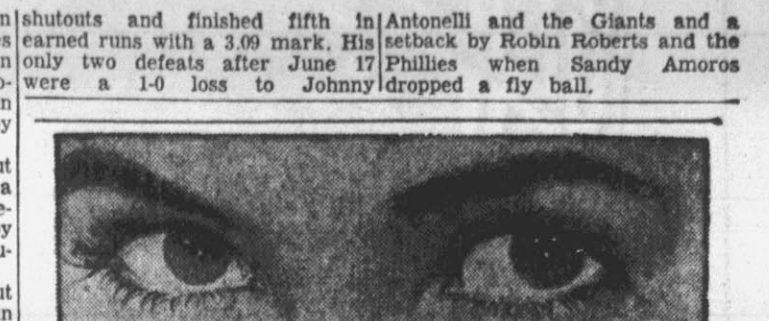

Maglie, who won 13 games including a no-hitter while losing only five after joining the Dodgers in mid-May, was second with 183 points. Then came Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, 146, and Warren Spahn, 126. Junior Gilliam, another Dodger, rounded out the first five with 103 points.

In all, 32 players received recognition, 11 of them pitchers. Eight Dodgers were named, but Roy Campanella, who got his third MVP award last year, wasn't among them.

Only one rookie was honored in the voting. He is Frank Robinson, the Redlegs' slugging left fielder, who placed seventh with 79 points. Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers was eighth; Stan Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' all-time great, was ninth; and Duke Snider, also Brooklyn, was tenth.

Roy McMillan, Cincinnati shortstop, was sixth with 96 points. Newcombe, who weighs 230 pounds 6-4, enjoyed by far his greatest season. In registering his third 20-game season, he racked up the most victories by a Dodger pitcher since Dazzy Vance won 28 in 1924. Don started 36 games and completed 18. He turned in five shutouts and finished fifth in earned runs with a 3.09 mark. His only two defeats after June 17 were a 1-0 loss to Johnny Droppa a fly ball.

CHAPTER 18

Mrs. Gordonstoun glanced at the photograph of Perry, then quickly away again. "But, as though drawn to it by an ashamed fascination, she glanced back, kept her gaze on it for a few moments. "Well?" she said without emotion.

"The man in that photograph is called Perry," Casson went on. "He lives in London. He is unmarried. I know for a certainty that he has blacked out three people. For his first victim he used the name Martin. His victim committed suicide. For the second coup he used a second name. His second victim is still alive and will remain alive for at least twenty years. That means two decades of fear in case the blackmailer appears again. You are the third victim, and with you he will have used yet another false name. I do not know what it is."

He paused, hoping that she would automatically answer his question and thus commit herself. She said nothing.

"In the first two cases," he went on, "Perry blackmailed his victims for things which they had not done." Her eyelids flickered. "When he blackmailed you yesterday morning he blackmailed you also for something which you had not done."

"Perry pointed out to you that if you did not pay what he demanded he would see to it that the authorities, or your husband—again her eyelids flickered—"or someone dear to you would be made aware of his charges. He explained to you that you dare not take this risk because you could never disprove the allegation. He pointed out that, for the same reason you would not dare take him to court. He promised you that he would never visit you again, reassuring you with his theory that the clever criminal never milks the same victim twice. He then suggested that you should accompany him to Gamman's Bank, where you have your account; that you should draw a sum of money from the bank in pound notes—a sum you could just afford without declaring it to

Under any circumstances whatsoever, give evidence against your blackmailer."

Casson was silent.

"In four months' time," he said at length, "someone else will be blackmailed. It may be a young girl. She may take an overdose of sleeping pills. She might have been your daughter."

"She might, Mr. Duker. But I have no daughter and I do have a husband. I must protect what I have."

Don't miss the meeting of Casson and Perry in this newspaper tomorrow.

for rock 'n' roll.

"Beyond any doubt," he said, "the rhythm-and-blues — or rock 'n' roll — fan and the jazz fan are two different species, scarcely ever overlapping."

As one staid collegiate jazz scholar put it:

"I wouldn't be caught dead at a rock 'n' roll concert unless I was doing research for a paper on mass hysteria!"

your husband — and that you should hand it to him in the street outside the bank. When you had done that he disappeared."

She put down her teacup.

"You knew he was going to do this?" Casson did not reply. "Why did you not have him arrested?" she went on.

Casson spread out his hands in a gesture of confession.

"I failed," he began.

"Failed?" she said, her voice rising slightly. "Yes, indeed. You failed to warn me. You allowed me to be blackmailed. You let me be put in a position from which I could never extricate myself. You let me brand myself guilty of something I had never done. All because you were careless enough to fail."

"I did not know that much," he explained. "I knew Perry had selected a victim on this side of the Square."

"But you must have known who it was . . ."

"Then how did you know that he had chosen this side of the Square?"

"I followed him, Mrs. Gordonstoun. I followed him night and day."

"Oh," she said. "I see. I am sorry."

"I had hoped," he continued, "to get from him some indication of his victim's identity, to warn the victim, and to trap Perry as he pounced."

"Why have you got all this, Mr. Duker?"

"Some men collect postage stamps," he replied. "Some, like your husband stalk stags. I collect human beings who live along the fringes of illegality."

"It must be an amusing game," she observed coldly.

"In this case," he went on, "I am hunting the man Perry because one man has died and another goes in fear, and a woman, a brave woman, will have nightmares."

"Yes," she answered, speaking very softly. "Yes. Naturally. I am sorry for your sake that you failed to trap Mr. Perry."

Casson smiled.

"I didn't fail . . . you mean you're going to arrest him? And bring him into a court?"

"With your help."

"Oh."

"You can give evidence against him. That evidence will send him to gaol. Your name will never be mentioned in court. Will you help?"

"Certainly not."

"Why not, Mrs. Gordonstoun?"

"When Fenton came here yesterday . . . She indicated the photograph of Bagot. "This man. He said his name was Fenton. He had the . . . the impertinence to suggest to me that I was something that was utterly untrue. He suggested that my husband would not be pleased to learn of it."

"But your husband would never believe him!"

"Are you married, Mr. Duker?"

He shook his head and she appeared to muse, absent-mindedly removing her rings and placing them on the tea-tray. When she spoke again he was startled by the cold sincerity in her voice.

"Marriage is a curious experience. Mr. Duker. It teaches you many things. It teaches you, for example, that life is a mixture of — she hesitated for a second — of love and discipline and pettiness. Fenton's threat was fit only for a cheap novelette. But there is a part of everybody's mind which yearns to believe in cheap novelettes. It is trash and it is untrue, and that is why people believe it."

"Neil, my husband," she went on, "is a good man. He is what my grandfather would have called an upright man. I am very fond of him. He is devoted to me. He is also devoted to his principles. Neil might not believe this absurd accusation, but it would stick in his mind. And that is why I will not

Can Lay Thanks To 'County Fairs'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As US Navy men around the world sit down to their Thanksgiving dinners they will have cause to thank "County Fairs" for the excellent flavor of the turkeys.

Navy Food Service Teams have been touring the world since 1953, bent on improving the meals served aboard ships and at shore stations.

When the teams first started their two-week visits to Navy galleys, resistance to their kitchen and dining hall tips developed from some of the old timers. They didn't like "outsiders" in their galleys, and the idea lingered that the food service team experts were holding an inspection.

The "county fair" is the plan that the teams have adopted to counter this unfounded idea. At the "Fairs", cooks from galleys in the area watch and judge the results of the visiting cooks and bakers.

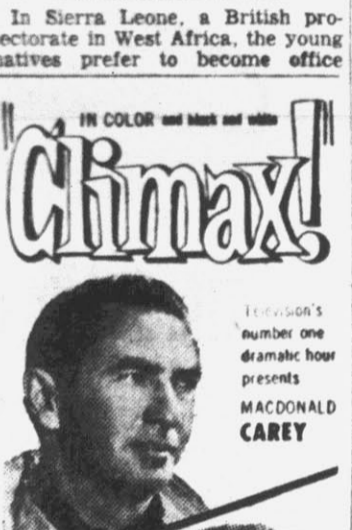

As the pies, cakes, salads, meats and other dishes are turned out by the team of experts, local cooks judge and score them. While nobody gets a blue ribbon for "best in show", this scoring leads to lively, informal discussions of the right and wrong methods of food preparation. To get the feminine viewpoint, wives of the cooks are also invited.

Over 600 commands have been visited — and improved — by the eight teams stationed throughout the world. The idea for teaching teams was worked out by the Navy in cooperation with the Food Service Advisory Committee of the National Security Industrial Association, a group which has been helping the Navy since 1946 to plan better use of excellent food — at less expense to tax-payers.

To operate the vast army of mechanized equipment used each year in the pulpwood industry, it is estimated from 60 to 80 million gallons of gasoline and other liquid fuels are consumed.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels, oils and shipbuilding shares moved ahead in active turnover to lead the stock market moderately higher early this afternoon. Key issues ran ahead two points or more.

Profit-taking shaved gains, however, and dealings slowed as the rally subsided.

The rise in steels, oils and shipbuilding issues stemmed from the international crisis which shows no signs of being near a solution. Another factor is the dockworkers strike where the government said it intended to seek an injunction this afternoon to stop longshoremen from insisting on a coast-to-coast bargaining unit.

Lukens Steel, an acrobatic performer recently, was off more than 4 points. Solid though small gains were posted by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic.

Bath Iron Works moved up 2 points. Newport News Shipbuilding, which had gone ahead more than 1 during the rally, clung to part of that.

Superior Oil of California shot ahead 31 points at 1050. Amerasia gained more than 1 and so did Continental Oil. Earlier Continental had advanced 3 following its proposed split and higher dividend.

Motors, chemicals and metals generally were spotty. Chrysler ahead nearly a point earlier slipped an equal amount. General Motors and Ford were lower.

Union Carbide dropped more than a point. Du Pont surrendered nearly that much and Allied Chemical was lower. American Cyanamid and Air Reduction posted small gains.

Rails were generally higher, led by Chesapeake & Ohio which gained more than a point. Also ahead were Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway and Illinois Central.

Oils with resources in the Middle East moved ahead. Small gains were chalked up by Sinclair, Royal Dutch, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Texas Co. Gulf Oil, however, clung to the downside.

Eastman Kodak advanced more than a point.

Utilities inched forward with International Telephone, American Telephone and Consolidated Natural Gas leading the way. Slightly lower were Southern Cal.

Idaho Freshman Is Charged With Dormitory Fires

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—Paul D. Matovich, a 20-year-old University of Idaho freshman, was charged with first-degree arson last night and the state law enforcement commissioner said his arrest solved a dormitory fire Oct. 19 in which three students perished.

Commissioner Earle Koehler said the arrest also solved three other dormitory fires at the university Oct. 12, 13 and 14.

Matovich waived preliminary hearing when he was arraigned before a justice of the peace and was bound over for Circuit Court under $40,000 bond.

He was charged only with setting fire to Chrisman Hall Oct. 13. Lloyd G. Martinson, Latah County prosecutor, said Matovich admitted setting that blaze.

Martinson reported Matovich had a previous record of setting fires.

Announcements From St. Paul's

Thanksgiving Day at St. Paul's Episcopal Church will be observed with Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and presentation of gifts to Thompson Orphanage.

St. Paul's Parish will participate in the Union Thanksgiving service at St. James Methodist Church at 10:30 a. m.

Regular services are scheduled for Sunday at 7:30 a.m., 9:30 a.m., 11:15 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Speaker 'Not Surprised' By Egypt's Early Defeat

The Rev. Firman A. Cuthriell, pastor of the Berea Baptist Church in Elizabeth City, discussed Israel and Egypt at St. James Methodist Church last night.

Rev. Cuthriell spoke following the regular monthly meeting of the St. James Methodist Men's Club.

Rev. Cuthriell described Egypt as a backward nation. He showed pictures which he took on a recent tour of the Middle East to illustrate his talk. He pointed to an ancient sail boat which is used to carry wheat to market in Egypt.

Cairo is a mixture of many small houses and buildings and a few large structures, Rev. Cuthriell said. The Egyptians have little initiative when it comes to fighting. They have the military equipment but don't know how to use it, he said.

"I wasn't surprised when the Jewish army put them to flight," Rev. Cuthriell declared.

For Israel, on the other hand, the war for land in the Middle East is not a point of politics "but they are still going on a promise made by God to Moses."

"The Promised Land is not theirs yet and they have made up their minds to take it," the minister declared.

He showed pictures of Jerusalem which is divided between Egypt and Israel. Egypt has the old side of the city, he noted and streets are very narrow, many not wide enough for automobiles. The Israeli side has wider streets and more modern buildings.

The minister's talk followed the meeting of the Methodist Men's Club.

Graham Quinn, president of the club presided. Devotionals were given by Frank Steinbeck. Frank Strawn was program committee chairman.

Rev. Cuthriell was introduced by the Rev. Malloy Owen, pastor of the church.

Court Disposes Of Two Cases

One divorce was granted in Pitt Superior Court yesterday and a judgment entered in another case.

A divorce was granted on grounds of two years of separation in the case of Mildred Lily Eubanks vs. Bennie Lee Eubanks.

In the case of L. Jay Mobley vs. Wesley Dixon the judgment ordered the plaintiff to recover $35 from the defendant for injury to a dog owned by the plaintiff caused by a dog owned by the defendant.
