'Vision, Wisdom And Resolution' Urged By President

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told Congress today that America's prosperity is at an unprecedented peak.

But in turning to the international situation and the danger of Communist aggression, Eisenhower cautioned: "The existence of a strongly armed imperialistic dictatorship poses a continuing threat to the free world."

survival in today's world requires modern, adequate, dependable military strength." Eisenhower's State of the Union message today was much shorter than in other years, running only about 4,000 words.

On the domestic front, Eisenhower did not discuss the possibility of any tax cuts. The White House and Republican congressional leaders have indicated repeatedly during the last few weeks that there is little prospect for any major tax reduction this year.

Dealing with other domestic matters, Eisenhower sketched his views in these fields: AGRICULTURE—He said he is "gratified that the long slide in farm income has been halted and that further improvement is in prospect."

Macmillan New British Prime Minister

LONDON (AP)—Harold Macmillan became prime minister today. He is an old friend of President Eisenhower, and Britons can count on him to strive to repair the damage done American-British relations by the invasion of Egypt.

night had figured as Eden's successor. Butler had favored a softer line against Egypt. The Queen, before announcing her choice, called in Sir Winston Churchill and the Marquess of Salisbury, two of the ranking Conservative leaders.

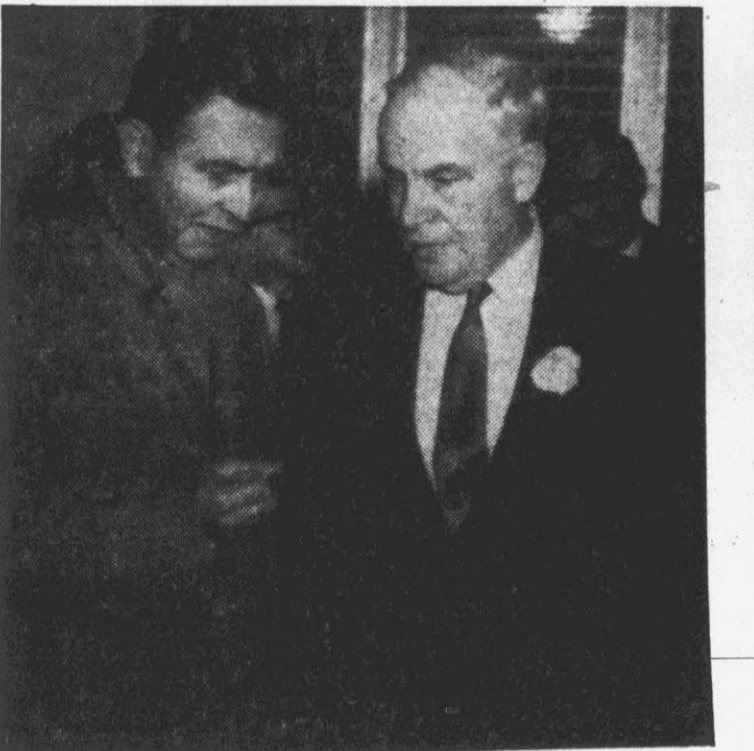

She made the greatest decision of her reign. With no clear successor to Eden in sight, the decision was ultimately hers alone. About 200 persons pressing against the railings of the Palace seemed surprised when Macmillan's car wheeled into the courtyard.

Macmillan also faces the job of strengthening Commonwealth bonds strained by Eden's Middle East policies. Finally, he must cope with an economic crisis heightened by the abortive British-French military intervention in Egypt and the consequent loss of oil for Britain and Western Europe.

Macmillan is a mustached man, sad-faced but witty. He has a flare for fashion that recalls the Edwardian days. Churchill has called Macmillan a "man of fearless intelligence."

Macmillan is a director in Macmillan & Co., book publishers, and that family business often took him to the United States.

Political Overtones?

Acheson Voices Doubts As To 'Eisenhower Doctrine'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson attacked the Eisenhower administration's Middle East proposal today as possibly "another approach to the brink" of war.

Acheson, secretary of state in the Democratic Truman administration and a frequent target of Republican critics, called the Eisenhower plan "vague, inadequate, and not very useful."

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said he is "definitely" against writing any time limit into the Eisenhower Middle East resolution.

Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville said today it is his intention to introduce a compulsory liability insurance bill at the 1957 session of North Carolina's General Assembly.

and seeing the many instances and cases where there was no recourse for recovery of damages or loss of life and property in motor vehicle accidents.

Fixing a terminal date on a congressional resolution affirming this authority for the Middle East, he said, could cause future difficulty because the resolution might expire while there are still serious troubles in that area.

Hutson Warns Leaf Growers Can 'Bankrupt' Price Supports

RALEIGH — J. B. Hutson, Washington, D.C., in his October-December report as president of Tobacco Associates, Inc., points out the danger of bankrupting the present flue-cured tobacco price support program and further jeopardy to export markets unless marked changes are made to provide the necessary incentive to farmers for producing the kind of tobacco that is now wanted in both the domestic and export markets.

For more than a year, the report said, foreign manufacturers and leaf buyers for these manufacturers have been indicating they were having difficulty finding flue-cured leaf in the United States with the body, flavor and aroma they desired for use in their products.

though flue-cured tobacco from other sources was available under more favorable financial terms. Other favorable characteristics of American flue-cured leaf include "good burning quality" and "desirable color," the report said, but added "leaf with these characteristics is available from other countries, including Canada, India, Southern Rhodesia, Italy, and Japan. Flue-cured leaf produced in these foreign areas, so far, however, has not contained the rich flavor and aroma which is so vital in the manufacture of the more desirable and satisfying cigarettes."

Hodges Welcomes Return Of Native

FARMVILLE—Governor Luther Hodges, becoming more and more concerned about migration of talented Tar Heels to other states, welcomed one of them back yesterday. Hodges was in Farmville to welcome American Cyanamid Company and its Formica Division to Pitt County. In his remarks, he commented, "We are tremendously proud of the fact that this company is headed by a native of our state, Mr. Kenneth C. Towe. Mr. Towe is a marvelous example of the outstanding talent which we have been furnishing other states and other regions in a most unselfish manner."

to overcome the adverse effect of the tax disadvantage." Hodges replied, a few minutes later, "On a recent trip to New York City, I had an opportunity to talk at some length with Mr. Towe and discussed with him in some detail the efforts of our Tax Study Commission, which he knew more about than I did, to give North Carolina a modern, up-to-date set of tax laws which deal fairly and justly with all segments of our population, especially with our industry. Mr. Towe and his associates advised me that they are encouraged by the recent recommendations of the Commission because they believe these will greatly help the long-range outlook for industry in North Carolina. I say this with a full understanding that American Cyanamid, like most good American industries, wants to be a good citizen and wants to pay its fair share of the tax burden."

ing in Atlanta, where Negroes also have started a campaign to end bus segregation. Another bomb blew off doors and part of the roof of the Negro First Baptist Church, where Abernathy is pastor. The home of the Rev. Robert Graetz, a white minister who serves an all-Negro congregation at the Trinity Lutheran Church, was another target of the bombing. The front door was blown in and walls damaged. Eleven unexploded sticks of dynamite wrapped around a metal tube were found in front of Graetz's home. Police de-fused them. The white minister also was active in the Negro bus boycott and has supported the integration campaign. Another bomb exploded at his home several months ago, but he was out of town and no one was hurt then either. A three-foot section of wall by a door was blown out of the Hutchinson Street Baptist Church in today's outbreak. The pastor, the Rev. H. H. Johnson, is another integration leader. "Gayle said he had no plans to call in state or federal law enforcement officers. "We don't need any additional help," he said. "We can handle the situation ourselves."

European Honeymoon Follows Church Rites

Miss Shirley Clark and Alexander A. Georgiou were united in marriage January 3 in a candle-light ceremony solemnized in the Hellenic Cathedral of Holy Trinity, New York City.

The Rev. Constantine J. Kozonas officiated at the 4 p.m. rites. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clark of Greenville. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Apostle A. Georgiou of Athens, Greece.

Members of the church choir presented the music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of chintilly lace over candlelight satin. Fashioned in princess style, it featured a boat neckline, bouffant skirt and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists.

Her two-tiered veil of silk illusion was fingertip and extended from an embroidered pearl crown. She carried a lace covered prayer book topped with white rosebuds and Stephanotis.

Miss Carolyn Clapp of Greenville acted as maid of honor and only attendant.

She wore a waltz length dress of red peude crystal silk and carried a large arm bouquet of white carnations tied with green ribbons.

A. Vassiliadis of New York City, president of the Greek Line, acted as best man.

The mother of the bride wore a two-piece silk dress of Dior blue and a corsage of white gardenias.

The couple sailed at midnight on their wedding day for a two and one half month honeymoon in Europe.

The wedding party and guests were entertained at a dinner party aboard ship before sailing time.

The bride, after graduating at East Carolina College, held a position as dietitian at Watts Hospital in Durham. This year she has been a member of the Spring Hope High School Faculty.

Mr. Georgiou received his education in Athens, Greece. At present he holds a position as Chief Purser on the SS New York.

Time Factor In Health Needs

Dr. Walter C. Humbert spoke to members of the Delphian Book Club Tuesday on the physical fitness of the family.

He asserted that the family's physical fitness is sometimes overlooked in importance because "we have so much and appreciate so little."

Illustrating his point, he compared the family of 1920 with that of 1957.

In 1920 there were many hazards to physical health, he said. Childbirth left many widowers, infectious diseases with no immunizations and epidemics took a great toll.

Household accidents, lack of refrigeration causing spoilage and bringing on diarrhea, dysentery and food poisoning and few conveniences such as appliances gave to more work with less pleasure and time to think of personal and family well-being for living and enjoying a happy and healthful life, he pointed out.

"But today we live in a golden era," the director of the Pitt County Health Department declared. "We have special maternity care, immunizations, pasteurization of milk and cheeses. We choose our recreation; we have two cars, television, etc. in our family."

"These things and more we take for granted. And since we do have so much we parents, particularly, need to budget our time so that our family can enjoy and benefit by our good fortune."

"We need time for such important things as our families' regular physical check-ups; time for more exercising and less riding; time at home, if only for one special night a week, to get to know and enjoy members of our families; time to make our families feel comfortable emotionally and ease the tension of today's speed of living.

He declared that time must be set aside for these needs if the 1957 life expectancy of 69 is to be reached—sound and stable.

Mrs. Paul Scott Jr. was hostess to the book club Tuesday afternoon.

Guests included Mrs. W. H. Chance Jr., Mrs. Cameron Dudley and Mrs. Norman Little.

Following Dr. Humbert's talk, the hostess invited members and guests into the dining room where punch, ham biscuits, open-face sandwiches and party cookies were served.

A Small, Small World

A reunion after more than 40 years was arranged yesterday for Mrs. Annie Willis of Farmville and Kenneth C. Towe of New York. Mrs. Willis, mother of Farmville Economic Council Director Tommy Willis, and Towe, president of American Cyanamid Company, knew each other as children in Dare County. Towe's father was a Methodist minister and served several churches, including Mrs. Willis' church at Manteo. After a meeting was arranged, the two spent several minutes reminiscing about their childhood days in Manteo, Stumpy Point and Mann's Harbor. Towe, remembered by Mrs. Willis as a "cute little fellow", was in Farmville yesterday to announce plans for construction of a multi-million dollar plant by American Cyanamid. ## District Nurse Meet In Tarboro

District 20 of the NCSNA held its regular meeting in the social room of the St. James Methodist Church in Tarboro on Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Phyllis Martin of Greenville, presiding. The secretary's report was given by Miss Margaret Ray of Greenville.

The Private Duty Section of District 20 held its meeting prior to the district business meeting, with Mrs. Margaret Fye of Rocky Mount presiding.

At the business meeting it was voted to adopt the state minimum fees for the Private Duty Section, to become effective January 15, 1957, as follows: 8 hour nursing, $11; hourly nursing $3.50 for first hour, $2.25 for successive hours, not to exceed 3 hours.

After the business session tea was served by the Tarboro nurses.

Grow Your Own, Speaker Says

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. S. Lindsay Wilkerson on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Wilkerson served coffee and cheese sticks in her early American dining room and the program, "Orchids in the Home," by Mrs. H. R. Billica, was the first order of business.

Mrs. Billica's talk was particularly interesting to the members because it proved that what might be thought of as an exotic hobby is not really beyond the reach of any.

She remarked that when she received her first orchid plant as a gift less than three years ago, she would not have known what it was if it had not been labeled "orchid."

The gift bloomed in a few weeks and was such a success that Mrs. Billica and her husband decided to buy a few more plants. This year, Dr. Billica has built a small greenhouse to accommodate the more than 60 plants they now own.

Greenhouse Not Necessary

It is not at all necessary, however, to raise orchids in a greenhouse, Mrs. Billica explained. Light, good ventilation, and plenty of moisture are the primary requisites.

An east window, for direct morning sunlight, and plenty of general light throughout the day, in a room that is neither dry nor stuffy should provide an entirely adequate climate.

Orchids require moisture in the atmosphere more than "watering" since most of the roots are outside the pot, and Mrs. Billica suggested that the pots be set on a tray filled with gravel and water and that the leaves be sprayed from time to time.

Fertilizer requirements vary with the species but are never very great.

New Member

Mrs. R. P. Heller presided at the business meeting, during which Mrs. Earl Rosevere, newly moved to Lakewood Pines, was elected to membership in the club.

Mrs. William Wright, vice-president, reported on the possibility of the club's sponsoring a girl scout troop. It was moved and voted that the club agree to help Mrs. Baker's Brownie Troop at least assigned to booth committees.

until they "fly up" at the end of this school year. More permanent sponsorship arrangements will be made next year.

Mrs. Raymond Lowe, chairman, announced that the date for the Spring Fair has been set definitely for Friday, April 12, and the Fair will once again be held on the property of Dr. J. E. Waltz in Lakewood Pines. Members were all assigned to booth committees.

Dr. Marshall Is Round Table Guest Speaker

Dr. W. E. Marshall was speaker of the afternoon when Mrs. Howard McGinnis was hostess to the Round Table Book Club Tuesday.

Other guests included Miss Ruth White, Mrs. Helen Snyder and Mrs. John Fleming of Elm City.

gary and the Middle East, he discussed the immediate causes of the Hungarian revolt and of the Egyptian conflict.

The latter, he said, was precipitated by the withdrawal of the offer of fifty-six million dollars by the United States for building the Aswan Dam on the Nile River because of Nasser's alignment with Russia. Attention was called to the conflicting interests among the major powers, which makes the Suez Canal incident a particularly knotty problem for the United Nations and one filled with continuing repercussions.

Implementing the protective provisions of the charter of the United Nations in behalf of Hungary is furnishing severe tests also of the power vested in it.

In evaluating the role of the organization in these two crises the speaker pointed to its successful prevention of a full scale war in Egypt; and in regard to the Hungarian revolt, its mobilization of world opinion against Russian aggression.

Dr. Marshall quoted diverse opinions of high ranking diplomats of the world on the work of the United Nations as the "keeper of the peace" in recent events.

"Whether it is high praise of the organization or caustic denunciation," he said, "there is general acknowledgment of the expanded role of the secretary general and of his magnificently heroic efforts to use the good offices of the United Nations for the high purposes for which it was chartered."

Following Dr. Marshall's discussion, Mrs. Raleigh Lee brought the news item which is a regular feature of the club program.

She reported Celeste Hayden's recent trip to Australia as the physical therapist to the U. S. athletes taking part in the Olympic games.

Miss Hayden, she stated, is a practicing therapist of Raleigh and her selection for the highly essential work with the contestants representing the United States reflected honor upon both her and North Carolina.

At the close of the meeting the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Winslow and Mrs. E. R. Browning, served a salad plate with coffee and confections.

Formica Plant's Ultimate Impact

No one can really guess just how much the new manufacturing plant of American Cyanamid's Formica Corporation in Farmville will mean to that community and to Pitt County over a period of decades.

The very presence of the plant in this area will make other manufacturing firms look this way in seeking new plant locations. The new plant itself over a period of years may be expected to expand far beyond the scope of its initial operations.

For the immediate future, however, a study made by the United States Chamber of Commerce gives some indication of what the plant may mean economically to the Farmville community.

The new plant initially will employ 100 people. According to the Chamber of Commerce 100 new industrial jobs in a community on the average also means to the community:

1. An increase of 296 more people in the community, 112 more households and 51 more school children.
2. 174 more people employed in the community and 107 more passenger cars.
3. $590,000 more per year in personal income in the community and $270,000 more annually in bank deposits.
4. Four more retail establishments in the community and an increase of $360,000 annually in retail sales.

These figures suggest, in part at least, the initial economic impact the new plant will have upon the community. Multiplied over a period of years by continued industrial growth and expansion the economic life of not only the Farmville community but all of Pitt County can be immeasurably improved.

There is another asset the new plant in Farmville brings to Pitt County. Less tangible than those aforementioned, perhaps, but certainly of equal if not greater importance in the long run, Farmville's success in attracting the new American Cyanamid plant should convince even the skeptics that Eastern Carolina communities, large or small, can acquire industries if they are willing to hustle to get them. Farmville has proved beyond a doubt it can happen here.

Is It Cheaper To Live In South?

By ELMER ROESSNER
There's another labor push that is likely to get stronger this year — the effort to eliminate geographical wage differentials. It's no secret that wages in the South average less than wages in the North. The big reason for the migration of industry southward in recent years is not that management loves hominy grits.

Organized labor's efforts to bring Southern wages up to Northern levels has two purposes: to get more money for Southern workers and to prevent industries from running away from tightly organized areas in the North to scantily organized parts of the South.

Southern boosters say wages should be lower below the Mason-Dixon line because living costs are lower.

Organizers answer that it's not living costs but living standards that are lower down South.

NO EASY ANSWERS

There's a bit of truth on both sides. Many Southern workers, especially among the Negroes, live in slums and get along with meager food, clothing and furnishings.

On the other hand, many Southerners enjoy a fine standard of living for less money than Damsyankees. They buy heavy clothing only when they plan trips to New York shows and night-clubs; they spend less for housing because their homes require less costly insulation. Their fuel bills are lower, even if they enjoy air cooling, and many foods and services cost less.

There is no readily available formula for calculating the difference in costs of living down South and up North. Labor Department's consumer price index is no help, because that shows only changes from base periods. The most recent report showed the index for Scranton to be 115.3 and Houston to be 119.7. That doesn't mean it's cheaper to live in Scranton than Houston, although that may be the case. It simply shows that living costs in Scranton have gone up 14.9 per cent over what they averaged in 1947 through 1949, and have gone up 19.7 per cent over the same period in Houston. A satisfactory index of relative costs would take two years and $2,000,000 to develop.

SOME EQUALIZATION

There has been a measure of equalization so far, as Fortune points out in its current issue. The Steelworkers managed to eliminate geographic differentials in 1954; and United Auto Workers have eliminated differentials in Ford and G.M. plants and are about to go to work on Chrysler; regional differentials have been largely eliminated in the meat packing industry, and Federal minimum wage laws have brought wages in the South in some industries closer to levels in the North.

Currently, the magazine adds, the Communication Workers of America are driving for equalization and have made some gains in the Bell System and are working on Western Electric.

The drive for equalization often produces bizarre results. A.N. Weckler reports in the January issue of Mill & Factory that contractors at the Air Force missile base at Coca Beach, Fla., say they are forced to pay union rates of $3.30 an hour for work which would pay $1.25 an hour in state or municipal contracts in the state.

Contractors who have refused to accede to union demands have lost their contracts, he reports, because organized workers for other contractors went on strike. Local contractors found themselves between the devil and the deep blue Atlantic. They lost their contracts if they did not sign with the unions; if they signed, their wage costs were too high to win a state or municipal contract.

Organized labor's answer to this would be the suggestion that all Southern employers raise wages to Northern levels. After that, this old skeptic believes, labor would start a drive to get differentials for Northern workers because their costs of living are higher.

PEOPLE LIKE SAUCE
LIKE MOTHER MADE
There is no one most popular flavor, color or consistency of apple sauce, University of Wisconsin researchers found. While there was some preference for light yellow sauce and, secondly, for reddish brown sauce, consumers were well divided over all characteristics.

Preference, it seems, was governed by the kind of sauce the taster's mother used to make.

Foundation's Plight Is Important To All

Financial condition of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation should cause citizens of this county to be more conscious than usual this year of the campaign for funds with which to fight dreaded polio.

The record number of 16 polio cases recorded in the county during 1956 has drained the treasury of the local chapter and left a deficit of more than $2,000. Three of the 1956 polio victims from this county still are hospitalized and their care is costing $535 per month for each patient. In addition to that continuing cost other victims who have been released from the hospital will require further treatment for months to come.

Through widespread use of the Salk vaccine it is expected that Pitt County's polio rate will never again reach the 1956 peak. Even so funds will be required locally and nationally to continue the fight against the disease. With funds from last year depleted, it is important that local citizens this year give generously to the March of Dimes campaign in order that Pitt County's chapter of the national organization may meet its obligations.

Not Consolidate But Cooperate

By LYNN NISBET
MARKETING Cooperation among all the State agencies concerned with marketing of agricultural products rather than consolidation of these functions in the Department of Conservation and Development is the present goal.

Governor Hodges carefully considered changing the name of the Commerce and Industry Division in C&D to "Industrial and Agricultural Promotion." The plan contemplated transfer of most of an advisory committee for promoting the processing and marketing of farm produce to that division. This responsibility is now shared by the marketing division of the State Department of Agriculture and the Extension Service at State College.

Advance "feelers" put out by the Governor failed to arouse any enthusiasm, and he modified the original concept. He proposes instead the establishment of an advisory committee of private business men experienced in agricultural marketing to counsel with the three agencies in order to eliminate duplication of effort. It is implied that this same advisory committee will be available to help community producer groups in developing better marketing processes for farm and garden crops.

Besides advising the official agencies a committee of this kind could relieve the marketing personnel of a lot of time-consuming conferences with producers and permit them to devote more attention to the main job. County agents as well as specialists from State College and the Department of Agriculture have spent a lot of time, much of it at night, helping local groups organize marketing practices. This despite the fact which Governor Hodges brought out that the main function of State College is research and teaching, the main function of the department is regulation.

CAUTIOUS — Faced with major reorganization in some phases of State government activity, the C&D board chose to move cautiously in the marketing matter, a change which was not recommended by the reorganization study commission. The Board approved a plan whereby the C&D director and the chairman of the C&I committee would confer with head men in the Agriculture Department and Extension Service to evolve a program rather than "rush precipitately and headlong into the project."

SETTING — The setting for the Governor's recommendation was a dinner meeting in State College Union, at which the School of Agriculture was host and C&D board members guests of honor. Under direction of Dean Colvard the college folks gave a program which portrayed the three-phase function of the school — agricultural instruction, agricultural research and extension work which carried benefits of teaching and research to the folks on the farms. It was the first time some of the C&D people and other guests had been given a perspective view of college activities. Many of them later voiced surprise at the scope of the work being done.

NON-TAX — Question was raised around one of the tables as to who paid for the dinner given in the name of the State College School of Agriculture. The question was not completely answered, but it was ascertained on acceptable authority that no public tax money was used to pay the bill. In that connection it might be noted that the social entertainment of the board members at the Raleigh meeting, or at other meetings throughout the state, has been charged to tax sources. Individual business men or organizations supported by voluntary private contributions have paid the bills.

INAUGURATION — Few people who have not had some experience in such matters have any idea about the mass of detail necessary in preparing for the inauguration of a Governor. The purely official part of the program is difficult enough to arrange, but it has nothing like as many headaches as the auxiliary social functions. In fact, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the official and the social. Protocol is important for both. Who rides in what car in the parade, and who stands where in the receiving line are very serious problems to a lot of people.

The inaugural ball, which this year will be held the night before the inauguration proper, has no official status. Except that it is a must for all officials and their ladies. The ball is sponsored by the American Legion Post and the Junior League of Raleigh as money making project for their charity funds. Participating and spectator tickets are on the market at so much per. There is also opportunity to be listed in the printed program as a sponsor of the ball for a fee somewhat larger than the admission price.

Here again protocol is highly important. The position assigned in the grand march and other phases of the ball may boost the ego or break the heart of some couple. Chances are that when the time comes all the different parts of the varied program will fit into place and the whole affair will go down in history as highly successful. Only those who had the responsibility this year or sometime before will have any idea of the headaches and backaches and heartaches which developed during the preparation.

The Big Dream Fulfilled

by DON SCHLIENZ

Well, It Could Be True

There's a little hunting story floating around eastern North Carolina which could be passed along for the benefit of any who mightn't have heard it. My source says some claim it actually happened. But a good quality of any story is that it "could" happen; and maybe it did, maybe it didn't.

It seems a one-time hunting enthusiast decided the season was too good to pass by without at least one trip to Mattamuskeet. He prevailed upon a friend (call him Smith) to take him up to where the wild geese and ducks were waiting. Smith was more than willing. He had a farmer friend up in the district who would be sure to let them use his fields. Said farmer was an old friend. . . no, it wasn't necessary to telephone or wire for advance arrangements; Smith and the hunting enthusiast (call him "Doe") could just stop by the house when they got there. No question at all about being able to use the field.

Other Editors Saying--- How Stupid Can We Be?

(The STANDARD-TIMES) (New Bedford, Mass.)

The United States has it back to the wall in the Middle East because it has followed a vacillating and stupid policy of appeasement for several years. The false State Department thesis in forcing England to abandon its Suez bases in June 1956, with the idea this would appease Nasser and induce him not to play ball with the Kremlin, was blunder number one.

Within six weeks, Nasser had taken military control of the abandoned British bases and was hand and glove with Russia. On Aug. 31 at a news conference President Eisenhower renounced the use of force to protect the right of canal users, declaring the United States "committed to a peaceful settlement of this dispute, nothing else."

Emboldened by Eisenhower's statements, Nasser rejected all proposals to restore the waterway to international control. The oil lifeline of England and France being threatened, the very existence of the two nations being endangered by the failure of the Eisenhower-enforced Nasser appeasement, Britain and France made a desperate attempt to restore their Suez position by military force. Again the U.S. State Department pressured England and France into abandoning their positions on the Suez Canal with their purposes unaccomplished. This was blunder number two. Apparently the tragedy of the failure of the United States to support England in its Suez military position and, latterly, England and France in their military efforts finally has dawned on the President and the State Department. It finally seems clear to Washington that our blunders threaten the liquidation of our allies, England and France, and open the way for Communist control of the Middle East just as the blunders of Truman and Marshall turned all China over to Communism.

It is in this setting that President Eisenhower proposes Congress approve the use of the armed forces of the United States to prevent a conquest of the Middle East by Russia. The President should have this wholeheartedly approved, though it never should have been necessary. That the President still is not fully awake to the realities is indicated by the fact he proposes use of the armed forces to prevent Communist control of the Middle East by subversion, as well as military conquest.

As Walter Lippmann says, "Whoever heard of controlling subversion by military force?" For by the time military forces can intervene, the subversion has been secretly consummated. Shocked into action at last, the President must be given the right to call out the armed forces if necessary and use every other resource of the nation to prevent disaster to the United States in the Middle East.

Came the day. Smith and Doe departed by car in the very, very early hours, so as to get there just before sun-up. Doe was looking forward to the hunt, but at the same time was just a little dubious about not contacting the farmer in advance.

They arrived. Smith parked by the side of a field and strode up to the farm house. His farmer friend was up and around, and after the usual preliminaries, said "Sure, go ahead and hunt." But he had a favor to ask. Seems there was an ailing mule that should be put out of the way, and he didn't want to do it because, as he put it, "the kids would feel extra bad about it." But the mule should be killed, he said, and would Smith do it for him? Why sure, said Smith. Well, the mule was in the field adjacent to Smith's car. He could do it any time.

Smith walked back to the car and the farmer went back in the house. In that brief walk, inspiration came to Smith. Reaching the car he opened the door, reached into the back seat and grabbed his shotgun.

Saying nothing, Smith jammed shells into his gun and walked back into the field. Shortly afterward there was a loud "boom," and Smith came back: "That son-and-a-so said we couldn't hunt," he said in an angry voice, "so I killed his mule."

Doe was horror-stricken. He pressed the starter and the car roared off like a Nike. Smith was left behind. Doe didn't return.

As I said, some claim it actually happened. . . because it could happen, and that's enough for me.

War Of The Sexes

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Curstone commenting by the poor man's philosopher:

Every war in history has ended except the war between the sexes. It goes on.

Since love is always a kind of duel, man and woman remain at the best friendly enemies in a see-saw war in which no final victory is possible for either side.

Marriage is no ultimate peace settlement of this strange conflict. Marriage is a kind of give-and-take truce, the terms of which change from day to day. It is an endless adventure in armistice between two united but different people, whose challenge is to find so much loving satisfaction in their long private war that they escape its greatest danger — discovering they are stale-mated.

Who is the aggressor in the long war between the sexes?

Women never lose all their hostility toward men, according to Dr. Allison Davis, a University of Chicago psychologist.

Blaming this attitude on the fact that in America women occupy an inferior position, Dr. Davis told a Detroit sorority convention:

"Yet once they become reconciled to the feminine role, most of their hostility toward the male is dissipated, but never all of it."

Another psychologist, a fellow called Sigmund Freud, postulated the theory that feminine envy of the male begins as soon as girls realize they can never be boys, and that they bear a grudge ever afterward.

This has always seemed to me an ivory tower idea if ever there was one, a theory based on the male conceit that women, if they had a choice, would prefer to be men. It implies that man is the stronger sex and women resent men because life forces them to lean on him — in other words, it is the resentment a slave feels in his heart toward even the kindest master.

But isn't this theory actually an example of mistaken male egotism?

The truth is — as later research has shown — that women are biologically far superior to men, and more adaptable. They can subsist on less food than men. They can stand weather changes better. They can stand loneliness better, and civilization better.

They are more practical in every way. This is proved by the fact they outlive men while accomplishing two feats beyond the capacity of men — the wearing of girdles, the bearing of children.

Women envy men? It is the other way around. The hostility men bear toward women is based purely on fear — the instinctive realization that women are stronger in mind and will and have the power to change them from the carefree, boasting bums nature intended men to be.

The hostility of woman toward man, on the other hand, is a recognition on her part not that she is dependent on him but that life has given her the role of being missionary to a savage. It is the hostility perfection always feels toward the imperfect.

What is the prospect of a happy ending in the war between the sexes? Practically none.

The gulf, if anything, appears to be widening. The American woman is getting stronger and more powerful in every field, from the kitchen to the Congress. Despite pension plans and a shorter work week, the American man has been unable to overcome his natural-born weakness and keep up with her. She still outlives him, outthinks him and outtalks him.

The wise man, seeking the best compromise in the battle between the sexes, has only two choices:

1. Become a hermit.
2. Marry the strongest-minded woman on the horizon and hope that, recognizing her own superiority, her hostility toward his own weak and wayward nature will dissolve in a feeling of pity.

As the old saying goes, fellows, if you can't beat 'em — join 'em!

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TAKE IT AND LIKE IT

The fact of accountability in all human affairs is something that many people find hard to accept.

We are all accountable to somebody or to some thing. We are accountable to an employer, or to the requirements of public opinion, or to the demands of a profession. The strictest accountability does not reside in the realm of either persons or things for there is no accountability which honor and love or filial and marital responsibility places upon us.

But in the end, we always come back to the basic fact of life which is that we are primarily spiritual beings. We are made in the image and after the likeness of God and such being the case, the spiritual part of our nature is the most important part. Therefore the accountability we owe to our own souls, that we owe to the invisible world, and above all the accountability we owe to God—these are primary.

You don't like the idea of accountability? Well, there are many things in life we may not like, but either we like them or not, we have to accept them. The greatest happiness in life comes from a quiet conscience, and that person has a quiet conscience indeed who has accepted the demands of accountability in every sphere of life and who tries doggedly, if not gallantly, to live up to them.

Nixon's Political Transformation

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon will soon become known as a roaring liberal and a world humanitarian, instead of a vindictive and reactionary partisan, as his enemies label him, at the pace he is now traveling on and off Capitol Hill. Rarely has there been such a political and personal transformation in American politics.

The Vice President's friends insist that there is no ulterior motive in this metamorphosis, and that the Californian is not grooming himself for the 1960 Presidential nomination deliberately and consciously. They say that he is simply rising and growing into new and heavier responsibilities, as so often happens with a public figure. They maintain that qualities always latent are revealing themselves under trial.

President Eisenhower's aides deny flatly that the White House has given Nixon the center of the stage for political reasons. They describe Ike as neutral in the 1960 contest. They advance logical reasons for the Vice President's current good fortune.

DUTIES DELEGATED TO NIXON For one thing, the President's health forces him to delegate many important duties to the V.P., whose job would be a sinecure otherwise. Secondly, F.D.R.'s failure to confide in Harry S. Truman on public affairs, and the latter's tragic mistakes in his early days in the White House, made a deep impression during and after World War II.

Finally, Ike has found Nixon to be capable of substituting for him, and an excellent liaison man with Capitol Hill. The No. 2 man has not yet fallen down on any of the missions entrusted to him, which is more than can be said for some other aides and Cabinet members.

Save for a less intimate personal relationship, Nixon is rapidly becoming for Ike the same sort of handyman that Harry Hopkins was for F.D.R.

V.P. REPUDIATED HIS FORMER IDEAS It is probable that Nixon has to pinch himself every so often to appreciate change which has come over him. And many of his Senate colleagues must do similar tricks to their anatomy as they observe and study the "new Nixon."

In urging American acceptance of a larger group of Hungarian refugees, the Vice President repudiated his former ideas and prejudices on this question. He voted enthusiastically for the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, whose provisions were held to be so hard that Truman vetoed it. The V.P.'s current attitude shocks his conservative associates.

SYMPATHY FOR LIBERAL BLOC His performance in the anti-filibuster fight was most enlightening of all. Once he was a key figure in the coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans which enraged Roosevelt and Truman by blocking New Deal-Fair Deal legislation, Nixon is probably the only member of Congress whom Truman named personally.

But, although his comment was unnecessary and meaningless in its effect, the Vice President made it clear that he sympathized with the liberal bloc's effort to abolish federal filibusters, which is the South's only method of preventing enactment of Civil Rights Legislation. The V.P. knew, of course, that there was no chance for such a drastic change in the Senate rules.

KNOWLEDGE TO SWEAR NIXON INTO OFFICE Nixon has taken steps to win over Senate Minority Leader William P. Knowland, who had threatened to seek the Presidential nomination in the event that Ike refused to run again. For the second time, the V. P. has asked his fellow-Californian to swear him into office on January 20, and Knowland has agreed.

Governor Goodwin W. Knight, a potential 1960 rival, may seek re-election in 1958, and may not be a serious obstacle to Nixon.

'Pygmalion' To Be Staged Here

Alice Anne Horne of Tabor City and Lloyd J. Bray Jr. of Greenville, students at East Carolina College, will play the leading roles in "Pygmalion" when the Shaw comedy is presented in three performances January 30 and 31 and February 1 by the East Carolina Playhouse, college dramatic club.

The play, one of Shaw's most popular works, will be given in the McGinnis auditorium at 8 p.m. It will be the major production of the Playhouse for the winter quarter.

Bray will appear in the role of Henry Higgins, professor of phonetics who wagers that within three months he can transform a cockney flower-girl into a lady. Miss Horne will appear as Eliza Doolittle, the subject of his experiment.

Last spring Miss Horne played Lady Macbeth in the student-faculty production of Shakespeare's tragedy, which marked the opening of the Flanagan Sylvan Theater on the East Carolina campus.

In production by the Playhouse she has been a member of the cast of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" and of Lindsay and Crouse's "State of the Union," starring Jeffrey Lynn as guest artist.

Mr. Bray played the role of the Christus last spring in the annual performance in Greenville of The Passion Play. At the college he has appeared in Ruth Gordon's "Years Ago," Sidney Kingsley's "Darkness at Noon," "State of the Union," and other productions sponsored by the Playhouse.

Only A Symptom Of Decaying Art

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rock 'n' Roll, says a Harvard sociologist, "is not, as many people say, the fantasy of crazy teen-agers, but a symptom of a decaying art form in America."

As for one of its chief exponents, Elvis Presley, the man said, he can be summed up as "wild modern music in general."

These views were expressed yesterday by Dr. Pitirim Sorokin in a panel discussion of fine arts at the meeting of the Association of American Colleges.

Dr. Sorokin said a new creative day is coming, but meanwhile, "we are living through the descent of our art forms into the social sewers inhabited by all kinds of dehumanized and pathological human animals."

The real promoters of "artistic oddities" such as rock 'n' roll, he continued, "are the vast commercial interests well organized into a powerful machinery of exploiters and falsifiers of art values. Teen-agers are merely their victims."

"Today we live in a world of creative midgets. This creative sterility is particularly visible in soap operas, plays, shows and literature staged in the movies and on radio and television."

He said the future of American art rests largely with the colleges, but added they must reject "sham art and sham beauty" if they are to nurture a renaissance in this century.

That was Tuesday. Last night police notified him that they had found it in Norwalk, 10 miles away, with this unsigned note on the windshield:

NCAA Expected Strengthen Rules On Amateurism, Recruiting Players

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. ST. LOUIS (AP)—The National Collegiate A. A. probably will strengthen its rules on amateurism and recruiting of athletes tomorrow and there is very little likelihood that any sort of contract system will be adopted to keep colleges from snatching the brightest athletic prospects from each other.

The trend toward tightening controls was reflected in discussions leading up to a second day of debate today and the business session tomorrow at which further restrictive legislation will be considered.

During yesterday's sessions: 1. The NCAA council refused to modify a lot of penalties inflicted on three Pacific Coast Conference colleges which had asked for a lighter load based on a conference decision.

2. The American Football Coaches Assn., closely allied with the NCAA, handed out unprecedented penalties.

3. Faculty representatives turned a very cold shoulder on the suggestion for a national "letter of intent" program which would bind prospective athletes to one school.

Rulings on the requests of Southern California, UCLA and Washington to have previous penalties applied only to football instead of all sports, the NCAA council decided there should be no lessening of penalties. The colleges still were held responsible for rules violations, regardless of the sports affected.

The football coaches ethics committee slapped down nearly a dozen member coaches for acting unethically. The names were given out, but the committee indicated that it would hold a coach responsible not only for his own acts but those of his assistants and the alumni, who should be "educated" to stay within the rules.

A round table discussion of recruiting and subsidizing problems at a conference of college faculty representatives produced some rather significant results.

The basic subjects were two proposed amendments to NCAA regulations which will be voted on tomorrow. One spells out the limits of financial aid, earned or unearned, which may be given to an athlete because of his ability. Another sets up a system whereby a college may pay the cost of bringing a prospect to visit the campus but all outside agencies are barred.

There was very little discussion of these two proposals. But the idea of signing boys to nationwide letters of intent — virtually amounting to contracts — turned up a red hot discussion.

The letters of intent bind a boy who signs one to play for a certain college in a conference or forfeit eligibility. The argument that the signing ends competition among colleges for top athletes, shortens the recruiting season and gives a high school boy a chance to concentrate on his studies instead of spending his time visiting various colleges.

Reports on yesterday's discussion were to be made at a general round table session today, along with a 62-page report from the 1956 NCAA Television Committee which said its program was successful and should be continued for another year.

She's A Football Coach

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Carolyn Klingler, 24, is a pretty, Auburn-haired young lady, who teaches second graders at St. Anne's parochial school both in the classroom and on the gridiron.

She knows all about football formations, offensive and defensive tactics, passing, kicking and blocking techniques and how to kick extra points.

"I read football books, all I could find," says the University of Houston graduate. "I watched football games, here, out-of-town, on television."

She uses the split-T formation because "it's the easiest for the kids to learn."

Carolyn's boys play on a field 50 yards long, are given three downs to score or relinquish possession.

Pirates Invading Elon Saturday; Face Tough foe

East Carolina's Pirate cagers journey to Elon Saturday night to tangle with a highly-regarded Fighting Christian outfit in a North State Conference tilt.

Coach Howard Porter's crew will take a 6-2 overall record and a 3-2 loop record to Elon. The host team, the defending North State Champions, had a 1-1 mark in conference play at the first of the week, but will have met Appalachian and High Point by the time the Bucs arrive.

Elon, sparked by five returning veterans, trampled bottom-place Guilford in their North State opener and lost out to Lenoir Rhyne later. Their league record at present gives little indication as to the Christians' strength. A loss to the conference's number one team and a victory over the number eight club would not offer much evidence as to how they shape up in their own right.

In the conference standings, East Carolina is currently occupying the number five slot, with Elon one place lower, in number six. The Pirates have dropped games to Lenoir Rhyne and High Point.

Pacing the veteran Elon club will be Ed Juratic, Dee Atkinson, Frank DeRita, Earl Stone and Jimmy Crump.

East Carolina's starters are expected to be Charlie Adams and Guy Mendenhall at guards Harold Ingram and Don Harris at forwards and 6-11 Joe Plaster at center.

Duke Favored Take Over ACC Lead Friday Evening

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Duke's Blue Devils are favored to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference in a basketball game at Maryland tonight.

Duke and North Carolina have 3-0 conference records, and if the Blue Devils down Maryland, as the experts say they will, they will hold first place alone at least until Friday, the Tar Heels' next date.

Wake Forest's cagers go up against a tough pair of opponents this week before taking a break for mid-year exams.

Tonight, the Deacons, boasting an impressive 10-3 overall record, will make a bid for a higher national rating when they take on Seton Hall in New York's Madison Square Garden. Saturday night, they'll meet South Carolina.

The Deacons will be seeking to make it two wins in a row over Seton Hall. Two years ago the Deacs defeated the Pirates 71-63.

The Seminoles of Florida State face a hungry Wolfpack of North Carolina State tonight at Raleigh. It's the only scheduled game of the season between the intersectional foes. Last year the Wolfpack downed the Florida team 88-63.

It is an unusual season for Everett Case, Wolfpack coach, when his team has a 7-6 record at mid-season, but that's the situation.

Hard hit by graduation last year and still trying to overcome the loss of two scoring threats early this season, the Wolfpack has had a rough year. But Case warns that any team planning a victory feast with State College as the main course had better take heed.

"We're not through by a long shot," said the veteran of the hardwood, "the team is improving rapidly and we're certainly not going to play dead for anyone. We may lose some more this season, but anybody who beats us will know they've been in a basketball game. We're getting hungry."

The game with Maryland is the first of two important conference games for Duke this week. Clemson comes to Duke Saturday night, the last action for the Blue Devils before a two-week exam break.

Maryland always has been a tough customer for Duke — especially with the Terps on their own floor. While Bud Millikan's team is having a mediocre 5-5 season, the Terps have a potentially big and strong club and a 3-2 record. Duke defeated the Terps three times last year.

Duke Coach Hal Bradley commented, "Maryland beat Wake Forest 59-53 in College Park and it proves to me that Maryland is capable of beating anyone in the conference on a good night. Our boys are going to have to put forward the same effort as they have been doing all season."

South Carolina's Gamecocks have made a surprise showing in the ACC and it can be explained in two elements — All America candidate Grady Wallace, the nation's second highest scorer, and a couple of bright sophomores—Ray Pericola and Dick Hoffman, from Union City, N.J.

Pericola and Hoffman have played together since grammar school. They were high school stars in Union City and each averaged about 20 points a game since joining the South Carolina freshman team last year.

Don't Stoop In Front Of The Psychotic Duck

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—It's best not to be caught stooping over in Miami these days. Weeper, the psychotic duck, is on the loose. And Weeper likes nothing better than to catch some one stooping over. He can't resist the target.

He'd rather peck some one bending over than paddle about in Elysian pools.

At the moment, Weeper, a cherub and a scoundrel by turns, is being harbored by an unsuspecting host.

This unsuspecting and trusting soul found Weeper at the University of Miami Lake a few days ago, was taken in by his wacky ways, and in turn took Weeper away. Weeper's new host has four young boys. Now he has five problems on his hands.

Listen to Mrs. Peggy Brandt, former owner of the psychotic web-foot.

"I was crazy about him," says Mrs. Brandt. "He was fine with our 2-year-old daughter, Debbie, but he didn't go over so big with my husband, Bob. We bought him when he was just a baby duck last July at a feed store.

"Finally it was either Bob or the duck had to go so I took Weeper out to the university lake. He loved to ride in the car and he was so happy on the way over, but he was mad when I left him with all those other ducks."

(Birds of a feather—imagine a duck feeling out of place with other ducks. But that's the way with Weeper.)

But back to Mrs. Brandt. When she learned that a father of four sons had adopted Weeper, she shook a sad head.

"I'm afraid they won't keep him long, either," she said. "The trouble is, he takes a dislike to certain people."

Especially persons stooping over or taking a sun bath in a canvas chair. Weeper chased away Mrs. Brandt's best friends. And once he pecked a visitor through the bottom of a canvas camp chair.

When Weeper doesn't like you, it doesn't take long to find it out, says Mrs. Brandt. He comes at you will bill bare and webbed claws a-flying.

He doesn't like cars, either. Listen once more to Mrs. Brandt.

"He chases them like a dog—only he flies around them and zooms at the driver like a dive bomber."

Mrs. Brandt says you should see her husband's legs. Weeper has left them almost in shreds.

It's best to stand upright in Miami nowadays.

Student Teacher Is A Veteran Traveller

By HAZEL MAY
Grimesland School Reporter

The English Department welcomes Miss Carol Marguerite Brooks, student teacher, to the Grimesland High School staff. Miss Brooks' father is a naval officer which accounts for the fact that she has lived in California, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Maryland, New York and North Carolina.

HAZEL

student was asked to bring some useful article to fill the many baskets.

The Junior class, chaperoned by Mrs. J. E. Venters, sponsored the annual Christmas Dance on Dec. 19, the day the students were dismissed for the holidays. During the dance, which lasted from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m., punch and nuts were served. Proceeds went to the class treasury for their banquet and senior trip.

The Beta Club aided in the presentation of a new flag to the high school. Funds were secured from the selling of hosiery and the sponsoring of dances. This is one of the many useful projects the Beta Club undertakes.

The projects from the Science Classes were turned in January 1. Some were concerning the weather and its changes and many were pertaining to other science features.

Many high school students attended the youth revival held December 28, 29 and 30 at 7:45. The revival was led by the Rev. Robert Gibbons, minister of music on the Circuit Rider and St. James Methodist Church in Greenville.

Miss Brooks was born in San Diego, California. She has one sister, a resident of Missouri. While in school she liked football, softball and basketball. Miss Brooks attended high school in Woodrow Wilson High School in Washington, D. C. and was graduated from the Woodrow Wilson High School in Portsmouth, Va.

The White Christmas, which the students participated in wholeheartedly on Dec. 14 and Dec. 17, aided in making many families' Christmas more enjoyable. Each Librarians gratefully welcomed back Miss O. B. Louis, who has been sick since Christmas. Our library will again be the pleasant place to work—thanks to her efficiency.

New Year's Eve was celebrated by the senior class members. Miss Katie E. Owen, senior advisor, served treats to her fourth year class of English students.

'Real Thing' For Silvers' Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Some months ago Jack Crosby, a draftsman in the CBS art department, was asked to send his picture to the producer of the Phil Silvers' TV show in New York.

Silvers wanted Crosby to portray a relative in the show.

Today Crosby heard from Silvers. The relative played himself in the show. The relative, whom Jack resembles, is a Crosby name of Bing.

"I don't think the public is ready for another Crosby in show business," said Jack, son of Larry and nephew of Bing and Bob.

Port Cargo Tonnage At Wilmington Sees Gain

WILMINGTON—The 1956 tonnage figures for North Carolina State Docks here, released by the N. C. State Ports Authority, show a gain of 11 per cent over the previous year, with a total of 278,583 tons handled during the year.

Cargoes amounting to 27,408 tons were imported, and exports reached 251,175.

Col. Richard S. Marr, ports authority's executive director, said the keynote of the year's operation here was diversified cargoes. While 36 different commodities were handled in 1956, the last year saw items of 57 categories pass through the State Docks.

The year also saw the two top monthly tonnage records established. In September 38,378 tons were handled by the installation as an all-time high. In the following month, October, the second record high for any month was set with a 35,580 total. The previous record came in December, 1955, when 33,000 tons were moved. Greatest tonnage of 1956 gain came from handling scrap metal, the figure rising from 150,908 tons to 200,411. This was the year's top export commodity.

Others exported in quantity include woodpulp, 16,000 tons; tobacco, 16,000 tons; and dried milk, 6,000 tons.

Among the top import commodities were steel products, 13,000 tons; fertilizer, 6,000; and burlap, 6,000.

The gain for the year is part of a continuing trend, Col. Marr explained. The 1955 total was 251,000 tons and showed an enormous climb of 139 per cent over the 1954 figure of 105,000.

There were 113 ships to tie up at the State Docks, two less than in 1955 when ships numbered 115. A cargo of 13.5 tons of wild animals, imported from India and Ceylon, attracted wide interest and crowds of visitors, as did the Stockholm's two cruises from this installation.

For pretties cargo there was a tie between 923 tons for new automobiles exported to Brazil and seven tons of artificial flowers imported from Germany. Handling the automobiles was decidedly better business.

Arid Arizona Is Getting Its Rain

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—How do people feel when it rains for the first time in a year? Most are pretty happy to see a break in the drought. Some just have that old rainy day feeling.

Newsman gathered several types of reactions yesterday at the end of a three-day rainstorm which sent thousands of acre-feet of water into the state's reservoirs and filled some streams to their banks.

Postman E. W. James, who has to carry the mail whether it rains or shines, summed up the majority:

"A God's blessing." Not so with switchboard operator Clara Campbell, who said: "My hair is curlier, my car is cleaner. Otherwise you can have it."

"I know we need it," said Ray E. Hackenberry, a grocer, "but I had my fill back east."

Harry Nolte, desk clerk at a resort, reported that most of the guests "have been very understanding. They know how much Arizona needs it, and they're willing to put up with it if it doesn't last too long."

Max Tiele, a farm worker, was contacted at Bambina's bar and cafe. "It put me out of a job," he said, "but I'm not complaining as long as the beer holds out."

Stern Action In Hunger Strike

ANGOLA, La. (AP)—Warden Maurice Sigler of the state penitentiary took stringent action against 20 convicts on a hunger strike. He stripped their cells of furniture and mattresses and denied them tobacco privileges. The men took their last meal at breakfast Saturday and then began their demands to be allowed to take part in a prison incentive pay program which began Jan. 1.

BOSTON (AP)—The life of a sweepstakes winner isn't all roses. A Roxbury barber told Probate Judge Robert G. Wilson Jr. Antonio J. Sena, who was announced as a $138,000 winner in the Irish Sweepstakes two years ago, said his winnings cost him friends and customers.

"They wanted some of the money," he testified, "and when they didn't get it, they left." Sena's former wife was seeking an increase in the $25 weekly support for herself and their two children.

Under questioning, Sena admitted he has about $45,000 left from the $54,000 he said he netted from the winnings. The case was continued.

PRAGUE, Okla. (AP)—Chiquita King, a registered Siamese cat, is just a bottle baby.

When he was a kitten, he was taught to hold a nursing bottle and drink warm milk from it. After seven months, the cat still demands a bottle. He lays on his back and holds the bottle in his paws.

NOT EVEN TRYING NEWFOUNDLAND, N. J. (AP)—Hunters still trying for their first deer can envy Edwin Van Glahn of Hoboken. Yesterday, for the second time in a year, a deer stepped in front of his car on Route 23 and was killed.

CHAPTER 23
Shots began to crackle and snow spurted into the air and sprinkled back. The Indians, forty or fifty of them, Chad judged, were streaming up the gully from the camp.

"Drive them back, men," Chad called.

The soldiers began a rapid fire. The leading braves went down and the charge wavered. Chad saw that they were dividing, each band heading for the timbered areas on the sides of the gully.

A few of the Indians were firing. Haskins, at Chad's side, was taken nearly off the ground. Chad heard the pop of the bullet, and he looked only long enough to see that part of the soldier's face was shot away.

"Back up to the top of the ridge," Chad called. "On the double."

They started slogging through the snow as fast as they could, turning and kneeling to pour lead at the Indians, and the going on.

Halfway to the top, Teller fell, screaming in agony. Chad paused long enough to see that he could not help. He saw several braves run to the bottom of the gully to Haskins' body. One of them grabbed the woolen cap from the dead man's head, jerked a handful of hair upward and sliced around the skull.

Chad fired a fast shot and had the satisfaction of hearing the Indian scream and topple to the ground.

Brown fell. McVey and O'Hara grabbed him and literally dragged him on. Zack, in the lead, called, "We made it."

The depression in the ridge was almost like the top of a volcanic mountain, Chad thought, as he tumbled into it, a strange formation and a welcome sight. The Indians, realizing they had lost the rage, poured a vicious fire at the soldiers. O'Hara, the last man to reach the depression, was hit just as he helped McVey pull the wounded man to safety. When Chad reached him, he was dead.

The two pursuing parties reached the top of the ridge. But the Indians had to cross ground that had little protective growth if they charged. All the advantages except numbers and time were with Chad's men.

The Indians tried working their way through the scant cover, but sharpshooting from behind the abutment cut them down. They grouped and charged, but the soldiers' fire was so effective that the Indians broke and ran for cover.

A second attempt was more successful. On Chad's side four Indians reached the depression and jumped in. Schmidt's head was split open by a down-swinging blow of an ax. Chad shot the warrior through the heart. One of them leaped at Chad. Toller grabbed at his leg and brought him down, but his outflung arms caught Chad around the middle and they fell together. Chad clubbing at him with the barrel of his revolver, the Indian trying to stab him with a scalping knife. Zack caught the down-driving arm, turned him over, and cut his throat with one swift blow. He lifted his bloody blade and looked around at Chad got to his feet. The other two braves were dead.

Now the Indians seemed content to lie back. They kept up their fire, and Donovan, one of the best men Chad had, was hit between the eyes.

"Pull him back, McVey," Chad said.

The soldier took Donovan under the arms and began to drag him back. Chad moved over to help and felt a sharp sting in his upper arm. He spun around and fell over Donovan's body.

"You hit, son?" Zack asked.

Chad nodded. Zack whipped out his knife and cut away part of the sleeve of Chad's uniform. After a glance at the wound, his face relaxed. "Got a bite o' you, all right, but it ain't bad." He made a quick bandage to stop the blood and slapped Chad on the back. "All right, son, you ain't left-handed nohow."

Chad returned to his side of the depression. The light was very thin and now it began to snow, making it still harder to see. The Indians worked in closer and for a few minutes the firing was heavy. A stray bullet caught McVey in the head. He was dead when Chad reached him. The wounded man, Brown, was gone, too.

Higgins, Flannigan, Rouke, Duncan, Toller. Five men left of the twelve who had marched out of Fort Butterfield only a few hours before. Now it was dark and the wind was howling across the slope, driving the snowflakes almost horizontally before it.

There had been no firing for some time now. Then Chad was aware that Zack was behind him. Chad asked, "What do you think?"

"I figger it's time to skeddadle for the fort," Zack said. "Get the boys together. Gotta hang on to each other. If'n we lose a man, we lose him. We weren't look fer him."

"What about the Indians?"

"Probably roasting their toes in the lodges," Zack said. "Gotta take our chances, anyhow. Even if'n some of 'em are still around, we might get through, wind howling like it is."

"How do you know the direction?"

Zack's laugh was lost in the wind.

So they went, easing silently down the ridge and back along the river. It was hopelessly dark. As long as he lived, Chad never understood how Zack brought them unerringly across the prairie to the gate of Fort Butterfield. But he did.

There was a light in his quarters. Chad opened the door and stumbled in, so cold that it seemed all feeling was gone from his body. Dora Haggerty, the laundress, was waiting with a good fire in the little stove and a pot of coffee boiling hot.

When she saw Chad, she cried, "Lord love us, Lieutenant, you're alive. We prayed for you from the minute you walked out through that gate, but we didn't really think the good God would bring you back to us. Here, let me help you out of them clothes."

"You didn't pray hard enough," he said with lips so stiff they slurred the words. "I left seven good men back there."

She helped him out of his heavy jacket. The scarf that had been wrapped around his face was frozen hard where it had covered his nose and mouth. He stood huddled over the stove, a cup of steaming coffee in his hand, when Colonel Randall opened the door and came in. He stared at Chad, his face showing the strain under which he labored. He said then, "You did not report to me."

Chad looked at him. At this moment he hated Randall enough to kill him.

"Why should I report to you?"

"I'm your commanding officer, a fact which you seem to overlook at times," Randall said stiffly. "I sent you on a mission. Did you succeed?"

"No," Chad put down the coffee cup on the table and walked toward Randall. "You said once today you wondered about what kind of military service I had during the war, but you knew because you told me before you had looked it up. That was why you picked me. Now I'm asking about yours, Colonel."

Randall threw a glance at Dora Haggerty, and then, without a word, he wheeled and left the room. Dora said, "You shouldn't..." She stopped. "I'll bring you some supper. And Alice will come over and fix your arm." She put on her coat and walked to the door. She glanced back, asking, "What will happen, to us before spring, lieutenant?"

"I wish I knew, Dora," he said dully. "I wish I knew."

Tomorrow, Chad is invited to a Christmas dinner, which proves embarrassing to some others.

Not Enough Kids To Go Around

MANISTIQUE, Mich. (AP) — The only trouble with Glen Lake's seven motherless children is that "there weren't enough to go around."

For two years after his wife died, Lake, a 38-year-old timber worker, labored to keep his young family together. Finally, he decided he couldn't do it alone.

He took his problem to the Schoolcraft County Probate Court and among the 200 residents of Little Thompson Township, eight miles west of Manistique, he found open hearts and open homes.

In fact, court aides explained, there were more homes than there were children.

Giving the court custody of the six youngest children, ranging in age from 3 to 13, Lake imposed a set of terms to keep his family as much as possible intact.

All of the children were to be placed with Thompson Township couples. Each child over ten had to give his consent. Lake had final approval and reserved visiting privileges.

When the court made public the terms this week, it also explained that most of the children had been living in foster homes since Dec. 10 and are all "getting along fine."

Lake asked the oldest child, a 15-year-old girl, to remain with him.

Three of the children — Lester, 12; Allen, 10; and Arthur, 7 — went to live with Mr. and Mrs. George Grimm. Two others — Lois, 3, and John, 6 — went to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hastings took Frank, 13.

May Charge For Traffic Delays

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charges for traffic delays, requested by the Yellow Cab Co., have been tentatively approved by the Cit. Board of Public Utilities and Transportation. Final action will be taken next Tuesday.

The cab company wants to charge passengers 10 cents for each 2 1/2 minutes of delay at traffic signals and in traffic jams, the additional charges being registered on meters whenever the speed of cabs drops under eight miles an hour.

The wild boar, now found in the southeastern United States, is descended from animals imported from the same preserves of European nobles.

Laughed While Porch Smashed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The porch at Charles Davidson's house is in pretty bad shape today.

Firemen smashed it up to free 2-year-old Chuckie Davidson's leg, which became wedged in a drainpipe. The child laughed with glee as the firemen used a sledge hammer, and with each blow—shouted: "Boom, boom, boom."

The boy emerged unharmed, and still was laughing when the job was finished, so he gave each of the firemen a big kiss.

A merry-go-round made in 1850 is still in operation at Watch Hill, Rhode Island. One change has been made: Originally turned by a draft horse, it is now mechanized.
