Sweeping Revision Of N. C. Tax Structure Proposed

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's Tax Study Commission today recommended sweeping changes in the state's tax structure in order to eliminate what it called "inequities" and to make "the state more attractive to industry."

(3) Completely rewrite the sales tax law to eliminate "numerous conflicting and contradictory" interpretations.

(4) Turn over to cities and counties the entire proceeds of intangibles taxes which the state now shares.

The commission said North Carolina's tax "package" — state and local taxes — "is greater on many types of industries and businesses" than "in many locations in other southeastern states."

Gov. Hodges discussed the tax report in a statewide radio and TV address last night and discussed it further at a statewide news conference today.

In his speech last night, Hodges said he had studied the commission's report and commented, "I approve it with enthusiasm."

Hodges added that the reason for the proposed changes is to bring the state "in line with modern tax thinking and to put us in a more competitive position with our neighboring states."

Both Hodges and the commission said the adoption of the income tax changes would "not result in an income tax package lower than that of our sister states."

Enlarged Membership For N. C. House Of Representatives Urged

RALEIGH (AP)—A special Commission on Legislative Representation today recommended that membership of the House of Representatives be increased from 120 to 130 members and that no county be entitled to more than two senators, regardless of population.

It suggested that the Senate membership always be limited to 50 members.

The recommendations, which would require changes in the State Constitution, will be submitted to the 1957 General Assembly.

If the Legislature should approve the proposals, constitutional amendments would be voted on by the people at the next general election in 1958.

The special commission suggested that the recommendations not be placed in effect until after the 1960 census "for a number of reasons, including numerous technical difficulties."

Pending proposed changes, the commission recommended that the General Assembly should proceed to redistrict and reapportion its membership in accordance with present constitutional provisions.

Based on the 1950 population, Mecklenburg and Guilford would each gain a senator, Alamance and Rockingham counties would each gain a representative and Pitt and Cabarrus would each lose a representative.

Under the commission's proposals, the increase in House membership, based on the 1950 population, would mean that all counties would retain their present number of representatives, and gaining one each would be Alamance, Rockingham, Cleveland, Wayne, New Hanover, Davidson, Catawba, Nash, Halifax, and Gaston.

Mass Program Of CD Shelters Is Considered

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is reported considering a mass shelter building program for Civil Defense which ultimately might cost billions of dollars.

Officials in a position to know said today that several different proposals are under study which contemplate asking Congress for upwards of 200 million dollars to launch the program next year.

These officials said the proposals are designed to complement the program for evacuation of critical target areas.

It was pointed out that Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense administrator, said in a speech Oct. 11 that his agency is vitally interested in shelter proposals but that there is no single solution.

Longshoremen Stage Slowdown

NEW YORK (AP)—A wave of slowdowns by longshoremen is disrupting work on many New York piers five days after a federal court injunction ended an Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike.

The slowdowns, which developed yesterday, cut pier activity to 50 or 60 per cent of normal in certain areas.

Many of the men reportedly took four times the usual time to perform routine tasks. There also were many refusals to work through the noon hour and at night, at overtime rates.

An employer spokesman said the slowdowns have reached "serious proportions" and are "the equivalent of a partial strike."

Student Congress Legislative Session Convenes Here Today

More than 80 National Forensic League members from nine high schools in North and South Carolina convened a student congress legislative session here this afternoon.

The session was opened at City Hall in the court room by general chairman Joanne Parks of Greenville High School.

Delegates registered from high schools in Durham, Raleigh, Roxboro, Kinston, Belvoir-Falkland, Ayden, Camden, S. C., and Dreher of Columbia, S. C., in addition to host delegates.

At least four bills will be presented to the congress for debate.

The bills include one for lowering the voting age to 18, one to abolish the electoral college, one to adopt the metric system of weights and measures and a fourth for extending to two years the drivers license suspension for being convicted of driving 85 miles per hour. There is a possibility that other bills will be introduced before adjournment tomorrow at noon but they had not been announced prior to the opening of the congress.

The meeting will be conducted as a regular bicameral congress session and will offer participants training in current events, debate, speaking and reasoning on their feet, parliamentary procedure and social growth through the interschoolistic exchange of ideas.

Greenville High School students will serve as clerks, timers and pages for the session and are also entertaining out-of-town delegates in their homes. GHS students will also be hosts at a banquet tonight at 6 o'clock at East Carolina College.

The congress is under the direction of Miss Parks, Martha Pierce, president of the Greenville NFL chapter, and R. B. Starling, advisor of the Greenville NFL chapter.

U. S. Indicates All Possible Help For 4 Mideast Nations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States gave evidence today of extending every possible support to the anti-Communist Baghdad Pact in the Middle East short of actually becoming a member.

A reaffirmation of American backing for the four Mideast countries in the alliance, issued late yesterday, was attributed to a desire to reassure the hard-pressed government of Iraq and to warn Russia anew of American concern for the pact members.

The alliance is composed of Pakistan, Iraq, Turkey, Iran and Britain. But Iraq has refused to participate in council meetings with Britain since the British attack on Egypt.

As a result, the Baghdad group has been denied the active association of its most powerful state.

Concern over the future of the Middle East includes an official belief that Russia is deliberately embarked on a campaign of trouble making with the eventual aim of dominating the region.

This view was voiced last night by a top State Department official in a few hours after the department had declared support for the Middle Eastern members of the Baghdad alliance.

"A threat to the territorial integrity or political independence of the members," the statement said, "would be viewed by the United States with the utmost gravity."

It was understood here that this assurance was directed particularly to Iraq which in recent days has been the target of accusations by leaders in neighboring Syria. Syria is under the influence of a clique of pro-Soviet army officers. This group is believed to be aiming at the overthrow of the Iraqi government of Prime Minister Nuri Said.

Last Monday Iraq asked the United States for more jet planes and other weapons. This country has been supplying arms to Iraq since 1954. The new request is now under study and some officials say Iraq probably will get some additional arms soon.

Iraq is reported to have been urging the United States to join the Baghdad Pact. The issue of membership, however, is tied up with the problem of Arab hostility to Israel and the related issue of solidarity among states in the Arab League.

Saudi Arabia, a close friend of the United States, has opposed this country's joining the Baghdad pact. This and other considerations make U. S. membership unlikely in the foreseeable future.

The expression of U. S. views on Russia's policy toward the Middle East came from Deputy Under Secretary of State Robert Murphy in a speech last night in New York.

"It has become apparent," Murphy said, "that the achievement of a just and lasting peace in the Middle East would run counter to Soviet objectives."

"The Soviets are clearly planning a procession of events starting from reduction of Western influence and proceeding to the eventual incorporation of the nations of the area into the Soviet orbit."

"I am sitting on top of a volcano. Tomorrow could be my Pearl Harbor. I have to watch it all the time," Brown said.

He expressed the belief that the presence of the 6th Fleet in the tense Mediterranean is a strong deterrent force for peace.

Paris Stilled By Gas Rationing

PARIS (AP)—The roar of Paris traffic was stilled almost to a hush today as the full effect of gasoline rationing hit French motorists.

The city looks like a vast open-air garage, with thousands of automobiles parked along the streets. A decreasing number of the cars move from the curbs as more tanks run dry.

The French Cabinet Tuesday ordered a gasoline ration ranging from about five gallons to nearly eight gallons a month, depending on the size of the car.

Most French cars, much smaller than those in America, can do better than 120 miles on this. But it still means much more walking or bicycling.

Pre-Christmas Party For Dying Boy Looks Dim

KINSTON, N. C. (AP)—A Christmas party for a little 7-year-old leukemia victim who may not live to Christmas may be a flop, according to one of the principal sponsors.

The party is set Sunday for Charles Kennedy but Bessie Williams, announcer for Radio Station WFTC here, says public response to appeals for toys and money for the Negro lad hasn't been overwhelming.

"We've only got $77," Williams said wearily. "Don't think we aren't grateful for what we have, but we think more should have come in."

A doctor said little Charlie might live to Christmas. The party planned for Sunday was to make doubly sure that the lad enjoyed at least one big Christmas party before he died.

Hit-Run Charge Faces Ayden Man

Police have charged Lloyd E. Wilson, Negro of 820 E. Third St., Ayden, with hit and run and damage to personal property.

Wilson is alleged to have been the driver of a tractor-trailer which struck a loading shed at Star Warehouse No. 2 on Virginia Ave. Wednesday night.

Damage to the building was estimated at $150. A truck damage was placed at $75.

Investigating were Dets. R. T. Rogerson, W. E. Peterson, and R. W. Harris.

Rebel Attack In Cuba Repulsed

SANTIAGO DE CUBA (AP)—Several hundred rebels struck at the police headquarters about 7 a. m. today against the government of President Fulgencio Batista.

Police said the attack was repulsed with three rebels killed.

After the assault failed a number of the rebels occupied an empty building next to police headquarters. It formerly was a high school and city hall in this city of 300,000 about 500 miles east of Havana on the south coast of Cuba.

Oil For Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today ordered into effect its emergency program to supply Western Europe with up to 1,100,000 barrels of oil daily.

Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming asked Secretary of Interior Seanon to activate the industry's Middle East Emergency Committee.

This committee, representing 15 oil companies, has stand-by plans to pool production, distribution and tanker facilities for an effort to ease the European petroleum crisis resulting from blockage of the Suez Canal.

Most European countries already have gone under voluntary or compulsory gasoline rationing while this government withheld action—thereby exerting pressure on Britain and France to withdraw their troops from Egypt.

Flemming's action implied, but did not state, that the United States has obtained what it considers sufficient assurances from the French and British governments that their forces will be withdrawn, leaving the United Nations a free hand to stabilize conditions in Egypt.

Even with the U. S. effort, there still will be a petroleum deficit of about 20 per cent in Western Europe this winter, officials said, unless the canal and disrupted pipelines to the Mediterranean are restored in good time.

More Power For U. S. Sixth Fleet

WITH THE U. S. 6TH FLEET OFF SARDINIA (AP)—Uncle Sam's Mediterranean Fleet, already the most powerful in the world, soon will be beefed up more.

The fleet's commander, Vice Adm. Charles R. "Cat" Brown, told a news conference aboard his flagship, the heavy cruiser Salem, that:

"The 6th Fleet already is armed with Regulus guided missiles, which can give atomic anti-aircraft protection against enemy planes as far as 30 miles.

America's most modern aircraft carriers, the Forrestal and the modernized Farlinkin D. Roosevelt will join the fleet in January as replacements for the less hard-hitting Coral Sea and Randolph.

There are plans to equip the reinforced Marine battalion which travels with the fleet with "Honest John" rockets, which can carry an atomic warhead.

"I am sitting on top of a volcano. Tomorrow could be my Pearl Harbor. I have to watch it all the time," Brown said.

He expressed the belief that the presence of the 6th Fleet in the tense Mediterranean is a strong deterrent force for peace.

Brown also disclosed that the threat of the Egyptian crisis to the Western Alliance, Allied cooperation is beginning to work more smoothly again and there has been a renewal of NATO sea exercises.

Brown said that the 6th fleet gave the United States flexibility in the Mediterranean which could be used with control to the degree needed in a local situation.

"If I had to, I could set up a perimeter and send in armed (land) convoys to evacuate American civilians," he said.

Protection of American civilians in the Mediterranean area is a 6th Fleet responsibility. Fleet personnel on the Gaza Strip in Palestine. At the last minute the local Egyptian commander agreed to allow the civilians to depart. Israeli troops captured Gaza and the area around it soon after.

The 6th Fleet is completely self-supporting and has no land base. When the Forrestal and Farlinkin D. Roosevelt arrive, the fleet's air arm will be able to strike 1,400 miles from its carrier bases. At present the maximum range is 1,000 miles.

March Of Dimes Directors Named

James W. Lee of Greenville, Elroy Gormley of Robersonville and B. L. Davis of Snow Hill have been appointed county campaign directors for the state for the March of Dimes drive.

If Rex Edson of Gastonia, N. C., chairman of the drive, said, "Despite rather widespread use of the Salk anti-polio vaccine in North Carolina this year, the job of wiping out polio is not finished. Polio is still with us to a shocking degree, and we will have more cases next year."

Britain And France Ready To Write Off Egyptian Invasion

LONDON (AP)—Britain and France appeared set today to write off their Egyptian invasion by working out a prompt and coordinated "phased" withdrawal of their forces with few or no conditions.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd arranged emergency talks here with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau for a final round of policy.

British politicians and newspapers of differing political views agreed that a pullout was imminent.

Signs mounted that the two governments were anxious to get their troops out of Egypt with all the speed political expediency will permit.

It was not clear what conditions, if any, France and Britain will demand, or how long the withdrawal will take. There were some predictions, it can be completed by Christmas. As a minimum the British and French are expected to exact promises that their troops will be allowed to go without being troubled by any Egyptian guerrilla activity. Both countries have said they would like to help in clearing the canal.

The British policy is one of a step withdrawal of its troops from the Suez Canal zone after the U. N. peace force reaches "effective" strength. The French have not announced their position in any formal statement.

Lloyd will make a formal policy statement in the House of Commons Monday. This will come after hearing the views of France, which has been insisting on effective guarantees that the canal will be reopened without delay, and that it will not continue under sole control of Egypt.

Diplomatic sources believe a firm promise of evacuation will have these immediate advantages:

1. It will give the British and French a new and more favorable diplomatic position. Instead of being defendants before the United Nations, the two countries, once their troops have left Egypt, will then be in a position to demand that Egyptian President Nasser give unreserved cooperation to moves to clear and open the Suez Canal.

2. It will bring into operation an American plan to provide emergency oil aid for fuel-pinch Western Europe. Each day the canal remains closed brings with it further threats of widespread economic dislocation.

Britain's Conservative government still has to sugarcoat the bitter pill of evacuation if it wishes to avoid the wrath of many Conservative party members.

Women Voters Seek To Promote Interest In Policy

A committee to plan ways and means of promoting interest in and discussion of U. S. foreign policy of the future was formed at the Tuesday meeting of the League of Women Voters.

League members were told that too few Americans give thought to problems of international conflict and available means to find answers to the problems. The committee members, Mrs. Laura Clinton, Mrs. Charles Adams, Mrs. Floyd Simmons and Mrs. Michael Lusk, will meet at Mrs. Lusk's home Sunday at 2 p.m. to begin their planning.

Discussion at the meeting was centered around the U. S. security program with Mrs. Ann De La Mater, Miss Marie Adams and Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr., discussing phases of the program.

Mrs. De La Mater discussed the federal civilian employee phase of the security program. She informed members that the Civil Service Commission does the following in regard to Civil Service employees: investigate; records and reviews; bars unsuitable applicants from lists of Civil Service; and removes employees from competitive Civil Service. She also said there are two types of Civil Service employees, one in a competitive capacity, such as clerks, and the other in an accepted or non-competitive status, such as engineers.

Miss Adams discussed the A-10 program.

Mrs. D. J. Whichard, III, was hostess to the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday at her home in Forest Hills.

Mrs. Whichard had as her guest speaker her husband Dave Whichard, who spoke on the subject of "Today's Newspapers." He stressed that the newspaper is more than just a piece of paper; it is a continuing history of the life of our times, it is the voice of freedom, and it is a living animated object.

Among the statistics Whichard presented, North Carolina compared very well—being second in the United States in the number of daily newspapers published, having 46 dailies and 153 weeklies or bi-weeklies.

mic Energy Commission which administers its own personnel security program. She said that there are two types of employees in the AEC, employees of the commission itself and employees of contractors working with the AEC. Employees of the commission have to be cleared before going to work but employees of contractors do not have to be cleared. Contractors' employees, however, cannot work with classified material on AEC projects.

Mrs. Sugg told about the Port Security Program which originated in World War II. Merchant seamen and longshoremen are investigated, she said, to make sure they are not couriers of espionage. Denial of a security clearance to a merchant seaman, she pointed out, means that the individual is barred from sailing on any ship carrying the American flag.

At the next unit meeting, the military and industrial sections of the security program will be discussed.

Mrs. Lusk, Miss Adams and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson reported on the League Workshop they attended in Durham several weeks ago. The Workshop was held to discuss civil liberties and water conservation.

Tuesday's meeting was held at the home of Mrs. James Poindester.

Mrs. Sugg told about the Port Security Program which originated in World War II. Merchant seamen and longshoremen are investigated, she said, to make sure they are not couriers of espionage. Denial of a security clearance to a merchant seaman, she pointed out, means that the individual is barred from sailing on any ship carrying the American flag.

A film entitled "Points for Progress in Public Education" was shown at the meeting.

Mrs. Amos Evans, president of the P.T.A., welcomed the group and introduced Mrs. Bennie Lewis who gave the devotional. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Harold Daniel and approved.

If you're looking for a gift that's appropriate for people of all ages—7 to 70—we recommend "Ride With the Sun," a collection of folk tales from all the countries belonging to the United Nations, compiled by the U. N. Woman's Guild and edited by Harold Courlander. . . . We've just been looking it over, and it's fascinating—full of wonderful old stories from countries all over the world—some of them now at war with each other. Right beside "The Judgment of Krokodush" from Egypt is "Don't Throw Stones From Not Yours to Yours," from Israel—and a few pages on are "The Bridge of St. Cloud," from France, "King John," and the Abbot of Canterbury, from England, and "The Snake and the Dreams," from the U.S.S.R. You can order "Ride With the Sun" from your local bookstore—and get one of the best gift buys we know of in books, and also help out a wonderful organization, the U. N. Women's Guild, whose chief job on an international scale has been to relieve the sufferings of children all over the world—so by giving "Ride With the Sun" you can make one child happy with a good book to read and several others happy by providing them with a square meal from the royalties.

While There's Life We have news about a book called "Fish the Strong Waters," a tall and yeasty yarn about the legends and people, Indian and white, who live in the coastal regions of the north Pacific, around the Alaska and British Columbia fjords and forests. A beautiful Indian girl with supernatural powers named Halibut Mary is the heroine, and she gets her name at the end. Interesting thing about the book is that the successful author, N. C. McDonald, is 72 years old—and this is his very first novel. If he can do it at 72, what can you do at your age—whatever it is? Lots of us have some time left, and the coast of eastern North Carolina has yet to have a really first class novel written about it—or are we wrong on that? . . .

Inspiration We quote from Harvey Breit's "In and Out of Books" page in this week's N. Y. Times Book section because we're real proud of what writers have been doing to condemn Russia's repressive actions in Hungary. Regardless of their previous commitments, says Breit, "In West Germany, in Italy, in England, in the U. S. the voices of the writers' organizations have been raised. The quietist time is over, the mask has been torn from the face, the conflict is clear, the simple truth has at last been arrived at, we have come the long way home: There is no substitute for freedom." . . .

The Local Scene Coming next week, on Wednesday, December 5, to be exact, is the next program of the East Carolina Film Club, "The Birth of a Nation," one of the oldest and greatest films ever made. Showings are at 4 and 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the college library. . . . In January the E.C.C. Dramatic Club will be presenting "Pygmalion," Bernard Shaw's famous comedy about the London Cockney girl who was made into a real lady by Professor Higgins, a speech teacher. When we asked Dr. Withey, drama supervisor at E.C.C., where he was going to find someone with a cockney accent, he replied, gaily, "Maybe we'll have to import her." Suggestions, anyone? . . .

ANECDOTES OF THE LATE WAR

By Charles Olson, Highlands, N. C.; Jonathan Williams, Publisher, 1955.

If the reader will imagine the conversation that he would hear in the dining hall of an insane asylum or picture himself eavesdropping upon the babble of eight assorted Civil War veterans all talking at the same time about different things, he will have a fair idea of what this poem sounds like when read aloud. To get an even clearer idea of what it looks like in its broadside format one should select a dated second-rate history of the said war, rip out several pages at random, cut the lines of type into thin strips, shuffle well and paste indiscriminately on a large sheet of paper. A closer look, however, explains, at least in part, Mr. Olson's madness, for the inspiration for this atrocity is obviously the former infant terrible of international letters, Ezra Pound, now a long time resident at St. Elizabeth's Insane Asylum. Among the more obvious Poundian poses are the quasi-phonetic spellings, the grabbag mythology of proper names, the childish and mechanical punning, the outmoded slang and the extreme ellipses. This aping of techniques three decades removed from the source, techniques which have been watered down by a long succession of Pound imitators, who, like Mr. Olson, had little or no comprehension of Pound's purposes, not only destroys the value of the poem but creates in the reader a feeling of disgust for a poet who keeps himself completely ignorant of the purposes behind the technical experiments of his predecessors. The poem, in short, is little more than a curious sort of emotional onanism couched in a series of technical ellipses.

Safety Talk Heard At Falkland Parent-Teacher Association Meet

FALKLAND—A talk on safety ratings in a recent inspection, by E. L. Kitpatrick of the Pitt County Health Department highlighted the Falkland PTA meeting Tuesday night. Kitpatrick's talk pointed out causes of accidents in the home and on the farm. He concluded the program with a film "Safety on the Farm and in the Home." Principal Edward N. Warren reported that more children are eating in the school lunch room this year and that the school's milk program has been successful thus far. He also said that the lunch room and the school received "A" ratings in a recent inspection. Following announcement of a PTA workshop in New Fern January 14-17, members voted to elect a new president in December and to pay the new president's expenses for the workshop. In other business, Mr. David Moore was appointed cook book chairman, Mrs. Johnny Peaden reported 22 subscriptions to the Parent-Teacher Magazine and Mrs. Inabelle Little's second grade was awarded the attendance prize for the meeting. Mrs. David Moore won the door prize.

Cosmos Club Has Program On Child Development

Mrs. Graham Quinn, leader in the Protestant Kindergarten, spoke on "Child Development" at the Cosmos Book Club's regular meeting on Tuesday held at the home of Mrs. I. J. Edwards Jr. Mrs. Quinn stressed to all mothers the responsibility they have to provide proper home environment for their children. She stated that "Parents must have the patience and time to rear their children and give them the attention and love they need." She further added that, parents must try to guide and understand their children and not try to change them or compare one child with another. An informal discussion was held after Mrs. Quinn's speech with members discussing different problems they had with their own children. Mrs. Joseph Smith Jr., president, presided over a short business meeting. Plans were completed for helping two needy families at Christmas. Books were distributed at the close of the meeting.

Leroy Mills was honored with a surprise party on his sixteenth birthday Tuesday at the Winterville Community Building. A number of party games were played and there was group singing. Approximately fifty guests attended this party. Mrs. Marion Mills, the honoree's mother, was the hostess. The building was decorated with fall flowers with the gift table covered in birthday colors of green and white. Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white cut-work cloth over damask and centered with an arrangement of lavender chrysanthemums flanked on either side by slender pink candles. In front of the floral arrangement was a large pink and white birthday cake. Refreshments included chicken salad and pi-

Present...with a future

You give more than money when you give a savings account in an Insured Savings and Loan Association. You give someone a head start on the savings habit . . . on getting many other worthwhile things in the future.

And, as over seventeen million Americans know, saving in an Insured Savings and Loan Association means important advantages.

Excellent returns from your money is one advantage. Efficient, forward-looking service from men who know how to make your dollars work harder for you is another.

And, of course, your money is safe because in Insured Associations your savings are protected by sound management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government.

These are the reasons why Americans are putting more of their savings account dollars into Insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else!

And, with over $38 billion of assets, these Insured Associations are a great force in encouraging thrift and home ownership. You can invest in the future with as little as $1 to $5. Plan now to give someone in your family (or yourself) this "present with a future." Why not start with a part of your Christmas bonus . . . watch it grow . . . more quickly than you'd think.

Take A Look At A Tale Of 3 Cities

As Eastern North Carolina considers means of alleviating the lack of air service in this area through the construction of one or more new major air facilities, it should take a long, serious look at development in the Greensboro-Winston-Salem-High Point area.

There the three cities—each larger than any city in the Eastern North Carolina area—have been supporting two airports for a number of years. During that period they have tried in vain to obtain the calibre air service they think the area deserves. Though populationwise and economically the three city area is of greater importance than some other metropolitan areas in the South, the three cities have not been able to acquire at either of the two airports the calibre air service available other areas with less population.

Now the three cities are considering recommendations of a Washington planning firm that the two existing airports be abandoned and one major air facility for all three of these major cities be established.

If two airports in the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem area cannot attract sufficient air service, it is foolish to think that two or more airports in this section of Eastern North Carolina could attract the calibre of air service this area needs.

The present Greensboro-High Point and Winston-Salem airports are not much closer together than the proposed Mid-East Carolina airport and the proposed new Rocky Mount airport would be if both these facilities are built. It must also be acknowledged that Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem area has a much larger concentration of population that the area of Eastern North Carolina these two proposed airports would serve.

At one time Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem considered combining their resources and constructing a joint airport for all three cities. But jealousy between the cities eventually proved the downfall of the project, and two airports resulted—neither of which has been able to provide adequate service for that area.

Most of the leaders of the three-city area have long since realized the mistake of not joining hands to attract to one major air facility the calibre service the area as a whole could command. Now, they are moving toward a new joint project.

The several cities and towns of Eastern North Carolina which are seeking better air service for this part of the state should not allow petty jealousy between themselves to lead them to the same mistakes made in the three-city area of the Piedmont. The East should by all means profit by the mistakes of the three-city area which Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem are now trying to rectify.

A joint airport supported by the several municipalities and counties of this part of Eastern North Carolina is the only answer to adequate air transportation which is so vital to future development of the entire area. Through joint effort on behalf of a joint airport, this area can attract air service much superior to that which will be possible with two, three or even an half dozen airports spread around the section.

The proposed Mid-East Carolina Airport which already has the support of Greenville, Wilson, Gold-

In All The Rush, Give Thought To Precaution

A word of warning is not inappropriate as the headlong rush into the pre-Christmas season begins.

It's the time of year when everyone seems to have more to do than any other time of the year. There are more people on the streets, more cars on the roads, more things to do around the house and inside the stores activity reaches a crescendo.

In the hustle and bustle of the season most people get careless. Their carelessness often results in inconvenience if not tragedy.

Take the cars on the street . . . the parked ones first. This is the time of year when the Police Department, busy trying to prevent traffic jams, gets a mounting number of calls from people who have had packages stolen from cars they forgot to lock when they went back to the store.

And the cars that are moving? Seemingly there are more of them. And there are more pedestrians too. Both cars and pedestrians are in a greater hurry than at other times of the year, and thus the hazard of traffic accidents increases. On the highways, the same is true, and the fact is complicated by longer hours of darkness and poor driving conditions many days.

At home mother is trying to get the house spic and span for Christmas, getting decorations up, addressing Christmas cards, rushing up town to shop, and doing a dozen and one things in addition to daily homemaking chores. As a result junior is often left alone a few moments longer than normally is the case. And in those few moments he may fall and split his lip, mash his finger, or be the victim of some more serious accident.

This pre-Christmas season is a trying time. It is also a time in which most kinds of accidents seem to be on the increase. In all the rush it is difficult always to keep safety and accident prevention uppermost in one's mind. Yet, safety consciousness is one of the most important prerequisites to a joyous Christmas season. It shouldn't be forgotten in the rush.

High Recovery Rate For Stolen Vehicles

By LYNN NISBET
STOLEN CARS — In North Carolina some 3,200 car and truck owners report their vehicles stolen in a year's time. All but 100 of them are later recovered and returned to the owners.

The high rate of 97 percent recovery is due to the expert sleuthing of Director Archie Gilbert, Tom Secrest and a staff of 25 investigators who man the License and Theft Enforcement Division, commonly called the Theft Bureau. This is a little publicized but highly efficient unit in the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Theft Bureau is the oldest state law enforcement agency. It came to life in 1923 when the Legislature set up an anti-theft act, and charged the division with the administration of the State's first title law. The original group, numbering six employees, was headed by L.S. (Pete) Harris, a long-time resident of Raleigh and now executive secretary of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

Professional auto thieves find the practice of their trade tough sledding in North Carolina.

The professionals, according to the assistant director, Secrest, are the most wily culprits. They'll take any car they really want, he said. Chevrolet and Ford sedans apparently are the most appealing to the heist artist for they are reported stolen most frequently. Gimmicks to force entry into locked cars and to start engines are as varied—and as effective—as those trade secrets in legitimate fields.

"But the simplest way to stall the would-be thief is always to take your keys when you park," Secrest advised. Don't make it a cinch for him.

Once a car is reported stolen the Theft Bureau's intricate machinery goes into action. Most of their activity is in assisting local enforcement agencies to detect and identify suspect vehicles. Although Gilbert and Company have peace-officer powers, their work is mostly confined to identification of stolen cars, courtroom appearances, and theft prevention.

A positive identification of a suspect, if not cars in the theft official's ears. And they turn some pretty convincing evidence for the judiciary when they introduce the vehicle's "confidential number."

Secrest spoke of the "confidential number" reluctantly. It's a secret set of digits attached somewhere to the car by the manufacturer. Several hundred locations is guarded carefully and is furnished only to police officers, specialists similar to Gilbert's group, and agents of the National Auto Theft Bureau.

The NATB, incidentally, instructs its agents in code when referring to the secret number. In court, when stolen car cases are up for trial, agents are seldom asked to reveal the number's location. When positive identification is made, the judge usually rules that the number is "confidential and is not to be revealed."

Other Editors Are Saying.. Who Gets The Credit?

(Washington Daily News)
Congress can pass measures and the president of the United States can affix his signature and allow that legislation to become law. Or he can veto it and it goes back to congress. Here two-thirds vote of both houses is necessary to pass it over the veto.

If the president is of one party and the majority of congress is of another political party, then who is to get the credit for passing or defeating legislation?

Today we have such a condition prevailing in the United States. The Executive branch is filled by President Eisenhower. The congress has a majority of Democrats in it. The next president will also be Republican in the person of Mr. Eisenhower, and the next congress will be controlled by the Democrats.

It is seldom that strict party lines are followed in matters of legislation. But if strict party lines are followed, then there is no chance of getting through Republican sponsored legislation. And since the president exercises the rights of veto, if he so chooses there is no chance of getting into law any Democratic sponsored legislation.

So a stalemate could ensue. We do not expect one to develop, but it could. Usually members of congress think in terms of what is best for the nation with certain political reservations evident here and there. The president also thinks in terms of what is best for the nation, but it often happens that members of different parties are at odds as to what is best.

One can only predict at this time. Both platforms pledged certain measures, and neither party is in a position to carry through with its pledges. We are sure of that. But what we are not sure of is where responsibility rests and where credit accrues for what is passed or what is defeated. It is certain that congress will pass many measures. It is certain that President Eisenhower will sign many measures. And who is to get the credit for what is done?

It seems that at least in part both parties can stake a valid claim to credit for what is done. We can be sure, however, that neither party can exert sole influence or receive sole credit for what is done or what is not done. Both might make claims, but neither can be in such a position to take entire credit.

The next congress will be an interesting one to watch. This is the first presidential election in which a president has been elected from one party and a congress of another party took control of the legislative branch. We have had several off-year elections in which congress passed into the hands of the opposition party.

With many foreign problems confronting us along with the usual number of domestic problems, we can look forward to an unusual session. Both parties will be fighting for the spotlight.

Adventures Of A $100 Bill

The man was walking out of a local bank. He looked down at his feet and spotted a dollar bill. He picked it up. No, he noted, it was a $100 bill.

"Pardon me," he said to a teller. "I found this on the floor."

The teller took the bill and gulped out a "thank you."

The next day a worried looking man came to the bank.

"I think I lost a $100 bill here yesterday," he told the teller. "Yes, here it is," replied the teller. "Someone found it on the floor."

The surprised man heaved a sigh of relief.

Where A Bar Has Prestige

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — In mid-Manhattan a number of fine old bars are being ruthlessly torn down to make way for another 60-story skyscraper—a mere office building.

The displaced bar patrons have submitted lamely. Not one has erected a barricade or led a protest march against city hall in an attempt to save his favorite saloon.

In merrie olde Englande, a civilized country, such a thing—the replacement of a decent tavern by a mere commercial structure—could hardly happen, at least without a great public outcry.

"Our inns and pubs are national institutions," said Fred Eszen who, with his wife Kathleen, operates the Sussex tavern in London.

"They can't tear a pub down, or build a new one," without government permission.

In a month-long tour of this country Fred and the missus have noted a number of similarities — and many differences — between tavern life here and in their home land.

To begin with, most pubs in England are run by husband and wife teams, and the bartenders they hire are rosy-cheeked and wear dresses.

"A man likes to be served by a pretty girl," said Mrs. Eszen. "It's only natural."

The owner of a pub is called a publican. Presumably if he gets out of the business, and gets back in again he is then known as a republican.

Licenses are hard to come by, and aren't available to bachelors or single ladies. Explaining the reason for the husband and wife teams, Mrs. Eszen said:

"It's quite practical. The husband can listen to the troubles of the feminine customers. The wife can listen to the troubles of the men customers."

Britain picks her pubkeepers with more care than American does its college presidents.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TOUCHED BY THE HAND OF GOD

The church of Jesus Christ should never forget the great heart-warming experience of John Wesley. This man not only founded one of the greatest of modern denominations; he also rekindled spiritual currents felt today in all parts of the world and in every branch of the Christian Church.

Young Wesley, a minister in the Church of England, was in the beginning, a prodigious failure. Everything to which he set his hand seemed to fail. Most of all, he raised up enemies and these were in no small measure due to his own mistakes.

On the evening of May 24, 1738, he went to a Moravian prayer meeting being held in Aldersgate Street, London, where the leader was reading Luther's preface to the Epistle to the Romans.

"A quarter before nine," wrote Wesley in his journal, "while he was describing the chance which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone for salvation, and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death."

"Someone has written that 'From that little room, the flames swept on until America, India, and the islands of the sea (as well as his own British Isles) sang of the refining fire of God's salvation in the human heart.'"

Mellon family, which contributed a Cabinet member to the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover Administrations.

ACTION DELAYED FOR LEGAL ADVICE Although Seaton advanced no explanation at the time, he had to delay action against Reynolds because its rates had been fixed at what he regards as too low a figure in a 30-year contract negotiated by Oscar Chapman, Truman's Secretary of the Interior. Seaton had to obtain legal advice before deciding to bring suit.

In other words, if there was any favoritism in fixing corporate charges, as the public power bloc states, it was extended by their own New Deal administrators, not in an Eisenhower effort to "rouse the little man," for the benefit of the "special interests."

With Henry J. Kaiser's aluminum holdings, the Virginia company was aided in its needs expansion by F.D.R. in order to increase competition with the

"You can't have a criminal conviction on your record," said Eszen. "You must produce your marriage certificate, and you must have endorsements from a justice of the peace, a solicitor (lawyer), and a doctor who have known you at least seven years. They check you back almost to your birth."

The Eszens said they saw less signs of public drinking here than in England but were surprised at the number of people who drink alone.

"Your bars are more cold and impersonal," said Eszen. "Our pubs have a warmer and more clublike atmosphere. The whole family comes together — father, mother, son and daughter. We also have more games, such as darts, shove ha'penny, and skittles."

Beer is still the national drink, and price-wise at least it's delicious — 10 ounces for a shilling, or 14 cents. The international vogue for vodka has been resisted. Most Englishmen stick to Scotch and gin. And no ice, despite the invasion of millions of Americans during the war and post-war years.

"The Englishman doesn't like his Scotch messed about," said Fred. "With anything more than a splash of soda, or a drop of water."

The Eszens agreed that British pub patrons talked generally about sports, questions of national policy, and the weather, but disagreed as to whether they ever dwelt on the subject of sex.

"No!" said Fred firmly. "Yes," said Kathleen. "The women like to talk about their troubles, or their daughter's troubles — but they never say a word against their sons."

"All I discuss," said Fred, "is sports and questions of national policy."

Capitalism Has Good Spokesman

By ELMER ROSSNER

Some eyebrows were raised when Stanley C. Allyn was named a United States delegate to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization meeting now in progress at New Delhi, India. Mr. Allyn is president of the National Cash Register Co. and cash registers in India and many other parts of the world are a symbol of American commercialism.

However, reports from India indicate that Mr. Allyn is doing well. He had not apologized for American capitalism or the American way of life. Instead of assuming the defensive, he has explained it as one of the best possible economic systems.

American society, he told representatives of 77 countries represented in UNESCO, includes "the sharing of the national product by investors and workers, the co-operation of management and labor, the partnership roles of public ownership and private enterprise, and the personal participation in the governing process by the individual citizen."

HIS NINE-POINT PROGRAM
Some of his listeners may have doubted the sincerity of his statement; a few may have regarded it as a stalking horse for American trade expansion overseas.

But an examination of Mr. Allyn's record shows that he has long advocated similar principals in American businesses operating in foreign lands. In an address at the Harvard Business School Conference earlier this year, he outlined a nine-point program for American firms doing business overseas. He points, in digest form:

1. When going into a foreign company, go in for keeps.

2. Plan your own operation overseas, instead of using agencies.

3. Staff overseas operations with natives of countries concerned.

4. Remember that service comes ahead of sales.

5. Invest part of your profits in the countries in which they are earned.

6. Treat overseas employees exactly as you treat your staff at home.

7. Give the foreign market the product the market wants, not what you think it ought to have.

8. Maintain firsthand contacts with foreign markets, even if it requires constant travel.

9. Be extremely careful to respect the customs, traditions, religions and sensitivities of alien people.

MACHINES FOR ARAB
An illustration of his seventh and ninth points, Mr. Allyn told how his company found that Arabic nations wanted bookkeeping machines but, because of their pride in their language, they wanted the machines to perform in Arabic. This involved great difficulties. Arabic reads from right to left; while English has 26 letters and 10 digits, Arabic has 72 characters. Obviously an Arabic machine would be slower and less efficient than an English-language machine, but National devised one, instead of trying to push its other machines.

It would seem that if more American companies adopted these nine points in operations abroad, they could minimize the constantly fermented suspicion American business and, in turn, of the American way of life.

Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus told His Apostles that He would soon be leaving them. "Whither I go, ye know, and the way ye know." Thomas said that they did not know His going as the way.

Let Not Your Hearts Be Troubled

BELIEVE IN GOD, AND IN CHRIST.

Scripture—John 14

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL THE TIME when Jesus and His disciples were together and Jesus uttered the beautiful, comforting words which constitute today's lesson, was Thursday of Holy Week, and the place was somewhere between the Lord's Supper in the upper room and the Garden of Gethsemane.

know." However, Thomas said: "Lord, we know not whither Thou goest; and how can we know the way?"

Jesus answered, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by Me."

Then Philip said to Him, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us."

Jesus' answer was: "Have I been so long with you, and yet hast thou not known Me, Philip? He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father; . . . Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me? The Words that I speak unto you, I speak not of Myself; but the Father that dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works."

Then Christ promised them, "He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go to My Father." Not only did Jesus fore-take a long journey to be gone for some time, and how they missed him.

Looking at the troubled faces of these men who had been His close friends and helpers during His ministry, Jesus said, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in Me, believe also in Me."

Then He said: "In My Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto Myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."

How many troubled hearts have been soothed by those words of our Lord's, although nearly 2,000 years have passed since He pronounced them. Learned in Sunday school, the children will doubtless console themselves with them later in their lives when they encounter the problems of life.

Jesus then said, "And whither I go, ye know, and the way ye know."

tell that the works of His followers would be physical miracles such as He performed, but the task of spreading His gospel far and wide, even to the Gentiles.

Further Jesus said: "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you. Yet a little while, and the world seeth Me no more, but ye see Me; because I live, ye shall live also."

"He that hath My commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me; and he that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him, and will manifest Myself to him."

Jesus promised that the Holy Spirit would come to His Apostles and comfort them after He was gone, and "He shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you."

"Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Drugstores Bar All Magazines

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP)—Three drugstores have decided to ban all magazines from their stands.

Paul Blocher, owner of a pharmacy here, said that Hartman's Pharmacy in nearby Amelia and Colonel's Pharmacy in nearby Withamsville, had joined him in banning magazines.

Blocher was quoted as saying many magazines were not suitable for juvenile reading but that they had to be bought by the stores so other publications would become available.

The three stores will replace the magazines with children's books and games, Blocher said.

Navy And Baylor Will Try Oblige Bowl Scouts In Saturday Games

By BOB HOOBING The Associated Press Navy and Baylor will try to oblige bowl scouts tomorrow while Texas A&M fans mourn the plight of the best Aggie team since 1939.

For the third year in a row, it appears Navy will be playing for a bowl invitation against Army in their traditional battle before an expected 100,000 in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

The Midshipmen went on to the Sugar Bowl to whack Mississippi 21-0 two years ago but lost a chance at the Cotton Bowl last year when the Cadets posted a 14-6 upset.

Cotton Bowl officials have their eyes on Navy again this time according to reliable reports.

The host team in Dallas will be Texas Christian because Texas A&M, which completed an unbeaten season by thumping Texas 34-21 yesterday, is ineligible for postseason competition under an NCAA ban for recruiting.

Baylor is a popular choice to meet Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl though neither have been selected officially. The Baylor Bears play Rice tomorrow. Tennessee risks an unbeaten, untied season and the Southeastern Conference championship against Vanderbilt.

Tennessee is sure to be invited to one bowl.

Of 10 positions in the five major bowls, six are still open.

Here's the setup: Rose-Iowa vs. Oregon State. Orange: Colorado vs. Clemson, Duke or South Carolina. The Atlantic Coast Conference will choose its representative Sunday after ACC champion Clemson plays Furman. The ACC doesn't have to pick the titlist and the Tigers didn't win any Orange Bowl friends in its recent 21-0 loss to Miami's Hurricanes. Sugar: Both unnamed. Probably Tennessee vs. Baylor with Georgia Tech and Houston also under consideration.

Cotton: Texas Christian vs. Navy, Syracuse, Georgia Tech or, possibly, Tennessee.

Gator: Georgia Tech, or Mississippi vs. Navy, Baylor, Pitt, Syracuse or Wyoming.

It is evident plenty rides on tomorrow's encounters.

In addition to the Tennessee, Navy, Baylor and Clemson games, Georgia Tech meets Georgia, Mississippi faces Mississippi State and Houston runs into weak Detroit.

Syracuse and Wyoming have completed their seasons while idle Pitt winds up against Miami Dec. 8.

Oklahoma, held bowl-less because of the Big Seven Conference ruling against successive year appearances in their Orange Bowl tieup, is a heavy favorite to win its 40th straight game at Oklahoma A&M expense.

Tomorrow's other games include Alabama-Auburn, Boston College-Holy Cross, Miami-Florida, Kansas-Missouri, LSU-Tulane, Notre Dame-Southern California, TCU-Southern Methodist.

U.S. Wins Decathlon But Olympic Point Edge Is Cut

MELBOURNE (AP) — American handymen Mill Campbell and Rafer Johnson rang up 15 United States' points with a one-two finish in the gruelling decathlon today to partially offset a strong, female-inspired Russian advance in the Olympic team standings.

Campbell, a former Indiana University fullback from Plainfield, N.J., cracked Bob Mathias' Olympic record in winning the two-day, 10-event test of track and field versatility with 7,937 points. Only a poor performance in the pole vault kept him from breaking the world record as well.

Johnson, holder of the world mark of 7,985 points, but hampered by a bad leg, was second with 7,587.

The gold medal for Campbell was the 20th of the games for the United States squad and the 13th for Coach Jim Kelly's mighty track and field squad. And, combined with Johnson's five points, it couldn't have come at a more timely moment.

For this was the day that Russia's husky track molla chose to flex their muscles and the result was 18 points in the women's shot put alone, with both the winner, 220-pound Tamara Tychkevitch, and the runnerup, defending champion Galina Zybina, shattering the Olympic and listed world record.

Other Soviet athletes scored heavily in secondary events so that with all but two swimming events completed on the ninth day's program, the United States lead had dwindled to 68 points in the two-nation battle for the unofficial team championship, 341-273.

Picking up where he left off yesterday after winning three of the first five events, Campbell won the 110-meter hurdles in 14 seconds flat and fired the discus 147 feet, 6 inches to all but clinch the gold medal with the pole vault, javelin and 1,500 meter run still to come.

His javelin (187-3 1-4) and 1,500 4 minutes, 50.5 seconds) showings were among the best of his career and spectacular for an amateur but he tripped over the pole vault.

His best was 11 feet, 2 inches, and, although his lead wasn't in jeopardy, that cost him a chance to surpass the world mark.

Johnson, a UCLA student from Kingsburg, Calif., surpassed Campbell only in the pole vault, where he did 12-9 1/2, and in the javelin, where his toss was 197-8 1/2.

The United States' third decathlon entry, pole vault champion Bob Richards of La Verne, Calif., dropped out after the ninth event and finished 12th with 5,781.

Zinaida Domnikova finished fourth to help give Russia its big point boost in the women's shot put. Both Miss Tychkevitch and Miss Zybina traded record throws during the semifinals and finals until the bulky Tamara won with a man-size 54 feet, 5 inches to 4-2 for Miss Zybina.

Well shattered was the old Olympic mark of 50-1 1/2 set by Miss Zybina at the Helsinki games as well as her listed world mark of 53-5 1/2. She has up for approval a toss of close to 55 feet.

The best U.S. performance in the event was a sixth place for Mrs. Earlene Brown, Los Angeles housewife who earlier was fourth in the women's discus. She got off the best throw of her career — 49-7 1/4.

Yule Spirit Grows Among GHS Pupils

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE
Greenville High School Reporter

Decked out in the sloppiest clothes they could find, the boys trying to get in the Monogram Club brought up the rear of the Christmas Parade last Wednesday. Other Greenville High students who wore in the parade were the band, the cheerleaders, the junior and senior trios. Ginger Lang was featured on the Merchants Association's float. The Future Homemakers of America Club helped to decorate the Red Cross float.

"Christmas in Song" will serve as the theme of the living Christmas tree to be presented by the club in its annual program December 18. Individually lighted candles will glow from the tree as the mixed chorus opens the program with "The First Christmas Candle" (W. B. Olds). Solo parts on the numbers will be sung by George Shackelford, senior, Benny Perry, and Ebern Allen, and Edward Buchanan, juniors.

Sophomores John Van Voorhis, Cecil Ellington, and Ronnie Finch will also sing solo parts. Frankie Saleed will be the only freshman soloist. From the girls' zlee club Judy Corbett, senior, and Rose Moye, Elizabeth White, and Anne Parkinson, juniors, will also sing solo parts. Other soloists will be Laverne Eatman and Judy Batts.

Registration for the two day National Forensic League began today at noon. Schools from both North and South Carolina were invited to attend this congress which convened in the Municipal Building. About 75 students registered for the congress. They will be entertained at a supper tonight at the college dining room.

Ann Marshall Allen invited guests over to her house last Friday night to play cards and enjoy refreshments. Her guests included Iona Jones, JoAnne Parks, Naomi Gibbs, Martha Pierce, Jane Bass, Joyce Sutton, Bobby Carroll, Rebecca Highsmith, Nelson Dudley, and Ormond Whichard. After the party several of the guests went over to the college stadium to watch Edenton beat Wallace.

Dot Davis had open house, November 21, and then had another party the following Friday night. Her guests were Sally Ross Simpson, Charles Stinson, Sylvia Vinson, Ralph Sullivan, Pat Barlow, Jesse Powell, Jean Ann Waters, Wesley Topping, Merrill Bynun, and Frances Evans from Columbia Tennessee, a student at Peace College, who spent Thanksgiving at Dot's house. After the party the girls stayed at Dot's house for a slumber party.

Joyce Sutton was hostess to a pajama party Friday night. The girls who attended were Naomi Gibbs, Jane Bass, JoAnne Parks, Jean Ann Waters, Rebecca Highsmith, Ann Marshall Allen, and Jeri Mills of Richmond, Va., who was formerly a resident of Greenville.

Hi-School Hi-Lites will have its first television broadcast Saturday, November 1, at 1:30 p.m. The program will include news, sports, interviews, talent, and a panel. Acting as master of ceremonies will be Mary Knudson. Gwen Johnson and Martha Pierce will give highlights of the school news. Carol Tadlock will interview Mr. Personality of the week, Angus Duff. Cynthia Cranford will interview Co-Miss Personalities of the week.

Marietta Northrop and Ginger Lang, Panel members—Hugh Dunagan, Angus Duff, Camilla Henderson, and Judy Jolly, will discuss Elvis Presley. Talent for the program will include the sophomore trio, a duet by Betty Evans and Ebern Allen, and a dance by Laverne Eatman.

Holiday Activity At Grifton High School

By BARBARA TAYLOR

Everyone returning to school Monday reported an accumulation of fun and activities during the holiday season.

To add a sad note from some report cards were received Monday. Students are reminded that it still isn't too late to set a higher goal to work for.

A Thanksgiving Dance was held for the teenagers Wednesday night in the school gym. There the students met alumni home from college. Music was furnished by the latest records.

The Junior Garden Club, composed of girls from the Junior and Senior classes, met at the home of Mrs. H. L. Lawton Jr. Tuesday night for their first official meeting.

The topic for evening was "Understanding Lines of Flowers." After the very informative lesson, light refreshments were served. It was decided to have meetings monthly.

The Junior class received their class rings Wednesday.

Basketball surely is in the air at GHS! The Bulldogs have played four games during the season with the girls winning three of the four games and the boys winning one.

The next game scheduled will be with New Hill at Grifton on November 30.

A J. V. games will be played at 6:00 p.m. with the varsity game beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The annual staff is continuing work on the yearbook. It is shaping up now into what looks like one to be proud of. Orders are being taken for "The Grifonian" by business manager, Floyd Smith.

District Session Of Methodists At Jacksonville

By ANNE SINGLETON

Dr. A. J. Hobbs, district superintendent, will preside at the opening session of the 1956-57 Conference of the New Bern District of the Methodist Church to be held at the Trinity Methodist Church in Jacksonville.

The Conference will review the various phases of the District program for the year. A report showing important aspects of the work of each local church in the District will be considered.

A regular feature of the District Conference will be the report of the Committee on Ministerial Qualifications.

This committee makes recommendations concerning the ministers who are in the process of training within the District. It will also recommend candidates who are to be licensed as local preachers and these will be presented to the Conference.

Another item of business will be the official certification of a group of Certified Lay Speakers for use in the District.

These men, under the guidance of the District and Subdistrict Directors of Lay Activities, make themselves available for holding services of worship in churches that have no services scheduled for that Sunday.

These speakers, assigned in cooperation with the ministers in charge, will cooperate in the special "No-Silent-Pulpits" program of lay services during Lent. The goal is to have a service of worship every Sunday in every Methodist Church in the District.

A new feature will be introduced this year in presenting the reports from the various district directors of special emphasis. These reports will be assembled in a booklet and distributed to the delegates and visitors. From these reports, the various directors will lift highlights before the delegates. Other pertinent information will be contained in the reports to be handed out upon arrival to the delegates. Reports from the fields of education, missions, church extension, temperance, church publications, and evangelism will be before those attending.

Dr. A. J. Walton
Dr. A. J. Walton of the Duke Divinity School will climax the Conference when he speaks on the Quadrennial Emphasis of the Methodist Church, adopted earlier this year at its General Conference. The Emphasis for the coming four years is a dual effort in the field of education and in the local church. Efforts will be undertaken to strengthen the Methodist program of higher education throughout her colleges and universities.

At the same time an intensive effort will be made to strengthen the work of each local Methodist Church in America.

Walton is especially qualified to undertake this task. In the field of higher education, in addition to being Associate Professor of Practical Theology at Duke Divinity School, Durham, he has held other teaching positions in higher education.

In the other field of emphasis, the work of the local church, Walton brings to this field vast experience as a Methodist minister having served for many years in the pastorate. He has successfully worked with hundreds of rural and small town Methodist Churches in North Carolina as Director of Field Work in the Duke Divinity School.

Following the adjournment of the conference by one p.m., lunches will be on sale at the host church.

Local Delegates
Greenville delegates attending the Conference from St. James Methodist Church are: Charles T. Marston, Mrs. E. W. Larkin, Jr., Howard T. Hodges, Jr., Gordon B. Berry, Van S. Harrington, and Dr. George Harvey.

Safety Project Is Big Activity

A program of safety instruction for school children has developed into a major activity for Sanitarian E. L. Kilpatrick of the Pitt County Health Department.

For the past month Kilpatrick has been giving talks and showing movies to school groups interested in home, school and safety. Thus far he has delivered 20 talks and shown 20 movies to groups in the Pitt County school system.

The job is not a part of Kilpatrick's regular assignment but one he accepted to take up some of the slack in safety instruction for school children. The instruction concerns itself with safety techniques school children can use in their homes, in their schools and on school buses.

'Mystery' U.S. Unit In Australia

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—A mystery U.S. Air Force team has been based in the hills just outside Alice Springs, central Australia, for the past four years, the Adelaide News said today.

It speculated whether the team—Mrs. Margaret R. Semple found the small Mexican Chihuahua an ideal dog for a house pet. She liked it so much she now has 75 of them—all pets and all named.

The team arrived in 1952 when a Globemaster transport landed top secret crates of equipment, the paper said. Personnel of the unit was changed during the past four years but its headquarters 10 miles from Alice Springs is as tightly shut as ever. The report said it is known camp installations include highly specialized radar tracking instruments which are not only suitable for following radioactive cloud conditions resulting from U.S. hydrogen bomb tests, but could form the nucleus of equipment for rocket tracking.

A senior Australian government official was quoted today as saying "There is clear overland proving range to the northwest coast of Australia from Alice Springs." The Adelaide News said that as the United States has no overland range with any comparison to Australia's Woomera rocket range, Australia would be the ideal site for testing and subsequent recovering of spent missiles.

Strutt stood motionless in the middle of the room.

"Why not suicide?" Strutt asked, still motionless.

"I'm sure it wasn't." He told him about Perry and the handkerchief.

"You think it was fixed?" "By Perry."

"Why did you come here this morning?"

Casson was pursuing another line of thought.

"You will have noticed that Mrs. Queenleigh is a first-rate cleaner. You've only got to look at the brass next door. It's beautifully polished. The odds are therefore that she cleans the tap of the gas-fire. It certainly looks like it. If she did, there will be no fingerprints on it even though it was turned on. Perry had to turn it on himself, and he didn't dare leave prints. Macfarlane wouldn't have wiped the tap. He was drunk. If you find no prints on that tap, it was murdered." Casson concluded.

"Maybe." They moved into the living room.

Then the procession started. The police doctor came, spent some time in the bedroom, and left. Two police photographers and flashlamps, Casson watched them in action. The fingerprint expert listened to Strutt's instructions, nodded and got down to work. Casson wandered back to the living room.

Strutt came in, holding the bedroom doormat.

"I should shove off, Cass," he said. "There's nothing you can do here. I'll need you later. You'll have to make a statement."

"I'll go back to Mount Street. You can ring me there." Casson went back to his flat. Mrs. Baker made him an omelette, but he could neither finish it nor could he face the salad of sliced tomato and onion. He opened a bottle of Burgundy, feeling that he needed its heavy magnificence to permeate and soothe his mind. He put the full glass in the sunlight on the window table of the library and while it gently warmed, he watched the children playing in the Gardens below.

Strutt did not telephone until eight o'clock that evening. When he did, Casson went down to the Saville Row police station. Strutt was sitting in his office, coatless, his desk covered with sheets of closely typed reports.

"Well?" Casson asked. Strutt did not look up.

"He must have died from gas. But he took a stiff dose of sleeping draught as well."

"But he wouldn't need anything to make him sleep. He was a healthy young man; the sort of fellow who'd go to sleep as soon as he got into bed, then get up at half-past six in the morning and go for a run."

"Well, he did. It was in the tooth-glass," said Strutt. "He got the prescription from a doctor he went to at the beginning of last week. We traced the chemist from the medicine bottle on the bed?"

"And we've got the prescription."

Two Big Dogs Guard Postmen

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. - Postman William Van der Veen has two big reasons for standing apart from fellow mail carriers who complain about dogs.

Rex and Rocky, a pair of boxers owned by residents along Van der Veen's route, meet the postman when he alights from a bus to start his deliveries. They're his bodyguards throughout the day.

"I don't get even so much as a growl anymore," Van der Veen said.

Army Looks For C.S.A. Uniform

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - The Army is seeking forgiving Southerners who might willingly turn certain pieces of Confederate Army uniforms over to the "Union" - that is - U.S. Army.

The Army insists it's for a good cause - the Quartermaster Corps Memorial Museum. After all, it says, the museum is located at Ft. Lee, Va.

The special relics sought, said the Army Quartermaster depot at nearby Jeffersonville, Ind., are buttons and buckles belonging to Confederate officers' uniforms.

The buttons and buckles bear the insignia "C.S.A." - for Confederate States of America.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Prices advanced in brisk trading on the stock market early this afternoon. Key issues were ahead from fractions to around 5 points.

The high-speed ticker tape was one-minute late for a brief period in the opening rush.

Steeles were stimulated by Bethlehem's proposed 4-for-1 stock split announced after yesterday's close. Oils began to leap ahead, surpassing their earlier gains, when news came that Washington has ordered into effect its emergency program to supply Western Europe with up to 1,100,000 barrels of oil daily.

The market's rally was a follow-through from yesterday's technical recovery at midday after hitting the Oct. 1 low. But it was also helped by failure of the Federal Reserve Board to announce a raise in the discount rate, which had been feared by Wall Street and by the Bethlehem stock split news. The oil program news was a great stimulant.

As volume slackened after the opening rush, prices settled below their best. The oils charged further ahead later when the oil program news came and Bethlehem Steel, which had settled back to a gain of four-plus, was back to a 5-point advance.

The Bethlehem stock split news came after yesterday's close in New York where it gained only 1/2 but later on the Pacific Coast it was up 5 1/2.

Youngstown was up 2 while U. S. Steel and Lukens gained fractions. As oils responded to the news, Amerasia was up around 5, Gulf Sucky and Seaboard Oil around 3, Royal Dutch 2. Advances of a point or so were posted by Standard Oil (New Jersey), Texas Co., Pure Oil, Kern Count, Land and TXL-Oil.

Stresses Value Of Reservists

The importance of Air Force Reserve units was discussed for members of the Greenville flight of the 947th Air Reserve Squadron last night by Captain J. M. Crane of the East Carolina College ROTC staff.

In connection with his talk, Captain Crane also presented a movie depicting a simulated bombing raid on the United States. The movie pointed out importance of radar and other warning systems in case of an attack.

The unit meets each Thursday at 8 p.m. in ECC's Austin Building. Air Force Reservists not active are invited to join the unit.

The light bulb packages will include a 100-watt bulb, a 75-watt bulb and two 50-watt light globes. Jaycees will have approximately 1,100 of the packages to sell.

Club members voted to meet at 6 p.m. Dec. 13 due to the light bulb sale. The group also voted to cancel the regular meeting on Dec. 27. Graham Quinn, chairman of the birthday calendar sales, reported that the project was being brought to a close last night.

Douglas Sowerby was announced as chairman of the Christmas party committee. The Jaycees plan to hold an afternoon party for children of club members. Another dinner party will be held for Jaycees and their wives. Club members also approved a request from the Salvation Army that the Junior Chamber of Commerce man the Salvation Army's collection kettle on Five Points for two hours during the Christmas season.

The group voted to sponsor a reptile show here beginning Sunday and lasting through next week. Charles Lewis reported that the club had been asked to assist in finding special jobs for retarded children. The matter was referred to the Youth Committee for further study and recommendations to the club.

Dick Greene, chairman of the Bloodmobile project, urged Jaycees to bring in donors when the Bloodmobile is in Greenville Dec. 20. The club is sponsoring the Bloodmobile visit on that date.

Bill Ferguson was elected president, J. R. (Chick) Newell, vice-president, and A. E. Forrest, secretary and treasurer.

The club will meet at 8 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Including the three officers, the membership is comprised by Ralph Blackwelder, Gus Manos, A. L. Whitley, Dr. C. G. ## Chicod Principal Endorsed For NCEA Board

Fodie Hodges, principal of Chicod School, has been endorsed by the Pitt County NCEA unit as nominee for a spot on the NCEA's state board.

Hodges was nominated by the local unit's legislative committee to represent the Northeastern district on the state board. Action on his nomination was one of several items of business transacted by the NCEA unit at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

Mrs. Thadys Dewar of Bethel, secretary, reported that 100 per cent of the Pitt schools and teachers are members of both the county and state NCEA units.

The importance of teachers in the classrooms was discussed by Dr. Amos Abrams editor of the NCEA magazine. He told the members, "Personality of teachers means as much or more than anything else because you will touch at least one person who will come back to you later. If you don't have the personality for teaching, get out of the profession."

Dr. Abrams introduced Claude Farrel, NCEA public relations director, who gave a resume of his work by lay people relative to the legislative program of the United Forces for Education.

A memorandum on the late A. H. Tucker of Grimesland was given by E. T. Bass of Farmville and Sam D. Bundy of Farmville reported that county principals will meet with local representatives to the General Assembly January 9 to discuss the legislative program for schools. President Walter Latham of Bethel presided at the meeting.

Lift For Santa From Postmen

Santa Claus will get a big boost via Greenville's postmen tomorrow. That's when First Federal Savings and Loan will mail Christmas Savings Club checks to the club's 780 members. Total value of the checks will be more than $42,000, representing weekly savings of $1, $2, $3 and $5 by club members. Individual check values will range from $50 to $250 and a large number will be mailed to children who have been members of the club for the past year, according to Clarence Tugwell, secretary of First Federal.

Memberships in the 1957 Christmas Club will be available tomorrow. The program will include the $1, $2, $3 and $5 categories with weekly deposits for 50 weeks.
