

President Giving GOP Legislative Chiefs His Goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House Republican chiefs got from President Eisenhower today an outline of his hopes and plans for the nation during the next year.

With the aid of Vice President Nixon, Budget Director Perovich Brundage and all Cabinet members except Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Defense Wilson, Eisenhower planned to review with the GOP legislators the administration's domestic program for 1957.

That includes matters such as school aid and tax, labor and farm legislation.

The big foreign affairs issues—such as standby authority to use U.S. troops in the Middle East, foreign aid and help for Hungarian refugees—might come up for some discussion, but were primarily reserved for tomorrow. That's when Democratic congressional leaders, too, are invited to a White House briefing.

Eisenhower returned to Washington late yesterday for the conferences after a weekend of relaxation at Augusta (Ga.) National Golf Club.

Eisenhower will deal with both foreign and domestic affairs in the yearly State-of-the-Union message which he plans to deliver personally to Congress Jan. 10. The new Congress convenes Thursday.

Invited to review a preliminary draft of the message today were Sen. Knowland (Calif.), the Senate Republican leader; Chairman Bridges (N.H.) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee; Sen. Millikin (Colo.) retiring chairman of the conference of all GOP senators; Asst. Senate Republican Leader Saltonstall (Mass.); House Republican Leader Martin (Mass.); Asst.

Second Church In Hartford Burns

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The second serious church fire in Hartford in a little more than 24 hours menaced the huge St. Joseph's Roman Catholic cathedral today.

Two hours after the fire had been discovered, near the end of the 7 a.m. Mass, it appeared that the battle of firemen to save the worship center of the Hartford Archdiocese hung in the balance.

Smoke was billowing from the highest reaches of the roof over the sanctuary and main altar, and was spreading toward the front of the church.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, in downtown Hartford, was all but destroyed in a $250,000 fire that broke about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police Chief Michael J. Godfrey dispatched scores of firemen to search the area surrounding the cathedral. They questioned persons in an effort to get some information as to how the fire started.

Fire Marshal George Kenney said yesterday that arson is one of the possibilities under consideration in an investigation of the fire at St. Patrick's.

Sacristan Martin G. Roach said that when he arrived at the cathedral shortly after 6 a.m. today "I smelled a little smoke and I thought it was the oil burner."

Roach investigated but could find nothing wrong, he said.

Priests helping celebrate the Mass noticed smoke seeping out between the ceiling of the lower church and the main cathedral structure.

One of the priests ran into the street to turn in the alarm.

The Rev. Francis S. O'Neill, who was celebrating the Mass, rescued the Blessed Sacraments from the altar.

He is chaplain of the Hartford fire department.

One injury was reported early in the blaze. Lt. John W. Covey was injured while with a crew battling the blaze at the rear of the cathedral. He was taken to Hartford Hospital.

The cathedral is on the west side of Hartford and about a mile from St. Patrick's.

New Year Weekend Death Toll Rises, But Slow Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The national death toll from traffic accidents this New Year's holiday climbed higher today but at a rate much slower than the record-shattering Christmas weekend.

With the 102-hour holiday more than half completed, traffic mishaps had accounted for 213 lives.

In addition, there were 24 deaths from fires and 37 from miscellaneous accidents for an overall total of 274.

The accident count began at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday and continues until midnight Tuesday.

The carnage on the nation's highways during the Christmas holiday — also a four-day period — left 706 persons dead. The toll cost in lives from all accidents reached 884, also a new record.

Fires killed 54 of the 178 non-traffic victims.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, said late last night he noted "an ominous trend in the traffic toll."

"We hope the trend can be halted in the traffic toll."

"We hope the trend can be halted by a resumption of the care and common sense that marked the earlier hours of the holiday," he said.

"The shock and enormity of the Christmas toll," was cited by born as a primary reason for the lower New Year weekend highway death rate.

However, safety officials said the most deadly time on American roads during the current holiday is New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. Celebrants crowd the highways and the incidence of drunk driving usually increases sharply, they said.

The NSC predicted that 490 persons would die on the highways during the long new year weekend. The record toll is 407, set in the four-day 1952-53 New Year period.

Safety experts estimated that about 35 to 40 million motorists will be on the road during the current holiday. This compares with more than 45 million in the yuletide period, they said.

The impact of the awesome Christmas death toll on public consciousness was taken into consideration in making the prediction.

Hungarian Delegates Said Ending Walkout At UN

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The Communist party newspaper Nepszabadsag said today Hungary plans to return to the U.N. general assembly Friday.

The Hungarian delegation, led by Foreign Minister Imre Horvath, walked out of the Assembly Dec. 11, protesting alleged U.N. interference in Hungary's internal affairs. He blamed the United States primarily for influencing the Assembly, which was then about to adopt a resolution condemning Russian intervention in the anti-Soviet Hungarian revolt.

Nepszabadsag said the delegation will be headed by Endre Sik who remained in New York.

The newspaper estimated foreign aid received after the rebellion at 63 million dollars. It stressed contributions by Russia and Red China but also mentioned 20 million dollars received from the United States and aid from West Germany and Finland.

"The newspaper apparently referred to relief contributions, including Red Cross aid."

Nepszabadsag announced a new 50-million-dollar loan by Russia to Premier Janos Kadar's government, which needs much more help to rebuild the revolt-shattered economy.

The paper said other East European countries in the Communist bloc have promised help and that "there have been preliminary talks also with certain capitalist countries, and we have already contacted some others."

It expressed hope that "Western countries also will contribute substantial loans to alleviate our economic difficulties."

Some economists say it will take 400 million dollars in hard currency to put Hungary back on its feet. The government is reported to feel it must seek much of the necessary aid from the West because most of the East European Communist countries are having their own difficulties.

Nepszabadsag said the 50 million dollars was in currencies which could be used to buy materials in the West. It indicated Russia may have also provided additional aid in rubles.

Meanwhile, unemployment mounted steadily. Lagging coal production is at the heart of Hungary's crippled economy, and it has been speculated many of the thousands of factory workers on forced layoffs may be put to work in the mines.

U. S. aid to Hungary appeared unlikely as long as the Russian-imposed Kadar government remains in power. Dispatches from Budapest last week reported Kadar hoped to get a 100-million-dollar loan from the World Bank, but the bank's president, Eugene Black, said Hungary was not a member and therefore had no chance of getting a loan.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference Nov. 29 there was not yet satisfactory evidence that American aid to Kadar's government would be profitable.

Expects Suez To Be Open In May

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler estimates his U. N. salvage fleet will open a small channel through the Suez Canal by early March and clear a passage for ships of all sizes in May.

It will be up to the Egyptian government when ships actually start going through the vital east-west waterway, said Wheeler, the U. S. expert in charge of canal clearance for the United Nations.

U.N.-chartered salvage vessels started clearing the southern end of the waterway Saturday. U. N. salvage work at the uncleared part of the northern end was to start today.

Wheeler said the job would be completed "at full speed in cooperation with Egyptian authorities."

The channel to be cleared in March, he said, will be big enough for ships of 25-foot draft. That would include tankers and other craft of roughly 10,000 tons.

Sometime in May, Wheeler said, the U. N. fleet expects to clear the 103-mile canal to its full depth of 34 feet 3 inches, enabling all ships have never been able to use the canal.

"When I finish my job," Wheeler said, "I'll simply tell the Egyptian government the canal now can accommodate shipping traffic. What the Egyptian government does after that is myt my affair."

Dulles Outlining Mid-East Plans

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles says U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today to explain the Eisenhower administration's new economic-military plan to checkmate Soviet expansion in the Middle East.

Dulles was expected to explain the U. S. plan at a luncheon conference with Hammarskjold. He planned to emphasize that the sole objective is to block any Soviet attack or subversion in the strategically vital Middle East and not to undercut U. N. efforts to establish a permanent Arab-Israeli peace there and reopen the Suez Canal.

This was the outline of the far-reaching American plan reported from Washington.

President Eisenhower wants Congress to give him standby authority to use U. S. troops if he considers it necessary to oppose any Soviet aggression in the Middle East. Official sources say there is no intention of sending American troops into the tense area at present.

On the economic side, the administration wants 400 million dollars to allocate over two years to Middle Eastern — Mediterranean countries from Gibraltar to the Arabian Sea. Once these countries have sought such aid, Eisenhower would decide how much each should receive.

Washington reportedly believes the U. N. could not cope with direct Soviet aggression in the Middle East.

Warm, wet weather just before the recent cold snap probably accounted for the buildup in atmospheric radioactivity, Dr. Menius said. He explained that muggy weather conditions could have prevented radioactive gases given off by the earth from being dissipated into the atmosphere.

ASEC scientists, consulted when tests revealed higher atmospheric radioactivity measurements, said the increase was "nothing to get concerned about," Dr. Menius reported.

Payroll Up

RALEIGH (AP) — Recent wage increases in the North Carolina textile industry have amounted to a payroll increase of some 36 million dollars annually.

Based on the current average wage in all Tar Heel manufacturing plants of about $2.82 per year, this is equivalent to more than 12,000 new jobs, according to State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane.

Crane pointed out that the average hourly wage for the state's 227,000 textile workers rose eight cents an hour of 6 per cent over the period from September to November. It was during this period that the voluntary and negotiated wage hikes were granted. The average was $1.38 an hour in September, $1.38 in October, and $1.42 in November.

Nine-Room Rural Home Lost In Fire

A nine-room rural farm home was destroyed by fire which was discovered shortly before 6 p.m. Saturday night.

The dwelling, which was unoccupied, was owned by Lonnie Staton of Greenville.

Staton said a tenant had just completed moving from the house Saturday morning. There was no furniture in the house.

The blaze apparently started in the upper portion of the dwelling. Greenville firemen who were called to the scene said the house was burning upstairs and in the front when they arrived at the scene. However, the flames soon engulfed the entire dwelling.

High winds and freezing temperatures hampered fire fighters in their efforts to prevent the spread of the fire. Winds sent sparks showering over nearby fields and hedges along the lane leading to the dwelling. However, the bushes and brush in the area did not catch fire. The firemen were unable to save any portion of the house.

Staton's daughter who lives nearby called firemen to the scene. Staton said the loss was partially insured.

Shortly after noon Saturday local firemen were called to a house at 115 E. Evans St. occupied by Ernest Adams. The firefighters reported that fire was found in the ceiling over a stove in the hall.

Still Dragging For 2 Victims

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — Searching crews continued to drag Roanoke Rapids Lake today for a brother and sister missing since a sailboat accident last Friday.

Swain Loy, 23, and his sister, Suzanne, 16, failed to return from an outing Friday afternoon. The sailboat was recovered Friday night.

The nine-mile long lake, which has a circumference of 45 miles, has been lowered around 10 feet by the Virginia Electric & Power Co. to help in searching for the missing pair.

Loy, a Davidson College graduate and a student at Union Theological Seminary, and his wife were visiting his parents at Roanoke Rapids over the holidays.

Round-Up Three Dozen In Raids

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County ABC liquor enforcement officers rounded up almost three dozen men and women over the weekend in pre-New Year's raids on alleged bootleggers.

Henry C. Severs, chief enforcement officer, said his men were aided by two months of undercover work by agents of the state ABC system.

He said the state agents bought liquor from bootleggers here, and recorded names and addresses.

Most of the defendants were released on bond for hearings early in the new year.

Abandonment Is Charged Mother

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Bertha Hardy, 20, was docketed for a hearing in Recorder's Court here today on charges of abandoning her two infant sons.

The boys, aged 15 and 30 months, were found in an unheated shack Dec. 16. Authorities said they had been left there two days before by their mother. Her husband's by a previous marriage. Police said the older children apparently left the youngsters after staying with them one day, and went to a relative's home.

Welfare authorities placed the tots in a foster home at Dobson.

Tuskegee Institute Describes Adjustments To Desegregation

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — Southerners during 1956 "began to deal with the practical task of adjusting public activities to the principle of nonsegregation," according to Tuskegee Institute.

In its 43rd annual report on developments in race relations, the Negro school said, "There was deep South resistance to any change" of segregation patterns. Across the nation, however, "Citizens of almost every community refused to respond for long or in large numbers to inflammatory appeals or to incitement to violence."

The report released by Dr. L. H. Foster, Tuskegee president, said the school's progress toward the democratic ideal.

It said this was based on "repeated court decisions" and "the emergence also of a national conscience sensitive to human rights for all American citizens."

But, "Support for the principle of nonsegregation is now delayed in many quarters because of uncertainties and misunderstandings which surround the task of implementation." Full participation of all citizens in community activities was urged.

"Intricate political maneuvers and sharply contested legal actions were numerous" during 1956. "Opponents of change showed a determination to preserve segregation in several situations where legal recourse did not serve their purposes."

The 14-page report said "there were instances of violence and economic pressure intended to maintain long-standing relationships based on the assignment of racial status to citizens."

"Despite their claim generally to be law abiding, some organizations sought to intimidate, to persecute and to promote violence against Negro and white exponents of democracy." The report did not name the organizations.

Later, it said, "The most aggressive organization for the preservation of segregation was the white Citizens Council (which was) declaring itself committed to the use of legal means of pressure and intimidation."

"Inflammatory appeals, violence and public demonstrations designed to intimidate occurred mainly in communities whose public officials apparently condoned them. These did not take place, or were promptly suppressed, in communities whose public officials discouraged them."

The report said that atomic energy installations have provided more jobs for Negroes at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and at the Savannah River plant in Georgia and South Carolina.

Under transportation, Tuskegee said at least 18 cities in seven states have voluntarily conformed to an ICC anti-segregation ruling on interstate trains and buses, and in waiting rooms. It listed the states as Texas, Virginia, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and North Carolina.

Court Upholds School Desegregation Deadline

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld lower court rulings that directed Arlington and Charlottesville to desegregate their schools by specified deadlines.

An opinion by Chief Judge John J. Parker affirmed the District Court decisions and was concurred in by the other two judges, Morris A. Soper and Simon E. Sobeloff.

"The decrees here are not harsh or unreasonable but merely require that the law be observed and discriminating on the ground of race be eliminated," the opinion said.

Last July 12 in Charlottesville, Dist. Judge John Paul ordered the City School Board to begin desegregation at the beginning of the 1956 fall term. The board appealed and Paul held up enforcement of his order.

Nineteen days later in Alexandria, Dist. Judge Albert V. Bryan ordered the Arlington County School Board to begin desegregation in elementary schools by Jan. 31. He set a fall, 1957, deadline for ending segregation in junior and senior high schools.

Today's decision did not rule on the constitutionality of Virginia's new anti-integration program passed by a special session of the Legislature. It noted that a new pupil placement law had not become effective at the time the cases were decided by the lower courts.

"The Arlington decree expressly states that local rules as to assignment to classes so long as such rules are not based on race or color are to be observed," the opinion said, "and that administrative remedies for admission to schools must be exhausted before application is made to the state — even in those areas with sparse Negro populations."

"While the Charlottesville decree does not contain this express provision, the provision is so eminently reasonable that we may safely assume that enforcement of that decree will not proceed upon different principles. As much was indicated by the judge in this regard denying the motion to dismiss."

At present there are no integrated public schools in Virginia. A recent special session of the Legislature passed a number of new laws aimed at preserving segregation and with the idea of preventing any integration in the state — even in those areas with sparse Negro populations.

Today's ruling was the outcome of suits brought by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Greet The New Year With Snack.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
START OFF THE NEW YEAR with a new-old recipe. It's elegant to serve to friends on New Year's Eve, and to use for other evening parties and afternoon-coffees the whole year through.

This snack-toasted mushroom rolls—was a specialty of our family's house when we were very young. The memory of its delicious flavor and texture has lingered all these years—and recently when we made and tasted it again, we weren't one whit disappointed.

One reason the mushroom rolls were a company favorite in our family was that they could be made well ahead and refrigerated. We can still remember the pattern of the linen tea towel—dampened and wrung out—that was always carefully placed over them to keep them fresh! Just before the rolls were to be served, they were toasted in the oven or under the broiler.

Along with the mushroom rolls, you might serve cheese straws. In our mother's kitchen the straws were always prepared from extra pie dough sprinkled with grated cheddar cheese and paprika. That is still a good way though nowadays a prepared mix is likely to be used for the pastry. If you do use a mix enrich it by cutting in a little butter or margarine when you empty it from the package; or use cream instead of water to moisten the mix.

Should you want to have a cheese spread on hand, we suggest using an excellent combination we tasted recently: Roquefort cheese mixed with butter and minced walnuts. If you have one of the French rotary nut graters, be sure to use it for mincing the nuts. This mixture is delectable with crackers or rounds of crusty French rolls as well as with slices of fresh apple or pears.

TOASTED MUSHROOM ROLLS
Ingredients: 1/2 pound mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon curry powder, 1-4 teaspoon onion powder, pepper, 12 to 14 thin slices bread, extra butter.

Method: Wipe mushrooms with damp cloth; with a sharp knife, chop both caps and stems fine. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a 9- or 10-inch skillet; add chopped mushrooms; sprinkle with lemon juice, salt, curry powder, onion powder and pepper to taste. Cook quickly until wilted, about five minutes, and stir several times; very little juice should collect in pan. Remove crusts from bread; roll each slice well with a rolling pin to flatten; this technique prevents bread from breaking when it is being made into a roll. Lightly spread one side of each slice of bread with extra soft butter. Spread about one tablespoon of the mushroom mixture over each side of bread slice. Roll up each slice as for a jelly roll. (Ends of rolls may be fastened with wooden picks although we do not find this necessary if seam side of bread slice, after it is rolled, is rested on baking sheet.) Brush rolls lightly, on all sides, with melted extra butter or spread lightly with very soft butter. Place rolls on baking sheet, leaving a little space between each. (A baking sheet—or jelly-roll pan—that is about 9 by 13 by 1 inches across the top will hold the number of rolls made by this recipe.) Bake in hot (425 degrees) oven about 10 minutes or until browned. Turn rolls halfway through baking period if bottoms are browning faster than tops. Serve at once while very hot.
Note: Firm compact slices of bread, each about 3-8 inch thick, are fine for this recipe.

North...Or South?

FOR SNOW FANS... Right for any winter sport is this imported laden cloth jacket from Bavaria, lined in poplin, with attached hood and little zippered pocket on the sleeve.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
January vacations no longer are the exclusive province of the upper income brackets. Nowadays working girls are as numerous as the idle rich at fashionable winter resorts, north or south.

They may choose a week of winter sports in a northern ski lodge or a session of sun-tanning on a warm southern beach. Which ever their choice, there are new clothes to fit the locale.

The Austrian Tyrol inspires some of the season's smartest winter sports outfits, such as a new jacket of sturdy white loden cloth lined in black poplin and reversible. After the ski vacation it can do duty back home with the station wagon set.

The newest bathing suits this year have a covered-up look, with higher necklines and wider shoulder straps—some even have cap sleeves. They're likely to be one-piece and streamlined, with plenty of inner construction to keep the figure under control. Knits also are news in the bathing suit line-up, and come in cotton, wool, orlon or nylon, in clear porcelain colors, checks or stripes.

Method: Sift flour and sugar together into a mixing bowl. Add butter and work it in with tips of fingers or pastry blender. Mix slightly beaten egg, milk and vanilla; stir into flour mixture. Mix well to form a dough. Shape into 1-2 inch balls; chill before shaping if desired or necessary. Place balls 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Flatten to 1-1/2 inch thickness with the bottom of a glass covered with a damp cloth. Bake in hot (400 degrees) oven 6 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned around edges. Do not bake too brown. Remove with spatula to wire rack to cool. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about five dozen.

Children's Bureau Head To Keep On Working

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP)—It's time to take a searching look at "the way of life of all children," not just the delinquents or the disabled, says Dr. Martha M. Eliot, departing chief of the U. S. Children's Bureau.

Dr. Eliot, whose resignation takes effect tomorrow, feels it is necessary to know the general conditions of life under which children are growing up in all sorts of communities.

"What is happening in their day-to-day existence?" she wants to know. "What are things that make for a satisfactory environment that will assure their growing up to be well adjusted people?"

A nationwide research project is needed in the cities, the suburbs and the rural areas, says this gray-haired, gray-eyed woman of 66, who has devoted her life to the care of children.

Dr. Eliot is leaving the Children's Bureau after an association of more than 30 years that has left "roots so deep I can't get them out."

She says she's close to Civil Service mandatory retirement age and its a good idea to have a new chief "with a fresh look." But she's not retiring at all from her cause, because she will be professor of maternal and child health at Harvard University's school of public health.

Dr. Eliot, who is a cousin of poet T. S. Eliot, plans "to approach children's problems from a new angle" and maybe get a chance to think. That's one of the problems she found as chief of the Children's Bureau for more than five years. "No chance to think."

Although Dr. Eliot's plans to resign were announced early in November, no successor has yet been named. It appears an acting chief may serve for a time.

The Children's Bureau was founded in 1912, Dr. Eliot said, to analyze and report on all matters of child life. It naturally took a look first at the worst problems — infant mortality, the handicapped, the crippled and the destitute.

But now, looking ahead, Dr. Eliot would like to see the Children's Bureau push forward a research program "to find a way to help children grow up as normal as possible" in the face of national and international problems that create tensions and problems in the lives of families and communities.

Contemplated Mid-East Program Is Still Dubious

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — It still isn't clear whether the new program for the Middle East, which the Eisenhower administration has leaked to newsmen, is really a program at all or only a substitute for one.

It's worth noting that until after President Eisenhower's address to Congress tomorrow, the program is in some detail to Congress in January.

For months the administration — except for its opposition to the British-French attack on Egypt — seems to have had no policy for coping with the growing unrest and deterioration in the Middle East.

The British and French were discredited by their Egyptian adventure. It has been claimed that unless the United States asserts some leadership in the Middle East, it will be saturated by the influence of Russian communism.

Whether the program now being talked of by the administration is the answer — or just a gesture or a stopgap until it can think of something better — remains to be seen.

First news of the plan was leaked by the administration last week. This is one way to test both public and congressional reaction before the program is offered to Congress for approval.

It calls for two things:

1. Four hundred million dollars in aid for the Middle East, including both Arab nations and Israel during the next two years.
2. Approval by Congress before hand — standby authority for the President to use American armed forces if he deems it necessary, to stop Russian aggression in the Middle East.

That standby authority might serve to discourage the Russians from an armed attack in the area. It might also be only a gesture without any practical meaning.

There's no indication the Russians have any intention of using armed force in the Middle East. The danger from communism in the area appears to be more from subversion than from invasion.

What would Eisenhower do with his standby authority if, for instance, instead of conquest of Syria by Russian attack, Syrian Communists took over by a revolt entirely within the country?

The idea of giving the Middle East 400 million dollars in aid certainly shows American interest in the area. But this, too, raises basic questions.

For instance, is the money to be shoveled out to any Arab nation which might want it — like President Nasser's Egypt — or will it be given only with some assurance it will bring cooperation with the West?

Aid alone is hardly a program unless there is fairly solid reason for believing it will stop Communist infiltration.

'Earthy Story' Is Biggest Lie

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — An "earthy" story of hogs who were doomed to death by sticky soil today won Albert B. Hopkins of Madison, Wis., the title of World Champion Liar of 1956.

The Burlington Liar's Club selected Hopkins' tale of hogs' tails from a collection of varied fabrications in its annual contest.

Hopkins, 49-year-old electro-plate worker, won the club's "gold plated diamond studded" medal for relating:

"Out in South Dakota they have a clay-like soil they call gumbo. The gumbo soil is smooth and hard as glass when dry, but when wet the gumbo balls up under the fenders until it locks the wheels on a car.

"Last year, during a wet spell, a farmer's hogs got a little ball of gumbo on their tails. As they walked around it got bigger and bigger until the weight of it pulled their skin back so tight they could not get their eyes shut — and they died from lack of sleep."

Hopkins succeeds Claude Yerkes of Kalispell, Mont., winner of the 1955 championship for his fib of a sheepherder who hung a 100-pound sack of flour on nails outside his trailer only to discover that fierce winds blew the sack away and left the flour hanging on the nails.

More Are Flying Flags Of Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — More and more Americans are proudly displaying flags that have flown over the U. S. Capitol.

In 1956 about 4,000 national banners were hoisted, flown for a time, then hauled down and sent to persons in various parts of the country.

The flags are flown at the request of a Congress member who usually is fulfilling the wishes of a constituent, a school or some civic or patriotic group back home.

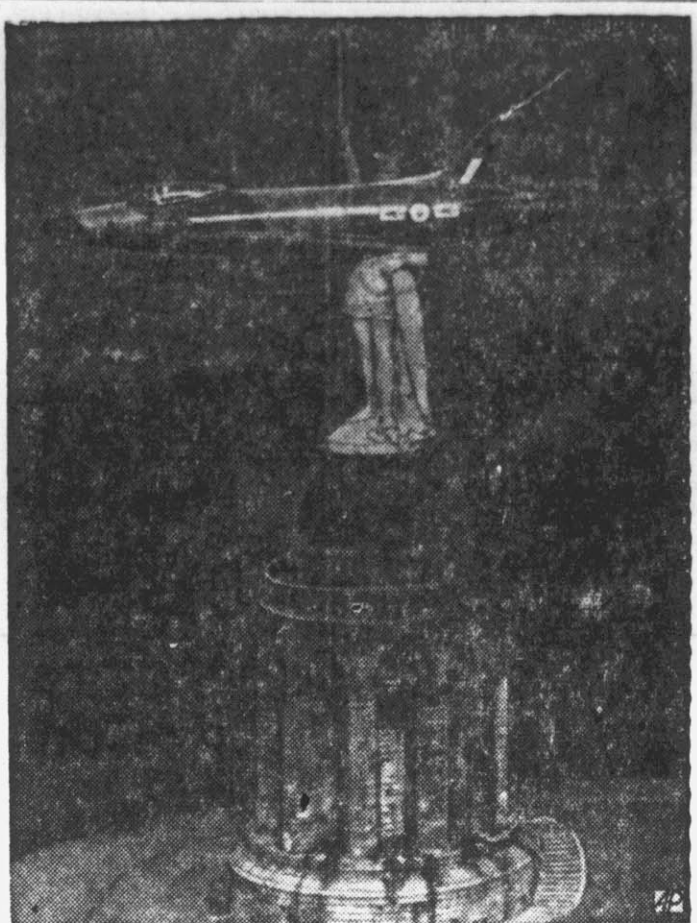

The flags are not provided free. The person or group requesting them usually pays the cost. Sometimes the congressman foots the bill. A banner measuring 5 by 8 feet costs $6.50.

This has been one of the busiest years of the Pope's reign, and the 80-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church enjoyed his best health in several years.

He delivered more than 200 major speeches and addressed climaxed by his Christmas message to the world.

Bibles Placed In Waiting Rooms

By RENE CAPPON
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Instead of thumbing through old magazines, visitors to quite a few Connecticut manufacturing plants may be found reading the Bible while waiting for their business appointments.

More and more concerns are placing Scriptures in their reception rooms, thanks to a program sponsored by the Assn. of Connecticut Manufacturers.

The project was conceived at the association's annual meeting last fall, as one answer to the question of how industry could effectively contribute to community leadership.

Since then more than 400 Bibles have been furnished to reception rooms through the state. The books are provided by the Connecticut members of Gideons International, whose Bibles are found in virtually every hotel room.

Albert S. Redway, president of the group, said today comments had been universally favorable. "A lot of people told us they had whiled away their waiting time going through old periodicals, and are glad that now they have something worthwhile to read," he reported.

Outlaws Attack Police Barracks

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Raiders from the outlawed Irish Republican Army attacked a police barracks near the border last night, killing 22-year-old Constable John Scally with a shot in the back.

The raiders blew in the front door of the barracks with a bomb. After an exchange of rifle fire, all apparently escaped over the border into the Irish Republic, six miles away.

The I.R.A. demands the merger of British-ruled Northern Ireland (Ulster) and the Irish Republic.

Socialite Killed By Wasp's Sting

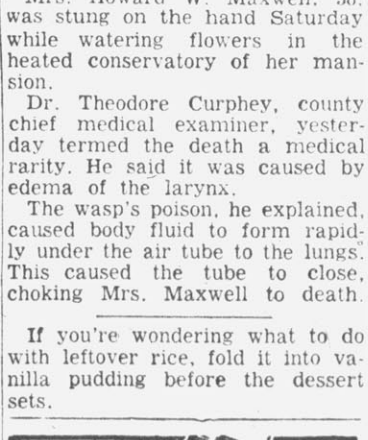

LOCUST VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — A wealthy socialite collapsed and died a few minutes after she was stung by a wasp.

Mrs. Howard W. Maxwell, 58, was stung on the hand Saturday while watering flowers in the heated conservatory of her mansion.

Dr. Theodore Curphey, county chief medical examiner, yesterday termed the death a medical rarity. He said it was caused by edema of the larynx.

The wasp's poison, he explained, caused body fluid to form rapidly under the air tube to the lungs. This caused the tube to close, choking Mrs. Maxwell to death.

If you're wondering what to do with leftover rice, fold it into vanilla pudding before the dessert sets.

Marriage Licenses

The Register of Deeds marriage license section eased within breathing distance of its 1955 record by issuing four licenses Friday.

Friday's total sent the number of licenses issued since last January 1 to 513. The 1955 figure stood at 516 when the year closed.

Licenses issued Friday were all to Negro couples. They went to Charles L. Ward and Maudie Corndia Austin, both of Greenville; Ruben Andrews Jr. and Kehran Tyson, both of Greenville; Theodore Patrick, Route 1, Greenville; and Reba Wilson, Winterville; and Jimmie Lee Epps, Newark, N.J., and Shelby Jean Bacton, Farmville.

Bootleg Liquor Found In Apron

ABC officers, who seldom express surprise at the places in which they find illegal liquor, raised their eyebrows Saturday night.

The officers took into custody Hattie Allen, Negro, of 512 W. 12th St. The woman was taken to Greenville police station where she was searched by Policewoman Mrs. Odell Owens.

Underneath the Allen woman's clothing the policeman found a canvas apron with a pint of bootleg liquor in one of the pockets.

Officers charged the Allen woman with possession of bootleg liquor for purpose of sale.

Also Saturday night officers arrested Jose Atkinson, Negro, of 812 Fleming St., for possession of non-tax-paid liquor for purpose of sale. Atkinson was released under $300 bond. He will be tried in City Court.

Assisting the ABC officers in the arrests was Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crandall.

Threw Stone At Famed Mona Lisa

PARIS (AP) — The Louvre says only slight damage was done by a Bolivian who hurled a stone at one of the world's most famous paintings, Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa.

The attack was made by Hugo Unzuaga Villegas, 42, who had been living in a Salvation Army shelter. He said he "had a stone in my pocket and suddenly decided to throw it."

The rock shattered the glass protecting the painting and chipped some paint from the figure's elbow. The museum said the damage "can be repaired easily."

Unzuaga Villegas was charged with defacing public property and violating the law limiting alien residence in France.

Wan gave his views yesterday on a television program.

NAACP Detours Louisiana Fight; Accepts Old Law

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.
BATON ROUGE (AP) — The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People today sidetracked a court battle for its life in Louisiana and moved to comply with an old law first used against the Ku Klux Klan.

The changing tactics came just before today's deadline for filing 1956 membership lists with the secretary of state, as required under the 1924 law.

Previously, the NAACP complained such a list would subject its members to economic pressure and possibly even personal violence.

No explanation was given for the reversal. However, it could end a lengthy court fight which the NAACP had no assurance it could win.

The anti-segregation group has been under state court ban since last March.

Last month, a state Appeals Court ruled it could not consider an appeal of the state injunction, since the case was switched to a federal court before the order was handed down.

NAACP Atty. A. P. Tureaud said this nullified the injunction and the New Orleans branch held at least one meeting.

But Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said the injunction still was in effect and on Dec. 18 warned the NAACP state president, A. J.

Shooting Began Over Argument On Muffler

BURNSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An argument over a faulty muffler apparently sparked the shooting early today of Burnsville's police chief and the youthful motorist he had threatened to jail.

Yancey Sheriff Terry Hall identified the two men as Police Chief Ralph Peterson, 52, and Eugene Proffitt, 20, of Burnsville, R. I.

Both were in critical condition at an Asheville hospital today.

Hall said that Peterson was shot in the chest with 22 caliber bullets and that Proffitt suffered a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head.

The shooting took place on the public square here shortly after midnight, and according to Hall, followed a trivial incident in which the police chief cautioned Proffitt about a noisy muffler.

Hall quoted Proffitt as saying he shot several times at Peterson, following the argument and then attempted to take his own life.

Hall quoted Proffitt as saying that Peterson walked up to his car parked on the square and complained about the muffler.

The chief then was said to have asked Proffitt, "Do you want me to take you to jail?"

When the chief reached into the car, Proffitt told Hall, that "I let him have it. I don't know how many times I shot. Then I shot myself twice. I missed the first time, the bullet glancing over the top of my head." Proffitt was quoted by the sheriff.

Tiny Saarland Will Return To Germany At Midnight Tonight

By RICHARD O'REGAN
SAARBRUECKEN (AP) — The tiny Saarland, battered and bickered over by France and Germany for 250 years, returns to Germany at midnight tonight.

The Saar, its million people and its great wealth of coal, becomes West Germany's 10th state under French-German agreement.

The Saarlanders, German in language and culture, forced a settlement when they refused a year ago to "Europeanize" their land.

German and French government leaders say the truce — in which Germany made important concessions to France — ends centuries of strife.

At least for the present, France and Germany have settled the last of their major problems arising from World War II.

The West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, will formally welcome into Germany the 990-square mile Saarland — smaller than Rhode Island — in ceremonies here at noon tomorrow.

Bonfires will burn atop the Saarland's hills. However, there will be none of the Nazi-led, French - hating demonstrations that marked the Saar's return to Higher Germany in 1935.

In ceremonies in Saarbruecken's city theater—built by Hitler—the "Fuehrer's box" will be shunned by French and German officials. They will sit in the front row.

The Saarland had no real political or economic entity of its own until World War I ended. Before that it was divided among various German principalities.

Control of the wooded area used to be disputed for strategic reasons. Whoever held the Saar had a gateway to France. It was conquered by the French in the Napoleonic wars. After Napoleon's defeat part of it was returned to Prussia and part to Bavaria.

In 1918 it was reclaimed by France but was detached from Germany and placed under the League of Nations for 15 years.

By this time, the struggle was for its coal and steel.

In 1935, Saarlanders voted 90 per cent to join Hitler's Reich. They bet on the wrong horse. On Hitler's defeat the French occupied the Saarland again, with American and British approval.

And the Saarland's coal and its steel went chiefly to the French economy.

In 1947 the French gave the Saarlanders political autonomy. By 1952, it was clear this was not the solution. In three years of negotiations, the French and Germans agreed to have a neutral commissioner run it under the Western European Union. Adenauer risked his political future to support the idea.

Slender Chance Saved His Life

DENVER (AP) — Because he left a living room chair to get a cigarette, Charles R. Berry escaped injury last night when a car crashed into his home.

The driver, Paul V. Workman, said his car went out of control when the brakes locked on a curve.

"I'm just glad I smoke," said Berry as he surveyed the wrecked living room. "If I hadn't gone into the kitchen to get a cigarette, I'd be dead now."

Medically Speaking, Pitt Now A Leader

Pitt County's progress toward becoming a medical center for this section of Eastern North Carolina has been both a source of satisfaction and a stimulus for greater effort during the past half decade.

Already attracting attention as a medical center in this area, the county has a great deal to do before it can be assured of undisputed claim to the title. If efforts and progress in recent years can be taken as a barometer of what will be done in the years ahead, the county need not fear that another community will overtake it.

Erection of Pitt Memorial Hospital was the first major step in the county's current bid to become a medical center. Since the hospital has become a reality, its facilities have been a major factor in attracting to Pitt additional physicians to afford better medical care for the people of this county and those from other counties who look in Pitt's direction for treatment. More recently the Mental Health Clinic, which is destined to serve the entire area of Eastern North Carolina, has added to Pitt's importance as a medical center.

If the remarkable rate of progress is to continue, however, there are needs which must be filled in the near future.

Efforts are now underway to obtain state funds for construction of a wing to the local Health Center to provide adequate facilities for the Mental Health Clinic which in less than a year has been called on for considerably more service than was anticipated. Citizens of the county in the next few months must use their influence to impress upon state officials and members of the General Assembly the importance of this mental health work not only to Pitt, but to surrounding counties as well.

There is another matter which can not be ignored indefinitely. That is the matter of providing more beds at Pitt Memorial Hospital. In recent months recommendations have been made that the county give early consideration to enlarging the hospital in order that it might take care of increasing numbers of patients. Even now there are times when the hospital lacks adequate rooms to take care of patients who come for medical attention. Unless concrete steps are taken in the near future to provide additional space, the hospital cannot hope to keep pace with the demands being made upon it.

Not just Pitt County, but all of Eastern North Carolina is faced with an increasingly critical shortage of nurses to man hospitals, clinics and physicians' offices. Here again efforts are being made to alleviate the shortage by providing for the training of additional nurses through a state-supported school of nursing in conjunction with East Carolina College.

Pitt, which already has taken the lead medically in this part of the state, is the logical location for the school of nursing because of its fine hospital facilities and the fact that East Carolina College is located here. Again, the answer to filling the need lies with members of the General Assembly who gather in Raleigh in February.

Whether or not the school of nursing becomes a reality will depend largely upon the efforts put forth by the people of this and other counties to impress upon state officials the desperate need for it.

Medically, Pitt County has come a long way during the past half decade. But this is no time for the county to sit back and rest on its laurels. Fruits of efforts of the past should serve to spur greater efforts in the future to make Pitt a more significant medical center for Eastern North Carolina.

Electricity Has Made Changes On The Farm

REA has become a familiar term across the United States in the past two decades, and like many other of the alphabet programs which grew out of the New Deal, it has come to mean much more than letters.

From a relatively small beginning 21 years ago, Rural Electrification funds loaned by the federal government have provided generating plants and power lines which carry electricity to more than 4,357,000 rural customers in all parts of the United States. In the past year alone the number of customers on REA power lines has increased by more than 100,000 and the amount of electricity consumed by REA customers has increased 15 per cent over 1955 figures.

In the mid-1930s the number of farms which had advantages of electric power was extremely small. Today, through the vast expansion of private power companies into rural areas and through lines constructed by use of REA funds, considerably less than 10 per cent of the farms in the United States do not have electricity. From its earlier purpose of lighting farm homes, electricity in rural areas has been harnessed to perform many major tasks outside the home on the farm. During 1956 alone the average consumption of each rural electric customer increased 12 per cent.

From this readily available source of energy, life in rural areas has been put on a par with that in urban areas which enjoyed the convenience of electricity for years before it was available in rural areas.

Wishes For The New Year

HAPPY NEW YEAR — In the age-honored tradition of the season your reporter covets the privilege of prefacing some New Year good wishes with a brief personal resolution.

I resolve that during the year 1957 and those which follow, to do my sleeping in bed—not at the wheel of an automobile. Because of the generous kindness of so many people during the time when my own foolishness caused me to lie in bed for weeks without much sleep, I further resolve to be more considerate of the faults of others and to show more appreciation for their kindnesses.

Although my belief in Santa Claus is without reservation or evasion of mind, I also believe that for most part adults are responsible for their own condition. So—instead of writing a letter to Santa Claus in behalf of my grown-up friends, I extend to all and sundry of them the very best wishes for a happy and prosperous year.

For Governor Hodges a high degree of success in getting his reorganization and tax programs through the Legislature. Can't wish him full success, because that would run counter to the good wishes extended some of the other officials who will have their wings clipped by the new plan.

For Bill Saunders and his associates in Conservation and Development, more new industries locating in North Carolina, more vacationists using our recreational facilities, more trees planted on waste lands and fewer trees burned in useless forest fires.

For Charlie Carroll enough good teachers to man the classrooms, enough classrooms to accommodate the children, and a reasonable acceptance on part of teachers, pupils and parents of the ultimate potency of decisions by the United States Supreme Court.

For George Patton and his staff of assistant attorneys general continued success in maintaining State rights without defiance of judicial decrees.

For Ed Scheidt and all safety-minded people, and especially for operators of Motor vehicles, the devout wish that fewer people will die on the highways.

The two immediately preceding wishes include the hope the General Assembly will give enforcement officials more adequate tools with which to do the job expected of them.

For George Cherry the wish that the Legislature will furnish money for the additional offices plan.

Federal Highway Program Has Mounting Troubles In Store

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are troubles ahead for the Federal highway program. Biggest trouble is this: The $25 billion promised in the Highway Act, and the state spending necessitated, will buy fewer miles of highway than was expected when the act was voted six months ago.

Cement has gone up since then and is likely to go up further; steel has gone up and new rises are expected early next year and again later when the automobile pay increases becomes effective, and wages have gone up and will go up.

Other troubles: In many states disputes over which areas, or whether cities or rural districts, should get first consideration are slowing project planning. The vast amount of condemnation necessary for so much construction threatens lengthy legal tie-ups. More highways will intensify parking problems in cities into which they feed and there is no provision in the Highway Act for parking lots. And to share in Federal funds, states must put up money which can be borrowed now only at high rates of interest — which will make projects more costly than anticipated and which will discourage many state governments.

Here are some more predictions, based on analyses of developing business trends:

PLASTICS AND PREMIUMS
Soon you may buy a bag of soup or a bag of steel. Or of baked pork and beans. The plastics industry is working hard to develop a low-cost plastic film that will withstand sterilizing temperatures. Then it will give the can and bottle industries exciting competition. Food — almost any kind now packaged in cans or bottles, may then be cooked and placed in plastic bags; the bags may be electronically sealed and the contents sterilized with heat. Before serving, the food can be heated by putting the bag in boiling water. And perhaps within the next decade food so packaged can be sterilized with atomic rays.

A dizzy whirl of premium offers lies ahead. The current trading stamp boom is symptomatic. Competition is rising faster than demand and an increasing number of merchandisers will seek to "buy" sales with premiums. If any sales slump occurs next year, use of premiums will soar even higher.

Synthetic fabrics will cost more. Prices of nylon, Dacron, and acetate fabrics have been raised and fabrics made of them are certain to go up followed, in turn, by raises in prices of garments made from them.

MORE FROZEN FRUIT, LESS PORK
Frozen food will be plentiful until fresh fruits come along. Processed holidays are at a record high, a quarter more than average.

Pork will cost more next year. Because of low prices, farmers are raising fewer hogs than last season; butchers are expected to be 3 per cent lower next year, which will produce higher prices.

The office equipment boom will get bigger. Sales were up 10 per cent this year and may rise another 10 per cent in 1957. The shortage of good office workers is forcing firms to mechanize wherever possible.

Industrial insurance may soon be simpler. Insurance companies are working on a new policy that will cover all property loss risks, thereby eliminating manufacturers' worries over whether they are protected against all hazards. It may be offered some time next year.

Liquor sales are due to sag. It has been no secret that prices of most brands are about to be boosted and restaurants, taverns and those consumers who can afford it have been stocking up.

SIGNIFICANT CLUES TO BUSINESS TRENDS
Leaders in the supermarket field expect competition to intensify in 1957, with consequent cuts in profits, according to a Supermarket News survey.

Demand for better jewelry rose sharply during the Christmas shopping season and many have set a new record. The Jewelry Industry Council reports.

Contract awards in November for future construction in the 27 states east of the Rockies were 6 per cent under the total for November, 1955, P. W. Dodge Corp. reports.

Macaroni sales this year will reach a new high total of more than 1 billion pounds, says the National Macaroni Institute.

It always requires the Buildings & Grounds Board to provide new agencies. Is it unreasonable to wish that this year the State may get that long overdue legislative and executive office building?

While wishing for money to provide necessary offices, let's add the wish that when the Legislature puts new duties on the secretary of state, the auditor and other accounting agencies, to the inspection services of many departments, it will also add enough to the appropriation to hire people to do the work.

For all recipients of pay checks from the State of North Carolina a boost in pay of more than ten per cent.

For President Bill Friday and the Consolidated University competent chancellors of Chapel Hill and Greensboro, revocation of penalties imposed on State College athletics, and winning teams all over. And for the people of North Carolina restoration of confidence and pride in the academic and athletic integrity of their educational institutions.

For the City of Raleigh a new city hall, for Wake county an adequate hospital, for Greensboro a coliseum.

For Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem the best airport in the Southeast, and for Eastern North Carolina a fine airport—whether located at Kinston, Rocky Mount or Walstonburg.

For displaced persons from the idled tobacco fields of Eastern Carolina, the drought-ravaged Southwest, oppressed Hungary or wherever, new job opportunities and homes.

For all the people in the world, especially in the United States and North Carolina, recognition that rights are inextricably paired with duties, and that obligations must be discharged before privileges can be enjoyed.

Finally, a negative wish. After all the good things have been desired for friends, we adopt the philosophy of Robert Burns who wished for "all the foes of Scotland's weal, a twelve month toothache". Or a broken back.

Oil and water mixed to produce the biggest news story of 1956.

More important than President Eisenhower's re-election, even more significant than the courageous but pathetic revolt against Russian rule in Hungary, was Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez waterway and the consequences that brought the jittery world peevishly close again to the brink of war.

Newspaper, radio and TV news editors, voting in the annual Associated Press poll to determine the 10 biggest stories of a big news year, unhesitatingly named the Middle East crisis number one. As the year drew to an end, the ancient land of the Pharaohs was the world's most explosive trouble center. England and France were politically and economically shaken. The strangeness of the world's two mightiest powers, the United States and Russia, was wider and more serious.

Four years after he engineered the bloodless coup that toppled the high-living King Farouk from his ancient throne, the 38-year-old Nasser set off the volatile world crisis by seizing the Suez canal, the most vital single lifeline of the British Empire. Unable to regain control of the canal by diplomatic and economic pressure, Britain and France suddenly decided to invade Egypt.

Swift Reaction
The reaction was swift and terrible, particularly for the British.

Babson Predicts Inflation, Higher Costs, Peace In '57

By ROGER W. BABSON

Both presidential candidates, in their pre-election speeches, promised PEACE, PROSPERITY, and PROGRESS. They stated that they must do this in order to enforce the Employment Act of 1946. This is the basis of my Outlook for 1957, tempered of course by Russia.

1. World War III will not start in 1957.

2. 1957 will witness gradually increasing inflation.

3. Manufacturers will be faced with higher costs for both materials and labor.

4. All businesses will be confronted by increased competition, both within their own industries and from other industries.

5. More advertising will be necessary in 1957 if profits of manufacturers and retailers are to equal those of 1956.

6. Failures will increase in 1957, both as to numbers and liabilities. Thousands of small concerns will be wiped out. One or two of the largest corporations will face bankruptcy or reorganization.

7. Cost of living will rise slightly during 1957.

8. Most labor unions will hesitate to make public fights for higher wages, but will work for shorter hours, pensions, and "fringes."

9. Europe must pay so much more for oil that it will have less money for purchasing other goods.

10. Unexpected events will occur during 1957; however, as a whole, business will remain fair, but with smaller profits.

MONEY OUTLOOK

11. As foreign countries must pay in gold or dollars for oil, their industries will be handicapped, unemployment will increase, and pressure for aid from the United States will be greater.

12. The Federal Reserve Board will not relax its restrictions so long as we have full employment in the United States; but if unemployment increases we may expect a relaxation. I am very glad Mr. Robert Cutler will again be Mr. Eisenhower's adviser.

13. Owing to the tremendous numbers of employees, suppliers, and retailers dependent upon the large corporations, these will be first to receive bank funds.

14. Many plans for expansions of plants by both big business and little business, will be postponed. Most corporations will find it difficult to get new short-term money at any price in quantity; while long-term financing will be too expensive.

15. Tight money will cause state, municipal, and town governments to postpone plans for building roads, schools, and hospitals except in cases where the Federal Government pays most of the costs. This will put a damper on many lines of business.

16. Owing to these increased money rates, state, municipal, and town bonds, although tax free, have been declining rapidly in price. Most financial advisers forecast much lower prices for such securities. It is possible that the postponement of such building plans may so diminish demand for such money that these non-taxable bonds will sell at higher prices before the year is out. This postponement may also reduce the price of steel and other materials.

17. The money managers for each corporation, large and small, will now arrange their financing needs for two years by either securing the necessary funds now or reducing their requests.

18. Prices of corporation bonds will not recover so quickly as the non-taxables. I forecast lower prices for most corporate bonds.

19. Many of the smaller and newer corporations will be much disappointed by their inability to secure funds during 1957, except by selling convertible preferred stocks on terms very favorable to investors. It is well to issue such securities when money rates are low because the advantages continue for many years; but when money is tight, as such securities then it up the borrower for a long number of years at high rates.

20. This means that 1957 will be a good year for investors to switch from low-yielding stocks to attractive bond issues.

REAL ESTATE OUTLOOK

21. Home building, corporate expansion, and municipal improvements will decline in 1957. Therefore, it will not be a good year for speculating in real estate.

22. Interest rates on mortgages will be higher in 1957. Loans not "federally" guaranteed will require larger margins.

23. Real estate in large cities will continue inactive with declining prices due to lack of parking facilities.

24. Suburban real estate will continue active, but fewer new houses will be built. Houses will be for sale by executives who have lost their well-paid jobs.

25. Purchasers will give more attention to the size of the lots than to the houses. Better locations can be secured by buying existing houses. Modern kitchens will become a "must."

26. Acreage near proposed shopping centers will be excellent for speculation. The automobile will continue to raise havoc with real estate prices, helping some locations and hurting others.

27. New inventions in connection with heating, lighting, and other features will make most older houses obsolete.

28. Large commercial farms will continue prosperous. Small farms on the fringes of cities will be more valuable. The outlying medium-sized farms will be both expensive to operate and hard to sell.

29. The nearness to schools, churches, stores, and bus routes will become a more important factor in the re-sale of homes.

30. Those wishing to own a well-located home to occupy will find 1957 a good year to buy or build; but a dangerous year for speculation.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK

31. It is foolish for anyone to now forecast the stock market for 1957. The Dow-Jones Industrial Average, now around 490, may decline to 400 or advance to 600 during 1957.

32. All investors will want "safety," but wise investors will first decide whether they also want "income" or "profit." Only by luck can you obtain all three features with certainty during 1957.

33. Investors can buy, during 1957, well-seasoned preferred stocks (preferably cumulative) which will give, with safety, a yield of near 6 per cent. I will gladly send, free of charge, a list of such to any reader so requesting.

34. During 1957 good utility stocks should be attractive for yield and marketability. The demand for electricity will continue to increase through 1957.

35. The above two recommendations apply to those in moderate income tax brackets. The investor in medium or high brackets will buy during 1957 non-taxable state, municipal, or town bonds carrying "full faith and credit." Taxes will gradually increase during 1957, and non-taxable bonds will be more in demand from wise investors.

36. I am not now prepared to advise readers who do not care for income, but only for profit. As above stated, the Dow-Jones Industrial Average may Approach, during 1957, either 400 or 600. It will be very easy to make a mistake by either buying or selling stocks at this time, except for intelligent switches. I am willing to say, however, that readers should not get panicky and sell their oils. Even Gulf Oil, which has the largest interests in the very rich Middle East fields, should not be sold.

37. All sensible investors will carry good bank balances and reserves during 1957 so as not to be caught, whatever happens.

38. There should be no panic in the stock market during 1957. Stocks will either fluctuate near their present levels or else will gradually slide downward or upward. It will be risky to borrow money to buy stocks in 1957; rather, one might sell stocks to get out of debt.

39. The way to make money in the stock market is: (1) Confine your purchases to the stocks of the leading companies in each industry. (2) Diversify moderately and do not try to pick out winners, remembering that, whether you buy or sell, some-

New Year's Eve Survival Tips, Or, Twelve Commandments

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — To most of America's 169 million people the greatest Cinderella second of the year is that tremulous moment at midnight on New Year's Eve.

We hope, however, the striking clock then will signal not so much the ashen death of our old dreams but herald the advent of a bright tomorrow when new and better dreams will come true.

But the problem is less how to enjoy New Year's Eve than to survive it.

Our intricate civilization has brought to this brief pinnacle of mass pleasure the danger of mass murder. It has become a task to see that new year out with fun—and yet be sure one has done nothing to keep one's self or one's friends from starting the new year alive and unbandaged.

Here are a few tips on how to get the most enjoyment mileage out of New Year's Eve with the least possible regret:

1. Remember, first of all, that we create most of our sorrows by pressing too hard for impossible joys.

2. Don't mix drinks of grape and grain and distilled apples and potatoes.

3. Remember that, although it is a time of teeter-totter — one year diving, another year being born, you should retain the detachment of a midwife; whatever happens, she keeps on living.

4. Don't mix drinks of grape and grain and distilled apples.

Middle East Voted Top News Of 1956

By PAUL R. MICKELSON

Associated Press General News Editor

Oil and water mixed to produce the biggest news story of 1956.

More important than President Eisenhower's re-election, even more significant than the courageous but pathetic revolt against Russian rule in Hungary, was Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez waterway and the consequences that brought the jittery world peevishly close again to the brink of war.

Newspaper, radio and TV news editors, voting in the annual Associated Press poll to determine the 10 biggest stories of a big news year, unhesitatingly named the Middle East crisis number one. As the year drew to an end, the ancient land of the Pharaohs was the world's most explosive trouble center. England and France were politically and economically shaken. The strangeness of the world's two mightiest powers, the United States and Russia, was wider and more serious.

Four years after he engineered the bloodless coup that toppled the high-living King Farouk from his ancient throne, the 38-year-old Nasser set off the volatile world crisis by seizing the Suez canal, the most vital single lifeline of the British Empire. Unable to regain control of the canal by diplomatic and economic pressure, Britain and France suddenly decided to invade Egypt.

Swift Reaction
The reaction was swift and terrible, particularly for the British.

World opinion, headed up by the United States in the United Nations, was against the invasion which had been buttressed by one by Israel. Russia threatened to send "volunteers" to aid Nasser. Then, almost as suddenly as they struck, the invaders bowed to world pressure and threats by withdrawing their forces. England was humiliated and economically wounded, its world influence at a new modern low.

Still standing—defiantly in control of the Suez canal that his forces had sabotaged so thoroughly that a severe oil shortage now plagued Europe—was an even mightier Dictator Nasser with a new-found "friend" in Russia.

Election Places Second
A presidential election, almost always the top story of the year, was second but it was a dull campaign and a landslide for Ike. The nation showed it liked Ike more in 1956 than in 1952. He rolled up a popular vote plurality of about 3 million votes over Adlai Stevenson and outscored him 457 to 74 in electoral votes, carrying even Louisiana.

Stevenson winning nine states—seven of them in the South—lost the election. The Democratic "solid south" to six states. Four years earlier, Eisenhower's electoral vote margin was 442 to 89, Stevenson winning nine states—seven of them in the South.

Only the pre-convention political activities gave the campaign zest. The doubt as to Eisenhower's availability due to his illnesses and the "dumb Nixon" campaign that Harold Stassen never got off the ground gave the Republican campaign its only real interesting moments. Likewise, Stevenson's winning campaign to wrest the Democratic nomination for the second time and Harry Truman's dramatic but ill-fated fight for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York were the true high spots of interest.

The second straight losing Democratic campaign was far from a total loss because of its victory in holding firm control of the House and Senate despite Ike's astonishing popularity.

Other top stories of 1956:

3. Hungary's revolt against Russian rule. The revolt began suddenly on Oct. 23 and freedom quivered and bloomed under Russian promises until Nov. 4 when the hammer and sickle fell. Betrayed and relentlessly crushed by their Russian masters, the Hungarian uprising for freedom flickered and fell as the world, including some of Russia's staunchest supporters, shuddered at the open brutality of the Kremlin's army. Hungarians by the thousands fled for freedom to free Europe and the United States. The big winner was the Western world which had all the indisputable evidence, it needed of Russian imperial colonialism. The inevitable loser was Russia, its tactics exposed for the world, especially its uneasy satellites, to see.

4. Racial integration. More Negroes than ever entered schools previously all-white but the ban against them was firm and unbroken in most regions of the Deep South. Disorders occurred at several places, including Clinton, Tenn.; Clay, Ky., and Mansfield, Tex., as the federal court continued making decisions favoring integration on every front from public schools to public buses.

5. Sinking of the Andrea Doria after collision with the Stockholm. This was one of the great epics of the sea. Modern communications and rescue methods held the death toll from the crash off Nantucket to about 50 dead and missing.

6. Airliners collide over the Grand Canyon. Two huge airliners became hurtling coffins for all 128 persons aboard in June by colliding in flight and crashing on adjacent peaks of Arizona's Grand Canyon. It was the worst commercial air disaster in history.

7. De-Stalinization. Russia's leaders started the world by exposing Joseph Stalin as a foe of free communism and the "new look" brought record numbers of American visitors and businessmen to Russia. But the look began to harden into another Stalin mask with the Hungarian "brutalities."

8. President Eisenhower's jetts operation. Stricken for the second time in less than a year, he recovered rapidly and went on to win re-election with apparent radiant health.

9. Polish riots. Not so severe or widespread as those in Hungary but apparently more successful.

10. The Parris Island "death march" and the court martial of Marine Sgt. Matthew McKeon.

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP)—The University of Mississippi walked out of the All-America City basketball tournament here last night to follow Mississippi State in quitting out-of-state tournaments because of Negro players on opposing teams.

The University of Mississippi was scheduled for a consolation game today against Iona College of New Rochelle, N.Y., a team which has one Negro player, guard Stanley Hill of New York City.

Mississippi State withdrew from the Evansville, Ind., invitational tournament a short time before it was to appear Saturday night in the championship game against Evansville.

State's withdrawal was ordered by Athletic Director C. R. Noble who telephoned Coach J. H. McCarty after reading news stories of the school's Friday night victory, 69-66, over the University of Denver, a team with two Negro forwards.

At Starkville, Miss., Noble said, "It's always been our policy that our teams would not compete against Negroes. That's traditional with our institution."

The action here followed a meeting of tournament officials at which the University of Mississippi was represented by the school's coach, B. (Bonnie) L. Graham.

Tournament Committee Chairman Gus E. Paris, a professor at Kentucky Wesleyan, the host school, announced, "We regret that the University of Mississippi must withdraw from the All-America City tournament. The tournament will continue with such adjustments as necessary."

Paris said the tournament committee, "has never denied any player the right to play because of race or color."

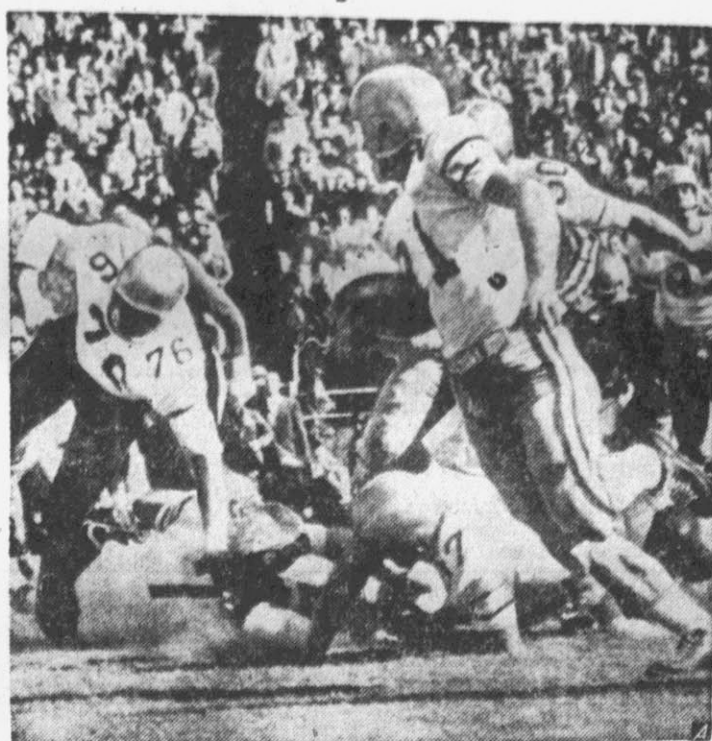

At Oxford, Miss., University of Mississippi Athletic Director C. M. (Tad) Smith said, "When we accepted the invitation to that tournament, it was with an understanding that there would be no Negroes in it."

Smith said he did not recall the name of the person who gave the assurance but said, "It was the tournament manager or director."

There was no comment on this from the officials here.

Noble said of the withdrawal at Evansville, "It's my understanding we didn't know beforehand that there would be Negroes in the tournament."

Intercepted Pass

Georgia Tech left halfback Paul Rotenberry (21) scoots around his teammates after intercepting a Pittsburgh pass in first quarter of Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 29. He went to the Pitt 29-yard line, to set up Tech's first touchdown. The Engineers won, 21-14, to down Pitt second year in a row in a bowl game, winning in the Sugar Bowl last year. (AP Wirephoto).

Almost A Touchdown

Jim Podoley (62), North back from Central Michigan, lets this touchdown pass slip through his fingers and fall into the end zone as he is pushed by South back Don Watson (17), of Texas A&M. Pass was thrown by Purdue's Lenny Dawson, not shown, in second quarter of North-South game in Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 29. Others are not identified. The North won the game, 14-0. (AP Wirephoto).

Blue Gridders Tounce Grays By 14-0 Tally

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—With assistance from abnormal Southern weather and a stout defensive line, the North backs outran the South for a 14-0 Blue-Gray football victory Saturday.

It was the coldest day of the month in Montgomery, with the thermometer at 47 degrees.

The acclimatized Yankees ran through their thinner-blooded Confederate opponents for 265 yards. The South made only 145 yards.

Don Vico of Ohio State accounted for 112 yards and one of the Northern touchdowns. He carried the ball 24 times. Quarterback Jimmy Hunter of Missouri, employing a frequently successful blocking play, racked up 76 yards in 22 carries.

North Coach Don Faurot of Missouri, directing the last game of a long career that included invention of the split-T formation, kept his team on the ground despite the presence of Purdue's ace passer, Lenny Dawson.

The other touchdown came after a 45-yard punt by Georgia's Lanier Roberts. Fumbling it momentarily, Jim Podoley of Central Michigan College got the ball and raced 80 yards to score. Both conversions were by Dawson.

Mackie Prickett of South Carolina quarterbacked the Gray team to the Blue 8 late in the game but two pass attempts failed. Jack Pardee of Texas A&M went 61 yards in eight carries to lead the South runners.

For the hard-pressed Rebel line, guard Ernest Danican of Auburn made 15 tackles and Tom Saidock of Michigan State was the outstanding North lineman.

Dixie Classic Produced Triumph, Trouble, Surprise

Giants Smash Bears In A 47-7 Rout For Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants were red hot and the Chicago Bears were frozen cold. That's the story of the 1956 National Football League championship playoff in a nutshell.

The Giants skipped over the frozen turf of Yankee Stadium in their white basketball shoes yesterday on the way to a shocking 47-7 victory over the Bears who went into the game three-point favorites.

Striking for a touchdown and field goal in the first five minutes, the Giants amassed a 34-7 halftime lead. The Bears, who had rallied to tie the Giants 17-17 in a regular season game, Nov. 25, never were able to get back into the ball game.

"They were up. We were down," said Paddy Driscoll, completing his first season as head coach of the Bears. There's nothing you can say about a defeat like this. We just didn't have it."

Saturday's snow and the frigid temperature that swung from 18 to 22 degrees kept the crowd below the expected 65,000. Despite the cold and the strong wind, the partisan crowd enjoyed the rout of the mighty Bears.

The Giants, starved for a title since 1938, had little mercy after their 18 years of bitter frustration. Although Giant Coach Jim Lee Howell did send his reserves into action in the final period, they never slacked their relentless attack.

The basketball shoes gave the Giants solid footing on the hard field and they broke away fast. The Bears wore similar shoes but they had rubber cleats.

"We had just as suitable shoes as they," said Coach Driscoll of the Bears. "They ran on it (the frozen field). We didn't."

Giant fullback Mel Triplett who gained 71 yards in 13 carries, smashed through the middle for 17 yards and the first touchdown, gowling over umpire Sam Wilson. End Andy Robustelli's recovery of Rick Casares' fumble set up Ben Agajanian's first field goal, a 17-yard kick. That made it 10-0 at 4:39 of the first period.

Agajanian booted a 43-yard field goal later in the first period after Jim Patton intercepted an Ed Brown pass. Alex Webster scored twice in the second period on short runs, the second coming shortly after a 49-yard pass play from quarterback Charlie Conerly.

Nation Had Large Array Of Tourneys

North State To Resume Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Family feuding in the North State Conference resumes with a bang Saturday featuring what should be a battle royal between Elon and Lenoir Rhyne, the league's top teams.

The long Christmas holiday comes to an end Friday when East Carolina plays host to Belmont Abbey.

Five games are scheduled Saturday, including three conference games. In addition to the Lenoir Rhyne invasion of Elon, East Carolina is at Appalachian and Guilford is at High Point in the conference games and Atlantic Christian is at the Norfolk Division of William and Mary and Piedmont invades Western Carolina.

Elon and Lenoir Rhyne are tied for the conference leadership. Elon has won its only conference start and is 7-0 overall. The Bears have won their two league games and overall are 6-1, their only defeat coming from Belmont Abbey.

Leagues To Be A Lot Tougher Now

By DON WEIS
The Associated Press
Their holiday tournament capers just about over, the nation's college basketball teams now can turn their full attention to the conference races that, for the most part, determine the "play-for-keeps" tourney lineups in March.

The backlash of a frantic four or five days of Christmas week activity that saw a nationwide assortment of more than 50 tournaments come and go was a distinct impression that nothing is so certain in the college game as its uncertainty.

A few favorites won in the major competitions but there were just enough upsets to promise the best set of conference races in several years.

And the best of them all could turn out to be in the leagues where the two current national stickouts, Kansas and North Carolina, perform.

The top-ranked Kansas Jayhawks, for all of Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain's capabilities and the team's victory in last week's warmup tournament, have plenty to fear in the Big Seven Conference.

Iowa State, for instance, shackled Wilt with a meager 12 points and came within a late desperation shot of whipping the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll, Colorado, too, can be a threat when it is at full strength. The Buffs were minus two key regulars when the Jayhawks rolled away in the Conference tournament finals, 80-54 Saturday night.

Coach Frank McGuire of North Carolina's second-rated Tar Heels says frankly he is surprised his club remains unbeaten, now 11-0 after a sweep through the Dixie Classic at Raleigh. The Tar Heels have played and won three games within the Atlantic Coast Conference but McGuire says from what he has seen, any of the league members is capable of beating the other on a given night.

Here's the way some of the other major conferences look:

Southern—West Virginia looked to be head and shoulders above the rest until the Mounties were spilled in all three of their Dixie Classic appearances. Furman, 3-0 with West Virginia in early conference play, and Washington & Lee, 3-1, are possibilities.

Ivy—Columbia, with Chet Forte one of basketball's best little men, is the favorite. Harvard and Dartmouth have the best early records of the others.

Big Ten—Where a 10-point favorite regularly has trouble winning on the road, Illinois and Purdue, both 6-1 in non-conference games, off to good starts but no clear cut leader.

Pacific Coast—Oregon State in the North and UCLA in the South, but another league where the home court evens the odds.

Skyline—Utah (9-2) for the season) with Brigham Young capable of top-grade efforts.

Rosenbluth Gets Award, Named To All-Tourney

RALEIGH (AP)—Lennie Rosenbluth, scoring ace for champion North Carolina, today completed a sweep of individual honors in the eighth annual Dixie Classic basketball tournament.

The 6-5 forward, a prime factor in the Tar Heels' 63-55 conquest of Wake Forest for the Classic title, was a near unanimous choice for the all-tournament team selected by newspaper, radio and television sports writers covering the classic.

At the Saturday night finals, Rosenbluth also received the trophy as the tournament's outstanding individual player.

Guard Tommy Kearns of the unbeaten North Carolina squad joined Rosenbluth on the all-tournament first team.

North Carolina State, which demolished Duke 102-80 for third place honors, was represented by forward John Masilo. The 6-foot senior finished second to Rosenbluth in the voting.

Others on the first team were: Capt. Dick Heise of DePaul, and scrappy guard Jackie Murdock of Wake Forest.

The second team: Jim Newcome of Duke, Clarence Wordlaw of Iowa, John Richter of N.C. State, and Ernie Wiggins and Wendell Carr of Wake Forest.

The Classic's final round of games included Utah's 86-79 triumph over DePaul for the consolation championship, and Iowa's 79-76 upset of West Virginia for seventh place. The three-day basketball feast drew a record attendance of 71,200 to Reynolds Coliseum on the N.C. State campus.

The disastrous showing of West Virginia, which entered the classic with an 8-0 record and lost three straight, was reflected in the all-tournament team voting. Hot Rod Hundley, the Mountaineer star performer, drew only 38 ballots.

The first team, with votes in parentheses:

Rosenbluth, North Carolina (165); Maglio, N.C. State (161); Kearns, North Carolina (141); Heise, DePaul (120); Murdock, Wake Forest (112).

Second team:

Newcome, Duke (83); Wordlaw, Iowa (82); Richter, N.C. State (58); Wiggins, Wake Forest (55); Carr, Wake Forest (55).

The next five in number of votes received were: Milt Kane, Utah (52); Pete Brennan, North Carolina (49); Cliff Hafer, N.C. State (45); Rod Hundley, West Virginia (38); and Jack Williams, Wake Forest (26).

Dodd's 'Lucky' Tech Smashes Pitt By 21-14

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The "luck" of Coach Bobby Dodd brought Georgia Tech another football bowl victory—21-14—over Pittsburgh in the Gator Bowl game Saturday.

If you can call it luck that Tech intercepted two passes, recovered one of its own fumbles for an eight-yard gain.

It was the eighth bowl victory without defeat for Georgia Tech under Dodd and the school's sixth bowl triumph in the past six seasons.

Coach Johnny Michelosen of Pitt credited Tech with taking advantage of the opportunities "when we coughed up the football."

"Tech was very good and very lucky," said Joe Walton, All America end.

"Tech got the breaks and we let them capitalize on them to win," said Conny Salvaterra, quarterback and Pitt's most valuable player in the game.

Dodd doesn't deny that he's lucky.

"I'm optimistic," he said. "I don't think bad things happen to me. I want my players to think we always are lucky and getting all the breaks."

Obviously, it isn't all luck. Dodd coaches his players to be alert for all opportunities.

The first break of the game came early in the first quarter when Paul Rotenberry, Tech halfback, intercepted a pass by Salvatore Brown and ran it from midfield to the Pitt 29.

The Bears had picked up their lone touchdown in the second when Casares went nine through the middle but Webster's second score and Henry Moore's end zone recovery after Ray Beck blocked Brown's punt made it 34-7 at the half.

Scorers Had A Rough Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Washington and Lee's Lee Marshall experienced one of the worst games of his career in the Richmond Invitational Tournament last night, being held to five points by Lafayette, but he managed to cling to first place in the Southern Conference individual scoring.

The 6-foot-5 W&L center has poured in 230 points in 10 games for a 23-point average—down all most two points a game from last week.

Into second place this week moved Dick Wright, Furman's flashy guard who has a 22.1 average on 199 points in nine games—but that's almost two points lower per game than he was averaging last week.

The big gainer was W&L's Dom Flora, who had a 36-point outburst against Lafayette in the Richmond Invitational, to up his average nearly two points to 19.8—good for a tie for third place with Virginia Tech's Dave Kuhn, whose average fell off nearly five points per game.

Seven Bowl Games Climax Football Play For '56 Tomorrow Afternoon

By ED CARRIGAN
The Associated Press
The college football season reaches a ringing crescendo tomorrow when the four major post-season bowl games—the Sugar, Rose, Cotton and Orange—are played with a pot of gold and untold glory awaiting the winners. All four will be televised nationally.

Here is the lineup:

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Tennessee (10-0) vs. Baylor (8-2), ABC-TV, 2 p.m. EST.

Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.—Iowa (8-1) vs. Oregon State (7-2-1), NBC-TV, 5 p.m. EST.

Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Syracuse (7-1) vs. Texas Christian (7-3), NBC-TV, 2 p.m. EST.

Orange Bowl at Miami—Colorado (7-2-1) vs. Clemson (7-1-2), CBS-TV, 2 p.m. EST.

In addition, there are three lesser bowl games on the schedule—the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., but he's fighting another battle, that of lethargy.

"The kids just don't seem to be thinking about football," said the coach of the Pacific Coast Conference champions.

Iowa Coach Forest Evashevski, who thinks the teams are about evenly matched, would not hazard a guess as to his club's mental attitude.

A coach who disclaims the favorite's role is Abe Martin of Texas Christian, whose charges are a 4-point choice over Syracuse.

Said he:

"I can't see where we should be the favorites. We were second in the Southwest Conference, while Syracuse is champion of the East and rated eighth in the nation. We have no rating."

Syracuse coach, Ben Schwartzwalder was as much concerned about the weather as he was about the opposition. He is hoping the temperature won't be too hot for cause "I want to leave the first in there as long as possible."

A crowd of 60,000 is expected. Perhaps the most confident of all coaches is Dalls Ward, whose Colorado team is favored by 3 points over Clemson in the Orange Bowl.

"My boys fully expect to bring home Colorado's first bowl victory," he said.

Frank Howard, the Clemson pilot, acknowledged that Colorado would be a slight choice. But he said his team, "is about right."

A crowd of about 69,000—7,000 short of a sellout—is expected. In major post-season action Saturday, Georgia Tech defeated Pitt, 21-14, in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla.; the Blue turned back the Gray, 14-0, in the North-South game in Montgomery, Ala.; and the West outlasted the East, 7-6, in the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco.

McGuire Didn't Expect All This

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"I didn't expect to get this far undefeated. I'm no optimist."

So says Frank McGuire, whose North Carolina basketball team captured the Dixie Classic in Raleigh Saturday night with a 63-55 State 45- Rod Hundley, West Virginia 38; and Jack Williams, Wake Forest 26).

North Carolina's other classic wins came over Utah, 97-76, and Duke, 87-71. Before that the Tar Heels had a tough road trip that took them into New York's Madison Square Garden against NYU and then to Boston for two games in the Boston Classic.

The Tar Heels play a 28-game schedule, including the tournaments, but only eight games are scheduled for Chapel Hill. McGuire says finances are the reason.

CHAPTER 14
Chad mounted the half-finished blockhouse and found a place where he could sit alone. Eagerly he opened the letter and his eyes raced hungrily over the meticulously written lines. She had been well. Her penmanship had been complaining but there seemed to be nothing serious.

And then: "Alvin called on us the other day. He was concerned about you. He realizes as well as I do that you face so much danger, surrounded by hostile Indians with only a handful of men. I get terribly angry when I think of it, but I know I'm selfish, wanting to be with you or wanting you to be with me. But what I started to say was that Father is afraid I'll be sick, moping around the house. Alvin has offered to take me riding. I'll go, of course, and I think it's very kind since Alvin knows he's being a sort of Good Samaritan. To please you, I'll remind him he's wasting his time with me because my heart is wholly yours. I love you so much, Chad. Always, Elizabeth."

Chad folded the letter sharply and thrust it into his pocket. Good Samaritan—what a name for Alvin Stiner!

The rain came straight down, driving hard into the large puddles that covered the St. Louis streets. Across from the municipal building a yellow patch of light tried bravely to illuminate a small board sign bearing the name: Buckhorn Cafe.

A cab drew up in front of the cafe. Alvin Stiner asked, "Can you run fast enough to dodge the raindrops, Elizabeth?"

"I'm afraid not," she said, "but I won't melt."

They ducked quickly under the wooden awning and Stiner opened the door. They were greeted by the headwaiter.

"Good evening, Henri," Stiner's manner was pleasant, almost jovial. "Isn't this a terrible night for summer?"

The headwaiter nodded and led them to a curtained booth in the rear of a large dining room. As they took their seats, Elizabeth said, "It's sweet of you to bring me here, but I can't help feeling a little disloyal to Chad."

"You shouldn't," Stiner said quickly.

She smiled. "I guess that sounds silly."

"Not at all, but it does make me envious."

She flushed and lowered her glance.

"You must understand something, Alvin," she said in a low tone. "I wouldn't be here if my father hadn't urged me."

"Because he loves you very much," Stiner said gently, "and he knows you shouldn't live like a cloistered nun. But let's just say I invited you here tonight to please him. I respect him more than any man I know."

Her smile was quick and natural; she saw emotion stir her face. She said, "That's one thing we agree on. I'm happy I can be with him, but sometimes I have a haunting feeling that it won't last."

He leaned back, thinking she was more beautiful tonight than he had ever seen her. Her hair was a cascade of curls, black, almost metallic with its deep sheen. Her eyes were surprisingly large and blue, but it was her mouth that particularly attracted him.

The meal was an excellent one, but as soon as they were finished, Elizabeth became restless and Stiner knew it was time to go.

They were silent as the cab took them through the rain. When they reached the Tipton house, Stiner asked the driver to wait, then, holding to her arm, the two ran up the walk to the veranda.

"Good night, Elizabeth," he said, standing close to her, his head inclined toward hers.

"Good night, Alvin," she said, moving her head one side, smiling. "Thank you for a pleasant evening."

He was reluctant to let her go this way.

"You'll be writing to Chad soon, I suppose," he said.

"Yes," she said, "Why?"

"Give him my regards." He hesitated, then added, "You might set his mind at rest. The last night he was in St. Louis, he said he would kill me if I ever touched you, but he should know you would be the last person on this earth."

"Alvin," she broke in. "You must have misunderstood him."

"No, he made himself very clear. Well, I won't keep you any longer. Good night."

He ran back to the cab, pleased with himself because he had

"I ought to tell her that, 'The Red Ca-lie,' he told the driver, and stepped inside."

Soon the cab entered a dingy and darker section of town where the streets were narrow and rough, and Stiner put his mind to the business that lay ahead.

The cab halted and the driver jumped down and opened the door. He said, "Here you are, sar. The Red Ca-lie."

Stiner paid him and entered a shabby-looking building. He was greeted by an uproar of laughter, mingled with the sounds of a wheezing concertina and the clinking of glasses.

A bartender nodded at him. "Evenin', Mr. Stiner."

"Hello, Steve. Where's Armand?"

The bartender jabbed a forefinger toward the rear of the room. Stiner nodded and moved between tables of roistering rivermen toward a narrow doorway.

Just as he reached it, a heavy, bald-headed man came out.

"I was looking for you," Stiner said. "My men here yet?"

Armand nodded, his heavy face expressionless, and plodded down a dingy hall. The fat man stopped before a closed door leading off the hall and inclined his head toward it. "Send some drinks up," Stiner said, and opening the door, he stepped into a small room.

Two men rose from their seats at a table. Both were tall and lanky, both dressed in the rough clothes of plainmen, their feet encased in beaded moccasins. Stiner, looking at them, thought he could not have found two men better suited to his purpose.

"Good to see you, Jean," Stiner shook hands with one and then the other. "And you, Rene."

They were the Beauvais twins, cast in the same hard mold, their faces weather-burned until they were as dark as some Sioux braves Stiner had seen. The only way he could tell them apart was by the wicked-looking scar that extended from one corner of Jean's mouth clear up to his ear. He'd received it in a knife fight in Fort Blaine years ago.

What is Stiner's business with the Beauvais twins? Find out in Chapter 15 of Silent River.

Free, For First Time In 21 Years

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph McCarthy today was a free man in every sense of the word — for the first time in 21 years.

A full pardon restoring all his civil rights was formally handed over to him yesterday.

The pardon had been promised the longtime fugitive from Stateville Prison in a Christmas Eve telephone call from Gov. William G. Stratton. It arrived by mail yesterday at the office of McCarthy's lawyer.

McCarthy, 43, was seized in a clothing dispute last summer and it was learned that he had walked away from Stateville 15 years ago after serving six years of a one to 20 year term for auto theft.

McCarthy had assumed the name of Charles E. Burke and had become a respected husband and father in suburban Long Lake.

Second Thought Cost'em Money

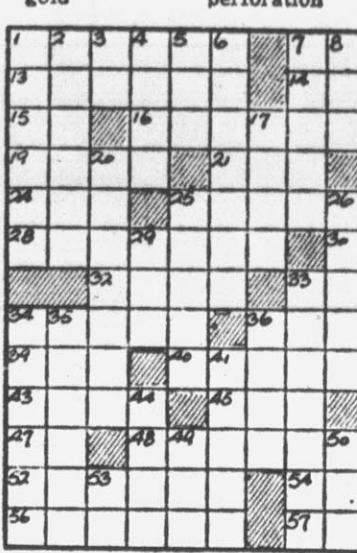

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP) — Six seniors from Allegan high school who admitted climbing the city water tower in the dark of night to paint "Class of '57" on it decided against doing it again in daylight.

Given the choice of paying for a repaint job or doing the work themselves, they said they'd pay. "Climbing up is too dangerous," they agreed.

Judge Passes Up Jury Duty Draw

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Nicholas Udall's name was picked from the voter list for jury service in his own court.

"I have always wished I could serve as a juror for both the service and the experience," the judge said. But he took the practical way out and requested the customary exemption for judges.

Maybe Computer Will Aid Riders

BALTIMORE (AP) — Automation has come to the rescue of the bus and streetcar rider—perhaps.

Baltimore Transit Co. announced that work has been under way for a year on an electronic brain which will draw up schedules. Traffic-load and other information is fed into the UNIVAC computer. The machine applies a formula and comes up with the schedules.

Baltimore Transit has submitted to the Public Service Commission 30 new schedules for 14 lines developed by the machine. They will go into effect Jan. 13.

BUDDHISTS IN NEW JERSEY

A little band of Kalmucks in Farmingdale, N. J., is proving that you can love thy neighbor without being exactly like him.

They are the remnant of a people that wandered from Western China to Russia during the 12th to the 14th centuries. Oppressed by czars and communists alike, these gentle men and women finally found their way to the United States after World War II. They are Buddhists.

These 600 Kalmucks, like many groups before them, have managed to become Americans without losing their ethnic or religious identity. Many have become citizens. And like other Americans, they live and dress in modern style. They own television sets and other modern conveniences.

In keeping with their ancient beliefs, the Kalmucks last year dedicated a new Buddhist temple. It is being built on a 400-acre tract. Their present temple is a converted one-story garage. They maintain several priests to minister in the temple and to teach their children the faith of their fathers.

It is in the children that one sees the blending of old and new. Accepted by their schoolmates and neighbors, thoroughly American yet thoroughly different, they are equally at home with a Buddhist classic or a Walt Disney cartoon.

Buddhist priests Geshe Wangyel and Rab-djamba stand outside the Buddhist temple at Farmingdale, N. J. Structure is a converted stucco garage. A new temple is being built.

At the temple altar, Geshe Wangyel, Buddhist priest and teacher, stands with one of his pupils, eight-year-old David Yrubshurev. The youngster studies the Buddhist religion two hours each day.

Like other American town dwellers, the Kalmucks live in nice, modest homes, keep their grounds neat and trim.

Squatting on floor in Oriental style, Geshe Wangyel types away. A priest, he also teaches religion at Columbia University.

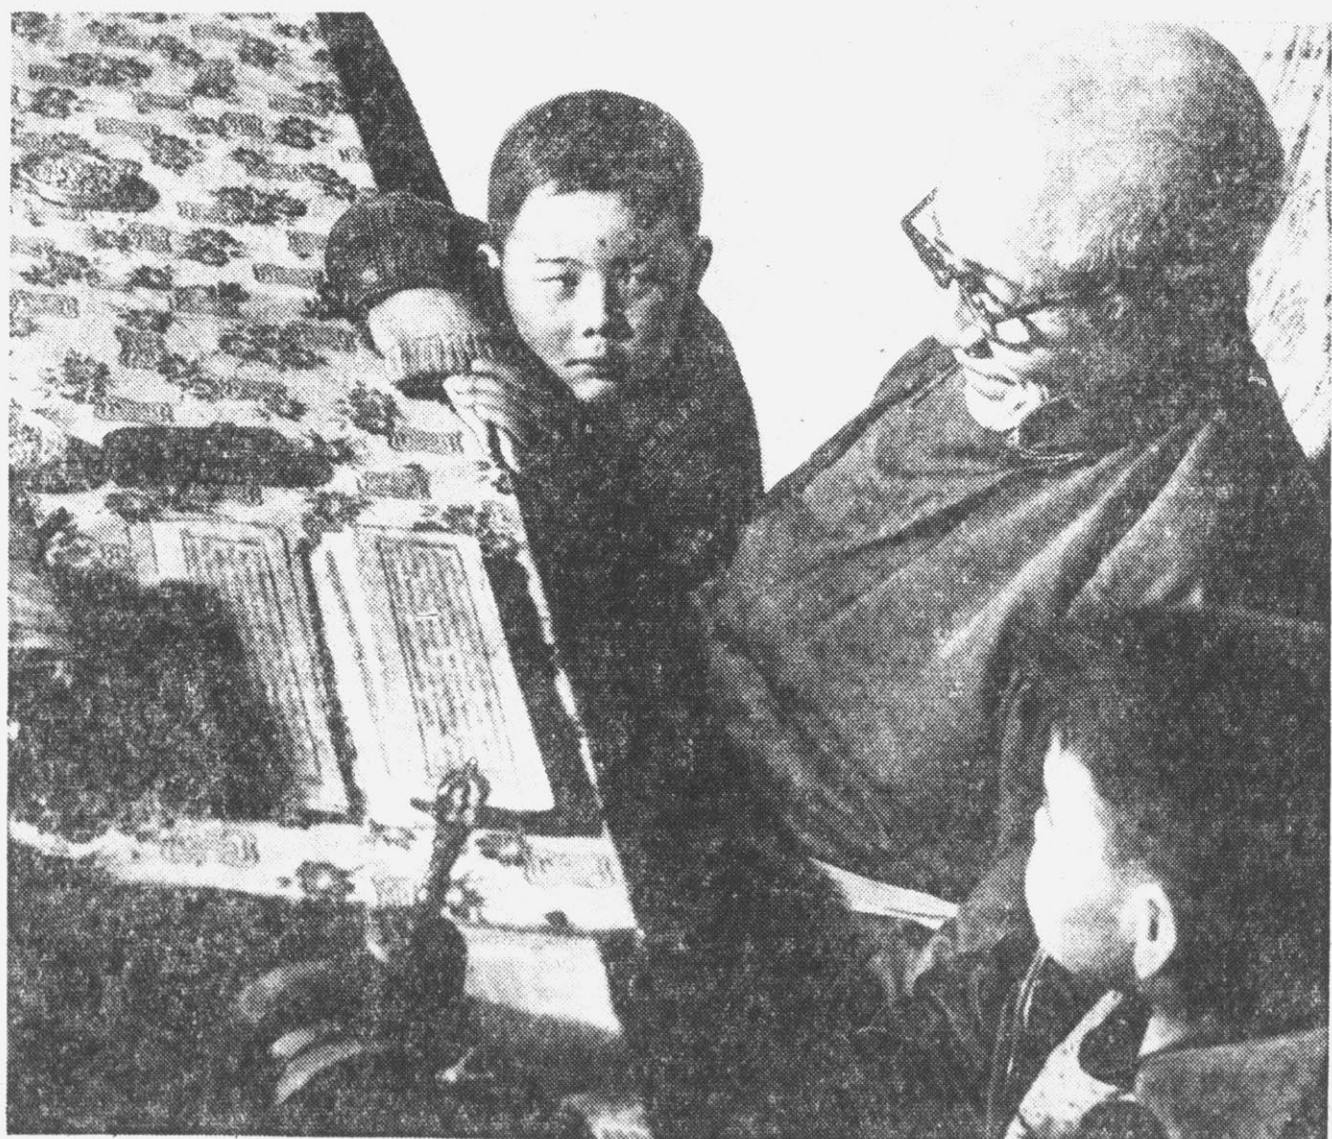

A sturdy youth, 14-year-old Labsang Sherab helps build chicken house. Many Kalmuck men and women work on nearby chicken farms.

Study in Kalmuck faces. Little 7-year-old Chon Ambadikow clings close to 76-year-old Manjee Purview, a venerated figure and the oldest in the community. After fleeing Russia, Manjee lived in France for a while before coming to America. Chon is a kindergartner at the local school.

Study Hour. Under the watchful eye of elderly priest Rab-djamba, two serious Kalmuck youngsters, Chon Ambadikow and David Yrubshurov, study the ancient scriptures of the Buddhist religion. Little David hopes to become a monk some day.

Bank's Money Was Extra Safe

BENTON, Ky. (AP) — The Bank of Marshall County was extra safe. Employees of the bank tried to open the 85-year-old safe and failed. Experts gave up in disgust. A welder was called to haul the 4 ton monster down to his shop. Several hours later, with the help of an electric torch, the bank recovered its ready cash — $43,000.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and oils paced the stock market to an advance on average today in heavy year-end trading early this afternoon.

Key issues advanced from fractions to around 2 points. A few issues stepped ahead beyond this range.

But there was a sprinkling of losers. Motors showed slight losses. Leading rails were mixed and failed to confirm the advance of industrials.

The rate of turnover indicated a three-million-share day if it continues heavy later in the session.

Oils were buoyant as the job of clearing the Suez Canal got under way and prospects were for some traffic to start moving in March.

Cash sales for immediate delivery continued because of year-end considerations.

Lukens Steel was up around 5 points and Gulf Oil about 4.

Gains of about 2 points or so were made by Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown and Amerasia.

Kennecott Copper, Goodrich, American Telephone and Kerr-McGee Oil rose more than a point each.

Gains of about a point were posted by U. S. Steel, American Cyanamid, Royal Dutch and Standard Oil of California.

Fractional advances were made by U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Union Carbide, American Can, Texas Co., Standard Oil (New Jersey), Loew's, National Distillers and United Air Lines.

In the motor group, however, Chrysler and Ford took fractional losses while General Motors and Studebaker-Packard showed hardly any change.

Pivotal railroad issues displayed a peppering of small gains and losses. Illinois Central and Southern Railway were ahead slightly. Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Santa Fe were

South Said Pacing Rest Of Nation In Automation Use

FBI Captures One Of Top Ten

CHICAGO (AP)—FBI agents last night seized Joseph James Bragnola, one of the nation's 10 most wanted fugitives, who has been sought for five years in the hold-up-slays of a New Orleans used car dealer.

Bragnola, 40, was described by the FBI as a hired gunman who was involved in the murder of Henry Stern during a $50,000 hold-up in 1950. He will be arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike.

Agents said Bragnola surrendered meekly in a cocktail lounge on Chicago's South Side. He was unarmed.

Stern was pistol-whipped by a gang of thugs who invaded his home. He died a short time later. His wife was left trussed in their upstairs apartment while the holdup men raided it for money and jewelry.

The FBI said the holdup was planned by a New Orleans robbery gang. Bragnola was one of three gunmen imported from Chicago to carry out the robbery, the FBI said, because the plotters feared they might be recognized by their intended victim.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, said in Washington that six persons were allegedly involved in the crime. Bragnola is the last to be located, Hoover said.

Bragnola carried documents when arrested indicating he was using the name Joseph A. Starnic and had been working as a cook in Chicago.

NEW YORK (AP)—The South and South Atlantic area will outstrip the nation in consumption of automated machinery if the present trend continues, and experts in the automation field said today.

"Because the industrialization of the South has been accomplished since the war, the South has a tremendous competitive advantage," Robert E. Pogue, Jr., president of an electronics firm said today.

"Southern industry was born to automation. Each new plant that goes up today is able to incorporate in its basic structure the marvelous developments of the last ten years," the electronics authority said. "These new automated plants can produce cheaper, faster and better."

Pogue went on to compare the present with the picture in the instruments and automation field ten years ago. Ten years ago control devices were expensive and often unreliable, he said.

Today the automation industry has reached the point of standardized high-quality production, Pogue said. Costs per unit are nominal, and as a result, many labor and time saving units may be successfully incorporated in the production process of the small to medium-sized factory.

"Ten years ago the cost of automation was prohibitive," Pogue continued. "Today, we have seen new equipment pay for itself in as short a time as six months. With the proper assistance from skilled consultants, even a small business can show definite gains in a remarkably short time."

Pogue's announcement was made at his firm's Los Angeles office as he revealed the appointment of Floyd Fausett & Company, 777 Pinehurst Terrace, S. W., Atlanta, Georgia, as the representative for Autron Engineering, Inc., for the entire Southern and South Atlantic area.

The Fausett firm maintains offices in Wake Forest, North Carolina, in Greenville, South Carolina and in Gainesville, Florida as well as in Atlanta. The skilled technical help necessary when a manufacturer contemplates a change in the production program is thus easily accessible.

The South's advantage in possessing the most modern plants is not the end of competition on the industrial scene, however, Pogue concluded. In order to meet the competition from the South, other industrial areas are being forced to modernize plants by the installation of automated processes.

Wins Distinction For Another Year

HAS WINNING HABIT—Norman R. Wooten of Greenville receives the N. C. State Automobile Association's "Man of the Year" award for the fourth straight year from President Thomas B. Watkins. The trophy is one of the motor club's two highest annual awards.

Bomb Scare Dwindles; Police Renew Efforts

NEW YORK (AP)—With the volume of bomb scares dwindling, New York police today renewed efforts to nab the elusive "mad bomber."

The city's 20,000-member police force, and its 34-man special bomb squad in particular, have been busy in recent days checking out telephoned bomb threats.

The calls reached a high point Friday when 36 were received. The volume dropped to 26 Saturday and 13 yesterday.

Whether any of the 75 bogus threats came from the "bomber" was unknown. Police were inclined to write them off as the work of cranks rather than of the "bomber" who has planted some 34 bombs since 1940.

Twenty-two have exploded, injuring 15 persons. No deaths have resulted. Police theorize the "bomber" is a psychopath unexplainably mad at the world.

Yesterday's calls resulted in the finding of three bomb-like devices. All were harmless.

Oddly enough they were found within a 21-minute period early yesterday afternoon. One was discovered in a phone booth in Grand Central Station. It later was found filled with nonexplosive graphite.

The discovery resulted in almost a two-hour suspension of subway shuttle service in the area, inconveniencing thousands. Authorities seized 37-year-old Morris Rubin of the Bronx in an adjoining telephone booth.

Rubin, who said he was a maker of smokers' pipes, later was ordered committed to Bellevue Hospital for psychiatric observation. He denied he was the "bomber," contending he was only trying to call police to report the discovery of the bogus device when seized.

In his pockets, police said, were 92 dimes and thousands of private telephone numbers of city officials, including Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Rubin was charged with making "annoying and unfounded" telephone calls.

Heavy Damage In 3-Car Crash

Heavy damage resulted when three cars were involved in a collision on N. Greene St. around 7:05 Saturday night.

Drivers of the three vehicles were identified by police as Charles Edward Goodson, Burwood Harris, Greenville Rt. 5 and Ed Alton Whitehurst.

Damage to Goodson's car was estimated at $700. Damage to Harris car was set at $1,000 and the Whitehurst vehicle received approximately $50 damage.

Harris was charged with failing to yield the right-of-way.

Investigating was Ptl. W. S. Clements, Jr.

Also Saturday night cars operated by James T. Keel, Jr., of 1001 E. Third St. and Theodore Cox, Negro of 802 Vanderbilt St. were involved in a collision at the intersection of Fifth and Nash Sts. Damage to both cars was estimated at $300. No charges resulted.

Investigating was Sgt. J. B. Cannon.

Yesterday afternoon cars operated by John Henry Porter, Negro of 515 Williams St. Murfreesboro, and Lonnie Jessie Cocks of Ayden Rt. 2 collided at the intersection of Dickinson and Boyd Aves. Damage to the two cars was set at $250. The accident was investigated by Ptl. J. L. Kerr.

Boy Won 4-Year Scholarship

MOORESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—He's got three years to answer an important question. But 11-year-old George Miller of Mooreville has already answered questions important enough to win him a $10,000 scholarship on a national television show. The question now is what college he will attend when he is ready to grace some campus three years from now.

George appeared on the CBS program, "Grant Step," where he went striding away with top honors. The Negro youngster has waiting for him additional scholarship funds to enable him to study in six European or Asiatic countries.

With his four-year scholarship to the college of his choice George says he plans to study international affairs. His category on the nationwide telecast was "Nations of the World."

George's father is the principal of Amity Elementary School in Irredell County. The lad is a ninth grade student at Unity High School in Statesville.

He returned to Mooreville yesterday after his jubilant victory in New York.

More Snow For Extensive Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow which has already immobilized portions of New England was in prospect today for most of the Middle and North Atlantic Coast states and in the works in the Great Lakes region.

Patches of fog in the valleys and showers were forecast for the Pacific Northwest while the rest of the nation was to enjoy generally fair weather on the last day of 1956.

Warmer weather was returning to Southeastern United States today as the weather bureau said, and colder air pushed southward over most of the Northern and Central Plains and eastward across the Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes.

A storm originating in Canada has spread a blanket of snow over most of the Great Lakes and eastward into Pennsylvania, New York and New England.

Heaviest fall last night occurred in upper Michigan and western New York State. Buffalo, N.Y., reported a total depth of 10 inches. Houghton, Mich., had 21 inches of snow on the ground and Grand Marais, Mich., was covered with 22 inches.

New England was buried under one of its worst snowfalls of recent years yesterday as falls of 14 inches landed on Concord, N.H., and about eight to twelve inches sifted down on Maine.

Temperatures were somewhat higher over the eastern third of the nation yesterday. The exception was snow-covered New England which saw the mercury dip 10 to 15 degrees lower than the previous 24 hours.

The greatest warming took place over the Great Lakes where rises of 20 degrees were common.

False Reports Prove Expensive

Bruce Reddick, 43-year-old Negro of 307 East First Street, was convicted last week on charges of violating employment security laws and making a false report about wages earned on December 15, 1955.

Judgment against Reddick was suspended by Justice of the Peace Luther D. Moore upon payment of costs.

Claimants in such cases, upon conviction, are not ineligible for unemployment benefits for a year and are also ordered to refund all unemployment insurance payments for a year following the first false report.

New TV and Radio Time For Ministers

Schedule changes became effective today on both WNCN-TV and WGTC for the daily broadcasts conducted in cooperation with the Greenville Ministerial Association. Television Station WNCN-TV shifted its devotional period from mid-morning to 5 o'clock every afternoon Monday through Friday. Radio Station WGTC extended its "Morning Meditations" program from fifteen to twenty minutes to begin every morning Monday through Saturday at 9:30.

Some twenty-six Greenville area ministers participate in this ministry by air. Free time is made available by the stations. Speaking for local ministers, the Rev. J. Malloy Owen, Association Chairman for Television and Radio, stated this morning. "We wish to thank the two stations for their wonderful spirit of cooperation in giving this very valuable time in the public interest." Each of the twenty-six ministers participating have been assigned one week on each station during the first half of 1957, Owen explained.

Could Celebrate New Year 'Now'

By DON GUY

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica, Tuesday, Jan. 1 (AP)—The 16 Americans now at the south pole could celebrate the new year 24 times in 24 hours if they could stand the pace.

All the world's 24 time meridians converge at the pole, and there are no neighbors to complain about the noise.

But the Seabees at the polar science station they have nearly completed for the International Geophysical Year station saluted the new year only once, at the same midnight all U.S. antarctic bases observe.

That came at 7 a.m. EST. Since all bases for Operation Deep Freeze are all on the same time zone, the time used in New Zealand, 17 hours ahead of New York.

Among the Deep Freeze force's New Year greetings was one from the head of Russia's antarctic expedition, Dr. Mikhail Somov radioed Rear Adm. George Dufek, the Deep Freeze commander, to wish you personally and the entire personnel of the U. S. antarctic expedition a happy new year which is expected to be a year of close cooperation between the polar explorers of our countries in Antarctica.

The message came from the main Russian outpost at Mirnyy, Apr., on the Indian Ocean side of Antarctica.

No Serious Harm To Luxury Liner

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—The luxury liner Liberté, forced back to port by storm damage, will leave again for New York Wednesday after repairs to the forward part of the ship.

No serious hull damage was found despite the stress of mounting waves which swept over the ship. Three persons were injured, including a stewardess whose leg was broken.

Most of the 533 passengers remained on board. The line planned a big champagne party for them on board for New Year's Eve and also arranged a special train for those wanting to celebrate in Paris.

Potatoes are not fattening, so says Virginia Wilson, nutritionist of the North Carolina State College School of Agriculture. That is, if you eat them without added fat.

N. C. Firms Paid $2.5 Billions

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina firms covered by the employment security law paid out wages totaling nearly 2 1/2 billion dollars during fiscal 1956.

The payroll figure of $2,430,000,000 represented a 310-million-dollar gain over the previous year, Chairman Henry E. Kendall of the Employment Security Commission reported yesterday.

However, Kendall pointed out that a portion of the gain resulted from an extension of the law to cover firms employing four or more persons in 20 weeks. Only firms employing eight or more persons were liable previously.

Increased employment and higher wage rates also were factors, Kendall said. Average weekly earnings during the second quarter of this year amounted to $9.56, over $2 higher than last year's average, he pointed out.

Some 1,040,000 workers are now covered by the law, which provides unemployment benefits. Kendall said some 29,000 firms were covered compared with 17,527 at the end of 1955.

Boy Remains Lost In The Cold

SELIGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Bloodhounds, two Air Force planes, a helicopter and volunteers have joined in the search for 7-year-old Jack Hodges, missing since Saturday morning in the rugged westlands of northern Arizona.

The boy and his dog wandered away from a ranch where he was visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hodges of Seligman. The dog returned several hours later without Jack.

Temperatures have dropped as low as 14.

Truck Driver Is Held Up, Robbed

PRINCETON, N. C. (AP)—Two armed Negro men, wearing handkerchiefs as masks, held up a bakery truck driver near here early this morning. They got away with $71.

Frank Mathes, 22, who drives for Davis Baking Co. of Durham, said he had stopped momentarily near Holt's Pond on U.S. 70 about 4:30 a.m. He said the Negro gunmen drove up behind him and ordered him to get into their car.

They drove a short distance away, then stopped and forced him to turn over his money. The pair ordered Mathes out of the car and drove away.

Johnson County Dep. Sheriff Hugh Lamm said Mathes did not get the license number of the car, nor did he know which way the Negro gunmen headed.

James E. Brockett, Negro of 434 Boners Lane, has been arrested for breaking and entering at night and larceny.

Brockett is accused of taking items belonging to Robert Lee Cherry valued at $100. Included was a suit, gloves, shoes, a radio and several shirts.

Body Of Missing Man Discovered

GREENSBORO (AP)—The body of a 57-year-old Greensboro insurance agent who had been missing two days was found yesterday in a creek in Alamance County by two farmers.

Clark H. Lambeth was found dead 48 hours after he had been reported missing from his office. A statewide search was started Saturday for Lambeth. He left his office in the forenoon Friday telling office workers that he would be gone a few minutes.

Walter Robertson and Norman Alexander of Rt. 6, Burlington, found Lambeth in a creek about 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

Dr. J. B. Walker Jr., Alamance County coroner, reported that the death was under investigation. Lambeth had been associated with a Greensboro insurance agency for 12 years.
