HOLIDAY TRAFFIC SETS NEW RECORD TOLL

Obstacles Raised To Suez Canal Work

CAIRO (AP) — An authoritative Egyptian source said today Egypt will no longer consider negotiating a settlement of the Suez Canal dispute with Britain and France on the basis of the six principles agreed upon through United Nations mediation.

One of these principles, was that the canal should be insulated from the political policies of any one nation. The six points were accepted by the U.N. Security Council as a basis of negotiations last October.

The informant said Egypt would no longer accept them because of the British-French attack on Egypt. He said Egypt will never negotiate with Britain and France and will discuss the matter only with the United Nations.

Egypt also has raised new obstacles to clearing the canal of sunken ships and other obstacles. President Nasser's government ruled out any work to clear the waterway of wrecked ships and debris until all Israeli forces get out of Egyptian territory, thereby threatening a delay of at least several weeks. Hoping to obtain quicker action, the top U.N. aides were flying to Cairo from New York to talk with Egyptian officials. Ordered away from their Christmas dinners by U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, the U.N. officials are expected in Cairo tomorrow.

Hammarskjold sent Andrew W. Cordier, his executive assistant, and Alfred G. Katzin, deputy U.N. undersecretary, to settle earlier differences even before Egypt brought up the new question of Israel evacuation.

Israeli soldiers are withdrawing in slow stages from Egypt's Sinai Desert, blowing up fortifications and roads as they leave. But Israel has indicated she will oblige the Gaza Strip — also seized from Egypt in the October invasion — only to U. N. control. The coastal territory, packed with Arab refugees, is historically a part of Palestine but was taken by Egypt from the 1949 Palestine armistice until Israel occupied it during the recent invasion.

The Egyptian navy has begun sweeping mines from the canal, but Egypt's Suez Canal authority announced yesterday that there could be no other clearance work until all Israeli forces are out of Egypt.

Asked if this meant the Gaza Strip, a spokesman replied: "You can draw your own conclusions." In reply to another question the spokesman said Egypt might possibly change its mind later on the Gaza issue.

A U.N. salvage fleet of British, French and other vessels lies anchored in Port Said harbor, awaiting Egypt's permission to get on with the job of clearing the canal. The Egyptians reportedly had agreed for clearance work to begin as soon as the British-French forces left the Suez Canal zone.

The last British and French soldiers sailed from Port Said Saturday. Western Europe's economy — largely dependent on oil that comes from the Middle East via Suez — already is suffering.

Man Charged In Fire Here Monday

Police have charged a local man with damage to personal property after firemen found rooms in his home soaked with fuel oil when they answered a fire call to the house Christmas Eve.

The arrested man was listed as Alvin L. Robinson, 24, of 106 W. 14th St.

Firemen answered an alarm around 6 o'clock Monday afternoon and extinguished burning furniture in the house. They detected fuel oil on furniture in various rooms of the dwelling and called police to investigate.

Assistant Police Chief H. E. Wooten said this morning that the fuel oil had been poured on a baby crib, a bed and other furniture in the dwelling.

After investigating, police placed Robinson under arrest on the damage to personal property charge. Firemen reported that some of the furniture was in flames when they arrived. The firefighters were able to extinguish the blaze before heavy damage to the house resulted.

Colombine Flies In 21 Refugees

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N. J. (AP) — Twenty-one Hungarian refugees made the trip to America in plush style yesterday, landing at this huge air center aboard President Eisenhower's personal plane, the Colombine.

The Super G Constellation had taken India's Prime Minister Nehru to London after a visit in the country and the President did not wish it to return empty.

It picked up eight adults and 13 children at Munich and made the transatlantic hop in 18 hours.

As the Colombine flew over Boston about 6 a. m., the 13 members of its crew distributed gifts to the refugees.

The Hungarians later wired the White House, thanking Eisenhower and the American people for permitting them to come to this country.

After the landing here, the refugees smiled and waved as they walked to buses 100 feet from the plane for the ride to nearby Camp Kilmer.

Lt. Col. William G. Draper, skipper of the plane, posed for pictures with the Zoltar Csukardi family. Then he carried 8-month-old Zoltan Jr., wrapped in a blanket, to the waiting bus.

The Colombine and its crew later returned to Washington.

Assistant Fire Chief Jasper Jones said damage to the dwelling resulted mostly from smoke. The furniture was heavily damaged by the flames.

The dwelling is owned by Mrs. Fannie Williams.

The fire was investigated by Det. R. T. Rogerson and R. W. Harris.

While firemen were fighting that blaze a second call came from Rosa Lee Moore, 205 Cadillac St., where a stove caught fire. Damage was not extensive.

Christmas afternoon at 5:40 o'clock firemen were called to 1113 W. Fifth St. where a portable oil stove flooded. The stove had been taken outside the house by the time firemen arrived and little damage resulted.

Brush Fire Has Razed 25 Homes

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — A brush fire broke out east of here in the Santa Monica Mountains early today and within four hours had covered 1,500 acres and reportedly had destroyed 25 homes.

Keith Klinger, Los Angeles County fire chief, said firemen reported the number of homes burned. They said the flames were moving at the rate of 500 acres an hour. The chief said he had no reports of any casualties.

Seven or eight of the homes burned were substantial residences north of Zuma Beach off U.S. Highway 101.

The scene is roughly 40 miles north and west of Los Angeles.

Klinger, who took personal charge of the fire crews, said Los Angeles County had 250 men, 25 engine companies and 3 bulldozers at the scene.

He reported that Los Angeles City sent 15 engine companies, Ventura county 2 and the State Division of Forestry an undetermined number of men. Help was requested also from the U.S. Forest Service and the U.S. Navy installation at Port Huemene.

The sheriff's office recalled off-duty officers.

The blaze was first reported by an unidentified airline pilot at 2:50 a. m. He placed it in the Zuma Canyon area. Later it raged into the upper Latigo Canyon and toward Newton Canyon. Firemen said it could become a major disaster.

Authorities expressed concern for the small towns of Malibu Vista, Malibu Mar Vista and another settlement near Newton and Latigo canyons.

Provided For

Every one of the families and individuals on the Welfare Department's Christmas opportunity list was provided for.

Mrs. Madeline Vincent, Welfare Department caseworker, said today last-minute calls took care of the 44 names left on the list Christmas Eve. Mrs. Vincent said the Jaycees took 13 families, Seventh Day Adventists two, Jewish Memorial Church two and individuals the remainder. In most cases, the last-minute choices were in addition to opportunities already taken by groups and individuals, according to the caseworker.

The last-minute efforts meant that at least 44 needy families and individuals were provided for through the Welfare Department lists. In addition, Mrs. Vincent said that many churches and other groups provided for needy families not reported to the Welfare Department.

Shotgun Fired, 12-Year-Old Dies

A 12-year-old boy was killed in his home yesterday afternoon when a .12 gauge shotgun discharged.

The youth was identified by Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson as Samuel Wiggins, Young Wiggins, lived with his father, W. B. Wiggins, at their home near Calico in the southern section of the county.

Sheriff Tyson said the accident occurred around 2 o'clock yesterday.

The sheriff said investigation by Sheriff's deputies Ralph Tyson and Duke Andrews had shown that Samuel and Ted Boyd, 13, a neighbor, had been hunting. They returned to Samuel's home and Ted was watching television in a front room of the house when he heard a gun go off. Ted ran into the back room where he found Samuel on the floor critically wounded.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said Ted ran to a nearby house where he found Samuel's brother. The two went to another neighbor's house and an ambulance was called.

Samuel was still alive when the ambulance arrived but he died enroute to Pitt Memorial Hospital, Rouse said.

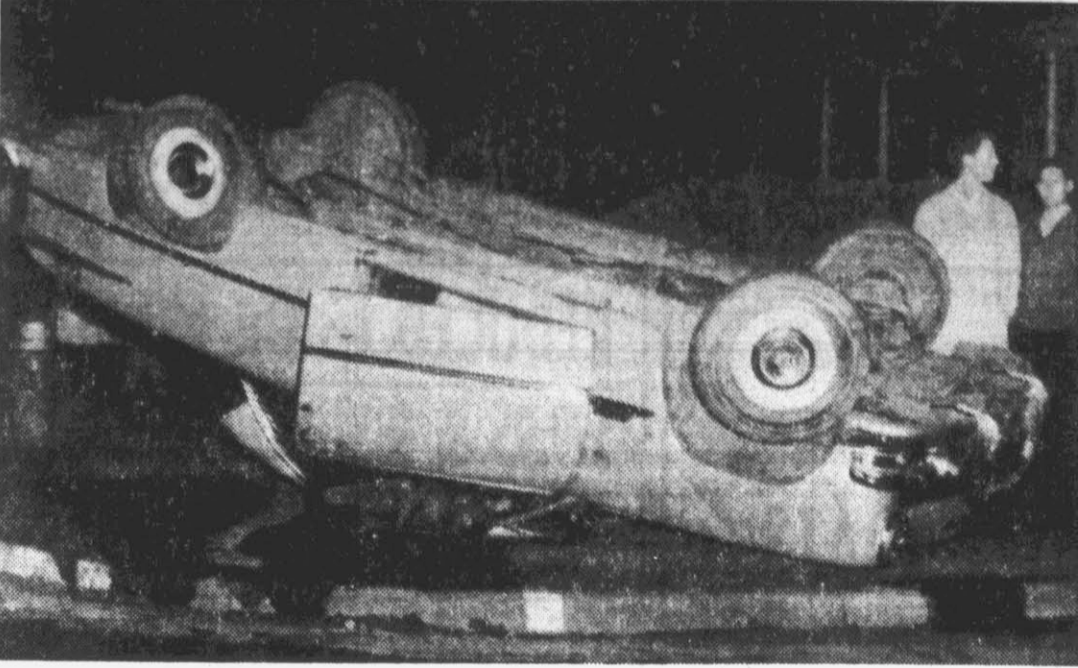

The coroner said the shot from the .12 gauge rifle struck Samuel on the right side of the forehead. Some 28 shot were counted in the youngster's forehead, Rouse said.

Rouse said his investigation of the death was still in progress this morning. He said he was unable to rule on the death until the investigation is complete.

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average near or a little below normal with little day to day change through Monday. Little or no rain.

Overtured At Intersection

WRECKS—City Police investigated a number of traffic accidents Christmas Eve and early Christmas morning. No injuries were reported, however. This car overturned when it was involved in a collision at the intersection of Boyd and Dickinson Aves. around 1:30 o'clock Christmas morning. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Several Wrecks, Some Are Injured, No Dead For Pitt

Pitt County got through its Christmas holiday period without any highway fatalities but there were some injuries and arrests as a result of accidents reported in the county.

Five persons were treated for minor injuries after a one-car wreck in Ayden Christmas Eve. Hubert Leroy Newell, Sidney Arthur Newell, Bob Tucker Newell, Herman Lee Newell, Jr., and Lonnie Griffin, all of Route 1, Ayden, were injured when a car operated by Billy Gene Norris, Route 1, Ayden, failed to make a curve inside the town limits of Ayden.

Norris' car ran into the yard of S. A. Eure, 706 Snow Hill Street, and tore down a brick pillar, a plank fence and shrubbery in the yard. Norris was charged with reckless driving and Hubert Newell was treated for a broken arm. The other injured persons, all passengers, were treated for lacerations of the face.

Highway Patrolman Bill Whitehurst reported that in a similar accident, at three a. m. Christmas Day, Johnny Ward, Jr., of Route 1, Stokes, ran off Highway 903 into the yard of W. T. Kirkman and knocked down some brick pillars, tore down shrubs, and smashed a picket fence before coming to rest in a ditch on the other side of the road. Whitehurst said Ward's car traveled 624 feet after failing to make a curve on the highway and damage to the car was estimated at $200. Ward was cited for reckless driving.

Whitehurst reported three other accidents, one on Christmas Eve and the others on Christmas Day.

A pick-up truck operated by Albin Millard Talley of Greenville was hit when it attempted to make a left turn on Highway 33, four miles east of Pateolis on Christmas Eve. Whitehurst charged Cleveland Grayson Smith, Route 5, Greenville, with failure to yield a right-of-way after hitting the truck as it attempted to turn. Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $250 by Whitehurst.

At 4:30 a. m. on Christmas Day, a car operated by Elridge Horace Bryant, 411 Franklin Street, Rocky Mount, ran off the road at the intersection of highways 903 and 11 after Bryant went to sleep, according to Whitehurst. Damage to the car was estimated at $150.

At 11:30 a. m. Christmas Day, Whitehurst said a car operated by Jay Leo Stokes, Route 4, Greenville, overturned on a curve on the river road after a tire blew out. Whitehurst estimated damage as a total loss. Stokes was not injured.

Patrolman Jim Boykin cited Larry Galloway Pursor of Route 2, Ayden, for passing at an intersection when Pursor's car struck a pick-up truck operated by Alfred Poe Worthington, Route 2, Greenville, near Worthington's Cross Roads on Christmas Eve after noon. Boykin said Worthington was attempting to make a left turn when his truck was struck by Pursor's car. Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $150.

Other police officers throughout the county reported quiet holidays. Farmville, Ayden, Grifton, and Bethel all reported only minor violations and some public drunkenness charges. Bethel police also said there were scattered cases of firecrackers being fired.

Dynamite Blasts Hit Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dynamite bomb shattered the home of a Negro integration leader last night, injuring two of his children and a neighbor.

The Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth, leading a movement to integrate city buses in Birmingham, said the bombing would not deter his fight against segregation.

Shuttlesworth, president of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, was not hurt. Injured were Charlie Robinson, 59, and Fredericka, 11, an 8-year-old child. They were treated in a hospital for superficial injuries.

As Shuttlesworth was led through the debris by police, he shouted to a group of Negroes: "The Lord has protected me. I'm not injured."

The crowd of Negroes later swelled to more than 1,500 police estimated.

Police could find no witnesses. Battalion Fire Chief Howard Jordan said the explosion was caused by what appeared to be dynamite.

There is no one who can keep us from it, for God will protect us," Shuttlesworth said.

The pre-integration group which Shuttlesworth heads has asked the Birmingham City Commission to end segregation on buses here today. The commission indicated that it would take no immediate action.

Shuttlesworth and Robinson were in the front bedroom of the five-room house last night when the bomb exploded. Also in the room were the children and Mrs. Shuttlesworth.

The blast ripped off the front porch, demolished the front bedroom, and caved in one side of the kitchen door at the other end of the house, and a large hole was ripped in the outside wall of the children's bedroom, directly behind the front bedroom.

The explosion shattered windows on both sides of the Bethel Baptist Church next door where Shuttlesworth is pastor. Windows in neighboring homes also were shattered.

"We intend to ride the buses. There is no one who can keep us from it, for God will protect us," Shuttlesworth said.

N.C. Counts 30 Traffic Fatalities During Holidays

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The long Christmas holiday period has ended, leaving at least 39 persons dead by violence in highway accidents.

Traffic accidents claimed 30 lives. The State Highway Patrol reported 195 injured in 155 accidents from 6 p. m. last Friday to midnight Tuesday.

The worst accident of the four-day period occurred near Concord. Four persons died, three of them Negroes, when two autos collided at an intersection of busy U.S. 29.

Two other wrecks claimed two lives each. In one of these, Hoover Paramour, 40, and Vannie Bess, night, Columbia, drowned when their automobile crashed through a bridge railing. In the other, near Chapel Hill, Richard L. McCarthy, Lenoira, Calif., and George R. Little, Martinsville, N.C., died in a head-on collision of their cars.

At Roanoke Rapids, 7-year-old Joy Ellis was killed when one automobile sideswiped another on a highway and ploughed into a group of pedestrians. Three persons were injured.

In another unusual accident, Lloyd James Revels, 37, died at his home on the Dallas-Cherryville highway when he ordered his 3-year-old son to pull the trigger of a shotgun. The father believed the shotgun to be unloaded.

Winfred Stegall, 26, of Charlotte, died when a fire he believed to be unloaded fired while he was handling it.

Near Wadesboro, Darrell Warner Baughm, 22, died w. n. his shotgun fired while he was trying to break up a fight among his hunting dogs. Baughm's authorities said, apparently swung a gun at the fighting dogs.

William C. Segars and M. N. S. D. Dow were killed when a train struck their car at Gastonia. And at Wilmington, Adrian Simmons, 29, was killed as he walked in front of a train.

At Gastonia, Arthur Zeno Bridgely, 50, died after what police termed a long drinking party.

Nation Adds Up Traffic Dead: 695

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Traffic deaths zoomed to the highest total for any holiday period in American history during the long Christmas weekend.

Tabulations today also showed that deaths in accidents of all kinds also shattered previous records.

Fatalities added up to 695 in traffic, 49 in fires and 117 in accidents of other types for a total of 861.

The motor vehicle death toll surpassed the record for any holiday period—698, set during the three-day celebration of Christmas last year. It also exceeded the National Safety Council's advance prediction of 660.

The all-accident total topped the old mark of 805 established during a three-day observation of Independence Day last year.

The deaths tabulated today were caused by accidents that occurred during a 102-hour period from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Tuesday. It was a four-day period, a day longer than the 1955 holiday periods in which the former records were set.

Ned H. Dearborn, safety council president, expressed "bitter disappointment" at the fulfillment of the council's "preholiday" prediction.

During the long weekend holiday, deaths on the highways averaged nearly seven an hour for the 102-hour period. In the first 10 months of this year the nation's traffic deaths averaged 106 a day. An Associated Press survey during a nonholiday period, from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Tuesday of the Dec. 14-18 weekend, showed 500 traffic deaths. The over-all accidental death toll for the period was 587, including 27 in fires and 60 in miscellaneous accidents.

Hazardous driving conditions in most of the eastern half of the country during the first half of the holiday period were regarded as a major factor in the heavy traffic toll. Safety experts also said other travel dangers included a minimum of daylight and holiday drinking.

North Dakota was the only state not reporting an accidental death. Two other states, Maine and Wyoming, reported no traffic fatalities.

First Christmas In Free World

CAMP KILMER, N.J. (AP)—Some 5,200 Hungarian children and grownups celebrated their first Christmas in the free world yesterday while waiting at this Army camp to start a new life in America.

Nine van loads of gifts were distributed and a personal welcome message from President Eisenhower on White House stationery was received by each one.

Soviet-Dominated Hungary To Ask Loan From World Bank

VIENNA (AP) — Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar's Soviet-dominated regime is reported planning to seek a 100-million-dollar loan from the World Bank. An official of the bank in Washington says Hungary has no chance of getting the money.

A report from Budapest said a Hungarian delegation either had left or would leave soon for Paris to approach officials of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Officials of Kadar's government were not available to confirm or deny the report, but the Budapest regime's newspaper, Nepszabadsag said Monday that Hungary would have to seek foreign loans, even from capitalist countries. Economists have advised Kadar that Hungary's revolt-disrupted economy needs at least 400 million dollars in foreign aid to put it back on the track.

The Soviet Union appeared the only likely source of such aid. An official of the World Bank said in Washington that Hungary was not a member of the organization and therefore not eligible for a loan of any amount.

Any aid from Western Europe also appeared unlikely. Most of those countries themselves are facing grave economic problems as a result of the oil shortage resulting from the closing of the Suez Canal.

That leaves only the United States, but there seemed no chance for funds from America unless the Kremlin permits Kadar's replacement by a government proposal to bolster the dar's government in Hungary would be profitable. resounding defeat in the U.S. Congress.

Nepszabadsag has predicted Hungary soon will have 200,000 unemployed due to the serious coal shortage which is forcing factories to close and other economic troubles.

The Soviet Union has promised Hungary 700,000 tons of coal by the end of March. The Hungarians also are trying to buy electrical power from neighboring Austria.

'Miracle' Of Christmas--Mary's Dog Came Home

Little Mary Wesley Harvey has her dog back.

She also has a renewed faith in Santa Claus' ability to make little folks happy.

"Honey," a cocker spaniel, had been the little girl's dog for two-and-a-half years before he wandered off two weeks ago. Mary Wesley, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harvey, Jr., and all the neighbors looked and checked but no sign of the dog could be found.

When she got through with the showing, Mary Wesley told her neighbors, "Everything would be alright if Santa had brought my dog. I wish Honey was here."

No sooner had she gotten the words out of her mouth when she looked out into the neighbor's yard and the dog was standing there. It was Honey, back home.

Evidently, the dog had wandered off and then came back home on his own. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey said they had no idea where Honey had been or how he got back home.

Mary Wesley doesn't care about the details. She's just glad to have Honey back.

Indonesian Govm't Shaken By Army Sumatra Revolt

By JAMES WILDE JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The insecure coalition government of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo today rejected demands that it resign over the army revolt in Sumatra.

The decision, taken at an eight-hour emergency meeting of the Cabinet, was made despite pressure from coalition parties which threatened to withdraw their Cabinet members.

Immediately after the meeting, a Cabinet spokesman announced the resignation of Dacluan Ibrahim, representing the Ipk Veterans party in the coalition. He was replaced by Deputy Premier Idham Chalid.

President Sukarno's personal demand for surrender by the army rebels who have seized control of much of Indonesia's second largest and richest island, appeared to have done little or nothing to bolster the government of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo, a "neutralist" who usually leans toward Communist China and the Soviet Union in preference to what he calls the "Western imperialists."

Sources in the Moslem Masjidi party, one of the "Big Three" in the government coalition, said a party executive won't meet in Bandung had cabled his ministers in the Cabinet to urge the government unless the Cabinet resigns and asks Sukarno to form a new regime.

The government's resignation has been the chief demand of the army rebels on Sumatra.

A spokesman for the Ipk Veterans party said his Cabinet member had received the same instructions to abandon Sastroamidjojo and that the Catholic and Protestant parties were prepared to follow suit.

The Premier "assumably still has the backing of his own big Leticia nationalist party, the Pni. The Orthodox Moslem party — third largest in the Cabinet coalition — so far and not shown its support. The executive of the C. odox Moslems now is meeting in Medan, rebel-held capital of Sumatra.

Observers "cribed the Cabinet meeting as a "last desperate attempt to find a solution to the present crisis, and save the coalition."

Earlier, a naval spokesman reported that 11 leave for members of the Indonesian armed forces had been canceled effective today. All men on leave were asked urgently to return to their units.

After several days of "underground" activity, the rebels in the two provinces of North and Central Sumatra appeared to be consolidating their position. Army leaders in the provinces rebelled against the central government last week. The civilian administration was taken over and replaced by an army junta.

The dissidents have declared they are loyal to Sukarno and have asserted their military takeover is temporary until Sastroamidjojo's government resigns.

They also want the President to make peace with former Vice President Mohammed Hatta and to give Sumatra a larger voice in the control of Indonesia's politics and economy.

There previously had been no sign the central government would try to employ force against the rebels. Government sources said the "army won't fight the army."

Sukarno's chief hero of the revolution which won Indonesia's independence from the Dutch, earlier apparently was relying on his great popularity to cope with the situation. He was doing his best to keep Sastroamidjojo in office.

News From Fountain

FOUNTAIN — Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith attended the golden wedding anniversary and home coming honoring Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Norville Sunday afternoon near Fountain.

Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Smith were dinner guests Christmas day of their daughter, Mrs. J.E. Knott and Mr. Knott in Roanoke Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Campaign On To Reverse Dress Trend

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor breathes there a woman who hasn't dressed to the teeth on New Year's Eve only to have the man in her life show up in an old tweed suit?

This all too frequent tragedy should constitute grounds for divorce but most women figure even a man who looks like a refugee from a rummage sale is better than no man at all. So they swallow their chagrin, keep a stiff upper lip and go out with the brutes anyway.

This year, however, things may be different. The men's formal wear industry is going to bat in behalf of America's suffering womanhood, and is making sure Pop won't forget that only a "square" wears a business suit to a formal dance.

The boys are being reminded in various ways. For instance, starting today, any man who leaves a call to be awakened in any one of some 35 leading hotels throughout the country may be startled to be roused from slumber by a cheery voice saying:

Good morning! It's 7:30. Remember, go formal New Year's Eve!

Any man who stops in a flower shop anywhere in the country will be greeted by the message, "Go formal New Year's Eve and buy her a corsage."

If he takes a taxicab he's likely to see a sign reading, "Go formal New Year's Eve — and take a cab."

For the next week the message will be dinned into his ears by TV commentators, department store salesmen and—of course—the little woman.

As a matter of fact, the men have been waking up to the fact that clothes make the man for some time now, as witness the zooming sales of formal male attire.

Church Has Yule Program

FOUNTAIN — Members of the Fountain Baptist Church observed the season of Christ's birth with a special program of Christmas music, tableau, and candle-lighting on Sunday night in the church sanctuary.

After a reading of the Christmas Story from Luke by the Rev. John Davis, pastor, traditional Christmas scenes were posed in costume by the children's choir with Miss Grace Miller as guest soloist.

The influence of Christ's teachings over all the world was vividly illustrated by a candle-lighting ceremony in which the light from one candle was magnified many times when used to light a candle held by each member of the congregation.

The service was brought to a close by members of the congregation coming to the front to present their gifts for the needy while singing "Joy to the World."

Following the Church service, all present were served refreshments in the church social room.

Club Has Yule Dinner Party

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Wagner, Mrs. Clifton Edwards and Mrs. Norman Warren gave the annual Christmas dinner party to members of the Athenaeum Book Club and their husbands.

The Wagner home was decorated with a holiday motif. In the music room a smart decor of pink was used. A pale pink Christmas tree and fresh pink roses carried out the color scheme.

In the dining room, the table was covered with a Point D'Venice cloth over green satin. A California silver mesh tree with decorations of multi-colored ribbons

Our Neighbors' Incongruous Stand

It is difficult for us to understand the reluctance of Kinston's leaders to lend support of the proposed Mid-East Carolina airport.

Kinston and Lenoir County have indicated interest in the joint airport project since renewed efforts to create a solid alignment of communities to construct, and maintain the airport we revived several months ago. Leaders of Lenoir, however, have so far declined to endorse the project officially, and on the contrary have unofficially turned thumbs down on it.

In the meantime, however, these same leaders from Lenoir have in recent weeks sought the creation of an 11-county industrial development group in this section of the state. Such a project will take the same kind of inter-community and inter-county cooperation which will be required for the joint airport. Certainly the acquisition of adequate air service for this section of the state is a prime requisite for the kind of industrial growth any such group could visualize. It seems incongruous that the community which seeks to foster the area development idea cannot see the wisdom of co-operating in establishing an area airport to furnish adequate air transportation in Eastern North Carolina.

The fact that Kinston has a few feeder flights

On Their Way To Being First In Eastern N. C.

The progressiveness of Pitt County's second-largest town, Farmville, was reflected again last weekend with the announcement from Washington that it is the first North Carolina town to receive a grant from the federal government for construction of a sewerage treatment plant.

Farmville town officials have already begun formation of final plans for construction work. They have already set into motion advertisements for bids and a contract is expected to be let within 45 days, in keeping with terms of the federal grant.

Although it is of great importance, the federal grant is but another part of an unflagging effort of Farmville to get its sewerage treatment plant.

Planning began in 1953 for the project. It was discussed, revised, debated and finally offered to Farmville citizens in a bond election in May, 1955. They approved issuance of bonds for the plant and extension of the town's sanitary sewer system.

First bids for the project were rejected because all of them exceeded funds available for the project. Revisions were immediately ordered in the plans to enable the town to construct a first-class plant with its available funds.

The plan modification was halted sometime ago when town officials learned of the availability of federal funds. They immediately began making application for the grant and when it was forwarded to Washington November 29 the application included engineering, fiscal and other preliminary data available to the town. Because of its completeness, the application was quickly processed and approved with a grant of $120,380 attached.

Farmville is determined to have a first-class sewerage treatment plant. The town is well on its way to becoming the first small town in Eastern North Carolina to get one.

The progress thus far is a tribute to the initiative and forward-looking approach of the town's citizens.

Step Means An Earlier Start On Route Use

Designation of an extension of U. S. Highway 13 through Greenville without waiting completion of the bypass now under construction affords the city a major federal highway earlier than was expected.

Highway Commissioners H. Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill and Emmett Robinson of Goldsboro are to be commended for their action which has brought about official designation of the highway by the routing committee of the Bureau of Public Roads. Had it not been for their timely action, it would have been next July before the federal highway agency could have made the official designation.

Highway 13 signs already are being erected along the route extension from a point between Bethel and Robersonville south as far as Goldsboro. New maps issued by the federal Bureau of Public Roads for 1957 will indicate extension of the federal highway through Pitt County to Goldsboro.

Mounting traffic carried by this federal highway which will eventually be designated as far south as Florida, can mean a great deal to Pitt County in future years. According to highway officials the new highway will provide a shorter north south route from metropolitan centers of the East to Florida and therefore will appeal not only to motor freight carriers, but also to tourists.

Having official designation of highway 13 extension through Pitt County a full year earlier than otherwise would have been possible will mean an earlier build-up of traffic on this new major highway route.

a day at its own airport probably influenced the unofficial decision of that city's leaders. They also assert that the cost factor of the project are obstacles which must be overcome before they can endorse the area airport.

There can be little question of adequate financial support for an area airport. Sufficient financial support already has been pledged by counties and municipalities to build a major air facility with matching funds from the CAA. More important is the fact that Eastern Carolina, if it is to have adequate air service, must acquire it through a major joint air facility supported by a number of cities and counties in the area. For years attempts to obtain adequate service on an individual city basis have proved fruitless. A trickle of flights have been obtained at three points in this general area, but these are grossly inadequate.

In spite of Kinston's reluctance to endorse the joint airport project at the present time, the lack of endorsement by Kinston and Lenoir County by no means sounds the death knell to the joint airport project. Support of Kinston and Lenoir County would be an asset to the area project and area cooperation. But if the powers that be in our neighboring city and county decree otherwise, the area airport and adequate air service for Eastern North Carolina can be realized without their support.

Optimism As Gov. Hodges Looks Ahead

By LYNN NISBET

OPTIMISTIC — Governor Hodges is happy and optimistic. Along with a good Christmas season spent quietly with family and friends and the music of his new Hi-Fi recorder, the Governor looks ahead with optimism to a short session of the General Assembly, which will enact most of his ideas into law. Beyond the Legislature he envisions a smooth running State government, operating more efficiently after the reorganizations which he sponsors.

The Governor played Santa Claus to the prison system with an allocation of $1,704,214 from the highway surplus fund, mostly to set up facilities for independent and partially self-supporting operation of the prisons.

He handed State employees and those concerned with continuing expansion of State services an intangible Christmas present with assurance that the proposed revision of the tax structure will not affect prospect of salary increases and reasonable capital investments. He said he would not have considered tax revision, and did not believe members of the study commission and others concerned would have, unless they were convinced that the immediate loss in revenue could be absorbed without embarrassment to continued progress, and would in the long run result in more money for public services.

Questions by reporters indicated they did not share the optimism about a short legislative session, and the ready acceptance of reorganization proposals. In offside huddles after the news conference, however, several reporters conceded that Governor Hodges has been uncannily accurate in his appraisal of public sentiment and his forecasts of popular reaction.

FIRST PLACE — Several reporters were disposed to question the priority rating given by the Governor to the prison separation issue. He expressed belief this is the most important item in the overall reorganization program.

Informal discussions with legislators and business men during recent months leads to conclusion that while there is universal interest in the prison question, the idea of separation has been accepted. There is considerable feeling that whether the advanced program for rehabilitation of prisoners is worked out within the highway setup or independently is of less importance than some other governmental changes.

All of the reorganization projects, except that directly affecting the highway commission, are of primary interest only to State officials and employees. So long as government operates with reasonable efficiency and average citizen does not care whether this or that activity is integrated into this or the other department.

Exceptions are in the areas of public schools and public roads. These are the things for which more than three-fourths of all the tax money paid by North Carolinians are spent. They also are the things that come closest to the every day life of the people. To greater degree than among most other activities roads and schools are interrelated.

Federal courts have largely taken over the control of schools. The Federal government so far has not seriously interfered with the State program for location, construction and maintenance of roads other than the main super highways. For that reason there is more popular interest in suggestions for reorganizing the highway commission than in any other of the pending proposals.

CENTRALIZED — Recommendations of the special commission which has been studying highway reorganization had been pretty well discounted by advance publicity. The idea of a seven member commission, named without regard to geographic distribution, is in direct contrast with the trend of recent years for bringing school and highway administration closer to the people.

The State Board of Education, by constitutional provision, has a majority of its members appointed from educational districts. The purpose there is to give the people more localized control. Two members appointed at large and three ex-officio State elected officials maintain the statewide concept.

Governor Scott in 1949 sought, unsuccessfully, to enlarge the membership of the highway commission for the same purpose of closer contact with the people. Governor Urnstead in 1953 obtained enlargement of the commission from ten to fourteen division members.

Current proposals would reverse that trend. The off-setting plan to give county commissioners somewhat more responsibility, without however any more real authority, in secondary road problems is a gesture toward localized control. Real power would remain in the small centralized board, whose members would have no particular obligation to any area.

The new plan also will give more power to the engineers. One of the complaints in late years has been that engineers have dominated road planning and location, with more regard to financial and technical items than to public service.

The Governor and the study commission recommend taking politics out of highway administration, and highways out of politics. Since the definition of politics is government in action, it is difficult to see how that can be achieved.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Those Highway Revision Plans

(Kinston Free Press) The seven-member legislative study commission, backed by Governor Luther Hodges, has proposed sweeping changes in the State Highway and Public Works Commission which are designed to take it out of the realm of partisan politics.

The major proposal is to scale down the present 15-member commission to seven persons and to name an executive director to carry out the administration of its policies. Under the present system the chairman of the State Highway Commission functions as a full-time state official and as the chief executive officer of the policy-making board over which he presides.

The proposals, which include some that are almost certain to be controversial, come in the wake of many important policy changes authorized by the Commission itself a few weeks ago. Those changes dealt primarily with the accounting and other fiscal operations of the far-flung department and will make it possible to coordinate these more closely with those of other State supported agencies.

The idea of a non-political highway organization appeals to the taxpayer for many reasons. It would eliminate the practice of district commissioners "taking care of their own areas" in paving and roadbuilding ahead of regional and state needs. It would strengthen the system's morale from an employment viewpoint and shift the emphasis to efficiency and service. There has been a noticeable shift in that direction during the tenure of Governor Hodges and it reflects credit on the present Commission and its members.

The State's far-flung highway operations have reached the point where they are too big to permit petty politics to complicate the service or to be a constant drain upon the efficiency with which the highway funds can be administered. If the current proposals are brought into being it will constitute a revolution in highway policies that has been long-overdue.

Certainly the present proposals stem from impartial study of the needs and opportunities before the Commission. The least the General Assembly can do is give the matter further careful study and act in the interest of all the citizens by creating the machinery through which such changes can be effected.

Postcard From America

Just Waiting And Watching

I am waiting to see if history is going to repeat itself.

Christmas Day, another important date in my life and my birthday all come within a week. In a way, that's a pretty good arrangement in that you can get rid of 'em all at once. On the other hand, it can certainly mess up a fitting and proper celebration of either.

For instance, in the past it has been the custom of a dear friend of mine to tell me on Christmas Day, "Oh, I believe I'll wait until that second important date to give you a present this year. It'll be so much nicer if we wait until then."

On that second important date (which I am very deliberately failing to name, to save my own hide, thank you), this said dear friend says, "Oh, didn't I tell you? I'm going to wait this year until your birthday. After all, it's only a wait until January 1 and your present will really be so nice. I promise."

Well, comes the dawn on January 1. At last, birthday has come. I confront dear friend with a calendar, hold out my grubby little paw and start breathing hard. Dear friend replies, "Oh, dear. Didn't I give you a Christmas present this year? No? Oh, well, I'll have to make it up to you with an extra nice Christmas present next year."

Now, that sort of mess has been going on for all these many years. This year, of course, has been promised to be different, but I don't know. The first day didn't turn out too well.

Worst joke of the holiday season: "Christmas this year was so expensive that on Christmas Eve even the moon was down to its last quarter."

Notebook On Life

Someone Must Fill A Vacuum

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the things to look for early in 1957 is this: Will the Eisenhower administration come up with new policies for dealing with Russia and the Middle East?

It's one of the best ways to determine whether the new year will be one of action or of drift and stilt.

It is now almost two months since major disasters for Russia in Eastern Europe and for Britain and France in the Middle East. The administration still has produced no new policy for dealing with either situation.

After four years in office the basic Eisenhower policy — containment of Russia — remains the one which this administration inherited from former President Truman. Containment means ringing Russia with military bases and alliances.

It was that policy which Secretary of State Dulles so roundly criticized during the 1952 presidential campaign — calling it defensive and lacking initiative. But he adopted it and made it his own once the campaign was over.

The peaceful revolt in Poland and the bloody upsurge in Hungary revealed Russian failures and weaknesses: after 11 post-war years under Russian masters the satellite people hate communism and Russia.

One reason for the Russia grip on the satellites — besides enlarging the area of communism — was to use their manpower and their geography as a military buffer against the West. Now the Russians know the captive peoples cannot be trusted to help them if war starts.

What is the Eisenhower administration going to do about that, either to encourage more satellite people to seek freedom, or to persuade Russia to loosen its grip on them?

If the administration has plans for doing either, it hasn't shown them.

Judging from Dulles' words at a news conference last week, this seems to be his attitude: that whatever happens between the satellites and Russia is strictly within the Russian sphere of influence — a kind of family quarrel — and any liberating will have to be done entirely by the captives, even though the Russians by their massacres in Hungary showed what they do to rebels.

That's not a positive policy. If the Eisenhower administration can think of anything positive to do — even in the field of disarmament so as to calm Russian fears — it should be able to disclose it before the end of January, the month in which the new Congress opens.

In the Middle East the British and French humiliated themselves by their invasion of Egypt. That adventure collapsed under moral pressure from the rest of the world. Britain and France must now be considered a diminishing force in the Arab world.

Egypt's President Nasser precipitated that invasion by his seizure of the Suez Canal. Now, with the British and French cleared out, Nasser is where he started: in full control of the canal.

If this country has any plans for getting an understanding from Nasser, or either calming him down or persuading him to agreements, they haven't been produced yet either.

With the British and French discredited in the Middle East, the way is open for one of the two big powers — the United States or Russia — to become a strong if not the dominant influence in the area.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT

The people of Lapland, who live under indescribably hard conditions, are said to have the custom of teaching their children from earliest age to carry a burden. At first, of course, it is a very light burden, but from earliest childhood the Laplander learns that life in his country consists, among other things, in the carrying of burdens.

We all carry burdens in our lives. The burden of an unquiet conscience is the heaviest burden anyone can carry. Next to this is the loss of a loved one. One of life's most disagreeable burdens is one that so many of us carry. The burden of ourselves — our introverted thoughts, our bitter memories — is not only an unnecessary burden; the fact that we bear it at all constitutes a sin. We have enough things to carry. We can well leave ourselves in the hands of the Lord.

Morbid fear is another unnecessary burden. Pride is a burden which has broken many hearts and wrecked much happiness. Remove our mistakes that cannot be rectified, envy of another's success, hatred — these are burdens which the Heavenly Father abhors. These are burdens we were never intended to bear.

President Sees New Areas Of Danger

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower apparently believes that Russia's most serious menace to the West lies in the Middle and Far East, rather than in Western Europe. This belief, which gains credence in diplomatic quarters, may account for his greater preoccupation with Asian and African problems.

His refusal to support the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt showed his desire to win the friendship of the Arab, Asian and African blocs, even at the cost of irritating France and England. Then, while refusing to welcome Prime Minister Eden and Premier Mollet at the White House, he entertained Nehru of India. Now there are reliable reports that Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia will visit Washington.

U. S. RELATIONS WITH RED CHINA

In addition, although there may be understandable delay on this front, relations between Communist China and the United States may take a twist for the better. Nehru conveyed to Eisenhower the wish of Chou-En-lai, Chinese Foreign Minister, for a rapprochement. Significantly, there have been no virulent attacks on the United States in the Chinese press for several months.

Secretary Dulles likewise placed greater emphasis on the Middle East at the recent Paris meeting of the North Atlantic Council. He opposed any mention of the Egyptian crisis in the formal communique lest it antagonize the Arab bloc. He generally refused to discuss questions lying outside NATO's jurisdiction.

He deliberately avoided a three-power conference with British and French representatives, although he met them separately. He did not want to create the impression that he was lining up with them against neutral and noncommitted nations. He would not agree to permit NATO members to have even consultative influence on his policies in such areas as the Middle and Far East.

Finally, and most significantly, he made clear that he preferred to have non-NATO matters taken up before the United Nations than before the smaller 15-nation group.

NOT ALL U.S. EGGS IN EUROPEAN BASKET

Diplomatic observers draw several conclusions from this shift of interest. The first is that the United States, with its new and far-flung worldwide interests and commitments, cannot afford to place all its eggs in the relatively small European basket. It must remain free to deal in its own way with difficulties lying outside that limited continent.

It must not be handicapped in these outside relations and negotiations by ancient enmities and suspicions directed against the older colonial powers which make up the NATO membership. Extremely practical considerations, military and diplomatic,

The Future Holds New Price Hikes

By ELMER ROESSNER
There are price increases in your future.

In this weekly analysis of trends, all the signs have the irrevocable certitude of a one-way street arrow.

Let's run up the scale of prospective price rises:

Appliances. General Electric's president, Ralph J. Cordiner, has disclosed that GE is planning many increases; Dormeyer has admitted it is considering rises and, once the ice is broken, all other manufacturers are likely, may, sure, to pass recent increases in costs of labor and materials on to customers.

Increases will be effective after the first of the year. Nobody wants to upset the Christmas sales cart.

Steel. This has been mentioned before. But the current high demand for steel makes it certain that the coming price increase will be quick and soon. And it may be higher than many of us expect.

EDIBLES
Tuna. One West Coast canner has increased wholesale prices of canned tuna; other packers are considering similar action; the Lenten rise in demand may tempt salmon packers to boost their prices.

Other packaged foods. At least one big packing company head, H. J. Heinz II, has publicly stated that higher costs of labels, cartons, containers and freight are building up price increases; other food processors face the same assessments.

Floor coverings. Some increases in carpeting and hard floor-coverings have already been put into effect and it is likely that more will come after Christmas buying ebbs. Higher costs of materials and labor are held responsible.

ON THE LOWER SIDE

There are a few indicators of lower prices. Examples:
Shad roe. The packer who is leading the tuna price boost reduced his price of canned cut fancy shad roe $2 a case. Well.

Vegetables. Fresh winter vegetable production is high, the government finds, and January and February prices may be moderate. However, winter production of beets, broccoli, celery, lettuce, shallots and spinach is down.

Outside of the price field, economic events have cast these shadows:

Import barriers may be raised. While American foreign policy may be aided by permitting low-tariff imports of fish, textile goods, watches, etc., considerable grass roots (and seastide) opposition is developing. The incoming Congress is almost certain to insist on a full-scale review of imports; a lot of voters back home do not like cheap foreign labor competition. When Senator Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.) declared, "We just aren't going to allow industries in this country to be ruined by imports from Japan," he also spoke for Congressmen from other textile, glass, pottery, fine instrument, toy and handicraft industrial areas of the country.

Installation credit may be tightened. Credit granters, as well as professional economists, are beginning to feel that it would be nice for the government to put a few mild restrictions on installment accounts, such as restricting the time of payments. Credit sellers are being forced to pay constantly higher rates for financing of time payments and they would be happier if the buyers were under governmental requirement to pay on time.

OLD PROMOTER JOINS NEW CLASS COLLECTORS

When the Old Promoter meandered in today, the pockets of his jacket and overcoat bulged. He saw our puzzled glance and said, "I have become a collector. Some men collect stamps, old coins, original Hershey's, butterflies, girls' telephone numbers or seashells. I have joined the ranks of the newest group — the philodendrocentrists. We collect Christmas whiskey bottles. My own collection is coming along nicely. At the moment I'd like to swap two 1955 Old Granddads for one 1954 Old Popskull."

"I thought most bottle collectors were interested in Early American glass," we ventured. "Some day all these liquor decanters will be early," he said.

Miss Willis, Mr. Davis United In Sunday Nuptials

MARSHALLBERG—Miss Carolyn Willis became the bride of Irvin W. Davis Jr. on December 25 at the Trinity Methodist Church here. The Rev. H. H. Cash officiated.

A program of organ music was rendered by Miss Ellen Sprinkle who sang a wedding prayer as the benediction.

The bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of pearls. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

The couple entered the church together and was unattended.

Ushers were Fernie Willis, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Joe Lina of Davis.

Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Helene and Florine Vaughan of Rocky Mount; Mrs. Ruth Thomas, Mrs. Sam Keel and Miss Mary Frances Whitehurst of Bethel; Mrs. John Apel of Maryland; Mrs. Lamar Moore of Macon, Ga.

Miss Jessie Lee Davis and Mrs. Pearl Davis of Davis; Miss Laura Lewis, Miss Gloria Jones, Mrs. Allen Smith, Miss Thelma M. Harris, Miss Ruth E. Wooten and Miss Marguerite Lewis, all of Marshallberg.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home here.

Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Davis left for a wedding trip south.

The bride was graduated from East Carolina College and teaches public school music in the Bethel schools.

The bridegroom was graduated from Oak Ridge Military School, served two years with the U. S. Army in Germany and is now studying business education at East Carolina College. The couple will make their home in Greenville.

Service Sunday Candlelight

FOUNTAIN—The traditional Christmas candlelight service was conducted at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Fountain Presbyterian Church.

The service opened with the processional of "Joy to the World." The choir was under the direction of Mrs. Philip Cory and Mrs. Carter Smith, with Miss Sue Dilda at the piano.

The Rev. Philip M. Cory served as reader for the program. Soloist at the service was Miss Bettie Sue Baker, who rendered "O Holy Night."

Miss Carolyn Harris and Miss Geraldine Little served as candle-lighters.

Dinner Fetes

Clio Book Club

On Thursday evening at 6 o'clock the Clio Book Club held its annual Christmas dinner at the home of Mrs. Jesse R. Moye on Longmeadow Road.

Co-hostesses for this festive occasion were Mrs. Luther D. Moore, Mrs. R. G. Lang, Mrs. Jack Gates and Miss Jane Hadley.

Members and guests were greeted at the front door and invited into the living room which was decorated for Christmas. Here card tables were set up for a three-course turkey dinner.

From each end of the dining room table, Mrs. Morgan Fambrough and Miss Agnes Fullilove served.

A short business meeting was held by Mrs. Fambrough and a collection was taken up for a Christmas family. The program was then turned over to Miss Hadley.

She introduced Mrs. Amos Evans who entertained the group with original verses about Mrs. Santa Claus and other humorous selections. After the merriment gifts were distributed from the Christmas tree while the group sang Christmas carols.

Guests for this event were Miss Eliza Moore, Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, Mrs. Jack Spain and Mrs. Malta C. Batchelor.

Eastern Carolina Dance Tonight

Tonight is the night for the Eastern Carolina Dance, an annual social event of the season.

Open House Honors Guest

FOUNTAIN—Mr. and Mrs. Horsee Eagles and daughter Ann of Anchorage, Ky. and Mrs. Eric Copeland of Durham were dinner guests of Mrs. M. D. Yelverton Thursday evening of last week. Immediately following dinner the hostess entertained informally at open house in honor of her guests.

Miss Sue Dilda furnished organ music during the entire evening.

Mrs. F. L. Eagles served cranberry punch and the others assisting in serving cheese straws, assorted Christmas cookies and nuts were Mrs. Jack Speight, Mrs. Carter Smith, Miss Lucile Yelverton and Mrs. Marvin Mercer Jr.

Approximately forty guests called during the evening, all of whom were relatives of the honorees.

The Greenville Golf and Country Club will be the scene of the semi-formal dance which is scheduled from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music will be furnished by Ralph Chasen's band.

Some 250 invitations have been issued to out-of-town guests while blanket invitations to the Greenville college set are extended, according to the dance's hosts who include students or recent alumni from the University of North Carolina, State College, St. Mary's Junior College and Woman's College.

They are Eddie Farley, Billy Bost, Tom Smeot, Jim Dillingham, Dr. Charles Pace, Leon Moore, Sellers Crisp, Elizabeth James, Lou Cheatham, Nelson Blount, Anne Ruffin, Jimmy Little, Harry White Scott, Edgar Moore, Jack Spain, Fred Haar.

Lyman Ormond Jr., W. M. Scales Jr., Norma Basnight, Sara Adams, Virginia Smith, Sue Tucker, Mary Will Long and Lee Folger, III.

Brush fresh or canned pear halves with butter and broil; spoon blobs of jelly into cavities before serving as a meat accompaniment.

30 Years Ago Today

December 26, 1926

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr. entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes Sr. of Lynchburg, Va. on Christmas afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at open house which proved one of the most delightful informal social affairs of the Christmas season. The attractive Stokes home on Ninth Street was appropriately decorated with Christmas decorations. As the number of guests called they were warmly welcomed. The host and hostess were assisted by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stokes Sr.,

and Dr. and Mrs. C. O'H. Laughinghouse and Miss Ernestine Forbes in making the guests feel perfectly at home. The buffet table in the dining room was laden with roast turkey, ham, salads and every tempting accompaniment which bespoke true style Southern hospitality. While the guests indulged, a feeling of good cheer and fellowship prevailed.

Beef Stroganoff: cook tender thin strips of beef filet in butter or margarine. Combine with paper-thin strip of onion that have been cooked until tender in butter. Add sour cream and season with salt, pepper, a little tomato paste (or catchup) and Worcestershire sauce. Reheat but do not boil—so sour cream won't curdle, beef won't toughen.

Just Learning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—So here's this little old man putting his way across the 3 1/2-mile Can Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge at a 10-mile-an-hour clip on his spanking new motor scooter.

And here are the four-wheelers whizzing past on all sides at speeds up to 50 or maybe 55. Highway patrol cars penned in the motoring scooterish or scootering motorist. He fell off. "I'm just learning how to ride this thing," he said in explaining he was scooting over the Oakland for Christmas dinner with friends. And he didn't know such a scooter was banned from the world's longest overwater span.

A tow truck carried the man and his scooter to the Oakland end.

He signed his name "H. Stutz" on the tow slip and tooted off to his dinner.

Nobody said how he was going to get back across the bridge. There was no charge against him.

Convoy Escorts Six Jailbreakers On 75-Mile Trip

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Gov. Frank Clement and Safety Commissioner Hilton Butler headed a convoy of patrol cars taking six Texas jailbreakers 75 miles to Dover for arraignment today.

Each prisoner was to be in a separate patrol car, shackled hand and foot and guarded by three troopers.

The journey included: A stop at a Clarksville Hospital for a "face-to-face meeting" of the six with Trooper J. W. Bilbrey who was shot fighting them Sunday.

Presentation by Clement of a commendation for bravery to Bilbrey.

A National Guard helicopter to hover over the light-flashing convoy.

Arraignment of the six in Dover on charges of armed robbery, attempted murder and auto theft.

It was the jailbreakers' brush with Bilbrey in Dover about 1 a.m. Sunday that resulted in the massive manhunt which trapped them all in 10 hours.

Bilbrey had chased them for speeding, but when he caught them they piled out waving firearms and forced him into the back seat of his own car, which they appropriated. When he put up a fight, the fugitive driver shot him in the hand, wrecked the cruiser and fled.

Bilbrey then turned in the alert and the patrol launched the manhunt. Shortly afterward officers learned of the robbery of a motel near Dover in which three persons had been left bound and gagged.

The six, who escaped from a Georgetown, Tex., jail Friday and left a trail of robbery, locked up victims and stolen cars, were identified as:

Kenneth Ward, 19, Marked Tree, Ark.; Fred Conklin, 17, Los Angeles, Calif.; James Long, 20, Bedford, Ohio; Robert Riviera, 24 Temple, Tex.; Bobby D. Moore, 22, Austin, Tex.; and Karl Lautenschlager, 20, Kansas City, Mo.

Missing Money Turns Up Again

LEXINGTON, Mo. (AP)—A bag containing $27,000 in tax payments turned up Christmas Day on the desk of Edward B. Becker, Lafayette County tax collector, as mysteriously as it disappeared Monday.

Delbert Porter, 62-year-old janitor, was held in jail. Sheriff Lambert Schlueter said Porter would be charged with theft.

Schlueter said Porter was given the keys to Becker's office yesterday and sent inside to look for the bag. He returned in 15 minutes and reported no results. Becker and Porter's attorney then went into the office and found the bag on the desk.

Porter was sent into the office to look for the money after taking a lie detector test. Sheriff Schlueter said he showed a reaction every time there was a question about $1,200. That was the amount of cash in the bag.

QUICK RELIEF

Okinawa Leftist Elected Mayor

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Kamejiro Senaga, a bush-haired Leftist who heads the Okinawan People's party, was elected mayor of Naha, largest city on this American base, in yesterday's election. Two U.S. deputy governors have called his party Communist.

The 48-year-old Senaga says he is not a Communist, but he has been the most effective agitator against American control of Okinawa and U.S. requisitioning of land for air bases.

Recently released from a two-year prison term, Senaga led a field in which two candidates split the conservative vote.

He polled 16,100 votes and led the nearest candidate by 2,100 votes. There were 2,258 questioned ballots.

U.S. military authorities, who govern the Ryukyus, of which Okinawa is the largest island, made no immediate comment on the election.

The election was a sharp contrast to the legislative election in March. The Legislature is predominantly pro-American.

Senaga is a member of the Legislature. While serving his two-year prison term, he almost died of ulcers. American doctors saved him.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Meet Dec. 28 to 30

Jehovah's witnesses from the Eastern North Carolina congregations will be attending their semi-annual three-day circuit assembly in Wilmington at the National Guard Armory on December 28 to 30, announced Willis Manning, the presiding minister of the local congregation.

"More than 700 ministers and their families are expected in attendance," Manning said, as he disclosed that approximately 75 will be attending from here.

The program will be dramatized in demonstration form as well as sermons. Manning said these demonstrations are from the Bible and will give "pointed examples as to how the preaching work was done by Jesus and his apostles."

In regard to the house-to-house ministry, which the Witnesses are known for, Manning said, "It is an integral part of the program of Jehovah's witnesses throughout the world to call at the homes of the people, because we feel that this is the scriptural example set out by Christ and his disciples for Christians today."

Baptismal services will be held on Saturday afternoon after a discourse on Dedication by L. Rockwell, executive director of the assembly from Brooklyn, N. Y., world headquarters of the Witnesses. Manning said that the Witnesses feel they have set somewhat of a record in numbers baptized in one day when in 1953 at their international convention in New York City 4,640 candidates were bap-

Wage Earners' Tensions Costly To U.S. Industry

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—Feel jittery today? Does the job and the place where you work get on your nerves?

Maybe it isn't just because it's the day after a long holiday. Could be you're one of those 12 million or so wage earners—one fourth of the total force—whose tensions and anxieties are estimated to cost industry three billion dollars a year.

The toll comes in lost time, poor production, damaged machines and spoiled goods.

Combating tension and anxiety, stress and worry, business management has turned to a variety of remedies:

Paint jobs chosen by psychiatrists; canned music; air and sound conditioning; special lighting; posture chairs; smoking and coffee breaks; encouraging hobbies; and of late the tranquilizing drugs.

Some of the tension is an entirely personal thing. But much of it is traced to the pressure of mechanized society. Doctors say that the conditions under which work is done adds greatly to the problem in many cases.

Some industries have grabbed onto this quickly as a sales argument.

"Human beings react to color more quickly than to any other stimulus," a paint manufacturer contends. He advocates cool hues at the blue end of the spectrum on east and south walls of a factory or office building, and warm and reddish paints for north and south walls. He thinks yellows are bad where lots of paper work is done, and blue-greens or rosy beiges should be used instead.

A wire rope plant in Muncy, Pa., reports it has used a paint job to cut lost time from accidents by 33 per cent and to reduce absenteeism to 2 per cent from 5 per cent. It has painted its control panels and dangerous parts with "advancing colors."

Tensions that cut production often are credited to on-the-job boredom. Many consider canned music a good antidote. An estimated 50 million Americans hear canned music at work every day.

Noise and monotony are also productivity cutters and are tackled by sound proofing working areas or by such things as coffee breaks.

The Maya civilization was founded in Mexico and Central America in the year 500 B.C.

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — A concert at the Al Ringling Theater here had just begun when a rain-storm disrupted power lines, plunging that portion of the city into darkness for over an hour.

But no one left the theater and the artist played on as though completely unaware of the difficulty. He was Alec Templeton, famed blind pianist.

Search For 'Mad Bomber' Spurred

NEW YORK (AP) — A flurry of telephoned bomb threats has spurred police to an intensified campaign to find New York's "Mad Bomber."

Five bomb threats were telephoned last night. Police searched but found no bombs in two Manhattan theaters, a Bronx theater, a Manhattan YMCA and a Brooklyn tin can corporation.

Police termed the latest flurry of bomb scares the work of crackpots other than the Mad Bomber, the man who has plagued this city's police with more than 30 homemade bombs in the last 16 years.

Only once before, as far as police records indicate, has the authentic Mad Bomber telephoned an advance warning. That was last May 2 at Manhattan's Radio City Music Hall when one of his bombs was found unexploded after a telephone call.

No one was hurt or injured as police removed the device and later transported it to Ft. Tilden, Queens. Army ordnance experts re-to-detonate it tomorrow.

Police have labeled the device a dud—the seventh dud planned by the Mad Bomber during his career. They said the inexpensive watch used for the timing device, rather than any defect in the explosive or fuse, was probably responsible for its failure to explode.

The first telephoned threat last night was received at Sloane House, a YMCA building in midtown Manhattan. The caller told a telephone operator, "There's a bomb there . . . in the Sloane House."

Later a male caller phoned the Beacon Theater on Manhattan's West Side and said, "Listen carefully. I'm not joking. There's a bomb in your theater." The manager of a Bronx theater, the Freeman, next reported a similar anonymous call.

Then, a Teletype alarm from Manhattan police headquarters sent an emergency squad and police radio teams to the New Amsterdam Theater, west of Times Square. A cashier told police an elderly man with a German accent had called and announced a bomb would explode in the theater and remarked, "Merry Christmas."

The fifth threat sent police to Fein's Tin Can Corp. in Brooklyn. In all five cases police found no bombs.

No one has been killed by the more than 20 Mad Bomber devices that have been exploded since 1940. A number of persons have been injured, though none seriously.

Suggests Life Began With Lightning Flash

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP) — Lightning flashing through deadly gases of an eerie world could have sparked the beginning of life on earth, a scientist said today.

The dazzling electric bolts could have created complex chemicals from the gases. From these newborn chemicals came living matter.

This theory and experiments to support it were described in a speech prepared for an opening session of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

Some of the latest scientific guesses about how life began were presented at a conference held by the association and the New York Academy of Science.

Scientists generally think life began in the salty oceans. Somehow, organic or living chemicals were formed out of inorganic or nonliving chemicals.

Some scientists, among them Nobel prize winner Dr. Harold Urey, Chicago, have proposed that our primitive earth had an atmosphere of poisonous gases such as methane and ammonia, plus water and hydrogen. Lightning might have created the reaction which produced the chemicals for life to begin.

Testing this, Dr. Stanley L. Miller, biochemist of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, exposed just such a mixture of gases to a series of electric discharges for one week. The man-made "lightning" created some amino acids, the building blocks that make up proteins such as flesh, nerve and hair. Nine amino acids were formed from the gases.

Dr. Miller said it appeared that the reactive organic compounds were formed by lightning and by ultraviolet light in the atmosphere. Rains carried them down into the oceans, where they reacted to form amino acids and other complex organic compounds.

Such reactions "would give a great many of the compounds that are components of present living organisms," he said.

Senior Citizens Get Price Cut

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — San Diego's senior citizens are going to get a break at the box office, thanks to Squire A. Russell, a 76-year-old retired plumber.

Squire, who lives alone, has wondered for years why a pensioned person over 75 couldn't get the same cut-rate admission as juveniles at movies and other entertainment spots.

He explained this to the manager of a chain of 10 motion picture theaters in the San Diego area, and to officials of the San Diego Zoo. They agreed.

So with proper identification, persons over 75 on a pension will pay reduced admission prices at the 10 theaters, and nothing at the zoo.

There are 75 million licensed automobile drivers in the United States.

SYNOPSIS

Lieutenant Chad Endicott, a Civil War veteran, is irked when he is ordered from St. Louis to establish an Army post in hostile Dakota Territory. For he must leave his fiancée, Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of General Tipton, and postpone their marriage for at least a year. Before he leaves, Chad warns Alvin Stiner, a wealthy trader and his rival for Elizabeth, to respect their engagement or he will kill him when he returns. Myra, fun-loving wife of Major Otto C. Unwald, is in love with Stiner, and, although she knows he prefers Elizabeth, she helps him plot against Chad. Meanwhile, Chad sails up the treacherous Missouri river with an infantry company commanded by Colonel Randall, who is bringing his beautiful Spanish wife, Isabella. Chad doubts Randall's ability as a leader. As the river boat makes its way slowly upriver to Indian territory, Zack Cubberly, a weather-beaten scout for the Army, tells Chad what to expect from the warlike Sioux. Back in St. Louis, Stiner, after a reasonable wait, starts his campaign to win Elizabeth. At about this time, Chad and his troops experience their first difficulty—the boat gets stuck on a sandbar. Before they get clear, a band of Indians attack. But Chad and his troops drive them off without casualties. Finally, after two months, they reach their destination.

CHAPTER 10

Colonel Randall selected a site for the fort on a slight eminence about one-third of a mile from the river's edge, noting carefully that the vision in all directions was not obscured. With Chad's aid and Sergeant Mullvane's help, he measured off a rectangle 280 by 300 feet.

"There you are, Lieutenant," Randall said. "Before you lie the outline of Fort Butterfield." "Fort Butterfield," Chad repeated. "I wondered what you were going to call it. I hope General Butterfield will be proud of his name."

"He should," Randall said, smiling. "It isn't every day somebody names a fort after you."

"We'll do our best to make the old hero of Gettysburg proud of it, sir," Chad added.

Randall turned to Mullvane. "Sergeant, name the six best fighting men we have."

Mullvane grinned as he took the short-stemmed, black briar out of his mouth. "His brash courage was often more of a liability than an asset. Because of it, he had lost the commission he'd held during the war. He had worked back up to top kick of the outfit, but he was not satisfied. The ambition to regain his shoulder bars was a driving urge in him."

"Six fighting men, is it, sir?" Mullvane murmured. "Higgins, O'Hara, Donovan, Flannigan, Rourke."

Randall pressed. "One more, Sergeant."

Mullvane laughed, shortly. "Schmidt."

"All right," Randall said. "Now, I propose to build a fort. Sergeant. In order to protect us from a sneak attack, you will station the men you just named around this area."

"Yes, sir," Mullvane said. "Organize them at once," Randall ordered. "You will be directly responsible to Lieutenant Endicott."

Mullvane said, "Yes, sir," saluted, and strode away.

Randall was silent for a moment, his eyes on Chad. He seemed to radiate a confidence that had not been apparent during the trip up the river. He bore himself well, and his blue uniform became him. He still wore a campaign hat as he had in the recent war, and now it sat jauntily on his well-shaped head. His face was only slightly tanned, leaving the impression that he had spent a good deal of time at a desk. His Dundreary whiskers added just the right touch. He looked, Chad thought, exactly as a colonel should look.

The weakest part of his whole appearance was a pair of watery, light-blue eyes, sunk much too deeply in his head. They bothered Chad. He thought he saw indecision in them.

"You probably are not aware that I personally selected you for this assignment," Randall said. "I know your war record. It's good. I did not find any trace of Mullvane's fault. Courage without a balancing element of caution is a bad thing in a soldier."

"Thank you, sir," Chad said, shocked by the knowledge that it was Randall who had separated him from Elizabeth.

"It will be your duty to see that Mullvane does not get out of hand," Randall went on. "I will assume the responsibility for the construction of the post, but your job is equally important. We have a few horses and a small beef herd. The Sioux will certainly try to run our stock off. I'm sure you don't need to be told how important it is that we keep them."

"I understand, sir."

"Take a detail of men and erect a corral for the stock. Later on, you will see that enough wild hay is cut to get our animals through the winter." He smiled briefly. "I'm sure that our work here will put both of us another notch up the ladder. As you know, we had no hope as long as we rotted in Jefferson Barracks.

"Yes, sir," Chad said, and saluted.

As he walked away from the Colonel, Chad could not help feeling resentful. He had not objected to rotting in Jefferson Barracks, as Randall had put it. But there it was something in what Randall had said about promotion. If a man got ahead, this would be the place to do it. He should be grateful to Randall, but he wasn't.

The first hint of trouble came near the end of the week. One morning shortly after work had been started on the stockade, Zack, who was continually on the prowl, shipped out of a grove of cottonwoods that lay upriver from the fort and crossed the intervening space in a leggy lope.

Chad called to Mullvane, ordering him to bring the pickets in. Then he turned to Randall, who was overseeing a crew that was employed in digging a trench and lifting the cottonwood logs into a line that would eventually form the stockade.

"Something's up," Chad said. Randall nodded, his gaze on the approaching scout.

A surprise attack might have started a panic, for many of the men had never been under fire, and none of them except Corporal Tolliver had had any experience in Indian fighting except for the brush they'd had on the Molly McClain.

Randall ordered his men to seek protection behind piles of logs and the partially completed stockade. He sent the women into a small rectangle composed of sacks and crates of supplies, snapping at them. "Lie flat and stay flat until this is over." He whirled to face Zack. "How much of a fight is this going to be?"

"Not much," Zack said, as casually as if this were an everyday occurrence. "Ain't no large body of Sioux in these parts. I figger this is a band that's been campin' around Fort Blaine and they're just aimin' to try us out a leetle. They're in for a mite of a surprise when the find out your boys have got them new Springfield fifties."

For once, Chad thought, someone, maybe Otto Grunwald, had seen to it that these men were properly armed. The new breech-loading Springfields were both fast and accurate. This was a good time for the Sioux to discover that.

Happy Holiday

All of us here sincerely hope you're enjoying the happiest holiday season ever, and that the packages you found under your Christmas tree contained exactly what you needed.

For example, perhaps you are now the proud owner of a new camera. Well, I hope you'll bring us your first roll of exposed film for processing. We'll be very happy to go over the finished prints with you and make suggestions that will help you get the most out of your camera. We'd also like to invite home movie makers to use our projection room. No charge or obligation, of course.

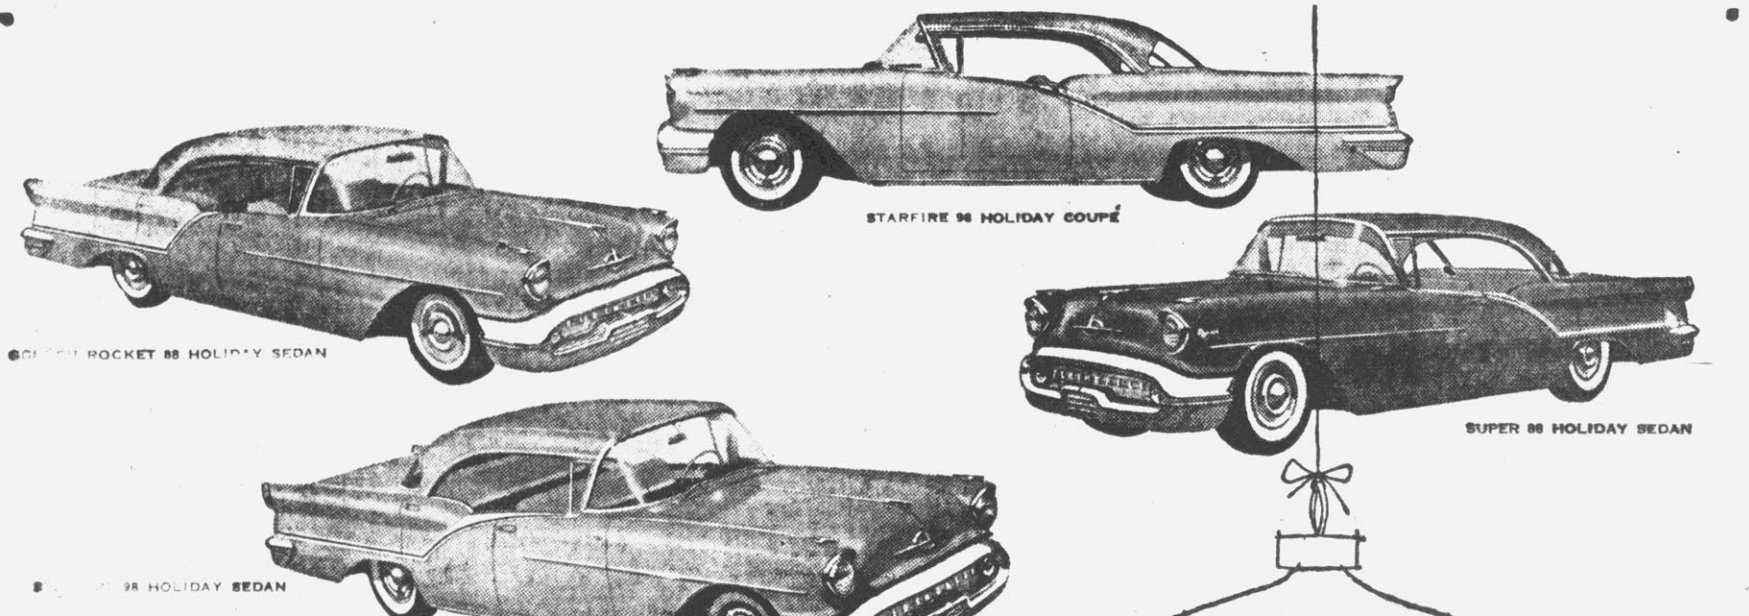

If your gifts included money, may we suggest that you invest some of it in a new Kodak camera. It will bring you many years of pleasure. We'd like to show you a Kodak Pony 135 Camera, a compact, easy-to-use miniature camera that makes wonderful pictures, especially color slides with Kodachrome or Ektachrome film. The Pony 135 costs just $33.75. And it's only one of many value-packed Kodak cameras we can show you. Come in and see.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Industrials paced the stock market to an advance early this afternoon in active trading.

Pivotal issues rose from fractions to around 2 points. Some stocks lost ground while other issues made gains far ahead of the general range.

Steels were the pacemakers but leading rail stocks showed many fractional losses. Chemicals and farm implements were ahead. Nonferrous metals were mixed.

A number of good-sized blocks changed hands as the market opened after its four-day Christmas weekend. Steels went ahead in the wake of the longest stretch of capacity-plus operations in four years and continuing high demand supported by requirements for tankers to carry oil because the Suez Canal situation.

Du Pont was a late opener, up 6 points on 4,800 shares. An unconfirmed report that the stock would be split combined with a Wall Street plus for the stock were said by brokers to be responsible for this.

Later Du Pont stretched its gain to 7.

Lukens Steel resumed its sky-rocketing with a gain of around 6.

Bethlehem and Youngstown each added around 2. U. S. Steel and Republic fractions.

While Chrysler and Studebaker-Packard improved fractionally, Ford and General Motors declined slightly.

Leading oils were on the upside but Gulf Oil kept only a fraction of a gain, exceeding a point. Standard Oil (New Jersey) was about a point ahead. Texas Co. and Royal Dutch made smaller gains.

Santa Fe was steady but losses were taken by a number of carriers including New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Illinois Central and Southern Pacific.

J. I. Case, up around a point along with Caterpillar, gave farm implements a rosier hue. International Harvester picked up a major fraction.

Cuban-American sugar and American Cyanamid were other 1-point gainers. American Tobacco, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide improved.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 70 cents to $180.90 with the industrials up $1.80, the rails down 40 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Rash Of Wrecks In City During Yuletide Traffic

Extremely heavy traffic Christmas Eve brought a rash of wreck calls to local police Monday.

The traffic accident calls continued into the early hours of Christmas morning. No injuries resulted, however.

At 10:56 a.m. Monday morning cars operated by Mrs. Betty Vincent Hardy, 140 Vanduyke St., and Melvin Brooks Lincoln, Negro, of Winterville, were involved in collision on N. Greene St. Damage to Mrs. Hardy's car amounted to approximately $300. Lincoln's vehicle received approximately $75 damage.

Investigating officer J. A. Briley reported that Mrs. Hardy was charged with following too closely.

At 11:15 a.m. a car driven by John Stanley Tripp of Greenville Rt. 4 was involved in a collision with a second vehicle driven by Mrs. Grace Beaman Ervin of 111 N. Jarvis St.

Pt. Briley, who investigated, said Tripp was charged with following too closely. The accident occurred on N. Greene St.

Damage to Tripp's car was set at $500 while damage to Mrs. Ervin's vehicle was estimated at $300.

At 12:07 p.m. Monday a vehicle operated by James Thomas Hamm of 1105 B Chestnut St. was involved in a collision with a car operated by Norris Lee Lamberson, Chowchilla Rt. 1.

Hamm's car received around $250 damage while damage to Lamberson's vehicle was approximately $50.

Hamm was charged with following too closely. Investigating was Sgt. J. B. Cannon.

At 12:25 p.m. another wreck took place on Greene St. where vehicles operated by Ronald Logan Warren of Stokes Rt. 1 and Loran Edward Norris of 2108 N. Village Dr. collided. Norris car received $100 damage and Warren's, $150.

Warren was charged with following too closely.

At 4:25 a wreck call came from the intersection of Evans and Tenth Sts. Cars driven by Mrs. Cora Clark of Chicod and William Earl Galloway of Jackson were involved in a wreck at the intersection. Mrs. Clark's car damage was set at $100 while Galloway's vehicle received approximately $300 damage. Galloway was charged with failure to stop for a stop light.

The next major traffic accident locally came at 1:35 a.m.—Christmas morning—when two vehicles collided at the intersection of Boyd and Dickinson Aves.

Police identified the drivers as Orlis Gooden, Negro, of 608 Wiley St. and Carl Samuel Brown Jr., Negro, of 704 S. Lee St., Ayden. Damage to the vehicle being operated by Gooden was estimated by investigating officers at $1,000 and damage to the car driven by Brown was set at $800.

Brown was charged by officers with failure to yield right of way and careless and reckless driving.

Investigating was Pt. C. H. Stubbs and Lt. John Piver.

At 3:29 a.m. officers were called back to Boyd and Dickinson where a car operated by Jessie Ray Stan-cill, Negro, of 803 Vanderbilt Lane was involved in a collision with a parked auto. Damage to Stan-cill's car was set at $300.

Filter Cigarette Sales Boomed Ahead This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Filter cigarette sales boomed 59.6 per cent ahead of 1955 during the past year and captured 30 per cent of the American cigarette market, Printers' Ink reported today.

The increase for filters came at the expense of king size and regular brands, both of which saw sales decline during 1956, the magazine said in an article by Harry M. Wooten, consultant to the tobacco industry. Printers' Ink al sales figures, it will exceed the record of 394,100,000,000 marketed in the United States in 1952.

Wooten said the cancer and smoking controversy "may be collapsing for lack of nourishment."

He added: "Scientists say it is next to impossible to 'prove' a negative proposition, but no positive proof of the anti-cigarette theory has been produced and more and more the statistics on which the original theory was based have been challenged as defective."

Non-filter king-size cigarettes, which gained 34.6 per cent since 1952, declined 6.2 per cent during 1956, and regular brands went down 9.7 per cent, Wooten said.

Santos, Brazil, the world's largest coffee port, is situated on an island which is protected by a higher island from Atlantic storms.

Christmas Made Her Feel Good

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Irene Jaronczyk is a 16-year-old lass terribly ill with cancer. But as Christmas comes, she knows Christmas when it comes. And it made her "really feel good."

She dictated this note yesterday to an Evening Tribune reporter: "They said today I would be dead.

"They said this thing inside me would stop Christmas for me and that my family would cry today and carry flowers to my grave.

"Sure there's a wreath in the window, but it's all green with a few red berries. You know, the pretty Christmas kind.

"I woke up this morning and just lay there a while with my eyes closed. I wasn't scared, you understand. I haven't been scared for a long time.

"I believe in prayer, you know. I pray most all the time and my father and mother have offered up their prayers.

"I knew right away it was Christmas. I couldn't see anything really at first. It was still dark. But I knew it was Christmas all right.

"I knew it just like I used to know it was the first day of school, or my birthday, or I was going to dress all in white for church.

"I don't know maybe I just felt like Christmas.

"Inside I felt terrible. I won't fool you, I still feel terrible. Like it's not really me in there.

"But deep inside, when I get past the cancer and all that, I feel really good. Don't let it spoil your Christmas because it's all I've got left."

Soviet Students Deny Disunity

MOSCOW (AP) — A group of Soviet youths told Allen Dulles today Russian students are just as Red as ever.

They attacked as "lies and slanders" a speech made by the chief of the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency at Princeton University Dec. 12.

Dulles said he had well-substantiated reports that Soviet students are becoming restive and are demanding a critical examination into the "infallibility" of the Soviet system.

A letter published in Komsomol Pravda from students of the Moscow Power Institute suggested Dulles "should make a better analysis of things concerning peoples' psychology."
