

Economic Report Urges Restraint In Era Of Plenty

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower reported to Congress today that a record 1956 prosperity should continue into this year. But he cautioned that more inflation may ride along with it.

In the last of his three major annual messages, the economic report, Eisenhower stressed for the third time in as many weeks his strong opposition to tax cuts and a sober appeal for restraint in wage boosts.

He listed 38 laws he wants from the 85th Congress. They include prompt federal aid for school construction, more teeth in the anti-monopoly and antimerger laws, and more help for small firms caught in the credit squeeze.

The nation's total output of goods and services reached a record 412 billion dollars last year, and for the final quarter hit a peak annual rate of 424 billions, Eisenhower reported, forecasting continued good times.

But his basic theme was an appeal to industry and labor unions to join the government in blocking the leapfrog advance of business costs and consumer prices.

The figures Eisenhower cited showed that the country achieved a spectacular 21½-billion-dollar advance last year in the annual rate of production, but he said that half the gain merely reflected price increases.

The climb in prices "may not have run its course," he said; it represents one of the "uncertainties and problems" which cloud the economic future.

Eisenhower suggested strongly that he thinks the government is doing all it can to curb price pressures, short of heavy-handed restraints that would regiment the economy and invite a recession. Therefore, he said:

"Business and labor leadership have the responsibility to reach agreements on wages and other labor benefits that are fair to the rest of the community as well as to those persons immediately involved."

"Negotiated wage increases and benefits should be consistent with productivity prospects and with the maintenance of a stable dollar."

"And business must recognize the broad public interest in the prices set on their products and services."

"... If all live up to these responsibilities, the capacities of our economy to provide the high levels of employment, production and purchasing power envisaged by the employment act, and broadly attained in the past year, will be further enhanced."

President Says Congress Has Duty To Reduce His Budget, If They Can

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today Congress has the duty to cut his 72-billion-dollar budget if it can do it.

Eisenhower said he agrees with Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey that a federal spending should be cut if possible.

At his 100th news conference since taking office and his first since last Nov. 14, the President also spoke out sharply against any division of his Middle East program into separate military and economic aid packages.

Some Congress members have talked of splitting the Eisenhower program into two measures, instead of one resolution as asked by the President.

Any such division, Eisenhower said emphatically, would destroy what this government is trying to do—prevent any aggression by the Soviet Union in the Mideast.

Eisenhower's remarks about the budget were in response to questions.

A reporter recalled that Humphrey said last week that government spending should be cut, that unless the government stopped taking so much out of the economy there would be a hair-curling depression.

Humphrey expressed the hope that the "Congress would be able to cut the budget."

Eisenhower was asked whether there were any differences between Humphrey and him on those points.

The President replied that Humphrey had based his remarks on a written memorandum which he (Eisenhower) had edited and approved in advance.

Eisenhower went on to say that Humphrey's remarks did not deal with the immediate future, but rather with the long-range fiscal picture.

As for the Cabinet officer's expressed hope that Congress would be able to cut the administration's budget, Eisenhower said he always has taken the position that every dollar possible should be saved. It takes many months to prepare a budget, and the figures submitted to Congress are only estimates, he said.

Then he went on to say that if Congress can cut proposed spending, it has a duty to do so.

Eisenhower said he is in complete agreement with Humphrey, but added he wanted to point out that Humphrey's statements, in his opinion, had no application to the immediate situation.

Eisenhower said he has talked to Humphrey, and that he knows just what Humphrey had in mind.

Furthermore, Eisenhower said, there is no indication the nation is about to face a depression. He also expressed the view that it probably never again would be

Escaped

NASHVILLE — Daniel Denton, who was sentenced in Pitt County last October to a total of 35 years in prison, was reported to have escaped from the Nash County Prison Camp yesterday afternoon.

Assistant Superintendent of the camp G. P. Bryant said Denton was working with a road gang and he slipped off into nearby woods. Guards fired twice but were unable to halt the fleeing man, Bryant said. He had not been apprehended at noon today. The escape took place around 2:30 yesterday afternoon.

Denton was sentenced to 25 years for first degree burglary and 10 years for armed robbery in Superior Court here.

No Indictments In Kidnap Probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1956 Los Angeles County grand jury held over to consider actress Marie (The Body) McDonald's story of being kidnapped, has adjourned without returning indictments in the matter.

The jury retired yesterday after a three-day hearing in which Marie twice was called to testify.

Foreman Warren Thorne said many of the jurors believe a serious crime may have been committed, but "the necessary 12 could not agree that an indictment would advance the apprehension and conviction of those responsible."

The jury urged continued police work in the case.

Marie had expressed hope earlier that John Doe indictments would be returned.

Jerry Giesler, the actress' lawyer, said private investigators would continue the search, and that his client intends to increase the present $5,000 reward for her abductors. He added:

"The jury's statement clearly demonstrates that the majority is satisfied that something happened at her home Jan. 3. I am sure Chief (William H.) Parker can't get too much satisfaction from the jury's statement."

Marie told newsmen she "had a feeling it was a sincere jury trying to get at the facts, but the police have done their best to prove my story a hoax." She said that after three months she will increase the reward to $10,000.

"We are not through with this case," was Chief Parker's comment on the grand jury's statement.

Bid Of $313,659 Wins By-Pass Paving Project

White Construction Company of Kinston has entered the low bid for paving Greenville's north-south by-pass.

White's bid was $313,659.80. It was one of several entered for the job which involves 4.35 miles of paving the N. C. 11-U. S. 13 by-pass from West End Circle to a point north of Greenville and ten miles southwest of Bethel.

The project is one of 20 for which Highway Commission engineers opened bids yesterday in Raleigh. Low bids on the 20 projects totaled $6,906,328.64 and will be reviewed by the Highway Commission at its monthly meeting tomorrow in Raleigh.

Second Division Commissioner H. Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill has said the project should be completed sometime during the spring. The by-pass will carry north-south traffic west of Greenville on a route which leaves N. C. 11-U. S. 13 North of Greenville.

Monacans Greet A New Princess

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Grace Kelly, Princess of Monaco, gave birth at 9:27 a.m. today to a dark-haired, blue-eyed daughter weighing 8 pounds 2 ounces.

"The delivery went very quickly and in a normal way," said a medical bulletin signed by three attending physicians.

"Her Highness the Princess and the child are doing very well."

The bulletin added that the baby was "perfectly constituted."

A booming 21-gun salute announced the arrival of Princess Caroline Louise Marguerite, first child of reigning Prince Rainier III, and the 26-year-old Hollywood movie star he married last April 18-19.

Princess Caroline—as she will be called—will succeed her father on the throne of the 367-acre Riviera principality unless a son is born later to the royal couple. The 33-year-old Prince himself reportedly wanted a girl.

Monacans were jubilant at the baby's birth. If Rainier dies without an heir, Monaco becomes a French protectorate and its 4,000 citizens become subject to France's high taxes and military draft. Monaco's taxes now are negligible and its military service nil.

Soon after the guns finished booming, Monte Carlo radio interrupted a program of Mozart music and the Prince announced in a solemn voice:

"This Wednesday, the 23rd of January, Her Highness Princess Grace gave birth to a little girl at 9:27."

The Monacan anthem followed Rainier's announcement.

The news set off celebrations, the ringing of Monaco's 14 church bells and champagne toasts all over town. The telephone system

Israel Presents Proposals As To Disputed Gaza Strip

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was slated to hear details today of Israel's proposal that she govern the disputed Gaza Strip under U.N. surveillance.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban was expected to outline to Hammarskjöld the plan under which Israel's forces would pull out of the strip, but Israeli authorities would stay behind to handle the social and civil administration.

Regardless of Hammarskjöld's reaction, Egypt and the Arab states were certain to oppose the proposal. The Arabs demand the return of Gaza to Egypt, which occupied it from the Palestine Armies until the Israeli invasion in October.

The United States has suggested that the U.N. Emergency Force occupy the coastal strip packed with Palestinian Arab refugees until a settlement between Israel and Egypt.

A major U.N. debate shaped up, meanwhile, on the entire scope and future of the U.N. police force. It was expected to begin in the General Assembly Monday with the Soviet bloc and Arab states opposing Western proposals to keep U.N. troops in Gaza and along the Sinai Desert coast of the Gulf of Aqaba, where Israeli forces also are still holding fast.

The Assembly last weekend called on Israel to get out of all territory she occupied during the invasion of Egypt and asked Hammarskjöld to report Israeli compliance by Friday. Israel announced yesterday she had withdrawn from everything but the Gaza Strip and the Sharm el Sheikh area, the Aqaba coast from which Egyptian guns kept Israel out.

'Drill' Proved To Be Real Alarm Took Cigarettes But Left Money

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When the fire alarm sounded late yesterday at the Bellefield Girls Vocational High School, some of the nearly 400 pupils thought it was a routine fire drill.

But a fast-spreading blaze roared out of control so quickly that flames were licking across the roof of the three-story, 88-year-old structure by the time the last pupil was out safely.

No one was hurt in the fire which a fire chief attributed to defective wiring.

Mayor David Lawrence commended school officials for averting a possible disaster. The loss was estimated at $125,000.

Sometime during last night, vandals broke into Tyson's Puro Station on 421 N. Greene Street but evidently failed to be impressed with the small change that they found in the cash register.

Gaining entrance through the front door by breaking the glass, the robbers took 18 cartons of cigarettes but left a one dollar bill and 100 pennies in the cash register. Nothing else was missing, according to Carey Joyner who reported the incident to police.

Lt. H. F. Lawson investigated the robbery.

Another School Bus Has Mishap

GRIFTON — Pitt County's third school bus accident in two days has resulted in charges against two drivers.

Eugene Thomas Barwick of Grifton, Route 2, and bus driver Ezekiel Brock were both cited by Grifton Police Chief J. R. Parker after Brock's bus was struck this morning by Barwick's car. Although the bus was loaded with Negro school children at the time of the accident, no one was injured.

Barwick was charged with improper passing after Chief Parker's investigation showed that he attempted to pass the school bus after it had picked up some children. Brock was charged with an improper turn when he attempted a left turn after the pick-up.

Chief Parker said Barwick's car struck the left front fender and front bumper of the bus, almost tearing them off. A hole was torn in the side of the car. Both vehicles were headed east on Grifton's Bottom Road (also known as River Road) at the time, set at 7:45 a.m. by the chief.

The two men were cited to appear before Judge Robert McCarter in Grifton Recorder's Court Monday morning.

Owner May Call To Get His Car

Pedestrians, out for their morning stroll yesterday, were surprised to find an unoccupied auto blocking the sidewalk at Fourth and Washington Sts.

Police, who were called to the scene, sent for a wrecker and the vehicle was stored at a local garage. Police said the owner could claim his automobile.

Investigating were Lt. T. E. Gladson and Ptl. R. E. Joyner.

There has been no inkling of what the governor and his commission are proposing in appropriations, which recommendations were completed a few weeks ago. The last session of the Legislature made relatively no appropriations for permanent improvements at state institutions, making the pressure for this type appropriation greater than ever.

The general fund appropriation is about 215 million dollars a year, but it is expected to be increased sizeably. In addition to needs for permanent improvements, there is considerable pressure for increasing the salaries of state employees.

Second Atomic Sub Is Tested

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The nation's second atomic submarine, the Seawolf, was back in her berth today after 36 hours of first trials at sea.

The builder's trial run took the sub out to Long Island Sound Monday. She returned yesterday.

A spokesman for the Navy Atlantic submarine force headquarters in New London said the trials — including initial submergence tests — went off satisfactorily. More tests are planned.

Built by the General Dynamics Corp.'s Electric Boat Division here, the Seawolf is not officially in the Navy. After the builder's trials it will be commissioned as a Navy vessel.

Big Smithfield Warehouse Burns

SMITHFIELD, N. C. (AP) — Planters' Warehouse, one of Smithfield's biggest, was destroyed by fire last night. Damage was estimated at $175,000.

Cause of the fire was unknown. Corn and fertilizer were stored in the tobacco auction center at the time of the fire.

understand the charges against him," Schmier said, adding:

"... He's a man, in my opinion, laboring under a terrific psychosis, a persecution complex. He finds all his grievance against the public satiated by setting off these bombs."

In committing Metesky to Bellevue, Magistrate Reuben Levy commented:

"The alleged acts are indicative of a deranged mind."

Schmier and Grebow engaged in an argument about Metesky's financial status. Schmier said he couldn't afford a lawyer, while Grebow said he "has $500 in his pocket and has $11,000 in the bank."

Metesky, apparently piqued, interjected:

"Your Honor, I have only $150."

The magistrate closed off the exchange gruffly and committed Metesky to Bellevue.

Record Still For Lincoln County

LINCOLNTON, N. C. (AP) — Lincoln County officers have completed the destruction of what they described as "the biggest liquor still ever seen" in the county.

Sheriff Frank Heavner said the distillery was in a relatively new cement block building off Highway 321 about 4 miles south of here.

Destroyed were 19 mash containers, with from five to 500 gallons capacity each, a 1,000-gallon vat, several boilers and four 50-gallon barrels.

No arrests were made.

'Mad Bomber' Awaits Psychiatric Examination

NEW YORK (AP) — George Metesky — the Mad Bomber — was in Bellevue Hospital today awaiting psychiatric examination. His 16-year reign of terror was at an end.

The court order committing the 54-year-old bachelor came less than 24 hours after police arrested him at his Waterbury, Conn., home.

"I'm glad I did it," Metesky said with a smile late yesterday as he was brought from Waterbury to New York City for arraignment.

A crowd of 300 persons, including some 150 newspaper, television and radio representatives, watched Metesky climb out of a police car caravan. He was handcuffed between two detectives.

The smile never left his face. He appeared to enjoy immensely the fuss being made over him.

"Are you sorry you did it?" someone shouted.

Metesky's blue eyes twinkled. "Yes," he laughed, adding:

"I'm sorry I injured people, but I'm glad I did it."

After his arrest, Metesky signed a statement admitting he was the Bomber who had planted 32 bombs in public places since 1940. Twenty-two exploded, injuring 15 persons, one serious.

The tall, balding Metesky was quoted as saying he never had intended to kill anyone and felt "hurt" whenever he read one of his devices had injured anyone.

He unleashed his bomb planting campaign, he said, to point up what to him was lack of compensation for an industrial injury 25 years ago.

He was taken to court on charges of felonious assault, malicious mischief and violation of the Sullivan Law, meaning the possession of dangerous weapons

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
Young girls in the Belgian Congo, in Beirut, in Cairo, in Hong Kong, and in Korea, who would never have the opportunity to study on the campus of a college, will enroll this year because of "World Day of Prayer" on March 8, 1957. Women will gather in Korea to study Christian family life—because the 71st observance of "World Day of Prayer" on the first Friday in Lent will be dedicated to world Brotherhood. Needy Eskimos, Arabs, Navajos, American migrants and Asians will receive badly needed help because one day in the year is set aside under the sponsorship of United Church Women in the United States to unite all Christians in a bond of prayer and to present offerings for their many projects. United Church Women, representing some ten million American women, is a general department of the National Council of Churches. Literacy, higher education, day care centers, vacation church schools, scholarships, bookmobiles, teacher training and services—ranging from a model kindergarten in Okinawa to family night programs in a village hut in Angola, West Africa—will be carried out because in more than 60 languages and 1,000 dialects in 145 areas on six continents women "kneel to pray and rise to act."

Dr. Helen Kim, president of Ewha University, Seoul, Korea, was in New York recently as a member of a team of five to present the cause of Korea's membership in the United Nations. The university which she heads was founded by Methodist missionaries, and is the outgrowth of the first school for girls established in Korea. It is now one of the country's largest and most influential educational institutions, over four thousand students being enrolled at present. It is characterized not only by its deeply religious emphasis, as indicated in a recent revival in which seven hundred were baptized, but also by the interest of the students and faculty in extending their spiritual insights into the life of society outside the campus. Dr. Kim states that in the midst of their studies the students are busy with the problem of understanding some of the historically significant news of the world. When they read in the newspapers the account of the Hungarian struggle for freedom, the entire student body and faculty passed a resolution and despatched a cable of protest to the United Nations.

Milliners Choose Their Easter Winners

LILLY DACHE... Her selection for the 1957 favorite in the Easter Parade is this "pork pie" hat of lemon yellow linen straw with crushed crown and brim turned up in front.

JOHN FREDERICKS... Women need hats without flowers this Easter, says Mr. Fredericks, who picks this "triple-ripple" brimmed cloche in "undersea tones" of blue, green, gray.

SALLY VICTOR... The head-hugging cloche of the 1920s is Sally's choice—this in smooth straw and big violets.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
New York's top millinery designers have varying ideas about what will be the most popular hat in the Easter parade, but they are agreed on one point—it will be in the mood of the 1920s.

Three famous milliners—Lilly Dache, John Fredericks and Sally Victor—were asked to pick one hat each from their current collections as the most important trend-setter for spring. Here are the results:

Lilly Dache picked a casual lemon yellow linen straw hat with squared crushed crown and brim turned up in front, because:

"I have a feeling about simplicity in the new hats. They are big, so they should not be too busy. I think a woman likes a hat which does not overpower her, and yet which looks important. This is the kind of a hat I think women all over the country are going to like this spring because it is easy to wear, it does not look self-conscious and it has that thing you call a certain flair."

John Fredericks chose a "triple-ripple brimmed cloche" in "undersea tones" of pale blue, sea green and gray, somewhat mushroom-shaped. Says he:

"This hat is going to be seen all over the world. I think it is right for Easter, because I think women are tired of flower hats. This is colorful but unadorned. It's not too large, but it looks that way. It has that 1920 look which is going to be important all year. One thing is certain about the new hats—you can see them."

Sally Victor picked a small, close-fitting cloche in violet straw with a huge bunch of violets perched over one eyebrow.

"Girls want hats that will cover up their hair this spring," says Sally. "They're all either letting their hair grow out or cutting it shorter, or changing it in some way. So they need cover while the hair gets used to its new state. This is the kind of little, head-hugging cloche that everybody wore 20 or 30 years ago, and I still think it was one of the most satisfactory hat styles ever thought up. This kind of hat stays on in a high wind, it doesn't need hatpins or clips or elastic bands. It's young and simple—and it's easy to wear whether you think so or not. Besides, I think violets are going to be the flower of the year—everybody's crazy about violets this spring."

So there you have the selections of three top millinery experts on the Easter fashion race. You pay your money and you take your choice.

Miss James Entertained

Miss Shelby James, bride-elect, was honored at a lingerie shower Monday night when Mrs. Gene Tucker and Mrs. Bill Nelson entertained at the home of Mrs. Tucker in Belvoir.

Guests were greeted by the hostesses and invited into the living room. Miss James was presented a corsage of white carnations.

Following a number of bridal games, guests were invited into the dining room for refreshments.

The table was covered with a pink satin damask cloth and centered with a large arrangement of white snapdragons and fern in a silver bowl. Tall triple candelabra holding slender candles stood on either side of this arrangement.

Mrs. Nelson poured punch and the guests enjoyed party sandwiches, bridal mints and nuts.

Miss James was showered with a number of gifts.

Recreation Dept. Starts New Program

Gordon Goodman, director of the local recreation department, has announced a new program for children from the first through sixth grades.

Beginning Saturday, there will be supervised play on the playgrounds at Elm Street Park from 10 until 11:30 a.m.

Students from East Carolina College will direct games and sports for the boys and girls.

Goodman today urged all children in the above age group to take part in this program.

Add dry mustard and paprika to the butter or margarine (melted) with which you are basting broiled chicken. Good flavor and color!

Club Program On Musical Team

Mrs. E. O. Parkinson was hostess to the Arles Book Club at her home on E. 10th Street Tuesday.

She chose Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II as her topic for the evening.

She told the club Richard Rodgers began playing at four years of age. His first composition was at age 14 and his first important achievement was in 1917 when he composed a complete score for a boy's athletic club to raise cigarette funds for American soldiers in France.

Part of his success at this time was due to "Connecticut Yankee," "Present Arms," "Heads Up" and "I'd Rather Be Right," the speaker said.

Oscar Hammerstein was born July 12, 1895 in New York City. He wanted to act as well as write. After attending Columbia University and studying law he worked with Jerome Kern. Out of this came "Show Boat" and "New Moon."

Rodgers and Hammerstein began their work together in 1942. Their first lyric was "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning." Their first big success together was "Oklahoma!" Mrs. Parkinson said.

Following this resume of Rodgers and Hammerstein, Mrs. Parkinson introduced Elizabeth White, Millie Bowden and her daughter Ann who rendered selections taken from "Oklahoma!", "Carousel," "South Pacific" and "The King and I."

They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Osa Shindler. A short business session followed, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Shindler and Mrs. J. Howard Moyer.

Disappearing Gadgets: New Look

By EDWARD S. KITCH
CHICAGO (AP)—Culinary science someday may include constant temperature storage for foods preserved by gamma-irradiation rays produced by atomic energy.

Illustrating advances in electronics and design, an all-plastic kitchen shown at the annual winter furniture market features appliances that appear and disappear under pushbutton control. It was created for a chemical company for display at Disneyland Park, Calif., during 1957.

Its simplicity might well rearrange home-making thinking. In the refrigerator and range area, the two-section 50-55-degree irradiated food refrigerator is located in a wall cabinet above the base cabinet. Press a button and the 7-foot fresh food storage compartment lowers for easy delivery of its contents.

The storage compartment is divided into two sections, each operating independently for reach-easy selection. Beside it is a normal 40-degree refrigerator.

The electronic range beneath it is "zoned" for cooking different food simultaneously. Glass door and side panels are coated to keep microwaves inside, giving a mirror-like effect to the exterior of the unit.

Nearby, a seven-cubic-foot freezer is mounted in a similar over-the-counter unit that drops down to convenient reaching level at the touch of a button. Its shelves and compartments are designed to store commercially packaged frozen foods, soups and juices.

An island unit houses an ultrasonic dishwasher that serves as a desk and communications center when the dish-washing unit is lowered into the base cabinet. Called an "Atoms For Living"

THEY DISAPPEAR... New placement for disappearing appliances is shown in a new kitchen designed to illustrate advances in electronics and design. The "island" in center houses ultrasonic dishwasher. Electronic range beneath the 40-degree refrigerator (center, right of corner) is enclosed by glass door and side panels especially treated to keep microwaves inside, giving maximum heat efficiency.

Kitchen, the design utilized the scientific principle that foods can be preserved by bathing them in gamma-irradiation rays.

Eighteen Cents A Day Isn't Much

Eighteen cents per day isn't a great deal of additional money to put into a child's public school education. As a matter of fact most citizens of the state wouldn't so much as blink an eye at the suggestion that such an amount be added to public education appropriations for the next two years.

Considering all the children in North Carolina's public schools, however, that amount totals some $67 million additional dollars which is being requested for North Carolina public schools during the next biennium. The total figure apparently has made a much greater impression on taxpayers than the average daily per student increase which is being contemplated.

No state has a greater asset than its young people. No state or community can afford to skip and cut corners when it comes to providing a child with the one thing which will go through life with him and strongly influence his well being and that of his community: his education.

The people of North Carolina have long recognized the value of their public school system. Probably no institution except the church is closer to the hearts of the people of this state. Few states of the union spend a higher percentage of their total revenue on schools than does North Carolina. While the state can be justly proud of these facts, it cannot escape the fact that the cost of education is going up just as the cost of most other things. The people of North Carolina must realize that while they have given their children the best possible education the state could afford, constant efforts must be made to improve the schools and the quality of program offered the students.

It is not enough for North Carolina to maintain the relative position of its public schools. A large percentage of the youngsters of the state still leave school without receiving a diploma. Far too many young people leave school after completing only a few grades.

If the state is to adequately prepare for its greater role in future years, the first prerequisite must be providing the young people of the state with a public school education which will equip them to meet the more exacting demands of years to come.

Sixty-seven million dollars is a lot of money to North Carolina taxpayers. But 18-cents a day for a school kid is not too much for the state to spend.

The Difference Lies In Amount Of Effort

What makes an All-America City? What makes it different from the hundreds of other communities of similar size and composition throughout the country?

For whatever else makes it different, the spirit of its people is a primary factor.

Laurinburg isn't a big city in North Carolina comparatively speaking. Yet, during the past year its people have done big things for their community. They raised some three million dollars for the new Presbyterian College, raised another quarter million dollars for a hospital wing, built a swimming pool and participated in a low rent housing project that cost more than half-million dollars.

While a community's progress cannot be measured in dollars and cents, it is evident that a community which has done the things Laurinburg has done in the past year is not standing still. It's people are taking an active interest in making their home town a better place in which to live.

In most every community people are making an effort in the same direction. The major difference is in the amount of effort put forth by the people.

Sales Not Tied To New Housing

By ELMER ROESSNER

The slowdown of the housing boom may not slow down the furniture industry. In fact, it may help it.

One of the American folk beliefs has been that furniture sales depend on housing construction. Even your correspondent seems to recall writing, "A million plus new housing units a year mean four million plus rooms to be furnished. The high rate of home building practically guarantees prosperity for the furniture industry."

Want to know a secret? I was wrong.

When the average family buys a new home it has very little money left and that is usually clipped by unexpected moving expenses, taxes and surprise bills. The family often starts out with a few new items — perhaps a television set, a refrigerator and a new bed — and struggles along with old possessions and what it can scrounge from friends and relatives. I am personally acquainted with a set of bed springs that has been moved into five new houses in succession. Not much bounce left to them now.

FIGURES PROVE POINT

New housing, of course, eventually means new furniture. But the first major investment in furnishings comes later, say after the second salary raise after the house is purchased. Thus the furniture industry this year may get more benefit from the 1,328,900 new housing units started in 1955 than from the 1,000,000 started last year or the 1,000,000 that may be started this year.

The fact that furniture sales are not dependent on new housing was demonstrated early in 1956. Housing starts slowed down, but during the first four months of the year furniture sales were 7 per cent above year-ago figures, according to Commerce Department.

Furthermore, as the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has pointed out, annual new home building amounts to only 2 or 3 per cent of the total number of dwellings.

The great opportunity for furniture manufacturers and dealers lies with those families, uncumbered by closing fees and new insurance obligations, who can use replacement furniture.

Surveys, the bank notes, indicate the average family replaces its furniture every 20 years. At that rate, 5 per cent of the families in houses more than a year old are prospects for major furniture sales, which is a far richer market than that offered by new home owners.

FASHION RELATIVELY NEW

It has been only in the last 30 years or so that the furniture industry has attempted to use fashion to speed obsolescence, the way the apparel and auto industries do. It introduced modern in an embarrassed sort of way and was surprised that it caught on as well as it did.

Since then, the industry has shown greater efforts to stress style. But even today a vast proportion of all furniture is in styles one, two or three hundred years old. Mr. Chippendale, so often bid good-bye, is still with us.

Manufacturers, within narrow limits, do have constant style changes but only to have an answer to the dealers' traditional question, "What's new?" As the Chicago bank observed, "It appears that continuous styling changes, so expensive to the manufacturer, are directed in part toward the dealer who must view his own showroom day after day, rather than the consumer who visits furniture stores only infrequently."

WIDELY SCATTERED

One of the reasons for the lack of a coordinated fashion drive by the industry is its scattered position. There are about 4,000 manufacturers, with some in every state of the union. Most are small only a handful do more than $10,000,000 in sales a year and only one (Kroehler) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Although the two Chicago Furniture shows each year are the most important ones, the industry also has two shows or more a year at High Point, N.C., New York, Grand Rapids, Mich., Jamestown, N.Y., San Francisco, Los Angeles and Dallas. High freight rates tend to protect each manufacturer from price competition from afar. This scattered condition tends to keep the $3.5 billion-a-year industry divided and retarded efforts toward periodic industry-wide fashions, which might easily double replacement sales.

TEASER CAMPAIGN ALMOST GOES WRONG

A Wilmington, Del., television dealer hit on the idea of using small newspaper ads to say that if a certain personage dropped in that day, he or she could have a free receiver. The invitation was extended, in turn, to Ava Gardner, Perry Como, Jayne Mansfield and other notables. It attracted considerable attention.

One day the ad offered a set to Joe Louis — and Joe happened into town. The boxer apparently did not see the ad. At least, to the dealer's relief, he didn't claim the set.

P.S.: The series has been discontinued.

Few Freshmen Are Truly Green

By LYNN NISBET

GET TOGETHER — Freshmen members will be less "fresh" in the 1957 General Assembly than in most previous legislatures. Several of them served by appointment in the special session last summer. Others visited the special session and got acquainted with old members and with legislative procedure.

Last Friday night more than 40 legislators from 44 eastern counties gathered at Kinston as guests of the Kinston chamber of commerce for a steak dinner. The dinner was preceded by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F.E. Wallace. This was the third pre-session get-together of eastern county members arranged by the Kinston chamber. There was no program, no appeal for support of any legislation, although Lynn Nisbet was asked to give a brief preview of some measures likely to come before the General Assembly. Main purpose was just to get the legislators better acquainted with each other.

For many years under the leadership of the late "Deacon" Greene of Asheville similar gatherings were held for the mountain area. Effect was closer cooperation among the counties for progressive legislation. Groups from smaller areas have gathered for the same purpose with wholesome results.

While many problems are common to the whole state, there are some with peculiar sectional impact. The upheaval in agriculture occasioned by tobacco acreage cuts mainly concerns the area represented at the Kinston gathering. Consensus of those present was that in establishing a basis for friendly cooperation among the lawmakers the Kinston chamber had made a substantial contribution to good government.

OPEN-MINDED — Eastern legislators seem to have open minds on much of the legislation already proposed by the several study commissions. There is marked disposition to "go along with the Governor" in every instance where full cooperation is possible without violating honest concepts of good government. Majority indicated they are not willing to let anybody else write their program or cast their votes in advance. They want more information on possible long range effects of suggested tax law revisions.

Several members vigorously object to what they call the "head tax," the permissive levy by cities and towns of an occupational tax on job holders. Also the proposal to allow cities to increase the cost of automobile license plates up to $10. Proponents of these suggestions, as well as mechanical inspection of automobiles and chemical tests for drunkenness, have a big selling job to do in the East.

COUSIN WAYLAND — House members do not expect any difficulty in organizing their body for the session. No opposition is in sight for Kemp Doughton as Speaker. Mrs. Annie Cooper as principal clerk and Billy Arthur as reading clerk. Most of the fellows also expect "Cousin Wayland" Spruill to be back as sergeant at arms, despite his announcement last week that he is not interested. There are perhaps half a dozen candidates in the offing, all waiting to make sure that Spruill really meant he wanted to get out before putting their names in the pot. Most of the easterners think his withdrawal was not more than halfhearted and that a very mild draft will keep him on the job.

FORKED TAILS — Demurrers interposed by several justices of the Supreme Court to the social protocol which requires full dress for tail suits on some occasions were promptly overruled by their women folk.

Two or three of the suits on a rack in a Raleigh clothing store attracted attention of the reporter. Inquiry elicited information they constituted part of the inaugural "trousseau" for members of the high court. It further developed that the eminent jurists, accustomed to business type working clothes and judicial robes, were reluctant to buy the tails. The argument has its inevitable conclusion: "For you, dear, I'll wear 'em."

LOW CAR — The State's new Cadillac which wears license plate No. 1 is much less comfortable for the number one passenger than was the old job. The seat traditionally assigned to the chief executive is the right rear. Space is skimpy enough when the jump-seats for seven passengers are up, especially since No. 1 must carry full two-way radio equipment on the highway patrol beam and air-conditioning. The much bragged-about reduced height and streamlined design of the new model brings the top so low that Governor Hodges cannot sit in his accustomed place without having his hat jammed into the roof. He gets along fine if the car isn't loaded to full capacity. Since he neither chews nor smokes, and has an inviolable rule against throwing anything out of the car onto the highway, he doesn't need an open window and can move nearer the middle of the rear seat and ride in comfort.

The new model low ceiling cars remind of what a friend said some years ago about his Austin. May be there isn't quite as much room inside, he said, but just think of how much more there is outside.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DIVINE CHARACTER INCARNATE

The Bible speaks of Jesus as "the express image of His (God's) person." And the word "here" used to express the idea of "the express image" is the Greek word "charakter." Jesus then is the character (character) of God.

Jesus is everything about God that the human mind can comprehend or that the human mind needs to comprehend. There may be certain things about the power and nature of God which were not set forth in the life and ministry of Jesus of Nazareth. But everything a human can understand about God and needs to understand is set forth in this one life. Jesus is God's moral nature (character) set forth in human flesh.

Man in the beginning was made in the image and after the likeness of God. Disobedience caused him to fall from this state of divine perfection. Salvation means as much of a return to the original perfection as the member of a fallen race can have.

So the teaching of the New Testament is that when we come in contact with Jesus, who is the incarnate character of God, He restores us to that original obedience in which man once walked with God in peace and security. In sin, we respond to the evil side of our natures; in salvation, we respond to the divine possibilities of our natures.

Jesus Christ restores us to a living relationship with God, and this He can do because He is God's character-incarnate.

The Shady Proposition

They're cutting down more of the old shade trees on Evans Street, a part of the natural glory of small towns wherever you may find them.

Progress must be served, and for the sake of progress it's understandable that old trees must sometimes go to make room for wider streets and level sidewalks; but there's nothing so appealing, so relaxing so stable as a tree-decked town.

You can say a lot for removing trees, but there's also a lot to be said for tree-lined streets, shaded parks and yards that boast their own leafy shelter from the sun.

A city with a multitude of trees exudes an atmosphere of peace and richness of soul that soothes harried tensions and brings calm to the troubled mind. It is a haven, whereas the monsters of asphalt, concrete, and glass and steel provide a mechanical — an "unnatural," if you will — shield against nature.

In the beginning, and for ages thereafter, there were no buildings, streets, ribbons of concrete or steel. These things are conveniences which today we cannot do without, but neither can people escape altogether from those things to which they were born.

When the vivid greens of spring appear, and later the darker greens of summer emerge, the chores of raking and pruning (which really occur in only one season) are dwarfed by the pleasures of having a skyline of leafy boughs.

It takes a lot of growing to make a tree, and it takes a lot of time. Some industries and governmental organizations make it a practice to plant a tree each time one is cut down; but that is largely because it's just good business and is less a matter of esthetics.

We've had our dogwood-planting campaigns . . . but the good, basic shade tree is hard to beat; and the first to realize this are people who have built in the new subdivisions which were once treeless cornfields or tobacco fields. Here and there one sees where a tree has been planted; a tree that someday will be a friendly symbol of strength, permanence and protection.

Planting a shade tree is really a matter of looking a long ways into the future.

On second thought, that's really why we're here today.

Tree-planting, anyone?

Other Editors Saying--- Back To The City

(Greensboro Daily News)

For misfits who can't "adjust" to suburbia there is heartening news from Richmond. In a small way some homeowners in an older, near-downtown district are bucking the tide to the periphery. They have decided to stay in the city and fight debilitation and decay rather than surrender to ranch style houses on half-acre lots and gray flannel commuters.

What is happening on Grove Avenue in the Fan District, observes the Richmond News Leader, is typical of the trend: The houses date in general from 1900 to 1910. They were built on lots 24 to 30 feet wide and perhaps 125 feet deep; in many respects they were and are "old-fashioned" houses. Yet techniques of sound architecture, and the resources of modern wiring, plumbing and heating, have restored them to comfortable use.

Believe it or not, there are people who actually like the city. A year or so back a trend was noted in New York—a trek back to the sidewalks of Gotham by disenchant suburbanites.

For them, the Richmonders who've decided to stick it out in town and for others who don't want to leave, the dean of Harvard's Graduate School of Design spoke out last summer. Jose Luis Sert told a group of architects and city planners that they "must first of all believe in cities, their importance and their value to human progress and culture." He added:

We must be urban minded. In late years we have heard about the evils of the city. . . To leave the city and live outside it has become a goal; everything good and healthy has become suburbanite. To solve the problems of the cities, our earlier city planners turned their backs to them. I should like to make a case for the city.

The case of Greensboro is somewhat different, and not only because of its size. Greensboro is behind in the business of incorporating its burgeoning suburbs and its immediate problem is to extend its limits to take them in.

But as this necessary process continues, consideration must be given to the older sections—areas which won't be touched by any foreseeable expansion of the central business community. There can and should be attractive areas for those who want to live in a residential district but close enough in to walk to town.

Development here should proceed along two lines: (1) A zoning plan that takes into consideration an over-all concept of urban design, including not only homes and apartments, but schools, business areas, parks, playgrounds, churches and other community facilities; and (2) encouragement of homeowners to stay put and keep up the neighbors.

Questionable members of the white and colored races were placed in positions of influence as national, state and local leaders. With only a few exceptions, appointments to Federal offices — District Attorneys, Marshals, Customs and Internal Revenue Collectors — were made on the same narrow and mercenary basis.

These Republicans' most important job — and it was about the only work they did — was to deliver delegates to their Party benefactors at Republican national conventions. Sometimes, as at Kansas City in 1928, they sold out to rival candidates for the nomination, and had to be bought back by the original purchasers.

DISGRACEFUL POLITICS OF OTHER TIMES Under such disgraceful circumstances, no self-respecting Southerner dared to register or vote as a Republican, even in Presidential contests. More importantly, no reputable newspaper could say a good word for that Party's platform or nominee. From 1928 until 1952, no state in the Deep South deserted the Democrats.

Even Experts Can Err

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Experts estimate the bridge-playing population of the United States at around 40 million.

Every hour on the hour, somewhere, Americans are playing, kibitzing, holding post-mortems, taking lessons, and telling stories of the slam that got away. We ought to be good at the game.

Yet the Bermuda Bowl, symbol of the world's bridge championship, has just gone over to Italy. Six Italian internationalists clobbered a top-flight American team by 10,001 points in 224 hands—a shocking margin.

Viewing with alarm, I called my old pal, Peter Leventritt, a member of the American team, to ask how this could come to pass.

"Perfectly simple," he said. "They outbid us, outplayed us, and outdefended us." No man to vanish facts, he.

The Italians used three separate systems, two of which can be understood by any nuclear physicist, or a good clairvoyant. Peter said they used some other curleyques in their offense as well.

But apart from these refinements, the basic reason for their success was simply momma-and-poppa bridge, polished to perfection.

"Those six play every day, and always together. No stakes, just for love of the game. They practice constantly together. So each one comes to know exactly what the other means by any given call."

"The American team? Shucks, we may not even see each other three times in a year."

Its almost a truism that a competent husband-and-wife team can give two experts, who haven't played regularly together, a real tussle at bridge. That is, assuming momma and poppa are en rapport, generally.

Leventritt is not one of those who downgrades the ability of women players.

Mrs. Helen Sobel, who played against the Italians, was the first woman from any nation to compete in the international tournament. "She's as good as any man alive," he said.

Ever wonder how it feels to play in such a contest?

Probably hundreds of thousands of kibitzers watched this one; it was televised. And the two big hotel rooms were packed with spectators, watching the hands on a mirror arrangement outside sound-proof booths. Kind of frightening.

Peter said he has less than eight hours sleep during the six days of the tournament. He couldn't unwind at home.

"I kept replaying the hands while I was asleep," he said. "Then I'd sit bolt up right, wondering, 'Now why did I do that?'"

Yep, the experts made common, ladies-afternoon-tea boners, too, four of them — a revoke, a lead out of turn, and two wrong cards pulled. Each team erred twice.

Once, the door of the booth accidentally came open a few inches. Leventritt and his partner arrived at a small slam. As they bid it, he said, he heard rumormongers go up from the crowd — indicating they had surpassed the corresponding Italian bid, in the other booth, on this hand.

"One of the Italians leaned over and congratulated us," he said.

Making it was something else again. Yes, the finesse worked. A bit of unscheduled drama resulted from televising the proceedings, he said.

One night, Leventritt and his partner reached a contract in no trump that seemed headed for certain disaster. They had no stopper in spades. As the play started, the TV time ended and the cameras went elsewhere.

In two seconds," he said, "the switchboards at the station and the hotel were jammed. People kept calling to ask if we made it."

Well, did they? Lady luck stepped in at that point. The Italians erred on the opening lead.

It was one of the few times the momma-and-poppa system failed.

For the one appointment on the Civil Aeronautics Board reserved for the Democrats, Ike picked a well-known Miami lawyer, Louis J. Hector, after endorsement by Senators Holland and Smathers. The President had to resist strong pressure from the Northwest to rename Joseph P. Adams of Washington State, for the Far West has a deep and growing concern with commercial aviation.

Although he ran against Ike as a Conservative Independent, T. Coleman Andrews of Richmond falls into this category. One of the nation's ablest certified public accountants, he did an excellent job in purifying and streamlining the Internal Revenue Bureau before he resigned as Federal Director. Although not formally endorsed by Senator Byrd of Virginia, Andrews was eminently satisfactory to this veteran Democrat.

In short, Ike had shown himself to be a Christopher Columbus in remaking the map of American politics, at least temporarily.

CHICAGO (AP)—Discovery of the nude, frozen bodies of the missing Grimes sisters set police on a full-scale search today with the hope a solution may also be found to the unsolved slayings of three boys.

Authorities quickly noted similarities in the slayings of the girls—Barbara Grimes, 15, and Patricia, 13—and the three school-boys whose bodies were found 15 months ago, nude and strangled in a wooded area.

Police picked up two men for questioning. Both denied any knowledge of the slayings.

One man was released. The second, identified by police as Walter Krantz, 51, a laborer, was held for further interrogation. Police said he had been questioned last week about the girls' disappearance and released.

The girls' bodies were found along a little-traveled country road southwest of Chicago. They had left home the night of Dec. 28 to see an Elvis Presley movie.

There had been numerous reports they were seen in the city or en route to Nashville to meet Presley. Police had been inclined to conclude the girls were runaways.

Their mother Mrs. Loretta Grimes, 48, insisted throughout that the girls met with foul play. Her divorced husband Joseph, 48, a truck driver, reflected frustration and bitterness when he came to the country road and looked at the bodies.

"That's Barbara," he said. Then his body seemed to go slack and he wept bitterly.

Helped by two policemen who walked him from the roadside, he cried: "I told them (police) the girls wouldn't run away. Why in the hell wouldn't they listen?"

Sheriff Joseph Lohman said the bodies may have been placed along the German Church Road, near Willow Springs, as long as two weeks ago. A heavy snow Jan. 9-10 apparently hid them.

A rain and thaw Monday removed the snow. The bodies, lying about 10 feet from the road, were found by a motorist.

Barbara's chest bore three marks which Lohman and coroner's officials said could have been inflicted by a small-caliber rifle or an ice pick. No clothing was found, just as in the case of the slaying of the three boys.

The cause of death must await findings by a team of three pathologists who will begin detailed examination today.

Police said the three marks on Barbara's chest raised another similarity between the Grimes' girls slayings and the brutal murder of the three boys in October 1955.

The bodies of the boys—Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother Anton, 11—showed markings which police said may have been inflicted by a pronged tool. Their bodies were tossed into Robinson Woods northwest of Chicago, about 20 miles from the scene of yesterday's discovery.

Police said Krantz was picked up last week after they had received a mysterious telephone call in which a man said that if the Grimes girls were to be found police should search Santa Fe Park. This park is about a mile and a half from where the bodies were found. Krantz was seized at his home yesterday and again he steadfastly denied any connection with the slayings.

Have No Amendments To Mid-East Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senior members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee announced today they have "no amendments" to offer to the Eisenhower Middle East resolution.

Chairman Gordon (D-Ill.) and Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) spoke as the committee gathered to consider possible changes in President Eisenhower's plan for opposing Communist expansion in the troubled Middle East.

The House group was expected to come to a final vote soon, perhaps tomorrow, in an effort to have the resolution ready for House action next week.

But some committee members said they would like to see some changes. One might be a limit on the effective time of the resolution. It now has no terminal date.

In the Senate, Chairman Humphrey (D-Minn.) of the Foreign Relations subcommittee on disarmament yielded the right of way to the Eisenhower resolution by postponing hearings originally slated to resume today. The full committee takes up the Middle East plan again tomorrow with further questioning of Secretary of State Dulles.

The Senate timetable makes it almost certain that the resolution will not clear Congress by the end of January, the date named by Dulles in urgent pleas to meet what he says is a Middle East crisis.

Eisenhower wants authority from Congress to use U.S. military force in the strategic area in case of open Communist aggression there.

Another, more-disputed part of his resolution would provide for up to 200 million dollars in economic aid to the Middle East without restrictions in the present law. The money would come from already-voted foreign aid funds. An additional 200 millions a year also would be authorized for each of the next two years.

Vorys predicted "fairly fast" House committee approval of a resolution which he said will "look a good bit the way it looks now."

He said possible changes might be to provide for termination of the resolution by a majority vote of Congress or of either house; to give the United Nations a more prominent place in the resolution; and to make clearer America's opposition to "colonialism."

Rep. Zablocki (D-Wis.) said he would offer a substitute which would not have the force of law. It would approve use of troops and would handle economic aid to the Middle East in a separate bill.

Rep. Fulton (R-Pa.) said he wants to expand the resolution to include aid to Hungarian refugees and to refugees of the Middle East strife.

Representatives Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.), Saunders (D-Calif.), Byrd (D-WVa.) and Fassel (D-Ill.) all said they now have no amendments in mind.

Nat'l Guard Officials Set Talks On New Army Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)—National Guard officials from the various states gather today to discuss an Army decision substituting six months' active duty for the Guard's eight-week basic training program.

Some of the state adjutants general and commanders of state guard organizations went yesterday to Ft. Monroe, Va., where Army representatives explained the Army position on training reservists. That meeting had been scheduled since last summer.

The meeting here today was set after the Jan. 14 Army announcement of the new program which stirred immediate criticism from some Guard officials.

The program specifies that effective April 1, enlistees in civilian components of the Army who have not had prior service must receive a minimum of six months active duty for training purposes.

The announcement said the National Guard Bureau of the Army had expressed a "nonconcurring view."

The Guard Bureau apparently reflected to some extent the position of the National Guard Assn., an unofficial group composed of representatives of the state organizations.

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh (retired), president of the association, has said that the association is a "strong advocate" of basic training for all new enlistees in reserve components, including the Army National Guard and the Air National Guard.

But in a statement issued last week, Walsh said the association urges a shorter period of active duty training "which would be more acceptable to the youth of this country."

He added, "Some members of the Army staff are known to feel that a shorter training period than six months would suffice."

The six-month program the Army has announced was recommended by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff.

Walsh contends that National Guard strength will be reduced by 110,000 men in the next two years "and its status as the nation's first line reserve force drastically impaired" by the changes specified in the Army's reserve training program.

National Guard Bureau officials estimate the strength of the guard, by the end of the current fiscal year June 30, will be about 400,000. Budget money available in the current fiscal year permits placement of 7,500 youths in a six-month guard training program. Up to now, slightly more than 2,300 have been enrolled.

Chased Elephant Through Streets

NAGOYA, Japan (AP)—Hundreds chased a three-ton elephant through Nagoya streets for two hours today after the animal broke away from her keepers.

The 13-year-old elephant, Hamako, had outgrown her compound at the Hamamatsu City Zoo, 70 miles away, and was being moved into the Higashiyama Park Zoo in Nagoya.

Hamako finally was captured in the hills about a mile south of the zoo. An hour later she snapped her rope again and started on another jaunt. This time she was free only 40 minutes.

No Typing Test; Machines Poor

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The city's typewriters being what they are typing has been eliminated from examinations for clerk-typists. No typing test or qualifying speed hereafter will be required of high school seniors or graduates who have completed a typing course, officials decided.

Too many applicants were flunking the tests, officials said, because the typewriters on which typing exams were taken are, as one young girl applicant wrote, "lousy."

No Surprise For Gloria Swanson

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Gloria Swanson will be the subject of "This is Your Life" TV show tonight—but it will be no surprise.

The silent screen star informed Ralph Edwards she knew she was to be the subject. She explained that she just put two and two together when she was invited to appear at NBC studios in a tribute to two old time bosses—Jesse Lasky and Cecil B. DeMille.

Edwards decided to go ahead with the show anyhow despite the lack of surprise.

No Help For His Fight In Court

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—W. F. Derrington, who operates a cafeteria in the Houston Court House, says the Texas Restaurant Assn. has refused to help finance his court fight to keep from serving Negroes.

The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans recently ordered Derrington to serve Negroes but granted him time to prepare an appeal.

John L. Lewis, president of the association, said he sympathizes with Derrington, "but I would never think of asking the association to pay my attorney's bill. Lewis also operates a Houston cafeteria."

Kinston Wallops Green Phants By 76-34 Score Here

Kinston's Red Devils Were Flying High Last Night At ECC Gym

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Kinston's powerful Red Devils, defending state AA champions, whipped an undermanned Greenville high school crew 76-34, to notch their eleventh straight victory of the season, last night, at Memorial Gymnasium.

As if the Phantoms didn't have enough on their hands (they were ranked 21-point underdogs), they went into the game without their two first-string centers and a coach.

Coach Boley Farley was absent due to a throat infection that has kept him from school for several days. Assistant Coach Bob Howell handled things.

Joe Wingate and Steve Noble, both 6-2 centers who have held top positions in Farley's two-plate system, were not present. Wingate was involved in a gas explosion Monday night and received badly-burned hands. He will be out of action indefinitely. Noble has been sick with a virus infection.

Slow Start

The contest got off to a slow start, with the Phants playing tight possession game. Kinston sank two free tosses to take a 2-0 lead and Greenville took possession and stopped action cold with a pass-and-hold style. Roebuck finally tapped one in to even it at 2-2. From there, it moved to a 4-4 stage, then to a 6-6 stage. At that point, Kinston took over and began a rout that ended with a 42-point winning margin.

The Devils whacked at the nets unmercifully and pumped the score to a quick 14-6. Guard Alley Hart and forwards Lewis and Stanley paced the scoring in that period. By the end of the first quarter, the score stood 18-7. The very obvious turning point in the action came on four consecutive field goals by Hart from deep in the backcourt, starting the Kinston machine rolling.

The second period was even more painful for the home team. Kinston continued their wild rampage, racking up 15 more points with a rapid-fire brand of ball that caught the Phants flat-footed. Greenville could manage only two field goals and two free throws during the whole quarter.

Massacre
Kinston's powerful combination of height, speed and shooting ability, plus their razor-sharp defensive play, soon turned the Northeastern Conference match into a massacre. In the beginning moments of the second half, the Red Devils again caught fire and rapped the G-Men soundly.

Despite the extensive use of reserves, Coach Amos Sexton's team continued to rack up a huge surge of points, while the Phants couldn't seem to connect on their shots or nab a rebound. Kinston whipped in 21 points; the Greemies collected nine.

The final period was Kinston's best effort of the night. They poured in 22 points and kept the Phants befuddled and confused with tight defensive work. They employed a full-court press throughout the second half.

Greenville, too, had its best period in the last quarter. They collected 12 points. With less than a minute left in the game, the G-Men still hadn't broken into the thirties. Two free throws and two more field goals finally gave them their 34, with only seconds remaining.

In conference, Kinston is still tops with a 6-0 mark. Greenville dropped to third with a 4-2 record.

SOMERS SCORES—Kinston's Fletcher Somers (10) was caught by the camera last night as he sailed through the air to net 10 points in the Red Devils' 76-34 rout of Greenville at ECC's Memorial Gymnasium. Trying to stop Somers' shot is Greenville forward Dick Evans (33). Alley Hart, senior guard for the defending state AA champions, was high scorer for Kinston and for the night. He plunked in 17 points. Dave Adkins, another Red guard, added 16, to take follow-up laurels in the Northeastern tilt.

AGAIN—Somers, who played only in reserve spots last night, seems to have done enough jumping for the whole Kinston team. Above, he is shown sliding off the shoulder of Phantom Mack Roebuck in another lay-up attempt. He missed this time. (Reflector Sports Photos by Billy Arnold.)

Uniforms Given Mites, Midgets

Moose Lodge number 885 of sent. Greenville, presented to the Mite and Midget basketball boys of this area basketball uniforms, for eight local teams, Monday night, at the lodge.

Representatives of the teams and of the Greenville Recreation Department were present to accept the gifts.

Making the presentation were Major E. J. Maloney and Colonel L. J. Partridge. They represented the Civic Affairs Committee of the local lodge, while Steve Partridge and Billy Neal James represented the boys' teams. Gordon Goodman and W. C. James, of the recreation department, were also present.

For the past six years, the local Mite and Mite leagues have been competing without regulation uniforms. The age groups for the two leagues are as follows: Mites must be not older than 12 prior to September 1, 1956; the Midgets must not be older than 14 prior to the same date.

Goodman, Recreation head, stated that all boys interested in playing for either of the leagues, who are in Greenville schools and can qualify otherwise, are welcome. All Mite games are held at the Wahl-Coates Training school, while the Midget games are played at the Greenville Armory.

Rumors Spread Citadel Will Lose 6 Footballers

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Reports circulated here last night that six members of the Citadel football team may leave the college as a result of punishment for "serious infractions" of regulations.

College authorities issued a statement saying that six members of the football squad had been disciplined. The terse announcement added:

"We can say only that for serious infractions of college regulations they have been given punishment. The six were not named. A spokesman said policy normally prohibits such an announcement but he said, 'It is recognized that a special interest attaches to our athletes.'"

According to a story in the Charlotte Observer by Sports Editor Wilton Garrison, one of those threatened to leave the school was Angelo Coia, freshman from Philadelphia who led the Bulldogs in rushing last season. Garrison said Coia reportedly was considering Wake Forest and other schools. He quoted Coia as saying he has had athletic scholarship offers from several Atlantic Coast Conference and South-eastern Conference schools.

Coia also was quoted as saying that if he quits, guard Albie Banskavage, of Hialeah, Fla., will go with him.

Others, in addition to Coia and Banskavage, named by Garrison were Joe Keller, sophomore center from Bayonne, N.J.; Bob Sanders, sophomore end from London, Bridge, Va.; Bob Schwarze, sophomore quarterback from Jersey City and Pete Davidson, tackle from Dayton, Ohio.

Baseball Ranks Calm Over Interracial Sports Ban Bill

ATLANTA (AP)—Baseball men generally remained calm today after being told a Georgia state senator had introduced a bill banning interracial athletic contests. The measure, offered yesterday in the General Assembly by Sen. Leon Butts Jr., would also prohibit dancing, social functions and athletic training involving white persons and Negroes.

It was aimed chiefly at professional baseball, however, and specifically at the Class A South Atlantic League. Butts, who once played football at the University of Chattanooga, said many persons in his area refused to attend Sally League games at Columbus because Negroes played with whites.

A bill similar to Butts' was beaten in the Georgia House last year.

Butts said he was in favor of doing away with baseball "if they can't get along without Negroes."

At Macon, General Manager Jerry Waring of the Macon club pointed to the fact that Columbus more than doubled its 1955 attendance last year and suggested that the Columbus club might do well to hire some Negro players.

Jim Grieves, general manager at Columbus, said there were many factors involved in the sharp attendance increase. He cited the club's break with the St. Louis Cardinals and pointed to local ownership as one reason. Others, he said, were a preseason ticket drive and a popular hometown manager in Lamar Newsome.

Grieves added that the appearance of Negro stars like Jacksonville's Juan Pizarro boosted attendance.

"Whatever legislation is passed, baseball will abide by it. Baseball was founded on that aim," he declared.

General Manager Bill Herring of the Columbia, S.C. Gems, said he believed Negro players hurt white attendance materially. Also, he said, Negro attendance fell in the South Carolina capital.

"We have not had any outstanding Negro players since I have been in Augusta," said Tigers' General Manager Bob Bonifay.

"But I am sure Columbus and Jacksonville realized attendance increases because of such players as Juan Pizarro and Billy Springfield."

At Jacksonville and Knoxville, however, club spokesmen said the use of Negro players made very little difference in crowd turnouts.

By banning training activities, the Butts measure would force major league teams to move their minor league practice camps out of Georgia. In past years, there has been much activity along this line in Thomasville, Waycross and Albany. Exhibition games would also be out if a Negro player were involved.

The chief executive officer for the games, Sir William Bridgeford said the loss was brought about by fast rising costs on estimates that were made long before the games.

Hamia Seen Top Title Contender

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Cherif Hamia, a clever curly-haired Algerian, leads the pack of challengers snapping at the world featherweight title now that Sandy Saddler has been retired.

The National Boxing Assn. hopped into the fray last night when Fred Saddy, secretary, said in Milwaukee the winner of a bout between Hamia and Carmelo Costa of New York would be recognized as new champion.

The New York State Athletic Commission is expected to come up with some sort of a formula, involving the leading contenders, when the medical report on Saddler is digested.

Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico recently beaten by Gil Cadilli of San Francisco, probably will be in the midst of the scramble. Saddy said Berrios, who had been No. 2 in both NBA and Ring ratings, was dropped to third behind Costa after his defeat by Cadilli.

According to Saddy's formula, Hamia and Costa would have to file an agreement with the NBA to defend the newly-won title within 90 days after their bout against the man designated as leading challenger by the NBA.

Hamia outpointed Costa in a Madison Square Garden 10-round, March 30, 1956 on a split decision.

Greenville's Jayvees took a 50-20 licking here last night in the preliminary contest to the GHS-Kinston game, as the Kinston Baby Devils made the night a clean sweep for the visitors.

Charlie Staton of Greenville and Kinston's Jim Hearn shared high scoring honors with 14 points each.

The rest of the Phantom scoring went as follows: Bynum 4, Ward 2, Finch 6, Cummings 2.

Big Ten Braking 'Fire Wagons'

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten is putting the brakes on "fire wagon" basketball, or at least giving the game back to the defense.

The conference is experimenting with a rule which disallows the bonus free throw on the first six fouls by a team during each half and also a "no harm, no foul" policy.

This has tended to inspire varied defensive play with some coaches, during a single game, mixing zone, full court presses and regular man-to-man defenses.

It also has trimmed five to seven minutes from the playing time of an average game, resulted in an average team score shrinking about seven points and decreased foul calling by about 10 per cent.

Bill Haarlow, Big Ten supervisor of officials, said the six-foul regulation is proving so satisfactory he is confident it will be written into the collegiate code next year.

Haarlow told the Chicago Basketball Writers yesterday the "no harm, no foul" policy may take some time for acceptance by fans. He emphasized that in play close to the basket—in the slot—that fouls are called as strictly as ever. But in mid-court or back court, such infractions as accidental bumping and other minor violations escape the official's whistle.

'Met' Becoming U.S. Institution

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera is turning into the Cosmopolitan Opera.

The big house at Broadway and 39th used to cater almost exclusively to New Yorkers, but now it is beginning to reach out widely all across the land.

You can't go to performances without coming to the house itself, except of course for its regular but rare out-of-town trips. But the Met will do a lot of other things for you without your bugging from your home town in Texas, Virginia, Florida, Michigan, Colorado or Washington.

Most of these off-campus activities center in the National Council of the Metropolitan Opera Assn. founded in 1952 by Mrs. August Belmont, headed now by Mrs. Frederick K. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, and becoming stronger every year. Reaching into local communities on a scope far greater than any Metropolitan organization of the past, the council's efforts may finally bring the day when you in Oshkosh and you in Kalamazoo can speak of "our Met" with as much justification as we say "our Met" in New York.

The Council helps finance new productions here, admits members to some dress rehearsals; holds annual meetings; has published "Opera Manual" and plans a monthly Bulletin.

Service Important
From the out-of-town's point of view, it exerts its principal influence through the new Central Opera Service (COS) and regional auditions.

The COS, working from files kept at the Met in New York, provides hundreds of hints and helps to all the member opera groups and workshops across the country.

What's a translation of "La Boheme"? How do we hide the on-stage band in "Aida"? We have two tenors and two sopranos, what's a good opera we could put on to use them? We have a fine ballet group, what opera would show it off to best advantage? Answers to questions such as these are an important part of the direct service COS is providing for communities throughout the nation.

As a measure of the size of the operation, more than 500 organizations have been asked to file data with the COS, organizations which are so active now that nine operas are produced every day in the United States.

Auditions Expanded
The second big community service of the council is its financial support for a greatly expanded auditions system that through local and regional competition feeds talent to the annual Auditions of the Air.

Begun in the 1930s, Auditions of the Air up until recently operated only in New York. Perhaps 500 singers were heard each year. Thanks to efforts of local chapters of the council, about 1,000 young people were screened last year and the number may rise to 1,500 this season. About one in 10 of the prospects has a chance to be heard by the ultimate authority, a Met assistant general manager.

Miss Marguerite Wickersham, director of the council, maintains that these auditions yield great benefit locally. In the past, local companies have complained that the Met was too remote and didn't pay any attention to local problems. Now the Met — through the COS advisory service and the auditions-program — goes right into the community.

Beneficial Effect
Just the organization of local auditions results in closer cooperation among all the individuals in the local music world — the press and radio, the director, manager, conductor, music club. And many local singers get a chance with the local symphony which, without publicity stemming from the audition, had been denied them before.

Auditions this year have already been held in Seattle. There will be others this winter in Salt Lake City, Tulsa, Chicago, Cleveland, New Orleans and Minneapolis, first community to start them back in 1952.

The council has more than 200 members, who pay $500 a year, and associate members, who pay $250. Besides financing the auditions program, the council also gives the Met a new production every year — Offenbach's "La Perichole" was scheduled 1956-57 novelty.

Only 13 Dates Said Important
FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—History may become a more popular subject in schools of the future if recommendations of two Fresno State College history professors are given wide acceptance.

Only 13 dates are important enough to be remembered by the average American citizen—and 40 are sufficient for college students—Dr. Francis A. Wiley and Dr. Clair E. Nelson maintain.

The 13 dates they believe should stay with a person for life are:
1. Discovery of America in 1492.
2. The Protestant Reformation of 1517.

3. Settlement of Jamestown in 1607.
4. Introduction of slavery and the first legislative assembly of 1619.

5. Coming of British sovereignty over much of North America in 1763.
6. Declaration of Independence in 1776.

7. Establishment of government under the American constitution, 1789.
8. Rise of the common man's participation in government, 1828.

9. The American Civil War, 1861.
10. The war with Spain, 1898.
11. World War I, 1914.

12. Depression of 1929.
13. Entry of America into World War II, 1941.

Those are the 13 events that should be kept in their chronological order for a reasonably good understanding of a nation, say the two professors.

The Nike Ajax, a 25-mile-range missile supplied antiaircraft batteries guarding vital American cities, is being replaced by the bigger, more lethal Nike Hercules, with approximately twice the range.

Described as able to destroy any present supersonic planes, Hercules is controlled by an improved electronic "brain."

Known as the missile master system, this brain collects target information by radar, feeds it through an intricate computer and, electronically locking onto the missile, directs it to the intruding plane.

A direct hit is not necessary to destroy a plane, Nike experts say, because of the terrific blast and fragmentation.

The missile master system, now in production by the Glenn L. Martin Co., is operational already at Ft. Meade, Md., where a pilot model is in service at defense batteries guarding the Washington-Baltimore area.

Nike defenses today guard many of the key centers.

In a broad sweep north from Washington through New England, across the industrial Midwest to the industrial complex around Hanford, Wash., the Nike defenses reach out to Seattle and down the Pacific Coast as far as Los Angeles. The Army plans to similarly protect San Diego soon.

New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo-Niagara, Chicago-Gary, Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles are among the cities where Ajax will be replaced by Hercules.

Nike, named after the Greek winged goddess of victory, actually is a family of weapons. The Army is developing other missiles, such as Zeus, with probably greater range.

Nine Divorcees Are Among Judgments Signed Here

Nine divorces, two dismissals of appeals, a non-suit and a settlement were among judgments signed Monday by Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain.

Judge Fountain is presiding over a one week term reserved for civil actions. He replaced Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill who was assigned but withdrawn because of illness in his family.

A settlement of $2,000 was reported in a suit by James E. Bizzell against Johnny (Johnnie) Wilson. The suit, originally for $12,100, was entered by Bizzell after an accident April 6, 1956, when Wilson's truck allegedly ran off the highway, overturned and injured Bizzell. The judgment signed by Judge Fountain noted that the $2,000 was a "full and complete settlement."

Refrigeration Discount Corporation asked for, and got, a non-suit ruling in its action against Mack Harris. The original action charged that Harris had failed to meet the terms of a contract under which he purchased a refrigerator.

Appeal notices by Claude C. Tyson and Willie Britt were ordered withdrawn by Judge Fountain. Tyson had entered an appeal in a non-suit in his action against Sinclair Refining Company, John G. Clark and Wiley L. Waters, alias J. B. Waters, after the November 1956 term of Superior Court. Judge Fountain's judgment stated that the appeal was withdrawn and abandoned, and that the case was removed from the civil docket under terms of the November judgment.

Britt's notice appeal was removed after a motion by attorneys for Fred Harris and the Farmville Oil and Fertilizer Company. The motion noted that Judge Chester R. Morris had allowed Britt 30 days to perfect an appeal after an August ruling in which a demurrer by the defendants was allowed. The motion to strike the appeal notice was allowed after it was pointed out that the plaintiff had failed to perfect the appeal.

Divorces granted were all on the grounds of two years separation and were absolute divorces. They were awarded to Mary Madry Bickelstaff, from Frank H. Bickelstaff; Walter Little, from Gladys Little; O'Neal R. Foell, from John J. Foell; J. R. Dr. Browning Is Named Counsellor For Institutes Of Management

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky — Appointment of Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department of business education at East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C., as an educational counsellor for the Southern Institute of Management and the American Institute of Management was announced today.

Howard C. Bowles, executive vice president of SIM, said Dr. Browning is one of 15 Southern educators who qualified last summer at the Administrative Staff College at Princeton, N. J., to teach "The Executive Course" of SIM and AIM. The Staff College is maintained jointly by these two not-for-profit foundations.

Duties of the educational counsellor, Bowles said, include the handling of arrangements and details for establishing and instructing "The Executive Course" among management executive groups, with SIM's cooperation, approval and selection. Dr. Browning will be responsible for conducting the course within his geographic area.

A native of Logan, W. Va., Dr. Browning was educated at Bowling Green Business University; Marshall College; Duke University, where he received his master's degree in education; and Colorado State College of Education, where he received his doctorate in education.

He was a high school teacher for two years and a principal eight years before joining the East Carolina College faculty in 1936. He was a visiting professor at the Woman's College, University of North Carolina, in 1946 and at the University of Montana in 1950. During World War II he served with the Information and Education Division of the War Department at Shrinvenham American University in England and at Biarritz American University in France.

CONSTIPATED? New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrift" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONOID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONOID's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONOID's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONOID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has passed safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONOID neither gags, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions. It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONOID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONOID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

Nat Cole Tries His Hand In Acting Role

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Here's the latest singer to turn actor—Nat King Cole.
"I figured Frank Sinatra could do it," Cole reasons. "Bing Crosby has done all right. So has Doris Day."
"So why shouldn't I give it a try? After all, I've done a lot of performing before audiences. My job has been to interpret lyrics, to put meaning into them. If I could do it with songs, why couldn't I do it with dialogue? So here I am."

And there he was, decked out in the jungle outfit of a French Foreign Legionnaire in Indochina. He plays an expatriate American in "China Gate," a hard-hitting adventure film of warfare against the Communists.

Cole didn't know exactly what he was getting into. Accustomed to his immaculate tuxedo for his night club performances, he found himself on his first day in jungle garb sloshing through hip-deep swamps on the Pathe back lot.

Instead of tickling the ivories with his deft touch, he was firing automatic rifles into the greenery.

"But I'm enjoying it," he admitted. "It's a real challenge to me. Naturally the pay can't compare to what I can earn in night clubs. But in my income tax bracket, it wouldn't pay me to earn any more."

"The important thing is that it could add a new facet to my career. Right now we are setting up a deal to film the life of W. C. Handy with me in the leading role. We have secured the rights to his biography and are trying to line up Lena Horne to play in it."

Cole admitted that he had done no real play-acting since high school. Nor has he taken any dramatic lessons.

"I think there's too much concentration on technique in acting these days," he said. "I wanted to play the role as naturally as I could, to try to imagine how a man would react under certain circumstances. The main thing was to be natural."

Pronounced Dead But He Objects

DERBY, England (AP)—William M. Muir, 42, shook hands with the coroner who recorded his death under the wheels of a train 23 months ago.

Producing a copy of his own death certificate, Muir said, "I've come to see about having this altered."

Said Coroner Frank Barnett: "From what I have learned since then, I am sure this is a case of mistaken identity."

Barnett added that Muir could return to the world of the legally living by making a sworn declaration establishing his identity.

The name of the train victim mistaken for Muir is still unknown.

Cost Is Higher If Conscious

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If you're conscious and you hear the siren in a private ambulance you'll know the trip to the hospital is going to cost you 50 cents more.

City officials so decreed in adjusting upward the rates for private ambulance service—from $10 to $12 minimum, and from $2 to $2.50 for sounding the siren.

Extra fees for service after 5 p.m. went from $2 to $2.50. A night ride—with siren—will cost a minimum of $17.

Plan Expanding High Point Plant

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—New England Industries, Inc. has announced plans for expansion at the firm's plant here.

S. R. Beeching, manager of the plant, said about three million dollars will be spent in additions to the main building are planned which will house three new presses, plus smaller buildings for finishing and other operations.

The firm, here but a year, produces chipboard from scrap wood used widely in the manufacture of furniture.

His Story Fails To Sway Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Wesley Parker, 34, was charged with driving 75 miles an hour. He explained to Municipal Judge William O'Brien:

His 17 year old auto wasn't working well, so he asked for a push and, well...

An obliging motorist just pushed him too fast, that's all.

The judge ordered a $50 fine and six months probation.

Sparkman Sees Housing Slump

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) said today that construction of new homes may drop to a million or less this year because of what he termed the tightness of the money market.

In 1955, 1,300,000 new homes were built and in 1956, 1,100,000. The National Assn. of Home Builders has estimated that 1,400,000 new homes must be built this year to meet the housing demand.

In a prepared address at the national convention of the association, Sparkman, who is chairman of the Senate subcommittee of housing, said that 1957 would be a year of decision for the housing industry.

He added:

"The question we face is: 'Can the industry continue to be dominated by financial policies which do not fully take into account either housing needs or the necessity for maintaining a healthy industry?'"

Sending More To Training Schools

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina courts commit a higher percentage of children to training schools than the national average.

This was noted yesterday by Dr. Ellen Winston, state commissioner of public welfare, at a special conference here. She said, "We need to do some relooking to see whether we are giving sufficient consideration to other types of facilities to help the child."

Constructive planning for boys and girls committed to the state's training schools was the theme of the day-long session. Approximately 150 persons attended, including

Mother Ordered Avoid Parents

DETROIT (AP)—A 34-year-old mother of four children was sentenced to stay away from her parents for four years to solve what she called an uncontrollable impulse to steal.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard issued the order as part of the four-year probationary sentence he handed to Mrs. Jean Chernik for the theft of a $15 utility refund check from a mailbox.

Judge Picard said, "I'm convinced, after studying the case, that your trouble stems from too much interference from your parents."

Mrs. Chernik, in tears, testified: "I have been stealing ever since I was a little girl. These impulses come over me and I have to steal. I don't know why. I don't need the money..."

CHAPTER 34

The Red Nymph moored on the north bank of the Missouri one day's travel below the site of Fort Butterfield. To most of the passengers it was just another night stop, but to four of them the hours of darkness were endless.

Otto Grunwald, in charge of the supplies that were being sent to Butterfield, stood beside the rail pulling on his cigar. He had thought of Elizabeth Tipton with growing concern for the past week. He was never an articulate man. He always found that he could not put his tongue to the right words when the subject was something he felt strongly about.

All the way up the river he had wanted to talk to Elizabeth about Stiner, to tell her that Stiner was not the man for her. If the rumor about the fort was true, and Chad was dead, then Elizabeth would turn to Stiner because there was no one else. In a violent burst of anger he threw his cigar into the water. She'd be better off if she jumped overboard. Otto was not a man given to hatreds, but he hated Stiner with a deep and fervent hatred. He hadn't even been civil to the man after they had left St. Louis. He didn't need to be. Myra was not on board.

But his feeling about Elizabeth was something else. If he'd ever had a daughter, he would have wanted her to be exactly like Elizabeth. He had often thought about it. A daughter would have changed his and Myra's life. Myra would have had no time for a man like Stiner.

Driven by his conscience, he walked along the deck to Elizabeth's cabin and knocked on the door, knowing she might resent what he said about Stiner, but knowing, too, that he had to try.

"Come in," she called.

He stepped inside and closed the door. She was very pale, and remembering how these last few days had dragged out for her, he wondered how she could stand the next few hours. He sat down on the bunk, holding his forage cap in front of him. Suddenly he was panicky, for he could not find the words that must be said. Then he blurted, "If you find out that Chad is dead, are you going to marry Stiner?"

What a way to say it, he thought. No tact. She stared at the floor, and then she said slowly, "I don't know, Otto."

He cleared his throat, suddenly inspired by an idea. "Elizabeth, I thought a lot of your father, and I think a lot of you. So does Myra. We'd like for you to come and live with us if we don't find Chad."

She looked up, blinking as she struggled with her emotions. "Otto, that's a wonderful thing to say."

"We'll know by this time tomorrow," he said.

Jean Beauvias strode back and forth on the upper deck like a huge, nervous cat. It had never occurred to him when he had taken the boat at Omaha that he would find Stiner on board, but he had, and now he faced the possibility that in less than twenty-four hours Stiner would discover he had thrown three thousand dollars away.

Beauvias wished he had gone to Santa Fe. Stiner would never have found him.

There was, of course, a good chance Fort Butterfield actually was destroyed by now. A hard winter and slim rations increased the chance.

If the fort was gone, Beauvias had nothing to worry about. If it wasn't, Stiner could not afford to let it be known he had been cheated. He'd do something. Maybe hire a man at Fort Blaine to put a bullet in Beauvias' back. The more Beauvias thought about it, the more he realized he had no choice.

Tomorrow afternoon the boat would round a bend in the river and the blockhouses of the fort could be seen, if the fort was still standing. Stiner would be on deck. Beauvias behind him. A knife made no noise and it took only a second.

Alvin Stiner walked along the dimly lighted deck. He never doubted Jean Beauvias' story about the destruction of the fort. Now that they had almost reached the fort's location, the possibility occurred to Stiner that Beauvias might have lied and Chad Endicott was still alive. There was no real reason for the thought, except that Beauvias had avoided him all the way up the river.

There was a good deal of talk on the boat about whether the fort had been destroyed. Everyone had heard rumors, but some were now offering even money that they would see the fort before another twenty-four hours were up. Perhaps, Stiner thought, that was why he had begun to wonder. If Beauvias had lied, he'd find him and kill him. But personal revenge could wait. His real worry concerned Otto Grunwald.

Stiner had never been sure about Grunwald, but there had always been the fiction of friendship between them until they had boarded the Red Nymph. Stiner did not understand at all Grunwald's curfew of ignoring him on the boat.

Stiner went to his cabin and poured a drink. Tomorrow he'd know. They'd come around a bend in the river and they'd see the fort if it was there. If a few of the garrison were alive, they'd tell about how he had cheated the government on the last shipment that had come up the river. He'd never get another contract. Otto Grunwald might even see that he went to prison. And he would certainly lose Elizabeth.

He took another drink and slammed the glass against the side of the cabin. He'd had everything a man should want, had it right in the palm of his hand, but no, he hadn't been satisfied. He'd had to cheat the army with a shipment of shoddy goods, hoping the garrison would starve to death and make sure that Chad Endicott was out of his way.

Alvin Stiner had never known failure. He wasn't going to fail now. There were men to be bought at Fort Blaine, men who hated a bluecoat worse than they hated a Crow. And a major, Grunwald, would be a choice piece of meat. A dead Otto Grunwald would not take Alvin Stiner back to St. Louis to stand trial.

For Elizabeth Tipton, more than anyone else on the Red Nymph, tomorrow was the great day, ending all meaning of life, or making possible a new, intense happiness. She had not dreamed such a thing was possible when she had kissed Chad goodbye on that chill spring night in St. Louis. Now, after hearing the terrible rumors about Fort Butterfield, after these weeks of living with the probability that she had lost him, she knew that finding him alive would mean something to her it would never otherwise have meant.

She opened her cabin door and stood there, while dawn broke across the sky and the Red Nymph came to life and began its plodding journey upstream. Tomorrow had become today. Then the banks were not moving and she heard the shouted command to start grasshoppering.

She pressed a hand against her mouth to keep from crying out. Stuck now, of all days, on a sand bar! What was the matter with the pilot? Didn't he know what day this was, the day which that was when the Sioux charged out of the thick brush along the bank, yelling like devils. There must be thousands of them. Elizabeth thought, firing guns and sending a rain of arrows at the boat as their ponies splashed through the shallow water.

Tomorrow: Chad has to decide on action when he hears of the plight of the Red Nymph.

Bulgaria Cuts Back Ambitious Five-Year Plan

VIENNA (AP)—Satellite Bulgaria, like its master Russia, is having to cut back its too-ambitious five-year plan.

The government-controlled Radio Sofia said today that the plan was failing because of shortages of money and raw material. It said Bulgaria's agriculture also had not fulfilled its production quotas in 1956.

"The Soviet Union has helped us with raw materials and also with credits to keep our unemployed off the streets," the broadcast said. "Now we have had to reduce our national investments in the economy by 750 million leva (about 125 million dollars at the official rate). We must mobilize all our workers reserve to drive up production and also the quality of our products. At the same time we must economize in work, money and materials."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A rally sparked by a rally in the stock market slightly higher in the early afternoon to day.

A few favored issues were ahead between 1 and 2 points a share, but the bulk of the list was mixed with changes in small fractions. Before the mid upswing, prices had milled about indecisively.

Trading was relatively light, although there was some pickup in volume as prices improved about midday.

There was little in the way of news to influence investors. President Eisenhower's economic message forecast continued prosperity for the months ahead, but the message in general elaborated on points the President already had made in his other reports to Congress.

Among the rails, Northern Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio rose around a point. Other gainers included Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway and Santa Fe.

Zenth featured the radio-TV division with a gain of more than 2.

Up a point or so were El Paso Natural Gas, American Smelting, and RCA.

Fairbanks, Morse was off around a point after directors declared the usual quarterly dividend of 35 cents and an extra of 25 cents. No extra was paid last year.

Oils and motors were a shade higher and aircrafts were mostly lower. Boeing and United Aircraft were down fractions.

Steels were ahead fractions after starting lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents at $175.80, following yesterday's rise of 20 cents.

Higher-Priced City License Tags Will Face Hard Going

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH (AP)—Indications are that a proposal to give cities and towns authority to charge up to $10 for auto license tags faces rough sledding in the Legislature. The charge for city tags now is limited to $1.

An even rockier road apparently lies ahead of a proposal to give municipalities power to levy a tax of up to $10 on every person earning a salary within their limits.

This was shown today in a tabulation of legislators' answers to questionnaires sent them by the Associated Press. About one-fourth of the membership of the House and Senate filled out the questionnaires.

On the proposal to give the towns and cities power to charge up to $10 for municipal auto tags, five House members said they favored it, one said he was inclined to favor it, 12 said they opposed it, and one was undecided. Five senators said they favored the idea, two were opposed and six were undecided.

Only four House members said they favored the idea of allowing municipalities to place a tax of up to $10 on all persons working within a city. Some 19 others were opposed, one was inclined to oppose it and nine were undecided. Among the senators, one favored the idea, seven opposed it and five were undecided.

The two tax proposals were among a long series of recommendations made by the State Tax Study Commission after a study of the state's tax structure. The two proposals also have Gov. Hodges' backing.

The commission said the problem of revenue needs of the cities and towns had given it "great concern" and it felt that those cities in which "the need is great should have some additional authority to raise revenue."

Gov. Hodges pointed out in a recent speech that both proposals are permissive so that if they were adopted local governing boards would have to act before additional taxes are levied.

The governor said that unless tax sources are provided for the municipalities, "you may expect at some future time more drastic action on the part of distressed local governments."

On the license tag proposal, Sen. J. B. Thomas of Hoke said he was opposed to it because "every time new taxes are needed tobacco and automobiles are the first sources mentioned. They bear enough tax load already." A House member agreed that "auto taxes are high enough now."

Rep. J. A. Speight of Bertie, who was undecided about the tax on wage earners, said, "This looks dangerous, but it is new to me. I think I am liable to end up opposing it."

Rep. B. C. Brock of Davie said he was opposing the proposal "until I know just whom it applies to, for people may live outside of the city and would receive no benefits."

Charge Driver In 2-Car Collision

A two car collision occurred yesterday morning at 10:25 o'clock on North Greene Street.

Robert Franklin Hart of 2704 Crockett Drive, driving a 1954 automobile, struck a 1951 vehicle driven by Jesse Mack Bunting of Greenville, Rt. 5. Police reported Bunting was preparing to make a left turn into a service station when the accident occurred. Hart's car hitting his rear bumper, causing $150 damage. Investigating officers R. E. Joyner and M. E. Buck estimated the damage on Hart's auto at $350.

Hart was charged with following too closely behind the vehicle at the time of the collision.
