Nice Kitty?

A bobcat, weighing nearly 25 pounds, was killed last night in the northern part of Pea Branch Pocosin, near Stokes. The animal, held by George Cherry, measured 38 inches in length and 18 inches from shoulder to paw. The cat is one of the largest reported killed in the county in several years but Cherry said this morning there are a number of them in swamps and other low-ground areas in Pitt. The cat in the picture was killed with a shotgun. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Four New Solons Take Oath Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four six-footers take the oath today as new Democratic members of Congress from North Carolina. The newcomers, all lawyers, are: Basil Whitener of Gastonia, solicitor of the 14th District from 1945 to Dec. 31, succeeding Rep. Woodrow Jones (D-NC) who retired. Former U.S. Sen. Alton Asa Lennon of Wilmington, who defeated Rep. Carlyle (D-NC). Ralph Scott of Danbury, Superior Court solicitor, who defeated Rep. Chatham (D-NC) in a primary. Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro, who defeated Rep. Deane (D-NC) in a primary. Whitener was unopposed in the November election. Kitchin, Lennon and Scott defeated Republican opponents.

man as she starts her duties in the office of Kitchin. Members of the North Carolina delegation and other Tar Heels were invited to her party along with J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), and Ass. Director Clyde Tolson. Kitchin was an FBI agent. In the afternoon a reception will be held in the office of Rep. Whitener, where a large red and white bouquet arrived early from his constituents in McDowell County. Many relatives and close friends from North Carolina were here to see the new congressmen—and the returning House veterans—take the oath of office in a mass ceremony.

City Councilmen Convene Tonight

City fathers will consider restricting parking on three streets tonight when they meet in City Hall at 8:30. The agenda for tonight calls for consideration of the restricting of parking on E. Third St., Liberty St. and Summit St. Councilmen will consider the correction of an error in the city limit boundary at Harris-Raynor Warehouse. They will pass an ordinance relating to the sale of bonds approved in a recent election.

Marooned Alpinists Rescued By Daring Helicopter Pilots

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Daring helicopter pilots today snatched eight marooned Alpinists from the snow-swept slopes of Mt. Blanc but gave up hope for two more frostbitten climbers marooned on Europe's highest peak for 12 days. The rescue pilots had hoped to hover above the pair—Frenchman Jean Vincendon, 23, and Belgian Francois Henry, 24—and lower men to put them in baskets hanging from the aircraft, but this proved impossible. Both may already have died. The rescue operation got under way at dawn with the first favorable helicopter flying weather in two weeks. The harried pilots got the eight men down within three hours. The dangerous rescue operation was carried out 12,000 feet up the slopes of the 15,781-foot peak. The two had set out two days before Christmas to scale Mt. Blanc despite adverse weather forecasts. Two helicopters succeeded in making shuttle landings at the 12,000-foot level, where the eight rescue team was huddled in a climber's shelter. But there was no landing spot near Vincendon and Henry, several hundred yards away. The eight men had been trapped on the 15,781-foot mountain in earlier rescue attempts, four when their helicopter crashed near the two climbers. The other four had parachuted to the site.

CONGRESS IS CONVENED TODAY

GOP Dreams Of Senate Control

By JACK BELL and WILLIAM T. PEACOCK WASHINGTON (AP) — The new 85th Congress convened today in session over which party would control the Senate and confronted with a momentous issue in foreign affairs. Sen. Frank Lausche of Ohio, elected as a Democrat, kept mum on whether he would vote to let the Republicans organize the Senate—something he had intimated he might do. Republican Leader Knowland of California said his party was ready to take control if Lausche would give it his support. Hanging over the new Congress was the grave question of whether to give advance approval for U.S. troops to meet any Communist aggression in the Middle East. The administration's posing of this question—which President Eisenhower may dramatize with a personal appearance before a joint session tomorrow—added an undercurrent of solemnity. The Middle East issue and Lausche's tension-provoking silence overshadowed such other questions of the moment as the promised move by a group of Western and Northern senators to change Senate rules and make it easier to cut off filibusters. They believe such a step could clear the way for passage of civil rights legislation. A civil rights program is one of the domestic matters President Eisenhower has high on his list of desired legislation. He already has outlined some of his desires in conferences with Republican leaders, and will put his requests formally before the Congress in his State of the Union message to be delivered personally a week from today.

Eisenhower To Personally Urge New Mid-East Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will make a personal plea to Congress, probably tomorrow, for standby authority to use U. S. military forces in the Middle East in the event of Russian aggression. His secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, told congressional leaders yesterday the situation in that area "is highly dangerous" and the "Soviet Union may well move to expand its own influence" there. Whether Eisenhower's address to a joint session will come tomorrow, or early next week, depends on how quickly the Senate and House can get organized and extend him a formal invitation. The resolution Eisenhower seeks as outlined in tentative form by Dulles, would: 1. Authorize the President to "undertake programs of military and economic cooperation with free nations in the general area of the Middle East in order to strengthen and defend the independence of those nations." 2. Authorize the spending of 400 million dollars in economic aid to the Middle East over a period of two years beginning next July 1. Those terms of the resolution, still in tentative form, were described in a statement released by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with Dulles' approval after Dulles met with its members and Senate leaders for more than two hours in a closed-door night session. "The secretary viewed the resolution as a deterrent to aggression and as a positive action on behalf of peace," the statement said. "Without the resolution, he thought the danger of war would be increased." Earlier, Dulles spent more than an hour with a similar group from the House. Afterward, Rep. Gordon (D-Ill.), chairman-designate of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said, "We've got to do all we can to go along with the administration's policy on this." Hearings will be started next week, he said. Some senators voiced outright opposition and most of those attending the meeting with Dulles said they would ask further explanations before they commit themselves. But they appeared more concerned with getting the administration to "make out a case" for the proposal than with directly opposing it. Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) predicted Eisenhower "will make a case" and win approval. Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee said Congress should approve the proposal. He said it would give Eisenhower "a hand sufficiently strong that it might well prevent a situation which would require the use of our armed forces." Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said the proposal "will take a lot of looking at." Sen. Keafauver of Tennessee, the 1956 Democratic vice-presidential nominee, said in a statement that at this time he is "not prepared to approve it."

Filibuster Showdown May Be Postponed By Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators seeking to clear the way for the enactment of civil rights legislation were ready today to trigger a new fight over Senate rules, but the showdown may be delayed. Only the first move in the battle was in prospect for the opening session of the 85th Congress. Both sides said in advance they were agreeable to delaying any decision at least until next week. The one step was to be the introduction by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) of a motion that the Senate give immediate consideration to the adoption of rules for the new Congress. The motion normally would be taken up promptly, but by agreement could be delayed until next week.

The motion was prepared on behalf of a group of Northern and Western senators, both Republicans and Democrats, who want to curb filibusters, the traditional weapon used by Southerners in fighting civil rights measures. Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) accused the group yesterday of attempting to take a "short-cut" to change Senate rules, and said that such action in legislative matters "leads to tyranny." He spoke out after a meeting of Southern senators in his office. He indicated that the Southerners, in fighting the move of the Northern-Western coalition, were prepared to bring all other Senate business to a standstill if necessary. The decision to introduce the Anderson resolution at the start of the new Congress today was taken yesterday at a meeting of six Democratic and eight Republican senators in the office of Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.). Anderson said, however, that his side was agreeable to putting off the debate and vote on the motion until later, probably next week, rather than disrupt the opening day ceremonies. Target of the Northern-Western coalition is a Senate rule which requires the votes of 64 senators to halt debate. While not in agreement on just how this rule should be modified, members of the group want to make it easier to prevent civil rights measures and other legislation from being talked to death.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) was unequivocal in his opposition. "I am of the belief it might lead us into war to give the President blanket authority to use troops," he said, adding:

May Again Pass Pearsall Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Machinery legislation to put the Pearsall plan to maintain school segregation in effect may be enacted by the Legislature a second time just to make sure that the technicalities of its passage are correct. Atty. Gen. George B. Patton said today that this is being discussed but that no decision has been reached. When the General Assembly met in special session last summer and approved amendments to the State Constitution which authorized the Pearsall plan, it also enacted laws to put the plan into effect. The laws provided they were not to be effective unless and until the constitutional amendments were approved by the people. Later the amendments were approved by referendum and the Pearsall plan went into effect. Patton said, "Some folks have raised the question whether the Legislature could pass these acts to take effect after a vote of the people on the constitutional amendments."

Pace Of Suez Salvage Work Picks Up Tempo

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — The pace of salvage work in the Suez Canal picked up today with divers and crews working on two of the biggest obstructions—the collapsed Ferdan bridge and the sunken Egyptian landing ship Ak-1. West German teams pushed their work at the Ferdan bridge, 3 1/2 miles south of Port Said. Divers attached wire cables to sections of the sunken span. The salvage vessels Energie and Ausdauer, largest of their type in the world, stood by to lift parts of the damaged structure as they were cut away. Divers made underwater surveys of the Akka. Her removal is expected to be one of the toughest jobs in the clearance operation. The possibility that some of the 13 ships stranded in the canal during the British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt might be able to move out in a few days was reported by Egypt's Middle East News Agency. The agency quoted Mahmoud Yunis, managing director of the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority, as saying large ships would be able to sail for Port Said within the next four days. U. S. Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, U. N. boss of the clearance project, has estimated the entire canal will be open in May to the largest type vessels it can handle. He hopes to have a channel open by early March that can accommodate oil tankers and other vessels up to about 10,000 tons. Work in the immediate Suez city area was taken over by salvage crews from the Egyptian canal authority. The Egyptians went to work on the sunken tug Atlas. An Egyptian spokesman said they expected the tug could be moved in four days. Wheeler, on an inspection tour of work at the Ferdan bridge, told reporters the clearance operation "is going on very well."

Bank Robber Is Caught Leaving Commissioners To Meet Monday

PINE LEVEL, N.C. (AP) — A 21-year-old man was in the Johnston County jail today accused of attempting to rob the Bank of Pine Level Tuesday night. Dep. Sheriff Hugh Lamm said Ray Carlton Edgerton of Smithfield, Rt. 1, admitted he had planned for about six months to rob the bank. Alert police work by local officers resulted in the capture of Edgerton. Bank Cashier E. S. Jones said there was no indication that any money was taken. Several desks drawers had been opened and papers and records scattered, Jones said. Police said Edgerton was armed only with a screw driver when arrested early Wednesday morning as he was leaving the rear door of the bank. Officers said he admitted breaking and entering a filling station Friday night and several offices in Smithfield Monday night. Pine Level Police Officer W. H. Oliver said he noticed a stranger ride slowly by the bank around midnight Tuesday, adding that a few minutes later he saw the man walk around the rear of a store. The officer reported he heard the rear window of the bank being broken and summoned help. Edgerton was arrested shortly afterward.

Protest Appeal For Lower Rate On Leaf Freight

RALEIGH (AP) — The Tobacco Transporters Assn. complained yesterday that proposed rate reductions by railroads on tobacco shipments out of Winston is "an attempt to eliminate motor carrier competition." The association asked the Utilities Commission to suspend and investigate the lower rail rates proposed on shipments of unmanufactured tobacco from Winston to Durham, Greensboro and Winston-Salem. The railroads recently announced that the lower rates would go into effect Jan. 26. The association pointed out that under the rail proposals, rates would be higher for some points between Winston and Durham, Greensboro and Winston-Salem than for the final destination. The railroads, the petition cited, propose to leave unchanged the rate of 33 cents per hundred weight from Winston to Kernersville and would lower to 25 cents the rate between Winston and Winston-Salem, a longer distance. BANKS TO REPORT WASHINGTON (AP) — The comptroller of the currency today issued a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business Monday, Dec. 31.

Mercury Falls In N. Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Coldest temperatures of the season numbered most North Carolinians today as the mercury plunged well below the freezing mark. Warmer weather was predicted for tonight, however. Greensboro reported the day's low reading, 12 degrees above zero—20 under the freezing mark. It was 13 at Asheville, 14 at Raleigh, 17 at Charlotte and 20 at Wilmington. It got cold in the Greenville area last night. The temperature dropped to 16 degrees at the Lower Coastal Plain Tobacco Research Farm south of Greenville. The temperature was the lowest reported this winter but missed by several degrees low temperatures reported last year. It was five degrees colder last night than it was Tuesday night when the mercury dipped to 21.

Tax Relief Considered To Have No Chances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher government costs and an anticipated record peacetime budget all but ruled out any general income tax reduction action in the Congress session opening today. Although some pressures for individual income tax relief were expected, the consensus of key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee seemed to be: "Not a chance." This, however, did not foreclose the possibility of some relief for certain groups of taxpayers. Bipartisan support has developed in Congress during the recess for some revision of business excise (sales) tax laws and for tax aid to small business men. The big block to general individual and corporate income tax cuts is the 1958 fiscal year budget due to be sent to Capitol Hill by President Eisenhower later this month. Congress expects it to put federal spending requests at around 72 billion dollars for the year starting next July 1. This would be the largest budget ever sent to Congress when the nation was not at war. It would leave little room for any sizable reduction in tax revenues, despite forecasts of a treasury surplus of as much as $1,700,000,000 dollars. The Treasury steadfastly has opposed tax reduction this year, contending it cannot be accomplished without serious loss of needed revenue. And the President's economic advisers are understood to oppose such action because of inflationary pressures. Fear of touching off a new inflation spiral through untimely tax cuts also has been voiced by influential House Democrats. While Congress is expected to leave unchanged present income tax rates, a number of selective changes in the tax laws are in the making. These may not cause any important net change in tax revenues.

Patton said, "Some folks have raised the question whether the Legislature could pass these acts to take effect after a vote of the people on the constitutional amendments."

Segregation Laws In Florida Are Upset By District Court

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge today ruled that Florida laws and Miami city ordinances requiring segregated seating on municipal buses are unconstitutional. Judge Emmet Croteau made the oral ruling in refusing to dismiss a petition by Florida branches of the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People requesting an end to segregated bus seating. The judge refused to convene a three-judge court to hear arguments in the case. He said there was no substantial question of constitutional law in view of the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision banning segregated seating on buses in Montgomery Ala. The NAACP filed the suit Oct. 12, 1956, naming the Miami Transit Co., the city and the individual city commissioners. Choate dismissed the transit company as a defendant, ruling it was a private enterprise and not an arm of the state. He gave the city 10 days to file an answer to his ruling. The judge's action touched only segregation on city transit buses, but G. E. Graves Jr. of Miami, attorney for the NAACP, said, "It is apparent that the decision has a much more far-reaching effect than that. It can be extended to trains, suburban and interurban buses."

Dr. A. Joseph Reddick, pastor of Miami's St. James African Methodist Episcopal church, instituted the suit as president of the Florida NAACP. He said it had no "direct link" with legal attacks on bus segregation in Montgomery and Tallahassee, Fla., but "came out of the Supreme Court decision in the Montgomery case."

Miami buses have signs asking Negro passengers to seat themselves from the rear. Dr. Reddick noted that Miami Negroes have not been involved in a boycott and had not used any violence in their campaign against segregated seating. "Our main concern has been to remove the statutes from the books," he said.

Style-Conscious Britons Find Princess Slipping

LONDON (AP) — Style-conscious Britons discovered today that New York fashion experts had taken Meg down a peg. Princess Margaret rated only a ninth place tie with her aunt, the Duchess of Kent, in the 12-place list of the world's best-dressed women. This reversed a trend. The 26-year-old Princess Margaret had been moving up on the New York Dress Institute's list. She placed eighth in 1953, fourth in 1954 and tied for second place last year with another aunt, the Duchess of Windsor. The Duchess of Windsor still was in second place the year right behind Mrs. William Paley, an American. But Princess Margaret had lost ground. Two London newspapers—the Daily Sketch and Daily Mail—expressed heated disagreement. The News Chronicle gave the princess a mild fashion lecture. The Daily Mail writer "started off by referring to the announcement as 'fatuous' and said: "What a lot of nonsense the whole business is. The New York Dress Institute is said to base its decision on a ballot of American fashion writers and editors. "Just who do these people think they are?" The Daily Sketch said it "unhesitatingly selects the princess as the most glamorous and best-dressed girl in the world." In its opinion, the Sketch added, Princess Margaret clearly meets the institute's yardstick of "distinguishing good taste without ostentation or extra agance."

Mills-Arnold Vows Are Spoken

Miss Elsie Ruth Arnold became the bride of Curley Jay Mills in a double ring ceremony December 27 solemnized in the Newton Park Church of Christ, Norfolk, Va.

Officiating minister was the Rev. Willis, pastor of the church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. L. H. Arnold of Greenville and the late Mr. Arnold.

She is a graduate of Grimesland High School and now employed with the C & P Telephone Co. in Norfolk.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Zeno Mills and the late Mr. Mills of Greenville, Route 2.

He is a graduate of Chicod High School and is now serving in the U. S. Navy aboard the carrier USS Franklin D. Roosevelt now stationed in Norfolk.

The bride wore a street-length dress of baby blue taffeta with full gathered skirt. The low V neckline was accented with a single string of pearls.

She wore black and white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Bernice Dixon was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a Navy blue suit with Navy and white accessories.

Tommy Bradshaw of Norfolk served as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Arnold chose a dark grey dress with which she wore black and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Dixon, in Norfolk.

Present for the wedding were members of the bride and bridegroom's families and close friends.

AP Newsfeatures
PARTY DRESSES are as important as orange juice and vitamins to the morals of small girls. This is a point thoughtful mothers do not overlook.
This year the choice is so varied that any pint-size glamor girl should be able to find her dream dress with no difficulty. New styles and fabrics also make life easy for Mom. Some of the most elaborate confections of organdy, frills and lace turn out to be the miracle-fabric kind that can be dunked in the washbowl, hung on a hanger and worn without ironing, as crisp and fresh as new, with ruffle and pleat in place.
Velvet, the all-time favorite for little girls' party dresses, also does new tricks this season, with finishes giving resistance to spots, soil and wrinkles. For all those important parties that follow close on the heels of the New Year—Valentine parties, Washington's Birthday parties—every small social butterfly needs a velvet dress with a lacy collar. It's tradition.

PRIZE WINNING ROSE BOWL FLOAT.—The float of Indio, Calif., winner of the Sweepstakes—top prize in the 68th annual pre-Rose Bowl game Tournament of Roses Parade, passes before some of the million or more spectators who viewed the fabulous floral spectacle at Pasadena. The float was titled "First Date Festival" and heralded the town's desert climate and date orchards. Real dates are suspended from the date trees and the float is a mass of lavender, pink and white flowers. Queen Scheherazade and a caliph are portrayed, along with princesses and slaves. Cross Burned At Pastor's Home

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — A four-foot cross was burned last night in front of the church served by the Rev. C. K. Steele, leader of the Negroes who are campaigning for integrated seating on Tallahassee's buses.

Steele was at a church on the other side of town at the time, presiding at a meeting of the Negro Inter-Civic Council, which has spearheaded the integration drive. Police were summoned by Mrs. Steele but were not in time to make any arrests. It was the second incident directed at the Steeles, who live next door to the church, in as many days. The Steeles have five children. Rocks were thrown at their windows early Tuesday morning and four panes of glass were shattered.

Mrs. Steele and a neighbor knocked the cross over and threw water on it. It was wrapped with Spanish moss which police said had been soaked in kerosene. Asked if the Steeles would be given special protection, Police Sgt. Eugene Christie said the incident is being investigated and "We're going to keep law and order in town." Mrs. Steele had this to say about the cross burning: "I'm a little afraid for my chil-

Seventeen-Year-Old Girl Held As Key To Theft Ring

CHARLOTTE — Pretty Dixie Craver, 17, was held in jail here today on shoplifting charges and her parents asked that she be given a psychiatric examination. The smiling blue-eyed blonde, a former honor student at Landis High School, was named by police yesterday as the key figure in a theft ring that took an estimated $5,000 worth of merchandise from Ivey's Department Store here in the last two months.

Officers said Dixie admitted stuffing dresses, sweaters and other merchandise into shopping bags brought by friends and acquaintances to the department in the store where the girl was employed as a sales girl. Warrants were signed against nine other girls and one man, eight of whom were arrested late yesterday and last night. The warrants charged conspiracy and receiving stolen goods.

Police said the girl's parents had requested that she be given a psychiatric examination. Dixie had told police after her arrest that she had planned to study psychiatry at Duke University after finishing high school. "I don't know how to fight anything that's in the dark. Whoever did it, I don't believe they could possibly know anything about what Christianity means," she said. Last night's Inter-Civic Council meeting included an observance of the anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation signed Jan. 1, 1863, by President Abraham Lincoln.

"I want to study psychiatry because we don't know enough about why people do the things they do," she was quoted as saying. She said she made A's and B's as a student at Landis last year. She didn't return to school this school year because of a kidney ailment.

Dixie said she didn't know why she joined the theft ring. "I didn't get any money out of it. The only thing that I took that I kept were sweaters and I don't know how they found out. I know I would be caught and it's all over now and I'm glad." When arrested, Dixie was wearing a smart mouton coat and ballet slippers. Her blonde hair was covered in a sleep, sophisticated coiffure.

Finally Decided To Fire Teacher

DETROIT — A schoolteacher who for 17 months drew full pay just for signing in daily at the superintendent's office was fired last night by the suburban Hazel Park School Board. The board had refused to give Miss Marveta Hine, 51, a classroom assignment since Sept. 1955. Spokesmen said her fitness was questioned. The board had hesitated to fire her because her job is protected by the State Tenure Commission. She said she would test her dismissal before the commission.

Only a month ago she had posed for newspaper fashion pictures with her hair dyed a lustrous green. She told reporters she once placed second in a beauty contest and would like to be a model if she doesn't go to college.

Capt. W. A. McCall of the Charlotte detective division said all of the defendants except Miss Craver will be given hearings in Recorder's Court tomorrow morning. The other defendants released under $1,000 bonds, are Karen Susan Ross, 18, charged with receiving stolen goods and conspir-

Bogart Feeling 'Great' Again

HOLLYWOOD — Humphrey Bogart says his weight is stabilizing and he is "feeling great" after his 10-month fight against illness.

The actor underwent surgery on his esophagus last March. Some time thereafter he disclosed that a malignancy was removed in the operation. Last Nov. 26 he went back to the hospital for treatment to relieve pressure on a nerve, caused by scar tissue resulting from the previous surgery, his doctors said. "I weigh 120 pounds so I'm holding steady, even though I'm about 35 pounds underweight," he said yesterday. He weighed the same last March.

Miss Craver said Parks was her boy friend for nearly two years before he recently married another girl.

Utilities Should Try Reduce Burden

Prospects of receipt of federal aid by Greenville for construction of its sewage disposal plant promise to ease appreciably the financial burden such a plant would put upon the local Utilities Commission.

These federal funds, which local officials hope will amount to $250,000, added to proceeds from the sale of Craven County holdings of the Utilities Commission to Carolina Power and Light Company, will make up more than half the million-dollar-plus estimated cost of the proposed plant. It is to be hoped that the Greenville Utilities Commission is likewise earmarking a part of its earnings to go into this new project. Planning toward the day when the city would construct a sewage disposal plant have been moving along slowly for the past couple of years. Although engineering work for the outfall lines and other items have moved as far along as possible at the present time, it is not unlikely that another year or more will elapse before actual construction can begin. It may be another two years.

In that period of time Utilities officials should make every effort to provide for financing this major project without having to ask citizens of Greenville to vote for another major bond issue. With proceeds from its sale of Craven County and Vanceboro lines, plus the anticipated federal grant, approximately three-quarters of a million dollars for the project are assured. That leaves somewhere between a quarter and an half million dollars to be provided to pay for the plant. In all probability some part of this latter amount will have to be provided through a special bond issue. If such is the case, we have no doubt that the people of Greenville will approve such bonds.

In spite of the fact that voters of the city probably will be willing to finance a part of the cost of the project through a bond issue, Utilities officials should see to it that the portion which must be financed through a bond issue is a very minimum after every reasonable effort is made to lay aside from earnings money to be used for constructing the new plant.

Some Think It Funny To Harass Authorities

There's a madman on the loose in the biggest city of the world.

He makes bombs and hides them where they may injure or panic a host of innocent people against whom he can have no grudge or hate... unless he hates all others.

So far, despite the greatest possible efforts of law enforcement bodies, the mad one is undetected and free to continue his devilish work.

Police have been harassed in their efforts by scores of false alarms. Jokesters and crackpots have been having a field day in the great search being undertaken to prevent the death of one or many people at the hands of the madman.

Some think it's funny to turn in a false fire alarm or to otherwise spread confusion among the forces of law and order and safety. It really isn't.

There's a madman in the biggest city in the world; waiting to kill, to maim, to destroy.

Anyone who would deliberately hamper the search for such a creature is logically an accessory, and should so be punished.

Educators Don't Call It Lobbying

By LYNN NISBET
LOBBYING — They don't call it lobbying in the usually accepted meaning of that word. It is a friendly gesture to make it easier for members of the General Assembly to obtain accurate information about the needs of the public school system.

Anyway, the United Forces for Education and the North Carolina Education Association, a public school teacher organization, will have legislative headquarters at the Sir Walter Hotel for the 1957 session. Directing activities from this vantage point will be Claude Farrell, who recently gave up his mercantile business at Elkin and resigned from the State Board of Education to take over public relations for NCEA.

The United Forces and NCEA have had legislative committees functioning in every session, but there has been no full time activity since Miss Margery Alexander had the assignment six or eight years ago.

The school teachers are asking salary increases of approximately 20 percent over current levels. The salary schedule is supported by the State Board of Education and the budget presentation calling for some $168 million for the nine months school term includes the 20 percent raise.

Governor Hodges and the advisory Budget Commission have indicated they will recommend an overall pay raise of about 10 percent for State employees, including school teachers. The budget intimation is that the raises might be on a selective rather than "across the board" basis.

In that situation the school teachers feel they need somebody constantly on the job to keep their interests before the lawmakers.

SPENDING — Most school people are inclined to accept the amount appropriated for support of the nine months term as the total spending for public schools. That amount amounted last year to $128,464,422. Actually, there was something like $12 million more of State money spent directly for public schools.

Under the head of departments there is listed an item of $420,425 for the Department of Public Instruction. The administration of the Teachers and State Employees' Retirement system called for $116,865 and the State's contribution to the fund was $9,942,169. Approximately $3 million of this amount was for public school teachers. There are several smaller items directly applicable to public schools hidden in departmental allocations.

Since about three fourths of the State general fund bonded debt is for public school buildings, it is proper to charge about $4 million of the five and a quarter million debt service appropriation to schools.

A comparative table in the current issue of State School Facts, a publication of the Department of Public Instruction, shows that percentage wise the spending for public schools is less than it was ten years ago. In the 1946-47 fiscal year the State spent $54,788,382 on public schools as interpreted by the department, which was 71 percent of all general fund spending. Although the total amount had increased almost two and a half times to $128,464,422 last year, it represented only 63.4 percent of all general fund spending. During the same time, however, there has been

ICC Ruling Has Major Impact

By ELMER ROESSNER

Higher freight and passenger rates — those effective last week and others to come — will have manifold effects on business, some of them far-reaching.

The score to date on rates: The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized Railway Express to boost rates 4 per cent on December 27. It gave eastern railroads a 7 per cent rise in freight rates and western roads a 5 per cent boost, effective December 28. Next Monday it will start considering higher rates by southern roads. An application for another 15 per cent boost by eastern and western roads is still pending. An ICC examiner has approved a 5 per cent rise in coach fares and a 15 cent rise in first class passenger fares.

Freight forwarders have asked permission to raise rates to meet express and freight hikes. Truckers, air-freight lines and other haulers of goods and bodies are working toward higher rates.

MANY IMPACTS
The first result of these hikes is that almost everything will cost more. Nobody will eat the increased costs of goods for manufacture or resale if he can add them on to the price.

After that, slowly perhaps, will come other consequences. Near-by sources will be favored. A merchant in Fort Wayne, for example, will order less from New York if he can find comparable goods, at lower transportation costs, in Indianapolis. Small manufacturing enterprises in every business area are given a rare opportunity for added sales near home. Now they have new differentials in competing with manufacturers over the horizon.

Higher costs of transporting goods will increase the decentralization of industry. The West Coast furniture is flourishing for a number of reasons, one of which is that it costs so much to ship competitive furniture from Grand Rapids High Point and Chicago. Now in other industries new firms will spring up closer to local outlets, and manufacturers in many fields will plan more branch factories and assembly plants. This is a good time, incidentally, for chambers of commerce and other booster groups to step up campaigns to bring in new industries. Freight differentials can be more important in deciding factors.

OTHER CHANGES TO COME
Higher freight rates will speed the acceptance of modern furniture and other light-weight products. The cost of modern will be pushed up less; dealers will have a lower freight investment in each piece. The advantages of lighter autos will be greater, since the cost of shipping replacement parts, gas, oil and the cars themselves will be less. The differentials between heavy and light stoves, television sets, office machines and housewares will be greater. The new freight rates should prove a blessing for the plastics industry, whose products are lighter than competitive wood and most metals.

Air freight may get a lift, too. While air transport charges will rise like others, the air carriers have long emphasized the fact that air shipments save in packaging and crating, warehousing and that priceless factor, time.

More merchants will join in cooperative shipping plans to reduce costs; more will truck their own goods in from important markets. And, some experts believe, power companies may build generating plants near coal mines to cut costs of transporting coal.

TRUCK ALARMS ESCAPE ONE TAX, BUT
You've seen trucks with burglar alarm systems. Are the alarms auto parts or accessories, hence as such subject to the Federal excise tax?

You're right. Of course they're not!

When the alarm goes off, it communicates the idea that a robbery is in progress. Therefore the system is a communications system. So while an alarm is exempt from the auto accessories tax, it is subject to the communications tax.

So says the Internal Revenue Service in an official ruling.

constructed the debt service charge and spending for auxiliary educational activities such as libraries and art galleries has greatly increased.

Taking into account all educational projects, from kindergarten to university graduate schools, arts, libraries, etc., the proportion of State revenue going into education is fairly constant at about 80 percent.

HIDDEN — Public school costs are not the only items for which appropriations are obscured by indirectness. Every legislative session affords numerous instances of passing the buck and dodging responsibility by making specific allocations out of the contingency and emergency fund — which had already been appropriated for the discretionary use of the Governor and the Council of State. Legislators also blindly assign additional duties to agencies and departments without making appropriation to pay them with tacit understanding that the bills will be paid out of the C&E fund.

None of these cases have been challenged in the courts, but there is legal opinion to the effect if they were challenged the payments might be denied on the theory of double appropriation of the same dollar.

One of the problems involved in proposed divorce of prisons from the Highway and Public Works Commission is the added cost to the general fund of parole and probation operations. Although parole is an executive and probation a judicial function, since they deal with prisoners the cost of these activities has been charged to the highway fund. Full separation will impose the half million dollars for these services on the general fund, and also will relieve the highway fund of $50,000 to $100,000 direct contributions to mental tuberculous hospitals for care of prisoners.

The Public Forum

To the Editor

As of last night the N. C. State Highway Patrol and the people of Pitt County lost a very fine officer; one who has as long as I have known him been a man who has done his duty not only as an officer but as a man devoted to his family and community. I am sure that the vast majority of us who know him as a friend and officer will miss him, and it is my hope that his replacement will be able in part to fill his place.

On the other hand we the people of Pitt County have found ourselves a new servant of and for the people — and our loss on the one side is our gain on the other. I am speaking of Mr. Delton Perry of Bethel, N. C. who has left his post with the patrol and is now our new Assistant Tax Collector. I wish to commend the County Commissioners for their selection. They could not have found a man more able and trustworthy anywhere than Mr. Perry. I for one want to wish him success and happiness in his new work.

Yours truly,
J. S. MOORE

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DISCONSOLATING EPIGRAPH
George Bernard Shaw quotes an epitaph which reads: "Died at 30, buried at 60."

The Creed speaks of the quick and the dead, meaning the living and the dead. It would be interesting to go over the tax list, or the roster of our favorite club, or the membership of our church and try to separate the dead from the living. Ostensibly, we die when life leaves our body, but intellectually we die when we stop thinking. We die morally, when, after giving in time after time to a weakness, we arrive at the place where, indeed, "that weakness owns us as its slave. Physically, we stop growing many years before we die, but intellectually and spiritually the opposite is true. When we cease to grow mentally and spiritually, we cease to live.

Creativeness is characterized by a tremendous rush of vigor which we call life. Out of this mighty torrent has come the world's great paintings, its overwhelming symphonies, its great plays and novels. There may have been Michelangelos who lived and died mere messenger boys. There may have been Shakespeares who never even learned to sign their names.

Life is our greatest legacy. Let us be sure we have life in us when we die — "Died at 30, buried at 60."

Not Changed By Travel

One of my brothers has established for himself a little reputation as a world traveler.

About nine years ago the Navy started him off in big fashion with a couple of trips across the country. Since that time, as a sailor and as a civilian, he has been across the country 20 times: made at least one round-trip across the Pacific Ocean; planted his footprints in Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, the Philippines and Hawaii; helped to map coastal waters of the Western United States, Canada and Alaska; and put in some time at the University of Washington in Seattle where he is presently a Senior student of cartography, whatever that is.

At the present time he has a nice little set-up which allows him to continue his studying and make a little money on the side.

He attends UW from September until April (two quarters each year) and then takes off for a summer job with the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Service. He and other persons measure ocean depths and land surfaces, and make maps and charts for other persons. The job lasts until September when he goes back to school.

This past summer the group spent most of its time in Alaska and the Aleutian Islands. The trip gave him an opportunity to visit Dutch Harbor, a couple of volcanoes, some of the most scenic portions of the North American continent and other places I'd like to see.

The trip also added to his feeling of almost complete disregard for distance. He speaks of a trip from Seattle to Vancouver, British Columbia, as I would of a trip from Greenville to Farmville. In fact, he's even more casual — his next trip to Vancouver will be to pick up a batch of cookies and I haven't made a trip to Farmville just for cookies, yet.

Frankly, the boy overwhelms me. He has traveled a long way from the bare foot days of our youth in Wayne County. He has been a lot of places, had a load of memorable experiences and met people I suppose I'll only read about.

But he's still a small town boy, at heart. He still likes to take his shoes off, prop up his feet and practice his Southern drawl.

And he still hates to walk to the neighborhood store for a loaf of bread.

Crystal Ball In Focus

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A glance in our cloudy crystal ball at what lies ahead in 1957 shows one thing clearly:

It will be the most memorable year since 1956!

The forecast is for a fast, fabulous, fantastic, frenzied, frustrating 12 months, full of much folly and funderol — a year formidable to the wise, fatal to the foolfish.

Now is the time to lay in a good supply of vitamin pills. You'll need 'em by the handful to fortify you during the fateful coming days.

In terms of common sense and understanding, the foreign situation will become more foreign than ever. The greatest problem on the international scene will be how to keep the cold war in the freezer.

The greatest threat to world peace will come from inside the Soviet colossus, as its leaders split anew in a deadly game of "Russian roulette," each seeking to grab ultimate power.

A measure of the seriousness of the deepening world crisis will be the fact that French will topple only two Cabinets.

Other forecasts, some not as zany as they sound:

Anglo-American amity will increase, keyed by British declarations of a "forgive and forget policy." The declarations will be made just before the start of the annual rush of American tourists to Europe. However, European hotel rates will rise — to help pay for all that winter oil bought from the United States.

A new atmosphere of good will will pervade television, with Walter Winchell and Steve Allen taking turns emceeing for Ed Sullivan during his vacation.

More and more Americans will try to get rich quick in the stock market — and more stock brokers actually will get rich. General Electric and AT&T will engage in a bitter verbal duel over which has the most widows and school-teachers among its stockholders.

The outlook in other fields: POLITICS — The South will develop a real two-party system — one for national elections, one for state elections.

BUSINESS — Big business will get bigger, small business will get lonesome.

CONGRESS — It will start 86 new and separate investigations, each headed by a senator or congressman hoping his inquiry will make him a presidential possibility.

WHITE HOUSE — Every Republican wife who is invited there during the year will look around with an eye to how she'd like to rearrange the furniture in 1961.

CONSTRUCTION — An inventor will come up with a new accordion-type garage guaranteed to stretch enough to cover even two 1957 motor cars.

SPORTS — After winning another World Series, manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees will retire to head a program to teach gymnastics to American Olympic athletes. Pravda will announce it has discovered that an obscure 67-year-old Russian athlete named Ivan Gladovitchsky actually first broke the four-minute mile in 1858 by covering the distance in 3:49 while wearing a snow suit.

MEDICINE — A new wonder drug will be announced for people to take who feel good and wonder what's wrong with them. A sure preventive for the common cold will be found at last — in the form of a government law that anyone who catches one will have to pay a tax on it.

That's about all the crystal ball shows now for 1957, except for one more flat prediction:

There will be no major snowslides in Florida. If I'm wrong, let me know.

Decline & Fall Of U.S. Foreign Policy

Part II
By HANS J. MORGENTHAU
(from The New Republic)

The attitude toward force which has been manifest in the recent moves of American foreign policy is a drawback to the philosophy of the Briand-Kellogg Pact outlawing war as an instrument of national policy and to the Stimson doctrine refusing to recognize territorial changes brought about by violent means. This attitude makes sense only on three assumptions: that nobody else pursues his interests by using or threatening force, that in case somebody else should do so sufficient force can be brought to bear upon him to deprive him of the advantage of having been the first to use force, and that a nation's interests cannot be threatened by non-violent means against which that nation can defend itself only through the use or the threat of force. It is trivial to state, but unfortunately necessary to demonstrate, that none of these assumptions exists on the international scene.

There have always been nations who were willing to pursue their interests by violent means. Some nations were dominated by demagogic men with limitless ambitions, others were confronted with conditions which seemed to allow them only the resort to violent means. Since the end of the Second World War, the Soviet Union, Communist China, Great Britain, France, the Arab countries have been the first to use violence in pursuit of their national interest. There being no supranational authority in the world which could forestall that use of force, it is for the nations adversely affected by it to forestall or oppose it through the use of their own force. One nation declaring that it, alone among the great powers, will never use violence first or will not use it at all in some regions, such as Eastern Europe, or will use it only if authorized by the United Nations, expands drastically the freedom of action of its enemies and imposes narrow limitations upon its own. Within certain limits, the enemy can act in disregard of the interests and reactions of other nations and, as a corollary, the nation having forewarned force condemns itself to helplessness inactivity. When both nations meet at that point where the latter must either surrender or fight, the former, through the timely use of force, might well have gained a decisive advantage.

Furthermore, a nation who has been assured that no force will be used against it if it does not use it first, will naturally find means short of force by which to further its interests at the expense of others. A nation can make its enemy ready for the kill by means of economic strangulation, subversion or military preparations, and the prospective victim can take effective counter-measures only after the other nation has fired the first shot. When a thief hits you over the head in order to separate you from your billfold, you can reply in kind provided you are still in a position to do so; but if the thief chooses the methods of the pickpocket for the same end, you must refrain from using force. The obvious absurdity of this principle as applied to individuals has not prevented the spokesmen for the government of the United States from stating it as a principle for American foreign policy.

However, the seemingly conclusive argument against the use of force except as reaction to the use of force by others is the risk of atomic war. Despite its surface plausibility and the weight of opinion — from Arthur Krock to Norman Thomas — supporting it, it has no merit. The possibility of avoiding atomic war rests upon two assumptions: that no responsible governments. The correctness of these two assumptions allowed the Soviet Union to resort to force in Eastern Europe and threaten the use of force in the Middle East without the risk of atomic war. Yet we were deterred from threatening the use of force in the Middle East or in Eastern Europe by the fear of that risk. Do we then assume that the government of the Soviet Union is likely to commit all nations concerned to extinction by starting an atomic war? Certainly our over-all global strategy of atomic retaliation is based upon the opposite assumption, the very same assumption from which the Russian initiatives were derived. If it were otherwise, if we

'Pointed Study' Of Soil Bank To Begin Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Agriculture Committee has set a "pointed study" hearing Monday for operations of the administration's farm program, Chairman Coolidge D-NC has announced. Secretary of Agriculture Benson has been called for questioning about the soil bank program and to receive administration recommendations for changes in the farm law. Cooley said. Benson's summons signals probable early renewal of the running battle between congressional Democrats and the Eisenhower administration over farm price supports. House farm leaders, at the moment, apparently have no plans to press for restoration of price supports at a mandatory 90 per cent of parity in place of the administration's sliding scale support program and soil bank payments. Parity is the legal standard designed to give farmers a fair return in relation to costs.

Eden Expected To Cancel Visit

LONDON (AP)—The Evening Standard said today Prime Minister Eden is expected to cancel his spring visit to the Soviet Union because of the Kremlin's hardening attitude toward the West and the Communist satellite states. "Although the Prime Minister has yet to take a formal decision," the paper added, "cancellation of the visit is regarded, on present form, as almost certain."

Traffic Accidents Killed More Than Ever In 1956; Stern Action Studied

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Traffic accidents killed more Americans in 1956 than ever before—and law officials throughout the nation are turning to get-tough policies to cut down the highway slaughter.

There was at least a 5 per cent rise over 1955. Safety experts estimate the total at more than 40,000.

The 1955 figure was 38,426. The previous high — 39,969 — was recorded in 1941.

In states which had fewer traffic fatalities in 1956 than in 1955, credit generally is given to rigid enforcement of safety measures. In states where traffic deaths increased, similar crackdowns generally are planned.

A state-by-state survey by The Associated Press shows that these measures — already in effect in some states and planned in others — include:

1. Increasing the number of police patrols on highways. This has top priority in most states.

2. New laws—or harsher enforcement of existing laws—calling for suspension of licenses and —or fines and imprisonment for motorists convicted of drunk driving, "chronic" negligence and speeding.

3. Tighter examinations for vehicle licenses and mandatory auto inspection programs.

4. Use of National Guard troops of sheriff's deputies to reinforce regular highway police during peak travel periods, such as holiday weekends.

5. Periodic roadblocks — with massed troopers stopping all cars and checking on licenses, intoxication and vehicle condition.

6. Expansion of the use of radar devices in catching speeders.

7. Establishing state speed limits where they are not already in force.

The survey came on the heels of the Christmas and New Year weekends when 1,115 persons were killed in the combined holiday periods—a new high.

Safety experts attributed the comparatively low toll of 409 during the four-day New Year weekend to increased vigilance and enforcement measures resulting from the nation's reaction to the staggering Christmas weekend total of 706 traffic deaths. The Christmas traffic toll was a record for any holiday.

Tennessee and Michigan are examples of states which took strong measures to reduce highway fatalities in 1956—see succeeded.

Tennessee effected a 16 per cent decrease from the preceding year — from 906 to 758 — with strict enforcement policies. These included speedblocks, a concentration of radar-bearing squad cars in one area to check speeders, and roadblocks.

The Tennessee system of roadblocks was graphically illustrated over the New Year's weekend.

when massed groups of troopers stopped 27,000 cars and made 708 arrests for intoxication, vehicle and license violations, and other traffic infractions.

Gov. C. Mennen Williams, noting Michigan's decrease from 2,004 traffic deaths in 1955 to 1,725 in 1956, declared:

"The main weapons we have used are increased state police patrols; better control of driver licensing and suspension of licenses from dangerous drivers; use of National Guard troops to reinforce state police and sheriff's road patrols, and widespread publicity."

Suez Canal Quiet But Road Is Open

By ANTOINE YARED

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — Ships can't move through the Suez Canal today, but you can drive along the highway that lies beside it, running from Suez on the Red Sea to Port Said on the Mediterranean.

The canal has been closed two months, and a stillness has settled over the entire canal area.

The starting point of a trip, Suez, is almost a paralyzed city today. In normal times the harbor is filled with tankers, freighters, passenger ships. Today the harbor is blocked by the 4,000-ton Egyptian ship Zamalek, lying on its side. An Egyptian salvage crew including divers is working on the Zamalek in the hope of opening the harbor soon.

At the entrance to the canal at Suez a U.N. salvage team was swinging into action. A Dutch diver slipped over the side of a motor launch and began work on the sunken Egyptian warship Abukir.

The Abukir, on its side, was completely visible in the clear water of the canal. Behind it with smokestacks jutting out of the water lay the sunken Suez Canal Co. tug Hercule. In the center of the canal lay the 600-ton company craft Castor. All were sunk during the attack on Egypt.

Driving on up the canal, one could see parts of sunken craft at intervals, some had their bows in the air while the smokestacks of others rose above the water. Many were completely submerged and invisible from the highway.

The best available information is there are some 50 sunken vessels from one end of the canal to the other.

A motorist has to leave the main channel of the canal to skirt the edge of Bitter Lake. Then you pass the Ferdan bridge, completely collapsed in the center and untouched since it was bombed. This was the only permanent bridge across the canal south of Port Said. Two German salvage vessels, under U.N. auspices have tied up here.

A few miles north of the Bitter Lake is Lake Timsan, another lake through which canal traffic must pass. At its entrance lies the sunken Egyptian LST Akka, first vessel to go down. The Akka presents the toughest salvage job in the entire clearance operation.

At Ismailia, roughly halfway point on the canal road, an Egyptian salvage craft was engaged in limited and preliminary clearance operations.

Eight miles north of Ismailia you see what looks like one of the convoys that moved four times daily through the canal. There are 12 ships outlined against the sky, sitting on the water as though sailing through. These were the ships trapped in the canal when the waterway was closed.

The German salvage ships Ausdauer and Energie, now at the Ferdan bridge, moved south from El Cap, which used to be the divi line between Egyptian and British-French forces. Earlier they had moved south from Port Said, along with the Italian tug Hercule, the Italian floating winch Squalo and the Swedish salvage ship Heracles—all ready to help in salvage work.

The channel from Port Said to El Cap was cleared sufficiently to allow the salvage fleet to move.

Not long after leaving El Cap, you cross the bridge into Port Said. This city once lived largely from selling to tourists who passed through. Today Port Said is dormant waiting for the day when ships move through again.

In Port Said harbor two ships—one British and one French—fly the blue U.N. flag. They were clearing a sunken vessel in the harbor. The harbor will be formally reopened soon.

But it will be months before Port Said's vendors, merchants and guides will be catering again to tourists from distant ports. The U.N. estimates ships up to 10,000 tons will be able to pass through the canal in March. It will be "sometime in May" before the biggest ships will be passing through.

PIGGY BANK RAID

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Children raided their piggy banks to help finance emergency feeding of domestic animals and wildlife in the fire-stricken Malibu area. George Crosier of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said hundreds of donations were received after he made public appeals for funds. A great many of them came from children.

Canadian Pacific Railway Idled By Stubborn Strike

MONTREAL (AP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway system — nearly half of Canada's rail network — was idled from the Atlantic to the Pacific today by a strike of firemen.

Prospects appeared dim for settlement of the dispute over the railway's plans to eliminate firemen from some diesel engines.

Some 3,000 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers (CLC) quit their jobs at 4 p.m. yesterday. Picket lines were thrown up.

A total of some 75,000 CPR workers are expected to be laid off. Other unions pledged not to cross picket lines.

Unemployment threatened other industries dependent on railroad transportation.

CPR President N. R. Crump declared in a statement the railway would run trains if nonstriking unions would work.

Crump also urged the firemen to accept a federal conciliation board's majority report approving the CPR plan for the gradual elimination of firemen helpers on diesel locomotives in freight and yard services. Railway sources estimated about 200 firemen would be affected.

The report also suggested a 7 per cent wage increase retroactive to last April and another 5 per cent boost effective next June. The union sought a 2 per cent wage hike, but wages were a minor issue.

The union stood fast on its rejection of any proposal to reduce or cut out diesel firemen helpers. Brotherhood chief W. E.

Gamble said the union was willing to help an independent tribunal study the firemen helper question as proposed by the government but would not be bound by the tribunal's report. The CPR has said it would agree to a tribunal's binding report. Operations along the 17,000 miles of CPR track today were confined to housekeeping duties.

Phants Catch Fire To Whip Favored New Bern 59-48

FOOTBALL ACTION, IT WAS—Pictures from last night's Greenville-New Bern basketball encounter resemble football action more than that of a cage contest. It was a rough, hard-fought game all the way and these photos have captured some of that aggressiveness. In the first photo, New Bern's Gillikin (11) seems to have the ball clutched under his wing like a halfback, plunging through Greenville tacklers. Greenville's Dick Evans (7) is making the initial stop. WAYNE EIDSON (11) again resembles a halfback preparing to be tackled. Actually, the Green guard is recovering a lost ball and is being pursued by New Bern's Burwell. BURWELL TACKLED could be the title of the third photo. The New Bern guard (with ball) is hit from behind by an unidentified Greener in a scrap for a rebound. Burwell was the game's high scorer, with 20 points.

HUDSON POPS ONE—In a distinctly-basketball post for a change, Greenville's Wesley Hudson pops in a lay-up shot in the 59-48 Phantoms victory at New Bern. The win marked the first of the season for Greenville, who had lost four earlier games against AAA opponents. (Reflector Photos by Billy Arnold).

By BILLY ARNOLD, Reflector Sports Editor. NEW BERN — The Greenville Phantoms caught fire here last night after two minutes of the third quarter, and raged ahead of a favored New Bern outfit to post their first victory of the season, 59-48.

Rated to lose by from 10 to 14 minutes, Coach Bo Farley's Phants played close ball with the Bears throughout the first half and came back from behind to grab an almost easy win with a determined second-half bid. Center Steve Noble paced the winners on the backboards with 13 rebounds, while guard Wayne Eidson chalked up 17 points to take Green scoring honors.

Phantoms Scrapped The heretofore-winnless Phantoms scrapped hard from start to finish against the Taller Bears and credit for the victory should be awarded in greater part to sheer determination. Coach Bo Farley used his inexperience squad in two alternating quintets, which he substituted constantly during play. The first five consisted of Francis Nunn and Dick Evans at forwards, Wayne Eidson and Walker Allen at guards and Steve Noble at center. The alternating five were composed of Mack Roebuck and Wesley Hudson at guards, Charlie Smith and Billy Cox at forwards and either Joe Wingate or Albert Crawford at center. The game opened slowly and Greenville took a 1-0 lead on a free toss. New Bern came back on two points by guard Burwell and moved ahead by several points. The two teams battled almost evenly throughout the first two periods, with the Bears managing to keep a two-to-three point lead most of the way.

As the halftime neared, New Bern had a 26-22 point lead. A free toss by Steve Noble cut it to 26-23 and a last-second field goal by guard Wayne Eidson made it 26-25 as the buzzer sounded. G-Men Pull Away As the third period opened up, New Bern led off with a quick field goal to make the score 28-25, but the Phants came back strong. Walker Allen pumped in four of his six points quickly and Eidson, Evans and Noble joined in with more shots. Within three minutes, the G-Men had taken over the lead at 29-28. From there, they went on to push it to 42-32, a 10-point margin. Again, it was 45-34, as the Big Green poured it on in a heat of quick scoring. New Bern's tiny guards, Burwell and Gillikin, kept the home team in the game with driving lay-ins, but were unable to beat the Phantoms on the boards. Noble, Roebuck, Crawford, Evans, Smith, Wingate, Nunn and Cox all joined in to take a clean edge over the Bears in rebounds.

In the late minutes of play, Greenville played precision ball, passing well and shooting only when open. This slowed down the pace, but insured their lead. They maintained a good margin and finally ended with a 59-48 victory.

The win was their first of the season in five games. They lost four to AAA non-conference clubs. At this early point, they are leading the Northestern League with a 1-0 mark.

Game Changed Friday night, the Phantom-Washington game site has been set for Washington instead of the ECC gym, as originally planned. The Phants will go to Washington this Friday night and will play host to the Pam Pack on January 30, here.

In a preliminary game, last night, the Greenville Jayvees went down to defeat for the fifth consecutive time, 26-21. They held a 16-6 lead over the Baby Bears at halftime but succumbed to a fast attack by the hosts in the final two quarters. Outstanding for the Green were Finch, Ward, Bynum and Moye.

Next Time He'll Be Mean, Says New Champ Fullmer

NEW YORK (AP)—Gene Fullmer, freshly crowned middleweight champion, warned Sugar Ray Robinson today that he'll be "twice as mean" and gunning for a knockout the next time he fights the dethroned kink.

"I fought for nothing this year," said the unmarked, 25-year-old Mormon from West Jordan, Utah. "The next fight — if Robinson wants it — I'll be out there for the big money and to keep the title. I'll be twice as mean and I'll be out for a knockout. I wanted to go for the kavo in this one but Marv (manager Marv Jensen) said I had the title wrapped up in the late rounds and not to open up."

Fullmer, a thick-necked, brawny mine worker with a zest for fighting, got off to a fast start in the first three rounds, swept the sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth rounds, and clinched the first boxing title for Utah with a rousing surge in the 13th and 14th rounds.

Robinson, hurt five times himself, shook Gene at least three times but couldn't follow up as he did in the past when he seemed to sense when he had an opponent in trouble. Maybe the spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak and the reflexes have slowed. Robinson, who collected a fat purse of $139,050 to Fullmer's $20,802, has a contract calling for a return bout within 90 days at 30-30 split if he wants it. How did he feel about continuing in the ring? "Boxing is my business," he replied, leaving no doubt that he wants another crack at Fullmer. "If he wants it, the fight is his," said both Fullmer and his manager Marv Jensen.

Charges Bill Russell Uses Illegal Maneuvers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Eddie Gottlieb, owner of the Philadelphia Warriors, concedes that rookie Bill Russell can do some wonderful things on a basketball court, but says part of the success of the Boston Celtics' center is due to illegal maneuvers. Gottlieb's charge yesterday was immediately termed "sour grapes" by Celtics' Coach Red Auerbach.

Gottlieb, whose defending champion Warriors trail the Celtics in the National Basketball Assn. Eastern Division and have had a rough time with Russell, says tending Bill tries to play a one-man zone and that he "goal tends" at times. The Warriors chief said he planned an official protest on at least one play in Tuesday's night game in Syracuse.

"Our Paul Arizin went underneath for a simple back lay-up and as the ball headed down toward the basket, Russell batted it away. If this isn't goal tending, I want somebody to tell me what it is."

Goal tending applies to the maneuver — outlined in basketball — of deflecting a ball after it begins its downward curve on a shot. Gottlieb contends that the 6-foot-10 Russell tries to play a zone by standing under the basket and waiting to "try and bat shots out."

The zone defense too has been outlined in the NBA to keep the same going at a fast pace. Jocko Collins, NBA supervisor of officials, said he had received no official complaint. He said he had seen Russell play and "as far as I'm concerned Russell is playing legitimate."

Winterville And Farmville Take Basketball Victories

Winterville high school took two Pitt County conference games from Grimesland, Tuesday night. Last night, Farmville's girls copied a victory over the non-conference Benvenue club, 44-25. In the Winterville-Grimesland girls match, Barbara Worthington collected 14, Dorothy Evans 18 and Barbara Evans 37 points to lead their Winterville club to a 69-61 triumph. Martin paced the losers with 24.

Farmville's Garland collected 25 tallies to pace the Farmville girls' aster night. She was aided by F. Baker and Eason, who collected 10 and seven points respectively. Benvenue's Cheving had 13. Farmville's boys trampled the Benvenue boys 63-21 in a rousing lopsided contest. Wooten paced the winners with 18 points. The Farmville second stringers played the whole second half. The Farmville Jayvees made a clean sweep of it, by topping the Benvenue Jayvees, 23-13. It was all-Farmville, as they copped three straight games.

Tomorrow Night

East Carolina plays its first post-Christmas contest here tomorrow night at Memorial Gymnasium, against Belmont Abbey. The Pirate Jayvees travel to Chowan tonight for their third game of the season. ECC is rated a four-point underdog to the Belmont Abbey team tomorrow night, in a non-conference affair.

Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial

Hoop dancers were among the most skilled performers at Gallup. Popular among the Pueblos of Laguna and Taos, the performers dance in and out of, around and through a number of hoops at one time.

While the residents of Gallup look on, the Indians in their festive native dress parade through the streets of the city.

For four glorious days each year the near-forgotten civilization of the American Indian comes glowingly alive at the annual Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial in Gallup, New Mexico.

From far and wide, the Indians of many tribes—the Navajos, the Pueblo, the Zuni, the Apache, the Sioux, the Hopi—come by truck and car and on foot to participate in the celebration. It is a panorama of exciting color and action. Dressed in their ancestral costumes, the Indians put on their native dances—an art in which they prove they still have the skill of their forefathers. Many dancers streak their faces and bodies with gaudy colors. Others wear feathered headdress. Some carry ornaments trimmed with bright feathers.

The dances are the highlight of the ceremonial, but there are other events and sights which hold the interest of the spectators. There are competitions in riding and roping, running and tugs-of-war, the racing of horses and wagons. Each morning there is a mile-long parade of performers through the streets of Gallup.

Apache, dressed as Crown or Gans Dancer, impersonates the spirits which live in the mountains. He's sometimes called a Devil Dancer. He wears a buckskin skirt and boots.

Navajo Indian participants in the Feather Dance. Their faces are painted with dark and light bands, and their bare upper bodies are painted with dark and light circles.

A long-braided Taos Indian of northern New Mexico brandishes two-headed hammer and shield during his dance.

Apache maiden holds baby, who is snugly laced onto a cradle board. Over full cotton skirt she wears a buckskin blouse, fringed and beaded.

CHAPTER 17

The fear that had been in Chad a moment ago was over, for now the burden of responsibility began weighing upon him.

Chad motioned to a small knoll to his right. "We'll wait yonder, but regardless of what happens, there will be no firing unless I give the order."

Chad turned to watch the commissioners, who had sat down with Cut Lip and Big-Belly-on-a-Horse and a number of other Indians.

As far as Chad could tell, the talk was going smoothly enough. Now, for the first time, it struck him that this meeting was of great importance.

He licked dry lips and stole a glance at Mullvane. He saw the beads of sweat that made a bright shine on the sergeant's red face.

A sudden explosion of excitement broke out among the traders who had been swapping their wares for pelts.

"What's the row about, Zack?" Chad called.

"The Injuns are helpin' themselves to more'n the traders want to give 'em," Zack said.

The excitement spread, and now the commissioners seemed to be in an argument with the chiefs.

Chad glanced along the line of soldiers: he saw the strain, the uncertainty on their faces.

The commissioners and traders had retreated to the left of the soldiers and somewhat behind.

Cut Lip said something, one hand gripping the handle of a butcher knife encased in a shiny leather scabbard.

"Easy," Zack called, as unconcerned as if he were in a shooting gallery in St. Louis.

The main body of Indians was moving toward Cut Lip and Big-Belly-on-a-Horse.

He saw the strain, the uncertainty on their faces. He saw the beads of sweat that made a bright shine on the sergeant's red face.

At last the leisurely chat between Zack and the two chiefs was over. The scout rose and called to Chad. "Fetch them commissioners over here. Have the man cart out the presents. The Injuns want to look the goods over a little more."

For the first time since he had known Zack, Chad saw none of the friendly, quizzical expression which habitually dominated his dark face.

Chad swung toward Mullvane. "On your feet, Sergeant. Take six men and carry the presents back to the Indians."

Artubnot obeyed, muttering softly. Mullvane and his men laid the boxes of presents down and stalked back to the knoll.

Cut Lip's black eyes glittering, lifted Artubnot's huge gold watch from his pocket.

turnabout. "Head back to the scow. Make tracks. Don't run and don't look back!"
As soon as they reached the safety of the boat, the commissioners recovered their dignity.

Over 350,000 Immigrants For U.S. In 1956

WASHINGTON (AP)—Immigration Commissioner Joseph M. Swing said today more than 350,000 immigrants were admitted to the United States during 1956, the largest number since 1925.

In a year-end report to Atty. Gen. Brownell, Swing noted the total admissions had been swelled by some 21,500 Hungarian refugees in the closing weeks of the year.

The commissioner said the longstanding problem of "wetbacks"—illegal entrants from Mexico—had been virtually eliminated by a drive during the past two years.

Chad grabbed Artubnot by the lapels of his coat and shook him. "I guess your lives aren't worth your watches, judging by the way you're talking. Mister, I don't know why we even try to save the lives of the incompetent jackasses they send from Washington, but we did, and you'd better tell the truth when you go back."

He walked to the other side of the boat. A moment later the Last Chance left the soldiers off on the north bank of the pier and then proceeded upstream toward Fort Blaine.

Zack laughed. "You know, Loo-tinant, Artubnot ain't gonna forget you."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market was irregular with a slightly higher trend on average early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks moved narrowly, showing gains or losses within the range of a point or so.

The market was higher in active trading at the opening but most of the edge to the upside was blunted in later dealings. Meanwhile, turnover slackened considerably.

Wall Street observers said that after yesterday's profit-taking there was a drying-up of bids rather than selling pressure and that in the absence of outstanding news the market was being governed by technical factors.

Leading oils were mostly on the upside but in most other major groups the pattern of pivotal stock was mixed.

Shippingbuilding issues, however, continued their rise of yesterday on prospects for booming business in the next three years.

New York shippingbuilding was ahead more than 4 and Newport News Shipbuilding more than 3.

American Telephone made an unusual gain of more than a point for this narrowly moving security.

Goodyear dipped well beyond a point.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) led the oil division with an advance of around a point.

Among the steels, Youngstown and Republic were steady while U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were easier.

Lukens, the sprinter of this division, did little or nothing.

Schick, the maker of electronic shavers, made its debut on the New York Stock Exchange, opening on 200 shares at 17 1/2, up 1/2 from its close yesterday on the American Stock Exchange.

It kept its edge in later trading.

Boeing and Douglas lost about a point each.

Westinghouse Electric gained a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 40 cents to $180.80 with the industrials up 60 cents, the rails up 60 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

CHICAGO — (USDA) — Salable hogs 9,000; moderately active to slow; butchers unevenly steady to 25 higher; most advance on 230 lb and lighter; sows active, strong to fully 25 higher; mostly 2-3 190-230 lb 17.25-17.60; few lots mostly 225 lb and down 17.65-18.00; latter price for about one double deck; mostly 240-270 lb mainly 2-3 16.75-17.25; few mainly 2 around 240 lb 17.35; 280-330 lb 16.25-16.75; large lots mixed grade 350-550 lb sows 14.50-15.75.

Salable cattle 3,000; calves 300; prime steers practically absent; good to average steers 1250 lb up steady to weak; other weights and grades of steers steady to strong; heifers fully steady; cows active, strong; bulls steady to 50 lower; vealers steady to 1.00 higher; stockers and feeders steady; small lot of prime 1100 lb steers 25.00; good to average choice steers 18.00-22.50; load utility 1150 lb Holstein steers 14.00; high choice and prime heifers absent; good to average choice 17.50-21.00; standard to low good heifers 14.00-17.00; utility and commercial cows 10.75-13.00; bulk canners and cutlers 9.50-13.50; odd head weights commercial bulls 17.00; most utility and commercial bulls 14.00-16.50; good and choice vealers 20.00-25.00; cull down to 10.00; good and choice 800-850 lb feeding steers 16.50-18.85; common stockers down to 11.50.

Postmaster Said Planning Ask Five-Cent Stamp

WASHINGTON — A Republican lawmaker reported today that Postmaster General Summerfield is planning to ask Congress to raise the price of letter stamps to 5 cents. They now cost 3 cents.

The legislator, who asked that his name not be used, said Summerfield presented this plan at a White House meeting of GOP congressional leaders last Monday.

The Post Office Department declined to comment on the report.

The postmaster general, with President Eisenhower's backing, has urged Congress unsuccessfully for the past four years to boost postal rates to try to wipe out its agency's chronic deficit. But always before Summerfield has sought only a penny hike in the first class letter rate.

One Injured As Autos Collide

One person was injured when two cars collided on NC 43 near Greenville around 11:15 o'clock last night.

Investigating patrolman J. B. Surles identified the injured woman as Mrs. Sadie Tyson, Negro. She was thrown from a car operated by her husband, Simon Tyson Jr., Negro, of Greenville Rt. 1.

The car was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by George Bennett York of Pinetops.

Surles estimated damage to each of the cars at $150. No charges were placed.

Two Of India's Quintuplets Die

MADRAS, India — Two of India's first quintuplets are dead and little hope is held for a third girl. Hospital authorities said the other two babies are in normal health.

The five girls, first quint reported in Indian medical history, were born on New Year's Eve to a 29-year-old Indian servant woman named Kamalam at Pondichery, 85 miles southwest of Madras.

Expansion Planned For Sunday School

With the completion of the educational building, expansion and growth is the order of the day in Sunday School at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, according to Rev. Henry Melvin, pastor.

Promotion of students, arranging of the school according to divisions and creation of new classes will feature the program next Sunday at 9:45 a.m.

Warren Averette, Gloria Averette and Charlene Little will be promoted from the nursery to the beginners. Larry Vincent, Candace Little, Dorothy Ann Hooks, Lynwood Lawson Gold Elaine Worthington and John Mark Pilgreen will be promoted from beginners to primaries. A. T. Hooks, David Dail, Tommy Langston, Trudy McLawhorn, Jerry Grimsley and Edgar Hardy will be promoted from primaries to juniors.

A new youth department will hold its first assembly Sunday with two new classes added. The high school group with Blainy Moye, coach at Winterville High School, as teacher, and the college set has Mrs. Rebecca Davenport as teacher.

At the morning worship service at 11 a.m., the pastor will preach on "Beginning the Race."

SAVED BY FINGER CONSHOCKEN, Pa. — Charles C. Hansell spent a numbing half hour crouched beside his basement fuel oil tank with his finger plugging a leak to stop the flow of inflammable liquid. About 35 gallons already had flooded his cellar, dangerously close to the flame of the house heating unit. Hansell's wife and children fled to a neighbor's house and summoned repairmen.

Army Reservists Are Eligible For West Point

Greenville Army Reservists are eligible to apply for admission to the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, according to Major Gordon B. Berry, Commanding Officer of the 3015th Reception Center in Greenville, N. C.

If they qualify for admission, they will be admitted under the quota set aside for enlisted men of the Army and Air Force. Of the 2,496 cadets authorized the Military Academy, 180 are set aside for these two services and half of that number is earmarked for members of the Reserve components.

Major Berry pointed out that to be eligible for a cadetship, a young man must be between the ages of 17 and 22 at the time of entry, a citizen of the United States, possessed of good moral character, unmarried (and can never have been married), physically fit, and a high school graduate.

Members of the Army Reserve who apply must have served an enlisted men in the component from which they are nominated for a period of at least one year preceding the date of admission. This service need not be continuous.

Applications for admission to West Point must be filed between January and June of each year. Interested men, therefore, have until the end of May to file for an appointment this year.

Appointments to West Point for reserve personnel are awarded to those candidates who make the highest scores on the College Board Achievement Tests in Intermediate Mathematics and English Composition and on the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

West Point graduates must serve in the active Army for not less than Three Years. Upon graduation they are awarded Bachelor of Science degrees and are commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Army.

Greenville reservists who are interested in attending West Point should apply through their unit commanders or write directly to: The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., Attn: AGPB-M.

Nehru's Congress Party Calls For New Approach

INDORE, India — The high command of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party today appealed for a new approach to world problems and said it should not be based "on threats or use of armed forces in other countries."

The resolution approved by the 21-member Congress command restated a policy which Nehru has long advocated and made no mention of President Eisenhower's plan to ask congressional approval for the use of U. S. armed forces in the Middle East if necessary.

But it was known that Nehru wrote the resolution, and it was believed possible he had the reports of Eisenhower's plan in mind. The Prime Minister himself has made no public comment on the Eisenhower plan so far.

The party leaders approved the resolution in a closed session at which Nehru reviewed his foreign policy, including his talks with Eisenhower and with Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

The foreign affairs resolution is one of the major items being considered at the Congress convention meeting here until Jan. 7. It is expected to get formal approval tomorrow at a meeting of the 400-member national committee, and later at a big public meeting.

Echoing a perennial Nehru theme, the Congress resolution said reliance on military pacts and force only increases fear and suspicion.

"It has become essential therefore for new resolutions to be framed and for new approaches to be made with courage," it continued.

"These should be based not on threats or use of armed forces in other countries but on recognition that each country must have freedom to live its own life without interference from others, whether this interference is by way of military force or economic sanctions or is based on some ideology."

In his reply, Eisenhower welcomed Bulganin's "apparent willingness" to consider even a limited form of the aerial inspection which this country has been urging since Eisenhower first proposed it at the 1955 Geneva summit conference. Previously, the Russians had opposed any such plan.

But Eisenhower shot back at what he referred to as the Soviet "attempt to dismiss as a 'slavender campaign' the world's indignant reaction to Soviet armed actions against the people of Hungary."

On both the disarmament and Hungarian matters, Eisenhower challenged the Russians to work through the United Nations.

He told Bulganin that in his belief "deliberations within the framework of the United Nations seem most likely to produce a step forward in the highly complicated matter of disarmament." In this connection, Eisenhower said the United States "will make further proposals" on the subject at the U.N. He did not say what those proposals would be.

Six Encountered Same Robber

DENVER — Six women were held up on the street in a residential section yesterday and on all points they are in agreement. It was the same man each time. He was a handsome blond, about 21, well dressed, with crew-cut hair. And he was "nice."

Pearl Olson said she surrendered $7. He insisted she keep $1 for carfare home. Mrs. Pauline Robinson handed over her purse but he refused it, saying: "Just your wallet, ma'am."

Funeral Friday For Miss Mattie Moore

Miss Mattie M. Moore, 59, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edgar Keech near Washington at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. She had been critically ill for the past two weeks. Graveside services will be held at the Trinity Cemetery near Chocowinity Friday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. Charles Keith, Free Will Baptist Minister of Washington.

Miss Moore was a native of Beaufort County and spent all her life in Beaufort and Pitt Counties.

Surviving are a half-sister, Mrs. Edgar Keech of the home; a half brother, Clifton Moore of Washington, D. C., and her step-mother, Mrs. J. S. Moore of Rocky Mount.

SOFA FIRE

A sofa fire brought firemen to 1506 E. Fourth St. around 9 o'clock last night. The sofa was damaged by the flames.

No Summit Talk On Disarmament

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has told the Russians the United States will make "further proposals" on disarmament at the United Nations. But he has rejected, for the present at least, a Soviet proposal for five-power talks on the problem.

The White House last night made public Eisenhower's reply to a Nov. 17 message from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. In that message, Bulganin had suggested that leaders of the United States, Russia, Britain, France and India sit down together to seek ways to bring about disarmament.

Britain and France reportedly have sent Moscow similar rejections.

In his reply, Eisenhower welcomed Bulganin's "apparent willingness" to consider even a limited form of the aerial inspection which this country has been urging since Eisenhower first proposed it at the 1955 Geneva summit conference. Previously, the Russians had opposed any such plan.

But Eisenhower shot back at what he referred to as the Soviet "attempt to dismiss as a 'slavender campaign' the world's indignant reaction to Soviet armed actions against the people of Hungary."

On both the disarmament and Hungarian matters, Eisenhower challenged the Russians to work through the United Nations.

He told Bulganin that in his belief "deliberations within the framework of the United Nations seem most likely to produce a step forward in the highly complicated matter of disarmament." Seal Of City To Have Plump Cow

LOS ANGELES — The new official seal of the County of Los Angeles will include the figure of a cow, a plump, robust-looking cow, after a second try by the artist.

The Board of Supervisors approved the new design yesterday. It features the goddess Ceres, for a fish, a Spanish galleon, oil wells, engineers' instruments and the Hollywood Bowl.

Millard Sheets, director of the county art institute, previously submitted a sketch but the supervisors said the cow was a seedy looking character with a scrawny foresection and a droopy head. They asked Sheets to revamp the beast.

Awoke To Meet Death In Flames

WALPOLE, Mass. — "My God, the house is on fire! I'm trapped!"

A few moments after shouting that frantic alarm into the telephone, Mrs. Doris Danehey, 30, and her only child, James, 4 months, perished last night in their three-room bungalow.

Fire Chief Aaron Hill said Mrs. Danehey apparently passed up her only chance to escape by her attempt to save the baby.

The woman's body was found a few feet from the baby's crib.

Earlier yesterday, Mrs. Almorinda Cordeiro, 35, and her 2-year-old son Stephen perished in a fire at their home in Fairhaven. Authorities said she apparently was trying to flee with the child. Both perished near the door.

Michael Danehey, 32, a railroad trainman, was not at home when the fire broke out in his Walpole residence. He collapsed when he arrived home and was taken to a doctor's office.

Mrs. Isobel Schmidt of North Attleboro, a telephone operator in the Walpole exchange, picked up Mrs. Danehey's message and relayed it to Phyllis Metzger, telephone supervisor, who said: "It was awful. I heard her cry and moan until she died. She screamed for help several times."

Fire officials said the blaze might have been caused by an exploding kitchen heater.

Car Runs Into Telephone Pole

A car crashed into a telephone pole at the intersection of Elizabeth and Fourth Sts. around 8:30 last night.

Police identified the driver of the vehicle as C. H. Branton of 2707 E. Third St. Police quoted Branton as saying he met a car and was blinded by bright lights. Damage to the vehicle amounted to $250.

Investigating were Sgt. H. H. McGowan and Ptl. R. B. Elks.

Wounded Self In Hunting Mishap

A Pitt County soldier injured in a hunting accident Monday is expected to be transferred to Fort Bragg for further treatment of a foot injury.

Pvt. Billy Gene Buck of Route 1 Grimesland, shot himself in the foot Monday afternoon while hunting near Hamm's Cross Roads. According to investigations conducted by Deputy Sheriff N. H. Byrd and Major A. C. Marcereau Jr., of Greenville's Army Reserve Headquarters, Buck's shotgun jammed. When he attempted to clear the gun with a shot him the shell exploded and shot him in the foot. He was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Buck, the son of M. H. Buck, was on leave from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., where he is receiving engineer training.

Beef Roasts Are Back In Shopping Spotlight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roast beef, shoved into the background over the holidays, will make a strong comeback this weekend in many supermarkets and neighborhood stores.

Various cuts, ranging from chuck roast to sirloin and porterhouse steaks, will be featured with big type and small prices. One chain in the New York area will have sirloin at 69 cents a pound, as much as 70 cents a pound below the opposition. Chuck and round roasts appear to be the most popular, although ground beef and tongue also are represented.

"We feel that most people will want some beef after eating all that poultry, and ham, over the holidays," was the comment of one supermarket chain sales executive.

Lamb and pork also will be featured in some stores. Mostly this means leg of lamb or pork chops. One enterprising chain, however, has a "three meals in one" combination sale of lamb with a roast, chops and stew meat all in one package for 29 cents a pound.

Cabbage, potatoes and onions again head the outstanding buy list among vegetables, although supplies of cabbage from nearby fields are light in most areas, and cabbage from Southern fields is still a bit on the high side. The same is true for potatoes and onions.

Beans, eggplant, escarole and sweet potatoes all are good buys, along with the so-called "root" crops — beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips — from local fields. Cauliflower is getting cheaper, but market men still don't rate it a good buy. Increasing supplies from Texas and Florida should bring the price down, however.

The same thing is true for Brussels sprouts, except that most of the supplies come from California at this time of year.

Celery was a bit high over the holidays but should be less expensive now. Squash, too, is getting more plentiful, particularly the yellow squashes from Florida.

The holidays cut into shipments of oranges, grapefruit and tangerines, making them somewhat expensive this week, but all three citrus fruits are still rated a good buy by produce men. Limes, however, went up sharply in price because of lower supplies, which resulted from rock bottom prices for the small green fruit.

The price of Delicious apples is still high, but other varieties are available at bargain prices where the apples are sold fully ripe and must be eaten in a few days.

The Bachelorettes Social Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Susie Hansley, 608 Contentnea street, at 8 o'clock tonight.
