Syria's Neighbors Seek Help; Fear Pro-Soviet Trend

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syria's neighbors are cracking down on subversive elements at home and groping for help from abroad to counter growing fears of pro-Soviet leaders in Damascus.

Many looked to the United States to offset the new Moscow influence.

Tiny Lebanon announced the arrest of 23 persons—only two of them Lebanese—in connection with a spate of small bombings, and said its security forces had found four caches of arms and explosives.

Iraq protested for the second time about bitter anti-Iraq broadcasts over Damascus radio and appealed for American jet planes and anti-aircraft guns for defense.

Jordan, on Syria's western border, was reported turning to the United States for economic aid to supplant British help she is giving at the demand of Arab Nationalists.

Western Allied Turkey, after bitter words about "war preparations in Syria," received its minister from Israel in a conciliatory gesture toward the Arab States.

The United States of the Arab world in support of Egyptian President Nasser appeared frayed by the emergence in Syria of a dominant military group of pro-Soviet officers, headed by young Col. Abdul Hamid Saraj.

Even inside Syria, there is a hope in some political circles that the United States will supplant Britain as the friend of the Arabs. The extreme leftist elements still carry a torch for the Russians, but other factions who fear communism have been eyeing the possibility of making friends with the United States. This is a far cry from sentiments these same men expressed publicly just a few weeks ago, when it was the fashion to tar the United States with the same imperialist stick used to belabor all the West.

Munir Aflani, a Syrian independent who is not pro-West but who is strongly anti-Communist, said in Parliament a week ago that Syria is grateful for Soviet aid but it does not want communism.

Sec. Wilson Clips Army's Wings In Decision On Fields Of Responsibility

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson has clipped the sprouting air wings of the Army and forbidden it from operating longer range guided missiles than it now has.

Announcing his action late yesterday, Wilson said the Army and Air Force couldn't agree how they would divide up their duties and areas of control in the expanding guided missile and aviation fields.

His order limited the Army's aviation mission to providing "local mobility" for "small combat units and limited quantities of material."

All other aircraft must be provided by the Air Force, which also was given "sole responsibility" for operating land-launched missiles of medium and long ranges.

The Pentagon left no doubt that the aim was to curb the Army's aviation ambitions. Deputy Secretary of Defense Reuben Robertson told newsmen the Army has been "enthusiastic about developing an Air Force of its own."

Asked whether the Army would be permitted to go ahead with previously announced plans for a much larger air arm than it now has, Robertson said: "We are not going to have separate Air Force within the Army."

Wilson said his decision should end unnecessary duplication of efforts and make for better use of defense money voted by Congress.

Robertson said President Eisenhower was generally familiar with the order and approved it without going into specific details.

The new order continued unchanged, despite frequently voiced Army hopes for an upward revision, a weight limit of 5,000 pounds for Army fixed wing aircraft.

There's a lace belt with a huge bustle bow in back, which would add drama to any basic sheath, and a new note this season is a pastel cardigan sweater of orlon overlaid front and back with orlon lace—a practical gift since it can be dunked in the wash bowl and come up smiling.

Correctional School Program Explained To Jr. Woman's Club

W. D. Clark, Superintendent of Eastern Carolina Training School, Rocky Mount, spoke to the Junior Woman's Club on Wednesday. Mr. Clark talked on the program of this correctional institution for delinquent boys. Boys ten to sixteen years of age are committed by the Juvenile Court while boys 16 to 18 are committed to the school only upon order of the Superior Court. At present about 125 boys are at Eastern Carolina Training School, the speaker said. The academic program at the school includes the first through the twelfth grades. Upon admission to the training school a boy is placed at the grade level at which he can do the work, as social promotions are not practiced at the school, Mr. Clark pointed out. Only certified teachers are employed to teach these classes. In addition to the academic program, the school also offers vocational training in farming, dairy work, cooking, etc. Offering training for every boy committed calls for a varied program as there is a great range of mental capacity among the boys. The boys at the school at present have intelligence quotients ranging from 50 to 130. Public schools may have been unable to offer any training to some of the boys of the lower intelligence group, according to the speaker. Many of the boys at the school come from underprivileged homes. For many it is the first time they have ever had a decent meal on time, adequate and clean clothing, or a warm home. In discussing the causes of delinquency, Mr. Clark informed the group, "Most delinquent patterns go back to the doorsteps of the home." In closing his talk, Mr. Clark invited everyone to visit the school, which is always open to the public. Eastern Carolina Training School is located a few miles outside of Rocky Mount on Highway 301. A report was given by the entertainment committee chairman, Mrs. James Davenport. Mrs. Davenport submitted plans for the program to be given the Senior Club on December 7 and the club's Christmas party on December 19. Both plans were approved by the members. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Thomas Vicars and Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr.

The musical numbers consisted of violin solos by Miss Jean Morton and Miss Bessie Brown, accompanied by Mrs. Sam T. White. Vocal selections were also rendered by the club duet composed of Ed Williams and W. W. Lee. A group of recitations by Miss Ruth Townsend added much to the entertainment.

We Must Stand Together, Or Fail

Will petty jealousy between communities of Eastern North Carolina again kill the effort of Eastern North Carolina to secure adequate air transportation? Most farsighted people of the area, recognizing the need for adequate air transportation if industrial development is to progress as it should, are keenly aware of the fact that the individual communities of this part of the state must stand together if the area is to have the calibre air transportation it needs.

When efforts to revive an area airport began early this year, there was every indication that most cities and counties of the area were reconciled to the fact that the only way for Eastern North Carolina to obtain the kind of air service it needs is for the individual communities to pull together instead of against each other. Within the past month or so, however, the jealousies have risen to the surface in some instances.

Unless they are overcome, the area cannot hope to have at any date in the reasonably near future the kind of air service it needs.

Greenville, Wilson and Goldsboro, Pitt, Wayne, Greene and Wilson Counties have made clear their support of the joint airport project for this section of the state and have pledged their financial support of the project. Rocky Mount is continuing to push for construction of a new Rocky Mount airport and has been joined in that endeavor by Tarboro. The Kinston Daily Free Press, speaking editorially, has asserted the Mid-East Airport project offers nothing for Kinston and Lenoir County they do not already have and "could disrupt the present service without any corresponding gain to the area as a whole."

It should be quite evident that a joint air facility supported by the counties and principal municipalities of this area would attract air service of a much higher calibre than the meager Piedmont schedule now available at the Kinston airport.

Be that as it may however, we can understand Kinston's reluctance to give up even meager air service it calls its own. At the same time we can understand the desire of Rocky Mount or any other town to obtain the whole cheese if it can do so.

It is our considered opinion, however, that both Kinston and Rocky Mount are overlooking a vital factor which has fettered every attempt of this area in the past decade to obtain anything which approached adequate air service. That fact is that the communities have insisted upon fighting between themselves for scraps of air service and have not risen to the point where they are willing to pull together for the calibre of air transportation which this area should have and can have through concerted effort on the part of the entire area.

Unless and until the individual communities of Eastern North Carolina can recognize the need for joint efforts as Greenville, Goldsboro, Wilson, Greene, Wayne, Pitt and Wilson Counties have done, air transportation for the area cannot reach the level it should. Suppose Kinston keeps its airport and declines to join the Mid-East Airport Authority. Suppose at the same time Rocky Mount constructs a new air facility just as the Mid-East Carolina Airport Authority will do. Where will Eastern Carolina be from the standpoint of air transportation?

Any attempt by any one of the three to obtain the kind of air service needed in the area would be opposed by the other two as they competed against each other rather than work together for the common good of the area.

That's exactly what has been happening for years. The only difference is that in the past it has been competition between Kinston, Rocky Mount, Greenville, Wilson and Goldsboro; in the future competition would be between three groups rather than five.

If Eastern Carolina is to realize the calibre air transportation it can command, its communities must cooperate with each other rather than fight against each other for air service. The joint airport idea proposed by the Mid-East Carolina Airport Authority is the only logical way for the ultimate goal of adequate air service to be realized.

The plan offers more to the entire area than any other plan, and it offers more individually to each community than any other plan.

Long Four Weeks Of Pure Inactivity

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH — Howdy, folks! It's good to be back, even though for a few more days it will be for part time only. Four weeks off the job, three in hospitals and one at home, was the longest period of physical incapacity in my whole life. In more than 15 years this was the first time there had been more than three days in a row that I did not provide copy for the daily report from this bureau.

First of all, my sincere thanks to Abie Upchurch, who assumed responsibility for seeing that copy was planned every day, and to the corps of loyal friends who so generously wrote the highly interesting articles.

Despite the feeling of disgust at the utterly silly business of going to sleep at the wheel of a car, and the hours of excruciating pain and the many other hours of looking only at the ceiling of a hospital room, it was heart-warming and spiritually exhilarating experience. It was worth the suffering and inconvenience of being hurt to discover the extent and the warmth of real friendship.

Literally hundreds of letters and telegrams, telephone calls and personal visits from high ranking State officials, members of the Congress, clerical workers, stenographers, hotel bell boys and others testified to the sympathy of these friends.

Within minutes after being admitted to Davis Hospital at Statesville friends showed up with the small services which are so important — reporting the accident to insurance companies, a bed-side radio, even offers of immediate financial aid. In less than 24 hours the room was banked with flowers, so that one visitor quipped that it looked like the funeral of a gangster.

In addition to the numerous personal messages, there was the official action of the State Highway & Public Works Commission at its regular meeting at Winston-Salem on November 26.

A certified excerpt from the minutes of that meeting reads: "Commissioner Robinson made a motion that the chairman, on behalf of the Commission, be directed to send a message of sympathy to Mr. G. Lynn Nisbet, veteran member of the press of the State, and who is now confined at Davis Hospital, Statesville, North Carolina, as a result of a recent automobile accident. This motion was seconded by Commissioner Buchanan and unanimously carried."

While a compressed vertebra, requiring a metal brace for several months, was the major injury the smashed eye-glasses and inability to have new ones fitted for three weeks had high "misadventure" value. The inability to move or to read for a brief period gave new appreciation for the courage of those who go for years in that state. A friend who has spent a lot of time in hospital beds told me the second day that the stay in bed could be used as a rest period as well as for gaining a fuller understanding of the real goodness of people. I didn't believe him then. I know now what he meant. When the constant hurt stopped, it was nice just to lie still and let the body "Soak up" the physical rest it needed.

The faithfulness with which the hospital nurses poked a thermometer in the patient's mouth every three or four hours with no prospect of any variation from normal, suggests that nurses use the thermometers like night watchmen do their call station keys. They read the temperature scale and count the pulse beats, making due record of time of the call, not because it means anything to the patient but in order to prove to the boss nurse that the rounds had been made. The periodic visits also serve to keep the patient from getting lonely.

Jack Kirby, Rex Hospital barber, has a novel gadget — a headlight attached to electric hair clippers. Besides manning a regulation barber shop, Jack spends about half his time waiting on customers in their bed rooms. Many of these are bed ridden, and when they can sit up in straight chairs it is impossible to get light at the right places. So Kirby attached a shielded light bulb to the back of the clippers, controlled by a thumb switch. That focuses the light where he needs it and enables him to operate in the darkest corner of the room.

The inventor of the gadget, but said he had found no manufacturer interested in making or marketing it.

When Governor Hodges first publicized elastic shoe laces the popular reaction was that they were for lazy folks. He was delighted when a mother from another State inquired about them for her spastic teen age son — who could not tie his shoe strings.

The Governor and the author of the idea product may also be interested to know the elastic laces are a god send to an old fat man with a broken back.

Other Editors Are Saying... Oil For The Lamps Of Europe

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The importance of the Suez Canal to the Western world is dramatized as nothing else by the news that Britain and Western Europe must begin rationing of oil and gasoline prices in the United States.

Oil is the lifeblood of modern industrial civilizations. Without it a modern nation creeps to a paralyzed standstill, unable to feed or warm or defend itself.

This is why Britain's Prime Minister Anthony Eden warned the world soon after Egypt seized the Suez that the canal was a matter of "life and death" for Europe (A fact which Secretary Dulles has repeatedly ignored).

This is why Britain and France risked their alliance with America and the condemnation of the world on their desperate resort to force.

The Anglo-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt fell short of its goal of securing the Canal and of dethroning Dictator Nasser, thanks to the fact that Russia threatened armed intervention and the United States, both fearful and indignant, joined Russia in demanding that our allies submit to a cease-fire and withdrawal of their troops. Even so, the brief Egyptian skirmish exposed the extent of Russia's military aid to Nasser and showed the world Russia's penetration of the Middle East.

Against this background, the recent American demand that Britain and France quit Egypt before any agreement is reached on protecting the Canal from Nasser's control in the future seems unwise. Once British and French troops withdraw from Egypt, there will be no stopping Nasser, who will be bent on revenge. We will then have inherited the worst of all worlds in the situation.

Why the Eisenhower Administration doesn't insist on international control over the Suez Canal before rather than after Anglo-French forces withdraw remains a mystery. We fear this policy plays into Nasser's hands. And, in the final analysis, the United States has no alternative but to bail Western Europe out by supplying oil if the Suez is not kept open. For, without Europe, America becomes a beleaguered, continental island in a hostile and hungry world.

He Who's Scared Of Babies

Babies scare me. Don't get me wrong, I think there're cute, I guess. And so far I haven't seen too many that would bite. But when it comes to handling the delicate little things I get just plain scared.

Anyway my brother and his wife have a little baby girl about six months old. Little Kim is about the cutest thing you ever saw and when it comes to ogling and coo-ey cooing and oing all the other things grown-ups do around babies I can stand up with the best of 'em.

But when it comes to feeding or carrying the little things around I break out in a cold sweat.

I went to see my brother the other day and the family were leaving about the time I decided to go.

At the time I was trying to make little Kim laugh.

"Pick her up and bring her to the car," said my sister-in-law, Jean.

"Who, me?" I asked.

"Sure," she said. "I've got my arms full."

I was sort of panic stricken but I picked up little Kim, one hand under her head and one under her back.

That left her feet dangling but there wasn't anything I could do about that. And besides Kim looked pretty nonchalant about the whole thing.

I carried her out to the car with my arms outstretched. After all, I've heard that little babies sometimes leak.

Things were going along well until my brother spotted me.

"What are you trying to do?" he roared. "Break her back?"

I grabbed Kim out of my arms and, holding her properly placed the baby in the car. Kim seemed to enjoy the whole thing and broke into a big smile about it all.

Oh well, even bachelor uncles learn how to handle babies sooner or later.

On Same Job For 80 Years

By HAL BOYLE

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Frank J. (Yank) Hultzman is a man who looked for steady work — and did a better job of finding it than perhaps any other living American workman.

At 92 Hultzman, a retired glass blower who turned out some of the world's first electric light bulbs, has been on the same payroll 80 consecutive years.

A spokesman for the Corning Glass Works here said, "This service record is believed to be the longest continuous employment record in American industry."

Hultzman, a blue-eyed, Bud-dah-faced little man with a puckish sense of humor who wears a cap — even in the house — to protect his bald head from the cold, may well have hung up another record along the way. In the last eight decades he has chewed about 60,000 packs of tobacco.

He started chewing tobacco at 12 the same day he went to work in the glass works in 1876 during the last year of President U.S. Grant's second administration.

"He never missed a day of work in his life — and he never missed a day of chewing tobacco," said Mrs. Edna Sullivan, his widowed daughter. "He'll still chew two packs a day if I let him have them."

The old man grinned up from his chair like a small boy caught swiping cookies.

At the start of his career he was paid $3.30 for a 55-hour week. Glass blowing is hot work, and in those informal days one of his chores was to "rush the growlers" — to fetch beer to the thirsty gaffers, or master glassmakers, could cool their pipes.

Hultzman is one of the few surviving workmen who can remember the birth of the electric age. He was on the scene in 1879 when the first glass "bubbles" were blown to enclose the glowing filaments with which Thomas A. Edison revolutionized the world's lighting.

Soon as a gaffer himself, he and two helpers were turning out 1,000 light bulbs a day.

"But I always knew the day of hand-blown bulbs would have to come to an end," the old man said wistfully. "People needed too many."

Today a single machine can stamp out 2,000 bulbs a minute, turn out more in five minutes than Hultzman and his crew could in a week.

Many of the friends of Hultzman's youth migrated to the big cities or went west to seek their fortunes. His life story is the simple saga of a man who found happiness in his own home town. One job, one wife, five children.

Hultzman has a cane but won't carry it. He has a pair of reading glasses, but won't put them on. He has two sets of false teeth, but won't wear them. Says he'll gum 'em the rest of the way. Besides the dentures interfere with his tobacco chewing.

"But he can eat anything, including steak," said his daughter.

On fine days the old man likes to walk to a hill overlooking the plant where he worked so many years and reminisce.

"I can remember they used to pay us in gold pieces . . . On Sundays I used to give free haircuts to all the kids in the neighborhood, and sometimes I'd just cut one side and say, 'Come back next week and I'll finish it' . . . I used to like to go berry picking in the hills . . . I could get me a quart of blueberries

DOCTRINE OF VOCATION

One of the outstanding doctrines of the Christian faith is the doctrine of vocation. This is the Biblical teaching that all vocations are holy and that man can serve God wherever he happens to be, and in any honest and helpful work in which he happens to be engaged.

There is a solemn distinction about fulltime Christian service which everyone recognizes. To give one's life wholly and unreservedly to God and the church is the noblest work anyone can do. This does not mean, however, that the clergy have any monopoly on nobility of service. It is a privilege to serve God as a clergyman, but it is also a privilege to serve God as a farmer, an industrial worker, a housewife, a professional man, a salesman, a policeman, a business executive, a student. God is interested in what we do but in the spirit we carry into the whole of life.

The clergy is honored in every religion and should be, but the laity has its honor also. The place to begin serving God is where we happen to be. The spirit in which we must serve him is the spirit of wholeheartedness regardless of our calling.

Vocation — serving God in the particular work to which we appear to be called. This is a fundamental Christian doctrine.

He started chewing tobacco at 12 the same day he went to work in the glass works in 1876 during the last year of President U.S. Grant's second administration.

Stalinism Kills Prospect Of Tax Cut

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — All hope of a tax cut at the next session of Congress has faded as a result of what Washington regards as the "re-Stalinization" reversal tactics in Central Europe and the Middle East.

Only a few weeks ago, in utter ignorance of current developments, President Eisenhower's budget experts had fixed a maximum of $37.5 billion for defense expenditures in fiscal 1957. Foreign aid funds, under pressure from Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, were to be cut to about $2.5 billion, for a total of $40 billion for these two items, or more than $2 billion less than current costs.

But in view of the overseas crises, and because of other nations' even greater dependence on the United States for assistance and world leadership, Ike has had to raise his sights. He will probably ask at least $39 billion for defense, and about $4 billion for foreign economic and military aid.

ARGUMENTS FOR PROGRAM

The Russian-inspired increase just about matches the amount, $3 billion-plus, which Humphrey had hoped to distribute in the form of lower taxes, if finances permitted. It is also the sum which the Democratic opposition had in mind, with or without Administration approval.

President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles will mobilize effective arguments for his program, and it is expected that a "scared" Congress will heed them. In their opinion, Communist outrages in Hungary and Poland, as well as our restraining role in the Egyptian crisis, presents the United States with an unequalled opportunity, if we seize it.

U.S. OPPORTUNITY TO DISCREDIT MOSCOW

The United States, according to this viewpoint, has a chance to discredit Moscow with both neutral and puppet states, an assignment which Britain and France cannot undertake or even participate in because of the attack on Egypt. The satellite rebellions and divisions within the Kremlin reveal Russia to be vulnerable to constant external pressure and opinion.

But, as Russia's vicious retaliation in Hungary and her offer of "volunteers" to Nasser prove, she has not abandoned her evil designs. Worse still, in frenzied desperation, Khrushchev and Bulganin might be driven to extreme actions that would provoke World War III. The U.S. cannot afford to let her guard down now.

WE MUST SET EXAMPLE OF MILITARY MIGHT

Moreover, this country must set an example of military might and preparedness to the non-Communist nations. They recognize that only our strength and resources preserve the present balance of power, and prevent Russia from overrunning all Western Europe, as Khrushchev recently warned that his war machine could do whenever it got the order to march.

Another factor operates against a 1957 tax cut — namely, the official fear of inflation. Private industry plans to spend more than $60 billion on new plants and expansion. The automobile makers anticipate a big year, possibly their third best. The government will pour out billions on highways and public works.

Later shortages have begun to show in some lines, meaning possible pay increases. There may be a scarcity of goods for consumers, especially food. With pocketbook income hitting new peaks, the scramble for commodities may set off a price rise, in the opinion of public and private economists.

Thus, world pressures and prudent management on the home front dictate against reduction of the tribute to Uncle Sam.

Lift For Colombia And U.S.

By ELMER ROESSNER

The prosperity of the Gulf ports and, to a lesser extent, of the Atlantic ports will get a permanent lift when a 468-mile railroad now being driven through the jungles of Colombia connects with Caribbean ports.

Colombia, as fifth grader, know, touches the Pacific on the west and the Caribbean on the north. The Pacific and heartland areas are separated from the northern region by jungle. This has tended to create two economies.

It is difficult and costly to get goods from eastern United States to Cali in the rich Cauca Valley, Medellin, Barranca, Bogota and other central cities. They can be flown in. They can be taken through the Panama Canal, down the Pacific Coast and then overland east and north. Or they can be landed at Cartagena on the Caribbean and taken south on the Magdalena River by stern-wheelers, a voyage that takes up to two months. The new railroad will connect the central network of lines at Puerto Salazar 75 miles northwest of Bogota, with a short line now running south from the Caribbean port of Santa Marta. A truck highway will link the railroad and the port of Barranquilla. BOON TO THE REPUBLIC

The benefits to United States ports and exporters, however, will be substantial compared with what the railroad will do for the Colombian economy. It will make foreign goods cheaper to bring in and will put Colombian products much nearer foreign markets. In addition, it will open up a vast area to settlement and production.

Colombia is already enjoying a measure of prosperity. In 1951 its foreign exchange laws were liberalized to encourage foreign investment. Today more than 50 American companies are operating there, including Colgate, Armco, National Carbon, Continental Corp., American Viscose and Goodyear. Four American oil companies are operating and the new railroad link may make rich oil lands more readily accessible.

The railroad was started in 1953 and is now being pushed ahead at about eight miles a day. The last spike will probably be driven in 1958. The line follows the Magdalena River for about 250 miles north of the river city of Puerto Salazar, then turns east to avoid dangerous swamps and continues north to Fundacion, the southern terminal of the existing line from Santa Marta.

INTERNATIONAL BANK HELPS

The cost of the road is estimated at $80,000,000. Slightly less than half has been put up by the Colombian Government so far and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development has loaned $40,000,000. Further financing will be required as the road progresses.

The road — "the Atlantic Railroad" — is a government project with the Madigan-Hyland South American Corp., of New York, providing engineering services.

American earth-moving equipment is being used to prepare the roadbed. Some cuts are 100 feet deep. About 60 all-steel bridges are being built. Two are more than 1,000 feet long.

Construction is by local and European contractors. Most of the steel for rails and bridges has been coming from Europe but a new steel works at Paz Del Rio in Colombia is expected to supply replacement steel after 1959.

Meanwhile, the government has started work on rehabilitating the rest of its 1,800-mile railroad system. The rail system is now operating on a subsidy but after the Atlantic line is completed, the entire system can produce 15 per cent net income after depreciation and debt service, according to Madigan-Hyland estimates.

SELF-POLISHING WAXES SUSTAIN SHELLAC DEMAND

When phonograph record manufacturers switched from shellac to vinyl, it looked as if the bottom had dropped out of that market. Then shellac was found to be a useful ingredient in self-polishing floor waxes, and demand is still high. It is also used in finishing wood surfaces, in insulation, rubber manufacture, engraving, lithography and in other ways.

Shellac comes from an excretion of an insect, the Tachardia Lacca, found in India and Thailand. It hardens on contact with the air, forming a scale about the insects' bodies. The scale is called "lac."

Labor Secretary Warns States To Modernize Laws, Or Congress Will

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Secretary of Labor Mitchell said today states should get busy enacting modern worker welfare laws if they want to avoid the federal government stepping in and doing it.

Mitchell said that while the states have taken some steps to improve welfare laws and to enact new ones, they still haven't met standards suggested by President Eisenhower and still have a long way to go.

He called on the states to "throw off complacency and do what needs to be done."

He said in an address prepared for the International Assn. of Governmental Labor Officials, an organization of state officials, that Eisenhower and his administration feel states have responsibility for unemployment compensation, temporary disability insurance, workmen's compensation, safety and other such laws.

But, he added: "I don't think there is any question either that the responsibility of the federal government will tend to increase to the extent that the states neglect their responsibility.

"Until all our states take positive steps to meet the demands of their citizens, the pressures on the federal government to do so will continue and probably grow stronger."

The labor secretary said that if the nation is to stay strong and grow, its manpower must be developed and protected.

"Our nation does not have manpower to waste," Mitchell said. "We have but 6 per cent of the world's population, and as you well know we carry far more than 6 per cent of the responsibility for the world's welfare."

"We cannot afford the terrible waste of discrimination because of race, religion or place of origin. We cannot afford the waste of our people caused by inadequate training and education. We cannot afford the waste of our people caused by inadequate social legislation which fails to give them proper security in time of need and proper restoration when they are injured.

"I say there is a new day ahead but it is a day . . . which could well remain forever in the dim blue horizon — nothing more than a mirage — unless we bestir ourselves and throw off complacency and do what needs to be done. The strength of our nation depends upon it."

As to unemployment compensation, Mitchell said states generally improved their laws during the past two years but none to the extent recommended by Eisenhower. The President urged raising jobless benefits to one-half an average worker's wage and for payments to extend a maximum 26 weeks, a half year.

"The benefits that once represented half a man's normal salary now represents a third or less," Mitchell said. "Average weekly benefits, pulled along by sky-rocketing wages, have climbed from $10.66 to $26.33. But as a Moline, Ill., housewife put it in a letter to the Department of Labor: 'You can't keep a family on $26 a week.'"

He said only four states have adopted temporary disability insurance laws, providing payments during brief periods of illness or other disability.

"What could be more ridiculous than to grant a man benefits if he loses his job and then stop those benefits if while he is out of work he gets sick?" Mitchell asked, adding that most states now do that.

Mitchell said most workmen's compensation laws are outdated. He urged "strong" state labor departments, adequate safety programs and skilled training for workers.

"If we are to meet the challenges of the future both in terms of national defense and in terms of industrial production," Mitchell said, "these matters must be dealt with."

Boy's Rocket Is Earning A Prize

NEW YORK (AP) — A six-foot homemade rocket, considered too dangerous to fire, has won the $1,000 American Rocket Society-Chrysler Corp. science - youth award for a 17-year-old Charlotte, N. C. youth.

Jimmy Blackmon will receive the award Thursday during the 11th annual meeting of the American Rocket Society here. It will be presented by Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army's ballistics missile agency.

Jimmy built the rocket in the basement of his home in Charlotte, but the story didn't come to light until he was thinking of test-firing it. The Civil Aeronautics Administration said it would be against air regulations.

The Army expressed interest in the missile and had it sent to Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., center of Army missile studies and tests. Scientists said it would be too dangerous to fire—Jimmy did not have the necessary controls for mixing the liquid fuel—but they praised its design.

Jimmy is a senior at Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass. He will use the award money for college. After that, he's been offered a job at Redstone.

Tommy Dorsey Is Found Dead; Choked To Death

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Band leader Tommy Dorsey choked to death in his sleep, a medical examiner says.

Dr. C. Stanley Knapp said the 51-year-old bespectacled "sentimental gentleman of swing" vomited in his sleep and choked to death on food particles. Dr. Knapp fixed the time of Dorsey's death at about 2 a.m. yesterday.

Dorsey's third wife, Janie, who was in the house when he died, as were their two children, but it was 12 hours before the death was discovered.

His booking agent, Vincent Carbone, got no answer to a knock on the bedroom door at Dorsey's sprawling, $130,000 home, and went in through a window. Both Dorsey and his wife slept behind locked doors, on advice of lawyers, so they would not jeopardize the divorce proceedings.

Carbone found the body of the famed trombonist sprawled over the bed. The rest of the family had thought he was sleeping late, as he often did.

Dorsey's saxophonist brother Jimmy, two years younger, was in New York at the time. So was their mother.

What made Dorsey ill was not known. He ate a heavy Italian meal with his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Ruth New of Atlanta, in his home the night before. Tino Barzile, his personal manager, said Dorsey was told recently at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore that he was developing an ulcer.

A note Dorsey left added to the mystery when police refused to comment on the case. Finally the text of the note was disclosed by Barzile.

In the note Barzile said Dorsey had a habit of leaving notes, often by the dozen, Dorsey thanked his wife for the dinner and added: "I am leaving early in the morning. Kiss Susie for me before she leaves for school." Susie was his six-year-old daughter.

Barzile said he planned to meet Dorsey in New York today.

Besides Susie, Dorsey leaves a four-year-old son, Steve, by his present wife, and two grown children by his first wife, the former Mildred Kraft. Their children are Mrs. Lester Hooker of Richmond, Va., and Thomas F. Dorsey 3rd., in the Navy stationed at Hawaii.

His second marriage was to actress Pat Dane. His third wife, Janie, sued for divorce last month, charging intolerable cruelty.

Dorsey was an Irish Catholic, but as a twice divorced person he cannot be buried in the church. Services will be held Thursday in the Walter Cook E. 72nd St. Funeral Home, New York City. Tommy will be buried beside his father in the hills of Shenandoah, Pa.

Some people will remember Dorsey for playing with his brother Jimmy in Paul White-man's band, later with Vincent Lopez, and in recent years again in a joint orchestra with Jimmy.

Some will remember the unknowns he made stars — Like Frank Sinatra, Jo Stafford and Connie Haines.

And some will remember how that sweet trombone used to sound wrapped around Tommy Dorsey's theme song, "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You."

Ration Trouble Among Men Of UN Police Units

By ANGELO NATALE
 ABU SUWEIR, Egypt, Nov. 27 (AP)—Morale and unity in the U.N. police force in Egypt are high, but internationalism does not extend to food. The troops' menus range from smorgasbord to curry.

Seven countries now have soldiers in the police force, and others will be added. On hand are Indians, Yugoslavs, Colombians, Danes, Swedes, Norwegians and Canadians.

Most of the troops brought in enough rations from their own armies to last a week or two. The Scandinavians go for their famed smorgasbord, the Indians for their strongly flavored curry dishes.

The U.N. Command is just beginning to face up to an over-all plan for feeding its men. Not only food but the meal hours and systems of rationing vary with the different nationalities.

There is another problem in morale—entertainment and recreation.

The command hopes the troops will develop some entertainment programs of their own. These also would promote mutual understanding.

Some of the troops have played a little soccer under the hot Egyptian sun. The energetic Scandinavians pass the dull hours with callisthenics and gymnastics.

"But this can go only so far," one realistic Norwegian remarked.

The heat gets consideration all by itself. Sunburn was the first problem for the blond Scandinavians, Yugoslavs and Canadians. Many of them left snowstorms in their own countries when they flew to sunbaked Abu Suweir.

While the men are being acclimated, they are quartered in one-story barracks. After a few days, they are moved to a big tent camp inside a compound surrounded by barbed wire.

The troops have heard of Egypt's pyramids and sphinxes and the fabulous palaces of ex-King Farouk. But so far most have seen only the barracks and tents.

They are confined to the camp. The only Egyptians with whom they have contact are about 200 military police and guards stationed in Abu Suweir. Despite a report by U.N. observers that these Egyptians were showing favoritism to the Yugoslavs, there is no complaint here that the Egyptians are playing favorites.

The only members of the U.N. force who have left Abu Suweir, about 12 miles southwest of Ismailia, are 190 Norwegians. They were sent north into battered Port Said to ease tension there between the British-French task force and the Egyptian population.

Abu Suweir itself is on an isolated artificial canal watered by the "sweetwater" canal connecting the Nile River with Ismailia. A road along a narrow ribbon of

U.S. Olympic Stars Continue To Shine

Morrow, Other Americans Top Track Records

BY TED SMITS
MELBOURNE (AP)—Fleet Bobby Morrow scored the first Olympic sprint double since Jesse Owens in 1936 today as Uncle Sam's athletes surged to five more gold medals in another smashing display of land and sea power.

Morrow, the Abilene Christian flash from San Benito, Tex., who had won the 100-meters Saturday, led an American sweep in the 200-meters with a record-smashing performance matched by Al Oerter of New Hyde Park, N.Y., and his two teammates in the discus. Oerter broke the old standard to inspire another American 1-2-3 finish.

While the track and field forces excited another capacity crowd of 100,000 at Olympic Stadium, Yale's stout-hearted eight-man crew set the pace for America's finest rowing day at nearby Ballarat.

Beaten in shocking fashion in the first round, Yale climaxed a brilliant comeback by beating the same crews that had whipped them earlier after earning another chance in the repechage.

Yale's triumph, the eighth straight for the U.S. in the eights since 1920, ended a glorious day at Lake Wendouree where Americans also took the pairs with coxswain and pairs without coxswain. Silver second-place medals went to Uncle Sam's double sculls and four-oared crew without coxswain.

Failure of Jack Kelly, Jr., brother of Princess Grace of Monaco, to follow in his father's footsteps in the single sculls was the major U.S. disappointment in rowing. Kelly finished third in his last try to match his dad's Olympic victory of 1920.

Russia won two gold medals in rowing, the double and single sculls, but failed in track and field. At the end of the day, Russia trailed the U.S. by more than 100 points.

An unofficial point table showed the United States way out front with 202 points to 149 1/2 points for Russia.

The United States has a total of 16 gold medals to Russia's six and had won nine of 13 events in men's track and field.

Adhemar Ferreira da Silva of Brazil set a new Olympic record in winning the hop, step and jump although Bill Sharpe of Philadelphia surprised with a fourth-place leap of 52 feet 1 1/2 inches, probably the best ever by an American. The Brazilian covered 53 feet 5 1/2 inches breaking his own mark set in 1952 at Helsinki.

Although Poland's E. Zbigniew Kuczyński broke the Olympic mark and tied her own world record by taking the women's broad jump with a leap of 20 feet 9 1/2 inches, America's Willie White of Eucawood, Miss., exceeded all expectations by finishing second in a 19 foot 11 1/2 inches.

A sweep in the 200-meters and the discus were the second and third of the current Olympics for Uncle Sam, which already had finished 1-2-3 in the 400-meters hurdles.

Another strong American performance is expected Wednesday in both the discus and the 110-meter hurdles in which all four U.S. men won their heats—Jack Davis of Glendale, Calif., Lee Calhoun of Gary, Ind. and Joel Shankle of Durham, N.C. Parry O'Brien who sets a world record almost every time he appears is considered a cinch to repeat his 1952 winning performance in the shot put.

Morrow established himself as the top of the list of the world's best sprinters by taking the 200-meters. He will have a chance to make it three gold medals in the 400-meter relay event Saturday. Andy Stanfield of Jersey City, N.J., winner of the 200 and a member of the winning relay team in 1952, tied Owen's record of 20.7 while finishing a stride behind Morrow. Thane Baker of Elkhart, Kan., who will run with Morrow, Stanfield and Leason King of Delano, Calif., in the relay, was third in the 200.

Oerter, a student at the University of Kansas, shattered the Olympic discus record with a throw of 184 feet 11 inches, followed by Fortune Gordien of Brightwood, Ore., who was fourth in 1952 and third in the 1948 Olympics. Desmond Koch, an Air Force man from Shelton, Wash., took third to complete the sweep.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the day was the performance of Sharp's hop, step and jump with his fourth-place finish and the second place by Willie White, 17, who competes from Tennessee State University.

One American survived two trial heats in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in which Horace

Jurgensen, Sutton, Barnes Lead Southern Pro Drafts

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Fourteen Southern players were selected yesterday in the 1956 National Football League draft.

The pros picked seven from the Atlantic Coast Conference, five from the Southeastern Conference and two from unaffiliated schools.

ACC players drafted were: Joel Wells, Clemson halfback, second choice by Green Bay Packers; Bill Barnes, Wake Forest fullback, second choice by Philadelphia Eagles; Sonny Jurgensen, Duke quarterback, fourth choice by Philadelphia; Ed Sutton, University of North Carolina halfback, third choice by Washington Redskins; Bill Hudson, Clemson tackle, third choice by Chicago Cardinals; Sam De Luca, University of South Carolina tackle, second choice by New York Giants, and Mike Sandusky, University of Maryland tackle, fourth choice by Chicago Cardinals. The Cardinals traded Sandusky to San Francisco to complete a previous deal.

Southeastern Conference players drafted were: Dalton Truax, Tulane tackle, third choice of Green Bay; Greedy Bay traded Truax to Los Angeles to complete a prior commitment; Carl Vereen, Georgia Tech tackle, fourth choice of Green Bay; Jack Simpson, University of Florida halfback, fourth choice of Baltimore Colts; John Gordy, Tennessee tackle, second choice of Detroit Lions; and Earl Leggett, LSU tackle, first choice of Chicago Bears.

Southerners drafted from unaffiliated schools were: Don Owens, Mississippi Southern tackle, third choice of Pittsburgh Steelers, and Jack Johnson, University of Miami halfback, fourth choice of Chicago Bears.

American, Russian Cagers Win Early

MELBOURNE (AP)—The unbeaten U.S. basketball team and once-beaten Russia made it safely through their opening games of the semifinal round-robin in the Olympic tournament tonight.

The Yanks, as expected, handed Bulgaria easily, 65-44, while the Russians cause a minor surprise by breezing past Brazil 87-68.

Brazil had been rated No. 2 by the Americans, who considered the South Americans more of a threat to their championship than the Russians. The Yanks and Russia switch opponents tomorrow.

The Yanks, paired with Bulgaria, Russia and Brazil in one of two semifinal groups which will advance four teams to the finals beginning Friday, again were led by Bob Jeannerard of Wilmette, Ill. The 6-3 former Colorado star scored 19 points while K. C. Jones and Bill Russell, the pair who brought San Francisco through two undefeated seasons, each bagged 12.

It was 48-19 at the half, and the Bulgarians, beaten only by Uruguay in three previous games, were never in it.

In an afternoon game, France, which upset Russia in the first round, got past Chile 71-60. Uruguay and the Philippines round out that four-team round robin.

The Russians' top scorer was Stassis Stankous, who totaled 22 points. Ian Krouminch, the 7-4 giant, scored six points, four on free throws.

Brazil was charged with 43 personal fouls and the Russians made 45 of 50 free throws while having only a 21-20 edge from the field.

Coach Farley lost his entire championship squad last year, with the exception of Joe Wingate, a reserve center. A man of few words the coach merely stated, "We don't know who we've got or where they'll play yet. We'll just have to start from scratch."

Swim Class To Meet Tonight

Swimming classes scheduled to meet at night will be offered at East Carolina College during the winter quarter. Those who are interested in enrolling are asked to attend a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium.

The swimming classes are included in a program of approximately 40 late afternoon, night, and Saturday morning courses which are open to students this quarter and which, according to plans, will be given each quarter in the future. The student who wishes to begin or continue his education will be enabled to obtain a degree by enrolling in these specially scheduled classes and completing requirements of instruction.

Swimming will be taught this quarter by Ray Martinez of the department of health and physical education. Each class will hold one three-hour meeting a week. Mr. Martinez stated today that work for both beginners and advanced students will be included. At tonight's session in the Austin auditorium, hours of meeting convenient to students will be arranged.

Tonight marks the deadline for registering in courses included in the program of specially scheduled classes. The office of the registrar will be open at 6:30 p.m. so that those who wish to enroll may do so.

State Playoffs For High School Titles In Motion

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Charles P. Chubb, Crickson, University of North Carolina athletic director, announced today the appointment of Walter Rabb as head baseball coach.

Rabb, who has been an assistant coach for nine years, will succeed Bunn Hearn, who retired last spring after 20 years service.

Rabb has been an associate professor in physical education and director of intramural activities since 1946, posts he will continue to hold.

After being graduated from North Carolina State College in 1937, Rabb played professional baseball five years in the Coastal Plain, South Atlantic and Mid-Atlantic leagues as a member of the New York Yankee chain. He came to North Carolina in 1941 following military service.

Rabb became assistant baseball coach in 1947, the same year that Hearn suffered a paralytic stroke. Although Hearn remained in charge, Rabb assumed all field duties and was actually in charge of the team.

Ashenfelter, the surprise winner in 1952, was eliminated by a sixth-place finish. Charles (Deacon) Jones of Boystown, Neb., made the finals by finishing fourth in one heat. Phil Coleman of Urbana, Ill., was ninth. The first five survived.

Uncle Sam's girls drew a blank in the 80-meter women's hurdles where Costance Darnowski of Brooklyn, Barbara Mueller of Chicago and Irene Robertson of West Los Angeles quickly were eliminated. Two Australian girls broke the Olympic record and tied the accepted world mark with 10.8 second performances in the heats.

The United States basketball team opened its second round of competition with an 85-41 romp over Bulgaria. The American modern pentathlon team still was first after completion of the swimming, fourth of the five events. The 4,000-meter cross-country run will end the pentathlon tomorrow.

In addition to the stirring triumph of the Yale crew, stroked by Robert Morey of Short Hills, N. J., the combination of Duval Hecht of Beverly Hills, Calif. and Jim Fifer of Tacoma, Wash., took the pairs without coxswain. The Stanford Crew Assn. of Art Ayrault of Tacoma, Conn. Findlay of Belmont, Calif. and Kurt Seifert of Rochester, Mich. were the champs in pairs with coxswain.

Kelly was third, beaten by both Viktor Ivanhov of Russian and Stuart Mackenzie of Australia in the single sculls. The double sculls entry of Pat Costello of Birmingham, Mich. and Jim Gardner of Detroit, finished second to Club combination of Jim McIntosh of Livonia, Mich. Art and John McKinley of Detroit and John Welch of Grosse Pointe, Mich. was second to Canada's first gold medal winner in the fours without coxswain.

Boxing competition continued with the fields reaching the quarter finals.

Morrow Thrilled Over Double-Sprint Victory

MELBOURNE (AP)—Bobby Morrow, describing himself as "a cotton farmer from Texas," said today it was a great thrill to become the first man in 20 years to score a double in the Olympic sprints.

"I sure am glad this day is over, though," he added. "It has been a terrific strain."

Morrow, the 21-year-old speedster from Abilene Christian College who won the 100-meter dash on Saturday, today led a 1-2-3 American sweep in the 200 meters, winning in the Olympic record time of 20.6 seconds.

That made him the first double sprint winner since the great Jesse Owens, who had set the 200-meter standard, did it in the 1936 games at Berlin.

"Now, I'm going for No. 3," Bobby said, smiling broadly. "We begin training tomorrow for the 400-meter relay."

Morrow's time wiped out the record of 20.7 set by Owens at Berlin when he scored his famous Olympic triple.

Three American hurdlers—Jack Davis, Lee Calhoun and Joel Shankle—all won their first heats in the 110-meter hurdles and qualified for the semifinals tomorrow.

Shankle's time in the hurdles was 14 seconds. Martin Lauer of Germany won the fourth heat in 14.1. Photos were called for to decide the other places in both heats.

Davis of Glendale, Calif., won the first heat of the 110-meter hurdles in the ordinary time of 14 seconds flat with Edmond Round-

Congratulations Sent To Bank Observing 25th Year

Congratulatory messages from numerous state officials and banking officials in North Carolina have been received by State Bank and Trust Company of Greenville which celebrates its 25th anniversary tonight with an open house of its completely renovated quarters here.

In a letter to bank president J. T. Marston, Jr., Gov. Hodges expressed his congratulations to the bank on its 25th anniversary and added, "You have a record of sound financial service to your community and Eastern Carolina. We are pleased with your success and appreciate the interest shown by you and your associates in the sound industrial development of Eastern North Carolina."

Messages also have been received by the bank from State Treasurer Edwin Gill who is also chairman of the State Banking Commission; State Commissioner of Banks William W. Jones; Louis D. Brooks of Charlotte, president of the North Carolina Bankers Association; and Jesse Helms of Raleigh, executive director of the North Carolina Bankers Association.

The bank will hold open house from 5 until 8 o'clock this evening.

"We are grateful for the attention the celebration of our silver anniversary and the presentation of our new quarters has aroused," President Marston said today.

Marston became president of the State Bank and Trust Company earlier this year following the retirement of B. B. Sugg, Sr. who served as president of the bank for the first 25 years of its existence. Formerly a vice president of a Richmond bank, Marston became associated with the State Bank last year following the retirement of John Mitchell who served as cashier of the bank from 1931 until retired.

Since coming to Greenville Marston has been active in various civic affairs. This fall he has served as chairman of the membership campaign of the Pitt County Farm Bureau. He is treasurer of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, a member of its board of directors and a member of the executive committee. He also serves as a member of the board of directors of the Greenville Merchants Association and a member of its finance committee. Marston is also on the board of the Pitt County T. B. Association and has been active in fund raising campaigns of the Community Chest, Heart Fund and Red Cross in Greenville.

He is a member of the Greenville Rotary Club and treasures and a member of the board of directors of the newly formed Sentinel Life Insurance Company of Greenville.

In conjunction with its 25th anniversary celebration today the State Bank is exhibiting a collec-

Boy's Calf Now Worth $2,760

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A little over a year ago 13-year-old Elko, Nev., ranch boy bought a calf from his dad for $75.

Yesterday the now 920-pound brown and white Hereford won the grand champion steer award at the Great Western Livestock Show. His young owner, Jay Peterson, hopes to get around $3 a pound — which would total $2,760 — for the steer at auction.

"I intend to use the money towards buying a ranch some day," said the son of Louis E. Peterson, owner of ranches in Nevada and Ogden, Utah.

Bumpers Locked, Left Him Afoot

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The front bumper of 51-year-old Peyton Randolph Omokundra's car snagged onto the rear bumper of another as he pulled up behind at a stop light. So he got out to check but the light changed and both cars drove off.

When 66-year-old Chris Wetzel, driver of the other car, started to turn at the next block he noticed a driverless car very close behind. So he stopped to check, and Omokundra, picked up by an observing motorist at the stop light, caught up, explained the situation, and got his car back.

Shootings Prove To Be Initiation

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A car pulled up near a downtown intersection last night and shots rang out.

A pedestrian dropped to the sidewalk, two occupants of the car leaped out, picked up their victim, put him in the car and quickly drove off.

Not long after police got a report of a similar incident from another section of town.

Every police cruiser was alerted and it wasn't long before a group of high school boys was rounded up and lectured on how far they can go in initiation stunts.

Housekeeping In Industry Sees A Rising Cost

By SAsI DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Housekeeping costs more these days in the nation's factories and mills and stores. And so does the replacing of outworn plants and outdated machinery of the building and outfitting of new shops and shopping centers.

The squeeze is on. Shrinking profit margins show it. Most companies have to sell more today than they did a year ago if they want to make as high a profit, and sometimes profits slip even though sales totals rise.

When firms want to grow by adding new plants and machinery or to keep up with competitors who may sport newer and more efficient equipment, they find out how much more it costs than when they started up. That's what all the hue and cry over depreciation allowances is about.

The new firm seeking to take root finds itself at a handicap because the older competitor may be using buildings and facilities that cost much less to build or to install.

Yet the demands of a growing population indicates that new firms, both big and small, must be added in the next few years.

Plant maintenance costs are shooting up. The publication Factory Management and Maintenance predicts a continuing rise the rest of the year. In a survey of maintenance, labor and material costs, the magazine says that in September there were particularly sharp increases in prices for some fabricated metal products.

The cost of maintaining buildings and facilities is 6.2 per cent higher today than the average cost in 1955 and the cost of maintaining equipment rose 8.3 per cent.

Replacement costs for most industries have been inflated. Making the most noise about it at the moment are the steel companies. They contend that outside capital shouldn't have to be used for replacement purposes but should be reserved for the expansion programs on which they are launched.

Rare Simplicity In Robbing Bank

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A man robbed a bank of $1,002 in the simplest manner possible — just grabbed the money from a teller. No note, no words, no gun.

The teller, Mrs. Wilma de Filippo, 28, told police she was counting her last deposit before closing her window for lunch. The man reached under the wicket, snatched the money from her hands and escaped from a Citizens National Bank branch in a car driven by an accomplice.

OLD BUT NOT FORGOTTEN MARSHFIELD Wis. (AP)—The oldest farm in this area of central Wisconsin was settled in 1867 by Prosper Bouchain who lived to be 104 years old. His son, Valmo, born in 1876, still is living on the farm now operated by his son Norman.

Mrs. Roosevelt Says Protest Was In Order

DURHAM (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt declared last night that had the United States protested to the United Nations in 1951 when Egypt refused to allow Israeli ships to go through the Suez Canal, "there would have been a clear case today in the U.N." regarding the Suez crisis.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke here to the Durham chapter of the American Assn. for the United Nations. She was scheduled to leave early today from the Raleigh-Durham airport.

The former first lady charged that "oil interests in the Middle East held the United States from action against Arab countries" when Egypt denied Israeli ships the right of the canal.

Here to ask for more public interest and faith in the U.N., Mrs. Roosevelt told a press conference she considers the U.N. stronger today than it was before the Middle East fighting and the Hungarian rebellion.

She asserted that she believes "Israel acted with a great deal of justification" in attacking Egypt, but added, "I cannot say that of Britain and France."

The lads, 7 and 8, set a vacant house on fire, authorities said, and were squinting away manfully but unavailingly when firemen arrived with more powerful equipment.

Firemen estimated damage at $500. The boys were turned over to their parents.

Squirts Fail To Extinguish Fire

LOT OF LICENSES
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—There were 6,721,409 driver's licenses in California as of mid-1956. Of the total, 6,309,372 were operators' licenses and 412,037 were chauffeurs' permits.

OPEN
TONIGHT

And We Hope You'll Come To See Us

State Bank and Trust Company is holding an informal, "open house" from five until eight o'clock this afternoon and evening. We hope you will come to see us.

This is a two-in-one affair. It is the celebration of our silver anniversary because State Bank has completed its first 25 years of service to the people of Greenville and Pitt County. It also is the celebration of something more tangible—the opening of the bank's new quarters. The location is the same—at Five Points—but the banking house, the furniture and facilities are quite different. There is no more modern banking house in North Carolina—and not many, we think, so attractive.

State Bank has done a lot of growing during the past 25 years; and we are proud of its growth. But we are much more proud of the increased services the bank renders; and the many new friends it has made.

So come to see us. We have a banking house that is a credit to Greenville and to Pitt, and we want you to look it over.

CHAPTER 22

Perry went back upstairs to the living-room. He was in a muddled haze of satisfaction. He moved slowly round the room, touching the cold bronze of the statues, touching the white metal of the candlesticks, rubbing his fingertips lightly over the surface of the sofa-table, holding up to the candle-light the blue Bristol glasses.

His feet were hot. He changed into the bedroom slippers for which they yearned and sat down in an armchair, relaxed brooding. He had been so right to seize the opportunity, to ask that pleasant Mr. Duke to see his collection. Mr. Duke was the first man who had seen it. There was a certain danger in his seeing it but the danger had to be risked if he were ever to rise and mix with connoisseurs. Mr. Duke knew many of them and he knew the West End Clubs. In time he would introduce Perry and then . . . the dream was not so much of a dream after all. It only needed time to make it a reality: time and resolve. That was what made him different from other men — the resolve to translate his dream into reality, the ruthlessness to get what he wanted.

What might have been a thin, muffled laugh came from him as he sat there. He had remembered a conversation which he had overheard at the Bank one day. Two of his colleagues had been discussing him.

"Perry's a funny old stick," said one. "Like a mouse with a temper."

"Temper?" queried the other. "He couldn't scare a fly."

"I don't know. I think he could if you goaded him along enough. These quiet chaps do, you know."

"Don't believe it," said the other. "He's just an insignificant little fellow whom you wouldn't recognize again if you met him in the street. And I'll bet you wouldn't either. I say, we've got a new tyrist coming . . ."

That had been the crucial moment, Perry remembered. He had been hurt, then angry, then suddenly and coldly determined. It was as if he had been forced to a decision which had been nagging him for years.

They had done him a service, those gross fools in the Bank. He had determined to show himself that he was different from them, more cunning, more able, more of a character. And his determination was directed by their comment on his insignificance. If he could not be recognized twice in the street, then crime would be safe: if it were a safe crime. Blackmail was safe, so long as you tapped your victim once. And blackmail would get him the money to buy the beautiful things for which he yearned: unspeakable, unobscure things whose presence would be a continual praise of his own refinement.

For two years he had spent every moment he could in studying the accounts of his Bank's clients, amassing knowledge, knowledge, knowledge. Then he had retired. And they had even given him a fountain pen! Now he was independent, resolute, cultured while they — those black-coated fools — were still cashiers or clerks.

He was in the same elevated spirit of mind the next morning as he dusted his furniture, dusted and polished, made his bed and washed up the supper things. He even whistled as he changed into his black suit with its pin-stripe trousers, making himself ready for his customary sandwich with Macfarlane in the City.

Casson went to the Shepley Arms that evening as usual but Perry did not appear. Casson was disappointed but nothing more. But when Perry failed to turn up at the pub for the next two nights he became alarmed. Had he sprinkled his bait too obviously? Or on the morning of the fourth day Casson kept watch at his window. Perry went out as usual and returned an hour later with his shopping bag. So he was there all right. But why had he broken his habit of going to the Shepley Arms? Why should he break it unless he were afraid of meeting Casson?

In the end Casson rang Strutt. "I'm glad you rang up," said Strutt's voice. "Something queer is going on."

"I know," replied Casson. "I was getting on well with him and then he sheered off. He hasn't been to the pub for days."

"No, he hasn't. He's been with Macfarlane."

"Macfarlane?" Casson was doubly disturbed. This was quite beyond expectation. It was abnormal, out of routine. It was disappointing, too, since it seemed that Perry had been sounding out Casson as a new provider of information and yet he was seeing even more of Macfarlane.

"Are you busy?" Strutt asked.

"No."

"Come on over and have a drink. I'll meet you in The Guinea in Bruton Place. When?"

"Come to the office instead," said Casson. "I'll be there in half-an-hour, and I'll tell Tippet to get some lager for you."

"Right-ho, son," Strutt rang off.

When Casson got up to Manton, Heywood, the Superintendent had already arrived and was bulging out of the armchair in the inner office. He started talking as soon as Casson shut the door.

"It's odd," he said. "But I think it's good. The boys have been on to Macfarlane. He's pretty easy — regular hours of work, coffee at ten-forty-five, lunch at twelve. Four days ago they took him to a sandwich bar in the City — the one you told us about —"

"John's?"

"The same. He and Perry had a sandwich. He couldn't hear what they were talking about. Young Macfarlane says something and laughs. Pokes Perry in the ribs with his finger. Sort of a joke. It looks like Perry goes as white as a sheet. Practically starts shaking. Most unusual. He calms down a bit and they finish their lunch and Macfarlane goes back to the Bank. Does Perry go home? Not on your life. He prowls about like a hungry dog. Mac won't leave the Bank till five-thirty so my lad goes after Perry. He sits in Hyde Park till four and then he goes off, looking sick as mud." Strutt took a pull of lager.

"Next evening they meet again. In a pub. This time it's Mac's turn to go white. Then he goes red, then white again. Like a set of blasted traffic lights. Then he gets angry. Perry calms him down. It looks as if he's arguing, persuading, but we can't get near enough to hear. They have a couple of drinks and go out. The last thing Mac says to Perry is: 'I won't believe it, I can't.' It's true," says Perry, "but you'll never get the truth, Jim. You can't trust what a woman says. Not under those circumstances. You know you can't." He sounds sad, sad and wise, the crawling word."

Casson makes a gruesome discovery in Chapter 23 of Small Venom, here tomorrow.

"In those days it was work, work, work on the job . . . they have it easier now . . . but when you do your work, you're all right."

Asked what he thought about the world today, the nation's marathon jobholder said:

"It's going pretty fast. If it's got any better, it's because we tried this . . . and we tried that — we tried, anyway."

"Ain't anything bothers me. I'm happy."

Hultzman has one recent regret — that his brother, Jake, died last December just a year before he was to get his 75-year service pin from the glass works.

But he is cheered by the fact he had 29 living descendants, including his son, "Dutch," who has been 56 years on the glass works payroll and — at 70 — is showing signs of settling down and staying put.

Scott Already Is Aiming At 1960

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kerr Scott (D-NC) said today "the sorry showing the Democrats made in the election" convinced him he should start running immediately for re-election in 1960.

Consequently, he said, he's telling every North Carolinian he sees, "I'm in that race right now."

Scott was elected in 1954, defeating and succeeding Sen. Alton Lennon (D-NC).

Scott says Democrats who lost in this year's election were "sorry politicians" and declares he never wants that tag to apply to him.

He expects to spend a lot of time talking to his "branchhead boys" back home. That is a term he has applied to his friends for a long time.

Scott said he's heard the man who piled up the biggest statewide vote in North Carolina this year, Gov. Luther Hodges, will be running for the Senate in 1960.

"I'm not for Luther Hodges," Scott said, "but I'm not for Luther Hodges taking my place in the Senate."

Bogart Back In Hospital Again

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Humphrey Bogart is in St. John's Hospital for treatment of a nerve pressure condition which followed a cancer operation.

The 55-year-old actor underwent surgery last March for removal of a growth on his esophagus — the gullet, a tube from throat to stomach.

Bogart said later in an interview that the operation was "highly successful."

TENSION IS NORMAL

GREAT FALLS Mont. (AP) — A University of Minnesota Medical School neurology professor says that "tension is a normal, everyday phenomenon for all of us."

Dr. Burtrom C. Schiele claims tension "serves a useful purpose in keeping us alert, active and effective."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market dipped slightly as trading quieted early this afternoon.

Leading issues were down from fractions to around a point but shipping issues moved more widely.

Prices were mixed for about an hour and turnover was fairly active over-all with volume for the day headed for around the two-million-share level.

The still unsettled Suez situation and the closing of the canal, the rise in U. S. treasury borrowing costs on 91-day bills to another 23-year high, the decline in corporate and U. S. government bonds all aided in depressing prices.

Some shipping issues, which have had a rise on prospects for a big tanker construction program, lost heavily on profit-taking.

Merritt-Chapman & Scott, yesterday's most active stock, added another point or so to its gain of 1 1/2 yesterday. Its subsidiary, New York Shipbuilding, after some initial nervous fluctuations, dropped about 6 points following its run-up of 17 1/2 yesterday. Bath Iron Works and Newport News Shipbuilding each lost around 2.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown all dropped fractions.

Airfracts lost most early gains as Boeing was off a fraction. Douglas was unchanged and Dought Aircraft clung to a small advance.

Chrysler added a fraction to its decline of yesterday. Studebaker-Packard improved slightly. General Motors was steady.

Among the rails, Santa Fe was up a major fraction but New York Central and other carriers lost a bit of ground.

Gulf Oil picked up a fraction. Small gains and losses peppered the list of other oils.

A big block of 13,800 shares of American Airlines changed hands at 22 1/4, off 1/4. Goodrich and International Nickel fell around a point each. Kennecott Copper was up slightly. American Telephone, Union Carbide, and Zenith advanced slightly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 40 cents to $175.10 with the industrials down 70 cents, the rails down 80 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Coach Talks On Olympic Games

First hand impressions of the World Olympics were presented the Greenville Rotary Club last night by Ray Martinez, swimming coach at East Carolina who attended the Olympic games at Helsinki, Finland in 1952.

At the Olympics, Martinez said, "You see the youth of many nations preparing to do battle in which no one dies." The speaker said he was particularly impressed by the spirit of friendship which came about between members of the teams of various nations.

"If we could have more of this sort of thing where people from many nations could meet and compete, not only in athletics but other events also, we could come to understand problems and way of life of people in other countries."

Martinez described a number of the Olympic events he observed, and explained that in many sports Olympic rules differ sharply from the rules of the sport followed in this nation. For that reason, he said, American Olympic teams have to learn to play by new rules while competing in the international events. This, he said, is a handicap to American participants in many sports and is a primary reason the United States cannot expect to excel in Olympic competition. In sports where Olympic rules are the same as the rules American youth have played by all their lives, he asserted, the American competitors usually excel others.

'Goatman' Rolls Into Greenville

The "goatman" rolled into Greenville today — complete with two-unit wagon and 25 goats.

He didn't exactly enter the city limits, choosing instead the byways so he could visit Greenville's television station. He's on his way to Whitehall's Beach, near Washington, where he will be for three days before trucking back home to Georgia.

The caravan camped eight miles from Greenville last night at Contentment Creek bridge near Ballard's Cross Roads. Large crowds gathered during the late afternoon to inspect the wagon, goats and goatman but traffic moved smoothly through the area despite large numbers of cars and trucks being parked on the highway shoulders.

While in camp last night, the goatman told the crowds that he had been wandering up and down the nation's highways for 21 years and had covered an estimated 100,000 miles in that time. He gave no reason for starting the wandering except to say he lost his "job, couldn't get another and had to do something."

He did say, however, that he has his eye on a more substantial position. He plans to run for President in 1960 on the Democratic Party ticket—if he lives that long and can get the right kind of support."

Newsman Is Found Dead In Front Yard

RALEIGH (AP)—Nell Battle Lewis, well-known Raleigh newspaperwoman, was found dead today in the front yard of her home. She apparently had suffered a heart attack and had lain there through out a chill night.

Miss Lewis, 63, was a former editor of the Raleigh Times. For many years she had conducted a weekly column, entitled "Incidentally," in the Sunday News & Observer.

Ironically, her body was found by a News & Observer carrier boy.

Detective Capt. Robert Goodwin said that Miss Lewis' car keys were found in her hand. He said she apparently left her car last night, suffered an attack and fell before she could reach the front door of her home. He said there were no signs to indicate that death resulted from anything but natural causes.

The Greenville Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the airport, Capt. Walter Bunch, commander of the Greenville unit, requests all cadets, senior members and friends to attend.

Light Docket In City Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of an unusually light docket at Monday's session of Police Court.

James W. Daniel, Negro, 1300-B Mills St., assault with a deadly weapon (knife), 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is not to molest or harm Helen Daniels, Nashville Hardee Jr., 313 W. Second St., driving drunk 90 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for 12 months. The court recommended that his driver's license be revoked for 12 months.

Daisy L. Peterson, Negro, 1222 Railroad St., no operator's license, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs, and she is not to drive without proper license. For having an improper muffler, the court gave her 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs and she is not to drive without proper muffler.

Drunk: George W. Bowen, 1308 E. 10th St., $10; Charlie M. Greene, Negro, 600 McKinley Ave., $10.

Funeral Wednesday For W. S. Royster

FARMVILLE—Willard Spencer (Bill) Royster, 60, husband of Mrs. Susan Meadows Royster, died Monday at 4:10 p.m., at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

Funeral services will be held at the Farmville Baptist Church Wednesday at 2:30 p.m., with Rev. E. W. Homes and Rev. LaFon Vereen, pastor of the Farmville Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery. The body will be taken to the church one hour before the funeral service.

Mr. Royster was manager of tobacco markets at Live Oak, Florida, and Farmville for Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. He had worked for them more than 40 years. He was a graduate of Buies Creek College, now Campbell College, and was a member of the Baptist church over 40 years.
