

River, Stay 'Way From My Door

Tar River has invited itself into Frank Dall's picnic house at the foot of Jarvis Street. Ordinarily, the little house stands high and dry on the south bank of the river but when the water rose to 13.79 feet yesterday water was about two feet deep inside. The river is expected to crest at about 18 feet tomorrow night—about five feet above flood stage. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Rioting Utah Cons Give Up Weapons

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah —Rebellious convicts surrendered early today the hostages and arms with which they seized and held control of the Utah State Prison in a destructive night of terror.

Gov. George D. Clyde said he now would consider the prisoners' demands, including "better" food and shorter prison sentences.

Clyde left the prison to rest after the night of facing down the prisoners' insistence that they wouldn't free their hostages until their demands were met.

State Highway Patrol Supt. Lyle Hyatt said he was planning a cell-by-cell shakedown of the prison. Authorities also said they would start an immediate survey of damage to the modern structure.

The hostages began filing out of the inmate-controlled section at 5:55 a.m. Billy Randall, a spokesman for the convicts, and seven or eight other prisoners accompanied the hostages into the administrative section. One freed guard was crying.

Randall said: "We were given assurance that if we turned the hostages loose, no one would be actually punished."

The riot started in the prison mess hall during the dinner hour last night. The prisoners surged through the corridors of the detention section. They captured 13 members of a church basketball team in the midst of a game with the prison team; four prison school teachers, and at least nine prison guards.

They smashed windows and many of them went on a tremendous binge drinking rubbing alcohol. An explosion in the heating plant put out the lights.

Officials speculated the weapons were obtained from a turret where guard Henry Cook was isolated when the riot flared last evening. Officials said they presumed the prisoners had gotten to Cook about 2 a.m. and added him to their list of hostages.

Two hundred peace officers mobilized from communities throughout the area surrounded the prison.

The known toll included one guard with serious knife wounds and one prisoner badly beaten by his fellows. Several others were ill from smoke inhalation or drinking rubbing alcohol.

The rebellion apparently started after an argument between a guard and an inmate in the mess hall as nearly 500 convicts ate their evening meal last night.

Pouring into the corridors, they smashed their way into a commissary and began handing out food and other items. The guard, Lt. M. L. Coleman, stabbed in the stomach, was pushed from the convict-controlled portion of the modernistic prison and taken to a hospital in Salt Lake City, 20 miles away. A physician said he was in "fair" condition.

Inmate Alvin Straus, who was a ringleader in the last major outbreak among convicts at the prison in 1951, was taken from the area by ambulance. He was badly beaten by fellow prisoners and was reported in "critical" condition in a Salt Lake hospital.

In their list of "suggestions" the rioters called for better "prepared" food, a prison newspaper and a new board of pardons.

A hospital technician who was held hostage for a while and then released said the convicts had broken into the infirmary and obtained "all the drugs they could lay their hands on" and "I have been pumping stomachs ever since the riot started," he said.

Ask President's Inflation Ideas

WASHINGTON —Legislative leaders called on President Eisenhower today to lay down specific proposals if he wants Congress to enact controls against inflation.

Eisenhower's statement that the government may have to move in if business and labor fail to curb price and wage rises found Democrats and Republicans sharply divided over the present need for controls.

Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) of Senate Banking Committee, who has supported the administration's "tight money" policy, said the country might have to go to more direct controls — particularly on consumer credit — if inflationary pressures grow.

"As a practical matter, though," he said, "Congress is not likely to do anything unless the President makes some specific recommendations."

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) of the Senate Finance Committee said that if Eisenhower is worried about inflation, the President could do something about it himself.

"He could stop this excessive government spending by cutting his own budget just as he cut Truman's budget by nine billion dollars in 1953," Byrd said.

Sen. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the Conference of All GOP Senators, said the question of controls had not been discussed in the regular weekly meetings of Republican leaders with the President. He said he knew of no imminent message to Congress on the subject.

"Although I favored standby controls, I would be slow to vote for any new controls," Saltonstall said.

Eisenhower said he wasn't asking business and labor to be "altruistic" in holding wage and price increases within limits.

"Their own long-term good is involved," he said, "and I am asking them merely to act as enlightened Americans."

He said when the government begins to control prices, allocations and wages "then it is not the America we know."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said he doesn't believe voluntary controls will work. He said they had failed under former President Hoover in 1929.

"Any business, although it may be guided by men of the best of good will, has its principal interest in profits," he said. "There are not going to be any voluntary reductions in those profits."

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) said he doesn't see any need for controls at this time.

Rep. Frank Wooten Is Pledged To Two Key Health Proposals

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Freshman member of the State Legislature Rep. Frank K. Wooten pledged his full support of proposed state appropriations for a Mental Health wing for the Pitt Health Department building and a Nursing School for East Carolina College.

Wooten, who was elected as one of the county's two representatives in the State Legislature in last year's election, will be serving his first term.

Concerning the Mental Health wing appropriation the Greenville attorney said: "Naturally I will do everything I can in working for it. Whether we obtain it or not will depend entirely on support of other eastern counties."

Pitt legislators are behind the proposals, he said, but that is only three votes.

The Mental Health Clinic is housed in the upstairs portion of the Tucker building. Plans are to request an appropriation for the construction of a wing on the County's Health Department building for the clinic, which serves a number of counties in the eastern section of the state.

The same would be true of efforts to obtain a Nursing School at ECC, Wooten said. Much will depend on support of the proposal by other counties which would be served by the school.

"The medical profession can help, also," Wooten declared.

The new representative said he would prefer to consider proposed revisions of the state's tax structure individually rather than as a "package."

"I would prefer to consider each item individually," he declared. "There are some things I certainly do not agree with as I understand them."

Wooten said it was his understanding that it is proposed to tax persons who work in town but do not live in town. He said he would

Hodges Sworn In To Begin Four Year Term As Governor

RALEIGH — With a solemn oath to serve the state faithfully, Luther H. Hodges today entered a four-year term as governor of North Carolina.

The 58-year-old retired textile executive took the oath from Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne before a joint session of the 1957 General Assembly in Raleigh Memorial Auditorium.

Hodges became the first Tar Heel governor in this century to succeed himself. State officials, distinguished guests including two neighboring governors, and thousands of plain citizens watched on television as he took the oath.

The impressive inaugural ceremonies were a marked contrast to the simple rites 27 months ago when Hodges first was sworn in as governor. He moved up from lieutenant governor, the first public office to which he was elected, upon the death of Gov. William B. Umstead in the fall of 1954.

The inauguration came one month later than governors in the past have taken their oaths. After a constitutional amendment was approved last fall shifting the date for convening the Legislature from early January to early February, Gov. Hodges decided to delay his inaugural to take the oath before the General Assembly.

Nine other state officials also received their oaths today. They included Luther E. Barnhardt of Concord, successor to Hodges as lieutenant governor.

The governor's inaugural address was followed by a long parade of bands and military units down bunting-draped Fayetteville Street. The inaugural party, headed by Gov. and Mrs. Hodges and including Govs. Thomas Stanley of Virginia and George Ball Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina, reviewed the parade from a stand midway the historic thoroughfare.

A luncheon at the executive mansion, with Gov. and Mrs. Hodges hosts to the inaugural party, followed.

Pledges Self To Unfinished Job

RALEIGH — Gov. Hodges today pledged his dedication in the four years ahead "to help in the unfinished task of building a better, greater and more beautiful North Carolina."

The governor spoke to a joint session of the General Assembly after taking the oath of office for a four-year term from Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne.

"It shall be my purpose to do everything possible to raise the standard of living for the people of this good state," Hodges asserted in his prepared inaugural address.

In a departure from tradition, Hodges did not discuss his proposals for action by the Legislature. Instead, he offered what he described as "a broad look" at the state, its government, "our heritage and our future."

He said he plans to present his legislative program in a message to a joint session of the General Assembly next Monday night. He assured the legislators that he is working with them.

"You come as do I, directly from a mandate of the people, and we will together do our best to help this state as it faces great problems and great opportunities," he declared.

In his review of the state's progress since the end of the Civil War, Hodges gave credit to education as a force in economic advances.

"We were the first Southern state to establish a tax-supported system of public schools, and we pioneered in the construction of a system of hard-surfaced roads," he related. North Carolina also took the lead in public health and guests, followed. A public reception at the mansion tonight will conclude the two days of festivities.

The social side of the occasion reached full swing last night with a pre-inaugural ball honoring the governor, lieutenant governor, council of state members and their wives.

Inaugural day began at the executive mansion this morning with ruffles and flourishes for Gov. and Mrs. Hodges. A military escort accompanied them on the drive down Fayetteville Street to the auditorium.

There, House Speaker J. Kemp Doughton of Alleghany and Senate President Pro - Tem Claude Currie of Durham convened a joint legislative session for the ceremonies. The two houses of the General Assembly formally opened the 1957 session yesterday.

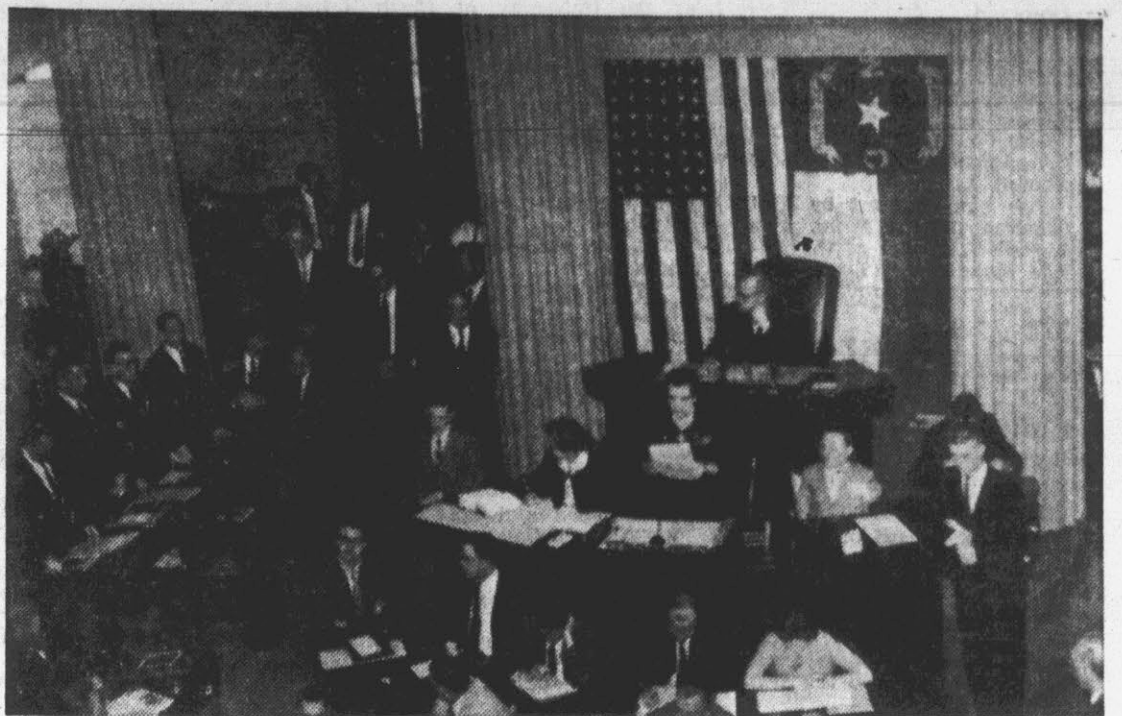

Black-robed associate justices of the State Supreme Court administered the oaths of office. Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold was the first to be sworn, followed by Labor Commissioner Frank Crane, Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, Supt. of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll, Treasurer Edwin Gill, Auditor Henry L. Bridges, Secretary of State Thad Eure, Atty. Gen. George B. Patton, Barnhardt and Hodges.

Hodges, born just inside the Virginia line near-Leaksville, retired after a successful business career to seek public office. He won his first race for lieutenant governor and succeeded to the state's highest office on the death of Umstead.

He was elected governor in his own right last fall following a thumping victory in the spring Democratic primary.

The governor is expected to deliver his legislative message, detailing his proposals for the next two years, to the General Assembly next Monday night.

Sidelights

RALEIGH Feb. 7 — Legislative leaders could find nothing in the rule book about the pre-session caucus. There was some discussion about who would call it to order. Finally they agreed that the appropriate man was Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan, beginning his 12th term and outranking all his colleagues in total legislative tenure. Logical man for permanent chairman was Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange, beginning his ninth consecutive term in the House — with two prior Senate sessions to his credit.

It was a wholly Democratic caucus, while Republicans were meeting elsewhere. Freshman W. C. "Buck" Harris of Wake, called upon to act as secretary, showed no partiality. He used the official roster and called the roll of Republicans as well as Democrats.

It appeared late Tuesday afternoon that the race for sergeant-at-arms in the House would be compromised. Joe Warren of Caswell seemed to have the edge and his friends approached sponsors of Arnold Tripp of Pitt to see if they could work out an agreement. The Tripp countered with a proposition to match coins for the job. The Warren camp would have none of that. The contest went to a vote in the caucus. The vote count was not announced, but Warren took the post by a wide margin.

A slip of the tongue by Chief Justice Wallace Winborne almost added 49 associate justices to the Supreme Court. Administering the en bloc oath to the assembled Senators the Chief Justice required them to perform their duties as "members of the Supreme — the Senate of North Carolina."

The Senate started off with one vacant seat, Sen. Jack Blythe of Mecklenburg having resigned the day before. The House had two empties. Rep. Jim Speight of Bertie is in a hospital for an eye operation, and Rep. W. F. Womble of Forsyth is tied up in a prolonged lawsuit.

Cancer Society Campaign For Year Being Mapped Here Today

Representatives from 30 eastern North Carolina counties are attending a meeting for the American Cancer Society being held here today.

The primary purpose of the meeting is to make plans for the 1957 Cancer fund raising campaign. There are over 40 representatives of various county campaign groups attending the meet that began this morning at 10:15.

This district meeting is one of three such being held throughout the state of North Carolina. The other two meetings are being held in Charlotte and in Greensboro.

Mrs. Bill Sermons, president of the Pitt County Cancer Chapter, welcomed the group in behalf of the local chapter, and made the necessary introductions as a preliminary to the panel of guest speakers who brought general discussions before the group on "The 1957 Crusade."

Walt Ellerson of Roanoke Rapids filled in for J. Glenn Crichfield, the 1957 state campaign chairman who was unable to attend this planning session.

The quota for this year's drive will be $340,000 in the three districts through the state.

Speaking on "The 1957 Crusade" were Mrs. Marie Adams of Lenoir County, Gene LeGrand, Mrs. Rene Vaden of Wake County and Mrs. C. F. McIntyre of Nash County.

Mrs. Adams discussed the Special Gifts division to the group, giving several informative hints to the group as did Gene LeGrand, who spoke briefly on the Business and Industry division. Mrs. Rene Vaden of Raleigh brought out necessary introductions as a preliminary to the panel of guest speakers who brought general discussions before the group on "The 1957 Crusade."

Figures In Organization Of Tri-County Dental Auxiliary

Dentists' Wives Organize Tri-County Auxiliary Here

Mrs. Robert H. Gilbert of Kinston was elected chairman of the Tri-County Dental Auxiliary at its organizational meeting held here yesterday.
Dentists' wives from Pitt, Wayne and Lenoir counties comprise the newly formed unit.
Described as a purely social organization, Mrs. Gilbert announced the auxiliary will function to provide closer contacts among members in this area of District V of the North Carolina State Dental Auxiliary.
Plans are for the local unit to supplement the district auxiliary's work and to be prepared to render assistance at state meetings.
The Tri-County Auxiliary will have its next meeting in the spring in Goldsboro, according to its chairman. A later meeting this year will include husbands as guests.

Mrs. H. W. Gooding of Ayden, president of District V of the North Carolina State Dental Auxiliary, presided over yesterday's luncheon meeting held at the Silo Restaurant.
Special guests for the meeting included Mrs. R. E. Williams of Goldsboro, State Historian, and Mrs. James Zealey Jr. of Goldsboro, state scrap amalgam committee representative.
Others here for the organizational meeting included Mrs. Dan Wright, Mrs. William Tucker, Mrs. Paul Munell, Mrs. H. T. Foster Jr., Mrs. Henry Aldridge, Mrs. O. R. Pearce, Mrs. L. J. Dupree Jr., Mrs. P. O. Lucas, Mrs. G. L. Overman.

Hospitality And Electa Night Observed By Local OES Chapter

"Hospitality Night" was observed at the regular meeting of Greenville Chapter 49, O.E.S., Tuesday evening. Visitors from Kinston, Farmville, Ayden and Washington chapters were present.
The officers' march in formal attire gave the meeting its start. The ritualistic opening was followed by the pledge of allegiance to the American flag and O.E.S. flag. Mr. and Mrs. John Carrington presided in the east.
Mrs. Ola Dale Wilson, Grand Representative to Nevada, was introduced, welcomed and seated in the east.
Grand committee members present and recognized were Mrs. Virginia Everett, district chairman of Rainbow Fund; Mrs. Susie Melton, district chairman of Home Endowment; and Mrs. Blanche Jackson, district chairman of the Efficiency Test.
Worthy Matrons from Washington, Ayden, Kinston and Farmville and past matrons and patrons present were presented and welcomed.

A "Spirit of Hospitality" program was given with Mrs. Helen Sermons as the Spirit of Hospitality lighting the candles of Vera Sutton, as hospitality; Ruth Harris, as love; Louise Wells, as loyalty; Jennie Stokes, as service; and Ethel Allen as happiness. Mrs. Sermons placed the Bible as the Guiding Light in the center of the star formed by the candles.
A program honoring Electa, the fifth star point, followed. The worthy matron gave scripture relating to Electa. The five star points gave readings on the light

Fellowship Group

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Flava Darden was hostess to Group II of the Christian Women's Fellowship which met Monday night.
Mrs. J. O. Pollard presided and opened the meeting with an article by Arthur J. Morris. The second commandment was read as Scripture.
After a short business session, Mrs. J. H. Melton led the World Call discussion.
Chrysanthemums and hawthorne decorated the living room of Mrs. Darden's home for the occasion. In the hall, a dried arrangement was used.
During the social hour, the hostess served nutcake, topped with cream, cheese, strawberries, mints and coffee to 12 members.

reported on the executive board meeting.
Plans for church duties for February were made.
The question and answer quiz from the World Call was conducted by Mrs. Sam Wainwright.
During the social hour, cherry pies with whipped cream, nuts and coffee were served.
Mrs. Cox Givens Devotional.
Mrs. Z. B. T. Cox gave the devotional for Group V of the CWF which met Monday night with Mrs. C. B. Mashburn Jr.
After a short business session presided over by the chairman, Mrs. Bertha Mae Russell, a program from the World Call was given by different members.
Refreshments were served by the hostess following the benediction.

Pinafores Always Popular

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Ask little Betty to point out her favorite dress, and the odds are that she'll pick a dress and pinafore outfit. Ensembles are popular with even the littlest ladies, and a made-to-match pinafore outfit will put any youngster in the best-dressed set.
A new trick is to give the pinafore an Empire look by eliminating the shoulder ruffles and making it strapless, to button on to a simple dress. Local sewing center experts suggest you choose a pink-and-white striped cotton for the pinafore, repeating it in collars and cuffs for a plain pink dress.
Full use can be made of sewing machine attachments in making a pinafore such as this. The button-holer will make quick work of buttonholes; the multi-slotted binder will apply a bias-bound hem for the pinafore; the narrow hemmer will hem the ties. Use the automatic zigzagger to applique a little umbrella-shaped pocket, with a single line of zigzag stitching outlining the ribs of the umbrella. You can tie a bow around the handle for 3-D decoration.

Farmville Senior 4-H Club Meets

FARMVILLE—On Wednesday the Farmville Senior 4-H Club held its regular meeting. Larry Dilda presided.
Horace Corbett led the group in the pledges to the 4-H and American flags. Gloria Joyner led in the singing of "America the Beautiful." The devotional was given by JoAnne Owens.
The minutes were read by the secretary, Irving Allen, and approved after a correction was made.
Miss Stevens and Mr. Register made several announcements with special stress on the health project.
A movie, "Better Your Health, The 4-H Way," was shown and the health record books were distributed.

Psychologist Will Be Speaker At Meeting

Dr. Luciano L'Abate, clinical psychologist at the Mental Health Clinic, Greenville, will discuss "Science and Human Values" at a meeting Sunday night, February 10, of the Greenville Epitaph Fellowship. The event is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Y Hut at East Carolina College and will be open to the public.
Dr. L'Abate's talk will be based on a series of lectures by J. Bronowski, Carnegie professor of history at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. These lectures were published as the Dec. 29, 1956, issue of the "Nation."

TWO-WAY SPLIT PEA SOUP
Ingredients: 3-4 cup quick-cooking green split peas, 1 hambone (with a little meat left on), 1/2 cup sliced carrot (1 medium-size), 3-4 to 1 cup thin strips onion (1 medium-size), 1 rib celery with leafy top, few springs parsley, 5 cups water, salt, pepper, 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed tomato soup (if desired).
Method: Wash peas in cold water; drain; turn into soup kettle with hambone, carrot, onion, celery, parsley and water. Bring to a boil rapidly; decrease heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until peas are cooked—about 45 minutes. Remove hambone. Put soup (including vegetables) through a food mill or press through a strainer. Add salt (if needed) and pepper to taste. Makes about 5 1/2 cups thin soup. Use soup "as is" or mix with the undiluted condensed tomato soup; heat gently, stirring often. This mixture (Purée Mongole) will make almost 7 cups.

Why Not Try A Prize-Winning Bun Recipe?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Curious to taste a batch of buns that won a young woman a prize of $3,000? Then make up this recipe for Easy Cheesy Buns that placed Mrs. Raymond E. Myers of Milan, Ill., first in the bride's category of the recent Pillsbury bakeoff. This recipe will not be available elsewhere for some time, so note it now!

Mrs. Myers has a preschool stepdaughter to help keep her busy and so she worked out a roll that uses yeast but needs no kneading. We tried her buns in our own kitchen and found they were delicious on a luncheon menu whose main course was shrimp salad or baked ham with a cooked vegetable salad.

EASY CHEESY BUNS
Ingredients: 1 envelope active dry yeast, 1/2 cup warm water, 2-3 cup soft yellow cheddar cheese, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg (unbeaten), 2 tablespoons butter or margarine (melted), 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 cups sifted flour.
Method: Sprinkle yeast over warm (around 105 degrees) water in mixing bowl. Let stand 5 minutes. Add cheese, sugar, salt, unbeaten egg, melted butter and 1 cup of the flour. Beat 2 minutes—until cheese is well blended. (With electric mixer, use low speed.) Greased muffin cups about half full of dough. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in size—1 to 1 1/2 hours. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven 12 to 15 minutes or until a deep golden brown. Serve hot. Makes 12 buns if muffin tins are each about 3 inches across top and 1 1/4 inches deep.

EASY CHEESY BUNS won a $3,000 baking contest prize for an Illinois bride.

Note: If cheese is not soft enough to pack into cup to measure, grate before measuring. Buns may be wrapped in aluminum foil and reheated in a hot oven. One cake of compressed yeast may be substituted for the active dry yeast; in this case use lukewarm (around 95 degrees) water instead of the warm water called for in the recipe.

BAKING NOTES

Easy Cheesy Buns are made from a yeast-leavened dough that does not have to be kneaded. The ingredients are thoroughly mixed and the gluten in the dough is developed by beating. It's gluten that gives baked products their special porous structure and allows batters and doughs to hold the leavening gas that makes them light.

Egg, added to a yeast dough, helps to give delicate cell structure, tender crust and fine flavor. The egg called for in the Easy Cheesy Buns, along with the cheddar cheese, gives the buns a rich color.

The warm place in which yeast dough is put while it is doubling in bulk, should be from 80 to 85 degrees and it should be free from drafts. The actual time for the rising of yeast dough depends on the temperature, the amount of yeast used, the richness of the dough and the flour. It is this rising period that is largely responsible for the flavor and quality of breads and it is important to keep it constant.

Lee Talks On Near East

Herbert White Lee was guest speaker for the End of the Century Club meeting Tuesday.

Mrs. J. S. Ficklen was hostess and served a three course luncheon to members and guests.

Following this social hour, the president, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, called the meeting to order and presented Mrs. Ficklen as program chairman for the day who introduced the guest speaker.

Mr. Lee, having been stationed in Cairo, Egypt, was well qualified to speak on the subject of the Near East and the problems confronting those nations.

He summarized the economic, political and religious backgrounds of these countries which include Egypt, Israel, Iran, Iraq and the small countries at the head of the Persian Gulf. He stated the countries mentioned were considered the greatest oil prize in the world.

He spoke of the Egyptian-Israeli conflict and also the visit of King Saud to this country. The low treasury in this country is a result of oil shipments curtailed by Suez stoppage, meaning they will probably seek American aid again, he said.

Following his talk, a short business session was held. Books were discussed and exchanged. Guests for the occasion in addition to Mr. Lee were Mrs. K. B. Pace, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. Noel Hardy, Mrs. Walter Taylor, Mrs. E. J. Garrett and Mrs. J. L. Winstead.

Altar Arranging Topic For Garden Club Program

FARMVILLE—A paper on altar arrangements was given when Mrs. Jesse T. Hardy was hostess to the Garden Club at her home on Duke Drive Tuesday afternoon.

Arrangements of camellias, jonquills and Japanese Quince and Sweet Breath of Spring were used for decorations.

Some twenty different camellia blooms were displayed on the enclosed sun porch. These were grown by E. C. Holmes, H. D. Johnson, LeRoy Rollins and Mrs. Bennett Fields, all camellia enthusiasts.

Mrs. A. C. Turnage, president, presided. After the Club Collect, she read a letter relative to the mid-winter board meeting of the State Garden Club to be held in Pinehurst on February 6-7.

Mrs. A. C. Turnage, Mrs. L. E. Turnage and Tabitha M. DeVisconti will attend.

The program will be on conservation and flower shows.

The National Council Committee meeting will be in Miami, Fla. March 31-April 4 and the International Flower Show in New York March 28-April 3, it was announced.

A letter from Mrs. Russell Bryant of Saratoga, Tenth District Junior Garden Club chairman, asking this club to organize a Junior Club was read.

The Spring Flower Show committee is Mrs. Jesse T. Hardy, Mrs. L. E. Turnage, Mrs. George W. Davis, Mrs. B. M. Lewis and Tabitha M. DeVisconti.

Orders for 57 dogwood trees were reported and two members have put out ten trees. The goal is 100. Mrs. Turnage gave instructions for planting dogwoods.

Mrs. George W. Davis gave a paper on altar arrangements. She said flowers used in a church help to create an atmosphere of truth, reverence, beauty, purity and simplicity. She expressed the belief that they should make a real contribution to the service even as the lovely music.

Bold, distinct blooms are more suitable for a church than fine feathery ones, she said. Both the flowers and container should be chosen carefully. Pottery, metal and wood are more satisfactory for the container with a base heavy enough to prevent tipping over. A clay pot should never be used unless covered with greenery. Colored paper and ribbon should not be used, she declared.

Choose colors that have a cooling effect in summer and those that give warmth in winter, she told the group. Magnolia leaves, pine, other evergreens and berries make attractive arrangements, she said.

Mrs. Davis, in closing, said "God made the flowers and their beauty should be used in creating an atmosphere of worship if the arranger is guided by the knowledge that they are intended to glorify their creator."

Mrs. Hardy, assisted by Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. B. M. Lewis and Mrs. L. E. Turnage, served a congealed fruit salad with ham biscuits, cookies and coffee.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says that the old-time milk treatment for lint spots is not good. The safest step on washable fabrics (except spots from ball point pens) is to soak the fabric in cool water for 30 minutes or overnight, then rub it with soap or detergent and wash in warm suds. If a stain remains, a chlorine bleach may be used on all fabrics except wool, silk, Vicara and those with special finishes. Sodium perborate may be used as a finish instead.

Give Baby Love Minus Price Tag

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

"Will I spoil Karen if I pick her up when she cries? We do not want a spoiled brat."

This question comes many times, and not only from mothers of first children, but from experienced mothers of several children.

We need to take a very careful look at what it is a young baby needs, and how we can go about supplying his needs—needs that must be supplied by somebody, his mother. A healthy baby can take care of his own inside workings all by himself. He can digest food, eliminate wastes, pump his blood around his body, breathe in air and breathe out what he does not need. But a baby cannot go after his food, cannot pull up the blanket if he is cold, nor push it off if he is too warm, he cannot clean himself up nor turn over to change his position. He needs someone to do all these things for him. And we don't even expect not to want to do it.

The newborn hasn't learned about clocks and schedules and other people. What he wants is to be comfortable. If we can keep him comfortable he'll begin to learn that mother is nice, that when something bothers him mother comes and makes it all better.

If he can go through his early months and emerge with the conviction that mother (and daddy, too) are the source of all things good this baby of ours is started on the road to being a comfortable person himself, willing to ultimately help make others comfortable.

Do for your baby what your instincts tell you to do. Feed him when he is hungry, rock him if he is fretful, sing to him, cuddle him, make him comfortable and remember, he only wants you when something is the matter.

In the early months we cannot expect the baby to help himself nor to help us take care of him.

Cuddle Him
Smiles, laughter, giggles of pleasure, comfortable relaxed sleep, these are the things the baby does in response to your loving care of him. He cannot control his bodily functions. He will soil himself, spit up some mouthfuls of nasty sour milk, drop things and so forth. We love him no matter what he does. We don't expect him to cooperate by controlling what it is beyond him to control. All we want from the baby is his peace and enjoyment of his comfort.

In the early months, do for your baby, love him, comfort him and expect nothing in return. To a baby love is given completely free, we ask nothing from the baby, we make no demands upon him because we know he is not old enough to help us care for him. Love given to a baby is free, it asks for nothing in return. Later, when the baby is older and able to control his actions we begin to expect things from him. Sometimes when we withhold tenderness and give it for good behavior—love then begins to have a price.

Dr. Frank Is Club Speaker

Dr. A. D. Frank was guest speaker when the Chatham Book Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. R. Conway.

Upon arrival members were served a dessert course with nuts and coffee.

The club voted to make a donation to the library memorial garden during the business session, after which Mrs. T. M. Watson, program chairman, introduced the afternoon speaker.

Dr. Frank first spoke of the opening of the 1957 Legislature, citing the two most important bills to come up, in his estimation. They are the shortage of school buildings and the shortage of teachers and the necessity to increase their pay.

He then talked of the number of auto accidents, declaring a need for stricter laws, inspection of automobiles and compulsory auto insurance.

Turning to the international situation, Dr. Frank spoke of the Middle East as "a hot spot." He also talked of King Saud and what his visit meant to this country.

He concluded by explaining the "Eisenhower Doctrine."

Can We Afford Federal Money?

Can a hard, fast line be drawn with irrefutable guarantees that federal aid to education will not ultimately mean federal control of public schools? We have to answer this question in our own minds. We have discussed it with learned men who have made an intensive study of federal government. We have discussed it with men whose job it is to write the laws of the land. We have not been able to satisfy ourselves that federal aid for education will not ultimately put control of public schools into the hands of bureaucrats.

As badly as money is needed for new buildings to house the growing enrollment in public schools throughout the nation, no state needs this money badly enough to justify selling out control of it public schools to the federal government.

The Reflector has opposed federal aid for education for one reason. We are convinced that the bulwarks of freedom and democracy this nation has known will be severely bent if not ultimately broken should the education of every youngster come under the control of the centralized state. If such a thing ever comes, it will come gradually. But once it has started it cannot be stopped. The only way it can be avoided is by preventing it before it starts.

We realize just how much the proposed $14½ million dollars in federal aid could mean to North Carolina's public schools each year during the next four years. We realize how much difference it could make in the public schools of Pitt County. At the same time this must be weighed against the importance of retaining control of public schools at the state and local levels. We cannot justify selling control of Pitt County schools to the federal government even if all of the proposed $14½ million dollars a year earmarked for the entire state was to come to this county.

It would be far too great a price to pay for better buildings. Indeed, who is willing to place a price on the freedom of the younger generation of today or on that of future generations?

History has shown clearly two things. 1. No dictator or tyrannical government has gained power in modern times without gaining control of the education of the youth of its nation. 2. Each time federal dollars have flowed down to lesser levels of government in the United States, federal controls over activities for which the dollars were earmarked have followed.

Is it wise for the states to place their educational systems under the control and authority of a federal bureau or agency? Is there any real indication that the established pattern of federal control going hand in hand with federal dollars will abruptly end when federal aid is given to public schools?

Those who follow the recommended schedule will find themselves in the majority in all probability. Those who choose otherwise will be exercising their right and privilege to operate their businesses in the manner they feel is in their best interest and that of the public. The Merchants Association does not seek to regulate or coerce local business houses. It does, however, provide an organization through which merchants can coordinate their activities and cooperate for their mutual betterment.

Coordinated Effort Proves Better Way

When merchants of a city pull together they quickly find their common efforts toward a common goal make things smoother, and generally are pleasing to the public which they serve.

Greenville merchants, we think, have done a good job of pulling together over a long period of years. Naturally they have not all always agreed on everything, and we doubt seriously if all of them have ever fully agreed on anything. Nevertheless they have over the years, shown commendable cooperation which has helped make Greenville an outstanding trading center.

This week a survey of 251 members of the local Merchants Association showed an overwhelming majority of these business firms favored increasing by two the number of days retail stores of the city will be closed. They also favored commencing the traditional Wednesday afternoon closings on February 13 rather than waiting until after Easter as has been the custom. There were some dissenting votes, and there are probably some retail merchants who do not approve of the closing dates recommended by the Association. Even so the overwhelming number of votes in favor of the new closing schedule prompted the board of directors of the Merchants Association to recommend to its members the new closing schedule.

Those who follow the recommended schedule will find themselves in the majority in all probability. Those who choose otherwise will be exercising their right and privilege to operate their businesses in the manner they feel is in their best interest and that of the public. The Merchants Association does not seek to regulate or coerce local business houses. It does, however, provide an organization through which merchants can coordinate their activities and cooperate for their mutual betterment.

Boating Is Now For Everybody

By ELMER ROESSNER

What was a piddling sort of business a few decades ago is now well up in the millions-per-annum class and growing rapidly. With no slump in national income before May, and an invigorating spring, boating will enjoy its best year ever.

Time was when a private yacht was the mark of aristocracy in any part of the world. At the moment there is no information at hand from foreign waters but maintenance of a yacht in America today can mean that tax investigators are following your wake.

Meanwhile, those in the middle brackets and a few in the lower income groups have taken over the fresh and salt waterways for sail, outboard and inboard craft.

EVIDENCES OF GROWTH

Perhaps no better proof of the great interest in boating is the fact that people are demanding traffic laws for power boats, requiring them to keep to courses, limit speeds and to avoid buzzing bathers and fishers.

An even more dramatic proof is the unveiling of plans for projected "boatels," waterside accommodations for both boaters and motorists. The plans were constructed after it was fairly well established that more than 25,000 persons go boating at least once a year. A boatel provides anchorage for boats, over-water living accommodations, parking space for cars, a restaurant, gas service and other facilities. Standard plans are available from Scott-Atwater, Minneapolis 13, for $2, in case your town or park commission wants to snag some of that trade that goes floating by.

The amazing growth of boating is further proved by a survey by Sporting Goods Dealers, which found that two out of three sporting goods dealers now carry motors, boats and accessories and that these items account for a third of the sales of the stores handling them.

And if you need further proof: the installment boys are in the field. If you have assets and a good credit history, a yacht finance company will finance your sea-going purchase on easy payment. The firm, founded in 1954, reports it has financed more than $2,000,000 worth of floating purchases in the last 18 months. Most financing, it finds, is for craft costing $5,000 or more.

Boating has been boosted by more than credit. The do-it-yourself field has given it impetus. Sail and outboard boats are among the favorite creations of the divers.

Better and cheaper plywoods, molded and reinforced plastics, aluminum shells, more powerful and easier starting motors and many other improvements have won more people to the aquatic outdoors. It has been a long time since an outboard enthusiast has died of thirst while trying to start a motor by jerking a string.

Interest in water-surface fun is spreading in Europe, too. Last month more than 200 firms exhibited at a London show.

Uncertain, But Very Hopeful

By LYNN NISBET

OPTIMISM — Attitude of members of the General Assembly on the opening day of the session seems to be one of optimistic uncertainty. Majority opinion is that the administration program will be enacted in main essentials, but not without long debate and a lot of trading on minor points. There is more uncertainty than optimism about length of the session. Some legislators hope to complete the work in 90 days or less, making adjournment possible in early or mid-May. Others look for as long a time as the last session, which would run close to July.

A veteran of many sessions said he had found most of his colleagues willing to follow the lead of the Governor, but not disposed to take dictation from anybody.

Fellows from the early tobacco area are most concerned about adjournment date. "We've got to go home when tobacco housing time comes," said Wayland Floyd of Robeson. In his session that is usually the last week in June.

HIGHWAYS — Eastern members are more in sympathy with the highway reorganization plan than they appeared to be some weeks ago. Several of them said they definitely favor a more cohesive statewide policy on primary roads, but doubt the wisdom of completely abandoning the division commission system.

There is general support among far Eastern and far Western members for a tentative proposal to add cost of construction to the formula for allocation of highway funds. They are more concerned about that factor than about the size of the highway commission.

Some questions are raised about financing an independent prison system, but divorce of prisons from highway administration seems about as certain as any item in the program.

TAX — The tax reform measures are recognized as the No. 1 issue. Practically every legislator interviewed endorses "in principle" the objectives of the tax study commission report, but has ideas of his own on certain points involved.

Various interested groups caused around the hotels Monday and Tuesday discussing the special impact of the plan upon their business. The soft drink bottlers, several farmers or organizations, merchant groups and others authorized their legislative and executive committees to act for the entire bodies, in event emergency action is necessary.

In every instance there was insistence that they be heard fully and in public by legislative committees before bills are voted upon.

There is marked objection to the suggestion that the full burden for seeking public hearings be placed upon the persons or interests to be taxed, as contrasted with the traditional policy of officially arranged times for public discussion of specific items. Intimation that hearings might not be granted except upon special request enhances the usual interest in the selection of committee chairman.

COMMITTEES — Lieutenant Governor Luther Barnhardt said he hopes to have his Senate committee list ready by Thursday, February 14. Speaker Kemp Doughton hopes to have the House committees ready "a few days later." The Speaker's task is somewhat more complicated. He has more than twice as many members to place, and he has not been certain of the reviewing stand on Fayetteville street got close attention for quality. The rickety old platform that had been used for a long time for such occasions was replaced by a new freshly painted job.

Invitations to such affairs are traditionally engraved and programs handsomely printed on good quality paper. This time temporary instruction sheets were also printed. Governor Hodges had let it be known he did not want flimsy sheets. When the mimeographed instructions about formation and line of march of the parade were distributed by the National Guard, the officers whimsically asked that recipients make sure they didn't get back to the Governor. The instruction give detail information about where, each unit is to unload from buses or trucks, where to enter the parade, and where to stand at the auditorium.

Official programs for the Pre-Inaugural Ball and for the formal inaugural parades and ceremonies are done up in fine style. Both are profusely illustrated with pictures of the main participants and members of the several committees, and lists of sponsors and patrons. The ball program cover is black with white letters and a two-tone picture of the capitol. It has a lot of advertising, the purpose of the ball being to raise funds for the charitable activities of the Raleigh Junior League and American Legion Post No. 1.

The program for the official ceremonies has a heavy white cover with blue letters. Copies of the program are in demand as souvenirs of the occasion. Some of the dignitaries were besieged by autograph hunters. Signatures added value to the booklet as a keepsake.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THOSE FORMATIVE YEARS

People seldom realize the extent to which our lives are formed and our outlook committed during the years of our childhood.

As we grow, our environment seems to become a part of our very nature. It is almost as if the things we are taught enter into us and physically become part of the cell structure of body and brain. By the time our body growth is achieved we find ourselves to be a certain type of person. Of course, we can change that set in future years, but it is a desperately hard and trying process. It cannot be done without immense effort. Generally speaking, what we are taught in our youth becomes our adult outlook.

Our President is an example of this. He grew up in a home where because of the church to which his parents belonged, the strong conviction prevailed that war is wrong and that peace is alone pleasing to God.

What was the result? Dwight D. Eisenhower went to West Point, received training as a soldier and became one of the great warriors of modern times. But into the very cells of his body and brain an ideal of peace had been so established that soldier or no soldier, he stands out as the greatest peace advocate of modern times.

Childhood training molds and confirms adult conviction and behavior.

Zoo Parade

Death Came With A Rush

Three young boys, an automobile, a straight road and then a curve. These four elements spelled DEATH late last Saturday night.

I arrived at the scene of the accident shortly after it happened.

Many people had been aroused from their beds by the shrieking and grinding sounds of the 1953 vehicle as it came around the sharp curve carrying three boys, 16, 18 and 21, to a horrible end.

Everyone was standing around looking at these boys who were old enough to know better but too young to realize the consequence of speed, lying there. One was lucky—he was killed instantly; the other two lived and suffered for awhile.

I parked my car back down the road and was walking up to the crowd when several people passed me going home. One of them was sick. Being dark I could not see her face, but I asked her what had happened. She only pointed up the road and continued on her way.

Drawing nearer to the crowd I could almost feel Death in the air and then I saw one of the most pathetic scenes imaginable.

All were looking at the automobile, still smoking, and the three boys as if it were not possible for something like this to happen in a small town. Two of the occupants of the car had been thrown into the porch of a nearby house, the other was lying on his back gasping for air on the highway.

The automobile hit the curve, skidded well over a hundred feet and crashed with all its force into a tree. No one knew exactly what happened but it was evident that the vehicle was traveling at a tremendous rate of speed.

This being the first accident I had ever actually seen, I was extremely curious, so all the small details registered in my mind. The house was only about 14 feet from the tree that the death car hit. One of the youth was thrown about 10 feet in the air and hit the drainpipe over the top of the porch, bending it out of shape and almost very noticeable was a pillar post that was knocked from its place, lying on the floor beside the first that died in a pool of blood.

I knew one of the boys but failed to recognize him. There was too much blood. The ambulance came up about the same time that I did and removed the two living away to the hospital. (Both died a short time later.)

As I stood there in the dim light, watching the crowds arrive and leave, all eager to see the bloody scene, I could see the face of each Mother as she learned of her boy's fate—earlier so happy and full of life, now so bloody and dying.

With this preying on my mind I turned away, leaving what was and thinking what it could have been if only the boys had thought and slowed down.

Other Editors Saying-- Area And State Problem

(Kinston Free Press)

Current interest in stream sanitation in North Carolina, and particularly in the watershed of Neuse River, can be turned into a positive program to bring about a long-range anti-pollution drive if the task is recognized in true perspective from the outset. It is actually an area, community and State undertaking and will not succeed without full cooperation of all concerned.

The Kinston area got its initial example of what could be done by industry to further such a program when the large "Dacron" plant of the Du Pont Company was erected east of the city. It is equipped with modern sewerage treatment machinery which dumps water in the Neuse said to be as pure and unadorned as it was when it was pumped from underground wells for use in the plant.

The city of Kinston has been studying ways and means to provide a modern sewerage disposal plant for this community for some years. It is a question of money. How to get the five million dollars, or more, which would be needed for such a facility under present bond limitations has not been answered. When it is, it will have to be matched by similar efforts in all cities and towns along the Neuse watershed, or else the major objective will be lost.

State legislation for a positive clean-up program for North Carolina's major streams has been initiated, but it does not go far enough in the right direction. So far it offers no help to the cities and towns which would be faced with the financial burden of building modern disposal plants for sewerage. Most of these communities, like Kinston, have so many more pressing needs that must be met now that to embark upon such projects would bring undue financial strain.

Of course the whole State would gain from such a program. The Cliffs of the Neuse State Park, for instance, would become a much more attractive facility for all who use it now and will use it in future if it were rivered by an unpolluted Neuse River. Industries not now using the stream no doubt would find it more attractive for their needs, and certainly the public health would be enhanced by unpolluted streams.

Cities which now delay a long-range program for disposal plants would be reluctant to do so if the State would cooperate to the point of making needed funds available at low interest rates and joined in the campaign to see that all the State's major streams were brought up to the highest anti-pollution standards.

In the present situation most municipalities feel the economic pressures of other vital needs so strongly they cannot advance without some state or federal assistance.

Opinions In Brief

TEMPE, ARIZONA, DAILY NEWS: "... we're in sympathy with mail men who object to being used for a between meal snack by animals which should be tied up, if they can't control their desire for human flesh."

DALLAS, PA. POST: "A remembrance of this one of the Ten Commandments — 'Thou Shalt Not Kill' — may bestir you, if you should tend to become negligent, thoughtless or take chances when you drive."

BELLINGHAM, WASH., HERALD: "Americans can never be accused of lacking in charity. The American Association of Fund Raising Counsel estimated that their giving in 1956 totaled at least $6,100,000 an increase of 10 per cent over 1955. That's the kind of people we have in this 'capitalistic,' 'imperialistic,' 'money-grubbing' nation."

Mrs. Wilson Opened A Window

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Besides giving this sedate and staid capital its most enjoyable giggle in many a day, Mrs. Charles E. Wilson has demonstrated again — what a force women can be in national politics and government, even though they hold no office save that of wife and housekeeper.

There was more than witty pique, however, behind her praise of her husband's record as Defense Secretary, her deprecation of Secretary Dulles' performance and her telling off of Ike for rebuking her "Charlie." She expressed what many distaffers of officialdom feel, but do not dare to blurt out to the press. Her understandable remarks were both comical and cleansing, like a rush of fresh air into an overfurnished, overheated and mid-Victorian parlor. Like her, many officials and their helpmates fret over Ike's repeated failures to defend his Cabinet members against Democratic diatribes on Capitol Hill.

Many question Ike's contention that Dulles is "the greatest Secretary of State in our time." His far-reaching over- commitments impose a tremendous and wearisome burden on Secretary Wilson's Pentagon personnel. In fact, many regard the atmosphere at Presidential and diplomatic levels as a bit smug and sanctimonious.

HOME TOWNS CALL Many wives, as well as their husbands, would prefer to return to their home towns and friends. Washington holds no unique glamor for them, since most were social and civic doers before home, and their husbands were economic bosses inside and outside their factories and offices.

Moreover, most of the Eisenhower wives are elderly and reserved home bodies. To them the daily round of formal teas, receptions and dinners are a bore and a chore.

Official society under Ike, despite the gushings and superlatives of feminine society reporters, has changed completely since the gay days and purple nights of the party-giving and party-going Trumans and Roosevelts. Truman's "hostess with the mostest" of "Call Me Madam" fame — Perle Mesta — has no Republican rival or imitator.

DULL SOCIAL ESTABLISHMENT Nor do they possess Eleanor Roosevelt's zest for public affairs. It is impossible to picture Mrs. Wilson descending a coal mine to study working conditions, or to imagine Mrs. Humphrey plodding the steaming jungles of Southeast Asia to Southeast Asia to dance with a GI.

Ike runs a rather dull and poky social and political establishment, and many an official wife is just plain fed-up with it. They long to go back to their settled homes, to their grandchildren, to their flower gardens, to visits with comfortable neighbors chosen by themselves rather than

A Day Fit To Dream

By HAL BOYLE

ANDROS TOWN, Bahamas (AP) — I sit here by a cool green sea, warmed by a hot sun the color of a fried egg in the blue bowl of the sky.

One of these days I'm going to rare right up out of this chair and walk 15 feet and dunk a toe in the Atlantic, and test the widely held rumor it is wet. Maybe I'll walk along the shore also and scuff me up a shell with my big grubworm-white toe, and hold it to one ear and hear it sing me the tune of the sea that is already right there murmuring the same song it sang to Christopher Columbus.

One of these days I'm going to drop a line in those waters, I'll bet you, and haul out a big-nosed fish with a high forehead, and it will be speckled with an exploding rainbow, and it will have orange eyes open in lasting surprise.

One of these days — But right now I'm going to just sit here and enjoy the remembered pleasure of my Mississippi boyhood, when summer came and a boy could take a load off his mind by removing his shoes, and feel the breeze cool his spreading toes, as one foot deliciously scratched another.

This is what I think of in the first few free hours of a winter vacation, as I sit here and look at my arm and watch the peculiar nerve jerks of civilization slowly subside.

I feel so grateful to be here. I feel grateful because I know I am fortunate. I realize fully that of the billions of people on earth only a few million ever get the chance to have a winter vacation of this type so far from home — and even fewer have the reckless courage to go so deeply in debt to do it.

It is trips like this that really separate the boys from the bankrupt. So long boyhood!

I feel so grateful to my wife, Frances, at this gracious moment. I learned about women from her, and after nearly 20 years of marriage, there isn't a day dawns that I don't learn more.

Women are a heartening, helpful sex, and without them the world wouldn't be half so interesting.

They do keep the moss from accumulating on a man. I also admire women because they will battle corporations, big or small. Few men will. I am the kind of guy who, if he puts a penny in a subway gum machine and the gum doesn't come out, walks cautiously back and forth on the platform to be sure it is deserted and there are no witnesses before going back and kicking the machine.

My wife — like most wives — has more grit. She believes that what is good for her should be good for General Motors. She has had a running feud with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. that goes back to the days when Don Ameche invented Alexander Graham Bell.

Here's an example: She was sure that we wouldn't need to buy airline passage for our daughter, Tracy Ann, because "we can hold on our laps" — and she won't take up seat space."

Well, when we checked in at the airport the jolly ticket man chuckled. Tracy under the chin, and said, "Pretty child, how old are you?"

Tracy wisely kept her mouth shut, as did her mother, but proud papa had to bust out, "She's 3½ — and big for her age."

As Frances glared at me, the airlines man said: "Aha! Then she'll have to have a half-fare ticket!"

While the development of aviation halted, Frances and the airlines fellow battled out the issue.

Fifteen minutes and $91 later Tracy had her ticket and we were on our way.

I couldn't stop laughing, and I still can't. When you start off a vacation by spending $91 more than you planned on, you might as well laugh. You have 50 full weeks to cry about it after you get home.

Ah, sun, sand, sky, stars like deep candles in the soft night, green sea with your waves edging on the shore, throwing a stick to a dog in the surf. Civilization, wherever you are, how fares it with you?

New 'Brutality' Charges At Marine Recruit Base Are Being Probed

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—Authorities at this Marine Corps depot, where six recruits drowned on a disciplinary march last April, continued an investigation today of "several" recruits' charges that drill instructors had mistreated them.

The Public Information Office said four drill instructors assigned to Platoon 399 have been removed from instruction duty during the inquiry, expected to last 10 days to two weeks.

A spokesman said two instructors have been accused of striking recruits during training maneuvers. None of the instructors has been charged.

The spokesman said a preliminary inquiry began about four weeks ago after Gen. Homer L. Litzberg, the base commander, received an anonymous letter citing possible cases of mistreatment.

The letter reportedly was sent by Nelson R. Porter of Hartford, Vt. His son, David L. Porter, was among the recruits making the accusations. None of the other recruits or drill instructors was identified.

The elder Porter was reported en route to Parris Island.

The New York Times and New York Daily News, in dispatches from Parris Island, quoted the elder Porter as saying his son was struck on the head with a steel bar.

Capt. James F. Mahoney, public information officer, said:

"It has not been established how Porter was struck or that he had been struck with an instrument. He (Porter) has made an allegation he was struck by one of his drill instructors."

There is no evidence to substantiate any statement that an instrument was used, Mahoney added.

Mahoney said the report about a steel bar or other instrument "seems to stem from the father."

U.S. May Supply Vital Weapons

LONDON (AP)—Authoritative sources say the United States may furnish Britain both guided missiles and artillery weapons to be fitted with British-made atomic warheads.

Defense Minister Duncan Sandys, just back from talks with American defense officials in Washington, told the House of Commons the two governments are studying "a possible scheme for the adoption by Britain of certain American weapons."

Sandys declined to give full details, but the informants gave this picture of what may result from the talks:

1. The British will have to fit their own atomic warheads to any American weapons they obtain for use by strictly British military units. U.S. law prohibits turning over atomic weapons to other countries.

2. U.S. artillery units equipped with atomic warheads may be assigned to support British divisions or for temporary integration into British outfits.

3. The Americans agreed in principle to help Britain cut its four-billion-dollar annual defense budget and revamp its military manpower program. Details will be worked out.

4. Britain may streamline its four divisions in West Germany in accordance with requirements of the nuclear age. Their total may be cut from 80,000 men to 50,000.

The British Press Assn. speculated that Britain likely will get the U.S. Army's Nike Hercules, a ground-to-air missile said to have a 50-mile range, and the Navy's Talos, a surface-to-air weapon.

Watch-Dropper Repaired Trouble

MCLESTER, Okla. (AP)—Dr. O.W. Rice found a new way to repair his watch.

His 2-year-old watch stopped running and a jeweler told him it would cost about as much to repair it as to buy a new one. Dr. Rice decided against the operation but several days later he accidentally dropped the watch on the concrete pavement.

When he picked it up, it was running and has been keeping good time ever since.

struck over a period of several days. None of the recruits were hospitalized."

The Daily News quoted Mahoney as saying that other recruits charged that drill instructors had "struck them with their hands." This Marine depot was catapulted into the national spotlight last April when six recruits drowned in a night disciplinary march into nearby swampland.

S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon of Worcester, Mass., the drill instructor who ordered the march, was court-martialed, reduced in rank, fined and spent some time in the brig after sentencing.

There have been other instances here of drill instructors reduced in rank and fined for maltreatment of recruits.

At the San Diego, Calif., Marine recruit depot, a spokesman disclosed yesterday that a drill instructor there was broken from corporal to private first class, relieved of his duties and ordered

Prayer Vigil Begins Midnight Thursday At St. James Church

A 24-hour Prayer Vigil begins at midnight Thursday night at St. James Methodist Church in Greenville. The local Church is part of a world-wide, unending chain of prayer begun January 1, 1955. Someone has been in prayer every hour of every day in a Methodist Church somewhere for more than two years. The months of January and February of 1957 were selected by the North Carolina Conference for participation in the vigil in June 1955, making Friday's observance its second full day of prayer.

Someone will be praying in the Church throughout the entire 24-hour period, Minister J. Malloy Owen explained. "Our people have volunteered to take responsibility of each of the twenty-four hours, with each person agreeing to remain in the Sanctuary in prayer for one hour." As one hour comes to an end, those "keeping watch" will meet the persons coming in to relieve them at the Altar. The two groups will kneel and pray about the Lord's Prayer. This constitutes "the changing of the guard" and without conversation the old group will leave the Church, the Minister explained.

The Methodist Church at Atlantic, N. C., on the Ocean, is in prayer all day today. The Church at Dover will share part of Friday's vigil with the Greenville Church. The Trinity Methodist Church in Jacksonville and First Methodist Church in Havelock will take over the vigil at midnight Friday night.

"Any person wishing to pray in the Church during this vigil is more than welcomed to do so, regardless of Church membership," the Pastor stated. The only request made by the Committee on Prayer is that there be no conversation in the Sanctuary of the Church. Worshippers are encouraged to bring their Bibles or other aids to Christian worship, and are asked to enter through the Study door.

Reno's Hopes Of 'Normalcy' Rise

RENO (AP)—Downtown Reno, torn by explosion and fire Tuesday, had hopes of getting back to normal today.

Two of the main business blocks have been closed since the blasts. The evacuation area was doubled yesterday after some jittery, blast-conscious residents told the Fire Department they thought the smelled propane-air gas fumes.

More than 60 gas detection experts from half a dozen agencies worked through the night to be sure that no hidden concentrations remained in pioneer irrigation and drainage ditches which have been "built over" in the course of the city's growth.

When ditches are checked, the crews will turn to the mains and meters of the Sierra Pacific Power Co., which delivers the propane gas supply to Reno.

That procedure was determined yesterday at a somewhat stormy meeting of city officials and others interested.

Several felt checks by the utility company of its own facilities and assurance they were in order were sufficient to warrant opening of the blocked-off evacuated area.

Mayor Len Harris ruled the area would not be opened until checks of all possibilities had assured complete safety.

The four-block area was shut down for the second time yesterday morning—after reports of new gas concentrations were made.

Widow Acquitted In Youth's Gun Slaying

NASHVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A 50-year-old widow testified she fired a pistol to warn away three high school boys who wanted to visit her daughter and was acquitted by a jury here last night on second degree murder charges.

Mrs. Eula May Hooper of Nash County was freed in the shooting death of Louis Clay Vick, 17, of Rocky Mount on the night of Nov. 20.

The slender, black-haired defendant told the jury she ordered the boys away and fired one shot in warning, a second shot by accident.

The bullet that fatally wounded Vick also hit Harold M. Martin, 17, in the chest, but he was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Hooper said the boys had two survivors denied. She said used vulgar language, which she could not see or hear them when she fired.

The third youth, Joseph Albert Blanton of Rocky Mount, said Mrs. Hooper ordered them away from her rural home after they had inquired about her 19-year-old daughter, Elsie Mae. Blanton said they returned soon afterward for their car, parked in the Hooper yard, and called to her asking that she not shoot while they got the car.

It was then, he said, that Mrs. Hooper fired.

The daughter testified that she did not know the boys or why they had come.

Investigating officers related that when the shots were fired the boys were standing either in the road, about 40 yards away, or just across it in front of the house.

Lightning Bolt Circled House

SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP)—It will take some time for Mr. and Mrs. Max Pierce to get over the lightning storm which struck their house as they were watching television.

No one was hurt, but a bolt hit their electric fence, traveled around the house, peeled the bark from four trees, set fire to a sofa in the yard, blew out the light bulbs and burned out the freezer and the electric toaster.

The Pierces' only consolation: the TV wasn't hurt.

Sympathetic To Safety Repute

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—District Judge Luigi de Pasquale sympathized with the motorist brought before him on an auto speeding charge.

Herbert E. Green, 64, argued that his unblemished record of 47 years of driving was "ruined" by one policeman.

"I have driven all over the country, about 35,000 miles a year, and lectured all over on safety," he said. "I think the man who wrote me up right in front of my office has taken from me a good reputation you cannot buy for $10,000."

Said the judge: "Your driving reputation is still good as far as the court is concerned. Case dismissed."

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 19 cases at Monday's session of Greenville Municipal Recorder's Court, 12 of them involving motor vehicle and traffic law violations.

Willie Bright, Washington, driving drunk, 90 days, suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to drive for one year. Bright paid costs for not having a driver's license, and, for leaving the scene of an accident, the court taxed him $25, costs deducted, and he had to pay $10 for medical bill for himself. Judge Whedbee gave Bright one week in the county jail for failure to stop at a red light.

James J. Andrews, 309 E. Gum Rd., driving drunk, 90 days, suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to drive for one year.

Possession of non-tax-paid whiskey: Emma Mallory, Negro, 505 Boyd Ave., six months and she is not to possess liquor for two years and not permit any in her home, and pay $50 fine, costs deducted. Naomi-Teel, Negro, 112 E. First St., six months in prison. She appealed. Hattie Grice, Negro, address unknown to police, 30 days, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted.

Beatrice Stokes, Rt. 4, city, possession of tax-paid whiskey and for sale, two charges, was found not guilty.

Raymond Batten, Rt. 2, city, failure to yield right of way, not prosessed with leave.

Roy Little, Negro, 405 Bonner Lane, paid costs for following too close.

Alton Tucker, Negro, failure to keep proper lookout while backing, costs.

Ernest McLawhorn, 2702 E. Third St., failure to keep proper lookout, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs, and within five days he is to visit optometrist for eye examination.

William E. Tyson, Negro, Winterville, paid $5 for defective muffler.

Milton Perkins, Negro, 708 Fleming St., assault with a deadly weapon, two charges, prayer for judgment continued on condition that the defendant contact Dr. Franzoni and lay the matter before him and cooperate with him fully. Cases combined.

Louise Rogers, Lake City, Florida, drunk and assaulting a police officer, called and she failed to appear. Court ordered bond forfeited and issued capias for her.

Cleaver E. Stevenson, Negro, 1108 Pitt St., paid $5 for defective muffler.

Allen McLawhorn, Raleigh, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, paid $5 and costs and $15 for being drunk. McLawhorn must serve one week in jail during vacation for allowing a non-licensed person to drive his car.

Assault on a female: William Norman, paid costs and $20 medical bill for Betty Smith.

Theodore Wilson, Negro, 115 E. First St., waived preliminary hearing and he was bound over to Superior Court.

Drunk: Robert Harrington, Negro, 917 Fleming St., 30 days on roads; Louise Adams, rural resident, $15; Jesse Stancil, Winterville, 30 days or $15; Robert Harrington, 30 days in jail, suspended on condition that he not visit Busy Bee Cafe Jr sidewalk in front of it for two years.

Tough Narcotics Bill Is Advanced

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A narcotics bill providing for tougher penalties than the federal law has passed its first test in the Texas state senate.

The bill, requiring a minimum 20 years to life imprisonment for anyone who sells or gives away narcotics in violation of the law, was passed by the senate jurisprudence committee. A second conviction provides for life imprisonment or the electric chair. The minimum imprisonment for narcotics violations under federal law is five years.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

WOMEN'S CONG. #3

WOMEN'S PREFERENCES are featured in this house built at Munster, Ind., near Chicago to demonstrate recommendations made by 103 housewives who attended the Women's Congress on Housing in Washington last spring. One of three models sponsored by the National Retail Lumber Dealers Assn., this house covers 1,623 square feet. It was built with brick veneer as shown at the top, but is equally attractive in wood siding as shown in the inset, Edwin Bruno of Skokie, Ill., was the architect. Plans are being made available nationally through local retail lumber dealers.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures

An unfinished expansion attic gives a home owner the opportunity to increase the living space of his house when the occasion demands.

Lumber yards and building supply dealers can tell you that thousands of Americans are undertaking this project on their own. To most of these thousands, it is a first-time venture into the actual construction of anything as large as a room.

Think It Out

Entirely aside from the choice materials, which is governed largely by individual taste and the size of the pocketbook, there are other decisions to be made before getting down to the work itself.

These involve such things as the height of the ceiling, the size of the walls, the depth of buildings and the amount of storage space. You can't do much about these matters in most extra rooms. In a basement, for instance, your construction of a finished area is guided to a considerable degree by the physical setup as it stands. But in an attic, almost everything is determined by you, and an amazing amount of flexibility is possible.

If you want the room to be as wide as possible, then the side walls, known as knee walls, must be very low. The higher the knee walls, the narrower the room will be. And the narrower the room, the more storage space you'll have under the eaves, assuming that you are planning on using the space for storage.

Make It Easy

One way of saving yourself work is to make the knee walls 4 feet high, especially if you are using wallboard or plywood or any of the materials which come in dimensions of 4 feet by 7 or 8 feet. This will keep cutting to a minimum. Further cutting can be eliminated by making the distance between the top of the knee walls and the start of the ceiling also 4 feet.

Probably the greatest work and time saver of all is a sketch of the entire layout as you want it to be. It doesn't have to be a work of art, just a diagram showing exactly where everything is, giving measurements, and clear enough to be understood by you when you look at it a day or a week or a month later.

You'll recognize the importance of such a sketch when you begin putting up the framework for the walls. It will show you, to give just one example, when to omit one or two upright studs at a particular spot in order to make room for a closet or a built-in. If you put up all the studs without regard for planned recesses, you'll have a lot of needless cutting later on. Perhaps that seems very fundamental to you, but it's surprising how many times studying has to be cut out of a framework because the amateur builder neglected to leave space for one or more desired built-ins. And while we're on the subject, don't forget that all attic door and window openings should be framed with double 2 by 4's, just as they should be in all good construction.

Tiles Come Last

Most expansion attics have sub-floors, which should be covered with plywood or hardboard if you plan on putting down asphalt or vinyl or any of the other resilient floor tiles. This base, or underlayment, should be put down after you put up the framework for the walls but before you install the wall material. The tiles themselves need not be laid until the rest of the room is completed. Some persons like to put down the floor earlier in the job, but experience shows that it is difficult to keep it from getting marred during the rest of the construction work.

Finishing an attic is nothing more than a lot of small projects (any one of which you wouldn't hesitate to tackle) put together into one large project. If you make a

Intersection Has Historic Name

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—One of Elizabeth City's busy intersections is known as Dog Corners. The name dates back to the 1890's when a popular barroom faced the streets. To pass the time of day, men would move outside where dog fights were held with as many as six canines participating.

To Soon Rule On Channel Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is reportedly nearly ready to rule on proposed television channel changes affecting about 30 communities.

Commission officials said no final decision has been reached in any of the cases, but there were indications that action would come before the end of this month.

The proposed changes grow out of efforts to end or minimize the mixture of very high frequency (VHF) and ultra high frequency (UHF) channels in the same area.

Many newer UHF stations have been forced to close down because they were unable to compete with other stations in their area using the older UHF system. Many receiving sets are adapted only for UHF.

The pending solution is a swapping of channels among these areas so as to make each of them all VHF (the older channels numbered 2 through 13) or all UHF (the newer channels numbered 14 through 83), or predominantly one or the other.

The proposed channel changes are being considered for Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Va.; New Bern, N.C.; Charleston, S.C.; and Columbia, S.C., among others.

—ELIZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL—
A Call for Doctor Barton
© 1956 by Elizabeth Seifert. Reprinted by permission of the publisher, Dodd, Mead & Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS
Doctor Grady Barton, on vacation from a large hospital in Chicago, stops for gas at the small town of Green Holly, Wisconsin, and runs into an emergency. Frank Seddens, long-time resident of the town, is stricken with a high blood pressure attack at the station and Grady comes to his aid. Seddens is impressed with the young doctor's ability and asks him to consider a practice in the town, which is without a doctor. It is a tempting offer — Grady is tired of the hospital routine and wants a general practice. Besides, his wife, Gisela, is divorcing him and he wants to "get away" and start a new life. Grady returns to Chicago and his job as admissions physician. He is unhappy with the duty because of the amount of paper work involved. After a few days, Grady receives from Seddens an invitation to be interviewed by the town committee. At the meeting at the Seddens home, a prejudiced, aggressive man called Kopp says that the doctor of their choice should be a settled man with a family. Grady replies hastily: "I am married." He accepts the position offered him and starts the practicing in his new office. Judge Cowan, one of the town committeemen, invites Grady to a dinner at his home. There Grady recognizes Judge Cowan's lovely daughter June as the girl who had made a strong impression in his mind when he had first seen her many weeks before.

CHAPTER 11
Other guests arrived, but only June mattered to Grady. He talked, and hoped that he made sense. He accepted a cocktail without its spilling from his unsteady hand; he listened again to praise for his care of Judy Nolan. He brought in Pearl's name to share the limelight and the compliments; he even managed to tell a humorous anecdote about the girl.

In turn these others told him about Pearl. When the girl was sixteen her mother had remarried — a widower with four small children. Pearl had walked out of the house. "She said," told June with a gay laugh, "that if she was going to baby-tend, she'd do it where she'd be paid. And she's been on her own ever since. You're lucky to have her, Dr. Barton."

Then she turned, smiling to greet the last guest, Mo Chronister. "How's my best girl?" demanded Mo, and kept his hand upon the sash of his slender waist when he turned to speak to the

Grady contented himself with an extended hand and a brief, "How are you, Chronister?"

They soon went in to dinner, where Chronister dominated the general table talk, telling various anecdotes in a jargon of crime and underworld usage. His talk of hoods and choppers and molls was somewhat amusing to the man who had for years held Grady's job in Chicago.

Grady was seated beside June Cowan and would have preferred talking exclusively to her, and letting her talk to him, but the table was small enough — there were twelve people present — for Mo to prevent this, whether that was his intent or not.

June was a very pretty girl. Her skin was clear and fine, her pretty brown hair hung in ringlets to her neck and to the back of her neck. Her hands were short square — capable. Her arms were slender and round.

Her voice was clear and her laughter musical. During the meal Grady managed to discover that she had been graduated from college only last summer and was keeping house for her father and "Candy, our dog."

She explained her father's semi-retirement. "He's off the bench, but he keeps an office. Takes cases that amuse him."

"Some even pay me a little money," put in the judge catching a word of their talk. "Others are fun."

The judge's home was comfortable and gracious. The appointments of his dinner table, the meal served, told of good taste and wealth.

The judge's daughter . . . Grady let himself become enveloped by a warm and rosy cloud of thoughts — dissipated, pleasantly, by the touch of June's hand upon his arm. Her smiling eyes indicated that Mo had spoken to him, had asked him a question and now awaiting his reply.

"I'm sorry," Grady apologized. "I was thinking."

"I asked if you already belonged to any service club," said Mo with a grin. He was a very big man, Elmo Chronister, with yellow-blond hair cut into a somewhat long crew cut, very blue eyes and a big mouth that smiled widely over clenched white teeth.

Grady answered in the negative, explaining that the admissions doctor of a big-city hospital had little free time for good will luncheons or other activities.

"Well, then," said Mo enthusiastically, "I think you belong in the Lions. I'd like to propose your name to our group, Doc."

"Why, that's very kind."

"It's a thing you should do," Mo insisted. "We're a service club and particularly interested in civic matters. We work hard and we do a lot of good. We buy glasses for a child, we nag the town council to repair a bad spot in the street, we help with the polo drive, distribute the Salvation Army Christmas baskets—and we have a lot of fun!"

Mo leaned closer toward Grady. "You'd get a real bang out of a stunt soon coming up, Doc. We do it annually. It gets our towns known pretty well roundabout. You see, with the co-operation of the highway patrol — they have reasons to be obliging to me — we select a certain day or night, not known except to the committee — in advance, I mean — and on that night we flag down a car with a couple in it. Arrest them, you see. We bring them to the hall where a dinner is being held — complete with our wives and our best girls and all — and then we shower that couple with gifts, put 'em up in a good motel for the night, service their car; they have a whale of a time and go off to spread the good word about the hospitality which they've known at the Hollies."

"That's the sort of thing we do!" He leaned back to await Grady's capitulation, evidently sure that he had completely explained the activities, and the worthwhile aspects, of membership in the Lions.

Grady, to date out of touch with such goings-on, sat somewhat dismayed. He wanted friends and to become a part of the towns, but Mo was not one to submit to cautious consideration of anything which he'd proposed.

"Look, Barton," he said insistently, "a chap just about has to join something, of the sort, in town of this size. It's about the only way to make friends. For a stranger, I mean."

"I suppose," said Grady. "Where I came from, that was accomplished through the church." June's blue eyes smiled at him, and she nodded, as if pleased. "And of course in college the medium was the fraternity."

"Where you a frat man?" asked Mo, with quickened interest.

"Yes," said Grady. "I was."

He saw Joe Perry smile at Judge Cowan.

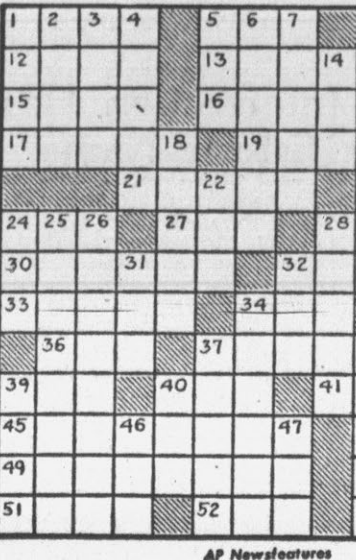

"And," he continued, "I can see the merits of membership in your club . . ."

"O. K.," said Mo. "I'll advance your name. Pronto."

After dinner, tables of bridge were set up, with Mo assuming that he's start, at least, paired off with June. He assumed all sorts

Goal Revisions Reveal Soviet Overoptimism

By THOMAS P. WHITEY
NEW YORK (AP)—The Kremlin's production goals for 1957 give a good indication of how greatly the sixth five-year plan overestimated the Soviet Union's ability to expand output.

In announcing the 1957 economic plan to the current session of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament), economic czar Mikhail Pervukhin gave no revised goals for the five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1960.

But if production increases from now on by no more than the additional amount anticipated for 1957, the 1960 output of some basic industrial products would stack up this way as compared with the targets announced a year ago (figures in millions of metric tons):

	Original Goal	Revised
Coal	593	497
Steel	68	60
Pig iron	53	45
Petroleum	135	137
Electricity	320	288

(Last figure in billions of kilowatt hours)

It can be estimated similarly that Pervukhin's revised plan involves increasing total industrial output 40 to 50 per cent by 1960. The original plan called for a 65 per cent increase over 1955.

In this set of estimates, petroleum is the only one of the five basic items for which the Kremlin's original goal remains. Soviet oil output has soared annually in recent years.

Even these revised goals would represent a very large increase in production. Fifteen million more tons of steel in the space of five years is a lot of steel.

There is also the possibility that the Soviet Union will be able to raise its rate of production increase — in the output of steel and electric power, for example — above that set for 1957. But the fact remains that the Kremlin has been compelled to lower its sights in the field of industrial development.

The height from keel to the top of the mast of the U.S. Navy aircraft carrier Saratoga is equal to a 25-story building.

Inflation Is Known As Breeder Of Depression

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Inflation — including inflated taxes — is cited as a depression breeder by one who ought to know. Former President Hoover, who had his hair curled once by a depression, sees the foreshadowing of another in the present era of free spending and rising cost of living — and particularly in the complacency about it.

In the inflation period of the '20s that bred the big bust of 1929 the slogan was: "Never sell America short." Today the slogans are: "the old economic laws are outmoded" and "After all it's only money."

Hoover thinks that the 103 million dollars a year Americans are paying to be governed at various levels is too much for the economy to bear without danger of overstrain.

Treasury Secretary Humphrey also frets about the tax burden. He says: "The present rates are so high that they will in the long run hamper our economic growth."

By that both men mean that after paying out 103 billion dollars of their individual and business incomes for taxes and other governmental levies, people aren't saving enough to finance the growth of industry needed if 1½ million new jobs are to be found each year, and homes are to be built for the young couples coming along. Which is another way of saying that money is tight.

Times are so good right now, that about the only thing to jolt people out of their complacency

Quick Diagnosis Of A 'Flutter'

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP)—When Dr. Ramsay O'Neal noticed a slight fluttering in his heart region while on a fishing trip, he wondered if it was the forerunner to a heart attack.

Another flutter and he clapped his hand over his heart in real anxiety.

That's when he found the small breem which he had caught earlier and absent-mindedly placed in his shirt pocket.

Dr. Messick heads the project in the area including this state, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, and the District of Columbia. College presidents and professors, deans of education, and state education officers are taking part.

The project was begun in 1955 and is now being carried out in all parts of the United States. Its purpose is to aid colleges and universities in preparing elementary and high school teachers to help children cope with problems of personal and family living. The project is financed by the American Social Hygiene Association.

Dr. Messick spoke last Thursday at a meeting of the School Boards Association in Wilmington. His topic was "Responsibilities, Duties, and Future Goals of Schools."

Urges Contempt Case Against 2 Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) asks his Government Operations Committee today to recommend contempt prosecutions against Einar O. Mohl, Frank W. Brewster and two lesser teamsters union officials.

Mohl and Brewster, along with Harry Reiss of New York City, refused last month to answer questions in a Senate investigation of their union.

They denied the Senate Investigations subcommittee had any right to question them, and Brewster and Lapoma refused to turn over union records the subcommittee had subpoenaed.

The investigating subcommittee, a part of the Government Operations Group, yesterday voted unanimously to bring contempt charges against Mohl, executive vice president of the teamsters union; Lapoma, secretary-treasurer of its Seattle Local 174; and Reiss, secretary-treasurer of its New York Local 284.

The group had voted previously to take similar action against Brewster, an international vice president who heads the 11-state Western Conference of Teamsters. Mohl is a top lieutenant to Union President Dave Beck, who has been engaged in a long-range row with the subcommittee. McClellan said Beck will be subpoenaed.

McClellan also disclosed his subcommittee "very likely" will hold early closed door hearings soon to investigate contracts the Army has awarded to firms headed by the wife of Robert Tripp Ross, now on leave as an assistant secretary of defense. He indicated Ross would be among the witnesses.

One issue in the inquiry is an $884,150 clothing contract the Army awarded last November to Wynn Enterprises, Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., of which Mrs. Ross is president. Ross, a former vice president of the firm, has said he severed connections with it in 1952 when he was elected to Congress. He has denied any wrongdoing.

After 8 Years, Will See Again

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP)—Herb Mulligan, a Georgetown College student, "can't wait to see dad, or rather for dad to see me" after eight years of total blindness.

Herb will go to his La Grange, Ill., home this weekend for the special reunion with his father, Merle C. Mulligan.

The father lost the sight of one eye when hit by a baseball at the age of 17. Years later he ran into a tree limb and sight in the other eye began to fade.

He underwent an operation two weeks ago. When the bandages were removed he could see with one eye, Herb said. He may not recover sight in his other eye but the operation has been termed a success.

Clarinet Specialist Here

Daniel Bonade (above), professor of clarinet at the Juilliard School of Music, and fifteen North Carolina teacher-musicians and band directors will serve as instructors at the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic at East Carolina College Friday and Saturday of this week, Feb. 6-8.

Approximately 120 students from thirty high schools of this state will be present on the campus for two days of work under this corps of teachers. Herbert Fred, director of bands at the University of North Carolina, will organize a band composed of students at the clinic and will conduct the group in a concert Saturday night at 8 o'clock in Wright auditorium. Bonade is regarded as one of the great clarinetists and teachers of clarinet of the present day. His pupils include first-chair clarinetists in most of the major symphony orchestras in this country. His career includes fifteen years as first clarinetist with the Philadelphia Orchestra and eight years with the Cleveland Symphony. He appears now on the Voice of Firestone program under Howard Barlow.

Arms Reportedly Going To Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia is reported to have resumed arms shipments to Egypt in recent weeks in what appears to be a move to rebuild President Nasser's battered armed forces.

Top American officials who disclosed this today said, however, they could not be sure whether the shipments represent a new purchase or additional deliveries under a 250-million-dollar contract disclosed in September 1955. There have been rumors, but no confirmation, of a second such deal.

The officials said they have evidence of deliveries of medium tanks, artillery, personnel carriers and probably jet fighters.

These weapons are understood to have been unloaded in crates from Communist ships amid great secrecy, mainly at the Egyptian port of Alexandria.

The new shipments all have arrived since the Mideast fighting ended three months ago.

Any new Soviet arms shipments to Egypt would be a violation of a United Nations Assembly cease-fire resolution, adopted Nov. 1, which called on all countries to refrain from introducing new war materials into the Middle East area.

Nasser's acceptance of additional Soviet arms would be almost certain to add to Middle East tension at this time.

American authorities have been unable thus far to determine how much Soviet equipment has been delivered since the fighting ended. They agree that the new shipments thus far are not nearly as big as the original 250-million-dollar order.

Extra Patience Is Gray's Big Asset

By MARGARET KERNODLE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Gordon Gray has been heard to say of himself: "I'm not smarter than anybody else; I'm just more patient."

That quality of patience — together with unremitting hard work — is said by his friends to be one of the secrets of his success in business, education and politics.

At 47, Gray has been a high official in both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations, a university president and a leading newspaper publisher in North Carolina.

Yesterday, President Eisenhower announced he was nominating Gray to succeed retiring Arthur S. Flemming as the nation's defense mobilizer.

Although born to wealth — his family made millions in the tobacco business — Gray is an apostle of hard work. He has been known to average 9 or 10 hours a day at his office and to carry full briefcases home afterward.

He didn't want to go to college — but he led his class at the University of North Carolina. Twenty years later, he became president of his alma mater.

He didn't want to go to law school either — but his father persuaded him to go and he graduated high in his class at the Yale Law School.

He did want to get in uniform, entered the Army as a private in 1942, came out a captain — and was secretary of the Army under President Truman seven years after he was a private.

Since then he has held other important federal posts.

In 1951 he was appointed director of the Psychological Strategy Board created by Truman to direct the cold war against Russia.

In 1955 Eisenhower called him back to Washington from his university post, this time to become assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs. He holds that job now.

Gray is a former state legislator and a former president of the Young Democrats of his state. But he has stated he voted for Eisenhower.

He was born in Baltimore, Md., May 30, 1909. His father Bowman Gray started as a salesman for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and rose ultimately to chairman of the board.

After his first wife Jane died in 1953, Gray married the former Nancy Maguire Beebe. He is the father of four boys and the stepfather of three girls.

He is president of the Piedmont Publishing Co., which publishes the Winston-Salem Journal and the Twin-City Sentinel at Winston-Salem, N.C.

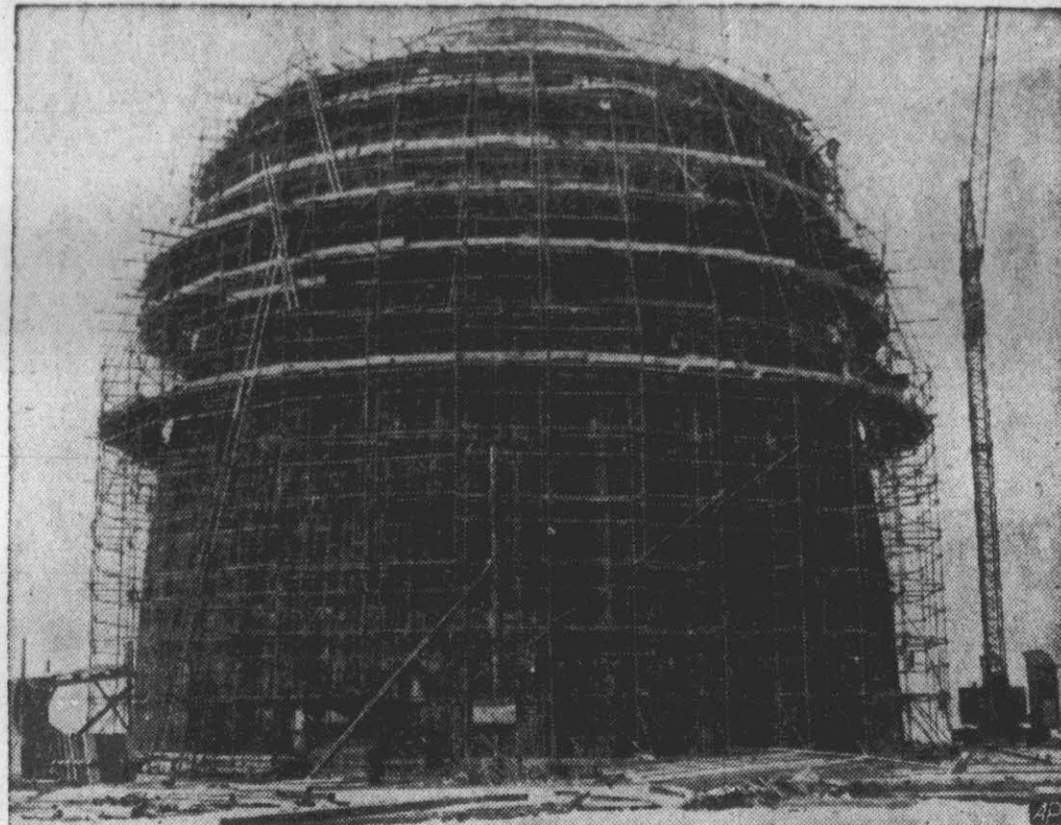

Once, when one of his sons was too sick to deliver the Journal, Gray took over the boy's route like any other dutiful father.

College Becomes Family Affair

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. (AP)—Like father, like mother, like son — that's the way it is with the Porter family of Central Michigan College.

Dad Oliver C. Porter of Standish graduates in February with a degree in English to help him as a public school teacher.

His football player son, Oliver, graduates in June with a mathematics degree, while Mrs. Porter gets her sheepskin at the end of the summer term.

Moscow Has 'Confessed' U. S. Spies In Spectacular

MOSCOW (AP)—The Madison Avenue treatment has been applied with a heavy hand to Moscow's newest spy charge.

With television cameras trained on elaborately prepared stage setting, the Foreign Ministry presented a three-hour espionage activity claim against the United States. Featured were four live "spies."

L. F. Ilyichev, head of the Foreign Ministry press department, conducted the lengthy presentation before a news conference attended by some 200 Soviet and foreign reporters. Televised and broadcast live for the Moscow area, it also was filmed for later showings elsewhere in the Communist bloc.

Ilyichev charged the United States is carrying on an unprecedented espionage campaign that amounts to secret war against the Soviet Union.

Reading from prepared statements under the glaring TV lights, the four told stories of falling into the spy business through U.S. inducements that included drinking, gambling, swearing and visits to houses of prostitution.

The four identified themselves as Nikolai I. Yakuta, Mikhail P. Kudrayavtsev, Adam L. Novikov and Konstantin I. Khmelitsky. They said they fell into German hands during World War II, began working for U.S. intelligence agencies in postwar Germany and were trained by U.S. espionage schools there.

The four added that they surrendered or were captured in the Soviet Union between May 1953 and April 1954.

Khmelitsky said he had been supplying American intelligence with false reports ever since he was arrested by Soviet security agents almost four years ago. His last instructions from the United States were received only last December, he added.

The four said their objectives as agents had been "military and economic spying, diversionism, compromising Soviet and party workers, obtaining Soviet documents, spreading anti-Soviet literature and false rumors and drawing morally unstable people into spying activities."

They said they had not been punished in any way after Soviet security caught up with them. They expressed gratitude for the "humane policy" of the Soviet government.

Describing his spy school education, Yakuta said: "In order to turn us into obedient servants and make us forget our love for our motherland, the Americans encouraged drinking and gambling and bad language among us and even at times took us to Munich to visit public houses."

Even the most solid Soviet reporters laughed at that.

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP)—Scientists say that Indian picture writings on rocks in the nearby San Luis Rey Valley strengthen the theory that American Indians migrated to the North American continent from Asia.

Dr. J. J. Markey, head of the San Luis Rey Historical Society, said tests made at the University of California at Los Angeles show the symbols in the rocks to be from 400 to 9,000 years of age. Dr. Markey said 60 different symbols have been identified and a score of them indicate an Asiatic origin.

Soviet Union and other Communist nations. Such action, he declared, makes the United States guilty of "gross interference in the home affairs of sovereign nations."

Charges detailed included operation of spy schools in West Germany, regular violation of Soviet air space and smuggling agents into the Soviet Union.

On a long table in front of the Foreign Ministry spokesman was a collection of what he called American spy equipment. It included portable radio transmitters and receivers, maps, forged documents, cameras and poison capsules. The poison, it was said, was to be swallowed if the agents were captured.

For a clincher Ilyichev introduced the four "spies" he said had been slipped into Soviet territory by the U.S. intelligence service.

U. S. Communist Party Will Consider Changes In Policy

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Communist party will consider sweeping changes in policy at its 16th national convention opening here Saturday.

At stake is the bitterly debated issue of whether it will continue to hew to traditional Marxism-Leninism, with the Kremlin as the guiding spirit, or take a more independent stand.

About 300 delegates elected on a regional basis are expected to attend. They will represent a membership estimated by the party at 25,000.

Some of the convention program is expected to be "open," but most sessions dealing with issues vital to the party will be closed.

The debate will center around a resolution drafted last September by the party's national committee, calling for re-examination of certain Marxist-Lenin theories on the ground they may have become outdated or obsolete.

William Z. Foster, national chairman, is regarded as the party's chief proponent for adhering to the traditional Marxist-Lenin line.

His chairmanship could hinge on the convention action. The delegates will elect a national committee, which in turn decides who will serve as chairman.

A leading advocate of "sweeping changes" is John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper. He and his forces are known to the old-line Reds as "right-wingers."

Eugene Dennis, party secretary, generally is represented as favoring some change, but not to the extent proposed by Gates.

The Soviet Communist party has indicated plainly that it favors the Foster faction.

Gates outlined his philosophy several months ago in an article "Time for a Change," in the Marxist monthly Political Affairs. He wrote: "We now realize how harmful it was to defy Stalin and consider him the fountainhead of all wisdom. It is just as wrong to attribute such qualities to Marx and Lenin even though they were better men than Stalin."

"The issue consequently is not the abandonment of Marxist-Leninist theory, but the need for a critical re-evaluation and further development of it."

The "right-wingers" advocate dropping the word "Communist" from the party and even abandoning the party form of organization in favor of a "nonparty" political action association.

Blind And Deaf Pet Is Recovered

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP)—Phoning the Raleigh Register to report the loss of his female cocker spaniel, a 12-year-old family pet, Dr. R. G. Broadbent offered a reward, but refrained from providing the customary line, "Answers to the name of . . ."

"The dog is blind and deaf," he explained.

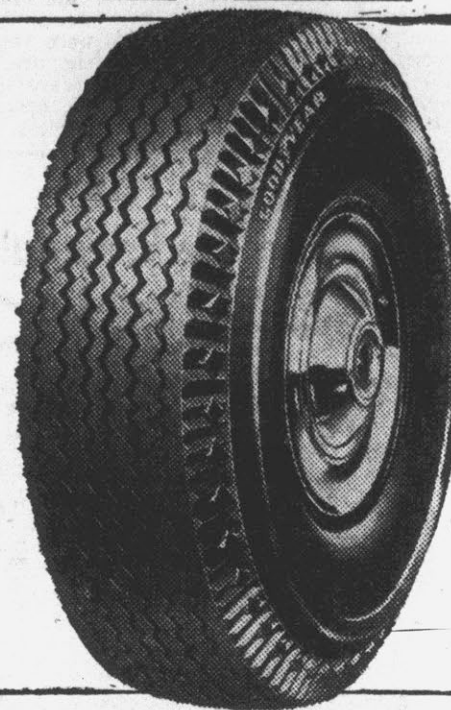

A Beckleyan who read the notice spotted the dog on a street and returned her.

City-wide curiosity was appeased by Mrs. Broadbent, who disclosed the cocker's name is "Tucky."

STARTING FOR ECC TONIGHT—Don Harris and Nick Nichols, above, will be in the starting East Carolina lineup tonight, as they tackle the powerful Atlantic Christian Bulldogs in Memorial Gymnasium. The two sharpshooters will man the Pirate forward slots. ECC will be rated 12-point underdogs to the visitors tonight and will perform before a packed house. There will be no tickets on sale tonight.

Sell-Out Crowd Expected Tonight As East Carolina Meets Bulldogs

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

When Atlantic Christian invades the Memorial Gymnasium tonight, they will battle before a sell-out crowd of well over 2,000. Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Director of Athletics at ECC, stated today that there will be "no ticket sales at all" tonight.

The student body devoured every seat in the house earlier this week by signing for tickets, with the exception of 100, which were sold to Atlantic Christian students. There will be no tickets at all for public sale.

Plaster Will Play

Coach Howard Porter stated today in an early interview that Joe Plaster, 6-11 sophomore center who injured a knee last week, will definitely play tonight. "We don't know how long he'll play," Porter added, "but we're going to give him a chance. He may last five minutes or he may last 40. We don't know."

The big Virginia-born pivotman is not expected to be at top strength, but his height will be needed badly to combat the 7-foot ACC center, John Marley. If Plaster is in any kind of shape, according to Coach Porter, the Bucs' chances of winning tonight will be greatly improved.

Bow And Arrow Man Lured Into Hunting Elephant

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Would $10,000 be enough to lure you to the Belgian Congo to kill an elephant with a bow and arrow?

It is for William Negley, 43, an independent oil operator here. Negley plans to take off Saturday for Africa, where he hopes to bag an elephant with a bow made especially for elephant hunting. The hunt was prompted by a bet with a friend, he said.

The archery firm owner supplying his extra-heavy bow, Fred Bear of Grayling, Mich., said William K. Carpenter Jr., wealthy sportsman of Wilmington, Del., made the bet with Negley. Negley declined to either confirm or deny Bear's statement.

But he says the money is not the main purpose of the trip. His main reason, he says, is to bring back specimens for a new African hall at White Museum here.

As if there weren't enough troubles with Plaster, Porter is also having to worry about a starting guard position. Charlie Adams, who has been working as a regular starter at that position for the past several games, is nursing a bad ankle and may not begin tonight's game. Porter said this morning that "either Adams or (Freddie) James will start at one guard slot." The other guard position will be handled by 6-4 junior, Guy Mendenhall.

The forwards will be manned by All-Conference Don Harris and Nick Nichols. Nichols, too, has been plagued by injuries much of the time this season, but is expected to be in fairly good shape for tonight's encounter. Harris is expected to continue his role as the team's leading scorer.

According to Porter, if Plaster is not able to keep the pace, sophomore center Tim Smothers, a 6-5, 210 pounder, will take over the position. Smothers has seen limited duty with the Bucs at various times this year.

Bulldogs Favored

The visiting Bulldogs will sport a powerful quintet, led by 7-foot Marley and sharp-shooting Jack Underwood, who is averaging well over 20 points per game. Billy Widgen, Darwin Williams and Chuck Hester will round out the first five.

Coach Jack McComas' visiting ACC group is favored to sweep through the Bucs by 12 points tonight, according to most observers. Game time is 8:00.

Winning Streaks No Sure Bet For Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A college basketball team that has run up two seven-game winning streaks in the same season would seem to be a shoe-in for its conference championship.

Wake Forest, however, apparently chose the wrong conference this season. And the Deacons have an uphill pull as they open an eight-game stretch tonight in an effort to overhaul North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Tar Heels, still ranked first in the nation, are 17-0 for the season, seven of them ACC victories. Wake Forest is 13-3 overall, 5-2 in the conference.

The Deacons' last eight games included five road tilts, two games with North Carolina, and one non-conference game. UNC plays three of its seven remaining games away from home, but all seven are in the family.

Wake Forest's campaign begins tonight at South Carolina and continues tomorrow night at Clemson.

The South Carolina Gamecocks, way down in the ACC but with a 10-7 record overall, will be playing on their home court, where their only loss this season was to North Carolina. They'll be paced, of course, by forward Grady Wallace, with a 29.6-point per game scoring average and a season of outstanding defensive work. Wake Forest has a victory apiece over South Carolina and Clemson, neither of them by comfortable margins.

No games were played last night.

Putting Contest In Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Good putting was at a premium as the $15,000 Tucson Open Tournament opened today on the straight and easy El Rio Country Club course.

The sponsors' ire was softened somewhat when a few more top golfers showed up yesterday, but nine of last year's top money winners are still missing.

After the Professional Golfers Assn. was accused of a "breach of faith" for not providing top players, Gene Littler flew in from San Diego. Doug Ford returned from his sick son's bedside in New York and Fred Hawkins came from El Paso, Tex.

"This will develop into a putting contest," PGA tournament supervisor Harvey Raynor predicted. "The greens are excellent. The man with the best shots on the green will be the winner."

The 6,434-yard El Rio layout has never been a mystery to the touring pros. Recent rains have softened the usually hard fairways and made it even more to their liking.

Girl Scores 73 Points In Game

BEULAVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Myrna Lanier, 6-foot forward for the Chinquapin High School girls basketball team, dropped in 73 points here last night as her team defeated Beulaville High, 87-77.

Myrna, whose opposing guards were a shade too short to spoil her effectiveness, had 35 field goals and three free throws.

Green Phants Host Friday Night To Roanoke Rapids

Joey Believed In Those 5-1 Odds

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The 5-1 odds went to Joey Giardello's head last night.

Joey, the overwhelming favorite, was lucky to get a split 10 round decision over Randy Sandy in a televised bout at Chicago Stadium.

He didn't look anything like the No. 2 ranking middleweight that he is. A ferocious last two rounds saved the victory for him.

Under the five-point system of scoring, Referee Walt Brightmore voted for Giardello 48-44 and Judge Frank McAdams favored him 47-45. Judge Frank Clark called it for Sandy, 47-46. The AP card had it 48-46 for Giardello.

"I trained well for this fight, but I just couldn't get my second wind," said Joey, who last September sledged top-ranked Bobby Boyd into submission in five rounds.

"I just didn't have in my mind that this would be a tough fight. I read in the papers that Sandy wasn't much — and I read where I was a 4-1 5-1 favorite. I just got overconfident."

Sandy, a rangy, mustachioed Negro from New York, kept pressing Giardello in Hurricane Jackson fashion and took little notice of Joey's best punches—which have accounted for 21 knockouts.

Giardello staggered Sandy for the first time with a right to the head in the ninth. Both leveled off in the 10th, and in one tangle both plopped through the ropes onto the ring apron. The referee counted to seven before they got back in and squared off again.

Giardello may have another fight, possibly a rematch with Sandy, before the International Boxing Club lines him up in March for the winner of the Spider Webb-Neal Rivers bout Feb. 15 in New York. At stake is a title shot in June against Gene Fullmer or Ray Robinson.

Last night's scrap drew 2,481 fans and a net gate of $3,361. It was Giardello's seventh straight victory, giving him a record of 64-13-5.

'Terrible Ted' Seen Mellowing

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, temperamental throughout his brilliant career, is mellowing with age — or maybe it's just the off season.

The 33-year-old Boston slugger indicated yesterday that he has had a change of mind and might like to stay in baseball after his playing days.

Williams displayed a beaming grin after signing a one-year contract for about $100,000 which continues him as baseball's highest paid player.

But he turned off the grin and became serious when asked if he would like to remain in baseball when he has to quit as a player.

"After my playing days are over I will do everything possible to help the game," he said. "Other than that I want to fish any time in any place I want."

He thought the matter over carefully for a few more seconds and added:

"Put it this way. I would stay in the game if I'm wanted. As you get older you start realizing there isn't a whole lot of things you know better than baseball."

Ted indicated he would prefer to become a coach or an executive when he said, "I'm not so sure a man can come right out of the player ranks and become a manager."

Ted, who will be 39 in August, is looking forward only to the 1957 season — not beyond.

ENTREPRENEUR

EUREKA, Calif. (AP)—An enterprising thief got six packs of cigarettes out of a vending machine by pressing six pennies into the gaskets off sparkplugs. They made a "coin" just the size of a quarter, police said.

Greenville high school's North-eastern cagers, after an open date, will play host to Roanoke Rapids, here, tomorrow night, at the GHS gymnasium.

In an earlier meeting of the two clubs, Greenville turned on the power to defeat the Yellow Jackets 59-44 on the Jacket home court. Tomorrow night, on the Greenville home floor, the G-Men will be rated an 18-point favorite.

Coach Boley Farley has used his time off during the past week, to put his team through badly-needed drills, in an effort to correct mistakes made early this year. The greying Phantom coach stated earlier that "We still make plenty of mistakes, but we're improving as a team."

Most of the practice time has been spent working on ball-handling and maneuvers from the Farley brand of ball. Coach Farley has built up a celebrated fast-break style of action at GHS in the past several years, but last week against Washington, he had his boys do an about-face. His G-Men employed a fine possession game and kept within three points of the highly-touted Pam Pack all the way, finally losing 46-43. They were rated to lose by 17 points.

Therefore, from past experiences, it is known that the Green Phants are capable of running either brand of ball. It is probable, however, that against Roanoke Rapids, Farley will let his club run. The 59-44 victory at Roanoke Rapids was chalked up from the fast-break style, and Farley is not out to abandon a good thing.

Platoons Improving

The newly-devised Farley two-platoon system, erected this season by the coach, has been responsible for most of the five conference wins this season. The Phants have moved to a 5-2 record thus far this year against loop foes, with a club that was not expected to win a single game. The Phantoms are in the midst of rebuilding this year, after losing every one of their 1955-56 starters.

Farley's two-platoons are made out as follows: one club, which usually starts, is made up of Mack Roebuck and Bobby Edwards at guards, Charlie Smith and Billy Cox at forwards and Albert Crawford at center. The second club, which alternates freely with the first, is made up of Walker Allen and Wesley Hudson at guards, Peanut Nunn and Dick Evans at forwards and Steve Noble at center.

Roanoke Rapids, which has had a pitiful season thus far and is located in the bottom bracket of the league, has two threats in forward Reid and guard Metrick. Both scored in the double figures in the last meeting of GHS and RRHS.

A Jayvee contest will open festivities tomorrow night at 6:30 and the varsity game will begin at 8:00.

Decathlon added a new chapter to his claim as the top thoroughbred sprinter by winning the Inaugural Handicap at Hialeah under the back-breaking impost of 135 pounds, the heaviest load even assigned to a thoroughbred in a Florida stake race. The speedy 4-year-old bay colt followed the season at Hialeah opening the straight impressive sprint victories at Tropical Park—the Inaugural, Coral Gables and New Year's Handicaps.

The highest weight Decathlon was asked to carry at Tropical Park was 133 pounds in the New Year's Handicap when the River Divide Farm's mighty sprinter launched his bid to defend the sprint championship he earned by winning six important stakes in 1956. In the Hialeah Inaugural, Decathlon covered the 6-furlong route in 1:09 2-5 to tie the mark for the event and missed the track record by two-fifths of a second. Truly remarkable, with 135 pounds on his back.

The one thing that seems to threaten Decathlon's reign as sprint champion is back-breaking weight. His impressive triumph in the Hialeah Inaugural under 135 pounds can only mean that the figure will have to be upped for future sprint stakes and that could lead to a breaking point. There is an old racing axiom to the effect that any horse can be stopped if sufficient weight is piled on him. Weight assignments are the means of leveling the chances of all thoroughbreds in a race, but there must be a limit of what a horse should be asked to carry.

The matter of great weight imposts attracted considerable attention last year when Nashua's owners declined to accept assignments of more than 130 pounds, refusing to expose their valuable charge to the risk of breaking down. Decathlon's owner please note.

Syria's Ambassador Is Buzzing Ears Of Washington Officials

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
WASHINGTON (AP)—Syria's Ambassador Farid Zeineddine sits busily around the United States government whenever it acts or seems about to act in the Middle East.

He has ample reason to busy himself at this time, when Congress is working on President Eisenhower's Middle East proposal for curbing communism, and both King Saud of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Amir Abdul Ilah of Iraq are visiting Washington.

Syrian-Iraqi relations right now are strained. Iraq doesn't appreciate Syria's delay in reopening embargoed oil pipelines in Syria. Continued stoppage of the oil flow from Iraq to Western markets is costing Iraq $700,000 a day.

Like his country's new government, Zeineddine admires the Soviet Union. He served there, in the Syrian Embassy at Moscow, for four years. In the United Nations, where he heads Syria's delegation, he often adds his voice and vote to the Communist cause.

But none in Washington who know him would say he is a Communist. He is pictured variously as a true nationalist, a personally ambitious extremist, a would-be spokesman for all the Arabs, and a vociferous anti-Zionist. Some see him also as a man quite willing to gain the martyrdom of diplomatic expulsion from the United States, thinking that might increase his political stature in Syria.

To the people at the State Department, Zeineddine sometimes seems to go out of his way to make their tasks difficult. His attacks on Zionism, which is espoused by many American Jews, have brought protests to the department. But he never lets up on them.

Zeineddine, a small and articulate man, stands about 5 feet 5. After study in Western universities, he joined Syria's foreign service in the late 1930s. In 1937, he was named director general of Syria's Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

In 1945 he went to San Francisco for the first United Nations conference. He has been a U. N. delegate off and on ever since.

He served in Moscow as minister for Syria during 1947-51. He came to Washington from Moscow the next year and has been ambassador in Washington ever since.

Possibly because he is so articulate and so positive he is right, Zeineddine has created the impression that he is the Arab spokesman in the United States. This sometimes infuriates his more moderate and quieter Arab colleagues in the Washington diplomatic corps.

American officials, caught between Zeineddine's sharp tongue and indignant outcries from American Jews, hope his expulsion never becomes necessary. The administration goal in the present Middle East crisis is to win Arab friends, not to lose them.

ONE-WAY PASSAGE

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Henry Budner, disabled Navy veteran and a native of Armenia, left his estate, estimated at $24,000, to charity. He said in his will he had no knowledge of any known relatives but directed that anyone coming to Norfolk and proving relationship between expenses from Norfolk to his or her home if in the United States.

Better News Coverage Of Assembly Prepared

Readers of The Daily Reflector will be better informed about developments in the current General Assembly than in any previous session, and better than many other people in the state. Besides improved facilities on part of our big news wire services for fast handling of both written stories and pictures, and the long time popular articles by Lynn Nisbet, we have made arrangements for comprehensive coverage of local interest items.

Our Raleigh Bureau has added to its staff Mrs. Jean Riley, an experienced newspaper woman, to keep up with activities of Senators and Representatives, as well as visitors to Raleigh from this community. Mrs. Riley will give day by day reports on local bills and official action, and will also write informally about matters of personal interest to our readers.

Lynn Nisbet, veteran capitol square and legislative reporter, will continue his daily reports on news happenings and behind the scenes events leading up to them. Written from the vantage point of long experience, more than 40 years intimate association with public figures, his articles on politics and government are accepted as accurate and authoritative. Travels with the advisory budget commission to all State institutions over a period of 12 years and attendance at State board and commission meetings for a much longer period afford knowledge of conditions not obtainable otherwise.

The general news and feature stories furnished by the wire services, the special attention to local matters by Jean Riley and the articles by Lynn Nisbet assure readers of this newspaper the most complete news coverage of the Legislature ever offered.

St. Vitus' Dance got its name in the Middle Ages when persons afflicted with such a nervous ailment would go to pray for relief in the chapels of St. Vitus.

The Kids Flock To 'Mr. Green Jeans'

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—When a certain tall and bespectacled gentleman goes out for dinner, the host and hostess always permit their children to greet him. And the children almost invariably bring in most of their friends.

As he stands knee-deep in children, he is introduced to the adults as Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum. But the children don't know him by that name. They yell, "Tell us a story, Mr. Green Jeans. Sing us a song, Mr. Green Jeans. . . . Wanna play hide and seek, Mr. Green Jeans?"

And that is just about the last that Mrs. Brannum and the adults present will see of Lumpy Brannum for the evening—unless the host and hostess put a time limit on the kids.

For the information of all adults who are doing dull things like working or going to work or sleeping in the earlier mornings of Monday through Saturday, Mr. Green Jeans is the handymen, and gardener of the property presided over by "Captain Kangaroo," a CBS-TV program so attractive to children that a good many parents watch too when they can.

Brannum likes kids, likes to play with them, even though they are not his own. His son, Tom, is 20.

"Children are really small adults," he said. "That's the way everybody on 'Captain Kangaroo' views them. They are extremely interesting people. You shouldn't speak down to them. They're equals. That's the way we treat them on the program. It's the way to treat them in living."

Brannum, 46, is an Illinois Methodist minister's son who graduated from the University of Redlands in California into playing a bass fiddle at a small California radio station. With three other young men he formed a quartet which Fred Waring hired in 1940. He wrote Waring's TV show for three years, told children's stories on the show as "Uncle Lumpy," has written songs for 25 children's records and presided over a New York children's TV program before joining "Captain Kangaroo."

Robbery Included Empty Bottles

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Lee Delarm, who operates the Four Corners Market, likes folks to visit the store with a long shopping list. But he told police he prefers customers during business hours, and not in the middle of the night.

He reported that burglars broke into the market and left with 20 pounds of butter, two boxes of cigars, potato chips, coffee, candy, canned hams, leather wallets, flash lights and a supply of batteries, 33 cartons of cigarettes and $25 worth of ice cream.

Delarm said he was puzzled because the loot included no money — but did include seven cases of empty soft drink bottles.

King Saud Seeks To Unify Arab World In U. S. Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia continues today negotiations with other Arab leaders aimed at unifying the Arab world. Saud, standing by for a final meeting tomorrow with President Eisenhower, has been holding long and at times detailed talks with representatives of the other Arab nations.

His goal long has been to unify the Arab nations so they can speak with one voice in such fields as foreign policy. If that day comes, it might well mean the end of Arab bickering which has interfered with attempts to solve Mideast problems. It might even bring Arab-Israeli peace. And that is a prime target of U. S. foreign policy.

Saud met for 1½ hours yesterday with Crown Prince Abdul Ilah of Iraq, and has talked also with the Washington ambassadors of other Arab nations.

Like the King and the Crown Prince, Foreign Minister Charles Malik of Lebanon is supporting President Eisenhower's Middle East proposal. The Eisenhower plan, to fight Red armed attack if necessary and to provide 200 million dollars a year in military and economic aid to anti-communist countries in the Middle East, is still awaiting final congressional approval.

Saud told a news conference the plan "is a good one which is entitled to consideration and appreciation" of the Arab countries.

Saud, Malik and Abdul Ilah have indicated they will discuss the plan, and other Arab matters, with leaders of other countries when they get back home. Reports from Cairo last night said another Arab summit conference will be held on Saud's return there.

Distrust and intrigue in Arab affairs have kept the just-awakened, oil-rich countries apart for years. The main unifying force has been a pan-Arab hatred of Israel, with each Arab state seeming to try to outdo the other in that respect.

The feeling has been growing among diplomats here that, if only the Arabs could speak with one voice, many of them would not find it necessary to try to outdo the others in denouncing Israel. With one negotiator representing all the Arabs, it might be possible to reach a negotiated settlement with Israel on the major difficulties.

Israel has expressed fears that a unified Arab nation, instead of negotiating, might combine forces to attack Israel, but the United States reportedly has made it clear to the Arabs that it will not tolerate such an attack.

Saud is scheduled to fly to Madrid for a visit in Spain. He is expected to leave Saturday aboard Eisenhower's personal plane, Columbine III.

Illustrates Home Rule Law Point

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Mayor Russell P. Smith of Cambridge, told a legislative committee that Maryland's towns will do all right if the state lawmakers don't change the direction of the home rule law.

He made his point with the story of a tramp who hitch-hiked a ride with a fresh air fiend who drove his convertible with the top down despite the freezing temperatures. To protect himself from the wind the tramp reversed his overcoat and buttoned it up the back just before the convertible ran off the road and turned over.

One of the first to arrive on the scene later reported that the driver was killed instantly but the other fellow didn't die "until we got his head turned around."

Germany's Hans Speidel Named To NATO Post

PARIS (AP) — West German Lt. Gen. Hans Speidel has finally been named commander of NATO land forces in Central Europe. He assumes his new duties April 1, the first German to hold a top post in the North Atlantic command.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of Allied powers in Western Europe, announced the appointment. It had been expected for weeks, despite some objections in France and Britain to giving the important post to the former chief of staff to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Norstad's announcement said the appointment was made "with the concurrence of the powers concerned." France was reported to have agreed finally because French forces in NATO have been reduced considerably due to the situation in Algeria.

The French also were said to regard Speidel — who drafted the terms for France's surrender in 1940 — as having been a military thinker and planner rather than a field commander for Hitler. In his new post he succeeds a Frenchman, Gen. Marcel Carpentier, who resigned last year.

Speidel is a 59-year-old bespectacled officer who has a Ph. D. degree and speaks French fluently. He was on Rommel's staff during the Normandy invasion and is credited in part with the decision not to dynamite the Seine River bridges when the Germans evacuated Paris.

He was accused of implication in the July 1944 plot to bomb Hitler but denied having any share in it. The Gestapo arrested him Sept. 7, 1944, and jailed him. He escaped and went into hiding before the war ended.

After the war he taught history at Tuebingen University. He was West Germany's first representative at NATO headquarters, where he has gotten along well with the multinational staff.

Science, Religion No Longer At Odds, Says Dr. K. F. Mather

"It is no longer necessary for science and religion to meet on the battleground," Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, professor emeritus of geology at Harvard and past president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, told an audience at East Carolina College Wednesday night.

"There is at present," he stated, "a new cooperation between those concerned with the things of the spirit and those investigating all kinds of matter."

The internationally famous scientist spoke at a dinner meeting in the college dining hall. His lecture was sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council of the college as a major event of Religious Emphasis Week on the campus and by the Committee on Teacher Education and Religion as the first in a series of six lectures during February and March on religion and various disciplines.

Developing the topic "Where Science and Religion Meet," Dr. Mather pointed out that progress in science and of religion and progress among men of religion have reconciled many differences once existing between these groups.

One noticeable result of recent research in physical science, he said, is a decline of materialism. Matter can no longer be thought of as fundamental, he said, but rather is now thought of as a local and temporary manifestation of energy. The spirit is more closely akin to energy than to matter, he stated, and so concepts have changed in modern times.

He stressed the orderliness of the universe, and suggested that somewhere in this order lies a clue to the universe. There is some kind of organizing principle responsible for our universe, he said. In spite of what the scientist has gained in knowledge and understanding, however, he said, there is a mystery "behind the horizon of the known." But knowledge and mystery, he explained, "have a habit of existing side by side."

"Science has progressed in such a way," he continued, "as to make or perhaps the superintendent could go without his lunch," said John M. Peirce, state finance director and board chairman.

All such claims okayed by the board must be approved by the Legislature.

For lunch boxes: put two deviled egg halves back together and fasten with toothpick before wrapping.

its findings much more congenial to men of religion.

Progress among men of religion, Dr. Mather told his audience, has caused them to view the universe not as something to be feared but as something to be understood. New concepts of the nature of man are now also welcome, he stated.

The man of religion equally with the man of science, he pointed out, is concerned with the question of how the processes of evolution have operated down the ages. The question of why, he said, is not to be answered by the man of science. The core of every great religion, he continued, is that the purpose is conceived of as good.

We are now, thanks to science, he explained, in a "prophetic" stage of religion, when "something new is being said."

"A new understanding of the pre-eminence of spiritual forces," he stated, "is characteristic of our times."

Get your tobacco off to a good start this season by controlling nematodes with D-D soil fumigant.

D-D soil fumigant is an easy-to-use liquid. Apply it directly to the soil with gravity-flow or simple pressure equipment. In the ground it becomes a potent gas, killing root knot and other harmful nematodes as it spreads. And a single treatment gives effective control for an entire season.

This season, see for yourself how a pre-plant soil treatment with D-D soil fumigant pays off in bigger yields. D-D soil fumigant is available from your local pesticide dealer.

Things Just Happen To Andy Griffith

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Everything happens to Andy Griffith. He's here on his first trip to sunny California, just in time for the snow.

Most of the time it's pleasant things that happen to Andy. They've been happening with such frequency in the past few years that even he admits "it's remarkable."

Right now he is starring in "No Time for Sergeants." How he managed to get this far might be a good subject for one of the monologues he does so well.

Andy might still be a school teacher. He was a Mount Airy, N.C., boy who was graduated from the University of North Carolina and started teaching music in Goldsboro. Together with his wife Barbara, he entertained folks with comedy monologues. Such as a Dixie deacon explaining "What it was—was football."

The monologues were a hit and Andy started doing them professionally. A Capitol Records executive heard a recording of his and suggested a national release. That catapulted Andy into prominence.

"I'd still be doing monologues if I hadn't gone to see Mac Hyman's agent in New York," Andy said. "I wanted to record a monologue based on Hyman's book and his agent told me they were going to do a TV show on it. He suggested I look into it."

So he went to the Theater Guild, which was producing the show. His sole dramatic experience had been playing Sir Walter Raleigh in Paul Green's "The Lost Colony" in Manteo, N.C.

The casting agent wasn't impressed by Andy's reading of the script — "I'm a lousy reader." But then Andy started explaining about his monologues and did one about "Romeo and Juliet." The office was in hysterics and Andy got the role.

The TV show led to the play, which made him a star. He was in it a year, dropping out to star for Elia Kazan in "A Face in the Crowd."

Andy owes a couple of pictures to both Kazan and Warners. But before he does anything else, he's heading to his new home on Roanoke Island in North Carolina. "To tell you the truth, the thing I like to do best is just plain loaf," he declared.

But he won't have much time for loafing when his two pictures come out.

Beat The Train, Saves Bankroll

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — Thomas Cummings beat a train to a railroad crossing and saved his bankroll.

Cummings said he had pulled his car off the highway to sleep a while and was awakened by a man who claimed to be a law officer demanding to see his driver's license.

Suspicious, Cummings ran. When he saw a train approaching on a nearby track he dashed across in front of it and hid in underbrush, watching the man search for him after the train passed.

He reported to the Florida Highway Patrol, which confirmed Cummings' suspicion that his pursuer didn't represent the law. A flashlight and overcoat were taken from his car.

Took Overdose Of Winter Tan

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Police, summoned in 12 degree weather, rushed Robert Fehl, 36, to the hospital for treatment of sunburn.

Hospital attendants said he suffered inflammation of the eyes and superficial burns on his cheek and back.

Fehl explained that he had been reading under a sunlamp and became so engrossed he lost track of time.

Council Of State And N. C. Attorney General Are Quickly Voted Pay Raise

RALEIGH (AP) — Members of the Council of State and the attorney general will find more money in their next pay checks thanks to quick action by the General Assembly at its opening session yesterday.

A bill calling for a $2,000-a-year pay boost for Council members and $1,420 for the attorney general was rushed through the House at the Senate's opening session yesterday.

Under the state constitution, the pay of elected state officials cannot be changed during their term of office.

There was a flurry of debate before the Senate approved the bill and sent it to the House. The Senate defeated an amendment by Sen. E. Avery Hightower of Anson to provide a 15 per cent pay boost for all state employees.

Hightower told his colleagues he would vote for the bill if it provided a 15 per cent across the board pay hike to all state employees. He said it was rumored that teachers and other state employees "will be lucky to get a 10 per cent raise."

Sen. D. J. Rose of Wayne, speaking against the measure, said the Council of State members got a pay boost four years ago. The two pay raises, he added, would give them a 33 per cent increase in four years.

Under the bill, pay increases will go to all Council members except the superintendent of public instruction. Effective today, Dr. Charles L. Carroll, superintendent of public instruction, will receive a pay boost under a bill passed by the 1955 Legislature. His new salary is $13,500 annually.

The measure approved yesterday increases the pay of other Council members from $10,000 to $12,000 a year and boosts the pay of the attorney general from $12,000 to $13,500. These include State Treasurer Edwin Gill, Secretary of State Thad Eure, State Auditor Henry L. Bridges, Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, Labor Commissioner Frank Crane and Insurance Commissioner Charles Gold.

The Senate and House also gave quick approval to a bill giving the attorney general the same retirement benefits as supreme court justices and superior court judges — retirement after 15 years of service at age 65 on two-thirds pay.

Sen. Claude Currie of Durham was named chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, while Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan was appointed chairman of the House Rules Committee. Both committees met and decided to recommend that each house set up a special committee on governmental reorganization. A committee on reorganization of state government, created by the 1955 Legislature, has handed down 10 reports calling for sweeping proposals in state government.

Rep. Uzzell introduced a bill, which passed the House and was sent to the Senate, to provide subsistence and travel expenses for members of the Legislature. Voters approved an amendment last September to permit this.

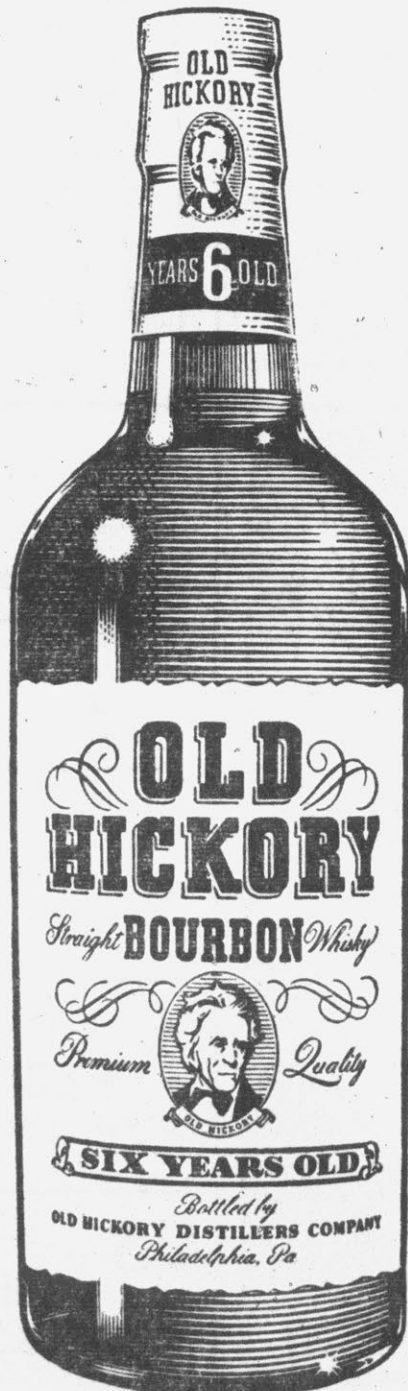

Under Uzzell's proposal, lawmakers would be allowed to collect 7 cents a mile for one round trip to Raleigh during a legislative session and to receive up to $8 per day to pay living expenses in Raleigh during the session.

Soloist

James H. Parnell, faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina College, will appear as horn soloist with the East Carolina Concert Band in a program Friday night at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium on the campus. Parnell will play the rondo from Mozart's "Concerto No. III in E Flat." Before coming to East Carolina last fall, he taught at Vanderbilt University. Recently a performance of his "Symphony in One Movement for Concert Band" at the Instrumental Conductors Conference, meeting at Hattiesburg, Miss., gave recognition to his work as a composer. He is a former member of the Nashville, Tenn., Symphony Orchestra.

• This is an extreme example of soil acidity resulting from continuous use of ammonia nitrogen without lime. Regular use of Chilean helps correct acidity, maintains favorable pH.

and you'll choose CHILEAN NITRATE OF SODA

More than anything else, when spring growth begins, small grain needs an ample supply of fast-acting nitrate nitrogen. And that means Chilean Nitrate of Soda. The nitrogen in it is 100 per cent nitrate nitrogen—fast-acting and ready to help the hungry crop through its most difficult period and push it ahead.

More than 100 years of consistently satisfactory experience with Natural Chilean Soda have demonstrated that there is nothing to compare with it for top-dressing small grain. It is a rare natural combination of nitrate nitrogen, sodium and minor elements. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate nitrogen—ready to work, rain or shine, as soon as it's applied. This is especially important because at top-dressing time every moment counts. There is nothing like nitrate nitrogen for a small grain crop—and there is no source of nitrate nitrogen that can compare with Natural Chilean Soda.

Then, there's the sodium and minor elements. Sodium, particularly, adds much to the value and effectiveness of Chilean Soda. It conserves the supplies of magnesium, potash and calcium in the soil and substitutes for calcium and potash, if necessary. It increases the supply of available phosphate. Every ton of Chilean contains sodium equivalent to 650 pounds of commercial limestone to destroy soil acidity and correct acid-forming effects of ammonia nitrogen. This explains why regular, systematic use of Chilean Soda helps so much to maintain a favorable pH level for the production of top yields of top-quality crops.

If you have any question about the top-dressing for your small grain crop this year, we urge you to try Natural Chilean Soda, if only in a small way to begin with, and see the difference for yourself. You'll find it is the most economical and satisfactory nitrate nitrogen fertilizer you can buy for top-dressing your small grain crops.

Farm Agent Says Now Is Time For Soil-Testing

Spring planting season is not far off, and now is the time to get those fields sampled so that you may be able to purchase lime and fertilizer in accordance with the needs of the soil.

S. C. Winchester, Farm Agent of Pitt County, says it is particularly important this year for farmers to purchase their lime and fertilizer wisely. In this way they may increase their net farm income, Winchester points out, because the results of a soil test can tell the grower what his soil is lacking, and what it has a sufficiency of, in the way of lime and other plant nutrients.

For example some soils are high in phosphorus, Winchester says, and if a grower purchases a fertilizer that is high in that element he won't get the return on his investment that he would had he put the same amount of money into a fertilizer that contained large amounts of an element in which his soil was low. A soil test is the only way in which such information can be determined.

A soil test can also help to increase a grower's net income by telling him how much lime is needed on his land. For if a soil needs lime, the crop response to applied fertilizer will be small—just another way of saying that the farmer's net income will be reduced.

By following fertilizer suggestions based on a good soil test, a grower will buy only the amounts of lime and fertilizer that he needs, and spend an amount of money on which he can reasonably expect to get a good return. And that's good business in anybody's language.

So Winchester urges all farmers in Pitt County to get those soil samples in now. He had received word from S. L. Tisdale, Director of the Soil Testing Division, North Carolina Department of Agriculture, in Raleigh, that reports are being mailed out within ten days of the date of the test.

To make a wise and economical purchase of the lime and fertilizer he'll need.

Dogs Do Alright By Own Breed

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — The dog may be man's best friend, but he doesn't do badly by his own breed at time. Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Wilson will testify.

When a puppy fell into their fishpond and was unable to climb out, two other pups barked encouragement and howled for help until a neighbor heard the racket and effected a rescue, the Wilsons said.

Supreme Soviet Changes Emblem

MOSCOW (AP) — The Supreme Soviet of the USSR quietly changed the national emblem in September. It reduced by one the number of languages in which the Soviet motto, "proletarians of all countries, unite" appears on the emblem, to match the reduction in Soviet states from 16 to 15. At the year's end the popular magazine "Ogonok" printed a colored reproduction of the new emblem.

U. S. Communists Look To Have A Confused Session

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Communist party gives the appearance of a bewildered and split-up outfit as it gets ready for its national convention in New York Saturday.

Some Washington sources are inclined to take seriously what look like factional splits. Maybe so. But, until there's more solid evidence of their reality, whatever the party says or does in New York can be taken with a grain of salt.

It can be said on the best authority that the American party was recently told by Moscow to cut out its yapping, close ranks and get down to business.

The direction the party actually seems to be taking is in line with what Russian Communist party boss Khrushchev suggested last February to Communist parties around the world: a change in tactics but not in purpose.

In his speech denouncing Stalin he recommended that Communist parties who find themselves at this time unable to take over by force should try to take over peacefully by such methods as these:

Infiltrating other parties and labor unions, putting up united fronts, acting like independent national parties (to take some of the course of Russia off them and make them less obvious and objectionable to their own nationals). He even suggested that Communists criticize one another. There are, Khrushchev said, various roads to socialism.

In spite of the sounds they're

Dramatics Club Plans Produce 'Mr. Roberts'

The East Carolina Playhouse, student dramatics club at East Carolina College, has announced a production of the Broadway hit "Mr. Roberts," to be presented as a workshop play during the spring quarter. Tentative dates of performances are March 13-14.

Charles Briggs of Nags Head will be student director of the play. In a production of Shaw's "Pygmalion" given last week by the Playhouse, he had the role of Doolittle, one of the playwright's outstanding comedy characters, and he has participated in other dramas sponsored by the club.

Dr. Frank Hoskins of the department of English will act as faculty advisor for the production of "Mr. Roberts." Claude Garren of the faculty will assist with casting the play and will be consultant to the technical staff.

A major objective of the Playhouse in presenting "Mr. Roberts" is to find new talent for the dramatics club. Casting of the twenty-eight characters will take place this week.

Boy's Day Spent 'Footcuffed'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Robert Lee Gunnoe Jr., 4-year-old son of a Charleston detective, "footcuffed" himself by locking his father's handcuffs around his ankles. Gunnoe decided the case could wait until he got through work so young Robert hobbled around all day, unable to put on his pants. "He was certainly happy when I unlocked the cuffs," said Gunnoe. "But he doesn't try that again."

Soil Practices Were Salvation Of Drought Area

are the paper's editor in chief John Gates; its managing editor Alan Max; and its foreign editor Joseph Clark.

Before the party was stunned by Khrushchev's switch of last February, it had already suffered terrible damage.

Under government prosecution and investigation party membership had dropped from perhaps 75,000 to 25,000; of the top leaders, 106 had been tried and jailed for conspiracy to overthrow the government; more than a score of Communists had been jailed for perjury or other misstatements.

And worse—as the party publicly admitted last spring and summer—American communism had committed enough mistakes to wreck any American political party.

It admitted that it had misunderstood American life so badly it had been swept out of the mainstream; that it was alienated from organized labor; that it had misjudged the desires of American Negroes; and that it was completely wrong in thinking the American economy would collapse, as Russian Marxists had said it would.

The most pathetic self-revelation of the American Communist party is this: it needed a kick in the pants from Khrushchev to make it think maybe it could do better with a change in tactics.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Take it from the men who should know best, only soil conservation practices have kept current drought conditions from bringing back Dust Bowl days as bad as the "Dirty Thirties."

At the same time, they agree the task of conserving the soil is far from complete.

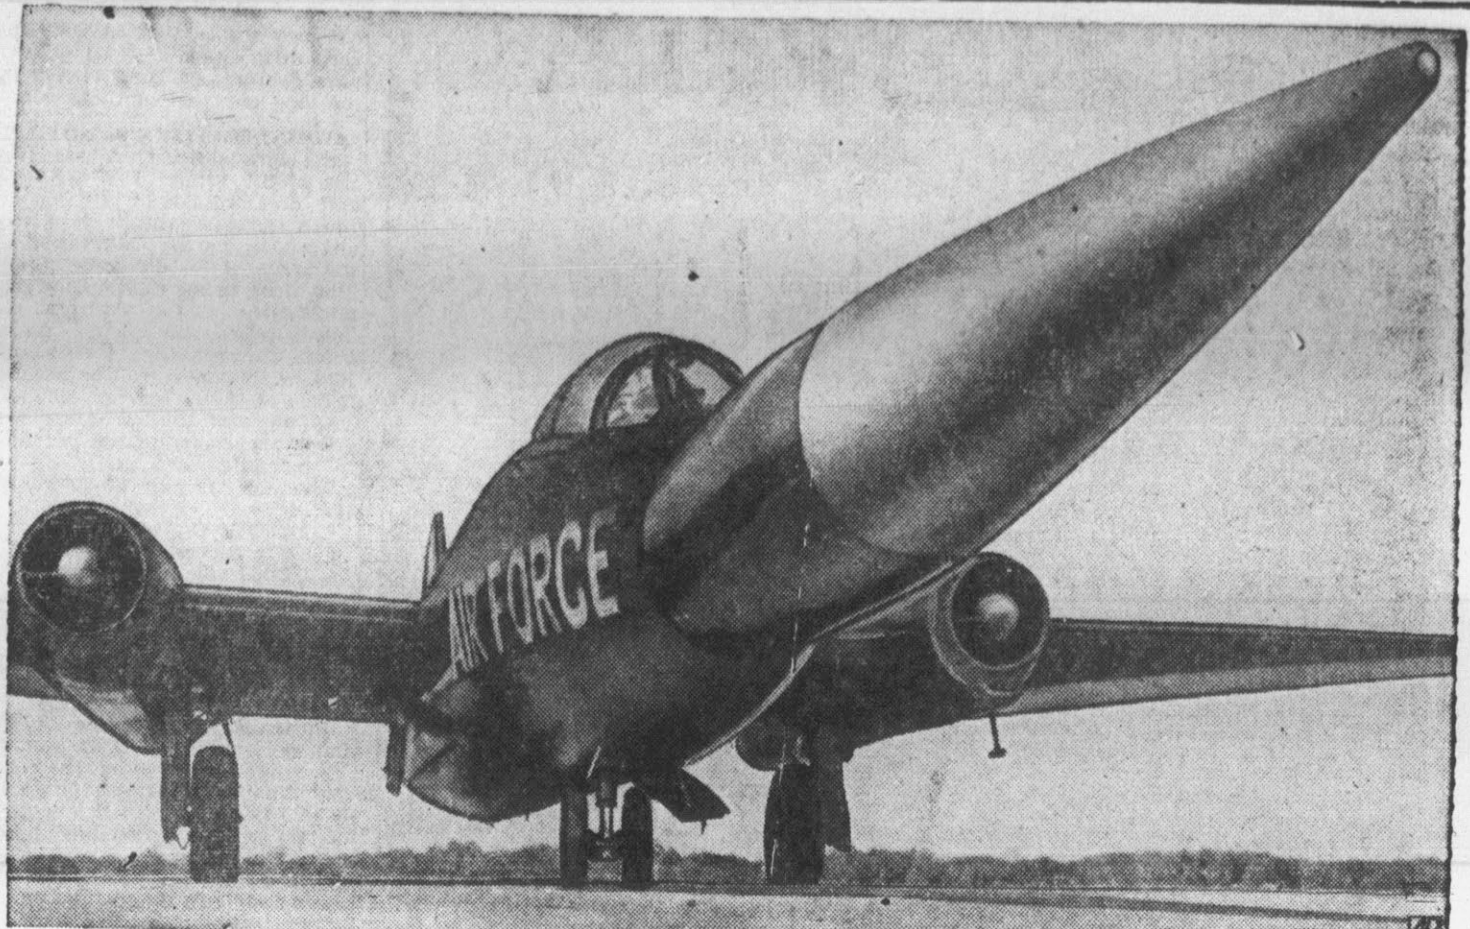

"Those out of touch with the land feel the conservation job is finished," Harrah Allen, an Ada, Okla., farmer, said today. "But it isn't. We're still washing away twice as much soil a year as we're able to anchor down."

Allen is among about 2,000 delegates attending the 11th annual meeting of the National Assn. of Soil Conservation Districts.

Sam Singleton, a farmer from Dalhart, Tex., agrees with Allen that progress so far in soil conservation has staved off a return of conditions as they were in the Dust Bowl '30s, when Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska were the hardest hit.

Bernard Becker, of Beaver City, Neb., one of several farmers interviewed, said he's been reliably informed 27 former GIs were selling their farms in his county this year because of the drought.

"They're not mad at farming,"

BULLET-NOSED BOMBER—This B57 Canberra jet bomber presents odd, long-nosed appearance after installation of a 17-foot Bomarc guided missile for use in tests. Plane will be used to test the automatic guidance system of the Bomarc.

Becker said, "but the price squeeze plus the drought make it impossible for them to stay." Becker said the farmer has to have continued financial help from the government to continue conservation practices. "He can't do it himself," Becker said. "He doesn't have the money." An estimated 1,200,000,000 acres of farm land, about 86 per cent of the total in the continental United States, are in soil conservation districts now—less than 36 years after a nationwide program got under way. Holding the water where it falls end.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U.P.)—The stock market early this afternoon continued a mild recovery from Tuesday's break, the sharpest in four months.

Leading issues rose fractions to around a point.

There was a considerable number of stocks which showed no change and also a scattering of small losers. Trading was light.

Sugar stocks showed some exceptional advances in the wake of recent strong prices in world sugar futures although the latter were erratic today.

Steels, motors and rails either held their ground or improved a little.

Reduction of the English bank rate from 5 1/2 per cent to 5 per cent and a rise in the London stock market were bullish factors as was a report from Detroit of rising automobile output.

American Sugar was ahead 4. Cuban American Sugar and West Indies Sugar gained about a point each. But turnover in the sugar group was not very active.

U.S. Steel, Republic Steel and Bethlehem's new stock, making effective the 4-for-1 split, were fractionally higher.

Chrysler and General Motors were firm. Ford showed a little change despite the reported 46 per cent drop in the 1956 net income from 1955.

United Aircraft was up around a point but other aircrafts were spotty.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 50 cents to $174.20 with the industrials up $1.00, the rails up 30 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

RALEIGH (U.P.)—(NCDA)—Hog prices mostly steady to 25 lower. Tops of 17.25 to 18.00 at Bethel; 17.25 to 17.75 at Tarboro, Enfield, New Bern, Benson, Pine Level.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Sam Hardee

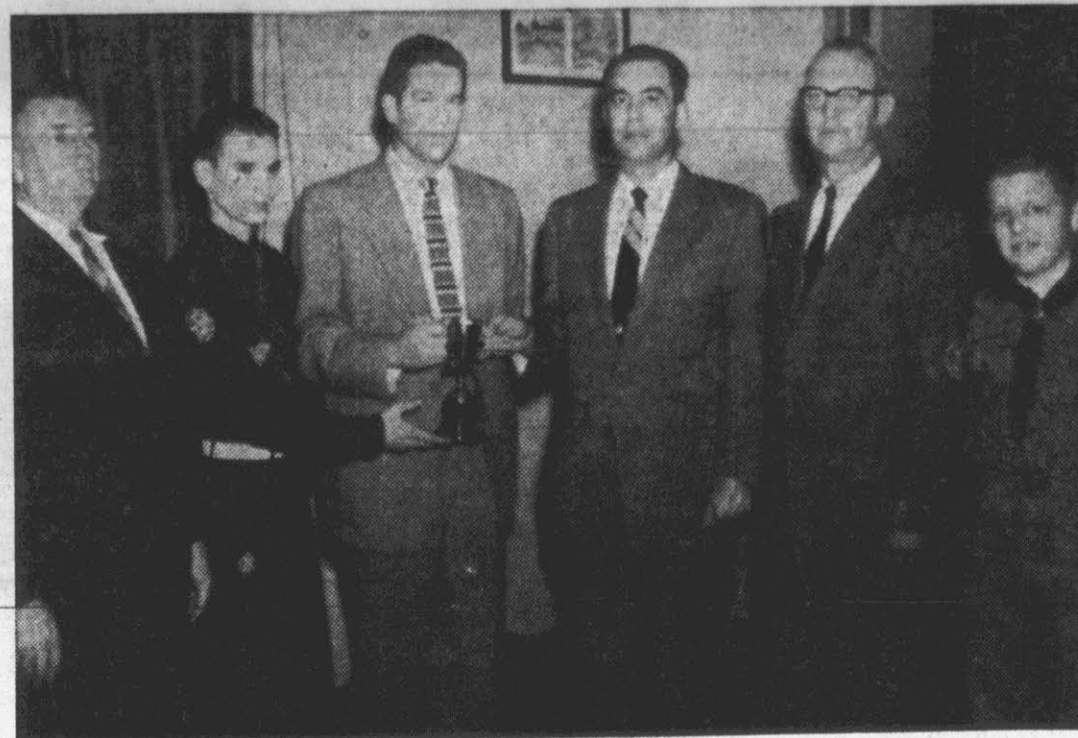

Mrs. Hattie Hardee, 77, wife of Sam Hardee of near Ayden, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville, Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. She had been in declining health for several years and critically ill for the past three months.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Friday at 3:30. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Rev. Floyd B. Cherry, pastor of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church, Rev. Walter E. Nobles, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, and Mr. Frank Julian, Jehovah Witness minister of Greenville, will officiate.

Mrs. Hardee, daughter of the late Charles Franklin and Susan Tucker Harris, spent her life in Pitt county near Ayden. She was a member of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband; four daughters, Mrs. Luke Mills of Black Jack, Mrs. L. L. Coward of Greenville, Miss Cornelia Hardee of the home, and Mrs. Harry Worthington, Rt. 1, Winterville; two sons, David Hardee of Ayden and Harvey Hardee of Portsmouth, Va.; 22 grandchildren; 8 great-grandchildren, and a brother, Jim Harris of Vanceboro.

Pitt District Scouts Stage 1957 Father-Son Banquet

The annual Father and Son banquet of the Pitt Boy Scout District, was held here last night, noting the 47th anniversary of scouting.

The scouts, their fathers and leaders heard Bill Currie, radio sports announcer of Raleigh pay tribute to the adult leaders of scouting.

"The contribution of adult leaders in developing a program for citizenship training is something that is not to be calculated in dollars and cents," he declared.

He described the adult leaders as busy people and said "the fact that they contribute of their time for youth service is a testimonial to the importance they place upon scouting."

Currie discussed his experiences as a scout and told the group of the numerous instances while he was in service when scout training helped him.

During last night's program J. E. Winslow was presented as one of the founders of the scouting program in Eastern North Carolina.

The attendance award was won by Troop 398 sponsored by the Red Oak Christian Church. Edgar Denton is scoutmaster and Bill Forbes is institutional representative.

John Behr, district commissioner presented the 23 units in the district for recognition.

"Scouting in Outing" was discussed by Sherman Parks, district vice chairman of the Camping and Activities Committee. He outlined a series of camping programs scheduled for this summer.

Carl Knott, Pitt field executive, announced that 37 Pitt boys have registered for the national jamboree to be held at Valley Forge July 12-18. Four adult leaders have signed up, Knott announced.

Erskine Duff, Pitt District chairman presided over the program. Noel Lee, Jr. Paotolus Ruritan Club institutional representative pronounced the invocation and W. Russell Honeycutt, district vice chairman of Bethel conducted the closing ceremonies.

Tonight the Blue and Gold banquet for Cub scouts, den mothers, and parents of Cub Scouts will be held at the Moose Lodge beginning at 7 o'clock.

Both affairs have been directed by James E. Mallory, chairman of the Camping and Activities Committee with the assistance of field executive Knott.

A number of window displays and Scouting project exhibits have been arranged for Boy Scouts Week which opened yesterday and continues through Feb. 12.

National Scout Sunday will be observed by churches throughout the Council and District next Sunday.

The basic aim of the Scouting program is good citizenship training, Chairman Erskine Duff of Pitt District pointed out in calling attention to the Scout Week observance.

The committee elected is composed of: Noel Lee, Jr., Washington Rt. 3; W. W. Wooten, Falkland; Harry Jarvis, Ayden; J. B. Speight, Winterville; Mrs. James Allen, Greenville; B. Six Exchangites At Raleigh Meet

Six members of the Greenville Exchange Club attended an educational conference of North Carolina Exchange clubs at the Sir Walter Hotel last Sunday. They are Howard Moyer, Ed Parkinson, Dr. Ray Minges, Charles Cobb, Jake Hadley and Sweeney Moyer.

Dr. Albert Coates of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina spoke on problems concerning local government and workshops were held concerning the duties of club officers and various committees.

The North Carolina Exchange Club Board of Control went on record at the meeting of endorsing and recommending to its local clubs a way of implementing their No. 1 project—crime prevention and the program of the North Carolina Mental Health Association.

Protest Dam
PITTSBORO—Around 400 persons met Tuesday night at Bells School in Chatham County to protest building of a dam in the New Hope River Valley.

Construction of the dam has been proposed as a flood control and recreational project by the Cape Fear Basin Development Association, a group with members in 17 counties affected by the river system. The plan is for the U. S. Corps of Army Engineers to build the dam with government funds.

farmers are missing out on a 20-million dollar business, according to officials of the N. C. Department of Agriculture's poultry marketing section.

Poultry specialists Carl Towers and Stuart Glover reported yesterday that the value of eggs being imported into North Carolina is "upwards to $25,000,000 each year."

"By putting in commercial layers and giving them proper management and feeding Carolina farmers can enjoy a whole new source of income," Ashcraft reported.

Must Raise $11.45
WILSON—Shed Sharp, a 75-year-old Negro beggar who looks and talks like Walt Disney's Uncle Remus, will have to spend 30 days in the jailhouse if he can't raise $11.45 to pay the judge.

Shed, who has been well-known to several generations of Wilson people of both races, was charged yesterday with his second offense of begging for nickels, dimes and candy on Wilson's public streets.

Tobacco Insurance
GOLDSBORO—Wayne County is one of four additional North Carolina counties in which all-risk tobacco crop insurance will be offered this year, according to Julian E. Mann, state director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

The protection is against loss by disease, weather, fire and other unavoidable causes. The plan is administered through the U. S. Department of Agriculture on a non-profit basis and was available in 27 N. C. counties last year.
