

Large Road Construction Program Slated For N. C.

RALEIGH (AP)—A 1957 road construction goal well over 7 1/2 million dollars, far above last year's total of about 53 million, has been announced by the State Highway Commission.

A list of more than 50 major projects which the commission expects to let to contract during the year was released over the weekend by Highway Chairman A. H. Graham.

Graham also reported that the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads has approved two projects on the interstate highway system in North Carolina for letting this month.

Bids on the projects will be opened Jan. 22. Previously, the bureau had held approval because of a lawsuit now before the State supreme court which questions power of the commission to condemn land for access control rights.

Controlled access, which means adjoining property owners can enter the highway only at designated points, is required on the interstate system.

Action of the bureau in approving the projects, one on U. S. 301 in Cumberland County and another on U. S. 70 in Burke, "shows as they realize we've got to go ahead" with the program, Graham said.

Graham said he assured the bureau that the Highway Commission will ask the 1957 Legislature for a law specifically giving it power to condemn access control rights. He said the reason the Legislature fails to act, Graham said, the secretary of commerce will be asked to proceed to acquire the access control rights through federal courts.

The commission, he emphasized, is "committed to an access control policy." Graham expressed pleasure at a recent statement by Gov. Hodges in which the error said he would ask the General Assembly for specific access control legislation if the matter has not been clarified.

An early start toward the big road construction goal will begin Jan. 22 when bids are opened on the first projects of the year. Graham said the letting will total around six million dollars.

The highway chair. n. report said three factors impeded road work last year. He listed these as: Action of the Bureau of Public Roads in suspending approval of interstate projects; the national steel strike which delayed bridge and other structure work; and drastic changes in design and engineering set by the federal government for interstate roads. Due to these factors, the commission failed to reach its 1956 goal of 55 million dollars worth of contracts awarded. However, Graham said the total of about 53 million was the highest in the history, with the exception of the period of 1948-52 when the 200-million-dollar rural road program was in progress.

This is the breakdown of 1956 work by the commission: Completed during the year were 292 contracts valued at $40,051,188 and covering 1,243 miles of improvements.

Contracts let during the year totaled 235, were valued at $40,702,383 and covered 1,233. Work on these was started and a few of them also were completed. Rough estimates of costs for right-of-way, landscape work and engineering would run the value of these contracts past 53 million dollars.

Probe Body?

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today proposed the creation of a special U. N. committee with broad powers to investigate and study the Hungarian situation.

The proposal was in line with U. S. views that the U. N. should set up machinery to handle hand accounts of the Soviet military actions in Hungary and to keep an eye on developments.

Previously, the General Assembly had given Hammarskjold the task of investigating the Hungarian situation. He had appointed special representatives to do this, but they had reported their inability to get sufficient reliable information.

Hammarskjold's recommendations were contained in a report to the 80-nation Assembly.

Dulles Avers Only A Firm Stand Can Preserve Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles told Congress today that the way to peace in the Middle East is to make it clear that armed Communist attack would have to be met, if need be, by the armed forces of the United States.

"You may feel, I do feel," Dulles told a crowded public meeting of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, "that there is in fact no doubt as to what the Communists set out on a piecemeal conquest of the world by war."

"But until the Congress has actually spoken, there is doubt in the Middle East and there may be doubt in the Soviet Union." Delay would make such doubts grow, the secretary said, and he told the legislators some whom he has expressed concern with the sweeping nature of the fight-if-necessary authority sought by the President.

"The purpose of the proposed resolution is not war. It is peace. The purpose is to make it clear where the President and the Congress have acted together to oppose international communism, is to stop World War III before it starts."

In advance of Dulles' appearance before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, several members posed queries concerning the proposal Eisenhower laid before a joint session of Congress Saturday.

Weekend discussion also showed developing opposition to what several senators referred to as "blank check" authority to use foreign aid funds and to what Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) called in effect declaring war on "a delayed basis — ahead of time."

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), describing Eisenhower's proposals as "loaded with dynamite," told a questioner there is a chance Congress will vote them down.

Both Democratic and Republican legislators raised questions about the plan, there was general agreement that Congress eventually will approve some program with the general outline Eisenhower laid down, it may clamp some restrictions on the broad authority he asked for.

The four-point program he outlined included approval in advance for his use of American military forces, at the request of any threatened Middle Eastern nation, to oppose "overt armed aggression from any nation controlled by international communism," and provision for both military and economic aid to countries in the area.

For economic aid, Eisenhower asked 200 million dollars a year for two years starting July 1. In addition, he asked authority to use up to 200 millions of presently appropriated foreign aid funds without regard to the provisions of any other law of regulation. It is believed, however, that only between 50 and 75 millions of appropriated funds still are available.

The money angle is one that Chairman Thomas S. Gordon (D-Ill.) of the House committee said he wants straightened out at the hearings whether Eisenhower wants 400 millions or 600 millions or what amount in between.

Gordon said he wants to know also whether Eisenhower plans to step up U. S. armed forces strength in the Middle East.

There were no indications at the Pentagon yesterday that the Middle East plan contemplates any immediate change in the nation's defense lineup in that area.

Rep. Judd of Minnesota, a senior committee Republican, said he will propose that the 200-million-dollar maximum Eisenhower asked for be cut to 100 million. He said taking the money out of the existing program would hurt relations with countries which had expected to get funds that were diverted to the Middle East.

Committee member Burleson (D-Tex.) said Eisenhower already has power as commander in chief to use troops. But now that the question is publicly presented, he added, Congress has a choice but to back up the President before the war.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday he expects the Democrats to "come up with a number of amendments or perhaps a new resolution."

But he added in a television interview that his party shouldn't be too critical unless it can "come up with something better." Sparkman and Sen. Bridges (R-NH) appeared together on NBC-TV's American Forum. Sparkman said he favors having the President take a strong stand, but contended only Congress under the Constitution can declare war.

Political circles in Iraq, which is aligned with the West in the Baghdad Pact, thought the doctrine seemed to touch the disease in the Middle East without trying to find the cause.

Turkey, an NATO and Baghdad Pact member, gave the plan its strongest support in the Middle East. Premier Adnan Menderes said: "One fact, that the Middle East will not be abandoned to its fate, is clearly understood. Peace and stability may prevail in the region."

Senators O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) and Stennis (D-Miss.) opposed what they called "blank check" authority to Eisenhower in spending foreign aid funds, and Sen. Anderson (D-NM) also opposed such spending "without any strings attached."

Explosion Rips Powder Plant In Pennsylvania

EMPORIUM, Pa. (AP)—An explosion ripped through the Pennsylvania Powder Co. plant early today and set fire to a score of buildings.

First reports said three men were missing and believed dead. Eight workers were admitted to St. Mary's Hospital, 20 miles west of this northern Pennsylvania community. Emporium is a rural mountain community of some 3,500 about 85 miles southeast of Erie, Pa.

"Everything at the plant was torn to hell," William Smith, a stationary fireman at the plant, said two hours after the explosion. "It about shook the town off its hinges."

Windows were broken in many Emporium homes and business buildings.

The plant is about a half mile west of town. A fire broke out after the explosion, but Smith said it appeared to be subsiding.

All traffic was blocked off from the area of the dynamite plant. Frank Burman, a newscaster for an Emporium radio station, said a fierce fire was raging and the blast set fire to a score of buildings.

"Everybody is afraid another explosion might come off," Burman said. "I saw three ambulances pass by with injured."

He added: "The Pennsylvania Railroad roundhouse, located near," is a mass of twisted wreckage. "The entire area was shaken by the explosion. Everywhere you look windows are broken."

Burman said he learned the explosion occurred in the mixup room where nitro-glycerine is made.

Arab World Generally Has Dim View Of Ike's Plans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Eisenhower's plan for blocking communism in the Middle East was viewed with misgivings today in most of the Arab world.

Reaction elsewhere ranged from enthusiasm in some Western European countries to cries of "rude interference" from Moscow. Non-Arab allies of the United States in the Middle East welcomed the program.

The Eisenhower doctrine aimed at preventing Communist encroachment on the Middle East — couples the promise of large-scale economic help to the area with a threat to use U. S. armed forces against overt Communist aggression there. The President outlined it to Congress Saturday.

In Cairo, the reception was chilly but not hostile. Egyptians who had hoped the United States was ready to unveil a new policy of support for President Nasser were disappointed.

There was also the feeling that the doctrine would make it more difficult for Egypt to play off the Communists against the West, as in the past. There was a fear that continued flirting with the Soviet bloc through arms purchases and other help would lay Nasser open to the charge of being a vehicle of "indirect Communist aggression."

Cairo newspapers cautioned restraint, saying many phases of the Eisenhower plan remained to be explained.

Many Arabs throughout the area expressed disappointment that the President passed quickly over the Israel-Arab dispute, leaving the United Nations to continue its so far unsuccessful efforts to solve this problem.

Sampling of opinion in Beirut showed general disappointment in the doctrine. But a number of Arabs found some "good things" in it, such as an implication of stronger U. S. support for independence movements. One Arab expressed the view that Eisenhower put across "an excellent piece of diplomacy." He explained:

"Had Eisenhower mentioned anything about Israel, Britain and France, he would have scared Congress away from giving him standby authority. Once he gets that power, he can do what he wants and he will do what's right."

Newspapers in Israel also were disappointed that the speech did not offer a remedy to the Israel-Arab problem. But they welcomed the step as an entrance of the United States in the Middle East.

In Syria, where a pro-Soviet clique is in power, official quarters called the doctrine a "formal declaration of cold war." A spokesman said the Middle East does not want to be involved in the struggle between East and West.

Political circles in Iraq, which is aligned with the West in the Baghdad Pact, thought the doctrine seemed to touch the disease in the Middle East without trying to find the cause.

Turkey, an NATO and Baghdad Pact member, gave the plan its strongest support in the Middle East. Premier Adnan Menderes said:

"One fact, that the Middle East will not be abandoned to its fate, is clearly understood. Peace and stability may prevail in the region."

Young Babysitter Calm In Describing Murder

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Murdered by 115 stab wounds, the body of 8-year-old Rose Ann White, 8, was found by a railroad track here yesterday. A 14-year-old boy admitted the crime.

Roger Brown's "principal concern" was that he might lose the lethal knife, reported Dep. Dist. Atty. J. Clinton Peterson. Young Brown led authorities at 3:30 a. m. to the place where Rose Ann's body was buried loosely under a pile of thistles and grass.

Peterson said Roger, the stepson of Sgt. Merrill Brown of the 436th Antiaircraft Battalion at Travis Air Force Base, confessed the killing calmly and told how he later went home to work on a stamp collection and watch television.

Last night in the Solano County Jail at Vallejo, Roger wept a little talking to reporters and said he "wished" the girl was alive.

An autopsy disclosed that the child had not been criminally attacked, although her panties had been removed. Her skull had been fractured three times.

Roger had been employed to take care of Rose Ann at various times while her mother Mrs. Frank White, 33, worked at her job as a beer parlor waitress. The child's father is an airman in Japan.

Roger said while they were playing Saturday along the railroad track, he tripped and Rose Ann fell over him, knocking herself unconscious on a rock. While she was unconscious, officers said, the boy related he beat her on the head with a rock and then stabbed her repeatedly.

Not For Relief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson told Congress today the soil bank program should be used to cut crop surpluses and conserve soil resources — not "for drought relief, flood relief or credit needs."

In testimony prepared for a public hearing of the House Agriculture Committee, Benson said he intends to administer the $1,200,000,000-year program so it fulfills its prime aims.

"We must not load upon the soil bank the responsibility for drought relief, flood relief or credit needs," he declared.

The committee called Benson's members — some of whom have been critical of the way the program was operated last year — might question him.

Benson said last year's operations did not provide a fair test for the program because the legislation was "long delayed" in Congress and the program was not made available to farmers until fully three weeks after the normal ending of cotton, peanut and tobacco planting seasons and well into the corn planting season.

Chou En-Lai On Trip To Europe

HONG KONG (AP)—Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai left Peiping for Moscow today. Peiping radio announced he would visit Hungary as well as Poland.

Observers in Hong Kong considered that Chou's extension of his tour to rebellion-torn Hungary did not mean any possible change in Peiping's support for the regime of pro-Russian Premier Janos Kadar.

The statement blasted Stalinist leaders Matyas Rakosi and Erno Gero as well as Imry Nagy, who succeeded them and was ousted as premier by Kadar and his supporters with Russian help.

Secrets Excite Piedmont People

SPARTANBURG (AP)—The secrecy-shrouded activities of a Georgia corporation based here excite the imagination of Carolinas businessmen, metallurgists, mineralogists, financiers and many landowners.

The corporation, Piedmont Properties, Inc., through recent months bored hundreds of holes for samples of something and tested these samples at its newly established laboratories here.

Piedmont's activity centers in a region bordered roughly by a line from Shelby to Rutherford to Tryon in North Carolina and from Gaffney to Spartanburg to north-west of Chesnee in South Carolina.

Reports here indicate that Piedmont options for farm properties are for terms of about one year with renewal provisions. The corporation's predicted goal is about 30,000 acres in South Carolina and the same in North Carolina.

Rumors, without confirmation, link Piedmont to various firms — E. I. du Pont de Nemours, Aluminum Co. of America and Anaconda Copper Co., to mention a few.

Spreading among technical men is the idea that the corporation's search may involve aluminum production.

Mineralogists say that aluminum represents about 8 per cent of the earth's crust, probably the most abundant metallic element. Bauxite, a form of clay, contains combinations of various forms of aluminum minerals. Processing aluminum sources requires considerable electric power. This fact probably is partially responsible for the unconfirmed rumor that Piedmont Properties may build two $40 million plants, one in North Carolina and one in South Carolina.

Anaconda Copper Co. reported recently that it had developed a possible process to economically extract aluminum from clays containing low-grade bauxite.

In Raleigh, the North Carolina Dept. of Conservation and Development and the state geologist said they are keenly interested in the possibilities of recovering hydrous alumina oxide from clay. That product then could be processed into aluminum by established methods.

The Raleigh offices said that upgrading clay into a form of bauxite has been the subject of experiments through years but, so far as has been disclosed, such a process remains unperfected.

Sections of both Carolinas contain great reserves of clay, or kaolin. And geologists explain that a good quality clay can be processed into a product close in quality to bauxite.

At Harleyville during World War II, a defense plant processed clay preliminary to recovery of aluminum. After the war the plant switched to production of Portland cement.

The government said Hungary wants "peaceful and fruitful relations" with "all countries without consideration for their social order, on the basis of equality and noninterference." It claimed that Hungarian-Soviet relations have been "pictured in an unfavorable light by hostile elements" and credited Russia with saving Hungary's national independence during the recent revolt. It declared that all questions with Moscow, including the "stay of Soviet troops in Hungary" will be settled in friendly negotiations.

Pitt Board OKs Plans For Court House, Old Hospital

By JIMMY ELLIS

Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners today approved plans designed to improve electrical service in the Court House and Old Hospital buildings.

The commissioners accepted a bid from Rivers and Rivers, consulting engineers, for plans and specifications of a revamping job in the Court House. They also awarded a $900 contract to Horne Electric Company to "clean up" incoming electrical service fixtures in the Old Hospital.

Rivers and Rivers will make plans and specifications for a job to replace present incoming equipment in the Court House at a contract price of $500. Included in engineering work will be plans for connecting the Court House with a new underground system being constructed by the Greenville Utilities Commission, designs for putting the Court House and county jail on one circuit, and methods of eliminating present unsafe, inadequate and outmoded equipment.

Horne will actually straighten out existing electrical units in the main control room of the Old Hospital building. He told the commissioners that the room is now filled with "a hodge-podge of boxes and wiring that offers inadequate service." He also said the clean-up would be necessary if air conditioning units installed last summer would be able to operate during the coming summer.

Other business conducted by commissioners during the morning was of a routine nature. They approved two pedler's licenses, exempted a disabled veteran from poll tax, and endorsed three road petitions which were forwarded to the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Licenses for peddling were issued to Ide Pollard and Herman Tyson both disabled men. Pollard, also exempted from poll tax, was licensed to sell fruit and Tyson was licensed to sell flavoring, spices and similar items. Both licenses were approved on condition that the men could furnish Auditor Reginald Gray with a physician's certificate showing they were disabled.

Road petitions which were forwarded to the Highway Commission were for thoroughfares near Ayven, in the Swift Creek section, and the Gum Swamp Road.

A tax refund of $10.01 was approved for James T. Keel and D. T. Nichols. Tax Supervisor Harold Allred pointed out that the refund was being made because of an error by the Tax Department.

Requests by Allred for bars on two windows in the Tax Collector's office and a door between offices in the Tax Department were referred to committees.

Several county agencies also made monthly reports which were accepted.

Adlai Sounds Call For Demo Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson called today for a four-year "sustained offensive" by the Democrats against the Republicans in an effort to win back the White House.

Stevenson, the 1956 Democratic presidential nominee, said in an interview he believes the best way to get ready for the 1958 and 1960 elections is for Democrats in and out of Congress to work together.

"We must have a sustained offensive throughout the next four years and that is the best way to get it," he declared. "We must have a broad base of operations from which we can bring in governors, mayors and other officials as well as members of Congress."

Stevenson said he will continue to be active as a member of the party's policy advisory committee which patched up its surface differences with Democratic leaders of Congress in a weekend meeting here.

Speaker of the House Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate's majority leader, met with the committee and said later they will welcome advice from the party group, although the two Texans stuck by their previous decisions not to become members of it.

Stevenson said he thought there had been a "misinterpretation of the advisory group's role and believed it could work closely with the congressional leaders without undue friction."

"It never was the intention of the committee to try to tell the members of Congress what to do," he said.

Stevenson has left no doubt, however, that he believes Democrats should continue to belabor President Eisenhower's handling of foreign policy matters as he did in the campaign.

Democratic congressional leaders generally have avoided criticism of Eisenhower's foreign policies.

The committee called on Eisenhower Saturday to "abandon his present improvisations in favor of a foreign policy program that faces facts all over the world and seeks to deal with them."

It said what it called administration "muddling" in the Middle East brought on the Suez crisis. It described the military-economic proposals Eisenhower put before Congress Saturday as "an effort to partially close the stable door after the horse is partially outside the stable."

Thirteen Ships Caught In Suez Begin To Leave

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—Thirteen ships of seven nations finally were on their way out of the Suez Canal today, more than two months after the British-French invasion and Egyptian countermeasures bottled them up in the waterway.

Wrecks still obstructing the canal made their passage north to Port Said a tricky navigating problem. Col. Mahmoud Yunes, managing director of the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority, estimated it might take until Thursday to get all 13 out of the canal.

The Egyptians themselves undertook the job of moving the trapped freighters and tankers, spurning offers from the U. N. salvage fleet clearing the ships and bridges which Egypt sank in the canal after British and French warplanes began to bombard Oct. 31.

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C. Temperatures will average somewhat above normal. Rather cold through Wednesday, followed by rising temperatures until colder Saturday. Some light rain likely about Friday.

MOM'S HELPER SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A projected $700,000 building alley plans to have baby sitters on staff, to leave mother's hands free for bowling.

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Premier Janos Kadar's Soviet-installed government, taking the wraps off its long-promised "new program," combines get-tough Stalinism with an appeal to the West for financial aid.

The program was issued yesterday from the Premier's office in Parliament building, ringed by protecting Russian tanks. It was broadcast as a 10,000-word statement over the Budapest radio.

The statement probably got its final drafting last week while visiting Soviet Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev looked on. The Hungarians, led by some informants to expect a "surprisingly mild" declaration, were told among other things: "There is a dictatorship of the proletariat in Hungary. . . . The counterrevolutionaries and persons who attack the legal order of the basic principles of the people's democracy have no freedom even if they mask their counterrevolutionary efforts by democratic slogans. The law will always punish them severely. . . ."

In an obvious reference to the Soviet-crushed revolt in November, the statement said: "People of petty bourgeois thinking or people who were masking themselves as Marxists set as their aim the disintegration of social order and the dissolution of it whereby they used slogans like democratization, de-Stalinization and others. . . . It is therefore a main task to strengthen the people's democratic installations and organizations. . . ."

The statement said "the government is planning talks with various public figures and non-partisan experts aimed at their participation in leading state affairs with the government." It indicated some sort of coalition

Dr. Salk Proposes An 'All-Virus' Vaccine

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk today suggested the bold new idea of a vaccine guarding you against all viruses which attack nerves.

He listed two big reasons for seeking such an all-virus vaccine. 1. Perhaps many diseases which his "Admits stem from childhood virus attacks which weakened nerves but gave no sign at the time. These ailments might include back pain, ulcers or high blood pressure.

2. Certain viruses might "sleep" in the nervous system for years until some stress made them active and caused trouble. Salk, Pittsburgh scientist who created the Salk polio vaccine, made his proposal in a talk prepared for the opening of a three-day conference on cellular biology, nucleic acids and viruses.

nor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Many kinds of viruses besides polio can invade the central nervous system, Salk said.

In childhood, some of them could damage nerves in an untold, unseen way — so that your body couldn't resist stresses and demands encountered later in life. These viruses could include polio virus, against which there now is a vaccine.

Other viruses, however, might remain dormant or sleeping for years until something happened to stir them to damaging action. An all-virus vaccine or drug could head them off in the beginning. Salk said the widespread successful use of polio vaccine might prevent many future cases of ailments whose cause is not clear. This could include some cases of low-back weakness, curved spine, weakened stomach muscles and leg and arm troubles, he said.

Traffic Jam: Stokes Style

The little town of Stokes did experience a mild traffic jam yesterday morning when approximately 100 visitors joined the regular congregation for the Sunday morning worship service at the Stokes Methodist Church.

People drove in from 40 and 50 miles, some even from Virginia. There were visitors from Rocky Mount, Washington, Kinston, Rose Hill, Enfield, Ayden, Robersonville, Bethel, Tarboro and Greenville.

In order for everyone to be seated, chairs had to be borrowed from the Baptist Church on the other side of the highway.

The Rev. Arnold Pope's sermon was "What Christ Has Meant to the World." According to Mrs. Harry Salter, wife of the producer of "Name That Tune," "The sermon was excellent—and I'm a fine judge of sermons, too."

This overflow of visitors was due largely to Mrs. Arnold Pope's recent appearance on the musical quiz show "Name That Tune." While appearing on the show she said, "If you're driving through North Carolina on Route No. 903 next Sunday, stop in at Stokes and join us for service at 11 a.m."

Immediately following the service, there was an Open House at the parsonage. Home-made cookies, made by the church women, and green punch were served.

Represent EC At Conference

Miss Mamie Chandler, Director of the Methodist Student Center, and Miss Margaret Rose Powell, Chairman of World Christian Community for the Wesley Foundation at East Carolina College, attended the United Student Christian Council Southeastern Regional Study Conference held at Davidson College, North Carolina, December 27 through January 1.

This council is composed of 11 denominational groups and the student YMCA and YWCA. Unique in its emphasis upon group and individual study, the conference brought together students, faculty and administrative officials from 15 different Christian denominations and 126 colleges. The Davidson conference, one of seven regional conferences held during the Christmas holidays, attracted 319 delegates.

The conference theme, "Our United Witness on the Campus," was explored in platform addresses, faculty-led discussions, and small group Bible study. Professor Waldo Beach of Duke University in five addresses described the ideal of the university, the social and intellectual brokenness and disunity on the campus and possible strategies for the recovery of wholeness in the academic community.

The student-led Bible study focused upon the brokenness and unity of the Church in the New Testament, under the guidance of Professor Albert C. Winn of Stillman College. Evening interest groups discussed strategy for Christian concern in fraternities and sororities, student government, summer work projects, ecumenical relations, study groups, religious emphasis weeks and race relations.

Worship was according to the various traditions represented in the conference and was led by the Conference Chaplain, the Rev. Irvin Eiligan of Richmond, Va. Larry Eisenberg of Nashville, Tenn. served as Conference Fellowship Director.

The history of the class was read by Shirley Peaden. New business included the decision to hold another class reunion five years.

Following the business, party games were enjoyed and refreshments prepared by Minnie Manning were served. A social hour followed during which friends discussed the past year's activities.

City Schools Jammed With Rising Flood Of Pupils

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Staff Writer
(Editor's Note: First of two articles dealing with overcrowded conditions in Greenville public schools and the remedies for the situation.)

"Elmhurst was filled the day we went into it," commented Superintendent of City Schools J.H. Rose.

In many of the Greenville public schools classes are now meeting in the hall, in the library, in the science room, and even in a nearby parish house.

With the rapid increase in school children, it is sometimes difficult to find adequate space to accommodate them.

At the present time there are 2,619 white children and 1,898 Negro children enrolled in Greenville's public schools. These numbers represent enrollment from the elementary grades through the high school grade level.

Negro schools in the city do not seem to be suffering from the crowded conditions as acutely as the white schools. While the white enrollment has been steadily increasing, the Negro enrollment has been more or less steady during the past few years.

Elmhurst Elementary School
Even in the Elmhurst elementary school, which is less than two years old, the lack of space necessary for teaching the children is quite apparent.

Two of the grammar grade classes are now meeting in the library which has been separated and revised to meet this purpose.

Because of this shift, the library had to be moved into the big lobby of the school and the books have been placed in a room adjacent to the office.

Another class meets each day in the Elmhurst school hall. Although the hall is quite wide it was not originally meant to house a classroom.

West Greenville

A primary class at the West Greenville elementary school is now meeting each day on the stage of the activity building.

Since the library was converted into a needed classroom, the crowded conditions at this school demanded that the library be moved to the upstairs hall and bookcases have been built along the wall to accommodate the library books.

Third Street School
Third Street School is suffering from the overflow of enrollment also.

One of the first grade classes now meets in the building directly behind the Third Street School. This building was originally planned as a locker room, then became the Third Street School Hut where various organizations met, and now houses the first grade.

Wahl-Coates
One of the eighth grades at Wahl-Coates elementary school is now meeting in the Science Room, which has been converted to a classroom to help combat the crowded situation the school is facing.

Miss Frances Wahl, principal, also pointed out that overcrowded conditions are present in the fourth and sixth grades.

Brookgreen
Another indication of the ever present overflow in the Greenville schools is at Brookgreen where 60 special education children are enrolled.

Brookgreen School is located in pre-war temporary buildings that the National Youth Administration built during the depression years. They had hoped to transfer this program to four of the classrooms at the Elmhurst School, but the crowded conditions at Elmhurst made this impossible.

Greenville High School
Each day the Greenville High School eighth grade class trudges up Fourth St. to the Episcopal Church parish house where their class meets.

A boys' homeroom has also been converted from what once was the boys' locker room in the basement of the high school.

As O. E. Dowd, principal, pointed out, the above two problems are the worst, but there is also the inconvenience of the band room being across the street from the high school and the shop being located at Brookgreen School about a mile from the high school.

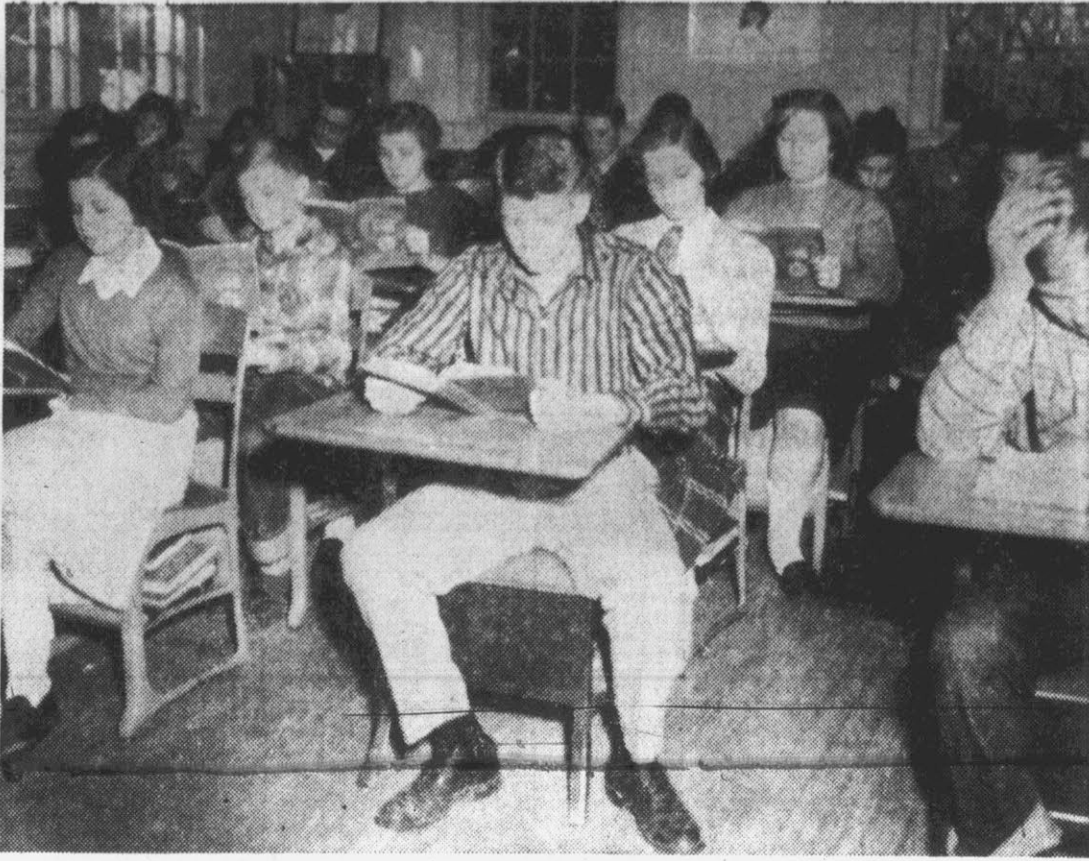

Negro Schools
Both Fleming Street and South Greenville elementary schools, are having some difficulty with overcrowded classrooms. They are still maintaining the classes in their original rooms though and are not having to conduct classes on the stage, in the hall, or in the library.

Eppeas High School has not been affected by the crowded conditions that seem to have touched all of the other public schools in this area.

Rose pointed out that the crowded conditions could be worse. Many schools throughout the nation have had to resort to double shifts in many of the lower grades.

Greenville has been able to find places for the increase so far, but this acute problem is still a serious one and one that cannot be overlooked by the citizens of Greenville.

IT'S RELATIVE
VALSETZ Ore. 47 - This Oregon town had a relatively dry 1956, with only 12.35 feet—148.23 inches—of precipitation, observer Teddy Goodell said today. This was far below the record 168.88 inches which fell in 1937.

IN PARISH HOUSE—One of the eighth grade classes at the Greenville High School is now meeting each day in an improvised room in the Episcopal Church Parish House. These are just two examples of the crowded conditions that are prevalent throughout the Greenville City Schools at this time.

MEETING IN HALL—One of the grammar grades at Elmhurst Elementary School is now meeting each day in the hall due to the crowded condition that prevails at the school. (Staff Photos by Anne Singleton.)

In The Beginning, Always A Dream

Thank God for men with pipe dreams. And greater thanks for men whose practical knowledge of the problems of their day and their determination to gain a better lot for their people lead them to persevere until those things which skeptics call pipe dreams become a reality.

Franklin had a pipe dream about a thing called electricity. Edison had a pipe dream about harnessing electricity and making it give forth light. The Wright brothers had a pipe dream that men could fly.

Where would the world be today if these men had not dreamed their dreams? Indeed, where would the world be if these men had not possessed the quality of self-sacrifice to overcome ridicule and seemingly insurmountable obstacles to make their dreams a reality?

Our esteemed neighbor, the agile and lively Kinston Daily Free Press has suggested that the proposed Mid-East Airport and adequate air service a joint facility could bring Eastern North Carolina is now a pipe dream. It questions the wisdom of Kinston and Lenoir County joining such an effort until Mid-East plans jell to something better than a pipe dream.

We know the Kinston Daily Free Press will enough to know that it has its own pipe dreams for Eastern North Carolina. Included in them is adequate air service which will make the area more fertile for industrial development to balance the agricultural economy. Over a period of decades we have seen that the Free Press is not content merely to see its dreams in the mind's eye.

While there are some who are willing to let the proposed Mid-East project remain a pipe dream, there are many more people in Eastern North Carolina who see this dream of adequate air service now in the transition stage between a dream and a reality. There are a number of people who have directed their energies to making it a reality. In time those who make up this latter group will achieve success. But time is an important factor if this section of the state is to keep pace with economic progress in other areas. Each day we are without adequate air service postpones the arrival of the day when a more stable economy, and the higher standard of living it brings to the people of an area will be within our grasp.

Future Goals For Inventors

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. The greatest efforts will be made to develop a small safe reactor which will enable homes to use uranium for fuel instead of oil, or gas, or coal. Next there will be more use of electronics to take the place of workers in factories. This is known as automation. STENOGRAPHERS BEWARE!

The use of electronics which interests me most is to have a machine into which I can talk and have writing come out the other end! There are now several successful distaphone machines which transfer the voice onto "receivers" such as blank flat phonograph records, or the standard wax cylinders, or electronic magnetic tape. I am told that the Soundscribe Company is perhaps the most progressive, but all are doing good work as far as they go.

RETURNING TO

PHONETIC SPELLING

Some years ago there was a fine hotel at Lake Placid, New York, which promoted the Dewey Phonetic Spelling. Mr. Dewey wrote all his advertisements, circulars, letters, and even menus with phonetic spelling. Whether he did it to amuse the guests or to promote the phonetic idea, I do not know. One thing certain is that for any of these revolutionary dictating machines to succeed, all children must be taught phonetic spelling. At the present time, three large corporations are trying to develop these new machines. Let me explain their three different methods of approach.

The International Business Machines Corporation is hoping to have its machine use the same alphabet we now use in letters. The Eastman Kodak Company may bring out a photographic method. Of course, the photography of still images was really a wonderful invention; then followed the photography of moving pictures. It is possible that these can be developed so that the spoken word will be photographed like a moving object. This is almost approached now by showing in television the expressions on people's faces; in fact, many listeners have the ability to read the lips of speakers. Photography experts will not be satisfied until they can photograph thoughts, as well as words.

THE ELECTRONIC METHOD OF

WRITING "SHORTHAND"

Of the different systems, the electronic system interests me most although it requires forgetting the present alphabet and returning to the use of script writing. First came the telegraph with the dash and dot system; then came the telephone and TelAutograph; then followed the electronic-phonograph and the magnetic tape. Few persons realize the wonderful electronic machine that is in their latest phonograph. When Thomas Edison invented the original phonograph, they were purely mechanical. Every spoken word made a wavy indentation on a wax cylinder, after which these wavy movements were exaggerated by levers which, at the other end, moved a thin metal diaphragm and faintly reproduced these spoken words. With a large horn the sound increased so that anyone nearby could hear them.

The modern phonographs, however, turn the wavy motions which have been produced by the spoken words into electric waves which, through the use of tubes, are greatly magnified. Radio Corporation of America is already transferring these words into wavy lines which some experts can read. This would be the ideal system; but it would require the use of almost a new written script something like "shorthand" which could be taught to every child. Even this, however, is not so revolutionary when you think that the "score" of music is an entirely different "alphabet" which millions of young people of all nations have learned to read and enjoy.

While Eastern North Carolina has among its citizenry those who have no pipe dreams, and even those who are content merely with pipe dreams, we are grateful that the area likewise has the incomparable asset of men who dedicate their energies to make pipe dreams a reality for the betterment of all the people.

In spite of obstacles which have stood and still stand in the way of Mid-East Airport and the adequate air service it promises for this section, it can be regarded as only a pipe dream if the people want it to be that and nothing more.

It can and will become a reality as quickly as the people of the area are willing for it to. And when it does become a reality it will bring to each community in the section benefits far beyond any which might be gained through the inadequate trickle of air service at purely local airports that has so long characterized what we term "air service" in this section.

If New Laws Needed, Assembly Will Provide

If the State Supreme Court holds that the Highway Commission lacks authority to condemn land for controlled access-highways, North Carolina's legislature should not hesitate to enact the necessary laws to give the Highway Commission that authority.

Although controlled access highways are relatively new in North Carolina, they are destined to play a major part in new highway construction in the years ahead. If the Highway Commission is to be able to do the job which is expected of it, it must have authority to condemn land for controlled access highways just as it now has the authority to condemn land for construction of primary and secondary roads.

The court action now pending to test the Highway Commission's authority has caused the Bureau of Public Roads to withhold approval of interstate highway projects in North Carolina. If the matter of authority is not cleared up, it can cause a major setback in North Carolina's highway program.

By the time the General Assembly convenes next month, the Supreme Court should have ruled in the case. If the court holds the Highway Commission now has the authority necessary to condemn property for controlled access, it may not be necessary for additional legislation to be adopted. If, on the other hand, the court rules against the Commission, the legislature must, for the sake of adequate highway in North Carolina, enact such legislation as will give the Commission the authority it needs and must have.

No Money For Advertising

By LYNN NISBET

STATE ADVERTISING — On one of his casual scouting trips around the Department of Conservation and Development your reporter bumped into a sort of informal conference of high level personnel about State promotion. The immediate topic of discussion was request of a statewide organization which is soon to be host to a national convention for the State advertising fund to provide souvenirs for the guests to take home.

The problem is now new. It arises almost every time a national convention is staged in North Carolina, and almost every time a sizeable group of Tarheels are going to such a convention somewhere else. A companion problem is what the State should do about providing floats for big parades like the Presidential inaugural business at Washington, or some of the big bowl games in which Tarheel teams participate.

North Carolina has had perhaps more than its proper share of presidents of national and international organizations like the Jaycees, Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary, Shrine, etc. It is natural for members of these groups to want to play their state at the conventions where these people are elected or over which they preside. It is understandable that the members of the special groups are reluctant to foot the bill for such display, since all the people of the state will benefit. In absence of a state chamber of commerce or other statewide promotional agency, requests for financial help naturally go to the State Advertising Division. And run into the solid wall of no money.

HOW FAR? — Included in the overall appropriation for the Department of Conservation and Development is an item of about $300,000 for the advertising division. The budget book breaks down the purposes for which that money can be spent, and allots about $190,000 for the purchase of advertising space in out of state newspapers and magazines. Some $33,000 is earmarked for printing of pamphlets, booklets, folders, etc. The rest goes for salaries, postage, supplies equipment and other expenses.

There is no money available for the purchase of State flags for distribution, for souvenirs or parades, or for a lot of other purposes which might be worth while and be of benefit to the State. Requests for these items must be turned down. Some of them are rejected over reluctantly. There is always the question of how far the thing might go once it started. Policy of the department has been not to start.

The money at disposal of the State folks is in different category from ordinary chamber of commerce promotional funds. It is tax money, collected by authority of law, appropriated by the legislature for specific purposes, and for which the custodians are accountable to all the people. The officials have been and are meticulous in avoiding justification of charges for favoritism to any special group like fraternal or civic clubs.

At the same time, the advertising division does make available hundreds of thousands of pieces of printed matter and other general publicity stuff to these organizations. Unless the General Assembly appropriates a lot more money for souvenirs and gadgets the State cannot supply them.

REVENUE — The general fund revenue of North Carolina is holding up a bit better than the advisory budget commission estimated two and a half years ago. Receipts for the first six months of the 1956-57 fiscal year ran four and a third million dollars above the comparable period for 1955-56. Both periods included the new taxes levied by the 1955 Legislature. The new levies as well as those in effect prior to 1955 yielded more than estimated, because anticipated business decline did not develop.

The larger yield puts the State in position, as Governor Hodges explained at his news conference the other day, to effect some long desired adjustments in the revenue structure. The business of figuring taxes is so involved it cannot be adequately discussed in a short news story.

Suffice it to say that the Governor and his fiscal advisers are convinced the proposed reduction of corporate income taxes in order to put North Carolina in better competitive position with other states to attract and keep industry, can be effected without decreasing public services and without jeopardy to the proposed increase in salaries of State employees.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRULY GREAT AGE Some weeks ago when I cast my vote, I kept thinking to myself, "How could I ever have been so lucky as to have been born not only into a civilized nation but into a free democratic nation?" I have many blessings for which I thank God but among the greatest is this heritage of freedom, living in a free country and in a day of great issues.

As we lined up to go into the voting booths, I was struck by the cheerfulness of the people. No stern-faced guards standing about to record the way we vote and bring quick and vindictive vengeance upon us if we overstepped any party line. We know

New Tax Guide Best-Seller

By ELMER ROESSNER

The year's best seller in the tax book field may not be by Lasser, Prentice-Hall or McGraw-Hill, but by their tough competitor, the U.S. Government.

The Internal Revenue Service has just published, "Tax Guide for Small Business 1956," a 128-page, 8 1/2 by 11 inches, paper-covered book. It is chock full of information on the subject and it has an authoritative point of view that only one other non-government book — the Bible — has.

Furthermore, it is written simply and clearly. Makes much more sense than the average tax accountant. For example, it clearly explains just what the FICA tax and the PUTA tax are. In addition, it is fair, or seems so. Quote: "There are many aspects of the Federal tax laws with which you should become familiar so that you pay only your correct tax — no more and no less. You should, for example, understand the elections and choices which you, as a businessman, have as to when and how certain kinds of income shall be taxed to you and when and how certain expenditures shall be deducted."

There is even a page or so on how to get refunds!

SOME RANDOM TIPS

Here are some ideas from the book:

The installment method of reporting sales income relieves the businessman of paying taxes on income that has not been collected and which may never be collected. (That's nice!)

If you received a valid check before the end of the year, it was 1956 income, even if you didn't cash the check until 1957. Income from rent, subscriptions, tickets, etc., is taxable for the year received, even if not earned until later.

A consignment is not a sale and hence does not produce a profit until the goods are sold. The cost of finding a business to buy or investigating it are not deductible as business expenses; they are capital expenditures and can be recovered only in disposing of the business.

HINTS ON DEDUCTIONS

Only the actual cost of meals furnished employees may be deducted; a restaurant operator cannot deduct costs of the meals since he has already deducted them when he paid for the food, etc.

Costs of business repairs are deductible, but costs of improvements must be capitalized and depreciated.

As far as traveling expenses are concerned, your home is your place of business regardless of where you maintain your family residence.

Dues to social or athletic clubs used only for entertaining customers are deductible when business advantages are apparent; however, it is up to the taxpayer to prove his expenses are purely for business.

If you exchange gifts with a business associate, you cannot deduct the cost of your gift unless you treat the associate's gift as income at the fair market value.

If you exchange gifts with a business associate, you cannot deduct the cost of your gift unless you treat the associate's gift as income at the fair market value.

When a group of business associates take turns picking up each other's entertainment checks, no deductions are allowed, even if business is transacted.

BOSS CAN SET 'EM UP Reasonable amounts spent entertaining employees are generally deductible. (Happy New Year, boss!)

If the owner of a business entertains customers at home, the costs are deductible. But if the customers bring their wives, it is "doubtful whether any part of the total expenses incurred would be deductible."

Your adjusted basis for an interest in a partnership can never be less than zero. (Geel!)

Vague Policy Aired

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration, faced with the necessity of taking some kind of leadership in the Middle East where the British and French have been discredited, has acted dramatically but vaguely.

The President went before Congress Saturday with what has been called a program but which is really an outline for a program. And, for the most part, it was not new.

Its vagueness raised questions which may keep the Russians guessing. The questions will also keep Congress and the public guessing until Eisenhower's aides answer some of them.

Nevertheless, since action is needed at this time, and since some action seems better than drifting, Congress will probably approve some of what Eisenhower asked. Time and events will show whether his judgment was good or bad.

This country has given the Middle East economic aid. Eisenhower asked Congress to increase it. But how it will be used he didn't say. At this time he probably doesn't know since it isn't clear what Middle Eastern nation wants it or would accept it.

He told Congress he wants to give Middle Eastern countries military assistance — arms — and this idea is not new although Secretary of State Dulles has been hemming and hawing for months about giving that area arms.

He held off giving Egyptian President Nasser arms until Nasser got them from Russia. He wouldn't sell arms to Israel but left the door open for American allies to supply the Israelis, which they did. He let tanks go to Saudi Arabia.

Last Feb. 4 Dulles said this country "does not exclude the possibility of arms sales," to Israel and the Arab states "when it will preserve peace." Arms for pro-Western countries in the area, like Turkey and Iraq, may preserve peace.

But what assurance will the Eisenhower administration want from other Middle Eastern nations that any arms they get will be used only for defense or to prevent rebellion? He didn't say.

He asked Congress for approval beforehand to use American armed forces in the Middle East to help any nation which asked for it to stop "overt aggression" by a nation controlled by international communism.

Did he really need this stand-by authority because of some emergency of which the general public doesn't know? Or did he ask it simply as a psychological jolt to the Russians and Middle East Communists? Almost certainly the latter.

Dulles himself, judging from what he said at an April 3 news conference last year, believes that in an emergency the President could use the armed forces without asking Congress first although he preferred getting a congressional okay.

He said the President would not ask Congress' approval unless "We do now know of an emergency and since we do not know of it we do not have any present plans to seek congressional action."

There is no indication, unless the administration has information withheld from the public, that Russia intends an attack anywhere. Then what "overt" aggression was Eisenhower talking about? He didn't say.

But except for the economic help intended to stabilize Middle Eastern nations, and arms to quell rebellion, he offered no plan at all for what seems a far more immediate danger in the area: take-over by the Communists from within a country.

Other Editors Saying-- They Voted Too Soon

(Lexington Dispatch)

Because a great many "sick" absentees were turned in before election day, a governorship election, was overturned. L. Rhode Island by the supreme court of the state. It has been noted that one of the leading papers of the country, published west of the Mississippi, in measure denounced the effort of the Democrats in Rhode Island to throw out a good many of the some 5,000 absentee ballots that had been challenged as unconstitutional. That paper took the view that it would be an undemocratic act if this challenge should reverse the result indicated after the absentee ballots were tallied, which gave the Republican candidate for governor a 47 majority.

Perhaps news stories carried by wire services even this far from Rhode Island were rather sketchy. It was reported that the ballots included those cast by persons whose work took them out of their regular voting precincts on election day, or those who were sick or shut-in by crippling or otherwise. According to the procedure in North Carolina, such absentee ballots cannot be placed in the hands of precinct officials until election day. Indeed, a good many of these are not supposed to be processed at all until the day of election. This is on the ground that such voters, or a number of them, might be incapacitated before election day and yet be able to go to the polls when voting time rolled around.

It was charged that in Rhode Island many of the "sick" voted entirely too soon. And a majority of these voted for the Republican candidate. The Democrat had a 207 majority from those who voted in person. All of the absentees have been checked carefully more than a month and the state supreme court upheld the invalidation of enough of these to restore the majority to the Democratic candidate.

The fact that the Republican candidate announced after the decision that he would carry the matter no farther may be taken as conclusive evidence that he felt that the court had resolved the matter on solid legal ground. The closeness of the election gives further emphasis to the fact that every citizen's vote is important.

Decline & Fall Of U.S. Foreign Policy

By HANS J. MORGENTHAU

(From The New Republic)

Both the pacifism of the renunciation of force as an instrument of diplomacy and the legalism of indiscriminate opposition to aggression are familiar tenets of the isolationism of the interwar period. The third current manifestation of isolationism, the subordination of national policies to the United Nations, seems on the face of it to run counter to everything isolation has stood for in the past. It is hard to imagine an isolationist of the twenties pleading that the United States pursue its policies through the League of Nations or through the isolationism of the interwar period wanted to shield the United States from involvement both in the affairs of the outside world and in an active foreign policy. Some spokesmen for contemporary isolationism still believe that the United States can be protected in both respects by having nothing to do with international organizations, such as the United Nations and UNESCO.

The more sophisticated isolationists of our day realize the finality of America's involvement in the affairs of the world and concentrate upon the other isolationist goal: the avoidance of of an active foreign policy. The United Nations provides an ideal means to that end.

The United Nations is looked upon by many of its friends and foes alike as an alternative to national policies. A great nation, such as the United States, so it is assumed, can either pursue policies of its own — determined by considerations of interest and power — or else it can defer to the policies of the United Nations — determined by standards of wisdom and justice different from, and superior to, those which guide national policies. This juxtaposition, in reality notwithstanding, has no foundation in fact.

The United Nations as a policy-making agency does not exist apart from the great nations whose interests and power determine the fate of the world. A great nation entering the halls of the United Nations does not leave its particular interests and distinct power behind. Its vote in the General Assembly counts as much as anybody else's, but its interests and power in the real political world count for infinitely more. The United States might be outvoted by all Latin American nations twenty to one, but the actual distribution of power relationship. A resolution passed by the total membership of the United Nations against the dissenting votes of the United States and the Soviet Union must remain a dead letter if one or the other of the superpowers does not comply with it. The weight of United Nations votes does not necessarily or even generally coincide with the weight of the dominant interests and power, and a settlement recommended by the United Nations can be effective only insofar as it is in harmony with the interests and supported by the power of its most powerful members. For the United States, then, to refer a policy decision to the United Nations is tantamount to saying, "Let George do it," only that George is in good measure the United States itself acting as a member of the United Nations. When the government of the United States is asked, What is your policy for the Middle East? and it replies, We shall act through the United Nations, it has only replied to the procedural question and still owes an answer to the all-important question, What is your UN policy for the Middle East?

well as in its actual policies the procedural and the substantive issue. It has given the appearance of believing, and in good measure actually does believe, that reference of a political issue to the United Nations is an adequate substitute for an American policy. This procedural shift from the State Department to the United Nations will do little harm and may even be advantageous if it is in the interest of the United States to avoid commitment to a clear-cut policy and taking responsibility for its execution. Unfortunately, the great issues which confront the United States today in Eastern Europe and the Middle East are not of that kind. They require constructive, imaginative, even daring policies, which, within or without the United Nations, can only be provided by a great nation with sufficient interests and power to support them. To respond to such challenges with the stereotyped invitation to the United Nations to do what, in the nature of things, it is unable to do without the positive leadership of a great power amounts to the thinly veiled abdication of that leadership and the admission that the great power has no policy to meet the challenge.

CHAPTER 20
The storm blew itself out late in the afternoon of the third day.

Chad Endicot, climbing to one of the blockhouses looked out across the snow-smothered prairie. Even the river, silent and motionless, was as white as the land on both sides of it.

That evening the door to his quarters was flung open and Zack Cubberly came in, stomping snow from his feet. He slammed the door shut, then bowed to Chad with mock courtesy.

"Sorry, Lieutenant, but a man can't stop to knock, even for one of you high-toned officers. Not on a night like this."

"What does the fool want, a riot?" Zack demanded. "Randall's scared," Chad scowled. "When a man who hasn't done anything in the field gets in a pinch, he falls back on Regulations. It's all he can do. And the tougher the going gets, the harder he runs for the book."

Zack got up. "I've gotter get over to the barracks. Some of the boys finger they can play poker; and I am to teach 'em a few o' the fine points."

Digging out began in earnest the next morning. Trenches between each building were cleared, making communication within the fort nearly normal. Outside the palisade, snow lay unevenly level. Still the sky remained ominously black.

Zack leaned forward and spit a brown stream through the loophole. "Now ain't that terrible, the Cume, laid up in bed sick like he is."

Men poured out of the barracks, carrying their rifles high to keep snow out of the muzzles. Colonel Randall emerged from his quarters, buttoning his fur coat as he ran toward the blockhouse.

"What's this about Indians?" he shouted as he climbed into the small, elevated square. He stared accusingly at Chad as if he thought this were some sort of a prank.

"All right, Lieutenant," Randall barked. "Let's get a little fire going on some of those Indians. Get 'em out of my sawmill!"

Chad ran to the men who were lined up along a platform fastened to the palisade, where they had sufficient height to rest their rifles in the loopholes of the stockade.

"Sergeant Anderson, the Colonel wants the Indians driven out of the sawmill. Have your men keep a steady fire on it."

As the rifles began to pop, Anderson came back where Chad was standing. "No use, Lieutenant. Don't reckon we're in range. All we can do is to make a lot of noise."

"I know it," Chad said. "I'm just following orders."

Anderson grunted and joined his men. Chad glanced back at the blockhouse and saw Randall beckoning to him.

Randall showed a pair of field glasses into Chad's hands with the single word, "Here." There was a lull in the firing, and Randall demanded, "What in the devil are they up to?"

Chad said, "One of the bucks has a sledge. He's pounding on the saw."

"They're wrecking the place!" Randall shouted. "Wrecking it, I tell you. You've got to get them out of there! Get that twelve-pounder loaded with grape."

A moment later the gun roared and then roared sharply. The blockhouse shook and the little room filled with the acrid smell of burned powder. The snow showered up in a rippling, uneven pattern at least twenty-five yards short of the mill.

"Ever run a gun before, Lieutenant?" Randall sneered. "That's not a snow shovel, you know."

Chad snapped, "Up five and to the left." The gun roared again and splinters flew from the sawmill.

Randall grunted. "That's better." The gun crew fired rapidly at the sawmill, ripping at its rough board sides and sending splinters flying into the air. After the second shot, the Indians took cover. Now the gunners were shooting at nothing more than the long shed which housed Randall's prized saw.

Randall snapped, "Endicot!" Chad turned to him. "Yes, sir." "I'll not see my mill chewed up with grape while those Indians lie out of range and watch it. We're going to try a little attack strategy ourselves."

Randall, ignoring the amazed expression on Chad's face, hurried on. "We're only seventy men, and they say a man's a fool to divide an inferior force, but Lee did it at Chancellorsville and beat Hooker. We'll give it a try. I think I can hold the fort with twenty men. That will give you fifty to work with. I want you to circle that bunch and drive them into range of our twelve-pounders."

Chad was silent. "We'll give it a try," Randall had said. "We, And you, Lieutenant, will go out and die trying, and when the Indians have taken your scalp, the Colonel will write a report that 'We tried.'"

Chad looked Randall in the eyes. He said, "Yes, sir."

East Carolina Defeats Appalachian By 77-60 Margin

Scoring Paced By Adams, Ingram

BOONE—Guard Charlie Adams and forward Harold Ingram joined forces, Saturday night here to pale East Carolina in a 77-60 North State Conference victory over the Appalachian State Mountaineers.

Ingram and Adams pumped in 18 points each to grab the scoring honors for the Pirates, while All-Conference forward Don Harris added 15 to complement their output. Appalachian's Dave Abernathy took top honors for the game, however, with a total of 26.

The victory was ECC's third conference win against two losses. Their wins have come against Appalachian, Catawba and Guilford, while they have been beaten by High Point and Lenoir Rhyne.

Overall, the Bucs have a 6-2 mark. Coach Howard Porter, who has employed a different, new team combination in his past five games, once again shifted his lineup for Saturday night's affair. Starters were Harris and Ingram at forwards, Guy Mendenhall and Charlie Adams at guards, and Joe Plaster at center. Substituting freely, he also used Marion Hales and Freddy James in the forward slots.

Tim Smothers at center and the Riddick at guard. Nick Nichols, regular forward, did not play due to a weak shoulder.

Ingram, who was confined to a reserve post throughout most of the early season, has come into his own in the past two games. Against Belmont Abbey, Friday night, the husky Lenoir junior was a standout on the boards. Here, Saturday night, he took double honors, grabbing 18 rebounds (tops for both teams), and sharing ECC scoring honors with Adams.

Actually, the lineup was the same as Friday night, with the exception of Ingram in the injured Nick Nichols' position.

Quick Lead
The Pirates were never in trouble against the Mountaineers. They opened play with several quick buckets and moved to an easy 12-4 lead with three minutes time. Before the Apps could regain their composure, Coach Porter's crowd has pushed it to 22-9. By halftime, the game had moved into the rout stage 33-18.

Second half action was closer, with East Carolina getting 44 points and the home team contributing 42. The Bucs, however, were not in the least threatened. Porter used his substitutes freely and continued to experiment, as has been his usual way in the past few weeks.

Next game on the ECC card is slated for January 12, next Saturday, at Elon. The Christians were ranked in first place with a 1-0 mark before this weekend. Lenoir Rhyne downed them 59-53 to drop them from the top spot.

At present, Lenoir Rhyne is first in North State rankings. They have posted a 3-0 mark. Western Carolina follows with a 1-0 card and High Point, with 3-1, is third. Atlantic Christian with 2-1 has fourth place and the Bucs have taken fifth with a 3-2 slate.

This week's games are expected to shake up the standings as the greatest number of loop games to date will be played. Lenoir Rhyne has two, Elon three, ECC and Western Carolina one each.

Greenville High Plays Elizabeth City Tomorrow

Greenville High School, holding a 1-1 Northeastern Conference basketball mark, will have another try at it tomorrow night, as they play host to Elizabeth City, in the GHS gym.

The game will be an important one for both clubs. Both the Phantoms and the Yellow Jackets have been beaten in Northeastern conference play. Kingston and Washington have trounced the Jackets, while Washington also handed the Greensies a licking.

Coach Farley will have two units ready to go full time against the visiting Jackets. His recent procedure of having a two-platoon system has worked well—at least in one incident. They downed New Bern 59-48 last week for their only win of the year in six starts.

Expected to have key roles in the GHS outfit tomorrow night will be Wayne Eldson, Wesley Hudson, Walker Allen and Mack Roebuck, guards; Peanut Nunn, Charlie Smith, Dick Evans and Billy Cox at forwards; Steve Noble, Albert Crawford and Joe Wiggins at center.

GHS Jayvees will be seeking their first victory against six defeats against the Jacket Jayvees at 6:30. The varsity game will begin at 8:00.

Robinson Firm In His Decision To Quit Baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—Jackie Robinson — greying, serious and every inch the business executive — today found himself involved in a full-scale feud even though his baseball days are over.

The now 38-year-old Robinson, who partly the first Negro to play in the major leagues when he signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers 11 years ago, crossed swords with Brook Vice President Buzzie Bavasi over the way the announcement of his retirement was made.

Robinson revealed his plans in tomorrow's issue of Look magazine. The story leaked out when some subscribers of the magazine appeared on the newsstands.

Bavasi didn't like that and said so, adding that Robinson let down the reporters who covered the Dodgers and the New York Giants to whom he was traded less than a month ago.

"Believe me," said Robinson, a former UCLA all-around athlete, "I didn't intend to have things break this way. I signed with Look four years ago and it was common knowledge that when I decided to retire, I would do the story for that magazine."

"Imagine my feeling when I was traded on Dec. 12. The coincidence was all the more remarkable because I signed for a new job — which clinched my retirement — at about 5 p.m. that day, and 10 minutes later Bavasi called me and told me I was traded."

"I immediately called the Giants and asked Chuck Feeney (the vice president) to withhold the announcement of the trade until I had made a final decision. He called Horace Stoneham (Giants president), who said he couldn't withhold it because so many people in the organization knew about it and the story would surely leak out."

Robinson said that was his dilemma. Should he tell the Giants he was retiring or try to beat around the bush. He called Look and was told to respect his contract, that the magazine was to have first crack at the story. Look Editorial Director Dan Mich confirmed this.

"So I respected my contract," he continued. "I knew this would hurt me, but I took the only course I knew."

As for Bavasi, Robinson was bitter. "He might be a little burned over the fact that the deal didn't go through," Robbie said. "I've gotten along with him fine over the years. I've always regarded him as my friend. But I guess I was wrong."

The new job which Robinson referred to is vice president in charge of personnel for a restaurant chain (Chock Full O' Nuts). He signed a two-year contract at a reported $30,000 a year.

"If this job hadn't come up," he said, "I'd probably be playing golf for the Giants this year. The trade had nothing to do with my retiring."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Tournament at Charlotte, and was Wake Forest, one of the most underrated basketball teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference at the beginning of the season, displaced New York's Madison Square Garden Thursday the wares that have brought it a record of seven wins against three defeats.

Seton Hall will be the opposition for the Deacons, who in a pre-season poll of coaches were not rated in the ACC's first division. Only North Carolina, undefeated in 11 games and rated No. 2 in the nation, has a better over-all record among conference teams.

However, counting conference games only, Wake Forest is fifth on a 1-2 record. North Carolina and Duke are tied for the top with victories in each of their three league games. Maryland is third at 3-2, and South Carolina is fourth at 2-2.

Following Wake Forest are North Carolina State and Clemson, each 1-3, and Virginia, 0-2. Wake Forest won the Carrousel

Dickinson Leads In Final Round

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For a little guy who weighs only 125 pounds, Gardner Dickinson faced a monumental task today as he led the way into the final round of the $35,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Packed into a spread of only five strokes were Dickinson and 11 other professionals. At stake was a first-money prize of $7,000.

Nearest threat to the 29-year-old leader from Panama City Beach, Fla., was a seasoned rival, Art Wall Jr. Dickinson had a 54-hole score of 208, Wall 209.

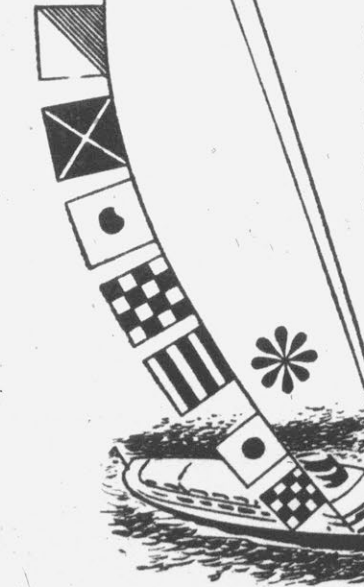

Just behind were some of the greatest names in golf — Cary Middlecoff, Jack Burke Jr., Tommy Bolt, Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford and England's Ryder Cup star, Harry Weetman.

Admitted to these names of the so-called hungry players on the circuit, Doug Higgins, Billy Maxwell, Billy Casper Jr. and Fred Hawkins and Dickinson's problem is easily appreciated.

Playing the Rancho golf course, a 36-35-71 layout whose 7,131 yards was swarming with an estimated 16,200 fans yesterday, Dickinson shot even par. Was he scrambling?

"I scramble every day," he replied with a grin.
Wall moved into the target zone with a flashy 67.
Higgins 71 gave him 210. The early leader, Casper, from Chula Vista, Calif., fell back to 211 with his 75 and a tie at 211 with Ford (71), Finsterwald (68) and Weetman (69).
Middlecoff (71), Burke (74) and Hawkins (68) were at 212 and Bolt (69) and Maxwell (71) at 213.

Notre Dame Retaining Terry Despite Record

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Terry Brennan will remain head football coach at Notre Dame next season in spite of the worst record posted in Irish history in 1956.

Brennan received a vote of confidence Saturday when the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame president, announced that Brennan will be retained for at least one more season.

Under Brennan, who succeeded rank Leahy Feb. 1, 1954, Notre Dame staggered through the 1956 season with a 2-8 record defeat- ing only Indiana and North Carolina.

Father Hesburgh said in a brief statement, "Coach Terry Brennan was engaged on a verbal agreement for three years. Upon the recommendation of the faculty board of control of athletics, we are now re-engaging him next year. We are sure that the alumni and friends of Notre Dame join us in wishing him all success."

Brennan said, "I appreciate this confidence expressed in me" but was unable to clarify the reference to being "re-engaged" for next year.

"It has been a verbal agreement all the way, so whether it means one year, two years, or three years, I wouldn't know," said Brennan who is now 28.

The Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, Notre Dame vice president and faculty man in charge of athletics, said the verbal agreement pertained to next season only.

"It has been our general policy in recent years to retain all coaches on a year to year basis," Father Joyce said. "Naturally when Terry came in as new head coach it was only fitting that he should have assurance that he had more than one year to establish himself."

ECC Swimmers In Tilt Here Today

Expected to shine for the ECC poolsters were Dick Denton, Steve Wilkerson, Harold McKee, Ken Midyette, Jack Koeberling, Ted Gartman and Bob Sawyer. The match began at 2:30.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

ing capacity, plus COLONAD's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAD is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAD neither gases, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions. Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Spurts of heavy selling drove the stock market down early this afternoon after an initial rise.

Key stocks declined from fractions to around 2 points. A few issues took losses far beyond this range.

Prices rose at the opening in active turnover but soon became irregular. Then quotations fell as volume increased. Erratic price movements brought temporary improvement to some stocks in later dealings but others worsened and the general trend remained lower.

Wall Street observers said oils with big resources in the Middle East fell on uncertainty over Egypt's attitude once the Suez Canal is cleared for shipping and that steel producers were concerned over the lag in orders from the auto industry, their biggest customer.

A tendency toward renewed cold war fears was reported since President Eisenhower's proposal for a firmer Middle East policy became known last week but no special impact from this was reported immediately today.

After early fractional gains Bethlehem Steel dropped more than 3 and Youngstown well over 2. Lukens Steel plummeted 6 points, U. S. Steel and Republic Steel were off around a point each.

Gulf Oil skidded over a point and Royal Dutch lost fractionally. Other oils, following their rise last week, lost fractions but Amerasia, a big domestic producer, fell over 3.

International Paper was the industry remained unencouraging.

A gain of more than 3 points was scored by International Nickel as Wall Street was rife with rumors about a stock split.

General Motors and Chrysler slipped a point or more. American Telephone clipped off most of a major fractional gain.

New York Central and Southern Pacific wiped out their small early advances. Atlantic Coast Line, Santa Fe and Southern Railway were other losers.

Aircrafts were mixed as Douglas lost a fraction while Boeing rose and United Aircraft eased. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were slightly higher.

Du Pont, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical and Goodrich took losses of around a point or more. The Associated Press average of 50 stocks at noon was down 50 cents to $181.50 with the industrials down $1.00, the rails down 30 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady, farm price 17. f.o.b. plants 18 1/2 to 18 3/4. Raleigh eggs steady following decline. A large 35; Asheville eggs steady. A large 35; Charlotte eggs unsettled. A large 36; Durham eggs weaker. A large 30-32.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—Hog prices mostly steady to 50 higher. Tops of 16.50 to 18.00 at Hillsboro; 16.75 to 17.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Bethel, Scotland Neck and Jackson; 16.50 to 17.00 at Benson, New Bern and Nabunta; 16.25 to 16.75 at Castle Hayne and Tabor City; 16.75 at Goldsboro, Micro, Elizabethtown, Clinton, Fayetteville, Rich Square and Lumberton; 16.50 at Kenly, Shalotte, Siler City, Mount Gilead, Bailey, Blackmans Crossroads, Whiteville, Spring Hope and Clarkton.

Squelched

A young Elvis fan is probably feeling frustrated these days. The boy, about seven, entered the barber shop with his mother. When his turn came, he took a seat in the barber's chair.

"How do you want it cut," the barber asked the mother.

"I want an Elvis Presley hair cut," the youngster volunteered.

"No, you don't either," came back Mom.

The boy got his haircut—the conventional kind.

Arrested On Two Larceny Charges

Alex Minor, Negro, of 105 First St., has been arrested by police on two charges of larceny and a charge of damage to personal property.

Police made the arrest Saturday after James Edward Tyson of Winterville, N. C., reported that someone broke the glass in his car and took a pair of trousers and some groceries.

Mrs. Naomi Cherry Stancill of 104 Columbia Ave. also reported that a billfold was taken from the glove compartment of her vehicle Saturday evening.

Mrs. Della Pollard, 53, wife of Ferdie F. Pollard of Tarboro, died suddenly Saturday night at 6:30 in a Tarboro hospital following a heart attack.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon by Elder W. E. Grimes, Primitive Baptist minister of near Greenville, assisted by the Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist minister of Bethel. Burial was in the Tarboro cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Ferdie F. Pollard; three sons, Al C. Pollard of near Greenville, William Pollard of the home and E. C. Pollard of Plymouth; two daughters, Mrs. J. C. Find Bootleg In Dance Hall Raid

A specialty of the house will serve evidence when the operator of a Fountain dance hall is tried on liquor law violation charges.

ABC officers raided the Fountain dance hall Saturday night and found a quantity of bootleg liquor mixed with raisins. They also found additional illegal liquor unmix.

The officers arrested Robert Lee Jones, Negro of Box 252 Fountain. He was charged with possession of bootleg liquor for purpose of sale.
