Sky Giant With 159 Aboard Falls Into Korean River

SEOUL (AP)—A burning U.S. transport plane crashed on an islet in the Han River last night. At least 134 of the 159 Americans aboard were saved, but five bodies were found and it was feared tonight the death toll might reach 25.

The pilot said an engine of the big C-124 Globemaster II transport plane burst into flame and spewed chunks of metal into the two-story fuselage, tearing holes big enough for a man to walk through.

As the tide ebbed at the Han's mouth today, permitting resumption of the search for bodies at the crash scene, Air Force officials listed 20 persons missing and Army officials listed 17. An Air Force spokesman said:

"It is very doubtful if they will be found alive."

The Air Force listed 134 rescued and the Army 137.

The troop transport—the Air Force's largest—took off from Kimpo Airfield for Tokyo with 10 crewmen and 149 passengers, most of them servicemen looking forward to rest leaves in Japan.

Lying on a stretcher at Tachikawa Air Base in Japan, the injured pilot, Capt. James Cartwright, 37, of Elkton, Ky., related what happened next.

"We lost power on No. 3 engine. It caught fire and started to throw chunks of metal through the fuselage. They hit No. 4 engine and it started to lose power. Pieces of metal were coming through the fuselage, cutting holes big enough for a man to walk through.

"The metal cut the alleron cables. We couldn't turn around so I decided on the Han River. It all happened in four or five minutes.

"We landed on our belly. The first impact was smooth, but the second was a lulu. The next thing I knew I was in the water.

"I crawled on an ice floe and I like to freeze. People were pouring out of the plane and struggling onto a sand bar 50 yards from shore."

The landing on the tiny island, above the water only at low tide, was described by another Air Force officer as a "one in a million" shot that saved most of the lives. The scene was only 1 1/2 miles south of the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea.

Confusion over the number of missing arose because survivors were rushed to several hospitals and dispensaries for treatment.

The Army said only 43 of the survivors were injured seriously enough to be hospitalized.

Rescue crews arrived at the scene within 45 minutes of the crash. Five bodies were found before the tide from the Yellow Sea inundated the island at noon.

The tide receded again before dusk and rescue crews again probed the blackened skeleton of the plane.

An Air Force spokesman said some of the missing may have been washed downstream in the confusion of the crash. The water on one side of the island was shallow enough for wading but on the other side it was deep, swift and cold.

Four crewmen were among the missing. The others, all suffering minor injuries, were flown to Tachikawa.

Cartwright suffered bruises and cuts on the head, face and body.

Shattered Safe Found In County

WINTERVILLE—Anybody lose a safe? That's the question Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson and his deputies are asking today.

The officers were called to investigate a destroyed safe which was located up a path a short distance from the Tar Road about two miles from here yesterday afternoon.

The sheriff said the safe had been "torn to pieces."

"I've never seen one torn up like that," he declared.

There were no papers scattered about as is usually the case when a safe is cracked and nothing was in it.

Furthermore there have been no safes reported missing in this area and Sheriff Tyson says he can remember no old cases.

The safe was described as being old. However, apparently it was broken up recently since the breaks appeared new.

"It couldn't have been there long," the sheriff pointed out. "It was up a path in sight of the road. I just don't know why it was there."

U. S. Firm In Its Stand On Israel

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration appeared firmly opposed today to any further U. S. concessions to get Israel to withdraw its troops from areas taken from Egypt.

Officials said Secretary of State Dulles, keeping close touch with President Eisenhower, is determined that Israel will have to modify its position. They said the U. S. position will not be altered.

Israel's ambassador Abba Eban is flying back from Jerusalem after urgent consultations with Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion. After a stop at London, Eban is due in Washington Sunday to pick up his talks with Dulles and other U. S. officials.

Eisenhower and Dulles are awaiting Eban's return, reportedly with a new message from Ben-Gurion, before deciding on the country's next move on the question of sanctions against Israel.

The Asian-African bloc yesterday moved formally in the United Nations for sanctions against Israel.

Debate is scheduled to start in the U. N. Monday on the Asian-African proposal to condemn Israel and invoke economic and military measures against that country.

Dulles and Eban met last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Dulles failed then to win Israeli withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba. These are positions the Israelis took from Egypt in last fall's fighting. Israel has refused to relinquish them without firm guarantees against subsequent Egyptian harassment and blockade.

In a move to induce Israel to withdraw from the disputed areas, the United States has offered to declare its support of free navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba and to work for stationing of a U. N. force in the Gaza Strip to prevent Egyptian commando raids on Israel.

Ben-Gurion has refused to budge until it gets what it regards as ironclad security guarantees.

Ben-Gurion is under pressure from his cabinet to hang on to the disputed areas, come what may. He faces a confidence vote Monday with the issue somewhat in doubt.

U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld is understood to be trying to get the Egyptians to retain legal control of Gaza, as provided for in the Palestine truce and the Israeli civil administration to stay, but with the U. N. police forces in actual control. The effect would seem to be a victory for Israel which is dead set against returning Gaza to Egypt.

Other governmental reorganization proposals include reorganizing a new department of administration which would include the present Budget Bureau and Division of Purchase and Contract; creating a division of general services to replace the Board of Public Buildings and Grounds and enlargement of the Advisory Budget Commission from five to seven members.

These proposals have been endorsed by Gov. Hodges. Also thrown into the hopper were bills to carry out recommendations of the Legislative Reapportionment Commission.

Two amendments to the State Constitution would be necessary to carry out the reapportionment plan and would have to be submitted to a vote at the next general election if approved by the Legislature. One would set up a commission to reapportion General Assembly membership after each census. The other would increase House membership from 120 to 130, limit a county to not more than two senators, and limit senatorial districts to not more than four counties.

Teacher Pay Raise Holds Stage In Legislative Week

RALEIGH (AP)—Teachers salaries dominated legislative activity this week as the General Assembly stepped up its race.

Several bills were introduced to make changes in motor vehicles laws, another measure proposed the establishment of a $1 minimum hourly wage and there were several measures dealing with reorganization of state government.

The first floor fight of this session erupted Tuesday when Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan introduced a resolution instructing the Appropriations Committee to set aside enough money to provide at least 15 per cent across-the-board increases for school teachers.

A motion to kill the resolution passed 58-53 with several supporters of the motion explaining they weren't against raises beyond budget recommendations but they opposed the resolution as not "orderly procedure."

The week also saw other developments on the teacher pay question which has become a major legislative issue. Rep. R. Frank Everett of Martin offered a resolution instructing the Appropriations Committee to make pay raises for teachers and state employees a first order of business.

Yesterday, some 15 House members joined forces in offering a bill to provide a 19.31 per cent increase for the teachers, the amount requested by the State Board of Education and backed by the United Forces for Education.

Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission have recommended teacher pay raises averaging 9.1 per cent. This plus regular increments for added experience would provide raises averaging about 10 per cent.

Reorganization measures tossed in the legislative mill included one to reorganize the State Highway Commission, a proposal backed by Gov. Hodges which is expected to cause plenty of discussion before its legislative fate is settled.

The bill would cut membership of the Highway Commission from 15 to seven. A director of highway funds would replace the present chairman as the commission's chief administrative officer.

"We are very grateful to everyone who helped," he declared.

The local Moose Lodge agreed to sponsor the March of Dimes drive last fall. Moose members Lee and Turnage were then appointed as county and city campaign chairmen.

Lee also announced the winners of the March of Dimes benefit show given on WNCN Jan. 19. The winners were determined by the amount of money donated to request numbers by each group.

Lee said the Hi-Fi's combo won first prize, the Hi-Fi quartet second prize. Both groups are from Kinston High School. Third prize went to the Singing Seniors of Wilson.

Rose gave the following breakdown of contributions to this year's March of Dimes drive:

Blue Crutch Day (Girl Scouts) $95.06; Coffee Day (Moose Lodge) $121.07; Road Block (Jay-Cees) $613.00; Iron Lung Coin Collectors (placed by Women of Moose) $565.03; Child School System $324.61; East Carolina College $166.57; Third Street School $238.34; Sallie Branch School (colored) $135.63; West Greenville School $321.74; Elmhurst School $379.33; H. B. Sugg School, Farmville (colored) $130.87; Grimesland High School $1259.17; Stokes Community and

Twelve Youths Receive Chicks In Poultry Chain

Twelve Pitt 4-H youth each received 100 Sears Poultry Chain chicks from the Farm Agent's office yesterday afternoon.

Assistant County Agent Cecil Register presented the 1,200 Poultry Chain chicks to the youngsters.

The Sears Poultry Chain was begun with funds set up by the Sears-Roebuck foundation. Each of the 12 4-H youth who received the chicks yesterday will raise them as their own. When the layers are about five and a half months of age, 12 of the 100 each received will be placed in the Poultry Show and Sale. After the poultry is judged the 12 returned by each boy will be furthering the chain next year.

Chicks remaining from the 100 belong to the boy who raised them. Register said the chain was worked "very well so far."

"It's been found to supplement the family income in a lot of cases," he declared. "In fact one of the purposes of the chain is to let farm families know they can supplement their income with a small brood of chicks."

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two safecrackers walked into a police ambush in a supermarket in near Forestville early today and were shot to death in a wild gun battle. None of the police was hurt.

Killed in the gun battle were Nickey Nader, 49, who has various addresses in Covington, Ky., and Cincinnati, and a man tentatively identified by police as Earl V. Burton, 34, of Louisville.

Approximately 100 shots were fired.

Robert Nelson, the store manager, said there was approximately $35,000 in the store safe.

Police had been watching the store since Detective Paul Schirmer, who lives nearby, spotted Nader in the store about a week ago. He recognized Nader as a known safe cracker and, suspecting that a burglary was being planned, Schirmer showed store employees pictures of Nader's known associates. They picked out Burton as a man who had been with Nader several times.

"For years I've tried to get to this post," he said. "And now that I'm here, guess what?"

"No horses."

One Child Dies As Fire Razes School

By AUSTIN ADKINSON MOUNT AIRY, N. C. (AP)—All but one of more than 400 terrified youngsters scrambled out of windows or dashed through doors as a lightning-fast fire raged through their school here yesterday.

And the one youngster who didn't escape was a 9-year-old polio victim who couldn't run.

The toll stood today at one dead and about 30 injured. The school is a smoking ruin.

Many of the grade-school children teetered fearfully on window ledges of the one-story brick building and had to be helped or pushed out.

Several teachers suffered painful injuries as they herded their charges to safety. At least one was burned critically in the room where a boy's body was found.

A. P. Phillips, principal of the Flat Rock School, said, "We never dreamed anybody could get trapped with so many exits."

There were four, two at both front and rear.

The fire started at the rear of the auditorium surrounded by classrooms.

Phillips said he did not know how the fire started. He said he was told by a student that the flames broke out in the stage curtains. Fire Chief J. Ed. Brannock said the origin of the fire had not been determined.

Firemen said the building, erected about 1925, was destroyed in less than an hour after the fire started about 1:15 p.m.

Larry Adams, 9-year-old third grader, was the only one who didn't get out. His teacher, Mrs. Cora Beasley, was among five critically burned. Spectators said they assumed Mrs. Beasley had tried to the last to help Larry escape.

Larry was the son of Ray Adams, a mill worker here. The father stood silently by as the search for his son's body was made.

"What can you do?" he asked hopefully.

The fire chief said the Adams boy was a polio victim, having been afflicted in the arms. The school principal said the youngster was overweight and "moved about very poorly."

At Dobson, where several of the injured children were hospitalized, Dr. D. A. McLaurin said, "I would like everybody to know that this is the bravest group of children I have ever seen anywhere."

He said he was afraid "there are going to be many, many disfigured faces."

The fire was confined to the 14-classroom elementary school. Three adjacent buildings were not damaged. A fire engine and the city sprinkler truck with a tank full of water were dispatched within minutes of the alarm. A nearby water tank was useless in the fight because there was no way to attach hoses. The tank later collapsed.

"If we had had any number of trucks I don't believe it could have been saved," Phillips remarked.

"The thing that troubles me," he reflected, a frown wrinkling his scorched forehead, "is 'What could we have done to keep it from happening?'"

Phillips was crossing from the high school to the elementary school when some children ran out screaming, "Fire." He opened the auditorium door and "flames seemed to run clear to the front."

Waves of flame, superheated air and dense smoke whooshed down the corridors alongside the auditorium. As teachers opened hall doors, in many cases the heat drove them back.

Perhaps half of the children escaped through windows. For some it was a drop of about eight feet to the ground.

Phillips said he saw no panic among the students. "In fact," he said, "it might have been better if they had panicked a little—they might have gotten out faster."

A fifth grade teacher, Mrs. Howard Sumner, said there was some congestion near a back exit when she tried to march her children out. She took them back to the room and told them to jump.

"It happened so quickly I can't tell much about it," she said at home. "Children were looking for their brothers and sisters, and parents were looking for children."

"I opened the door into the hall, and it was just on us... pouring down the hall. A lot of people were just heroes."

Mrs. Sumner got out a window, with the help of a janitor, and in the process and suffered a leg burn as she climbed up on a radiator.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith opened the door to her room and a hot blast singed her hair. After her children were evacuated Mrs. Smith got to a window and told them to jump.

Argued, But Pass Expense Money

By JEAN REILLY The Reflector Bureau

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill providing per diem expense allowances for members of the legislature met with token opposition Friday when Dr. D. J. Rose of Wayne requested the bill be referred to another committee and Senator Claude Currie of Durham asked for postponement.

The bill, which originated in the House, provides for an expense allowance of $8 per day for each day of the legislative session and one round trip from the home of the individual legislator.

Senator J. William Copeland of Hertford, head of Judiciary II committee, spoke briefly on the merits of the bill and a Senate amendment on mileage.

"The bill was prepared in the Attorney General's office and is, in effect," the senator said.

"Has the Attorney General's office been right one-half the time?" interrupted Senator Edward L. Owens of Washington.

"I would say for over half the time," Senator Copeland retorted.

"Like Senator Owens, I have no argument with Senator Copeland," Dr. Rose addressed President Luther Barnhardt. "But I feel that half of us were happy to come back for what we were getting before."

"This bill is dated as having been effective February sixth and I refuse to use the term 'retroactive.' On the basis of this and certain figures, I request the bill be referred to the Committee on Appropriations."

I make a motion to postpone the bill until Wednesday morning," Senator Claude Currie of Durham spoke rapidly. "I feel we are being too hasty in bringing this to a vote."

"I still request it go to the Appropriations Committee," Senator Rose protested.

Senator Perry Martin of Northampton said hurriedly, "It's the mandate of the people. If it takes two weeks to decide a simple matter like this, we'll be here past next Christmas."

"We don't have enough information among ourselves," Senator Currie protested.

President Barnhardt called a vote, the bill passed the required third reading and was sent to the House for concurrence of the Senate amendment.

Wilson stands by his guns sticking to his guns on the six day of Defense Charles E. Wilson, sticking to his guns on the six months training program for the National Guard, last night carried his argument into the opposing camp.

He was the honor guest at a dinner of the Philadelphia City Troop, one of the oldest Guard units in the nation. The blunt, white-haired defense chief stirred a storm of comment last month when he remarked that some young men joined the Guard to avoid the draft during the Korean War.

Wilson, in an interview before his talk at the dinner, said he did not come to Philadelphia to apologize for his remarks about the Guard. He declared he came here at the special invitation of Maj. Gen. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Pennsylvania's adjutant general, who has given his support to the Army-Wilson six months active duty plan. Numerous National Guard leaders favor only an 11-week program.

In his talk at the Philadelphia Guard unit's armory, Wilson departed from his prepared text and said he was "highly apologetic" for his comment on the Guard. That reference drew a burst of applause.

In his speech he said:

"Never for one moment has the valor of the members of the National Guard, or the great traditions of its accomplishments on the battlefield, been questioned. But there is grave doubt as to the adequacy of their training and readiness for future emergencies."

"I am sure that the members of the National Guard are the finest fighting men in the world."

IZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL
Call for Doctor Barton

CHAPTER 25
Despite what the court had said about Grady Barton's not having been guilty of criminal malpractice, town talk was still accusing him of the death of the Kopp grandchild.

And now there was no definite way to defend himself. With no normal charge made, he could not hire a lawyer to present his case, nor could he testify in his own behalf.

The townspeople stopped calling him to their homes and did not come to his office. At first he thought this defection was only a gradual letting-up from the spell of winter illness which had kept him so very busy for two weeks there in January.

He wouldn't talk about the matter to anyone. The situation existed, and it was hard to take — but he was determined to act as if nothing was wrong.

Until the day when Oren Kopp, with Mo Chronister as his attorney, clapped on Grady Barton, M.D. a suit for $25,000 damages for the loss of his grandchild's pleasure and company.

That day, Judge Cowan came to see Grady. "I asked Mo if he'd completely blown his cork!" said the elegant gentleman, "and he talked to me of personalities. The gall of him! Telling me that I'd lived in a small town so long that I confused personal conversations with a man's legal rights."

Grady sat in his desk chair, shaking his head. "As if he weren't being personally vindictive," Judge Cowan fumed. "For all his discourse to me about this being the sort of action a person would take in a large city against a doctor who was careless with ethical rules, I'll handle your case, of course, Grady."

"There can't be much money in the project," said Grady wryly. "Whether Kopp gets his judgment or not." "He won't."

"No, I don't think he will, either, but the talk around town has already hurt me, and this lawsuit may finish me."

"What are you going to do about it?" Grady smiled, then said, "I hope I can hang on for a time. Maybe people will come to look at me and Kopp and Mo as we all really should appear in this. I'm sorry for Kopp, if he really does think I'm responsible for that child's death; he must have loved the baby very much."

Judge Cowan looked surprised. "But, Grady," he protested, "a father — even a grandfather — their grief doesn't express itself in wanting to hurt someone else. At such times, you beat your own head against the wall or you go into a numb silence. No, it's guilt of fear or remorse, maybe, that takes this sort of vindictive action. Kopp knows that his own stubbornness cost the child his life. He has persuaded him that he can blame you, publicly, and Kopp is agreeing in the hope that it will make his own sense of guilt less galling. You know that's how things are!"

"Yes, I know it and you know it. Maybe even Mo knows it. But I don't believe the town knows it enough to help my practice any, Judge."

SPRING MAKES THE DIFFERENCE
As you gaze at this scene of snow, ice, and leafless trees, your mind may skip ahead and picture green grass, abundant foliage, and a rippling stream. The very thought brings happiness. Spring makes the difference.
As grass, trees, and streams are fettered by winter, so some lives are bound by doubt, unbelief, lack of faith, and false ideas. When they come in contact with the Church, the love of God sets them free. They see new beauty in everything about them, and others see new beauty in their lives. As spring brings all nature to new life, so God's love makes human beings happier, gives them life more abundant.
No matter how strong the fetters which bind you, freedom can be yours—through the Church and the message it brings to all. Why not accept that freedom today?

Trotman-Barnes Vows Spoken In Philadelphia

Miss Frances Lola Barnes of Philadelphia, formerly of Lumberton, became the bride of Joseph Quinton Trotman of Philadelphia, formerly of Greenville, at two o'clock on January 19 in the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Rittenhouse Square, Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Q. Trotman

The church was decorated with greenery and large arrangements of white peonies, double stock, and snapdragons. White burning tapers flanked the bride and groom. A program of wedding music was presented by Thomas Nichols, soloist of New York City, and Nelson Buechner, organist of Philadelphia. The traditional wedding marches were used for the professional and recessional.

The bride wore a wedding gown of candlelight satin designed with a beaded mandarin neckline, long pointed sleeves with bead trim, and a fitted bodice with full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a Juliet cap with satin beaded trim. She carried a book for her wedding vows showered with red roses, white satin ribbon streamers, and centered with white camellias.

For the past ten years she has been associated with the Monroe Calculating Machine Company. Mr. Trotman, son of Mrs. Dorothy Norman Trotman and the late Joseph Quinton Trotman of Greenville and Farmville, attended Greenville High School and East Carolina College. He is employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company of Philadelphia. Immediately following the ceremony a reception, given by the personnel of Monroe Calculating Machine Company, was held in the church parlor.

For her southern wedding trip to Daytona Beach, Fla., the bride wore an Italian silk grey suit with her hat and matching accessories. Her corsage of white camellias was lifted from her bridal flowers. The couple will be at home at 4045 Baltimore Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

Pickwick Club Hears Discussion Of Stock And Investment Market

R. E. Lee Jr. was guest speaker at the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lee, hostess. Mr. Lee spoke on the securities market, pointing out to members of the club the three types of funds, the Exchange, Over-the-Counter, and Investment Trust. He explained there are two Exchange markets, the New York and the American. Mr. Lee also pointed out the Over-the-Counter market is the largest in this country dealing with listed and unlisted securities. It is in this market, he said, that bargains are obtained and new stocks sold. He added the safest market is the investment trust or mutual fund in which an individual buys a portion of the fund and the professional managers of the fund buy and sell particular stocks. The speaker emphasized three main things the individual should do when he wishes to purchase stock or invest money: 1. know the individual he is dealing with;

2. know something about the company whose stock he is buying; and 3. guard against purchasing Canadian stocks unless the two other prerequisites are thoroughly known. During the social period which followed the talk, the hostess served ice cream, cookies portraying the hatchet and cherry motif, and coffee to members and guests, Mrs. W. H. Chance Jr., Mrs. J. L. Watters and Mrs. Frank Longino.

GREEN BEANS WITH BACON
Ingredients: 1 pound green snap beans, 3-4 cup boiling water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 slices bacon, 3-4 cup thin strips onion, salt, pepper. Method: Snap ends from beans; scrub in cold water; cut lengthwise in thin strips. Cook rapidly in boiling water with 1/2 teaspoon salt about 10 minutes or until barely tender; lift cover a few times to help keep beans green. Drain and keep warm. Cut bacon into 1/2-inch squares. Cook bacon and onions in 9-inch skillet, stirring often, until bacon is crisp and onions are lightly browned. With perforated spoon remove bacon and onions and add to beans; add 1 tablespoon of the bacon fat from skillet. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and reheat. Makes 4 servings.

Pre-School Kiddies Like Companionship

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures
A pre-schooler will play happily with almost any child of about the same age as himself. It matters very little if the children are of the same sex, and it matters not at all what their family backgrounds are. They all like to dig in sand, build with blocks, run toy cars, shout, jump, run and dance. And they like doing it with any other child who also enjoys it. But as a child matures and reaches the elementary school grades he becomes more choosy about his friends. Just anybody won't do. He wants some one special friend. And that friend is always of the same sex as himself. Boys and girls have little use for each other during these years.

This buddy period is sometimes trying on parents. It's an important part of growing up and needs to be encouraged and not interfered with, even if you as parent are not too enthusiastic about the special person your child has selected as his inseparable companion. Children talk together and compare notes. Chuck discovers that his chum has problems, maybe even the same growing up problems he has himself. This is a valuable discovery, because many a youngster feels there is something wrong with him because he gets angry at his mother or because Dad is disgusted with the way he plays ball. The knowledge that another is faced with the same thing gives him confidence that maybe he isn't so no-account as he feared. The two children often feel that together they can face the world. Each is concerned not only about his own welfare, but about that of his chum. They feel that together they are an invincible unit. This may take on some pretty undesirable aspects from time to time. They may want to wear the same clothes (quite regardless of difference in shape and size), go to the same movies and read the same books. This causes relatively little trouble, but when they begin wanting their parents to go to the same church, or subscribe to the same magazines or have Sunday dinner in the evening instead of at noon, there is likely to be impatient ridicule from the parents and sulking and rebellion from the child. Up until this chum relationship the child was protected by his parents; he loves them as a source of safety and comfort, but he also considers them as powerful giants who can take care of themselves and their welfare is not his concern.

Fals Important
When the buddy comes along, a new feeling arises in the child. He cares about his chum's happiness, and will go to no ends of trouble to help his pal of his. This is real love—love on an equal basis, and it's the first time in the child's life that he has experienced anything like it. Caring about someone else, sharing one's inmost thoughts and feelings with a trusted friend, these are qualities of adulthood that we cherish. It's in the buddy phase of childhood that these adult emotions have their beginning. The child who skips this stage has a hard time getting close to people all his life. The buddy stage is a great rectifier of early personality troubles, and a great preparer for the mature adult emotions to come.

Titled Champ Loves Gloves

HANDS UP! Here are two examples of new styles in French gloves. Left, white kid shorty with elastic inside wrist band; right, beige stilet glove with black stitching.

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor
This is the story of an American girl who fell in love with a French glove.
She is the Comtesse de Morelos, the former Brenda Heiser of San Francisco and Philadelphia, champion American swimmer from 1938 to 1950. She held the American record for 100 meters free-style swimming for 11 years, and was a national champion at 11. The slender, dark-eyed Brenda met the Comte de Morelos while touring Europe after the 1948 Olympic Games in London, married him in 1949, and has been living in France ever since. "I guess it's natural that I should love everything French," says Brenda. "My family was thrown out of France with the Huguenots in 1685, and settled in New York. My great-great grandfather was James Herring, a safe manufacturer, who gave Longacre Square to New York City. But I think we've all retained a pride in our French heritage. "Now I can't think of anything more exciting than my new job, which is to travel around the United States telling people about French gloves." The Comtesse de Morelos was appointed by the French glove industry recently as a sort of traveling ambassador to point out the virtues of French gloves to Americans. "Since this is one of my pet subjects, I have no trouble talking about French gloves," says Brenda. "I've watched the gloves being made every step of the way, and I know why they're so good. In the first place the moist climate of France makes better skins. Then the French have developed the skill of glove-making for generations. They never hurry the process and each worker takes as much pride in his handiwork as he would in a piece of great art." Brenda has been appearing at fashion shows and in stores around the country, showing the newest fashions in French gloves, explaining how they are made and—of course—wearing them herself. When she goes back to Paris she is going to take along a trunk full of the dresses worn by her American grandmother, and present them to the Louvre. "Grandmother loved France just as much as I do, I guess," says Brenda. "She bought all her clothes from Worth 100 years ago, and crossed the ocean 36 times."

Crippling, But No Fatal Blow

A serious blow has been dealt Eastern Carolina hopes for a central airport and the adequate air service which it would mean for this area.

Crippling though the unwarranted CAA action is, it need not be fatal to Eastern Carolina's hope for a joint air facility which is the only means by which the section can acquire adequate air service.

Regardless of how many airports are built in the area—and we have a number of idle ones now—none of them would be worth anything to the area unless they have sufficient support to attract the calibre service the area needs.

In rejecting the petition of Mid-East Carolina Airport Authority in favor of a single-city airport proposed by Rocky Mount, the Civil Aeronautics Authority has taken a stand against its own plans and policies.

Instead of giving approval to a joint facility supported by a number of communities in the area, the CAA decided in favor of a single-city airport which at best can serve only a small portion of the area.

Not only did the CAA reject the proposal of a number of cities and counties in favor of one community, it also overrode the expressed wishes of state officials and the North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development which gave careful study to the needs of the area.

And where does Eastern North Carolina go from here? It stands at a crossroads. One road leads to a joint air facility in spite of the unreasonable CAA decision.

The other road leads to another decade or more without adequate air transportation in the area.

For the past ten years communities throughout this section have seen that as long as they compete among themselves for air service on an individual basis, no adequate air service will be available anywhere in the area. Unless the people of the area are determined that this unfortunate state of affairs shall not continue to exist, this most recent CAA decision could set back progress in this section for years.

Suppose Rocky Mount does build a new airport—with or without the support of Wilson. There is no reason to suppose it could attract more service than any other single-city airport anywhere in the area.

If a new single-city airport is constructed, Eastern North Carolina is right back where it was a decade ago with Greenville, Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern, Rocky Mount and possibly Wilson fighting against each other for service. The result would be a continuation of the grossly inadequate air service which the area now has.

Through tedious years of experience we have seen that adequate air service for Eastern North Carolina can be acquired only through an area effort.

This is no time for Eastern Carolina communities to abandon their efforts for a joint air facility unless they are also willing to abandon their hope and efforts for adequate air service in the area.

For the next six years the firm has recommended that $12 million be spent improving facilities at the state port at Wilmington and only $1,300,000 be spent at Morehead City port.

In the past few days, however, the decision of the ICC to allow Southern Railway to acquire the A. & E. C. Railroad has brought to reality a dream of many decades for North Carolina. It gives the state an east-west outlet from the coast to the mid-west. It will link the port at Morehead City with major centers as far west as Cincinnati. It will give North Carolina the direct, continuous westward route across the mountains which it has sought for years.

Now that this long-sought avenue of commerce has been gained, will the state decrease its potential by failing to provide adequate port facilities at the eastern terminus?

In its port development program North Carolina has envisioned the economic development of the entire state by providing gateways to world markets along the coast. Southern Railway's new outlet to the Morehead City port assures an increase in both import and export cargo at this port if adequate facilities are provided at the port. If it is going to dry up for lack of funds for improvement there is little hope for its developing itself or implementing the development of the interior of the state.

As the General Assembly considers the matter of appropriations for state ports this year, it cannot overlook the new potential of the Morehead City port brought about by this new continuous rail route from the port to the Midwest. It now appears entirely out of the question for the legislature to follow the lopsided recommendations made by the New York firm concerning the ports at Morehead City and Wilmington.

By ELMER ROESSNER
Three lines of business led all others in gains in sales last year, according to a new Department of Commerce compilation. Their 1956 sales were 11 per cent higher than their 1955 take.

Can you guess the three leaders? The answer is buried in the text below.
The total of all retail sales last year showed an increase of 8 per cent over 1955. However, retail prices, according to another Commerce report, rose 3 per cent last year. Thus, in physical volume, retailers sold just about the same amount of goods they sold in 1955.

Since the population increased sizably last year, that looks as if the average person actually bought fewer items at retail.
AUTOS DIPPED WORST
Only a few lines showed declines. The largest dip, as has been generally known, was in auto sales. They were 7 per cent less, in dollars, than in 1955. Tire, battery and accessory dealers made a 6 per cent gain.

Other categories to show declines for 1955 were meat markets, down 2 per cent (here again price appears to be the cause); lumberyard, down 2 per cent; and bakery products stores, down 1 per cent.

Those three lines to show the largest gains of 11 per cent were gasoline service stations, drugstores and liquor stores. Family clothing stores recorded a 10 per cent rise. Other categories in the apparel group did well. Men's, boys' clothing and furnishings stores and women's ready-to-wear store, as well as the apparel group as a whole, showed 8 per cent rises. Shoe stores made the average — up 3 per cent.

Farm, feed and garden supply stores reported a 9 per cent rise and household appliance stores an 8 per cent increase.
A 7 per cent increase was reported by dairy product stores and milk dealers. Up 6 per cent were eating and drinking places and furniture stores as distinct from appliance stores. Household appliance stores, department and mail-order stores and variety stores made 4 per cent gains. Dry goods and general merchandise stores, not included among the department stores, had a 2 per cent rise.

FIGURES NOT COMPLETE
The Department has not yet compiled final figures in many lines, including furriers and fur shops, jewelry stores, florists, book store, stationery stores, sporting goods and bicycle stores, music stores, photographic shops, leather goods stores, optical goods stores and office and store machine equipment dealers.

Partial figures for many of those lines have come in, however. They show that luggage and leather goods stores increased sales 226 per cent from November to December, and that jewelry store sales were up 143 per cent between those months.
That shows what Christmas can do for business.

COMMITTEES — The day by day report of legislative activity features increasing number of committee reports. That focuses attention upon the committee structure of the General Assembly and the important role the committees play in writing laws. Because committee action has virtual life or death control over bills, most members want to serve on as many committees as possible.

The fact that the formal meetings of the Senate and House of Representatives, especially during the first three fourths of the session, often last less than 30 minutes has given rise to the erroneous belief in many quarters that the legislators have nothing to do. Actually most of their work from nine o'clock till bedtime on committee assignments.

The rules require that every bill or resolution be passed upon by a committee before it can be voted upon in full session. To suspend the rules and obtain action without committee study necessitates a two-thirds majority vote of those present.

The Senate has 29 committees, the House of Representatives has 48. The Senate used to have many more. Back in 1951 Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges further reduced the number.

Many of the committees in the two branches have the same designation and perform essentially the same functions. In fact, joint meetings are frequent and with respect to Appropriations and Finance Committees joint meetings are required when the biennial budget bills are being studied.

By custom all the lawyer members of each branch are divided about equally into Judiciary Committees I and II. There isn't much distinction except that the two committees distribute the work load on measures demanding legal training for interpretation.

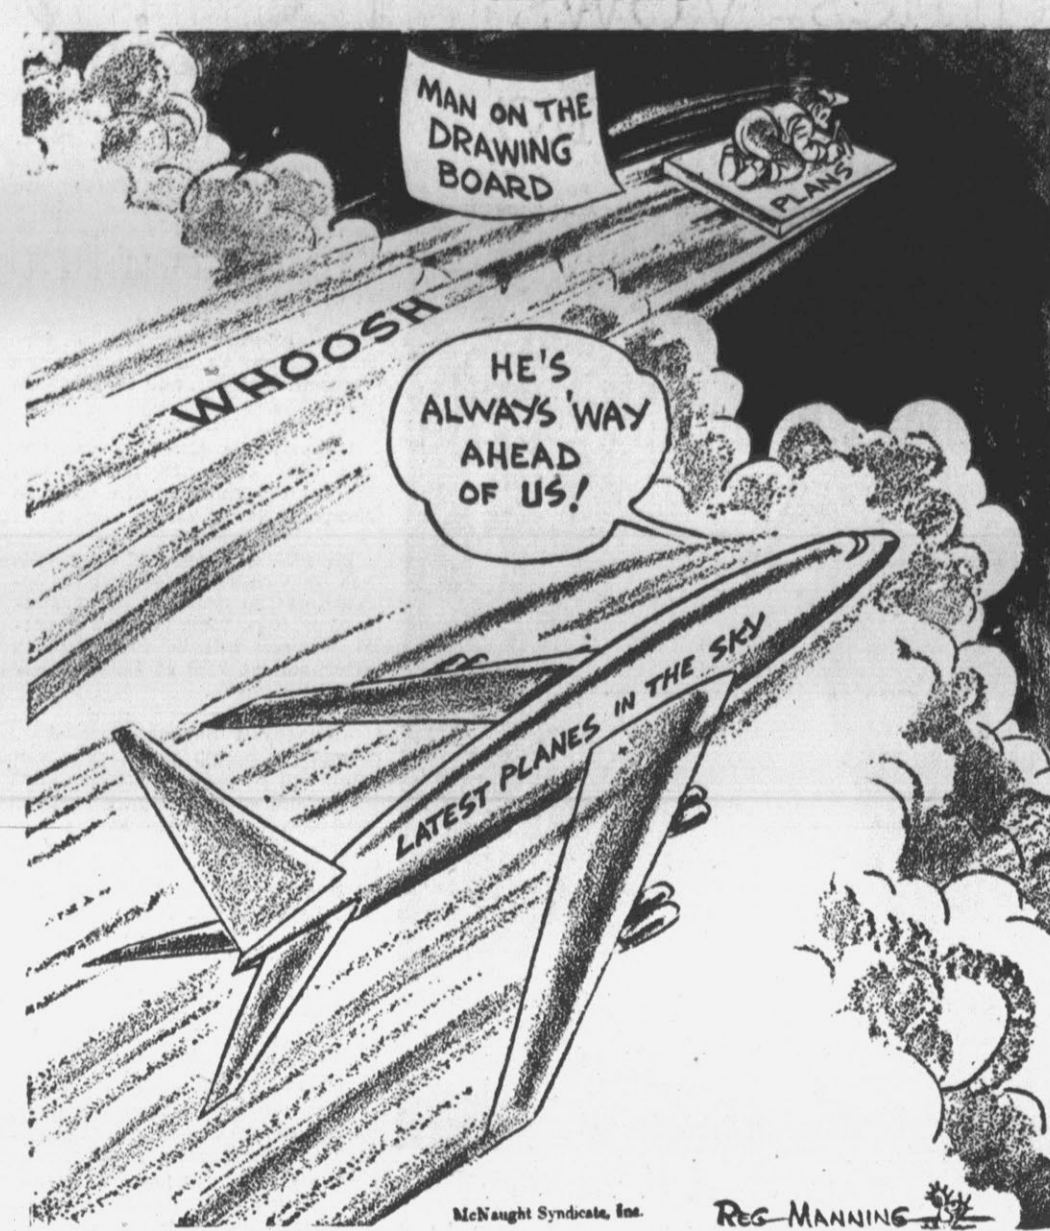

REFERENCE — The presiding officer often has to do fast thinking in deciding which committee should get a certain bill. Rules require that the caption of each bill must indicate something of the subject matter as a guide to the Speaker. Rules also require that every bill purporting to levy a tax must be processed by the Finance Committee and everyone allocating any public funds must get to the Appropriations Committee.

The House has a committee on Local Government and another on Counties, Cities & Towns. Their area is almost the same, and the two groups serve only to divide the work load. Besides the two Judiciarys there is a committee on Courts & Judicial Districts, and one on Salaries & Fees.

Suppose Rep. Joe Dokes of Podunk send up a bill with the caption reading something like this: "To Enlarge the Jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court and Provide a Schedule of Fees." That might properly go to any one of half a dozen committees, and probably will be studied by two or more before coming to a final vote.

There are separate committees on Agriculture, Conservation & Development, Drainage and Wildlife Resources. These have overlapping jurisdiction in matters involving forestry, streams, protective cover for small game and others. If there is coupled any provision for tax exemption on certain types of forest lands, or an appropriation for law enforcement, the bill must go to the proper money committee. It is understandable that a member who is particularly interested in this type of legislation will seek appointment on all the kindred committees.

Just An Idle Afternoon

Sometimes I think it takes a pool look or a barber shop to really appreciate the things that go on around us. . . and let's not forget that "eating place" down the street that we can go to after the movie.

This afternoon there didn't seem to be much going on at my desk so I decided to go down to the barber shop to get a haircut. This was on the company's time which brings to mind a story that I once heard from an old colored man that had been working with a general merchandise store in my hometown, Robersonville.

It seems that this old fellow had gone off from the store and did not put in an appearance for several hours. Everyone was looking for him in order that they might find something for him to do but he could not be found.

Presently his shiny head popped around the back counter and immediately the proprietor wanted to know "where in the . . .

he had been". With an abashed look he said he had gotten a haircut. "On the company's time?" the proprietor exclaimed. "Wall, wall mister, it grew on the company's tam" he said grinning.

Be the circumstances as they may, I sneaked on down for the cut and proceeded to sit myself down in the chair but not before I had slighted two barbers because I would not let them cut my hair. This is true for when I came into the door three of them got up out of their chairs and waited for me to make my choice. It was hard to do but presently I spied one over in the corner that looked like he might know all about the day's current events. So he was chosen.

I made a wrong decision because he didn't even seem to appreciate the fact that I had elected him from the multitudes. He didn't greet me nor did he speak as he silently choked me. The only thing he said was "you want it medium on the sides and short on top?" I nodded my head. He started to cut very determinedly as if I hadn't had my hair cut in the past two weeks. Which I hadn't a $1 is too much for a working man to pay every five or so days. (It was this factor that discouraged his conversation I think.)

Pretty soon, for lack of something to think about or someone to tell me the latest "barber shop news", I started looking out the window. The people passing began to catch my eye and I started to characterize them in my mind. A man came by with his wife who evidently was scolding him for something he did or didn't do and he wasn't taking a thing she was saying without giving it right back to her. He was definitely not henpecked.

In a few minutes a girl passed and she was giving a college boy the eye. . . she was definitely in love. Right behind them was a boy who looked as if he should stop in the barber shop but he went right on by. . . definitely the Elvis Presley type. Next two college boys. . . and all the girls waved at them. . . they were definitely lovers.

Then a barber shook me and looked down on me very scornfully as if it was a sin to daydream in a barber's chair. I searched my pockets for a dollar bill, gave it to him and waited for him to thank me but he didn't, so I turned, put on my coat and left by the front door.

Other Editors Saying-- Laxness Is Perilous

(Henderson Dispatch)

In a discussion of the condition of the U.S. Air Force, Senator Ervin finds, as he says, that the United States has the capacity to produce and maintain airpower which is relatively stronger than that of Soviet Russia, but the Department of Defense has not utilized this capacity.

The result is that the Communists gradually are catching up and will overtake and surpass this country in the near future unless there is a change of plans and activities now being pursued in a feeling of adequacy, if not complacency.

One need not conclude that there has been misapplication or squandering of defense appropriations to speculate on why the tremendous advantage the United States once held in air power is being lost as the gap is narrowed, and as our security is lessened by the same ratio. If money that has been made available annually for the last decade or so has not met requirements, the outlook is almost hopeless. Lagging which seems to be a fact now can scarcely be viewed in any other light than that planning has been insufficient and in the wrong direction.

Present policies of government, which leave the United States in a threatening spot, leave one with a feeling of dismay and chagrin. If what has been done is insufficient, what else indeed can be done, other than a change of approach? Or is the only alternative one of resignation to a losing battle and a conviction that we can only hope for the best?

We cannot subscribe to such an attitude. We believe it is entirely possible not only to retain the present margin of advantage, however great or small it may be, but that the gap can be widened and maintained.

If the American public seems to be callous about the situation, it is possible that this has come about from a lack of information. As Senator Ervin so aptly observes, the people should be given all the facts consistent with national security. If they are told the stark truth they will demand remedies without delay. But if kept in the dark they not only do not know what the conditions are but are not prepared to bring pressure to bear toward improvement.

The people generally do not know whether this country is adequately prepared to defend itself. But they are convinced that enough money has been made available and has been spent either wisely or otherwise, to assure the United States priority and to maintain such a status. What they would like to know and need to know is why the situation has been allowed to deteriorate as reportedly it has. Somewhere along the line somebody owes the public an honest-to-goodness accounting. Laxness is perilous indeed.

That would make any husband nervous at future concerts by his wife, but he was nervous anyway. When he sped off to marry her, his secretary explained:

"My, how wonderful! You can hear Moura Lympny play all the time!"

But it has not worked out that way. Once when she was doing a recital in nearby Newark, he drove her to the hall.

"Are you nervous?" he asked. "No, not a bit, why, not a bit!" she assured him, and asked in turn: "Are you nervous?"

"No, not a bit, why, what a question!" he assured her.

By the time they reached Newark they were both nervous wrecks. At her concerts he suffers and she knows he suffers; it even starts before she leaves home, and he tells her:

"The last two weeks before you go you're impossible to live with."

But once she's on the road, everything is fine again. Miss Lympny has just been on the West Coast, and she talked with her husband every day by phone. By some telepathic chance, she says, there were five times when she and he called each other at precisely the same minute. Each ran into a busy signal.

Miss Lympny has had an exciting career — brought up in convents in England, Belgium and Austria, teaching languages while waiting to earn a living at the piano, being the first Western woman pianist to play behind the Iron Curtain, preparing the Khachatourian concerto in London, Paris, Brussels and Milan. She even used to sleep under the piano, but not out of devotion to this instrument; merely because it seemed safer during the blitz in London.

In her opinion, it's easier to get a start in London than here. She goes back twice a year and, on each trip, plays three to six times in the English capital.

"I couldn't do that in New York; there aren't the halls or the orchestras. Furthermore, over here one manager handles an artist for the entire country. But, if you are based in London, there is a manager for every European country and no end of dates, consequently, with each one."

Pianist In The Family

By W. G. ROGERS
NEW YORK — (AP) — Don't get the idea that if you marry the famous pianist, you'll have more chance to hear her play.

The husband hears her least of all — so says Moura Lympny, the fine-sounding name of the fine-sounding pianist who has been married for about five years to Bennett Koorin, Dupont-TV vice president.

"Would you like to go out please whilst I practice?" she says, and out he goes.

The "whilst" instead of "while" shows she's English; and so does her pronunciation, as of Devonshire, her one-time home in England — an accented "Dev," not much "n," no "i" at all; "Devo'shr."

The Korns live on New York's upper East Side when they're not at work. He goes on trips occasionally, and she declares tartly:

"I resent it very much, too." How unfair a wife can be! He's gone a few days at most, she goes off for weeks and months touring this country, England, and Europe and other continents.

They met here at a cocktail party. He flew to England to marry her. She gave a recital that very night in London, and he attended that one. A few days later, he had a second chance to hear her when she played at Harrowgate. She remembers that occasion because he performed one of his first and last professional services for her. Though it was August, it was at the shore, and chilly, and to warm up her fingers she used a hot water bottle. He filled it too full, and as she was kneading it in her lap minutes before she went on stage, it burst; and soaked her. She had no extra dress; she had to play drenched.

That would make any husband nervous at future concerts by his wife, but he was nervous anyway. When he sped off to marry her, his secretary explained:

"My, how wonderful! You can hear Moura Lympny play all the time!"

But it has not worked out that way. Once when she was doing a recital in nearby Newark, he drove her to the hall.

"Are you nervous?" he asked. "No, not a bit, why, not a bit!" she assured him, and asked in turn: "Are you nervous?"

"No, not a bit, why, what a question!" he assured her.

By the time they reached Newark they were both nervous wrecks. At her concerts he suffers and she knows he suffers; it even starts before she leaves home, and he tells her:

"The last two weeks before you go you're impossible to live with."

But once she's on the road, everything is fine again. Miss Lympny has just been on the West Coast, and she talked with her husband every day by phone. By some telepathic chance, she says, there were five times when she and he called each other at precisely the same minute. Each ran into a busy signal.

Miss Lympny has had an exciting career — brought up in convents in England, Belgium and Austria, teaching languages while waiting to earn a living at the piano, being the first Western woman pianist to play behind the Iron Curtain, preparing the Khachatourian concerto in London, Paris, Brussels and Milan. She even used to sleep under the piano, but not out of devotion to this instrument; merely because it seemed safer during the blitz in London.

In her opinion, it's easier to get a start in London than here. She goes back twice a year and, on each trip, plays three to six times in the English capital.

"I couldn't do that in New York; there aren't the halls or the orchestras. Furthermore, over here one manager handles an artist for the entire country. But, if you are based in London, there is a manager for every European country and no end of dates, consequently, with each one."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SUCCESS IS NORMAL
Why are there so many failures in life?

Many people confronted by this question in their own experience would probably say that they had failed because they never had a fair chance, or because they were imperfectly educated, or because they had bad luck. Undoubtedly circumstances sometimes make quite commendable people something vastly less than successful. It sometimes happens that people fail because the crucial events seemed always to turn against their fortune. There is no such thing as luck, but that some people seem to get in on the good turn of the wheel and some on the bad is a fact we have to face even though we cannot explain it.

But the greatest cause of our failures lies within our own natures. The fault is not in our stars but in ourselves. We are all stupid at times, and years after we have made poor decisions we go back and forth over the circumstances which involved us in grief or loss and wonder where our brains were that day. As sons of Adam and daughters of Eve we have moral weaknesses which lead us at times to toss away gold and clutch at straw. Vengeance, if a person has any of that poison in him, can lead an otherwise level-headed person to play the fool to an unbelievable degree.

Taken all in all, most of our failures have moral and spiritual weaknesses as their cause. Get the character angle straight and successes will outnumber failures in the long run, we can be sure of that.
We were meant to succeed, not to fail.

Federal Court Jurisdiction Grows

By RAY TRECKER

WASHINGTON A tremendous and costly expansion of the Federal judiciary and creation of a vast force of police might result from the Supreme Court's assertion of exclusive jurisdiction over offenses hitherto prosecuted by the 48 states. Measures for adding 30 new Federal judges are now before Congress, with provisions for enlarged staffs and offices.

State legislators have begun to ask their Representatives on Capitol Hill why they should continue to appropriate money to enforce their statutes against Communists, drug rings, diseased food dealers and kidnapers, if the highest if the highest tribunal holds their state laws to be invalid simply because there are Federal laws on these problems. Few of these crimes are of local origin or execution.

The high tribunal so held in the Steve Nelson case, ruling that Pennsylvania could not prosecute under its anti-Communist laws, the Supreme Court struck down an Alabama Pure Food and Drug Act. Pennsylvania authorities' efforts to stop the sale of an allegedly harmful drug have been blocked because of the Supreme Court's pre-emptive doctrine.

COMPLAINT FROM FEDERAL JUDGE Another court-clogging factor consists of the Federal government's acquisition of millions of acres of land for parks, national forests, military reservations and similar purposes. All offenses committed in these areas must be tried in Federal Courts.

A distinguished Federal jurist recently complained of this situation in a letter to Representative Howard W. Smith of Virginia, Chairman of the House Rules Committee. Smith's measure, House Resolution 3, would overrule the Supreme Court's various overridings of state sovereignty.

JURIST'S TIME WASTED The Judge's letter said that he had been forced to preside over trials involving such trivial matters as automobile speeding, illegal parking, disorderly conduct, public petting and public profanity. The case involving language not used in polite places took two full days of his time. The offenses occurred on the U.S. Marines' reservation at Quantico, Va.

The Federal Courts, Representative Smith notes, will become congested even more dangerously, if Civil Rights measures advocated by the Administration become law. There will be, in his opinion, thousands of complaints affecting only a few individuals in every separate jurisdiction.

Lawyers and litigants having really grave matters for judicial settlement will have to wait years for their turn to be heard. It is estimated that, under the Supreme Court's racial and pre-emptive doctrine, 100 new judges will be needed at a cost of many millions of dollars.

In view of the admitted shortage of Federal narcotic, agricultural and FBI agents to investigate these complaints, Congress must create a tremendous police force.

ACTION BLOCKED BY ONE MAN Prodded by powerful political forces—organized labor and racial groups—one man blocks Congressional action on Smith's H. R. 3. He is Representative Emanuel Celler, Democrat from Brooklyn and Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. Like most Congressional Chairmen, he runs his committee as a czar.

H. R. 3 has been reintroduced in House and Senate with scores of sponsors. It has the endorsement of the Administration, the Governor's Conference, the National Association of Attorneys General, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau, the Small Business Men's Association and the Southern States Industrial Council.

All recognize the dangers inherent in the Supreme Court's pre-emptive doctrine—all except Celler.

Kinston, Washington Meet For NEAC Title Tonight

Bears, Phants Are In Consolation Tonight

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Kinston and Washington, after taking close wins last night in the second round of the NEAC tournament, will battle it out for the championship tonight, at ECC gymnasium.

For Kinston, it will be the second time in two years that they have breezed to the finals. They received a bye this year, by virtue of a 12-0 Northeastern Conference record but made their bid last night, topping Greenville 78-63.

Washington dropped New Bern 59-55 to gain their spot in the title tilt tonight.

Greenville and New Bern will meet in tonight's first contest, at 7:30, for the consolation prize. The championship match will get underway at 9:00.

First One Close
Both games last night were much closer than predictors would have guessed. New Bern pushed the second-ranked Washington club all the way down the wire in the opener, leading most of the way, and only succumbing in the final moments of play, 59-55.

The Bears, sparked by their two class guards Gillikin and Burwell, weaved a quick 14-10 lead over their favored opponents in the first quarter. They continued to dominate both backboards throughout the whole first half and by half-time had chalked up a 29-26 lead.

Washington's offense was slow to click and the Bears' Verrone, Quick and Gillikin remained powerful on the backboards to hold on to the lead way into the third period. It was 42-40 at the end of the third period, still in the Bruins' favor. It appeared that an upset might be in the making in the second round of tourney play.

With Ward Marslander and Tommy Owens pacing play, the Bears fought their way into a two-point lead with only three minutes remaining in the game. A 19-point final period finally gave them the victory. New Bern's hot pace slipped to only 13 points in that last quarter. That small difference was enough to give Washington a berth in tonight's title tilt.

Greenville Tough
Greenville, which had a hard time stopping Elizabeth City Thursday night to earn a berth in the tournament's second round, did a complete reverse job last night, giving defending champs Kinston a rough time for three full quarters before falling 78-63.

With Coach Boley Farley's two-plateon system going full blast, the Phantoms fought nip-and-tuck with the mighty Red Devils in the first quarter, with both clubs scoring 15 points that quarter.

Wesley Hudson, who notched 20 points for the Phants, kept his club in the game throughout the first half, with plenty of help from mates Nunn, Crawford, Noble and Evans. By halftime, Kinston had been able to take a 32-30 advantage.

In the third period, the Devils opened up their fast break attack a little more and outscored the Phantoms 24-13 for that period. Facing the defending State Champs were Hart, Adkins and Lewis. All three ultimately finished with scoring outputs in the double figures.

The final period was the disastrous one for Greenville. The pace was too hot for them while Kinston was finally cruising into high gear. They fought well, still maintaining a good account for themselves on the backboards, but the Devil scoring machine was too much to contend with. Kinston plunked in 22 points to Greenville's 20 in that final period, but it was enough to give them a 78-63 victory and a berth in the championship game tonight.

High scorers were Hart and Adkins of Kinston with 21 each and Hudson with 20 for Greenville.

After The Game
Melvin Haddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Onnie Haddock of Greenville, will be a member of the crack Edwards Military Institute marching team, which will be present at the end of tonight's final Northeastern Conference Tourney.

Tracksters At Raleigh Tonight

RALEIGH (AP) — A field bright with stars competed today in the fourth annual Atlantic Coast Conference indoor track meet. The meet was held in the State Fair arena.

Both a varsity and freshman division engaged about 275 tracksters from conference schools. Some 75 athletes from 10 other schools competed in a nonconference division. High school events were eliminated this year.

Defending champion Maryland was favored to retain its crown, with top competition due from North Carolina and Duke. The Tar Heels placed second for team honors last year, while Duke was third.

Dave Sime of Duke, one of the individual stars, defended his titles in the 60-yard dash and the 70-yard low hurdles. He was not entered in the broad jump, an event he also won last year.

Jim Beatty of North Carolina, another double champion, ran in his specialties—the mile and the two-mile run. He was challenged in both races by Burr Grim of Maryland.

Individual champs out to repeat for the Terps were Lou Sergi in the 600-yard run, George Hogan in the high jump, and Ed Cooke in the shot put.

The pole vault, 880-yard run, 70-yard high hurdles and two-mile relay, in addition to the broad jump, lack defending champions. Dave Scurlock of North Carolina was rated a strong contender in the 880.

Strong squads from North Carolina State, Duke, North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia were entered in the freshman division.

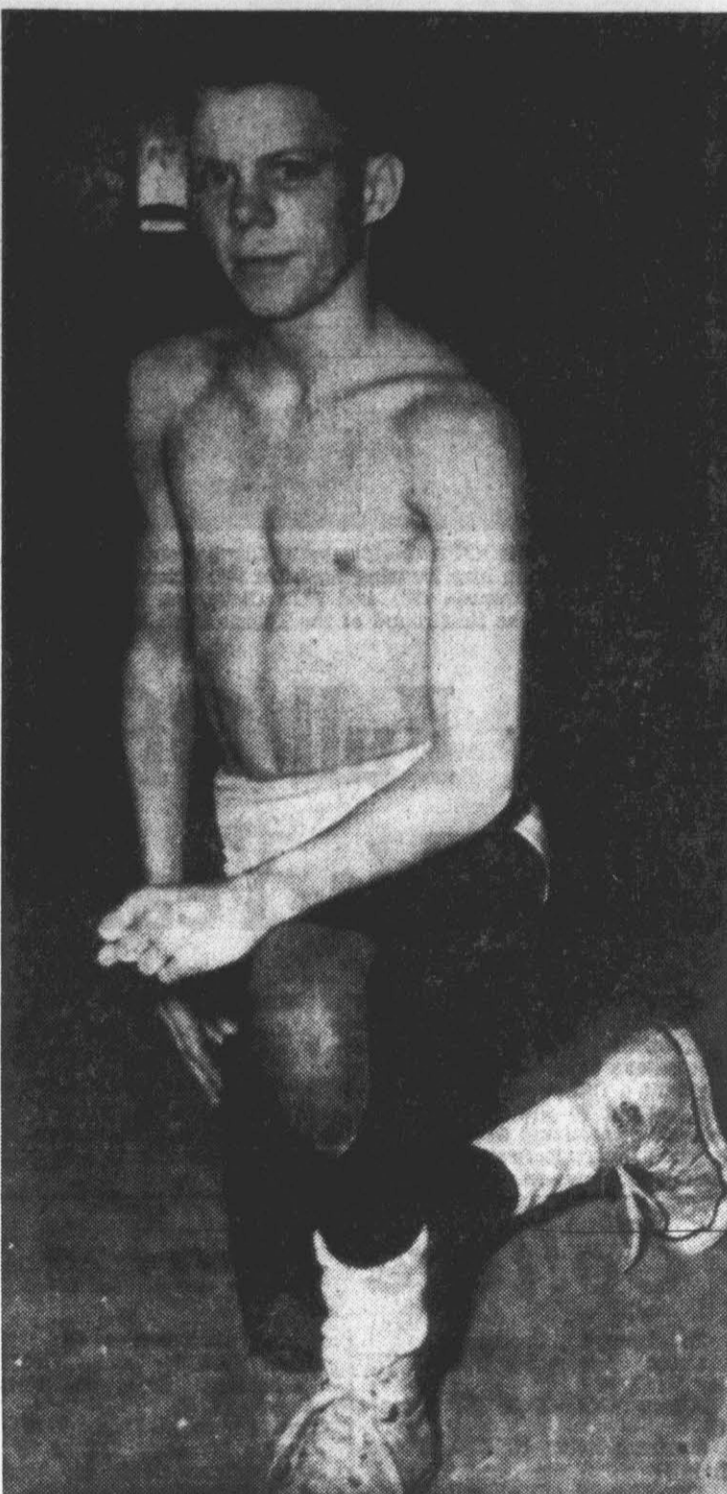

The nonconference roster included Davidson, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Edwards Military Institute, Florida State, Roanoke, Presbyterian and Mitchell.

ECC-ACC Tonite
ROCKY MOUNT—East Carolina College's eagles finish their 1956-57 season tonight here against Atlantic Christian at the Rocky Mount Armory.

The contest, a North State affair, will wrap up the season for both clubs.

ACC, which defeated East Carolina 76-67 earlier, is favored to take a victory again tonight. Game time is slated for 8:00.

Louis Arthur Wins State Wrestling Title For GHS

STATE CHAMPION—Louis Arthur, sophomore at Greenville high school, walked away from the Burlington State Wrestling meet this weekend, with a championship in the 106-pound division. It marked the first state mat title ever attained by GHS. Arthur defeated three of the state's top grapplers to take the crown.

The Pitt County Conference Basketball Tournament is all set to begin at ECC Gymnasium, Monday night, February 25. The tournament will be a six-day affair, lasting through Saturday.

The final standings for all nine Pitt County clubs have been compiled and were released this morning by the Farmville officials in charge. Bethel, winner of last year's boys' crown, finished first in the regular-season rankings this season, with a 15-1 record. Stokes, with an 11-3 mark, captured the regular-season first position for the girls.

Rankings
Rankings, by records, for the regular-season Pitt County activity for 1956-57 are listed below, complete:

Boys: Bethel (15-1); Ayden (11-2); Grifton (9-6); Farmville (6-5); Belvoir (7-7); Winterville (7-9); Grimesland (6-8); Stokes (3-11); and Chicod (0-15).

Girls: Stokes (11-3); Winterville (12-4); Grifton (11-4); Farmville (8-3); Ayden (9-4); Belvoir (6-8); Grimesland (3-11); Chicod (3-12); and Bethel (1-15).

The South Atlantic had about 12 Negro players last season.

Atlanta (AP) — The Georgia House yesterday shelved a bill to ban interracial sports and social activities, handing the segregation-minded administration of Gov. Marvin Griffin a sharp setback.

Foes of the measure, aimed primarily at the South Atlantic Baseball League, prevented a vote by a series of parliamentary moves in the closing hours of the 1957 session.

Race Of Top Cage Scorers Is Tightening Now

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Collegiate basketball's individual scoring race was bunched tighter today than an overflow crowd in a hand-box gym with only 0.43 of a percentage point separating the top five contenders. Jim Ashmore of Mississippi State is lurking in the shadows of sixth place.

South Carolina's Grady Wallace, the nation's leading scorer, was limited to 11 points last night as his team bowed to undefeated North Carolina, ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, 75-62. The Tar Heels extended their winning streak to 22 games.

Wallace's average dipped to 29.57, but he still held a precarious edge over runner-up Joe Gibbon of Mississippi. Gibbon collected 31 points in the Rebels' 102-74 loss to Tulane and boosted his average to 29.42.

Columbia's Chet Forte, No. 3 with 29.26; Kansas' Wilt Chamberlain, No. 4 with 29.16 and Seattle's Elgin Baylor, No. 5 with 29.14, all were idle last night.

But Ashmore found the range for 44 points in 19th-ranked Mississippi State's 94-76 victory over Louisiana State and broke one of Bob Pettit's Southeastern Conference records in the process. The 6-foot senior collected 14 field goals in 29 attempts to increase his season's field goal total to 253, two more than the standard held by the former LSU All-American.

UCLA, No. 8 nationally, moved into a first-place tie with 15th-ranked California in the Pacific Coast Conference. The Uclans downed Oregon 81-62, while Washington snapped California's 13-game winning streak with a 70-57 verdict.

First Choice In All-Star Game
NEW YORK (AP)—Grady Wallace of South Carolina, college basketball's individual scoring leader, and Lennie Rosenbluth, star forward for top-ranked North Carolina, today were named to the East team which meets the West in the annual All-Star game in Madison Square Garden, Saturday afternoon, March 30.

They are the first two players selected for the east squad with eight more seniors to be chosen by Coach Frank McGuire of North Carolina.

Duke Must Stop Grady Wallace To Tie Third

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
RICHMOND MARCH 7-8-9. But for Davidson, it's do or die.

The Citadel, 5-8 in conference play, is virtually assured a spot in the tournament already. Davidson is 2-7 in the league and engaged in a battle with George Washington (3-7) for the last available berth.

South Carolina, on a two-day invasion of North Carolina, got a rude setback last night from North Carolina which stopped the Gamecocks 75-62 in Chapel Hill. In rolling up their 22nd straight victory and their 12th in the ACC, the undefeated Tar Heels held Wallace to 11 points.

Wallace, the nation's No. 1 scorer at 30.4, made his lowest score of the season and dropped to 29.57, but is still tops.

With North Carolina, far and away ahead of the rest of the league, there is a tight race among Maryland (8-5), Wake Forest (7-5), Duke (6-5) and North Carolina State (6-7) for the runner-up posts.

A Duke victory tonight would squeeze the Blue Devils into a third-place tie with Wake Forest. The other conference game tonight sends Clemson to Virginia in a battle of the bottom clubs. Clemson, 3-8 in the conference, would not lose its seventh place should it lose to last-place, but unpredictable, Virginia, 2-10. The Cavaliers dropped an 81-84 game in overtime.

Two other games tonight are against nonconference foes. Villanova is at North Carolina State and Maryland is at Navy. South Carolina threw a scare into North Carolina, leading the Tar Heels 37-35 at halftime. But Lennie Rosenbluth began to hit in the second half to push the Tar Heels ahead.

Rosenbluth, with 23 points for the night, took a back seat to teammate Pete Brennan who bagged 26 points. Wallace went nearly 12 minutes after the game started before he scored the first of his three goals of the night. He rounded out his total with five for nine from the charity line.

A major part of his trouble was North Carolina's Bob Cunningham who guarded him.

The Citadel visits Davidson tonight for a basketball game that ultimately may determine whether a playoff is necessary for the eighth and final berth in the Southern Conference tournament next month.

It's an important game for The Citadel. If they win it, the freshman-dominated Bulldogs will clinch one of the pots in the championship tournament at

Basilio's Hook Provides Shot At Higher Foes

By FRITZ HOWELL
CLEVELAND (AP) — The lethal left hook which belted challenger Johnny Saxton into second-round oblivion last night boosted welterweight champion Carmen Basilio into a middleweight title match with either Gene Fullmer or Sugar Ray Robinson.

Before the cheering has stopped over Basilio's rousing victory in the "rubber" match with the two-time ex-champion, he was on his way up a notch in class.

Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, settled it when he said, "We want to match Basilio in July in Yankee Stadium against the winner of the Fullmer-Robinson fight in Chicago April 24."

Fullmer took the middleweight crown from Robinson in January, and the April date is a rematch. Rated off his performance last night in the nationally televised scrap, there's little doubt Basilio will jump at the chance to trade punches in the 160-pound class although he went against Saxton at 147.

The third meeting of Carmen and Johnny, each of whom, has held the welter crown twice, was a far cry from the first two. Last March in Chicago Saxton used hit and run tactics to gain a disputed although in a n i m o u s, decision which cost Basilio the crown.

In September, at Syracuse, Basilio got the double back with a technical knockout, but he needed nine rounds to do it. There was nothing technical about last night's kayo as Basilio's left button hook nailed Saxton to the canvas for the full 10-count. Up to that time Saxton had taken a terrific beating.

First-ranked Kinston received a bye in the first round, then moved in to meet Greenville in the second round on Friday night.

Northeastern Tourney Full Of Color, Action, Thrills This Year

The Northeastern Conference Tournament, being played at East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium this weekend, has given the fans of this area some of the most colorful basketball of the season. In the first two nights, Thursday and Friday, a total of seven teams played four games, chock full of action, speed and skill. Fans present were treated to good samples of teamwork and individual prowess—and there's still one more night to go. Tonight will be the final evening of play and is regarded as the most important. The Daily Reflector's camera captured many of the thrills, much of the action and some of the little incidentals that go into the making of a big high school tournament, during the weekend. On this page are some of the players, officials, cheerleaders, and others that contributed to the 1956-57 NEAS Tourney.

PEANUT DUMPS ONE—Greenville's Peanut Nunn (25) goes high into the air to dump a couple of points for the Phantoms in the opening round of play against Elizabeth City, Thursday night. Bobby Edwards (22) is the Phantom in the background. Greenville won, 62-58, and moved up a notch in the Northeastern Conference Tournament action. Nunn was valuable as both a scorer and a rebounder.

BUSY WEEKEND FOR HOG-JAW—Al Wadford, better known in Eastern North Carolina basketball circles as "Hog-Jaw", has had several busy nights with this year's Northeastern Conference Tournament. One of the most spectacular referees in the state, Wadford has been almost as much of a drawing card for the tourney as the game itself. In the above series of shots, the ECC graduate is shown in characteristic Wadford poses: running and twirling the ball artistically on one finger.

KINSTON WINS—Kinston defeated Greenville in the second round of play, Friday night, but Phantom Albert Crawford (16) got two points on this shot anyway. Coming in to stop Crawford's drive are Red Devils Alley Hart (3) and Charles Lewis (9). Kinston advanced to the finals and will battle Washington tonight for the NEAC title. Greenville will face New Bern for the Consolation prize.

Life Is Studied

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Staff Writer

George Washington was born 225 years ago yesterday at Wakefield on Pope's Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia.

Washington was a man who dedicated his life to strengthening his personal character and so gave strength of character to a new nation.

His memory is one that will always be remembered and cherished by every American citizen, but his birthday yesterday slipped by with little notice.

Banks in Greenville were closed yesterday in observation but the rest of the business life was as usual.

But there are some who did not overlook Washington's birthday—Greenville elementary school children have been busy the past week studying the many phrases of Washington's bountiful life.

One class, at South Greenville school, had a birthday party yesterday with icecream and cake to celebrate his birthday. They wore Washington styled hats which they had made and place cards shaped like hatchets and cherries were at each child's place.

Almost all of the schools had a patriotic play yesterday in connection with the day. Stories, songs and drawings about Washington have been a main classroom activity at every school this past week.

In observation of the patriotic phrase of Washington's life, many of the children have made colorful American flags and bulletin board displays.

A miniature replica of Mount Vernon has been built by a third grade class at Fleming Street School. As the children studied about his life they added to the building, explained the teacher.

These studies and coordinated activities give the students an insight into the life and character of the man who was the "Father Our Country."

BROOKGREEN SCHOOL—Buddy Harrell and Jimmy Evans are working on a poster concerning the important events during Washington's Administration while Thelma Harris, Tommy Harrell, Charles Whitfield, and Don Foskey look on. On the bulletin board are other examples of Brookgreen student's work in relationship to Washington's birthday. Their teacher is Mrs. Susan Collins.

ST. RAPHAEL'S CATHOLIC SCHOOL—Jenny Hutchins is shown in the above picture pointing to the sketch she drew of George Washington while Charles Laughinghouse, Mary Margaret Vetter, and Sister Mary Barbara look on. On the bulletin board are several of the other projects that the fifth and sixth grades of St. Raphael's made in connection with George Washington's birthday.

SOUTH GREENVILLE SCHOOL—The first grade had a party for Washington's birthday Friday. M. G. Robinson is helping Herman Edwards, Curtis Jean Simms, Marie Barrett and Lidia Cor make Washington hats which they wore yesterday. The drawing in the background was done by Mrs. Robinson.

FLEMING STREET SCHOOL—The third grade at Fleming Street School has been building a miniature replica of Mount Vernon this week in relationship to their study of George Washington. Mrs. L. J. Sledge, teacher, is shown above adding the finishing touches with the assistance of Sandra Kate Brown, Dorothy Wilkes, Mattie Delores Lee, and Linda Earl Spill.

THIRD STREET SCHOOL—A part of the first grade's unit study on George Washington's life consisted of learning a Washington song. In the above picture, Mrs. O. E. Dowd leads Faye Gargis, Eddie Anderson, Montez Tatum, and Dall Briley in the song. The class has also made picture stories about Washington and heard stories about his life that the teacher has read to them. They are students at Third Street School.

Papers Safe But Money Removed

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Larry Lowe of Racine, back from a trip to the Far East, received by mail some important papers that had been in a wallet which was either lost or stolen in Hong Kong. This letter accompanied the papers: "Dear Mr. Lowe: Me very sorry me find you wallet in street.

Me feel very sorry to not return your wallet, so me only take you wallet and you money, and return you important things. Hope no get angry to me.

"Me vgrly poor man. Me need money for food. After all, what is US $9 for you?"

"You papers is worth more, so me say again no get angry to me.

Good Bye,
A FRIEND
"P.S. This is Christmas gift from me."

Light Trailer Didn't Make It

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Marlon Dixon shook his head in wonderment when the top of his trailer truck was sheared off as he drove beneath an underpass. He had driven beneath it in the past without trouble. What was wrong?

Then he realized the trailer was lightly loaded and riding higher on its springs than it usually did. On previous trips the load was heavy enough to permit the trailer to pass without scraping.

SAMARITAN INCOGNITO

WAYNESBORO, Va. (AP)—Mrs. Esther Rosenthal is looking for the good Samaritan in her life. When it snows he sweeps off her steps and sidewalks. She doesn't know who he is. The work is done before the family gets up.

Dirksen Claims Income Tax Can Be Safely Cut

"Our present income taxes can be reduced without sacrificing a single gun or one single nickel of our defense plans", according to Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois whose message is an important part of the second program in the television series sponsored by the Campaign for the 48 States in major cities all over America.

This second program, entitled "The Little Man in the Black Suit," outlines the provisions for tax reduction incorporated in the Reedy-Dirksen Amendment, one of five measures for constitutional reform advocated by the Campaign members. It will be seen in the Greenville area on Station WNCT Feb. 24 at 2 p.m.

"You may wonder what the effect of this amendment would be on you," Senator Dirksen continues. "The answer is that you would immediately gain two vital things, (1) security for your country and (2) relief from the heavy burden of the present income taxes. If this amendment is passed, your own tax rates will go down as the American productive effort under the increased incentive offered, goes up."

The film title refers to Karl Marx and the show opens on a scene in a London garret in 1848 with Marx and his band of followers discussing the Marx plan for conquering the world, the Communist Manifesto. Following this dramatization are several others illustrating the effects of present-day tax rates.

Joanne, a sophomore, is a member of the girls' basketball team and an active participant in the Future Homemakers of America, and a member of the Glee Club. Jimmy, a freshman, is active in nearly every phase of school activity and has already shown promise as a basketball player. He is also active in the Christian Church.

Third-year Home Economics students entertained faculty members at an informal tea in the Home Economics Department. The social function gave the girls practice in future entertaining. Russian tea, ham sandwiches, potato chips and mints were served.

At the PTA meeting last week, Mrs. Eunice Casey's Home Economics students presented a fashion show for the parents. The girls modeled garments made in Home Ec classes this year. Second-year students wore wool jumpers and dresses while third-year class members modeled evening gowns and suits. Freshmen Home Economics students presented the devotional.

National FFA Week is being observed throughout the nation this week. The local FFA Chapter has decorated the bulletin board with colorful pictures of FFA members at work, performing and completing various FFA tasks. Officers of the Griffon Future Farmers are Wayne Ervin, president; Floyd Smith, vice-president; Larry Benson, secretary; Roy Garris, treasurer; William Cannon, reporter; Alan Stokes, sentinel; and Paul Bradley, advisor.

Typing students are making plans to enter the 1957 typewriting contest which will be held in the East Carolina College Business Department on Tuesday, March 5. Rules of the contest permit high schools to enter one student for every five enrolled in typing courses. Mrs. John Bunch is director of the GHS Commercial Department.

Judge Gives His Coat To Youth

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Special Judge Vernon Hines gave a Detroit youth the coat off his own back to go home and start a new life.

David Clifford James was in court to face forged check charges. The charges were returned on condition he report regularly to a Detroit probation officer.

When James prepared to leave court—with a pot of $50 made up by court officers—Judge Hines saw he was without an overcoat. The judge, also preparing to leave the chamber, turned and took off his overcoat. "It's awfully cold between here and Detroit," he said. "You'd better take this."

Driving Blind, Then Jolted

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP)—A. L. Wycoff of Spokane, Wash. rounded the corner of a building, drove up a slight grade, suddenly saw the nose of his car drop several feet with a spine-jarring crash. He'd driven up the loading ramp of a building supply company while trying to find his bearings in the 2 a.m. darkness. His car landed with its front wheels on the ground, its rear ones still on the loading ramp.

Police called a wrecker and helped Wycoff get his car back to earth.

Paper And Pulp Industry Good Economy Guide

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The health of the paper and pulp industry often gives a quick clue to how industry in general is faring. And paper leaders report today that demand has leveled off to the point they now have overcapacity to produce.

Paper's role as an indicator of general industrial activity rises from the fact that so many of its various products are used to package the output of other industries. Any drop in general industrial output is quickly reflected in the activity of the paper industry.

The nation's paper industry produced a record 3 1/2 million tons last year, an increase of 5 per cent over 1955. This by coincidence was the same percentage by which the gross national product, the dollar total of the nation's goods and services—increased.

Most paper companies did well in the profit department. The first 21 companies to report their net profit after taxes in 1956 showed combined earnings of $159,272,200. This is a 22.7 per cent increase over the $129,778,449 the same companies made in 1955.

Although reporting overcapacity for the moment, many leaders in the industry consider this but a temporary thing.

They lay the leveling off in demand to disturbed world conditions, which have affected European production notably, and in some extent to the tight money situation in this country.

They contend that a search for new markets for paper will shortly take up the slack here. And despite temporary overcapacity the industry plans further expansion to meet increased demand which the companies foresee in the years ahead. Industry leaders say that paper companies plan to spend a record 9 million dollars this year, which would be 100 million more than was spent on expansion last year.

All-Out Drive By Polio Foundation

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis plans an all-out drive, and expects to wipe out epidemic polio this year. The program was announced yesterday by Basil O'Connor, foundation president. He said he has notified the organization's 3,100 chapters that a third of their shares of the 1957 March of Dimes net receipts could be spent on the drive.

O'Connor said the aim is to give Salk inoculations to 63 million Americans under the age of 40 who still are not vaccinated against paralytic polio. Forty-five million others have received at least one shot.

Confused Field Running For TV Emmy Award

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They're off and running in the ninth annual Emmy handicap.

The nominations are somewhat less confused than in previous years, but there still remain some puzzling elements. I suppose this stems from the fact that competition for honors can never be as clear-cut in TV as it is in movies. There are too many variables in TV. For instance, actors are pitted against each other in two different mediums: live TV, which is like the stage, and filmed TV, which is movie technique. A native actor has the advantage of playing a sustained performance without interruption. A film actor has the advantage of retakes, but must do his work in bits and pieces.

Here are some of the puzzles in this year's nominations: Ed Wynn, who played single performance in "Requiem for a Heavyweight," is competing for best supporting actor with Paul Ford, Art Carney, Bill Frawley and Carl Reiner, who appear weekly.

Likewise Mildred Natwick on the basis of "Blithe Spirit" is up against regulars Vivian Vance, Pat Carroll, Ann B. Davis and Audrey Meadows.

Leonard Bernstein, who has made two or three TV appearances, must fight for "best personality" honors with Steve Allen, Perry Como, Ernie Ford and Alfred Hitchcock, who have weekly shows.

Why does Faye Emerson appear in the "best female personality" list? She hasn't starred on her own show in years, having functioned solely as a guest and penalist.

And what's Nanette Fabray doing amid other "best comedienne" Edith Adams, Gracie Allen, Lucille Ball and Ann Sothern? Nanette hasn't been on a regular show since last spring, when she left Sid Caesar's program.

Despite these inconsistencies, the nominations appeared to be more apt than they have been in past years of the stormy history of the academy. I guess you can't ask for too much logic during the award season.

Quick To Defend 'Barefoot Boys'

RALEIGH — Senator Seavy Carroll of Cumberland said here today that the proposal of the Wildlife Resources Commission requiring a license of persons fishing with worms would make a criminal of the proverbial "barefoot boy."

"Putting a tax on the lowly North Carolina fishing worm," the senator added, "would be carrying taxes too far."

Senator Carroll further charged that among the many people affected by such a provision are a number of boys with a spirit of adventure and without knowledge of law.

Mealtime Sees Feeding Problem

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—A police dog here gave birth to 10 puppies—five male and five female—which created a feeding problem. At feeding time, the mother dog nudged the females close to her while fending off the boy dogs. When she is sure the girls have had enough she pushes them aside and lets in the boys.
