Greene Unable To Afford Merger

Greene County officials have withdrawn a request to join Pitt County in formation of an area Health Department.

Notice of the withdrawal was sent to Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt Health Director, last week. According to the letter received by Dr. Humbert, Greene County officials withdrew because of an inability to find funds necessary for the union.

Request for the formation of the Health District was presented to Dr. Humbert November 2 after Greene County Commissioners were notified that Wayne County's Health Department would be unable to continue giving contract service to Greene. Greene has never had a full-time Health Department and has relied on contract service from Wayne, Wilson and Martin counties.

In the letter to Dr. Humbert, Greene County Auditor George W. Edwards, clerk for the Commissioners, said, "They (the Greene County Commissioners) re-

Dead Man Got
366,752 Votes
In N. Carolina

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A dead man polled 366,752 votes for North Carolina secretary of state in the general election last month, the Charlotte News reported today.

Grover C. Robbins, a Republican from Blowing Rock, died on June 24. Robbins' name was not withdrawn by the Republican party, although the ballots were not printed until two months after he died.

Robbins received 366,752 votes, running second to Democratic winner Thad Eure who polled 737,266 votes.

Robbins was a prominent developer and owned the famous Blowing Rock, mountain scenic attraction.

Raymond Maxwell, chairman of the State Board of Elections, was informed of the unique situation by The News today.

"I was not aware of it," he said.

The ballots with Robbins' name on them were printed in August. The first printing was the absentee ballot, followed in September by the printing of the November general election ballot.

Despite the two months which elapsed from the time of Robbins' death to the printing of the ballots, no one officially notified the elections board, Maxwell said. Had notification come to the board, the state Republican executive committee could have named a successor to Robbins or left the position vacant on the ballot.

Electoral Votes
Are Cast Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 531 members of the Electoral College for whom the people actually voted in the Nov. 6 presidential election re-election of President Eisenhower.

The depositing of their ballots in the state capitals is the second step in the nation's much buffeted but enduring electoral process. The third and final move is made when Congress in joint session counts the electoral votes Jan. 7. Barring some totally unexpected development, Eisenhower will be declared the winner by 457 electoral votes to 74 for Adlai E. Stevenson. The latter carried only seven states in the popular count. A winner must poll 266 electoral votes.

The total popular vote as tabulated by The Associated Press was Eisenhower 35,575,420; Stevenson 26,033,066, with Rhode Island's vote still unofficial pending completion of an absentee vote count.

Under the Constitution the electors, equaling the number of senators and representatives each state has in Congress, are free to vote as they please. Actually it has always been the custom for an elector to cast his vote for the candidate receiving the highest popular vote in his state.

Nehru, President
Go To Gettysburg
For Secret Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and India's Prime Minister Nehru set out for the privacy of Eisenhower's Pennsylvania farm today for secret talks on world issues including communism and Red China.

Eisenhower picked up the Indian leader at Blair House, the government's guest residence. They started immediately on the drive of some 80 miles to the farm near Gettysburg.

There, without even their advisers on hand, the two national leaders will have opportunity for hours of uninterrupted private discussion. They plan to stay until mid-morning tomorrow.

The basic aim is the achievement of closer relations and better understanding between the United States and India—not the working out of specific agreements.

Eisenhower was smiling broadly as he alighted from the automobile at Blair House, across from the White House, to greet his guest.

"Good morning, your excellency," Eisenhower said. Nehru shook hands vigorously and Eisenhower escorted him to the limousine.

They climbed in, posed briefly in the back seat for photographers, then sped away.

About 200 spectators gathered to witness the departure. Nine additional automobiles, carrying Secret Service men, reporters, photographers and TV and newsreel cameramen followed the car carrying Eisenhower and Nehru.

Nehru, who recently entertained Premier Chou En-lai of Red China, was expected to tell the Presi-

Two Weekend
Arrests By ABC
Officers In City

Two persons were arrested by ABC officers during the week-end on charges of illegal possession of liquor.

Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward said Rosa Taylor, Negro, of 1506 Fleming St. was charged with possession of non-tax-paid liquor for sale after a half gallon of the illegal booze was found in her home.

Picked up at the same time was Nell Gray Peel of 803A Vancroft Ave. Ward said she was caught as she came out the back door of the Taylor house with a gallon of liquor in her possession. The Peel woman was charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid liquor. Both women were given preliminary hearings before U. S. Commissioner Matilda Turner of New Bern and released under $300 bond.

To Avoid Kids
Wrecked Plane

DALLAS (AP)—Aubrey S. Crutcher, 35, of Houston was piloting two friends to Dallas after a deer hunt when he ran out of gas coming in to land.

He started to make a forced landing on a playground when he spotted a group of children.

Police said he deliberately stalled his twin-engine light plane, vaulted to one side and crashed "just to keep from hitting that bunch of kids."

Crutcher suffered a mouth cut, L. H. True of Dallas received a broken nose and J. A. Williamson, 48, of Houston escaped injury.

Flames Destroy
2 Warehouses
At Reidsville

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Two tobacco warehouses here, Smothers No. 1 and No. 2, were destroyed by fire early today with unofficial estimates of loss totaling half a million dollars.

Smothers No. 1 was leveled and only a part of No. 2, occupied by Hudson-Lester Hardware & Building Supply Co., remained standing.

In addition to the buildings, considerable tobacco, trucks, and equipment were destroyed. Reidsville Fire Chief Hugh White said.

White said the estimate of $500,000 would not be far off.

No. 1 warehouse operated as a tobacco market while No. 2 was used by the hardware concern and various firms which stored tobacco there.

Companies losing tobacco included R. J. Reynolds, Liggett & Myers, Virginia Tobacco Co., and Dabril.

The warehouses in this tobacco center were among the oldest in town and were owned by Tom Smothers, G. A. and J. M. Smothers Jr.

Chief White reported the alarm and the fire was brought under control in about two hours. Called to assist Reidsville firemen were the Leaksville and Spray fire departments.

Mrs. Tom Smothers reported that the buildings were insured but the insurance was not large enough to cover the loss.

The origin of the blaze had not been determined today, but it was thought to have started in one of the prize rooms rented by one of the tobacco companies.

Two More Slain, Pitt's Highway Toll Soars To 24

Pitt's rapidly mounting traffic fatality toll moved to 24 for the year with the deaths of two Negro men Sunday morning as the result of a Saturday night accident.

The two who died were identified by investigating patrolman D.E. Perry as George Moore, Jr., 33, of Greenville Rt. 1, driver of the truck involved in the wreck, and Ralph Taylor, of Fountain.

The accident occurred on the Old Creek Road a little over a mile from N.C. 30 around 10:30 Saturday night.

Perry said a pick-up truck being operated by Moore went out of control on a curve. Tire marks showed that the vehicle skidded for 123 feet. It then overturned rolling an additional 96 feet, Perry said. Injured in the crash was Calvin Brown, 28-year-old Negro of Greenville Rt. 4. Brown was thrown from the truck to the pavement. He received head injuries.

Three other occupants of the truck were uninjured in the wreck. Taylor and Moore who were also thrown from the truck died in Pitt Memorial Hospital early yesterday morning. Perry said Taylor died of head injuries and Moore of a broken neck.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said this morning that no inquest into the deaths will be held. He ruled the deaths accidental.

Not involved in the fatal crash but traveling close behind was a vehicle operated by Roger Hooks, Negro, of Greenville Rt. 4. Perry said Hooks' vehicle ran off the road on the left and overturned. That happened on the same curve on which the pick-up overturned. Hooks was following the pick-up truck at the time, the patrolman stated.

Hooks was indicted for following too closely and operating at a speed too fast for a curve.

The fatal accident was the third for Pitt County within three days and five persons have died as a result of those traffic accidents.

First of the three crashes occurred near Farmville on U.S. 264 Thursday night. A car driven by a prominent Wilson architect crashed into a freight train. The driver died in the crash and several train cars were derailed. The next afternoon—Friday—a truck loaded with soya beans crashed into a train south of Grifton, killing the two occupants of the vehicle.

The county is now far ahead of previous record years as far as traffic fatalities are concerned. With 24 deaths recorded already for 1956, the total is six above the old record of 18 for one year. That was a record set three times—in 1938, 1950 and 1953.

Two Die—Two persons died early Sunday morning from injuries received when this truck went out of control on the Old Creek Road Saturday night. It brought Pitt's death toll to 24 for the year. (Reflector Staff Photo.)

British, French In Final Phase Of Suez Withdrawal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—The British-French forces have begun the last phase of their withdrawal from Egypt after a tank-supported attack on guerrillas in retaliation for the ambush slaying of a British officer.

The deadline for the final pull-out was not announced. U. N. sources indicated it might be tomorrow or Wednesday. But Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, commander of the British-French task force, implied some of the Allied troops might still be on hand Thursday behind the barbed wire ringing their narrow beachhead along Port Said's harbor front.

Stockwell said he had agreed to a U. N. request to let 350 armed Egyptian police enter Port Said Tuesday and 350 more two days later "if the first contingent behaves itself."

Egypt planned to have more than 1,000 black-uniformed police with rifles maintain order in the city after the British-French evacuation.

After the fighting yesterday the British withdrew behind the four miles of barbed wire that bounds their two-block-wide beachhead. The French were preparing to quit Port Said, across the harbor. The U.N. police patrol maintained order throughout the rest of the city.

Elmhurst Children Give PTA Christmas Program

Students of Elmhurst School presented a Christmas program at the regular Parent-Teachers Association meeting Thursday night. Under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose, Miss Beatrice Chauncey and Miss Marian Polk, the program featured the Christmas Story told by Norma Harrell, music and pantomime.

Taking parts in the pantomime which was enacted to the accompaniment of choir music were Milton Hadley, Richard House, Alan McArthur, Emily Trapnell and Jane McGlohon.

Bobby Fleming said the prayer. Announcer for the program was Rebecca Parks.

Mrs. Sam Underwood presided over the meeting held in the school auditorium.

The group heard Dr. L. W. Jenkins, chairman of the Parents Committee, explain a questionnaire setting forth suggested purposes and objectives of Elmhurst School, prepared by parents, teachers, administrators and the children.

ETA members were requested to give the statements thoughtful consideration and return them to the school in order that a definite philosophy might be adopted.

During the business session also Mrs. W. M. Seales Jr. and Mrs. Charles Howard were elected to serve with Mrs. Badger Johnson.

Miss Eva Keeter, principal of the Evans Street School, left this morning for Richmond, Va. where she will spend Christmas. From there she will go to Nashville, Tenn., where she will take a course at Peabody.

Local business and professional men who use their automobiles in going to and from their work can do special favors to out-of-town shoppers and render a real service to the merchants of Greenville during this busy holiday season by their leaving their cars home or make it a practice to park a few blocks from the business streets of the city.

There's nothing better than lemon juice or vinegar, butter, sugar, salt and pepper for giving spinach savor.

Miss Pat Dawson, Rev. McKenzie Wed

The wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Dawson of Belhaven and the Rev. George Robert McKenzie Jr. of Fayetteville took place in the Baptist Church in Belhaven on Saturday, December 15, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Miller Howard, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville, assisted by the Rev. Archie Jones, pastor of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilson Dawson of Belhaven. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie of Wilmington.

A program of wedding music was presented by Benjamin Franklin Keaton Jr., organist, and Mrs. Carl Ray Carter of Rocky Mount.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz-length gown of white lace over taffeta, fashioned with bouffant skirt and fitted bodice featuring a scalloped neckline trimmed with pearls.

Her fingertip veil was attached to a coronet of lace trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses showered with satin ribbons.

Miss Sue Ross of Rocky Mount and Miss Joan McKenzie, sister of the bridegroom from Wilmington, were bridesmaids. Their street-length dresses were of ruby red velvet and they wore matching bandeaux. They carried bouquets of white poinsettias.

The bridegroom's father served as his best man.

Ushers were the Rev. Frank Owen Fitzgerald of Fayetteville, the Rev. Robert Bruce Pate of Bridgeton, the Rev. James Warren of Nashville, Tenn., and the Rev. James Robert Regan of Durham.

The mothers of both the bride and bridegroom wore Dior blue dresses with black accessories and corsages of white carnations. The bride is a graduate of the John A. Wilkinson High School in Belhaven and East Carolina College, where she was listed in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Since her graduation she has been teaching in Rocky Mount, Fayetteville. Immediately after the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home. For traveling the bride wore a black and white tweed suit trimmed in fur with black and white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. Upon their return from their wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Fayetteville.

Time For Action On Industry Front

Recommendations for a county-wide industrial development program for Pitt should be considered by the County Commissioners and acted upon with all the haste sound judgment will permit.

The special committee appointed by the Commissioners to investigate possible industrial development programs for the county has come forth with a recommendation which is indeed sound, workable and one which can bring countless benefits to Pitt County. Now that the committee has determined what recommendations it will make to the Board of Commissioners, subsequent steps are up to the Commission and citizens of the county.

The committee has recommended the county establish a tax supported industrial development program to be administered by a special commission. The commission would be composed of representatives from all sections of the county appointed by the Board of Commissioners.

The Highway Dead Can Be Ignored No Longer

Neither Pitt County's notorious highway problem nor that of the state of North Carolina can be minimized. The year has not yet ended and more than 1,000 people have died violently on the highways of the state. In Pitt County the death toll has risen to a staggering all-time high of 24, five of the fatalities coming within the last five days.

It is no longer enough for the people of this county or this state to merely sit by and wish there were something to be done. Indeed there is a great deal to be done, and until the people themselves actively accept their individual responsibility to create safer highways in this state, we may expect the highway slaughter to continue taking an even larger toll.

First there is the responsibility to drive carefully on the highways and prevent accidents. If every motorist kept that uppermost in his mind every moment he is under the wheel, accidents would drop sharply. But that ideal never will be reached. Other avenues must be used if the traffic problem is to be effectively dealt with.

Several of these avenues have been set forth in proposed legislation for 1957: Mechanical inspection for cars and trucks; 100 more men for the Highway Patrol; scientific tests to determine whether a driver is drunk or sober. Each of these could mean a great deal in creating safer highways in North Carolina. But how many of them will be provided by the General Assembly?

Will the General Assembly require that driver training be taught in every high school in North Carolina and provide funds necessary to carry out such a program? Will the legislature return to the Highway Patrol the effective weapon of unmarked patrol cars which it arbitrarily snatched away from the patrol in 1955?

Affirmative answers to these questions vital to highway safety in North Carolina ultimately rest with the people of the state. If citizens of North Carolina want an effective highway safety program members of the General Assembly will see that it is provided. If the people of the state balk at mechanical inspection, footing the bill for driver training, scientific tests to determine sobriety of drivers, the legislature will likewise balk at passage of proposed legislation. If, on the other hand, citizens of the state demand that bold and effective measures be taken to cope with the staggering highway toll, the General Assembly will respond to the public pulse.

North Carolinians can no longer ignore the critical highway problem on the state and local levels. The problem must be dealt with immediately and effectively at both levels.

Opinions In Brief

VOLUNTARY COMPLIANCE

(The Wilson Times)

The South, with good reason, fears federal interference in the segregation issue. The South knows that this will only engender bitter feelings and prolong the battle and deter the orderly processes that all recognize must come eventually.

Therefore the South was relieved to see that the United States attorney general emphasized voluntary compliance with the Supreme Court's ruling ending bus segregation in the South. And much more will be accomplished and speedier through this approach than by court orders and force.

The authorities at Clinton, Tennessee appealed for help from the federal government. But we are happy to say that the federal authorities did not take over to usurp state and local authority in Tennessee. They did enforce the federal court's order brought against those allegedly defying it. You may think this is splitting hairs. For in the end the results were the same. But constitutionally and legally there is a difference. For the Federal government recognized the separate functions of the state and nation, in their actions.

This is encouraging to those who believe in state's right, and constitutional government. It also offers more hope for settling this all explosive question.

In other words the federal court stepped in to enforce a specific order and to bring to justice those who had defied it. The federal court did not move in and take over and usurp the authority given local and state governments.

DOVER, DEL. STATE NEWS: There are a lot of people who have no faith in the U. S. They are honestly fearful—and advocate the "United States drop out. Ostrich-like they think that by not facing the facts of this changing world that this nation could exist alone."

Establishment of the program will require special legislation which will authorize such a program and a special tax levy to support it if approved by voters of the county. The committee also has recommended the special tax levy not exceeding three cents per $100 valuation be set to finance the industrial program.

Such a tax levy would work no undue hardship on any taxpayer of the county. At the same time it would provide sufficient funds to establish and operate an industrial development which will benefit every citizen of the county.

If Pitt and other agricultural counties of the state are to keep pace with economic progress of other areas, it is imperative that they promote their industrial development to provide more year-round jobs, and more payrolls for their people. In the face of constantly rising costs of local government it is apparent also that Pitt must attract more industrial plants to add to the total property valuation of the county and by that method increase the county's revenue. The only alternative if higher costs of government are to be met are increased taxes on existing property or cutbacks in service rendered citizens by the county government.

Through a county-wide tax supported industrial development program Pitt County will be able to compete more effectively with other localities in attracting industries which are looking for new plant locations. At the same time a county-wide program can provide industrial experts who can map an effective plan for developing home-grown industry here.

The amount paid by citizens of the county through taxes to support such a program would be returned many times through the development the program can bring the county.

The Reflector urges the County Commissioners to take the necessary steps to see that special legislation is prepared and passed by the General Assembly. We urge the people of the county to throw their active support behind the proposed program which can prove invaluable not only in stabilizing but in boosting the economy of the county to new heights.

Working Figures Will Be The Same

By LYNN NISBET

LEGISLATURE

Regardless of who is elected Speaker of the House or President protem of the Senate, the working organization of the 1957 General Assembly is likely to be the same as last session.

Judge Roy Beverly of Lee county, who has been principal clerk of the Senate since 1937, is expected back in that capacity. Herman Scott, Senate sergeant-at-arms since 1935, except for the 1951 and 1953 sessions when he represented Chatham county in the House, will also be back on the job.

Mrs. Annie E. Cooper of Wake, principal clerk in the House since 1943, after half a dozen sessions as journal clerk, is expected at the old stand. It has become almost tradition that candidates for Speaker make their election contingent upon having "Miss Annie" at their right hand.

Wayland Spruill, long time representative of Bertie, who switched to the sergeant-at-arms post in 1953 and '55, is regarded a sure repeater. W. J. (Billy) Arthur of Chapel Hill is expected to return as House reading clerk. Information is that William Byrd of Harnett may not seek reelection as Senate reading clerk, but can have the post if he wants it.

These officers are elected by the membership. Other assistants and clerks are appointed by the presiding officers, usually at request of members. Every session has some new personnel, but hard core of the staffs in both branches is made up of veterans who keep the legislative wheels running smoothly.

CHRISTMAS TREES — After two years absence a Christmas tree is back in the rotunda of the capitol building. This particular tree came from Camp Polk prison farm and is more nearly the property of all the people of North Carolina than any of its predecessors.

The capitol building Christmas trees have an interesting history. When Mrs. Randall B. (Becky) Etheridge was on the information desk in the capitol she and the gal employees of the offices housed there—Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor and Treasurer—felt the need to brighten up the staid old building for Christmas. Governor Kerr Scott was not averse to the idea, but was not very enthusiastic at first. After one Christmas he got enthusiastic, and the second year brought the biggest tree of them all from his Haw River farm. Other trees came from farms of Robert S. Curtis and Mark Terry, and were decorated at night by the office girls in the capitol—who also paid out of their own pockets or collected money from their bosses for the decorative materials.

No tree was set up at Christmas of 1954, because of the death a few weeks before of Governor William Umstead. Last year—1955—the project was just overlooked until too late to get the tree. This year again the capitol office girls pressured the men—folks in the Building a "Grounds Committee and a beautiful tree is back in the capitol. The gals came down Thursday night and doted it up with vari-colored lights, artificial snow and all the other trimmings.

It is not as big as some outside trees, and there are no presents under its branches, but the Christmas tree that sheds its soft glow across the desk of Miss Evelyn Clement, capitol receptionist and brightens up the granite walls of the 150 year old lobby, is as pretty as any.

THE ATOM — In the conglomeration of printed matter which is stacked on the corner of your reporter's desk is some material on atomic energy. There some very learned treatises on nuclear fission and the functions of isotopes. There are fantastic stories about man's continuing search for power, and the conclusion that energy is inescapably related to heat.

Casual shuffling of this stack of papers the other day discovered a hitherto unnoticed little pamphlet. The opening sentences read like this:

"Atoms are very small. No one has ever seen an atom. They are so tiny it is even hard to imagine them. In any ordinary drop of water there are six sextillion atoms. Six sextillion is 6,000,000,000,000,000,000. (A figure 6 and 21 zeroes.) That many drops of water would be enough to supply Niagara Falls for more than 2,000 years."

The little book goes on to explain that everything in the animal, mineral and vegetable world is made up of atoms. Some atoms are hard to break up. Some, including certain types of uranium, are relatively easy to split. As the atoms split they form new atoms, and this process creates atomic energy. Energy is what the scientists are seeking. In every known process there is a lot of waste. Only one three millionth part of a pound of coal when burned is converted into energy. One-thousandth part of a pound of uranium can be converted into atomic energy. So one pound of uranium provides as much energy as three million pounds of coal.

"By reorganizing the central parts of the atom instead of the atom's frames, man is drawing on the forces of creation," concludes the brief description.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE APPEAL

OF STRONG CONVICTIONS

Previous to the first World War, German culture was, in every respect, remarkable. No group of people had arisen in modern life who had so much accurate knowledge as did the Germans in so many important fields.

But the war started a profound deterioration throughout the whole German nation. Schools came under the control of dictatorship and teachers specialized in spreading propaganda rather than in disseminating the truth. The result was a profound decline in the intellectual stature of one of the greatest nations of modern times.

In the vacuum thus created, Nazism flourished. The old landmarks of certainty had been destroyed, both by the intellectual leaders of imperial Germany and by the mistaken and disillusioned leaders who followed them. When a strong voice announced a definite program, people were ready to follow, even though that definite program involved repression, persecution, and a reversion to many barbaric practices. People gathered about Hitler and his colleagues with enthusiasm. Here was a man who believed something, offering to lead a nation which had lost most of its strong convictions.

This, of course, was all of the devil. But it illustrated the danger of creating vacuums and the appeal of strong, definite convictions. Much of our present-day religion suffers from an absence of strong conviction. When we build on the eternal verities, we meet a crying need in men's souls. Beware of vacuums.

On Second Thought—

Business Today

Business Gifts To Decline?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Business giving will probably set a new high mark this year and decline during future years. The practice is becoming suspect.

An increasing number of companies are forbidding employees to accept gifts from suppliers. Others have put definite limits on the value of gifts permitted. No freezers. No station wagons.

It is finally percolating up to top management that the company pays for gifts, in higher prices or fatter orders, that their employees receive. As D. C. Roberson, president of the Purchasing Agents Association of Syracuse and Central New York, wrote in a recent Bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, "Unfortunately, there is no clear-cut dividing line between where friendly contact ends and bribery begins."

It is noteworthy that the N. A. P. A., whose members are considered the biggest and fattest Christmas presents, has taken the lead in opposing all but token gifts. This suggests that purchasing agents have high ethical standards — and it may also suggest that when costly gifts are thrust upon them, purchasing agents feel a bit meretricious.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS Here are more business predictions, based on analyses of developing trends:

Expect a rash of Elvis products. There are already many Presley novelties; now a Memphis manufacturer has arranged to bring out a line of Elvis Presley bedroom pieces, to be unveiled at the Chicago furniture market next month. This will tend to encourage other manufacturers outside the novelty field to arrange Presley licenses.

More foreign currencies may be devalued. Not only Britain and France, but several other nations are in trouble. Uncle Sam can't afford to play anchor man for all slipping currencies of the Free World and some may be allowed to slide.

More British exports are coming. Because of the shortage of dollars and almost everything else — Great Britain will step up its efforts to sell its goods in America, even if it means cutting back home consumption. Some of the desperation that appeared in its 1946-50 export drive will recur.

HIGHER STEEL, COSTLIER TEA Another big steel price rise is in the making. The industry is committed to a new wage hike next summer and since no decline in demand is in sight, it won't hesitate to lay higher wage costs onto prices, plus a little more for plant expansion.

Tea may cost more. Closing the Suez Canal is increasing shipping costs, and Asian export nations are boosting export taxes. Some shortages have appeared, necessary.

However, the rationing that many Britons fear may not be necessary. Sugar may become more plentiful and cheaper. Current high prices may cause the Department of Agriculture to set higher import quotas for the coming year. One reason for current prices is that the Department misjudged domestic demand and set a low quota at the start of 1956. It was so low that the Department revised it upward seven times.

Notebook On Life

Weekend Television Center

By HAL BOYLE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Notes from a roving sand dune: Florida's glossy "Gold Coast" became the nation's television capital over the weekend as TV dignitaries ranging from David Sarnoff to J. Fred Muzes gathered here in Pastelville-By-The-Sea for NBC's 30th anniversary.

Startled Seminole Indians paddled deeper into the Everglades to escape the video invasion, but everyone else in southern Florida bemeddled on crashing the convention site—the glossy $17 million dollar America "hotel of the year"—for a wide-eyed look at some of TV's top stars at work and horseplay.

Most of the fans were autograph collectors, but one lady had a more serious hobby. When security police caught up with her a few minutes after she had slipped past the stout rope separating the upper crust from the lower crust, she had collected three handbags and was amiably looking around for a fourth.

You can lead a celebrity to water, but getting him into it is another matter.

Most of the glamorous stars stuck to the air waves, and boycotted the ocean waves—particularly after a sneaky gelatinous Portuguese man-of-war floated in and stung a lady swimmer on her—

"Well, if you'd been sitting down it couldn't have happened," said her escort.

Groucho Marx did dash into the surf for a moment, but ran back out complaining "It's a hard place to keep a cigar lit."

One of the few stars who got wet was J. Fred Muzes, known as "the boy chimpanzee" most likely to succeed in a woman's world.

While trying to outdo his rival, Dave Garroway, he fell into the hotel pool. He flew out in a rage, boarded a plane and left for Havana to test whether the roulette wheels there could really make a monkey of him.

Ever have a desire to stroll barefooted over the bare backs of an acre of lovely women?

Anyone with that ambition who wasn't here over the weekend missed a golden opportunity to achieve it.

A fellow had to be careful where he put his feet down on the beach to keep from putting footprints on the backs of such beauties as Jinx Falkenberg, Jo Stafford, Mary Yates, Gina Lollobrigida, and a dozen or more lovely fashion models.

One of the models disclosed a trade secret—how she kept so gazelle slim.

"I carry a sack of tomatoes around," she said, "and whenever I get hungry, I eat one. What do I eat? Nothing."

What price success? In her case she admits, "It's starvation."

Greatest eye-catcher of the convention was Miss Lollobrigida, who proved she is all she has been stacked to be—and more. Bursting with vitality, Gina appeared at the ground opening floor "store" that had what is usually called a "plunging neckline." This dress went into a headlong kamikaze dive. As a local scribe recorded the historic entrance:

"She showed up wearing little more than a few freckles."

"If we could just put her before the camera in that," sighed one NBC station owner, "all our rating problems would be over."

Obstacles To Needed Services

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — After returning from Florida this spring, I felt I would like some new reading glasses and called up an optometrist. I was told that I could not get an appointment for a month. After waiting a month for an appointment, and then eventually finding a parking space, I had a half hour with him. Thereupon he gave me a prescription for the glasses, which caused me to go to the next village and hunt again for another parking space. Certainly the time is coming when one call will complete such a transaction. Furthermore, there is no more reason why we should have to make an appointment in advance to have our eyes tested than to get a shampoo.

ADVANCE APPOINTMENTS UNNECESSARY

During the summer I had trouble with one of my ears. I again was required to wait a week for an appointment. Although the ear doctor felt that the trouble was perhaps due to low blood pressure, he would not take my blood pressure but sent me instead to a local doctor. Again I had to wait a week for an appointment to have my blood pressure taken. I finally was advised to buy a hearing aid of some kind.

I am able to get a manicure without an appointment, but to have a corn cut I must get an advance appointment, and perhaps wait several days! The whole performance seems irrational to me. Doctors are now setting up offices in the same building, but this will not solve my problem. I want to be able to find all these simple personal services in one building, and some day I will be able to do it. And, furthermore, without advance appointment!

EXPERIENCE WITH DENTISTS

For many years I have believed in the importance of having one's teeth cleaned every month, but this could not be done without an advance appointment. When talking to my associate workers of the importance of preventing decay by monthly cleaning, I found they were troubled by the same advance appointment difficulties. Thereupon, I decided to have a dental nurse in my own building to do this work. Unhappily to any dentist, my great surprise I found this was against the law and I was obliged to go to the Massachusetts Legislature to get a special act to permit it. Yet we are allowed to teach our servants or members of our family to inoculate us with insulin.

Recently I bought a new home through a local real estate agent. Within a few days I had telephone calls from other agents stating that they could get the property for less money. It would seem that in a town the size of Wellesley there could be some central clearing house where all houses for sale could be listed. The difficulty seems to be that people dare not list the house, or even consult two or three agencies, for fear of getting into a conflict as to who should have the commission.

THE LEGAL CRAFT

In the little town of New Boston, N.H. there is no bank or lawyer, but a very intelligent woman has been helping local people in various ways, including providing forms for very simple wills. She has recently been notified by the attorney of the N. H. Lawyers Association that she will be prosecuted if she continues this. I personally went to see this attorney to plead for her and he said that the law applies not only to her but also to banks, real estate agents, brokers, and all others. I later found that my own local bank, which advertises for Trust Funds to must send you to a lawyer to make the Trust for you to use.

As a result of these experiences, I forecast that simple professional and other special services will some day be obtainable at one central ground-floor "store" under the charge of competent nurses or other trained persons. Certain simple services which we can now get only from doctors, lawyers, optometrists, opticians, dental technicians, chiropractors, manicurists, and real estate agents we will then be able to secure without making an advance appointment, and at fees of less than one dollar.

Foreigners See Washington Changes

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Political and even well-intentioned accusations that the Eisenhower Administration has not developed a basic and permanent foreign policy for emergencies like the Egyptian crisis are not borne out by the facts, in the opinion of discerning diplomats at the Capital.

This misconception is understandable, in view of the fact that the unfolding of an entirely new program has been through the medium of several separate White House or State Department notes to various belligerents and neutrals, including Britain, France, Russia, and to others in the Middle East area of violence. There has been no specific white paper or other document, such as a message to Congress, to blueprint the Eisenhower doctrine.

CHANGED ATTITUDE

But the startling transformation forced upon the White House by the recent approach to another "brink of war" has not been lost on the foreign diplomats at Washington. Here is the changed picture as they view it, and as they have informed their respective governments abroad:

(1) Eisenhower has virtually guaranteed all the Free World outside Russia and the satellites that the United States will defend them if they are invaded, and possibly with nuclear weapons. That pledge applies not only to intervention by Russia, but also to such a provocative local disturbance as a military excursion by Iraq against Syria and Jordan, or vice versa. It is a sharp notice to friends and foes.

The dramatic note which conveyed this warning was the statement that we would regard employment of Soviet "volunteers" in Egypt with "the utmost gravity." That phrase, which is war talk, forced the Kremlin to back down on its plan for the kind of interference which it sponsored and implemented in Korea.

The significance of this step becomes evident when it is realized that these guarantees cover Russia's borders from Northern Europe around to Southern Korea. Sheltered by this protective shield are the members of NATO in Western Europe, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey in the Balkan alliance, the Middle East countries belonging to the Baghdad Pact, the South-east Asian SEATO group, Japan and South Korea, New Zealand and Australia.

(2) Our hands-off and critical attitude toward the Anglo-French-Israeli attack on Egypt served notice on Britain and France that they must not use force in settling hangover colonial difficulties, such as those involving London in the Middle East and the Mediterranean, and Paris in North Africa.

U.S. BACKING WHEN RIGHT

With United States backing when they are right and opposition when they are wrong, our two great European Allies must solve these problems within the United Nations or through bilateral diplomatic negotiation. Our power to enforce this dictum became clear when Eisenhower's protests brought about a ceasefire in Sinai and along the Suez Canal.

(3) A great advance in the handling of international clashes has been made in the organization of a United Nations Police Force, with acceptance of its intrusion between their fighting lines by the four belligerents in Egypt. It is expected that the formation of a permanent patrol, which Russia has blocked for years, may result from this trial patrolling.

The next and permanent need is a basic solution of the age-old Middle East controversy, which derives from bitter Arab-Israeli hatreds. It may require months, possibly years, for a final settlement.

But if Washington brings into play the full force of its economic and political pressure against all the contestants, with every nation in such desperate need of American financial and friendly support, the difficulties may not be insurmountable.

Jay-C-Ettes Have Yule Party

The December meeting of the Jay-C-Ettes was held at the home of Mrs. W. M. Scales Jr. As the members entered they brought gifts for the needy family the Jay-C-Ettes have taken for Christmas.

After a short business meeting at which time members volunteered to work at the Health Department at the Crippled Children's Clinic, the officers entertained the members with a Christmas party.

The members exchanged gifts. Several games were played with prizes of Christmas corages being won by Mrs. Max Joyner, Mrs. Joe Stone and Mrs. D. J. Whitchard Jr. The house was decorated with red berries, pine, red candles and Christmas ornaments. The table was decorated with large white Christmas candles and a silver covered cornucopia with colorful Christmas ornaments rolling out.

For refreshments the officers served spiced tea, Christmas cookies, salted pecans, chicken salad sandwiches, and stuffed dates. Mrs. Ledyard Ross was the guest of the Jay-C-Ettes for the evening.

Moose Women Welcome Two

The Women of the Moose held its regular meeting Thursday night at the Moose Temple with Senior Regent Louise Carrigan presiding.

Two new members were admitted into the defending circle. They were Mrs. L. J. Partridge and Mrs. J. O. Whitchard. As a result of the resignation of Mrs. Isabelle Palsey, the club elected Thursday night Mrs. E. J. Dees to the office of recorder. Mrs. Dees was installed into office by Mrs. J. D. Smith.

It was announced by the Senior Regent that the annual Christmas party for the chapter would be held Saturday night at the Moose Auditorium. All were urged to come.

Following all other business and communications the chapter closed in ritualistic form to meet again December 27 at 8 p.m.

Refreshments were served by the Social Service Committee.

WRAP IT GAILY
Dad may remember some of his business associates with French champagne or cognac this Christmas. It may be up to Mom to wrap it up. One attractive cover may be made of red flannel with a Santa Claus type head that will fit over the narrow part of the bottle. Use cotton and sequins to make the face, and put a long red tassel on the hat. Shurr the area between head and body. Another attractive decoration may be made on the sewing machine. First wrap the bottle in shiny foil-type paper. Then take a series of foil disks and sew them in continuity until you have a chain of disks, perhaps with chain stitch between.

Basic rule for quick cooking: keep utensils and supplies where (or near the place) you use them.

Homecoming Event Is Year's Highlight

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland Reporter

A highlight of our school year occurred Friday night, December 7, when, for the first time in its history, Belvoir-Falkland staged a Homecoming celebration. A basketball double-header between our teams and Bear Grass resulted in a loss for our girls and an overwhelming victory for our boys.

Following the games, the floor was cleared and preparations were set in motion for the big surprise—announcement of the Homecoming Queen. As each of the fifteen entries was announced, she stepped on to the floor and was met by her escort while the spotlight focused on them. When all the girls and their escorts had taken their places on the dance floor, they formed a number of ballroom figures, including the Pinwheel. Climaxing this part of the entertainment was the announcement that Miss Dorothy Harris, member of the Junior Class, had been selected by popular vote to reign as Miss Homecoming I. Grace Edwards, also a Junior, was runner-up.

The Queen was escorted to a platform of blue and gold, upon which was her throne. Behind the throne the words, "Homecoming Queen" were etched in large silver letters. Mr. Roy Jones, chairman of the school board, placed the silver crown upon her head and presented her a bouquet of American Beauty roses and a gift from the Student Council, the sponsoring organization of the event. The Queen then rejoined her court and the group danced to a waltz. This ended the program and opened a "Sock Hop" for students and alumni.

Contestants and their sponsors for the title of "Miss Homecoming" included: Barbara Baker, sponsored by the Senior Class;

Dorothy Harris sponsored by the Junior Class; Mary Jane Gurnkins, sponsored by the Sophomore Class (10A); Gail Garris, sponsored by 10B; Annie Mae Everette, sponsored by the Freshman Class (9A); Joyce Bullock, sponsored by the Library Club; Shelby James, sponsored by the Belvoir-Falkland 4-H Club; Grace Edwards, sponsored by the Future Farmers of America; Sheila Wood, sponsored by the Beta Club; Jean Flake, sponsored by the Monogram Club; Anne Harris, sponsored by the Paper Staff; Nellie Ruth Gwaltney, sponsored by the Student Council; Marie Caraway, sponsored by the Glee Club; and Sadie Moore, sponsored by the Future Homemakers of America. Joyce Jenkins, President of the Student Council, was also escorted with the contestants. The figures by the Homecoming contestants were under the direction of Mrs. Glenn Scott and Mrs. Thelma Switzer.

The student of BFHS are becoming nervous and worried as the first semester of the school year is nearing the end. They can't seem to get that "Awful nag" out of their minds as they think of the examinations which they will be "drafted into taking" this week (that is, unless they are lucky enough to be Seniors with 95 averages).

The Senior Class presented their class play, "Girls in Clover," Thursday night in the high school auditorium. Entertainment by the Senior boys between the three acts was enjoyed by all. The Seniors presented Mrs. Thelma Switzer, class advisor, and Mrs. Glenn Scott, pianist, with gifts to show their appreciation for the help they received on their play.

Following the play, Seniors and their guests had refreshments and a dance in the gymnasium.

Lenoir Rhyne Cracks ECC Home Court Streak

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Lenoir Rhyne came to Greenville like a thief in the night, Saturday, and robbed East Carolina of a North State conference tilt 82-63 and cracked their 50-game home-court winning streak.

The almost-capacity crowd that jammed into Memorial stadium was stunned into silence at the end of the contest. It marked the first time the Bucs had been defeated on that court since 1952.

Cornwell, Wells Star
Lenoir Rhyne's guard Walt Cornwell, who collected 15 points, did most of the LR scoring during that rally. Wells, 6-6, picked up one field goal and guard Cornwell and Joe Sellari added their share.

well pushed in 24 points to take high honors for both teams. He was assisted when it counted by the Bears' Little All-America center Raeford Wells, who racked up 18 points. Wells threw in 16 of his total in the final quarter of the game.

The loss set East Carolina's overall mark at 3-2. In conference play, the Bucs have fallen heavily from first place, with a current 2-3 mark. They had topped Guilford and Catawba and have lost to High Point and Lenoir Rhyne.

East Carolina, rated 6-point underdogs, jumped off to an early lead, hitting on an amazing number of their shots from the floor in the first moments of play. With all five of the Pirates contributing, they ran up a neat and seemingly effortless 16-6 margin, in the first 10 minutes of action.

All Tied Up
At this point, Lenoir Rhyne began sharing rebounds from both backboards. All of a sudden, ECC couldn't buy a rebound.

After fifteen minutes of play, Lenoir Rhyne had tied the score at 22-22. Ken Norman, 6-7 forward, who collected 15 points, did most of the LR scoring during that rally. Wells, 6-6, picked up one field goal and guard Cornwell and Joe Sellari added their share.

Lenoir Rhyne moved ahead 24-22 and then pushed the score as far as 26-23. In the dying minutes of the first half, East Carolina fought to gain a tie, but Lenoir Rhyne led 33-31 at intermission.

The last half was catastrophe for the Pirates. Before the third period was over, Nick Nichols had injured his bad shoulder again and was forced to leave the game and Guy Mendenhall had fouled out. Nichols, 6-4 veteran forward and Mendenhall 6-6 center, are two of the tallest men and best rebounders on the Pirate squad.

Runaway for Bears
Lenoir Rhyne was never headed after the two-point lead at half-time. They started the third quarter with a barrage of field goals by Sellari and Cornwell and forward Jim Cline, and acted as if they owned both backboards.

With less than 10 minutes remaining in the game, East Carolina, paced by Don Harris, Charlie Adams and substitute Harold Ingram, moved to within four points of Lenoir Rhyne in one final effort. They whittled the score to 55-51 at one point, but could not catch up. The Bears played a steady, let's-hold-it-until-we-get-an-opening brand of ball that tired the Bucs and left them vulnerable to the drive in tosses of Cornwell and Sellari and the short pushes of Wells.

Nichols, who re-entered the game in the closing moments, was high scorer for the Bucs, with 20 points. Harris and Adams added 12 each.

Cornwell, as stated before, was high man with 24. Wells had 18 and Sellari had 11.

Porter Comments
Coach Howard Porter commented this morning that Lenoir Rhyne played good ball. Saturday, it was obvious that they beat on the boards at both ends of the court. They beat us pretty badly during the second half."

He continued by saying that "It was not due to any lack of effort on our part. We played well for 10 or fifteen minutes, then we just ran out of steam."

The Bucs leave tomorrow for Tuesday night game with Pfeiffer, then travel to Parris Island for the Parris Island Tourney during the Christmas holidays. "We hope to use the tourney to pull ourselves together and get back in shape," Porter concluded.

State College Given $5,000 Fine And Recruiting Brake

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State College today faced the Atlantic Coast Conference's stiffest penalty—a $5,000 conditional fine and curtailment of its basketball recruiting activities—for its method of recruiting basketball star Jackie Moreland.

In a telegram released yesterday by N.C. State Chancellor Carey H. Bostian from ACC Commissioner James Weaver, Bostian said State was ordered to refrain from contacting any prospective basketball player for one year.

Previously the ACC had charged the college with State officials offered Moreland transportation money from his Minden, La., home to Raleigh and also offered Moreland a fifth year of financial help in school if he needed it.

The kicker on the fine announced by the ACC was that it will be canceled if Moreland stays at State without "athletic eligibility and under his present scholarship arrangement."

The college has denied the charges against it and Chancellor Bostian said the penalty will be appealed.

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. NCAA Nov. 13 placed State on probation for four years in the case, the stiffest penalty ever handed out by that group. The fine by the ACC is the heaviest financial penalty permitted by its constitution.

Weaver said that the NCAA acted against State last month on the basis of a signed statement by Moreland made to the executive director of the NCAA in Weaver's presence.

Moreland, a 6-8 sensation, enrolled at State last fall after signing a letter of intent at Texas A&M and a grant-in-aid at Kentucky.

Asked whether he intended to release the statement Moreland signed before Weaver and the NCAA, Dr. Bostian replied he did not.

He said, "That is only one little item in the complete record. There is nothing to be gained by making the record public piece-meal."

State has denied it violated any recruiting rules in landing Moreland.

It has asked the full ACC faculty council to convene to hear State's side of the case. The meeting tentatively is scheduled for Friday.

Customer Clips Barber On Nose

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—A man came into Eugene Scott's barber shop and announced: "Give me a good haircut or I'll hit you." After getting the clipping, the unidentified customer clipped Scott on the nose, saying: "I've paid a lot of barbers in the same way for giving me a bum haircut."

With that, he stalked out leaving Scott clutching his nose — and the bag.

SYNOPSIS
Lieutenant Chad Endicott, a Civil War veteran, is irked when he is ordered from St. Louis to establish an Army Post in hostile Dakota Territory. For he must leave his fiancée, Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of General Tipton, and postpone their marriage for at least a year. At a farewell party in his honor, Chad warns Alvin Stiner, a wealthy trader and his rival for Elizabeth, to respect their engagement or he will kill him when he returns. Also attending the party is Major Otto Grunwald and his fun-loving wife, Myra, who is in love with Stiner.

CHAPTER 3
When General Tipton had gone, Chad moved to the settee where Elizabeth was sitting. He dropped down beside her and she moved close to him, her arm through his. "Darling," she said, "I want to go with you. Mrs. Randall is going. There isn't any reason why I can't."
"We've been over all that, Lib honey," he said, using his pet name for her.
"I wouldn't mind roughing it."

stood that and he loved her all the more for it. She was strong, and she wanted him to feel that strength.
He kissed her fiercely and she responded, clasping the back of his head, running her fingers through his hair, caressing him. It was all wrong, all wrong, for them to be forced apart this way. He almost pushed her from him. He clasped his hat on his head, and catching the reins, pulled himself into the saddle.
"Goodbye, darling, I'll be back." Chad dug his heels into the mare's ribs and the startled animal leaped out, sweeping him down the street, hoofs beating into the mud. He turned; he had one last look at her standing there, her white gown silhouetted against the dark background of the yard.
It came to him that he should feel sorry for Alvin Stiner, who had nothing but the clandestine love of a woman like Myra Grunwald. No love wasn't the word. Not for Myra. Love was for Elizabeth.
Myra, as Stiner had known when they'd left the Tipton house, had no intention of taking him to his rooms. He lived seven blocks from the Grunwald place, so he was not surprised when Myra said in her sudden way, "Why don't you come home with us and have a drink, Alvin? It's quite early."
"Yes, why don't you?" the major added.
"I'd like to," Stiner said, "but you have to be at the office early. I don't want to keep you up."
The major laughed. Stiner often wondered about that laugh. Grunwald found humor where no one else would. Now he said, "Don't worry about that, Alvin. I'll go to bed and leave Myra to entertain you. You'll forgive me, won't you?"
"Of course," Stiner said. Perhaps Grunwald used his laugh to cover his feelings. Most men were an open book to Stiner. Chad Endicott was typical, for his age and position at least. Brave to the point of foolishness, ambitious, so much in love that everything else in his life was thrown out of proper proportion.
General Tipton was equally typical. Old Army. Honor was a fetish with him.
Most men were like that, filling one pigeonhole or another in Stiner's system of mental tabulation. But Grunwald didn't fit any of the pigeonholes. He ignored the obvious too often; he fell too easily into the traps Myra set. If he were a dull-witted man, he would be understandable, but Stiner knew from the business dealings he'd had with Grunwald that the man was keen enough. So, because the major was an enigma to him, Stiner was never entirely at ease when he faced a situation like this.
The carriage stopped in front of the Grunwald house. The major said, "I think you can keep out of the mud if you jump, Myra."
Stiner got out and helped Myra down. They moved along the walk together while the carriage rattled on around the corner to the alley. When they stepped into the dark she said, "Wait here, Alvin, I'll light a lamp."
He remained in the hall, and presently a match flared into flame and Myra lit the hobnail lamp on the mahogany console table. "Take off your hat and coat, Alvin. I'll stir up the fire." She knelt beside the fireplace and threw more fuel on the fire, and when she rose, Stiner was standing beside her. She breathed, "Alvin," and moved into his arms. She kissed him, but Elizabeth was a strong shape in his mind, and he was still annoyed because Myra had taken him to the Tipton house before he had been ready to leave.
She drew back, her eyes searching his face. She said, "You're cold tonight, Alvin," and left the room.
Many times he had wished he were rid of Myra, but he couldn't afford to let her go. She was too useful, often bringing him information that enabled him to make deals he would otherwise have missed. There had even been times when Grunwald had refused to sign a contract with him, then had been persuaded by Myra to change his mind. That was something else he did not understand about Grunwald.
He heard the major come in, heard the hum of talk between him and Myra, then the stairs creaked as he went up to his room. A moment later Myra came in with glasses and a bottle of sherry.
"Still cold?"
"No," he answered.
She filled the glasses, taking her time. This was the kind of maneuvering in which he took great pride. To him any woman was a challenge, first to possess her, then to hold her if she was

Uneasy Reindeer Have Standins

PITTSBURGH—Otto and Helga, two genuine Lapland reindeer, are at the Highland Park Zoo today and have a couple of stand-ins for the Christmas season—two mule deer.
Otto and Helga were brought here by the Mellon Bank which planned to display them through the Christmas season in the bank rotunda. But one day was enough for the reindeer. Crowds made them nervous, so they were placed in quiet quarters at the zoo. The mule deer took their places at the bank.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Stocks and some aircrafft were favored somewhat today as the stock market moved ahead on average early this afternoon.

KL stocks were up from fractions to around a point and so and some specialties gained considerably more. But there was a liberal sprinkling of losers.

Motors as a group eased while leading oils showed a front of fair gains but not much activity.

The general run of financial and economic news was fairly routine, supplying little impetus either way.

Lukens was outstanding in the steel group, running up around 5 points at one time and settling back to a gain of more than 3.

Detroit Steel, which has led the most-active list for the past two sessions, added more than a point to its recent gains.

Bethlehem and Youngstown, which were off last week, rose around a point or better. U.S. Steel and Republic Steel gained fractionally.

United Aircraft was another stock to forge ahead beyond today's normal range, picking up around 3 points.

Boeing and Douglas Aircraft rose fractionally while General Dynamics fell back a major fraction.

Texas Co. led the pivotal oils with a gain of well over point. Gulf Oil was up fractionally. Royal Dutch, Sinclair and Standard Oil (New Jersey) were firm. General Motors, Ford and Chrysler lost fractions.

As a copper price cut was reported in London, slight losses were taken by Anaconda and Kennecott but Phelps Dodge was steady. International Nickel rose around a point.

A number of leading rails were steady to slightly higher. Santa Fe and Southern Railway posted small gains but New York Central and Pennsylvania backed away.

Gains around a point or so were made by American Cyanamid, United Air Lines, Du Pont and Zenith.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 50 cents to $180.60 with the industrials up 90 cents, the rails up 50 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — (N.C. frays and broilers market weak, farm price 16 to 17, mostly 16, f.o.b. plant price undetermined; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 38 to 40; Asheville eggs steady, A large 38 to 42, mostly 38; Charlotte eggs steady, A large 38.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog markets were steady to 50 lower.

NOT SO FAITHFUL — BALTIMORE (AP) — A full-sized, faithful pet dog of 15 years standing failed to bark an alarm when his master's house caught on fire. Instead, the job was done by a miniature schnauzer, recently brought into the residence.

St. John in the U.S. Virgin Islands is approximately the size of Manhattan. It has a population, however, of only 700.

Discussion Of Religious Roles At Kiwanis Meet

At the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting Friday night, Dr. H. Glenn Haney presented a program in which two religious leaders discussed "What We Are Doing Religiously for Young People in Our Churches and Colleges."

Miss Ellen Williams, director of Christian education at the First Presbyterian Church, spoke of the responsibility of parents for understanding child nature, and declared that as the child learns about God, he or she learns to get along with others. She emphasized the importance of church and home cooperating to teach the child to know God better.

Miss Gloria H. Blanton, director of the Baptist Student Union of East Carolina College, discussed religion in higher education. She pointed out that higher education in the earlier days was principally supported by various churches. She said her work is principally to work with college students and the faculty in religious education.

Miss Blanton has been director of the Baptist Student Center nine or 10 years.

Five Kiwanians, Ted Ashworth, John Barnhill, Frank Steinbeck, Percy Cox, and Kenneth Hite, had birthdays and they donated a dime for each year of their age to a club fund. Grover Everett won the attendance prize.

In addition to the guest speakers, the Kiwanians were hosts to three members of the Circle K Club of East Carolina College, Eddie Dennis, Robert Jackson and Charles M. Slousser.

After the regular meeting President-elect Charles E. Blair and other 1957 officers and committee chairmen had a training school for officers and committeemen. New officers will be installed by Lt. Gov. John T. Barnhill January 11.

Present Waldrop appointed Leonard Bloxam chairman of a Kiwanis committee to cooperate in the establishing of a two-year course technical training school in northeastern Carolina. The state already has made an appropriation for such a technical trade school. Bloxam and Vocational Guidance Chairman Kenneth Hite made this proposal at a recent Greenville Kiwanis directors meeting and the directors and the club sponsored the technical training school as a project.

Choir Will Sing On TV Tonight

Soloist for the program will be Mrs. James L. White of the East Carolina faculty of music. The choir is under the direction of Dr. James L. White. The organist is Miss Anna Montgomery.
