Withdrawal Of Token Force Set For Monday By British In Suez

Commander Says Pull-Out Will Be Keyed To Build-Up Of UN Forces

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — The withdrawal of a battalion of British troops from the British-French expeditionary force in the Suez Canal Zone is set for Monday. This will be the token withdrawal promised by Britain in what it described as a gesture of good will toward the United Nations. The U. N. General Assembly has called for all British, French and Israeli forces to leave Egyptian soil.

The announcement of the time for the first British withdrawal came after Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, over all commander of the British-French forces in Egypt, flew here from Cyprus. He told newsmen: "Our withdrawal will be related to the United Nations buildup — as fast as the U. N. troops arrive, the British and French will get out."

Canadian Gen. Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U. N. force commander, scheduled a visit to Cyprus today for talks on the withdrawal plans. Burns will inspect the Port Said area Sunday preparatory to bringing in more U. N. troops.

Despite mounting pressure at U. N. headquarters in New York, Britain, France and Israel were standing firmly on their position that a complete withdrawal will be made only when what they have called a "competent" U. N. force takes over.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd reaffirmed this view yesterday. He told the U. N. Assembly that British troops will stay in the Port Said area until London feels that the growing U. N. police force to keep the peace in the Middle East is able to carry out effectively all the tasks assigned to it.

Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, commander of the British-French task force at the operational level in the Canal Zone, said he would pick the battalions to evacuate. The troops probably will be flown to Cyprus, he added. Stockwell said he had received withdrawal orders for only the one battalion.

There was no word on the withdrawal of any French troops. France has told the U. N. that a third of her troops have entered Egypt already have left. Israel reported to the U. N. that her troops have pulled back for varying distances along the Egyptian front.

President Acts To Halt Strike On Waterfronts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today received a board of inquiry's report on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast longshoremen's strike and immediately moved to halt the walkout by court injunction.

The White House said Asst. Atty. Gen. George Doub has left for New York to apply for an injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act which would end the strike for an 80-day "cooling off" period. Doub is scheduled to appear in U. S. District Court in Manhattan at noon. The striking union, the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA), already has said it will abide by any court order.

This would mean that some 60,000 longshoremen in ports from Maine to Texas presumably would return to work Monday if the court issues an injunction today. Shipping in East Coast and Gulf ports has been paralyzed for nine days by the walkout.

In his formal instructions to the attorney general, Eisenhower reviewed briefly the steps already taken in connection with the dispute and said: "In my opinion these unresolved labor disputes have resulted in a strike affecting an entire industry or a substantial part thereof engaged in trade, commerce, transportation, transmission or communication among the several states and with foreign nations which, if permitted to continue, will imperil the national health and safety."

Eisenhower then went on to direct the attorney general to go into court "to enjoin the continuance of such strike where such action is necessary."

The White House said the action taken in the federal court in New York would cover "the whole show," meaning the dispute in all the Atlantic and Gulf ports. The battery of government attorneys and labor relations experts working on the case were aiming to get the struck ports back working again Monday. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA), has said it would comply with the court's order.

However, Louis Waldman, I.L.A. attorney, said he planned to be in court when government attorneys arrive, and to enter objections to an injunction any broader "than should be."

Waldman contended that the stevedore employers were "seeking to win their labor relations battles" by government court injunctions. He said it was "a throwback of 30 years in labor relations."

Hungary Charges 'Secret Radio' In U. S. Legation At Budapest

VIENNA (AP)—Hungary's puppet government accused the United States today of operating a secret radio transmitter in its Budapest legation.

The accusation came only a day after Yugoslavia charged that former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy had been lured from his diplomatic mission on Budapest's embassy row and kidnapped by Soviet secret police.

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty has been given asylum in the U. S. legation, target of today's note. Nagy found refuge in the Yugoslav Embassy and Mindszenty in the U. S. legation Nov. 4, the day Russian tank divisions struck throughout Hungary in an all-out attempt to put down the anti-Communist rebellion.

The government of Premier Janos Kadar, who replaced Nagy, said he welcomed the movement for independence and neutrality between East and West that Nagy proclaimed during his brief period of power.

The Kadar government said as saying operation of radio sending and receiving sets was "illegal" and demanded an immediate halt.

If there is a transmitter in the American legation it has been installed in the past two weeks. The legation had no direct communication with the outside world in the week following Russian attack, when American correspondents also took refuge there.

Waldman charged that the alleged radio transmitter violated "Hungarian sovereignty." Budapest radio quoted the note as saying operation of radio sending and receiving sets was "illegal" and demanded an immediate halt.

Nearly Froze In Abandoned Well

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C. (AP) — An elderly man was making a rapid recovery today after falling into an abandoned well while hunting yesterday and nearly freezing to death.

G. H. Ranborn was found in the well last night after he had stood in waist-deep water for several hours. The temperature stood at 25 here yesterday morning but it had risen to 45 at noon.

Dr. J. W. Boone said that Ranborn, a merchant in his late 60's, was "really frozen" when he finally was rescued and brought to the hospital last night.

He said today Ranborn was suffering from a "mild case of pneumonia" but that he was doing "very well" and his condition was "satisfactory." He said Ranborn was warm, was feeling better and was eating.

Italian Airliner Crash Fatal To 34

PARIS (AP) — A New York-bound Italian airliner fell in flames on a tiny French village today, killing 34 of the 36 persons aboard the craft.

The other two persons aboard the plane, a man and a woman, were hospitalized in critical condition.

A youth sleeping in a home struck by the falling plane was seriously injured. The plane crashed into a field, its first stop on the flight from Rome. It carried a full load of fuel.

Suddenly it pitched downward toward the village of Paray Vieille Poste, about two miles beyond the airport runway.

The airliner first grazed a two-story building. Then it plunged burning into a residence. Spewing flames destroyed another small building nearby. The plane was smashed almost beyond recognition.

Higher Interest Rates For Banks Are Considered

WASHINGTON (AP)—An increase in the interest rate that banks may pay to their depositors was reported today to be under serious consideration by the Federal Reserve Board.

Such an action would tend to add to the banks' deposits and provide them with more funds to meet demands for increasingly scarce credit.

One source, predicting action before the first of the year, said it would be illogical if the board did not approve the increase. A number of banks have asked the action.

By board order, Federal Reserve members now may pay no more than 2 1/2 per cent interest to their depositors. All national banks and many state-chartered institutions are members of the Federal Reserve.

Savings and loan associations, which are not affected by the limitation, are for the most part paying well above the 2 1/2 per cent rate. Although some banks still are not paying that much, most of them are, and can go no higher until the reserve board acts.

The board already is moving quietly to increase the supply of credit to take care of needs peculiar to the Christmas season. Within the last four weeks it has boosted its holdings of government securities by 384 million dollars, and there were indications the total would be increased further by several hundred millions between now and Jan. 1. The holdings are bought from banks, which thereby have more money available for lending.

Pressure Mounting To Get British And French Quickly Out Of Egypt

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Behind-the-scenes pressure mounted today to get Britain and France to pinpoint a withdrawal of their armed forces from Egypt.

It came as the U. N. General Assembly called a special weekend meeting on the thorny Suez invasion issue.

The Assembly prepared to act on a resolution by 21 Asian-African nations for an immediate pull out from Egypt by the two Western powers and Israel. Many delegates appeared uncertain how they would vote.

The uncertainty apparently resulted from reports that Canada and other commonwealth nations had urged Britain and France to give a time limit for withdrawing, thus avoiding the need for a resolution.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the Assembly yesterday that Britain would not pull out of the Suez Canal until London felt the U. N. police force could effectively carry out its job.

British officials at Port Said reported the already promised withdrawal of one battalion of British troops would begin Monday, supporting the compliance resolution. France has reported that about one-third of her forces have been pulled back to some de-escalation fronts. Ne-rejoinder from the Russians.

Success On TV Is A Boomerang

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television had boomeranged for Kuldip Singh Bedi, a student who became a sudden hit as a singer and appeared on the TV shows of Groucho Marx and George Gobel.

Albert Del Guercio, district director of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, saw one of the shows, became curious about the 23-year-old singer's status, and investigated.

Del Guercio said yesterday the youth, known professionally as Singh, had been ordered to leave the country or be deported for failure to maintain his status as a student. He had been studying pre-medicine at UCLA and Los Angeles State College. When he received 5,000 fan letters and a recording contract after his TV debut, he dropped his studies, Del Guercio said.

The youth says he was born in Kashmir, India, but Del Guercio says that Singh was born in Trinidad, British West Indies, of Pakistani parents. Singh said he planned to go to Mexico and try to reenter the United States later.

Snowed-In Erie Is Digging Out After Thursday Storm

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Army Tanks, bulldozers, snow plows and hundreds of men with shovels stepped up efforts today to dig out this lakeport city of 130,000 and adjacent areas from one of the heaviest local snowfalls in history.

Thousands of citizens joined in "operations snow removal," trying to clear side streets and roads of the drifts which buried auto and snarled transportation.

The Thanksgiving Day storm which dumped from 22 to 33 inches of snow in this immediate area tapered off last night into only occasional snow flurries.

Similar conditions also were reported East and East of Erie. The storm also snarled traffic. Snow belt extended roughly 150 miles along the lake, 50 miles west of here into Ohio and about 100 miles east to Buffalo.

While the big snow removal job was underway two helicopters flown from Pittsburgh dropped food supplies at West Springfield, a community of 1,500 about 30 miles west of Erie. More drops were planned for today if roads couldn't be opened.

West Springfield was only one of the many communities cut off completely by the storm which marooned hundreds of motorists and trucks. Many vehicles remained bogged down in the snow and are handicapping efforts of the weary snow plow crews.

Parade Line-Up Time Announced

Participants in the Christmas parade to be held here Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 23 will line up at Ninth and Dickinson Ave. at 4:30 that afternoon. C. B. Goodyear, chairman of the parade, said this morning.

Work was begun on Christmas street decorations last night and the lights will be turned on for the parade.

Americans Are Opening Hearts To Hungarians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Americans from Maine to California are opening their hearts and hearths to Hungarian refugees.

Rich and poor have offered money, food, clothing and homes for the frightened victims of Soviet terror in Hungary.

Federal, state and city government agencies are lending a hand. Churches, schools and colleges have been quick with pledges of help.

The first refugees—wary men, women and children — landed at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey last Wednesday. Several hundred more arrived in planes there and at Milwaukee later in the week.

Two more plane loads are due at McGuire today.

The refugees are the vanguard of 5,000 authorized by President Eisenhower to enter the United States. Even more may follow later.

Meanwhile, the offers of aid are growing into a flood.

The American Red Cross says it has allocated more than $250,000 for relief of Hungarians in their revolt-torn homeland, in refugee camps in Austria and in the refugee reception center at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Temperatures Hovered Around Freezing Point In Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Temperatures hovered around the freezing point last night from the mountains to the seashore as unseasonably cold weather continued to grip the Carolinas.

Weathermen looked for the mercury to fall even lower tonight.

Snow flurries were predicted for mountain areas today. Last night, Winston-Salem and Greensboro, experienced snow flurries combined with a low temperature of 27 at Winston-Salem at Greensboro.

Prospects for no let-up in the cold weather continued past the weekend, extending the low readings which began Thanksgiving eve.

Last night's readings at the state's larger Weather Bureau stations, which reached a low of 23 at Fayetteville, were slightly warmer than Wednesday evening's due to the cloudiness associated with a minor low pressure disturbance moving across the area.

This morning the low pressure area centered near the South Carolina-Georgia border after its push from the central states.

A high in the middle 50s was predicted for South Carolina today with tonight's low falling between 28 and 34. In North Carolina, high for the mountains was predicted in the 30s, and in the 40s across the remainder of the state. Low in the Tar Heel state tonight was expected to range from around 20 inland to 25-30 on the coast.

Last night's other low readings included: 27 at Winston-Salem, 29 at Greensboro, Raleigh and Durham, 29 at High Point, 30 at Asheville, 31 at Wilmington, 32 at New Bern, 33 at Columbia and Greenville, S.C., and Charlotte, 35 at Cherry Point, 41 at Charleston and 42 at Hatteras.

'Goatman' Going On To Farmville

North Carolina's "goatman" was reported at Walstonburg this morning, heading toward Farmville. He is traveling on Highway 264.

The "goatman" is a resident of Western North Carolina who travels along the state's highways with a herd of goats and a wagon. On his present trip from the mountains he has passed through both Raleigh and Wilson.

Plaintiff Is Barred From Recovery By Pitt Jurors

A Pitt County jury deliberated approximately an hour and a half last night before returning a verdict which barred the plaintiff from recovery in what started as a $100,000 civil action.

Plaintiff in the case was Claude C. Tyson, operator of a grocery store and filling station at Joyner's cross roads near Farmville, who brought the action against Sinclair Refining Company, John G. Clark, Greenville marketer for the company and Wiley L. Waters, truck driver for Clark.

The plaintiff sought to recover jointly from the defendants $3,730.49 for gasoline which allegedly was not delivered, and an additional $5,000 for loss of credit. In addition the plaintiff sought punitive damages of $10,000 against Waters, $25,000 against Clark and $75,000 against Sinclair Refining Company.

After the evidence in the case against Sinclair Refining Company, the jury rendered a verdict which said Waters and Clark were not indebted to the plaintiff and that the plaintiff should recover nothing from them.

CHAPTER 20

When John Perry got back to his house in Bickereth Street, he shut and bolted the front door...

Although it was still light in the street, light and hot and sunny, he lit the used candles in silver George II candlesticks...

It was upsetting meeting strange like the gentleman in the living room. He changed into soft, shabby carpet slippers and, as he took his walking shoes into the kitchen...

That gentleman in the public house belonged to the world in which he coveted a place, his due place, a world in which hand-made shoes would be unobtrusively noticed...

would turn more to him, interested in him. He would rise to take his leave. He would press him to stay, to take another glass of sherry...

A week later he would be invited to dine. He would cancel another invitation in order to accept. And he could visualize so well what had happened in the interval...

So he would dine with them. Later, when the conversation was flowing freely with the port and sherry, he would bring the talk round to ancient Rome...

Casson too was speculating. He busied himself in developing his original thesis. He had imagined that Perry would bring the talk in order to build a silent world of valuable possessions...

At that moment Perry reached the fullness of his dream. He got up, heeked his thumb and forefinger and snuffed the candle-flames. He went into the back room on the first floor and got his supper, eating it at the plain table by the window...

Casson visits Perry's home in Monday's thrilling chapter of Small Venom.

Mrs. Wesley Earl Craft

Craft-Nelson Vows Said Wednesday

The marriage of Miss Irene Elizabeth Nelson and Wesley Earl Craft was solemnized in an eight o'clock ceremony Wednesday at the Greenville Church of God.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson of Route 5, Greenville, and her husband is the son of Mrs. A. J. Curry of Farmville.

The bride's pastor, the Rev. R. P. Fields, performed the ceremony. Wedding music was presented by Mrs. R. P. Fields, pianist, and Jesse Boyd, soloist, who sang "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of taffeta and nylon net, fashioned with lace bodice and long sleeves ending in points over the hands.

Her veil of bridal illusion was draped from a crown of seed pearls and she carried a white Bible gift of her parents, topped with a white orchid and satin streamers.

Miss Willadean Duncan of Whiteville attended her as maid of honor. Her gown was of coral taffeta with nylon net and lace bodice and she carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

Two brides of the bride served as junior attendants. They were Misses Carolyn Dianne Nelson and Emily Larue Nelson. Their gowns were of blue net over taffeta and they carried pink rose buds.

Flower girl was Miss Betty Massey, niece of the bridegroom. She wore pink net over taffeta and carried a small basket of pink rosebuds.

Jim Craft served his brother as best man.

Ushers were Howard Stocks Jr. of Greenville, Tom Brown of Farmville, Elton Waters of Washington and Leo Buck of Black Jack.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nelson wore a Navy suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red rose buds.

Mrs. Curry chose a peacock blue dress, black accessories and a corsage of red rose buds.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Craft will be at home in Farmville.

For travel the bride wore a pert-winkle blue dress of wool and nylon with black and white accessories and the orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Cake Cutting

Following the Craft-Nelson wedding rehearsal Tuesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson and the Rev. and Mrs. R. P. Fields entertained the family and friends of the couple at a cake cutting at the Church of God parsonage on Myrtle Avenue.

White chrysanthemums decorated the house. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with the three-tiered wedding cake baked by Mrs. Fields.

Miss Quinerly, Mr. Outlaw Marry

GRIFTON—In a four o'clock ceremony Thursday afternoon in the First Christian Church Miss Walehah Macon Quinerly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Patrick Quinerly of Grifton, and Mr. Lloyd Benjamin Outlaw Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Outlaw of Seven Springs, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Joseph L. Roberson, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double-ring rites.

Altar decorations were of palms, magnolia, seven branched candelabra and floor baskets of white chrysanthemums and vinca.

Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Albert Tyson, organist, and Mrs. Paul Bradley and Miss Argent Tucker, cousins of the bride, vocalists. Their numbers included "Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of scalloped hand-clipped Chantilly lace and nylon tulle-over bridal satin. The pointed bodice was fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves extending to calla points over the hands. The voluminous skirt was banded in the scalloped lace and lavishly flounced with tulle.

Her finger-tip veil of imported illusion was attached to a pearlized orange blossom bandeau. She carried a small white family Bible topped with a white orchid.

Mrs. Sterling P. Smith of Elizabeth City, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a Paris blue antique taffeta colonial type full-length gown designed with sculptured bodice, topped with a removable net fichu. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses tied with matching ribbons.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Joseph Outlaw, of Plymouth, as best man. Ushers were Sterling P. Smith of Elizabeth City and Lewis James Outlaw of Seven Springs, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a black tulle suit and purple orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a Navy blue ensemble and a corsage of red roses.

After the ceremony the couple received in the church vestibule. The bride attended the Grifton schools, Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and the Charlotte Memorial Hospital School of Medical Technology. For the past several years she has been with the Melchor Clinic in Wilson as medical technologist.

The bridegroom attended the Seven Springs school and North Carolina State College in Raleigh. He is now with the N. C. State Department marketing division in Raleigh and farms in the Seven Springs community.

For her wedding trip the bride wore a blue tweed suit with black accessories, the orchid carried in her wedding and a full length gray topcoat.

After December 7 the couple will be at home in Country Club Homes Apartment in Raleigh.

Out-of-Town Guests

Among out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mrs. David Duncan, Newark, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Graham Boykin, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Case, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Mercer, Miss Marjorie Crisp and Miss Anne Youngblood of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Al Howard of Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. J. Mack Albright of Charlotte; J. P. Quinerly of Whiteville; Miss Joanne Sutton of LaGrange; Mr. and Mrs. Don Outlaw of Kingston.

Cake Cutting Wednesday

On Wednesday night after the rehearsal for the Outlaw-Quinerly wedding Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Quinerly entertained at an informal cake-cutting for members of the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests at their home on Church Street.

The nuptial colors of white and green were noted in the decorations throughout the home. The decorated wedding cake was cut by the bride and served with punch, nuts and mints.

Pre-Nuptial Parties

Mrs. Milton Hart and Mrs. Claude Hart entertained Monday night at a party honoring Miss Quinerly, bride-elect.

The Milton Hart home for the occasion was decorated with white chrysanthemums and greenery and lighted candles to carry out the green and white color note which was also used in table appointments and refreshments.

Miss Quinerly wore for the occasion a carnation corsage presented to her by the hostesses.

Bride was played at three tables. During the evening high scores were compiled by Mrs. H. P. Quinerly and Mrs. W. I. Bissette.

The guest of honor was remembered with a chafing dish and ching in her chosen pattern.

At the refreshment hour bridal teas, individual cakes and coffee were served to the guests.

Dessert Bridge Honoree

Mrs. Paul Bradley and Miss Bert Johnson were hostesses at a dessert bridge on Tuesday night at the home of Miss Johnson to honor Miss Quinerly.

Guests were invited for 7:30 and found their places at the card tables by bridal tallies. Each table was centered with a small nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Other decorations were of chrysanthemums in white and lavender and a fruit arrangement in the dining room.

Five tables were arranged in this setting and ices in the shape of wedding bells and individual cakes embossed in green and white. Served refreshments at its close.

Miss Quinerly was remembered with silver in her pattern and a corsage of red rose buds.

Feted At Cake Party

Miss Quinerly was honored on Tuesday when Mesdames W. I. Bissette, H. C. Oglesby and Thurman Williams entertained at the Oglesby home on McRae Street at an informal Coca-Cola party.

Guests were received by the hostesses and presented to Miss Quinerly who was wearing a pink corsage of mums, and her mother, Mrs. H. P. Quinerly.

In the living room bouquets of pink and white chrysanthemums were used with autumn leaves as decorations.

The refreshment table was covered with a cut work linen cloth and held a cornucopia filled with fruit and flowers. On the buffet a bowl of mauve and pink chrysanthemums was used.

Tiny ham biscuits, cheese dainties, open-face sandwiches, nut puffs and other party cakes were served with Coca-Colas to the 40 guests who called between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30.

Social Notes

A combination birthday and wedding anniversary celebration will be held tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith of 493 E. Ninth St. A family homecoming dinner at noon followed by open house from 4 to 6 p.m. to which friends and relatives are invited will mark the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Smith and the ninety-second birthday of Mr. Smith.

The eight Smith children will be present for this occasion along with their families and families' families. They include Mr. and Mrs. Guilford C. Smith of Charleston W. Va.; Lloyd Smith of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. C. A. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Morris and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilkerson, Jr. and family and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cavness, all of Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crumpler and family of Mebane; and Mrs. George Franklin and family of the home. Most of the family will be arriving tonight and tomorrow.

Twelve of the fourteen Smith grandchildren will be present for the occasion along with one of the four great grandchildren.

Wasted Concern Over South's Vote

"It's about time that a lot of people in the South decide whether they are Democrats or Republicans."

We don't deny that this statement of Adlai Stevenson has merit, but why should the states of the South, which are more in the habit of voting Democratic than any others, be singled out for this remark.

Had it not been for the Southern states, the Democratic national ticket headed by Mr. Stevenson would have had only 13 electoral votes rather than 74. Missouri was the only state not part of the Southern bloc that was carried by the Democratic presidential ticket.

It may be important for people of the Southern states to decide whether they are Democrats or Republicans, but from the standpoint of the future of the Democratic party, it appears much more important for the people of states in all other parts of the nation to make up their minds.

Frankly, we're getting tired of national leaders of the Democratic party blaming the party's trouble on Southern States which always come through for the party when the chips are down. In 1948 the Southern wing of the party was the target of bitter criticism at the national party convention. Again in 1952 Southern delegations were set out in so many words by some Northern Democrats as uncertain elements from whom should be required a "loyalty pledge" before they could participate in naming the party's candidates. Now in 1956 the party's standard bearer, after the election in which he received majorities from six Southern states in capturing electoral votes from only seven states, has the nerve to tell the Southern voters they have to make up their minds between parties.

Election results for the past half century should be conclusive evidence that Southern voters have pretty well made up their minds between the two major political parties. Were it not for the Southern states which consistently give their support to Democratic candidates for the national ticket, the Democratic party would have fared much worse in many elections than has been the case.

The matter of voters making up their minds between parties seems to us much more applicable in Stevenson's home state of Illinois, or in New York, or in California or a dozen other states than in the South.

If a good many national leaders of the Democratic party—including Stevenson—would pay more attention to the voting habits of the people of their home states and voice less criticism toward the voting records of Southern states, the Democratic party would be much better off.

Plenty Of Water, If N. C. Exercises Care

North Carolina has plenty of water if it will take care of its resources.

That was the good news and stern warning issued by the State Board of Water Commissioners in its initial report to Gov. Hodges on an inventory of North Carolina's water resources. Findings of the survey should be adequate to spur North Carolina to take adequate action to preserve its water supply in the face of increasing demands from industry, municipalities, agriculture and other major consumers of water.

Unlike many other states, North Carolina has taken for granted its ample and valuable water resources. Here where rivers and streams have always provided a plentiful supply of water and underground resources have afforded vast reservoirs, little if any thought has been given to the abuse of our water supply. For decades waters of the state have been exploited without thought for conservation. Rivers and streams long have been the favorite dumping grounds of individuals, municipalities and industries.

In spite of this abuse, North Carolina's water resources—because of their abundance—have not been ruined. That does not mean they will be adequate for future requirement unless more care is taken of them.

The report to Gov. Hodges sums up the situation in one sentence:

"North Carolina has an ample supply of water to meet its needs for years to come provided it is used wisely and not wasted as it has been in the past."

While there is still time, North Carolina must make every effort to assure that its water resources will always be adequate to meet its demands. Unless efforts in that direction begin immediately, the state may wake up one year in the future and find that its waste and abuse of water resources have been so flagrant that its chief natural asset is no longer adequate to take care of the demands for it.

Such a day would be disastrous for North Carolina.

The 1957 General Assembly should give careful attention to studies of the State Board of Water Commissioners and it should enact such legislation as may be necessary to protect the state's water resources. A total program cannot be enacted at a single session of the General Assembly, but unless the state begins now to lay down regulations designed for the long range conservation of water resources of the state, North Carolina can not hope to enjoy indefinitely the abundant water supply it has abused for decades.

New Corn Belt In The Land Of Cotton

RALEIGH — The land of cotton is becoming the nation's second Corn Belt — and at a time when, increasingly, corn moves from farm to industry and back to the farm again innumerable ways.

The 10 top corn-producing states are, of course, in the Middle West, or Corn Belt. Out of the next 10, six are in the Southeast. The per acre yields in the Southeast climb steadily. And North Carolina moves out front as Dixie's top corn-producing state.

Significantly, for several years in a row now, the top corn yield in the United States has been made by a 4-H Club youngster in Prentiss County, Mississippi. He has grown over 300 bushels on a measured acre.

Kansas, a state long considered pretty strong in corn and whose eastern half is an integral part of the Corn Belt and contributed heavily to the great annual U.S. corn harvest, ranked only 20th in production last year. This was well behind Kentucky, North Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Mississippi, and just barely ahead of Virginia and South Carolina.

Corn, a crop never particularly or closely identified with Dixie in past decades, is now coming in with livestock and booming large in the farm economy.

It's all a part of the advent of an animal agriculture made up of meat, milk and poultry production.

In most Southeastern states the average yield per acre has better than doubled in five or six years. New Hybrids, better cultivation practices and the competitive stimulus of state corn improvement contests have been major factors.

Some high spots in the picture:

In North Carolina, a state where corn occupies one-third of the cropland, per-acre yields during recent years have increased 67 per cent. This year's indicated yield is an all-time record of 41 bushels per acre, eight bushels higher than the previous record set in 1950. Even with hurricane wind and water damage, 1955 yields were 32.5 bushels per acre. The ten-year average (1944-53) is 28.4 bushels.

"With good weather, we may reasonably expect yields exceeding 40 bushels an acre as a regular thing in the near future," predicts Dean D. W. Colvard of the School of Agriculture at N. C. State College.

Of the corn acreage in North Carolina, 70.5 per cent is now planted in hybrid varieties. The total indicated production in North Carolina this year is nearly 8,000,000 bushels. By way of comparison, South Carolina's corn acreage planted this year with hybrid seed varieties is estimated at 54 per cent.

Individual yields exceeding 100 bushels per acre have been achieved in virtually every farming county in the Southeast. Thus Dixie becomes more prominently linked with a crop which not only is basic to the regions dramatically emerging animal agriculture but also a crop whose products return to the farm in innumerable ways little dreamed of in an earlier day.

About 85 per cent, or two and a half billion bushels, of the nation's corn crop is eventually consumed by Americans in the form of meat, milk and eggs. The other 15 per cent goes into by-products that have a myriad of food, feed and non-food industrial uses and application.

Corn now contributes about 90 per cent of the total supply of starches in the United States, according to Norman F. Kennedy, director of research of the Corn Industries Research Foundation. Furthermore, U.S. corn starch consumption has increased from less than a billion pounds a year in 1939 to more than two billion pounds annually in the last few years.

Starch is tailor-made for an ever-growing variety of industrial uses by the corn refining industry which quantitatively are greater than the food uses. Such uses involve all sorts of industrial operations ranging from oil-well drilling to book-binding, from aluminum to dynamite, or from foundry casting to "miracle drugs". The No. 1 and No. 2 consumers are paper and textiles, respectively.

In countless farm homes every day a farmer wakes, dresses, eats breakfast, lights a cigarette, reads his mail, maybe signs a check or writes a letter, or drives to town in his truck or car.

In each of these normal daily routines this farmer utilizes corn — possibly some of the very corn he grew and sold months ago.

For products of corn went into the bed sheets he arose from, the cotton shirt he put on, his breakfast bacon and eggs or the syrup for his pancakes, the cigarette he smoked, the package that contained it and the match he lit it with, the paper of the check he signed, the gum on the envelope he opened, various parts of his car or truck, from cylinder heads to upholstery and tires, and even the gasoline that powered his car and the road on which he drove.

Corn winds up, indeed, in some odd corners.

Dropping Out, One By One

"It's really worrying me," said Jake Hadley, supervisor of the Greenville Ground Observer post shortly after it was revealed North Carolina's Civil Defense had been on a secret two-week alert for possible attack.

"If we ever needed Ground Observers, we need them now. For some reason, people just don't seem conscious of that need. I've done everything I could."

What kind of preparedness had the local post shown during the recent near-wartime footing Civil Defense leaders had borne in silence?

"I'd estimate the Greenville post was manned somewhere between ten per cent and fifteen per cent of the time," guessed Hadley. "Of course, we weren't notified of the secret alert," he continued, "but our overall record is disheartening. Organizations have been dropping out, one by one. Some women's groups deserve an awful lot of credit for trying. I know they've had a hard time of it, but they do keep trying."

The arguments for a strong and organized Civil Defense are so obvious they needn't be repeated again. Nor should it be necessary, with news analysts and diplomats nervous about brinks of war (they seem all around us), to add that an active "grid" of ground observers is and will be an important adjunct to the nation's survival.

As to why specifically, we in Eastern North Carolina should operate a ground observer post with no target areas in our midst—well, that's another story. But I can't forget that for some very good reason there is a jet interceptor unit poised nearby at Seymour-Johnson Air Base at Goldsboro.

Even if there were no air of crisis involved, it is easy to see how a network of ground observer posts could be useful in aiding lost pilots or guiding searchers to crash sites.

Of course, the local situation is not all black. As Hadley says, "at least there are now a lot of people who know what a GOC post is, and have an idea as to how it functions; and that's more than I knew 18 months ago when it was organized." So we there would be a lot of help available after an emergency arose.

But it strikes me that we'd all be doing ourselves a favor if that help was available before and during any more future secret alerts.

Notebook On Life

TV Operation Garry Moore

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Garrison Morfit, who has 25 bowties and runs a 12½-million-dollar-a-year business, has a problem.

He knows what he does for a living — but he can't figure out what he is.

Behind a door marked "Shop Foreman" near a desk guarded by a stuffed imitation bulldog, Thomas Garrison Morfit sat and mused aloud over his predicament while a yellow parakeet — the gift of an admirer — flew about the office looking for a quiet place to park and take the lead off his feathers.

"I sing a little, but I'm not a singer," said Thomas Garrison Morfit. "I dance a little, but nobody would call me a dancer. I also crack a few jokes, but I'm not really a comedian. I really don't know what I am."

But everyone in show business today knows what Thomas Garrison Morfit — who's known as "Garry Moore" during business hours — has become. He's the housewives' delight, and a real kingpin in the wonderful world of television.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CONSCIENCE

A quiet conscience is a great blessing and anyone who has ever been kept awake at night with a bad conscience knows this. But if a good conscience is a complacent conscience, it can do infinite harm. The great Albert Schweitzer, conscious of the enervating power of a complacent conscience, declared in one of his writings that a quiet conscience is an invention of the devil.

Yes, if by quietness we mean complacency, and very often we do. Some of the worst people in the world have a completely quiet conscience. The word conscience really means "with knowledge," and a person who has a good and healthy conscience is one whose knowledge of right and wrong constantly rises up to rebuke anything in his life which is unworthy. A good conscience may be anything but a quiet conscience. It may be a conscience highly agitated, which keeps one in continual distress. If one has sinned, he needs to be in distress until he repents of that sin and makes amends.

A quiet conscience may arise from the fact that one's moral powers are benumbed or hardened.

So don't ask yourself whether or not you have a quiet conscience. The Bible never once speaks of a quiet conscience — only of a good conscience, a pure conscience, a conscience devoid of evil.

Vicious Cycle Of Pay And Price Increase

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON

Now that politics has been shunted off the stage for a while, readers are more interested in economics, as the following significant letter from W.E.Z., of Long Beach, Calif., testifies:

"For years I have studied the subject of wages and prices. When the steel mill workers get a raise in pay, it is passed on to the consumers. As a consumer, I get a raise to pay these prices. My company raises prices to pay the pay raise to me and other workers.

"This goes on year after year. I will not be getting any more for my money a few years from now, even if my daily wage is double what it is now. What good is a raise in pay, if other prices eat it up as fast as I get it? Is there a solution to this problem?"

Answer: This question, and the doubts expressed in the letter, may explain why so many working men and women voted for President Eisenhower on November 6. Through the non-inflationary policy of the Treasury and Federal Reserve, prices rose less than 3 per cent during his first three years. To be fair, it must be noted that he did not have to combat the inflationary pressures of the Korean War expenditures.

VIOLATION OF THE vicious cycles of pay and price raises cited by W.E.Z., can be licked in several ways, although all are difficult. In an industry grants a pay boost, it can absorb the extra cost without increasing the price of its product. That would increase the value of the workers' increase. But invariably, the industry argues that it needs a price boost in order to finance the wage raise, make profits and set aside sufficient reserves.

An easy solution, and one frequently proposed by organized labor and its professional political spokesmen, is a government limitation on profits. But that would also require Federal control of wages. It would result in the creation of a totalitarian state, with both the employer and worker in the grasp of an Uncle Sam hardly different from the Soviet's Bukharin.

Another remedy is greater productivity. If a worker turns out more goods as a result of the pay raise, and if management ploughs its profits into more modern plants and machinery, the price of their joint product can be kept at such a level that the pocketbook bulge will be real benefit.

PROBLEM'S COMPLEX FACTORS Many other complex factors, of course, enter into the situation. The Treasury and Federal Reserve must manage their business, with regard to the timing of security issues, interest rates and bank reserves, so that the relation between wages and prices will be kept in balance. They must try to counteract or neutralize both inflationary or deflationary pressures.

However, there is a certain compensatory psychology, so I am told, in getting a pay boost,

Building Spurs On '57 Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER
Construction is one multibillion-dollar reason for expecting the present high level of business activity to continue long into 1957.

Total construction contracts signed this year will be for $25,089,000,000 according to estimates of the F. W. Dodge Corp. This will be a new record.

But a large part of the spending involved — for labor and materials — will be done next year. If that isn't enough, the Dodge firm, a leading reporting organization in 37 eastern states, predicts that total contract awards next year will be $26,783,000,000, an increase of 7 per cent. The physical increase will be somewhat less. That's because prices of labor and materials are rising.

The Dodge experts expect a small increase in the number of new nonfarm dwellings. However, because of higher costs, this will not mean any increase in floor area. They look for declines in the physical volume of commercial and manufacturing buildings; increase in hospital and institutional buildings; minor increases in other nonresidential buildings, and a sharp rise in public works and utilities.

OTHER COMING DEVELOPMENTS

Here are more look-aheads for business:
West coast ports may boom, once labor troubles are settled. With the Suez Canal blocked, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle have become much closer than New York by water to many Far Eastern ports. In 1955, United States received a total of 1,030 metric tons of agricultural commodities through the canal. (A metric ton is 2,204.62234 pounds.)

Silk's comeback will grow strong. Silk blouses, sportswear and bathing suits won considerable acceptance this year and store buyers are now ordering heavier stocks for next spring and summer.

A boom in gas appliances is coming. So calculates the American Gas Association. With plentiful gas, the association expects sales of 300,000 units between 1956 and 1957.

Business failures may rise next year. Victims, as always, will be poorly managed enterprises. Many financing deals come up for review between now and the end of the year. With money scarce, lenders are more selective and weak firms may be unable to get notes renewed.

TAX PROSPECTS
A drive to close tax loopholes may succeed in 1956. While some are obviously unfair, the real reason for Congressional action will be the fact the government needs more money.

More local sales taxes are coming. They have been increasing in number and percentage points for several years and since states and cities need more money, the trend is likely to continue — until there is a downturn in sales.

Don't expect much small-business tax relief. While politicians in both Parties promised lots during the campaign, real relief isn't practical. Most proposals would help big business as much as little fellows and cutting total revenues now isn't practical.

OLD PROMOTER CREDITS PRESLEY FOR BOOM
The Old Promoter shuffled slowly in today, sank into the visitors' chair and shook his head in puzzlement.

"I've just come from one of those business association lunches," he said. "Do you know what members did? They spent two hours denouncing Elvis Presley. They said he was a menace to the musical tastes and esthetics of the youth, and that his wigging is positively disgraceful."

Isn't that a strange attitude for businessmen to take? Presley is selling millions of records, he's packing thousands of people into movie houses and, as a television guest, he's selling millions of dollars worth of products. He's contributing more to the 1956 boom than Davy Crockett contributed to the 1955 boom. Can you imagine the faceless symbols Moore always remembers they are people. His humor is sometimes robust, but never cruel. He never reaches for a laugh at the expense of destroying anyone's essential human dignity.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Suez Canal, A Useless Ditch

(Asheville Times)
Among other problems created collectively or severally by President Nasser of Egypt, Britain, France and Israel is the new acute problem of supplying oil to Britain and Western Europe.

The Suez Canal is blocked by sunken ships and one railroad bridge—the ships having been sent to the bottom of the canal by the Egyptian defense forces as a counter-measure against the invaders.

First estimates of about two months to clear the long channel are being revised upward, the latest forecast being six months.

Western Europe, including Britain in the term, normally imports about 70 per cent of its oil from the Middle East. Until now this oil has been shipped through the canal.

It is quite understandable therefore that British officials especially, several days ago appealed to the United States for aid in preventing an economic crisis in Western Europe caused by an oil drought.

In a response to the appeal that so far is only general in its terms, the Eisenhower Administration has announced that it will not stand idly by while Western Europe industry is impeded by an oil shortage. Nasser's men did a thorough job of sabotage of the canal. Some 50 vessels were sunk in the channel and the harbor approaches. At one point a ship laden with scrap iron and concrete lies at the bottom of the waterway. Removal of all this wreckage has been described as "a ghastly job."

Old American tankers are being demobilized for service in carrying oil. American steel companies are turning out steel plates on emergency orders for the building of a tanker fleet.

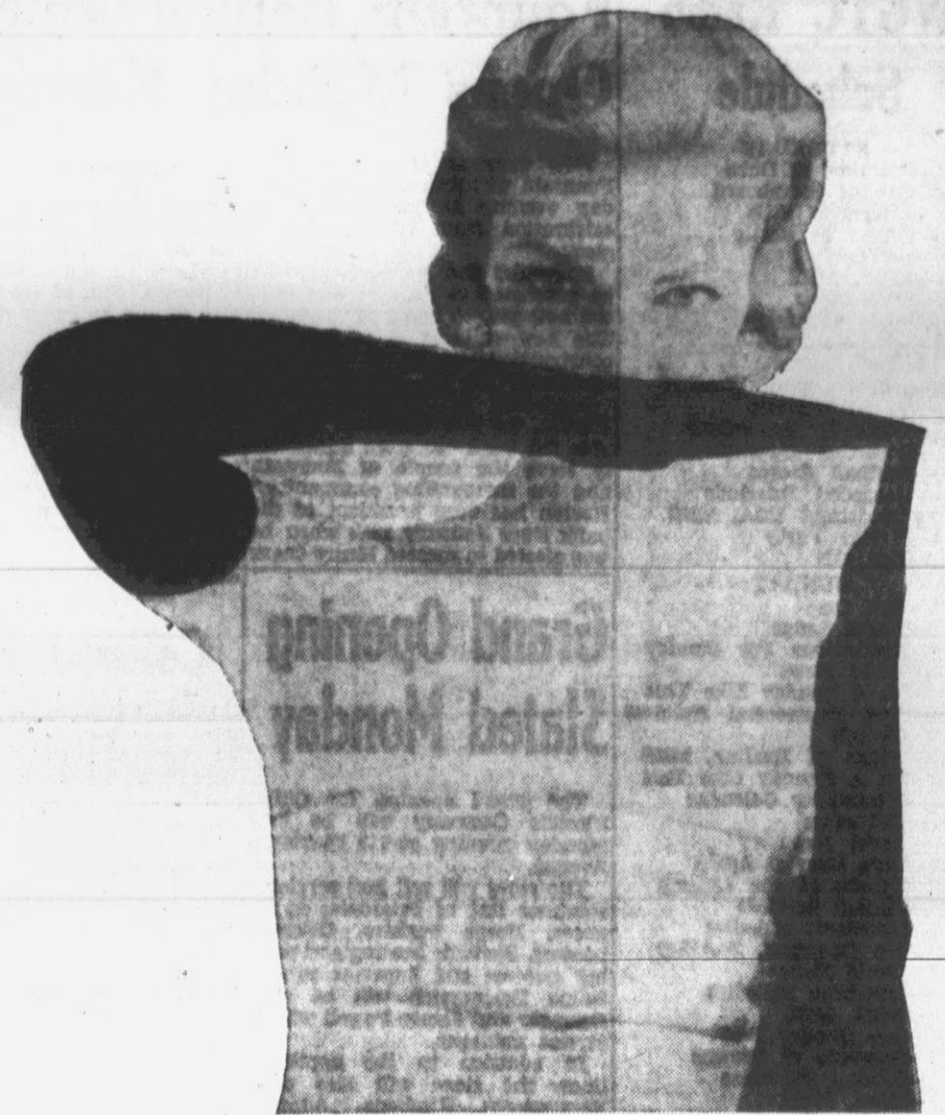

Much oil will be available for Europe from the United States and South America. Unless the Arab countries sympathetic with Egypt destroy all the pipe lines, the big oil tankers can make the voyage from the Persian gulf and the Mediterranean around Cape Good Hope without adding exorbitantly to the price of oil and other merchandise. But Britain and France are already feeling the pinch of dwindling oil supplies.

One possibly hopeful sign for peace appears amidst the general gloom. In the last six years the Arab countries have received $3,500,000,000 in oil revenues. Much of it went into schools, roads, hospitals. Blocking the canal, Nasser is punishing his friends and himself as well as his enemies.

Fountain Bank Formally Opens Monday Evening

New quarters of the Bank of Fountain will formally open Monday evening at an open house celebration from 7:30 until 9 o'clock.

Souvenirs and refreshments will be presented to persons who visit the new $35,000 home of the bank. The new building is of masonry construction, 30 by 60 feet and completely air conditioned.

According to President J. M. Horton, the new quarters will enable the bank "to more adequately serve the people of Fountain and the surrounding community."

Horton has been president of the bank since January 1952 when he was elected to succeed Henry Clark

Bridgers, president from 1910 until his death in 1951.

When the bank was organized it had $10,000 in operating capital but has expanded since then to where it now has total assets of $1,400,000. One of the first members of the board of directors, R. A. Fountain, is still a director and is serving with E. B. Beasley, A. D. Powles, C. M. Smith, H. H. Taylor, G. E. Trevathan and J. M. Horton.

Serving with President Horton as officers of the bank are E. B. Beasley, vice-president; J. E. Owens, cashier; and Mrs. Allen Pittman, assistant cashier. The bank has three full-time employees and one part-time employee.

Grand Opening Slated Monday

The grand opening for O'Neil Electric Company will be held Monday morning at 712 Dickinson Avenue.

The store will sell and service a complete line of Frigidaire appliances, Norge washers, Coleman heaters, Blendair heating and cooling systems and Supreme ranges. Ralph Heidenreich will be store manager and James Powell will be service manager.

In addition to the appliance lines, the store will also offer Youngtown Kitchens. Admiral radios, small electrical appliances and a complete selection of electrical supplies. As an affiliate of O'Neil Electric Company of Washington, N. C., the store will have as its motto, "We service what we sell."

Manager Heidenreich traveled for two and a half years for the Bowers Wholesale Company of Norfolk, an appliance distributor. While with the Norfolk firm he covered 22 counties in Northeastern North Carolina as a salesman for Norge appliances and Youngtown kitchens. After moving to Greenville from Norfolk he was a clerk in the Post Office for five and a half years.

In connection with the grand opening, the new business will offer door prizes and favors to visitors.

Although Garry hits a bigger single audience as weekly master of ceremonies on "I've Got a Secret," his daily morning CBS network show takes most of his time. The program is a 12-million-dollar-a-year operation now, and Garry has to supervise a staff of 85 people, including six writers.

"The trouble with an operation of this kind," he said, "is that as it grows you have to spend more and more time on administrative details, leaving less time for the creative end."

Garry is sometimes called "the only guy in television without an enemy," but his easygoing nature riles a bit when he is sometimes asked, "How do you like working before an audience of women?"

"Their tone implies they don't feel housewives have much intelligence," Garry said. "Yet women make up more than half the audience that watches the top intellectual or cultural evening programs."

"Do they suddenly get smarter after 6 o'clock? I don't think so. They're smart all day."

"Women are interested in any subject you present — as long as you don't get pedantic in your approach."

Garry appears so completely at ease on his shows that it is hard to believe he still sometimes has to fight down actor's buck fever.

But his wife said:

"Garry's like a duck swimming — he looks calm on the surface, but underneath he's mighty busy."

Now Friendly Service

FROM A MODERN BANK

Last year State Bank adopted the slogan "friendly service." And all of us have tried to live up to it in our day-by-day dealings with the people of Greenville and Pitt County. But sometimes it's difficult to show friendship when the bars of an old-fashioned cage are between you and us. And often it was impossible to perform the services our customers deserved while working in an out-moded banking house—and later when the place was full of scaffolding, and builders and painters were swarming all over the place.

But now we have the banking house that the people of this city and county deserve. Now Greenville and Pitt have as modern a bank as can be found in the State. Now we can deliver friendly service without the handicaps of the past.

On Tuesday, November 27, we are holding open house. We hope you can be present. If not, come to see us at any time convenient to you. It's a new bank but on the same site at Five Points.

Doctor Stricken During Surgery

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dr. Charles Hugh Maguire, 47, operating on a nurse who had assisted him during surgery many times, was fatally stricken by a heart attack yesterday.

Immediately after he collapsed, a fellow surgeon placed him on an operating table, opened his chest and tried unsuccessfully to revive him by massaging the heart.

The nurse was suffering from varicose veins. A resident physician finished the operation.

'Help Hungary Day' On Sunday

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges has designated Sunday as "Help Hungary Day."

The governor said yesterday he was setting aside Sunday for that purpose because "of the terrible sacrifices that are being made by the Hungarian people in their fight for freedom."

Americans, he said "have been deeply shocked at the recent events in Hungary," and have watched with awe the gallant fight of the people against overwhelming odds."

Dog Undergoes Surgery... Eyesight Is Restored

ENORMOUS APPETITE—Bill Roberts and his sister, Patsy, are preparing Kit's supper which consist of a quart of milk, a can of dog food, some dried dog chips, and scraps from the table. "Kit won't eat raw meat but does like lots of water", Bill explained.

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Staff Writer

Bill Roberts of Farmville was a worried boy. His "best hunting friend" was totally blind due to cataracts covering both eyes.

Bill first discovered the friend's blindness when they went on a camping trip to Virginia in July. Away from his everyday haunts, his friend was lost.

At first Bill had some difficulty persuading an eye doctor to remove the cataracts—for his friend, Kit, is a beautiful, coal black Newfoundland dog weighing 110 pounds.

Even though Kit closely resembles a woolly black bear, he is in reality quite gentle, playful, and a pig over water. During his nine years Kit has saved his master from drowning, pulled him about in a wagon, been his constant playmate, and has become an honored member of the Roberts' household.

The Operation
Bill is quite a diplomat . . . it was primarily due to his "high pressure sales talk" that Kit can't see out of his right eye!

"Bill first begged me to just look at the dog," explained a Greenville physician. "While I was looking, Bill was flattering my nurse into coming on his side."

Before he could catch his breath, the doctor was setting up his equipment in the veterinarian hospital at Farmville! His Greenville nurse and Dr. Albert W. Smith, Jr., Farmville veterinarian, assisted him.

Dr. Smith applied the anesthetic that put the dog to sleep throughout the operation.

The operation took a full afternoon as all sterilization precautions had to be observed in the same manner as that of a human operation.

Although there has been a slight complication due to the dog's age, the eye seems to be healing properly now and "he can chase a cat as good as ever," the doctor said with a smile.

Since it would mean another full afternoon of operating, the dog's left eye is still covered with a cataract. But Kit can see whatever it is dog's need to see with his one good eye.

He did point out that "dogs don't withstand eye surgery as well as humans."

Size of Pea
The doctor put the the removed cataract in alcohol for Bill. Mrs. Roberts said she was quite interested in the size of the cataract which closely "resembled a pea . . . but more oblong than round."

"It was not necessary to bandage the eye, but we had to watch Kit to keep him from rubbing his eye. We all took turns staying up at night watching Kit. . . but he never did scratch it," Mrs. Roberts noted.

Kit still has to go to the doctor for regular check-ups. His record and case history is on file at the doctor's office along with those of his other patients.

Through it all Kit has been most obliging and patient. "He has as nice manners as anyone in Pitt County," observed the doctor.

CAN NOW SEE—Kit, a Newfoundland dog, became blind due to cataracts covering both eyes but because of a Greenville eye physician's kind heart and a 13 year old boy's deep concern he can now see out of his right eye. "Valiant Kit of Hunter's Green" is his registered name. He was ordered from the Oquago Kennels in Windsor, N. Y. (Photos by Paul Singleton).

NOT IMPRESSED—Tinker, a female cocker spaniel, looks ardently at Kit but she doesn't seem to impress him . . . perhaps she is too small to demand his notice. Georgia Tull Hockaday and Bill look on.

DID NOT WANT GOAT—When Bill's uncle told the Roberts he had a goat for Bill, the family quickly decided a big dog could pull the wagon just as well. Although Kit never had any respect for curbs . . . he never did butt the family either! Pictured above, is Kit 10 months old and Bill when he was around five months old. (family photo).

QUITE OBEIENT—At the first command, Kit obediently rolls over! Although he has never had any formal training, Kit learns quickly and "sometimes I think he has more sense than we da," Mrs. Roberts quipped.

TUG-OF-WAR—Guess who won? Tug-of-war is one of Kit's favorites, and sometimes he even lets Bill win.

Edenton Tops Bulldogs 20-13 To Cop Eastern Title

Downum Gets Winning Touchdown In Fourth

Edenton will represent the Eastern half of North Carolina in the state Class A football finals next week.

The Aces, sparked by a host of outstanding stars, came from behind last night at College Stadium here, to down a favored Rose Hill-Wallace team, 20-13, to win the Eastern Class A title.

A shivering crowd of some 3,500 fans watched Coach Bill Billings' Aces take a 6-0 Wallace lead in their hands last night and crack it to pieces in a fine exhibition of determination and good football.

Edenton gained entrance into the Eastern finals by defeating Ayden 21-14 last week at Edenton.

The visiting Bulldogs earned their berth in the contest by trouncing Massey-Hill 28-0 on the same night. The Aces were champion of the Third NC District, while Wallace was champion of the second and fourth Districts.

Both teams opened play with a series of weird shifts and formations. Edenton used a wide spread that only slightly resembled the T formation and a jumbled single-wing at the same time. Rose Hill-Wallace used a T formation-shift into-single-wing type of maneuver.

The Bulldogs scored first in the late minutes of the first quarter. Taking possession of the ball on their own 17 yard line, they marched up yardage on wide end reverse plays and an occasional line plunge. Halfbacks Willie Piner and Jerry King did most of the heavy running until the 'Dogs came within the goal-line shadow. Then, big fullback Sid Treachey, a 185-pounder blasted over from the one. His conversion attempt failed.

Edenton took the following kickoff and went straight down the field to their score in the initial moments of the second period.

Sparked by the running of half-back Jerry Downum and the passing of quarterback Johnny Kramer, the Aces picked up four first downs before scoring. A 12-yard pass from Kramer to end Henry Overton tallied the touchdown. Kramer-booted the extra point, giving Edenton a 7-6 lead.

After the kickoff and an exchange of punts, Wallace came soaring back into the picture. Piner returned a punt for 25 yards to the Edenton 25, setting up the tally. King went for five more and Piner again grabbed the ball on a reverse and scampered 20 yards for the touchdown around right end. Treachey's boot was good this time, making it a 13-7 score in favor of Rose Hill-Wallace.

Edenton came back strong. Billy Bunch returned the kickoff for 19 yards to his own 39. Kramer passed to Bunch for 32 more yards and Downum cracked off tackle for 24, carrying down to the Wallace 17. At that point, a Kramer pass was intercepted by a Bulldog defense back and Wallace took over on their own 14.

Two plays later, Edenton end Henry Overton intercepted a pass from Bulldog quarterback Jim Blake on the 27 and galloped through a herd of tacklers for Edenton's second TD. The extra point was not good and the score ended 13-13 at halftime.

The third quarter was a scoreless one, however, it was during that period that the winning touchdown was set up. A punt by Edenton's Overton was taken by Treachey on his own five and the big boy was hit and brought down on his own one.

In a desperate attempt to get out of the hole, Treachey punted. The kick was a wobbly 13-yard affair that hit and bounced back toward his own goal. An Ace end named Ashley picked up the ball and carried back to the Wallace end carried back to the Wallace end. Fullback Bruce White whammed down to the seven next for the Edenton crew. There, the quarter ended.

On the first play of the final period, Jerry Downum took a handoff and broke through center for five yards and the winning score. Kramer added the extra point, making it 20-13, the final score.

Bears Picked Favorites Over Giants Sunday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The high-scoring Chicago Bears today were seven-point favorites to defeat the New York Giants in Sunday's big game which will go a long way toward deciding the conference titleholders in the National Football League.

The odds-makers are giving the Bears the edge on the strength of a seven-game winning streak which boosted them into first place in the Western Conference. The Bears hold a one-half game lead over Detroit which lost its share of the top spot by losing to Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day.

A crowd of close to 70,000 is expected to witness a bruising struggle in Yankee Stadium. The Bears have scored 288 points—most in the circuit. The Giants' ke should be their crack defensive line.

New York, the Eastern Conference leader with a 6-2 record, will depend on the running of Frank Gifford and Alex Webster plus the passing of Charley Conerly. The Giants, however, have no one to match the brilliance of Harlon Hill, the Bears' end. Hill will have two and three men on him which will open areas for Bear runners and other pass receivers.

A Giant setback and a Chicago Cardinal victory over Pittsburgh would produce a deadlock for first place in the Eastern. The Cards lost to the Steelers 14-7 last week but they'll be on their home grounds tomorrow. Chicago is favored by 6½ points.

The streaking Washington Redskins take on the Cleveland Browns in another important game. The Browns are three-point favorites off their successive triumphs over the Browns, Cards, Detroit and the Giants.

Rounding out the five-game program, San Francisco will be at Philadelphia and Los Angeles at Baltimore.

Further Evidence In Olenik Incident

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—There was no immediate comment from University of North Carolina officials after a Pennsylvania high school principal charged the University knew that Joseph Vince Olenik had attended Temple University.

Michael Shockloss, principal of the Swoverville High School, said he had warned Olenik, "You will wind up being the goat on the deal."

Olenik was suspended by the university Honor Council after he admitted he had attended Temple and played football there in 1950 and 1951.

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions at North Carolina, said Olenik's transcript stated he "had never attended another college."

But Shockloss said: "I told the North Carolina people Olenik had been to Temple and they said not to worry about it. They knew whatever they were doing was entirely wrong. Now they're trying to shift the responsibility."

Armstrong said the transcript bore the names Olenik and Olen, the latter one being used by the player. Armstrong said the student told him he intended to change his name legally.

Olenik ent. ed North Carolina in 1954 after two years in the Army. He played freshman ball in 1954 and varsity in 1955 and has seen action in all games of the school this season.

The suspension by the university came after Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner James Weaver asked for a check of Olenik's eligibility.

Because he had played at Temple he was ineligible for competition here without a year's residence.

Shockloss could not recall the exact details of the transcript. He said he had sent another institution a transcript which did not ask if the student had already attended college. He was unable to recall whether a transcript from North Carolina sent to his office asked whether Olenik had ever attended college.

But, he said:

"Everybody in town knew he had. I knew and the North Carolina representatives knew it, and so did representatives of other schools down there who were trying to get Olenik."

"Olenik accepted the North Carolina offer against my advice. As to whether the Carolina transcript said he hadn't previously attended college, I can't recall now. After all, it was three years ago."

He added that North Carolina representatives visited him several times asking his help in getting Olenik to attend the university.

"Naturally, I wanted the boy to get an education, but I didn't want him to have him get in any trouble," Shockloss said.

Armstrong said that Olenik, in his application, stated he never attended another college, a university honor code violation. O. K. Cornwell, faculty representative, said Olenik made the same statement on his eligibility certificate.

Chancellor Robert B. House said Olenik was suspended for the remainder of this semester and all of the next, after which he may apply for readmission.

Heavyweights Pass Physicals

CHICAGO (AP)— Archie Moore and Floyd Patterson passed their physical examinations yesterday for their heavyweight championship fight Friday night at Chicago Stadium.

The Illinois Athletic Commission was satisfied that Patterson's right hand, broken in a victory over Hurricane Jackson last June, had healed properly.

Moore's pulse was 58 before exercise and 58 after with his blood pressure 138 over 82. Patterson's pulse was 68 before exercise and 70 after with his blood pressure 138 over 78.

Moore is 39 and Patterson is 21.

U.S. Takes Four Medals To Obtain Lead In Olympics

By TED SMITS

MELBOURNE — Uncle Sam's muscle men and fleet runners swept gold medals in the 100-meter dash, 400-meter hurdles, hammer throw and broad jump today in one of America's finest Olympic hours to take a commanding lead over Russia in the unofficial point total.

Three Olympic records were shattered and another was tied to the delight of another capacity crowd of 100,000 that jammed the huge stadium on a hot, windy afternoon.

Passing the Russians, Germans and Swedes in the point table, the powerful U.S. team made a shambles of the second full day of actual competition. In addition, the Americans qualified a full three-man quota in the 800-meter run and pole vault and put Isabelle Daniels of Jakin, Ga., into Monday's finals in the women's 100-meter dash.

With only the middleweight event in the weightlifting division and the team fells in fencing still to be decided on the day's program, America's point haul for the day already had reached 65 for a total of 100. Russia was second with 80 points.

Hal Connolly, the 220-pound Bostonian who finished third in the trials at Los Angeles, topped the favored Russians and won the hammer throw with a new Olympic record heave of 207 feet 3½ inches. All six finalists, including the former record holder, Josef Csermak of Hungary, bettered the old mark. Al Hall of Hoboken, N.J., placed fourth with a toss of 203 feet, 3½ inches. The third American, Cliff Blair of Hingham, Mass., has been dropped off the squad for writing articles for a Boston newspaper.

Glenn Davis, 21-year-old Ohio State sophomore from Clinton, Ohio, who set a world record of 49.5 seconds in the U.S. trials, led a 1-2-3 American sweep in the 400-meter hurdles. Davis set a new Claude Gilbert, San Jose State fullback, played center field on the Spartan baseball team last spring.

Olympic standard of 50.1 seconds, and Eddie Southern of Dallas who finished second tied the old mark of 50.8 set by Cornell's Charlie Moore in 1952. Josh Culbreath, a Morgan State College grad from Norristown, Pa., completed the U.S. parade by finishing third in 51.6 seconds.

Counting the high jump victory by Charlie Dumas of Los Angeles in yesterday's competition, the U.S. men's track and field forces had won five of the first seven gold medals with Russia and New Zealand, each taking one. The other medal in track and field had gone to a Czechoslovakia woman in the discus.

In the women's 100-meter dash eliminations, Betty Cuthbert of Australia set a new Olympic record of 11.4, one tenth of a second better than the previous mark. Isabelle Daniels finished second in that heat and was third in the semifinals, to make the grade into the finals.

The Rev. Bob Richards of La Verne, Calif., Bob Gutowski of La Jolla, Calif., and George Mattos of Santa Cruz, Calif., cleared the pole vault qualifying height with ease to go into Monday's final.

The first American boxer to compete in the eliminations, Pearce Lane of Big Rapids, Mich., moved into the quarter-final round in the welterweight class by outpointing Enrique Tovar of Venezuela.

Auto-Makers Close To Their 6 Million Goal

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP AUTOMOTIVE EDITOR

DETROIT (AP)—The auto makers probably will not quite reach the predicted six million unit output of passenger cars this year but they will come very close to it.

That's the pre- indication, although materials scarcities always pose a threat to the continued operation of the auto industry's assembly lines. Materials scarcities would result from any interruption to the free movement of raw stuff to the parts makers.

Such shortages slowed down the start of the 1957 model year for several car makers. One or two of them had to delay public introduction of their 1957 cars as much as a couple of weeks. Others had only a relatively small number of cars in dealers' hands when their cars were announced.

But the assembly plants achieved another output gain this month. Their November total undoubtedly will come close to 645,000 units compared with October's 589,000. The expected November output will give an 11-month total of 5,628,000.

Of course, the factories have the capacity to build 732,000 more cars in December. Many of them already have set up overtime schedules that call for six- or seven-day operations each week. Among those scheduling overtime are the large volume producers who jointly account for close to 70 per cent of all the cars made in the United States.

But December this year could bring considerable absenteeism if the industry escapes further materials and parts shortages. Production invariably declines sharply during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day. There could be heavy absenteeism on the Mondays immediately preceding Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

So the prospect for a 732,000 passenger car output in December this year is a somewhat uncertain one.

Field surveys indicate the industry needs a substantial increase in car output. Retail deliveries are continuing high. If the surveys are approximately correct they will absorb all the indicated November output.

That would mean the industry would start December with inventories little changed from the Nov. 1 figure of 275,378 units. That would be about a two weeks' supply for the dealer body.

Many industry analysts figure that fewer than 50,000 of the 1956 models are now scattered among retailers around the country. At prices somewhat below those asked for the 1957 models these cars will be disposed of before Dec. 1, along with just about all the newer models the factories will complete.

Public reaction to the 1957 model cars is in sharp contrast to that which greeted the 1956's a little more than a year ago. At that time dealers held 538,000 new cars in stock; assembly lines had reached an output volume of nearly 180,000 units weekly. Retail demand was comparatively sluggish and inventories reached 808,000 by the yearend.

The record mark of 904,000 unsold new cars was reached on March 1.

Most industry authorities are convinced the manufacturers will not again permit inventories to reach that level. Many of them say dealer stocks cannot get that high again unless the competitive battle in the high volume field gets out of hand.

Grace F. W. B. Announcements

The Sunday School attendance was 287 last Sunday. We praise the Lord for the fact that the Sunday School is growing. All members are urged to be present next Sunday when the year pins will be awarded.

During the worship service which begins at 11:00 A. M. Sunday there will be special emphasis on the elderly people at the service. The service is especially designed for them. We wish to invite everyone to our services and particularly for this service those who have already spent most of their lives on the earth.

The League starts at 6:30 at the church. Everyone, young and old has a special invitation to this service. There will be a good program just for you.

The evangelistic service beginning at 7:30 will highlight the day with Gospel music and a message by the pastor, Rev. Rashie Kennedy, from God's Word.

On Monday evening at 7:30 at the church the Woman's Auxiliary meets for their monthly meeting. All members are urged to be present. Visitors and new members are always welcome.

The Good News Club will be conducted Monday, 3:45, Tuesday 3:45, and Wednesday at 7:30. All boys and girls will enjoy the Good News Clubs because they are especially for the children.

Tuesday evening at 7:30 the Official Board of the church meets at the church.

Wednesday evening at 7:30 the monthly business session will be conducted at the church. Every member of the church should be present.

Choir practice will follow the business meeting.

On December 1, 1956 the State Sunday School convention will be conducted an area institute at the church. This is for all people interested in any phase of Sunday School work. Time to begin will be 10:00 a.m.
