William P. Hill Receives Ph. D. At Florida U.

William P. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hill of Greenville, has been awarded the Ph. D. degree in general experimental psychology by Florida State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill and their son Gus were on hand for the graduation exercises at the University.

Dr. Hill received his AB degree in psychology from Johns Hopkins University and his MS in clinical psychology from the University of Miami. He also attended Lehigh University, East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Hill's education was interspersed by three years as a research psychologist with the Air Force, during which time he undertook relatively complex problems in test construction and group behavior.

After receipt of his doctorate, he flew to Miami, where he met his parents and brother. The Hills had traveled through central Florida where they visited Silver Springs and Cypress Gardens. Afterwards, they took in the sights of Miami. They returned north via the East Coast of Florida, leaving Dr. Hill in Miami, where he plans to remain in residence with his wife, the former Sheila Rotker of Bronx, N. Y.

Christian Science Society

The vital significance for people today of Jesus' healing works will be emphasized at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Scriptural passages in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus" will include the Master's reply to the disciples of John the Baptist who questioned his mission (Luke 7:22): "Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be among those read (131:26-30): "The mission of Jesus confirmed prophecy, and explained the so-called miracles of olden time as natural demonstrations of the divine power, demonstrations which were not understood. Jesus' works established his claim to the Messiahship."

Try Streamlining Your Suitcase Life

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Seasoned travelers have learned it's wise to streamline your suitcase living. Well-organized packing can make all the difference between happy traveling and chaos.

Plastic dividers, that you cut and machine stitch yourself, will solve certain packing problems by separating different outfits and keeping small items from sliding between the folds of dresses. As you unpack, each layer can be lifted out separately. When you've taken out what you need at any given time, you can replace all the other sections of clothing as units. The lining of your suitcase is protected, too, when you keep shoes and soiled clothing between these plastic sheaths. A sudsy sponge is all the care your dividers need between trips—or they can be submerged safely in soap or detergent suds, if necessary. Now, while your trip is still in the planning stage, lug out your luggage and measure the dimensions of each piece. Local sewing center experts tell you how to make these dividers on your sewing machine.

Cut sheets of clear plastic to suitcase dimensions, as many as you wish. To make the handles, place a dinner plate over a double layer of plastic, draw around the edge with a soft pencil or chalk; center a smaller plate inside the first circle and trace its outline also. These circles should form a circle about one inch wide.

Machine stitch over these two pencil lines, using a fine needle and light pressure, then trim close to the stitching. This will leave a doughnut-like ring with a hole in the center. Next cut this ring in half and clip a couple of inches off the ends of each piece to bring the arc of the handle closer to the edge of the divider. The reason for using a large plate for a pattern is to make the handle long enough to be stitched near the edges of the divider's width, thereby distributing the weight and making each section easier to lift. Tape the handles to the sides of the flat-oblong of plastic and then machine stitch in place—and you've made a very practical suitcase accessory.

Another tidy trick is to add pockets to your dividers. Besides being ideal for stockings and other dainties, pockets are a lifesaver when the few things you've washed are still slightly damp.

To make the pockets, take a sheet of plastic the size of your suitcase. Cut it in half. Place these two smaller pieces on top of the divider. Then stitch each pocket piece around three edges, leaving the top open. Thus you have one divider with two convenient pockets.

With these plastic dividers, suitcase living is a pleasure. And if it's not vacation time for you, stitch a set as a going-away present for a lucky friend.

Rev. Jackson To Speak For Day Of Prayer

The Rev. Irby B. Jackson will be the speaker when the church people of Greenville gather to observe world day of prayer March 8 at 11 a.m. at Eighth Street Christian Church.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson is a graduate of Wake Forest College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Prior to coming to Greenville, he served as pastor of the Baptist Church in Rutherfordton for twelve years.

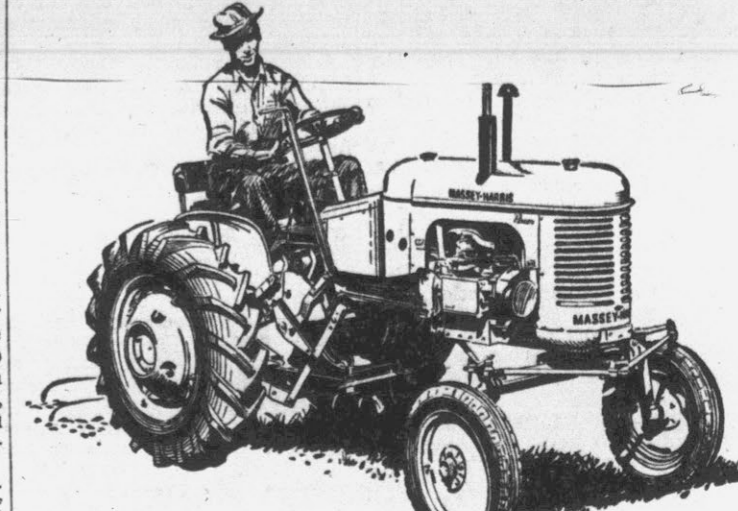

World Day of Prayer is sponsored each year by the United Church Women of the National Council of Churches on the first Friday in Lent. The theme for the day is "Who Shall Separate Us?"

Mrs. Helen Sermons is president of the Greenville Council of Church Women, while Mrs. Keith Holmes is serving as program chairman and Mrs. Charles Wilkerson is chairman of the Christian World Missions Committee.

30 Years Ago Today

March 1, 1927
Raleigh—The bill proposing an amendment to the Constitution to provide an eight months school term was reported unfavorably by a vote of 12 to 5 by the committee on education this morning. Senator J. M. Broughton filed notice of a minority report, so that the matter will be thrashed out on the floor of the Senate some time before the end of the session. Mr. Broughton of Wake was sponsor of the bill. State Superintendent A. T. Allen spoke briefly for a favorable report on the measure, but there was so much confusion in the Senate chamber, where the committee meeting was being held, that he had to cut his speech short.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
Newest addition to Arnold Toynbee's "Study of History." Volumes 7 to 10, has just come out in abridged form, a mere 414 pages. D. C. Somervell has done the abridgement, which in turn has been synopsisized in this week's Times Book Review by Albert Guerard. We will make no attempt to shorten Professor Guerard's synopsis, which already is short enough and well worth reading—in this age of less and less reading, and briefer and briefer books, who are to do a thing like that?

Southern Writing
Quoted from an article by Elington White in a new magazine of literary criticism called "The Provincial," which comes out of Richmond, Va.

"It is part of the Southern writer's job to reassess those values inherent in the history of his region which are in keeping with heroic behavior."

The aristocratic mind (of the South) is least of all conscious of class because it is least of all afraid of losing its place in society. That fear belongs to the bourgeoisie morality. . . . If this morality is all lowed to maintain its control over the South, the South is doomed. To prevent this from happening, the South will have to relearn the aristocratic principles of its past, and if the writer, no matter how humbly, presumes to the teaching role, his main concern will likewise have to be a restoration of these principles; for only on the basis of them will the South be able to maintain itself with a measure of dignity in a technological world.

Future Attractions
The Literary Guild announces as its April selection a novel called "Birthright" by Lettie Hamlett Rogers, who for many years was a member of the faculty teaching creative writing at the University of North Carolina. This is not her first novel, but it's one that the Literary Guild people think will establish her as a first rank American writer. It's about the experiences of a schoolteacher— young and pretty—in a Southern town, so for us around here it should be good. . . . And the Book-of-the-Month Club presents for April "The Short Reign of Pippin IV," called a Fabrication by John Steinbeck, about French politics, no less, which certainly is a long way from Steinbeck's usual hangouts on the California coast.

Local Scene
Culture is re-awakening from its brief doldrums between terms, with several important events in the offing. . . . Tryouts for parts in "As You Like It" will be on Monday and Tuesday of next week, at 7:30 p.m. in Flanagan Auditorium, which all people—faculty, community, students, others—will be most welcome as candidates for parts, technical staff or what-all that go into the first-class Shakespeare production that Dr. Withey is trying to fashion for its

Chorale Had An Enthused Audience

By GEORGE E. PERRY
For an evening of unsurpassed musical enjoyment, the Roper Wagner Chorale is the definitive answer, and judging by an unparalleled audience reaction, everyone obviously agreed with this statement. When a Greenville audience really likes a program, they show it in no uncertain terms by veritable tidal-waves of applause. When a Greenville audience remains in its place, clamoring for encore after encore, loving every minute of a 2 1/2 hour program, it is certainly musical news in this area. This was indeed an evening of 100 percent audience appeal. And why? Because it was 100 percent good music, thrillingly expertly performed. Mr. Wagner seemed to captivate every listener with his vibrant personality, and he and the chorale were so much in harmony with each other that the whole feeling seemed to pour over the edge of the stage, supercharging local concert-goers who have been known to be restrained at former concerts. Mr. Wagner is first of all a terrific musician, and an exacting one; further, he is a good showman; but most important I think is that with his musical message he makes complete contact because he proves conclusively that music is far from a dead thing. Under his magic hands it moved, breathed, rose, fell, touched every kind of emotion, created many moods. It was as if, in his hands, music and his Chorale was molded, shaped, carved, smoothed, polished, its flexible shape changing as the occasion demanded. It was as if he were a sculptor, turning out one masterpiece after another, each different from the first, yet equally beautiful.

Today's Review
Your Columnist contributes his comments on the current—March—selection of The Literary Guild.

THE SCAPEGOAT. By Daphne Du Maurier. Garden City, N. Y.; Doubleday & Co., 1957. A Literary Guild Book.

Daphne Du Maurier is a master in the use of what Coleridge called the "voluntary suspension of disbelief" on the part of the reader. While you are reading "The Scapegoat" you actually believe that the events in the story could happen, even though you know with one part of your mind that they couldn't, because Miss Du Maurier's descriptive powers are so vivid and convincing.

The Scapegoat is an English bachelor in his late 30's, a history professor who is obsessed with a sense of failure and frustration. On the verge of entering a monastery to try to recover some of his lost spiritual resources, he suddenly becomes involved in the complicated affairs of a decadent French family by a accidentally bumping into the head of it, a count, who happens to be his exact double. They swap places, and the bulk of the book is devoted to the results of this highly fortuitous maneuver.

The French family, complete with wife, faithful retainers, domineering mother, religiously fanatic sister, and an ancient chateau with a real moat—now overgrown with creepers—accepts the English history professor. Only one person realizes he is an impostor—and who it is we won't say. The story of what happens to him in these circumstances is utterly fascinating, just so long as you forget that it's wildly impossible. And Miss Du Maurier makes you forget, and spins the kind of yarn that glues you to your chair.

"The Scapegoat" is good reading because it is a good story, and for no other reason. The weaknesses in the book come with Miss Du Maurier's efforts to make it something more—there are religious, moral and psychological overtones, or attempts at overtones, that contribute very little to its success. To this reviewer the ending was unsatisfactory also, and he prophesies that when "The Scapegoat" comes out as a movie—as it surely must—it will end differently. But the only way to find out if you agree is to read the book—and it will keep you interested, and titillated, to the very last page.

Four Motets by Brahms showed an interesting combination of the madrigal-style and the more stately chorale-style. The Jewish liturgical music showed the innate beauty in music of this faith, with Paul Hinshaw, whose voice was rich and resonant, demonstrating a seemingly natural affinity for music of this nature.

Following intermission the most engaging singing of the evening was done in eight of the Brahms' "Liedeslieder Waltzes," with numbers six and eleven being outstanding, and number 9 most exquisite. Number eight was somewhat on the fastish side, so it lost some of its quality. The Kubik "Mirror for the Sky" was musically and rhythmically interesting and cleverly done. "Were you there," instead of being just another Spiritual was an instance of spiritual beauty, enhanced by an outstanding arrangement; the excerpts from "Porgy and Bess" closed the printed program.

But the evening was far from over. The audience demanded, and received, no less than 10 encores, which is certainly an all-time high for this city, I suspect.

A sizeable share of the musical beauty of the evening was contributed to by the accomplished duo-pianists, Stecher and Horowitz, who not only did all the accompanying, but also a fair number of solo numbers. Their playing showed a remarkable unity, and an unseen sensitivity without which two pianists are not duo-pianists. The Waltz from the Rachmaninoff Suite showed exciting contrast, good brilli-

WHEREAS, it is the conviction of the United Council of Church Women, in fellowship with all those who seek the divine guidance of our Creator, that the many problems confronting us today can be solved only with the help of Almighty God; and

WHEREAS, World Day of Prayer has been designated on an international, interdenominational, interracial basis to join the peoples of the world together in furtherance of the doctrine "The Lord is Thy Keeper"; and

WHEREAS, in order for the church to fulfill its important role of exerting practical witness to the fact of God's purpose in human affairs, thereby advancing the international cause of peace on earth, it is necessary that we be ever mindful of the vast power of prayer in furthering His word and His work and in combating the forces of evil that surround us;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, W. L. Whedbee, Mayor of the City of Greenville, do hereby proclaim Friday, March 8, 1957 as "WORLD DAY OF PRAYER" in the City of Greenville, and call upon the people of our city to observe this day as an individual invitation to attend a specific World Day of Prayer meeting; and if the duties of some are such as to make this impossible, I urge them to pause in their work for one minute of prayer at High Noon, to ask that God give us light to guide us, courage to support us, and love to reunite us.

Merits Outweigh The Objections

Although it has created a wave of controversy throughout the state, Rep. Walter Jones' compulsory liability insurance bill has merit which far outweighs the objections which so far have been raised against it.

When North Carolina's legislators enacted the present financial responsibility act, most people took for granted it would afford protection for victims of automobile accidents. The years during which the law has been in effect has pointed up vividly its shortcomings. The principal among these shortcomings is the fact the present law offers no protection for the first victim of an un-insured vehicle. The owner may be barred from operating the vehicle until such time as restitution is made, but the victim has no assurance that restitution will be made.

Under the bill which has been presented by Rep. Jones every person would be assured that each vehicle on the highway has sufficient financial backing to provide compensation for damages.

While the phraseology "compulsory liability insurance" may be an unpopular title for the bill, most people agree that privilege of operating a motor vehicle on the highways carries with it the obligation to afford protection for the other fellow should he become a victim of a traffic accident.

Rep. Jones' bill would provide means by which proof of such protection for the other fellow would be required before a vehicle is licensed.

Though the General Assembly in the final analysis may express itself to the contrary, we are of the opinion that the proposal in Rep. Jones' bill is sound. It would afford the people of North Carolina a much-needed protection in the fact of a constantly increasing number of motor vehicles and traffic accidents.

Morehead City Port Has A Place In Plans

Within the past two weeks it has become apparent many people in North Carolina are deeply incensed over recommendations made to the General Assembly on spending for state ports.

It is also becoming apparent that the General Assembly will not follow recommendations made by the New York experts. They will, on the contrary, give Morehead City a more reasonable division of the total funds to be expended for expanding port facilities.

This latter development we view with a great deal of enthusiasm. The two deepwater ports can, if they are permitted to, have a great deal of influence on the economic development of the state.

Their presence will not only help develop their immediate vicinity, but a broad inland area around them. In the case of the Wilmington port, a great deal of this inland area would be made up of South Carolina. In the case of the Morehead City port, a greater portion of its sphere of influence would be made up of area within the boundaries of North Carolina.

If deep-water ports are to afford to the state their potential benefits, North Carolina can ill afford to put all its money for expansion into one facility. The port at Morehead City must be allowed to continue to develop along with the port at Wilmington.

We trust the legislature, in making its appropriations for the next biennium, will consider more favorably the potential of the Morehead City port than did the experts who make the survey for the State Ports Authority.

Factional Feuds In Commission

By LYNN NISBET

FEUDING — Public utilities officials and attorneys who practice before the Utilities Commission are disturbed about the internal scrapping among members of the body which regulates communication and transportation activities in North Carolina.

It is difficult to get authentic information on specific cases, because up to now the warfare has been confined to the commission conference rooms. There has been evidence of it at some public hearings and in dissenting opinions to majority decision. Just enough factual evidence to give substance to rumors of personal jealousy and maneuvering for political advantage has been discovered.

There have been rumors and direct charges, not proven but not successfully denied, of advance information "leaks" about pending orders and about notices of hearings reaching some litigants on time and unexplainedly delayed for others equally concerned. Parties to proceedings before the Utilities Commission, which has quasi-judicial functions mixed in with administrative authority, have wondered why "the other side" knew about hearings or decisions a day or two before public notice was given.

It appears certain that factional and personal politics exercise considerably influence. Terms of three of the five members of the commission expired on February 1. Commissioners Ed McMahan, Harry Westcott and Sam Worthington are serving on borrowed time. Terms of Chairman Stanley Winborne and Commissioner Ralph Moody run for two and four more years.

LAME DUCKS — The term "lame ducks" was coined some years ago to apply to members of the Congress who were serving after their successors had been elected but had not taken office. It applies with equal appropriateness to administrative or judicial officers who are holding over beyond the expiration of their elective or appointive terms.

Governor Hodges and all members of the Council of State were in the technical lame duck category from January 1 to February 7, but they had all been elected last November and they had known since the May primary that they would continue in office for at least four more years. They were not actually "lame" during the six weeks between expiration of one term and official beginning of another.

The three utilities commissioners whose terms expired on February 1 have no such assurance of continuing tenure. They are really "lame" and they are seeking all the support they can get for reappointment. None of the three was originally appointed by Governor Hodges, but Governor Hodges is the man to whom they must look for the next full time appointment.

The Governor has said he does not intend to make permanent appointments to these positions until after the Legislature adjourns, although the statutes say the appointments should be made on or before February 1. It does not require the insight of a seer or a great wise man to recognize in this situation the basis for some astute political manipulations.

It is axiomatic that it takes two parties to make a trade, whether in merchandising or in politics. In view of the deterred appointments to the Utilities Commission, with three vacancies and at least two of the incumbents known to be desirous of staying on the job, some of the folks who have dealings with the commission are wondering what kind of trades are being considered and what currency will be used for the pay-off.

CONTINUITY — The Senate Committee on State Government's first meeting faced up to the fact however many changes may be made in the details of governmental structure, the State of North Carolina is a continuing and growing entity. It recognized, too, the trend toward greater concentration of power in a few hands.

No bills were up for committee action, but special study was given to the proposed new Department of Administration and to enlarging the Advisory Budget Commission. Point was made that perhaps there should be more continuity in budget commission membership, by staggering terms so that each General Assembly might have the benefit of advice from active members who had participated in preparing the biennial budget. The pending bill would terminate all terms at the beginning of every regular session of the Legislature. Unless reappointed, either by the presiding officers in the Assembly or the Governor, there would be no holdovers.

It was emphasized further that functions of the group should remain wholly advisory, without binding authority over legislation or the exercise of delegated legislative powers.

Chairman Arthur Kirkman, who served along with Sen. Robert Morgan, a committee member, on the Reorganization Study Commission, said it was intent of the commission and would be his aim as chairman of the legislative committee to maintain the balance between executive and legislative branches of government.

Troubles Grow In TV Industry

By ELMER ROESSNER

The television industry is having its toughest days since it became an age.

There's a big pile-up of sets in manufacturers' and distributors' warehouses.

Many companies have laid off workers.

And its organized workers, partly in consequence of lay-offs, are demanding a shorter work week and guaranteed annual wages.

Production of sets, which totaled 975,000 in 1948, reached a record high of 7,750,000 in 1955, and dropped to 7,400,000 last year. A lot of those are still unsold.

COLOR A FACTOR — One reason for the lag in sales is that so many families are waiting for color—not color receivers available today, but sets costing less than $300 and with a lot fewer adjustments and service calls. There's no certainty that such a set will be along this year or next, if ever. But a vast number of people, sitting on their checkbooks, are peering into the future instead of color TV sets.

Last year, trying to gain a second-set market such as radio enjoys, manufacturers stressed the portable set. They sold many of them. But they didn't sell all they made and in many instances families bought inexpensive portables instead of replacing worn-out first sets or investing in color.

General Electric laid off 2,500 workers February 21. However, the lay-off is to end Monday. Westinghouse, RCA, Emerson, Philco and Motorola have also laid off men. While Philco and Westinghouse are reported to be considering further lay-offs, the latter because of completion of some government contracts, the others say they expect the present trend to be reversed. Sylvania and Olympic say they have not cut back production and that sales are running ahead of last year.

UNION AROUSED — Off-and-on employment has created chaos in the industry, the Radio-TV and Paris Conference Board of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America has charged. It has asked the Radio-Electronics-Television Manufacturers Association to reconsider its refusal to confer with the union.

Daniel Arnold, Conference chairman, said, "Electrical workers see a chaotic industry made even more chaotic by the impact of automation, attempted high profit margins, chaotic pricing policies, runaway shops and attempts to squeeze out competitors."

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:—

There are coming to my desk so very many communications from residents of your good city inquiring concerning my attitude with respect to the so-called teacher bill that, with your kind indulgence, I should like to give public expression of my views through the medium of your good paper. Simply stated, my position is this:

I am in full sympathy with the enlarged program outlined by the various school associations, and with particular reference to the proposed increase of pay up to and including the full amount requested. I have no sympathy at all for the pessimistic view so often expressed that North Carolina is unable to do fairly by its teachers. Paradoxical as it may sound, North Carolina is both poor and rich: Poor in material things reckoned in terms of cash deposits in the banks of the State, but at the same time rich in her undeveloped natural resources and their great potential, and rich also in the history and tradition and faith of her people. It is my confident feeling that North Carolina is well able to do reasonably and equitably by all of her public departments and agencies. Certainly, the public school system is the greatest public agency we have and one that unquestionably is charged with a greater responsibility for the future welfare of the State than any other. It deals with a potential like of which is dealt with by no other agency and the importance of which is not to be compared with any other. Whatever the condition of the cotton, corn, tobacco and other similar crops, there is one that is never-failing, and that is the child crop of the State. If its interests are not properly safeguarded and advanced, the State itself is rendered perilous.

It would be a futile thing, through the medium of this communication, to attempt to point out in any detail the reasons for my conclusion, both with respect to the urgency of the appeal and the availability of the means to bring it to accomplishment. Suffice it to say that the importance (and, I think, necessity) of the appeal is quite generally conceded and I am satisfied that there are many sources from which may be had the funds necessary for the intended purpose.

I do not subscribe to the view of those who take the position that the cause of the public schools can be better advanced by drawing more heavily upon local government. In the first place, to do so would tend to upset more generally the long-fought-for uniform public school system. It would simply mean that the local units that are strong would no longer be called upon to help carry the burden of those that are weak. This inevitably would lead to gross discrimination in the classroom, resulting from disparity in qualification among the teachers with consequential long range disadvantages to the children themselves. Something else: I cannot follow the process of reasoning by which some conclude that the local units, acting individually, can put on and carry through a program more effective in the interest of the public school system than those same local units acting collectively in the person of the State. I do not recall that the rule of physics has been reversed to make the sum of the parts greater than the whole.

In this connection, too, I would not have this expression of mine construed as a lack of interest in the Governor's program to bring more industry to the State. I think that is a splendid proposal and worthy of most favorable consideration, within reasonable bounds, of course. I do take this position however: That any industry seeking location in North Carolina and whose directing personnel reckons the advantages purely in terms of the coin of the realm, whether granted through tax concessions or any other financial means, and does not consider those particular advantages against the greater background of social, educational and cultural advantages, is an industry that in my opinion we could not justify offering particular inducement to. Incidentally, I might say there is strong support in the General Assembly for the teachers' cause and I personally feel that it will furnish them a good measure of relief, if not the full program. North Carolina should begin setting the pace for other states to follow and not be content with following examples of other states of less vision.

Sincerely yours,
Sen. Luther Hamilton, Sr.

A True Life Script

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood always claims it is looking for fresh scripts about real people — scripts with a true-to-life flavor that carry a warm human appeal.

All right, Hollywood, let's test you. Here is a script that has everything you say you are looking for:

Once upon a time there is this tall, lanky Boy Scout who wears glasses, and is shy and awkward and so absent-minded that when he comes to a telephone pole he steps aside to let it pass — because he is always polite and considerate of others.

Some people think he stutters, but he doesn't really stutter. He is just so struck with the moon-beam wonder of living that midway in a sentence he changes his mind because he has thought of something else to say. This makes his talk a bit puzzling.

He dreams of being an accordion player. He reads about Houdini and dreams of being a magician. He sees a movie of Martin Johnson in Africa and dreams of being an actor and a big game hunter. He reads about Charles Lindbergh flying the ocean alone, so he takes to building model airplanes.

That boy Jim would do better to go to work in his dad's hardware store," say his neighbors in a town with the unlikely name of Indiana, Pa. "He don't know what he wants!"

Instead Jim goes to Princeton University where, thousands cheer — he's a cheerleader — he dreams of being an engineer, an actor, a life boss.

"Jim's life goals are presently multidirectional," say his professors, which is their way of saying he doesn't know what he wants.

Well, Jim finally graduates — with a degree in architecture, his latest dream — and lands a job doing car tricks and playing an accordion in a New England tearoom. He does a few summer theater roles. Then he becomes a stage manager in Boston, and absent-mindedly rings down the final curtain on Miss Jane Cow, who is playing "Camille," right in the middle of the famous, death scene.

After Broadway, Jim goes to Hollywood, where his shy and gawking charm win him a quick buildup as "The boy who lives next to the girl next door."

The producers, who at first think Jim will be easy to push around because he is so polite and doesn't seem to know what he wants, are surprised to find he knows what he doesn't want — stardom roles. In 1940 he wins an academy award in "The Philadelphia Story," and tells an interviewer:

"Hollywood dishes out too much praise for small things. I won't let it get me, but too much praise can turn a fellow's head if he doesn't watch his step."

Jim saves up his money for a rainy day, and soon has enough to last him through a century-long cloudburst. He buys a plane and learns to fly.

Half the famous dames in Hollywood are dying to drag him to the preacher, but Jim likes the bachelor life with some old pals in a house full of mice, half a dozen doves, 3 dogs and 17 cats.

"The guy doesn't know what he wants," everybody says.

War looms. The draft board defers Jim because he is too light for his height. So he puts on 10 pounds, the draft board tosses him to the Air Corps as a private and Jim's pay drops from $12,000 a month to $21.

He becomes a bomb pilot and goes over to Germany as a big game hunter in uniform. He flies 20 combat missions, comes home a full colonel with a Distinguished Flying Cross, won the only way it can be.

Jim takes up his film career where he had left it — at the peak. In 1949 he finds Gloria, the girl he knows he wants, and they marry and have a fine pair of girl twins.

The last dream? In 1955 Warner Bros. asks Jim if he would like to play Lindbergh in a picture called "The Spirit of St. Louis."

"Be Lindbergh?" asks Jim. "I've dreamed of it most of my life."

A Fraction Of A Second

By EVERETTE PARKER

A Fraction Of A Second

How many times do we stop to think when we are out on the highways driving?

The elderly traveler had just been brought in by the Pitt County Highway Patrol for speeding 75 miles an hour. Judge Charles H. Wheedbe was called and presently came into the police station.

A short time later the Greenville Municipal Recorders Court was called in session in order that the speeder might be tried and could go on his way.

The court was called to order, the traveler was standing in front of the Judge. He had no defense, there were Patrolmen who clocked him going 75 miles an hour. The only thing he did have was, according to what he said, "a clean record."

He gave several excuses for his excessive rate of speed. "I didn't see anyone on the road" and "I didn't realize that I was going as fast as my citation states," he pleaded.

Judge Wheedbe listened for a few minutes, then turned to a chosen page in a magazine and requested that the speeder read aloud to the court what it had to say.

He read the following excerpt, written by Edgar A. Walz, III, and Carl Wall that appeared in the February issue of the Reader's Digest.

"This is the slow-motion, split second reconstruction of what happens when a car, traveling

55 miles an hour, crashes into a solid, immovable tree:

1-10 — The driver's fear-frozen hands bend the steering column into an almost vertical position. The force of gravity impales him on the steering-wheel shaft. Jagged steel punctures lung and intercostal arteries. Blood spurts into his lungs.

2-10 — The hood crumples, smashing into the windshield. Spinning rear wheels leave the ground. The grillwork disintegrates. The fenders come into contact with the tree, forcing the rear parts to splay out over the front doors.

In the same second tenth of a second, the heavy structural members of the car begin to act as a brake on the terrific forward momentum of the 2½-ton body. But the driver's body continues to move forward at the vehicle's original speed. This means a force of 20 times gravity; his body weighs 3200 pounds. His legs, ram-rod-straight, snap at the knee joints.

3-10 — The driver's body is now off the seat, torso upright, broken, knees pressing against the dashboard. The plastic-and-steel frame of the steering wheel begins to bend under his terrible death grip. His head is now near the sun visor, his chest above the steering column.

4-10 — The car's front 24 inches have been completely demolished, but the rear end is still traveling at an estimated speed of 35 miles an hour. The half-ton motor block crushes into the tree. The rear of the car, like a bucking horse, rises high enough to scrape bark off low branches.

5-10 — The driver's fear-frozen hands bend the steering column into an almost vertical position. The force of gravity impales him on the steering-wheel shaft. Jagged steel punctures lung and intercostal arteries. Blood spurts into his lungs.

6-10 — So great is the force of the impact that the driver's feet are ripped from his tightly laced shoes. The brake pedal shears off at the floorboards. The chassis bends in the middle, shearing body bolts. The driver's head smashes into the windshield. The rear of the car begins its downward fall, spinning wheels digging into the ground.

7-10 — The entire, writhing body of the car is forced out of shape. Hinges rear. Doors spring open. In one last convulsion the seat rams forward, pinning the driver against the cruel steel of the steering shaft. Blood leaps from his mouth. Shock has frozen his heart. He is now dead."

The driver going 75 miles hung his head, received his sentence and slowly drove away a short time later.

Opinions In Brief

"NAM contends that the monopolistic powers of unions can no longer be ignored by the American people. It is the duty of every citizen to review—without malice, without prejudice, but with an objective eye—the present status of organized labor and the power accumulated by union leadership and to reflect where this growing accumulation of power will take us if it continues on its present course."

(Southeastern Region National Association of Manufacturers)

"It is extraordinary that in the United States of America, which owed its founding so much to lawyers, and which has been so largely ruled by lawyers—it is extraordinary that in this crisis decade, the legal profession as a profession has played so small a part in the great effort for peace."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE BETWIXT-AND-BETWEEN MAN

We are hearing a great deal today about the Near East. Its importance arises from the fact that it is a betwixt-and-between area of the earth's surface. It is the bridge between Africa, Asia, and Europe.

When we examine the career of Jesus of Nazareth, we discover Him to have been a betwixt-and-between man. He passed His entire life in this Near East section. His ministry occurred at a time when the Roman empire was beginning to crumble and something new was emerging. Jesus stood betwixt-and-between the old and the new. Also He stood at the end of Old Testament teaching and prophesy and at the beginning of a new spiritual era for mankind.

Jesus was even a betwixt-and-between man as regards the color of His skin. He was probably not as white as white men are today, nor as dark as other pigmented-skin people. He was a member of the white race but He had pigment in His skin, as about three-fourths of the world's population have today and probably always did have.

This Jesus was the first world citizen. He is the universal man. Everything about Him fitted Him to become the Saviour of all men and of all nations everywhere. He partakes of all that we are and have. He shares our life. He imports to us the glory of His heavenly nature. For He is both perfectly human and perfectly divine.

'Glass House' Of Defense Secretary

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The plain-spoken but thoughtful Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson had obviously not taken inventory of his own "glass house" when he charged that the politically powerful National Guard's training program provided a safe haven for "draft dodgers."

In many past offices and public buildings throughout the country, his United States Army Reserve has planted posters, pamphlets and postcards telling youngsters and their parents how they can escape the draft by joining that organization.

This propaganda deliberately offsets Wilson's efforts to encourage enlistment in the regular military forces, or to sign up with the National Guard. U.S. ARMY RESERVE POSTER The poster asks: "Interested in draft deferment?" Then, it urges those interested to contact the nearest U.S. Army Reserve headquarters. In a box behind the poster are four-page pamphlets with the heading: "End draft worries! Plan for the future! Join the new six-month training program."

Attached to the pamphlet is a postcard, addressed to the local Army Reserve office and saying: "My parents and I would like to learn more about this new plan. Telephone us at _____ or send a spokesman."

The great advantage in joining the Army Reserve, according to its literature, is that it furnishes an "opportunity to plan for your future," and here are a few pertinent paragraphs from the pamphlet:

"The inevitable question, 'When will I be drafted?' will no longer concern you because you are draft-proof. ('Draft-proof' is italicized—Ed. note.) You can make firm plans for your education, job, marriage and family—and set your sights now on the income you want.

ITALICIZED EYE-CATCHERS "You can fulfill your legal obligations — and your patriotic duty — by serving only six months" ("Six months" italicized—Ed. note) in a training camp instead of the two years ("Two years" italicized—Ed. note) required of draftees. And you will be paid for all duty performed.

And this training will continue among your friends and neighbors when you return to your home town Reserve unit.

"Without the draft threat hanging over your head, you're a better prospect for the employer who also plans for the future when he hires you."

SUGGEST SORT OF SOCIAL AFFAIR After the six-month training period, the Wilson invitation continues, there are only the following obligations for the Army Reserve graduate:

"A one-night-a-week meeting in your local Reserve center. A two-week training camp course each year (generally in the summer) until a seven-and-a-half-year period of Reserve duty is terminated."

of a study session of tremendously complicated postwar weapons, or even a "squads right" drill. The suggestion is that it will be a sort of social get-together, as was true of National Guard meetings not so many years ago.

LIKE A PICNIC "GENERALLY, IN SUMMER" It is also regarded as significant that the two-week mobilization will be held "generally in summer," when there will be no opportunity to test the performance of weapons and other equipment in cold or inclement weather, such as American troops had to endure and conquer in both World Wars and in Korea, and which would be an even more severe hardship and obstacle to victory in World War III.

Have they forgotten that it was the snows of Russia which smashed Napoleon's Grand Army, and that it led directly to his defeat in the "battles of the nations" at Leipzig and, eventually to his collapse at Waterloo? Secretary Wilson should bone up on his history.

The Great Confession

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-17:27.

Jesus asked His disciples, "Whom do men say that I am?" They told what they had been hearing. "But whom say ye that I am?" Christ asked. "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," said Peter.

Christ revealed to His disciples that He would be killed, but would rise again. Peter rebuked Him, saying that He need not be slain, but Jesus chided Peter, saying that his words were not of God but of men.

Jesus took Peter, James and John to a high mountain, and there He was transfigured and a voice said, "This is My Beloved Son... hear ye Him." The disciples fell on their faces in great fear, but Jesus said, "Be not afraid."

After Jesus had cast out an evil spirit from a boy, the disciples asked why they had been unable to exorcise the spirit. Christ said because they lacked faith. With faith they could do anything. MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 16:15, 16.

The Great Confession

PETER RECOGNIZES JESUS AS CHRIST, SON OF THE LIVING GOD

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-17:27.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. IT IS suggested that the young members of the class might be impressed by stressing the importance of the right or wrong answers they may give to their teachers in school or to their parents. If they cannot answer correctly to questions in simple arithmetic, they may not be promoted. And this is also true of their other studies. If at home they do not tell the truth when father or mother asks about their actions, they may be in trouble. So it is with the older members. The answers that they may make when decisions are required of them, may make a great difference in their lives, both in college, business and personal contacts.

behind Me, Satan; thou art an offence unto Me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men. Then Christ said: "If any man will come after Me, let him take up his cross, and follow Me. For whosoever shall save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it." How many martyrs have died for Christ's sake since He spoke those words!

A few days later Jesus took Peter, James and John up into a mountain, and there the three saw Jesus transfigured and talking with Moses and Elias. As Peter was suggesting that three tabernacles be made at this place, a cloud covered them, and from the cloud came a voice saying, "This is My Beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased; hear ye Him."

The three men were terrified and threw themselves down on their faces, but Jesus came and touched them, saying "Arise, be not afraid." Looking up they saw

Pitt Teams Clash For Berths In Championship Play

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Two very important games are on tap tonight in the Pitt County Basketball Tourney.

The Ayden and Winterville boys battle for a berth in Saturday's championship game; the Grifton and Winterville girls tangle for a slot in the girls title game Saturday.

Last night, in some of the sharpest play yet, two of the championship berths were filled. Bethel eked out a victory over Farmville in the boys division to confirm their position in the finals and the Ayden girls pulled an upset win over Stokes to earn their way into the finals.

In the night's only other game, Winterville boys toppled Grifton 46-44 in a thriller.

First Title
The Winterville-Grifton boys tilt was the first of the night last night, and one of the closest contests of the evening.

Winterville started slow but was able to pull the game out of the fire in the final moments to win 46-44. A poor seven-point opening quarter put them behind the Grifton crew 12-7 and they were still behind 23-22 at halftime.

Grifton's 6-4 center Erwin and teammates Bogey and McLawhorn were the big guns in the Bulldog attack in the first half. Ralph Wingate and Boyce Cox kept Winterville in the game during that same period.

The third quarter saw both teams collect 12 points, which still gave Grifton a one point lead. It was in the final quarter that Winterville claimed the victory. Field goals by Worthington, Stox and Gorman, and free tosses by Wingate, Cox and Gorman netted Winterville a 14 point fourth quarter, while Grifton could score only nine. That made the difference.

Girls Game
Ayden's girls took an early lead and held it last night to overpower a heavily-favored Stokes sextet to earn a berth in Saturday's championship finals.

Sparked by Sutton, Sumrell and Long, the Tornadoes jumped to an early 10-6 early advantage in the first quarter and increased it to a stunning 20-16 by halftime. Stokes' vaunted triple attack, Angle, Turner and Whitehurst, was unable to get started, and Ayden took full advantage of it.

In the third period, Angle sank five field goals and Turner netted two to post 15 points for Stokes, but Ayden still did them better. They netted 16, with Sutton leading the way.

The final period was completely Ayden's. The Tornado girls plunked in a tremendous 17 markers, while holding Stokes to only six. Sutton finished with 32 points to gain high honors.

Ayden guards Rutledge, Worthington and Basden were outstanding.

Bethel Triumphs
The Bethel-Farmville boys game, the final one of the evening, produced some of the best individual performances seen this year in ECC Gym. The game was a close one right down the wire, with the lead changing hands several times before Bethel won out 54-45.

Bethel, behind Vance Taylor and Willard White, chalked up an early 14-10 lead. A basket by Farmville's Tommy Wainright in the second period tied the score 19-19 and Farmville took over the lead at 21-19.

From that point, Farmville commanded the lead until White's lay-up some moments later tied it 31-31 and then Bethel again claimed the advantage. After that, it was all Bethel in the final two periods.

Outstanding individual performances were recorded by Bethel's Taylor, White, and Charles Ward, with assists by Danny Martin and Tommy Cooper. Carroll Wooten was particularly good as a floorman for Farmville. Tommy Wainright was the top Devil scorer and Sonny Mall grabbed a very big majority of rebounds from both boards to pace all rebounders.

TOURNEY STARS—In lastnight's Pitt County action, individual stars were many. Two of those are pictured above. LEFT: Ayden's Sumrell (11) sinks a hook shot over the head of Stokes' Susie James in the Ayden 53-37 upset victory. Sumrell netted 15 points. RIGHT: Bethel's Vance Taylor (24) cuts past Sonny Mall of Farmville on the way to a layup in the Bethel victory last night. Taylor posted 24 points and Mall was the night's top rebounder. Catawba Indians Knock Off Elon To Move Into North State Semifinals

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Catawba's Indians, who had to win a playoff game to get out of the conference cellar, were the toast of this red hot basketball town today, at least for a while.

The Indians knocked off defending champion Elon 73-62 last night to enter tonight's semifinals against Western Carolina. The upset continued a barrier which always has faced the defending champ—no team has ever been able to win the tournament twice in succession.

Aside from Catawba's upset, the other game last night went according to the dope books—Western Carolina, third-seeded behind Elon, whipped East Carolina 83-

69 to gain the fourth semifinal berth.

Tonight's schedule puts Catawba against West Carolina at 7:30 and Atlantic Christian against tournament favorite Lenoir Rhyne at 9:15.

Atlantic Christian advanced with an 82-72 victory over High Point and Lenoir Rhyne defeated Guilford 70-58 in first-round games Wednesday night.

Catawba's victory over Elon was easily the high spot of the tournament thus far. The Indians jumped to a 20-16 lead midway the first half and never let up the pressure the rest of the way. They held a 41-30 halftime lead and increased it during the second half,

OZARK IKE

Third-Ranking Lightweight Has Underdog Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he has an unbeaten streak of 13 and is the third-ranking lightweight contender, boxing stylist Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., is a 7-5 underdog to unranked Paolo Rosi for their television fight tonight.

The two lean 135-pounders will clash in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden (NBC TV, radio, 10 p.m. EST).

Rosi, a bony-faced, 29-year-old puncher, has been made the betting choice on the strength of his potent right hand.

Gonsalves' record is 23-4, including 11 kayos.

Rosi originally was scheduled to meet Baby Vasquez but the Mexican injured his back in training and Gonsalves, freshly returned from a successful invasion of Japan, was named as a substitute. Rosi's record is 47-9-3 with eight knockouts.

Ted Williams In Friendlier Mood

By JOE REICHLER
SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A jovial and friendly Ted Williams, visibly happy to be back in a baseball uniform, predicted a banner season for himself today but was not nearly so optimistic about his club, the Boston Red Sox.

Baseball's greatest hitter said he couldn't see how any club could possibly beat out the New York Yankees for the American League pennant this year. He bemoaned the failure of the Red Sox to improve the club through trades during the off season.

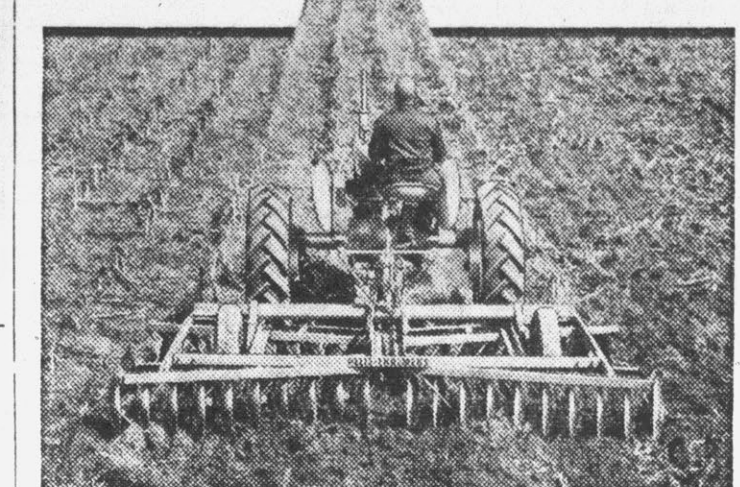

"The Yankees' acquisition of two pitchers like (Art) Ditmar and (Bobby) Shantz may kill off all interest in the American League race by midseason," Williams said.

"They were tough enough to beat last year. How the heck are you going to beat them this year? We have practically the same team we had in 1956 when we finished fourth. But don't forget that both Mickey Vernon and I are past 38. Unless we can make a trade before the season starts, you can figure out for yourself where we're apt to finish."

Williams conceded the Red Sox tried diligently all winter to barter for a shortstop but the quest ended in failure.

"You've got to hand it to the Yankees," he said. "They just don't believe in standing still. While the other clubs sit around and do nothing they go out and trade for a couple of guys to plug up their only questionable spot. Ditmar should be a 20-game winner with the Yanks because he'll get that extra day of rest."

SMITH SWIFT'S NEW NOVEL

All for Doctor Barton

CHAPTER 30
Early March had shown little promise of spring; frosty meadows and brown hillsides gave way reluctantly to grass slowly turning green; the lilacs put out a few cautious leaves and the apple trees were only faintly dappled with pale green and pink. The maples were a haze of half-open buds.

But then, on the last days of the month, heat came suddenly; the temperature climbed into the seventies, and spring opened her arms wide to smother the countryside with blossoms. Within a day's time, the maple trees showed leaves two inches across, and the apple trees became giant bouquets. This miracle of color and growth came to its fragrant climax on a Saturday, and Grady Barton, factory worker, could pick up June and Candy and go for a walk out toward the woods.

Then, he went on into town to speak acidly of Judge Cowan's girl and that doctor—a married man and all—carryin' on together.

He dropped his words like soaked seeds into various fertile places, and the next day, after church, someone asked June about it. This person happened to be Virginia Spencer, June's best friend ever since their childhood. "People are talking, honey. I thought you should know."

June hung up her choir robe and took off the square black cap, shook out her hair. "I wish they'd let Grady alone."

"But, darling, it's just—he is a married man, and—were you walking hand in hand with him?"

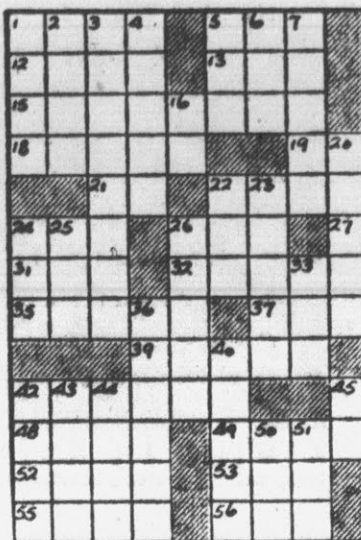

"Maybe, I don't know. You walk hand in hand with Henry sometimes. I've seen you, down on the beach."

"Henry is not a married man."

"Neither is Grady."

Nominated By The Kelly Clan

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis. (AP)—John Kelly offered to circulate some nomination papers for Circuit Judge Clarence Rinehard. "I'll get some good names on 'em, Judge," Kelly said. When he brought the papers back to the judge every signature — 20 of them — was a Kelly.

child, and he did fasten a split of rolled newspaper to the soft little limb—but then he sent the puzzled and somewhat indignant parents off to Elmore. There were other calls, too; by a doctor with his license restrained must stand back, fold his hands behind him and do nothing. It was very hard to walk past "his house" and to see his clinic dark and unused. It was hard to know that the town needed a doctor, needed him. Surely if they could get another man, they would. It struck Grady that he might even be standing in the way of that solution of the town's need. So that night, after supper, he came back to his room and wrote a long letter to Stanley Tomyanovic in Chicago. He had acted on impulse, so when he went out again to mail the letter, he decided that he'd better go around past Seddens' house and talk to his friend about the D.P. doctor. It was only 8:30. Mr. Frank and Miss Nellie would be watching TV. They were, Miss Nellie cozy in a quilted robe and soft slippers, for which she apologized. Grady ate popcorn and visited with the two old folks for a half-hour, then he talked to them about his friend. He told what sort of person "Tommy" was; he outlined the difficulties which a D.P. doctor faced in establishing himself in America. He told of the national requirements, and those which individual states demand. He told what Tommy had done toward meeting those requirements; he'd passed the examinations, he'd started citizenship proceedings. "But the nearest he's come to practicing medicine is the job I helped him get in the instrument room in the hospital where I worked before coming here. Now I've written his letter to him, thinking he might come here and help out—certainly while I'm restricted. "Tommy's a good doctor, sir, and has a pleasant personality. I'd be here to help him—I don't mean professionally, but to know the people, and the people to know him. "How can I help?" asked Mr. Seddens keenly. "Back me up, sir. Indorse his application for a locum license. Speak in Tommy's behalf here in town should any question arise." "Do you expect him to use your office?" "That would be up to the committee. And of course dependent upon that locum license from the state society. But at least, he'd be here in town—and the town desperately needs a doctor." "But what about you, Barton?" asked Mr. Seddens, "somewhat brusquely. Grady looked up in surprise. "Oh, I'll go on working at the factory. They pay good wages, you know. I'll do that until, as I hope, I win that lawsuit and get my license back." His jaw tightened as he spoke. "It's Chronister, behind Kopp, who is fighting you. You know that?" "I know he's fighting me. But, Mr. Seddens, he isn't the only man in the Hollies, is he?" "Brother..." prompted Miss Nellie, softly. He smiled at her and nodded. "No," he said firmly. "No, Grady. He isn't the only man here. So ask your friend to come."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Industrial stocks gave an otherwise sluggish stock market a lift to the upside early this afternoon.

Key stocks were up fractions to around a point.

The market opened with its normal spurt of activity then slowed down. Prices softened a bit as turnover dwindled.

Aircrafts, oils, steels and some nonferrous metals registered gains to make the market higher on balance but there was little change among the rails and utilities.

The market failed to get much lift from the news that Israel plans to withdraw from Egypt and later reports from the United Nations seemed to restrain optimism. The uneven nature of corporate reports stimulated little buying. Turnover was at a slower pace than in yesterday's laggard session.

Some oils with big Middle East holdings seemed to derive comfort from the present situation in that critical area. Getty Oil, which has interests there as well as domestically, showed an exceptional rise of more than 2. Gulf Oil, which has normally reflected every good or bad portent from that area, was ahead more than a point. But Royal Dutch, which depends on the Middle East for a stable portion of its oil, merely held firm.

Republic Aviation rose about a point, continuing its advance of yesterday on favorable news. Boeing recovered about a point from its recent retreat; United Aircraft was another 1-point gainer.

Youngtown was about the best of the leading steels, showing a gain of more than a point. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem were up fractions.

Kennecott went ahead well over a point while Anaconda added a major fraction.

Phico, which is 20 points or so below its 1956-'57 high, was steady on reports of its huge drop in earnings. Seaboard Railroad and American Telephone gained major fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 30 cents at $171.80 with the industrials up 80 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers fully steady following advance. Farm price mostly 20 with few at 19; no f.o.b. sales reported.

Raleigh eggs steady. A large 34-37; Durham eggs steady. A large 33-35; Asheville and Charlotte eggs steady. A large 33.

RALEIGH (NCDA)—Hog prices steady. Tops of 16.25 to 17.00 at Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Enfield and Wingate; 16.25 to 16.75 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Pine Level and Nahutta; 16.00 to 16.75 at Bethel; 16.25 at Rich Square, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Smithfield, Newton Grove, Mount Olive, Castle Hayne, Micro, Elizabethtown, Siler City, Clayton, Mount Gilead, Kenly, Goldsboro, Shallotte, Baley, Spring Hope, Clarkton, Dunn and Whiteville; 16.00 at Tabor City.

Six Convicted Of Fraud In Claims

Six Negro women, five of them from Greenville and one from Farmville, were convicted in Magistrate Luther D. Moore's Court Thursday on charges of filing fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance.

C. A. Dees of the Employment Security Commission, New Bern, who prosecuted the cases, testified that the defendants made false statements in efforts to qualify for unemployment insurance.

The magistrate continued judgment in each case upon payment by each defendant of $9.50 court costs.

From Greenville: Lorena Hines, 15 N. Cotanche street, Esther Mae Smith, 1716-B South Pitt street, Emma E. Jones, 209-B Deck street, Annie B. Corey, 207-A Deck street, and Ada R. Lloyd, 1208 Davenport street.

From Farmville: Ida M. Harris, P.O. Box 365.

Dees said that when the judgments become final the defendants will be ruled ineligible for one year, and will be required to refund to the Employment Security Commission all unemployment insurance payments received after the first fraudulent claim was filed.

The refunds to the Employment Security Commission range from small sums to several hundred dollars.

Magistrate Moore commented during the trials that some of the filers of false claims had sworn that they had tried to get employment and gave names of prospective employers. In court at the hearing it developed that many women had given fictitious names of women to whom they claimed they had applied for work.

Aiding Red Cross Drive

CHAIRMEN—Pictured above are two community Red Cross chairmen for the 1957 drive that began in Pitt County this morning. Mrs. Walter Latham is serving as co-chairman in the town of Bethel along with Clifton Everett; Dr. M. T. Friezele is chairman of the Ayden district. According to preliminary reports the advance gifts solicitation has been somewhat of a success throughout the county.

Pistol Fatality
GOLDSBORO—Jesse Hagans, 34, Goldsboro Negro, was killed yesterday while he and three Negro companions were "playing" with a .38 caliber revolver. A coroner's jury absolved his companions, ruling the death accidental.

Coroner I. T. Seymour said the four were riding when Hagans took the revolver from his pocket and snapped it twice, without the gun going off. Seymour said a companion, O. J. Darden, told Hagans, "Let me see that old gun." Darden pulled the trigger, Seymour said, and the pistol went off, the bullet striking Hagans in the jugular vein. He died enroute to Wayne Memorial Hospital.

District Health Meeting
WASHINGTON, N.C.—A large number of people attended the meeting of the Second District Rural Health conference Wednesday afternoon, and the four-hour meeting was termed a success by officials conducting the event.

One of the highlights of the meeting was a panel discussion on "Nursing — As a Career." Health projects were discussed by Mrs. Robert Bowers of Pamlico county and Mrs. Fernie Laughinghouse of Beaufort county. Warren Oliver, Washington County hospital administrator, discussed "What Your Insurance Policy Should Cover"; and Dr. C. C. Applewhite, director of Local Health services of the N. C. State Board of Health, spoke on "Making Use of Available Health Services."

months. Then a dog bit him! Moses Rountree, who will be eligible for retirement in July, said today: "I just got careless."

Rountree felt that all these years, unlike his oft-bitten colleagues, he understood dogs. He could tell if they would bite. And he gave them a wide berth until last Monday. The mailman was trying to help a little dog but got his hand too close to another dog that broke his unbiten record. The wound required five stitches.

Wagner To Run Again For Post

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner says he will seek a second term in November and is "not a candidate for any other office."

The Democratic mayor, son of the late U.S. Sen. Robert F. Wagner who sponsored the Wagner Labor Relations Act and other important New Deal legislation, was defeated by Sen. Javits (R-NY) in last November's U. S. Senate race.

Wagner, 46, told a news conference he would serve the full four-year term if re-elected.

Large Crowd At Bible Conference

Over 500 people heard the Rev. T. O. Terry and the Eppley Sisters Quintette at the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church last night in the Bible Conference which is now in progress at the church.

Speaking about the sacrifice of Christ, Mr. Terry said that it was willing, worth, and motivated by love and that if we would make a sacrifice it should have these same characteristics. He challenged his hearers to make sacrifices not for the sake of sacrifice, but for a worthy purpose and with the motive of love.

The conference will continue through Sunday night with services held each day at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. according to the pastor Rev. F. B. Cherry. The Rev. Billy Melvin of Richmond, Virginia is song leader for the conference and brings the messages at 11 a.m. each day.
