Nixon Arrives In Vienna For Study Of Refugee Relief

VIENNA (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived in Vienna by plane today for a three-day study of the urgent refugee problem created by the Hungarian revolt.

Nehru expressed hope that 10 Americans still held in Communist China "will be released" but he said it would be "embarrassing" to talk about the problem of these Americans in any detail since the matter was one for another government and that what he could say about it might not be true.

Nehru said he had a second meeting with Chou En-lai at New Delhi on Dec. 30. One of the first questions put to Nehru was whether he had given Eisenhower any message from the Chinese Communist Premier.

'Rehabilitation' Discussion

The American Legion Auxiliary met on Thursday evening with Mrs. James R. Worsley. Assisting her were Mesdames W. J. Bundy, C. A. Bowen, Howard Moye and Luther Bowling.

Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, the president, presided.
There were 21 members present and one guest, Mrs. John Sateed. The subject for December was "Rehabilitation" and the program was centered around the spirit of Christmas, that of cheerful giving and trying to help those less fortunate.

Mrs. James R. Worsley, chairman Welfare Department, reported on some veterans' families who needed help and it was decided to help these families and see that they had a "real" Christmas. She also presented an appeal for clothing for Hungarian refugee children, to be sent to "Save the Children Federation" warehouse in Knoxville, Tenn.

Gold Star Mothers were to be remembered by Christmas cards.

Mrs. W. C. Harris presented a resolution honoring the late Mrs. Hazel Scott and copies were ordered sent to the family and to be made a part of the permanent records of the auxiliary.

After the singing of Christmas carols, Mrs. Harris read three Christmas poems: "Christmas 1934," by Stewart Atkins; "The Night After Christmas," by Marjorie Rawlings; and "A Christmas Dream," by Eva Berry Harris.

A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed after the meeting.

Homemakers Name Officers

ROBERSONVILLE—Officers for the coming year were named when Mrs. J. P. House was hostess to the Homemakers' Club Thursday night.

The nominating committee composed of Mrs. W. T. Hurst, Mrs. Walter Roberson and Mrs. W. L. Swindell reported the following slate which was accepted:
Mrs. H. Roberson, president; Mrs. House, vice president; Mrs. Mack Wynne, secretary; and Mrs. C. M. Hurst, Sr., treasurer.

Mrs. House's home was decorated with a Christmas motif for the combination party-meeting.
Mrs. Harvey Roberson presided. During the social hour prizes were awarded Mrs. B. L. Fleming, Mrs. Will Beach, Mrs. Lena Roberson, Mrs. Walter Swindell and Mrs. Fleming.

Gifts were exchanged. Candy, salted nuts, hot coffee, and fruit cake topped with whipped cream were served to the 15 guests.
Next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 10 with Mrs. C. M. Hurst as hostess.

Married Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Frank McLahorn celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at their home on Winterville, Route 2, December 12.

They held open house from 6 o'clock until 9 o'clock with their daughter, Mrs. Earl McLahorn of Greenville, greeting the guests. Mrs. Marvin Baldeire of Ayden received in the gift room and Mrs. Larry Tripp, also of Ayden, presided at the guest register.

The dining table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake, decorated with gold and white and topped with the miniature bridal couple standing under the decorated arch.

Mrs. W. Perry McLahorn of Winterville, daughter-in-law of the couple, poured punch, while another daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. Hodges McLahorn of Ayden, served the cake.

Assisting in serving salted nuts and minis were Misses Charlotte Ruth McLahorn and Alice Garrison, granddaughters.
Approximately eighty guests called during the evening.

Church Women Install Officers

Mrs. J. H. Moye was installed Monday evening as president of the Women of the First Presbyterian Church, succeeding Mrs. H. H. Bryant.

The installation service was performed by the Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor, at the regular monthly meeting of the Presbyterian women.

In his message to the church women named to serve for the coming year, the Rev. Mr. Topping paid tribute to those retiring officers and stated that their record of service would be a constant challenge to the present leadership.

He administered the oath of office and closed his remarks with a dedicatory prayer.

With Mrs. Moye for the coming year will be the following elected to serve staggered terms installed also at the Monday service:

Mrs. W. L. Cox, vice president; Mrs. L. W. Topping, second vice president; Mrs. R. L. Elks, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Parker, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Christopher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. F. L. Gammon, treasurer; and Mrs. S. M. Crisp, historian.

Committee chairmen: Mrs. F. H. Sugg, spiritual growth; Mrs. H. H. Bryant, stewardship; Mrs. I. B. Koonce, world missions; Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, church extension;

Miss Christine Johnston, Christian education; Mrs. Virginia Basnight, general fund agencies.
Mrs. Lewis S. Danfelt, amitties and relief; Mrs. N. O. Warren, pastor's aid; Mrs. Paul Singleton, publicity chairman; Mrs. F. B. Haar, Negro work; Mrs. E. W. Harvey Sr., white cross; Mrs. Charles Horne Sr., homes; Mrs. Roy Coburn and Mrs. Blanton Little, special foods; Mrs. W. T. Kyzer, rep. to local council of church women; Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr. and Mrs. T. M. Davis, yearbook; and Mrs. H. H. Bryant, housekeeping committee.

Circle chairmen are Mrs. Fred Webb, Mrs. Bancroft Moseley, Mrs. W. E. Rosevear, Mrs. Hinton Best, Mrs. J. T. Barnhill, Mrs. R. R. Ross, Mrs. McDonald Carr, Mrs. Virginia Basnight, Mrs. F. E. Johnson Jr., Mrs. I. B. Koonce, Mrs. Floyd Simmons, Mrs. Floyd Dunn and Mrs. F. B. Haar.

A history of the activities of the church women for the past year was presented by Mrs. S. M. Crisp.

A tribute to the late Mrs. Hazel Corey Scott was read by Miss Christine Johnston, chairman of the committee. The text read, "At noon on October 29, 1956 God in His infinite wisdom called the noble soul of Hazel Corey Scott from her long suffering body to her heavenly home."

"Her brave spirit and wonderful courage in suffering were an inspiration to all who knew her. She was a most gifted teacher of children and served her community in many capacities.

"Especially interested in the women's work of this church, she used her talents in many ways to

Yule Meet Of Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club brought its 1956 program to a fitting climax Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. D. Messick and Mrs. Kenneth N. Cuthbert entertained the Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Messick.

The hostesses received their guests at the front door and invited them into the spacious music room where they were seated in conversational groups facing the piano.

Mrs. Cuthbert welcomed club members and a large group of invited guests and then introduced the first part of the program.

She told of the organization last year at East Carolina College of the Beta Psi Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, which is a national professional music fraternity for women. She said that this chapter is composed of eighteen outstanding music majors who are making their first public appearance as a chapter—appropriately enough—before club women.

Miss June Crews, program chairman, introduced the members and presented for the first number "Jesu Bambino" by Pietro Yon sung by Miss JoAnn Sparks accompanied by Miss Peggy Griffin at the piano and Mrs. Frances Hilburn playing the violin obligato.

A violin solo, "O Holy Night" followed after which "The Carol of the Birds" was sung by Miss Peggy Griffin. The entire group sang "Because It Is Christmas" and Fred Waring's arrangement of "The Night Before Christmas." Then Miss Joan MacKenzie, who directed this number, turned to her audience and led those present in singing "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Mrs. Messick next introduced the second part of the program. She presented Miss Monique Farge of France and Miss Raquel Cordero of Argentina, two foreign students who are studying this year at East Carolina College. These girls told in flawless English of the Christmas customs and celebrations in their respective countries.

Guests were invited into the dining room where, seated at one end of the table, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell served a festive dessert while at the other end Mrs. K. B. Pace served punch. The guests helped themselves to appropriate accompaniments.

The dining room table was laid with a green cloth and centered with an arrangement of the traditional red and green balls nestled amid the greenery. The mantel held an arrangement of green leaves, red berries and red candles. On the auxiliary tables clusters of leaves and grapes were placed.

This year a large lighted "NOEL" over the front door of the Messick home, lighted candles at the windows and sprays of long leaf pine and pine cones flanking the doorway extend a cheery welcome to all who enter.

At the rear of the hall is a lighted Christmas tree. The large music room is decorated in shades of pink and red. The Madonna arrangement on the mantelpiece highlighted with pink camellias, and another of pink grapes and leaves on a side table are exquisitely done. But the outstanding arrangement here is the red violin surrounded by gold notes and a group of choir boys, all softened with painted leaves and placed on the piano.

In the den a mural of blue skies and floating angels is placed over the mantel which has in its center Santa's sleigh and his prancing reindeer.

After a social hour the club adjourned to meet again January 8.

Jean Tyson, Mr. C Camp Speak Vows

In a candlelight ceremony Sunday at 4:30 p.m. Miss Jean Tyson and Charles E. Camp were united in marriage at the Gum Swamp Baptist Church.

The Rev. R. B. Crawford of Greenville officiated at the double-ring rite. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will R. Tyson of near Greenville and Mr. Camp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond N. Camp of Hickory.

Preceding the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, pianist, of Greenville. Ralph Sullivan, soloist, sang "I Love You Truly," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin with accents of sequins and seed pearls.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a lace cap encrusted with sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Miss Lina Crawford of Greenville was maid of honor. Mrs. Mary Lou McLawhorn of Kinston was matron of honor. Both were classmates of the bride.

Each wore waltz length gowns of Christmas red taffeta with matching shoes and carried arm bouquets of red and tinsel trimmed with silver and white wedding bells.

Raymond Camp of Hickory, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Ushers were Ralph and Vernon Tyson, brothers of the bride, Rusty Camp of Hickory and Jesse Massey of Smithfield.

The mother of the bride wore a Navy crepe dress trimmed with white and matching accessories. Her corsage was a purple throated orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore a powder blue dress with matching accessories and a purple throated orchid also.

The bridal party received guests in the vestibule of the church after the ceremony.

For the wedding trip to Florida, Mrs. Camp changed to a cocoa brown suit with matching accessories.

Upon their return they will make their home at 2410 East Third St., Greenville.

The bride graduated from Belvoir-Palkland High School and King's Business College in Raleigh. She is presently employed with GE Credit Corporation.

Her husband graduated from Hickory High School and received his A.B. Degree at Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory. He is employed as a representative with the General Electric Corp. in Greenville.

Cake Cutting

On Saturday evening following the Camp-Tyson wedding rehearsal Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Tyson entertained at a cake cutting at the Brown home on East Fifth St.

Upon arrival the bride was presented a corsage of pink feathered carnations.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Tyson and invited into the living room which was decorated in pink, green and white.

The table was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and fern in a silver bowl and pink candelabra.

The three-tiered wedding cake was cut and served by Miss Ruth Camp of Atlanta, Ga., sister of the bridegroom.

Mrs. W. R. Tyson, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Madison Smith served coffee to the fifty guests.

Janice Bailey Feted On Birthday

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. J. B. Bailey had her home decorated with a Christmas motif when she honored her daughter Janice on Tuesday on her tenth birthday.

Games were enjoyed until the guests were invited into the kitchen where the table was centered with a large white cake trimmed in red and green to carry out the color scheme for the evening.

The cake was cut and served with cheese ritz, salted nuts, assorted candy and bottled drinks.

The hostess received many gifts from the forty friends who came to wish her "Many happy returns of the day."

Mrs. Charles E. Camp

Tea Honors Miss Clark

Mrs. Ed Ratcliffe was hostess at a tea at her home on W. Fourth St. Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock honoring Miss Shirley Clark, bride-elect of January.

Guests were greeted at the door by the honoree, her mother, Mrs. John Clark, and Mrs. Ratcliffe. They were invited into the dining room where they served themselves dainty sandwiches, sugared nuts, mints and bridal cakes.

Mrs. Clark, mother of the honoree, poured tea.

The bride's table with silver appointments was laid with an imported pink linen cloth and centered with a crystal swan which held a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

This was flanked with crystal candle holders.

The color scheme of pink, silver and blue, in Christmas motif, was used elsewhere in the house.

The hostess presented Miss Clark with a corsage of pink carnations and a gift in her silver.

won by Mrs. Edward Hart and Mrs. Roger Johnson. At the refreshment hour the hostess served fruit cake with whipped cream, cherries and coffee.

Jean Flora Entertained

FARMVILLE—Miss Joyce Corbett honored Miss Jean Flora with an informal Coca-Cola party at the home of Mrs. R. L. Corbett last Saturday.

The Corbett home was decorated in a Christmas motif.

The hostess and honoree received guests on arrival. Mrs. Corbett, mother of the hostess, invited the guests into the dining room where they were served from an appointed table covered with a white cloth and centered with a Christmas arrangement.

Cakes were served by Mrs. Ray Herring and the hostess while guests helped themselves to bridal cakes and other goodies.

The hostess presented the honoree a carnation corsage and a piece of crystal in her chosen pattern.

December Bridal Couple To Make Home In Raleigh

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Ann Jannette Charney, daughter of Mrs. Philip Karen of Raleigh, became the bride of Marcellus Everett Roberson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roberson of Robersonville, in a candlelight ceremony December 2 at the Trent Free Will Baptist Church of Merritt, N. C.

The Rev. W. L. Moretz officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. George Perry of Oriental, pianist, and Ned Delmar, also of Oriental, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, W. I. Tingle of Merritt, wore a ballerina gown of satin and lace with a fingertip veil of French illusion, attached to a bandeau of seed pearls and lace.

She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid.

Mrs. Edward A. Harris of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a blue dress of net over taffeta.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Wayne Johnson of Raleigh and Miss Shelby Jean Nelson of Warwick, Va., niece of the bridegroom.

They wore identical gowns of shrimp net over taffeta.

Each attendant carried a nosegay of carnations tied with matching ribbon.

Beth Matthews of Hamilton, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a white dress similar to that of the bride's.

Michael Bradley of Woodland, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer.

The bridegroom was attended by Wayne Johnson as best man and C. D. Forbes of Robersonville, David Hughes of Williamston, Bill Warren of Bethel and David Brown of Raleigh served as ushers.

Mrs. Karen, mother of the bride, wore a black crepe dress. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in gray. Both had corsages of white carnations.

Immediately following the wedding the bridal couple left on a trip to Washington, D. C. For traveling Mrs. Roberson chose a blue suit designed with a cape trimmed with fur. She used navy accessories and lifted the orchid from her prayer book.

The bride attended King's Business School in Raleigh after graduating from Bayboro High School.

Mr. Roberson graduated from Robersonville High School and then served three years with the U. S. Army.

They will make their home in Raleigh where he plans to enter N. C. State College in January.

Girls' Chorus Presents Cantata

ROBERSONVILLE—The Robersonville High School Girls' Chorus presented the cantata "Bethlehem" by Paul Bliss at the FTA Thursday evening at 7:30 in the RRS auditorium.

The Rev. Ralph E. Ferguson, minister of the First Baptist Church, read the scriptures.

The soloists were Miss Sharon Keel and Miss Patsy Warren. The accompanist was Miss Peggy Ward.

The program included "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks," "Holy Night," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Once in a Royal City" and "Hark!"

Due to the length of the program the Parent-Teachers Association had no business session.

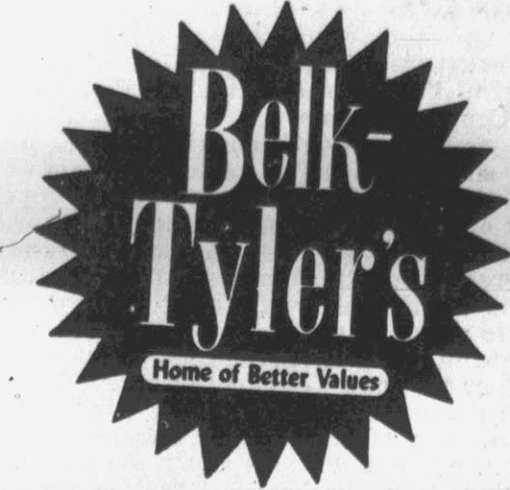

A social hour followed in the luncheon.

Christmas Plans Completed By VFW Auxiliary Thursday

Christmas plans of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars were completed at the regular monthly meeting held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. S. Barbour.

The group favored a special request from a child victim of rheumatic fever for a doll and toy phone. Christmas gifts and cards were sent to two local veterans who are patients in VA hospitals and two members of the State VFW Department who are currently hospitalized.

Cards and monetary gifts were authorized for each child in the N. C. Cottage at the VFW National Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Gold Star mothers of Pitt County will also be remembered at Christmas time. Twenty-four patients at Oteen have been sent gifts.

Mrs. C. B. West Jr., president and presiding officer, presented ten year pins to fourteen charter and continuous members. They are Mesdames Kenneth Brown, Ralph Broughton, Grover S. Edwards, Joyner, J. A. Joyner, Sherman Parks, Malcolm Williams, C. B. West Jr., H. L. Vincent, Kathleen Whitehead, Lottie Lewis and Alice Proctor.

She also presented five year pins to Mesdames J. S. Allen, J. S. Barbour, W. L. Cox, Elvy Forrest and Bryant Harde.

In the recent membership contest, Mesdames Kenneth Brown, Arthur Andrews, Malcolm Williams and H. L. Vincent were winners in first, second, third and fourth places respectively. They were awarded prizes by Mrs. West. The local auxiliary is one of three in the state which has met its quota in membership. Mrs. West is one of the state 5-Hi members and tied with one other in the state for the highest rank offered in the state membership contest. She has also met the qualifications for the state auxiliary Hall of Fame.

Mrs. B. T. Joyner, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, reported that clothing has been obtained for a family, food and medicine purchased for a veteran.

A report on the birthday party held on Nov. 28 at the VA Hospital in Fayetteville by the auxiliaries in the Second District was given by Mrs. E. K. Forrest. Forty patients were remembered with birthday presents.

Following entertainment with Mrs. Jaxie Kinsaul and Mrs. Christine Smith as local talent, refreshments of homemade cakes and ice cream were served.

Special guests at the auxiliary meeting were Mrs. Mimi Bland, past auxiliary president, and Mrs. Elizabeth Matlocks Jr., vice president of the Second District, both of Kinston. Mrs. Bland extended a cordial invitation to the group to attend the Christmas party of the Kinston Auxiliary.

Mrs. L. E. Meeks won the door prize.

Following the business session, Mesdames J. S. Barbour, Malcolm Williams and Alice Proctor, hostesses of the evening, served pecan pie topped with ice cream during the social hour.

There's A Price To Health Measures

It is unfortunate that Greene County has not been able to see its way financially to join in the formation of a health district with Pitt County as proposed by Greene County officials.

Greene County's decision will have no adverse effects upon the outstanding health program now being afforded the people of Pitt County, but it appears that Greene County is again passing up an opportunity to secure its first full-time public health program. According to Greene County Commissioners it is just a matter of the county not being able to afford the $8,000 to $10,000 annually which would be required for it to participate in the proposed health district.

Apparently now Greene County will attempt to form some new alignment through which it can purchase some sort of health service from a neighboring county . . . perhaps Wilson County. At present Greene is receiving its public health attention through part-time services of the Wayne County Health Department, but that association ends as of January 1. In the past at various times Greene has purchased public health service of a sort on a part-time basis from both Wilson and Martin Counties.

We are frank to say we would like to see Greene County have full-time health service, just as we are sure it is of benefit to the people of that particular county, but in a secondary nature it would be of benefit to surrounding counties in the overall public health picture of this particular area. Benefits derived from a first class public health program don't stop at a county line. Neither do the hazards brought about by lack of such a program remain confined to the boundaries of a county which does not provide adequate public health service.

As a neighbor of Greene County, we look forward to the day officials of that county feel their governmental unit can afford a full-time public health program.

More Than Ever, Eyes Are Turning On U. S.

Though unrest in the Middle-East has damaged Anglo-American relations and has fairly eliminated what influence America's two strongest allies had in that region, recent world events have put the United States in a rare position to extend its sphere of influence and to create better relations with nations out of its reach in recent years.

Not only has the situation in the Middle East contributed to this new set of circumstances, but Russia's rape of Hungary has been a major factor in the changing scene.

Middle East nations, afraid of England and France rash action in Egypt, and at the same time alarmed by possible Russian intervention, have turned to the United States for comfort as well as aid. Hungary's oppressed people look to the West and particularly to the United States for eventual aid in their struggle for freedom. Yugoslavia's Marshall Tito, the one man who has successfully defied the Kremlin, likewise has shown an inclination within recent months toward seeking closer ties with the United States in the face of fear of similar action against his nation that Russia took against Hungary.

In Poland as well as other Soviet satellite nations there is growing unrest which cannot remain dormant indefinitely. In Asia too, it appears that Russia's return to the Stalin line which the Kremlin has so vigorously denounced in recent months has begun to make skeptics out of leaders who formerly were ready to swallow the Kremlin's "co-existence" propaganda hook, line and sinker.

By its stand on the Middle East problem as well as its attitude toward Hungary, the United States has come to a position where its stock in international affairs has risen. To be sure, this country has made mistakes. Some of them will be difficult to overcome. That fact notwithstanding, a positive foreign policy, tailored to meet these altered conditions can strengthen the position of the United States in world affairs and at the same time strengthen the cause of freedom and peace.

Opinions In Brief

MANTORVILLE, MINN., EXPRESS: "The reason you sometimes hear more 'news' on the street corner than you see in the newspaper is because the newspaper has to stand behind what it prints for all to read."

SISSETON, S. D., COURIER: "William H. Fringle, national president of the Inaak Walton League, . . . maintains that potholes and wetlands are an asset to farming, and that farmers are piling up probable trouble in years ahead by too much drainage. 'A farmer who drains his surface water lowers the water table and loses the humidity in the air," he said on a visit to Walton groups in Wisconsin. "All he has to do is go out to Arizona to see what happens without surface water. Any piece of land that will hold water for three months of summer ought to be kept."

BUFFALO, MINN., WRIGHT COUNTY JOURNAL-PRESS: "When he was younger, admits Richard Hayer Jr. of the North Vernon (Ind.) Sun, his ambition was to write a book exposing women." "But darn it," he says, "these designers of modern-day dresses beat us to it."

Many Hands Work On Earth Satellite

(The following report on "Project Vanguard," otherwise known as the earth satellite program, was prepared by the official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association of America, "Planes".)

When the first earth satellite is hurled into space during the International Geophysical Year, the tiny, globe-circling "moon" will represent not only a gigantic first step in the eventual conquest of space, but also a history-making example of teamwork by the outstanding creative talents of the aircraft industry, science and the government.

The satellite project, officially "Project Vanguard," represents countless thousands of man-hours of the most exacting character, plus the sum of man's knowledge of the new frontier above our atmosphere.

As the world's first artificial satellite orbits above its "mother" planet, Earth, at between 17,000 and 18,000 miles an hour, 300 miles above the highest mountain, it will serve as a constant reminder of the progress science and industry have already achieved, and a challenge to further exploration of outer space.

The satellite will also serve as a tribute to some very down-to-earth people in the aircraft, engine, systems and components industries, whose talents will have literally placed it in the galaxy as a new star.

The prime contractor and the majority of subcontractors for the Vanguard vehicle are members of the aircraft industry. Despite the competitive nature of the aircraft industry, member companies whose skills have been tapped for various phases of the satellite project are working together in close cooperation to launch man's first outer space vehicle.

This close cooperation is of the most necessary, since launching of a satellite demands more individual skills than are available in any single aircraft firm, or in any scientific laboratory. The theme of cooperation has also been manifested by the government. Although Project Vanguard is listed officially as a Navy project, it calls for the use of Air Force launching sites, Army tracking, plus contributions by literally scores of government scientists, technicians and administrators.

Possibly the best example of industry cooperation in the satellite project is in building the vehicle which will launch the artificial "moon" into space. Overall, the launching vehicle is a finless, three stage rocket about 72 feet long, somewhat resembling a pencil.

The prime contractor, who has final responsibility for providing the eleven-ton vehicle which will lift the satellite some 300 miles above earth and establish it in its orbit, has subcontracted phases of the work to seven other firms.

The first stage rocket is powered by a rocket engine using liquid oxygen and gasoline as fuels. The second stage also contains a liquid rocket engine which uses white fuming nitric acid and unsymmetrical dimethylhydrazine as fuels. The third stage is a solid propellant rocket which carries the satellite itself inside the streamlined nose cone. The satellite, a 20-inch sphere weighing approximately 21½ pounds, will carry extremely delicate scientific "reporting" instruments, which will send back to earth hitherto only theoretical data on atmospheric density, cosmic rays, temperatures, and the composition and shape of the earth itself.

Since the shell of the satellite will itself weigh about half of the satellite's 21½ pounds, all the instrumentation and telemetering equipment combined must be pared to a weight of a little more than ten pounds. Scientists and engineers working on the project are thus thinking in terms of ounces—not pounds.

In designing the equipment the satellite will carry . . . The first stage will lift the entire assembly to an altitude of approximately 36 miles, by which time the vehicle will be traveling at about 5500 feet per second, when the first stage fuel will have been exhausted. The first stage will then drop off into the ocean at an impact point estimated to be approximately 275 miles down range from the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cocoa, Florida.

At the time of the separation of the first stage, the second stage engine will be ignited. The thrust of this engine will propel the vehicle upward along a curved trajectory to an altitude of about 140 miles at time of the burnout. By then, the satellite carrier will be going at the rate of 13,400 feet per second.

The second and third stages will coast along the trajectory to an altitude of approximately 300 miles together during their coasting period, the attitude of the launching vehicle will be controlled by an auto-pilot employing small jets of residual second stage pressurization gas. After it separates from the second stage, the third stage will accelerate the satellite "package" to its final velocity of approximately 28,600 feet per second before exhausting its fuel.

Then, the satellite itself will be separated from the third stage rocket. This final rocket will itself become a satellite, although the action of the releasing device will cause the rocket to travel at a slightly different speed and in a slightly different direction from the satellite. The empty rocket will thus gradually spiral back into the earth's atmosphere and burn itself out.

The job of the fins—stabilization in flight—is handled by gimbal-mounted rocket engines which take their orders from a highly sensitive automatic pilot device which possesses a "memory" for its pre-set course and can correct any yaw, roll or pitch. The gimballing of the rocket engines at each stage acts in the same manner as a juggler who balances a cane on the end of his nose. The cane stays upright, but the juggler's nose moves erratically to retain the balance.

In designing and building the launching vehicle, the contractor is faced with the problem of providing a structure of exceptionally light construction, since every pound of structural dead weight eliminated results in a proportional increase in attainable velocity. Aircraft manufacturing procedure is followed, and monocoque construction is employed throughout to achieve light construction essential to a high mass ratio.

Aside from the twin factors of weight saving and directional tolerance over its entire length, the Vanguard structure is relatively simple. Actually, only a small percentage of the three-stage rocket is airframe structure—most of the weight is in fuel, propulsion units, control equipment, and the final payload, the satellite.

The three rockets are being separately engineered and built, and are to be delivered as units to the prime contractor. To achieve the required accuracy for the Vanguard project, tools will be produced from master cases built by the prime contractor. The subcontractors will then use these tools to maintain precision fitting of engines to airframe structures and to insure alignment between sections, so that splices are made accurately.

An unusually comprehensive test program is required during manufacture of the Vanguard launching vehicle because of the lightness of the structure in relation to its gross take-off weight, which is estimated at about 11 tons. Extensive static and dynamic load tests on various structural items must be performed, and additionally, the extreme environmental conditions which will be encountered at varying atmospheric densities and temperatures must be simulated.

For final assembly and testing, the Vanguard vehicle will be erected inside a vertical assembly building 90 feet high with two "elevator shaft" assemblies which permit two rockets to be assembled and tested simultaneously. Once tested,

To The Editor:— Every motorist in Greenville and Pitt County can play a tremendous part in making this Christmas a merry one by being a safer and better driver.

As a driver license examiner, I am fully aware of the increased number of driving hazards which will be prevalent on our streets and highways during the Yuletide season. At this time of year our roads are often icy and slippery, so it will be wise for each driver to remember that it takes ten times as far to stop a car on icy roads as it does on dry level surfaces. There will be a greater number of vehicles on the road, making it necessary for each driver to exercise more caution, and to be on the alert in acting quickly and safely in any traffic emergency which might develop. There will be a greater number of pedestrians, especially in the urban communities hurrying to and from the shopping centers. They may be too busy or in too much of a hurry to be mindful of an automobile approaching an intersection, so every driver must be extremely cautious in crossing pedestrian crosswalks.

"WATCH THAT CHILD." Children are very excitable, especially at Christmas time. They have an insatiable desire to try out those new skates; those shiny sleds, new bikes, and other outdoor toys. They will dart from behind parked cars, from behind shrubbery in driveways, and from side streets and alleys without looking or even thinking of the automobile that may be approaching. This Christmas let us try to avoid traffic accidents. Accidents that lead to helpless screams of women and little children; to families disrupted; to plots in cemeteries, and to sentences in prison. If every motorist in this community will share the road with others in a safe, courteous, and mindful manner during the holidays, we will have a merrier Christmas indeed. JESSE G. TERRY, Plymouth, N. C.

Just One Request For Santa

I have a special request for Santa Claus. It's from me and it isn't very much.

I would like very much to have some drivers in this fair city realize that some streets in this town are not one-way boulevards or miniature Darlington Raceways.

A couple of weeks ago I complained about some drivers using the 200 block of Cotanche Street as a one-way thoroughfare. I recall mentioning at the time that it was an unerving experience to make the turn off Third Street onto Cotanche and come face-to-face with some other driver.

I got to feeling pretty smug after that little complaint appeared. Everybody I met on the street was moving in the proper lane and I began to feel as if I had really done a public service by calling the situation to the attention of drivers.

Somebody just didn't get the word. Tuesday morning I was on my way to work and made the turn onto Cotanche. Somebody, bless his heart, had already beaten me to my lane. The fact he was headed in the wrong direction to claim it didn't make any difference.

Nothing happened, for which thanks is offered to good brakes, reasonably quick reactions and a willingness for some kind soul in the other lane to let the other driver get into his proper lane. I am sure, however, the experience cost me at least ten years—half my dark-hued hair and some other personal facets of life.

Methinks I shall either select another route for getting to work, by a bicycle and ride on the sidewalk, or just quit getting up so early in the morning. As a matter of fact, I've even seriously considered quitting work completely. That would more naturally suit my personality and physical make-up.

Especially when I have to make that turn off Third onto Cotanche.

Fifteen-Floor Luxury Symbol

By HAL BOYLE
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "It's nice sometimes to find that dreams really can come true," said the blue-eyed, middle-aged lady, looking down from the balcony to the sun-worshippers on the beach.

"Yeah," said her husband, com-mo-narch of all they surveyed except the ocean itself. They are Al and Sadye Tisch who, with their two sons, Larry, 33, and Bob, 30, in a single decade have become the "world's largest family resort owners."

"Their dream come true is the fabulous 17-million-dollar Americana, Florida's "hotel of the year." The building is a 15-floor luxury symbol of the postwar prosperity spree that has come to the United States and to a family—the four Tisches. It is the house that Jack built, and there's more Jack where it came from.

Ten years ago Al, a former New York City college basketball player, and Sadye, a former bit of their chores in running two enterprises—a prosperous clothing business and a successful children's camp. They, like their sons, were interested in the hotel field.

"We came to Florida in 1946, but we couldn't make the right deal," said Sadye, who is vivacious and does the talking for the elder branch of the family.

"Yeah," said Al, who is balding, silent and friendly. So they picked up the million dollars or so they had to invest and began buying hotels elsewhere. Laurel-in-the-Pines in New Jersey, the Belmont Plaza in New York, the Taymore and Ambassador in Atlantic City, and some six other properties. Whatever they touched turned to gold, or, if it didn't get rid of it quick.

"But we still had Florida sand in our shoes," said Sadye. "We kept coming back to our first dream. For a while we were afraid that Miami Beach was overbuilt, oversold, and overcrowded. But year after year we checked, and found that more and more people were coming here. Do you know seven million people visited Florida last year?"

"Yeah," said Al. In the spring of 1955 they bought a 10-acre site here, a 650-foot beachfront, and 17 months and 17 million dollars later they had the Americana.

The original million dollars or so they started with has been parlayed into properties which the Tisches themselves value at 50 million or more. There are rumors that some of the glamor hotels here have been financed by foreign adventurers, including racketeers from New York and gamblers from Las Vegas.

"Every penny in this hotel is ours," said Sadye. "We . . . Continued On Page 13"

Byrd Strategy To Meet GOP 'Menace'

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON The South's alarm over Yankee Republicans' recent victories is illustrated most dramatically in Virginia Democrats' preparations to escape a political Fort Sumter. Although the Confederates won that skirmish off Charleston Harbor, it heralded a losing conflict and years of economic and political subjugation by the North.

As in 1861-65, the Old Dominion enjoys vast prestige below the Mason and Dixon Line in many respects. Should the Confederacy's most honored state keep on voting Republican, especially in local and Congressional contests, it would set an extremely unhappy example for Southern voters everywhere.

Alfred E. Smith's 1938 loss of Virginia may be dismissed as one of those things which Americans like to forget. But President Eisenhower's 1952 and 1956 majorities have frightened the Democratic organization, including its distinguished leader, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Winchester.

as significant as Ike's successes is the fact that Ted Dalton, Republican, narrowly missed out on the Governorship in 1953. He rolled up 45 per cent of the total turnout, an amazing figure. Finally, the GOP has two members of the 10-man delegation in the House.

This changing politico-economic pattern in Virginia applies to almost every Southern state except possibly South Carolina (site of Fort Sumter), Georgia, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Industrial growth and diversification have upset ancient economies and broken down old prejudices. Labor unions are making inroads. Negroes are obtaining the vote, and on November 6 they shifted back in large numbers to the Party of "Uncle Abe" and Ike, or vice versa.

follow up and make permanent these gains.

Recognizing that their basic weakness lies in shoddy and politics-for-money-only local organizations, they are canvassing the South for solid, substantial and respectable men to head city, county and state groups, and to run for office. In the past, the GOP has used the South only for trading or shanghaiing delegates to the national convention.

SENATOR BYRD'S STRATEGY. Although Senator Byrd indirectly helped Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 by refusing to support Adlai E. Stevenson, he wants no permanent Republican occupation of his terrain. He is only waiting and working for the day when his Party will be cleansed of those whom he regards as wild-eyed radicals, reformers and experimenters.

So, the strategist of the lovely Shenandoah Valley has assumed command of his troops openly and effectively, contrary to his usual quiet and unassuming leadership technique. He has given

Wanted: Stars To Steer By

By ELMER ROESSNER
American business wants some stars to steer by.

It is afloat on a sea of change. Prices, wage rates and taxes change constantly in relation to each other, like the waves. At the same time, all are under a broad inflationary pull, like the tides.

The needle of business's compass is wavering. What's good practice today is ruinous tomorrow. What's illegal today may be legal tomorrow; what's lawful one week may bring indictments in another.

So thoughtful executives want some fixed stars to guide them—something unchanging on which they can reckon their courses, their policies, their principles and their ethics.

FROM NO MOUNT SINAI

These commandments, although the result of years of thought, are not the pronouncement of an Attorney General nor the promulgation of the resolutions committee of a mighty business group. They were originally offered, quite modestly, by Lawrence A. Appley, president of the American Management Association, in his department in the Association's monthly bulletin. There was no ringing cry for management compliance; Mr. Appley merely wrote that "as of the moment the following seem to me to be the ten most important commandments for people who are engaged in leadership responsibilities."

Here are his 10 rules:

1. Identify the people of an organization as its greatest asset.
2. Make profit in order to continue rendering service.
3. Approach every task in an organized, conscious manner so that the outcome will not be left to chance.
4. Establish definite long- and short-range objectives to insure greater accomplishment.
5. Secure full attainment of objectives through general understanding and acceptance of them by others.
6. Keep individual members of the team well adjusted by seeing that each one knows what he is supposed to do, how well he is supposed to do it, what his authority is, and what his work relationships with others should be.
7. Concentrate on individual improvement through regular review of performance and potential.
8. Provide opportunity for assistance and guidance in self-development as a fundamental of institutional growth.
9. Maintain adequate and timely incentives and rewards for increase in human effort.
10. Supply work satisfactions for those who perform the work and those who are served by it.

MILLIONS OF REPRINTS

That was in October. Since then the association has been asked for, and has granted, permission for reprints running into the millions. Trade magazines and corporations have requested permission; the University of Oklahoma is distributing copies to management groups taking courses there; the Association of Automotive Wholesalers is circulating it among members; a writer has asked to be allowed to include the commandments in a new book; Muzak has asked permission to reprint them in its "Sound Track," which goes to franchisers and, in turn, industrial subscribers.

DIRECTIONAL STRAWS

In BUSINESS WINDS The average television station and the average radio station have nearly the same profit margin, about 8 per cent of total revenue, a study by the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters shows. . . . The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute reports the two-part milk bottle is gaining in popularity; in Chicago 73 per cent of packaged milk is now sold in half-gallon or gallon bottles. . . . Money to finance industrial real estate is tight at the moment, says the Society of Industrial Realtors. . . . While shopping centers are now overexpanded, present facilities will be greatly inadequate in the next 10 years, Robert H. Armstrong, economist, writes in Urban Land, the publication of the Urban Land Institute.

Burley Men Gather To Discuss Production Quotas For 1957

WASHINGTON (AP)—Men who handle burley tobacco from the seed beds to the auction room floors came here today to discuss possible production quotas for next year's crop.

There appeared to be little chance of a major argument. No great demand has developed for either a major increase or reduction in the quota.

As a result it is expected to remain close to the approximately 500-million-pound figure fixed for the 1956 crop.

That quota was based upon an estimated average production of 1,591 pounds an acre on each of some 310,000 acres allocated for burley growing in 1956.

Figures announced by the Department of Agriculture Monday in a year-end crop report showed that the estimates made in fixing the quotas were just about on the nose.

The department said that as of Dec. 1, estimated burley production for 1956 was 494 million pounds, 5 per cent above 1955 figures but 15 per cent below average.

An "excellent growing season," the department said, was experienced in most of the burley belt during 1956 and resulted in a record average yield of 1,591 pounds an acre.

Those here for the meeting today included representatives of state agencies dealing with tobacco matters, producers, cooperatives, warehousemen and dealers.

Until this year such meetings were held in November. They brought long discussions of probable production for the year just ending as a basis for the succeeding year's quota.

At one time the estimates reached by the Agriculture Department in fixing quotas by Dec. 1 were referred to in Congress as "guesstimates" because they were fixed before burley market sales were started.

Now, however, under a change in date for proclaiming tobacco quotas, they are not due until Feb. 1. By that time most burley markets have completed sales of the preceding year's crops and accurate figures are available on production and demand.

A Nice Catch

Marion E. (Baltimore) Jones of Greenville did it again last weekend. Fishing in Tar River West of Greenville, Baltimore pulled in five big bass, including the five-and-a-half pound fish on the right. He caught the four "little ones" in about 30 minutes, changed his bait and pulled in the big one. Jones says there are a large number of bass in Tar River because of the hurricanes in past years which chased them out of creeks and coves farther down the river. (Reflector Staff Photo.)

Reasoning Time

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The pupils of Beeber Junior High School today reckoned up their human welfare projects for the academic term ending this week.

They sent 236 CARE parcels to Hungary, Korea, Israel, Greece, Viet Nam, Italy, India and Pakistan, and have more still to go out.

Donated $350 to the city's community chest campaign. Sent money to the Hungarian refugee camp at Feffernitz, Austria.

Adopted a Korean War orphan, for whose keep they pay $150 a year.

Sent money to the foster-parents plan to buy clothing at Christmas for needy children around the world.

Took Documents Of Red Puppet

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Hungarian refugee said today he has handed a Senate subcommittee documents he took from the home of Matyas Rakosi, Moscow puppet who resigned in July as the top Communist in Hungary.

The refugee, using the name of Lajos Ruff, is one of two witnesses called by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to a hearing on the anti-Moscow revolts in Hungary.

The subcommittee said Ruff was freed from a Communist prison during the October uprising in Hungary.

It said rebel forces assigned him to "gather facts concerning the Communist dictator, Matyas Rakosi, who resigned July 18 as first secretary of the Hungarian Communist Party."

Ruff, 25, describing himself as a "Hungarian anticommunist resistance fighter," said he plans to "go back soon to fight another day" in hopes of freeing his country from Soviet domination.

Ruff said that for 3½ years he was a fellow prisoner in Budapest of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, the Roman Catholic church leader of Hungary. Cardinal Mindszenty was released during the revolution and took refuge in the U.S. legation.

Anything Goes At Christmas

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia post office has had some queer ones in its time, such as the Christmas gift that resembled a head shrunken in Ecuador. But those false choppers biting into a pear . . . They tumbled out of a damaged gift parcel of fruit and bottled flavorings, the teeth clamped grotesquely on a pear. Even Harry Rose, veteran chief of the section, was shaken. "Work here long enough," he said, "and you've got to figure some of Santa Claus' helpers are off their rocker." Rose explained he packed up the teeth, the pear and whatever else was worth keeping, and returned them — his curiosity unsatisfied.

Suggests U. S. Visit By Nasser

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) proposed today that President Eisenhower invite Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser to a conference here as a move toward a Middle East settlement.

Flanders made the proposal in an interview as other senators disagreed on the advisability of inviting Yugoslav Marshal Tito to come to Washington.

Secretary of State Dulles said yesterday a visit by Tito might serve a useful purpose. He said Eisenhower is considering the idea. From other sources it was learned that Tito has reacted favorably to U.S. feelers.

Flanders said he thinks Eisenhower might be able to help the world take a long step toward peace if he would follow up his conferences with India's Prime Minister Nehru by talking face to face with both Tito and Nasser.

"I would like to see Nasser on the front porch at the gettysburg farm, where Nehru was," he said. "I believe that out of the conversation of the two men might come something tangible in the way of a Middle Eastern settlement."

Flanders said he wasn't proposing that Eisenhower act independently of the British and French. He said Nasser brought on the Middle East crisis by seizing the Suez Canal. He said U. S. allies ought to be consulted and it should be made plain that the President was seeking only a settlement and was not endorsing Nasser's policies.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said in a separate interview any such move is up to Eisenhower.

He'll Go Home For Christmas

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An invalid butcher will go home to his wife and four children on Christmas Eve because, surgeons say, he successfully withstood an eight-hour operation to correct a heart ailment.

Cecil Badger, 51, sat up in his hospital bed yesterday while doctors told newsmen that the lengthy surgery was made possible by an elaborate heart-lung machine.

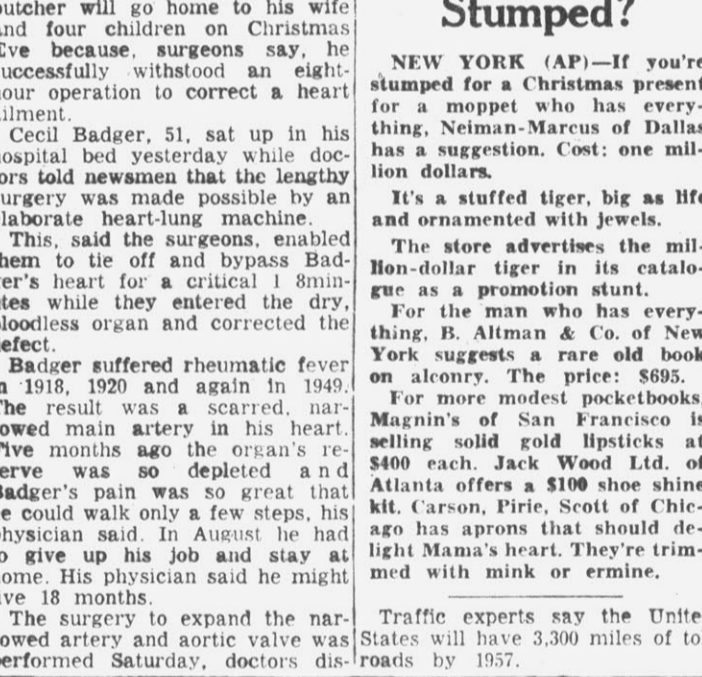

This, said the surgeons, enabled them to tie off and bypass Badger's heart for a critical 18 minutes while they entered the dry, bloodless organ and corrected the defect.

Badger suffered rheumatic fever in 1918, 1920 and again in 1949. The result was a scarred, narrowed main artery in his heart. Five months ago the organ's reserve was so depleted and Badger's pain was so great that he could walk only a few steps, his physician said. In August he had to give up his job and stay at home. His physician said he might live 18 months.

The surgery to expand the narrowed artery and aortic valve was performed Saturday, doctors disclosed. Just before the operation Badger was given an anti-coagulant, heparin, to minimize the possibility of clotting in the blood stream. This circumstance, the danger of clotting, they said, was chiefly responsible for the lengthy period Badger spent in the operating room.

FBI Arrests 4 In Theft Of Secret Oil Maps Reported Worth Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—The FBI has arrested four men here in connection with the alleged theft of top-secret oil exploration maps that a government attorney says are "worth millions."

The maps, federal authorities said, were stolen from the Pittsburgh offices of the Gulf Oil Co. By an employee they said wanted to sell them to pay off gambling debts to New York racketeers.

The arrests yesterday followed a raid on the offices of the U. S. Tackless Corp. in the Bronx. FBI agents said they recovered many of the oil company's geological and seismic maps at the offices of the carpet firm.

Among the four arrested on charges of transporting stolen property across state lines was Odie Richard Seagraves, 70, well-known Texas oil and natural gas promoter. Seagraves denied any connection with the alleged theft of the oil maps.

Also arrested was Emanuel Lester, 32, already in jail awaiting sentence for trying to extort more than half a million dollars from the late financial manipulator Serge Rubinstein. Federal officials said Seagraves was a former partner of Rubinstein in the early 1940s. The officials said the two Rubinstein connections were coincidental, as far as they knew.

The others seized were John Marvin Levia, 34, Orange, Tex., and Edward Lieberman, 30, the Bronx, listed as president of Tackless and identified as Lester's brother.

If convicted, each could get 10-year prison term and a fine of $10,000.

In Pittsburgh, Archie D. Gray, general counsel of Gulf, said the thefts, involving maps of potential oil-producing areas in the Southwest, Canada and the Near East, were discovered by the company a year ago. He said Gulf became aware that the maps were missing when the company discovered lands it had surveyed in the Southwest were being snapped up by wildcat operators before Gulf could take leases on them. Gray said Gulf immediately assigned private detectives to watch the handful of trusted employees who have access to "top-secret" maps.

In Pittsburgh, U. S. Atty. D. Malcolm Anderson said a Gulf employe there got "deeply in debt while gambling with New York racketeers and took a few of the maps to square himself." Anderson said the information contained in the stolen maps was "worth millions" to the company.

Anderson said New York racketeers soon realized the tremendous value of the maps and pressed the employe to steal more. Anderson said no Gulf employe has been arrested. Anderson said the FBI has evidence that "a small portion of the maps were offered for sale for $500,000."

Another set of three maps alleged by Anderson was offered for $50,000. Neither of the sales was completed, however, authorities said.

Anderson said the government's chief concern was to get back all the maps. Now that most of them have been recovered, he said, the investigation will be conducted at a "somewhat more leisurely pace."

Authorities said the ring not only tried to sell the maps but actually set up drilling operation in the Southwest and tried to cash in on the Gulf company's oil surveys themselves.

Arraigned before a U. S. commissioner here, Seagraves and Lieberman were released in $5,000 bail. Levia was released in his own recognizance. Lester remained in jail. A hearing was set for Dec. 27.

Last Migration Made By Distinguished Robin

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The country's most distinguished robin, George, has made his last migration. He has settled, permanently, in Pasadena.

When George migrated he did not do it the hard way. He went by Buick, with his caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Thomas, at the wheel, and his bodyguard Duke, a shepherd dog, standing watch.

George has been in the public print often. Originally, he was an Ohio robin. In 1952, when he was a fledgling, he fell out of his nest, and Mrs. Thomas rescued him when he was about to die. She gave him whisky and water from an eye dropper. George snapped his beak and decided then and there that flying was for the birds, but he was going to stay close to the supply of bourbon. He traveled everywhere with the Thomases, spending the winters in the South. He went to Washington for the fishing season, and into Canada and Alaska.

On a Canadian trip he manfully swallowed some bonded Canadian whisky and chirped for more.

On a possible international situation with the overworked pun that "You can't fly on one wing." A year ago the Thomases adopted another robin, Washington, who was found with a broken beak. Mrs. Thomas says it was touching to see George feed Washington his own food and whisky. Disaster struck last week. Washington was hopping about the yard in search of a snack when a stray cat charged out of the bushes. Washington streaked for the window but it was closed and he fell to the ground with a broken neck. Thomas, a retired magician, says George has taken to solitary drinking and is very depressed. Thomas says they may try AA because George likes the stuff too well, and Thomas figures he just can't have a stewed robin around the house.

Butler Confident His Job Is Safe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler appeared confident today his job is safe despite the November vote outcome and a disagreement with congressional leaders.

Butler issued a call for a meeting of the national committee in San Francisco on Feb. 15. Associates said he is confident he can dispose of any move for his ouster which might crop up then.

The chairman's friends said Butler had little direct connection with Adlai E. Stevenson's unsuccessful campaign for the Presidency. They said he was more concerned with the congressional campaigns in which the Democrats retained control of both houses.

The national chairman sought yesterday to make peace with congressional leaders who had been visibly irked by Butler's move—at the direction of the party's executive committee—to set up a policy advisory group of 20 members. Democratic Senate and House leaders made it plain they regarded this as an attempt to invade the congressional policy field.

Denying this emphatically, Butler said all the proposed group wants is "consultation and cooperation" with congressional leaders, adding that this would "enable us to achieve the objectives of the advisory committee."

Calling a meeting of the group for Jan. 4, Butler said the congressional leaders who declined to serve on the committee won't be replaced. He said the executive committee, meeting the same day, will have to decide whether similar vacancies outside of Congress will be filled.

State Officials 'Talk Turkey' With Congressional Group

ALEIGH — North Carolina state officials aired their views on federal-state relations in a variety of fields yesterday at a conference with the Tar Heel congressional delegation.

The meeting was conceived by Gov. Hodges as a means of acquainting the congressmen with Tar Heel sentiment on matters likely to come before the next session of Congress.

The state's chief school official urged the delegation to oppose measures which would curtail federal funds for school construction to comply with the U.S. Supreme Court segregation decrees. Such a measure may be proposed in the next session of Congress, said Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction.

"School house construction is one thing and compliance with the Supreme Court segregation decision is another. We hope they'll be kept separate," he said.

Sixteen other officials covered problems relating to their departments. Sens. W. Kerr Scott and Sam J. Ervin Jr. and 11 of the 12 Tar Heel House members were present. Rep. Graham A. Barden of New Bern sent word he was unable to attend due to illness.

Gov. Hodges was host to the congressional delegation at a luncheon at the governor's mansion preceding the meeting.

Several recommendations on legislation affecting farmers were made by State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine. He urged the delegation to "continue to lend the full strength of its support to a federal program based on high, rigid price supports when accompanied by adequate production controls."

He asked for intensified research both in agricultural marketing and production, "with particular emphasis on marketing service work to meet the problem of our lagging distribution system."

Ballentine expressed concern at "the vigorous effort...to repeal the authority of the secretary of agriculture to buy and store farm commodities under the price support program." This provision, he asserted, "has contributed much to the agricultural development of this state."

Other subjects covered included:

Highway Chairman A. H. Graham said federal funds for the interstate highway system should be allocated on a formula basis rather than on a basis of need. A shift to a basis of need would mean that areas of the country more populated than North Carolina would get more of the money, he explained.

Col. Harry Brown, the state's hurricane rehabilitation chief, urged that congressmen press for quicker action in the field of a long range program of water, flood control and hurricane rehabilitation work. He also suggested that an extension of one year be sought in the present June 30, 1956, deadline for state compliance with the 1956 flood insurance act.

Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer, recommended more flexible federal appropriations to states. He also urged federal aid to solve health problems of migrant workers. This is a federal-state-local responsibility, Dr. Norton declared.

Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold requested federal legislation to require agents and companies which sell insurance on military reservations to obtain state licenses. Often auto liability insurance sold on Army posts "does not comply with the North Carolina automobile financial responsibility law," he explained.

Merchant Directors Join In Endorsing Of Institute

Directors of the Greenville Merchants last night endorsed requests to Dr. Harris Purks, Director of Higher Education for North Carolina, to give consideration to Greenville in selecting a location for the Technical Training Institute being considered for the eastern part of the state.

J. D. McGlohon, Jr. was congratulated by the board for the Christmas program and parade sponsored by the association. Attention was also called to the hand-painted Christmas scenes now on display at Elm Street Park.

It was announced at the meeting that ballots for the selection of directors for 1957 will be mailed to members of the Merchants Association immediately after Christmas. President H. L. Hodges, Jr. who presided at the meeting appointed a tallying committee composed of C. W. Harvey, Jr., Daniel Saleed, I. J. Edwards, Jr., J. L. Harris, Jr., and C. B. Bisette. The committee will meet on January 10 to tally ballots for the new directors. The new board will be on January 16 and elect officers of the association for the new year.

In addition to regular board members who attended the meeting last night, the following past presidents of the association also attended: L. A. Stroud, H. L. Ormond, J. B. Webb, Jr., W. H. Taft, and E. S. Webb.

Following the business session the yearly social hour was enjoyed by the directors, at which time President Hodges was presented a scrap book of the association's work for the past year. The presentation was made by immediate past president F. B. Johnson, Jr.

Given Two Years For Tax Evasion

GREENSBORO — Paul B. Foll, 61-year-old textile executive and former mayor of Mount Pleasant, was sentenced to two years in prison for income tax evasion by Judge Johnson J. Hayes here yesterday.

A fine of $5,000 was imposed but later revoked.

Foll was tried in Middle District Court last October. Sentencing was delayed to allow him to negotiate his tax liability.

The Internal Revenue Service said Foll had signed an agreement setting his tax liability at $183,154.

Movie Code Usually Influences Producers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — The film production code, which got its first major overhaul last week, has been sniped at and undermined since its start 26 years ago. Yet it has managed to survive and serve the industry well.

The code was originated for self-protection. In 1929, the films had found a voice. Forced to abandon pantomime, the producers went to the stage to find film subjects. They filmed plays that had been originated for sophisticated theater audiences.

operative. It is a sample of the socialization which has transformed the lives of 108 million peasants, brought them above the minimum subsistence level that has haunted the Chinese peasant 5,000 years.

Now a family in Lu Ku, by hand-tilling the soil seven days a week for eight months and working with a mule cart on construction projects for the other four, can earn the equivalent of $222 in a good year. Even in China this is not much money. But it is more than the peasants of Lu Ku have ever had before.

Without benefit of machinery, workers from the 10 villages which comprise the sprawling communal farm have by official account increased production from the time from soil by 600 per cent since socialization.

The Sino-Soviet is a thriving establishment of 1,504 families seven miles from the heart of Peiping. Lu Ku is the administrative center of the farm, which began in 1951 when 180 families pooled their labor under the rulebook guidance of a staff of Communist cadres sent from Peiping.

Over tea, cigarettes and wet peanuts pulled from the farm's humus-fertilized soil, a director named Kuo Chen told of the co-operative's development. His practiced, sing-song recitation never hesitated for a fact or statistic. Kuo Chen has told the same story many times to many visitors.

Landlords were dispossessed and land redistributed on a common standard among the peasants in 1950. In 1951, said Kuo Chen, the village families formed mutual aid teams of five families each, retaining their own portions of land but working together on them.

The following year, mutual aid teams grew to 20, production increased and a semi-socialist co-operative was formed, with peasants pooling their land and being paid for land and labor contributed.

Then the 10 surrounding villages combined into one advanced co-op of 15,000 mou (about 5,000 acres). All land animals and equipment were pooled into common ownership, and members were paid only for labor contributed.

Kuo Chen was asked what happened to the landlords who once owned the village.

"The landlords and the rich peasants the interpreter used the word 'kulaks' are now in the co-operative," he replied.

"With equal privileges?"

"Oh, no. They're third-class comrades."

Second and third class co-op members have no voting rights in community matters, and are paid on a salary basis. A second-class comrade is a candidate member while a third-class is one who still opposes the movement theoretically, but works on the farm nevertheless. The director claimed they received the same salary as full members.

Among the co-op's new assets are five new schools for 1,280 children, a fully equipped clinic, a cooperative general store selling merchandise at city prices, and a short-range radio transmitter supplying music and news of a sort

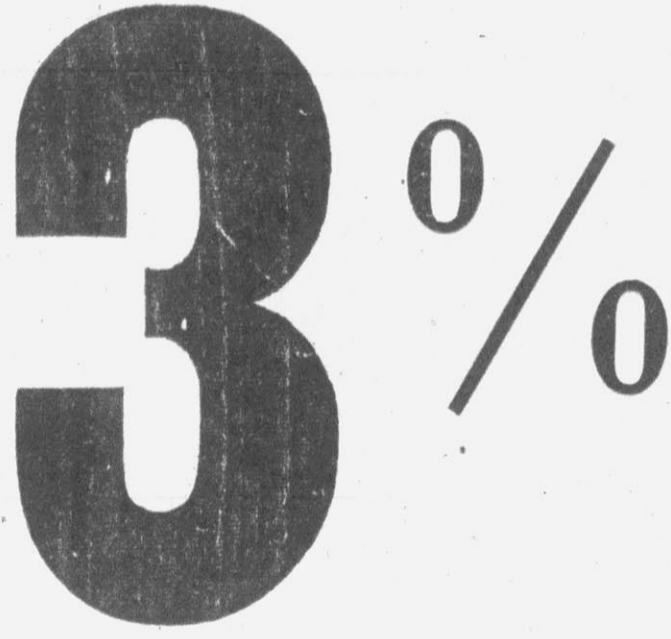

Mine Detectors Found No Gold

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A squad of soldiers from Fort Knox has failed to come up with some lost gold.

It wasn't from the Army post's huge gold vault, however.

J. T. Maxwell lost a gold ring and an officer at Fort Knox thought it would be a goodwill gesture to provide a mine detector and crew.

They never found the ring, but did turn up such trivia as small stones, bits of metal and grass-root wads.

Now 3% Interest On Bank Savings Deposits

Beginning January 1, State Bank and Trust Company will pay 3% interest on savings accounts—computed semi-annually on July 1 and January 1 of each year.

As result of the policies of the Federal Government, money recently has become "more expensive." Borrowers in many categories now pay a higher rate of interest. It is only fair that we share with our depositors the increased earnings of money invested.

Recognizing a bank's moral obligation to its depositors, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has just given its member banks permission to pay as much as 3% on savings, effective in January. Insofar as we know, State Bank is the first in Eastern Carolina to announce that it will pay its depositors the new maximum. This bank, of course, wants to make more money. The bank also wants its depositors to make more. That's good business.

Savings deposits received until January 12 will earn the new 3% interest from January 1. And remember, all accounts are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, up to $10,000, each.

Locals Lose By 63-46 Margin

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Editor GOLDSBORO — After playing two quarters of almost-equal ball with the AAA Goldsboro Earth Quakes on the Quake home court, Greenville's inexperienced cagers succumbed to the Big Blue bench power and rejuvenated scoring bombardment, last night.

A squad of only nine varsity performers made the trip with several being left behind for various reasons, including regular guard Wayne Eldson. Starting for the Phantoms last night were Walker Allen and Mack Roebuck at guards, Billy Cox and Charlie Smith at forwards and Steve Nobles at center.

The G-Men got off to a good start, taking a brief lead in the initial minutes of play. Goldsboro scored first on a free toss and Greenville came back with a field goal that put them ahead 2-1. From that point on, however, Goldsboro broke away for a slight lead.

The final score was 63-46. In an earlier game, the Greenville Jayvees succumbed to a vicious Goldsboro onslaught, 60-29.

With Bobby Moore and Dorsett Clement hitting freely for the Quakes from in close, and Steve Nobles and Charlie Smith hitting for the Phantoms, the two clubs raced along at a pretty even pace for the early minutes of the first quarter. At the end of the period, Goldsboro had an 18-12 lead.

SYNOPSIS
Lieutenant Chad Endicott, a Civil War veteran, is irked when he is ordered from St. Louis to establish an Army Post in hostile Dakota Territory. For he must leave his fiancée, Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of General Tipton, and postpone their marriage for at least a year. At a farewell party in his honor, Chad warns Alvin Stiner, a wealthy trader and his rival for Elizabeth, to respect their engagement or he will kill him when he returns. Also attending the party is Major Otto Grunwald and his fun-loving wife, Myra, who is in love with Stiner. Elizabeth makes a final plea to Chad that they be married so she can accompany him on the assignment, but he refuses, saying it will be too dangerous. After the party Myra meets Stiner, and although she knows he prefers Elizabeth, she helps him plot against Chad.

CHAPTER 5
Chad rested his elbows on the rail of the Molly McClain and framed his jaws with his large brown hands. It was early May, and the foliage along the banks of the Missouri was tawny with green. At the vessel's stern the huge paddle wheel gnawed angrily at the river and left a turgid, coffee-colored trail as it coaxed the boat upstream.

Chad looked longingly down at the river. The water beneath him would wind its way back to St. Louis, and Elizabeth.

It was difficult to recapture her and hold her, for this was a new world to Chad, and the Molly McClain was constantly seeking his attention; the noise of the flailing paddle wheel, the asthmatic sobbing of her two great, dirt-stacks, her straining vibrations that dimmed in his ear—these were a part of this new world that pressed against him, crowding out Elizabeth, and all women.

No, not all women, for there were three aboard the Molly McClain, along with the two companies of the Fifteenth United States Infantry. They were Isabella Randall, who had insisted upon accompanying her husband, and two laundresses attached to the Fifteenth, Dora Haggerty, the widow of a sergeant who had lost his life at Shiloh, and Alice McQueen. Neither would see so again, a fact they met with equanimity.

Dora and Alice had been accorded the privacy of a small cabin, but they made no effort to confine themselves to their quarters, both happy to be with their "boys" and neither concerned because each hour took them farther from civilization. They roamed the ship from stern to stern, their rich Irish brogue and hearty laughter lending a lighter note to the tedious monotony.

But the three women who were on board did nothing for Chad. He tried to think of what he could say to Elizabeth when he wrote again. It occurred to him that he had not described the ship to her. He looked the river steamer over carefully. His first inclination when he had boarded the Molly McClain had been to laugh at her awkward lines, but since then he had learned to admire her strength and capability. The Molly McClain had little or no freeboard, and she appeared at all times to be in imminent danger of sinking.

Piled on top of her boiler deck were two additional layers of superstructure, railed like somebody's garden. Atop these, just behind two towering black stacks, was the square pilot house. In this clumsy-looking castle was the pilot, whose job it was to outwit the Missouri and her fickle ways of changing from day to day.

A dirty, dangerous stream, the Missouri, Chad wondered how such a river could find its source in the clear, sparkling streams of the Rockies. Perhaps it picked up its mud from the somber land through which it flowed. If that was true, could Dakota be as sinister as the river it nurtured?

He resented the river. Over its as his ancient jacket. His eyes were smoke-blue, and when Chad looked closely at them, he noticed that they seemed bottomless and had a piercing quality which escaped the casual glance. His mouth carried a perpetually suppressed grin. He had a way of wrinkling his brows and tightening his lips when he spoke, so that his listener was left in doubt of his intentions even after he had finished speaking.

"I see you picked up some tar on your new britches," Chad said. "Your Indian princess is going to cut you cold."

Chad knew he was touching on a sore spot. Some of the troops, particularly First Sergeant Mullvane, had spread the rumor that Zack was a squaw man. He had been paying attention to Alice McQueen, and when the gossip reached Alice, she refused to have anything to do with Zack, which was exactly what the men intended.

"Well now, son, you be keeful about listenin' to them long tongues." Zack drew a tattered plug of tobacco from his jacket and gnawed off a chew. "I ain't got no brownshin girl in the woods. The truth is them he-gossips are jealous, that's all, just plum jealous."

"I guess that's right," Chad admitted, "but you can't tell me you bought those fancy duds to impress the boys."

Zack dipped an eyelid in a wink. "I've got more women than any ten men in the Fifteenth, and me going on ninety-six."

Chad grinned. "Zack, you're going to live forever."

"Who wants to live forever?" Zack stared morosely at the bank that was slipping past. "Not this chile. Someday I'll get an arger in the back or a bullet in the guts. Bound to happen. Good way to go. Better'n dryin' up and blowin' away."

"Keeful there, Lootinant. Liable to spatter our passengers less n you're more keeful."

Chad spun around, angry words on his tongue. But they remained unsaid. He grinned at the lanky scout standing beside him. "Hello, Zack. I didn't hear you come up."

Zack Cubberly draped his long body over the rail and squinted at Chad. "Nobody ever hears me come up, Lootinant. How do you figure I lived to be 78?"

Chad laughed. "Yesterday you were 99."

"Nothing pee-cular about that. A man can't remember his exact age every time he talks about it."

Just looking at Zack Cubberly was enough to make a man laugh. Employed by the Fifteenth as a scout, Chad was never sure when he was serious and when he was joking.

Zack was tall, lean almost to gauntness, and supple. His costume was a combination of the wilderness and civilization. A pair of brown woolen trousers, recently purchased in St. Louis, were turned up at the bottom, revealing Indian moccasins. He wore a fringed deerskin jacket over a rough woolen shirt—a warm outfit. Chad thought, for the mild spring weather.

School For Dolls

Student at the Ozawa doll-making school in Tokyo puts finishing touches on an exquisite Geisha doll.

Preparing the clothes for the Geisha doll, from the kimono down to the smallest detail. The girls are cutting out the material and sewing the kimonos.

American military occupation officials were skeptical—but agreeable—when a kimonoed Japanese housewife approached them in 1948 and asked permission to start classes to teach military wives and WACS to make Japanese dolls. Today, eight years later, Mrs. Satako Ozawa, now 41, heads a chain of doll making schools with 3,000 current pupils and 25,000 graduates.

In addition to 12 schools located throughout Japan, some 60 of her former students conduct special classes in factories and department stores. And at least 20 American women who studied with her in Japan are now conducting Japanese dollmaking classes in the United States.

Mrs. Ozawa's basic four-month course trains her pupils to make simple Japanese dolls. Very few of her students are interested in more than doll-making as a hobby or personal art.

In this sense, doll making in Japan is approaching the level of the traditional Japanese flower arrangement and tea ceremony, which have been considered "must" accomplishments for all respectable Japanese housewives.

Student paints minute features of a doll's face, made of plaster of Paris.

Miniature comb is placed on top of Geisha-style hairdo. This style is predominant in Japanese dolls.

With head securely attached, adjustments are made to body before dressing is started. Girl works on arm.

"I don't understand it myself," said Al. "Before we even had a guest in the place we were offered 10 million dollars more than we had put into it."
"It's comfortable," said Sadye. "It's our dream come true."
"Yeah," said Al. "Of course, you never know when another deal will come along."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
Many church bulletins at this Christmas season are using a brief poem, "Son of a Modern Madonna," written by Miss Doris Darrell, of the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief, after meeting planes and ships that have been carrying Hungarian and other refugee families to the United States:

I hold my son . . . as she held hers.
My son, too, is a miracle of God's Creation,
Making my mother's heart sing . . . even in the fear
Of uncertainty. My son, too, wears borrowed clothes;
He sits in the dust of a borrowed land;
He feeds from a borrowed bowl, filled with borrowed milk.
He is my firstborn . . . and I hold him in love,
As she held hers, who mothered the Son of the One God.

In Nehru's Shoes Anyone Else Would Probably Be 'Neutral'

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—If you were Jawaharlal Nehru, you too might try to follow the middle, neutral road between the West and communism.

It will be no surprise if in their talks this week President Eisenhower and Nehru, India's prime minister, agree that both want peace but disagree on how best to achieve it.

Nehru is neither a simple man nor a humble one. More than half his life was dedicated to winning independence for India from Britain. With that done, he is dedicated now to bringing India abreast of the 20th century.

He has intellectual arrogance, at times scolding East and West. He has supreme confidence in himself. According to Frank Moraes, an Indian editor who knows him well and recently wrote a biography of him, Nehru has a broad streak of secretiveness and mistrust for others.

As a youth he was in private rebellion against British rule. But it wasn't until he was 31 that he realized the true condition of the great masses of his people: poverty and ignorance.

It wasn't until then that he visited an Indian village and saw how life was. His had been a sheltered life: only son of a wealthy father, he was educated in England's best schools.

When his eyes were opened he devoted his life to service and sacrifice. He had that thing called character. He never swerved although the British jailed him nine times, kept him in prison nine years altogether, and beat him.

Moraes says Nehru is a calculating man. His neutralism is probably coldly calculated as best for India and not necessarily the course he would choose if circumstances were different.

One paragraph from Moraes throws a light on Nehru: "If Nehru accepted nonviolence as a political weapon (against the British) it was not because he regarded it as dogma but merely as the right policy for India in the conditions which prevailed.

The conditions which prevailed in India throughout the 200 years of British rule were these: The Indians had no military force. The only weapons they could use were passive resistance and noncooperation.

India today—in relation to the armed power of the West on one side and communism on the other—is in a similar position.

Although India's 400 million people outnumber the combined populations of the United States and Russia, India is so undeveloped industrially it could not hope to catch up militarily with East or West for a generation at least.

Communism—Russian and Chinese—stretches across Asia just north of India. The Communists can make spectacular industrial gains because they have absolute power. They can sacrifice a whole generation to the benefit of generations to come.

Nehru's democratic socialism by its nature has to move slower, concerned as much for the individuals now living as for those to come. To make his democratic socialism work, Nehru needs time but he also has to work fast to make it attractive.

Meanwhile, Nehru and his Indians, having watched Western colonialism most of their lives in Asia, can fairly say they will be suspicious until they are fully convinced the intentions of the West are good.

Shipyards, Steel Mills Will See Post-Suez Boom

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Larger shipyards and more steel mills to build bigger oil tankers appear today as other likely aftermaths of the Suez Canal mess.

Uncle Sam may be asked to help out with tax incentives and other forms of aid.

Many of the world's existing shipyards will be busy for the next five years on orders booked some time back. And when some of the giant new tankers go into service they will find both the Suez and Panama canals and also a number of the world's ports too shallow for them when loaded.

The canal's blocking has already brought oil rationing to Europe and another financial crisis to England. It has also seen a 12-week climb in rates in the shipping charter market and in some instances has doubled the price of used vessels. It has sent Uncle Sam scrambling to shake the nothbells out of many of his laid-up World War II ships.

Shipping space has been at a premium.

The National Petroleum Council helping the U. S. Interior Department plan the oil lift to Europe, reports that shipyards open to the Western world are building or have signed contracts for 314 vessels of 25,352,200 deadweight tons. The West's present tanker fleet consists of 2,506 vessels, of 42,195,426 deadweight tons. The council reports present plans call for increasing the fleet by 29 million tons in the next five years.

Oilmen say the existing shipyards can't carry out the stepped-up program and must build more capacity. The yards say one of their bottlenecks is the tight supply of steel plate.

In Washington the Marine Administration has given tentative approval to the building of 63 new tankers and bulk ore carriers. Its latest step is to approve the proposals of 15 shipping lines to build 27 new tankers and two bulk ore carriers at a total cost of 325 million dollars.

The Marine Administration also announces 30 day cargo ships are being taken out of mothballs for allocation on charter. It has already assigned 52 ships.

Some of the tankers being built or on order are larger than 60,000 tons, too big for the existing short-cut canals and are intended to bring oil around Africa for the use of Europe and in time for the use again of the U. S. East Coast. The huge tankers will find only a few drydocks big enough to take them on for repairs.

Nelson Eddy, Jeanette MacDonald In Reunion

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This week marks the reunion of one of the most famous teams of movie history — Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

The duo sang their way through nine MGM pictures, from "naughty Marietta" in 1935 to "I Married an Angel" in 1941. They brought the flowering of the film operetta with their tremendously popular pictures, still shown all over the world.

Since their last film together, they have sought other fields. Miss MacDonald has specialized in stage operettas in recent years and Eddy tours with a successful night club act. Tomorrow night, Lux Video Theater will re-team them on NBC in their famed "Will You Remember?" duet from "Maytime."

"We've done some radio together since 'I Married an Angel,'" Eddy explained between rehearsals, "but we've combined on TV. No particular reason, except that usually a show can afford one of us, but not both."

He went on to say that he and Jeanette have always been on the best of terms and have seen each other socially.

"I'm always being asked about the MacDonald-Eddy feud," he said. "There never was a feud. Sure, we had differences on the set. Almost every day, in fact,

But that's normal.

"I hear all kinds of stories. Like how Jeanette and I tried to out-sing each other. Ridiculous! We always recorded with separate microphones. It was up to the mixer which one of us sounded louder."

"Jeanette and I have entertained each other in our houses. We often would get around the pian and have some fun. It was out of such clowning that I developed the idea for my night club act."

At 55, Eddy is still smooth-faced and enthusiastic about his career.

"I like the night club business," he said. "On occasion you'll find a bad dressing room, a bad orchestra or bad audience, but most of the time it's lots of fun."

Firm Received Russian Order

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The operator of a Milwaukee household retail chain has received a $300 order from Moscow Russia.

Charles Lubotsky said the order, for 10 sets of unbreakable plastic dishes, was signed by M. Sgt. W. B. Anderson for the American House, connected with the American Embassy in Moscow.

Anderson wrote Lubotsky that he saw his stores' advertisements in a newspaper.

Luxury Jewels And Fur Items Displayed

By NADEANE WALKER
PARIS (AP) — A white mink and black-net mask with a diamond eye and eyebrow . . .

An Eiffel Tower hat in natural mink topped with a diamond TV aerial . . .

These are two of the results of a get-together among a Paris hatter, a jeweler and a furrier for a pre-Christmas show. Jacques Heim supplied the furs and staged the show. Svend designed the hats and Van Cleef and Arpels, the jewels.

Besides the two surrealistic eye-catchers, there was a bandit's mask leopard fur up to the eyes, with a diamond-knotted net bow atop the brow; a haystack effect in midnight blue clipped ostrich plumes, with two jeweled cascades tucked under the brim, and a black veiling cloche literally down to the mouth, over a broad-tail cap topped with a glittering bracelet, like the handle to a tea caddy.

If none of these inspires you as Christmas gift ideas, other Parisian jewelers have more to offer. Cartier's, usually as staid as a bank, has gone in for such whimsy as a jeweled interpretation of the old saw, "a bird in hand." (Onyx hand with turquoise bracelet, golden bird — price 95,000 francs; $271.42.)

Or you might pick a diamond-paved onyx building with ruby eyes, which wriggles his ears when a collar rind is pulled . . . (1,100,000 francs; $3,143.)

An equally glittery beagle lifts a paw when you tweak his tail. Among the really modest offerings, a golden chick with a diamond eye hatches out a coral egg (75,000 francs; $214). And at the other extreme, there's a 5-million franc ($14,500) chandelier necklace of pear-diamonds, the center one of more than 10 carats.

Semi-precious stones made into ashtrays, a watch in a gold lipstick, a compass and watch set of cuff-links are other Christmas stocking ideas at Cartier's. Mellerio, offers his latest brain-storm, a cross between a long-nette and glasses. His streamlined invention, without earpieces or handle, is heavily framed in gold (150,000 francs; $428). "You can't look at the chorus girls with these," an assistant admits, "but you can study the program."

The same jeweler claims the invention of little diamond slides to clip up strings of pearls to suit V-decolletage. He makes a flexible gold collar edged and centered with emeralds and diamonds, and a gold flower-basket handbag. Bolvin does a clip of two intertwined dolphins, one of sapphires and the other of yellow jonquil diamonds; a surface clip of polished and unpolished gold with moonstone eyes, and a motif of three ruby raspberries with olive leaves.

That certain tract or parcel of land situate and being about 11 miles southeast of the City of Greenville and about 4.7 miles southwest of the Town of Grimesland on the west side of what is known as the "Buck" road, bounded on the south by the lands of Noah Buck, on the west by the lands of Rufus Mills, on the north by the lands of W. L. Buck, on the east by the "Buck" road, containing 21.7 acres, more or less, and being more particularly described according to a survey made by F. McCoy Tripp, surveyor, on November 8, 1950, as follows:

Beginning at a point in the center of the Buck Road, corner in the line of Noah Buck, and being the same point where J. F. Buck also corners, and running thence along the center of the corner of W. L. Buck in the center of said road; thence along the W. L. Buck line, N 79-30 W 938 feet to a stake, corner of Rufus Mills land; thence along the Rufus Mills line, S 13-45 W 1293 feet to a pine, corner in the Noah Buck line; thence along the Noah Buck line, N 70 E 1110 feet to the center of the Buck road, the point of beginning, and being the same tract of land conveyed to J. G. Buck and wife, Annie Buck, by J. F. Buck and L. M. Buck by deed recorded in Book E-24 at p. 345 of the Pitt County Registry.

The purchaser at the sale will be required to deposit ten per cent of bid pending confirmation of sale.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—Gains by aircrafts and steels were faded early this afternoon as the stock market lapsed further into irregularity.

Volume issues showed an indeterminate mixture of plus and minus signs ranging to about a point either way. They fell off from yesterday.

Leading steels and aircraft issues were ahead as groups in early trading but later became as spotty as the rest of the market.

Prices were continuing their sideways drift which financial observers said was normal in view of the approaching four-day Christmas recess and the continuance of year-end tax-loss selling and switching.

Lukens Steel, which was up over 5 points in early trading, continuing its phenomenal gains of this year, slumped back to a small fractional gain.

Detroit Steel's early loss of a fraction was stretched to more than a point. U.S. Steel kept ahead by small margin and Bethlehem was up a point.

Wingair Aircraft, which rose more than a point in early trading, cut its advance to a major fraction. Boeing converted a slight gain to an equivalent loss.

United Aircraft changed a gain of about a point to a loss of the same.

Du Pont was down over 2. But U.S. Gypsum was ahead around 2 and Hiram Walker about a point.

Fractional gains were made by Loew's, Eastern Air Lines, Royal Dutch, American Tobacco, American Smelting, International Telephone and Goodyear.

Rails showed fractional losses after their rise of yesterday on news of higher freight rates. Illinois Central, Southern Pacific and New York Central were among

Twining Claims Retaliation In 'Minimum Time'

DENVER—The U.S. Air Force is capable of launching a retaliatory strike force "in minimum time," the air chief of staff said last night.

Speaking to Air Force Academy cadets, Gen. Nathaniel F. Twining disclosed that more than 1,000 B47 Air Force medium bombers flew nonstop missions averaging 8,000 miles in a two-week period ended Dec. 11.

He also recalled that a few days earlier eight B52 jet bombers circled the continent in 24-hour-plus flights, logging as many as 17,000 miles.

"This is the first time that the nation's strategic air force has tested the operational capability of its strike force in such large numbers during such a short period of time," Twining said.

"This demonstrated ability of nations to deliver powerful weapons by air has clearly taken the profit out of war," he noted in a lecture commemorating the Wright brothers' first flight in 1903.

The operation meant that within a few minutes the swift bombers, refueling in the air, flew a total of eight million miles.

Twining said the Strategic Air Command in its mission "dramatically demonstrated the potentiality of our B52, the world's hardest-hitting, longest-ranging jet bombers."

Eight of the B52 bombers made simulated combat missions circling the North American continent. They ranged as far north as the North Pole.

"All eight bettered the previous B52 record of 24 hours aloft," Twining said, "and in doing so flew nonstop, flights as long as 17,000 miles."

He did not disclose specific routes or bases from which the B47s operated.

Twining predicted that by 1961 the Air Force procurement budget will be split 50-50 between new aircraft and guided missiles.

"Right now we are coming into the missile era," he said.

The 1954 procurement budget went about 90 per cent for aircraft and 10 per cent for missiles. The 1958 budget will see about 35 per cent allocated for missiles, Twining added.

Appeals Conviction On Five Charges In Court

Isaac Taft, Negro of 712 Vandeventer St., was convicted on five of the six charges against him in County Court this morning.

He charges grew out of a high speed chase over rural roads during the early morning hours last Oct. 25.

Taft appealed the convictions to Superior Court.

County Court Judge Dink James also found James Ray Harris, Negro of Greenville Rt. 2 guilty of possession and transportation of non-tax-paid liquor this morning, in connection with the chase.

Both men had pled not guilty to all charges.

The charges against Taft and the sentences imposed are as follows: 1. possession and transportation of non-tax-paid liquor for purpose of sale, two years on the road; 2. speeding 100 miles per hour, six months on the roads.

Following his appeal to Superior Court Taft's bond set at $2,500.

Harris received a six month suspended sentence. He is to remain on probation for two years and not to associate with anyone who violates liquor laws. He is to go to school or be regularly employed and to pay court costs.

ABC officer James Ross and Deputy Sheriff Marvin Coward engaged in a chase with a car said to have been operated by Taft during the early morning hours Oct. 25. Both cars were wrecked in the chase and the charges against the two Negro men resulted. The two officers were injured in the crash.

Big Turnout

AYDEN—The largest crowd ever to see a parade in Ayden greeted Santa Claus yesterday afternoon.

Santa came in on a special float provided by Ayden Jaycees. Other units in the four-block-long parade included floats by civic clubs and commercial groups, ponies and other pets, units from Ayden's fire department, and representatives of Scout groups.

Music for the parade was furnished by the Winterville-Ayden High School Band and the South Ayden High School Band.

Two Injured As Car Overturns

Two persons were injured when the car in which they were riding overturned on the Ramhorn road about a mile and a half from N.C. 30 yesterday morning.

Investigating patrolman D. E. Perry identified the driver of the vehicle as Mrs. Anna White Harris of Greenville Rt. 5. She and Jayce Harris also of Greenville Rt. 5 were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Their injuries were not believed to be serious.

The accident occurred around 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Damage to the vehicle was heavy.

Investigation of the accident is incomplete.

No Charges In Auto Accident

Damage amounted to approximately $300 when two cars collided on Evans St. early last night.

Police identified the drivers of the vehicles as George D. Hall of 407 W. Fourth St. and Gus Alex Handros, whose address was given as c-o Dixie Lunch.

No charges were placed by investigating officer P. E. G. Cannon.

Last Rites Held For J. Clayton Davenport

ROBERSONVILLE—J. Clayton Davenport, 46, died suddenly at his home December 12. He was the son of the late Helen Martin and John Davenport of Hamilton. He came to Robersonville in 1931 and was a member of Stonewall Lodge 296 and a veteran of World War II.

Funeral services were held December 14 at the First Christian Church, Rev. Wilbur T. Wallace, assisted by Rev. Ralph Ferguson of the First Baptist Church, and Carlton Roberson, a ministerial student, officiated. Burial, with Masonic rites, was in the local cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, the former Myrtle Keel Smith; one daughter, Betty Jean Davenport of Raleigh; four sisters, Mrs. Helen Everett of Hamilton, Mrs. Eimer Edmondson of Hassell, Mrs. Banks Cozart of Greenville and Mrs. Walter Roberson of Robersonville.

A Rabbi Looks At Christmas

NEW YORK—A leading rabbi in a Christmas message says, "Neither Jesus nor his teachings were rejected by the Jews."

But, Dr. Maurice N. Eisenrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, declared last night, our whole so-called Christian civilization today is rejecting Christ and his teachings.

Dr. Eisenrath said: "No, it is not the Jews who do not accept Jesus — it is the vast majority of our whole generation." He added: "No, the Jews did not reject their brother Jew, Jesus, Nor did they repudiate his essential teaching."

In his address, "A Rabbi Looks at Christmas," over a National Broadcasting Co. radio program, Dr. Eisenrath said: "What they (the Jews) did reject was the concept promulgated by his later followers concerning his messiahship. . . . For those Jews had learned well the conditions which alone would accompany the coming of their long-awaited Messiah: universal peace, unqualified justice, brotherhood between every man and his neighbor."

"If I were a Christian minister instead of a Jewish teacher, there is nothing I would lament so much and bitterly resent as this wholesale transformation . . . of such a holy day into so heathen a holiday."

He said Christmas itself has been degraded by "an ever increasing crass commercialism."

Mailing License; No Questions

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The city is mailing an occupational license to Thomas Hart Benton, noted artist, no questions asked.

Benton recently was sent a bill for the $25 occupational tax after city officials read that he received a $30,000 commission for some paintings.

He protested vehemently that artists should not be licensed, but finally paid the tax.

However, he refused to fill out an application for the license, on grounds that he could not jeopardize his residence by listing it as a place of business.

At first the city said it would not issue the license until Benton filled in the application. But yesterday, Curtis T. Thatcher, commissioner of revenue, relented and mailed the license.

Church Plans Christmas Party

The First Presbyterian Church's school Christmas party for the children's division will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

Parents of children, ages 2 to 12 years, are urged to come and enjoy this event with their children.

Amelia Earhart, in 1928, became the first woman to fly across the Atlantic.
