President Pledges Peace With Justice As His Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower pledged today his second term will be dedicated to "the building of a peace with justice" to thwart "international communism and the power it controls."

"The designs of that power, dark in purpose, are clear in practice. It strives to seal forever the fate of those it has enslaved. It strives to break the ties that unite the free. And it strives to capture—to exploit for its own great power—all forces of change in the world, especially the needs of the hungry and the hopes of the oppressed."

"The building of such a peace is a bold and solemn purpose. To proclaim it is easy. To serve it will be hard. And to attain it, we must be aware of its full meaning — and ready to pay its full price."

"We live in a land of plenty," the President said, but rarely has the earth known such peril as of today. "In our nation, work and wealth abound. Our population grows. Commerce crowds our rivers and rails, our skies, harbors and highways. Our soil is fertile, our agriculture productive. The airings with the song of our industry — rolling mills and blast furnaces, dynamo, dams and assembly lines — the chorus of America the Bountiful."

of all mankind has entered upon an historic struggle for a new freedom; freedom from grinding poverty. He said no nation, however old or great "escapes this tempest of change and turmoil." Then he said: "Some, impoverished by the recent world war, seek to restore their means of livelihood. In the heart of Europe, Germany still stands tragically divided. So is the whole continent divided. And so, too, is all the world."

"We must use our skills and knowledge and, at times, our substance, to help others rise from misery, however far the scene of suffering may be from our shores. For wherever in the world a people knows desperate want there must appear at least the spark of hope, the hope of progress — or there will surely rise at last the flames of conflict."

"We are called to act a responsible role in the world's great concerns or conflicts — whether they touch upon the affairs of a vast region, the fate of an island in the Pacific, or the use of a canal in the Middle East."

Eisenhower said that for all who dwell in freedom unity is their only sure defense. He added: "The economic need of all nations — in mutual dependence — makes isolation an impossibility; not even America's prosperity could long survive if other nations did not prosper. No nation can long be a fortress, lone and strong and safe. And any people, seeking such shelter for themselves, can now build only their prison."

Endorsed By Voters Of Poland

WARSAW (AP) — More than 60 per cent of Poland's 17,449,000 voters appear to have endorsed Wladyslaw Gomulka's Communist leadership in the first popular test of his "communism without tyranny" policy.

Unofficial but reliable reports said more than 11 million of those voting yesterday for a new 459-member Parliament apparently cast the official ballot without change. Gomulka's regime had warned sternly against exercising the modest right to cross names off the Red-dominated single list of candidates.

Those who refused to go along with Gomulka boldly struck off the names of candidates they did not like, uncoerced by any direct official measures, their protest vote did not alter the fact that Gomulka's United Workers (Communist) party will have a substantial majority in the new Parliament.

Ballots which were unmarked automatically were credited to the Communist candidates, who headed the lists. Winners in the other parties admitted to the National Front ticket—the Democrats and the United Peasants—are committed to the Red line.

Eisenhower Embarks On Second Term, Cheered On By Thousands

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower embarked on his second term today cheered by thousands of well-wishers.

For visiting governors, other dignitaries and just plain people, the high spot of the gala occasion was the oath-taking rite at noon.

Eisenhower's first term ended at noon yesterday. And, in a three-minute White House ceremony attended only by family members, he and Vice President Richard Nixon took new oaths of office and began their second terms. Since it was Sunday, the public ceremony was deferred until today.

Asked how the President was feeling, Hagerty said he was in a jovial, happy mood. The White House lobby was bustling with visitors.

Outside, workmen still were busy putting final touches to the big reviewing stand. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower invited 202 guests to watch the inaugural parade with them from that stand.

Long before the President's arrival, every vantage point about the Capitol was filled. The waiting crowd was treated to a capricious weather that changed almost by the minute.

First, it was overcast. Then the clouds parted and pale winter sunshine broke through. In the midst of the sun, a spatter of rain fell. Then the rain stopped, but a chill wind whipped across. People huddled together in blankets and, warming their hands, blew clouds.

round of celebrations that have been building up for days. They included the traditional parade, starting at 1:30 p.m., and continuing for at least 2½ hours, probably longer. The President asked that it be kept shorter this year than the 4½-hour march in 1953.

The line of march provided places for 40 governors, 33 floats, 65 bands, a dozen drum and bugle corps, an elephant, and a 408-foot float along the Pennsylvania Avenue route from the Capitol to the White House.

Eisenhower, in the parade's first section, had an elaborate reviewing stand from which to watch and receive the salutes of the marchers.

By JACK BELL. WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators Sparkman (D-Ala.) and Douglas (D-Ill.) today voiced support of Vice President Nixon's contention that the Middle East needs economic aid as much as American military guarantees against Communist aggression.

The two Democratic senators said in separate interviews they believe a long-range program of economic help may prove more effective in blocking Communist penetration of the area than the standby authority asked by President Eisenhower to use troops if necessary to counter any open Communist aggression there.

Nixon made it clear in a week-end statement that the Eisenhower administration will resist demands by some Democrats in Congress to separate the military and economic aspects of its Middle East program.

The vice president, who obviously voiced the views of Eisenhower and his advisers, said, "The economic phase of this program is equally as important as the military authority." He said the economic aid program will "reduce the chance of successful subversion which is greater, perhaps, than external aggression."

Nixon's statement was issued Saturday after a joint Russian-Red Chinese declaration Friday offering "any necessary support" to Middle East nations against what it called "aggression and interference" in their affairs.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) said yesterday in a televised interview that Eisenhower's Middle East program would "gain and beset the respect of countries like the Soviet Union."

D. H. Conley of Greenville, Superintendent of county schools, was elected vice-chairman during the re-organizational meeting. Other members of the board are Dr. F. E. Lanche and Mayor W. L. Wheeler of Greenville. Vance Bunting of Bethel, Snodde Edwards of Ayden, Dr. Charles Fitzgerald of Farmville and Dr. Walter C. Humbert of Greenville, secretary to the board and director of the Pitt County Health Department.

The board, in other business, reviewed and accepted Dr. Humbert's annual report; approved permanent appointments for Dr. Joseph D. Franzoni and Dr. Luciano L'Abate of the Mental Health Service; approved promotion of Linwood Kilpatrick to Senior Sanitarian; and instructed Dr. Humbert to write a letter of appreciation to the retiring chairman.

HIDING EVIDENCE. SANFORD (AP)—Juries in Lee County Superior Court are expected to reach their verdicts on the merits of the case, even when there are pretty lady witnesses. A new addition to the courtroom is a box around the witness stand which completely hides the occupant's legs.

Delaware, by reason of being the first state in the Union, led the state displays. Others followed in order of their entry into it.

Tonight, starting at 9 o'clock, celebrants dined in diamonds and sables, white tie and tails, will gather in four huge ballrooms. The President and his lady, with their son and daughter-in-law, major John and Barbara Eisenhower, planned to appear at all of them.

This climaxes scores of earlier festivities, vaudeville entertainment, the traditional inaugural symphony concert, and a jam-packed governors' reception for which lines stretched half a block outside the Statler Hotel.

Sparkman, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he agrees that economic and military assistance should be linked together.

"A strong, long-range economic program in that area is just as important as a military program," he said. "However, Secretary of State Dulles has not given the committees of Congress the information they need to act on such a program."

Florida Executes North Carolinian. RAIFORD, Fla. (AP)—Joseph Ezzell 44, chunky unemployed North Carolinian, was electrocuted at State Prison today for the slaying of a Jacksonville housewife.

The switch was thrown at 8:36 a.m. and Dr. Charles G. Bush, chief medical officer, pronounced him dead at 8:42.

Supt. DeWitt Sinclair said Ezzell made no statement and that he was as calm today as he was last night. "He had made up his mind and said he was ready to go," Sinclair said.

The only thing the prisoner said as he was being strapped in was "Hello, Doc," and — turning to a minister — "I'll see you in the morning."

Then he kind of winked," Sinclair said. The superintendent said Ezzell's wife and other members of his family had visited him last week but were not here today. He said he assumed they could claim the body.

Searchers Found Unused Bootleg Still On Premises. After apparently setting up his family, household furniture and liquor making equipment to his new home in the Hickory Grove Church section earlier in the year, Sonny Council, Negro, found last Saturday afternoon that at least part of his effort had been in vain. The county sheriff's deputies and ABC officers went to his new home searching for stolen property which they didn't find, but they did find a completely assembled liquor still with cap and coil on his premises.

Council was not home at the time of the "discovery" but a warrant was issued for his arrest on charges of possession of distilling equipment. No illicit liquor had been run off on the still. ABC officers arrested Susie Johnson, 46-year-old Negro woman of Fountain Rt. 1, last Saturday for possession of illicit liquor. Under a $60 cash bond, she will be tried before Judge Dink James in Recorder's Court on Feb. 5.

are now over the age of 35. The committee will remain secret until the night of the banquet when they will be announced. Saeled said the decision of the judges will be based on three major points: 1. contribution to community welfare during the year; 2. evidence of leadership ability; 3. evidence of personal or business progress. Nominations must be in by next Thursday and they may be mailed to post office Box 482, Saeled said. Winner of the award will receive a special plaque, a certificate and a key to be presented at the banquet. Jaycees will be allowed to bring as guests that night one or more bosses for the banquet. Dr. Humbert is nationally known speaker. In recent years he has been active in establishing the North Carolina Art Museum in Raleigh and he has been instrumental in building up the collection of paintings now on exhibit at the museum.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored roadblocks netted $613 for the March of Dimes yesterday. The roadblocks were set up on highways entering the city and motorists were asked to contribute. Above Meri Bass (left) and Jack Turnage count the money collected prior to turning it over to J. D. Smith, (standing) secretary of the local Moose Lodge.

Larkins-Peacock Vows Said In Wilmington

WILMINGTON—Miss Beverly Elaine Peacock became the bride of Thomas Dorsett Larkins in a 7 o'clock ceremony Saturday night in Wilmington's First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. B. Frank Hall was the officiating minister.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jesse Peacock of this city. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eli Dorsett Larkins of Greenville.

The alencon lace empire waist featured long sleeves embroidered in seed pearls at points over her hands and a sabrina neckline also embroidered in seed pearls.

Her two-tiered fingertip veil of imported illusion was attached to a matching lace hat edged in pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Joan Peacock was her sister's maid of honor. Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. J. H. Ward Jr. of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore full-length gowns of sea foam green satin styled along princess lines featuring darker green bodices with panels extending down the skirt backs.

Their bandeaux were of matching material with tiny catch veils. They carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations and camellia foliage tied with matching satin.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jacqueline Hurst of Jacksonville, Fla., cousin of the bride, and Miss Elizabeth Larkins of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom.

They were attired like the honor attendants and carried similar bouquets.

Little Deborah Lee Wood of Jacksonville, Fla., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her full-length dress was of pale pink and she wore a tiny flowered headband and scattered rose petals from a satin and net covered basket.

Eli Dorsett Larkins of Greenville served his son as best man.

Ushers were J. C. Lanier Jr. and J. H. Ward Jr. of Greenville; C. H. Larkins Jr. of Kinston; Jim LeFaire of Baltimore, Md.; and M. M. Godwin of Jacksonville. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Peacock chose a waltz-length gown of beige peau de soie. Fashioned on empire lines, it was embroidered with jewel trim over the set in panels of lace. She wore matching accessories.

Mrs. Larkins wore an original mauve sheath with matching flowered hat and accessories of black velvet.

Mrs. Peacock's flowers were green cymbidium orchids while Mrs. Larkins wore parma violets.

The bride attended Marjorie Webster Junior College in Washington, D. C. and the University of Florida in Gainesville. She was 1956 vice president of Wilmington's Spinners Club.

Mr. Larkins attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he was a member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity. He completed his education at Columbia University and now is associated with Larkins' Clothing Stores, Inc. in Jacksonville, N. C. where the couple will make their home.

For a wedding trip to New York City, Mrs. Larkins traveled in a grey wool suit with squirrel collar and matching hat. A fur stole and the white orchid lifted from her wedding bouquet completed her attire.

Reception at Cape Fear Club. The Cape Fear Country Club was the scene of the reception immediately following the ceremony. Receiving at the club entrance were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sisson. Miss Marguerite James introduced to the receiving line. The club was decorated throughout with smilax and arrangements of white mixed flowers.

The bride's table, covered with an imported cloth of Chinese cutwork and Venetian lace, was centered with an antique silver epergne filled with white snapdragons, carnations and toppers. Silver caskets at each end held petitfleurs.

A white satin cloth overlaid with net and caught up with white satin bows and flowers was used on the cake table.

In the dining room, the refreshment table was centered with a tall five-branched candelabra holding white tapers. On either side were clusters of white wedding bells on wide green satin runners the length of the table. Silver punch bowls were on each end of the table. Smilax was used to decorate the white cloth and outline the green satin ribbon.

Pouring were Mrs. Leonard Henry, Miss Ann Benton, Mrs. Carl McLemore and Mrs. Charles Kankin.

Close Study Awaits Tax Changes

It is evident now that proposed tax changes to be considered by the 1957 General Assembly will meet more opposition and be subjected to more criticism than it earlier appeared.

It is evident also that some groups who are disposed to fight the proposed changes will attempt to show that corporations and out-of-state businesses which have operations in North Carolina will be given tax advantages at the expense of the "little man" here in the state.

While The Reflector does not adhere to these views on proposed changes, we are sincere in our feeling that the legislature should give most searching consideration to the proposals. Frankly, we favor the major revisions of North Carolina tax structure which has been proposed by Gov. Hodges. In the long run, we are confident they will lead to the establishment of a sounder, higher level of economy for all the people of the state through encouraging rather than discouraging industrialization.

We are quite frank in saying we do not believe the revised structure will offer any advantages to large businesses at the expense of the "little people" or individual taxpayers of North Carolina. First and foremost, the revisions will put North Carolina's corporate tax structure more in line with that of other states and relieve the Tar Heel state of the stigma of being one of the three or four states in the union with the highest corporation taxes.

It is true that the revisions will mean a temporary drop in revenue of several million dollars annually at the outset. With the need for state services expanding yearly and the need for greater state expenditures in many fields becoming apparent, this poses grave fiscal problems.

It is not entirely unlikely that in this era of unprecedented industrial expansion and de-centralization that North Carolina is reaching the point of diminishing returns with its antiquated tax structure. By modernizing the state's tax structure in keeping with modern requirements, North Carolina stands to gain a great deal more in revenues than it will lose initially. It stands to gain, not by shifting a larger burden upon the already burdened little taxpayer, but by distributing the necessary total tax load over an expanding number of businesses and industries and more gainfully employed people in this state.

Toscanini's Keys Fit Any Door To Success

The fabulous life of Arturo Toscanini offers a wealth of exemplary standards for anyone, young or old, who has the stamina to follow them. Not merely because they might lead to becoming a great light in the world of music, but because his standards were keyed to fit any door to success.

When opportunity first beckoned in Brazil, the young Toscanini was prepared for the podium. Lesson number one: be prepared to fulfill a greater role.

Two generations of musicians knew him as a precisionist. Nothing but the best, from them or from himself, would suffice.

Lesson number two: give only the best. The maestro was handicapped all his life with poor eyesight, but he early developed a phenomenal memory which more than compensated for this difficulty.

Lesson number three: no handicap can keep a good man down.

The Toscanini guideposts to success are many, and they all point to the summit in any endeavor. But the Little Giant from Italy had to bow in the end to his greatest foe . . . age.

Two generations of musicians knew him, but the Maestro's genius will be long enjoyed by future generations, thanks to an industrial science of our times . . . recordings. His music is a part of an heritage bequeathed to all the world.

Thank you, sir.

Best Places In Which To Live

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — I am much interested in a Gallup Poll on six questions of where to live. I will not discuss the answers to three of these, namely — which is the "Most Beautiful State" — or "Which is the Healthiest" — or "Which is the best for a Winter or Summer Vacation." The answers to all these questions are most interesting. I, however, am not qualified to pass thereon.

The Ten Most Popular Of the six questions, Mr. Gallup gives the ten first choices. Based upon the Law of Averages (in which I have great faith), the following nine states appear in the answers to most of the six questions. These are California, Florida, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Texas, New York, Michigan, and New Mexico or Arizona.

Based upon my extensive travels and the opinions of thousands of friends, I honestly believe that every one of our forty-eight states possesses to some extent all the six advantages mentioned in this poll. This means to me that every reader should continue to live in the state where he is now located.

Let Us Look At The Record Statistics show that death rates and health conditions depend 90 per cent on the heritage and habits of its individuals and NOT upon where we live. The joy which we get from a vacation depends far more upon the people we meet than the scenery which we really want can be purchased with a railroad ticket!

I, however, should be an authority on the best places to get a job. If you mean NOW, the answer is "probably Southern California or wherever airplane plants are located." But, when the fear of World War III is over, these same sections will suffer much unemployment. In fact, directly after a previous World War, 80 per cent of the bus and taxi drivers of Los Angeles were said to be college graduates.

Wages And Investments Wages are higher when work is plentiful in some cities, but such work is likely to fluctuate more. Statistics indicate that the total yearly "take home" wages, adjusted according to living costs, are about the same in all 48 states. Again I say that in the long run a family does not better its total income by moving. One can get more comforts in Miami, Florida, than in Bismarck, North Dakota; but I am sure the latter is a better place to bring up a family of children. Of course the future value of land varies with different states. Probably the best purchases for speculation are in the West Coast States and the Southern States. In making purchases of homes, however, put more money into the land rather than into the house. Well-located land in any part of this wonderful country should continue to become more valuable from year to year; but any house is becoming less valuable each year unless money is constantly spent to keep it up to date.

Three Recommendations To those who are determined to move, I suggest you consider for investment or employment a capital city of one of the 48 states. None of these 48 cities have ever defaulted on their municipal bonds. Owing to the large number employed by the various state departments, there is very little unemployment even during a depression. Due to pension systems — which most states have adopted — almost every family feels secure about its old age or the possibility of sickness. Most important of all is the fact that taxes can be collected from the entire state to support the capital city, whatever general business conditions may be elsewhere.

Cities having State Universities are also to be chosen. These likewise are supported by taxes from all the state. They are rapidly growing. Your children get a college education at a low cost — as well as a good "boy or girl friend." I also like cities which have nonfluctuating but constantly growing industries. The insurance business is a good illustration. Business is always good in such cities as Hartford, Conn. Every state has one or more of such cities. However, your future depends upon you, rather than upon where you are located. Hence, my advice is to avoid being a "rolling stone"; but make good where you now are.

No Time Lost In Organizing

By LYNN NISBET
LEGISLATURE — Withdrawal of Rep. George Uzell of Rowan from the speakership race virtually assures that Rep. Kemp Doughton of Allegheny will be unopposed. That further means the House should complete its organization without friction or waste of time.

With no serious contest to arouse animosities, and with so large a part of the administration program already announced, the assemblies should be able to get down to real work within a few days. There appears no reason for delaying committee assignments for weeks, as was done by Speaker Larry Moore two years ago.

Despite a propitious start on a prepared program, there is no assurance of a short harmonious session. The nature of the problems preclude speedy solution, if any real effort is made toward thorough consideration. As always before, the budget recommendations for appropriations are well kept secrets until presented to legislators. On the point of taxes to provide money to meet appropriations, it is virtually certain the budget revenue bills will follow very closely recommendations of the tax study commission.

Advance publicity has been given to a dozen or more bills effectuating suggestions by the government reorganization commission. Because the contents of these bills is known in advance, the presiding officers can make up committees and assign the bills when introduced so as to assure favorable treatment. The other side of that picture is that opposition to the proposals has also had time to crystallize.

TAXES — The situation with respect to tax legislation is unusual if not unique. Although confronted with need for more money than ever before, the main administrative proposal is for substantial reduction in taxes. In striking contrast to 1955 when the budget bill called for some $26 million a year in new taxes, the 1957 version will propose a net decrease of some eight millions. This comes about through revision of the corporate income tax schedules, particularly the distribution of liability to interstate business.

Rewriting of these provisions is deemed necessary to remove injustices, maintain the State's self respect for fairness, and to encourage industrial development. Before acting on the proposals, however, legislators want to know how much of the burden will be transferred to small individual taxpayers, and how much of the "relief" will be channeled into the Federal treasury rather than to the State.

Spokesmen for county and municipal governments have endorsed proposals to give local units much wider range in levying taxes, particularly in the privilege license field. Questions have been raised by some legislators and municipal taxpayers as to whether this proposal is preliminary to putting back on local governments a larger share of the cost of education, health and welfare services. The trend has been for the Federal government to pass this buck back to the State. Next logical step will be for the State to pass it back to the counties and towns.

That substantial revision in the tax laws will be made seems certain. It is equally certain the changes will not be made without prolonged debate and full exploration of contingencies. REORGANIZATION — Remodeling the administrative machinery of State government will not directly affect the average citizen, except perhaps in the highway set up. Interest in the commission's recommendations is limited mostly to officials and employees in the departments and institutions affected. They are keenly interested and have already let their representatives in the General Assembly know how they feel about some of the ideas.

There is general and active interest in proposals for reorganizing the highway commission, including separation of prisons from highway control. Such survey of sentiment as your reporter has been able to make indicates preponderant opinion in favor of prison separation. The principle is almost unanimously accepted. Objections stem from necessity of transferring some two to four million dollars of the support burden to the general fund, and from business which face competition by the prison industries designed to make the system more nearly self supporting.

Similar survey of sentiment discloses considerable popular opposition to a small centralized highway commission, without divisional allocation or responsibility. Central control of primary highway location and construction is desirable and will be accepted without protest. There is complaint that under the present system the control over county roads is too far from the people, and further centralization will be protested.

Opinions In Brief

WADESBORO, N. C. MESSENGER AND INTELLIGENCER: "Why is it that governmental and other authorities who have to deal with important problems and issues seem determined to find an evasive approach to a solution instead of hitting the nail pointblank on the head?"

COLFAX, IOWA, TRIBUNE: "Rock and roll is just an over activated Indian war dance, only in my estimation the Indians do it much better."

WADENA, MINN., PIONEER JOURNAL: "As long as we taxpayers keep our hands out for government aids, the story will never change. We'll never be our own boss."

LENNOX, S. D., INDEPENDENT: "It is apparent, that while the Soil Bank program provides a certain type of 'insurance' to the farmers of America, participation in the various plans thus far make it equally evident that the farmer still is an individualist, adventurer and experimenter. . . . At any rate, the present farm program as we see it . . . is in theory and final results a far better plan than over-production, expensive storage surplus and government payment for crops for which there is no adequate disposal plan."

COVINGTON, TENN., LEADER: "If people who wonder what is becoming of their money would watch themselves closely for 30 days or so, they would probably find out they are spending it."

PORT HURON, MICH., TIMES HERALD: "Every government of oppression that has existed on this earth has been drowned in the blood of its victims. There is no reason to expect that Russia will not meet the same fate."

Exotic Male Fashions?

By ELMER ROESSNER
Don't laugh too heartily at these new cocktail fashions imported from Italy for men. Even if you don't, some day your grown sons may wear them.

The fashions are a soft touch for easy ribbing, featuring iridescent red, blue and copper jackets; pleated shirts; vests in pearl gray, blue and gold, with shawl collars; tapered trousers in exotic colors; ties in gold brocade and iridescent silks; shoes in metallic tones or with large buckles and bits of lace here and there.

However, they are better looking than they sound. The colors are reasonably subdued and a lot less garish than the typical Trumanesque sports shirt. These styles, or modifications of them, may catch on. They were created by Brioni of Rome and brought into this country — probably with considerable misgiving — by Max Hess, Allentown, Pa., merchant.

PARTY PROMOTIONS In any event, these styles may be far more conservative than the pajamas you'll see teenagers go to parties in next spring. A million-dollar promotion is being whipped up to sell pajamas, records, cosmetics and soft drinks. Four companies are promoting a "Let's go to a party!" with heavy advertising and free 20-page booklets telling how to give a pajama party; the book will contain a coupon good for a discount on a record narrated by somebody named Julius LaRosa.

dictions, based on analyses of facts and trends, for business futures:

Electronic devices may be cheaper. One manufacturer has halved prices of transistors; other makers have made or will make hefty cuts, and this may bring down costs of radios, hi-fi equipment, etc.

Nonferrous metals will be cheaper. Supplies of most are becoming easier in relation to demand; foreign markets have been dropping from Suez highs, and domestic production outlooks are generally good.

TESTING, TESTING Some surprising new promotions are in the making. In Jamestown, N.Y., a million-dollar radio quiz will be tested in a few days. If it throws natives on their ears, it will move to national networks. Next month in some New England towns a cigarette company will offer premiums smokers can have now, and pay for with coupons later. If it boosts sales, the premium-credit plan will be used nationally.

A new kind of paper towel is coming. It is said to look and feel like cloth. If not already in your neighborhood store, it will be there in a few days.

Pineapple juice will cost more. One major packer is boosting its price next week; other canners are expected to do likewise.

Liquor promotions will be stepped up. One big distiller is increasing its 1957 advertising budget by $2,000,000 and this will have chain reaction on others.

Prices of imported goods will rise. The Suez Canal disruption hit more than oil tankers; many other imports are taking the long journey here, and American consumers will pay the bill. An increase is expected within two weeks: on coarse fibers, hemp, sisal, etc.

OLD PROMOTER SOLVES KITCHEN PROBLEM—IN PART

The Old Promoter moseyed in today, and when we asked him where he had been for two weeks — while our cigars gathered dust — he said he had been inventing. Seems he has developed an oblong pan, exactly the size to take a package of frozen vegetables, and with indentations to show just where a half and a full cup of water come to.

"Probably has been done before," we sniffed. We're always negative about the Old One's inventions. Otherwise we are asked to invest in them. "If it makes it original," he said, "it's a little gadget that not only tells the temperature of the water but also plays a tune when the vegetables are done."

"Tune?"
"Yes. It's 'Come to the Table!'" he said, humming a few bars. "Wait!" we yelled. "You've got the wrong tune. You're humming 'Come to the Stable!'"

He was mightily put out about it. Stuffed his pockets with our cigars and left without another word.

INSTANT COFFEE ACCEPTED WHERE THEY GROW BEANS

Instant coffee must be all right. One of the most popular brands of coffee in Puerto Rico now comes in an instant version, and the first instant coffee plant in Central America has opened in San Salvador with the president of the Republic on hand to drink the first cup. And they know their coffee in those countries.

There doesn't seem much doubt that quickie coffee is gaining greatly in the U.S.A. Retail sales last year were 69.4 per cent ahead of 1953 and 16.8 per cent ahead of 1954. The Pan-American Coffee Bureau reports. Much of the gain comes from use in vending machines, in which it is the only practical form of coffee. It is gaining in homes, too, both because of convenience and economy. The higher per-cup cost of instant coffee is usually more than offset by the lack of waste.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ONE LITTLE MAN

John Wesley, father of Methodism, was small of stature and light of weight. Although he was himself an intellectual, his fellow intellectuals hated him. He was scorned and feared at by most of his fellow ministers. His early life was characterized by a series of egregious failures. Wesley wrote or edited about 250 books and the financial return on these books was such that he might have died one of the wealthiest men in England. He died with no estate other than a few coins in his pocket and he left a note directing that this small sum of money be divided among certain of his ministerial friends. Wesley was always careful to maintain a neat appearance, but his clothes were threadbare and patched.

Yet this little man shook the English nation to its foundation. France, under the guidance of Voltaire and other atheists, plunged into revolution. Great Britain passed through an era of international convulsion and remained free. John Wesley was one of the great figures of that generation who held his country in the way of freedom and truth.

God shook a nation — and through that nation the world — by the effort of one little man. But they were consecrated efforts.

Nothing else in the day of crisis will do.

Display Of U. S. Political Solidarity

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON While European governments shake and shift under the pressure of world events, the American political system has shown an amazing strength, solidarity and maturity on and off Capitol Hill. And that observation applies to both Democrats and Republicans.

The normally partisan and waspish Harry S. Truman, for instance, praises the Administration's far-reaching Middle East Doctrine, even though it places him in opposition to the man he called "one of our greatest Secretaries of State"—Dean Acheson. It also pits Truman against Adlai E. Stevenson and National Chairman Paul M. Butler.

A majority of Senate-House Democrats favor Ike's program for military defense of the Middle East, although dubious over proposals for economic aid. Their attitude is regarded as especially magnanimous, in view of Republican campaign boasts that the Suez Canal and allied problems were approaching a settlement because of Eisenhower-Dulles statesmanship.

ISOLATIONISTS FINALLY SUR-RENDERING TO IKE Even stubborn John Foster Dulles eschews partisanship. He conceded rather ruefully that the United States might have adopted a firmer Middle East policy several years ago, thereby staving off today's difficulties. But he suggested with some humility that "it is never too late to mend."

The old Taft faction is finally surrendering to Ike, save for Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin. Senators Jenner and Capehart of Indiana have indicated that they will support the White House program, although not completely happy in their new role. Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen, a Taft lieutenant and a Chicago Tribune idol and isolationist, agrees to succeed Senator William F. Knowland as spokesman for Eisenhower in the Upper Chamber.

SENATOR'S CHIVALRY Even Senator Knowland's plan to retire from his important post has its elements of chivalry and integrity.

Instead of remaining on Capitol Hill to undermine and conspire against Vice President Nixon, assuming that the Oakland publisher seeks the 1960 Presidential nomination, he will fight for it openly on the battleground of California politics.

NO DEMOCRATS FACTIONAL FIGHT The fierce factional fight forecast among Democratic Conservatives and Liberals has been a dud. Relations between the two wings, despite basic differences, were never more harmonious. Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson killed the motion to bar filibusters when it was offered by the Humphrey-Douglas-Neuberger bloc. But the Texan and Senator Knowland immediately joined in an agreement to liberalize Rule XXII along the lines proposed by the Northern faction.

As a result, a moderate Civil Rights program will probably be enacted at this session, thereby preventing a serious division among the Democrats that might

Money Never An Idol

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—"The reason many uneducated men make successes in business," said Murray Cohen, who never finished grammar school, "is that subconsciously they seek security in money."

"But I never idolized money." At 49 Cohen, who is as calm and restful as a bottle of benz-drine pills, really is a millionaire who probably doesn't idolize something you are making so fast you don't have time to count it!

There are a number of unusual things about Murray, a blue-eyed, sandy-haired philanthropist and businessman, who was born poor on the Lower East Side and still wears the air of surety of one who broke his knuckles young, but still won. For example:

He went to work selling paper and twine at 14, and four years later was earning $40,000 a year selling laundry machinery. He lives in a suite in the Waldorf Towers, and is the only tenant there who does his own laundry.

He is also a bachelor who washes 30 million diapers a year.

He is, as a matter of fact, president and board chairman of Consolidated Laundries, the world's largest firm in the field, a kingpin in the nation's 400-million-dollar a year linen supply and laundry industry.

In 1943 when he moved in and took over control of the company he was hailed as the youngest top executive of any firm on the New York Stock Exchange.

"It was losing money, and going downhill," he said. "Its annual business was about six million dollars and it hadn't paid a dividend in some 10 years. This year we'll do 22-million-dollars."

How did he do it? This is Cohen's explanation:

"I did it by molding the men I found there when I took over the firm. I didn't bring in men from the outside. "We had about 2,000 employees then, and we have about 4,000 now, plus 800 trucks. All the managers of the 23 plants we have today were our delivery men or route supervisors when I came. "I told them at the start their jobs were secure as long as I was there, but it was up to them to provide the kind of security that would permeate through to their families."

"I put in insurance, pensions and stock purchase plans. The measure of my own success is how many men I can help make successful. But I've been a salesman all my life. I believe in ringing doorbells, and that if you pound pavements and ask for business, you'll get business."

"So when they started to tell me what they'd been doing, or showed me a sheet of figures, I told them, 'I don't care what you did—that's up to you—and the only figure I'm interested in is your final one at the bottom of the page.'"

Cohen, who doesn't mind admitting he enjoys playing hard, also says he has kept the first promise he made to the men in his firm:

"I will work harder than any of you."

The results show somebody or something worked: Cohen now has 250,000 customers, a customer being either the mother of a newborn baby, a hotel like the Waldorf, or a whole chain of restaurants such as Lonschamps, one barber shop or a series of beauty parlors.

"The rental of towels, napkins, tablecloths, and service uniforms is the big thing today," he said. "Dry cleaning and the handling of home laundry are minor compared to it."

"But diapers rentals interest me. Don't ask me why I never got married. It's a long story. I met a lot of girls I liked for two weeks, but then, somehow. . . well. . . " "Babies interest me. We've found the average baby uses 100 to 120 diapers a week. The record was 320 a week. He was a boy. At first we thought the family must have had triplets. "There are a lot of angles to this business. . . . We own 10-million-dollar worth of linens, as we call cotton goods. . . . We got a new diaper now shaped like an hourglass instead of square. . . . more efficient. . .

INSTANCES OF AMERICAN SPORTSMANSHIP The opposing Democrats are on excellent terms, personally. At the close of each Senate day, Johnson usually meets in his office with a small policy-making group. Senator Humphrey is always included along with such veteran Conservatives as Russell of Georgia, Hayden of Arizona, Stennis of Mississippi and other Southerners. And Humphrey is not afraid to beard these sages.

Humphrey helps to bridge the gap between Congressional Democrats and Party bigwigs in disagreement with the Johnson-Rayburn philosophy and leadership. Whereas the two Texans refused to join Butler's Advisory Committee, Humphrey serves on it with Truman, Stevenson and Eleanor Roosevelt.

In the face of a divided and hostile and shattered world, these instances of American sanity and sportsmanship set an example for friends and foes alike.

Bucs Lose To Lenoir Rhyne, To Play WCC Tonight

By BILLY ARNOLD
 Reflector Sports Editor

HICORY—Lenoir Rhyne's undefeated Bears notched their seventh straight victory in North State play here, Saturday night, dropping the East Carolina Pirates 67-56. The Bucs go from here to Cullowee, where they'll meet the Western Carolina Catamounts tonight.

The loss once again cut East Carolina's conference record to the 500 mark giving them a 4-4 slate. They are now resting uncomfortably in the loop's sixth slot.

The Lenoir Rhyne game was the first peg of the annual road trip for the Bucs. Tonight, they battle with Western Carolina for the first time, then move to Belmont Abbey for a non-league tilt Saturday night.

Won By 11

Rated to top the Pirates by 20 points—at least, by some observers—the league-leading Lenoir Rhyne club could only win out by 11. They had to come from behind to do that. All-America center Raeford Wells was the Big Gun in the Bear scoring department, with 26 points.

East Carolina, seeking revenge for the 82-63 loss in Memorial gymnasium on December 15, starting out in promising fashion, sinking the first field goal and grabbing a slight lead. Forward Don Harris and center Joe Plaster, high scorers for ECC with 12 each, kept the visitors ahead by a constant four-point margin.

Midway in the second quarter, the Bears found their range and began to hit from the outside. Guard Joe Sellari and Wells fought hip-and-tuck with the Pirate team and had pulled the Bears to within two points of a tie by half-time. It was 33-31 at the end of the first two periods.

The second half was a bad one for ECC. Lenoir Rhyne bucketed 38 points to Coach Porter's team's 23. East Carolina maintained a slim lead for the first few minutes of second half action, then had to surrender to a Wells-led assault that netted a Bear victory.

With Wells, a 6-10, 240 pound senior pumping in shots from all over, the powerful host team scored 19 points in the final five minutes of play to begin what looked like a rout.

Western Carolina

Tonight, the Pirates journey still farther west to tangle with Western Carolina, the North State's number three team. It will mark the first meeting of the two clubs this season.

Though not picked as a top team in pre-season predictions, Western Carolina has compiled a 5-1 record. The Catamounts always offer trouble on their own home court. Last year, they handed ECC one of its three losses of the regular season.

With an 8-6 overall mark now, East Carolina will be rated underdogs to the Catamounts tonight.

Some pickers are giving Western Carolina a 6-point edge.

Coach Howard Porter is expected to start Don Harris and Nick Nichols at forwards, Guy Mendenhall and Charlie Adams at guards, Plaster at center.

The game will begin at 8:00.

BELVOIR—Belvoir-Falkland took a Pitt County Conference doubleheader from Grimesland here Friday night but it took an overtime period in the boys game and some determined defense in the girls game to wrap up the two wins.

Move To Revive Harness Racing At County Fairs

PINEHURST, N.C.—A move was under way today to revive county fair harness racing, especially in North Carolina.

The movement grew out of discussions here Saturday by directors of District 7 of the United States Trotting Assn.

The district includes Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Virginia and West Virginia.

The association is the governing body for harness racing in the United States and the maritime provinces of Canada.

District directors said the only sanctioned harness racing is at the State Fair in Raleigh. They proposed to add other fairs to the circuit.

Sanders Russell of Stevenson, Ala., was re-elected to a three-year term as director of the association. Other directors from the district are Jesse M. Talley of Nashville, Tenn., and Ben S. Woods of Hopkinsville, Ky.

May Pit Pros And Amateurs

CHICAGO—The U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. has agreed to study the possibility of an "open" championship in which amateurs and professionals would be pitted against each other.

The development came out of the group's 76th annual meeting over the weekend.

Renville H. McMann of New York was re-elected president of the association and was authorized by the executive committee to select a committee to study the subject of an open tournament.

Indiana Signing Wyoming Coach Phil Dickens

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Phil Dickens, fresh from a perfect season at Wyoming, arrived today to sign a four-year contract as Indiana University's head football coach at $15,000 annually.

Dickens had been scheduled to arrive last night but was delayed when fog caused cancellation of incoming flights at Bloomington airport.

The balding, 42-year-old coach was promised he will have every conceivable help from IU in his efforts to restore winning football to the Hoosiers, who haven't had a winning season since 1947.

Athletic Director Frank E. Allen made it plain that he doesn't expect miracles from Dickens. When the choice was narrowed from 100-plus prospects to Dickens and Jim Tatum of North Carolina, Allen emphasized IU was seeking a coach with a good record but, "a mature man who can stand disappointment."

Tatum decided Saturday night that he still had a job at North Carolina and Indiana immediately grabbed the coach of undefeated Wyoming.

Allen said one of the factors that attracted him to Dickens was the latter's versatile offense, mixed single wing and winged T, because Indiana didn't want somebody who sticks to one system regardless of results.

As to the help for Dickens in improving IU's record of only 12 Big Ten victories in the last 10 years.

Red Hot Kinston Quint To Play G-Men Here Tuesday

The red-hot Kinston Red Devils, sporting an unblemished record, will invade ECC's Memorial gymnasium tomorrow night for a Northeastern conference battle with Greenville High school.

Coach Amos Sexton's defending state AA champions have rolled to seven straight victories this season, knocking off several AAA clubs in the process. They have displayed one of the most potent high-scoring attacks seen in this section of the state in many seasons. They already have a foothold on the Northeastern conference's top slot, with a 5-1 loop mark.

For Greenville, things look brighter than at any stage thus far. The Phantoms started out dismally, losing four games to AAA teams. However, in post-Christmas games, they have come back to post a 4-1 conference mark. They have dropped New Bern, Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids, Jacksonville, while losing to Washington, Kinston will be rated a very heavy favorite over the home team, due to the Red Devils' awesome work thus far this season. Predictions find Kinston rated 21-6-30, and the varsity match will start at 8:00.

Top gun for the visiting Devils will be a tiny guard, A-Con' Vance Alley Hart.

Coach Bo Farley will be expected to use his successful two-plateon to full advantage tomorrow night. A Jayvee game will open play at 6:30, and the varsity match will start at 8:00.

Furgol Wins In Caliente Play-Off

TJUANA, Mexico (AP)—Ed Furgol, the courageous professional with the withered left arm, won an exciting sudden death playoff and $2,000 top money yesterday in the Caliente Open Golf Tournament.

The former United States Open titleholder, one of the most liked players in the game but plain murder in a head-to-head struggle, lasted off big Al Besselink.

It lasted for two holes, with the 33-year-old Furgol, from St. Andrews, Ill., shooting a steady par 4 and Besselink a bogey 5 on the second extra hole.

How to meet his future needs... now!

Just now, you may be confident that you will have the money for the education of your children. But who can prophesy what your situation will be in the 1970's? The answer is: You do not have to be a prophet.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has a new, flexible plan which can help you guarantee your children's future. It is called the Education-Estate Builder, and if you have young children, it can help to solve many of your future financial problems. The Education-Estate Builder works this way:

You take out insurance on the life of your son or daughter which provides, say, $1,000 a year for each of the four years of college. Then, when your child is ready for college, the money for college will be ready, too!

On the other hand, if the money is not needed for college or some other purpose, then each $1,000 of the Education insurance will become $5,000 of Limited Payment Life insurance for the same premium. The Life insurance then starts out with a cash value equal to the Educational Fund.

The Life insurance will become paid up in a limited number of years, the exact period varying according to your children's ages when the policy was taken out and when it becomes Limited Payment Life. If the decision is made to continue the insurance, no evidence of insurability as to physical condition or occupation will be required.

Under this plan, a $4,000 Educational Fund may thus become a $20,000 life insurance estate. Think how you would have liked such a nest egg at the beginning of your career!

This is a completely new Educational Plan which gives greater flexibility in planning your children's future than ever before. It can help to guarantee funds for education, or establish a sizable Life insurance estate at an early age when cost is low.

Your Metropolitan Representative will be glad to show you how this plan can be adapted to your particular needs. He will welcome the opportunity to prove that...

Metropolitan service is as local as Main Street... as close as your phone.

CHAPTER 32

Chad turned toward the barracks of Company A and went in. Sergeant Mullvane had the first bunk to the left. He lay on his side, snoring steadily, but Chad doubted that he was asleep.

He shook Mullvane's shoulder. "Get up. Put on your clothes." Mullvane grunted and tried to burrow deeper. Chad yanked the blankets off him and gave him another shake. "Get up. Don't wake the men while you're doing it, either."

Mullvane sat up and rubbed his eyes. "Oh, it's you, Lieutenant. What's up? Indians?"

"No. You've got a tongue like an old woman. Mullvane, I'm going to finish the job I started last summer."

"Are you now?" Mullvane breathed.

Chad stood by the door until Mullvane had pulled on his boots.

"If you ever put your filthy tongue on Mrs. Randall again, Mullvane," Chad said, "I'll kill you."

Mullvane threw back his big head and laughed, then he dove at Chad, a great fist swinging up from the knees. Chad wheeled aside slogging Mullvane on the ear. Mullvane's impetus carried him forward and he went down into the barn litter. He cursed and rushed at Chad again, and this time Chad held his ground.

Chad was not the same man who had fought Mullvane before. He'd had no strong feeling about the Sergeant then, but he did now. For the first time since they had boarded the Molly McClain, he hated Mullvane as much as Mullvane hated him. He fought a cold and calculating fight, and each blow he landed gave him pleasure.

Five minutes later, Chad wiped an arm across his face and looked at Tolliver, who said, "You did a job this time, Lieutenant. You ain't got a mark on you."

"I feel like I have them," Chad said. "See that Mullvane gets back to bed."

He left the stable, walking slowly; his chest and stomach felt as if he'd been kicked by a mule. When he reached his cabin, he lighted a lamp and, pouring water into his washbasin, doused his face. He got his fire going, and sat before the stove until it was dawn. There was no use to try to sleep.

He thought briefly of Mullvane, wondering if he had made the right decision when he had told Tolliver he wasn't going to break him. But Mullvane was a good sergeant if he could forget his personal feelings, and Fort Butterfield would need him.

It was midmorning when Dora Haggerty came with the news that Colonel was dead. "Just quit breathing," she said. "Drunk himself to death, that's what." She swallowed, her eyes filled with defiance. "Good riddance, sir, if you'll pardon me saying so."

Chad called Anderson and Mullvane to his cabin and told them what had happened. Mullvane's nose was swollen, his face was covered with bruises, one side of his mouth was twisted, and his lips were puffy, but there was no animosity in his eyes.

"If anything happens to me, Anderson," Chad said, "you're in command. We can't expect help for at least two months. It'll be nip and tuck with half our food spoiled, and if we let the men get out of hand, there won't be anybody alive when the first boat gets up the river."

"We'll make it, sir," Anderson said.

"I'm sure we will," Chad said, and wished he was as certain as he sounded. "Take a burial detail and dig a grave. See that a coffin is built. And you'd better talk to Mrs. Randall. Find out when she wants the funeral."

Anderson saluted. "Yes, sir," he said, and left the cabin.

Chad studied Mullvane, who was standing at attention. "Sergeant, are you willing to shake hands with me?"

Mullvane managed a lopsided grin. "Yes, sir."

Chad offered his hand and Mullvane gave it a firm grip. After he left, Chad walked across the parade to the blockhouse and climbed the ladder. He would get a transfer for Mullvane next summer if he could, he decided. He spoke to the sentry, knowing he would have to call both companies together and tell them he was in command, but he wanted a few minutes alone before he did this.

The sentry moved out along the catwalk, and Chad, staring through one of the loopholes at the frozen river, wondered if he would live to hear it break its silence.

He'd had his own doubts, his bitter disappointment when he had been forced to leave St. Louis. He had been very close to death a few hours ago when Randall had held a gun on him. But Randall was dead; the one real weakness was gone.

Now, he found that his own doubts were gone. He would never again ask himself if there was anything in Dakota Territory worth defending. Perhaps there wasn't yet, but there would be. It was the army's job to make that development possible, and he was part of the army. Even if he had the chance to go back to St. Louis, he wouldn't take it unless it was to marry Elizabeth and bring her to Fort Butterfield.

Turning from the loophole, he crossed the blockhouse and went down the ladder. From now on the decisions were his to make. The difference lay in the fact that always before it had been someone else. Now it was Chad Endicott, and he wasn't sorry.

By the first of April, Chad had reason to recall Randall's angry remarks about the burdens of office. Food was running very short, and the Indian menace had in no way lessened.

The only anchor of hope Chad had was the knowledge that spring was at hand, and the tawny waters of the Missouri would soon take the place of dirty, honey-combed ice. Within a few weeks after that, they would see the first of the river streamers, supplies, perhaps even reinforcements. Replacements? Yes, maybe replacements. He might be given another assignment.

His heart leaped with anticipation when he thought of that. It would mean Elizabeth, at least temporarily. The more he thought of it, though, the more he wondered if he really wanted to leave. Butterfield was a rat-infested hole. But it was his for the moment, his first command.

A new danger threatens the fort. Read Chapter 33 tomorrow.

Bundy Speaks At Kiwanis Meeting

At the Greenville Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting Friday night, Sam D. Bundy of Farmville, a past governor of the Carolinas Kiwanis District, guest speaker, urged the Kiwanians to "get started on the right foot in the New Year and then on for progress and community service."

President Charles E. Blair presided and Kiwanian Kenneth Hite had charge of the program.

Lt. Gov. John T. Barnhill of Greenville announced that the Fayetteville Kiwanis Club will be host to International Kiwanis President Reed Culp of Salt Lake City on his visit to the Carolinas Kiwanis District Divisions 4, 5, 6 and 7. International Kiwanis Trustee Joe Tally of Fayetteville will be master of ceremonies. The meeting will be held at Breece's banquet hall in Fayetteville.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — A burst of selling clipped prices today, leaving the stock market lower early this afternoon.

Some of the losses were modified in a prompt recovery trading continued active.

The high-speed ticker tape ran about a minute behind transactions for a period of nine minutes late in the morning.

Steels, motors and aircrafts were hit hard during the heaviest selling.

Analysts saw the performance as a continuation of late Friday when the ticker tape ran three minutes late following the joint declaration by Russia and China. Cutbacks in orders for steel by auto manufacturers and continued reports of General Motors slowing down its expansion program were other factors.

Leading stocks were down from fractions to around 3 points at the worst but pared this range to about a point or more.

When the market was at its weakest, U.S. Steel was off around 2. Bethlehem Steel around 3 and Youngstown about a point. In a partial recovery, U.S. Steel was selling off a point, Bethlehem's loss was a fraction more than that and Youngstown erased its loss of about a point and gained a good fraction.

General Motors, while heavily traded, continued to sell about the same, registering a major fractional loss. Ford's loss was equivalent to GM's. Chrysler, off a good fraction at one time, rebounded for a small gain.

Boeing eased while Douglas Aircraft was up a bit and United Aircraft showed little change.

A 10,000 share block of Pennsylvania Railroad was traded at 21, off 1/4. It eased further in later

Standard Oil (New Jersey), Goodyear, Kennecott Copper and New York Central retreated around a point each. American Telephone was off a fraction, Du Pont fell over a point.

U.S. Gypsum, Royal Dutch, Illinois Central, Santa Fe, Loew's, National distillers and Union Carbide were other losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 9 cents to $171.10 with the industrials down $1.80, the rails down 80 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Timber-Thinning Demonstration Set Tomorrow

A timber thinning demonstration will be held on the B. M. Lewis farm located on the U.S. 264 bypass beginning at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Conducting the demonstration will be County Agent Sam C. Winchester, Extension Forester James H. Andersen and pulp wood representative John Gamble.

The demonstration will be staged in a tract of woods on the south side of the 264 bypass just inside of the Pitt County line and east of Lewis Store.

"Two industries are soon to be established in this area which will use forest products," Winchester said. "It will be to the farmers' advantage to learn the type of timber products these industries plan to use. At this meeting farmers will have an opportunity to learn to manage their farm woods lands to the best advantage."

He urged Pitt farmers to attend.
