House Committee Begins Its Budget-Whittling Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee set out today to try to whittle down President Eisenhower's request to spend $71,807,000,000 during the next fiscal year.

One day after receiving Eisenhower's budget message, subcommittees arranged to begin scanning behind closed doors the fiscal needs of the Interior, Post Office and Treasury departments.

Humphrey cautioned that "we will have a depression that will make your hair curl" unless the government cuts down on its spending.

He said he wasn't criticizing the administration for the size of the budget. But he said the rising trend of federal budgets "should promptly be stopped."

He said would be applied toward reduction of the 272-billion-dollar national debt, now costing more than seven billions annually in interest charges.

No sooner had Eisenhower's budget message been read than a partisan argument broke out on the House floor.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee called the budget "inflationary."

And he complained that "there is no retrenchment, no economy."

Treasury Secretary Dissents Over Budget Size; Hits Heavy Spending

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Secretary of the Treasury, in complaining that President Eisenhower's budget is too big, doesn't talk like a man quarreling with the boss.

George M. Humphrey startled 90 reporters at a news conference, held in connection with yesterday's record peacetime budget proposals, by announcing that rising government spending "should promptly be stopped."

"I think there are a lot of places in this budget that can be cut," said the secretary.

"I don't believe it is up to me to start now to point my finger at people to make cuts, but I think a lot of people will make some cuts. I think we will do so in the Treasury."

But he added soberly that if "terrific" spending and taxing are not halted "I will predict that you will have a depression that will curl your hair."

Told that he sounded like an official who had been overruled in trying to economize, he denied it.

is the best that could be written at this moment, he said.

It's unusual for a member of the "Eisenhower team" to criticize publicly the handiwork of the administration.

When he speaks publicly—which is seldom—he speaks his mind. When he dissents—which is often—he dissents vigorously.

also a hard-selling salesman. One associate has remarked that "George sometimes sells a little harder than he means to."

Hours after the news conference the question of his leaving was put point-blank and Humphrey scoffed at the idea.

"That's ridiculous," he said. "I'll leave someday, of course, but this budget won't have anything to do with it."

Twining Says Air Force Is Getting A Lot Of Money

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—The nation's air chief "old members of the Chamber of Commerce here last night that the Air Force is getting a hell of a lot of money" under President Eisenhower's budget, sent yesterday to Congress.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining said the new budget will be used to give the nation the most effective striking force possible.

While the money will not provide the Air Force with all it believes it should have, he said, it will enable the Air Force to carry on through the next fiscal year.

"Under this budget we will continue to improve and strengthen the Strategic Air Command, our first line of defense against aggression," he said.

While the money will not provide the Air Force with all it believes it should have, he said, it will enable the Air Force to carry on through the next fiscal year.

"I assure you that we will give the nation the most effective air force with the resources made available to us," Twining said.

also would allow for expansion and improvement of the nation's air defense system, and that with increased funds "our early warning lines will be extended well out to sea off our coasts."

Russia, said the general, is constantly improving its air force. "The quality of their air force is increasing rapidly and they show no signs of slowing down, either in quantity or quality," he said.

The U.S. must not make the mistake of judging the Russians by the "plumbing in their bathrooms," he said, "or the lack of modern appliances in their homes."

From Martha To Mamie--How Inaugural Gowns Change!

MAMIE EISENHOWER... Replica at Smithsonian Institution of 1953 inaugural gown.
GRACE COOLIDGE... This tiered chiffon of 20's is much like some of 1957 top fashions.
MARTHA WASHINGTON... Even her mob-cap and shawl have inspired modern styles.

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Feminine interest in the forthcoming inaugural festivities here centers on the gown Mrs. Eisenhower will wear to her second inaugural ball, and whether it will replace its 1953 predecessor in the "First Ladies' Hall" of the Smithsonian Institution.

The colorful collection already includes Mamie's first inaugural ball gown, a full-length creation of pink peau-de-soie studded with 2,000 rhinestones, designed by Nettie Rosenstein of New York, who reportedly is making the first lady's gown for this year's ball.

Grouped in the hall are plaster figures of the 36 women who have graced the White House since Martha Washington's day, each dressed in the fashion of the period. The faces are all the same, but the expression of the eyes, the stance, the hairdress and the figure vary with the personality and dimensions of these famous women, giving them individuality.

The idea of getting these ladies together goes back to the early 1900's and is credited to Mrs. Julian James of Washington, a supporter of the Smithsonian. She got a big assist from Mrs. Rose Gouveneur Hoos, descendant of President James Monroe who owned many Monroe heirlooms.

Mrs. William Howard Taft started the collection by donating her own white silk inaugural ball gown in 1912. It was not until May 1955 that the ladies were placed in their present regal settings. Altogether, 13 of the gowns are those which their owners wore at inaugurations.

The first ladies are probably the most popular exhibit in the national museum and doubtless will be viewed by many more persons than they ever dreamed of seeing in their lifetimes.

Museum authorities looked searchingly at photographs and portraits of the first ladies and combed historic records to create an illusion of reality behind the eight glass cases of a lifelike display in period settings. There are little clues and big ones, hidden in this hall, that have a lot to say about the silent inhabitants.

One Seated
The only seated figure in the elegant rooms, mostly patterned after White House modes, is Martha Washington—shown this sign of respect because she is the eldest of the first ladies present and also because that was the way she received guests.

Dolly Madison carries a book in her hand since, it is said, she usually entered her parlor thus armed with a ready opening for conversation and a source of small talk at the party.

These ladies were the height of fashion, no matter how strange it might seem now, and thus Louisa Catherine Adams, wife of President John Quincy Adams (1825-1829), carries a linen handkerchief one-yard square.

And just-turned-of-age Emily Donelson, wife of President Andrew Jackson's ward, who acted as first lady from 1829 to 1836, has a double-tiered incredible headdress to bring her blonde tresses just about as high as they could go.

Flapper Style
Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge (1923-'29) was the luckless victim of the short dress period of the roaring '20s and appears in what is considered the most ungraceful fashion in the collection—also the only sleeveless dress.

A note of sorrow is the figure of Mrs. Franklin Pierce in somber black mourning for a 12-year-old son killed before his parents' eyes in a railroad accident. The Pierces earlier had lost two other sons.

The only other black in the collection—this time an example of an elegant costume—is worn by Mrs. Edith Wilson, President Wilson's second wife. She is the only lady with her back to the spectator. Museum officials say she wanted it that way and besides the major interest of her dress is in panels of jet sequins that ornament the back and long train.

New Textbook In Science Prepared By Member Of Faculty At ECC

A new textbook in science for elementary schools "Manual for Science Today and Tomorrow" by Dr. John G. Navarra of the East Carolina faculty and Dr. Gerald S. Craig, professor emeritus of natural science at Columbia University, is scheduled to appear next month.

The work, published by Ginn and Co., belongs to a series of texts in science by Dr. Craig, Dr. Navarra, and others which were written for use in the first through the eighth grades. These books have been adopted for schools of a number of states in this country and are used in many Canadian schools and, in translation, in Thailand and other foreign countries.

The manual, latest addition to the series, is planned as an aid to teachers of elementary science. Contents deal with methods of instruction and provide or suggest supplementary materials for use in the classroom.

Illustrations include photographs, drawings, maps, and other types of materials. J.D. Henry of New Bern, student photographer for the East Carolina News Bureau, and the college yearbook, made the photographs which appear in the manual and has received from Ginn and Co. a letter of commendation for his work.

Notable Evidence Of School Gains

Acceptance of bids by Pitt County's Board of Education for construction of a new Negro school at Bruce marks another step of progress for public school education in this county.

Pitt, along with some other counties in North Carolina, has recognized the inadequacies of its school facilities in recent years. In the past decade, Pitt has done a great deal not only through state funds, but also through county local district funds to improve school facilities and bring them up to desired standards.

The work is not yet completed. Indeed, with the continuing growth in the number of children of school age the day may never come when the job is completed. Notwithstanding this fact, Pitt County has made significant progress in its school construction program.

During the past decade great advancement has been made in the school consolidation program in Pitt. Through the elimination of one-teacher schools and small two- and three-teacher schools this county has managed to afford many youngsters better educational advantages than these little schools could afford. Through the construction of buildings it has afforded the youngsters better surroundings more conducive to learning.

It is certainly no disgrace to say that the county has recognized the shortcomings of the school facilities it formerly provided for Negro children. Long before the Supreme Court announced its decision in 1954, Pitt County was in the process of providing better schools for Negro children, and in our estimation the county has now reached the point where it can justly exhibit not only separate but equal facilities for school children of both races.

School officials of the county—and by that we not only mean administrative officers but also members of the Board of Education and district committees—have shown an enlightened understanding of the problems which faced the schools of this county and have pushed with diligence and often against heavy odds the school construction program which Pitt has needed.

As we said, there is still a great deal of work to be done. But with the erection of every new school building Pitt County marks another milestone in its effort to provide its young people with greater educational advantages which in years to come will mean more advancement and a better way of life for all its people.

Good Signposts And Spurs To Progress

The economic progress of almost every community is not only reflected by the condition of its financial institutions, but in a large measure is influenced by the policies of these institutions.

Conditions of Greenville's four financial institutions, reflected this week in reports at annual stockholders meetings, show continued progress which in turn is indicative of the economic progress being made in the community. In the case of each institution, reports by officials showed 1956 to be one of the best years in their history. In spite of soft spots and temporary setbacks in the local economy, these reports point to general economic growth in Greenville and surrounding area.

Greenville is fortunate indeed to have its four major financial institutions each of which has played a major role in the growth, development and well-being of the local economy. Few indeed are communities which can progress more rapidly than the far-sighted policies of their financial institutions. In a large measure it is the policies of these institutions which give impetus to growth and progress in a community.

The Daily Reflector congratulates Greenville's financial institutions whose efforts have been instrumental in the community's sound growth over a period of years, and with them and the people of the community we look forward to continued steady economic progress in the years ahead.

Who Will Get Eight Millions?

By LYNN NISBET
TAX RELIEF—Some effort is being made by interested parties to find how much of the $8 million reduction in corporate income taxes proposed by the tax study commission will actually benefit the corporations and how much will be diverted from the State treasury to Washington.

There is rather general acceptance among legislators of the need for revising the tax structure in order to put North Carolina in competitive position with other states in bidding for industrial expansion. It is conceded that the method of computing corporate tax liability places undue burden on firms engaged in interstate business. It is also remembered that taxpayers may deduct State taxes from Federal returns.

That means, argue some legislators, that as State levies are reduced Federal payments will go up. They want more information on this point before committing full endorsement of the tax revision plan. If reduction in State taxes means a real saving to the taxpaying corporations, or if it means the prospect of more revenue for local governments, the legislators are disposed to go along. If, on the other hand, it means only that the money paid will go to Washington instead of to North Carolina, they are not enthusiastic about the idea.

The tax study commission under the chairmanship of Brandon Hodges made exhaustive studies of comparable tax schedules in this and other states. If any real attention was given to the relationship of State and Federal taxes under existing and proposed schedules the results of the study have not been publicized. Much has been said about the North Carolina "tax package"—State and local combined. The whole package also includes Federal liability.

TOBACCO—Any time two or more business men from Eastern North Carolina get together the conversation inevitably turns to the tobacco problem. At a purely social occasion the other night a reporter found himself in the midst of a group including Alex Allen, Alonzo Edwards, Bob Rouse, John Shackelford and Harry Taylor, all with extensive farming and warehouse operations in Greene and Pitt counties. Also present was Stog Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, and a large Wake county farmer emphasizing dairy products but growing some tobacco and officially concerned with the whole farm program.

No notes were taken and there is some question about who said what, but there is no doubt at all about the consensus of the group. The tobacco price support program is in serious jeopardy, and if it fails the whole economy of Eastern North Carolina will be shot to pieces. The fellows participating in the discussion were disturbed about the attitude of the Federal Department of Agriculture against small farms—and practically every tobacco farm is classed as small. They were almost bitter about the attitude of the State Department's dealing with export trade. But they were honest enough to confess that if the tobacco program fails the disastrous results will be mainly attributable to the tobacco growers themselves. Maybe there ought to be specific laws against planting off-brand high quality low quality producing types. Maybe there ought to be a law, enacted by the State Legislature if not by the Congress, requiring these types to be clearly marked with colored weight tags when put on the warehouse floor corresponding with colored marketing cards issued to the growers. With or without such laws, primary responsibility still rests upon the individual grower to keep faith with his fellows. PROSPECTS—The group was pessimistic about prospects for full cooperation of growers on voluntary basis. There are reports of over-planting and use of out-laid varieties by some growers. There are stories about new varieties being offered, which actually are nothing but the out-laws under different names. There was almost unanimous agreement that unless the individual farmers cooperate more fully, the tobacco control program has only two or three years to run before it completely blows up. These folks were concerned primarily with the situation in Eastern North Carolina. They were cognizant of the effects of action here on the burley and aromatic tobacco producing areas. Burley growers in the west fared mightily well during the season that is nearing its close. There is definite suspicion in minds of many eastern growers that big buying companies are playing flue cured bright leaf against burley in order to break the support program. If the stabilization corporation goes busted and the support program falls, each individual grower will be at the mercy of the big buyers and ruthless competition on part of his fellows.

True, Clouds Have Silver Linings—

So, Psychiatry Works

The Rev. Dr. Gerald Foster who has been conducting an eight-day Winter Evangelistic campaign at St. James Methodist Church here this week tells the following story.

It seems that a man about town was extremely conceited, even to the point where it was costing him friends. So he decided to see a psychiatrist. The treatment went on for a time and the man was finally cured. "I used to be conceited," he'd tell people, "but now I'm all straightened out. Since I started seeing a psychiatrist I've turned into one of the nicest fellows in town."

Tuesday morning before all the snowfall began locally only one car could be seen on Evans St. with snow on its top. Where did its license plate show it was from? Florida.

Local police each night make the rounds of all local business houses carefully rattling all doors to make sure they are locked. When a door is found unlocked it's the policy of the department to call back to police headquarters which in turn calls someone connected with the business.

Then the store owner can check the building if he wishes to determine if anything is missing. On occasions this service is not appreciated and the individual called lets the desk officer know in no uncertain terms. On the whole, however, most store operators appreciate the call and recently Carl H. Ramsaur of Steinmeyer-Ramsaur took time out to write local police and express his appreciation. "It is with a great deal of personal pleasure that Mr. Steinmeyer and I take this opportunity to thank your department for its vigilance in patrolling the area in which our business is located," Ramsaur said in a letter addressed to Chief S.G. Gibbs.

He noted that on several occasions over the years "one of your patrolmen has notified either Mr. Steinmeyer or me that our gate was unlocked or that our office or warehouse doors were not securely fastened."

"We respectfully request that you thank the patrolmen for their cooperation," the letter declared.

Sales of red ink dropped two per cent while purchases of black ink climbed four per cent in 1956, according to announcement by a pen manufacturer. If that doesn't make the present prosperity "official" nothing else can! (Henderson Dispatch)

Our major cities have become so congested with cars and trucks that there are only two kinds of parking left—illegal and no.—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

Such terms as "drag racing" and "scratching off" have the right names. We are sure of that. The trouble is that we didn't know until recently the full definition of the terms as applied to auto racing. "Drag racing" often ends up when other's drag out the dead and injured human beings out of the wrecks on our highways.

"Scratching off" often takes place when the name of certain people are scratched off the list of the living. However, on our highways those who endanger them with illegal racing engage in "drag racing" we are told, when two cars start off even and pour on the speed. "Scratching off," we are told, takes place with the spinning of the wheels as the car rears up in all its power for the takeoff.

Anyway, the designations can have double meanings. (Washington Daily News)

Fishing And Caps

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Typewriter tattle: A wise mother will teach her boy to fish right now—that is, if she hopes later in life he'll angle for an address at the White House, Washington, D.C.

The odds are heavy against the lad who hasn't at least learned to dangle a worm in water at the end of a pole.

The current issue of "The Fisherman," a magazine, cites these statistics:

A majority of U.S. presidents, from Dwight Eisenhower right on back to George Washington, member of the first sport fishing club formed in North America, have been more or less ardent followers of Izaak Walton.

The voters elected 14 consecutive fishing presidents, but never have elected three nonfishermen in a row.

Calvin Coolidge bowed to tradition and apparently became a fisherman after his election. Grover Cleveland, one of a number of presidents criticized for spending too much time fishing, replied:

"Every patriotic, thoughtful citizen, whether he fishes or not, should lament that we have not among our countrymen more fishermen."

Commented President Herbert Hoover: "The American people have respect for privacy only on two occasions: one of them is praying and the other is fishing, and the president can't pray all the time."

President Eisenhower's tip: "Caution is the most valuable asset in fishing, especially if you are the fish."

In the 1920's famous people like Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth, Bernard Baruch and the Duke of Windsor wore caps.

But from a peak of 55 million caps in 1927 production fell to 27 million in 1937, and these were mostly work or sport caps.

Why the slump? The Cap and Cloth Hat Institute says the gangster films in the 1930's murdered their business.

"Every time Jimmy Cagney threw a pie in Mac's face," he was wearing a cap," said Ethelene Saunders, president of the Institute. "Every crook, hoodlum, thug or murderer left a cap at the scene of the crime."

"In 1932 alone, 234 cap-wearing movie criminals were either killed or jailed. The producers should have been executed."

The cap manufacturers, riding a new boom, are proud that caps now adorn the heads of people like President Eisenhower, baseball star Ted Williams, actor Rex Harrison and author Ernest Hemingway.

This time the cap makers have declared an open war against movie or TV producers who "identify" gangsters by having them wear a cap." Top hats, fedoras, derbies or football helmets—all okay. But caps—no!

"It's them or us," said Saunders. While we're on the subject of headgear, we might as well cap it with that new in men's hats. It seems there's been a revolution. A survey by the John B. Steison Co. came up with these discoveries:

A man's wife has less to say—well, less influence anyway—about her husband's choice of a hat than any other item in his wardrobe.

The old social distinctions in the wearing of certain hat styles has died out.

The banker no longer wears a stiff bowler. Newspapersmen no longer affect flamboyant hats but—bless you, Mr. Stetson!—dress more like doctors. So do actors. Doctors themselves, on the other hand, are getting more informal in their hat tastes.

Businessmen are dressing almost as elegantly as bankers used to. Ball players still look like ball players, even though some have eight-hat wardrobes ranging from jaunty Tyrolean numbers to smart evening hats.

Few detectives wear derbies any more. The young FBI agent leans toward a popular narrow brim hat and can easily be mistaken for a carefree collegian.

Observations On Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Let's try to brighten this seventeenth day of the new year with some of the more curious things about business, a few oblique observations and an oddity or two.

Employees, now with heavier Social Security deductions, often comfort themselves with the thought the employers must pay more too. It's his comfort. Any employer in his right mind calculates the cost of labor as cash wages plus benefits plus all payroll taxes. If it weren't for those benefits and taxes, the employer could pay considerably more in cash.

Of course, he might not pay it voluntarily. NO PLACE TO HIDE

There are almost no sure wages to hedge against inflation that is bleeding the currencies of the world, says Pick's World Currency Report. Foreigners who bought American dollars last year lost because the buying power of the dollar fell; those who bought gold bars only broke even; U.S. stocks rose less than the dollar fell and the average investment in metals lost money. Gold coins and diamonds increased moderately in value; fine works of art increased even better, and the best bet of all was the ocean tanker, which rose 300 per cent in value when the Suez Canal was closed.

A pretty little promotional gimmick has been ruled out of bounds by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Some promoters have been offering speculative investments on a money-back guarantee basis. They agreed to invest 75 per cent of the receipts in Series E savings bonds and used the rest in the speculation. At the end of 10 years the bonds would be worth 100 per cent of the total original investment. A few years ago the SEC ruled this scheme was illegal when the investor was not told part of his money was going into bonds; now it holds that the plan isn't permissible even if the investor is told.

WHY WORKERS ARE FIRED Even when workers are scarce, some get canned. The American Management Association looked into 129 firings to find out why.

It found 35 were fired for absenteeism, including four cases in which alcohol figured; 28 for poor job performance; 33 for two or more reasons, and the rest for miscellaneous causes. Of the men fired, 41 per cent were dropped for absenteeism; of the women, only 9 per cent were. This was surprising in view of repeated surveys that showed women lose more time than men. The A. M. A. concludes that employers now expect women to lose time and rarely fire them for it.

Here are some more reports on net profits, to satisfy those who are always curious about how much the other fellow makes:

The typical nut and confectionary store 0.4 cents net profit before taxes on each $1 in sales, Dun & Bradstreet says in a basis of 1955 data.

The typical retail auto accessory and parts store made 2.7 cents before taxes on each $1 in sales, the same agency found.

The average milk dealer makes 2.12 cents profit on each $1 in sales, a survey by Prof. G. W. Starr, of Indiana University, disclosed.

NEWS THAT MAY CUE BUSINESS TRENDS Big supermarket chains are swallowing up fewer small ones. Supermarket News reports, in 1955, 863 markets were acquired by big chains; last year only 332 were taken over in mergers.

Plastics production exceeded 4 billion pounds last year and may go higher this year, the Society of the Plastics Industry reported by the Machinery and Allied Production Institute, 36 per cent use the straight-line depreciation method; 31 per cent use the declining-balance method; another 31 per cent use the sum-of-the-digits method and 2 per cent have other ways of calculating it.

Prices of houses built since 1940 will increase or remain stable, the National Association of Real Estate Boards says after a survey in 234 cities. Because the broom corn crop last year was only 46 per cent as big as the 1955 crop, brooms will cost more this year, says manufacturers.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BASIC TO CHRISTIAN FAITH We have fallen into the habit in the Christian church of speaking about the resurrection only during the Easter season.

A reading of both of the New Testament and the Christian literature which followed during the next two centuries clearly indicates that the doctrine of the resurrection of Jesus Christ was primary among believers and occupied their greatest attention. And the reason for this is easy to understand.

Today we largely regard Christ's resurrection as an assurance of the existence of life after death. This, of course, is one of the teachings of the resurrection. But it is not the principal teaching.

The principal teaching is that in the resurrection, God demonstrated to Christian believers that Jesus Christ had never left the flesh. His presence had been limited to a few people in a small area. Now, released from death and triumphant over it, His spiritual presence was available to everybody in every age and under every circumstance.

Let us get back to the basic teaching of the Christian religion. It is this: Jesus Christ has never left the world. His presence is in our midst precisely as it was 2000 years ago—only, indeed, more personal and influential.

"Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matthew 28:20)

Survival Of UN Believed At Stake

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Survival of the United Nations stands in jeopardy, according to many American and European statesmen, unless the United States, Britain and France close ranks quickly and completely. Its future role as an effective international force will depend on its ability to solve the Egyptian and Hungarian crises.

In their attack on Egypt, Britain, France and Israel bypassed and defied the United Nations Charter simply because the world organization had shown its incapacity for solving the Middle East stalemate. They felt that they had to resort to the ancient weapon of power politics.

U.N. EXPECTED TO FIND SOLUTION In response to U.N. resolutions of condemnation, as well as to American and Russian opposition, the three belligerents agreed to a cease-fire and withdrawal of their invading forces. They did so only in the expectation that the U.N. would find a solution through diplomatic and peaceful intervention. Now, although the U.N. has humiliated and condemned them, it appears powerless to satisfy what they regard as their legitimate claims against Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser. On the contrary, the U.N. has enabled the dictator at Cairo to pose as the victor in the clash. He is more popular with Arabian masses than ever before.

Oddly, President Eisenhower comes in for almost as much criticism as Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, London and Paris now level the charge of inconsistency against Ike, whereas the target for this indictment in the past had been only Secretary John Foster Dulles and Undersecretary Herbert Hoover, Jr. The President's popularity is now very low in Europe.

EISENHOWER'S MOVE When the three belligerent nations became bogged down in Fort Said, Eisenhower insisted that the controversy with Nasser be channelled to the United Nations. He maintained that it was the only way to uphold international morality. He called for a similar approach in handling the Hungarian revolt.

But now, with his new program for defending the Middle East against possible Russian invasion, he has outflanked the U.N. He has done so because of its demonstrated ineffectiveness. In foreign opinion, he has adopted the very policy which he denounced when it was executed by Britain, France and Israel. On this point Ben Gurion agrees with Prime Minister Macmillan and Premier Mollet.

ALARMING DEVELOPMENT WITHIN U.N. Western diplomats and legislators, including many prominent Americans, see another alarming development within the U.N. itself. It is the fact that the Russian-Asian-African bloc has become so strong numerically that it can frequently block Western proposals for peace or for punishment of guilty aggressors. When the U.N. was composed of only 51 nations, the American and Western representatives could always command a majority, and usually the two-thirds required for action on important matters in the General Assembly. But now that the U.N. consists of 80 members, the Russians and their Asian-African sympathizers can muster a minimum of 35 votes.

Recent events may increase the strength of this hostile delegation. Several European and Latin-American nations, with a total of 25 votes, have been alarmed by the Anglo-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt, which they interpret as a revival of colonialism. They may be tempted to line up with the Communists and their Allies, if only as a warning in forthcoming conflicts.

Thus, Moscow is making gains both inside and outside the United Nations.

 The deputy reported that the dog then "just stood back and looked at me with the most amazed expression on his face."
 Sheahan added: "It was the first time in my life I was ever thankful for having a wooden leg."

Propose Prison Labor Be Given Forestry Work

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The North Carolina Assn. of Soil Conservation District Supervisors would have surplus prison labor forces at work in Tar Heel forests, protecting and improving them.

That was the essence of a resolution adopted here yesterday as the association closed its two-day annual meeting.

Another resolution, addressed to the governor and General Assembly, would have the state provide funds for engaging an executive secretary to integrate the work of the statewide system of conservation districts.

B. L. Angell of Forsyth County was elected president of the association succeeding C. M. Ladd of Durham.

Other officers elected include Neil M. Craig of Mecklenburg County, and C. L. Davis of Jones County, vice presidents; Dick Heeley of Hoke County, secretary and Garland Strickland of Nash County, treasurer.

Bogart-Bacall Story Is One Of Movies' Best

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The marriage of Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall, which began with all odds against it, became one of Hollywood's best love stories.

It ended only with Bogart's death Monday, from cancer. They met in 1944, when she was his leading lady in "To Have and Have Not," her first picture. She was a starchy-eyed 20-year-old who was enamored with the big movie star.

Bogart was the least promising of husbands. He was a veteran of three unhappy marriages; the last, to actress Mayo Methot, was marked by violent squabbling. "If you want anything, all you have to do is whistle," she had murmured to him in her first movie. He gifted her with a gold whistle. They were married on author Louis Bromfield's farm in Ohio in May 1945.

In later years Bogart would crack, "I had to marry you. You chased me so long I had my back to the wall. I did what any gentleman would do — I acquiesced."

Betty, as he called her, had a different story: "He set his sights for me and wouldn't relent until I said 'I will.'"

Betty knew the odds she was up against. But, she recalled later, "I told myself that marriage was a job, that I'd have to work at it real hard, especially in Hollywood. I made it my personal crusade to keep him happy."

At first she discovered he expected her to be like his other three wives — "a companion for his semibachelor existence." But he realized the situation was different when their son Stephen arrived.

to the end of his life, but he drank more leisurely after he became a husband and father. He and Betty became accepted as pillars of Hollywood society.

He became more serious about his career. He worried about film roles, despite the fact he was getting more money and bigger money than at any time in his career. He constantly spoke of getting "something to leave" his widow and children. Thanks to several years of hard work, he should have left them well fixed.

Their devotion was underlined in his last days. She was with him constantly, watching his strength and keeping his spirits up. They sometimes spoke of future picture deals. Neither of them would face the possibility that cancer would end his career and their marriage.

INSURES BRAIN

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—A metals company executive here has insured his brain for $100,000. "I make my living with my brain," said Lloyd C. McManus, 37, president of Southern Iron and Metal Co., explaining the policy he has taken out with Lloyd's of London. He said the policy will run 10 years, but wouldn't say how much of a premium he will have to pay.

MODERN SCIENCE INDUSTRY

NORTH CAROLINA'S greatest asset in attracting new industry is its people.

Industry after industry establishing plants here has paid glowing tribute to the high quality and quick trainability of North Carolina workmen.

Demand for this type of labor exceeds supply in this new age of electronics and automation.

Modern science industry requires workers skilled in the use of tools—workers who are masters of machines.

These high-wage industries cannot develop faster than technicians can be trained. Nor can they operate without engineering and managerial personnel. Thus new industry of this type also provides professional job opportunities, for lack of which many of our college graduates are now leaving the State.

More and better science instruction in public schools, more technical schools, and expansion of scientific research facilities are vital to North Carolina's Industrial Development Program.

Ask for the new booklet on Modern Science Industry, with heretofore unpublished information about North Carolina's attractions for new industries. It's free.

Audiences Never Knew Of Flaring Toscanini Temper

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—What Arturo Toscanini's vast audiences heard about was the fury that boiled up in him at imperfections in performance.

Or the way he bawled out his hapless players . . . or the way batons would sometimes slip out of his grasp and fly into the orchestra.

But what his audiences heard in fact was some of the crispest, most dramatic and most satisfying music, orchestral and operatic, supplied by any conductor of the century.

When Toscanini, the master maestro of them all, died yesterday two months short of 90, he already had lived long enough to become a legend, or even several legends.

Great music went with the great man. The flareups and the temperament went with the genius.

Genius was a word which, as it happened, he hated to have applied to himself. He did not like to be called interpreter either. He was a reader of scores. He stuck to the music that composers provided.

They repaid him with chances rarely given to conductors. He did, for instance, the world premieres of Verdi's "Otello," Leoncavallo's

"Pagliacci" and Puccini's "La Boheme," and he introduced Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" to Italy.

It was just 70 years ago, in 1886, that he conducted for the first time, at the age of 19. It was in Rio de Janeiro, where the aspiring Toscanini was cellist and assistant choral conductor of a touring Italian company. The scheduled Brazilian conductor and then the Italian ran afoul of both singers and audience. In the crisis Toscanini was called out by the cast because, as they cried, "he owes all the operas by heart."

"Aida" was the opera on that occasion. Toscanini accepted the incident as routine, went back to his cello, said nothing of his feat when he returned to Italy. But the excited word got around that an exceptionally gifted young man was available for conducting jobs, and he took several in smaller cities. They led to his first chance at famed La Scala, in Milan, in 1896, with the orchestra, and in 1898 with opera.

His early modesty stayed with him. He has refused honorary degrees time after time. When he made his cross-country tour with the NBC Symphony in the spring of 1950, the governor of Texas tried to make him an honorary citizen of the state but the Maestro refused.

"Tell the governor," he instructed a member of the orchestra staff, "that if I refused to become a senator of my native Italy, I must also refuse to be an honorary citizen of Texas."

He had no time for anything but music. It was his idol, and he sacrificed everything to it. He was equipped with not only a phenomenal memory, but a phenomenal ear. During one of his seasons of conducting at the Metropolitan Opera here, he heard a wrong note sounded by one of the violins, and he called the musician to account and loudly.

But the musician showed him the note in his score. Toscanini at once sent to the opera library for another part, and the violinist discovered that he had been sounding that note incorrectly for years.

Neighbor Mitchell McFarland and an unidentified truck driver pulled the two women out. They did it without falling in.

THIEF IN MINT?
DENVER (AP)—An employee of the U. S. Mint has been charged with stealing unstamped 25-cent pieces and cashing them through coin vending machines. Kenneth Leroy Neal, 20, of Limon, Colo., faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted. He was released on $500 bond.

BIRD IN HAND
SAN JOSE, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Leonard Nelson just smiled when her husband and son-in-law, Kenneth Ragsdale, returned empty-handed after a pheasant hunt.

While she and her daughter, Mardelle, were watching TV, pheasant crashed through the living room window.

Army's New Program May Hurt Draft Or Nat'l Guard

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Will the Army's new program for draft-age youths cripple the draft? The answer won't be known until after the program goes into effect April 1.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of Selective Service, has indicated he does not think the draft system will be affected. And Pentagon officials have pooh-poohed the idea it might be. There is no talk here of ending the draft.

Presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson said during the recent campaign that he hoped the draft could soon be ended. But at that time Eisenhower administration officials said the idea was impractical and unrealistic.

The Army this week laid down a program permitting youths 18½ to 26 to avoid the draft—and its two years of active service—by volunteering for six months' active duty and then going into the reserves for 5½ years.

The purpose, so Pentagon people said, is to build up this country's reserves into which the government would have to dip for men with military training in case of an emergency.

Many youths, faced with the draft and 24 months of active duty will probably ask themselves: Why should I go through that if I can serve only six months, even though it means staying and training in the reserves for 5½ years?

Briefly, this is an ABC on the program which affects three groups of young men: (1) those who are drafted; (2) those who avoid the draft by joining the National Guard and (3) those who avoid it by going into the reserves.

The present program and the one going into effect after April 1 will be placed side by side since the draft age covers those between 18 and 26.

Youths 17 to 18½:
Present program — They can avoid the draft by volunteering for six months' active duty. Then, returning to civilian life, they must go into what is called the ready reserves, which require weekly or regular training, for 7½ years.

New program—They will be able to volunteer for six months' active duty and then go into the ready reserves for 4½ years. After that they go into the standby reserves, which require no training, for three years.

Youths 17 to 18½ going into the National Guard:

Present program — they can avoid the draft by signing up with the National Guard for 10 years. They don't have to do any active duty but are required to drill regularly and put in two weeks training a year. If they do volunteer for six months active duty, they can reduce their enlistment in the Guard from 10 to 8 years. But they don't have to volunteer for those six months' active duty.

New program—They will have no choice about active training. They must put in six months' active duty but will be able to reduce their service in the Guard to 4½ years and then go into the standby reserves.

Now for those between 18½ and 26:

Present program—These youths—unlike those between 17 and 18½—can't avoid the draft by joining the reserves or the Guard. They have a choice of enlisting in any one of the services or being drafted into the Army for two years. A draftee still must go into the ready reserves for three years.

New program—Those between 18½ and 26—instead of enlisting in the regular Army or being drafted for 24 months—can if they wish volunteer for six months' active duty and then must serve 5½ years in the ready reserve.

Youths who are drafted, once they've served their 24 months' active duty, will have to serve only two years in the ready reserve instead of the present three.

All this may not be final. The National Guard Assn. is strongly opposed to the program as it affects the Guard. It will protest to Congress. And Congress almost certainly will look into it and have something to say.

Russell Looking Into Air Force Financial Needs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said today he is looking into a proposed $1,200,000,000 cut from last year in authorizations for Air Force funds.

Both he and Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said in interviews they are pleased with President Eisenhower's budget proposals to increase actual spending by all three services during the year ending June 30, 1958. But both said they will question military officials closely about budget plans.

The budget sent to Congress yesterday proposes a $82-million-dollar increase, to $17,472,000,000, in next year's Air Force spending from both old and new appropriations. Authorization for new spending, at $16,481,000,000, would be $1,209,000,000 below the amount Congress voted for the current year, when it added 900 millions to the amount Eisenhower requested.

The President's message said that "the new obligatory authority needed for the Air Force procurement program for the fiscal year 1958 is less than it otherwise would have been because of the additional appropriations for this purpose voted by the Congress last year."

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, had testified last summer the Air Force would need between 22 and 23 billion dollars of new spending authority. He said in a speech in Goldsboro, N.C., last night that the new budget will not give his service all it believes it should have. No budget ever does, he said.

But he added that it "will enable us to carry through the next fiscal year with the minimum force that I consider necessary, without undue risk."

Russell is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"I see nothing in world conditions that would justify any decreases in our armed strength," Russell said. "There can be no consistency in a decrease at a time when we are called on to challenge the military might of world communism in the Mideast."

Foreign Diplomats Think Kremlin Fears Ike's Plan

By HAROLD K. MILKS
MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign diplomats in Moscow say the Kremlin genuinely fears President Eisenhower's Middle East program and is trying desperately to find an effective counterattack.

The diplomats have talked with Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov and other Russian leaders. They say the Soviet reaction sums up to this:

1. The Russians see the Eisenhower doctrine as another step toward Western encirclement of the Soviet Union.

2. Their opposition is not just anti-West propaganda. The Kremlin knows it has to come up with something concrete, not just propaganda, to defeat the new U. S. move.

The foreign diplomats point out, however, that the satellites are draining the Russian economy so heavily the Soviet Union can't hope to match U. S. dollars.

Several diplomats in Moscow, including some friendly to the West, also say emphasis on the military side of the Eisenhower program, on the heels of the British-French invasion of Egypt, was a mistake.

"If the military aspects had been dropped or minimized, the program would have been hard to beat," one commented.

One diplomat after discussing the Eisenhower proposals with Soviet leaders said he believes the plan "still has the Soviet bosses off balance. They fear it and are seeking effective means of combatting it."

Another diplomat told a reporter: "They know public attacks on the plan are not enough and that they must themselves offer some positive program if they hope to continue holding the spotlight on the Arab nations."

The Kremlin is desperately seeking something more effective than a mere propaganda fight, the diplomats said.

They agree that, despite boasts of prosperity, the Soviet Union is in no condition to match U. S. offers of economic help in the Middle East.

"Heavy demands at home and within the family of satellites is placing a severe strain on the Soviet Union's own liquid "resources," one source observed. "Today the satellites are leaning on the Soviet Union instead of contributing to its development."

"And the cost of keeping other East European Communist nations in even a fairly healthy condition gets higher and higher each year."

Published agreements with other Communist nations in the last two months reflect the heavy drain on Soviet foreign exchange and food reserves by Poland, Rumania and East Germany, as well as smaller demands by other Communist countries.

"This economic picture shows the Soviet Union's master planners will be slow in recommending an attempt to match American dollars with Soviet rubles in the Middle East," a diplomatic source said.

Green Phantoms Score 59-44 Win Over Yellow Jacks

ROANOKE RAPIDS — The Greenville Phantoms emerged from last night's Northeastern Conference battle here with a 59-44 loop victory and the number three slot in the standings.

The victory over the winless Yellow Jacks boosted the Green league record to 3-1 and puts them behind only Kingston and Washington in the Northeastern race.

Kingston trampled Washington last night to give them a 5-0 mark and set the Pam Pack back a notch with a 4-1 card.

In a rough game—there was one brief flailing of fists at one point—the Phantoms and the Jacks battled nip-and-tuck from the beginning buzzer to the end of the game.

Neither team could manage a lead that exceeded seven points until Greenville pulled away in the last three minutes.

Peanut Nunn, Dick Evans, Charlie Smith, Joe Wingate, Steve Noble and Billy Cox were top rebounders for the Phantoms throughout the contest, while Evans, Walker Allen, Mack Roebuck and Wesley Hudson did most of the scoring.

It was definitely the team work that brought about the victory. Despite the fierce scramble in the early minutes of play, Greenville held a 9-2 lead at the end of the first period.

The Jacks, paced by the sharp shooting of a forward named Reid, zoomed back with a 23-point output in the second quarter, to overtake the visitors. Roanoke Rapids led at halftime, 25-23.

Phantoms Pull Away Greenville came back in the second half to hit well from the floor and take the lead away from the hosts.

With Evans and Roebuck pacing the way, the Phantoms grabbed a 36-33 lead.

It was the final quarter that decided the winners, however, Greenville, fired-up by Coach Bo Farley, and steady stream of substitutes, plucked the nets for 23 points, while Roanoke Rapids could muster only 10.

Wesley Hudson and Allen, two guards pumped in six points each during the period and received help from Nunn, Evans, Roebuck, Eidson, and Noble.

The final was 59-44. Jayvees Win The Phantom Jayvees posted their second win of the season in a preliminary contest, 29-24, over the Jacket Juniors.

Merrill Bynum, husky Green center, paced the Phantom scoring with eight points. He was also high man for the game.

A Reserve Against Guilford

TIM SMOTHERS—A 6-6 sophomore from Bethany, Tim Smothers is expected to see some reserve action tonight against the visiting Guilford Quakers at Memorial gymnasium.

Giese Announces He's Staying On At U. S. C.

COLUMBIA (AP) — Warren Giese has let the cat out of the bag. He finds the head football post at the University of South Carolina "wonderful" and intends to stay there.

May Reconsider Saddler Decision

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Spindly legged Sandy Saddler, no longer the boss of the featherweights in the eyes of the National Boxing Assn., may be reinstated if he proves "physically unfit" at an examination next week.

The NBA stripped Saddler of his crown yesterday for failing to sign for a title defense but said it would "reconsider" if the examination shows "he is unable to fight."

Sandy was injured in an auto accident last July and hasn't fought since. He last defended the 126-pound title Jan. 18, 1956, when he stopped Flash Elorde of the Philippines in the 13th round.

This is the third time, in and out of the ring, that Saddler has lost the championship. He first lost it to Willie Pep on a 15-round decision Feb. 11, 1949, after he had won it from the Hartford, Conn., fancy dan four months earlier.

Then, on Dec. 14, 1954, the NBA dethroned Saddler for failing to defend his crown within a six-month period. The New York State Athletic Commission declined to take similar action.

The New York commission also leans toward Saddler in the latest hassle. "We're not going to take any man's championship away if he's got a legitimate reason for not fighting," said Chairman Julius Helfand in New York.

"His condition will be determined shortly and the New York commission will act accordingly."

Bucs Figure To Add One More Victory To Record

East Carolina's Pirates will be rated to add another victory to their 3-3 North State Conference total, when they play host to an improving Guilford College crew tonight at Memorial Gymnasium.

ECC dropped the Quakers 77-60 earlier this season, but the visiting club has shown definite signs of improvement since that time. The two teams first met before Christmas, and it marked the opening of the season for the Buccaneers.

Since that time, Guilford has moved out of the North State cellar for the first time in two years. Under a new coach, Bob Shoaf, the Quakers have pulled a surprising win out of the hat against a well-thought-of Appalachian team.

They also pushed Atlantic Christian into an overtime before finally losing out by three points. The Greenville club has been a hot and cold running outfit throughout the early part of the 1956-57 season, winning three loop games and dropping three. In overall competition, they have posted a 6-3 mark.

Home Advantage There will be a definite advantage awarded to the Pirates by pre-game observers, due to the home court advantage. East Carolina has always shown their toughest side to visitors in Memorial Gym and have taken 61 wins out of 52 games played there.

Pickings have the Pirates ahead by 12 points at the end of the game. Senior forward Don Harris continues to lead the Buc scorers with an 18.0 average, despite the worst scoring total of his career last week against Elon.

He was able to post only two points against the Christians, Nick Nichols, veteran forward from Leaksville, is close behind with a 16.0 average.

Harris and Nichols will handle the starting forward duties tonight, with Guy Mendenhall and Charlie Adams at guards, and 6-11 Joe Plaster at center.

Jayvee Game In a preliminary contest, which will begin at 6:00, the undefeated ECC Jayvees will tangle with another undefeated team, the Durham high school cagers.

Coach Earl Smith's College club has posted wins over Wilmington Junior College, Edwards Military institute, Chowan College and the Greenville high school Phantoms. Durham has secured nine consecutive victories and is rated the top AAA club in the state.

Clemson's Star Plays Last Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS day night. Bill Yarborough, probably the best shooting eye, played his 85th and last college basketball game last night.

The Walhalla, S.C., senior led the Tigers to an 80-77 overtime victory over Furman of the Southern Conference.

Under Atlantic Coast Conference regulations Yarborough's eligibility expired with last night's game, his 85th for Clemson. With his 32 points last night, including all four Clemson points in the overtime period, he ran his total to 1,553.

This is Yarborough's fifth varsity squad participation — he played when freshmen were eligible. He holds virtually every scoring record at Clemson, fourth in the nation two years ago with better than a 28 point average.

He broke 11 all-time records in 1954-55. In all, he broke 19 scoring records. He bowed out with a bang before 4,500 wildly cheering fans. The game, between neighborhood rivals, was a typical nip-and-tuck battle.

The first eight minutes saw the lead change hands 13 times. It was tied three times. Clemson jumped into the lead, 20-19, with a score by center Gene Seay and the Tigers stayed in front until 6:52 had elapsed in the second half.

The regulation game ended at 76-76. Furman scored one point in the overtime and Yarborough netted four.

Elsewhere in the ACC things were quiet, with the full effect of the examination vacation being set in. There was cheering yet for North Carolina's Tar Heels and their victory over N.C. State Tues-

The Jayvees have been picked a shade better than the visiting high schoolers. Varsity game time tonight will be at 8:00.

Coach Frank McGuire philosophized on the victory before leaving for New York for a "rest and some business."

Said the happy Irishman, both a little by his winning streak of 15: "You're really building up your fans for a large letdown. Win too many and they begin to think you're not human. Suddenly, you lose a couple of games and everyone begins to wonder why. Basketball is a game of wins and losses. The bac has to come with the good."

And State's Coach Ev Case, having had the bad, looked to the good. "I never enjoy a loss," he said, "But," he hastened to add, "We did certain things that were pleasing. We played without Nick Pond and John Richter, two of our best, and we stayed in the game to the last few minutes."

"We have nothing to be ashamed of. Carolina has fine personnel. They're big and they can shoot. We have two more chances—a tournament remaining," he said. "I think we'll have ample time to repay the visit."

Auto Racing Circuit In U. S. Seen Developing

NEW YORK (AP) — America's speed craze likely will lead to the formation of a European-type auto racing circuit, with cars racing in divisions according to their engine sizes and power, emphasis on road racing instead of tracks, and factory teams competing bitterly for top honors.

This movement already is under way according to Buck Baker of Charlotte, N.C., the stock car "Grand National" champion since 1956. The dangers inherent in driving fast will lead to changes in the present racing setup.

Baker, a rugged-faced, soft-spoken Southerner, isn't dissatisfied with auto racing the way it exists. He drove in 66 major races last year, won 14 and earned "more money than most baseball players" in piling up his national championship points.

Buck — his square name is Elzie Wylie Baker — says stock car racing has developed into a "tremendous" sports since the automobile manufacturers jumped into it a couple of years ago. He can remember when drivers used to pound around rough dirt tracks in cars they had "modified" themselves in hopes of winning a $100 purse, of which $99 went for expenses.

Now the big races draw from 20,000 to 50,000 spectators, purses have risen accordingly and competition is so keen that cars have to be "set up" perfectly for each race and its particular track conditions because the difference between winning and losing is measured in hundredths of seconds.

A half dozen manufacturers, recognizing the growth of the Winterville Cage Teams Take 3 From Stokes

Winterville copped two games from Stokes — Pactolus Tuesday night at Winterville, and added a Jayvee win to the pile.

In the girls game, Winterville compiled a 56-37 victory, handing the Stokes crew its first defeat of the season. Barbara Evans collected 22 to pace both teams and grab the Winterville spotlight.

Teammates Dorothy Evans and Janice Worthington added 18 and 16 respectively. Angie and Toler were high for the losers with 12 each.

The Winterville boys posted a close 43-41 win over the Stokes boys, with Gorman, Stox and Little leading the scoring for the winners. Gorman had 11 and the other two collected 10 each. Hardison, with eight, was high for the losers.

The Winterville Jayvees trampled the visiting Stokes Juniors 77-39. Worthington, of the winners, collected 25 points. McKeel had 22 for the Stokes team.

sport and the advertising value of winning, began to develop racing teams within the past few years. One now has seven drivers — not the best ones, Buck says — and 30 mechanics. Such factory teams are old stuff in Europe but they're comparatively new in America.

Baker likes road racing in that "a 100 mile race tests a car more than 50,000 miles on the proving ground," he says. "At Elkhart Lake I'd get up to 120 on the straightaways and then brake down to 40 for a turn. On some cars the brakes were gone after 10 miles."

The stock cars now race in 3 divisions — Grand National, for standard hardtop sedans; Conversions, and "Short Track" sedan events. Buck expects they'll follow the lead of European and American sports car racers and develop more classes based on power. It only "makes sense" to him that a popular priced car shouldn't race against cars with double their horsepower and double the price.

Wilt And Chet In Scoring Duel NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas' 7-foot Wilt Chamberlain and Columbia's 5-9 Chet Forte, the "Mutt and Jeff" of college basketball, are hooked up in a duel for the scoring lead.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics released today and including games on Jan. 15 show the Jayhawk giant still in front, as he has been all season, but Forte is nipping at his heels.

Chamberlain's scoring rate dropped to a new low of 30.6 points a game while Columbia's little-set-shot artist boosted his average to 29.3.

Grady Wallace of South Carolina slipped from second to third during the week with an average of 28.7.

Calls For Czar Of Calif. Boxing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A Southern California legislator, banging away at reported evils in California boxing, called today for "an all powerful czar" to oversee state control of the sport.

Assemblyman Frank G. Bonelli (D-Huntington Park) said he wants a director "separate and distinct" from the State Athletic Commission.

Bonelli is chairman of an Assembly subcommittee which probed boxing and wrestling last year. He introduced a series of bills which he described as "drastic boxing and wrestling legislation."

The other Bonelli measures would: Slap a 5 per cent tax on fight promoters' television receipts. Remove wrestling from commission control. Bonelli said wrestling was a "sham" and a "zfarce" and both the commission and the legislature "share a stigma for condoning it."

Authorize fines of up to $1,000 for ring figures breaking the rules. The commission may only suspend or revoke licenses.

Bonelli's czar idea already has met opposition from Gov. Goodwin Knight, who expressed disapproval when such a plan was advocated last year in a critical report on the sport in this state.

A special investigating committee said it found 72 violations in a year long study ordered by Knight. These included fight fixing, cheating of boxers, underworld infiltration and illegal manager-promoter combinations.

CHAPTER 29

General Sherman was always the same to Elizabeth. Grizzled, his red uncombed hair streaked with gray, he looked perpetual, rump-pled. His uniform coat hung open, and one of the brass buttons was suspended by a single thread. How odd, Elizabeth thought, that the army's two top officers, Sherman and Grant, both looked so unmilitary.

"Sit down, Elizabeth," General Sherman said. "I'm awfully glad to see you gain. Here, let me help you with your coat."

"I really shouldn't take up your time, General. I— well, my problems must be small compared to yours."

He shook his head at her. "You know better than to talk that way. Any time Ed Tipton's daughter wants to see me, she's welcome, day or night, at my office or at home."

"Just the same," she murmured, "I know how much you have to do."

"You're concerned about young Endicott, of course," he said in his direct way.

"Well, not entirely, but I'm quite familiar with the personal problems of a good many of my officers and their loved ones. After all, the army is just a big family. Or it used to be. Right now, Congress seems bent on making it just a police force, or smaller."

Elizabeth stared down at her folded hands. "I've been really crazy ever since the papers began carrying stories about Fort Butterfield being wiped out. Everybody seems to believe them except me."

"Not everybody," he said. "It may be only rumor. Right now, we can't verify the stories. We can't deny them, either."

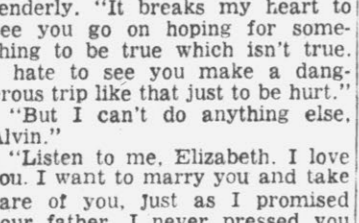

"That's what I want to think," she said eagerly. "That the stories are just rumor. But who started them? And why?"

Ayden Footballer Is Presented A Trophy

By JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON
Ayden School Reporter

Burt Tripp, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Tripp, was presented a trophy by the Rev. Floyd Cherry, Editor of the Ayden Dispatch, at Gridiron Night, Wednesday, January 9, at the Myers Theater in Ayden.

Burt was voted the "Most Valuable Player" on the Tornado football squad during the 1956 season by his teammates. The winner was chosen by secret ballot, and only Coach Stuart Tripp and Rev. Cherry knew the winner before the coveted trophy was presented.

Burt has been an outstanding athlete during his entire high school career. He has been a valuable member of the Ayden Tornado football and basketball teams for four years, acting as co-captain of the basketball team for the past two years.

Last year he was named the "Most Valuable Basketball Player." He made the All-Conference football team during his Junior and Senior years. He was placed on the All-County basketball team last year.

Burt's interest in sports has not kept him from taking an active part in most other school activities. President of his freshman class, class representative his sophomore year, secretary of the Athletic Association his junior year, and vice-president of the present senior class, as well as being a member of the Future Farmers of America and the Hi-Y, have been interesting responsibilities, he says.

Burt says the two people who have been the greatest influence in making him a good athlete are Coach Stuart Tripp and Coach Craft. "I owe my ability to play ball to these two men," he says.

As to future plans, Burt is trying to decide now where to go to college, and he plans to be a coach.

The students at Ayden High are proud of Burt. They congratulate him upon receiving the "Most Valuable Football Player" award and wish for him continued success. "Bevo" will certainly be missed at AHS next year.

The Senior Class of AHS held its regular monthly meeting last Friday during activity period with Ann Long, president, presiding. The Washington-New York trip was discussed. Jessie McLawhorn, Betty Craft, Lindy Dunn and R. L. Dorman were appointed to make

Young Seal Gets In Officers Club

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—A friendly young seal that seemingly prefers human society has finally been admitted to a naval officers' club. He showed up last Friday while officers' wives were having a luncheon, barking for attention. Naval officers carried him back to sea, but he wouldn't stay put. He turned up at three subsequent parties and now he's being fed by Navy men while they decide what to do with him. Meanwhile he trips levers on club plumbing. Obviously he enjoys hearing the water gurgle.

Student Aid For Trapped Janitor

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP)—Robin Remington, a Southwest Texas State College student, thought she heard a mournful call for help as she walked by the Fine Arts building on the way to an early class. She spied a man peering out the second floor window.

He bashfully explained that he was a new janitor, on his first day of work, and had gotten locked in the night before.

Communists In Italy Show Drop

ROME (AP)—Italy's Communist party admits its 1957 membership is more than a third less than the number it claimed a year ago.

The party's membership chairman Giorgio Amendola told the Central Committee he had sent out only 1,490,000 new membership cards. Last year the party claimed 2,300,000 members.

The final count may be considerably less, since all the cards likely will not be picked up.

Amendola blamed the membership drop on the widespread publicity given the Kremlin's de-Stalinization program, "the grave happenings in Poland and the tragedy of Hungary."

Eye Transplant Was Last Wish

BOSTON (AP)—Eye specialists have helped the late Merrill D. Aldrich of Falmouth, one-time mayor of Taunton, fulfill his last wish.

Before he died Monday, Aldrich willed his eyes to the Boston eye bank for possible use to aid blind persons.

Doctors used one of his eyes for a corneal transplant on Mrs. Mary Smarth, 42, at Bangor, Maine, blind for the past 10 years.

The other eye was used on Mrs. Clara Best, 21-year-old mother of three from St. John's, N.B., who had waited four months for such an operation.

Results are being awaited.

Sales Tax Plan Experiment Fails

EMERYVILLE, Calif. (AP)—This town's six-month old experiment in substituting a 1 per cent sales tax for a property tax has failed. The city council last night announced it has reached a financial crisis and planned to return to the property tax next year. It chided the Alameda County Taxpayers Assn. for predicting the sales tax would produce $2,750,100 in the final quarter of 1956. City Auditor George A. Blacout said only $78,070 was realized.

ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

Rope ladder "obstacle" is a popular challenge to the little musclemen at the Romford adventure playground.

"Adventure playgrounds" are bringing new and exciting experiences to many English children.

Accustomed to playing in proper places and in proper ways, the youngsters have taken quickly to the innovation.

The playgrounds were originated soon after the war by Lady Allen of Hurtwood, a woman of imagination, who decided that playgrounds in general are singularly unimaginative.

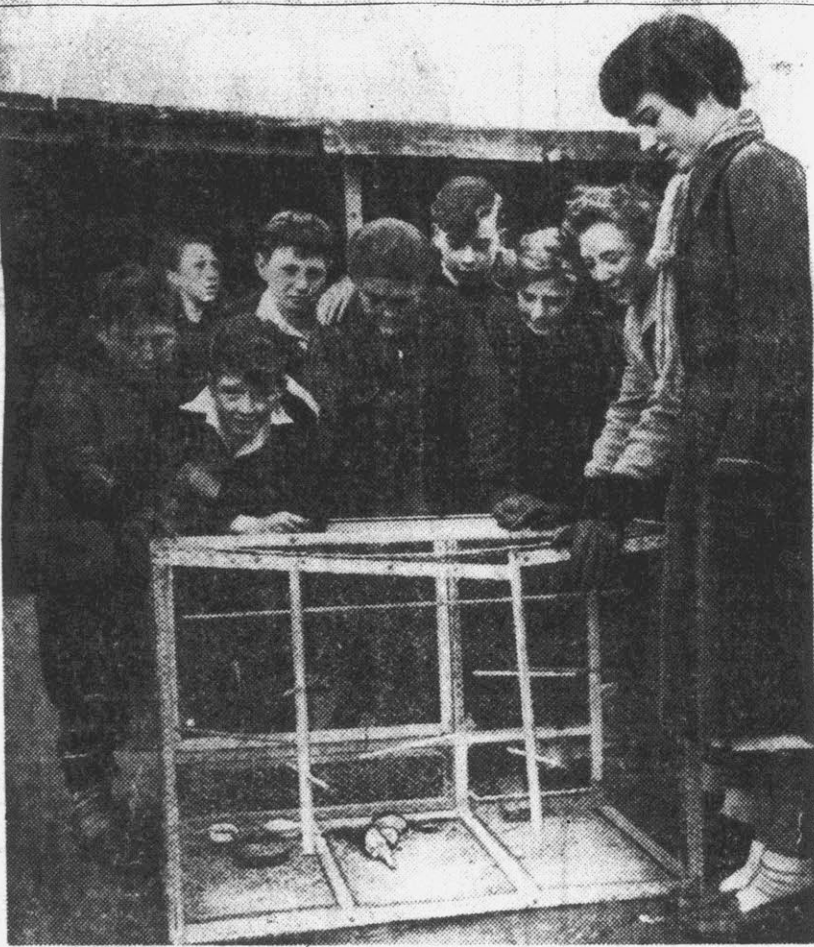

She thought that youngsters ought to be able to make their own fun, instead of being confined by set rules and boundary lines. And she set out to prove it at a bombed out site in London.

On it, boys and girls were permitted to build things with wood and bricks and nails — and tear down the structures they have built. They could bring pets and erect little shelters for them. They could climb through old sewer pipes, play around broken-down tractors and steamrollers, or trundle old wheelbarrows around.

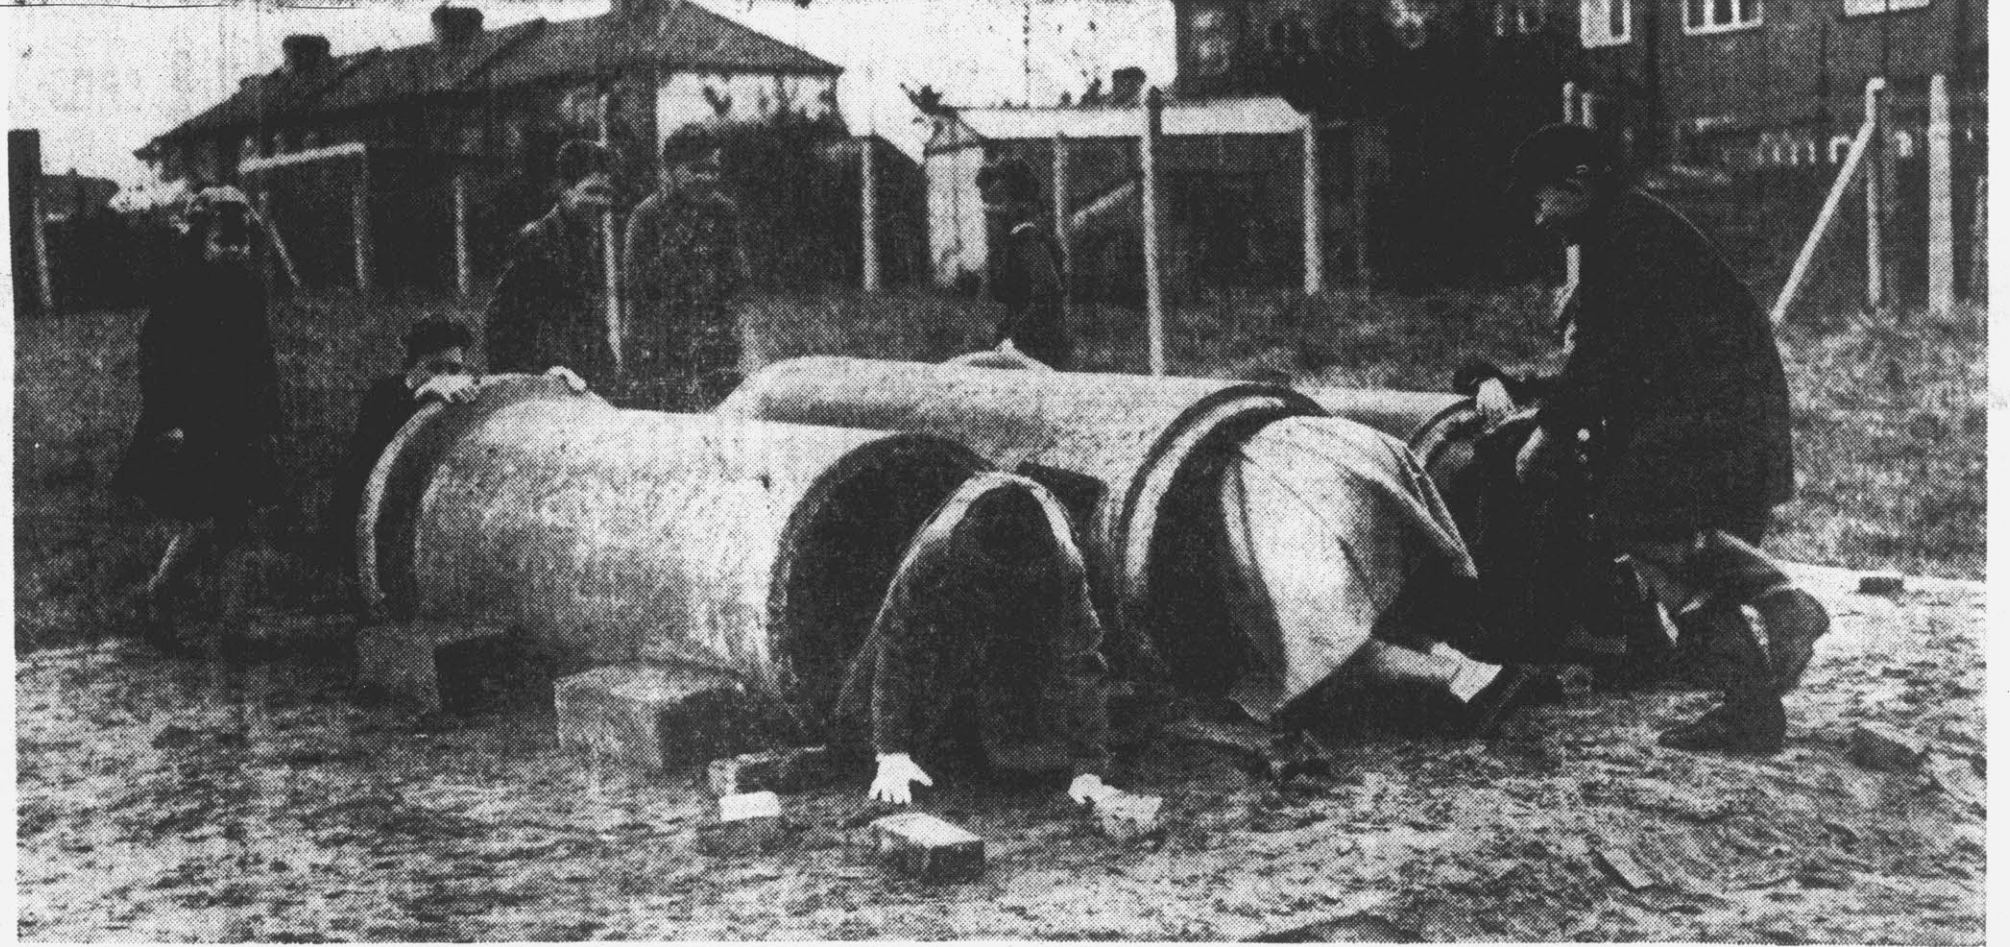

Now the movement has spread. There are adventure playgrounds on the continent as well as in the British Isles. Here is one at Romford, 10 miles from London, which was a weedy dump a few months ago.

In the playground, boys can light a fire, and with real matches too. So far, there have been no burned fingers.

Some of the children keep canaries in a cage consisting of wire mesh on a wooden frame. They built it themselves.

One of the greatest urges in youth is to climb into sewer pipes. They've got 'em at the Romford playground.

An old steamroller is one of the most popular attractions. "If it wasn't cemented to the ground," says the supervisor, Mrs. Amy Crockford, "they would take it apart."

While a youngster builds with old bricks, others, in back, burn up the "cinder track" on their bikes.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined early this afternoon, failing to hold an early gain.

Pivotal issues fell fractions to 1 or 2 points. Selected issues here and there posted gains in about the same range.

The market was higher in active trading at the opening. It soon turned mixed, however, and as the session went on prices worsened on increased turnover.

Steels and aircrafts, which made some fair gains in opening transactions, were actively traded as they took losses later on. Overall trading was moderate.

Bethlehem Steel reversed its initial gain of about a point, showing a loss of more than that. Youngstown's loss also exceeded a point. U. S. Steel and Republic Steel dropped fractions.

Glenn L. Martin fell around a point after its rise of 2 1/2 yesterday. Douglas Aircraft wiped out an early gain and dropped a major fraction. United Aircraft also lost ground.

General Motors and Chrysler backed away.

Losses of around a point or more were taken by American Telephone, International Nickel, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide.

Gulf Oil was off around 2.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks at noon was down 60 cents to $178.00 with the industrials down $1.20, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities unchanged.

SALESBURY, N. C. (AP)—Rep. J. K. Doughton of Allegheny apparently had a clear field today to become speaker of the State House of Representatives when the legislature convenes early next month.

Doughton, nephew of the late U. S. Rep. Albert A. (Farmer Bob) Doughton, was one of two candidates for the speakership. Yesterday, Rep. George R. Uzzell, Rowan County's 11-term member of the House, withdrew from the race.

Uzzell, who had been a candidate for the post at least twice in previous sessions, gave no reasons for his withdrawal. He told newsmen he would support the members to select a man for the post as soon as possible so as to expedite legislative business.

If no battle develops, and there seems unlikely that one will, the House will be able to organize quickly after the session gets underway Feb. 6.

The speaker is elected by vote of the members. In addition to presiding at House sessions, he must also make all committee assignments.

Uzzell was first elected as Rowan County's representative in 1931 and has served in ten sessions. Doughton first was elected to the House in 1949 and was Appropriations committee chairman in 1951.

Reds Purge List Of Candidates

WARSAW (AP)—The Polish Communist party today purged ex-Premier Edward Osobka Morawski from its list of candidates for next Sunday's parliamentary election.

The party also removed another member, Jerzy Krezel, from the electoral list at Krakow.

They were the first casualties announced in the new Polish government's desperate campaign to make a substantial showing in the vote.

The government, after Wladyslaw Gomulka became head of the Communist United Workers party, announced a limited expansion of the list of candidates. Instead of a single set of candidates that could either be accepted or rejected, the voters would be allowed to choose from a larger list of "National Front" candidates made up of Communists and representatives of other Communist-approved parties.

As a result, 723 candidates were put forward for the 459 seats in the Polish Parliament. The Communists hope to get at least half of the places.

Recently, however, signs that the voters might mark of Communist candidates in large numbers have resulted in an intensive Red campaign to get voters to leave their ballots unmarked. Under the election rules, this would constitute a vote for the Communist candidates, who head the lists in all districts.

can't pick him out by his hat. The best bet is that it will look like the one worn by his biggest client.

The only other conclusion reached was that a hat in Philadelphia will sit straighter on the head than a hat in Dallas. A hat that slants sidewise or slopes back on the head is no longer a tipoff of its owner's occupation.

It merely indicates he's from the wide open spaces—and particularly if he lifts it when a lady passes.
