Brownell, Ervin Clash Again On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Brownell, pressing the administration's request for civil rights legislation, clashed today with Sen. Ervin (D-NC) who said Brownell had failed to show "any specific conditions" to justify it.

Brownell snapped that he couldn't be expected "to turn myself into an FBI" and cite evidence of existing violations. But Brownell insisted that over the years—and in recent years, too—"There have been a great many violations of the civil rights of our citizens."

Ervin said Brownell's testimony left him in ignorance of any existing conditions that justified asking Congress for what the senator called the "drastic remedy" proposed by the administration. It was the second day of hearings by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on the administration's program and other civil rights measures. Today's hearing picked up where yesterday's left off—with Ervin, one of the Southern opponents of the legislation, questioning Brownell. Ervin hammered at a key feature of the administration's program—its proposed authority for the attorney general to go into federal courts to seek injunctions or other civil remedies to protect civil rights. Under present law, the federal government's enforcement power is limited to criminal prosecutions. Ervin argued that the proposed injunctive power would deprive citizens of their constitutional right to trial by jury and to cross-examine their accusers. He kept after Brownell to specify what conditions now exist "in New York, California and the rest

Ike Accepts Resignation Ass't. Defense Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has accepted swiftly the resignation of Robert Tripp Ross as assistant secretary of defense. Ross has been questioned by a Senate committee about military contracts awarded to firms headed by relatives. Ross told Eisenhower he had done nothing wrong or improper, but "I feel that my future effectiveness" in the office "has been impaired."

Within a few hours after being informed last night of Ross' letter of resignation, the President wrote him a three-paragraph letter accepting the resignation, effective Feb. 20. Ross, whose wife is president of Wynn Enterprises, Inc., and whose brother-in-law, H. D. Wynn, heads affiliated firms, has been on a self-requested leave of absence since Jan. 11. Ross himself has been an officer of several of the companies, but said he severed all those connections in 1952 when he was elected to Congress. His letter to Eisenhower said he had been guilty of no wrongdoing. In his appearance before the Senate Investigations subcommittee Wednesday, he said, "Nothing was brought to my attention to indicate that the committee had found any evidence of any wrongdoing, improprieties or conflict of interest on my part." Then he added: "Nevertheless, I feel that my future effectiveness in my position as the assistant secretary of defense responsible for legislative and public affairs has been impaired by the very serious implications contained in numerous press stories, and I feel it would be unfair to the Department of Defense for me to continue in my position."

Clamor Rises Over Teacher Pay Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—The clamor for a bigger pay increase for Tar Heel school teachers than proposed in the state budget for the next biennium continued to be heard on Capitol Hill today. Rep. R. Frank Everett of Martin said yesterday teachers should give more vocal support to a bill he has sponsored which would raise their pay by 20 per cent. Reaction from school teachers, Everett said, has been "very favorable but rather slow." He added about 50 telegrams had been received on the matter. Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission recommended pay increases of 9.1 for teachers. Everett suggested teachers and school personnel contact their local representatives and senators this weekend to give them their sentiments on the pay issue.

Meanwhile, the legislative committee of the North Carolina Education Assn. endorsed the stand of Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, on the salary requests for teachers as made by the State Board of Education and on the issue of the basis for which teachers would be paid as proposed in the budget. Commenting on the proposal for "merit-type" increases for teachers, Carroll said, "There is presently no instrument in existence by which all the school personnel of North Carolina can be compared, evaluated, and compensated." The State Board of Education has called for a pay raise of 19.31 per cent for teachers. The NCEA committee also approved the introduction of bills to provide (1) funds for the salary requests of the State Board for all school personnel; (2) funds for clerical assistance; and (3) funds for retroactive salary payments for one-half the 1956-57 school year on the basis of the State Board requests for 1957-58.

More Apply For Premeasuring

More than 100 Pitt County farmers have filed requests for premeasurement of their 1957 allotted crops of tobacco, cotton, peanuts or corn, during the first three days of the sign-up period, ASC officer Manager J. T. Meredith announced today. "Much more interest has been shown in obtaining this service in 1957 than in former years due to the fact that all allotments have been so drastically reduced every producer wants to be sure he has his entire allotment," Meredith said. "In addition many farmers like premeasurement because it eliminates standing in long lines in the ASC office during the busy summer season waiting to put up a deposit to cut down excess tobacco and so forth, or to have their various crops premeasured." "The cost of this service is small compared to the worry and waste of time that may be experienced by a producer who does not have his crops premeasured."

Gromyko Up

LONDON (AP) — Andrei Gromyko today replaced Dmitri Shepilov as Soviet foreign minister, the Soviet news agency announced today. Nikolai Semendovich Patolich, Soviet representative to the United Nations, was named first deputy foreign minister. Gromyko, who steps up from deputy foreign minister, rose to prominence in the Soviet hierarchy under Stalin and former Foreign Secretary V. M. Molotov. The Tass announcement, broadcast by Moscow radio, said that Shepilov has been "transferred to other work." His new job was not given. Patolich, who takes Gromyko's place, has been a deputy foreign minister since last July. He is a member of the Communist party Central Committee.

Hopes Rise And Fall In Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — The outlook for an end to the Northeast Coast waterfront strike continued to be bleak as new talks were set for today. Since the start of the strike last Tuesday there have been alternate flurries of hope and pessimism emanating from mediators, employers and the striking independent International Longshoremen's Assn. Yesterday there was no exception. High hopes early in the day lapsed into an impasse. Later federal mediator Robert H. Moore said the parties were within "kissing distance." The 170-member employer group, the New York Shipping Assn., foresaw a strike settlement during the day. IILA President William V. Bradley commented: "We hope to fight it out tonight." But last night, after negotiations recessed, the union appeared to take a dim view of what the employers termed their "final offer." That was tempered, however, by IILA counsel Louis Waldman, who indicated progress had been made at the meeting, and added: "There has been no definite turnaround." "We are wrestling with problems of draftsmanship and the meeting of minds on three or four items that have not yet been realized." A bit earlier, mediator Moore had termed the negotiations in "a critical phase which, if there is no agreement tonight, is very apt to result in a deadlock situation."

Unveil Gigantic New Cargo Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has unveiled a gigantic new cargo plane—the Douglas C132—which will have a speed of more than 460 miles an hour and be capable of carrying a 200,000-pound payload. This maximum load is double the lift of the C99, a transport version of the B36 and the largest American cargo carrier in existence. The new swept-wing C132 will have a moderate range when fully loaded. With a load of 100,000 pounds the big plane will have a range of 3,500 miles. It can operate from runways of conventional length. cargo "the normal division of trade between the two ports would be 5 or 6 per cent to Morehead City and 94 or 95 per cent to Wilmington." For tobacco, "The normal division of trade between the two ports would be about 26 per cent to Morehead City and 74 per cent to Wilmington." The firm of James C. Buckley, Inc., of New York, which made the survey, recommended a six-year development program at the two ports to cost an estimated $13,801,910. It recommended $12,646,172 at Wilmington and $1,337,738 at Morehead City. The survey report said for most

Collect $4,500 In Drive

More than $4,500 has been turned over to the Pitt Farm Bureau as the result of the 1956 associate membership drive. Noel Lee, Jr., president of the Pitt Farm Bureau reported today. The drive for associate members was headed by W. H. Woolard, president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. He has served as chairman of the associate committee since it came into being in 1934. Lee praised Woolard and the committee highly for conducting a successful drive for associate members. He also praised the business interests of the county who "have been so helpful in coordinating the work and efforts of the farmer and businessman to develop for agriculture the best farm program possible."

Slight Dent In Ike's Budget By Appropriations Body

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee made a slight dent today in President Eisenhower's budget which calls for new appropriations of $73,300,000,000. The committee recommended that the Treasury Department be given $22,364,000 less than the $713,831,000 requested, and the Post Office Department $8 million less than the $34 billion it wanted. The group said the tax court should have the entire $1,460,000 it sought. The overall cut of $80,364,000 amounted to a reduction of slightly more than 2 per cent below Eisenhower's requests to run these agencies in the 1958 fiscal year beginning July 1.

The recommended total of $3,884,927,000 is $250,652,150 more than the same agencies were given for the present fiscal year. Most of the increase stemmed from legal requirements such as additional federal employe pay and other benefits voted recently by Congress. Almost every item in the budgets of the two departments was cut. None was increased. One of the few agencies that got the entire amount requested was the Narcotics Bureau. Customs Service funds include provision for additional agents. The bureau told the committee it planned to assign 15 extra agents to New York to cope with increased smuggling of narcotics, watch movements and diamonds.

The committee rejected a Customs Service request for $450,000 to share with the Immigration Service in the cost of building new facilities at border stations in North Dakota, New Hampshire, Minnesota, Montana, California, Arizona and Idaho. It approved funds for an increase of 400 million coins next year and for printing extra paper money made necessary, it said, by "continued creeping inflation" and increases in economic activity. Noting a postal deficit for fiscal 1958, the committee reiterated its request of last year for an increase in postal rates. Eastern and Southern Railroad pleas for higher mail hauling charges may boost the deficit further, it said.

President Will Extend Planned Vacation Stay

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower is enjoying his trip to south Georgia so much he is going to stay longer than was earlier indicated. He may not return to Washington until about Feb. 24, two days in advance of the start of conferences there with French Premier Guy Mollet. When Eisenhower arrived a week ago today, it was said he probably would stay 7 to 10 days. He is the guest of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey. James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, says the President already has decided to remain "beyond Sunday and into next week." He says no specific date for return has been fixed. Yesterday Eisenhower got in another 18 holes of golf and later brought down three more quail. That has been the pattern every day but Sunday — golf or hunting, sometimes both.

Last Minute Rush Is On

"Next please," the woman behind the license registration desk exclaimed. The line of busy and anxious -to-get-to-dinner people seemed to get longer and longer. Human nature again this year has proven to be predominate. The same old saying that "next year I won't wait until the last minute to get mine" evidently has been forgotten sometime during the past 365 days. Just before dinner today, the Home and Auto Supply here on 5th Street was practically full of people waiting to get their 1957 licenses. Instead of the crowd showing a decrease, it seemed to increase. A spokesman stated this morning that license registration would show an increase over last year in Pitt County. As of February 15, 1956, 11,017 cars and 2,723 trucks had been registered as compared to 10,879 cars and 2,648 trucks registered this morning. "Despite the fact that figures are currently behind last year's it is apparent that we will top last year's registration," he added. The figures also showed that 29 motorcycles and 887 trailers have been registered thus far in 1957. In accordance with the North Carolina law, today is the last day set aside for the purchase of 1957 license plates by state residents. The bureau will close this afternoon at 4 o'clock but a member of the local firm stated that license will be sold tomorrow until 4 p. m.

Clinton Again Is Rocked By Blast

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP)—A dynamite-laden suitcase exploded in the heart of Clinton's Negro section last night, wrecking a restaurant and slightly injuring a Negro woman and baby. The dynamite charge, which witnesses said was placed by a white man who raced away in a car also heavily damaged other Negro-owned property. The blast was the area's eighth, and by far the most destructive, since Clinton High School admitted 12 Negro students under a federal court order last fall. In the absence of concrete clues, however, officers still declined to speculate as to whether integration of the previously all-white school is connected with the series of explosions. Police said the suitcase, which contained several sticks of dynamite, was placed on a concrete slab across the street from a restaurant where several Negroes were eating. The Negroes said they saw a white man stop, leave the suitcase, jump back into his car and speed away. The blast caved in the ceiling and inner walls of the basement restaurant. The woman, identified as Emma Simmons, suffered a knot on the head when hit by falling plaster.

The 11-month-old girl, Jacqueline Gallaher, was cut by flying glass. Neither was believed seriously hurt. Also damaged was a nearby sandwich shop owned by Steve Williams, father of a 21-year-old senior suspended from the integrated school on grounds he struck a white boy and threatened others with a knife Feb. 4. Jim Loggans, reported for the Clinton Courier-News, said the plate glass window was blown from the front of the sandwich shop. He said Williams' home was one of about 25 or 30 Negro homes in which window glass was shattered. All were within a 100-yard radius of the blast. Two cars owned by Negroes were damaged. "They're scared, they're bewildered and they're mad," Loggans said of the Negroes. "One of them said he's going back to North Carolina. One man said, 'I can't understand it. We're living in the United States, but we've been intimidated and threatened until we can't stand much more.'"

Find Body Of Escaped Patient

BUTNER, N.C. (AP)—The body of a mental patient who escaped from Butner State Hospital Jan. 13 was found in a stream two miles from here yesterday. Granville County Coroner G. C. Saunders Jr. said Trygve Larsen, 64, from Greensboro, died of drowning. Larsen had been at the hospital since 1948. Officials said the body had been in the creek several weeks.

Gust Of Wind Is Held Responsible

A freak accident occurred yesterday afternoon on Evans Street when a gust of wind caused a worker's barricade to fall on a pedestrian. Hattie Baker, 41-year-old Negro woman of 700-B Roosevelt Street, suffered minor injuries when the heavy wood barricade used by construction workers who are renovating a new store at 427 Evans Street collapsed as she was passing by about 3:45 p. m. The workers stated this morning that a sudden freak gust of wind caused the accident. The woman complained of back injuries and was transported to the Memorial Hospital by the Rescue Squad where she was treated and later released.

Wilmington Port Said To Have Better Prospects

RALEIGH (AP)—A survey shows that the Wilmington port can expect to be more business than the Morehead City port. A firm of terminal and transportation consultants made the survey, released yesterday, which "played a big part" in budget recommendations of Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission. The budget calls for an appropriation of $3,100,000 during the next biennium for permanent improvements at the Wilmington port and none at Morehead City. The survey report said for most

No development of the port facilities at Southport was recommended, the report stated, because there is no "local market for deepwater service" there. Also, "The total volume of deep water trade available to North Carolina would normally be handled in only one port complex rather than the two already established." The report said prospective deficiencies in facilities at Wilmington were two or three deep-water berths, 1,200 to 1,800 feet of bulkhead and wharf, 50,000 square feet of transit sheds and 700,000 square feet of warehouse space. Only 100,000 square feet of warehouse space was listed as prospective deficiencies at Morehead City. In the 1960-65 period, the report stated, the two ports can expect to handle 4,900,000 tons annually. The future of the ports, it added, is not dependent upon an increase in deep water commerce but upon "the provision of facilities to accommodate the trade which rightfully should utilize these ports as a matter of economic good judgment." "The general interests of the state would certainly appear to justify a continuing annual approp-

Mrs. Graham Flanagan, Jr. Feted At Tea Yesterday

Honoring Mrs. Graham Flanagan, Jr., a February bride, Mrs. Graham Flanagan and her daughters Mrs. Bert Bennett, Jr. of Winston-Salem and Miss Patricia Flanagan, entertained at tea yesterday afternoon at the Flanagan residence on the Falkland Highway.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. T. L. Wagner and introduced to the receiving line composed of the hostesses, the honored guest and Miss Hannah Proctor, a June bride-elect.

A Valentine motif was observed throughout the lower floor. A massive arrangement of red carnations was placed in the hall while in the drawing room arrangements of white stock, snapdragons, red carnations and gladioli were used at points of dramatic interest. The tea table, laid in white applied organdy, featured a centerpiece representing the Valentine motif with a figurine against a high standing heart outlined in red. Snapdragons, carnations and snowdrops were mirrored in the reflector which mounted the centerpiece arrangement.

The buffet featured a seven-branched silver candelabra holding white tapers and epergnettes overflowing with dainty flowers.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. O. L. Joyner and Miss Henrie Long. The large number of guests who called served themselves canapes, cheese sticks, iced cakes and nuts.

Assisting in serving and receiving throughout the house were Mrs. John Howard, Mrs. Julian White, Mrs. Max Ray Joyner, Mrs. Jimmy Lee, Mrs. Edward Rawl, Jr., Mrs. Travis Flanagan and Mrs. Sidney Dunn, Jr.

Club Has Out-Of-Town Speaker

Mrs. Walter Bowen Sr. of Washington, N. C. was guest speaker for the Sappho Book Club when it met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stanley Hathaway.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Aubrey Taylor, president. After a brief business session Mrs. Hathaway introduced her speaker.

Mrs. Bowen showed a picture of Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece "The Last Supper" and told of the artist's life and what he was attempting in the painting.

"Leonardo da Vinci was the most versatile genius of the Renaissance. He made great achievements as a painter, inventor, musician, composer, sculptor, engineer and scientist," said Mrs. Bowen.

She told of the ways he made careful studies of the human body and of the book he wrote on anatomy.

"This," she said, "made him know how to paint the disciples with the Master in their midst and bring out their varied expressions."

Mrs. Bowen pointed out each disciple in the picture and told of interesting things she had found out about them. She also discussed different objects in the picture, including the table, the cloth and dishes.

"Leonardo da Vinci was invited to paint 'The Last Supper' on the refectory wall of the convent Church of Santa Maria delle Grazie at Milan, Italy by the Duke of Moro," Mrs. Bowen told the group, and he was twelve years completing the picture.

Mrs. Bowen said that years ago everyone had one or more religious pictures hanging in their homes but later the style changed and the pictures were hid away.

"Now, psychologists say we should put them back on our walls—that the effect gives us peace of mind and calmness," she noted.

After the program, a social hour was enjoyed. The hostess served a dessert course and coffee. Her refreshments and floral arrangements of red carnations carried out the Valentine motif.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. Bowen and Mrs. Dewey Page.

Mrs. Harvey read the Quarterly News Letter which carried an article about the George B. Singletary Chapter. Plans were made to Unfortunately he was taken prisoner toward the close of the war. His lungs, which had never been strong, were badly affected during his five months in prison. He never fully recovered his health and the rest of his life was a series of struggles against tuberculosis.

The Baltimore climate seemed to agree with him best, the speaker noted. There he became a flutist in the Peabody Symphony Orchestra and a lecturer in English at Johns Hopkins University. The wonder is that he accomplished so much with obstacles of illness and pinch of poverty to overcome, she concluded.

Christian Science Society
God's great healing and saving power will be brought out at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Scriptural selections will include the following from Matthew (15:30): "And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others; and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them."

Subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Soul" a word which, when capitalized is used in Christian Science as one of the synonyms for God. Passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (210-11-16):

"Knowing that Soul and its attributes were forever manifested through man, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing to light the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of Soul and salvation."

Lightly waxed furniture may be cleaned once in a while with mild soap suds. Use as little of the suds as possible, then rinse quickly and wipe dry at once.

Christian Church Announcements

During the week February 17-24 the Disciples of Christ throughout the United States and Canada will be observing a week known as the Week of Compassion when by prayer and fasting and sacrificial giving we remember the needy and suffering peoples of the world. The special offering is channeled through Church World Service, a cooperating organization of nearly all Protestant Churches, and reaches out to many lands of suffering peoples. Every member of the Sunday School and Church is requested to bring a special gift for this purpose Sunday.

At the morning service the pastor will preach on the text "And they all with one consent began to make excuse" and Elbert Bennett will sing the solo "A Prayer" by Gabriel.

The youth meetings will be held Sunday afternoon and evening beginning with the Chi-Rho Fellowship at five o'clock and the Christian Youth Fellowship and Disciple Student Fellowship after the night supper at 6.

For the last seven weeks a rule of worship has been presented each Sunday and the Rule of Worship for this Sunday is as follows: "I listen as my minister preaches from God's Word and I seek to apply that message to my life. I pray for him as he preaches."

Two Roads Open To Fund-Raisers

Where does Greenville turn now that the Community chest has decided it will cease to be a fund-raising organization for eight local red feather agencies.

Will Greenville move on into eight additional fund-raising campaigns each year?

Or will Greenville follow the example of so many other communities and effect a real United Fund which will take care of all local solicitations in one campaign a year?

The only logical course is the United Fund. It will take a great deal of work to get it organized, and there are a number of hurdles to be overcome before it can be organized. Even so, the city will be better off in the long run with all the fund-seeking agencies in one campaign organization than with each conducting its own campaign annually. We are confident too that the individual organizations will be better off financially.

While the matter of uniting drives is being considered, it would be wise to consider it on a county-wide basis rather than on a single-city basis. Pitt County is a natural unit with its several towns and communities. A number of organizations which annually solicit funds already have their campaigns on a county-wide basis. Among them are the Red Cross, March of Dimes, Cancer, Heart Fund, Boy Scouts and even Girl Scouts to a lesser degree.

Would it not be practical to organize a Pitt County United Fund to replace the numerous drives which now go on each year?

As it is now business firms and individuals throughout the county are called on many times a year for contributions to various organizations. Month after month individuals who help with these solicitations are called on to take time from their work to collect money for this or that. We are sure those who contribute would prefer to give once a year for everything. We are sure too that those who work in the drives would rather devote their time once a year rather than many times a year.

Other counties in this area have found the United Fund an effective answer to this problem of many solicitations each year.

Leaders of the various communities in Pitt could be of great service to the people of this county if they would coordinate their efforts toward the establishment of a Pitt County United Fund.

They Exemplify Idea Of Service To Others

Two deserving young men who command the admiration of their respective Pitt County communities have been honored in the past few days with Distinguished Service Awards by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. M. W. Aldridge of Greenville and Ed Davenport of Farmville, have exemplified during the past year the idea of unselfish service to one's own community. It is most fitting that these young men were named "Outstanding Young Men of the Year" in Pitt County.

Each of them have given countless hours to the betterment of his community during the past 12 months. The activities of each have touched almost every facet of community life. Both Farmville and Greenville are better places because of the work of these young men who have not only devoted their time and effort, but have been an inspiration to others.

The Reflector offers its congratulations to these two young men for their achievements and for their service to Pitt County.

Let 'Em Taste It—

By JIMMY ELLIS Take The Liberal View

Virginians, when considered in a liberal sort of way, really aren't bad people.

In their many-mansioned backyard, the folks who call themselves Cavaliers have a rather distinguished history, an undying affection for ancestry, and a real money-making proposition run by Yankees in Colonial Williamsburg.

The only catch to all that sort of thing is simply that Virginians have developed a way of life that depends on the past. They have plumb forgotten that there's such a thing as 1957 or the possibility of a 1958.

Virginia is like the country boy who went to town and bought his first pair of shoes. He had the misfortune to get a pair that pinched so much he couldn't walk, and the only thing he could do was sit down and talk about the progress he had made.

What brought all this up was a little piece by a fellow on the payroll of the Richmond News Leader who got somebody to read North Carolina's new road signs to him. He doesn't like the little blue signs which im-plyore Virginians and other of similar driving abilities to be careful on North Carolina's good highways.

The old boy claims that the signs prove "... what Virginians and South Carolinians have been contending for years: that Tar Heels innately have no taste, and that the finer things of life are lost on them."

Now, most Tar Heels have no interest in squabbling over the back fence with Virginians. But that one fellow has taken a pretty big bite off the plug with his comments.

Rather than throw sticks and stones at him, it might be a good idea for that boy to climb from behind Captain John Smith's breastplate, brush aside Robert E. Lee's beard, and haul himself off Traveler to find out what living is really like.

If he isn't interested in coming into the world's richest to-baccoland, he might be persuaded to have himself transported to North Carolina's new Art Museum where Dr. Robert Lee Humber and Governor Luther H. Hodges could explain the theory and practice of progress that has made North Carolina the outstanding state in the South.

He might even be convinced to tear some of his state's youngsters away from their preoccupation with the past and bring them here to visit the training grounds for the many Tar Heel youngsters who are unselfishly sent out each year to Virginia in an attempt to rescue it from the limbo the tired old state has built for itself.

Besides the education the writer might get, he ought to make the trip for a selfish reason. He's been sitting too long ... without realizing there is a rest-of-the-world to go by.

Advantages In Farm Surplus

By ELMER ROESSNER

Towering farm surpluses may be an abominable mess, but they also have certain advantages.

They tower, at the moment, $8 billion high and it's costing $1,000,000 a day to store them. No successful way has been found to prevent surpluses from growing. Government price supports tend to increase surpluses. No farmer in his right mind will cut back when you and Uncle Sam are guaranteeing him a market for all he produces. In fact, when the support rate is cut — say from 90 per cent of parity to 75 per cent — a farmer is inclined to step up his production 20 per cent to keep his income up to the previous level. (Don't expect an explanation of parity here; we've explained it before and, besides, we don't understand it ourselves.)

The Administration's present policy is to reduce surplus by paying farmers to take part of their land out of production. That causes two temptations: first, to take the least profitable acres out of production and, second, to spend the payments received for more fertilizer to produce even bigger crops on the rest of the land.

HAZARDS OF GIVING

The government has been giving food away in this country. In the six months ended December 31, the Department of Agriculture handed out $19,600,000 pounds. Some went to Hungarian refugees, some went to the starving poor of America.

A lot of it went of the school lunch program. This may have caused school boards to buy considerably less from private-enterprise food dealers. There was almost an avalanche of hamburger last year as the government strove to support the price of beef, thereby increasing your food bill. That meant school authorities bought less meat from regular suppliers, or that a lot of little tykes had more than was good for their little selves.

Some of the food given away went to the not-so-poor, including people in low-paid jobs and strikers in some communities. It's up to states or subdivisions to decide who gets Federal largesse.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

However, the surplus of food enabled the United States to give away almost 1 billion pounds to foreign beneficiaries. Nearly 30,000,000 pounds was made available to Hungarian refugees in Austria — and that contribution gave the free world one of its greatest cold-war victories of the year over the Communists.

Food was made available in other times of crisis and distress throughout the free world.

In addition, a considerable amount of food is being sold abroad under Public Law 480. Under this law, private exporters sell surplus commodities abroad for foreign currency which is redeemed by the U.S. government. As Herbert K. Ferguson, a State Department agricultural attaché, explains in the current issue of New York University's magazine, Challenge:

"Cotton shipped to Italy under Public Law 480, for example, is bought from the U.S. Government by an American exporter. His Italian customer pays the Bank of Italy the lire equivalent of the cotton's dollar value. The bank, instead of drawing on its New York dollar account to pay the U.S. exporter, deposits the lire in U.S. Treasurer's account in Italy. Meanwhile, the Treasury mails the American cotton exporter a check in dollars due him."

These funds in foreign currencies can be used for supporting American troops abroad, maintaining embassies and consulates, developing markets for American products abroad or for lending back to foreign governments. And, reports say, sometimes touring American Congressmen manage to blow the funds.

Meanwhile, that $8 billion tower of surplus farm products is ready for use in strengthening our friends abroad, in winning new friends and in combating communism. And if war ever breaks out, it will be part of our global strength.

FARM CAN BE UNDER GROUND, REVENUE SERVICE RULES

When mushrooms are grown in an abandoned limestone mine, the mine is a farm and employees working in the mine constitute agricultural labor under the Social Security Act, the Internal Revenue Service holds in a new ruling.

Cautious View Of A New Idea

By LYNN NISBET

COMMUNITY COLLEGES — Because the whole idea of tax supported two-year colleges is new in North Carolina the Advisory Budget Commission approached the problem cautiously. At least the approach was cautious from viewpoint of demonstrated need for State support at this level, although an increase from $39,632 for the current biennium to $605,880 for the next in State aid for operations of the three community units now operating to some extent belies the caution.

Further State aid is provided in the capital improvements bill to the extent of a million and a half dollars on matching basis. The approximate $20,000 a year voted by the 1955 General Assembly for operation of colleges at Asheville, Charlotte and Wilmington was the first time the State had recognized this type of educational institution.

The 1955 appropriation was a blanketed amount without much State control over its spending. The $608,000 recommended this time is to be used on the basis of $3 per student quarter hour of instruction in courses definitely related to the first two years of liberal arts and sciences and the first year of technical college work.

The capital investment item, for buildings and equipment, proposed on a matching basis of State and local dollars in the first time any aid has been offered in this area.

While only three communities are presently directly affected, the junior community college idea is growing and other areas are interested. The educational leadership of the State, as well as the Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly is feeling the way to proper placement of the junior colleges in the total educational scheme.

DISTINCTIVE — There is some confusion between the functions of a regular junior college and those of a technical institute. There are equally significant differences in the community services rendered by the local colleges. These individual obligations sometimes make general uniform operation difficult, if not impossible. Yet if the State is to put money collected from all the people into the buildings and operation of a school, that school should conform to a pattern for statewide service.

The communities now operating colleges have widely different procedures. The Asheville-Biltmore College campus is the former Sealy estate on a mountain overlooking the city. Title to the property is vested in a board of trustees composed of ex-officio and appointed members from the governing bodies of the City of Asheville and Buncombe county.

The Charlotte college operates in the Central high school building, owned by the Charlotte city or Mecklenburg county board of education and in which high school classes are conducted during the day. That means the college classes are mostly held at night. The Charlotte folks rate the Negro section as a second called Carver College, which uses and almost independent until called Carver College, which uses another high school building.

At Wilmington the college is housed in the high school building belonging to New Hanover county, but without conflict with current high school classes, with a colored unit at the Negro high school, sometimes conflicting with classes below college level.

These different types of ownership of facilities raise worrisome questions about application of State matching funds for buildings. Also there are questions about the relative superiority of advantage enjoyed by Asheville college students, not available to Charlotte and Wilmington because of joint use of facilities.

MATCHING WHAT? — Local people in each of the affected communities feel that the value of existing facilities, determined by impartial outside appraisal, should be counted in the matching funds formula. Before that formula can be applied, however, the local college must get title to the property. Asheville already has it. Charlotte does not, and under existing conditions probably cannot get it, so some other site may have to be purchased.

Wilmington College as such does not own its buildings, but information is it will be deeded by New Hanover to the college if and when it can be developed. The budget recommendations and implementing appropriation bill now in the Legislature allocates a million and a half dollars for physical facilities at the community colleges. Presumably that is based on matching dollars for an estimated three and a quarter million dollars of needed additional facilities. It does not take into account credit for property already owned by the colleges.

Bone of contention will be demanded of the communities that credit be given for what they now have, or may later acquire through local support, against the matching money from the State. The matching fund situation is further confused by the fact that the individual colleges submitting one set of figures, the Board of Higher Education another set, and the Budget Bureau still another.

Several legislators have voiced the opinion that the junior college on local-State cost sharing basis, may be the answer to many of the higher education problems. But before any State appropriation is made the legislators want a more definite program than has been offered.

Other Editors Saying-- Is The Window Cracked?

(Greensboro Daily News)

At last somebody is concerned about that current phenomenon of American suburban life, "the box on a slab" that passes for a home for too many millions of our young married couples. Around every American city new housing developments are going up almost overnight, with small, compact, unimaginative houses on miniature red-clay lots. We call them "homes" but this is no home of the free built on the land of the brave.

It is all too likely to be a frustrating abode, where the lack of space makes the children seem always underfoot, the husband always in the way and the neighbors always dropping in. There is no room for privacy and none for serenity.

The picture window of one house looks bleakly out on the picture window of the house across the street, and the motorist driving through can look straight into private lives of either house.

But John Keats, in his new book called "The Crack In The Picture Window," says life can be different — and so can housing developments.

Quoting Dr. Charles Winslow of the Yale University School of Public Health, Mr. Keats declares: "The post-war house is too small to entertain guests, lacks sufficient storage space, has poorly-lighted dining alcoves placed in the path of major circulation, lacks space anywhere for children's playrooms, and its bedrooms lack privacy. Families living in these houses may well suffer serious mental and physical ills."

Since men are away at work all day, women rule these housing realms like a matriarchy. They pool their children, their groceries and intimate stories about their husbands; and they see so much of their neighbors that they either become bored with them or refuse to speak to them. Caught in long-term mortgage loans, the young couples, with more and more children filling the inadequate houses, cannot escape to more satisfactory homes so they remain and stew in their own mews. They peer unhappily through their picture windows and fervently wish they were outside.

Statistics say that by 1975 over 75 per cent of all Americans will be living in urban areas and that 85 per cent of urban growth during the next 20 years will be suburban growth.

Isn't it time now to start planning for housing developments within the financial means of young couples but also within their happy-living means? They need space, they need privacy, they need some outdoor area — if their marriages and their children are to grow to satisfactory maturity.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Practical-minded Americans are apt to record as the "sentimental" idea of keeping a diary. Few of us, they say, will be called upon to write our memoirs from the pages of "dear diary." Nevertheless, the jotting down of factual data to remind one of the things he did day by day is an entirely different matter. Sentiments and opinions need not enter the notations; they can be highly practical, as you will see.

but also how much previous time you have wasted.

You will have opportunity to recall, also, how much you worried about this or that, looming big at the time. You can see that a little faith and patience would have seen you through the trial. The worry accomplished nothing except to wear down your joy-of-living.

The merchant takes inventory once a year, at least. Now worth while for us to take stock — a look at the record — periodically. We get so much more out of life if we stop to remember, not only the mistakes, but the good accomplishments or intentions. We remember, do we not, from school days how review fixes things in the memory?

The Girl Who---

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There are some actresses you fall in love with the first time you see them on stage or screen, but if you meet them in person you soon have a desire to dropkick them over the horizon.

Audrey Hepburn isn't that type at all. She gives you the unreasonable feeling that all the years of your life to that moment have been utterly wasted.

I was sitting in the living room of her hotel suite wondering whether 1957 would turn out to be a good year for rheumatism, when the door opened and Miss Hepburn entered.

She didn't walk across the room, she floated like a moonbeam. Her brown hair shimmered in a lacy mist around her fair face. I took one look and for the 912th time in my life fell hopelessly in love with a complete stranger.

Or was she a stranger? I felt I had known her forever.

Then Miss Hepburn did something for which I now nominate her for another Academy Award. She paused, her blue eyes widened as she looked into my face — lined by years of noble living and lack of proper exercise — and a bit breathlessly she gave this immortal line:

"I have a feeling I know you from before. Haven't we met somewhere, sometime?"

"No, I'm afraid not," my mouth murmured, but my heart said silently:

"Don't listen to him, little Audrey. He's a liar. He met you before, many times — and he knows it."

"You were the girl he first fell in love with in kindergarten. You were the girl he also fell in love with in the 3rd grade at a different school. You are the girl he saved up and bought a $3.50 valentine for in the 7th grade.

"You are all the hundreds of girls he loved and lost!"

Audrey told me a lot of things.

About how she had been born of Irish-Dutch parents in Belgium, and how she had started work at 13 to help pay for her ballet lessons.

About how she had had to hide out from the Germans in Holland during the World War II.

About how thrilled she was to have achieved stardom young.

About how tired she was after making three pictures in a row.

About how she looked forward next to doing "The Nun's Story" but first there would be a long holiday in Switzerland with her actor husband, Mel Ferrer.

About the difficulty of combining the twin careers of being an actress and wife, but that "if you keep the scales in balance, and remember your first job is to take proper care of your husband, it can work out happily — certainly it has for us."

And how she worked so hard she had few hobbies. "I'm afraid I'm pretty dull. I like walking; music, from Bach to Duke Ellington; and reading. Kipling is one of my favorite writers."

She had to leave then to keep a luncheon engagement. As we said goodbye it seemed to me those pond-blue eyes were saying, "Surely we've met somewhere before. Don't you remember?"

That is the peculiar charm Audrey Hepburn has, and that guarantees her a multimillion-dollar future. To millions of men she is all the girls they loved — and lost — in the springtime of their youth.

All except that lucky Mel Ferrer.

More Confusion Than Ever Before

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The nation's economic, financial and monetary system — wages, prices, prospects, money costs — has become more confused than at any time since Franklin D. Roosevelt tinkered with our currency by devaluing the dollar and abolishing the gold standard. Almost every expert at Washington disagrees on diagnosis and remedies.

Although both President Eisenhower and Secretary Humphrey praise and defend their record-breaking budget of $71.8 billion (book figures only), they urge Congress to reduce it, if possible. As a safeguard against inflation, they beg management and labor to show moral fiber and restraint in raising prices and demanding higher wages.

BELIEVE ADMINISTRATION IS PASSING BUCK The politico-economic reaction to these cross-current statements and pleas is that the Administration has abdicated its primary responsibilities. In shorter and sharper language, the political, business and labor communities make no secret of their belief that the Administration is "passing the buck" in a big way.

Capitol Hill, including Republican stalwarts, maintains that the Executive seeks to shift final blame on them. If they slash the budget, they can be accused of tampering with foreign aid, defense and welfare programs. If the Democratic majority accept it, they will share responsibility for continued inflation with the White House.

Ike's own financial and business friends, who voted for him and financed the GOP's election costs, are shocked at the failure to reduce Federal expenditures. They attribute it to his unexpected and unwanted expansion of costly New Deal-Fair Deal hand-outs.

LABOR LEADERS' VIEWPOINT Labor union leaders feel that Ike aims to embarrass them. They say that, even after heavy taxes, profits for the President's "big business" associates have risen by a far greater percentage than payrolls.

In fact, the threatening deterioration of the economy has reached such a state that even the conservative Eisenhower envisages the need of Federal controls, although they will destroy what he calls "America as we know it."

BUDGET DIRECTOR'S PESSIMISM Perhaps the worst shock to alarmed Members of Congress was delivered by Budget Director Percival F. Brundage at a secret session of the House Appropriations Committee. After expressing his disappointment over the size of the 1958 budget, he said:

"I would certainly hope we would be able to cut taxes. If we can hold our expenditures for a couple of years at even the present level ($71.8 — Ed. note), I think the expanding economy will permit it.

to this level or not? You think if there is any change in the budget, it will be up instead of down?"

"I am afraid of it," replied Brundage. "Yes."

TAX CUTS RULED OUT His astounding admission rules out tax cuts in the next few years. It means that industrial and business activity must increase even to make possible a balanced budget, whereas many economic experts look for a downturn for the last six months of this year. In short, Brundage's off-the-record warning is far more pessimistic than the "hair curling" predictions of Humphrey and Herbert Hoover.

To darken the outlook, the Administration's military and diplomatic whittens have assured Congressional Committees that "We must continue foreign aid, military and economic, for an indefinite number of years." Every other nation, including our major Allies and the Soviet, is economizing, it seems, at Uncle Sam's expense.

ELIZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL
A Call for Doctor Barton

Dr. Barton opened the front door of the Kopp farmhouse and went into the narrow hall, down its length toward the brightly lit transom. The hall was icy cold, as it had been on a Christmas night — and it smelled of a hundred lingering odors, none of them pleasant. In contrast, the dining room seemed hot. The stove was going full blast, and the smell of menthol was rancid in the steamy air. Pearl came toward him, her blue eyes wide with terror, her big mouth grabbing a dozen messages. She was alone — Oh, Miz Kopp — but she wasn't no good — and the baby was bad — old man Kopp was away — and do something, Doc! Do something quick!

Reconciled, But Spouse Fickle
LOS ANGELES (AP)—When Mrs. Gloria Jacobi sought a divorce last June, Superior Judge Burnett Wolfson told her to go home to her husband William, try a reconciliation for the sake of their two children, "and report back to me on St. Valentine's Day."
Mrs. Jacobi came back yesterday with this report: "We were reconciled. My husband promised to give up associating with a Mrs. Cloud. After a while he began seeing another woman named Mrs. Baxter."
She was granted a divorce and $420 alimony and child support. Had the reconciliation held, the judge was to have entertained them at dinner in his home today.

straighten up, I'll need your help." "I'm too excited!" Her hands clenched, and she looked at him imploringly.
"So am I excited," said Grady, spreading a towel and setting out the instruments he would need.
Pearl's excitement took the form of talk, and she chattered like a magpie. Grady paid no heed to her. The only time he made a sound was when he brought out the quarter which had been there all the time, now dark and slick and unpleasant to see to handle. But Grady was delighted to get the quarter.
Of course by now the thing had made its trouble. The child's lungs were congested, the bronchi involved — the doctor could do only the best he could. While ten days ago the coin could have been detected, removed and within twenty-four hours the baby would have been as good as new. But tonight he worked for an hour, then he took the child to his crib and erected the oxygen tent which he had brought with him, adjusted the small tank.
It was too late. Grady was sure that it was too late. Everything he had done was too late — and yet a doctor did what he could, when allowed.
A few minutes before midnight, Kopp came in, banging into the kitchen, his voice rasping against the ears of the silent man who sat beside the baby's crib.
As Kopp reached the bedroom door, Grady turned his head. "Put away your cigar!" he said sharply. So sharply that Kopp did stop back and lay his cigar upon the stove in the dining room. Then he came charging into the bedroom, his jaw pushed forward belligerently.
"What goes on here?" he demanded loudly. Grady felt a surge of pity. Kopp was scared, and fear expressed itself for him in bluster and noise. He came over the crib and squatted to peer through the tent's window.
"Who called you?" he demanded of Grady. "And who in God's name told you to cut?"
Grady was on his feet. "Get out of my way!" he said, bending over the crib, a syringe in his hand.
It was no good. All he had done was no good. In that same minute, little Gregory died, even as they watched him. "I'm sorry," sighed the doctor. "I'm sorry."
For a moment there was no sound at all in the room, in the house, then all at once, sound burst out everywhere. Kopp cursed and roared, blaming everyone, demanding punishment for everyone, vowing vengeance.
Pearl sobbed aloud.
Mrs. Kopp, throwing her apron over her face, keened wordlessly, like a dog howling at the moon.
Only Grady was silent. He folded the oxygen tent, set it and the tank to one side. He straightened the small, convulsed limbs, closed the eyelids, spread the blanket smoothly and turned to leave the room.
Now his hands — his fingers — trembled as he repacked the surgical bag, zipped it and carried it across the room to put it with the rest of his equipment. Moving deliberately, unhurriedly, he came back to the table where the unshaded light bulb threw its circle of radiance and cast the corners of the room into brown shadow. Death was ugly in this home, without dignity. Loss and heartbreak were voiced in angry recrimination.
"He was my only grandson, and ya had to kill him, Doc!"
With a real effort, Grady lifted his head. "I tried to warn you, Mr. Kopp." On a piece of gauze lay the quarter, black with tar-nish. Grady turned to pick it up, but Kopp's hand caught at his shoulder.
"You dassed me, Doc!" e screamed in frenzy. "You dassed me, and I took your dass! Then, first chance you get, you come out here and kill that boy! You knew I'd be gone — I told you I was goin' off when I seen you this afternoon. Never dreamin' that you'd come out here and kill that baby. But you did — and I'll git you for it if it's the last thing I ever do!"

Examiners said Rigby didn't come back to finish the test.

Nitrogen from the air has become a key to a plentiful supply of stainless steel

BEAUTIFUL, enduring stainless steel owes its rust-free life to the alloying metal called chromium. Other alloying metals . . . manganese and nickel . . . are vital for added strength and endurance.

Ever-increasing demands for nickel have threatened the supply of stainless steel. But the people of Union Carbide have provided an answer. Nitrogen from the air—combined with chromium or manganese through metallurgy and added to the molten steel—helps nickel go twice as far . . . making it possible, with the same amount of nickel, to greatly expand the chromium-nickel stainless steel output.

This is only one in a long line of contributions from Union Carbide's metallurgists during a half century of alloy making. Fifty years ago there were only a few types of steel. Today, through the use of such alloys as chromium and manganese, there are tailor-made steels to meet every need.

The people of Union Carbide are constantly at work on new and improved alloys to make better metal products for all of us.

G-Men Closing Basketball Season In Kinston Tonight

KINSTON—Tonight marks the end of the 1956-57 basketball season for both teams as Greenville high school and the Kinston Red Devils clash here tonight in a Northeastern Conference tilt.

With Kinston riding high on top of the loop with an 11-0 mark, currently in the midst of a 29-game winning streak that extends as far back as last year, they will be raked to smother the G-Men tonight.

Coach Boley Farley's Greenies, occupying third place in the conference with an 8-3 record, fell before the mighty Devils 74-36 in the first meeting between the two at ECC gym. They are rated an even greater underdog tonight, due to the Kinston home-court advantage.

A hint of upset is in the air around the Greenville camp that is not altogether uncalculated. The Phants have shown definite improvement since their first battle with the defending State Class AA champions. Their last game, a 76-54 victory over Jacksonville Tuesday night, was by far their most successful showing of the year. Then, too, Kinston might be a bit over the hump with their 11-0 mark. The Devils have the conference regular-season title sewed up, as of Tuesday, and may be in an over-confident frame of mind now.

Versatile Group

Coach Farley's outfit, though green and inexperienced for the most part, have shown unusual agility in adapting to the style of play best suited for each game. Against Jacksonville, they employed the fast break to a terrific peak, racking up as much as 32 points in a single quarter. Against Washington, the number two team, they played possession and curbed the Pam Pack to a narrow 46-43 win. It is expected by most observers that Farley will have his boys try the slow-motion technique tonight. They tried to run with the Devils last time and were slaughtered.

Expected to pace the Red Devil attack tonight, will be guard Alley Hart, a tiny peppert, who is perhaps the best ball-handler in North Carolina. Elton Faelton, lanky forward and Bobby Stanley, center, will be the other two outstanding Kinston cagers to watch.

Coach Amos Sexton, who is steadily becoming the baron of Eastern North Carolina high school basketball, has a bench full of able reserves and is expected to turn the heat on tonight in his final display of power for the year.

Green Starters

Farley has been using a newly-devised two-platoon system this season, to make up for the loss of most of his top-flight 1956-57 team of last year. Faced with a crew of inexperienced sophomores and juniors, he has molded them into two teams instead of the usual one, and has produced a number three team with that system. His club was generally regarded as the bottom outfit in the league at the season's opening.

His starting five tonight are uncertain. One crew is made up of Mack Roebuck and Bobby Edwards at guards, Dick Evans and Peanut Nunn at forwards and Albert Crawford at center. The other includes Wesley Hudson and Walker Allen at guards, Billy Cox and Charlie Smith at forwards and Steve Noble at center.

A junior varsity match is slated for 8:30, with the varsity contest beginning at 8:00.

Elon Quint Next To Try Luck In ECC 'Jinx' Gym

Elon will come to Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow night to take their turn at trying to carry home a victory from the celebrated "jinx" gym.

With a 10-3 North State record and a number two ranking, Elon will be favored to turn the trick. East Carolina, which racked up a consecutive string of 50 victories on their home court, have plunged into defeat there three times this season, and is rated a 13-point underdog to the Fighting Christians tomorrow.

Elon, of course, is the defending North State Conference champion. With practically the same team that pulled off with the title last season, they have managed to win a high spot in the loop this year, although an undefeated Lenoir Rhyne has stolen the spotlight from all. If any team is given a chance to whip the undefeated Bears in the NS tournament, it will be Elon.

77-59 Earlier

They trounced ECC 77-59 earlier this season at Burlington. This was the contest in which East Carolina's All-Conference forward Don Harris was held to two points, the lowest output of his whole career. The rest of the Pirate club was likewise slowed down by a powerful Elon defense, while Dee Atkinson, Jim Crump and Ed Juratic pushed the Christians way out.

Expected to start for the Pirates tomorrow night, will be Tim Smothers and Guy Mendenhall at guards, Don Harris and Nick Nichols at forwards and lanky Joe Plaster at center.

Game time is 8:00.

Brooklyn Finds 'New Campanella'

HAVANA (AP)—Brooklyn's long search for a "new Campanella" may have ended in John Roseboro, a young man from Ashland, Ohio, who is drawing rave notices from Caribbean baseball scouts.

Roseboro, only 23, hit .338 with Caracas in the Venezuela Winter League and competed in the Caribbean series against Cuba, Puerto Rico and Panama. Last year he was a .273 hitter with 25 home runs at Montreal.

Greenville walked through the first six matches, winning all by falls, before losing a close decision in the 148 pound class. Grady's Turn Tonight To Bid For Top Scoring

By PETE PEDERSEN
The Associated Press

It's graceful Grady Wallace's turn to bid for the lead in the national college basketball scoring derby tonight.

The 6-4 South Carolina forward leads his teammates against Virginia in an Atlantic Coast Conference home game.

He needs one of his better nights if he's to close in on leader Chet Forte of Columbia and runner-up Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas.

Chet the Jet has an average of 30.18 points per game; The Still has 29.94 and Grady 29.90.

Wallace needs 36 points tonight to take the lead.

Wallace, a 170-pound senior, is noted for his graceful hook shot, his rebounding and defensive work. He led Gamecock scorers last year with a 23.9 mark and has been the mainstay of a 50-50 (11-9) team this season.

Forte and Chamberlain go into action tomorrow when Columbia visits Dartmouth and Kansas hits Missouri.

Action was in low key last night as most of the nation's leading teams rested for a strenuous weekend. In the Southern Conference, William and Mary brought its loop record to 6-7 by downing Virginia Military 83-66.

In the Skyline Conference, Denver staged a second-half comeback to trip Montana 55-53, and Utah used a late surge to overwhelm New Mexico 107-82.

The Dayton Flyers, enjoying one of the hottest streaks in college circles, breezed over Regis College of Denver 97-53 for their 10th victory in their last 11 games.

In the Southeastern Conference's lone outing, Georgia Tech bounced arch-rival Georgia 67-65 by erasing a 4-point deficit in the last three minutes.

St. John's of Brooklyn enhanced its prospects for an NIT bid by stopping Niagara 71-67, and Manhattan trounced New York University 93-78.

Middleweight Contenders In Tonight's Match

NEW YORK (AP)—Ellsworth (Spider) Webb and muscular Neal Rivers, a couple of well-traveled middleweight title contenders, make their Madison Square Garden debuts tonight with the streaking Spider a 12-5 favorite.

Webb, now a Chicago resident, puts a winning streak of 17 as well as his No. 4 ranking on the line against the hard-hitting youngster from Las Vegas. The 22-year-old Rivers is ranked eighth among the challengers for Gene Fullmer's 160-pound crown.

A nonwinning team mate of Floyd Patterson of the great U.S. Olympic boxing team of 1952, the 25-year-old Webb hopes to grab a pro boxing title just like Patterson did. He's been taking giant steps in that direction since his Army discharge.

Winner of 10 straight and boasting a 12-1 record when tapped for service in 1953, the Spider has swept seven straight since resuming his boxing career last May.

Rivers has a 32-5-1 record, including 19 kayos. He is ranked eighth.

NBC will broadcast and telecast at 10 p.m. EST.

Non-Winners And Old Campaigner Lead Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A couple of fellows who haven't shared a dime on the winter tour and an old campaigner playing on borrowed time led the $20,000 Texas Open into its second round today.

On top was Joe Black, Abilene, Tex., who ripped Blackbridge Park's 6,490 yards for a 7-under-par 64 yesterday while some of the biggest guns of the links trail faltered badly.

A stroke back was Bob Kay, West Hartford, Conn., who plays the tour only in the winter. Tied with Kay was the veteran Ed Furgol, who has won plenty in his career but right now is fighting time and a ripping arm muscle.

Furgol hurt the arm in 1954 but has continued to play.

MASKS, FINS, AND SNORKELS

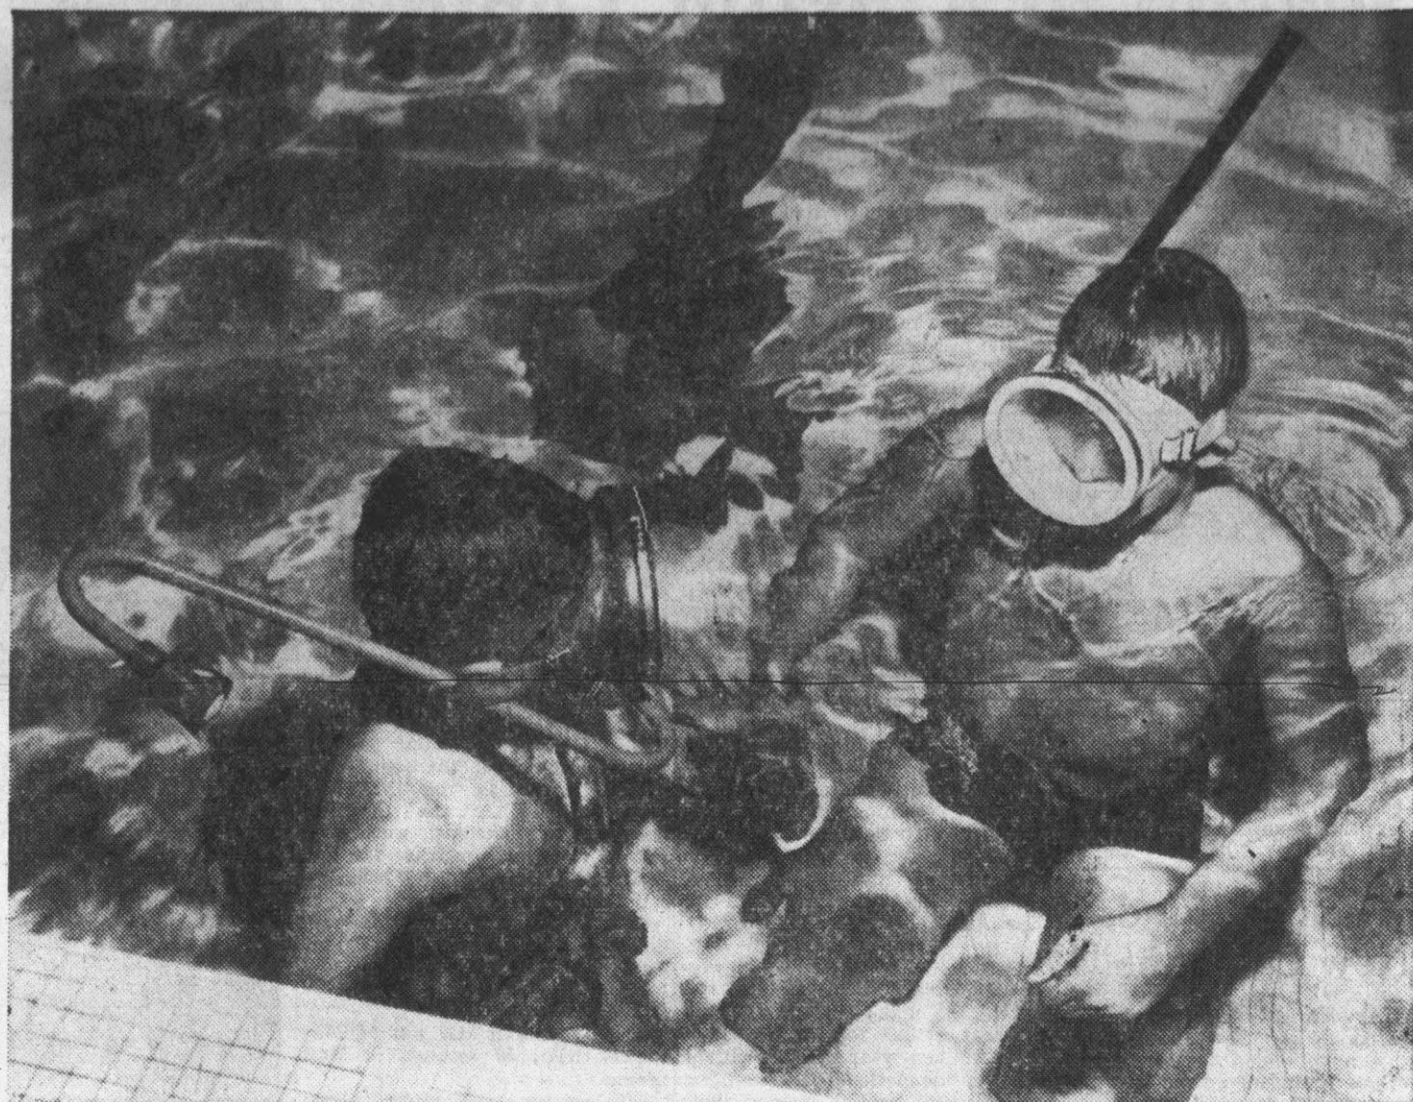

Don Davison wears full regalia used by expert Divers. It is known as SCUBA, "Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus."

Skin diving is an exciting water sport that is attracting a whole new set of enthusiasts. Skin divers' clubs are springing up everywhere. There's a growing demand for masks, snorkles and fins—the basic equipment of a skin diver.

But skin diving has its dangers as well as its thrills. It requires a lot of practice and training. Water safety experts are cautioning the uninformed that while shallow diving is fairly safe, deeper diving holds many dangers. There are many unsolved problems, and skilled techniques are needed, with even the best apparatus.

To help the beginners, Don Davison, an expert in the sport, recently demonstrated the latest in skin-diving equipment and techniques at the YWCA pool in Youngstown, O., in cooperation with the city's health education department. He's shown here with his class.

Future Skin Divers. Two young beginners, Charles Browne, 12, left, and David McClintic, 13, try out the simplest diving equipment, a snorkle and mask for breathing just below the surface.

David McClintic adjusts a diving lung for his wife. This newly developed mechanism has been down to 220 feet in actual dive and has exceeded 400 feet in dry tests.

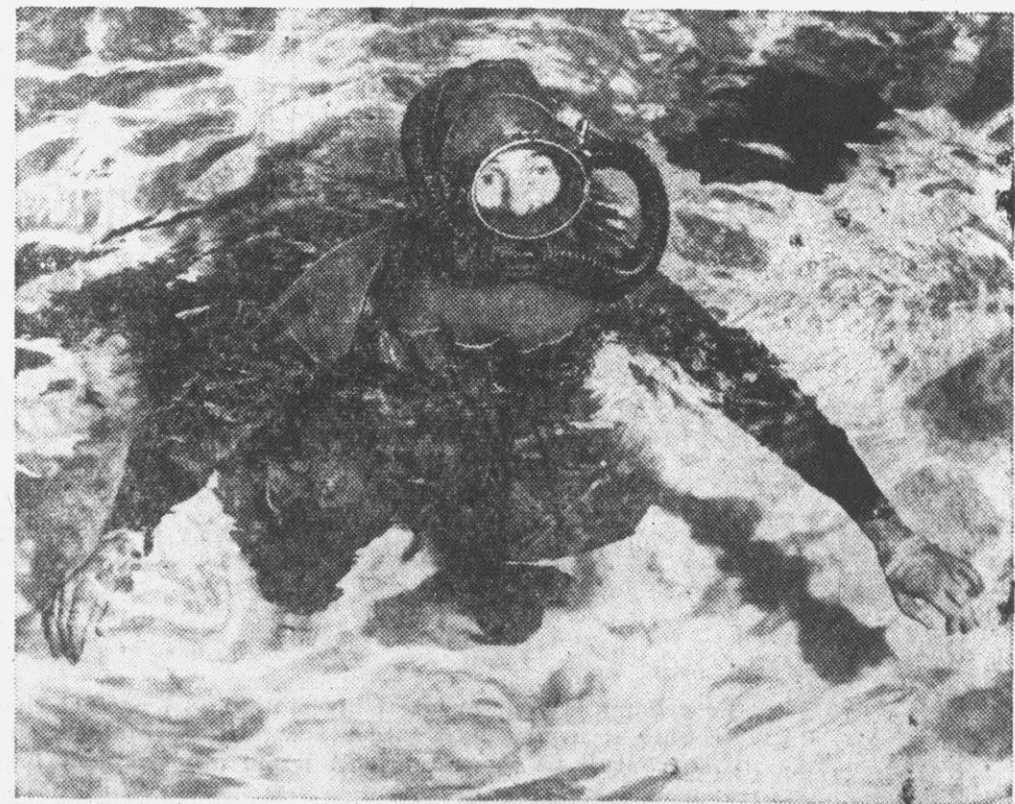

Wearing full equipment used by expert divers, Davison descends into pool. He has helped rescue persons who tried deep diving without adequate preparation.

David Lake learns functions of various parts. Fins speed propulsion.

Mrs. David McClintic, YWCA health education director, shows swimming instructors how to purge water from filled mask, which may mean difference between life and death. L. to R.: Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Fred Rowitz, Mrs. Harry Webb and Mrs. Donald Wills.

Davison emerges from the pool after showing the skilled techniques for deep diving. Divers in the armed forces practice long periods in tanks and shallow waters before going into action.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — An irregular stock market jiggled alternately to the downside and to the upside where it stood in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses ran from fractions to well over a point among pivotal issues.

The market was higher at the opening, developed a lower tendency then recovered. After a fairly active opening, turnover dwindled. The first hour was the slowest this week, with 320,000 shares changing hands compared with yesterday's 630,000.

There were rapid turnabouts in prices. Some of this erratic action was ascribed to in-and-out traders.

At one time all the major steels were down. Latest quotations gave Youngstown and Lukens advances of more than a point each. Republic Steel was up a fraction, Bethlehem about unchanged and U. S. Steel off a trifle.

Chrysler, narrowly ahead at the start, charged ahead almost 2 points. General Motors and Studebaker-Packard showed little change. Ford was up a fraction. Anaconda dropped around 2.

Fire Dept. Had 25 January Calls

Firemen answered seven box alarms during the month of January, Fire Chief George Gardner reported.

The department also had 15 telephone calls to fires and three calls to blazes outside town. There were two false alarms and the rescue ambulance was called out 12 times during the first month of the year.

Firemen attended a three-hour instruction course at Seymour Johnson Air Base in Goldsboro to learn the proper way to handle a jet plane crash, the chief reported.

TWIN TRACTION... a Studebaker-Packard FIRST so good other cars will copy it

WHAT IS IT? Twin-Traction Differential gives you new pavement-gripping traction and new safe control impossible with conventional differentials. The secret lies in the fact that the Twin-Traction Differential delivers the major part of the engine's power to the rear wheel with the best traction—instead of the wheel with the poorest traction (as in a conventional differential). The result—roadability that's better in six important ways:

1. In ice, snow or mud, Twin Traction gets you out of spots where cars with conventional differentials would "spin their wheels."
2. In highway driving, it protects against skids that might otherwise occur when one rear wheel hits a slippery spot.
3. On sharp turns, it improves roadability by applying the major driving force to the inside rear wheel. This also tends to compensate for over-steering.
4. On rough or washboard roads, it reduces the rear-end bounce, sideway or swerve which results from a fast-spinning wheel suddenly hitting the pavement again.
5. When one rear wheel goes off the pavement onto a soft shoulder, Twin Traction directs the driving force to the other rear wheel, assuring safe, positive control.
6. In ordinary driving, Twin Traction cuts tire wear by assuring more positive traction.

Test it, yourself, today. See your Studebaker-Packard Dealer for a demonstration drive!
