Polio Group Has Bills, No Funds

For the first time in its history the Pitt County chapter of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation finds itself confronted with bills it does not have the funds to pay.

For Continuance

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders formally decided today to seek a continuance of about three billion dollars in excise and corporation taxes beyond the April 1 expiration date.

Knowland Seems Maneuvering For 1960 Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) appears to be moving himself toward a position where he can challenge Vice President Nixon and all other contenders for 1960 GOP presidential nomination.

Predict Quick Okay For Mid-East Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a top Republican committee member both predicted today that the House would speedily approve President Eisenhower's resolution on the Middle East.

The decision was announced at the White House by Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California. It underscored what administration leaders previously have said are dim prospects for any major tax reduction this year.

Knowland announced the decision after he and other GOP congressional leaders had conferred with the President. It was the first of the regular Tuesday morning White House sessions with the Republican chiefs in this new session of Congress.

Chairman Thomas S. Gordon (D-Ill.) and Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) expressed that opinion as the committee called Secretary of State Dulles back for more questioning.

At a news conference, Knowland and House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts reported that Eisenhower and the leaders drew up a proposed priority list of legislation. Knowland emphasized, however, that a final decision on the sequence of legislation will be up to the Democrats in both the Senate and the House because their party is in control of Congress.

Extensive hearings still lay ahead in the Senate. Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said "I, for one, am not going to be stampeded into action on this."

Eisenhower's resolution, delivered to Congress Saturday on a top priority basis, would authorize dollar help to Middle East countries and use of U. S. armed forces in case of open Communist military attack.

Home Damaged By Fire Monday

Some Knowland associates in Washington said they believed the senator had decided that if he wants to be president he will have to break the three-way knot that now exists over potential control of the hefty California delegation to the Republican convention four years from now.

As senator, he would have to deal with Knight or Nixon with the prospect that the delegation would be split two, or possibly three, ways. But as governor he would have disposed of Knight and probably could wrest the state's delegation away from Nixon, leaving the latter without a "home base."

Reappoint 5 To Hospital Board

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon reappointed five members of the Board of Trustees for Pitt Memorial Hospital for six-year terms.

Naming of the five trustees was one of several items of routine business handled by the board in its afternoon session. Reappointments to the board were given to David A. Evans and Jesse R. Moye III of Greenville; T. J. Williams of Grifton; Wayland L. Hunsucker of Winterville; and Carson R. Jones of Falkland.

Pitt's Legal Sale Of Liquor Down

Legal liquor sales in Pitt County took a big tumble in the last six months of 1956. County ABC Board Chairman J. W. Joyner of Farmville told the Board of Commissioners yesterday that sales for the last six months of the year were $35,106.75 less than those for 1956's first six months.

Faulty Chimney Believed Cause

A fire, believed to have started from a defective fireplace chimney, heavily damaged the outer wall of a two-story dwelling at 108 S. Summit St. yesterday afternoon.

Gray was authorized to handle the county's votes in the annual meeting of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Greenville. He was also instructed to obtain reservations for commissioners for the June 23-26 meeting in Raleigh of the State Association of County Commissioners.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has promised Communist East Germany more economic help and more control over Russian troops "temporarily" assigned to East German soil.

Dismiss Million Dollar Leaf Suit

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A million-dollar lawsuit by a group of North Carolina farmers against the Tennessee Burley Tobacco Growers Assn. yesterday was dismissed by a federal judge.

All These In An Afternoon Of Trolling

A day of trolling in Pamlico River below Washington turned out to be a profitable fishing trip for Claude and David Batts, Greenville brothers. The two men caught 23 rock, including the seven-and-a-quarter-pound whopper held by Claude, and two white perch. Claude, on the left, lives at 110 South Sylvan Drive and brother David lives at 112 South Sylvan Drive. (Reflector Staff Photo).

The North Carolina group sought to have the association, of which they are members, distribute "more than a million dollars" from resale of tobacco since 1945 under the price support program.

Miss Cameron Weds Ayden Native

Miss Mildred Cameron of Broadway became the bride of Zeb Whitford Jr. of Warwick, Va. in a December ceremony solemnized in the Broadway Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Whitford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cameron of Broadway and Mr. Whitford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitford of Ayden.

The Rev. R. B. Rock, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The Christmas and bridal decorations were combined in the church decorations. Magnolia foliage and Christmas wreaths formed a background for an arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Branched candelabra holding tall red tapers tied with red bows outlined the sanctuary of the church. The reserved pews were marked with red ribbons.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Zack Thompson of Sanford, organist, and C. L. Williams of Broadway, soloist, who rendered "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Indian Love Call" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle featuring a sheer jeweled neckline with iridescent sequins, fitted bodice and long sleeves ending in points at the hands. The bouffant skirt of lace and tulle swept into a cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a coronet of lace and seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses and stephanotis centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Robert D. Stokes, sister of the bridegroom of Greenville, served as matron of honor. She wore a gown of green net over taffeta with matching headband and carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations with clusters of silver ornaments.

Bridesmaids were Miss June Smith of Ayden and Miss Sarah Buchanan of Broadway.

They wore dresses of red net over taffeta with matching headbands. Their flowers were cascade bouquets of white carnations with clusters of green ornaments.

Miss Gwen Ellen Cameron, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed as the bride and carried a nosegay of red carnations.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was James Michaels of High Point who served in the Navy with Mr. Whitford.

Ushers were Robert D. Stokes, Lloyd Fornes Jr. of Greenville, W. H. Baxley Jr., cousin of the bridegroom of Jacksonville, Fla.,

Mrs. Zeb Whitford, Jr.

Charlie Cox of Greenville and Portsmouth, Va., Harold Buck of Ayden and Otis Wall of Bridgeton, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fornes Jr. of Greenville, Mrs. Thomas Taylor of Ayden, Mrs. Ade Wall of Grifton, Mr. and Mrs. Z. O. Whitford of Ayden, Miss June Smith of Ayden, Mrs. Harold Buck of Ayden and Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Stokes and Robin of Greenville.

Rehearsal Party Mrs. S. W. Shaw, Mrs. Forrest Stevens and Mrs. Archie Cameron entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the home of Mrs. Cameron honoring the bridal pair. Some 75 guests were present.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home in Broadway.

When the couple left for their wedding trip to unannounced points, Mrs. Whitford traveled in a brown wool suit with matching accessories. At her shoulder she added the orchids from her bridal bouquet.

The bride attended Peace College in Raleigh and received her B. S. Degree from East Carolina College in November.

The bridegroom attended East Carolina College and is now serving in the U. S. Navy.

The couple are making their home at 903 79th Street, Warwick, Va.

Out-of-Town Guests Present Out-of-town guests from this locality present for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Cox of Greenville and Portsmouth, Va., Miss Annie Whitford of Winterville, Miss Mavis Brown of Winterville, Mrs. H. W. Nobles of

An Easy, Gentle Look Keynotes Spring Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—This spring it will be smart to be comfortable. This is the big news New York designers are passing along to long-suffering American women, on the first day of a week of spring previews for the nation's visiting fashion press.

New clothes are designed to conform to the natural lines of the body, to fit loosely and easily and to require no contortions of waist, bust or hips.

You won't have to wear a strangling waist cincher to fit into your new spring suit or dress. You won't have to pad your bust-line or struggle to eliminate your hips.

The general silhouette is slender, but not in the sausage-casting sheath manner. Designers employ many ingenious methods to ease the fit of the new suits and dresses while maintaining the slim line.

One of these is the peg-top skirt, still narrow at the hemline, but with slight fullness at the top. Front or back panels also give the illusion of longer lines to the new suit skirts.

Jackets of the new suits are short, ranging from just below the bust to just above the hipbone. Some are loose and boxy, some bloused in back, some semifitted, none tightly fitted.

The cape is an important new trend, being used instead of a suit jacket, sometimes as a part of the jacket, sometimes as an addition to the jacket.

The ankle-length dinner and theater costume continues important in all collections, with full-length evening gowns much more numerous than the shorter varieties, except in junior collections. The elegance and formality launched last spring continues, with definite demarcation between daytime, cocktail and evening clothes.

There's also a covered-up modesty in most of the new fashions, extending from bathing suits to evening gowns.

PARTY DRESS . . . Branel designs a black-tissue silk dance dress with easy, full skirt and all-over tucked jacket of white chiffon.

AFTERNOON COSTUME . . . Larkspur blue printed silk surah dress and little jacket of handloomed wool, from the Hattie Carnegie collection.

TUNIC SKIRT . . . This suit has brief jacket, tunic skirt, designed by Adele Simpson.

Mobley-Crandall Vows Pledged Home Planning

ROBERSONVILLE—The Methodist church here with a background of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and palms was the setting December 22 for the wedding ceremony of Miss Jean Crandall and Jimmy Mobley.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Crandall of Robersonville and the bridegroom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Mobley of Plymouth.

The Rev. Noah B. Hill performed the ceremony. Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, organist. James Stewart Crandall Jr., brother of the bride, lighted the tapers.

The couple entered the church together, the bride wearing a blue suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bride's mother wore a red woolen suit with black accessories. Mrs. Mobley was attired in a blue silk dress. Both mothers wore white carnations.

Mrs. Mobley is a junior at the local high school and the bridegroom is a graduate of Plymouth High School.

They will make their home in Plymouth where he is employed. A wedding trip to Western North Carolina followed the ceremony.

Appeared In Yuletide Revue

Nine-year-old Tommy Harris of Greenville, Route 6, was a performer in the twenty-first annual yuletide revue in New Bern.

He chose for his piano selection "A Good Man Is Hard To Find" and for an encore "Hound Dog." Tommy has been a guest on several television programs.

Shower Fetes Recent Bride

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Jimmy Mobley of Plymouth, a December bride, was honored by her aunt, Mrs. Vernon Hardy of Robersonville, at a floating miscellaneous shower Friday evening from 8:00 o'clock until 10:00.

The mantel of the Hardy home was decorated with greenery and lighted tapers in candleholders. Red flowers completed the decorations.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hostess who introduced them to the receiving line composed of the bride, the former Miss Jean Crandall, her mother, Mrs. James S. Crandall and the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Grover Mobley of Plymouth.

Mrs. Robert K. Adkins presided in the gift room and directed the guests to the register. Then the friends returned to the living room where Miss Dot Moore, Miss Kay Weaver, Miss Peggy Crawford and Miss Gail Hamrick served potato chips, cookies, mints and fruited punch.

The honoree received useful gifts from the 65 callers and the many friends who were unable to attend sent linen and china for the new home.

Mrs. Burnette Fetes Friday Club

FOUNTAIN—Mrs. Paule Burnette entertained the Friday afternoon bridge club in her home.

Upon arrival the guests were served fruit cake and coffee. Later Coca-Colas were served.

Mrs. Carter Smith and Mrs. A. C. Gay won high score prizes and Mrs. Arthur Fountain was given the guest prize.

Sunday brunch: pork chops and apple rings accompanied by corn-bread and lots of hot coffee. Nice to linger over with company!

Home Planning Red Banks Club Program Topic

Home Agent Lillie Little gave the monthly demonstration when the Red Banks Club met Friday afternoon.

Subject of the demonstration was "Plan Your Home."

Highlight of the business session was appointment of new project leaders and committee chairmen for the New Year. New hostesses were also assigned for each month.

Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr. presided over the meeting which took place in the community building.

Devotional was given by Mrs. E. H. Boyd. Her theme was "Are We Really Living Today?"

Welcomed into the club as a new member was Mrs. E. L. Edwards.

Members voted to continue the secret pals for another year. Plans were also laid for a covered dish supper to be held in February when husbands of club members will be guests.

Hostesses for Friday's meeting were Mrs. Noah T. Hardee and Mrs. Worth Hardee. They served a salad course and pecan pie with hot coffee.

Twelve members were present.

Mrs. Collins Is Hostess To Club

AYDEN—On Friday evening Mrs. Jack M. Collins was hostess to the Odds and Ends Club when she entertained at dessert bridge at her home on the Greenville Highway.

At the conclusion of the progressions, Mrs. T. Staton Ross was given an ash tray for club high score prize and Mrs. P. R. Taylor received a box of all occasion cards for guest high.

During the game the hostess served fruit punch and cheese wafers to Mesdames Ross, Taylor, James W. Everett, Keith Brunson, Alton Gardner, Leslie Stokes, Joe D. Tripp and Miss Clyde Stokes.

LISTEN PARENTS

VANCOUVER—A good example by parents is better than "arm-chair talks," says Dean Neville W. Scarfe, head of the college of education at University of British Columbia. If parents send well-behaved children to school from homes which show interest and anxiety for learning, teachers can do a far better job, he stresses.

New Sign Erected By Woman's Club

A new "Woman's Club sign" has been erected on highway 43 in front of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

A state project of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, this sign was purchased by the local club over a year ago when Mrs. R. P. Rogers was president of the club.

The construction of a new highway crossing 43 caused a long delay in erection of the sign but it is now securely in place.

Serving on the sign committee were Mrs. W. H. Woolard, Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale and Mrs. Rogers.

Right; Soil Bank No Relief Step

Whatever his critics may say of Agriculture Secretary Benson, he made a good point in his first day of defending his administration of the soil bank plan before members of the House Agriculture Committee.

At the outset Benson firmly declared he intended to administer the program to reduce crop surplus and "not load upon the soil bank the responsibility for drought relief, flood relief or credit needs".

As we understood it, reduction of crop surplus was the primary cause for instituting the soil bank program. The fact that secondary benefits resulted quite possibly beclouded the original intent. The soil bank was not designed as a relief measure... though it could be so used, if that is what the people so desire.

Secretary Benson is facing some hostile congressmen in the House Committee, and yesterday's was only the first round of inquiry into how the soil bank program has been handled. There's room for belief that no matter when, and on what note, the hearings will end, there will be some who contend faults have been proven... and some who will contend faults have not been proven.

Something to bear in mind:

Some sectional farm groups are bound to feel theirs is a special problem deserving special leniency and conditions pertaining to the soil bank plan. It is understandable, but not necessarily acceptable. When instituted, the program was intended to cover the entire farm field without favor. It would not be in the national interest for special groups to insist upon special treatment, for that would negate the over-all value of the law.

Nor would favored treatment in administration of the law be considered to the national interest... a factor which should be closely watched by the public at large. The law was intended to cover the general needs of agriculture in reducing crop surpluses.

Whatever conflicting conclusions are reached, the mere fact that Congressmen are demonstrating a keen interest in soil bank operations will keep all members of the Agriculture Department on their toes.

We Think It Safe For Us To Say---

That all-virus vaccine, proposed by Dr. Jonas Salk, would truly make the 20th century the Century of Medical Miracles. IF, the common cold were among the defeated plagues.

There's nothing like a cloak of secrecy to interest peoples; especially if it involves boring holes in the ground to find samples for laboratory testing. That Piedmont Properties, Inc. has had more free advertising out of its preliminary operations than many companies get in a lifetime. What if they were just testing some new drills?

Seventy-one million dollars worth of road construction for North Carolina is good news, in North Carolina. Can't help but remember, though, that Tar Heels would have received more roads for the same amount of money ten years ago; and twenty years ago? Whew!

Steel Prices Will Top Predictions

By ELMER ROESSNER

The steel price rise may be bigger and broader than predicted. Already prices have been boosted for steel "extras," that is, for special forms and alloys, and increases are building up under other kinds.

There are three reasons for higher steel prices:

1. Steel workers got an automatic 3 per cent pay rise this month as a consequence of the rise in the consumers' price index.
 2. Steel workers get another automatic pay rise in midyear, under terms of the contract that ended last summer's strike.
 3. The government's refusal to grant the steel industry fast writ-offs for plant expansion will tend to increase the costs of financing them.
- Facing this triple necessity of paying out more money, steel companies will naturally try to take in more -- by raising prices.

OTHER COMING EVENTS

Here are more business predictions, based on analyses of developing trends:

Silk imports will increase this year. Rising consumer interest in silk apparel, plus determined Japanese promotions, sold $13,000,000 worth of Japanese silk to American apparel manufacturers last year; this year Japanese exporters foresee demand for $15,000,000.

Almost all fabrics will go up in price. The recent rise in nylon and other synthetic yarns made it certain that textiles produced from them would go up. Now some wool fabrics are advancing and the textile industry expects cotton goods will firm in prices.

Factors are entering a new boom. Tighter money is turning more companies to factors, who loan money on accounts receivable. Factors charge a high rate, usually around 18 per cent, but they charge only for the exact time their money is used. They also insist on tight business practices and factors' financial discipline is reputed to have saved many weak firms from closure.

OLD BATTLE TO BE RENEWED

Higher postal rates will be proposed again. Costs of operating the post office rose in 1956 no less than the cost of operating private businesses and the battle for higher rates will be fought out in Congress again. Because costs have advanced so sharply, Congress may be inclined to boost first class, parcel post and other rates. However, it is likely that the public and business will get some appeasement: more first class mail will be moved by air at no extra charge, some parcel post limitations may be eased, etc.

A new citrus fruit drive is coming. California is talking to Florida now and in about 10 days an eat-more-citrus-fruit campaign will be launched in supermarkets. Texas and Arizona citrus growers also are behind the drive.

Natural gas may be "freed" this year. New bills easing restrictions on interstate vending of natural gas are certain to be introduced in the new Congress, with a good chance of passage. If the industry avoids stupid lobbying such as caused President Eisenhower to veto similar legislation last year, the White House is likely to approve any reasonable laws.

OLD PROMOTER WANTS TAX MONEY EARMARKED

"I've got Idea Number One, 1957!" the Old Promoter announced today when he walked in unannounced as usual. "It will make paying income taxes fun."

"This we've got to hear!" we said.

"It's simple," the old one said, helping himself to one of our cigars. "All Congress has to do is change the law so that when people pay taxes, they do it with special tax checks that banks will sell. Then the government, instead of cashing these checks, will use them to pay its bills. After the people who get them deposit them, they will be returned, cancelled, to the original payer. Then everybody will know exactly what happened to their tax money. They will know whether they paid for a part of an atomic submarine, a rich farmer's party payment, or a doghouse for a colonel in Germany. I'd find it romantic to discover that I had been paying part of the salary of a beautiful secretary in the Attorney General's office."

We aren't sure this idea will work. But if you like it, it's yours. We bought it for you with that cigar. Cut this story out of your newspaper, write "Get busy!" on it, and send it to your Congressman.

Four New N. C. Congressmen

By LYNN NISBET

CONGRESSMEN—Four of the name tags designating places of residence of North Carolina's representatives in the Congress had to be changed on the official map last week. In two instances the change put the congressmen nearer the center of the district, in two others they were moved nearer the corner.

Ralph J. Scott of Danbury, substituted for Thurmond of Chatham of Winston-Salem and Elkin, put the fifth district representative closer to the middle. So did changing the eighth district tab from C.B. Dean at Rockingham to Paul Kitchin at Wadesboro. Transferring the seventh district representative from Ertel Carley's home in Lumberton to Alton Lennon's in Wilmington moved the residence from near the center to an outer edge of the district. Same thing happened when Basil Whitener of Gastonia replaced Woodrow Jones of Rutherfordton in the eleventh district.

After the changes were made the map presented a "funny" picture. Alton Lennon is the most isolated congressman. His closest colleague is "Hap" Barden at New Bern, about 90 miles away. Although Paul Kitchin is somewhat nearer the center of his district than is Charlie Deane, it is still true that his constituents in Wilkes county are closer to five other representatives and both Senators than to their own congressman. Distance from Wilkesboro to Wadesboro is farther than to Danbury, Kannapolis, Lincolnton, Gastonia or Asheville. It is also farther than to Haw River or Morganton where the senators live. Furthermore, there is no way to get from Wilkesboro to Wadesboro without going outside the district.

BUNCHED—While Alton Lennon is 90 miles from his nearest congressman neighbor, and George Shuford of Asheville almost as far, other Tarheel members are bunched close together. Harold Cooley of the fourth district at Nashville lives in adjoining county and only about 25 miles from L.H. Fountain of the second district at Tarboro. Similar situation is found in the residence of Charles Raper Jones of the tenth district at Lincolnton and Basil Whitener of the eleventh district at Gastonia.

POTPOURRI—Statement was made and not challenged at the C&D board meeting this week that more different kinds of fish are caught in and off the coast of Dare county than any other county in the United States. Folks who want to erect billboards along the highways are realizing that State and Federal authorities have some control over such signs beyond the boundaries of the rights of way.

Elbert Cox, region director of the National Park Service, said he felt better after reading a sign in a C&D department office the other day. It read: "Count that day lost in which you catch hell about something..."

Peyton Abbott, assistant attorney general, caught the same idea and he was handing out to friends a lithographed copy of a statement attributed to Benjamin Franklin in 1772. It read: "We must not in the course of public life expect immediate approbation and immediate grateful acknowledgement of our services. But let us persevere thro' abuse and even injury. The internal satisfaction of a good conscience is always present, and time will do us justice in the minds of the people, even of those at present the most prejudiced against us."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOT TOO SCARCE

Many centuries ago, a Chinese emperor built a great wall about his domain. By this, he would keep out the enemy and forever be secure.

But it was only a decade or two until hordes of the enemy thronged through the gates of the great wall. The wall, to be sure, was quite strong enough to keep the enemy out, but the guards had been bribed to open the gates and had succumbed.

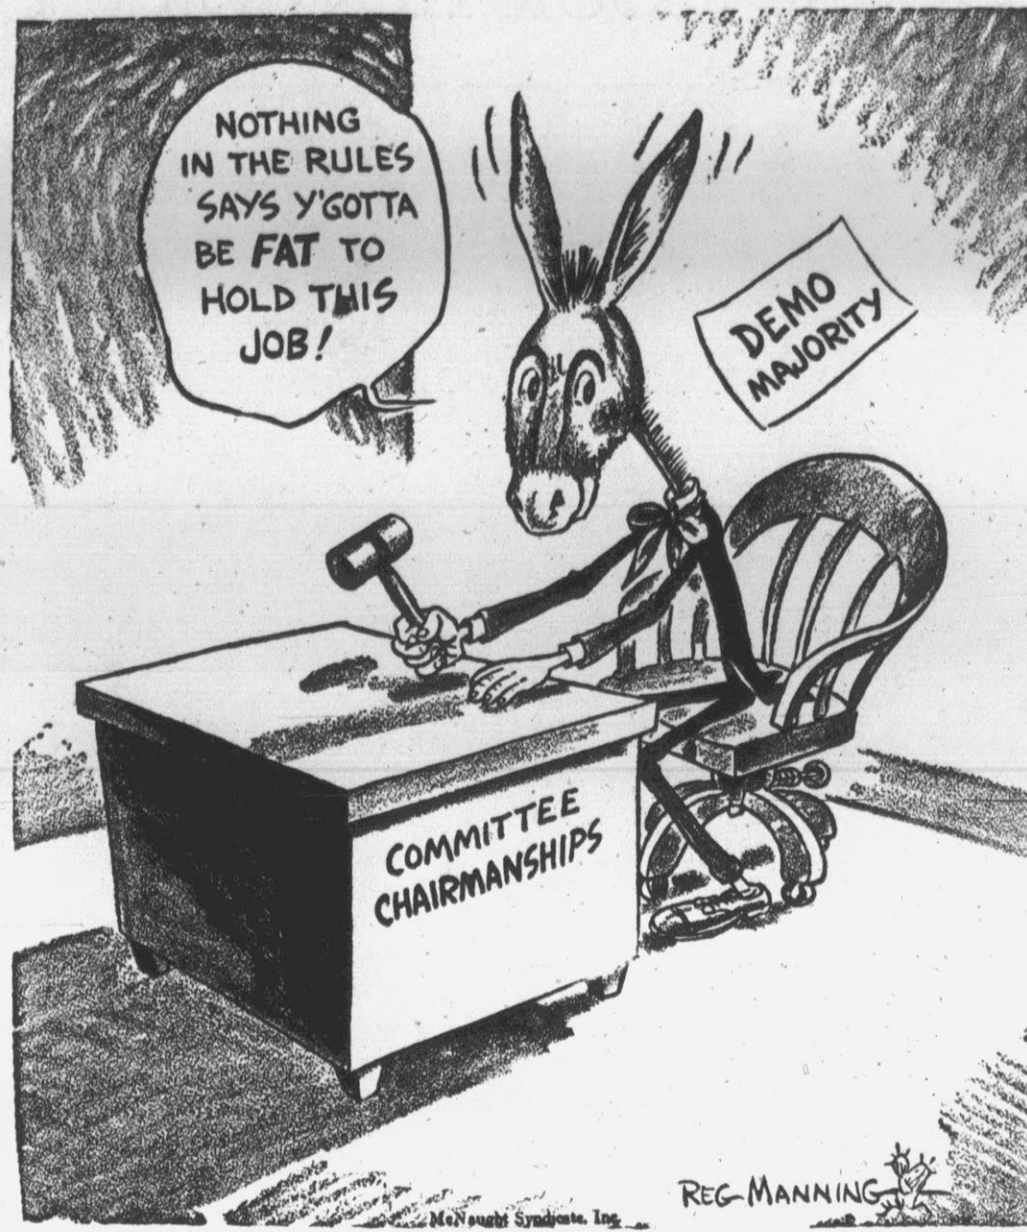

So it all comes down in the end to moral character. The great wall failed to confer security on the emperor and his people, not because the wall was at fault but because men were. The only way to outdo the wall was to have a paid traitor inside who would slip the latch at a prearranged time.

On what is the credit system of a nation based? Partly on collateral. But most of all, of course, it is based on the trustworthiness of the borrower. Banks will not lend money to thieves no matter what collateral they put up, and often banks lend money to men who have almost no other asset but a good name.

The most valuable thing in the world is sound moral character. It is also the most beautiful thing in the world. And thank God it is not so scarce as in the days of discouragement we try to make ourselves believe it is. There's plenty of it around if we will take the time to look for it.

The Thin Man

Rain Used To Be Nicer

In my younger days I was quite fond of rain. Those days and that fondness, however, have been set aside. They came before I had to battle women and umbrellas on wet, crowded sidewalks.

In the old days, I could sit me down on the big front porch and see rain as something other than a wet mess that got the roads slippery, the yard muddy and the dog dirty. I could see it as a series of patterns, competing with each other to reach a thirsty Earth. It was something that sang of freshness and a new life -- an end to a heat wave or the monotony of an unwarmed stretch of winter sun, a new beginning for struggling laws which had been fighting either summer heat or the winter's frost, a refresher for hushed birds hiding in the shade of the pecan trees or shivering on the bare limbs of the old oak tree we called our own.

Rain, in those days gone by, was a gateway to a world of memories -- of other rains and other days when troubles were not nearly so numerous.

There's little opportunity to become so subjective about rain these days. There's no front porch to sit on -- one of the tragedies of modern architecture, I suppose -- and even if there were one there would hardly be time enough, it seems, to use it as a place for sitting and thinking.

Rain, in these times, means waterproof coats and overshoes. It means changing schedules and routes. It means crowding close to buildings and under awnings to keep from losing the crease in trousers or the non-waterproof ink notes on a paid. It means a sharp reminder of the personal philosophy "umbrellas are mightier than a mere man and woe be unto him who would do battle over ownership of a crowded sidewalk in a drizzle which has called forth an arsenal of feminine-inspired umbrellas".

Umbrellas are lethal weapons. Their pointed shafts are direct descendants of mighty Caesar's spears and they have more ribs than the Smithsonian Institute's fossils.

There is no room for rambling thoughts of rain in the midst of a pitched battle with umbrella-armed women. Rain becomes ugly and malicious -- and you wish it would go away.

One of these days I'm going to take me and my brood to some far-off corner that never heard of umbrellas. I'm going to build a big front porch that's not good for a thing but sitting and thinking. I'm going to wiggle my toes in the mud, listen for the birds' sweet notes, and hark to the silent song of growing grass.

And I'm going to shoot the first person that brings an umbrella anywhere near me.

Other Editors Saying--- Central Airport A Must

(Wilson Times)

The Times agrees with John Dortch Lewis, Goldsboro's representative on the Mid-East Carolina Airport authority, when he said "that a central airport that will command good air service for the area will be built." And he expressed the desire of all the interested cities and counties when he said that hope has not been abandoned that Kinston will become a part of the operation.

Nothing should stop the building of the airport to serve this section of Eastern Carolina. And many of the fears raised by Kinston are unfounded. The proposed airport has adequate runways that will accommodate the new and modern planes. In fact the CAA would not approve plans that did not meet these specifications.

And the airport must be built, even if our neighbor city, Kinston does not become a part of the project. The counties of Wilson, Greene, Pitt, and Wayne with the cities in these counties are all committed to the project. And if necessary these counties should go ahead with the plans.

But we feel confident that Le-noir county and Kinston will become a part of the project. Kinston does have good service now from Piedmont Airlines. But Kinston has no assurance it can keep this service after the Mid-East project is completed. It stands to reason that an airline is going where it can obtain the greatest amount of traffic. And the Mid-East, drawing from cities like Greenville, Goldsboro and Kinston, with the other towns can supply more traffic than the line is now getting from Kinston.

And it is certainly true that this area cannot support two regional airports. All that is needed is one airport with sufficient traffic to support trunk lines as well as feeder lines.

So the plans should be pushed and at once. For there is nothing this section needs more than air service. And it will be a great boom to industrial development.

The Times has been asked what the maintenance cost of an airport of the size proposed will be? From what we can learn the fees the airline services pay for the use of the administration building and the air strips will take care of maintenance costs.

The CAA will soon make known its decision. As you know Rocky Mount has applied for the government funds to build an airport to service that area. Mid-East also has applied for the government funds. And the government money will pay half the cost of construction.

Mid-East is set up to serve all the participating area. It is fairly placed, as nearly in the center of the population area as possible. It is designed to serve all this section. And it is a must, nothing must stop this project. It has the backing of the department of Conservation and Development. It has the backing

Decline & Fall Of U. S. Foreign Policy

PART VI

By HANS MORGENTHAU

(From The New Republic)

Nowhere is that deficiency of American foreign policy more obvious than in the Middle East. The great issue which the Middle East has presented to the world since the end of World War II has been the creation of a viable settlement which, if not acceptable to the parties concerned on its merits, could at least be enforced by unchallengeable power. The United Nations endeavored to define such a settlement which, none of the parties concerned saw fit to accept on its merits. Unable to support this settlement with unchallengeable power, the United Nations had to limit itself to pointing with regret to repeated violations of the settlement by all concerned. The survival of the settlement at least in a rudimentary form reposed upon a precarious balance of power between Israel and the Arab countries. The emergence of the Soviet Union as a dominant power in the region, using primarily Egypt and Syria for her purposes, and the failure of Great Britain, France, and Israel to redress the balance has dramatically reopened the two basic issues: the substance of a viable settlement and the distribution of power in support of it.

The contribution of the United States to the solution of these issues has been twofold: cooperation with Egypt and the Soviet Union in the destruction of British and French power in the area and support for a United Nations police force. The first of these contributions, as already pointed out, runs counter to the interests of the United States since the United States is not willing to substitute effective power of its own for that of Great Britain and France. The political and military vacuum created by the destruction of British and French power in the area is being filled, and for all practical purposes has already been filled, by the power of the enemies not only of Great Britain and France but of the United States as well: Egypt and the Soviet Union. The substance of the settlement is bound to reflect this fact.

The United Nations police force has nothing decisive to contribute to the twin issues of the distribution of power and the substance of a viable settlement. The successful operation of a police force depends upon the presence of two conditions: a legally defined status quo capable of defense and deemed worth defending, and an unchallengeable preponderance of the power of the police and the law abiding members of society over those opposed to the status quo. Neither condition is present in the Middle East. The real issue there has not been how to defend an existing status quo but how to create one that can be defended and is seemed worth defending by at least some of the parties concerned. The police are able to protect my property because all concerned know what it is and most accept the law defending it as just. In the Middle East what one nation claims as its own others claim as well, and the conceptions of justice from which the rival claims derive are irreconcilable.

In the absence of even an approximation to a consensus about the legal order which the United Nations police force could defend, that police force would have to be of such magnitude as to be able to impose a settlement upon the parties concerned even in the face of the active opposition of most or all of them. It is hardly necessary to point out that the United Nations police force, as presently constituted, far from being able to impose a settlement on anybody, is politically and militarily at the mercy of Egypt.

Out of the vague and ill-defined functions assigned to it there emerge two major purposes for its presence in Egypt: to provide a thin and fragile screen of respectability behind which Great Britain, France, and Israel can withdraw their troops from Egyptian territory, and to provide a similar screen with which to mask, on the one hand, the triumph of Egypt and the Soviet Union, and on the other, the diplomatic and military impotence of the United States. In one word, the United Nations police force is supposed to perform hardly any of the functions commonly associated with a police force. In its essence it is a polite gesture on the part of the community of nations, a diplomatic device, an elaborate make-believe through which everybody pretends, for however different reasons, not to have witnessed the embarrassing spectacle of the bankruptcy of the foreign policy of the three great leaders of the West.

How has the United States come to such a pass? How is it that scores of knowledgeable and responsible men, within and without the government, witness such a disaster in silence? How is it, in particular, that those who speak out appear to congratulate the nation on the defeat of its enemies, and its own impotence? How is it, finally, that the people at large, enthralled in a kind of somnambulistic trance, seem hardly to have noticed the recent momentous events pregnant with bigger disasters to come?

Atlanta Meeting Slated To Plan Stepped Up Integration Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Plans for a stepped-up campaign to integrate buses in the South will be discussed in Atlanta this week by Negro leaders encouraged by a report the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People received more than a million dollars in receipts in 1956.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. of Montgomery, Ala., last night called on Southern Negro leaders to attend a strategy meeting in Atlanta Thursday and Friday "in an effort to coordinate and spur the campaign for integrated transportation in the South."

"We have no moral choice, before God, but to delve deeper into the struggle," said King, leader of the 381-day Negro bus boycott which ended peacefully in Montgomery Dec. 21 with federally ordered bus integration.

"We are convinced that most white Southerners are prepared to accept integration as the law of the land," he said in a statement. "On the other hand, a small but willful minority, dedicated to violence, is resorting to threats, shootings, cross burnings and bombings."

The Rev. C. K. Steele of Tallahassee, Fla., and the Rev. F. L. Simmesworth of Birmingham, Ala., joined King in urging Negro leaders "from troubled areas all over the South" to attend. Both Steele and Simmesworth have been active in campaigns for integrated buses in their respective cities. King said the meeting will be closed to the public but that a statement will be issued after it is over.

In New York, Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, said that court prosecution of the NAACP in some Southern cities and defiance of desegregation rulings stirred a record wave of "financial and moral support."

He told the organization's annual meeting that NAACP receipts hit a 1956 peak of more than a million dollars. He said the income came mostly in small contributions from thousands of individuals.

Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the NAACP, said that the organization was going to continue to support legal efforts in the South and at the same time concentrate "on breaking down segregation in the North."

Marshall, who directs NAACP legal strategy, also said that "prejudiced state government officials" were forcing the NAACP to go to court to block "their unlawful purposes" to thwart advances in civil rights.

"Before long," Marshall told the meeting in New York, "we will have (legal) precedents enough to protect ourselves against all such moves. We will then be free to accept and shuttles will have been ac-operate with the full benefit of the law of the land."

Other segregation developments included:

Pine Bluff, Ark.—A Negro founder worker, William Dove, made an unsuccessful attempt to enroll his five children at the Dollarway School. Mrs. Hazel Watkins, school superintendent, said she told Dove the school "just hadn't planned" for integration this year and that she was anxious to avoid any incidents.

Tallahassee, Fla.—The City Commission approved a plan for bus drivers to issue tickets to riders assigning them to seats in an effort to get the buses running again on a segregated basis. Gov. Leroy Collins suspended bus service in the Florida capital by executive order Jan. 1 after an outbreak of violence.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Fourteen Negro children filed a petition in federal court seeking admission to two all-white secondary and two all-white elementary schools. The petition said the 11 girls and three boys were turned away in September.

Nashville, Tenn.—Gov. Frank Clement's legislative leaders introduced resolutions in the Tennessee General Assembly criticizing the U. S. Supreme Court's ban on segregated public schools. No action was taken on the resolutions immediately.

He would pass on their reaction to the British and French and continue to move back and forth between the two groups with the aim of drafting a settlement all could agree upon.

The starting point would be the six principles the parties agreed upon Oct. 13 in direct talks at the United Nations, before the British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt. The principles provide for unrestricted canal transit "without discrimination, overt and covert"; respect for Egypt's sovereignty; removal of canal operation from the politics of any country; an agreement fixing tolls between Egypt and canal users; allocation of "a fair proportion" of dues to canal development; and arbitration of disputes.

In agreeing to resume talks, Britain and France are reported to have served notice that they reserve the right to revive the 18-nation plan for international operation of the canal which Egypt bluntly rejected.

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—After listening to a seemingly endless debate on a relatively minor bill, State Sen. J. C. North rose in the Maryland Legislature last night to tell the one about a man who stole a ham hock on his way to church.

Seated in a front pew with the stolen ham hock tucked under his coat, he listened to a rousing sermon against the wages of sin, growing more uncomfortable with every fiery phrase. Finally, he hauled out the ham and surrendered it to an elder.

"Take it!" he pleaded. "I've never before heard so much hell raised over such a little piece of meat!"

Britain, France Seeking Indirect Talks On Suez

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain and France were reported today to have agreed to a plan for indirect talks with Egypt on a Suez Canal settlement with U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold acting as intermediary.

The Egyptian government refuses to meet face to face with British and French diplomats on the Suez problem.

There is hope the discussions can be started within a few days, but no specific time has yet been fixed.

The United States would stay out of the talks, to be held in New York, but would be ready to use its influence with both sides to speed a settlement.

Under the plan, officials said, Hammarskjold would meet with the British and French to hear their views, then relay these views to the Egyptians, who would be in another room.

He would pass on their reaction to the British and French and continue to move back and forth between the two groups with the aim of drafting a settlement all could agree upon.

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes... Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N. Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription. Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms. This formula is so effective that it is the physicians' leading asthma prescription—so safe that now it can be sold without prescription—in tiny tablets called Primatene®.

Primatene opens bronchial tubes, loosens mucous congestion, relieves that nervous tension. All this without taking painful injections. The secret is—Primatene combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose. So look forward to sleep at night and freedom from asthma spasms... get Primatene, at any drugstore. Only 98¢—money-back guarantee. ©1956, Whitehall Pharmaceutical Company

Decries 'Custody Over Treatment

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. William C. Menninger says it is imprudent that public funds be provided for mental illness research because private support has largely been given to other illnesses. The Topeka, Kan., psychiatrist told a news conference there is "15 times as much money available for cancer research" as for mental illness. He said of the care given the nation's 750,000 inmates of mental institutions: "It isn't treatment. It's custody."

Surprise Bandit During Holdup

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sheriff's deputies R. P. Cowan and George Pederson sat in their car in the darkness, having a smoke, across from a service station. "Say, George," Cowan said, "doesn't that look to you like a guy in there holding up that gas station?"

"Yeah, it does," Pederson agreed. They said they watched a gunman force attendant William R. Miller to lie face down and start trussing him with wire. Suddenly the man looked up, right into the muzzle of Cowan's riot gun.

"Surprise, surprise!" Pederson said. The man was booked as Lester W. Yoder, 25, Murrieta, Calif., on suspicion of armed robbery.

Tale Designed To End Quibbling

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—After listening to a seemingly endless debate on a relatively minor bill, State Sen. J. C. North rose in the Maryland Legislature last night to tell the one about a man who stole a ham hock on his way to church.

Seated in a front pew with the stolen ham hock tucked under his coat, he listened to a rousing sermon against the wages of sin, growing more uncomfortable with every fiery phrase. Finally, he hauled out the ham and surrendered it to an elder.

"Take it!" he pleaded. "I've never before heard so much hell raised over such a little piece of meat!"

Machine Ready For Translating

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian scientists have perfected an automatic translating machine which operates by electronics. It was demonstrated at a meeting of the Sciences Academy on Scientific Problems of Industrial Automation.

A text in English was teletyped from the conference hall to a nearby institute, translated into Russian by the machine, and flashed back to the delegates.

Carolina on Parade

Greenville... county seat of Pitt County... latest population estimate: 18,500... home of East Carolina College, outstanding four year State Institution with $3,000,000.00 physical plant... 37 industrial establishments... 325 stores... council-manager form of government headed by Mayor William L. Whedbee and City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam... principal farm crops: tobacco, corn, peanuts, cotton and small grains... home of WNCT, top power channel 9 television station... the friendliness of its progressive citizens is reflected by its slogan: "Our Greenville, Yours if You Come!"

SERVED BY CAROLINA TELEPHONE

Greenville is a very busy city communication-wise! It's the home of Eastern Carolina's first television station—and the first television station Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company had the privilege of serving. The telephone company's mission in television is to deliver a first quality picture from network to station. This is accomplished in Carolina Telephone's service area through a series of microwave relay towers which provide line of sight—in the air—transmission of the television picture signal.

Another important communications advancement for Greenville is the rapid growth of telephone service. In 1946, Greenville had approximately 2,800 telephones. Today, Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company provides Greenville fast, dependable service with over 6,800 telephones. Increase: 144 per cent!

In meeting the increased needs of telephone service, Carolina Telephone has increased its investment in Greenville for plant and central office facilities from $452,159.00 in 1946 to $2,344,446.00 in 1956... an investment increase of 418 per cent during the past ten years! In addition, the telephone company's annual payroll in Greenville exceeds $212,000.00.

76 members of the Carolina Telephone service team live and work in Greenville. They, along with 2,000 other members of the telephone company family throughout Eastern Carolina, have but one purpose: to build efficient and appreciated telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

Back To Normalcy For Ayden Students

By JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON, Ayden School Reporter

Everything is back to normal at Ayden High this week. The students and teachers look fresh and eager to begin work, after a long restful vacation. This begins the last half of the 1956-57 school term. Many of the students received clothes for Christmas; these along with some watches and several diamonds have been displayed the past few days.

Wednesday during the regular chapel period Mr. E. F. Johnson, principal at AHS, conducted a public relations discussion. The students had written questions on slips of paper and handed them to him earlier in the day. He answered such questions as: Why do we have to come to school on New Year's Day? Why can't we have longer holidays? Why can't we have a wider variety of subjects offered? and many others. Mr. Johnson answered all the questions satisfactorily as far as the students were concerned.

He wished for each student and teacher a happy and successful year during 1957, and encouraged all students to do their best at all times. Carol McLawhorn had charge of the devotional. She used John 1:1-10. Annette Dall led the group in prayer.

Many of the students and former students of AHS attended the Union Services held at the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church December 31 from 11:15 to 12:00 to welcome the New Year, and to ask God's guidance during 1957.

The GYP of the Ayden Christian Church sponsored a New Year's Party at the Ayden Community Building on December 31. Some of those on hand to welcome the new year were: Annette Willoughby, Ikey Boldree, Bobby Johnson, Carol Lynn Cavleer, Betty Lou Ross, Donnie Tripp, Lindy Dunn, Pattie McCay, Julaine Cannon, Kay Dunn, Barbara Gagnon, Carl Nobles, Richard Stroud, Henrietta Taylor, Sandra Basden, Barbara Worthington, Jim Simmons, Gloria Crawley, J. D. Willoughby, Sandra McLawhorn, Carolyn Turnage, Billy Cutrell, Carol Lynn Johnson, Ronnie Tripp, Ham Lang, Lella Mae Goff, Connie Lou Dunn, Brenda Davis, Leslie Stocks, Betty Jo Sumrell, Mary Alice Hart, Bobby Gagnon, Herb Little, Peggy Wood, Dan Bateman, Jesse McLawhorn, Sheridan Rutledge, Faye Highsmith, Dawn Rouse, Elaine Nobles, Roy Salmon, Clarence Mills, Ava Franks, Joyce Jolly, Wayland McLawhorn, Troy Dennis, Richard McLawhorn, John Hart, Kay Woodard, Suzanne Taylor, and Thomas Heath.

Chaperones for the party were Miss Virginia Belle Cooper, and Miss Louise Brunson.

The AHS Student Council met in the Ayden High School library during activity period on Friday with Lindy Dunn, president presiding. Routine business was discussed after the chairman of the various committees reported their activities.

The Ayden Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America met in the Home Economics cottage for their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday. After routine business was discussed, the group enjoyed games led by Pattie McCay, chapter song leader.

The students at Ayden High welcome Connie Coward, who has moved to Ayden from Elizabethtown.

Kay Thompson, former AHS student who is now a student at the Duke University School of Nursing, visited her parents during the holidays.

New High School Will Dramatically Ease Congestion

(Editor's Note: Second of two articles dealing with overcrowded conditions in Greenville public schools and the remedies for the situation.)

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Staff Writer

As was pointed out in yesterday's article there is an acute overcrowded situation in the Greenville public schools at this time.

Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose has a word of encouragement concerning this problem however. "By 1957-58 we should be a lot better off and by 1958-59 we should be all right," he said.

The 1957-58 school year will "be a lot better" because the door of the new $822,855 Greenville high school will officially open that September and receive all high school students in this area.

This will leave the old Greenville high school building available for the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades which will constitute a junior high school. Only the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades will attend the new high school located on Elm St. across from Elm St. Park.

Relieve Congestion
"This will relieve a great deal of congestion," Rose noted.

Greenville's new high school will have about 22 classrooms housed in a modern, fireproof brick structure.

Because bids on the building ran higher than was anticipated, construction of the auditorium is being omitted for the present. The school is planned with the future in mind. Additional classrooms can be added easily to provide accommodations for a total of 1,500 students.

Although the constructing of the building should be completed by this spring, the school will not officially open until September, according to Rose.

With the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades located in the old high school there will be more room for the elementary grades, which are quite crowded, to expand in the other city schools.

NEARING COMPLETION—The new $822,855 Greenville high school building will officially open its doors this September and receive all of the high school students in this area. "This will relieve a great deal of congestion," J. H. Rose, superintendent of City Schools, noted. (Staff Photo.)

"We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to entering the new senior high school in the fall," said O. E. Dowd, principal at Greenville High School.

Eppes Gym
Another forward step in school construction is the erection of the new $160,000 gymnasium at C.M. Eppes High School.

This new gym, which will seat approximately 1,800 spectators, is anticipated to be completed this spring. Also included in this new building will be class room space for health classes.

With this new gym in operation, the old combination-auditorium at the school will be converted into an auditorium. The floor in the old structure will be slanted and permanent seats installed.

In the Future
In the future, Rose said, a new classroom wing will be constructed on the east side of Eppes School to house science, home economics, and commercial departments.

"We now offer these courses but the rooms are not large enough," the superintendent stated.

He said that two science rooms have just been completed in the vocational agricultural building and the equipment in the rooms will be moved to the new wing when it is constructed.

Elmhurst
One of the worst hit as far as the crowded condition goes is Elmhurst, the youngest of the Greenville schools.

According to Rose, future plans at Elmhurst call for the addition of eight more classrooms to help relieve the overflow of students which are now meeting in the hall and in the library at this school.

12 Acres
Twelve acres of land have been purchased by the city which will at some later date be the site of a North Greenville School.

This land is across the river, off the Bethel Highway.

At the present time there is a large number of students from this area attending Greenville schools. "As the number increases and the need arises we intend to build a small primary school at this location," explained Rose.

Is construction in Greenville keeping up with the growing school population?

"Yes, by next year we will have enough space for everyone," Rose concluded.

California's Own Vet Home Plan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California veterans were buying 58,924 homes and farms in mid-1956 under the Cal-Vet plan—the state's own GI home loan program.

The Department of Veterans Affairs said the low-interest loans represent almost one half billion dollars in property transactions. Men and women who entered the service from California are eligible for loans.

Anniversary Featured In New ECC Alumni Bulletin

ly alumni bulletin, the current issue of which is now being distributed to members of the college Alumni Association, features the themes of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the college and of preparations for observance of the occasion. Materials in the bulletin were prepared under the supervision of James W. Butler, alumni secretary.

The booklet is printed on slick paper and is illustrated with photographs of student and alumni activities. The cover bears the college seal and the caption "Our 50th Anniversary" printed on a gold border and a photograph of the Austin building, oldest classroom building on the campus.

Alumni participation in the observance of the fiftieth anniversary and various activities for the "Golden Anniversary Year" are discussed. March 8, 1957, is the half-century mark of the ratification in 1907 by the General Assembly of an act providing for the establishment of the East Carolina Teachers Training School, now East Carolina College.

Alumni who receive special recognition in illustrated articles of the bulletin include Mrs. Nell Wise Wechter of Greensboro, winner of the Franklin McNutt Award to the Greensboro teacher who submits the outstanding example of teaching the American way of life to pupils; Z. W. Franzelle of Kenansville, winner of the 1956 Alumni Achievement Award, who is now serving as a director of the magazine North Carolina Education; and Jane Hall of the staff of the Raleigh News and Observer, who was recently awarded one of the six 1957 Reid Foundation Fellowships of $5,000 for a year's study abroad.

Four East Carolina students or former students chosen as queens during 1956 are pictured. They are Joan Melton of Albemarle, "Miss North Carolina"; Patricia Lee Simonds of New Bern, "Miss North Carolina Dairy Princess"; Dianne Johnson of Asheboro, Greensboro's Holiday Jubilee queen; and Jane Carter of Carthage, queen of East Carolina's Homecoming Day for Alumni last fall.

Emma L. Hooper of the college department of English is the subject of an article dealing with her leadership in activities of the Future Teachers of America. Monique Farge of Tunis, Tunisia, and Raquel Cordeiro of Cordoba, Argentina, two of East Carolina's foreign students, are introduced to alumni through an article and a photograph.

BELLEVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Postmaster Ard. B. Caron likes to talk about Belleville's 10 Sam Yoders and 8 Ezra Peacheyes.

"I've never been bawled out by any of them. If the letter gets into the wrong Ezra's or Sam's hands, it's simply passed on until the right one has it," said Caron. Belleville has only 1,300 residents.

Trapped Cat Is Tracked Down

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Okla. (AP)—The Norman Roark household was upset for several days when the family's pet cat was missing.

They began to hear cat cries but couldn't trace it down.

Finally, an all out search was conducted and the cat was found in a small attic above the front porch. Carpenters had left a small opening and the cat crawled through. The carpenters nailed up the hole before the cat got out.

CHAPTER 21
"Take Sergeant Mullvane and Anderson with you on the attack," Colonel Randall said to Chad.

Chad Endicott jerked his head at Zack and left the blockhouse, Mullvane following. Chad led his men out of the stockade, the heavy gate swinging shut behind them.

Colonel Randall kept his small force within the fort at rapid fire, trying to establish the fiction that he had more men than was the case.

When Chad and his men reached the clay bank of the river, they dropped onto the ice and moved upstream, protected now by the cutbank and brush.

Zack, catching up with Chad, said, "Ain't bad drillin', if that's what the Cunnel wants, but you sure ain't surprisin' nobody."

Chad said nothing. He deployed his men into a line of battle, and moved cautiously toward the sawmill, which now lay between them and the fort.

inserted. Only a dreamer — and Randall was certainly that at times — would have considered it possible to get behind the Sioux and drive them toward the fort.

Now, with shrill whoops and threatening gestures, they rode out of a willow thicket several hundred yards upstream. Chad gave the order to fire, but the Indians were still out of effective range, and escaped without loss.

Zack leaned on his rifle, chewing meditatively. When the firing stopped, he said, "I wish I owned a place to make gunpowder. Sure be a good business. Always got a market with the Army."

Irritated, Chad went on to the sawmill. Sometimes Zack's cynical observations whetted his temper, particularly on an occasion like this when he was on a fool's errand and knew it.

The sawmill had suffered little damage. Some of the tools were missing and a few of the cottonwood boards had been knocked loose by the twelve-pounders. That was about all.

"Lootin'ant," Zack called from an opening in the sawmill's wall. "Come-a-runnin'." The Cunnel's haw-hissed a fit.

Chad vaulted over a pile of planks and looked through the opening. Randall, leaning over the top of the stockade, was gesticulating wildly, and then, putting his hands to his mouth, yelled something that failed to reach Chad.

"The varmints must've circled," Zack said. "Reckon they're around on the other side o' the fort."

Chad turned to Anderson and Mullvane. "Something's going on east of here. Company A on the left, Company B on the right. On the double."

Again Chad took the lead, Zack looping along beside him. They angled between the river and fort and saw the Indians. The bank of Sioux had swung north of the fort and now they were in a small piece of bottomland where Chad's hay crew had worked during the summer.

"Fir'n' the haystacks," Zack grunted. "I was wonderin' why they hadn't done it afore."

Several Indians were kneeling by the stacks, working desperate to start a fire. Chad swung to the right toward another grove of cottonwoods that lay downstream between the river and the haystacks.

The Indians, discovering them, opened up with a desultory fire, but the distance was too great and the soldiers reached the trees with no casualties except Schultz, who lost the end of a finger on his left hand.

They began a rapid fire the instant they had cover. The Indians answered, some taking refuge behind the haystacks, others riding as fast as the snow permitted directly toward the soldiers. They were driven back by a volley from Chad men, some toppling from their horses into a whirling swirl of snow. They had no desire to dislodge the soldiers from the trees.

The one half-hearted charge was all they made. They picked up their dead and retreated across the meadow, leaving the haystacks standing.

Chad ordered his men toward the stacks, and Zack pointed in the direction the Sioux had taken. "Looks like they was in too much of a hurry to carry their dead off, and that ain't like 'em."

One body remained, lying face down in a patch of reddened snow. Reaching it, Zack turned it over as a ring of curious soldiers closed around them.

"That's no Indian," Chad said in a shocked tone. Zack drew his knife, and stooping, sliced around the scalp and ripped it loose. Saunders whirled away and was sick. Even Mullvane's red face turned pale. He shouted, "You're a darned Injun yourself, Cubberly, or you wouldn't do a thing like that."

Zack snorted his contempt. "You know a lot, don't you, bucko? Well, sir, I'll tell you somethin' 'bout this country. A bad white's a lot wuss'n a bad Injun, and a bad breed's the wust of all. This is a renegade breed who's been hangin' around Fort Blaine for years. Allus was a troublemaker. Good riddance."

"You knew him?" Chad asked. "Shore I knowed him. Chances are he's one of 'em that led this bunch in, jest hopin' to pick up some gewaws they could use."

"What was his name?" "Rene Beauvais." "Rene Beauvais." Chad repeated the name slowly. "Never heard of him."

Rene is dead. But he had a twin brother . . . and they always acted alike. Continue Chapter 22 here tomorrow.

Lonesome Pup Is New Classmate

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Students at Overbrook Senior High School have a new classmate—a lonesome dog of mixed parentage found shivering in the schoolyard.

School authorities decided he should be taken to the pound but 3,000 students held a special caucus and petitioned for a stay of sentence.

Assistant Principal Marion Masland bowed to the majority decision and the dog will attend school full time until his owner is found.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEREETH at any drug counter.

New Year's Dance At Belvoir-Falkland

By ANNE HARRIS Belvoir-Falkland Reporter
When Monday, December 31, finally arrived, many of the students of BPHS resented the idea of having to return to the school routine, while other students were quite ready to go back to school where they could tell their classmates what they had received and done during the Christmas holidays. However, they hadn't completely forgotten the exams they had taken before the holidays, for many of the teachers were often asked such questions as "What did I make on my exam?" or "Did I pass my exam?" Soon, however, "schoolwork was stored up on the students" and they had to get down to business once again.

Then the students were brightened quite a bit with a New Year's Eve celebration that night when streamers of red, yellow, and green crepe paper and gaily-colored balloons created a festive air in the Falkland Community Building. The event was a dance sponsored by the Belvoir-Falkland Seniors to welcome in the new year. Electric candles, set amid pine boughs, cast a soft blue glow throughout the building, as couples danced. Pine and pine cones decorated the window sills and were set atop the piano, surrounding blue candles in a sea of white cotton. Steaming hot chocolate, topped with marshmallows, and plates of cookies, served to the guests, kept them wakeful and alert for the arrival of the New Year. When the midnight hour finally arrived, dazzling sparklers were lighted in celebration and several kisses were stolen beneath mistletoe. Chaperones for the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Levy Wooten, Mrs. Gene Tucker, Mrs. William Moore, Mrs. Carson Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Gurganus, Mr. O. H. Forrest, and Mrs. Ed Switzer.

Chimaging a three week study of marriage, the sociology class welcomed the Rev. Robert B. Crawford on Wednesday of last week

Cadillac Finally Believed His Eyes and Ears! He has heard and read a great many wonderful things about this new 1957 Cadillac since it made its first appearance a few brief weeks ago—about its magnificent new luxury, for instance . . . its brilliant new power and responsiveness . . . its marvelous new handling ease . . . and its extraordinary new smoothness of ride. And so, quite frankly, he began to wonder if it weren't all too good to be true. Could any motor car be as wonderful as this latest "car of cars" was reputed to be? Well, he's decided to put his eyes and ears to the test today. And the verdict is unmistakable! It's a joy just to lean back into those deep, soft cushions and look out over that graceful hood into the beckoning highway. And what a revelation the car is to drive! A curve in the road ahead? He simply follows it with the arc of his hands and the car responds with perfect obedience. A hill in the offing? He just nudges the accelerator and the car sweeps up and over as effortlessly as if it were traveling the level road. A stop light coming up? He presses his toe—ever so gently—on the broad braking pedal and comes to the smoothest, surest stop imaginable. Yes, it's true what they say about this newest of Cadillacs. This is far and away the finest motor car ever to travel the world's highways. How about you? Have you heard the wonderful things they're saying about the 1957 Cadillac? Well, the proof is in the driving—and the facts about Cadillac have never been more convincing. BROWN-WOOD 1205 Dickinson Ave. Greenville, N. C. North Carolina Motor Vehicle Dealer License No. 741

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Rail made some gains in an otherwise mixed stock market early this afternoon. Pivotal stocks fluctuated from fractions to around a point. Railroad shares made gains going to as much as a point or better.

The market was mixed and fairly active at the start then slowed down to a pace below yesterday's turnover.

Industrial issues continued to fall off mildly following yesterday's decline when rails held firm.

Wall Street observers said a major factor in the market's behavior was its failure yesterday to penetrate the high point in the averages attained last week and the repetition of its past performance in declining from that area of supply. Big news was lacking to spur the list through this barrier, they added.

An estimate by Northern Pacific that its income from oil and gas lands should approximate five million dollars this year, a substantial increase over 1956, stimulated buying in this stock which rose more than a point.

Chesapeake & Ohio, which had an excellent earnings report last week, was another 1-point gainer along with Southern Railway. Santa Fe and Southern Pacific improved fractionally.

Internationally, Nickel added around a point following its gyrations yesterday when its stock split rumors were discounted by a company spokesman.

American Telephone resumed its rise of last week on reinvestment demand, adding about a point.

Standard Oil of California was off a major fraction after its announcement of a record budget of 400 million dollars to be spent on capital and exploratory purposes this year.

St. Regis Paper, which yielded 1 1/2 yesterday on news Time, Inc., is selling 350,000 shares of the stock in a huge secondary offering, eased today.

Bethlehem Steel gave up around a point in fairly active trading.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $181.70 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails up $1.00 and the utilities up 20 cents.

'Bomb' Explodes At Raleigh Paper

RALEIGH (AP)—A homemade bomb device exploded in the lobby of the News and Observer-Raleigh Times building early today causing minor damage.

The explosion apparently was set off in a big potted plant near the elevator entrance. It damaged nearby wallpaint. The act of vandalism was discovered by an occupant of the building on his way home from the third floor.

Raleigh Detectives J. H. Bowers and J. B. Upchurch said the "bomb" was apparently made by placing a number of firecrackers in a glass jar. The blast hurled a piece of glass into the ceiling and another fragment into a glass door. Powder burns scorched a nearby wall.

Frank Daniels, president and general manager of the News & Observer Publishing Co., indicated he believed the "bomb" was the work of a prankster. "I think it was a patty raid proposition," he said.

He agreed with a reporter who suggested that perhaps it was the work of persons who had read stories about New York's "Mad Bomber" in the News & Observer and Times.

He described the damage as "very small."

Funeral Wednesday For R. C. Lancaster

Russell C. Lancaster, 64, of Vanceboro, died in Rex Hospital in Raleigh at 6:40 o'clock Monday night. He was injured in an auto accident near Wake Forest on December 31st and had been critically ill since that time. His brother, Herman G. Lancaster of Vanceboro, was killed instantly in the wreck.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Vanceboro Christian Church Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock by the Pastor, the Rev. Horace Quigley, assisted by the Rev. Elmore Turner, Christian Minister of New Bern. Burial will be in the New Bern Memorial Cemetery. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Lancaster, son of the late Lacy V. and Sarah Gardner Lancaster, was born and spent his entire life in the Vanceboro Community. He was married to Miss Kate Hardesty of New Bern in 1931 and she died February 11, 1956. He was a member of the Vanceboro Christian Church and was serving as a deacon at the time of his death. He was a farmer and a timber dealer.

Surviving are three brothers: Grover C. and Cleatus L. Lancaster of Vanceboro, and Claude D. Lancaster of New Bern; and three sisters: Mrs. Lizzie L. Dinkins and Mrs. Harry E. Smith of Vanceboro, and Mrs. Marie L. Clark of Greenville.

'Iron Lungs' Distributed In City

MARCH OF DIMES CONTRIBUTION—Sheriff Ruel W. Begin Scramble For Choice Committees

WASHINGTON (AP)—The biennial scramble for committee assignments is on in the Senate with Sens. Kefauver (D-Tenn) and Pastore (D-RI) apparently in line for two choice openings.

Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee last year, appeared likely to achieve his long-deferred ambition to win membership on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, replacing the veteran former Sen. George (D-Ga).

There had been a report that Sen. Holland (D-Fla), who has more seniority than the Tennessee, might seek Foreign Relations. But an aide to Holland said today that the Florida senator was well satisfied with his places on Appropriations and Agriculture. Each senator can be on only two major Senate committees.

Pastore seems to be in line for the seat on the powerful Appropriations Committee opened up by the defeat of Sen. Clements (D-Ky), the Democratic whip in the last Congress.

If the Rhode Island senator gets this post, Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) may win his long-sought goal of membership on the Finance Committee. Pastore also has expressed an interest in this and outranks

Gore in seniority; but he would not get both Finance and Appropriations.

George's departure also creates the vacancy on Finance, which he headed for many years. Gore long has been keenly interested in trade and tax legislation handled by this group.

The committees which work out the assignments hope to finish their task later this week.

Each party has a vacancy on the Judiciary Committee. These have attracted more than ordinary attention because of the legislative fight over civil rights legislation in this Congress.

Senators in each party on both sides of the civil rights question have applied for the committee. However, Sen. Hruska (R-Neb) appears to be a possibility on the GOP side, while Sen. Ervin (D-NC), a former State Supreme Court judge, may win the Democratic seat.

Others reportedly interested in this committee include Sens. Clifford Case (R-NJ), Javits (R-NY), Talmadge (D-Ga), and Carroll (D-Colo), but the last three—all elected last Nov. 6—appear to have little chance because of the seniority rule.

Saudi Arabian King Will Visit U. S. President

WASHINGTON (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia will be a guest of President Eisenhower for several days beginning Jan. 30, and presumably the two will discuss Eisenhower's plan to block Red aggression in the Middle East.

The White House in an announcement yesterday, said the purpose of King Saud's visit— from Jan. 30 through Feb. 1—was for a discussion of Middle East matters "of mutual interest to the two nations."

The King, who succeeded to his throne in 1953, last visited this country in 1947 as crown prince.

Eisenhower will entertain at a stag dinner on the evening of Jan. 30 in honor of the King.

Saud has been outspoken in his opposition to Israel, but has had less to say about communism.

No 'Mommy' Answers Mite-Sized Buckaroo

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—Cowboys must be big and strong, and so, too, must Charles Duane Jackson, though he's only 2'3".

Cowboys have pistols. Charles has a pistol too, though it's only a toy.

The pistol was about the first thing this mite-sized cowboy asked for Saturday when he finally was able to talk through his puffed and lacerated lips in Stonewall Jackson Hospital.

There is just one un-cowboy-like thing about Charles. Every now and again he calls for "Mommy," and this he must forget.

For "Mommy," Mrs. Marie Regina Jackson of Scranton, Pa., will never come. She, along with Charles' 3-week-old brother Edward, died Friday night in a bus crash near Lexington.

Five other lives also were lost when the bus slammed into the rear of a parked tractor-trailer on U.S. 11. Thirteen persons—including little Charles—still are hospitalized.

Charles appears happy in the hospital in spite of a fractured leg and head cuts. He's become the pet of nurses, doctors and other patients.

The nurses have set him up in style, in a bed in a waiting room opposite the nurses' station where they can keep a watchful eye on him as he steadily grows well.

At first, the tot was something of a problem. When he was brought to the hospital, he had only the clothing he wore. Doctors and nurses found some books and toys which had been left at the hospital by previous patients.

Getting Charles to eat was an early, but minor, problem. Soon the nurses found that the word "cowboy" had a magic meaning for the youngster. Now, when he balks at meals, they tell him:

"You must eat if you want to grow up to be a cowboy... Cowboys must be big and strong." And Charles eats.

Though he's not old enough to realize it, today was to be an important one in Charles' life. His father was coming to see him.

Edward E. Jackson was on a temporary work project in Dover, N.J., when the bus crash wiped out most of his family last week. Today will be his first opportunity to visit Charles.

Turned Dream Into Nightmare

BEATTYVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Rowland Chrisman reports he turned a dream into a nightmare late a moonshiner.

He said he dreamed "so plain" Friday night about a still under a cliff that he took two deputies and went after it.

They found a man operating a "three-barrel" still just as he had dreamed. The man fled. The deputies destroyed the still and confiscated four gallons of newly made whisky.
