City Has Big Part Of Tax Values In Agricultural Pitt

BY JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County, the world's largest producer of bright leaf tobacco, has 37 per cent of its county-wide taxes paid by city folks. At least, city real estate accounts for 37 per cent of the 1956 tax valuation of $71,105,366. Tax Supervisor Harold Allred made the finding in a study of the county's tax structure. The study was made to determine the relationship of real and personal property listings and to set up work schedules and routes according to township property valuations. Farm real estate accounts for 30 per cent of the total valuation, according to the study, and commercial stock, fixtures and equipment accounts for another 11 per cent. Insofar as township valuations are concerned, Greenville township owns 38 per cent of the county's evaluated property. Farmville Township is a distant second with ten per cent and Ayden is third with seven per cent. The study made by Allred includes only county-wide tax situations. He did not attempt to break down percentages of school tax collections because of differences in the school districts. Among the more surprising things found in the study are the breakdowns of tax shares. Whites own 89 per cent of the evaluated property in the county, Negroes account for five per cent and corporation excess is valued at six per cent of the total bill. Corporation excess represents certain property owned by different corporations in excess of locally listed property. It includes such things as power lines, railroad tracks and stations, and other corporation property which passes through Pitt County. In the overall tax-picture, the corporation excess holds its six per cent standing. Motor vehicles account for seven per cent; household furniture and farm equipment (including livestock, harvesters, tobacco curers and similar items) account for seven per cent; another surprising finding; and other property takes care of the remaining two per cent. In the township valuations, Be- lue and Winterville are even at five per cent apiece; Grifton holds four per cent; Arthur, Belvoir, Carolina, Chicod, Falkland, Grim- esland and Pactolus are even at three per cent each; and Swift Creek and Fountain are rated at two per cent each. The distinct edge held by city real estate in the valuation totals is attributed to the sharp rise in urban building since World War II and the low value of a great deal of "farm" land. Allred points out in the study that there are large areas in the county which are cut-off forests, pocosins, creek banks or low-ground sections. The city real estate listings also include all potential urban areas although the majority of the listings are already inside municipal limits. Allred explained that developments such as Greenville's Lakewood Pines and Farmville's Lincoln Park are included in the city real estate figure because of their potentiality.

Car Fared Worse Than Riders

Some Gun

COLUMBIA, Ga. (AP)—Maj. C. W. Parks (Ret.) bought a shotgun Wednesday. That afternoon he took it out for the first time and fired it just once. He bagged a squirrel. Thanksgiving morning, he went hunting again and fired the gun just once. He got two turkey gobblers with the one shot (one barrel of light powder, No. 6 shot). He was hunting squirrel when the turkeys walked up behind him. He fired at one—the only one he saw—and both turkeys dropped.

Another Clash Over Egypt For UN Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The General Assembly appeared headed today for another clash over British, French and Israeli troops camped in Egypt. The United States reportedly backed new demands that they pull out at once. Diplomats said the U.S. delegation had thrown its support behind an Asian-African resolution calling for the troop withdrawal. The resolution was expected to be introduced before the 79-nation Assembly today. U.S. chief delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. reportedly decided to back the resolution after conferring with President Eisenhower in Washington. A U.S. source said the United States and India also would join in sponsoring a resolution to authorize U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to negotiate contracts for clearance of the blocked Suez Canal. The resolution also would praise Hammarskjold's work in setting up the U.N. police force. When the 21 Asian-African sponsors of the new withdrawal resolution met to put finishing touches on it, some of the group reportedly wanted to set a deadline for the invaders to get out. Later they decided to ask the Assembly to note "with grave concern" that Britain, France and Israel had not yet complied with its decisions of Nov. 2 and 7 that they should withdraw from Egypt. The new resolution then repeated the previous calls for withdrawal. The British, French and Israelis have pulled out some troops. But they said before a complete pullback, the U.N. must insure free navigation through the Suez Canal after it is reopened and must guarantee Israel against Arab attacks and economic blockade. U.S. support for the Asian-African resolution would widen the split between America and her Western partners. It collides head-on with the British stand spelled out in the House of Commons yesterday by acting Prime Minister R. A. Butler. Butler said British-French withdrawal would not take place until the U.N. force is "competent" to (1) keep peace between Egypt and Israel, (2) insure restoration of "secure freedom of navigation" through the canal and (3) achieve unhindered use of the waterway by world shipping in accordance with the six principles adopted last month by the Security Council.

Stalled Car Hit By Train Today

The driver of a car which stalled at a train crossing this morning managed to get children out of the vehicle before an oncoming train struck it. Ptl. D. E. Perry, who investigated the accident, identified the driver of the vehicle as Mae Perkins Little, Negro, of Stokes Rt. 1. The Little woman told the patrolman that she was headed west on the Big Oak Road and she slowed down for the railroad crossing. The car choked down with the front end on the track. She got the children out of the car and no one was in it when the train struck. The Atlantic Coast Line train was traveling south on the Farmville-Washington track, Perry reported. Its engineer was identified as D. T. Sallinger. Damage to the car was estimated at $250. No charges were placed.

Prisoner Dies While At Work

A prisoner assigned to the local prison camp died while at work this morning. He was identified by Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson as Edward Allen Mathews, 27, of Battleboro Rt. 1. He was reported to have been working at Helen's Cross Road when he was stricken this morning. Acting Coroner George Wilkerson said a doctor's examination indicated that Mathews died of a heart attack. Capt. Paul Crawford of the prison camp said Mathews was sentenced from Edgecombe County last June to two years in prison after being convicted on charges of larceny of an automobile.

Train Ran Into 5-Ton Boulder

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP)—A Reading Co. passenger train rammed into a 5-ton boulder today inside the line's Phoenixville tunnel. The train went on with a damaged engine after workers removed the rock. The train was en route from Philadelphia to Reading. The company said the boulder apparently was jarred from the tunnel roof by frequent vibration. Another train went through the tunnel 45 minutes before the crash.

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—The way the police heard it, Mrs. Asa Redrow decided she'd had enough husbandly advice on how to roast the Thanksgiving turkey. She threw the bird at her husband, Redrow ducked. First Withdrawal From Port Said Scheduled By Anglo-French Leader

CAIRO (AP)—The commander of the British-French forces in Egypt announced today that Britain will withdraw one battalion "almost immediately" from the Port Said area. This evidently is the token withdrawal which the British had promised U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold. Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, who commands the allies' headquarters on Cyprus, said in Port Said that "as fast as U. N. troops arrive, the British and French will get out." The French have announced they have a ready withdrawal of about a third of the forces they landed in the Suez Canal zone. Despite Keightley's assurance, Britain's acting Prime Minister told the House of Commons yesterday that the British and French would not pull out of the canal zone until they regarded the U. N. Middle East police force "competent" to carry out its mission. That includes reopening the canal and keeping it open to ships of all nations, Butler said. The commander of the U. N. police force moved quickly today to get his headquarters here in operation. But there was further delay in sending his troops to stations to reduce the danger of a renewal of fighting in the canal zone. Reaching Cairo yesterday to take over his new command, Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns set about organizing a temporary headquarters at the Semiramis Hotel on the Nile. He scheduled a meeting with Col. Salah Gohar, head of Egypt's Palestine department of the Foreign Office, and planned an early visit to Port Said, British-French held city at the northern end of the canal. The U. N. force led by Burns now total nearly 1,000 men in Egypt. Plans call for it to be increased to some 6,000. Most of the troops still are in the assembly area at Abu Suweir, an airfield behind the Egyptian lines near the midway point on the canal. One company of 190 Norwegian troops has moved into Port Said for the announced purpose of lessening tension between the city's Egyptian population and the British-French occupation forces. So far their mission has been largely symbolic. Now made up of Swedes, Norwegians, Danes, Colombians, Indians and Yugoslavs, the police force is armed with rifles, machine guns and antitank weapons. Burns said it would fight if attacked, but he emphasized it is chiefly a moral and symbolical force. Urgently confronting the U. N. command was the continued presence of British, French and Israeli troops in Egypt and another Egyptian warning that fighting would break out again if the invasion forces do not withdraw. The latest Egyptian assertion came from Wing Cmdr. Ali Sabry, chief political adviser to President Nasser. He declared in a broadcast interview that British, French and Israeli forces have no right to wait for buildup of U. N. forces before they pull out of Egypt. He did not, however, set any deadline for a withdrawal. Sabry told his countrymen they must remain alert despite the reported beginnings of a British, French and Israeli withdrawal. "Our experience of the past 29 months conclusively shows governments who attacked us have deceit in their blood," Sabry declared. Burns reviewed the U. N. forces at Abu Suweir before coming to Cairo and said: "It is wear to be seen that the participating nations have sent a very good body of troops for this new unprecedented force."

Freak Snowstorm Ties Up City; State Of Emergency

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—A howling storm dumped two feet of snow on this lakeport city today, paralyzing transportation and business. A state of emergency was declared. Mayor Arthur Gardner declared the emergency and asked Gov. George M. Leader for National Guard aid. The Weather Bureau forecast more snow for the community of 130,000—third largest in Pennsylvania. Nearly all industry and business came to a standstill as workers found it impossible to get to their jobs. There was no public transportation within the city. Main traffic arteries, including Routes 5 and 20 which connect Buffalo and Cleveland, were plugged tight by the deep snow. Mayor Gardner called a meeting of all emergency and relief units in the city to discuss the situation. He put out a general call for all citizens to join in helping to clear streets. The heavy snowfall, which began early yesterday, stopped about 4 a. m. today except for scattered flurries. The Weather Bureau said the snowfall in midtown Erie measured 24 inches from 3 a. m. yesterday to 4 a. m. today. At Erie Airport, where all flights were canceled, the fall was estimated at 33 inches. Amazed residents watched lightning bolts flash across the sky accompanied by loud claps of thunder, as the storm raged through the night. Gusts of wind up to 45 miles an hour made visibility zero. Banks announced they wouldn't open today. Few stores were expected to open. Many small communities were shut off from milk deliveries. The storm, moving in from Lake Erie, extended about 50 miles west into Ohio and all along the shoreline east to Buffalo, N.Y. "It's a real mess," said William J. Pope, Erie County highway superintendent. "Some of my snowplow crews are fighting drifts on main roads which are up to seven feet high." Hundreds of motorists were trapped by the sudden storm, which began early Thanksgiving Day. Farmers, motel and hotel operators, restaurants—and many housewives—opened their doors to strangers and fed and sheltered them. State police abandoned their family dinners and rushed to emergency duty. They checked auto after auto to see that no one tried to sit out the storm. Hundreds of highway crewmen fought a losing battle to clear the roads. Visibility was zero as wind gusts up to 40 miles an hour filled the air with snow. All public transportation was halted in Erie. Police used chain equipped cruisers for emergency hospital cases. Many nurses stayed on duty overnight. Practically all industries in Erie closed down. General Electric Co., employing about 10,000, was first to announce it would make no attempt to operate today. Radio stations stayed on the air all night to give listeners the latest weather information. A double shift of firemen was put on duty at every fire station. The Red Cross was called out to tend a hand to stranded motorists. Route 5 east of Erie to Buffalo was closed by the storm early today. Route 20 remained open but single lane traffic was in effect and was "very dangerous," police warned. They urged all motorists to stay out of the Erie area.

Another Irate Male Took Swing At Elvis; Landed In Durance Vile, Unhurt

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Louis John Balint, 19, took a swing at entertainer Elvis Presley in a downtown bar early today, but no one was hurt. Haled into Municipal Court today on a charge of disturbing the peace, Balint pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs of $9.60. When he could not produce the money, he was sentenced to serve out the penalty by spending seven days in the workhouse. Presley had gone on to Cleveland for a personal appearance. Balint, who had separated from his wife three weeks ago, told police he was unhappy because his wife carried a picture of Presley in her wallet, but no picture of Balint. The commotion was in a bar at the Commodore Perry Hotel. The police who answered a call said Presley was making out all right when they arrived. He told them the circumstances and was not detained. "This guy walks up to me," said Presley, "and says 'you . . . my wife carries a picture of you in her wallet, but doesn't carry one of me. Let's step out.'"

More Hungarian Refugees Find Haven In U. S.

CAMP KILMER, N. J. (AP)—A second Freedom Flight today brought 75 more Hungarian refugees to America, including an eye-witness to last month's Budapest bloodbath. Less than two hours after a Trans-American DC4 landed at McGuire Air Force Base, a one-time postal inspector told newsmen here that the Oct. 23 revolt began as a peaceful student demonstration and was turned into a mass slaying by secret police and Russian tanks. Speaking through an interpreter for himself and several others aboard the plane, the inspector, who declined to give his name, said at least 400 men, women and children were mowed down by the tank cannon in the main square of Budapest on Oct. 24. Several died at his feet, he added. Before talking to newsmen, the 40-year-old inspector and the other passengers ate their first meal on American soil—orange juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, marmalade, hot chocolate, coffee and milk. After a fast medical checkup and a speedy trip through customs they went to catch a few hours sleep before their processing by immigration and welfare agencies. Their plane landed at McGuire in the middle of a cold night and they immediately boarded buses for Kilmer. Karoly Wunder, carrying his sleeping 4-year-old son Johan, was the first passenger off the plane. He was followed by his wife, Gabrielle. WACs held four bundled babies. The 35 men, 25 women and 15 children looked weary from their 35-hour Vienna flight delayed by headwinds. The group as a whole was young with most of the adults in 20s and 30s. The oldest man aboard was James Scenerel, 57. All were reasonably well-dressed. Many of the women wore slacks and leather boots. Brig. Gen. Sidney C. Wooten, commander of Camp Kilmer, greeted the newcomers. A group of Camden citizens, who had waited half the night, presented toys to the children as they boarded the buses. The processing of the latest arrivals by immigration and health officials was to begin this morning after several hours of sleep in renovated Army barracks.

Presidential Board Racing Time In Dock Strike Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential inquiry board raced today to finish a report on the East-Gulf Coast waterfront strike so the government can apply before the weekend for a court injunction to end the walkout. The board operated in high gear under the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley law, invoked by President Eisenhower in a Thanksgiving Day executive order. The strike, in its eighth day, has idled 60,000 longshoremen along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and tied up an estimated 200 ships to cripple ocean trade. The White House said the stoppage was serious and had "repercussions far beyond the maritime industry." Under the national emergency provisions—the government's toughest anti-strike weapon—the three-man inquiry board named by the President must file its fact-finding report with the White House before the Justice Department can move for an 80-day back-to-work court order. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. said in advance it will obey such an injunction when issued. This seemed to insure resumption of port activity next week. It was indicated that if the inquiry board files its report early enough this afternoon Eisenhower will probably order the Justice Department to move into court for the injunction right away. Otherwise, the court move would come tomorrow, probably in New York Federal District Court. Thomas W. Holland, university professor and chairman of the inquiry board, said the board wanted to "get out our report as fast as possible." By law, it must be made public. Holland arranged closed hearings this morning with representatives of the striking I.L.A. Employer groups from Philadelphia and Jacksonville, Fla., also were to testify. The board heard last night from representatives of the New York Shipping Assn. and the Steamship

Conservatives Back Up Eden Despite Big Rift

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative party closed ranks last night behind Sir Anthony Eden, dispelling any immediate prospect that the ailing prime minister might give up the reins of the British government. Dissatisfied Conservatives in Parliament appeared to have abandoned—for the time being, at least—any thought of a serious revolt against Eden's handling of the Suez Canal crisis. It was conceded generally that nothing short of such a revolt, or a really crippling illness, could force Eden to throw in his hand. The apparent restoration of party unity was achieved on the eve of Eden's departure tonight for a rest in Jamaica. It came at a meeting of the "1922 Committee," an organization of all Conservative members of the House of Commons who hold no office in the government. Reports leaking out of the conference agreed that R. A. Butler, Eden's deputy and political heir apparent, and Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan, another possible future prime minister, had succeeded in rallying the party behind the government. Dissidents who had criticized the invasion of Egypt as unwise were said to have been persuaded that what's done is done and that the government is now doing all it can to help the United Nations pick up the pieces. Another group who felt that the government was now taking too passive a line and thus letting itself be deprived of any fruits of victory in Egypt received assurances that British forces will not withdraw until "effective" U.N. control has been established.

Generally Quiet Thanksgiving Holiday For Citizens Of Pitt

Greenville and Pitt County residents had a generally quiet Thanksgiving Day. No highway or other traffic fatalities were reported by the Highway Patrol, city policemen reported three minor traffic mishaps and a slight rash of drunks, and the county jail had no new business from 2:30 a. m. until 6 p. m. Approximately 350 persons attended a Union Thanksgiving service at St. James Methodist Church. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Irby B. Jackson of Immanuel Baptist Church. Reverend was assisted by other Greenville ministers in conducting the service. A small crowd, mostly parents, attended the city's Midget Football League championship playoff at East Carolina College stadium and saw the Reds win 20-6. Other sports fans spent the afternoon watching television accounts of traditional Thanksgiving games, one a professional college game the Green Bay Packers and the Detroit Lions and the other a college game between Cornell and Pennsylvania. Outside activity during the day was slowed by a chilly wind that blew despite generally clear skies. Mrs. Leland Mizell, Department of Commerce weather observer, said this morning that the temperature last night dropped to 25 degrees, seven degrees below freezing, to give the Greenville area its coldest night since last winter. Highway traffic in the county was heavy throughout the day and late afternoon hours. Two holiday wrecks were reported by the Highway Patrol and city police reported two pedestrian injuries and one minor wreck.

Betty Sue Staton, Mr. Garcia Wed Yesterday

Miss Betty Sue Staton became the bride of John Jacob Garcia Thursday at four o'clock in the afternoon in the Mount Pleasant Christian Church of Greenville. The Rev. Donald G. Weldon officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Vows were exchanged before an altar flanked by seven-branched candelabra with arrangements of plumosa behind which stood tall arrangements of white gladioli and pom poms, interspersed with fever few. Pews were marked with white satin ribbons and sprays of lilies-of-the-valley.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. E. R. Fierman, organist, and Miss Barbara Jenkins, vocalist, who sang "O Promise Me" by R. De Koven, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by R. M. Stults, and "The Wedding Prayer" by Fern Glasgow Dunlap as the benediction. Traditional wedding marches by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn were used.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a white-length gown of white lace over satin of princess style, fashioned with boat neckline and bouffant skirt. The long sleeves ended in points over the wrists.

Her two-tiered veil of silk and tulle illusion extended from a half hat of lace outlined with seed pearls.

She carried a white lace covered prayer book topped with white orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. Satin streamers tied with fern extended from the center.

Miss Nurita Mayo of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress of pink lace was fashioned in a style similar to the bride's with short sleeves. She wore mits of the same material as her gown, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and white pom poms set in pink tulle and from which extended pink streamers.

Milton Spain of Greenville was best man. Ushers were Roger Bullock of Greenville, Billy Staton, Charles Staton, and Lonnie Staton, brothers of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Staton chose a fine silk faille dress of Dior blue with which she wore black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party received guests in the vestibule of the church.

For her wedding trip through the New England States, Mrs. Garcia changed to a cocoa brown costume dress featuring empire waist and long sleeves. Over this she wore a set of mink furs. Her accessories were in complementing shades of brown and her corsage was of white, purple-throated orchids.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Leondias Staton of Greenville. She is a graduate of Greenville High School and is now attending Baker's Business College in Greenville.

The bridegroom is the son of Theodore Garcia of Riverside, California and Mrs. Mary A. Stewart of Monterey Park, Calif. He served in the United States Coast Guard and is now a junior at East Carolina College. For the past four years he has made his home in Greenville with Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bullock.

Upon their return from a wedding trip the couple will be at home on Route 6, Greenville.

The event took place at the Mount Pleasant Community Building where Mrs. Mayo received the guests.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of white mums flanked by burning tapers, and festooned with fern and dainty white flowers. A green backdrop behind the refreshment table outlined in ivy and framing satin wedding bells tied with white net highlighted the decorations.

Pouring punch was Mrs. Clifton Bullock. Miss Roselyn Waters served the three-tiered wedding cake, while guests served themselves to cheese wafers and buttered nuts.

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white carnations by her hostesses.

Some thirty-eight guests attended.

Old-Time Sauce Makes Left-Over Bird A Feast

A sauce for roast turkey adapted from an old-time sauce that may well have been served to Queen Victoria, "makes a feast" of left-over turkey at the Norwalk, Connecticut home of Margaret Farm, Mrs. Rudkin, who collects old cook books, said her version of a recipe she found in a collection of Charles Francatelli, a famous 19th century cook, who had been a pupil of Careme, cook to Queen Victoria.

"Naturally, there is no substitute for American Thanksgiving Day turkey gravy," Mrs. Rudkin said. "But the turkey usually outlasts the gravy in our house and we all look forward to finishing it up with this wonderful sauce."

Here is Mrs. Rudkin's version of the sauce. She suggests using it over turkey on steamed rice or toast.

Poivrade Sauce
1 tablespoon butter
1-4 cup celery, diced
1 tablespoon onion, chopped fine
1-8 teaspoon thyme, minced
1-4 teaspoon whole black pepper
3 or 4 whole cloves
1/2 cup cooked ham, cut in 1-4 inch cubes
1 10-ounce can consommé
1 tablespoon tarragon wine vinegar

1 carrot, cut in thin slices
1 tablespoon flour, if desired
1 teaspoon (approx.) bottled brown sauce
Melt butter. Add celery, onion, parsley, thyme, whole pepper, cloves and cooked ham. Saute until light brown. Add consommé, tarragon, wine vinegar and carrot slices. Cook slowly until carrot slices are tender (about 15 minutes). Strain. Thicken with flour if desired. Add bottled brown sauce for additional color. Makes 6 servings.

Robin Hood Inspires New Small Fry Modes

Robin Hood and his merry men are setting the styles for small fry once more, as both boys and girls emulate the dashing archer in new caps and boots with an adventurous air.

Womer: In The Church

The wide use of deaconesses in the work of the Polish Lutheran Church (Evangelical Church of the Augsburgian Confession) was of interest to the Rev. Mogens Zeuthen, Lutheran World Federation World Service secretary for Ministry Lutheran Churches, during his recent visit to Poland. In Eastern European countries, deaconess work is more curtailed or not in existence he said. In Poland, although the number of deaconesses is down from 200 before the war to between 50 and 60 at present, they are active in caring for two orphanages, two homes for the aged, nursing in a state hospital, and as parish sisters. In Cieszyn is a "mother-house" where the girls are trained for their work. Fifteen sisters work in a state-operated hospital. There are 220,000 members in the Polish Lutheran Church.

Since 1877, the Alma Mathews House, in New York City, has been maintained by the Methodist Church as "a Christian-home for young women in Manhattan." First it was a welcome mission to immigrant girls, its representatives meeting all ships from Europe. During the "depression years" one of its reports noted: "Twenty young women are living on small wages, housed in one building, participating in such activities as keeping their rooms clean, preparing the food, cleaning the kitchen, making decisions for running the house, pooling the wisdom they have in living on a very little and planning activities for leisure time." The young women prepared their own breakfast and the evening meal was cooperative keeping its cost at a minimum. Depending on the food served, the cost per dinner varied between 25 and 30 cents. At that time, no girl earning more than $20 a week was expected to remain at Alma Mathews House. Today the Methodist Church has 27 such homes; they are located in: Shreveport, La.; Oden, Utah; Salt Lake City, Utah; Cincinnati, Ohio; Toledo, Ohio; San Francisco, Calif.; Des Moines, Iowa; Columbia, S.S.; Columbus, Ohio; Newport News, Va.; Richmond, Va.; Houston, Texas; Baltimore, Md.; Chicago Ill.; Wichita, Kan.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Indianapolis, Indiana; Birmingham, Ala.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Paul, Minn.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Sioux City, Iowa.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

This is the week when you start thinking about what the kids are going to get for Christmas, believe it or not, and if you want to buy them books, you can find lots of help in the Children's Book Section of this week's N. Y. Times Book Review. It contains numerous reviews of current books for small fry, plus a list of 100 of the best recent children's titles. . . . Also listed are the ten juvenile publications with the best illustrations in the 1956 crop. Here they are, in order of choice, with the name of the illustrator:

"Crocodile Tears" (Andre Francois)

"Jonah the Fisherman" (Reiner Zimmlik)

"I Know a Lot of Things" (Paul Rand)

"I Want to Paint My Bathroom Blue" (Maurice Sendak)

"The Little Elephant" (Ylva-with photographs)

"Babar's Fair" (Laurent de Brunhoff)

"Was It a Good Trade?" (Irene Haas)

"Little Big-Feather" (Helen Borten)

"I Will Tell You of a Town" (Walter Lorraine)

"Really Spring" (Margaret Bloy Graham)

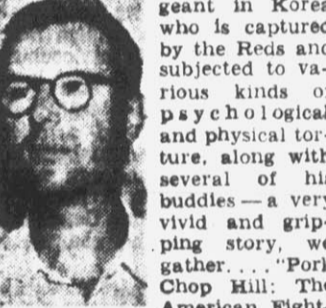

We haven't checked, but we're practically positive that you can find all of these titles at Sheppard Memorial Library—where they are always on the ball about what's new and what's best in books, we might add. . . .

Teahouse

Just released this week in Los Angeles and Chicago is the movie version of Vern Sneider's novel, "Teahouse of the August Moon," which was made into one of Broadway's most successful comedies—still running after two years, if we're not mistaken, and now being staged in 17 countries. An inexpensive edition of the novel came out this week also—it's been translated into five languages and is doing fine. . . .

War and Peace

Two new books have just appeared about the Korean War, about which very little has been written so far. . . . "A Ride to Panmunjom," by Duane Thorin, is a novel about an American sergeant in Korea who is captured by the Reds and subjected to various kinds of psychological and physical torture, along with several of his buddies—a very vivid and gripping story, we gather. . . . "The American Fighting Man in Action—Korea, Spring 1953," by S. L. A. Marshall, is the grim account of the hand-to-hand fighting that went on between the American infantry units and the Red Chinese soldiers from whom they wrested strategically important Pork Chop Hill. And looking to the future, "Waging Peace: A Businessman Looks at U. S. Foreign Policy," C. Maxwell Stanley presents a layman's view on how peace can be maintained in this atomic age—not so spectacular as the others, maybe, but very, very useful, we think, especially these days. . . .

HIRSHBERG

A new book club called the Potpourri is being launched this Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harry Billica, in Lakewood Pines. Berthold Brecht will be the first author studied, and we're informed that new members are wanted—but only gals who are interested in reading serious and important books. For more information, get in touch with Mrs. Billica. . . .

TAR HEEL WRITERS I KNOW. By Bernadette Hoyle. 215 pp. Winston-Salem, N. C.: John B. Blair, Publisher, $4.00.

"Tar Heel Writers I Know" by Bernadette Hoyle free-lance writer and unusually skillful press photographer, is a book about North Carolina writers and their ideas about writing. It is a collection of delightfully informal interviews with thirty-five of the State's authors.

The Interviews First Appeared in the Raleigh News and Observer in 1954 and 1955. They have now been brought up-to-date and are presented in an attractive book.

Mrs. Hoyle does not attempt to include all the many Tar Heel writers. She has simply made visits with some of her friends, and in a pleasant and informal manner, she gives biographical facts and some of the author's suggestions about working methods, aims and philosophies.

With excellent photographs and chatty interviews, she succeeds in giving the reader a visit with each writer. She brings them to life as people first, and as writers second, until they are no longer names on book covers but real people who are contributing to the cultural progress of this state.

Mrs. Hoyle is a top-flight reporter and press photographer. She has combined her talents in this excellent book with current information about some of the state's best known writers. She was especially fortunate to get interviews with William T. Polk, Sam Byrd and James Street shortly before their deaths. Others include: Lettice Blythe, Zoe Brockman, Marion Brown, Mebane Burgwyn, Ruth and Carroll Latrobe, Jonathan Daniels, Burke Davis, Lambert Davis, Wilma Dykeman, Ingles Fletcher, Charlotte Hilton Green, Paul Green, Frank Borden Hanes, John Hardden, Bernice Kelly Harris, Lodwick Hartley, Noel Houston, Kermit Hunter, Hugh T. Lefler, Dave Morrah, Frances Gray Patton, James Larkin Pearson, Ovid Williams Pierce, Fred Ross, Phillips Russell, Frank Slaughter, Walter Spearman, Thad Stem Jr., David Stuck, Richard Waiser, Manly Wade Wellman and Tom Wickham.

More informally written than "North Carolina Authors," "Tar Heel Writers" will serve well beside it. It supplements information about some of the authors who appear in the first and adds new writers to the group.

Action Necessary If Grounds Exist

The recent NCAA ruling involving State College should result in some positive action by UNC President William C. Friday.

State has been placed on probation for four years by the NCAA. The probation came as a result of alleged violations of NCAA recruiting regulations when State enrolled basketball star Jackie Moreland.

When the four-year probation was announced, President Friday immediately ordered a full investigation. Thus far the investigation has turned up very little except denials by athletic officials at State.

The NCAA, in its usual custom, has not divulged any of its information or the source of that information. The executive secretary of the group, Walter Byers, has promised, however, to talk the situation over with President Friday's investigating committee.

If the talk with NCAA doesn't show conclusively that State was guilty of violating the recruiting regulations, the Greater University, and, indeed, all member schools of the NCAA, should demand an immediate retraction of the probation.

If the charges are proved and the NCAA can support its evidence, then President Friday should do some house-cleaning at State.

What makes the offense so serious is that this is the second time State has been placed on probation for improper conduct in recruiting athletes. The first offense resulted in a year's probation. There is no real excuse for either of the probationary periods.

Colleges and universities in the South, acting through their conferences, have long been recognized among the most liberal institutions in the country in recruiting athletes. The Atlantic Coast Conference, for instance, allows an athletic scholarship to include room, board, tuition and $15 a month for laundry. The system has worked well for other schools that have produced teams that have been nationally ranked in all sports.

The value of athletic scholarships is frequently questioned but it is undeniable that they afford college educations to many men who would not be able otherwise to attend college. There are many successful men in this world who have gotten their start with an athletic scholarship.

However, when any one school or its agent reaches the point where it flagrantly violates established and recognized rules in an effort to be better than everybody else it's time they were stopped. There should be no place for them in a respectable athletic program.

It is equally true that such organizations as the NCAA should be willing to let its victims know the exact nature and source of the charges against them.

President Friday's investigation should weigh every piece of evidence it finds. It is obligated to effect positive action as a result of those findings.

TB Now Yielding To Steady Assaults

(Today's columnist, Jack Riley, is Wake County Christmas Seal Sale chairman again this year and writes on that subject.) RALEIGH — Teamwork between doctors, scientists, law-makers and laymen is reducing the deadly and disabling effects of many dread diseases, notably polio. Thanks to Dr. Jonas Salk's vaccine, parents' dread of its crippling attack on children has been lessened considerably.

Tuberculosis, the "great white plague" of a generation ago, is slowly yielding to the same sort of organized assault. As yet, however, no completely successful vaccine for tuberculosis has been discovered. The three wonder drugs developed since 1944 suppress TB germs but do not kill all of them.

Unfortunately, many people still feel that the disease bears some stigma and they hesitate to talk about it.

During the next few weeks, however, the general public will hear a great deal about tuberculosis, its treatment and cure and of the need for early detection.

Across North Carolina, today's mails are delivering Christmas seals to thousands of Tar Heel homes. Money received from these bright little stamps finances the work of 101 local Tuberculosis Associations which are teamed with the doctors and the scientists in the battle against TB.

Simultaneously with the circulation of the seals, there will be a great deal of activity intended to inform the public on the subject.

Tuberculosis is not an inherited disease. No one is born with it, and if anyone contracts the illness after birth, there is no reason for him to feel ashamed.

Tuberculosis spreads from person to person. It is picked up only from someone who has the disease. The transfer may result from breathing air laden with TB germs or by taking the germs into the mouth on fingers, foods, eating utensils or other contact.

Because TB is contagious and spread by the germ called tubercle bacillus, the great emphasis is placed upon prevention of its spread. X-ray clinics are maintained by Tuberculosis Associations, and mobile X-ray units are kept in circulation to afford the general public free examinations.

Early discovery of active cases not only affords the victims greater opportunity of rapid recovery, but it reduces the chances of a carrier unwittingly by giving the disease to friends and associates.

It may strike anyone at any time, rich or poor, young or old. However, it is becoming more a disease of the older ages. More deaths and more new cases occur in middle and old age than among younger people. About twice as many men as women are affected.

There are usually no symptoms in the early stages. A person may feel well and yet be sick with TB. That is why so much emphasis is placed on chest X-rays for every one.

Much of the money that is collected as a result for the Christmas seals now in the mails will finance the free X-ray clinics maintained at various localities. Of the 400,000 active cases believed to exist within the United States, 150,000 are unknown to public health authorities. In order to break the chain of infection, case-finding is emphasized by health departments, tuberculosis associations and other agencies and individuals on the anti-TB team.

During the past 12 months, tens of thousands of free X-ray pictures were made of Tar Heel chests. While the number of new cases runs into the hundreds, fatalities are declining every year. The number of TB deaths in North Carolina last year totaled 258.

State sanatoria admitted 2,466 patients during the fiscal year ending in June 30. They stayed an average of 273 days each. The use of newer drugs, rest, surgery, and better diet is shortening the period necessary for recovery and thereby releasing hospital beds more quickly for those on the waiting list.

During 1955-56, the taxpayers of North Carolina gave about $4,180,000 for support of the state sanatoria. They gave thousands more through Christmas seal sales.

Encouraging progress has been made toward saving lives. But progress in preventing new cases has been relatively slight. Every dollar that Tuberculosis Associations receive for Christmas seals finds a ready use either for case-finding, health education, rehabilitation, or medical and social research.

People who respond so generously to the Christmas seal sale often never realize the wisdom of personally patronizing the X-ray clinics which they support. The Tuberculosis Associations repeat and repeat that the disease may strike anyone and emphasize the advice that everyone take advantage of the clinics.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Kinston Has Nothing To Gain

(Kinston Free Press) The Mid-East Carolina Airport Authority's project for a new airport to serve a focal area of this section from a point in Greene County offers Kinston and Lenoir County nothing they don't already have and could disrupt the present service without any corresponding gain to the area as a whole.

So far Kinston and Lenoir County have made no financial commitments to the project but pressure is likely to come in the next few days for such support. The project is now being pushed by proponents from Greenville, Goldsboro and Wilson with the view that Kinston support can assure the project's success.

The plan calls for a $1,500,000 airport at a point at or near the geographic center of the member towns as possible. It would be constructed by federal funds with aid of proportionate shares from member counties and towns — the entire group to bear one-half the construction cost.

Kinston and Lenoir County now have at Stallings Air Base a growing commercial air service provided by the Piedmont Airlines. There is hope that it may soon be augmented by north-south service. At least the expanding business of the Piedmont Airlines is being eyed with interest by one or more other firms.

This service would be disrupted if the new airport were erected in Greene County, Greenville and Goldsboro, however, would not be appreciably nearer to the Mid-East terminals than they are to Kinston's adequate facilities. Wilson, of course, would be some nearer to the Greene County landing field, if and when, it is authorized and constructed. It would not be as near, however, as it now is to facilities in Rocky Mount.

Rocky Mount seeks to move its airport to a point nearer Tarboro and this does not set well with Wilson users. Rocky Mount cannot get aid from the Civil Aeronautics Board if the Mid-East Airport is approved in Greene County. Much of the current pressure for the Mid-East project has been generated by inter-community jealousies in which Kinston and Lenoir County share no part and which they do not want to magnify or aggravate.

If a really large and adequate terminal were provided which could serve the full area of the middle region of Eastern Carolina there might be more logic in the current proposal. As matters stand, however, the Mid-East project would not be that type facility. There would still be need for aerial service in the Rocky Mount area, just as there is in the New Bern-Wilmington-Jacksonville area.

The way it adds up to us is a real loss to Kinston and Lenoir County and no corresponding gain for the member communities which are now pushing hardest for the project. This community should not be expected to share in the financial support of a project with such an uncertain outlook so far as this community and the entire section are concerned.

Egypt Asks A Question

By JIMMY ELLIS

A Discomforting Appraisal

There is hope yet for all the girls of this country who haven't made a trip to the altar with an unsuspecting male.

That is, if they're under 30 (and what unmarried "girl" isn't?). After that, the pickings get mighty slim... even if the latest census report does show there are about a million more women than men in this country.

Buck Pysour, of the UNC News Bureau, talked with a sociology professor and a priest recently about the situation. His interest, I presume, was purely academic although it might be natural for a Carolina Gentleman to wonder about his chances of getting hooked.

Anyway, Dr. Rupert B. Vance, the sociologist, told Pysour that women do pretty well until they get past middle-age (Editor's Note: Is 30 middle-aged?). After that it's pretty much a struggle because women outlive men and there are fewer of us for the girls to fight over.

Men should stay ahead in number because there are a greater number of male births than female births. However, the death rate is higher for males so that at around that age of 24 there are about the same number of women as men.

The situation gets worse with every passing year, too. Around the first of the century, women outlived men by about two years. Now, women on the average outlive men by about six or eight years. That's why, he says, there are more widows than widowers.

Perhaps the most discomforting thing about Dr. Vance's whole study is that this situation isn't caused by men working themselves to death. Dr. Vance and Dr. Francis C. Madigan, a priest, studied two groups composed of 42,000 Brothers and Sisters of the Catholic Church who had taught or are still teaching in parochial schools.

Despite the fact that both the men and women in these groups were engaged in the same occupation and led essentially the same kind of life, the women still outlived the men, according to the study. All of which leads to the belief that women live longer than men because of biological factors rather than the fact that men work harder and are under more strain.

Maybe we men are just sissies. Discomforting, ain't it?

Notebook On Life

Did Self-Pity Get You Down?

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Do you like to feel sorry for yourself on Thanksgiving day?

Many people seem to, but yesterday they had a special problem. Things have gone so well in 1956 the average American finds it a little hard to find anything to be ungrateful about.

But by just sitting down and doing a little steady brooding you ought to be able to find a personal dark cloud behind all that silver lining.

At least 250,000 Americans are in jail who think they ought to be out.

At least 750,000 Americans who are out of jail know darned well they ought to be in one.

At least 10 million Americans right now either have a cold, are getting one, or recovering from one.

At least a million Americans are driving around and around and around looking for a little parking space that isn't there.

At least 21 million Americans feel they aren't getting the salary they deserve.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS HOLD ON TO FUNDAMENTALS

Soren Kierkegaard, the great Danish theologian and philosopher, has made a powerful impact upon the thinking of a modern world. He was rejected by his contemporaries, died young, and only came into his own when, years after his death, thinkers the world over discovered the cogency and value of his writings.

In one of his books he speaks about the tragedy of a man's feelings, knowledge, and will becoming so utterly fantastic that the man really loses what Kierkegaard calls "his self"—the basic, integrating element by which the whole of his life is given significance. In spite of the fact that a man has lost this "self," he may nevertheless live on, unmindful of his loss, and with the world unmindful of it also. "About such a thing as that, not much fuss is made in the world. . . . The greatest danger, that of losing one's own self, may pass off as quietly as if it were nothing; every other loss, that of an arm, a leg, five dollars, a wife, etc., is sure to be noticed."

This follows precisely the dictum laid down by Jesus when he said, "What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? And the meaning is not changed when the word "soul" is used instead of the word "life." To lose one's "self" is tragedy.

Blunders Behind Pentagon Difficulties

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON It is a twin complex of stupidity and inferiority which has led the Administration, and particularly the Pentagon brass and civilian heads, into the current clash with Congress, the Washington reporters and the American press, and people generally. It has flared into a major problem for President Eisenhower, and he is smart enough to realize it.

The stupidity, of which there are many examples, consists of classifying as "top secret" decisions which would not jeopardize national security, but which would disclose erroneous policies and blunders in execution. The inferiority derives from individual officers' and officials' unwillingness to assume responsibility for their actions. It is the ancient Army game of "passing the buck." Sign the damn document, but label it "confidential."

Washington newspaper correspondent or editor could solve the problem for Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson quickly and satisfactorily. Jim Haerty, the ablest White House press liaison man since Steve Early, could do it, but he is otherwise engaged. So could interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton, a newspaper publisher, but he has too many other duties.

The basic difficulty is that Secretary Wilson, like so many frozen-minded executives, fears and distrusts the press. He does not understand that the government, unlike General Motors, is owned by all the people, and not by a relatively few non-quisquive stockholders.

It is true that he has discarded a special advisory committee's suggestion that reporters be hauled before a Grand Jury for alleged violation of national security regulations. But he favors committee recommendations that he crack down on officials and officers responsible for "leaks" on important matters. He has imposed such a tight censorship that getting news at the Pentagon, save for innocuous handouts, is a Herculean feat.

ONCE PRESS INFORMER, BUT NOT NOW Ironically, the "leakiest" man in the service—although not now—is Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Wilson's top advisor and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Several years ago, Radford headed the famous "revolt of the Admirals," when they fought the Army's effort to obtain exclusive control of the bombing of enemy territory. A Radford cohort in that rebellion was Arleigh A. Burke, now Chief of Naval Operations.

In their conspiracy against the Army, they peddled secret data on dark, rainy street corners, in newspapermen's homes and in other out-of-the-way places. As a result, and their success may have strengthened the national defense establishment, our principal and immediate weapon in event of Middle East hostilities, meaning a possible repulse of Russian volunteers" on the side of Egypt, are Radford-Burke air-

By ELMER ROESSNER

There seems no reason to revise earlier predictions that retail sales will set a new record in the major Christmas shopping season that begins tomorrow.

There are no official figures on sales in the Thanksgiving-Christmas period, but the figures for the month of December roughly approximate the total.

Last year December retail sales, as reported by the Department of Commerce, were $19,268,000,000. It should be a cinch for the total to spill over $20 billion this year.

However, retail sales have not been so perky in recent weeks as may have been expected.

The total of all retail sales in September, as calculated by the Department of Commerce, was 1 per cent below September, 1955.

The Commerce total for October has not yet been reported. But department stores sales, as calculated by the Federal Reserve Board, ran about 2 per cent under the 1955 figure for the month.

CAUSES OF FLUCTUATION There are a number of reasons why September and October sales have failed to show gains.

One reason is that all business surged upward during those months of 1955. The 1956 boom-on-boom actually began in the fall of last year. Therefore, it is becoming increasingly difficult to surpass records set then.

Another reason is the decline in auto sales in the last two months. Passenger car dealers, according to Commerce figures, suffered a decline of 23 per cent in sales in September. That drop was enough to pull the grand total into the red. The food group of retailers made an increase of 3 per cent; eating and drinking places were up 2 per cent; the general merchandise group gained 1 per cent in sales; apparel sales were up a neat 8 per cent; furniture and appliance stores registered a 5 per cent gain while their associates in the household appliance and radio field went up 3 per cent.

Other gains in that month: gas stations, 13 per cent; drug stores, 11 per cent; fuel dealers, 22 per cent, and feed, farm and garden supply stores, up 17 per cent.

Now that new models are picking up auto sales, it is likely that instead of dragging the retail total down, the auto-industry is pushing it higher, and will continue to do so for the rest of the year.

HOLIDAY BREAKS

Early November sales have been under expectations, largely because of the holidays. Election day in the past has usually been a big retailing day but this year, due to the fact that it was a Presidential year and because more union contracts provide a full holiday on election day, sales were off 18 per cent from the week before the corresponding week a year ago, and they were down 8 per cent in the Philadelphia Reserve district and down 7 per cent in the New York and Cleveland districts.

Last year Veteran's Day was observed on a Saturday; this year on a Monday. Since Mondays are becoming better sales days than Saturdays, this shrank sales.

Now that the holidays are within a few hours of being over, sales should move ahead. International events have failed to create much pessimism. Total personal income at annual rates is running $18 billion higher than a year ago; employment is greater and unemployment is less; and certainly the selection of goods is greater than ever before. The toy industry alone will make retail sales of $25,000,000 a day from now until Christmas, according to Benjamin F. Michtom, head of Ideal.

There's another reason for expecting the highest sales total so far: There are 27 shopping days until Christmas; last year when the last record was set, there were only 26 days between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

There's another reason for expecting the highest sales total so far: There are 27 shopping days until Christmas; last year when the last record was set, there were only 26 days between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

Their TIGHT GRIP ON NEWS.

The lesson—or moral—is plain. If Wilson, Radford and Burke mean to discipline civilians and officers who provide legitimate information to the Congress, the public and the press, there will be no news from an arm of the Government which, under certain circumstances and without Congressional authority, can commit us to war.

There will be no news on their capacity to protect vital American interests at home and abroad. And the problem of publicity is vital at the present moment for reasons which have been withheld from the people.

Strategy, tactics, weapons and military organization are undergoing change today because of lessons learned in Korea, Indochina, the Polish-Hungarian revolt and in the Middle East crises. America's future role, especially the military program, is under basic reexamination. The answer involves the lives and the pocketbooks of every American citizen.

'Masterpiece On' Unprepared Lesson

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland School Reporter
News has been made in the classrooms of BFHS this week. And out of the eleventh grade English class has come the following masterpiece, "Thoughts About an Unprepared Lesson," by David Moore that expresses a feeling that all of us have shared many times:

There are many awful thoughts about a lesson that is not prepared for the next day's English class. But, of course, it is my fault for not knowing how to write an essay.

Being so dumb, I went home trying to think of something to write an essay on, but I never did until I was seated at the table just before eating my lunch. It suddenly occurred to me that I could write about my experiences while on my school's basketball team. My next thought was, "No, that won't be an essay; that would only be a summary, and I had made a D on just about the same thing the day before." So I just let it slip my mind then until it was time for bed. There was still no idea in my mind of what to do or what to write an essay on.

The next thing I knew it was morning with this essay still on my mind. With no essay, I hated to go to school, but what else could I do? When I had gone about half way around my bus route, my English teacher passed me on her way to school. That unprepared lesson was the first thing I thought of. After I had completed my bus route and arrived at high school, I decided to ask her if she would let me bring my essay in on Monday. Instead of delaying the assignment, she helped me to get started with it. If she had delayed it, I still don't know if I would have written it anyway.

I thought, "There aren't many teachers who would have even tried to help me."

In Friday night, the Junior Class sponsored a teen-age dance in the Falkland Community Building from 7:30 until 11:30. The approximately sixty people present enjoyed dancing and refreshments. Chaperoning the dance were Mrs. Marguerite Wooten, Mrs. Luther Garris, and Mrs. Howard Garris.

Students Oppose Parking Meters

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Police aren't having much luck putting parking meters in front of a University of Texas men's dormitory.

The first meter was yanked out Wednesday before the concrete base hardened. Police recovered it after chasing the culprit.

During the chase, raw eggs pelted the officers and their patrol car.

Two meter posts yanked from fresh concrete that night have not been recovered.

Last Friday students hanged Mayor Tom Miller in effigy. A sign said "take your meters back to city hall."

Library Club To Hear Ovid Pierce

Ovid W. Pierce, novelist and faculty member at East Carolina College, will be guest speaker before members of the student Library Club of the college Wednesday, November 23, at 4:15 in the Recreational Reading Room of the Joyner Memorial Library. The meeting will be open to the public.

Mr. Pierce will speak informally on "Books and Things." The program will be given as a special event in observance of American Book Week.

The Library Club, a group of students of library science, has recently completed organization for the present school year. Billie Faye Evans of Parkersburg, president; Nancy H. Spain of Manson, vice president; Mary Neale of Wilmington, secretary-treasurer; and Gwendolyn O. M. Clamrock of Raleigh, reporter, head the club as officers for 1956-1957. Faculty advisors are Dr. Mildred Southwick and Mrs. Marguerite Crenshaw of the library staff.

A North Carolinian, Mr. Pierce returned to this state in September to become a member of the department of English at East Carolina. His novel "The Plantation" won in 1953 the Sir Walter Raleigh Award for the best work of fiction by a North Carolina author and received high praise from leading critics in this country. An article on North Carolina, his latest work, is scheduled for appearance in "Holiday" early in 1957.

Vandals Damage Showcase Autos

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police are seeking vandals who scratched paint, dented metal work and slashed upholstery on 46 new cars displayed at the 34th annual Los Angeles international auto show.

Damage to the cars was estimated at $50,000.

Charles H. Elmendorf, manager of the show, said that some of the cars — including a $25,000 Rolls Royce — were so badly damaged that they may have to be shipped back to the manufacturer for repairs.

Investigators theorized that the vandals hid in the Pan Pacific auditorium at show closing time and committed the vandalism during the night. The show is continuing.

See Good Response To Red Cross Drive

By IRENE CAYTON
Grimesland School Reporter
Grimesland students responded almost 100 per cent to the Red Cross Drive which began November 12 and ended Wednesday.

An attractive display in Miss Owen's English classroom depicts the tragic situations of unfortunate overseas children who might be giftless at Christmas.

The display is captioned "Remember Us On Christmas Day" and was made by Joyce Whitchard, Hazel May, Patricia Morgan, Agnes Smith, Dottie Elks and Jean Daniels. The students are all Seniors.

Becky Reel and Joyce Whitchard are working on their state Future Homemakers of America degrees. The girls will receive the degrees in March.

Thirty-five new cheerers were presented to the students at the cheering squad's first pep rally of the year last Friday. The rally was held before the first home basketball game which were played between Grimesland and Maury teams. Peggy Martin scored 44 points for Grimesland in a 73-58 victory in the girls game and Ernest Elks scored 19 points in the boys game which Maury won, 49-45.

In an effort to encourage school spirit at the basketball games, elementary students have been working on drawings of Panthers, which give the athletic teams their nicknames. At the first home game, Hilda Wagoner and Haywood Singleton were awarded prizes for their drawings.

An odd fact discovered recently is that seven of the 15 girls in Tuesday during the school year will be "stamp day" in the white schools. FBLA members have set up a revolving fund with which they will purchase savings stamps for resale to students and faculty members. Bonds will also be available through the savings program.

Students who purchase enough stamps and convert them into bonds will be given a citation from the Treasury Department. In addition, rooms purchasing the largest number of stamps and bonds in each of the primary, elementary and high school departments will receive an honor award to keep for the following week.

The program is planned as an education one and is not a selling drive, according to Jessie McLawhorn, chairman of the savings committee. The plan will be integrated with regular classroom instruction in order to teach saving, skills and understanding, responsibility, cooperation, leadership, citizenship and patriotism.

Grimesland's Senior Class have "Ann" as a middle name. The girls are Barbara Ann Mills, Peggy Ann Taylor, Patricia Ann Andrews, Becky Ann Reel, Agnes Ann Smith, Jean Ann Daniels and Patricia Ann Morgan. None of the girls are called "Ann."

Women's Cancer Deaths Decline

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Hopeful news in the war against cancer is reported by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians in the downward trend over the past ten years in the cancer death rate among women in middle life.

Among the insurance company's millions of industrial policy-holders, mortality from all types of cancer was down by 13 percent for women at ages 45 to 64 over the 10-year period. One of the brightest features of the insurance experience is the decline by one-third in the death rate from uterine cancer at these ages.

This favorable trend is attributed to the prevention or correction of injuries sustained during childbirth, the intensified search for cases in their early stages, and prompt treatment by surgery or radiation.

While the cancer death rate for middle aged women declined, that for men rose somewhat. This was due principally to increased mortality among males from cancer of the lungs, buccal cavity, stomach, and urinary organs.

"At present, early detection and treatment are the major means of control of cancer during the middle years. Hope for the ultimate solution of the problem depends upon research into the causes of the disease," the statisticians concluded.

Deer Hunters Bagged 45 Or 46 Animals In Pitt

Pitt County Game Protector J.O. Teel said today that hunters killed 45 or 46 deer during the open season in Pitt county—October 15 to November 1.

Two-thirds of the total number were killed during the first week of the season. During the last week two thirds of the deer the dogs ran were does.

Teel said game protectors found two does that had been shot and two does were known to have been caught by dogs. They were released.

The greatest number of deer killed were in the range from highway 264 below Grimesland to highway 43 at Calico. "Every deer we checked were fat and in excellent condition," the Pitt county game protector said, "and they were large deer, only a few being peshorn or youngsters."

"Since deer in Pitt county were hunted so hard this year, I believe it would be unwise to have an open season for hunting deer in this county," Teel said, "and if we do have an open season for hunting deer, I believe it should be for only a few days."

The season for hunting quail, rabbits and wild turkey began Thanksgiving Day. The outlook for good quail hunting is the best in years, the game protector stated.

The open season on woodcock opened Thanksgiving Day and ends December 31, with a daily bag limit of four birds.

The open season for hunting Wilson's snipe is from Thanksgiving Day to December 21, with a limit of four birds.

The second half of the dove season is from December 14 to January 10, with a bag limit of eight birds.

The open season for ducks and geese is from November 7 to January 15, with a daily bag limit of four ducks and two geese.

The Pitt county game protector today reminded hunters to have proper licenses and automatic shot-

JENKINS BREAKS AWAY—In yesterday's Thanksgiving Midget Classic at College Stadium, Red halfback Jimmy Jenkins (7 in dark) broke away from Whites Bill Allen (2) and Alan McArthur (7 in white) and scampered 59 yards for the first touchdown of the afternoon. The Reds followed Jenkins' lead and punched across for two more tallies to top the Whites 20-6, winning the city midget championship.

WHO'S GOT IT?—In this shot, two foes clash for a McArthur pass. Reds' Ken Joyner (5 in dark) and Whites' Leo Starling (5 in white) both missed the ball above. (Reflector Photos by Billy Arnold).

Reds Whip Whites 20-6 For City Title

Joyner, Jenkins, Robards Score For New Champions

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Behind the quarterbacking of little Kenneth Joyner, the Red Raiders rolled up a 20-6 victory over the Whites yesterday in the Thanksgiving Classic at College Stadium, to win the City Midget League Championship.

The Whites, which were unable to score until the final period, won the regular season crown.

Yesterday's game was to climax a long and successful season for the Greenville Midget football league for 1956. There were four teams competing in the loop, composed of boys under fourteen years of age and not weighing over 110 pounds when the season began. Besides the Reds and Whites, there were the Golds and Blues, in that general order.

Reds Score Quickly

The Reds, outsized and outweighted slightly by the Whites, scored quickly in the game, serving notice that they intended to take the city crown. They received the opening kickoff but fumbled and lost the ball deep in their own territory.

The White Phantoms, sparked by quarterback Alan McArthur and backs Leo Starling and Morris Cozart, drove for a short gain, but were forced to give up the ball on downs.

After taking possession on their own 41-yard line, the Reds did what was good enough for a touchdown. Quarterback Ken Joyner took the ball from center, faked to fullback Don Joyner through center, handed off to halfback Jimmy Robards, who pitched out to Jimmy Jenkins. Jenkins sailed around the right end, outdistanced the defense and the Reds had a 6-0 lead. Robards cracked over tackle for the extra point.

The second period saw no scoring from either team. Most of the play took place in the center of the field, with the Reds controlling the ball the major portion of the time.

Another Red TD

Just after the half-time ceremonies, the Reds began to move again. An intercepted pass gave the Reds possession of the ball on the 50 yard line. From there, Jim Robards, a lanky, determined halfback, pitched a pass to quarterback Ken Joyner. Joyner dug his way toward the White goal and was stopped finally on the 12 inch line by Alan McArthur.

Don Joyner plunged over from there and Robards again added the extra point. The score was 14-0.

The Reds came back for one more tally in the final period before their foes could muster a score. The running and passing of McArthur and Starling, and the bright defensive work of end Scott Smiley were high points in the White game, but each attempt to put the fine play into the form of a touchdown failed.

Jim Robards paced a 60-yard march for the final Red tally in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter. He, the two Joyner boys, and little Dan Owens cracked away for short gains, finally pushing to the six yard line. Robards punched over from there for the TD. The extra point attempt failed.

White Touchdown

The Whites finally scored after a McArthur-Smiley pass connected for 34 yards to the Red 15. McArthur then took the ball from center and cruised around right end untouched for the score. That made it 20-6. The game ended only seconds after that play.

Outstanding for the Reds in the line were J. G. Proctor Johnny Speight, Bob Edwards, Lew Ward, Robert Johnston, Charles Griffin, Tommy Brown, John Waters and Morton Johnston.

For the Whites, Smiley, William Allen, Keith Holmes, Bartley Phillips, Roger Collins, Jack Merwin, Francis Smith, Rommie Brock, Kenneth Cox and Burney Morris were outstanding.

Top backs for both teams were Robards, Jenkins, and both Joyner boys (Reds) and McArthur, Starling and Collins (Whites).

Family Feuding Ends Tomorrow In ACC Circles

Family feuding in the Atlantic Coast Conference ends tomorrow with two games, both reflecting the tension within the league of which team will represent it in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Clemson, the ACC's top team and the leading candidate for the bowl berth, faces invading Virginia, the bottom team of the circuit. Second place Duke goes to Chapel Hill to play North Carolina in their traditional game.

The four other teams ended their season's play yesterday. South Carolina bowled over Wake Forest 13-0 at Charlotte, while Maryland found its strength in dropping North Carolina State 25-14.

After Virginia, Clemson still must play Furman. The Tigers have a 5-1-2 record overall and need victories in their remaining games to wrap up the bid. Should Clemson falter, Duke (4-4-1) and South Carolina (7-3) are the other logical choices.

The Gamecocks ended the season with a bang. Mackie Prickett, South Carolina's prize quarterback, scored once against Wake Forest on a 14-yard run and halfback Alex Hawkins, completed things in the third quarter with a 29-yard touchdown run.

Wake Forest's fine fullback, Bill Barnes, saw only limited action because of an injured shoulder. He picked up 18 yards to end the season with a total for 10 games of 1,010 yards.

Maryland roared from behind to overpower North Carolina State. Maryland quarterback Dickie Lewis provided the major attraction of the day, a 103-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass late in the game. Lewis grabbed the ball in his end zone and sprinted up the sidelines. Lewis also scored in the third quarter as did halfback Ted Kershner, which put the Terps ahead.

Both of State's touchdowns were scored by flashy halfback Dick Christy, who bulled over from the two for one and dashed 70 yards for the second.

North Carolina and Duke each held secret sessions yesterday. The Blue Devils got bad news when they learned that halfback Oliver Rudy will not play tomorrow because of an injured ankle. It was Rudy's touchdown last year that gave Duke a 6-0 win over the Tar Heels.

Offense was stressed in the Clemson camp with emphasis on passing which Coach Frank Howard said will be used as a major weapon against Virginia. The Cavaliers tapered off in light drills yesterday.

Olympic Records Falling Fast For US, Russian Stars

By TED SMITS

MELBOURNE (AP) — Charlie Dumas, 19, a lanky Los Angeles collegian, set a new Olympic high jump mark today as the United States team began to hoard gold medals on the first full day of actual competition.

Except for a surprise defeat by the Yale crew in the eight-oared competition at Ballarat, the suspension of a hammer thrower and the barring of two boxers, things ran true to form for the strong American team.

Dumas won a dramatic duel with an unheralded Australian in the gathering gloom with the raine, won the 10,000-meter race for 6 feet 11 1/2 inches — one inch short of his own world record.

Charles Vinci Jr., 23, of York Pa., a bantamweight weightlifter, also grabbed a gold medal for Uncle Sam, smashing both the world and Olympic records on the way to a triumph over the Russian contender.

Vladimir Kouts, a sinewy Russian naval officer from the Ukraine, won the 10,000-meter race for his nation's first track and field victory in Olympic history to emphasize that Russia is no idle threat to American supremacy. Although Kouts didn't approach his own unofficial world mark, he broke the Olympic record and official world figure with a smashing performance in 28 minutes 45.6 seconds.

As he thrashed down the final straightaway, the blond Russian looked like another Emil Zatopek, the Czech runner whose record he erased.

Olga Fikotova of Czechoslovakia, first track and field gold medal winner of 1956, set the style by also breaking the Olympic standard with a mighty toss of 53.69 meters—176 feet 1 1/2 inches.

As he broke four times during the competition in which the Russians took three of the first six places, Earlene Brown, 21, a Los Angeles housewife, surpassed her best previous performance with a toss of 168 feet 5 1/2 inches, good for a surprise fourth place.

As expected the American stars in the shorter distances easily qualified for the finals. Bobby Morrow, the speed demon from Abilene, Christian in Texas, and Ira Murchison in Texas, and Tom Spurrier survived the first heats. In rowing, the major upset was the defeat of Yale's eight, considered a sure thing to make it eight straight Olympic victories in a string started by Navy in 1920.

Yale finished behind both Australia and Canada in its heat and must win in tomorrow's repechage to avoid elimination.

United States rowers won their heats in each of the six other events at Lake Wendouree, in Ballarat including a single sculls victory by Jack Kelly Jr. of Philadelphia, an eight-time American champ but never an Olympic winner.

The only unpleasant incidents were the suspension of Cliff Blair, a hammer thrower from Hingham, Mass., for writing articles for a Boston newspaper and the barring of two U.S. boxers for failure to make weight.

Blair was alleged to have violated the amateur code by writing articles, in the form of letters, for a newspaper. Sports editor Jerry Nason of the Boston Globe merely writing personal letters and was getting no pay.

Choken Maokawa of Hawaii, a bantamweight boxer, and Harry Smith of New York, a feather, were ruled out of the Olympics because they were barely over the weight. It was a severe blow to America's hopes of repeating its 1952 success in boxing. An appeal to move Maokawa to the feather class and replace Smith was rejected.

Title Contest Here Tonight

Edenton, which defeated Ayden high school last week in the State Eastern Class A football race, will battle Wallace-Rose Hill tonight, at College Stadium, for the Eastern crown.

Winner of that game will face the winner of the Western North Carolina title for the State championship.

Wallace-Rose Hill, favored by only the slightest margin, will enter the contest with an undefeated team. The Bulldogs roared through their conference play without a defeat. Their victory over Ayden last week, 21-14, posted their 12th consecutive win.

Pacing the Bulldogs will be fullback Sidney Teachey, a big, powerful runner.

The Wallace-Rose Hill outfit is coached by Thell Overman.

Edenton has a 9-1 mark and is coached by Bill Billings.

South Carolina Coach May Be Coach Of Year

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two "big" plays, a 14-yard rollout around end by quarterback Mackie Prickett and a 29-yard burst over left guard by soph halfback Alex Hawkins, provided the payoff that may well have carried freshman Coach Warren Giese of South Carolina to the Atlantic Coast Conference football "coach of the year" honors here yesterday.

South Carolina's 13-0 victory over crippled Wake Forest enabled the Gamecocks to close the books with a 7-3 record, 5-2 in the ACC. Only once before in 31 years (in 1931) has a South Carolina team won that many games. The Birds are third in the ACC and could climb to second if Duke loses to North Carolina tomorrow.

Giese, who assisted Jim Tatum at Maryland for six years took the South Carolina job, his first as a head coach, last winter. He took a squad that had won only three of nine games last season, added some sparkling sophomores to the holdovers and came up with a winner.

The Gamecocks led the conference in all defensive departments. Their rugged line held Wake Forest to 115 yards, 200 less than South Carolina backs ground out.

It must be noted, however, that the heart of the Wake Forest offense, senior fullback Bill Barnes, was of virtually no help due to a badly bruised shoulder.

Barnes, the nation's No. 2 ball carrier, carried only seven times for 18 yards to bring his 10-game total to 1,010. However, he had difficulty holding the ball, so he heavily was heaped, that he fumbled three times. It was a sad Thanksgiving Day windup to what had been a tremendous season for the Landis, S.C., bully boy, a determined driver all through the season.

A healthy Barnes might well have made a terrific battle out of it yesterday. As it was, the 12,072 chilled spectators saw Wake Forest unable to advance beyond the Gamecock 28.

The Gamecocks had to wait until the final 40 seconds of the first half to get their first score. A 58-yard, 12-play drive, almost entirely on the ground, ended with Prickett scooting the final 14 yards. He threw a scare into Giese and his teammates when he rolled into a stone wall at the conclusion of his sprint, but came out of the collision unscathed.

The final touchdown, with one minute to play in the third period, was a quickie. Hawkins shot over guard for 29 yards to cap an eight-play, 59-yard advance. It was in this series that Prickett completed two short passes, the only successful tosses of the 10 South Carolina attempts.

Hawkins, with 90 yards in 18 carries, was the yardage leader, ably assisted by fullback Don Johnson, who picked up 77 in 13 tries, and King Dixon, another soph smoothie, who netted 72 in 14 attempts.

Sub-quarterback Pete Barham's 24 yards in three carries led what little offense Wake Forest was able to offer in the absence of big gun Barnes.

Wagering during the 50-day harness racing meet at Freehold, N. J., reached a new high of $8,699,367 during 1956. The increase was 31 per cent above 1955.

Setting Record Was Wonderful For Big Dumas

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP) — "Everything was wonderful," Charley Dumas beamed today after he won the Olympic high jump for the United States with a record leap of six feet, 11 1/2 inches.

Dumas, the world's only high jumper who has cleared over seven feet, won the gold medal on his third and last try at the height in a dramatic duel with Australia's Charles Porter. Porter, who has tied Dumas at 6-10 1/2, missed his three attempts at the higher height.

Dumas said as he began his final jump all he could think about was how they would decide the championship if he missed.

"I figured they would flip a coin to decide it and I knew I would surely lose," he said.

Dumas said he was unaware he would have won the gold medal anyhow because he had missed one less jump than Porter. He said he was surprised at Porter's showing, figuring Sweden's Bengt Nilsson was the man to beat.

The young sophomore from Compton Junior College in Los Angeles said the all-day competition was the biggest strain of his life, but added he wasn't bothered by the dark and cold of late evening.

"But it was all wonderful. Porter was wonderful. Everything was wonderful."

Dumas was asked if he felt the pressure of the Olympic Games.

"Yes, I did," he replied. "All day long I felt this was something special and I was trying a little harder."

Somebody brought up the fact he had been criticized by Head Coach Jim Kelly for failure to practice jumping in training.

"That's the way I train. I don't like to jump. I like to take exercises to get ready. My last jump before today was last Saturday at Bendigo."

Officials Meet At High Point

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The annual clinic for basketball officials will be held Sunday at High Point College. The event is sponsored by the Carolinas booking office for collegiate athletic arbiters.

The clinic will include interpretation of new rules, a demonstration of mechanics with the assistance of the High Point team and a written examination for the 51 officials of the office.

The office serves the North State Conference, South Carolina's Little Three and several independent schools.

CHAPTER 19
Casson drove to the West End Central Police Station and found Strutt out. He waited impatiently, his mind unable to ignore the complicated equation of pain that was circling inside it. On the one side were Perry's past, and on the other were his future, victims. Which must he, Casson Duker, Jetison to save the other?

Strutt looked tired when he came in.
"Well?" he asked.
"We know as much as she does," Casson replied. Despite his previous resolve to tell Strutt all that Mrs. Gordonstoun had told him, he could not bring himself to do it. The unsolved computation still wove in his head.
"I told her what we knew. She confirmed it. She identified the man."
"What name did he use?"
"She wouldn't talk," Casson replied.
Strutt stared at him. Then he looked away.
"Blast them," he said viciously. "They never talk. They think of their own precious skins."
There was a crash as the metal ashtray on Strutt's desk clattered on the opposite wall.
"Forget it, Cass," said Strutt. "I'm vexed. I'm irritated. I'm homicidal. I want to beat that little rat's head until he whimpers."
"Fine," said Casson. "But take it easy."
"You understand, Casson, that this is a case for full investigation. That means for a prosecution — if we can get one?"
"You can't. Not on present evidence. There isn't any. None of the victims will talk."
"Suspects them. Make them talk."
"They'll deny everything."
"Yellow-bellied . . ." Strutt began.
"I'm worried about the future victims. We must give them a chance. We must stop Perry from re-becoming Bagot or Martin."

"How? I can't arrest him. You know that."
"Frighten him off. Let him know that we are after him, that we'll get him in the end if he goes on playing his pretty little tricks. Make him retire."
Strutt made a noise like a laugh. It was without humor.
"No criminal retires," he observed. "Warn him off and one fine day he'll disappear and go somewhere else and start again."
"What'll you do then?"
"Leave him alone. More or less alone. For a week or two. Then watch him sporadically."
"There's another factor," said Casson. "Perry's own watching is done in two stages. I learned that from Mrs. Gordonstoun. He must have watched her house until late one night and from dawn the next morning."
"Inter- . . ."
"Not enough," said Casson and went on: "Now, when I followed Perry he was never in the Square later than six. Therefore he must have watched her for the first time some weeks or months ago."
"I think what he does is this. First, he watches his victim to establish a time and a place when the alleged crime took place. He lets this imagined event — imagined at a real time and a real place — fester in his mind for some weeks . . ."
". . . fester is the word . . ."
". . . until, to him, it has become real, actual, utterly convincing. Second: he watches his victim's house to see that the staff is like, to see the best time to strike, to measure up any possible pitfalls. That was what I saw him doing in Montpelier Square."
"Probable," Strutt commented. "But, if we follow him in the second stage, all we would know is the street he had picked. We'd only be able to guess the victim."
"But, if we follow him in the second stage, all we would know is the street he had picked. We'd only be able to guess the victim."
"I know," said Casson. "Infuriating, isn't it?"
"Anyway, we've got to wait for stage two. Meantime I'll turn the heat on Macfarlane."

"Macfarlane is your unknown quantity," said Casson slowly.
"Perry is still mine. I'm going back to Chiswick. I'm going to get into Perry's mind. I'm going to pull it to pieces; slowly, carefully, completely."
Casson mounted his attack in the Shepley Arms. He stayed at the bar, talking to Peter, while Perry drank his pint and went home. All he did was to stare twice at the blackmailer in such a way that Perry would notice. Once he lifted his tankard as if to go over to him but put it down again.

"I've seen you before," Perry stiffened and seemed about to move away, but Casson went on cheerfully. "It was Christie's, wasn't it? I often go there, you know."
Perry seemed to relax a little. "I have been to Christie's," he replied. It was a prim voice, prim and punctilious.
"So you're a fellow enthusiast," said Casson. "That's splendid. It's always exciting to meet another civilized being in the middle of a desert of barbarism" — he waved his arm to indicate the saloon bar. "The civilized are rare," he rattled on, praying that Perry was as vain as he calculated he would be, "and the barbarians are many. No sense of beauty among them, no rare perception, no exquisite sense of delicacy. I consider it the duty of people like us to keep those things alive. In fact we're responsible for civilization. Don't you agree?"
Perry blinked once, very quickly, like a frog.
"I do," he said. His eyes were brown.
"My line's pictures," Casson continued. "I don't buy for myself, you know. I wish I did, but I can't afford it. However, I've got a number of rich friends and I buy for them when I can pick up a bargain; not that it's often, but the profit's good when it happens. Porcelain too: Rockingham and Chelsea."
"You're a dealer?" Perry asked in his flat voice.
"Lord, no," Casson laughed. "I'm a writer. I'm just doing a book about the architecture of Chiswick. I take my own photographs. I must show you sometime. You could probably help me." Perry seemed alarmed by this oblique offer of collaboration. He made a few polite, undistinguished comments, drank up his beer, and left.

What are Perry's secret dreams?

District Ruritan Meet On Nov. 26

EUREKA, N. C.—The Greenville-Goldsboro District of Ruritan National convention will be held at the Eureka High School next Monday at 2 p.m.

District Governor John A. Worthington of Eureka will preside. Ruritan is a community service organization composed of farmers, professional people and business men. Ruritan is the sixth largest civic organization in America, with clubs in 17 states. Ruritan was organized in 1928 at Holland, Virginia, by a vocational agriculture teacher.

The Greenville-Goldsboro District is composed of 24 clubs in Beaufort, Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Wayne and Johnston counties. These 24 clubs are made up of 850 members, Governor Worthington stated.

Three new clubs were organized in 1956. They are the Richland club of Aurora, Wheat Swamp Club of Lenoir, and the Corinth-Holder Club of Johnston County.

The highlight of the convention will be the banquet at 6:30. Carl Goerch, North Carolina's "ambassador of good will," will be the speaker. The afternoon session will feature a talk by Ruritan National President, D. E. Hill, former superintendent of school at Camden, S. C. About 200 persons are expected to attend. Dr. Henderson Erwin will welcome the delegates. The Maury Ruritan Quartet and the Eureka Ruritan Club will present an entertaining program at the night session. E. L. Smith, Jr., is secretary-treasurer of the Greenville-Goldsboro Ruritan District. O. J. Gaylord, A. H. Tucker and Joseph Tyndall are lieutenant-governors.

Went Too Far Beating The Law

RENO, Nev. (AP)—In District Attorney A. D. Jensen's mind, six prisoners who broke out of the Washoe County Jail Oct. 28 went a little far trying to get ahead of the law.
Captured and held for Federal action at Sacramento, Calif., the six wrote asking return of $199 they had left behind in the jail. The request prompted Jensen to file a small claims damage suit for the hole the escaping prisoners cut in the wall. The amount of damage: $199.

Strongly Endorses Inquiry Into Soil Bank Operations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Gathings (D-Ark.) today strongly endorsed a suggestion by Chairman Cooley (D-N.C.) for an inquiry by the House Agriculture Committee next month into operation of the soil bank program.

Gathings, a member of the committee, said he had many questions to ask Secretary of Agriculture Benson and other department officials regarding the way the plan has been administered.

Cooley recently wrote Gathings and other committee members asking their views on such a hearing sometime in December. Gathings replied he thought it a good idea.

Cooley had suggested the hearing look into the administration of the program and into any possible changes needed in the law.

Gathings said it appeared to him that the department had discriminated against the Southern states in the program.

"When we had the House-Senate conferences on the final bill last summer," he said, "department experts assured us that soil bank payments would be based on 50 per cent of parity for all crops. But what happened: When the program was announced, rice payments were 50 per cent of parity, cotton 52 per cent, peanuts 26.4 per cent and corn was 60 per cent."

As a result, he said, Iowa farmers received $54,515,000 in soil bank payments for this year, compared with $1,191,000 for Arkansas.

"Seventy five per cent of the 1956 payments went to a group of states from North Dakota to Texas," he said, while the seven Southern states got a total of only about 11 million dollars."

Gathings said he wanted to know the reason for these differences and whether policies had any part in the administrative decisions.

Shepilov Proposal Is Fooling No One

By ED CREECH
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do the Russians really think they're kidding anybody?

This latest dodge of theirs, for instance: They'll pull their troops back from Eastern Europe if the United States and its allies will tear down their "foreign" bases.

Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov cast this artificial bait before the United Nations General Assembly yesterday.

He told the Western powers — meaning us, for the most part: "As soon as you withdraw your troops from Western Germany, as soon as you liquidate your military, air and naval bases on foreign territory, we shall also withdraw our troops from the countries where they are stationed under the Warsaw treaty."

Well, as an American commander told some Nazi-bossed German when they asked him to surrender in World War II:

"The Warsaw treaty of 1955 was a shotgun marriage, if ever there was one. It talked about 'mutual friendship and assistance' between the Soviet Union and seven stooge countries. But Hungary is one of those countries, and the Russians are slaughtering Hungarians under that treaty of 'friendship and assistance.'"

Replying to Shepilov, U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. said:

Rare Pieces Of Currency To Be Shown By Bank

Ever see a $10,000 bill? Or a $5,000 bill which is even rarer?

Both these pieces of currency will be on display in Greenville Tuesday when the State Bank and Trust Company holds its open house from 5 til 8 p.m. They will be part of a special currency display which is being brought to Greenville for the opening of the bank's new quarters at Five Points in conjunction with the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the bank's founding.

"Most folks are interested in money," commented J. T. Marston Jr., president of the bank, "and it occurred to us that our friends might like to look at a few bills which seldom find their way into most people's pockets — or into banks, either, for that matter."

According to the government's latest account, there are only 800 of the $10,000 bills in circulation today and the $5,000 bills number 200 less. Dollarwise there is more money circulating in the country in $20 bills than in any other denomination. Total value of $20 bills in circulation today is almost $10 million. Of course there are more $1 bills than any other denomination, but the latest value of dollar bills in circulation show only slightly more than one and one-quarter million.

The currency display at the State Bank and Trust Company Tuesday will include a wide variety of rare and familiar pieces of United States currency.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Police today were looking for a jilted girl to question her about a fire set yesterday at a rooming house.

Two bundles of newspapers were found burning near the room of a male lodger, but they did little damage.

Armen Bagdasarian, caretaker of the rooming house, said the lodger recently had a falling out with his girl friend and he believed she was responsible for the fire.

Twenty Air Force Cadets On Honorary Drill Team

Twenty cadets of the East Carolina College Air Force ROTC crew serving as members of the Honorary Drill Team.

The team is composed of volunteers from the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets. A separate unit from the Cadet Corps, it is one of several extracurricular activities now being engaged in by cadets in the college detachment.

The team is under the supervision of M. Sgt. Vernon W. Collins of Chadbourne, N. C., assisted by S. Sgt. H. H. Justice, Jr., of Marion, N. C., members of the college Air Force ROTC organization.

During half-time ceremonies at the recent East Carolina-University of Richmond football game, the team gave a performance which attracted applause and favorable comment from spectators.

Appearing in the East Carolina stadium, the cadets executed under the guidance of Cadet Dallas C. Dixon of Grantsboro, N. C., a series of silent movements, some intricate movements directed by Cadet Dixon, and difficult movements of the Manual of Arms. The series was climaxed with the Queen Ann Salute.

Pinza's Singing Voice Is Silenced

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—Ezio Pinza, whose deep, mellow voice brought swoons from the bobby-soxer's mother, says he doesn't intend to sing anymore.

The 64-year-old opera star who switched to popular musicals — "South Pacific" and "Fanny" — just wants to act.

Pinza suffered a heart attack in Italy last August, but he said last night his health did not influence his decision.

"It is my desire and my intention not to sing anymore," he said. "I decided this during the time when I was in Fanny."

"Before I was taken ill, I decided to play in 'A Very Special Baby,' which opened in New York Nov. 14 and closed on the 17th."

Pinza said that after his heart attack, the part — as the father in the play — went to Luther Adler.

"I have sung for 37 years, from 1919 to 1956, a long time," Pinza said. "My plan now is to get well. My doctor says I am ready for light work."

Pinza said he will do movie, television or stage work.

"I find a nice play — a play I like — will take it."

Filing Murder Charges In Search For 2-Year-Old

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sheriff's deputies and volunteers continued the search for 2-year-old William Henry Beaver today while plans were made to file murder charges against his father and grandfather.

The youngster disappeared early Wednesday from the family's three-room frame home in the Charley Creek section, about 20 miles east of Huntington.

His grandmother, Mrs. Virginia Beaver, about 60, told authorities she clubbed him to death because he "got on my nerves," according to Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Qualls. He said the grandmother also told several other stories including statements that "another person" did it, that her son, James — a missing boy — was responsible, and that her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Beaver, 19, seven months pregnant with her second child, did away with the boy.

Beaver, 24-year-old odd-jobs man, told authorities all he knows of his son's disappearance is that the grandmother announced to him and his wife that the boy had "walked off."

Scores of searchers yesterday covered muddy creek bottoms and rugged wooded ridges looking for the youngster.

They believed even though he may have been alive Wednesday night, he could not have survived subfreezing temperatures, a slight snow and strong winds.

Prosecuting Atty. Russell Daugherty who had Beaver and the grandmother take lie detector tests last night, said he would file murder charges today.

Searchers thought for a time yesterday they had finally stumbled on a clue to the boy's whereabouts when they found a child's shirt, but the boy's mother said she had never seen it before.

It was found on the bank of Charley Creek about a half mile from the Beaver home. Despite the mother's disclaimer of the shirt, searchers drained a pond nearby and dragged the creek.

Deputy Qualls said both the creek and the pond had been pointed out by the grandmother as places where she said she disposed of the body.

Plan New Attack On Filibustering

Burma Is Paying For Concession To Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six Northern Democratic senators say they are planning another effort to curb Senate filibusters.

The rule permitting almost unlimited debate in the Senate has been used in the past by Southerners to block civil rights legislation to which they were opposed.

Under the present rule, the votes of 54 of the 96 senators are required to force a limit on debate. Not even this method can be used to stop debate on proposed changes in the Senate rules.

The six Democrats said, however, they will move on the opening day of the new Congress Jan. 3 for a rule change which would provide what they called a "reasonable method" of cutting off debate. A similar attempt four years ago was beaten 70-21.

The proposal was one of a number made yesterday by Sens. Humphrey (Minn.), Douglas (Ill.), Morse (Ore.), Murray (Mont.), McNamara (Mich.) and Neuberger (Ore.).

They suggested to their colleagues a 16-point legislative program based largely on the 1956 Democratic national platform, and invited also the support of "our modern Republican" colleagues who have associated themselves with the President's expressed objective of remaking the Republican party.

Their proposals included tax cuts for lower income persons and small business, a return to higher rigid farm price supports, civil rights legislation on voting and educational rights, prompt federal aid for school construction, and elimination of the present formula for determining immigration quotas.

"Other legislative proposals would affect natural resources, housing and urban redevelopment, social security, health, depressed areas, labor, atomic power development, clean elections, veterans and statehood for Alaska and Hawaii."

COVENTRY, R. I. (AP)—Mrs. Leonard Fecteau finally learned why her kitchen oil burner has been smoky for the past four months.

They found that just inside the chimney the stove pipe came to a dead end in an inverted paint pot.

They reported that a rear door was pried off to gain entrance to the home.

The Prodigal Son

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 15:11-32.

A man having two sons, divided his possessions between them at the request of the younger. Taking his inheritance with him, the younger son went to a far country where he spent his all in wild

Having squandered his all, the son was hired to feed a man's swine. Hungry enough to envy the pigs their food, he decided to go home, confess his faults, and beg his father to make him one of his servants.

As he neared home his father saw him and rushed to embrace him. He replaced the rags with new clothes and ordered a feast prepared, for, said he, this my son was lost and is now found.

The older brother was angry at the welcome the prodigal had received. His father told him that his brother had been lost, but was found, but "all that I have is thine."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 103:10, 11.

The Prodigal Son

A PARABLE ILLUSTRATING HOW GOD REJOICES AT A SINNER'S REPENTANCE

Scripture—Luke 15:11-32.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL WHY DO young people leave their homes—run away? There are many reasons. Sometimes a small child will wander away from home, not realizing how far he is going, and become lost, not knowing how to find his way back home. A kind person, often a policeman, will see the little fellow and take him in charge, asking him his name and restoring him to his parents.

It may be that an older child may have been punished severely for some fault and feel he is no longer loved in his home, so he runs away. Or it may be a spirit of adventure urges him on to leave home and "see the world."

Whatever it is that causes the action, what rejoicing there is when he is found or comes back of his own accord!

The young man of our parable told by Jesus, evidently was not satisfied to stay safely at home and do the work assigned to him, so he asked his father to give him what he would inherit at his father's death, even while his father was alive.

So this father of two sons, did grateful son, a wastrel, an evil being. How often it takes dire calamity to make a person see his real character and to determine to reform.

This young man said to himself, "I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son; make me one of thy hired servants."

So he arose and went home. When he was still a great way off, his father saw him, ran to meet him and embraced him. Isn't it quite possible that the father had been praying, watching, hoping to see his return?

The son humbly confessed that he had sinned and begged his father to accept him as a servant as he was not worthy to be called his son, but the father ordered his servants to bring the best robe and to put it on his son, and shoes for his feet, and then he ordered a "fatted calf" killed and a feast prepared to welcome home his prodigal son.

If this earthly father could so welcome back the son who must as the younger asked and gave him his inheritance. What did the young man do then? He went to a far country, not to get a job and add to his inheritance and to live a good life. He was not that kind of youth. He spent everything that he had in riotous living—wild parties, one may suppose, and in all kinds of immoral actions.

He let all he owned slip through his fingers, and when a famine struck this far land, he was penniless, without the means to even buy himself food, clothes or shelter. None of his companions in his days of plenty did anything for him; so he "went and joined himself to a citizen of that country, and he sent him into his fields to feed swine."

So hungry was he that he would even have eaten the husks he was feeding the swine, but "no man gave unto him." Then he began to think of his comfortable home where his parents loved him and where the servants were always well fed.

Brought so low he began to realize how foolish and evil he had been, and he probably saw himself as he really was—an un-have disappointed him, surely fathers of today may learn a lesson, and welcome their sinning sons home, giving them forgiveness and love. Even if the sinner had committed a crime or serious misdemeanor, he should be welcomed home as God would forgive us and welcome us to His kingdom if we sinned (as we all do) but were truly repentant, confessing our iniquities.

The older son who had stayed at home and been faithful to his father, coming home from work and hearing the merriment at the feast, grew angry. He reminded his father that he had stayed with him and done what was right, but he had never been given a feast for his friends.

This has always seemed to me to be a natural reaction, but our commentator says this son was like a Pharisee, boasting of his righteousness. The father, however, said, "Son, thou art ever with me, and all I have is thine." And he pointed out that it was right that they should rejoice and make merry over the return of the son who had been as dead to them, but was alive; who had been lost, but had been found.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels lost their early edge as the stock market dawdled along slightly higher on average early this afternoon. Trading was quiet.

Gains in pivotal issues ranged from fractions to a point. Losses for the most part were confined to minor fractions.

Motors were steady. Chrysler, Ford, General Motors and Studebaker-Packard all posted slight gains.

Lukens Steel, which had been ahead more than two points earlier, was down almost 4 points.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube held part of its earlier advance. Bethlehem and Republic sifted narrowly lower.

Chemicals and metals were spotty. Lower were American Cyanamid, Allied Chemical and DuPont. Slightly ahead were Dow and Union Carbide.

Anacosta and Kennecott inched up while International Nickel was off.

Bath Iron Works advanced about a point.

Rails tended to move higher in quiet dealings. Small gains were registered by Santa Fe, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Pacific. Southern Railway gave ground slightly.

Eastern air lines gained more than a point on gains turnover.

The market opened mixed in relatively active transactions. Prices improved in early trading with steels and motors leading the way. The pace slowed, however, as profit-taking shaved early gains. Steels in particular turned spotty.

Wall Street analysts had not looked for any decisive pattern in the market this holiday-shortened week. Many traders took advantage of Thanksgiving Day to make it a long weekend.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $174.60 with the industrials ahead 40 cents, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

RALEIGH (AP)—NCDA—Hog markets were mostly 50 to 100 higher today. Tops of 16.00 to 16.50 at Smithfield; 15.75 to 16.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Bethel, Scotland Neck, Jackson and Kinston; 15.50 to 16.25 at Rocky Mount; 15.50 to 16.00 at New Bern, Benson and Nahant; 15.00 to 16.00 at Wintake; 15.00 at Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Goldsboro, Shalotte, Elizabethtown, Micro, Mount Olive, Blackmans Crossroads, Dunn, Clarkton, Whiteville, Bailey, Newton Grove and Tabor City; 15.75 at Castle Hayne; 15.50 at Rich Square, Mount Gilead.

Children Injured In Auto Wreck

A Camp Lejeune marine was not hurt and his two children received only minor injuries when their car went out of control, overturned and struck a tree around 10:45 Wednesday night.

The driver of the vehicle was identified by investigating patrolman James W. Boykin as Bruce Clarence McDaniel 2642 Bouganville Drive, Tarawa Terrace, Camp Lejeune.

McDaniel's two children, Jodie Kaye, age 2 and Kattie Collin, age 6, received cuts and lacerations when they were thrown from the overturning car. However, their injuries were not serious.

Boykin said that McDaniel was headed toward Farmville on U. S. 258 when the accident occurred. He quoted witnesses as saying the vehicle was traveling at a very high rate of speed. The car overturned on a curve about two miles from Farmville. The top was torn entirely from the 1950 hard top.

The patrolman said the car was a total loss. McDaniel was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Accident Victim Required 23 Stitches In Face

Twenty-one stitches were required to close the wounds in the face of a man injured when the car in which he was riding went out of control and overturned on the New Bern Highway last night.

He was identified by investigating patrolman J. B. Surles as Keith Arnold Shelton of Camp Lejeune.

The car was being operated by Korenzo Guinn, also of Camp Lejeune.

Surles reported that the accident occurred about one mile south of Chicod School around 9:45 last night. The vehicle went out of control on a curve, hit a ditch and overturned. Shelton was thrown through the windshield.

Guinn was charged with careless and reckless driving and operating a vehicle with no operator's license. The car was a total loss, Surles reported.

Santa Parade

FARMVILLE—Santa Claus will officially arrive in Farmville November 30 at 4:30 p.m. He will be escorted through town by bands from Farmville's two high schools.

According to Mayor Charles Edwards, Santa will not greet children personally after the parade, a custom in past years. Instead, he will address his remarks to the crowd after arrival and return to town on the afternoon of December 1, 8, 15 and 22 when he will be on the town streets to talk to all children. The change was made this year because of an increasing number of children wanting to talk to Santa, necessitating long waits for children and parents.

Farmville's decorations for Christmas have been arriving this week and will be installed next week. Mayor Edwards said this year's decorations will be as good or better than last year's.

New Million-Dollar Church Is Dedicated

The Pensacola (Florida) News-Journal carried a lengthy illustrated story in its November 4 edition about dedication of the new $1,000,000 First Baptist Church and its pastor, Rev. Uathan C. Brooks, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Brooks of Greenville, N. C. He is completing his third year as pastor of the church.

The Pensacola First Baptist Church, established in 1870, has 1,900 seats, including 500 in the balcony. The tower for the recently completed structure rises 132 feet above the ground floor level. The cross at the top of the tower is eight feet high, standing 188½ feet above sea level.

Three special features of the church building are a bridal dressing room, radio room and a parlor for funeral services. A chapel, which will be used for special services and small weddings, is located on the second story of the building. The pastor's study and the church staff offices are on the second floor.

During Pastor Brooks' ministry the church has organized two chapels, the North Hill Chapel and the Circle Chapel, which was chartered as a church in October of this year.

Claude C. Tyson, operator of a grocery store and filling station at Joyner's cross roads near Farmville, is plaintiff in the civil action against Sinclair Refining Company, John G. Clark of Greenville market of Sinclair products and Wiley L. Waters, a truck driver for Clark.

Tyson has alleged in the action that he was charged with gasoline which he did not receive. The action seeks recovery from the defendants jointly of $3,730.49 for gasoline allegedly fraudulently charged, and $5,000 jointly from the defendants for loss of credit resulting in the charges.
