

Auto Driver Dead, 10 Train Cars Derailed In Crash

FATALITY—This is the Thunderbird in which Thomas B. Herman, prominent Wilson architect, died instantly last night. The car struck a Norfolk Southern train on the U. S. 264 bypass around Farmville. A train car was derailed by the force of the collision and that caused ten cars to pile up approximately 300 yards down the track.

TRAIN WRECK—Pictured above are several of the Norfolk Southern train cars which were wrecked near Farmville around 7:15 last night. Ten cars were derailed when a vehicle struck the train. Four of the cars overturned alongside the roadbed. Workmen this morning were replacing the approximately 300 feet of track torn up in the wreck and officials said they hoped trains would be able to pass over the track by noon today. Wilson Man Dies In Wreck

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. FARMVILLE—A prominent Wilson architect died instantly near here last night when his 1955 Thunderbird crashed into a Norfolk Southern train derailling ten of the train's cars.

Investigating Highway Patrolman R. E. Taylor identified the victim as Thomas B. Herman, 61, of Pine Forest Apartments, Wilson.

Herman's car was headed west on U. S. 264 when the accident occurred. The car-train crash took place around 7:15 at an unguarded railroad crossing about three miles west of Marlboro on the U. S. 264 bypass around Farmville.

Taylor said Herman's car was spun completely around when it struck the train. Herman's body was found partially in the totally demolished Thunderbird, the patrolman noted.

He identified the engineer of the train as J. R. Latham. J. E. Davis was conductor on the train, J. H. Mycott, flagman and S. R. Bray, brakeman.

Taylor said Mycott estimated the speed of the car at 70 to 80 miles per hour.

Patrolman Taylor said that in his opinion the accident was caused by the high rate of speed of the vehicle and the fact that there are no signal lights at the crossing.

Traffic on the east-west highway was tied up for three hours and 45 minutes last night. The train blocked the highway from 7:15 until around 11 o'clock.

Highway traffic was rerouted on U. S. 264 A.

Farmville Norfolk Southern Agent O. G. Spell said this morning the 38th car of the 75-car train. The force of the collision derailed that car and ten cars were then derailed around 300 yards down the track from the highway crossing.

Four of the cars overturned along the track embankment and six others were left standing on the road bed.

The train crew was taken to Wilson where they obtained another engine which was used to pull the 29 cars behind the derailed cars were placed in a siding, Spell said.

The head-end of the train proceeded to Marsden in Chocowinity which was the original destination of the train.

"About 300 feet of track were torn up," Spell said this morning. "Crews are working on it now and we hope to be able to have trains passing by 12 o'clock."

Spell said damage to the track has been estimated at $2,000. Train damage is expected to amount to around $8,000.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse this morning ruled the death accidental. He said Herman died of head and chest injuries. No inquest is scheduled.

Highway patrolman said two other serious car - train wrecks have occurred at the railroad crossing within the past two years.

For Pitt County last night's fatality was the 20th of 1956. It puts the county two above the old record of 18 traffic fatalities within one year. That total was reached during three prior years—1938, 1950 and 1955.

Herman was said to have been returning to Wilson from Greenville when the accident occurred. He is survived by a brother, A. C. Herman of Landstade, Penna., and a sister.

Soviet Condemned By UN Assembly, In 55-8 Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The general Assembly condemned Russia last night for stamping out Hungary's freedom bid. The vote split Asia's four "neutral" Commonwealth nations as well as the entire Asian-African group of countries. The resolution, sponsored by the United States and 19 other countries, was adopted by the Assembly by 55-8 with only the Soviet bloc casting negative ballots. It was the strongest censure the Assembly has voted against the Russian military action in Hungary. The resolution also called on Moscow to pull its troops out of Hungary at once, under U. N. supervision. It asked the Russians to "permit the re-establishment of the political independence of Hungary."

NATO Pledges No War Of Liberation Policy

PARIS (AP)—The Atlantic Alliance called today for freedom in Eastern Europe but pledged itself against a war of liberation. Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization endorsed a five-point declaration of policy on Eastern Europe submitted by West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano. NATO officials emphasized that the declaration is a Western statement of policy designed to quiet any fears in Russia that the West is preparing to launch an attack to liberate the peoples of Eastern Europe.

But von Brentano said the peoples of Eastern Europe have a right to know the free world's attitude toward their struggle for freedom. He said NATO must not encourage any militant action or uprising that could spill over into Western Europe. Instead NATO should strive to influence events through economic and social contacts.

The foreign ministers directed that the declaration be incorporated in the closing communique which will sum up the work of the current meeting of foreign, finance and defense ministers from the 15 NATO nations.

Von Brentano had warned the Council that if Hungary's revolutionary general powers of inquiry, mediation, conciliation or arbitration in such quarrels between members.

The most critical such quarrels is between Greece, Britain and Turkey over the strategic Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Britain holds it as a colony and both she and Turkey want to keep it that way. Because four-fifths of the population is of Greek descent, Greece wants to annex it.

All three nations voted for the resolution, which gives the secretary general powers of inquiry, mediation, conciliation or arbitration in such quarrels between members.

India and the other three Colombo nations—Indonesia, Ceylon and Burma—had joined earlier in sponsoring a mildly phrased counter-resolution expressing regret the Russians had not withdrawn from Hungary. But in the vote on the U. N. resolution Ceylon and Burma voted to condemn the Soviets, while India and Indonesia abstained as expected.

Observers said Russia's delegation was more concerned over the split in the Colombo group, on whom the Soviets had counted for at least implied support, than over the resolution itself. The Russians have ignored two previous Assembly calls for withdrawal of their forces from Hungary.

Sources close to the Burmese and Ceylonese said they finally had decided it was time to take a firm stand no matter whose feet got stepped on. Burmese Delegate U. Pe Kin declared no nation had the right to coerce other nations, and "we have seen in Hungary that the Soviet Union insists on coercion."

Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. termed the split in the Asian-African nations "very significant" because "it shows that many countries feel there must be one rule for everybody—It is also bad in the West."

Lodge and his sponsors made one concession to the Colombo group's milder resolution incorporating into their own a request to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to take any steps he deemed helpful "in relation to the Hungarian problem." India and his associates had proposed that Hammarskjold be asked to go to Budapest and Moscow, if necessary, to negotiate for the Soviet troop withdrawal.

Hungarians In New Protest Strike; Russians Said Now Running Country

BUDAPEST (AP)—Tens of thousands of Budapest workers quit work again today only a few hours after returning to their factories at the end of a two-day nationwide general strike. The new walkout was in protest against the arrest of the chairman of the Budapest Central Workers' Council and his chief assistant by the Russian-imposed government of Premier Janos Kadar.

There was a total walkout in the industrial 11th District of Budapest, which has many textile and tool plants. Informed sources reported the boss of Russia's secret police, Gen. Ivan Serov, has taken over control of Kadar's government in a desperate effort to end the continuing widespread resistance to Communism and Moscow control.

The situation in Hungary now is so chaotic that the Russians are reported running matters entirely in effect replacing the government of Kadar. A Hungarian source said Serov "is now running what is left of Workers' Council, and his deputy, Sandor Barl.

The walkout spread rapidly among plants in the capital when the workers heard of the arrests. More stoppages were expected to follow in provincial cities and towns when they got the news. One of the first walkouts came at the Bajolannis factory, the plant where Racz worked. It employs 6,000 persons. Laborers and white collar workers lined up in the streets after walking off their jobs and angrily discussed the seizure of the two labor leaders.

Workers in Racz's plant said the 32,000 workers in the huge iron and steel plant on Csepel Island, Hungary's largest, had promised to join in the new strike.

"We continue the strike until Racz is back," workers told Western correspondents. The workers were especially incensed by the reports that Racz and Barl were seized after being lured from a factory building to a conference in Kadar's parliament building.

Rumors circulated through the capital that Kadar had committed suicide or vanished. The rumors could not be checked, however, and appeared to be more wishful thinking than anything else. There was no way of knowing unless the government makes an announcement.

Ministerial Ass'n Sets Up Schedule

The Greenville Ministerial Association at its meeting here set up its evangelism schedule for 1957, which includes a religious census of the city by all churches in March.

A union revival, with Jimmy Johnson, in Wright auditorium, and sponsored by the Ministerial Association, will be held May 19-June 2.

The fall schedule includes visitation evangelism, with all churches coordinated.

A request from the National Association of Evangelicals was issued calling on churches and leaders to write the President and U. S. senators asking that United States pressure be brought to bear on the government of Columbia, South America for persecuting Christians of the evangelical churches.

An appeal from the National Council of Churches was read calling on churches to receive a special offering for relief of Hungarian refugees before January 15. Money should be sent to denominational headquarters or to CARE.

R. V. John W. Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, was welcomed into the association's membership.

The program for a statewide referendum on intoxicating beverages is being circulated in the county and city and copies should be returned to C. C. Cribb, President, 6 Coteche Street, Greenville, by December 17.

The "Passion Play" planning committee will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church.

The association unanimously elected the following officers for 1957: President, Robert B. Crawford, Greenville Free Will Baptist Church; vice president, Capt. Ben Lewis, Salvation Army; secretary-treasurer, Edward C. Thornburg, Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church.

Evangelism Committee—Leonard W. Topping, chairman, First Presbyterian Church; C. C. Cribb, First Pentecostal Holiness Church; Floyd B. Cherry, Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

Youth Committee—E. Lee Willingham, chairman, Hollywood and Chirod Presbyterian churches; Mark Owens, Hillsdale Baptist Church; James C. Lynn, Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church; J. B. Nairn, Sweet Gum Grove

Free Will Baptist Church. Television-Radio Committee—J. Maloy Owen, chairman, St. James Methodist Church; Irby B. Jackson, Immanuel Baptist Church; H. Green Haney, Eighth Street Christian Church; Walter W. Reynolds, Bethany Free Will Baptist Church.

Social Action Committee—Rashie Kennedy, chairman, Grace Free Will Baptist Church; Percy B. Upchurch, Memorial Baptist Church; Lyndon DeWitt, Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Publicity Committee—Edward C. Thornburg, chairman, Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church; Capt. Ben Lewis, Salvation Army; Donald G. Weldon, Mount Pleasant Christian Church.

Christian Education Committee—William M. Howard, chairman, Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church; Melvin, Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church; Clifford Lanman, Red Oak Christian Church; O. T. Howard, St. Paul's Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Program Committee—Thomas M. Davis, chairman, Presbyterian administrator; R. P. Fields, Church of God; John W. Drake, St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

REV. R. B. CRAWFORD new president

Engineering work for the Green Mill Run drainage project moved ahead today on the heels of the sale of bond anticipation notes to finance the municipal project. State Bank and Trust company of Greenville was low bidder on the city's bond anticipation note for $18,000 sold Tuesday through the State Local Government Commission. The local banking concern bid an interest rate of two per cent for the note and offered a premium of $1, making a net interest cost on the note of 1.962 per cent. The bond anticipation note is dated December 29 and will mature on February 20, 1957.

The note was issued by the city of Greenville in anticipation of the sale of bonds for surface drainage approved by local voters last month. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said this morning clearing of the right of way along the stream will begin as soon as engineering work is sufficiently advanced. It is the city's plan, he said, to do the clearing with labor employed by the city. Bids for the necessary excavation work will be called for as soon as engineering work is completed.

"We hope the majority of excavation work can be completed by early spring," Bloxam commented, "but progress on this work will be governed to a large extent by the weather."

The section of Green Mill Run included in the drainage and clearing project is from Tar River to highway 43 south of Greenville. That area of the stream takes off approximately one-third of the city's watershed. The portion of the stream above highway 43 accounts for another one-eighth of Greenville's watershed.

Bloxam added that the remainder of the $275,000 bond issue money approved by local voters probably will be available to the city by the first of March.

WINTERVILLE—Winterville welcomed Santa Claus in a big way yesterday afternoon.

A large crowd lined the streets of the business district to welcome the big man from the North Pole. Santa rode into town on the rear of one of Winterville's three fire trucks.

The parade, sponsored by the Merchants Association and under the general supervision of Paul Hunsucker, featured the Winterville-Ayden High School Band, decorated bicycles, costumed children, ponies, and Boy and Girl Scout units. Prizes were awarded to first and second place winners in each category.

The prize winners included James L. Worthington (first) and Patricia Worthington (second) in the Best Costume division of the parade.

Boy Faces Auto Theft Charges

A 14-year-old Greenville boy found himself entangled with the law today facing charges of larceny of an automobile and damage to personal property.

He was turned over to juvenile authorities for action.

Greenville police reported the youth was charged with theft of an automobile owned by Curtis Streets of 204 W. Gum Road here. About 8 o'clock last night the car driven by the juvenile crashed into Mercer Glass Shop at 1306 Evans Street causing damage to the building estimated at $350 and damage to the car estimated at $250.

Grifton Band, Glee Club Give PTA Program

GRIFTON—A large audience heard the high school glee club and band present a program of Christmas music at the December meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Alma Buck is director of the glee club and the accompanist was Miss Bette Jo Gaskins. Numbers included "Peace," "Rise Up Shepherd and Follow," "Go Tell It On The Mountains," "Sing This Blessed Morn," "Star of the East," "Silent Night," "While Shepherds Watch," "Birthday of a King," and "Jingle Bells." With the singing of "Joy To The World" the audience was asked to join in. The fifth grade pupils presented a scene depicting the Birth of Jesus at the singing of "Birthday of a King."

Mrs. June Carson as director of the band, now in its third year, presented her students in a medley of Christmas tunes as well as other selections.

The Rev. J. L. Roberson offered the invocation and benediction. President James Smith presided at the business session when reports were heard and the legislative committee chairman, Mrs. C. E. Stone, presented Howard Kress and figures to show the standing of the North Carolina teacher as compared with the average in the U. S. in salaries.

The committee will support the United Forces of Education in the State to promote better schools and better paid teachers. The object of this legislation is to induce more and better teachers to teach in North Carolina schools.

"The future of a million children will be affected by the action taken by parents of the schools," Mr. Kress stated, "and only we can do what is needed by joining the United Forces of Education to promote a better school system."

Attendance awards went to Mrs. Buck's fifth grade and Mrs. Paul Bradley's tenth grade.

Following the program and business the home economics girls under their teacher, Mrs. Eunice Casey, staged a Christmas bazaar for sale of articles they had made. Proceeds are going to their department's needs.

EC Music Students To Be Soloists In "The Messiah"

Four students of music at East Carolina College will appear as soloists at the annual performance of Handel's "The Messiah" Sunday, December 16. The oratorio, presented under the sponsorship of the college department of music, will be given at 3:30 in the Wright auditorium on the campus.

Dr. Elwood Keister of the East Carolina faculty will direct "The Messiah" for the fourth consecutive season.

June Crews of Creedmoor, soprano; Myri Maness of Garysburg, alto; Milton T. Mann of Sanford, tenor; and Stephen Parish of Ayde, bass, have been announced by Dr. Keister as soloists for this year's performance. Miss Crews and Miss Maness are seniors at East Carolina; Mr. Mann and Mr. Parish are juniors.

A chorus of 250 voices will sing in "The Messiah." These singers include students, faculty members, and residents of Greenville. Both organ and piano accompaniment will be used.

Buffet Supper Planned

The Greenville Golf and Country Club will have an open, family night buffet supper on Sunday night from 7 to 9 honoring the winners of the ladies golf tournament. All club members are invited to come and bring their children.

News From Red Oak

A letter has been issued by Mrs. B. L. Tyson, chairman, to remind members of the Red Oak Community of various events planned during the Yuletide season.

The first was a family night supper at the club building at 6 p.m. Dec. 9. Sixteen families were represented.

On Dec. 2 the Christian Men's Fellowship entertained their wives at a Christmas dinner. This event was held at Heath's Restaurant.

Friday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Lanman will be hostess to the CWF Circle No. 3 at the parsonage.

On Sunday the Youthful Workers Club and all interested persons will gather at the Piney Grove Educational Building to prepare Christmas baskets for distribution.

Later that day visits to families will be made. Plans call for the group to set up and decorate the tree at the Pitt County Home also on this date.

On December 17 CWF Circle No. 2 will meet at the home of Mrs. Travis Crawford at 8 p.m.

The Community Christmas Tree event will be held Dec. 21. Every Sunday School class, all circles, the Chi-Rho and Chi-Rhoettes will be responsible for at least one number on this program. Refreshment tables will be served by all circles of the CWF.

Circle No. 1 will be the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Tyson Dec. 22 at 6 p.m.

Christmas Decor Topic For Club

Mrs. Sam Mitchell was guest speaker for the Lakewood Pines Garden Club Tuesday morning. Her talk on Christmas decorations was illustrated by dozens of original decorative pieces, primarily prepared for her own home.

The array of Christmas decorations included a wreath encasing a festive carriage and horses and another bearing silvered miniature reindeer; a gay "kissing ball" to hold mistletoe and a more formal basket of gold for a mantel piece; several unusual "table" trees ornamented with miniature balls and made of evergreens (fastened by hairpins) on a styrene "trunk," and a tree made in the same manner of white nylon net and cellophane with pastel balls.

There was also a formal white arrangement of dipped magnolia foliage and hydrangea blossoms. Special pieces were an arrangement of yellow gladioli with a background of gold eucalyptus leaves in a coppered lamp base and a Madonna in a simple setting of fresh white narcissus.

An unusual centerpiece was of flocked white plant material with delicate transparent pink Christmas balls, featuring intricate old-fashioned half egg shell cases, delicately painted and decorated with pearls, with a tiny ornament suspended inside each one.

The collection obviously represented a tremendous amount of work, but the club members were surprised to learn from the speaker as each piece was discussed that the materials were relatively simple and that the principal ingredients were originality, taste and patience, and a little special "know-how."

Mrs. Owen Marshburn, in charge of the Christmas program for the club assisted Mrs. Mitchell in the demonstration of her material.

Club Presented Musical Program

Mrs. R. A. Fountain Jr. was hostess to the Round Table Book Club Tuesday afternoon. Throughout the home each room, though different, displayed the traditional Christmas colors in decorations.

Mrs. Royce Hun-ucker, president of the club, presided over the business session. Mrs. William Ward Jr. of New Bern, daughter of Mrs. Fountain, delighted members and guests with her singing of several Christmas carols and Mrs. Fountain played several selections on the piano. She also gave a reading of "The Lamb" by Theresa Workman.

Mrs. H. H. Duncan concluded the program by giving a news item. Guests besides the hostess, daughter were Mrs. Frederick P. Brooks, Mrs. W. M. Howard, Mrs. James Phelps and Mrs. Maurice Hitson of New Bern.

In her capacity as District 10 Garden Club director, Mrs. Mitchell prefaced her Christmas program with remarks on state and national garden club councils, with special reference to the part a local club can and should play in their work.

She particularly urged the Lakewood Pines Club to try to organize a new club somewhere in the Pitt County area before the garden club year is out.

During the regular business meeting, Mrs. R. P. Heller, president, pointed out that the caution and speed limit signs bought by the club for the protection of Lakewood Pines children have been placed.

She discussed plans for decoration of Sheppard Memorial Library, to be done the following day, and asked all members who could help to meet with the committee at her home Tuesday afternoon to collect and prepare material.

Mrs. Raymond Lowe, chairman of the Spring Fair, briefly discussed plans for the Fair, and said that work would begin in earnest after the first of the year. April 14, the Friday before Palm Sunday, was tentatively set as the date for the Fair.

As a special horticultural attraction, Mrs. H. R. Billica had brought from her greenhouse three orchid plants of different varieties, all in full bloom. Mrs. Billica, who will present a program on orchids at the next meeting, was wearing a large purple orchid, in perfect condition, which she said had been in bloom for four weeks and had been picked and stored in the refrigerator between numerous wearings for two weeks.

Mrs. W. A. Wright of 206 Pineview Drive, hostess, served coffee, cookies, cakes, and cheese sticks to the members, who made a record turnout for the Christmas program.

200 Staff Members At College Christmas Dinner

More than two hundred staff members at East Carolina and their guests attended Tuesday night in the North Dining Room the annual Christmas Dinner at the college.

The seasonal decorations used were made by art students in classes taught by Francis Lee Neel of the faculty. Glittering mobile sculpture designs hung from the ceiling and miniature hand-painted Christmas trees and red candles made centerpieces for the dining tables. A brilliantly lighted tree, gift of Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville, stood at the west end of the room.

P. D. Duncan, vice president of East Carolina in charge of business affairs, acted as master of ceremonies. He welcomed several former members of the college staff, now retired, including Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, Miss Augusta Kuykendall, and Miss Ola Ross, and introduced as special guests of the evening Mrs. McGinnis and John Spencer of Greenville, Dr. Jones and Mrs. Fanny O. Reynolds of Greensboro.

Dinner was served by the staff of the college dining rooms, headed by Paul Julian. Dr. Richard C. Todd said grace.

A choir of pupils from Wahl-Coates Laboratory School sang "The Night Before Christmas."

with Miss Beatrice Chauncey as director and Miss Ruth Graber as accompanist. Mrs. Claude Garren of Greenville read a Christmas poem and story.

Carols were sung by a quartet made up of Dr. John D. Messick, college president; Dr. George Cook; Dr. James L. White, and Frank Fuller. George E. Perry was the accompanist for the quartet and for group singing of Christmas songs by staff members and guests. Mrs. Lella Rives, who will retire at the end of this month after twenty years on the staff of the college dining room, was presented a silver cream and sugar set as a token of appreciation from her co-workers at the college.

Speaking for the donors, Mrs. Duncan described Mrs. Rives as a "valuable, efficient, loyal and lovable" member of the East Carolina staff.

Mrs. Austin Perry of the faculty acted as chairman of the committee which planned the annual social event.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Reid Fuller-Jr. were hosts for the event. J. Oakhill McDaniel delivered the traditional toast.

Receiving at the door were Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, Miss Hutchinson, Mr. Peel and his mother, Mrs. Elbert Peel Sr.

The club was decorated throughout with a color note of green and white.

An arrangement of carnations was used on the table where cranberry punch, coffee and party accompaniments were served by Mrs. Elliott Street, Mrs. Robert Ward and Mrs. Frank Shannon.

Ten guests from Greenville attended the party.

The marriage will take place in February.

30 Years Ago Today

December 13, 1926

Ground has been broken this week for the new building of the Presbyterians and will move on as fast as the weather will permit. The new plant will be located at the corner of Pitt and Fifth Streets and is one of the prettiest sites in town. The building is to be of brick with three floors with complete departmental Sunday School plant. A kitchen and social hall will be erected on the ground floor. The active building committee is composed of N. O. Warren, James S. Ficklen and Guy Peck. The building and ground will represent an outlay of at least $50,000 and a large part of this amount is already in hand.

Engagement Is Told At Party

The engagement of Miss Lucia Claire Hutchinson to Elbert Sidney Peck Jr. of Williamston was revealed at an announcement party Saturday evening at the East Carolina Yacht Club in New Bern.

Miss Holland Gives Program At WSCS Meet

GRIFTON—The general meeting of the WSCS of the Methodist Church was held on Monday night in the R. A. Nelson Classroom with Mrs. J. C. Hooten presiding. The singing of "Silent Night" opened the meeting after which Mrs. Ralph Epps, spiritual life leader, gave a devotional on "Children Of Today."

After the business the program chairman, Mrs. Doug Boone, presented Miss Charity Holland of the Queen Street Methodist youth education department who spoke on parents' responsibility to children today.

Routine business and circle reports were heard. Plans for a visit to the county home on December 20 for a song service with the inmates were made.

The circle voted to serve refreshments each Sunday night to the MYF members. They also voted to give memorial gifts of money to the building fund.

The society presented the pastor and Mrs. Epps an old fashioned pound cake and cookies.

Refreshments were served concluding the business and program. The table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with red berries and pine and tall red candles. Other decorations were similar. Lime ice punch and cookies were served. Mesdames Iris Wright, Paul Carr and J. C. Hooten were in charge.

Home Offices To Hold Open House

Open house will be observed at the county home agents' offices in the old hospital building Friday afternoon.

Home demonstration club members and special guests have been invited from 2 to 5 p.m.

Home demonstration clubs from throughout the county will have colorful Christmas arrangements on display. A holiday theme will also be carried out in refreshments. Receiving and serving will be various executive board members of the Pitt Home Demonstration County Council.

A Million Dollars Worth Seeking

It is well worth considerable time and effort on the part of Pitt County to encourage local citizens who are eligible for, but not receiving social security benefits to seek this monthly income to which they are entitled.

The program launched by a special committee appointed by the Board of Commissioners to inform local citizens of social security benefits available to them can do a great service to many individuals and to the county as a whole.

Although no accurate figure is available on the number of people in Pitt County eligible for social security benefits, but not receiving them, the special committee has estimated that county citizens may be losing as much as a million dollars annually from such benefits. That is considerable additional income for people in a county the size of Pitt.

Rural Electrification Is Now Commonplace

Few things have meant more to better living for people of rural areas in recent years than rural electrification. A couple of decades ago the number of rural homes in North Carolina with electricity was almost nil. Today more than 96.1 per cent of the rural homes in the state have electricity.

Strung across the length and breadth of North Carolina are more than 80,000 miles of rural electric lines serving more than a quarter million customers.

It was relatively few years ago that the farm family depended on the kerosene lamp for light after sunset. Conveniences which people of urban areas had long since taken for granted remained out of the reach of rural people simply because they had no electricity to supply power to operate water systems, stoves, refrigerators, radios and an hundred and one other things.

Today the story is altogether different. The farm home without electricity is about as rare as the urban home without this vital source of energy. Not only in the homes, but around the farm as well, electricity has lightened many chores and made possible new things.

Ride around the countryside after dark today and you'll see homes lit as brightly as those in town. Here and there a chicken house will glow with electric lights; near the barn there will be a light to dispell the darkness which once engulfed the rural area shortly after sunset. Electricity, in short, has become as important in every facet of farm life as it is in city life.

It has been made possible through private enterprise, municipal power systems, and efforts of people of rural area who have joined together to form their own power cooperatives. In turn, rural electrification has made rural life much better than it was before the hot wires stretched across the broad areas between towns.

A Few Minutes Could Convince The Doubter

A long time ago . . . it seems . . . anyway, soon after they were introduced, we gained confidence in radar as a speed-recording device that was a reliable means of determining whether a motorist was or wasn't exceeding the limit.

Frequent tests (which we didn't witness, but were witnessed by reliable people) showed the "whammy" to be an accurate gauge of speed.

But the hard part to swallow is that so many people who are timed in excess of prescribed speed limits protest that "I don't care what that gadget said, I wasn't going over 55".

We'll grant that, being mechanical, a mechanical fault could creep into the "whammy". On the other hand, to avert such troubles, they are given regular check-ups.

But to undercut these protestors (who may protest in all sincerity), as well as to strengthen the claims of accuracy for the radar device, it seems that law enforcers who use the whammy could profitably use a few minutes of their time and the time of the driver they've charged to show just how it works.

A few test runs at varying speeds could dispell doubts in the minds of those given a practical demonstration, and end all quibbling over its accuracy. If a speedometer was "off", that would be settled; if the whammy was "off", that would be cleared up right away without futile wrangling.

We don't know if the proposal has any possibility of application, but it could be tried.

Recent legislation has broadened greatly the number of people and the various occupations covered by social security. Particularly is this true in the realm of agriculture and farm employment. Many local citizens who have reached the age of 65 or more are eligible for benefits under new provisions written into the social security law, but they are unaware that they are eligible.

The purpose of the program launched by county officials is to inform these people of the benefits they are eligible for or for which they can become eligible.

Looking at the program both from the standpoint of the individual as well as from that of the county as a whole, several advantages immediately are apparent. Many of the people who are eligible for benefits may be, because of age or other factors, getting by now on meager incomes. There is also the possibility that many people of advanced years who are on the county's welfare rolls may be among those eligible for social security payments. If that is the case, the county may find that obtaining social security benefits for these persons will enable it to decrease the number on welfare lists and perhaps lighten the financial burden the welfare program is placing on the county government.

From the overall standpoint it is obvious that an additional income of perhaps a million dollars a year for local residents will be a shot in the arm for the local economy.

In order for all eligible persons to realize these social security benefits they are missing, cooperation of the citizens of the county as a whole is required. The committee must ascertain the names of persons who might be eligible. In that important phase aid of individual citizens will be invaluable.

Bruton Begins His Reorganizing Chore

By LYNN NISBET

DEMOCRATS — Assistant Attorney General Wade Bruton, chairman of a committee to revise the Plan of Organization of the Democratic Party in North Carolina, is getting down to the job. Authorization for the revision was given by the Executive Committee at its meeting last summer. The special group named by Chairman John D. Larkins Jr. was instructed to report to another executive committee meeting to be called for the purpose, so that new rules might be adopted in advance of the 1958 conventions.

The revision committee is composed of A. P. Godwin, first district; John H. Kerr Jr., second district; D. L. Ward, third; Arch T. Allen, fourth; Cain Graves, fifth; Eugene Shaw, sixth; Bunn Frank, seventh; Wade Bruton, eighth; E. F. Allen, ninth; Nathan Yelton, tenth; O. M. Mull, eleventh; Don Elias, twelfth; Mrs. B. B. Everett, national committeewoman; Mrs. John T. Richardson, state vice chairman, and Henry Hall Wilson, YDC president.

One of the first points to decide is whether the changes will be worked into the existing plan as amendments, or if the entire document will be rewritten.

Ten of the fifteen committee members are lawyers, and lawyers generally prefer additions and amendments rather than basic change. They are sticklers for tradition and the established order. A great deal of the judicial and legal jargon has been handed down from old English common law. Many legal phrases originally embodied both Anglo-Saxon and Norman expressions, such as aid and abet, to have and to hold, cease and desist, which the experience of centuries has not been to get out. For similar reason the lawyers on the revision committee are reluctant to change any more words than necessary.

AMENDMENTS — Most important change recommended by Chairman Bruton to his colleagues is provision for congressional district meetings to be held prior to the state convention, either at Raleigh or at some place in the district designated by the chairman. This would preclude necessity for delegates spending two days in Raleigh. It is the plan followed by the Republicans. It will allow more time for study of platform provisions and resolutions adopted by district meetings before the convention meets.

New suggestions provide for the nomination of Presidential Electors and selection of delegates to the National Democratic convention, matters on which the present plan is silent. For the first time the long established custom of proxy voting at executive committee meetings is formally recognized.

Procedure for filling vacancies among party nominees and for nominating members of county boards of elections are clarified, by bringing them in line with the General Statutes.

Basis of representation of the several executive committees and prescribed functions of the several committees and their chairmen remain the same.

These proposed amendments are designed to cure the main weaknesses and omissions of the Plan of Organization. They will not, however, eliminate all the confusion and lack of coherent sequence in party rules, which has developed through numerous amending processes since the basic plan was drafted in 1918.

Many party members, particularly among non-lawyers, think the time has come for a complete new text that will be easier to understand and will refer to General Statutes where they apply instead of repetitious spelling out of party procedure.

FULL TIME — There is growing sentiment for more emphasis on full-time year-around activity of the Democratic organization. Results of the recent election, which gave the Republicans the highest percentage of vote in North Carolina since 1928, came as a shock to some complacent Democrats.

The executive committee two years ago authorized a full-time secretary or assistant to the chairman, but that appointment has not been made. It is surprising to many Democrats that there are no permanent records of party activity dating beyond 1944. Prior to the regime of the late William Umstead as state chairman, each campaign year stood on its own feet. Umstead arranged for storing permanent files, but for several years more they were largely inaccessible to little real use. For six or eight years the party has maintained permanent headquarters in the Sir Walter Hotel, manned, by a part time skeleton staff, except during the heat of election campaign.

From 1900 to 1950 the Democratic party was regarded as so "safe" in North Carolina, little effort was required to maintain its prestige except in brief election seasons. Rules and activities which served through that half century are not adequate to meet the enlivened competition of the Republican party and the growing trend toward party independence.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Free Enterprise Gets A Break

(The Asheville Times) The United States of America was founded on the free enterprise principle and our history shows that the closer we stick to that principle the better off we are economically and governmentally. Our nation has learned from sad experiences in the last few decades that in a free enterprise system the government has no business competing with private business when there is not a great national interest involved. The businessman can do the job better and also cheaper in most cases.

The Eisenhower administration has been eliminating a number of business-type operations that began springing up in World War I and reached their peak in the second World War. The Budget Bureau recently reported that 42 agencies had been weeded out or curtailed and that another 493 which compete with private business will be eliminated in the near future.

Taxpayers will undoubtedly realize considerably more.

Economy, however, is clearly not the only objective in getting Uncle Sam out of the private business field. The critical question is whether the public interest is best served when government does the work. In most cases it obviously is not.

Financial benefit to the taxpayer is a by-product, too. Much of the business government has stepped doing—like roasting coffee or mixing cement—is the generally rated as small business. Not much of this goes back to the little fellow. Government still needs these jobs done and is getting along better and cheaper by getting them done by private firms.

The most significant point in all this is that our Federal government is regaining perspective and is now slowly but surely disengaging its competition with private enterprise. It is a most important because after all the government of this free country is supported by free enterprise.

Tobacco Industry's Setback

With the approach of the Christmas season it is traditional for me to review the reason why I do not smoke. It was back when I was 15 years old or there abouts that the tobacco industry lost a life-long customer. And it all happened on a Christmas day.

Like most 15-year boys I had been toying with the idea that the time had come for me to take up smoking. Everybody was doing it. Why not me?

The idea came to a head on Christmas day. I had eaten the usual big meal for dinner that day and that afternoon I joined several friends for a ride around town.

Soon someone said: "Let's all get a cigar."

That sounded like a good idea to me so I joined in. We all purchased cigars and soon the atmosphere in the auto was blue with smoke.

Everyone got along fine for awhile, including myself. Then I got to the point where I had to admit to myself that I didn't feel so good.

"You're looking sort of green," one of my friends said.

"It's nothing, nothing," I replied half-heartedly, taking another puff on my cigar.

Silence reigned for a short while.

"Stop the car," I finally yelled. A little later my friends took me home. I was sick for several days and the tobacco industry lost a customer.

Notebook On Life

'Slave' To Christmas Music

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Some day Johnny Marks would like to write a hit song about the 4th of July or maybe even the 29th of February.

"Any day but Christmas," he said.

It is unlikely, however, his publicity won't let him. For better or worse, Johnny has become as identified with Christmas songs as Stephen Foster is with sentimental ballads of the Old South.

Putting the Christmas spirit to music isn't exactly a chosen career with Marks. It's a kind of strange doom he tries to escape but can't.

In 1949 Johnny was a moderately successful song writer he had published 75, written about 750 when he composed a little ditty entitled "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Johnny, who had struggled for as long as two years to get some of his songs recorded, had to struggle for two months before Georj Aultry agreed to gamble on the novelty number.

That recording has now sold more than five million. Some 94 other recordings of Rudolph in 65 different arrangements have sold 20 million more discs.

Little Rudolph, now an established world-wide Christmas classic, has earned Johnny better than half a million dollars, will probably earn that much again by the time Marks' copyright expires 48 years from now and the little reindeer gallops into the public domain.

In the first three years after Rudolph appeared on the scene more than 300 imitative Christmas novelty songs appeared, but quickly tinkled into oblivion.

Time after time people have tried to get me to write sequels about Rudolph," said Marks. "but I never will."

It took me only a week to write the song—or a week plus 20 years, if you count the time it took me to learn what to throw away. I still rewrite it now and then in my mind—changing a word here and there—until it drives my wife crazy.

"The funny thing is that it was only by accident that the song had a Christmas theme. Anybody who sits down and says 'I'll write a Christmas song is welcome to try—but I'll guarantee it won't be a good one.' Johnny, who is 47 and looks like a Greenwich Village poet, says all his Christmas songs have been accidents. His other hits on this subject were "The Night Before Christmas Song," "When Santa Claus Gets Your Letter," and "Everyone's a Child at Christmas."

"Last year I made up my mind definitely I would never write another one," he recalled.

Then, last February, while reading some poems by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, he came across one called, "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day."

Its semireligious theme, the victory of hope over despair, haunted Johnny, who broods about the way the world is going. He put the words to music.

The result: A recording by Bing Crosby which Variety, Billboard and other trade magazines predict may last as long as Rudolph.

While making the recording, Bing, noticing that Longfellow was the author, told Johnny dryly:

"You had a pretty fair lyric writer on this one."

Johnny, who now operates his own publishing firm (by an odd coincidence it's called the St. Nicholas Music Co.), says:

"This is it. I hope I'll never write another Christmas song."

He says it fervently—and means it. But along Tin Pan Alley they say it's too late. Johnny can't help himself. Christmas is no longer just a holiday for Rudolph's father. It's a life sentence. He's really jolly.

The West also has its complaints. Despite the recent Democratic gains in this area, his pick from the coastal region was Representative Edith Green of Oregon, a virtual unknown. Although the Democrats' acknowledged authority on such Western issues as power, mining and cattle questions, and monopoly is Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, he is not included in the Butler board of directors.

POLITICAL LAME DUCKS The "big names" on the committee, oddly, are generally regarded as political "lame ducks"—Hgt. B. Truman, Adlai E. Stevenson, Estes Kefauver and Eleanor Roosevelt. Moreover, because of their leading roles in the 1952-1956 elections, it is felt that their extremely radical philosophy has been twice rejected by the electorate.

This quartet being and thinking in days of past glory and victory, refuse to recognize that

Big Rise In Local Taxation

By ELMER ROESSNER

That state and local taxes will rise sharply in the years ahead has been predicted here and elsewhere. A re-examination of the facts now indicates the rise may be much greater than previously expected. It seems probable that state and local taxes in the aggregate will double in the next decade.

Non-Federal taxes in the fiscal year ended last June 30 were estimated at $25 billion. State and local taxes have doubled in the last eight years. If they double in the next 10, therefore, they will total $50 billion a year by 1966.

For comparison, Federal taxes were $68.1 billion in the year ended June 30. By 1966, they probably be higher too, so non-Federal taxes are not likely to catch up with them.

HOW COSTLY ARE BABIES! Here are six reasons for expecting non-Federal levies to soar:

No. 1—New school requirements, already great, are still growing. Our first 3 billion-plus crop of babies will enter grammar school grades next year and by 1960 will be ready for more high schools than exist today.

The first 4 billion-plus crop will be ready for first grades in 1960 and high school in 1963. Meanwhile, the first of the post-war tide of youngsters will, in 1964, be surging into colleges—if enough are standing and equipped.

Meanwhile, youngsters already in school need more parks, playgrounds and, if we read headlines aright, more juvenile counselors.

To drive sense into all these little heads we will have to increase the number of school-teachers as well as classrooms. And to keep up with the Russians, we'll have to increase the caliber of the instructors. That means more and higher salaries, not mere cost of living adjustments but barrel-head cash that will attract the best teaching talents from engineering plants of Long Island and gaming tables of Las Vegas. That last is not a joke; many math teachers today could make higher wages with a croupier's rake.

No. 2—Jet planes are making most airports obsolete. Most will have to be enlarged or relocated. This will take a heap of taxes. HIGHWAYS, WATER WORKS.

No. 3.—The need for better highway systems, plus the importance of taking advantage of Federal grants, will require considerable state and local spending, hence considerable taxes.

No. 4.—Demand for water is doubly increasing. It is going up because there are more people and because the per-person use of water is rising with air-conditioning, water-using kitchen gadgets, new industrial uses and atomic energy requirements. Major General J.S. Bragdon, special assistant to President Eisenhower on public works policy, recently stated the per capita use of water has tripled in the last 50 years and one of every eight cities now faces a water shortage.

No. 5.—The rising population and its dramatic expansion into one-family suburban developments are requiring a great expansion of sewer, fire, police, public health and other facilities. These mean more taxes.

No. 6.—Costs of improvements are going up. State and local governments—all 110,000 of them—are competing with expanding private industry for materials, manpower and engineering talent.

General John Stewart Bragdon estimated total needs of local governments at more than $200 billion right now. To bring facilities up to date, he said, governments will have to spend $20.4 billion a year on them, or twice the present rate.

In addition to capital expenditures, non-Federal governments are currently spending about $15 billion a year for services. By the time capital expenditures are doubled, the cost of supplying services will probably be doubled, too. That means your state, county, city, district and local taxes will be about twice present taxes along about 1966.

AND NO HIGHBALLS SPILLED INTO FILING CABINETS If, in the corridor of your favorite hotel you see Jones from shipping chasing Madge from accounting, don't be too surprised.

the voters' current mood leans toward "moderation."

In fact, both Governor Averell Harriman of New York and Truman, who teamed up so successfully at the Chicago convention, denounced Stevenson when he advocated a moderate rather than a radical approach to social, economic and political problems. Truman actually forced Stevenson to swing sharply to the left in the campaign.

AVERAGE AGE OF COMMITTEE MEMBERS The average of Chairman Butler's "twenty wise men and women" next year will be 56.5 years, ranging from Truman's 73 to Senator Kennedy's 40. Save for the four members who will be under 50 when the group tries to function, the Democratic advisers' average age would be well above 60 years. Three of the most prominent members—Truman, Speaker Sam Rayburn and Mrs. Roosevelt—are more than 70.

Butler Scuttled By Rayburn, Johnson

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON The Rayburn-Johnson scuttling of Paul M. Butler's Democratic Advisory Committee was a foregone conclusion because of its personnel and program.

The squabble marks the sharpest break between the liberal and conservative factions since F.D.R. overwhelmed the traditional Party bosses and wheelhorses at the 1932 Chicago Convention. It surges the end of a riotous political era.

The Butler group was loaded down with Northern and Western liberals against conservatives in the proportion of 13 to seven of the 20-member body. Its lopsidedness was a direct affront to the relatively restrained Rayburn-Johnson strategy. Legislatively and politically.

It has other serious defects. It contains no members from three important voting groups—the colored, the Jewish and racial minorities generally. It is not weighted sufficiently in favor of labor and farm elements, according to their complaints to the Congressional bloc.

AN INSULT TO THE SOUTH The selections are regarded as an insult to the South, as are the views which a majority of the National Chairman's chosen espouse. For that section's advocate, Butler named former Governor John S. Battle of Virginia, who has virtually retired from active politics, and North Carolina.

He has passed over such influential and dominant veterans as Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, an expert on Federal finances and Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, an authority on national defense. Yet Butler says that he made his choices "on the basis of their familiarity with the many great problems that will come before the committee."

The West also has its complaints. Despite the recent Democratic gains in this area, his pick from the coastal region was Representative Edith Green of Oregon, a virtual unknown. Although the Democrats' acknowledged authority on such Western issues as power, mining and cattle questions, and monopoly is Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, he is not included in the Butler board of directors.

POLITICAL LAME DUCKS The "big names" on the committee, oddly, are generally regarded as political "lame ducks"—Hgt. B. Truman, Adlai E. Stevenson, Estes Kefauver and Eleanor Roosevelt. Moreover, because of their leading roles in the 1952-1956 elections, it is felt that their extremely radical philosophy has been twice rejected by the electorate.

This quartet being and thinking in days of past glory and victory, refuse to recognize that

Light Bulb Sale Slated Tonight

Ten teams of Jaycees will take to the streets tonight to sell bags of light bulbs door-to-door.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce members expect to sell more than 1,000 bags of the bulbs in their house-to-house canvass tonight.

Co-Chairmen of the light bulb sale, Charles Lewis and John Farley, requested householders to turn on their porch lights tonight to assist Jaycees in the sale.

Proceeds will be used to provide Christmas baskets for needy families. Jaycees will purchase food and other items for the needy families and distribute the baskets shortly before Christmas.

Junior Chamber of Commerce President David J. Wilchard emphasized that the success of the club's program to distribute baskets to needy families depends on a good sale of light bulbs tonight.

Each bag sold tonight will include two 60-watt bulbs, two 75-watt bulbs and a 100-watt light globe. The bags are to be sold for $1 each.

Jaycees are meeting 30 minutes early tonight at 6 o'clock. The house-to-house sale is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Rogers

The floating panel is new! And Rogers lends it special enchantment on a waltz length gown of nylon tricot. Sheer tricot drapes alluringly over a little waist and then floats to the hem of the skirt. Sprinkled on this lovely mist are big, lusciously embroidered flowers, applied so they flutter. Here is bedtime fashion at a dream price.
Rose Pink, Buttercup, Silver Blue.
#1827, sizes 32 to 38 at 8.95

Sized to fit everyone, Rogers slip value in No-Shadow opaque nylon tricot. Lined bodice and finished hem flounce of our own permanently pin pleated nylon tricot with insertions of nylon Val lace.
White, Black, Petal Pink, Navy, Sparkling Champagne, Blue Belle.
sizes 32 to 40 at 3.95

Fit for a princess (both the style and the lady), a nylon tricot slip cut along willowy lines. The dainty shaped bodice and slim hemline have wide borders embroidered with lush floral garlands and sweetly edged in lace.
White, Black.
#4056, sizes 32 to 38 at 5.95

Flattering button front, knee length, made of Rogers own unique nylon tricot. The flat, g yoke and perky puffed sleeves are fashioned of rose bud embroidery. Such a charm to wear and care for.
Petal Pink, Blue Belle.
sizes to 38 at 5.95

Sweetest of the sweet sleepers, Rogers nylon tricot "night blouse" over matching little bloomers. So pretty, the pleated frill around the peter pan collar and the no sleeves, so smart the button front closing. Tie the satin sash around the waist or let it go. Delightful, any way you look at it!
Petal Pink, Love Apple Red, Capri Blue, Buttercup.
sizes Small, Medium at 5.95

The pure and simple, well-tailored nylon tricot pajamas that every girl hankers for. These can sleep or loaf with equally pretty taste since the nylon is opaque and the top is cut longer than usual. A pair of roomy pockets, matching pearly buttons and a convertible shirt-collar are other sure signs of treasure.
Petal Pink, Blue Belle, Love Apple Red, Navy.

'Wolfish Stare' Is Confirmed As Form Of Assault

RALEIGH (AP) — A man convicted of assaulting a woman by his stares and actions lost out in his appeal before the State Supreme Court yesterday.

The court also wiped off the books a divorce granted a Kinston woman 27 years ago without the knowledge of her husband.

Paul A. Allen was convicted of assault on a female and sentenced to 30 days in prison by Guilford Superior Court.

Miss Nancy Powers testified that on several mornings while she was waiting on a street corner for a ride to work Allen would park his car nearby. His actions, she said, caused her to leave the site.

The Supreme Court agreed that he frightened Miss Powers with stares and actions "implying a lustful desire directed particularly toward her."

The high court held that "a show of violence, causing the reasonable apprehension of immediate bodily harm," whereby another is put in fear, and thereby forced to leave a place where he has a right to be, is sufficient to make out a case of assault.

In the divorce opinion, the court cleared the way for James Patrick to serve as administrator of the estate of his wife, Susie Patrick, who died last February.

Patrick said he and his wife lived as man and wife from their marriage in 1907 until her death. The first he knew of the divorce, he said, was after she died and her nephew petitioned to have him removed as administrator.

The court record shows the divorce took place in 1929 while Patrick was working in Philadelphia, where he had gone in 1923 while his wife remained in Kinston.

In 1930 Patrick returned from Philadelphia and they resumed living together.

The Supreme Court said there was "a calculated effort on the part of the plaintiff to keep actual notice from James Patrick" when notice of the divorce action was advertised in a Lenoir County weekly newspaper. It also noted that Mrs. Patrick's "conduct after she obtained the decree shows she did not consider herself bound by it."

Proposes Bid To End Filibusters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thye (R-Minn.) proposed today that Republican and Democratic Senate leaders "get behind an all-out effort" to change the Senate rule which permits filibusters.

Thye, who said he wants passage of civil rights legislation, said in an interview he anticipates failure for a move by 10 senators to get new debate-limiting rules adopted at the opening of Congress next month.

The Senate is a continuing body and its rules stand from year to year," Thye said. "The only way to get the present debate limitation rule changed is for leaders of both parties to get behind an all-out effort to change it in the regular way."

Thye indicated he had in mind a possible bipartisan effort to wear out a filibuster by Southern Democrats against any effort to adopt a talk-curbing rule.

Under present rules, debate may be limited only by the affirmative vote of 64 of the 96 senators.

In the past, Southern senators have used the filibuster weapon effectively to kill off civil rights legislation. Advocates of such legislation want to blunt this weapon by adopting a new rule that would allow a majority vote of the Senate to curb debate.

But Southerners, who can be expected to fight any such move with all possible resources, would be certain to take full advantage of the absence of any provision for a limitation on debate on proposed rules changes.

To get around this, 10 senators headed by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) have said they will move Jan. 3, the opening day of the new session, to adopt an entirely new set of rules.

Hen Or Rooster By Dipping Egg

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — What'll you have, hens or roosters?

By a new egg dipping process, a poultry research expert says, science can control the sex of a chick before it is born.

George Blackburn of a Vineland, N.J., poultry research firm, says details of the process are still secret. But poultrymen at Michigan State University believe it involves forcing hormones under pressure through the porous eggshell.

Camera News

HOCKEY JOCKEY, beginner's style, is a father-son $500 combination. The bundled-up tyke on ice, snapped by his father, warmed the hearts of the judges in the Popular Photograph 1956 contest and won a fourth place award. Proud pop is Jack Berger, a newspaper photo-engraver of Manitoba, Canada.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures

The photography presses, in their pre-Christmas spurt, have turned up these current aspirants for a camera fan's bookshelf.

"U.S. Camera, 1957," edited by Tom Maloney, is a gallery of the year's best pictures, backed by 20 years' experience of publishing in this field.

This edition has a number of features besides its hard core of "fine pictures" from here and abroad. There are portfolios from four noted photographers and a selection from a current traveling exhibition called "Creative Photography," a showpiece for the work of 16 contemporary craftsmen.

How to photograph the U. S. West in color is described in words and pictures by an expert in that field, Ray Atkinson.

America's photo historian, Beaumont Newhall, tells of the first motion picture showing in 1880 in San Francisco. The subject was the famous scene of a horse in motion made by Eadweard Muybridge using a line of twelve cameras. The strange career of this pioneer photographer has some unusual facets.

The annual also has a cross section of news photography and rings its bell with a major showing of those pictures which won this year's Pulitzer Prize. This award went to the photo staff of the New York Daily News for its collective coverage.

All in all, "U.S. Camera, 1957" shows us a provocative set of pictures. They evoke many a mental pat on the back, and an occasional "Why'd they print that?" As in previous editions, this book contains the most mixed-up method of placing captions of any picture annual.

"How to Pose the Model" by William Mortensen and George Dunham (Grosset & Dunlap Publishers, San Francisco) is a revised third edition of a subject that is a basic problem.

Mortensen's reputation has been established from some 20 years of conducting a studio in Laguna Beach, Calif. The study of the human form for artistic purposes has been put into book form to reach a wider audience than can possibly travel to the famed art colony.

The model is treated first as an inanimate object divided into the various important parts of the body in photographic poses and then, when the sittings are posed and analyzed as a complete figure. Finally comes the matter of breathing life into the figure so that poses have animation and meaning.

While several new chapters and illustrations have been added, some of the early portraits look "dated" and somewhat out of place in the light of today's journalistic style.

"Living Leica," a West German book printed in English for U.S. distribution, is a compilation of the best examples of that 35mm. camera's work around the world. Here the subjects and their poses are, seemingly, as free and uncontrived as a candid camera can capture them.

There is a 50-page text by Dr. Walter Kross based on the 120 photographs shown, with a hope that some inspiration can be transmitted to other camera fans. The printing and photographic reproduction is of such exceptional quality that the pictures alone can suffice for that inspiration.

"1000 Ideas for Better News Pictures" by Hugh Sidesy and Rodney Fox (Iowa State College Press, Ames, Iowa) is a paper bound book of practical ideas gleaned from their backgrounds of varied newspaper experience. Author Sidesy is presently with Life magazine and Fox teaches college journalism.

First they show what has been done by publishing some of the outstanding photos used by small town papers across the country. Each has some impact that lifts it out of the regular run of news-pictures.

Secondly they suggest how routine situations can be handled imaginatively. In many cases this is done effectively by including pictures as they might be shot routinely and by a better approach.

However, in the interest of accuracy, I wonder which one of the

Wyoming Gives Antelope Herds Private Roads

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Most states' traffic woes center around too many trucks and cars, but Wyoming faces a serious traffic problem with migrating antelope.

It was simply this: Federal aid regulations require fencing along highway designated on the interstate system.

The natural migration paths to food and water for southern Wyoming's vast antelope herds frequently cross U.S. 30.

The highway department couldn't get federal aid funds unless the highway is adequately fenced — and the state game and fish departments maintained the antelope herd, vital to the state's recreational and tourist economy, would be wiped out if the migration paths were blocked.

The solution: When U.S. 30 is improved to four lanes under the interstate highway program, underpasses will be constructed every two miles along nearly 300 miles of road — just to let the antelope cross.

Can't Call Him Any 'Foreigner'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mike Sabouri of Teheran, Iran has decided that he can't be classified as a foreign student at Oklahoma City University.

Introduced to another OCU student, his new acquaintance asked where he was from. "Iran," replied Mike. "Oh," said the other student, "and what part of Texas is that in?"

Satellite-Makers Say They'll Meet Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP)—The creators of the earth satellite say they think they'll meet the target date set for launching artificial little moonlets into the lower reaches of space.

Dr. John P. Hazen, director of the "Vanguard" satellite program for the Navy, told newsmen yesterday "we are essentially on schedule" in the project.

The White House has asked that the U. S. military and civilian scientists be ready to send up satellites during the International Geophysical Year beginning next July.

dozen satellites are planned by the United States to be used in delving into the secrets of high altitudes, from a height of 200 to 1,500 miles.

Last night, Dr. Joseph Kaplan told an Ohio University audience in Athens he believes the first of the satellites will be launched about Jan. 1, 1958. Kaplan, chairman of the U. S. National Committee for the Geophysical Year, said "it will be a good percentage" if six of the satellites turn out successfully.

Hazen insisted that "we are not in any way racing with Russia," which also is participating in the scientific program and has announced plans to launch its own earth satellites.

Hazen made the comments to newsmen who toured the naval research laboratory where work on the project is being done. The idea is that three powerful stages of rockets will carry a 20-inch metal sphere high enough to go into an orbit around the earth at 18,000 miles an hour.

The sphere will be crammed with instruments and automatic radio transmitters for sending data back to earth.

How long the first satellite will stay aloft depends on how high it can be fired, Hazen said. If it reaches a level of about 300 miles, it could continue whizzing around the earth in an elliptical orbit for about a year. But if it should climb only to 100 miles, its life aloft might be only an hour or two. Then it would fall into the thick atmosphere and burn up like a meteor.

Prototypes of satellites are being made here but the actual spheres, which will be used, are produced by the Detroit firms of Brooks and Perkins.

Well Dried Up On The First Day

ADA, Okla. (AP)—While the cackle of returning children echoed through Galey school in Pontotoc County, the gurgle of water from the school's well stopped.

The water well went dry the first day of school and an emergency supply was being hauled in. Oklahoma's severe drought was blamed.

Butler Misunderstood A Thing Called Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, misunderstood that thing called power. He stuck his neck out, and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn chopped it off.

Butler asked 20 Democrats, including 11 members of Congress, to serve as advisers who would coordinate efforts in behalf of Democratic programs and principles.

Butler heads this 20-man committee, supposedly a guiding force for the party which in effect was left leaderless when Adlai E. Stevenson lost the election. There will be no single party leader until the Democrats pick their presidential candidate in 1960.

The day-by-day practicing leadership of the party rests with the Democrats in Congress. They are the ones who will have to establish whatever record the party offers the voters in the congressional elections of 1958 and then in 1960.

It was the idea of Butler and the Democratic Executive Committee that the 20-member advisory group could help shape a program after three raids on a supermarket.

On the first one he snatched a loaf of bread and eluded employees like a scabback running for a touchdown.

The second time it was a bag of noodles.

The third time police were waiting. William J. Dalton, with whom Dooley makes his home, bailed him out yesterday by paying for the merchandise.

Dooley is a dog — 80 pounds of German shorthair pointer.

gram on which the party could stand in the next two elections. This meant Rayburn, Johnson and the other members of Congress would be sharing their power with the advisory committee when they didn't really have to.

Butler and the executive committee may have felt that by having Rayburn, Johnson and other congressional Democrats sitting in with the advisory committee they might be spurred to more liberal programs than they have pushed in the past.

But the way Butler went about issuing his invitations to the 20 advisers left him open to embarrassment. And he got it.

If he had asked each of the 20 individually and quietly whether he would serve, anyone declining could have done so with no one besides Butler being any the wiser.

Instead, he announced the 20 names publicly first, Rayburn and three other Democratic House leaders told Butler they would be glad to consult with the committee.

But Rayburn made no promises to follow the committee's ideas. Johnson hasn't been heard from yet but he probably will decline too.

The only members of Congress who have accepted so far are Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stevenson's running mate this year, and Rep. Edith Green of Oregon.

Butler also invited four Democratic governors and one Democratic mayor. Only Gov. Averell Harriman of New York so far has accepted. Former President Truman and Stevenson were invited and accepted.

'Overbalance' In Colleges Seen

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Dr. A. L. Strand, president of Oregon State College, says the heavy emphasis on science and mathematics in colleges is getting out of hand. The whole country is so science-minded and there are such powerful forces behind this emphasis there is a danger of overdoing it, he told the Oregon State Board of Higher Education yesterday. "This whole philosophy of emphasizing science and mathematics... is out of balance because the deficiency in other teaching fields is equally great," Dr. Strand said.

Pitt Bar Ass'n Is Praised By Judge

At a supper meeting of the Pitt County Bar Association Tuesday night, Superior Court Judge Chester Morris, guest speaker, complimented the Pitt Bar and said it is one of the strongest bar associations in Eastern Carolina.

The jurist said it is necessary that members of the bar stand out beyond men in other walks of life. "This is true," he said, "because a lawyer must take the rights and liberties of other men—his clients—with him in his own conscience when he goes home at night."

Judge Morris said in an aside to Judge Alton Dunn that "most of the law we come in contact with in our usual trials involves just common horse-sense and a knowledge of human nature."

acclamation M. E. Robert D. Wheeler as secretary-treasurer.

A resolution commending Judge Chester Morris for his conscientious manner of presiding over Superior Court here.

The president complimented Luoy Stocks and other committee-men for arranging the ladies' night meeting.

Judge Alton Dunn presented a resolution to provide that any case not reached for trial on the day set in the criminal calendar shall be continued for the term.

President Rouse appointed M. E. Cavendish, Judge Charles H. Whedbee, J. W. H. Roberts and Jack R. Edwards a committee to arrange for a memorial service to deceased members of the bar.

Claim Big City Vote Machines Have Lost Grip

By NORMAN WALKER WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO political specialists say elections showed that the big city political machines have lost their grip and that labor's electioneering groups are rapidly filling the gap.

This is part of an analysis of the election results provided to labor newspapers by the AFL-CIO's political branch, the Committee on Political Education (COPE).

COPE said that "adding it all up, labor was able to hold its ground well in the nonpresidential fights, whether state or national, and even inch up a little, against a landslide for the President."

Organized labor's leaders were almost solid in support of Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson against President Eisenhower. In the main, they backed Democratic candidates for Congress.

Discussing Eisenhower's landslide re-election, COPE attributed it to his "personal qualifications" as the voters viewed them. It also said the voters decided to back Eisenhower "in a critical international situation."

"The returns show clearly," COPE said, "that labor's political organization spearheaded by the AFL-CIO COPE, proves out handsomely. We could have been swept off our feet in Congress had we not been organized."

"Our people might have stayed home in droves in the presidential race except for our register-and-vote campaigns. There might have been a truly disastrous swing in the Negro vote if labor had not been on the job explaining the real issues."

COPE's statement about the performance of the big city political machines appeared to hint at organized labor's intent to take a greater role in politics, despite two successive losing efforts in behalf of Stevenson against Eisenhower.

Should labor take over big city political organizations, a long step would have been taken toward forming the often-discussed labor political party. Union leaders repeatedly have disclaimed any intent of forming a third political party.

Ground Broken Here For New Church Annex

Greenville Free Will Baptist Church yesterday morning broke ground for a new Sunday School annex to be constructed adjacent to the present church building.

The $60,000 building will include 14 classrooms for the church's Sunday School.

It will include a ground floor and two additional floors. The main floor of the new structure will be designed to tie in with the present sanctuary by means of sliding doors.

Those who turned shovels of dirt in the official ground breaking ceremonies included: The Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor of the church; the Rev. D. A. Windham; Jesse R. Boyd, chairman of the Board of Deacons; Stephen Walters, superintendent of Sunday School; and Dennis Jones, chairman of Board of Trustees.

In addition several other interested persons turned shovels of dirt.

The Belfry quartet sang two hymns during yesterday's ceremonies. The ground breaking prayer was said by Jesse Boyd.

Greenville Free Will Baptist Church was admitted to the Central Conference Nov. 5, 1903.

In 1915 the building of the present auditorium was completed and in 1927 the Annex Sunday School rooms adjoining the Church Sanctuary were added.

The church now has a membership of 670 and a Sunday School enrollment of 643. The average attendance in the Sunday School for the past six Sundays has been 408.

All departments of the church, and worship attendance in the church sanctuary shows us we must increase our building facilities as soon as possible," Rev. Crawford stated.

Church officials expect the new addition to be completed by Nov. 1, 1957.

Forty Per Cent Entered College

AYDEN—Forty per cent of Ayden High School's last four graduating classes have entered North Carolina colleges.

Principal E. F. Johnson has completed a study which shows that 55 of the 139 students graduated during the period elected to continue their formal education. Forty-six per cent of the 1953 class entered to college to lead the list.

The Fountain Elementary School PTA will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Main item of business is to be a complete report on the PTA Teacher Fund. Mrs. Dorothy Newton, treasurer, will give this report.

Featured on the program will be a Christmas party presented by the children. Included will be a musical portion and a visit from Santa Claus.

Funeral Held Today For D. R. DeBruhl

Denard R. DeBruhl, 56, of near Vanceboro, died in St. Luke's Hospital in New Bern at 9:30 Wednesday morning following several weeks' illness.

Funeral services were held at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Alton Hill, Methodist minister of New Bern. Burial was in the Huff family cemetery near Vanceboro.

Mr. DeBruhl, son of the late Clifford J. and Nannie Huff DeBruhl, was born and reared in Jones county and spent most of his life in the Vanceboro community. He was a mechanic.

Surviving are a son, Denard DeBruhl Jr. of Edenton, four grandchildren, a brother, Ira D. DeBruhl of Midway Park, and two half-sisters, Mrs. W. H. Snell of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Donald C. Custer of Detroit, Michigan.

'Confession' Failed To Sway Jury's Conviction

DALLAS (AP) — Mrs. Eugene Hague stunned the courtroom at her husband's murder trial yesterday by sobbing out from the witness stand she was the one who had done the killing.

Mrs. Hague, 44, was arrested and charged with murder as soon as she finished her testimony.

The jury's verdict left a legal tangle. No one would undertake to say immediately what would happen to the murder charge against Mrs. Hague. She is in jail.

Hague, 43, was on trial for the slaying of Ernest Allbritte, 27. He was shot to death Aug. 25 at a party attended by the Hagues, the Allbrites and two other couples at the home of Charles Tibbs. An argument broke out. Hague had a gun.

on the floor and were kicking and beating him. He was all bloody.

"My husband's gun was lying on the floor. Allbritte reached for the gun but I grabbed it. He told me: 'Ill kill you.' I shot him. He kept coming at me. I shot him again."

Mrs. Hague indicated the trouble started when "Allbritte told my husband Tibbs had said something about me."

She said Hague and Tibbs had a few words in a bedroom but apparently came to an understanding.

The state did not present any witnesses who testified he had seen Hague shoot Allbritte. Mrs. Allbritte previously testified she pushed Hague but was out of the room when the shots were fired.

Hague did not take the stand. A signed statement attributed to him said:

"I was so drunk I don't know what happened. I remember some shooting and I left."

High Point Wallops East Carolina Cagers By 111-94

Harris Is High Man In Game

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
HIGH POINT—A red-hot High Point Panther basketball team handed East Carolina its first defeat of the season here last night, 111-94.

Three Panthers hit above the 20-point mark to pace the winners to their 11th victory in 13 games. Guard Bill Heugle snared 28, center Dan Sewell collected 25 and forward Jack Powell netted 21 to pace High Point scoring.

East Carolina senior forward Don Harris was the game's high man, however, with a total of 34 points. The Laurinburg boy had a tremendous accuracy, hitting on approximately 70 per cent of his shots.

Panthers Too Hot
East Carolina started play with a narrow lead, but the Panthers were too hot to handle. Paced by the shooting of Powell, Sewell and Heugle, High Point soon took the lead and had pushed it to 59-45 at the half.

Only Harris kept the Bucs in the game in first half play. He netted 21 of his 34 points in the first two quarters. Charlie Adams, sophomore guard for the Pirates, also added most of his 13 points in the early minutes of the game.

With reserves in for High Point, the Panthers pushed their lead to 25 points in the late minutes of the third quarter. Then, Harris and Nichols began to hit. The lead was cut to five points later in the game at 90-85.

During the time that ECC was whittling down the Panther lead, the Bucs scored 19 points to High Point five over a stretch of 19 minutes.

The loss puts East Carolina's record at 3-1 overall and 2-1 in North State Conference play. High Point is also 2-1 in loop competition.

When asked by a High Point reporter if the Panthers were the best team ECC has played this year, Coach Howard Porter said, "No, not the best, but the hottest."

Table with columns: CAROLINA, FG, FT, PF, TP, Hales, Nichols, Ingram, Mendenhall, Plaster, Lewis, Adams, Riddick, James, Dennis, Totals, HIGH POINT, FG, FT, PF, TP, Powell, Payne, Stanton, Williams, Sewell, Heugle, Pharr, Thornton, Crumby, Asendes, Totals, Halftime score: High Point 59, ECC 45

HE PLAYED ANYWAY—Nick Nichols, 6-4 veteran forward for the East Carolina Pirates, played his regular position last night against the High Point Panthers, despite a shoulder injury that had him on the question list. The lanky Leaksburg lad netted 17 points, but ECC lost 111-94.

Davis Cup Play Opens Tomorrow

By WILL GRIMSLEY
PERTH, Australia (AP)—The official draw today paired Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., with Ramanathan Krishnan for tomorrow's opening match of the interzone Davis Cup finals between the United States and India.

But it was a meager development compared with the overnight recovery of U. S. ace Vic Seixas, the 33-year-old cup veteran from Philadelphia.

Seixas, who will play the second singles match against India's captain, Naresch Kumar, reported his ailing shoulder greatly improved when he arrived for the ceremonies at the Royal Kings Park clubhouse.

A doubtful starter until then in the series to determine Australia's cup challenger, Seixas said heat treatments administered by a doctor last night had removed all pain from his shoulder.

U. S. Captain Bill Talbert said he was pleased with the opening lineup but he refused to commit himself on his team for the doubles on Saturday. "That'll depend on the result of the opening singles matches," he said.

The Americans are favored to score a 5-0 sweep although Krishnan, a vastly improved 19-year-old who holds two victories over Jaroslav Drobny, figures to be tough.

Krishnan and Kumar, 27, carried Seixas and Ham Richardson to five sets in doubles play at Wimbledon this summer. Talbert will pair Seixas with Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Tex., in the doubles if Vic and Flam win their singles matches tomorrow.

Casey And Bubas Directly Tied To Moreland Case

RALEIGH (AP)—The future careers at N.C. State College of Asst. Athletic Director Willis Casey and Asst. Basketball Coach Vic Bubas probably will be determined Saturday.

State Chancellor Carey H. Bostian released a telegram last night implicating the two in the Jackie Moreland basketball recruiting case.

The Telegram, from Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner James H. Weaver, specifically named the two as having knowledge and participating in alleged violations involving Moreland's recruitment. It was dated Dec. 8.

Moreland, a 6-8 left-handed basketball star who was a sensation at the Minden, La., High School last year, enrolled at State last fall. This was after he had signed a letter of intent at Texas A&M and a grant in aid at Kentucky.

The NCAA slapped a four-year probation, one of the heaviest in its history, on State for its part in the case. State denied the NCAA's allegations and asked the ACC to make its own investigation.

In releasing Weaver's telegram last night, Dr. Bostian added that State's athletic council will meet Saturday morning to determine the school's next step.

A school directive states: "If at any time it is clearly established that any member of our staff has willfully violated any of the bylaws of our conference or the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. or that he had knowledge of any violation and failed to disclose this information to proper authorities, he shall be dismissed immediately."

Weaver's telegram said: "The Atlantic Coast Conference decided to interview Victor Bubas, Willis Casey, Harry Stewart (head of the fund-raising Wolfpack Club) and Jack Moreland. This was done by faculty representatives on Thursday evening, Dec. 6, 1956. Based upon this interview the faculty representatives reached the following conclusions:

"1—Moreland was given $80 for transportation from his home to Raleigh.

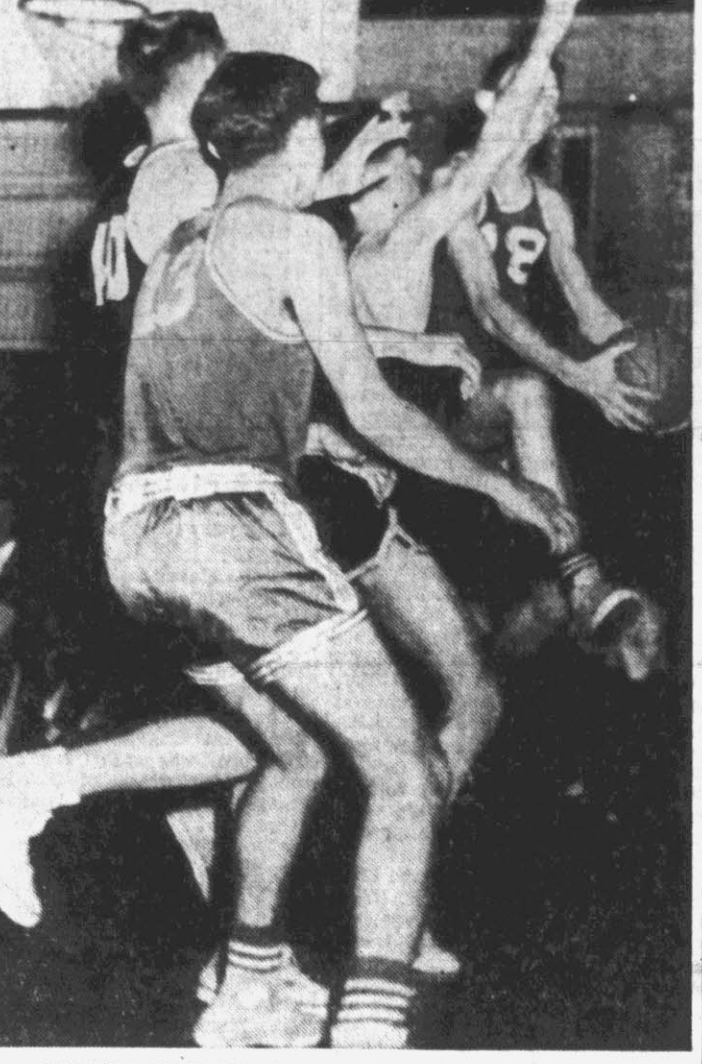

"2—These funds were given to him in the presence of and with the knowledge of Bubas and Casey.

"3—It was stated this money was actually given by Mr. Laughlin, an uncle of Mrs. Casey (no further identification).

"4—After Moreland arrived in Raleigh, he was assured at least a fifth year of financial aid at N.C. State if this became necessary.

"... The faculty representatives have concluded that excessive financial aid was given to Moreland in violation of ACC regulations. "We cannot express any further opinion as to the degree of guilt of specific acts without making a full scale investigation. Before any ACC penalties are imposed, we await further communication from you."

Rivals Will Meet Again

Phantoms Invade Rocky Mount Friday Evening

Greenville high school's basketballers, who have lost two early-season games to AAA opponents in the past two weeks, will journey to Rocky Mount tomorrow night to avenge a 64-27 defeat of Wednesday night, here.

Coach Boley Farley stated yesterday that his team is "a better outfit than those two games have shown. It just seems that they can't get started. I know they are capable of better ball though."

They lost their opener to Goldsboro 77-47 last week.

Coach Farley has been substituting freely in his two early contests. In an effort to find the right combination for the Phantoms, Wednesday night, the starters were Mack Roebuck and Wayne Eldson at forwards, Charlie Smith and Dick Evans at centers and Steve Nobles at center. In the previous game, Joe Winkate opened at center and Ed Wilkerson was a starting forward.

Farley uses practically every man on his bench in the course of a ball game. Billy Cox, Peanut Nuon, Albert Crawford, Wesley Hudson, Don Wilkerson, Walker Allen are some of the boys that have seen duty in both games thus far.

Expected to spark the Rocky Mount attack tomorrow night will be forward Haywood Evans, who helped snow the Phantoms under Wednesday with a 27-point performance.

The Jayvee game will begin at 6:30 and the varsity will play at 8:00.

ECC Swimmers Invade Georgia

The East Carolina College swimming team, under the coaching of Ray Martinez, takes on the strong University of Georgia squad this week-end. The Georgia team is an addition to the ECC tough schedule of the current season.

The ECC tankmen swim in Athens, Ga. Friday night.

Martinez' crew lost its opener to the nationally-ranked University of North Carolina. Although suffering defeat, the Pirate men made an impressive showing taking first place honors in two events.

Martinez says his club was off in its timing from the practice trials and in many events, this difference in time determined the final score.

Capturing the cheers of the partisan ECC crowd in the Carolina meet, Bob Sawyer, a muscular sophomore from Greensboro, took the backstroke event for ECC's only individual honor. Sophomore Jack Koebberling, usually unbeatable in the breast stroke, was barely edged out by a Tar Heel in that opening meet.

The Pirates' meet at Davidson College is slated for Saturday night.

Dealt A Blow

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A serious back injury to forward Jack Williams has dealt a blow to Wake Forest's basketball hopes.

Coach Murray Greason said last night the exact ailment has not been determined. Williams, who averaged 16.5 points last season, was X-rayed at least four times yesterday at Baptist Hospital here.

Greason said that if and when Williams gets back into action, he will have to wear a brace. He added that Williams will definitely be out of the opening game of the Carrousel Tournament in Charlotte and maybe longer.

"I don't think he'll ever be able to play anymore without the brace," said Greason.

Poor Showing By Paul Jorgensen

NEW YORK (AP)—Maybe it was the big town jitters. Or perhaps it was the TV tremors. Whatever it was, Paul Jorgensen of Port Arthur, Tex., had it bad in his first New York fight.

The 21-year-old featherweight who hadn't been beaten in 16 previous starts was apologetic for his poor performance in losing a unanimous decision to Carmelo Costa last night at Madison Square Garden.

"I don't want to make any excuses," he said in his dressing room. "But something was wrong with me. I didn't even get going."

"Maybe fighting in the Garden for the first time bothered me. It always has meant something big to me, like Carnegie Hall. Maybe it was seeing New York and being on TV. I don't know. I just didn't fight my fight."

Jorgensen, who had fought a draw with Costa July 31 and had beaten the flashy Brooklyn boxer Nov. 20 in two Houston matches, didn't even make it close this time.

Referee Harry Kessler had it 3-1, Judge Al Singer 7-3 and Judge Artie Aidala 3-1, all for Costa, who weighed 129½ to Jorgensen's 127½ pounds. The AP card had Costa on top 7-2-1.

Costa took charge, beating his man to the punch almost every time and tying him up early. Although Costa needed eight stitches to close cuts around both eyes, he won handily.

This Could Be The Big Year For UNC Cagers

The Associated Press
This may be the year North Carolina's Tar Heels finally shake loose from North Carolina State's shadow in college basketball.

Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heels have had nothing but table scraps while State's Wolfpack has been eating high on the hog in their Atlantic Coast Conference. But suddenly it's spring in Chapel Hill.

The unbeaten Tar Heels, ranked No. 6 in this week's Associated Press poll, ran up their third victory, winning 82-55 over George Washington State, however, was chopped down for the second night in a row, this time 75-61 by South Carolina.

It's the first time since 1953 N.C. State has suffered back-to-back defeats and has dropped two of its first three starts in the AAC. Clemson dumped State to its first defeat Tuesday night, 96-94 in overtime.

Lennie Rosenbluth, the 6-5 Yankee who followed McGuire to North Carolina from the sidewalks of New York, did the big job for the Tar Heels with 27 points. State, which had been ranked sixth in the nation, never was in the running against once-beaten South Carolina. The Gamecocks took a 34-24 lead at the intermission, toyed with the Wolfpack in the first 10 minutes of the second half and then ran up an 11-point edge with 5 minutes left.

Service Cagers Start Tourney

SUMTER, S.C. (AP)—Eight service basketball teams open a three-day tournament at Shaw Air Force Base today.

Opening games pit Fort Knox Ky., with Camp Lejeune, N.C. and Mitchell Air Force Base, N.Y., against Charleston Navy.

Tonight, Keesler, Miss. Air Force Base meets Fort Meade, Md., and Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Station tangles with host Shaw AFB.

The finals will be played Saturday night.

Duke Hopes For Tourney Upset

DURHAM (AP)—With hopes of pulling an upset, the Duke Devils will leave tonight for Birmingham, Ala., to compete against three strong basketball teams in the third annual Birmingham tournament.

The Duke team will open the two-day tourney against Alabama tomorrow night as the underdog. In an other opening game Mississippi Southern, faces West Virginia.

Gene Perkins was the weekend guest of Mike Bullock in Rocky Mount.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Everett spent Sunday with their daughter, Miss Emma Nell Everett, a student at Meredith College.

CHERRY NUT MOUNDS

Ingredients: 2 cups sifted enriched flour, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon almond extract, 2 eggs (separated), 1 cup butter or margarine (at room temperature), 2 cups rolled oats (quick or old fashioned), 1 cup chopped nut-meats, 48 candied cherries.

Method: Sift together flour, sugar and salt into bowl. Add almond extract, egg yolks and butter; beat until smooth. Stir in oats. Form into 4 dozen small balls. Dip each ball into slightly beaten egg whites; roll in chopped nut-meats. Make a hollow in each ball, place half a candied cherry in each hollow. Bake on greased cookie sheets in slow (325 degrees) oven 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Hidden Blessing In Auto Accident

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Automobile accidents can be a blessing in disguise, Robert J. Irwin mused today.

Rancher Bryan Glass last week identified Irwin as one of three men who took part in a robbery near Gonzales, Tex., last Jan. 21. Texas wanted Irwin extradited.

But at a habeas corpus hearing Virginia Hammond of Los Angeles testified she was involved in an auto accident with Irwin Jan. 21, and documents were produced showing Irwin had made an insurance claim based on the accident. Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker ordered him freed.

Beef Bargains Over Markets Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Beef of one sort or another will be served in many American homes this weekend, judging by the specials planned for the nation's supermarkets.

Everything from hamburger to the fancy sirloin and porterhouse steaks are featured in small prices and big type of one chain or another. As might be expected, ribs of beef, round steak and chuck roast seem to be the most numerous items.

The lower store prices for beef generally reflect lower wholesale prices of recent weeks, and the housewives' good fortune is expected to continue a few more weeks. Next year, however, they'll likely be a bit higher.

Some stores had sirloin steak anywhere from 8 to 30 cents a pound below last week, while rib roast was reported from 4 to 10 cents cheaper in scattered areas. Pork prices were mostly higher, and frying chickens, which have been low priced for some time, edged up 2 to 6 cents in some cities.

Preliminary estimates were that Christmas turkeys would be close to the prices charged for gobblers at Thanksgiving, although the larger birds might be a cent or two higher per pound. One chain executive commented that turkey, while a big item at Christmas, does not dominate the meat market as much as it does at Thanksgiving. He noted that many housewives seemed to prefer ham for the traditional family dinner in recent years.

Housewives looking for fruit bargains should be able to find them in the freezers and on the shelves. Frozen orange juice prices, already down a bit, are expected to go even lower because the processors are caught between slumping sales and a big carry-over from last year's fruit pack.

California packers, who handle the nation's entire supply of cling peaches and fruit cocktail, are loaded. The 1936 pack of clings was 19 per cent over last year, while the amount of fruit cocktail—a mixture of diced peaches, pears, grapes, pineapples and cherries—is up 12 per cent from 1935.

Good buys also are available among the fresh fruits, too. The volume of orange, grapefruit and tangerines coming into city markets from Florida is picking up steadily. Prices of all three are good. Grapes are getting dearer, and apples generally are a bit high.

Radishes and turnips, along with the old standbys such as potatoes, onions and cabbage, are rates as outstanding vegetable buys by produce men. Carrots, endives, cauliflower, sweet potatoes, beets and parsnips also are attractively priced.

Two To Attend Chicago Meeting

Oliver Williams of Rocky Mount and Greenville Banks of Maple will serve as official delegates of the East Carolina chapter of Pi Omega Pi at the annual convention of the business education fraternity in Chicago, December 27-29.

Dr. Audrey V. Dampsey of the college faculty and eight other student members of the organization will also attend. Banks is president of the local chapter.

Williams and Dr. Dampsey are candidates for office in the fraternity. Nominated by the National Council of Pi Omega Pi, Dr. Dampsey, who has been editor and is now organizer for the organization, is a candidate for the office of president.

Williams is a candidate for the position of student representative on the national fraternity council. The holder of this office serves as editor of the Pi Omega Pi yearbook. Williams is now a member of the editorial staff of the "East Carolinian," student newspaper at the college here.

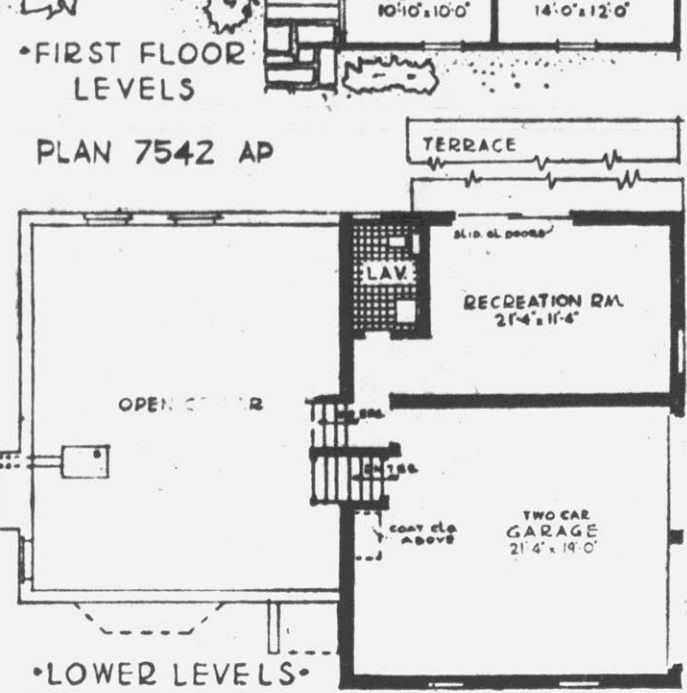

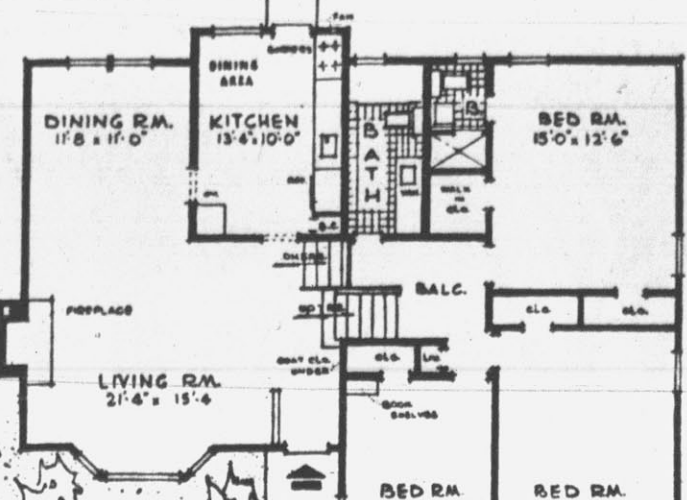

Other students from East Carolina who will attend the convention in Chicago are Martha Ann Johnson of Benson, Janice Rhem of Kinston, Thomas E. Ruffin, Jr., of Ahoskie, I. K. Williamson of Princeton, Bobby Mann of Newport, and Council Jarman of Kinston.

Broadway, New York's center of theatrical and night life, was first named by early Dutch settlers as "de Herre Straat," which means grand or lordly.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

HOW A SPLIT-LEVEL puts basement space to work by raising part of it to grade level. This house has a built-in two-car garage, a big recreation room with sliding glass doors to garden terrace, and an extra lavatory on the lower level. The house covers only 1,338 square feet. This is plan 7542AP by Herman H. York, architect, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y.

HIGH COSTS of home building seem to be persuading more families to switch to trailers as places to live. You can buy a trailer coach, or mobile home as some prefer to call them, for much less than you'd pay for a house. On the other hand, you can buy a self-propelled super deluxe home on wheels for more than you'd pay for a mansion — $75,000 to be exact.

So there are no class distinctions about making a trailer your home. You merely pick out one of about 12,000 special parking areas, pay $25 to $50 monthly rent, hook up with utilities, turn on your shower bath and relax.

Two-and-a-half million trailers are roaming or squatting around North America today and more than a million families are living in these mobile homes as their permanent year-round residences. The figures are from the Trailer Coach Assn., which recently had the Stanford Research Institute in California check up on who lives in trailers and why.

Arthur J. Romeyn, president of the association, says the survey shows that one person out of every ten in 11 western states now lives in a home on wheels. The average income of the trailer dweller is over $5,000 a year. The average family size is 2.69 persons. About 31 per cent of the owners are in the 20 to 34 age group. Most trailer wives do not work.

The Glamor of trailer life was shown recently in an exhibit of 35 new models in New York's Coliseum. That's where the $75,000 model, called the Executive Flagship, was on view. This is quite a home, including two bathrooms, two refrigerators, a bar, sun deck, built-in helpout and portable swimming pool. It has sleeping accommodations for seven and is equipped with radio-telephone, television and air conditioning. It weighs 18 tons. We were so fascinated, we forgot to ask about the mileage per gallon.

William B. MacDonald, Jr., put on the show as head of the Mid-States Corp., which he says is one of the world's largest makers of mobile homes. He started his career as a city transit driver, in Chicago. He bought a bus in 1933 and ran a one-man coach service from New York to the Chicago World's Fair of that year. Now he sponsors the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, among other hobbies. But when he vacations he doesn't use a land cruiser, he deep-sea fishes from the Caribbean to Canada in his yacht, "Snoozy."

VACATION purposes make up the bulk of the demand for trailers. The Stanford survey showed that about 90 per cent of trailer vacationers expect to continue the use of these vehicles indefinitely. All is not beer and skittles, however. About two-thirds of the trailer vacationers complain. Some mention lack of cleanliness and sanitation in trailer parks and courts, inadequate parking space, neighbors too close and prohibitions against dogs.

Presumably some of these faults will eventually be overcome. MacDonald says about 1,000 new trailer parks are being added each year. And the trailers themselves bring complaints, such as being crowded and too small, limited in storage space, hard to haul and making driving more difficult.

But it's a new way of life. Romeyn says 88 per cent of today's trailer population took up their present style of living since World War II.

Double Service By Wofford Bell

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP) — Wofford College has a 102-year-old bell which plays an unusual role.

The bell not only tolls the beginning and end of classes, but is the instrument of a scholarship for a student each school year.

The student bell-ringer earns his scholarship by making 13 trips to the bell each day. On each trip he tugs the big rope 10 times for a daily total of 130 lusty tugs.

During each 102-day semester, the student bell-ringer pulls the rope more than 13,000 times.

One Drawback In Foreign Models

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Owners of small foreign cars have discovered one serious drawback about which American car owners seldom worry.

Bill Spaeth parked his French Renault for the night in front of his home. When he went out the next morning, he discovered a mischievous passerby had turned the smart rascal on its side, damaging one fender.

Ingenuity Taxed To Handle That Flood Of Mail

NEW YORK (AP) — Coping with the increasing flood of mail in and out of business firms and with the ubiquitous office memo taxes the ingenuity of many managements today.

Sometimes it seems an airmail letter can fly across the country in less time than it takes an office memo to reach another office on the floor below.

Mechanical devices to speed delivery and collections, new methods of sorting on the run, intricate machines for weighing and stamping and figuring foreign postage — all are being tried in the fight to dig a way out of the growing mountain of paper work under which today's business increasingly is being smothered.

An endless chain links all floors from the 12th to 30th in the new Socony Mobil Oil Building in midtown New York. Automatically it ejects mail and picks up returning letters, packages and memos, and in turn leaves them on the floor where they belong.

The longest time element involved is seven minutes. The system handles an average of 2 1/2 tons of paper and cardboard a day.

Conveyor belts speed mail through 13 floors of the Mutual Life Insurance Building on Broadway. The company handles answers 20,000 letters a month, but doesn't count mail needing no replies (for example, premium payments) or the stocks of interoffice correspondence.

Attendants on each floor take the mail baskets, sort the incoming for the various divisions on that floor, and send back inter-office paper work for other floors, or outgoing letters for the mail room, where 15 persons handle the flood. There are one to three attendants on each floor, depending on the traffic in paper there.

Joan Blondell Proves That Talent Will Tell

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A 25-year veteran in Hollywood and becoming a grandmother, Joan Blondell is still as saucy and successful as ever in movies.

Joan is battling her long eyelashes and acting with her usual verve in "This Could Be the Night," her third film in quick succession. Earlier she did "The Opposite Sex" and "Lizzie"; next she goes into "The Desk Set" with Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy. And she says her agent has another assignment warming in the bull pen.

All of which proves that talent tells. Back in the early '30s, she and a kid named James Cagney were picked out of a Broadway show and brought to Warner Brothers. For 10 years, she served in the studio's stock company along with Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Warren William, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins, etc.

"Oh, those were hectic times," she reminisced. "I was literally doing two and three pictures at a time."

But survive she did. She has always kept active in films, minus time out for matrimonial and other ventures.

"I've always thought that if you know your job, you ought to be able to find work," she said. "Of course, in every acting career there are certain transitions you have to make."

 She feels she has made hers. "At least they don't cast me as a dumb chorus girl any more," she signed. "I played so many of those I couldn't think of any new way to do it, except maybe standing on my head."

Note: In her current film, Joan plays an ex-chorus girl. While she's working in Hollywood, wood, she lives in an apartment with her daughter Ellen, 18. But her home is in Manhattan.

Her big interests are her children. Ellen is an avid horsewoman and is studying horse raising at Pierce College in the San Fernando Valley. Her son Norman graduates from Cornell University in June. He's married and his wife is expecting a baby in March.

Russian Influence Is Seen Everywhere In Red China

Editor's note—This is another in a series of stories on life in Communist China as observed by Canadian reporter David Lancashire during a 5,500-mile tour.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
PEIPING—The influence of Soviet Russia is evident in every aspect of Red China's development.

This is seen everywhere—from the posters on the walls to trademarks on machinery.

But while there are plenty of Russians in China, they do not mingle socially with the ordinary Chinese.

China has leaned heavily on the Soviet Union in her expansion program.

"We have followed Russia and patterned ourselves after her, but we have not followed her blindly," said a Foreign Office official.

"We have adapted and molded the Soviet system to meet our own needs; but we have also made note of her mistakes and tried to avoid them."

China's first motor vehicles, the bit four-ton trucks from the assembly lines at Changchun in the Northeast, were designed in the Soviet Union and put together with Russian machinery.

The still-secret jet planes from the Russian-built and closely guarded factory at Wuchang on the Yangtze are being produced under Soviet supervision. They're close copies of Russian aircraft.

Almost every factory manager in the Northeast prefaces his explanations with the approved phrase: "Thanks to the selfless generosity of the Soviet Union..."

But as a slight illustration of the Chinese determination to follow their own path, the qualifying words are added: "And under the correct leadership of Chairman Mao and the Communist party..."

The hotels, or "guest houses," in all the industrial centers are packed with Russian engineers and technologists. They are supervising factory construction or installation of machinery, or instructing Chinese workers.

In many plants the Soviet instruction has been completed and the Russians have moved out. Many of China's top technicians have been trained in schools in Russia.

Peiping maintains an advisory board of Russian technology experts as trouble-shooters and inspectors for the Northeastern factories.

In south central China, where the first bridge across the Yangtze River is being built at Wuhan, 20 top Soviet engineers are supervising the project, which was designed in Russia. A third of the steel for the 25-million-dollar bridge is being imported from Russia.

The Russians, in their sloppy bellbottom pants, deadpan expressions and carrying bulging briefcases, can be seen on the streets of any city here, either walking with their families or speeding past in black limousines with the window curtains drawn.

This advisory invasion has brought embarrassing and uncomfortable results for other foreign visitors to China.

In railway stations, schools or even on the street, the foreigner is often jolted by groups of passers-by who form a ring and burst into applause. No matter what the visitor's nationality, he is inevitably taken to be a Russian, and the hand claps follow him wherever he goes.

But Ivan himself moves almost furtively. In factory towns and major cities, the permanent Russian resident lives in his own quarters, separate from the Chinese. There is no Sino-Soviet social life at all except at an official level.

The Russian sees only the eager Chinese who gather around his machine to learn technique, and he is constantly accompanied by one or more interpreters. Aside from them he has few or no Chinese acquaintances. He has strict traveling papers. When his job is done and the technique passed on he leaves.

In Peiping, the semipermanent Soviet residents are assigned to separate hotels from other foreigners or the casual Russian visitors.

R. W. Taylor & Co. of Morehead City, operating seven boats, caught 13 million, while Wallace Fish also of Morehead, with 11 boats, claimed more than 12 million.

A single shad boat, the John O. owned and operated by John Lowery for Beaufort Fisheries, caught 3,200,000 fish in four days.

The tremendous catches were attributed to a seven-day period of balmy weather, with daytime temperatures in the mid-70s.

Menhaden or shad boats carry crews ranging from 20 to 29 persons, including a captain, pilot, mate, engineers, cook, and fishermen. They are paid on shares, and such catches as those made last amount to tidy profits for each person aboard.

As early as Nov. 20, airplane fish spotters reported large school of roe menhaden lying offshore. Last week's catches were made off Core Banks, and fishermen say the schools, containing millions of fish, are still in the area.

The roe-bearing menhaden, noted for its oil content, normally appears off Cape Hatteras in mid-November, and, weather conditions continuing favorable, remain off the North Carolina coast until January. It is cooked for its oils, and ground into fish meal, to be used primarily in fertilizers and feeds. The oil is used in many items, including perfume, paint, and pharmaceuticals.

Beaufort Chalks Up Record Week With Menhaden

BEAUFORT, N. C. (AP) — This coastal town is claiming the largest catches of menhaden in a single week ever recorded in the history of commercial fishing.

Thirty-nine boats operating from three processing plants here last week, caught more than 55 million fish Monday through Saturday. Few boats managed to get in over four days fishing each due to the large backlog of fish that accumulated at the plants.

In neighboring Morehead City, 18 boats from two plants caught an additional 25 million, to bring the total week's catch in the area to well over 80 million.

Beaufort's largest plant, the Fish Meal Co., operated by Harvey Smith, and its fleet of 24 boats caught 35 million. Beaufort Fisheries, with 10 boats, accounted for 17 million. The catch from the town's newest and smallest plant, Standard Products Co. of N.C., was estimated to be from three to five million.

R. W. Taylor & Co. of Morehead City, operating seven boats, caught 13 million, while Wallace Fish also of Morehead, with 11 boats, claimed more than 12 million.

Gets Sympathy And City Money

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mrs. Beatrice McDonald went before the Oklahoma City Council to explain how she left two pairs of curtains in a basket near her garbage can and the garbage collectors removed them.

She made a trip to the city dump but failed to turn up the curtains. Councilmen sympathized and decided to give her $9.18.

Couldn't Afford 'Free' Parking

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Clarence Osborne was judged "Safe Driver of the Week" by the Augusta Lions Club and was awarded six months of free parking.

He posted the sticker—countersigned by the police chief—on the rear window of his car as instructed—and within 48 hours had received three tickets for over-parking.

"I can't afford all this free parking," he complained. And red-faced police excused the tickets.

Circus Will Tour Without A Tent

NEW YORK — Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus is putting its "Greatest Show on Earth" back on the road next season, but with some significant changes.

Most noteworthy will be the disappearance of the huge canvas tent. It'll give way to indoor arenas, ball parks and state fairgrounds, where all the dates will be played.

"The show will have all the traditional acts from jugglers to tigers," a circus spokesman said yesterday in announcing definite plans for next season's schedule.

"The changes will all be backstage and in business operations," he explained.

The news ended speculation that the famed circus tent might vanish from the American scene since the "Big Show" unexpectedly terminated its run last July 16 in midtown at Pittsburgh.

Another feature announced by the circus management calls for the show to be run on a year-round basis, eliminating the traditional winter layoff. As usual, the season will begin April 3 at New York's Madison Square Garden and continue there until May 12.

Other contracted playing dates include: June 10-13 Reynolds Coliseum, Raleigh, N.C.; June 14-16 Coliseum, Charlotte, N.C.

HARRY Dube, spokesman for Circus President John Ringling North, said the circus is lining up state fair and ball park engagements for the next two months. Then, he said, "We will come back indoors until Christmas, take a vacation and then go on the road again from Jan. 15 to March 15."

After that the circus will go into rehearsal prior to beginning the circuit again in New York.

Some of the additional changes involve the circus company traveling by railroad or private automobile, instead of by special train. Fleets of tractor-trailer trucks or ordinary railroad baggage cars will haul the circus' equipment.

Prison Escapee Declared Outlaw

ASHEVILLE — A 34-year-old prison escapee has been declared an outlaw by Superior Court Judge J. Frank Huskins.

Frank Watson, who last escaped from Ivy Bluff prison camp in Caswell County, Nov. 21, was outlawed on petitions by Asheville Police Chief A. R. Sluder and Chief Det. R. L. Michael of the sheriff's department.

Police said they believe Watson is behind recent safe thefts here. He has a record of four escapes from North Carolina prison camps.

Watson was given terms of 5 to 10 years and 10 years in two robberies and has a record of other

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

"As a nursery of human nature, the family is the source of the democratic way of life, an effective method of evangelism, the chief laboratory for peace and the beginning of the Kingdom of God," says Mrs. Jacob S. Quimby, Filipino Methodist leader in the Christian home and family life movement, and a student at the Merrill Palmer School, Detroit, Mich.

The babyfold of Union Christian Center in Taejon, Korea, is caring for 29 abandoned babies (mostly girls) gathered up along roadsides by the Social Affairs Department of the provincial government. Many of the tiny babies have grown into healthy toddlers. When they are two or three years old, Mrs. Paul A. Kingsbury and others of the babyfold staff will try to have them adopted by Korean Christian families. The newest nurse in this babies' home is wife of the amputee supervisor of the Amputee Center, which is another service of this interdenominational, evangelistic, agricultural, rehabilitation, and vocational project started just before the Communists invaded the area.

According to Mrs. Monica Owen, a national director of the "Migrant Ministry" sponsored by the National Council of Churches "to provide migrant farm laborers (working in seasonal fruit and vegetable harvesting) health and welfare services and community acceptance," reports that Ministry now reaches some 2,000,000 workers and their families. Most of them do not speak English, she says, and the church program features vocational classes for teenagers, expansion of Sunday school curriculum related to the experiences of migrant children, and on adult literacy classes. Another leader, Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel, of Washington, D.C., president of the United Church Women, reports that most Christians "do a reasonably good job of loving those near us or like us—or people who are far away in Africa or Japan because we can be sentimental about them, but in the migrant program we find a real place to work at true Christian love."

Purchases Three Of Textron Mills

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The purchase of three mills from Textron, Inc. was announced last night by financier Edward Krook, who did not disclose the purchase price.

Krook said the mills were the two Anderson textile mills in Skowhegan, Maine, and the Tifton Mills, Tifton, Ga.

Krook said he promised the Textron management and Maine Gov. Edmund S. Muskie he would attempt to sell the carding and finishing mill at Skowhegan intact, and that the other Skowhegan mill, a weaving mill, may also be sold complete. He did not disclose his plans for the Georgia plant.

Potted Plant Is Nobody Else's

Joel Lawhon, manager of Radio Station WGTC, found a potted plant on the front seat of his car when he returned to the parked vehicle on W. Fifth St., around 11:25 yesterday morning.

He turned the plant in to police and told them someone had evidently placed it in his car by mistake.

An hour later Lawhon called the police station. The plant had been left in his car for his wife, he said.

Mrs. Lawhon recovered her plant from police within a short while.

CHAPTER 36

Perry remained motionless, bowed over his knees. Casson was still also, but his heart was beating violently.

"How do I know you will do this?" asked Perry.

"If you observe your part of the bargain, I will observe mine," Perry looked up sharply.

"The bargain is this," said Casson. "If I write your story as I have said I will, you'll tell it to me again, here and now, in your words and from the beginning. You will then write a confession of the murder of Jim Macfarlane. You need not mention all the cases of blackmail."

"You want a confession?"

"Yes."

Perry laughed in jubilation. "So you haven't any evidence," he said.

"In order to convict you," Casson replied, "we shall bring into court every particle of evidence about your blackmail. Lockyer will be a witness; so will Miss Martin; so will Mrs. Gordonstoun; so will Jean Shaw."

"They'll refuse. They won't dare."

"Moreover," said Casson, paying no attention to him, "I too will be a witness. The court will not be interested in my interpretation of your career. It will take from me the facts only, nothing more. Those facts will be state news when your trial is over. As a man you will be dead and as a story you will be dead. I want a confession of the murder and the last blackmail; of that and of that only. The rest will be saved to surprise them in your biography."

Perry looked up.

"How do I know it will be published? How can I be sure the people will read about me?"

"A member of my club wanted me to write for his newspaper. I shall offer your biography to him. He will take it."

"You belong to a club?" Perry asked quickly. "Which one?"

"Cane's."

"Cane's," Perry mused. "St. James's street. I should like to have gone into a club before I died. Will you tell my story to the members of Cane's?"

"If you wish."

"They will talk about me."

Perry said, a strange look on his face. "They will sit round the fire after supper and drink their dark, rich sherry." Casson swallowed—and they will talk about me." He brought his gaze back to meet Casson's.

"But you will keep your side of the bargain?"

"I promise."

Perry leaned back and breathed a long sigh of relaxation.

"Very well. At last people will talk about me."

Casson rapped on the cell door and, when the constable put his head in, said:

"Bring me some paper. Lots of it. And a jug of water."

When the water came Perry drank half a pint of it at once and started talking. By the time he had finished, it was ten minutes to four in the morning.

"Magnificent," said Casson, his mouth raw from cigarette smoke. "Now, the confession."

Casson pushed over some blank paper. Perry took his pen out of his breast pocket.

"You ought to begin by saying who you are," said Casson. "You know I, John Henry Perry, of 51 Bickersteth St., London, W.6, and then you go on. That's the efficient way."

Perry started writing. He looked up.

"You only want the facts about the murder?"

"And the blackmail of Mrs. Gordonstoun. That explains the motive."

It took him fifty-five minutes to write it.

"There!" he announced as he put down his pen and handed the two sheets of paper to Casson. "I think that will do. I think it is rather good." Casson read it. It would certainly do. As a death warrant it was entirely adequate.

"Fine," said Casson. He rose to his feet. "Are you ready?"

Perry drew in his breath and his mouth trembled.

"Very well," he said.

Casson rapped on the door of the cell. He heard a yawn as the constable unlocked it again.

"Take us to the superintendent," he said. Perry followed them through the bleak hall of the station.

Casson went straight into the office, giving Perry no time to hesitate. He took the confession and laid it on the desk. Strutt seized it, glanced at Perry, and began to read. He finished it, looked at Casson, who was standing a pace behind Perry. Casson nodded. Strutt rose to his feet.

"I charge you, John Henry Perry, with the murder of James Robert Macfarlane. I caution you that anything you say will be taken down may be used in evidence against you."

Strutt put the confession in front of him.

"Do you wish to sign this?"

"I do."

"Read it through. To yourself. Not aloud," Perry picked it up and read it through.

"Is it true?" Strutt demanded as Perry laid it down again.

"Quite correct."

"Then, if you wish, you may add: 'I have read this statement, which I have made voluntarily, and it is true.' Then, if you wish to do so, you may sign it."

Perry signed.

The next Sunday Casson drove out to Putney. It was a morning of shimmering heat, gold pouring out of a sapphire sky. He stopped the car in Disraeli Road.

Jean Shaw answered the bell.

"I thought you might care to lunch with me," he said.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Duker," she replied. "I have another engagement."

"I'm sorry too. Another time, perhaps." She did not answer, but walked with him down the garden path. When they were at the gate she put her fingers on it to prevent it opening.

"You succeeded." It was a blunt statement.

"I did, Miss Shaw."

"Will you tell me how?"

"I persuaded him to confess. I appealed to his vanity. I promised to write his story after he was dead."

She looked at him. "Are you going to?"

"No."

"But you promised him."

"A promise not given on the heart, Miss Shaw, is not a promise."

"Is it not a matter of honor? I hated him but . . ."

He opened the gate. She made no motion to stop him.

"Good-bye, Miss Shaw."

John Perry was hanged at Brixton prison at nine o'clock this morning. As I promised, I have written his story.

Dream Comes True For Foundling Today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A two years' dream comes true today for Harriet Thalf, 11-year-old Negro foundling, over whom a lot of people are making quite a fuss this Christmas season.

Harriet at last is meeting her idol, and ideal, the great and gracious contralto, Marian Anderson.

Harriet sings, too, the quality of her sweet, clear voice already having won much praise. She lives in utter poverty, softened by an atmosphere of love; but want cannot stifle the intensity of her ambition to become an artist in music.

The two are to meet at a luncheon in honor of Miss Anderson, a native Philadelphian.

The script calls for Harriet to present a spray of flowers to Miss Anderson, to clasp her hand, and in good time, to sing for her.

Out of the same kind of poverty which blighted the early life of Marian Anderson in South Philadelphia, Harriet Thalf has appeared.

Miss Anderson's father peddled ice and coal; her mother once taught school. Money always was scarce. When the father died, Marian's mother supported the family by doing domestic work. At six Marian started singing at the Union Baptist Church, billed as the "baby contralto." When she was in high school, members of her church collected nickels and dimes to make up a fund to help her future. That led to her enrollment in music schools, and eventually to great honors.

Harriet, abandoned at the age of three months, was taken in and reared by Mrs. Emma Thalf, a domestic. Enrolled in St. Teresa's, she joined the choir and became soprano soloist and sometimes director of the ensemble. A voice teacher got her a scholarship. She won first place at the 24th Annual Irish Feis this year at Fordham University.

President Ends Augusta Vacation This Afternoon

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today ends a 2½-week Southland vacation mixed with work and flies back to Washington for an imminent international conference and further planning of the administration's 1957 legislative program.

The chief executive and Mrs. Eisenhower arranged to take off from Bush Airfield aboard the President's private plane in mid-afternoon on the two-hour flight to the capital.

Aides said the President came to the Augusta National Golf Club in need of a rest and relaxation after his successful re-election campaign and anxiety over the Middle East crisis.

In Augusta he continued to keep in close touch with the tense international situation, but also got in a good deal of rest. His visitors were held to a minimum. Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Defense Wilson headed the list.

In Washington Sunday, the President will start a series of talks with Prime Minister Nehru of India. The Asian leader will arrive there from London and remain until Thursday morning.

The program includes one day of complete seclusion for Eisenhower and the Prime Minister at Gettysburg, Pa. They will travel there from the White House Monday morning and remain overnight.

Eisenhower's return to Washington also means a speedup in the draft of the State of the Union message he will deliver to Congress early next month. That message will outline the administration's 1957 legislative program.

Another Letter To Soviet Seen On Disarmament

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower probably will write to Russian Premier Bulganin shortly urging action on withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary as a step toward brightening prospects for talks on arms reduction.

U. S. officials say the use of Russian troops to smash anti-Moscow revolts in Hungary has created a bad climate for disarmament talks expected to begin in the United Nations early next year.

They said that climate could be greatly improved if the Soviet government would return to its October promise to negotiate with Hungary and other Eastern European states as a step toward ultimate withdrawal of the troops.

Foreign policy matters are prominent on the list of problems facing Eisenhower on his scheduled return to the capital late today from a vacation at Atlanta, Ga.

Current attention focuses on his talks beginning Sunday with Prime Minister Nehru of India. The climate for those talks appeared to have been improved by the disclosure yesterday that Ambassador V. K. Krishna Menon will not be a member of Nehru's official party. Menon, Nehru's most trusted foreign affairs adviser, is widely mistrusted by Washington officials.

The proposed Eisenhower letter to Bulganin has been under consideration for about a month. It will be a reply to a lengthy Bulganin declaration on disarmament which the President received in mid-November.

One Russian proposal was for a system of mutual aerial inspection extending approximately 500 miles on each side of the Iron Curtain.

This has excited interest in official quarters here because it marked something of a reversal from Bulganin's rejection of the "open skies" exchange between the United States and Russia which Eisenhower proposed at the Geneva summit conference in 1955.

Officials indicated Eisenhower's reply to Bulganin on this point would welcome Soviet acceptance of the aerial inspection principle without agreeing to the particular zone arrangement which the Russians suggested.

In a 15 year period from 1941, fires caused the most accidents in the U.S. with 5,241 fatalities. Floods and other weather disasters were second most fatal, and automobile accidents took third place.

SMALL FRY ON THE GRIDIRON

A Blue Bullet ready for the wars. Face guards are favored.

You read a lot about college and professional football, but the organized game is for grade school kids also.

Midget football — complete with clubs, coaches, leagues, special equipment and special rules — is being played this fall by an estimated 50,000 boys in 4,000 teams and 40 states.

Comparable with, but not as tightly organized as, Little League baseball, it started back in 1930 in Philadelphia, under the tutelage of Joe Tomlin, although not all midget football teams are connected with the Pop Warner league that he founded. They are sponsored frequently by schools, recreation authorities, football enthusiasts, and men who like to see boys have fun, stay out of mischief and learn the game as safely as possible.

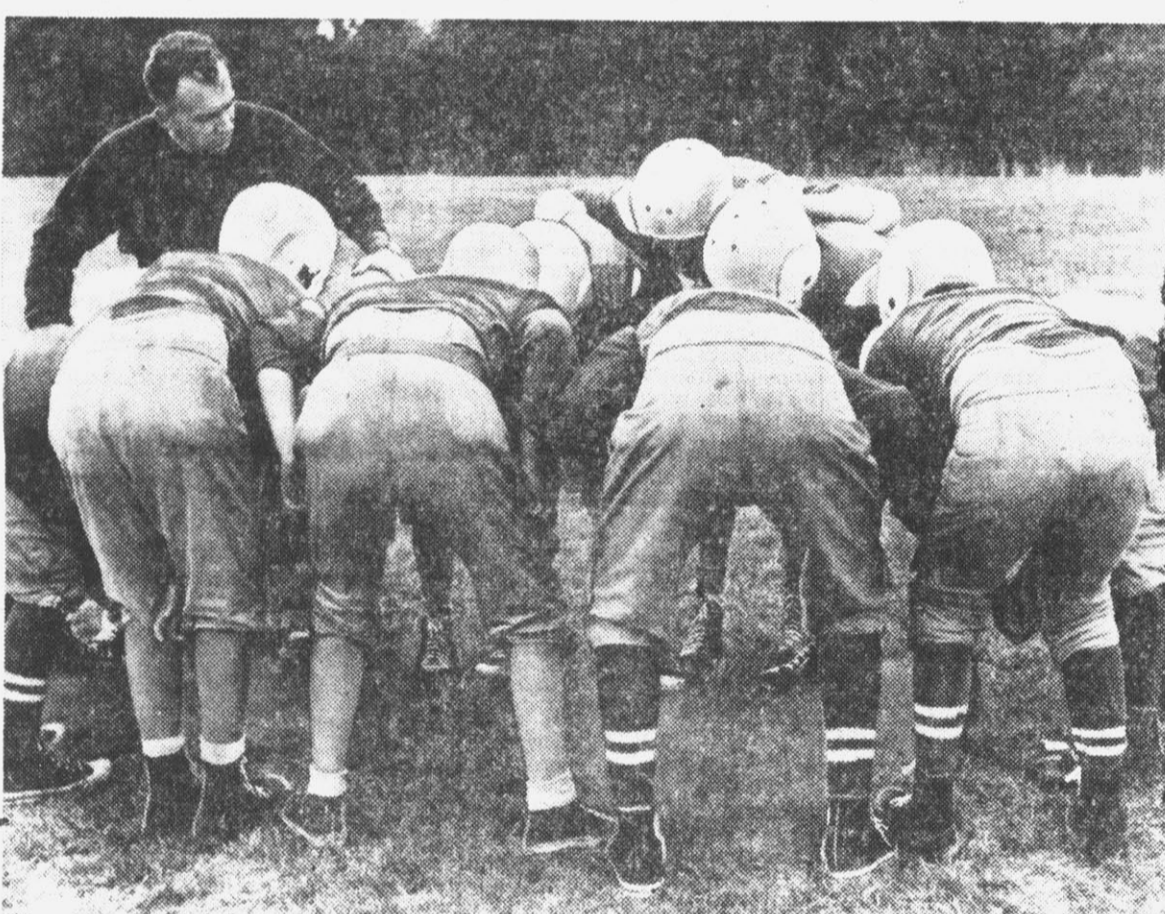

Rules vary according to region. Rubber cleated shoes usually are worn. Standard gridirons are used in places and 80 yard ones in others.

Pictured here is a typical midget team, the Port Washington Blue Bullets, of the independent Long Island, N. Y. league, in training and in action against the Covers of Glen Cove.

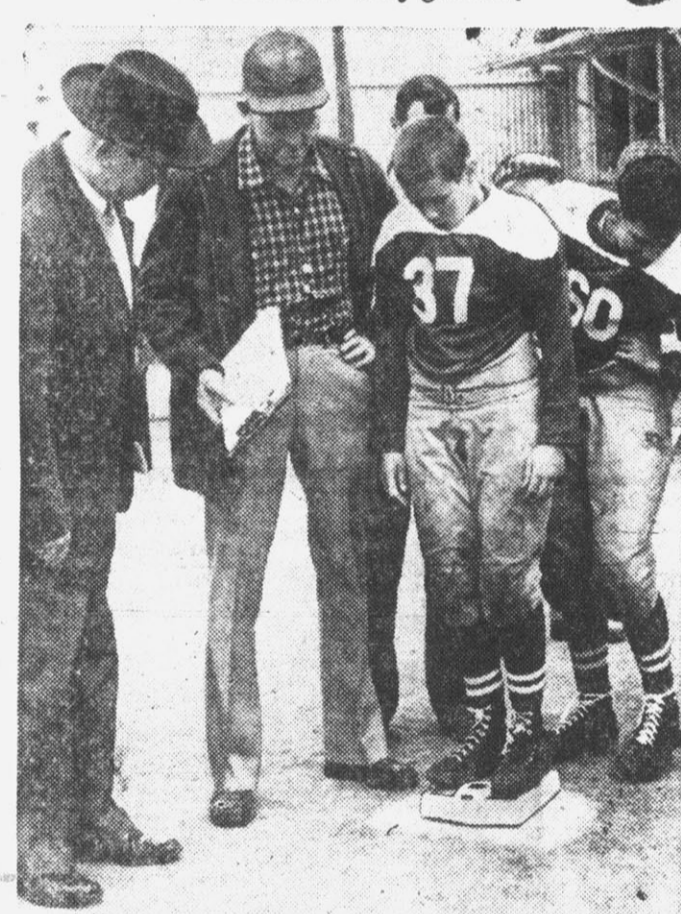

With several Blue Bullets in pursuit, Oscar Stedman of the Covers sweeps left end. They got him.

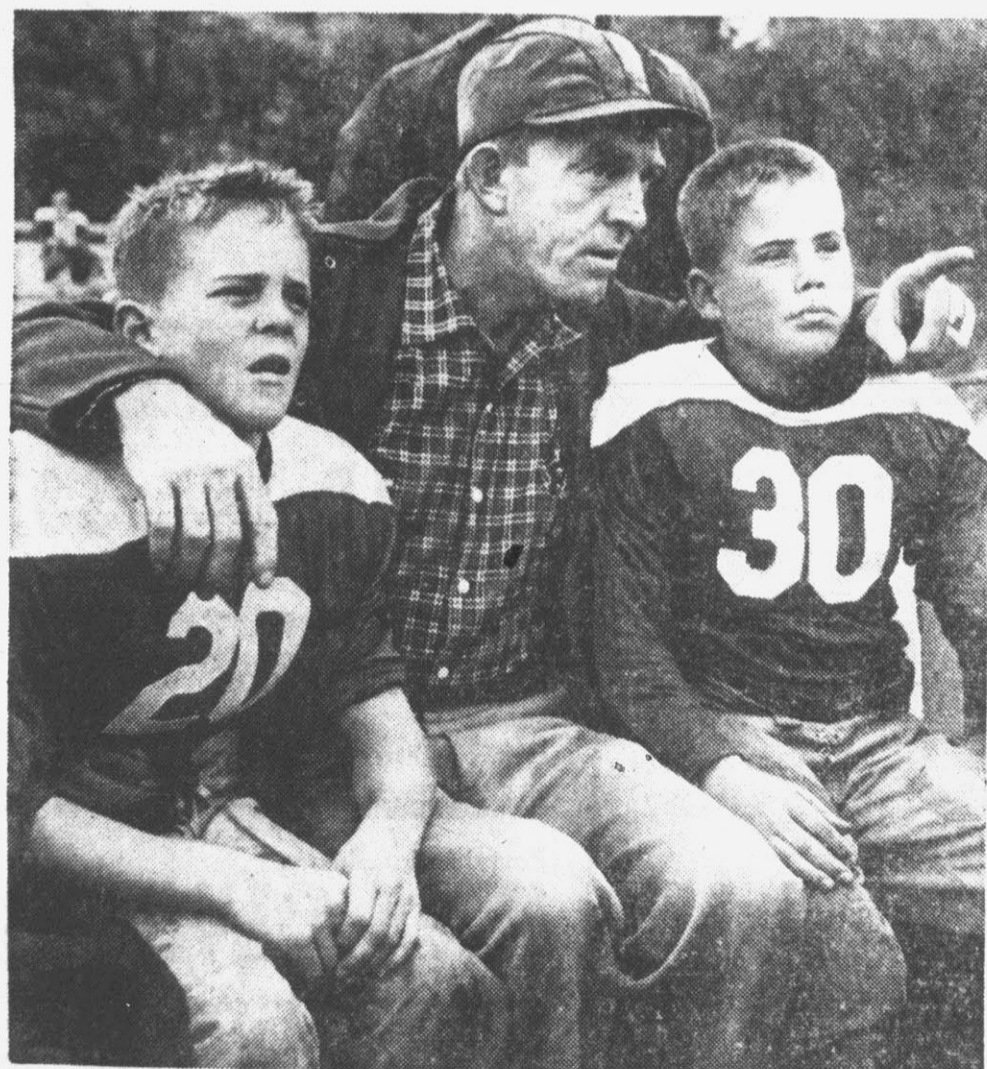

Calisthenics and other muscle builders feature practice three times a week. "Get hard," barks Coach Fred Starcke, "and you won't get hurt."

In practice session huddle, coach kibitzes to make sure boys have right idea, keep arguments at minimum, and put snap into it.

Pre-game anxiety on scales. Boys in this league must weigh 108 or less, be under 13.

Agony on the bench, Head coach and team organizer Bob Snibbe, a publishing executive, points out lesson to Ed Wing and own son Bob.

First aid kit yields gum supply to unscathed youngsters. Safety-conscious coaches have doctor at each game.

Helmets away. After scoring a 14 to 0 win, the Bullets let out a victory yell, go on to congratulate opponents.

THAT WAS YOU UP IN THE CASTLE? BUT YOU'RE NOT DEAD... ARE YOU?

NO-SURE? IN THE WORDS OF ANOTHER GREAT RIVER PILOT, THE REPORT OF MY DEATH IS GREATLY EXAGGERATED.

I WAS TAKING A SNOOZE IN THE CASTLE TOWER WHEN SOMEBODY STUMBLED OVER ME. MUST'VE BEEN ONE OF YOU.

BY THE WAY, WHAT WERE YOU LADS DOING THERE? LOOKING FOR HIDDEN TREASURE!

DID YOU FORGET, DIANA, THAT I TAUGHT YOU HOW TO FENCE?

OF COURSE NOT, BUT ARE YOU AFRAID OF WHAT CHESTY THE CHAMPION MIGHT DO TO ME IF HE SEES ME? FRANKLY, YES.

THANK YOU FOR WORRYING ABOUT ME. I'LL SEE THERE'S NO TROUBLE.

TIME TO GO TO THAT CHARITY FENCING PARTNER SHOW, CHESTY. YEAH, IF I SEE THAT HIM APART?

SO, PANTHERMEN, NOW THAT THE RESISTANCE IS GONE OUT OF YOU, YOU THINK MING WILL SHOW YOU MERCY?-NO!!

LET THE DEATH OF YOUR LEADERS WARN ALL OF MONSO. THIS IS THE PRICE OF RESISTING MING'S EXECUTIONERS... AIM...!!!

FF-I-RE!!!

AT YOUR SERVICE, MING!

IT'S AMAZIN' FAIR DINKUM AMAZIN' COBBER! YOU'RE BEATIN' ALL RECORDS.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Stock markets nudged ahead in fairly active trading early this afternoon. Pivotal stocks were up fractions to a point better after an irregular start.

Turnover increased a bit as the trend recovered to the upside.

The recovery followed three straight days of reaction which ensued after the market made its biggest weekly gain of 18 years last week. Wall Street analysts regarded the market behavior as a classic example of a profit-taking decline which may now be reaching its conclusion.

While aircrafts were still lower in the wake of their vigorous advance recently against the lower market trend, gains were made by airlines, motors, steels, some chemicals and manufacturing shares.

Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown were down about 3 and 2 points at worst in early trading, but Bethlehem cut its loss to armor fraction and Youngstown was almost even.

Eastern Air Lines enjoyed some activity and held a gain of about a point while United Air Lines, Pan American World Airways and American Airlines were all up fractions.

Detroit, Republic and U.S. Steels all moved to the plus side by narrow margins.

Chrysler was up a point, Ford and General Motors fractions.

Du Pont ran ahead around 3 and Anaconda beyond a point. Illinois Central and Union Pacific were other 1-point gainers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 60 cents to $179.10 with the industrials up 90 cents, the rails up 60 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady; farm price 16, no f.o.b. plant sales reported.

Raleigh eggs steady. A large 38 to 40; Asheville eggs steady. A large 38 to 42, mostly 38; Charlotte eggs steady following advance, A large 38.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—Hog markets were mostly 25 lower today. Tops of 15.50 to 17.00 at Tarboro, Enfield, Bethel and Kinston; 16.00 to 17.00 at Rocky Mount, Hillsboro; 16.25 to 16.75 at New Bern, Benson, Nahant, Smithfield, Scotland Neck and Jackson; 16.50 at Rich Square, Siler City, Mount Gilead and Goldsboro; 16.25 at Clinton, Fayetteville, Lumberton, Mount Olive, Micro, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Shalotte, Newton grove, Bailey, Castle Hayne, Taylor City, Blackman Crossroads, Whiteville, Spring Hope, Clarkton, Mount Gilead, Siler City, Wingate and Kenly.

Whitehall, Republic and U.S. Steels all moved to the plus side by narrow margins.

Chrysler was up a point, Ford and General Motors fractions.

Report Business Activity Is Up

CHARLOTTE — Business activity in North Carolina was greater last month than for the same month in 1955, according to figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The figures show debit increases representing checks written against demand deposit accounts, regarded as reliable business indicators.

Raleigh, with debits of $263,314,000, had the highest percentage gain, 23 per cent, for the second consecutive month. Durham debits increased 13 per cent, Greensboro's 12 per cent and Asheville's 11 per cent. Declines were noted at Kinston, 10 per cent, and Wilson 4 per cent.

Light Agenda To Face Councilmen

City fathers will face a light agenda when they meet at City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Councilmen will consider the establishment of set-back lines on Boyd Ave. between Fifth and Dickinson.

Also set to come before the council is an old item of business, an ordinance to set up certain requirements for off-street parking. The city fathers will consider surety bonds for plumbers and discussion concerning a National Guard motor pool at the airport site is scheduled for tonight.

Under new business councilmen will consider paving petitions for Harding and Willow Sts. They will receive requests for taxi cab franchises.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam will report on the status of the bond issue recently authorized by local voters.

Receives Minor Injuries In Auto Accident Today

H. C. Kinsaul of Greenville Rt. 1 received minor injuries this morning when his car wrecked on the Old Stantonburg Rd.

Investigating patrolman D. L. Minshew said Kinsaul was enroute to Farmville when his car skidded on a curve during a shower this morning. He was thrown from the vehicle and knocked unconscious, the patrolman stated. The accident occurred between 8:15 and 8:30.

Yesterday morning two cars collided about four miles west of Winterville.

Investigating patrolman Bill Whitehurst identified the drivers as Mrs. Josephine Mason of Winterville Rt. 1 and Billy Vanderford of 213 Cotanche St., Greenville.

Whitehurst said Vanderford was charged with failure to yield right-of-way. Damage to both cars was estimated at $300.

Editor Resigns Post In Raleigh

RALEIGH — The resignation of Mark Ethridge, Jr. as editor of the Raleigh Times, effective Jan. 11, was announced today.

Ethridge said his resignation was for personal reasons and his future plans were indefinite.

Frank Daniels, general manager of the paper, said: "We are sincerely sorry to see Mark go. We wish him great success in his future career." Daniels said he hoped an announcement would be made soon as to Ethridge's successor.

Ethridge became editor of the Times in July 1955, soon after it was acquired by the Daniels family, which also publishes the News and Observer.

Only one Negro child entered the divisions and he, David Earl Hammond, received a first place award in the Best Pet division for Negroes. Other prize money in the Negro competition was divided between the Boy and Girl Scout units that participated in the parade.

The parade was one of the largest the town has ever had and the crowd which watched also ranked with past records, according to parade chairman Hunsucker.

Take Stiff Suspended Terms In Superior Court

Two convicted men agreed to stiff suspension terms rather than serve sentences handed out yesterday in Superior Court by Judge Chester R. Morris.

Charlie Huges, sentenced to two years for possession of lottery tickets and Edmond Phillips, sentenced to 12 months for non-support, both agreed to three-year suspensions in lieu of the jail terms. Huges had entered a plea of guilty to his charge and Phillips was found guilty by a jury.

Huges, under terms of the suspension, agreed to the following conditions for the three-year period: (1) remain of good behavior; be gainfully employed and support dependents to the best of his ability; (2) not possess, sell or have for sale any lottery tickets and not allow any gambling devices to be operated on his premises; (3) appear at the December term of Superior Court for the next three years and show affirmatively that he has been of good behavior and not violated any terms of the suspended sentence; (4) pay a fine of $50 and costs before 4 p.m. December 13 (today); and (6) that if it appears affirmatively that at any time during the three-year period he violates the suspension terms in any way, upon motion of the solicitor in open court the sentence shall be served.

Phillips agreed to remain on good behavior and violate no laws during the course of his suspension, pay into the Clerk of Superior Court office for support of two minor children the sum of $12 per week until the youngest child is 18 years old, pay costs of the action, and pay into the Clerk of Superior Court office for use and benefit of the two minor children the sum of $80 to be disbursed to the superintendent of the public welfare department.

Other judgments in yesterday's session included: Rufus Stepps and Willie Oakley, arson, nol pros with leave; Benjamin Randell Whitfield, breaking, entering and larceny, nol pros with leave; Willie M. Hammond, forgery and uttering a forged check, plea of guilty, two years, suspended for a term of three years and defendant placed on probation for three years, costs remitted, capias and sci fa ordered, stricken.

June Staten, larceny and receiving, jury verdict of guilty of receiving stolen property knowing it to be stolen, 6-12 months; James Green, assault, public drunkenness and disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, continued for defendant; James Phillips, embezzlement, plea of guilty, 18 months, suspended for two years upon condition defendant remain of good behavior, violate no laws, make restitution of $43 to prosecuting witness, and pay costs.

John Vincent Jr., driving under the influence, plea of guilty, 90 days, suspended for 12 months upon condition defendant remain of good behavior, violate no laws, pay a fine of $100 and cost of issuance and serving capias, sci fa and capias ordered stricken; John Vincent Jr., hit and run, nol pros, sci fa and capias stricken; John Vincent Jr., parking on highway without lights, nol pros.

Isaac J. Sparrow, fornication and adultery, defendant called and failed to answer, judgment nisi, sci fa, capias instanter; Gerald Joseph Bachard, driving under the influence and no operator's license, defendant called and failed to answer, judgment nisi, sci fa, capias instanter.

John Lee Waters and Melton Rollins, armed robbery, jury verdict of guilty, sentence to be pronounced today; Frank Clinton Knight, larceny and receiving (two counts) plea of guilty to larceny accepted by the State, sentence to be pronounced today. John Henry Hammond, rape, solicitor announced he will not try defendant for rape but for assault on a female with intent to commit rape, trial continued until today.
