Early Withdrawal Out Of Egypt By British, French

LONDON (AP) - Britain and France were reported today to have reached full agreement on their next steps in the Suez Canal dispute.

Pineau said after his talks with acting Prime Minister L. A. Butler and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd that "we put some ideas onto paper. . . this will allow us to take a common position for the evacuation of the canal."

The United States appeared to be basing its Middle East policy on either the assurance or the belief that Britain and France would announce soon a plan for an early pullout from Egypt.

Eleven Named To Project

Commissioners Name Group To Study Industrial Development Plans

Pitt County Commissioners have appointed an 11-man committee to investigate possibilities of a county-wide industrial development program for the county and make recommendations to the County Commissioners.

U.S. Doors Are Opened To 21,500 Hungarian Exiles

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - President Eisenhower, moving to aid "the victims of Soviet oppression," announced today the United States will admit 21,500 Hungarian refugees - more than four times the number planned originally.

The total to be granted asylum is being hiked from 5,000, the White House said, because of "an emergency problem" thrust upon Austria with scores of thousands of refugees crowding into that nation from Hungary.

And there was a hint there eventually may be still another increase in the total permitted to come to this country. Referring to the current jump to 21,500, a statement issued at Eisenhower's vacation headquarters here said: "When these numbers have been exhausted, the situation will be reexamined."

found asylum in other countries the opportunity to apply for permanent resettlement in the U.S. That step will be taken because "many of these refugees undoubtedly have relatives here."

FHA Home Loan Interest Is Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government today raised the interest rate on FHA-insured home loans to 5 per cent, effective Dec. 4.

and this will assist them to get the financing they need. "We cannot afford to let the vital housing portion of our economic life dwindle to a point that jeopardizes our productive capacity and threatens the jobs of many thousands of people through the country working in the homebuilding industry."

Persons admitted as parolees have no permanent residence status in the U.S., but it was announced that Eisenhower in January will ask Congress to enact emergency legislation to let Hungarian refugees in that category stay in this country.

They will be brought here "with the utmost practicable speed," the White House said. The original plan to admit 5,000 refugees was announced early last month shortly after thousands of Hungarians started fleeing into Austria to escape Soviet terror.

Had Feature Roles In Student Session

Principals in the National Forensic League legislative session which adjourned today at noon were Salem Bullock (left), Sidney Perkins (center) and R. B. Starling, Bullock, a student at Broughton High School in Raleigh and formerly of Greenville, was elected Speaker of the House for the session. Perkins is NFL advisor in Durham High School and Starling is NFL advisor in Greenville High School. More than 80 students from nine North and South Carolina High Schools attended the meeting. Bond Issue Funds Seen In March

If all goes well the $275,000 in bond issue monies, which Greenville citizens voted a second time recently, will be available in early March, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said today.

The city has asked for $16,000 in anticipation bonds to be used for work on Greene Mill Run. Such bonds would be endorsed by the state pending the sale of the approved bonds.

That amount should be available by Dec. 17, Bloxam declared. Other projects approved in the bond election will await the sale of the bonds. Bids have been let for the fire truck approved by the voters in the election but Bloxam said that the delivery date for the piece of equipment has been set for some time in February.

County Board To Be Reorganized

Pitt County's Board of Commissioners will be reorganized at its regular monthly meeting Monday morning.

The meeting will be the last for retiring board chairman W. J. Smith of Bethel. He will be replaced by R. L. Martin of Bethel who will be sworn in as soon as the board completes old business before it.

The meeting will be held in the commissioners' room in the court house and will begin at 10 a. m.

Find Similarity In State And Federal Problems On Courts

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) - The Bell, who has studied the success and failure of other states which attempted judicial reform, listed five impressions he had gained. His committee is to make recommendations to the 1957 Legislature regarding possible changes in the judicial setup.

In addition to his observation regarding the similarity in state and federal system problems, Bell said, "I am convinced that there is nothing basically wrong with our Constitutional Court structure—it is beautifully simple and should be kept that way."

Point four, he said, is that "in every single successful effort to improve the housekeeping in our courts, laymen have played a vital part." His fifth point was, "Wherever there is a serious effort to improve our courts and our procedure, there are always people who say we shouldn't wash our dirty linen in public nor weaken the confidence of the community in its judges and its courts by harping on defects."

Biggest U.S. A-Bomb Carrier Crash Kills 10

CASTLE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - A giant sweptwing B52, the Air Force's biggest A-bomb carrier, crashed in a "streak of fire" last night killing all 10 men aboard.

The eight-jet cigar-nosed airplane was taking off from this central California Strategic Air Command base when it suddenly smashed into a plowed field some four miles north of Merced and about 150 miles south of San Francisco.

"We saw one huge flash about a mile away and just before it hit the ground we saw another explosion," said Sgt. Alfred B. Stockman, one of two anti-aircraft men from the base who were in a car near the crash site.

More Shooting In Cuban Uprising

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) - More shooting was reported today in a rebel uprising on Cuba's southeast coast. The official count of dead reached 11.

Official sources said Cuban military forces and police were mopping up the small civilian uprising against the regime of President Fulgencio Batista that flared yesterday at Santiago de Cuba, a port 500 miles east of Havana.

THE BARE FACTS NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Here's a fashion note from this Southern California town. Signs in a local department store bear this warning: "People With Bare Feet Not Allowed on Escalator."

Young Farmville Fans Turn Out To Hail Santa

FARMVILLE - Santa came to town here yesterday riding a big fire truck and flanked by the Farmville and H.B. Suggs High School bands.

Most of the youngsters got a second look at Santa Claus as the parade returned down Main to its starting point on Home Ave. The procession moved from Home down Main to Cotton, from Cotton to George, then to Pine St. and finally back to Main. It then returned to its starting point.

Fire Losses Of Over $1 Million

Losses from three local warehouse fires in September, October and November have been set at $1,084,651.71 by insurance adjusters.

That figure was announced by Fire Chief George Gardner today. The loss estimate includes the New Enterprise Warehouse, which was outside the city limits; the Dixie Warehouse and the old Empire Warehouse.

Humber Named To Commission

RALEIGH (AP) - Gov. Hodges yesterday appointed Robert Lee Humber of Greenville to the City-County Palace Commission. He also named Charles K. Bryant Sr. of Gaston County to the board of directors of the N.C. School for the Deaf at Morganton.

Hodges made two appointments. They were Roy Eubanks of Beaufort as wreck commissioner for the Beaufort area, and J. J. Hamilton, Jr. of Guilford County as a director of the N.C. Rural Rehabilitation Corp.

Look Who's Here

AFTER PARADE - Santa Claus, as he walked down Farmville Main St. yesterday, a little girl tells Santa what she wants for Christmas and other children await their turn.

19 SHOPPING DAYS LEFT Christmas Greetings 1956

GOOD SEATS - These youngsters had good seats for yesterday's Christmas parade in Farmville. They were perched high on the steps of a church where they could see and be seen by St. Nick. (Reflector Photos by Alvin Taylor)

CHAPTER 26

Casson wore a thoughtful look. "Macfarlane was drunk. He might have knocked the bottle over and picked it up the wrong way?"

"I know," said Strutt. "But I believe that what actually happened is this: Perry wrapped his hand in his handkerchief, or something like that, and poured a dose for Macfarlane. When Macfarlane was doped, Perry gripped the boy's hand round the bottle so that there were certain to be some clear prints of the boy's on it. That was necessary in case the cleaner had wiped all the prints off the morning before. If the post-mortem found floral in the body and if there were no points on the bottle, it would look very odd. Perry couldn't have risked that. Even so the prints don't prove anything."

"You don't think there'll be anything in the body to prove he didn't commit suicide? Any other sort of drug?"

"The post-mortem is tomorrow morning. We'll know then. But I doubt it. Perry wouldn't have made that blunder."

"You'll want me at the inquest?"

"Certainly not. Perry may be there. I don't want him to see you. He mustn't know you are mixed up in this."

"Surely he won't dare attend?"

"I'm sure he won't," said Strutt. "Suppose the coroner returns a verdict of murder?"

"He won't. He'll just find the cause of death. It'll be an open verdict. There'll be no evidence of fingerprints. And I've fixed the woman - what's her name - Queenleigh, to say that it was she who found the body."

"What part are you planning for me?"

"You are the only person who is near to Perry. Somehow you've got to get him. You've got to keep in this game of living in Bickersteth Street and drinking beer with the little swine."

"What about the girl?" Casson asked.

"She's as safe as a house. It's obvious that Perry killed Macfarlane because the boy wanted to marry Jean Shaw and marry her quick."

"And so, because he dared to kill Macfarlane, we can assume that the girl knew nothing and Perry didn't have to bother about her? Or at any rate, that Perry was sure in his own mind that she knew nothing?"

"That's right. Therefore she's safe."

Casson rose to go. As he did so he pulled a long envelope out of his inside pocket.

"Here's my statement," he said. "I'll sign it now and you can witness it."

"Good. Sing away," Strutt was becoming genial, and with a flutter of excitement Casson recognized the sign. When Strutt was genial on a job he was at his most dangerous.

"One more thing," said the policeman as Casson was walking to the door. "You might like to try your charms on Jean Shaw. She took one look at me and shut up like a clam."

"You dazzled her," Casson remarked and shut the door.

But Casson waited till the day of the inquest to make his visit to Jean Shaw. He took his car out to Putney, driving slowly and easily. Dismal Road was decently somnolent, its tall, detached houses made to lose some of their normal Victorian pomposity and to look almost raffish in the overburdening gaiety of light.

A tall, heavy-boned woman of about fifty opened the door to him.

"Miss Shaw is indisposed," she replied to Casson's question. There was a Scot's inflection in her voice. "I am afraid she will be receiving no visitors."

"It is a police matter," he said. She hesitated.

"Very well. Come in. You had better see her in the parlor."

Jean Shaw was quite attractive but not pretty. She sat down on the edge of the sofa, her hands in her lap, looking at him.

"I am sorry, but I have told you everything I can," she said.

"So the police thought."

"You are not a policeman?" She stood up. Casson shook his head.

"You are a journalist?"

"Please sit down, Miss Shaw," he said. "I am not a journalist. Nor am I a policeman. But I am working with the police on this case of Jim Macfarlane."

"Case?"

"Yes, Miss Shaw. Do you believe that Jim committed suicide?"

"It was not in his nature. I'm sure Jim would never..." She turned away from him. "Exactly," he continued. "I do not believe it either. I believe that Jim Macfarlane was murdered."

"She turned back to him, staring. 'But-but why? No one would have wanted to kill Jim. He never harmed anybody. He couldn't...'"

"Jim was murdered because he knew a criminal."

"A criminal? Jim? Oh, no. I couldn't have been..."

"What couldn't have been?"

"Jim knowing someone like that. He just wouldn't. She sat down again on the edge of the sofa, and looked fixedly at her feet."

He broke in on her.

"We want to catch the man who murdered him, Miss Shaw. We think you can help."

"I have already told the police everything I know," she said, without looking up.

"Somewhere," he persisted, "there may be a tiny clue-something he said or did which you wouldn't think important, something which we can fit into the picture of his murder."

"No," she said stubbornly. "I am afraid not. And I do not believe that he was murdered."

"H. was," replied Casson. "Will you tell me everything?"

She hesitated.

"Jim and I quarrelled before he died."

"People in love often quarrel," he said gently. Her voice was shaky when she answered him. "We had been quarrelling for a long time. It was a nightmare. There was nothing I could do to stop it. He went on and on, and I couldn't say I was sorry because I wasn't."

"What was the quarrel about?" His pulses were hammering.

She looked straight at him and said defiantly:

"Jim said I was unfaithful."

Casson discovers Macfarlane's innocence in Chapter 27 here Monday.

Thin Line For Court Decision

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court has a long, thin line to follow in handling one dispute.

The case involves a strip of land 45 inches wide and 140 feet long. Building owner Bertha B. contends that if the land is not awarded to her, half of a cafe wall will be torn down.

THE NEXT STEP

The speed of modern life tempts us to think of our goals and to forget the importance of a single step. But the men who scale the highest peaks concentrate on one step at a time.

There seem to be plenty of folks with noble aspirations who rarely go to Church. Some of them may reach their goals; but legion are the others whose "one false step" starts an avalanche of broken hopes.

The steady, sincere, every-Sunday church-goer usually has noble aspirations and a far better chance of achieving them! He has learned to study each step by faith and prayer... to test the ground on which he treads... to climb with others in a common quest of the summits of life.

Destiny depends on the next step!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Greenville Garden Club To Stage Christmas Show

The Greenville Garden Club will stage its regular Christmas Show December 15 and 16 at the Woman's Club.

The theme this year is "An Old Fashioned Christmas." Traditional red and green with a touch of gold will be used for the background.

Also featured in the arrangements and tables will be the bride—"something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue."

Chairman for the show is Mrs. Vance Perkins. Serving with Mrs. Perkins as co-chairmen are: Mrs. Lynwood Worthington and Mrs. Tigge Gardner.

The following committees will serve in staging the show:

Shop, Mrs. K. W. Cobb, Mrs. Sam Mitchell, co-chairmen.

Arrangements, Mrs. R. V. Keel Sr.

Tables, Mrs. Hicks Corey Sr.

Wreaths, Mrs. George Staples Sr.

Stairway, Mrs. P. K. Andresen, chairman. Mrs. John Shannonhouse and Mrs. Herchel Williams; Mantel in auditorium, Mrs. J. B. White and Mrs. J. B. Smith; Co-chairmen, Mrs. P. E. Wells; Sweets, Mrs. John Carrington; Packages, Junior Woman's Club with Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr., chairman.

Outside, Mrs. Marie Clark, chairman.

All club members are requested to call the chairman of committees and volunteer their services.

The show is designed with the idea of helping people with Christmas decoration ideas for the home.

Many of the arrangements, wreaths and tables are original in design. There is no charge of admission, but a silver offering will be taken to defray the expense of the show, according to its chairman.

Christmas Party To Be Dec. 15

The Women of the Moose held its regular meeting Thursday night at the Moose Temple with Senior Regent Louise Carrigan presiding.

It was decided that the chapter have its Christmas party and dinner December 15 for husbands and dates. Immediately after the dinner and program all Moose members and their dates or wives are invited to join the party.

Recreation Chairman Mrs. P. B. Cox announced there would be a Santa Claus and a small gift for each child at the buffet dinner on Sunday night, Dec. 23, at the Moose Temple.

Mrs. Earlene Coghill made a report on the Christmas float that the Moose sponsored.

Civic Affairs Chairman Nita Rowland gave a report that the committee had clothed one needy family with five children and another family with four children.

It was announced by the Social Service chairman, Mrs. J. L. Mills, that they were giving a Stanley party December 4 at the Moose Temple at 8:00 and urged all to attend.

The chapter voted to give the high school band $100 with the aid of the publicity committee.

Library Committeewoman Mrs. Gummy Ricks announced that their committee was sending $25 to the Mooseheart children's library and also would give $25 to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital children's library.

Baptist Student Union To Stage Religious Drama

Members of the Baptist Student Union at East Carolina College have announced as pre-Christmas activities of the organization the presentation December 17 of Dorothy Clarke Wilson's "No Room in the Hotel" and a holiday dinner and social meeting this Thursday.

The religious drama will be given in two performances in the chapel of the Baptist Student Center on East Eight Street. These are scheduled for 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Those who wish to attend are invited to be present.

The play, based on a Christmas theme and having a modern setting, has as principal characters a hard-boiled newspaper reporter and a group of people of various types stopping at a small hotel. The story centers around the impact upon the journalist's character of the appearance there of a man and woman who bring to mind the couple refused admittance at the Bethlehem inn many centuries ago.

Members of the Baptist Student Union and their guests will attend a Christmas dinner Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at Respass Brothers restaurant. Barbara Blanton of Teachey, chairman in charge of arrangements, and Barbara West of Fayetteville, program chairman, have the assistance of a large group of East Carolina students in planning the event.

Confucianism Topic At Meet

Mrs. Howard Waldrop presented the program when the Lector Book Club met with Mrs. E. S. Flanagan at her home on Harding Street Tuesday.

Continuing the club's study of the world's great religions, Mrs. Waldrop gave a paper on Confucianism. She declared this religion is less a religion than a formal ethical system, defining personal relationships in an ideal moral order.

Outlined by Confucius in the Sixth Century B. C., its precepts have dominated every aspect of China's thought and culture, she pointed out.

Although Confucius never claimed himself to be the founder of a faith, the school of thought developed by his disciples in time acquired the aspects of religious cult.

Confucianism was established as the state religion by the Emperor Wu-ti (140-87 B. C.) and held this position until 1912.

"Now, under the Communist regime, China has no state worship—no procession fills the Altar of Heaven. But thoughts and ideas are somewhat like seeds," the speaker said.

"They have a way of lying dormant underground until a more favorable climate brings them again to life.

"As to when or how this will happen and China's people return openly to Confucian ideals, that is a matter of international politics," Mrs. Waldrop noted.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Travis Flanagan, who welcomed Mrs. Max Minger as a guest.

A short business meeting was held during which members voted on and discussed the family to be helped at Christmas.

The hostess served a dessert course with coffee to her guests upon arrival.

Missionary's Life Sketched

Mrs. H. Reginald Gray was hostess to the Artes Book Club at its regular meeting Tuesday evening. She had as her guest, Mrs. J. C. Youngblood II.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. S. R. Bartlett, vice-president, presided over the business meeting, during which the club voted to purchase a TB bond. Announcements were made concerning the Christmas dinner to be sponsored by the St. James Church, and the Home Economics Department of East Carolina College. Members were also urged to take advantage of the pre-holiday musical concerts at the college.

Mrs. Anne Lee Hardee, a club member, gave an account of a personality—Dr. Frank C. Laubach—a Christian missionary, who is now serving as special counselor to the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

Although Dr. Laubach works gladly with representative groups of the United Nations, he is happiest working with Christian churches, the speaker said. But it is the Christian ideal of service that he stresses and not dogma.

Mrs. Hardee related how he had been responsible, directly or indirectly, for 15 million people learning their ABC's. His principle, "each one teach one," spread like a prairie fire, she said. Every learner became a teacher who shared his training in turn with some one else.

She told of his early work in the Philippines, and later in India where "practically every person who cannot read is in debt to a money lender."

Dr. Laubach states that the Communists are winning Asia yet the greatest script writers are here in America. "unaware that they could save the world if they poured their genius into the dialects of Asia."

At the conclusion of the program the hostess served a dessert course with coffee.

30 Years Ago Today

Friday afternoon the Junior King's Daughters met at the home of Rebecca Scoville. The election of new officers concluded business discussions. Officers now in service are: president, Rebecca Scoville; vice president, Elizabeth Skinner; secretary and reporter, Ada Orton Moore; treasurer, Bondie Dickenson. Following the election Mrs. Ada Cherry gave an interesting talk on service and its work. At the close of the meeting a tempting salad course was served.

Try This Cake For The Holidays

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor

LIKE RICH-AS-CROESUS FRUIT CAKE? Then here's a recipe that makes the sort of confection that is wonderful for holidays desserts. Cut the cake into small wedges and let your guests savor—with enormous satisfaction—the moist crumbly combination of fruit, nuts and batter. These small fruit cakes look so pretty they're great to give for gifts. If you do this, be sure to include the slicing directions (given at the end of the recipe) with the cake.

MARZIPAN

Ingredients: 1 cup almond paste, 1 egg white (stiffly beaten), 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 1/2 to 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar.

Method: Mix almond paste and egg white together. Beat in salt, lemon juice and gradually work in the sugar. When mixture becomes too stiff to work with a spoon, knead in enough remaining sugar with the hands to make a soft, sweet dough. Roll out almond dough on a board covered with sifted confectioners' sugar and cut to fit top of cakes.

Note: Almond paste is available in 1-pound cans in specialty shops throughout the country. One pound is enough to make a thick topping for four 1-pound cakes.

CONFECTIONERS' SUGAR FROSTING

Mix confectioners' sugar with enough milk to make a thin icing. Flavor with almond extract.

Christmas Decorations Talked

Mrs. John Howard was hostess to the Delphin Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Sixth Street. Mrs. Howard, who is president, called the meeting to order and extended a welcome to her guests for the afternoon. Mrs. William White Jr., Mrs. Cameron Dudley and Mrs. Blanton Little.

The secretary, Mrs. Ford McGowan, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. A report was made on the family that the club will help Christmas. Mrs. Ed Tipton gave a report on the party the members will have for their husbands December 12.

A letter was read inviting all the members to attend the bazaar held by the St. James Methodist Church December 8.

After the brief business meeting Mrs. Howard served a dessert course consisting of fruit cake, cream, nuts and coffee.

Mrs. Howard then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Blanton Little, home demonstration agent, who spoke on Christmas decorations for the home.

Mrs. Little feels that Christmas should be a family time. It is a time to start family traditions and a time for all the family to plan and work together.

"Home is where our Christmas memories begin and we should take time to enjoy ourselves, our families and let all take a part," Mrs. Little said.

Getting ready for Christmas is half the fun, she said. You should first decide what you are going to decorate. Your color scheme should be taken into consideration in deciding she noted.

Mrs. Little displayed a number of decorations that can be made at home inexpensively. She demonstrated how to make centerpieces for tables from shrubs and wire. She also had candies that could be made at home and told how to use them. All of the articles shown by Mrs. Little were things that the family could make together and make each one feel a real part of the family.

Mrs. McGinnis Club Speaker

Mrs. Howard McGinnis was the guest speaker at the Round Table Book Club meeting Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. E. E. Rawls' home.

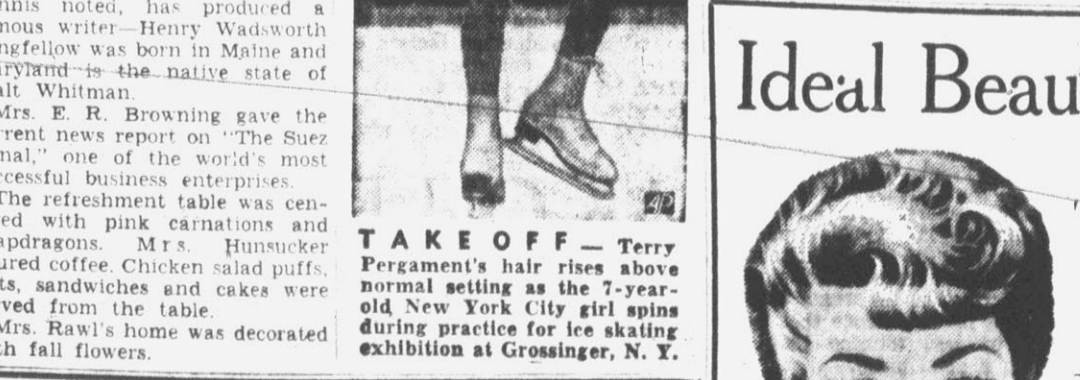

Mrs. McGinnis presented a program on two states—Maine and Maryland. She described the hardy people who settled in these states and told of their industries, their products, and their picturesque coast lines. The striking similarities and differences of the two states were emphasized.

Each of these states, Mrs. McGinnis noted, has produced a famous writer—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was born in Maine and Maryland is the native state of Walt Whitman.

Mrs. E. R. Browning gave the current news report on "The Suez Canal," one of the world's most successful business enterprises.

The refreshment table was centered with pink carnations and snapdragons. Mrs. Hunsucker poured coffee. Chicken salad puffs, nuts, sandwiches and cakes were served from the table.

Mrs. Rawls' home was decorated with fall flowers.

Christian Science Society

The supremacy of spiritual law will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Only Cause and Creator."

Scriptural selections will include Paul's statement to Galatians (3: 21): "Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law."

Correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (273:21-24): "God never ordained a material law to annul the spiritual law. If there were such a material law, it would oppose the supremacy of Spirit, God, and impugn the wisdom of the creator."

The Golden Text is from Jeremiah (10:10,12): "The Lord is the true God, he is the living God, and an everlasting king. . . He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heavens by his discretion."

No village in England is more than eighteen miles from a railroad.

Adventists Float Will Visit City

A float depicting the manger scene will be visiting in all parts of Greenville during the Christmas season.

The local Seventh-Day Adventist Church is making a drive to collect old clothing, food, and toys that can be used at the Christmas season, as well as funds to carry on local welfare and educational work.

Families and children worthy of help are also sought. Any suggestions can be made to the local Adventist pastor, Lyndon De Witt, by phoning 2222.

Refugees Look To John, Jane Doe

Since the time of terror began, a mass exodus of Hungarian peoples has been under way. Men, women, children and even babies; all fleeing for their very lives. They braved a Communist curtain of death to cross into free Austria. So far almost 100,000 have fled their homes, and lived, to reach little Austria. The number continues to swell. No one can guess how many will eventually get across that all-important border.

The rest of the Free World, knowing too well that Austria could not alone cope with the flood of humanity, has offered help. The United States originally was willing to accept 5,000 persons; today the limit was raised to 21,500. Several countries, much smaller than our own, offered haven to many more thousands than we, at first.

Meanwhile, the flight into Austria continues unabated; indeed the influx seems to be outpacing the departures. Austria's government is beginning to feel the strain of supporting the horde of homeless awaiting their turn to pass on to new lands they can adopt as their home.

Gifts of food, clothing and money . . . all in large quantities . . . are being sent these helpless ones. The American Red Cross has declared an emergency drive for $5 millions to help the refugees. But money, food, clothing . . . though needed . . . are but temporary measures. These people need hope, homes and jobs so that not only can they live with pride but to be self-sufficient. Simple charity will not make them so.

Washington says 21,500 people can come to this

Time Is Important In New Board's Function

The 11-man committee appointed by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to study possibilities for a county-wide industrial development program for the county are in a position to make an important contribution to the economic future of Pitt.

As we understand their duties, they are to study the feasibility of a county-wide industrial development program in Pitt and make specific recommendations to the County Commissioners. Properly executed, the study will take considerable time and effort by the committee. Yet, the good which can come from such a study can not be measured.

By their appointment of the committee to make the study and recommendations, the County Commissioners in our opinion have indicated their feeling that Pitt County must take more far reaching steps than it already has to promote its economic advancement. They also indicate the feeling that a constructive program may be worked out on a county-wide basis.

Some other counties in North Carolina have initiated industrial development programs which are being returns to those counties in the form of new plants, more jobs and more year-round payrolls. The programs differ in detail although their ultimate goal is the same—greater economic progress for the county. It will be up to the committee appointed by the County to review those various programs and seek to come up with one which will be adaptable to Pitt.

Although careful study is essential to the undertaking, time is also of importance. The sooner Pitt can put forth a better industrial development program, the sooner that program can be expected to bear fruit for all the people of the county.

There's A Big Gap In Our Musical Ranks

Some veterans of the pre-Presley era understandably found a lump in their throat when bandsman Tommy Dorsey died.

Dorsey, to them, represented something special in the golden years of popular music; and his sweet-playing slip horn sounded for millions of dancers and dreamers alike.

More than merely being a good instrumentalist, Tommy had the rare gift of discerning choice in organizing his bands, selecting arrangements and vocalists. In his field, he was a sort of epitome in modern music for dancing.

Recordings by "TD" enjoyed sales in the many-millions and the juke boxes of ten years ago often had four or more of his offerings at one time.

As we recall, Dorsey was less of a spectacular soloist than Miller, Shaw or Goodman; preferring instead to further utilize his entire aggregation. Perhaps it was partially for that reason his personal popularity neither soared nor dipped as did that of his many contemporaries.

Today, and presumably for a long time to come, there are some mighty big shoes to fill on the podium of American popular music.

country if they are assured of sponsors that can meet certain requirements. For a country our size, with over 150 million citizens, that is a very small number. But the big point is that individual citizens, or groups of citizens, must step forward and actively participate in this program before it is worth anything at all. It is up to John and Jane Doe, not Uncle Sam.

We found it heart-warming to read that students at Guilford College voted to sponsor a Hungarian family. The refugees, we understand, will be in the United States by Christmas. Upon reflection, it seems to us that North Carolina could absorb one family in each of its hundred counties without earthshaking aftereffects. Those exiles are composed of workers in many professions and trades; they should provide a rich source of productivity in a land where productivity means something.

There should be room in Pitt County for at least one such family. If a church group, business firm or any other organization is interested, The Daily Reflector will upon request obtain the necessary information as to how a homeless Hungarian family can be brought here to become an American family, with a home.

Reapportionment In 1957 Not Expected

By LYNN NISBET

LEGISLATURE — Recommendations by the Commission of Legislative Representation, made public Friday, make it almost certain that no reapportionment will be undertaken in 1957. The report, however, offers a plan for automatic reapportionment after the 1960 census which is designed to afford the highest possible degree of "sensitive" representation of the people in the General Assembly.

While the commission recommends immediate reapportionment on basis of the 1950 census, the arguments presented for deferment of the permanent plan take most of the force out of the proposal. The long range program will require constitutional amendments, and consists of three major items: That no county, regardless of size, shall have more than two Senators, and no Senator shall represent more than four counties, regardless of population; that the House of Representatives be enlarged to 130 members, with the same allocation formula as at present; and that a Legislative Reapportionment Commission be established consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House, the Attorney General, the Secretary of State and the State Treasurer. It would be the duty of this commission to reapportion after each decennial census, independently of the Legislature, and it would be subject to mandamus by the Supreme Court in event of failure to perform its duty.

Because of the time element in amending the constitution these recommendations are not to become effective until after the 1960 count. The commission making the study was authorized by the 1955 session to consist of three Senators, three Representatives and three members named by the Governor.

PERSONNEL — President Luther Barnhardt appointed Senators Elton Aydtlett of Pasquotank, F. J. Blythe of Mecklenburg and Dennis S. Cooke of Caldwell. Speaker Larry Moore appointed Representatives R. E. Brantley of Polk, Joseph M. Hunt Jr. of Guilford and Thomas J. White of Lenoir. Governor Hodges appointed Carroll W. Weathers, dean of Wake Forest law school; John R. Jordan Jr., Raleigh attorney; and Weimar Jones, Macon county publisher. Seven members signed the report. Jones filed a minority opinion and White dissented without stating his reason.

REASONING — At an all-state news conference Friday Chairman Weathers explained on reasons for the proposals set out in the text. He explained that the objective was to assure equitable and sensitive representation of the people in the Legislature. Population is the paramount factor, and might be accepted as the sole criterion if population were equally distributed throughout the state. The wide diversity in population density in different parts of North Carolina make geographic area a factor of only slightly less importance. Consequently both must be taken into account. This suggests the limitations of two Senators to any county and four counties to any Senator.

It will still be possible for districts of two, three or four counties to have two or more Senators, but would preclude districts of more than four counties represented by two Senators. Presently there are five districts with more than four counties. The first district has eight counties and two Senators; the second has seven and two; the seventh has six and two; the 32nd five and two, the 33d five and one. These districts would have to be divided, and the population factor would probably necessitate rearranging most of the other districts. Presently only Mecklenburg and Guilford would get two Senators.

HOUSE — It is contemplated that Senate membership will remain at 50, but that House membership be increased to 130, with each county guaranteed one member and the other 30 distributed on population as is the case with the present 20 "surpluses."

In support of that proposal, Weathers reminded that the 120 membership was established in 1855 when there were only 65 counties. That left 35 members for distribution on population basis. Now there are 100 counties, leaving only 20 for distribution. The 130 figure was arrived at "realistically." One factor was limited space in the capitol building. Another was popular resentment at increasing the number at all. And it was felt that a 50 percent increase in the extra membership is enough for one jump.

OPPOSITION — The plan has the full support of Governor Hodges, who said it is "palatable," but it is certain to face strong opposition in the Legislature. The attitude of commission members Jones and White assures that.

One of its strongest points is the reapportionment commission. Assignment of this function to a group of elected constitutional officers none of whom has any direct personal interest will come as near removing the whole issue from petty politics as can be achieved. Even so, there are signs that some small county members may be reluctant to surrender direct legislative control over the matter.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Leaf Cut Leaves Job Undone

(The Raleigh Times)

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson did the only thing he could yesterday in ordering a 20 percent cut in leaf acreage next year. Because of the tremendous surplus piled up by Stabilization this year, to add to the surplus already on hand, he had no choice. That's the law, and Benson certainly can not be blamed for it.

But neither should anyone be deluded into thinking that a mere acreage cut across the board will work. As Benson pointed out in his announcement, production per acre has gone up each time the acreage is cut. From an average of 707 pounds in 1929-1932, the average yield has more than doubled to 1,573 pounds. Tobacco consumption has not kept pace with production. The amount of leaf on hand would last for three years if not another plant were grown.

There is little reason to believe that unless basic changes are made in the tobacco economy to go along with Benson's directive, the cut will have any great and lasting effect. Farmers will once again pour on fertilizer, crowd the rows and the plants, and Benson will have to slash again.

The answer must come from the farmer. Stabilization and Congress. The Farm Bureau Federation decided, after much study, that plant controls would work better than acreage controls. That is up to the government, which will have time to take action before next year's planting season. It will be up to the farmers to produce the kind of tobacco cigarette and export companies want, too. That kind is a heavier-bodied, more aromatic leaf, which does not yield as much to an acre as the pale slick tobacco. The farmer must make up his mind whether he wants to produce a lot of tobacco that won't sell or less tobacco that will bring a good price.

It is also up to Stabilization to set support levels revised, so that farmers will have an incentive to produce grades that will sell.

Perhaps, too, this is a good time for human stock-taking, for worrying about marginal farmers with small allotments due for a cut. If they are cut, many will be forced off the farms, as they were last year. If they are not cut, the full 20 percent must be borne by bigger, and more efficient, producers. Whatever the answer, the time has come to face the question of the little farmers, and to decide whether he is to be saved or shifted.

The acreage cut announced by Benson is thus no panacea. It means hard work for farmers and farm leaders. But it is work and planning that must be done unless the entire leaf support system is to collapse.

The Bloopers I Have Known

I don't know how a psychologist would explain it but I believe I have found a new game. I deliberately listen for mistakes by radio announcers.

Some of the boo-boos are hilarious. Some are pathetic. And I'm quite sure that some are just plain ignorance. Regardless of the individual category, they're all true.

My favorite thus far is one picked up from a newscast in which the announcer was reporting some news about the Israeli-Egyptian fighting. It went something like this:

"A large Israeli force surrounded an Egyptian unit today and completely anna-hill-leated the Egyptians." I believe the boy was trying to say "annihilate."

Another one I hear occasionally consistently refers to the Robert Shaw Chorale as the

"Robert Shaw Choral." He formerly called it the "George Shaw Choral" but that has been corrected.

Stephen Vincent Benet (benay) has become "Bee-net" or just plain "Bennet," Georges Bizet (the fellow who wrote "Carmen") is either "Bee-zet" or "Bissette" and the secretary-general of the United Nations is anything from "Hammer-school" to "Hammer-shield."

Classical music terms always pose a particular tough problem for one of the fellows. His best (or worst) thus far is turning "Tannhauser" into "Tanny-hooser." Even the semi-classic boos suffer a wee bit, particularly Andre Kostelanetz. He is more familiarly known as "Andy Kosta-lawn-teez."

My little wife's mother flipped one evening not too long ago over a television announcer's boo-boo. That one concerned itself with a report on activities in the Sinai Desert but the announcer in question called it the "Sin-nay-eye" desert. What hurt my dear mother-in-law so badly was that she taught the boy in a Bible class in his high school days. She almost cried.

This is not intended to be a general condemnation of radio or radio announcers. However, I do believe somebody in the business should pay some attention to what some of the announcers are doing and take steps to eliminate the shortcomings.

I'm a little bit old-fashioned, I guess, because I do enjoy listening to radio programs. There are some radio shows that will beat the socks off TV shows for the same hour.

And it isn't treason to my own business to say so, either. I always read the paper first.

Parents, Pupils Set A Code

MUSKEGON, Mich., AP) — Tough guardians of teen-age behavior — teen-agers themselves — have worked out a "police yourself" code of conduct here.

And with eager cooperation from their parents, the kids are making the code work. It's the project of 1,658 students at Muskegon Catholic Central High School, working with an organization of parents called the Holy Family Assn.

The object is to guide teenage conduct without curtailing normal activities of the younger set. The code covers matters from public displays of affection (NO to letting parents in on whereabouts (YES).

Parents too have their rules—like encouraging children to make their social call: "at home instead of the corner drugstore, and staying home when the young people entertain."

The Rev. Louis LaPres, school principal, says the codes have been a "tremendous help." As worked out by the parents group and approved by the students, the rules ask parents to:

Insist their children not attend parties uninvited and to ban home party crashes; to impound alcoholic beverages, ban-after-date parties; agree on party closing hours and furnish transportation for 9th and 10th graders.

In turn, the students are pledged to refrain from public displays of affection with dates; abstain from alcoholic beverages and refuse rides with students who do drink; adhere to estimated times of return from social affairs.

An hours clause, ending informal and home parties at 11:30 p.m., aims at breaking the upstairs custom of entertaining high schoolers at night-long "open houses" on prom nights.

The closing hours clause aims at actual events but leaves return home time for teen-agers up to individual families.

Student leaders are proud of the way the code is working. Tom McDermott, a 17-year-old president of the school's student council, says other schools are seeking information on Muskegon Catholic's code.

What we're doing could influence our own area, Tom said, "and I think by the example we set, we could push its influence even further."

This isn't the first trial-blazing action at the school. Father LaPres helped inaugurate a student credit union that was believed to be the first of its kind. Accounting and bookkeeping students taking business courses help manage the credit union. It emphasizes savings but loans are available for such teen-age emergencies as financing a big date.

REPUTATION

One of history's astonishing facts has been that greatness is very often not recognized until long after the great man has passed on.

Of course, the great example is Jesus, who, after 2000 years is much more widely understood and revered than H was on the day He died. Socrates was put to death by his contemporaries but honored by succeeding centuries of thinkers. Sir Isaac Newton had, when he died, not a dozen supporters of his views on gravitation and other factors of the physical universe. Johann Bach lay in his grave for many decades, utterly unnoticed by writers of musical history until the rising young Mendelssohn claimed the enormous honors which were being heaped upon him and advised his generation if they wanted to observe a real musician, to turn back to Bach. When they did, the whole musical world was electrified by its history.

It is a sad comment, is it not, that greatness is almost never recognized by those who live side by side with it. One generation persecutes, and another generation pours forth the most fulsome praise.

All of which teaches us that the thing of importance is not what people say about us and our doings, but the quiet of our own conscience and the worth and honesty in the things we do.

An Old Eisenhower Query Again Aired

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Mrs. James L. R. of Lansing, Mich., wants information about reports that President Eisenhower, as head of the Allied Forces at the time of Germany's surrender, was responsible for the territorial concessions to Russia that have given her control of Eastern Europe and a portion of the Balkans.

She refers to a letter sent to the White House by G. B. Palmer of Greenbush, Va., which declares that the concessions "were not the first in the inane foreign policy for which you claim credit."

Answer: President Eisenhower is deeply irritated at the frequent reiteration of the charge that he sold the Allies down a Red river in the postwar settlement terms. He has a right to be, for he had no part or responsibility in the deal.

AN ALLIED POLITICAL AGREEMENT The agreement was arranged by the Allied Advisory Commission at London when it became obvious that victory was assured, and the American member was the late John G. Winant of New Hampshire, who subsequently committed suicide.

F. D. R. and Churchill, then Prime Minister, approved it, apparently believing in Stalin's promises of postwar friendship with the West.

Nobody was more surprised than Ike, especially when the Allied statesman did not have the foresight to provide for a safe and uninterrupted corridor from the Anglo-American zones in West Germany to Berlin. According to General Omar Bradley, Ike's aide with whom I have discussed the question, the two of them were "flabbergasted" at the blunder. Only explanation I have ever seen is that Russia could have grabbed this territory, anyway.

Why all this fuss about increasing our bomber squadrons? asks A.B., of Greencastle, Pa. "And how can General Gruenther now threaten to 'destroy'

Russia, if it attacks? Wouldn't an enemy country have nukes and talons that would forestall any bomber attack?"

Answer: General Gruenther concedes that existing NATO forces could not prevent Russian troops from overrunning a large part of Western Europe. He was referring to the threat of our massive retaliatory power, including possibly A and H bombs, for which we must have heavy bombers. It would be their assignment to destroy vital Red communications and supply systems for her advancing force, as well as mobilization and munitions centers.

FAR-FLUNG "ASES OF course, the Russians have nukes and talons, or their equivalent anti-aircraft weapons. But the late General Hoyt Vandenberg, then head of our Air Force, testified that possibly 75 per cent of an invading aerial force could get past our anti-aircraft screen and fighter planes. We doubt whether Russia's vast extent of land is as well protected as is the

Another Look At The Future

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are some more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends and sprinkled with a bit of advance information:

Home heating oil will go up next year. Colder weather plus a growing uncertainty in the Middle East are working toward another upward push.

Men may wear Dynel hats next year. Five manufacturers already have made plans to use the light synthetic fiber in 1957 summer wear. One hatter tried them last summer and found acceptance good.

And ostrich-leather shoes. One manufacturer, Field & Flint, has them on his spring list—at $65 retail. It also will offer water-snake skin and sharkskin at $45.

A new West Coast manufacturing boom is coming. Furniture and appliance production, already lousy, will benefit from higher freight and trucking rates, which will keep out more Eastern products. The railroads are now asking for freight rises exceeding 22 per cent. Other manufacture of weighty products will benefit.

ON CHEERFUL SIDE

There'll be a poultry plenty next year. Production of eggs, broilers and turkeys, which set a record this year, will be even greater in 1957, government experts say, keeping prices down.

Orange juice will be cheaper. The Florida crop is big and indications are that the new pack, which starts in two weeks, will be offered at slightly lower prices.

Corporation dividends will set a new mark this year. Payments for the first 10 months ran $1 billion ahead of last year and not even a panic could now prevent a record total.

Cement will cost more. High-way programs are more than offsetting the decline in demand for housing; meanwhile plant construction is growing. High demand and possible wage rises will jack up prices.

OTHER PRICE PRESSURES Costlier raw materials expected. Stockpiles and domestic production eliminate fears of rubber shortages, but higher wages and higher demand are working toward another round of price increases.

The steel shortage will worsen. Production, now at more than 100 per cent of rated capacity, in efforts to fill backlogs of demand, may cause breakdowns of equipment, much of which is overage.

No sharp rises in lumber prices are expected. At least, for a while. Housing starts are off and inclement weather, as usual, is seasonally diminishing demand.

Whiskey decanters may be fewer next year. So many distillers have entered the fancy decanter field that remaining on January 2 will be large. Decanters, starting at customers from shelves after the holidays, are bad advertisements; they suggest the brand wasn't very popular. Hence the fancy decanter rate may be near an end.

PAPER SPIRALS OVER

Paper price spirals may be over. New production facilities have brought output of pulps and papers close to demand. While there may be some future increases, the repetitive raises that have plagued publishers and packagers may not recur.

Cigar sales will perk up. The American Cigar and Cigarette Society's report on smoking and cancer suggested a relation between cigarettes and lung cancer deaths, a smaller relation between pipes and cancer, and no relation between cigar smoking and lung fatalities. This may do more for cigar sales than the millions the industry has spent in promotions in the last decade.

GOP'S "PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE IN 1960?" "I know this is a premature question," writes Mr. G.H. of Richmond, Va. "But if you had to pick the Republicans' 1960 Presidential candidate, who would be your selection?"

Answer: Vice President Nixon, of course, is given the inside track now, although he may face Californian opposition from Senator William F. Knowland. If they cannot make it, I think the chances of Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, who has done such an excellent job at the United Nations.

Nasser Regime Is Purging Influence And Interests Of Britain And France

Editor's Note: This dispatch is by an Associated Press correspondent who has just arrived in Rome from Cairo, where he was stationed during the British-French invasion of Egypt. He is an American normally assigned to the AP London bureau. Egyptian censorship prevented transmission of this revealing dispatch from Egypt.

By EDWIN SHANKE
ROME (AP)—An Egyptian policeman rolled down the shutters of a French bookstore in the heart of Cairo one day soon after the British-French assault on Egypt began. It symbolized one way the attack on Egypt has backfired on the British and French in a country where their influence has been dominant for decades.

"Egyptianization" is the new watchword of President Nasser's regime. Behind the headlines about Port Said and the U. N. emergency police force, a thorough purge of all British-French influence and interests is taking place, from the business world through the professions, schools and cultural activities of every description. Even history is being rewritten, as Stalin did it in Russia.

Day by day, the government-controlled Egyptian press is recording this upheaval — unprecedented in Egypt's long history. Neutral observers generally consider the British-French invasion has finished them in Egypt and the repercussions will spread throughout the Arab world.

Many an Egyptian educated in England and France — and there are thousands — say, "they can't Egyptianize our minds." But the process goes ahead steadily, mainly under Egyptian military orders numbered 4 and 5, published Nov. 11 after the British-French-Israeli assault began.

These orders classed the British and French as "enemy nationals," provided for the confiscation of their assets and prohibited transactions with British and French citizens.

Egyptians appointed by the minister of finance replaced the managers of firms controlled by the British and French. A number of banks and wholesale and retail firms were affected. Shell Oil, one of Britain's biggest enterprises in Egypt, was among them.

Responsible informants said "no one, apart perhaps from a few authorities, really knows what is going to happen pending some final agreed settlement. Technically, the Egyptians could do practically anything with the businesses — sell them, give them away or even reorganize the firms and run them themselves."

One deterrent factor is the fact that the British have frozen 280 million dollars in Egyptian assets. Meantime, British-French businesses are in the hands of Egyptians.

Estimates of the total value of the businesses affected range all the way from 210 million dollars to a top of 980 million dollars. Finance Minister Abdel Moneim Kaissouny, has instructed banks to furnish every facility to Egyptian citizens wishing to acquire shares of "enemy" companies under sequestration to ensure that they are "speedily Egyptianized."

Cairo newspapers chronicle the systematic stripping of British-French influence from Egyptian life. Organizations regularly appeal for a boycott of all British and French products. The government has ruled that British and French firms no longer can sue in any Egyptian court. British and French doctors, dentists, lawyers, pharmacists, engineers and architects have been dropped from their professional associations. This means they can no longer work in Egypt. Egyptian auditors have replaced their British and French colleagues in business firms. The Ministry of Communications dismissed all its British and French technicians.

Reinsurance operations by Egyptian companies, formerly handled through London, are being shifted to other markets, especially Switzerland and West Germany. An Egyptian authority claimed Britain's net annual profit from the business had been approximately 140 million dollars. Film censors withdrew all British and French movies picturing life in those countries from public showing, as well as films starring alleged Zionist or pro-Zionist actors.

Deputy Education Minister Hamed Nabih announced severance of all cultural relations with Britain and France. He told newsmen his ministry was "reviewing all English and French books and syllabuses now in use in schools and universities throughout Egypt with a view to removing from them any trace connected with Britain and France and their history."

English and French-run schools, he added, "from now on will be 100 per cent Egyptian in every respect."

Fuel Injection System Cost Is Jolt To Buyers

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor
DETROIT (AP)—Enthusiasm about fuel injection systems for conventional passenger cars undoubtedly got a jolt when Chevrolet disclosed the unit will cost the car owner $485.

The price tag is about double what trade sources expected. Whether it will set back eventual industrywide adaptation of fuel injection is a matter of speculation.

Chevrolet was the first of the auto makers to announce availability of the fuel injector which replaces the conventional carburetor. But Chevrolet's over-all market is in the lower price area where dollars look a lot bigger to the car buyer than they do in the high "ice field."

Most engineering innovations as significant as fuel injection have involved years of costly research and also high production costs. In most instances high volume production has brought sharply reduced prices. That was done with power steering and power brakes. It also was done to some extent with automatic transmissions, although continuing refinement has kept production costs high in many instances.

But there is some question whether demand for a $485 optional accessory in the low price field will be great enough to permit a cut in manufacturing costs of the fuel injection system.

Probably it, too, will be steadily refined during the next several years. Coincident with announcement of the Chevrolet system, a mechanically-operated unit, Bendix, brought out an electronically-actuated injector. No price tag was announced for it, but the cost undoubtedly would be even higher than the mechanical unit.

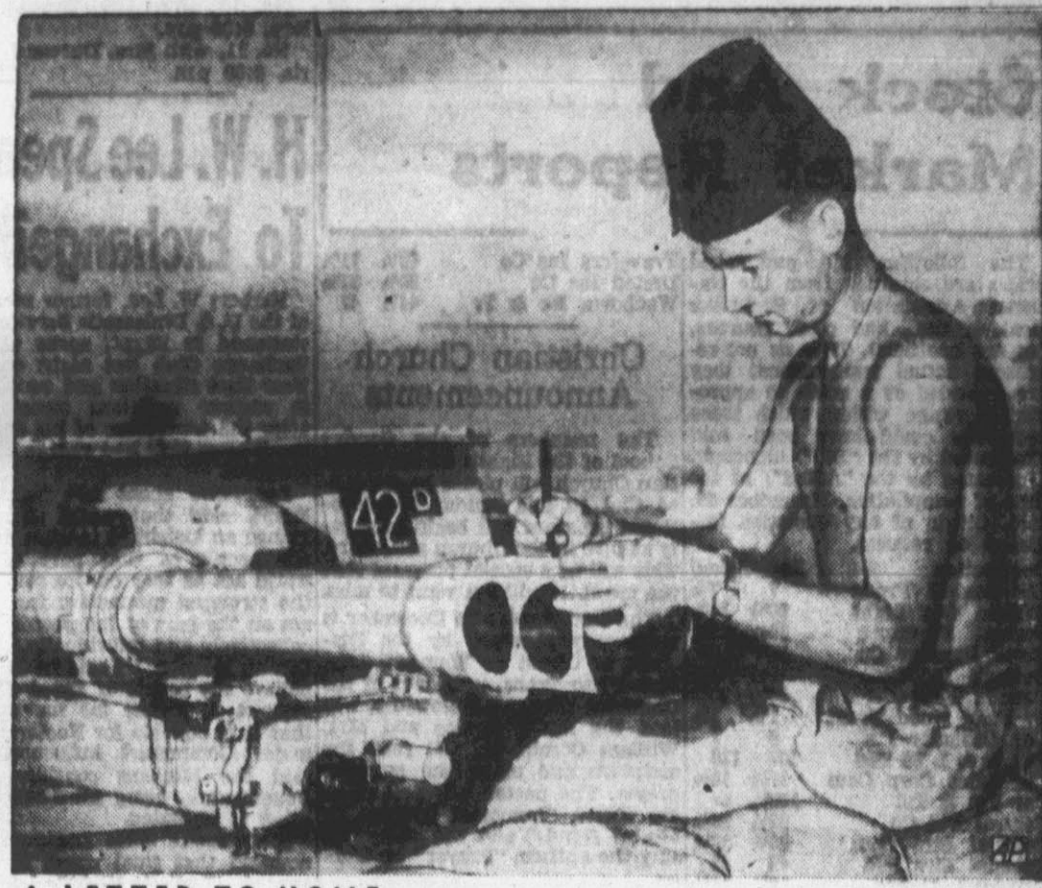

Relatively few of either unit have been produced. Chevrolet dealers have been taking tentative orders for it on a "when available" basis. Chevrolet has not disclosed how many orders were written before the price was announced. Neither has it said whether the price discouraged buyers who wanted fuel injection in their 1957 model cars.

Promotion of the fuel injector will accurately emphasize that it makes a vast difference in engine efficiency, increasing smoothness and making for quicker starts, eliminating vapor lock and greatly increasing the fuel economy of the power plant.

The miles-per-gallon advantages of the fuel injector compared with the standard carburetor are substantially enhanced by the almost complete absence of "waste" with the injector. With the standard type carburetor the fuel mixture continues to pour into the combustion chamber during deceleration to be discharged through the exhaust only partly consumed.

With the injector systems feeding of fuel into the chambers can be automatically shut off on deceleration. The fuel is injected individually into the combustion chamber of each cylinder through a fine nozzle.

Some injector system authorities have estimated the fuel economy at upward of 10 per cent. They add that the quick starting characteristic of the unit contributes to this economy as well as does the absence of waste in the unburned fuel exhaust.

Christian Church Announcements

The members of the Sunday School of the Eighth Street Christian Church will please be reminded that on this Sunday the devotional program will begin promptly at 9:30 in the Church sanctuary. This will be a special program that the members will not want to miss.

The first Sunday in December is universally observed by the Disciples of Christ as Woman's Day. Mrs. Plato Evans, president of the Christian Women's Fellowship, will lead the litany service and Mrs. William Corbett Jr. will read the Scripture and make the morning prayer. The pastor will preach on the theme "Immortal Tidings In Mortal Hands" and the choir will sing the anthem "Prayer" by Gullon.

The Board of Officers of the church will meet in the December session at 7:30 Tuesday evening, J. B. Cummings, chairman of the Board, will preside.

The young people of the Christian Churches in North Carolina will hold their second annual State Convention in the Gordon Street Christian Church in Winston this weekend. Feature speakers of the convention will be Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, president of Atlantic Christian College, and Mr. H. Gray Russell, Missionary to Africa. The following young people of the local Christian Church will be in attendance: J. Roy Martin Jr., Joyce Sutton, Judy Sutton, Judy Jolly, Millie Bowen, Sylvia Vincent, Polly Batts, Bobby Carroll, Sarah Ewell, and David Blackwood.

The circles of the Christian Women's Fellowship will meet on Monday as follows:

No. 1, with Mrs. Bill Sermons, 3:30 p.m.
 No. 2, with Mrs. T. I. Wagner, 3:30 p.m.
 No. 3, with Mrs. W. H. Woolard, 3:30 p.m.
 No. 4, with Mrs. John Carrington, Mrs. Della Perry, assisting hostess, 3:30 p.m.
 No. 5, with Mrs. J. B. Jackson, 3:30 p.m.
 No. 6 and No. 7 meet together at Church, Tuesday night 8:00.
 No. 8 and No. 9 meet together at Church, 8:00 p.m.

No. 10, with Mrs. James Malloy, 8:00 p.m.
 No. 11, with Mrs. Durward Harris, 8:00 p.m.

H. W. Lee Speaks To Exchangeites

Herbert W. Lee, former member of the U. S. Diplomatic Service and stationed in Egypt, spoke at the Exchange Club last night on the Near East situation and continued to answer questions some time after the conclusion of his speech. Dr. Walter Pott had charge of the program.

Lee, who spent two years in Egypt, said that while there he gained an insight as to what makes the people of that part of the world act as they do. He said that the strongest motivation for every act on the part of the people, both collectively and individually, is the Islamic religion. He said he did not believe the people of Egypt are in support of Nasser for the reason that it is possible for Nasser to be a Communist in disguise. He said the Moslems consider that Communism, being atheistic, is a thing to be hated.

Exchangeite John Lautares announced that final plans for the annual "Ladies' Night" banquet and presentation of the "Book of Golden Deeds" are complete. The banquet will be held at Moose Temple next Friday night at 7:30. Guests will include presidents of other civic groups and their wives. President Jack Wallace will preside.

Deane Decides Won't Seek Post

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP)—Rep. Charles B. Deane of Rockingham who said recently he had been asked to be a candidate for clerk of the House of Representatives announced last night he will not seek the post.

Deane, veteran representative from the Eighth Congressional District, was defeated last spring by A. Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro in the Democratic primary.

"I feel that I should say I am not a candidate for this office," Deane said. "It is my desire to faithfully complete my term in Congress and have some time to decide where my future course of service will lead me."

The new House clerk will be selected in January. Since the Democrats have a majority, the new clerk will be a Democrat.

Board Wants To Set Up Institute In Eastern N.C.

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Higher Education wants to establish a second technical institute patterned after the one in Gastonia.

The board asked yesterday that $100,000 be set aside from the state's contingency and emergency fund to operate the proposed institute during the next two years under the extension division of N. C. State College.

The extension division operates the Gaston Technical Institute for which $50,000 is being sought for each of the next two fiscal years.

Since the Gaston institute is in the west, the board recommended that the new institute be established "at another location," presumably in the east.

In another action, the board approved a program of occupational training "separate and distinct" from teacher training at Elizabeth City State Teachers College. It also endorsed an experimental nursing school plan at Woman's College.

Parked Car Hit By An 'Unknown'

A parked car belonging to Mrs. C. F. Hardee of 1503 E. Fourth St. was hit by an unknown vehicle last night.

The car was parked at Fourth and Greene Sts.

Mrs. Hardee reported to police that she parked the vehicle around 7:30 p.m. When she returned at 8:30 the rear fender of the car was damaged and the vehicle had been knocked partially on the sidewalk.

Damage amounted to approximately $25.

Investigating were Sgt. Jimmy Cannon and Ptl. James Briley.

N. C. Flier Dies As Jet Crashes

PRESQUE ISLE, Maine (AP)—An Air Force lieutenant from Lincoln, N.C., was one of two men killed near here Thursday night when their jet plane crashed and exploded.

The dead were identified as Lt. Charles E. Holly, 24, of Lincoln, the pilot, and his radar observer.

Officials of the Presque Isle Air Force Base said the men, in a F89D Scorpion, were checking on an unidentified plane over northern Maine that later proved to be a friendly aircraft.

Minstrel Chorus Entertains Club

Eli Bloom's Dixieland Kiwanis Minstrel chorus entertained the members of the Greenville Kiwanis Club at its weekly supper meeting last night.

The show will be presented Wednesday and Thursday nights at Austin Auditorium for the benefit of underprivileged children.

President Ed Waldrop announced that Underprivileged Child Chairman Charles P. Gaskins was completing plans for the Kiwanis Club to distribute baskets of food and clothing to 20 worthy families Christmas Eve.

The club extended thanks to Kiwanians Dick Rogers and "Bus" Goodyear for providing the float, "Kiwanis Show Boat," in the Santa Claus parade.

Dixie McLawhorn and Ed E. Rawl Jr. had birthdays and donated a dime for each year of their age for a club fund.

Guests of the club last night were Circle K members Tommy Nash and Lem Cox of East Carolina College, Jerry Powell, J. B. Smith and Paul C. Jewett.

Visiting Kiwanians were Sam P. Ford of Mount Dorah, Florida, Nate H. Shope of Elizabeth City and James Groome of Greensboro, son-in-law of Kiwanian Herman Duncan.

Local Ladies Get A Look At Army Training

Women Approve Training Outlook That Future Recruits Face At Army Base

Prior to taking off Thursday morning, the 11 women selected to make the trip to Fort Jackson posed for pictures. The group travelled on an Air Force C-47. (Reflector Staff Photo).

One of the displays set up for the visit to Fort Jackson was this one showing location and activities of Army Reserve units in North Carolina. The map includes the Reserve's sub-district headquarters in Greenville.

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer

Eleven Greenville women—clergy, church and school leaders—had the unique experience Thursday of determining firsthand what their children and their neighbor's children will have to undergo when the time comes for those children to receive military training.

The 11 were guests of the Army at Fort Jackson's sprawling Infantry Training Center. During their all-day visit they viewed training areas, were given explanations of techniques and policies, talked and visited with young men receiving training, and saw some results of the overall program.

For a few it was chance to renew acquaintances and see their own sons. For most, it was a first visit of that nature to a military installation. For all, it was an opportunity to have the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 explained and demonstrated in detail.

The Reserve Forces Act is a military training program for boys between the ages of 17 and 19. It offers them the opportunity of serving six months on active duty and seven-and-a-half years in an organized reserve program in their home towns. It was designed to enable the youth of military age to plan his future with certainty.

The all-day program started early for the 11 women. They were flown from Greenville's airport to Converse Air Base, a field near Columbia, S.C. The departure from Greenville was made at 8:15 and during the flight Major A. C. Marcereau, chief of the Greenville military sub-district, explained their program for the day.

Honor Guard

Upon arrival, half-hour later than expected because of a strong headwind, the group was welcomed by Major Glenn E. Deane of Fort Jackson and escorted to the post. There, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president of the Greenville Women's Club, and Mrs. Dora Fountain, representative of the Third Street PTA, were selected to review an honor guard set up for the Greenville women and another group from Greenwood, S.C.

The women were given a briefing in the Officers' Club by Major General Costello, Fort Jackson Commander, and Colonel Blackburn, commander of the post's Third Training Regiment. The two officers explained to the visitors military responsibilities of young men, the advantage of the Reserve Forces Act and the methods of training in the six months program.

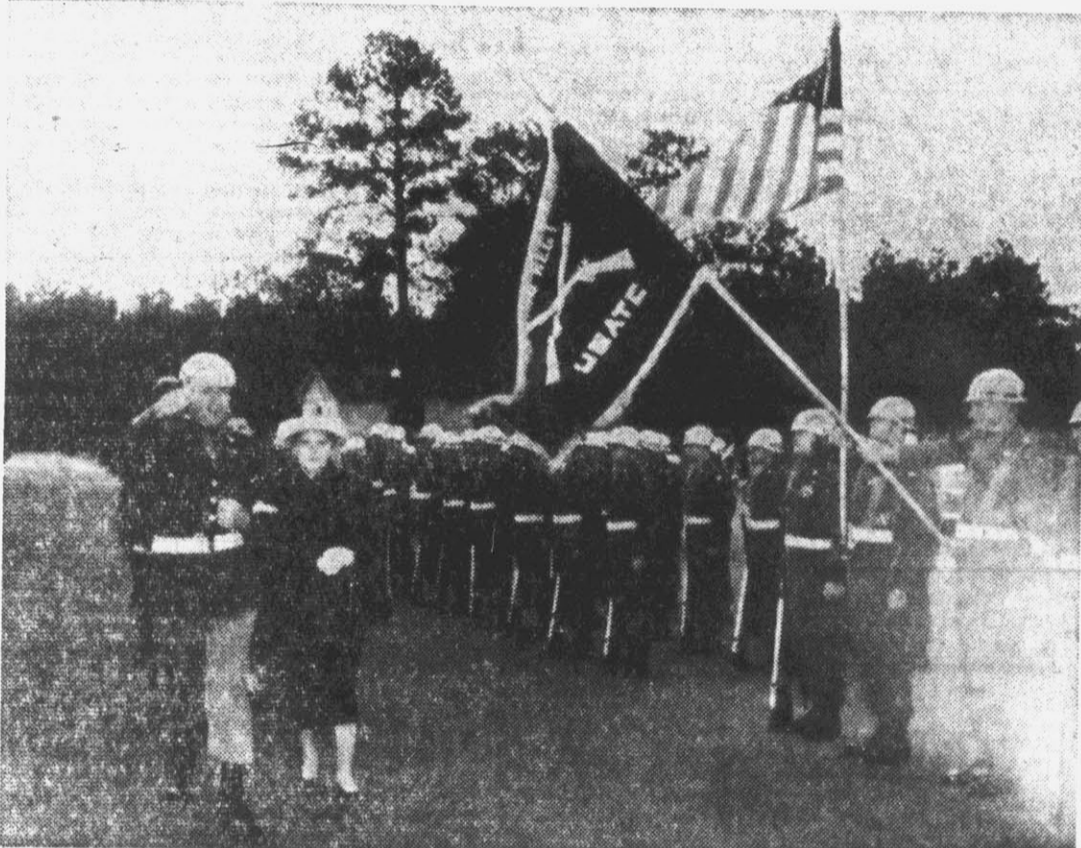

Especially pointed out was that officers and non-commissioned officers selected to administer the training are especially selected individuals. They are given special training and indoctrination themselves before being assigned to an RFA group.

The visitors from Greenville and Greenwood mixed with RFA trainees at lunch period in the trainees' mess hall. Mrs. Fountain's son, Theodore, a trainee, joined the group during the meal and spent the rest of the afternoon with them. During the meal the Greenville women talked with trainees who had been instructed to answer any question that was asked of them and to give truthful answers regardless of whatever situation might exist.

The afternoon was started with a tour of one of the chapels, a dental clinic and certain medical facilities. Army procedures were explained at each stop and questions answered for the visitors.

Highpoint Of Visit

Perhaps the highpoint of the entire visit was the last stop on the program. That was a trip to Fort Jackson's "Panorama of Basic Training", a tent display that shows all of the activities undertaken by a trainee at the post.

The Panorama includes six assembly tents staffed by 120 men. The tents show initial processing activities, activities in the first eight weeks of training, activities in a second eight weeks of infantry training, the specialist training program at the post, and costs of equipping and training a soldier at Fort Jackson. Every phase is explained by soldiers who actually do the work and some of the actual processing of individuals in the Personnel Center in the display. Between showings of the Panorama, personnel who train the boys perform their regular Army duties.

Following the Panorama exhibit the group was given a demonstration of a rifle squad in a tactical situation involving use of support from a heavy machine gun, heavy mortar and recoilless rifle.

Loss of time during the day prevented a visit to an infiltration course where trainees are taught to advance under live machine gun fire. However, take-off time for the return trip was delayed only five minutes and the group returned to Greenville at 5:30 p.m.

On the trip home, the women were asked for comments about the visit. All were impressed, according to reports they turned in, especially the women with children who are or who will soon be eligible for participation in the program.

"Wonderful!" Mrs. Fountain, whose son will graduate from his six months program in another ten days, described the visit and the RFA program as "wonderful". She added, "The boys are beautifully taken care of and their training and handling is nothing at all like the dental clinic and certain medical facilities. Army procedures were explained at each stop and questions answered for the visitors."

"I feel that I understand the program and the things he had to go through."

"No Hesitancy" Mrs. Michael Luskin, president of the Greenville League of Women Voters and mother of a boy who will be eligible for RFA training in another year, has "no hesitancy at all" about allowing him to enter the program. "In able close to the program, commented, 'This trip today has opened my eyes, softened my heart, and made me think that this training program can be a highlight in any boy's life.'"

A desire for every mother of a teen-age son to see the make the visit was expressed by Mrs. Boley Farley and a "new and broader understanding of the work the Army is doing training our young men" was voiced by Mrs. H.T. Patterson.

The trip was arranged by Third Army personnel for the express purpose of showing the women just what is done in the RFA training program.

They succeeded in their purpose—so far as the women are concerned.

Middle East Crisis Casts Shadow On U. S. Mediterranean Airbases

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's stake in the ominous struggle for the Middle East is bigger and more vital than appears at first glance. Fabulous deposits of oil and the Suez Canal are the obvious prizes. Both of them loom with enormous magnitude. American investors have hundreds of millions of dollars involved in such oil-rich Arab states as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Britain regards the Suez Canal as an indispensable lifeline to her empire.

Other nations also have a paramount interest in keeping the canal open to shipping at all times without depending upon the whims of Egyptian Premier Nasser. But to American military authorities, the critical problems of Arabian oil and unrestricted transit through the Suez are rivaled if not surpassed by the potential threat to this country's outer perimeter of defenses against Soviet Russia.

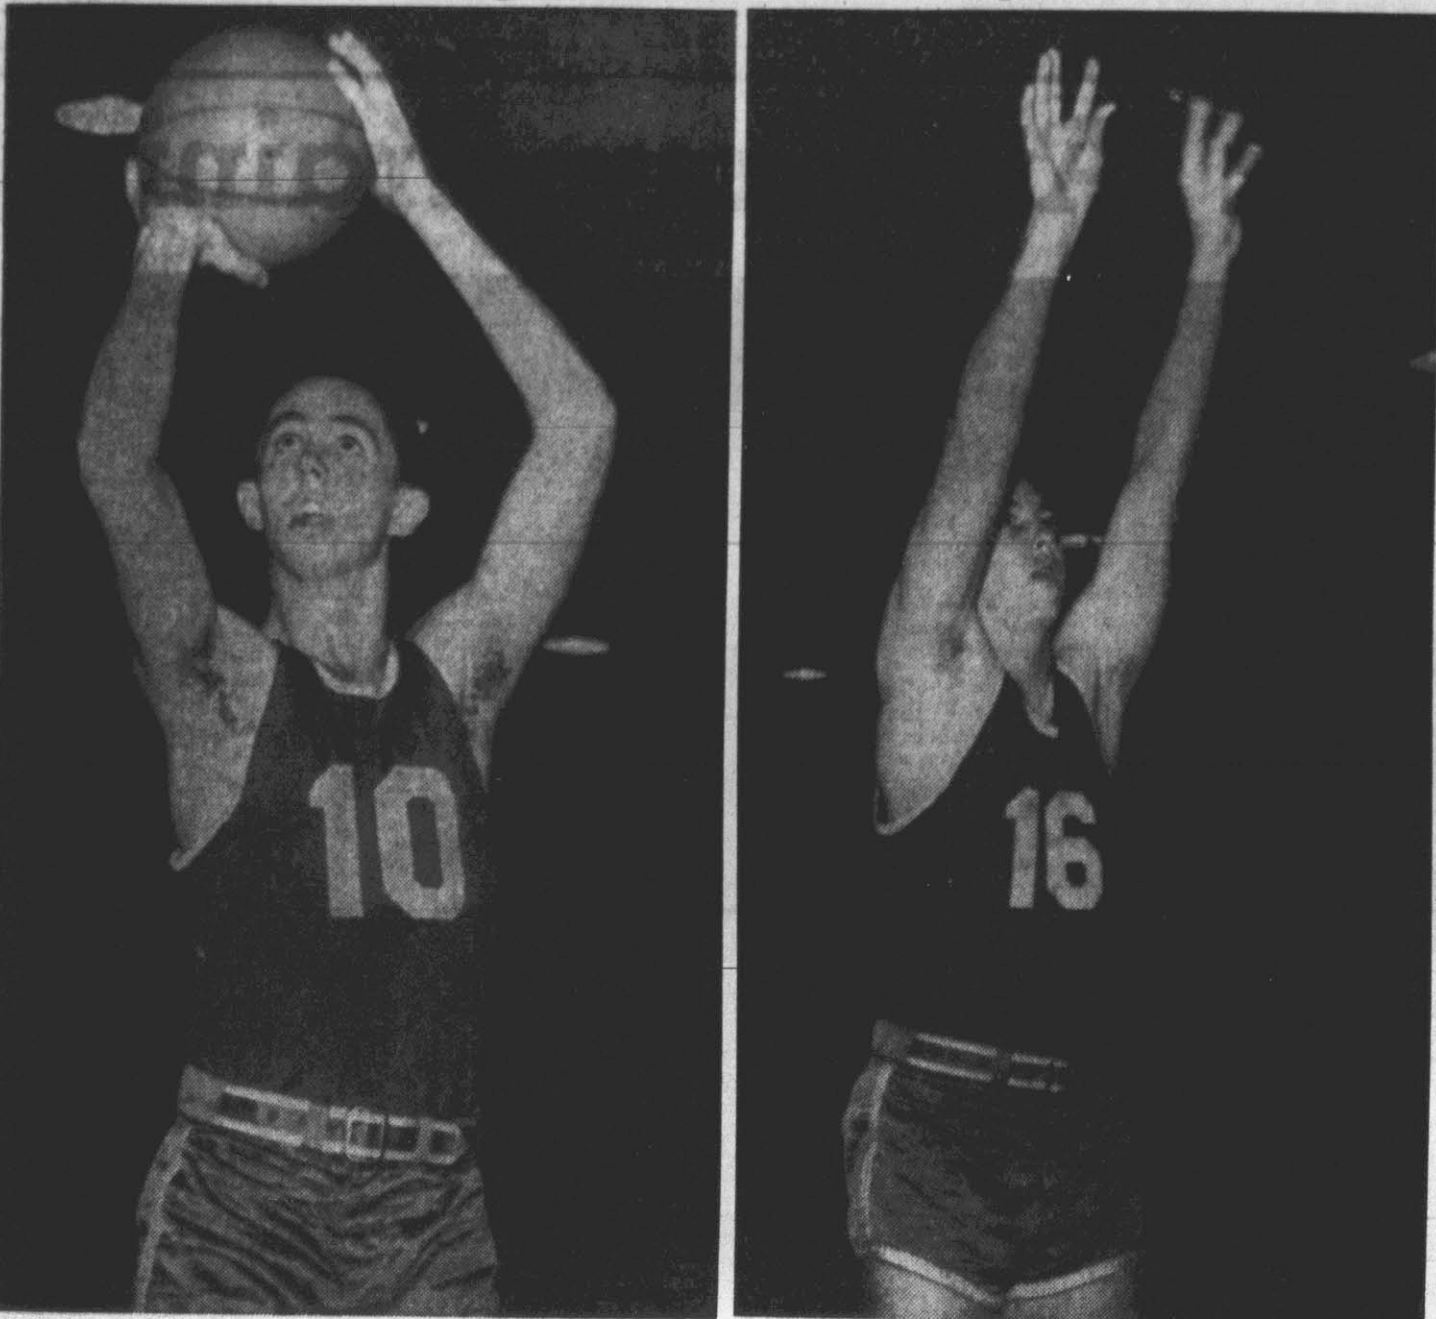

At the moment, the threat is most acute in the Middle East. It could spread to other quarters of the globe. Fed by Egypt's open defiance of the Western Powers, the flames of anti-Western Arab nationalism have been whipped to new heights of fury during the Suez crisis. The result, as viewed by Pentagon officials, has been an upsurge of uncertainty as to the future of U. S. airbases in the North African trouble zone.

Security Tightened. Pentagon officials declined to give any estimate of the U. S. air strength, either in planes or manpower, at the bases. Security on each base has been tightened considerably in the last few weeks. However, an Air Force spokesman emphasizes that planes using these bases—including giant intercontinental bombers equipped with atomic weapons—aren't kept on the ground like sitting ducks. Constantly shifted, the planes are kept ready round-the-clock wherever they might be. The bases themselves are strongly defended by Air Force "security police" that would be used chiefly as striking areas and for mid-air refueling in time of emergency. "We haven't hit the panic button yet," an Air Force officer commented. "Just say we're ready if the alarm does go off."

New Cage Year Finds Favorites Still Winning

COLLEGE BASKETBALL By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS It's another college basketball season but things haven't changed much since the last one.

The Dons, national champions the last two years, kicked off the campaign last night by trouncing Chico State 63-34 for their 56th straight victory.

Tonight's program also should show what such highly-touted clubs as Oregon State, West Virginia and George Washington have on the ball.

Oregon State, rated a good bet for the Pacific Coast Conference title, opened last night by nipping Brigham Young 62-55.

Seven Big Ten teams also take off their wraps in nonconference games. Delaware will be at Michigan, Iowa State at Michigan State, Vanderbilt at Minnesota.

Morrow Leads USA To Greatest Olympic Play

Sprinter Takes Third Medal In Relay Race

MELBOURNE (AP)—Bobby Morrow, Texas Mercury with a taste for gold, got his "triple" and Atlanta's Mildred McDaniel leaped higher than any woman in history during world record-shattering performances today as the U.S. track and field team clinaxed the greatest showing in Olympic Games history.

Morrow, the 100 and 200 meters gold medalist, flashed his blinding speed again to anchor the U.S. 400-meter relay team to victory in 39.5 seconds, three-tenths under the Olympic and world mark set by the American quartet Jesse Owens triggered in the 1936 Games at Berlin.

Miss McDaniel, a lanky senior at Tuskegee Institute, cleared 5 feet, 9 1/4 inches for a new world mark in the women's high jump. Their victories, coupled with a decisive win by the U.S. team in the 1600-meter relay, gave the American track and field men and women 16 gold medals — exceeding by two the all-time high of the 1952 squad attained at Helsinki.

So completely was the track and field phase of the Games Uncle Sam's gold-tinted show that even the winner of the spotlighted 900-meter run turned out to be American-trained. Ron Delany's gold medal, of course, goes to Ireland but Ron, an exchange student at Villanova, has done virtually all of his major running and received most of his training in the United States.

Even a heavy surge by Russia in the unofficial point tabulations, most of it from events considered minor by the American standard, failed to dim the star-spangled day.

Of the six events contested on this final day of the track and field phase, the United States failed to sparkle in only one — the classic marathon, in which the first American to finish, Nick Costes of Farrell, Pa., was 20th behind the winner, Alain Mimoun of France.

In the women's 400-meter relay, won as expected by Australia, the United States quartet bettered the listed world record by nearly half a second although winding up third.

Morrow, running the fourth leg behind Thankie Baker, Ira Murchison and Leamon King, started it when he hit the tape about a stride ahead of Russia in the 400-meter relay.

Patterson Facing Future Prospects

CHICAGO (AP) — Floyd Patterson, the incredible youngest world heavyweight champion in history, today peered over the wreckage of a pathetic Archie Moore to a golden future against a mixed-up crowd of contenders.

But toss in Eddie Machen, Hurricane Jackson, or Willie Pastrano as anxious challengers, and still the 21-year-old Patterson may not defend his newly-won title until June.

Patterson, the kid with tremendous class, last night knocked out light heavyweight champion Moore in 2:27 of the fifth round in their showdown for Rocky Marciano's vacated heavyweight crown.

This nationally televised Chicago Stadium bout was not a fight. It was a quick slaughter. The 39-year-old Moore entered the ring a black velvet robe, trimmed in gold. That was the only time he dazzled an announced crowd of 14,000.

Moore pawed hopefully for four rounds, but he had no defense for the quick-punching, relentless former Olympic middleweight champion. Archie was slashed over the bridge of his nose in the third round. This was the first time Moore, a veteran of 157 fights over 20 years, was ever cut.

Came the fifth and epic round. Patterson slipped to the floor in what appeared an amateur swipe at Moore. But sizzling Floyd quickly righted. Patterson smashed a whistling left hook to the jaw. Moore was dumped. Old Archie struggled to his feet at Referee Frank Sikora's nine count. Patterson moved in like a butcher.

A left propped up Moore, then Patterson whammed across a right and down went Archie again. This time he struggled to his feet as Referee Sikora counted nine or ten — it never was clear which to ringside observers. At any rate Sikora waved a finish to the fight and the bell sounded a id the roar of the crowd. For a moment, it wasn't certain whether Patterson had scored a TKO or a knockout. The officials finally said it was a knockout.

CHICAGO (AP)—Floyd Patterson, the new heavyweight champion, is a native of North Carolina. He was born in Waco near Shelby, and still has relatives in the area. He was a toddler when his family moved to New York.

Season Tickets Ready At ECC

East Carolina Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen announced yesterday that season tickets for the Pirate home basketball campaign are now on sale.

Those interested in attaining tickets may contact Jorgensen at the College gymnasium or either get in touch with a Pirate Club member.

At the present time, East Carolina is in the midst of one of the nation's top home-court winning streaks. They have not tasted defeat on the Memorial floor since losing to Carolina in the 1951 dedication game. A total of 48 victims have gone down to defeat before the Bucs since that time.

The Pirates' first home appearance this winter will take place Thursday night, December 5 when the McCrary Eagles visit the gym.

Canton Trounces Pack 33-6 For Class AA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Canton whipped Washington High, 33-6, last night to win the state AA high school football championship.

Russia also threw a shutout in shooting, getting 15 points for a 1-2 sweep in the 300-meter free rifle shooting and five more points for fourth and fifth places in clay pigeon shooting, won by Galliano Rossini of Italy.

DICK TRACY

CRIMSTOPPERS TEXTBOOK

NOTIFY THE POLICE OF ANY SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITIES ON ROOF. MANY BURGLARS ATTEMPT TO CIRCUMVENT ALARM SYSTEMS BY ROOF ENTRY.

THAT'S THE WHOLE STORY. I'VE TOLD YOU THE WHOLE TRUTH ABOUT IVY AND HIS COUNTERFEITERS.

YOU'LL BE KEPT IN PROTECTIVE CUSTODY TILL THIS IS CLEARED UP.

BASED ON THE WOMAN'S CONFESSION, TRACY AND SAM HAVE MOVED SWIFTLY.

JUST TWO THAT'S ALL THE REST MUST BE IN THE CAVE.

ACCORDING TO THE KID'S MOTHER—THIS IS THE HORSE THAT'S TRAINED TO OPEN THE CAVE.

WE'LL LET THE REINS HANG. SHE SAID THE HORSE WOULD KNOW WHERE TO GO.

AND SO, HEAVILY ARMED AND EQUIPPED WITH EXTRA AMMO AND TEAR GAS, THE DETAIL SETS OUT.

AND IN THE CAVE

FLATTOP DIDN'T SEE THE GUN I WAS HOLDING IN THE STRAP OF MY BAG. IT WAS EITHER HIS LIFE OR MINE.

SO IVY GOT YOU PAROLED, ONLY TO KEEP YOU PRISONER?

DEC.?

YOU SAY THERE'S NO WAY TO GET OUT TILL MY OPENS THE CAVE DOOR?

MAYBE. FOLLOW ME.

AND AS LIZZ FOLLOWS THE EX-CONVICT INTO THE DARKENED DEPTHS OF THE CAVE, AN APPARITION MIGHT BE SEEN RISING ABOVE THE FALLEN FLATTOP—

LAUGHTER... THAT CANNOT BE HEARD.

AND THEN QUIET... FLATTOP IS FREE AT LAST!!

RUSTY RILEY by FRANK GODWIN

RUSTY, DRESSED IN DANNY'S CLOTHES, HAS GONE TO THE WELL FOR THE CRUTCHES AND IS MISTAKEN FOR DANNY BY SALLY LUMMER AND DROOP SOUR.

NOW, WATCH... HE'S GETTIN' READY TO WORK THE MAGIC

I BETTER TAKE THESE CRUTCHES BACK TO DANNY.

HEY, LOOKIT! HE AIN'T LAME NO MORE!

GOLLY! THEY IS MAGIC IN THAT WELL... I'M GETTIN' OUTA HERE!

I WONDER WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THEM... AND WHO ARE THEY?

BACK AT THE BOGGS CABIN, RUSTY RELATES HIS EXPERIENCE.

SHE WAS KINDA PLUMP WITH YELLOW HAIR, AND HE WAS TALL AND HAD A MUSTACHE AND WORE A KIND OF A PEAKED CAR.

MAW! THAT WAS MIZ SALLY LUMMER AND DROOP SOUR!

IT SHO' WAS!

DROOP SOUR? ISN'T HE THE MAN WHO ACCUSED MR. BOGGS OF KILLING TOAD LUMMER?

IT SHO' IS... AN' THAT WOMAN IS TOAD LUMMER'S WIDDER. I NEVER DID TRUST NARY ONE OF EM!

DROOP SOUR LIED ABOUT MY HUSBAND, AN' THEY GIVE SALLY LUMMER THE MONEY WE SAVED FOR DANNY'S OPERATION!

SOMETHING FUNNY'S GOIN' ON HERE... I'LL TELL TEX ABOUT IT WHEN HE COMES... HE'LL KNOW WHAT TO DO.

NEXT MORNING

...AND THAT'S THE STORY... WHAT DO YOU THINK, TEX?

PUNNO... BUT I RECKON A LITTLE INVESTIGATION WOULDN'T HURT.

Demonstration Of Faith In Poland Since Prelate Freed

By COLIN FROST
 WARSAW (AP)—In the past month Poland has witnessed remarkable demonstration of religious faith. Roman Catholics by the thousands packed into churches across the country to pray with their newly freed Primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński.

Last Sunday the cardinal preached at three Warsaw churches, including St. John's Cathedral. Each time the crowd flowed over to the sidewalks outside. Inside women fainted in the crush.

These scenes have been repeated at the cardinal's visits to churches in the provinces.

To a nation more than 90 per cent Roman Catholic the cardinal appears a symbol of hope that the long years of division between church and state—and factions within the church itself—are ending.

In his sermons the cardinal expresses this hope by using a parable of family life: "If one member of the family is ill at ease then all the family suffers."

The cardinal's three-year confinement, which ended in October, was itself the main barrier to normal church-state relations. Now a joint commission is examining other issues. The church's demand for freedom of religious education tops the list.

Ranking churchmen are reluctant to discuss these talks until concrete decisions are reached.

But they have a public assurance from the education minister, Wladyslaw Bejnkowski, that the government intends to make a reality of the Polish constitution's guarantee of freedom of conscience—and that religious education will be freely allowed "while maintaining the principle of secular schools."

The precise meaning of this last statement is difficult to gauge. It could mean that priests will be allowed to visit schools and give instruction where school authorities and parents request it. But this so far is supposition.

Young children in country districts have had to walk miles in the depth of winter for their Sunday school. The church wants permission to hold Sunday schools in parish rooms or the homes of church members.

Church sources interpret Bejnkowski's statement as meaning this will be granted. They think it unlikely the church in Poland will again be able to run its own grade schools, though it still has kindergartens, orphanages and the Catholic University at Lublin.

One issue believed settled is the old state demand for the right of veto on appointment of bishops. This was one of the differences which led to Cardinal Wyszyński's arrest. He contended that if church and state in Poland are separate entities, the state must not seek to meddle in church affairs.

It is reliably reported that the state has agreed to waive the veto on appointment of bishops. Parts of the Western territories annexed from Germany after World War II are technically included in German sees. This situation was at one time built up into a big anticlerical propaganda campaign with the Communists charging that the church refused to recognize Poland's right to the lands.

The talks on these and lesser issues are reportedly still in a preparatory stage. No speedy package settlement is likely.

Jerzy Stachelski, minister without portfolio, is the government's representative in the joint talks. He says the discussions started in an atmosphere of "mutual understanding."

Art Appreciation Course Slated For TV Viewers

"Art Appreciation" will be offered by East Carolina College as its eleventh televised course of study. The first of a series of lectures and demonstrations will be presented December 24 over Channel 9.

The course will include sixty half-hour televised classes scheduled for 3 p.m. Monday through Friday of each week from December 24 through March 8. Programs will originate from WNCT of Greenville. Upon completing requirements, those enrolled as students will receive three quarter hours of undergraduate college credit.

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the East Carolina department of art, since last September, will be instructor of the course. A graduate of New York University, he has taught there and at State Teachers College, Edinboro, Pa.; the University of Illinois; the Art Institute, Chicago; and elsewhere.

He has studied painting at the University of the Philippines and with George Ross and William Bazotes in New York. His works are represented in private collections in Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, and Alabama.

The course in art appreciation will follow the college's tenth televised course, which dealt with music appreciation. The music course has won favorable response from the public, and the series of programs on art appreciation is expected to be popular with a large TV audience.

The new course will present the art fields and has been planned to develop a basis for appreciation. Discussions of the problem of human needs and the arts; materials and processes; the art elements and principles of design; and the areas of painting, sculpture and architecture will be covered in light of the arts in 1956-57.

Graduates of accredited high schools may enroll. They may participate as students working for college credit or as auditors. All programs will, of course, be open to the public.

Applications to register should be addressed to Dr. Orval L. Phillips, Registrar, at the college. For further details and information, those who are interested write to Dr. Wellington B. Gray, Box 115, East Carolina College, Greenville, North Carolina.

Canadian Dollar Bolstered By Flow Of U. S. Dollars

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—The Canadian dollar is worth about four cents more in today's market than the American dollar.

This doesn't mean that the American dollar is losing any of its prestige in other lands—it is still the most sought after currency in the world today.

It does mean that Canada's vast postwar expansion is catching its second breath—that American dollars are flowing northward.

The flow has been particularly large in recent days because Canadians have been borrowing in the U.S. capital market—interest rates are even higher north of the border.

As these borrowed American dollars are exchanged for Canadian to go to work there, the exchange rates reflect this large supply and the Canadian dollar Monday rose to $1.0417, just a shade under the high of $1.0434 in August 1952 when a previous great spurt in investment in Canada was underway.

Some American businessmen watch this rise nervously. They wonder if the more expensive Canadian dollar may put any pressure for still higher prices on the things they buy from Canada—such as newsprint, woodpulp, metals, oil and chemicals.

Some Canadians also watch this rush of America dollars northward with concern. They know that investment funds are needed to develop Canada's vast natural resources. But they feel that the profits from this development may flow southward in future years. For a time last summer this was a prime political issue in Canada. Many contended that U.S. corporations should let Canadians buy into their subsidiaries there.

Americans aren't the only ones investing in Canada these days. There has been a flight of capital from Europe. Investors there feel the money will be safer in Canada than in troubled Europe.

In the first spurt of investment in Canada, in the first part of this century, it was British capital that financed Canadian expansion. But since the mid 1920s American capital has been taking over. In the early 1930s when the British Commonwealth companies set up a preference system, U.S. corporations began setting up Canadian subsidiaries so they could export to preference areas from Canada rather than from the United States.

Another great spurt started after World War II when Canada was found to have vast resources needed to supplement those in this country—uranium, nickel, copper, oil.

There has been some investment in Canadian stocks and bonds—Canadian bonds, for example, have a higher yield than U.S. bonds. But most of the American dollars have gone into leases, plants, mines, wells and facilities.

The U.S. Department of Commerce puts U.S. direct investments in Canada at the end of 1955 at 6 1/2 billion dollars—a sizable chunk of the total of 19 billion throughout the world.

Canada's dollar owes its present high rating largely to this investment. This year our northern neighbor is running a commodity trade deficit, imports topping exports by one billion dollars—more than double what it was in 1955.

By itself this factor would weaken the Canadian dollar—just as the trade gap weakens the British pound. But the flow of foreign capital to Canada has more than made up the difference and put the Canadian dollar at a premium.

Canada's net foreign debt as it borrows to expand may hit nine billion dollars this year—up five billion in six years. This year alone the capital investment in Canada may reach eight billion dollars.

Canadians are furnishing part of this capital but much is coming from the United States—in dollars worth four cents less than the Canadian one.

Today's Film-Going Public Can 'Take It'

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can film audiences take it?

There is increasing evidence that they can. There once was a time when Hollywood steered clear of hot controversy and delicate topics. Sure, the movies took stands against Nazis, communism, injustice and bigotry, but you couldn't find much argument among thinking Americans on those scores.

Critics claimed that in its zeal to offend no one, Hollywood ended up by pleasing no one.

The whole philosophy has changed. The studios are now attacking a variety of hot subjects and are stretching the production code as far as it can go. There is even a move under way to change the code.

George Stevens has helped light the way in the attack on controversy. Dire things were predicted when he announced he would film "Giant." The book was not well received in some Texas circles. One rugged Lone Star Stater even threatened, "If you show that damn picture, we'll shoot the screen full of holes!"

"Giant" has now played Texas and there are no reports of perforated screens. In fact, John Rosenfield, the noted critic of the Dallas Morning News, reported the film has been doing smash business in Texas.

Rosenfield wrote: "Not one Texas theater reports abnormal audience behavior, other than youngsters ripping all pictures of James Dean out of the lobby display frames."

Stevens didn't pussyfoot in his treatment of the Edna Ferber novel, either. He jibes the Texans on their insular attitude, their displays of wealth. A crack is made about the 27 1/2 per cent oil depletion tax allowance which has created fabulous fortunes. And the climax concerns discrimination against Mexicans.

Happy over the "Giant" receipts Texas theater chain operator R.J. O'Donnell remarked, "The public is not as 'touchy' as you might expect."

Other controversial films: "Island in the Sun," a full-scale study of miscegenation; "A Hatful of Rain," about a dope addict.

Bad Dream Put Him In Hospital

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Felix Barnes said he had a bad dream yesterday.

The dream was so vivid, Barnes said, it caused him to jump from his bed and leap through a second-story window. The 49-year-old Oklahoma City man is in the hospital suffering a broken hip, a broken wrist and a broken finger.

Perhaps They'll Call It The 'Presley Century'

By ED CREAHER
 ASSOCIATED Press Analyst
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Maybe this will become known as the Elvis Presley Century.

It's whiny, sneering, trembling in the legs and it makes a lot of money.

Its voice is discordant to everybody except teen-agers.

It reeks of sex instead of romance, but it runs like a hare from serious commitments.

Maybe, like the groaning post-adolescent from Tennessee, the 20th Century is more a fad than a reality. Maybe we'll get over it by the year 2000, which is no encouragement to those of us who don't expect to be around that long.

We don't have, as the post

World War I days had, a lost generation.

We've lost a whole century. We split the atom and opened the door to power and riches undreamed of. Instead we used this new tool to blast two cities level with the earth and raced on, idiot fashion, finding bigger and better ways to blow ourselves to pieces.

We built a standard of living that put two cars in many a garage—four, for that matter, in certain male canary's entourage—but we begrudged the money to build the schools to educate our kids.

Yep. An Elvis Presley Century. Brash and childish. Rich and whimpering.

"Love Me Tender..." that's a key word: Tender. Not too hard or it might hurt. Love is dangerous, anyway; people might take advantage of you.

Besides, get too intense and you least to sneer. On a psychiatrist's couch. It's simpler to hate. Or at least to sneer.

"Don't be cruel..."

That's another Presley tune. No, don't be cruel. Why are people so mean to us when we're so nice to everybody? Nobody understands us. Everybody hates us.

"Heavenly Hotel..."

Presley again. And that's it. Sitting in our lonely rooms, biting our fingernails, waiting for the bomb to go off, lamenting the warm comfort (or so it says here) of centuries past.

History may say that this sideburned youth who wiggles his hips while singing popular songs was a symbol of this time—that this century does a lot of wiggling and squirming without ever getting anywhere.

Try to imagine a Presley in the 1800's, when tougher people than we were forging the world we seem to be dithering away.

But let's not be too hard on Mr. Presley. Doubtless he does the best he can, and nobody should interfere with his right to do it.

But when the American people shell out over a million dollars a year to watch him do it—

Well, leave it at that. Maybe this is an Elvis Presley Century.

Cashier Panics; Bandit Ran Out

DENVER (AP)—"This is a hold-up," read the large yellow card handed Mrs. Jessie Ulibarri, a cashier at the Denver Motor Vehicle Department yesterday.

"It's a holdup!" screamed Mrs. Ulibarri, slamming shut her cash drawer and running out of the cashier's cage.

The would-be bandit, who had pulled his card out of a briefcase in which he carried a revolver, he showed to Mrs. Ulibarri, turned and fled.

"I was so scared I didn't know what to do," said Mrs. Ulibarri.
