Federal Grant Of $92,129 For Ayden's Project Is Now Assured

Town Will Receive Sum In Event Sewer Plan Project Is Carried Out

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN—Success was partially realized yesterday afternoon by Ayden officials who are striving to obtain better and more adequate sewer facilities for this growing Pitt County town.

The Federal government has approved Ayden's request for a grant to be used in conjunction with the sewer improvement project. Mayor Corey Stokes received official notification late yesterday afternoon in telegrams from North Carolina Representative Herbert C. Bonner and Senator Kerr Scott.

It was disclosed this morning that the town would receive $92,129 in the event the sewer project is carried out. Citizens will vote on the bond issue next Monday, March 11.

Stokes stated this morning that it was especially gratifying to get the Federal grant at this time because the people of Ayden, pending the outcome of the bond issue, would be certain to get the necessary sewer improvements now. He said, "This money will assure the town commissioners of adequate funds to complete the project, making facilities available for all those within city limits with a certain amount of reserve for new territories."

The Ayden mayor went on to say "Due to the fact that the Federal grant has been received in the amount of $92,129, it will not be necessary to sell the whole $275,000 bond issue. The amount of bonds sold will not exceed the amount needed to complete the project according to specifications of the government."

With the bond election scheduled for next Monday, it was learned that the amount to be voted on cannot be changed. Mayor Stokes pointed out however that the $275,000 would be cut due to the amount of money received through the Federal grant.

It was generally felt that the voting on the bond issue would be light. In view of yesterday's developments, town officials feel that additional interest will be aroused on the question and that the voting may run heavy.

The letter of congratulation from Representative Bonner and Senator Scott stated that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have approved a grant for the town under Public Law 600, Water Pollution Control Act for a new and complete treatment plant with lift stations and interceptors.

This morning it was estimated by the engineering firm of Rivers and Pivers and Associates who have a contract for the engineering of the project that in the event of the passage of the sewer bond issue, work would begin in the immediate future. A representative said that, in his opinion, "the project would be under contract within a three to four month period after the election should it be passed."

The sewer improvement movement has been in the planning stage for well over a year by Ayden officials who are striving to replace the present system that is over 40 years old. In the past few years the sewer system has been extended to its limit with only a minimum distance remaining between invert and ground elevations. This means that houses being built and to be constructed will go without adequate sewage facilities unless improvements are made in the near future.

The contracting firm has said that a 10 to 12 month period would be required to complete the project.

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average several degrees below normal and precipitation less than half inch. Clearing and cold Saturday and Sunday night, slightly warmer Monday. Turning a little colder Monday, followed by rising temperatures and some rain about mid-week.

Anniversary Is Observed By East Carolina College

East Carolina College celebrated today the fiftieth anniversary of its founding in 1907. Attending a series of programs at the college were students, faculty members, alumni, and representatives of approximately sixty colleges, universities, and learned and professional societies throughout the nation.

Dr. Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., made the Golden Anniversary Address this morning in the Wright auditorium.

Garrett Hall, East Carolina's newest building, was dedicated this afternoon at 2 p.m. Exercises included the unveiling of a portrait of the late R.M. Garrett of Greenville, for whom the dormitory for women was named. Mr. Garrett was for a number of years a member of the East Carolina Board of Trustees and chairman of the building committee of the Board.

Social events of the day included a luncheon for visitors on the campus; a tea following the dedicatory exercises in Garrett Hall; and a dinner, with members of Greenville Civic Clubs as hosts. The program this morning began with an academic procession of Faculty members at East Carolina and representatives of educational institutions and societies as participants. The procession entered Wright auditorium to music performed by the East Carolina Orchestra.

Dr. Hill was introduced to his audience by Dr. J. Harris Purks, Jr., director of higher education in North Carolina. The speaker, president of one of this country's leading institutions for the training of teachers, had as his topic "A Modern Educational Renaissance."

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina for the past ten years, the period of the college's most outstanding development and expansion, welcomed guests to the campus. The Rev. Alexander Livesey of Havelock, an alumnus of East Carolina, spoke the invocation.

A program of music during the morning exercises included selections by the East Carolina Orchestra, the East Carolina Choir, and a chorus of students from high schools in Ayden, Greenville, Kingston, New Bern, and Washington.

Dr. Howard J. McGinnis of Greenville, retired staff member at East Carolina and former faculty member, registrar, director of field services, and acting president of the college, was principal speaker at the luncheon in the North Dining Hall. He reviewed the history of the college, giving details of the founding and the growth of the institution.

Dedication of Garrett Hall was chief event of the afternoon. The portrait of Mr. Garrett, a gift to the college by members of his family, was presented to East Carolina by R.M. Garrett, Jr., of Greenville. E.E. Rawl of Greenville, member of the college Board of Trustees, accepted the portrait for East Carolina.

A tea for students, faculty members, and guests on the campus followed the dedicatory exercises in Garrett Hall.

Another Councilman Files As Re-Election Candidate

Another member of the present City Council officially became a candidate for re-election in the May 7 election.

Councilman J. A. Collins, Sr., filed at the City Clerk's office, this morning.

He is the third council member to announce his candidacy for re-election and the fifth man to enter the race for the five council seats.

In making his announcement Collins said: "Having been urged by a number of Greenville citizens to run for re-election for the City Council of Greenville and feeling a sense of deep responsibility to carry through our improvement program for the city, I have decided to offer my services for another term on the council.

"As most people know I am for continued improvements including more off street parking and at the same time making every effort to hold our tax rate at a minimum."

Collins said he stood for "progressive and conservative government at all times."

The newest candidate is 57 years old. He is married to the former Lula Mae Britt of Newton Grove in Sampson County and they have one son John A., Jr., who is a partner in the furniture business operated by Collins.

Collins served four terms on the old Board of Aldermen. He served first from July 30, 1930 to June 30, 1932. The councilman went back on the board in 1939 and served three consecutive terms.

He supported the Plan D type of government when the election was held in 1953. When the five-member City Council came into being he ran for office and was elected to the city's first council.

He was re-elected in 1955. The local businessman has lived in Pitt County all his life and he came to Greenville in 1921. He opened a furniture store in 1928 and he presently operates the store on Dickinson Ave.

The Collins family resides at 408 Harding St.

Collins filed one day after Councilmen S. Eugene West and Wesley

Harvey announced they would seek re-election. West and Harvey paid their filing fees yesterday morning.

Monday the Rev. O. J. Rooke, Negro associate pastor of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church, announced his candidacy.

Wednesday Lester Turnage, local real estate and insurance broker, announced that he would be a candidate for election to the council.

The deadline for filing is April 6 and the election will be held May 7.

Revised Charter Is Prepared By City Councilmen

A new charter which received City Council approval last night would set up staggered terms for the five members of the city's governing body beginning with the 1959 election.

That was the major change proposed in the revision which would bring the city charter up to date under the Plan D form of government. The charter had not been revised since the end of the old Board of Alderman type government.

The new charter must now receive the approval of the State Legislature before it becomes effective.

Under the new election plan, the two candidates for election in 1959 receiving the highest number of votes would serve four year terms on the council. The next three would serve two year terms. In 1961 there would be three positions open on the city's governing body. The top two men on the ticket would serve four year terms and the third highest man would serve a two year term.

At present all five positions on the Council are open each election and all councilmen are elected for two year terms.

Councilmen looked with disfavor on a proposal to require candidates to obtain three sponsors before filing for office.

That plan would eliminate the $1 filing fee now required. Councilmen decided to continue the filing fee and not require the three sponsors.

A third proposed change, to require voters to vote for the maximum number of candidates on the ballot, was held up pending a ruling on the legality of such a requirement. Councilmen will decide on that requirement at a meeting to be held next Thursday night.

Councilmen also approved a new Recreation Commission ordinance which would bring that ordinance under the Plan D form of government.

Freed Missionary Wants To Stay On

HONG KONG (AP)—An American Lutheran missionary freed after five years' imprisonment and house arrest in Red China said today he wants to stay there to "find out what it's all about."

The Rev. Paul J. Mackensen Jr., 32, a bachelor from Baltimore, was freed yesterday after serving a term for "acts threatening the security" of Red China. The Communists still hold four Americans in prison and five in the Shanghai house where the Lutheran had been kept since last summer.

The missionary said in a telephone conversation from Shanghai that he had undergone "a certain amount of education" while confined and had "learned something of the program for social changes taking place in China."

"Now I'd like to study what is going on. Whether I agree or not is up to me," he said.

He said his course depends on whether he finds "something to do" and that he had had no success thus far.

He said also that the Communists had not told him yet that he could remain.

A Roman Catholic Franciscan, the Rev. Fulgence Gross of Omaha, Neb., is the next American the Chinese are expected to free. He is due for release from house arrest March 29.

The other Americans reported transferred from prison to house arrest in the past year are the burglar and Chicago; John Alexander Houle, Glendale, Calif.; and Joseph P. McCormack, Ossining, N.Y., all Catholics; and Hugh F. Redmond, Yonkers, N.Y., an importer.

Americans believed still held in Chinese jails are Robert Ezra McCann, businessman from Alameda, Calif.; the Rev. Charles J. McCarthy, a Jesuit priest from San Francisco; Richard Fecteau, Lynn, Mass.; and John Thomas Downey, New Britain, Conn.

Fecteau and Downey were civilian employees of the U.S. Army aboard an Air Force plane shot down during the Korean War. Convicted by the Communists of espionage, Downey was sentenced to life and Fecteau to 20 years.

Redmond, who was in business in Shanghai, also got a life term.

Fathers Houle and McCarthy are due for release in June. Fathers Wagner and McCormack are due to be released in June 1958.

Suez Opening Is Expected Soon; Israeli Moving Fast

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt is reported giving its okay today for final clearance of the Suez Canal.

At the same time, Cairo's Suez Canal Authority announced that vessels up to 500 tons could start using the waterway at daybreak today.

The semi-official Middle East News Agency said permission for removing the last obstacles would be given the U.N. salvage operations chief, retired U.S. Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler.

Egypt's official excuse for delaying the salvage work for two sunken ships was that explosives had to be removed from the wrecks. The Middle East News Agency said Egyptian army engineers would do this today.

It now is expected the canal will be open by the end of the month to ships up to 10,000 tons—about 70 per cent of normal traffic including most tankers.

The key Middle East waterway was blocked by sunken ships, wrecked bridges and other debris when British and French invasion forces attacked Egypt last fall. Final clearance was delayed by Egypt until Israeli forces withdrew from the last areas they held following their October-November attack on Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

The Israelis, pulled out of the Gaza Strip yesterday and were to leave the Sharm el Sheikh area on the Gulf of Aqaba today.

The last major obstructions clogging the canal are the 841-ton tug Edgar Bonnet and the 1,460-ton Egyptian frigate Abukir. The Edgar Bonnet was sunk near Ismailia, the canal's halfway point. The Abukir went down four miles north of Suez, the southern terminus.

Wheeler has estimated it will take three weeks to remove the two ships, clearing the way for ships up to 10,000 tons. Small harbor and coastal craft can skirt cautiously past the Edgar Bonnet and Abukir.

The U. N. clearance operation began Dec. 28, almost two months after the canal was blocked. Using a fleet of 31 salvage vessels, assembled from various parts of Europe, the work proceeded at a fast rate until it was slowed by the political delay. First predictions had been that the job would take five or six months.

With no guarantee of how long the U.N. troops would remain in control of Sharm el Sheikh, the Israelis yesterday destroyed Egyptian military installations which had been used to keep ships from reaching the Israeli port of Eilat, at the head of the gulf.

City Will Negotiate For New Lot To Be Used For Future Carver Library

By ALVIN TAYLOR

The city will open negotiations for a lot on Sheppard St. to be used eventually for construction of a new Carver Library for Negroes. Councilmen authorized City Manager Leonard Bloxam to negotiate for the property at last night's regular monthly meeting.

The lot adjoins the present Carver Library Bloxam pointed out, and the present building is "not too suitable" for a library. The city now rents the library building.

Bloxam also proposed that "serious consideration" be given to making funds available in next year's budget for construction of a new library building on the property if the land is purchased. Councilmen instructed him to report back on the negotiations at the next meeting.

City fathers endorsed a Chamber of Commerce resolution calling for rerouting of U.S. Highway 13 from West End Circle to the U.S. 264 bypass, then along the bypass to the present U.S. 13 route.

They passed a second resolution supporting efforts to obtain greater appropriations for the Morehead City port. The resolution was similar to one passed by the Chamber. Both resolutions have been approved by the County Commissioners.

In line with the planned Clean Up Day campaign to be conducted next month, councilmen approved an ordinance which makes it unlawful to throw trash on the city streets and provides a fine of up to $50 for violations.

They also approved the purchase of around 50 trash receptacles to be mounted on Utilities poles throughout the city. Cost of the receptacles would be around $1,500.

Also approved was the installation of 180 feet of curb and gutter on Sixth and Forest Hills Circle in the vicinity of St. James Methodist Church.

City Manager Bloxam reported that the church would pay the entire cost of curb and gutter outside the city limits and also the cost of sidewalk along the property. The city will handle the engineering for the entire project.

Approval for paving a portion of Erml St. to prevent severe washing of the street was granted.

Councilmen turned down a request for curb and gutter at the entrance of Drexelbrook, a new subdivision being opened on Greenville Blvd.

Councilmen postponed the acceptance of bids for a crawler type tractor shovel until further study of the specifications is made. They called for a public hearing on the annexation of residential property on E. Tenth St. along the Greene Springs Park area.

Approval for the purchase of steel forms to be used by the Public Works Department for pouring of curb and gutter was granted.

Also approved was the transferring of a taxi franchise to William F. Langley and publication of a notice of the upcoming city election.

District Beta Clubs Elect New Officers At Ayden Convention

Janie Gurganus of Robersonville was elected secretary of Northeastern District Beta Clubs at the district convention at Ayden High School yesterday.

She will serve with president Jimmy Cooke of Williamston and vice-president Richard Lassiter of Colerain. They were elected by 51 delegates and sponsors from 41 schools participating in the one-day meeting.

Dr. W. E. Marshall of the Social Studies Department at East Carolina College delivered the principal address at the convention which was presided over by Brownie Hargraves of Ayden High School. Dr. Marshall's address was centered on "Citizenship—The Open Door To Vital Living."

The morning session of the convention was opened by the Rev. John L. Goff, pastor of the Ayden Christian Church, who pronounced the invocation. Greetings from the National Association of Beta Clubs were given by Mrs. Lightner, national advisor, and Mrs. R. F. Martin of Ahsoskie, state advisor, brought greetings from the state association. A welcome to the delegates was extended by Ayden Principal E. F. Johnson who also introduced Dr. Marshall.

The afternoon business session, which followed a fried chicken luncheon in the school cafeteria, was opened by Bonny Rutledge of the Ayden Beta Club, singing "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Sue Sutton.

Four members of the Robersonville Beta Club participated in a forum, "Youth Speaks," with Jesse Peel serving as moderator. Alby Warren discussed "Problems Facing Youth Today"; Louis Ross Roberson spoke on "Youth Has Economic Responsibilities"; and Marvin Everette Jr. discussed "Youth Faces World Problems."

Election of officers was conducted in a bittersweet atmosphere with banners, pictures and signs throughout the auditorium. Jimmy Cooke of Williamston and Rowland

Charge Driver In Four-Car Crash

A four-car collision occurred early this morning on Greene Street near the South side of the Tar River bridge.

Ernest Edward O'Neal, 22-year-old Negro of 405-B Elks Street, was charged with following too closely by Greenville police officers who investigated the accident. According to reports there were no personal injuries.

The 1955 pickup truck driven by O'Neal reportedly struck a State owned pickup that started started the pileup, causing traffic congestion for a considerable length of time.

Involved in the accident, in addition to O'Neal, were: John Olean Hardy, state employee from Snow Hill, driving the 1956 State pickup truck; Robert Carlton Fields Jr. of 1302 East 10th Street, driving a 1949 automobile; and Eleanor Irene Briley of Macclesfield Rt. 1, operating a 1954 pickup truck.

Damages were estimated as follows by investigating officers: $225 to the front of truck driven by O'Neal; $50 to the rear end of the State Highway Commission truck; $500 to the automobile operated by Fields; $300 to the rear end and $200 to the front and $50 to the Briley pickup truck.

The pileup, causing traffic damages for the incident was $825. The collision took place this morning at 8:05. Investigation by local police is incomplete.

Injured In Fall Out Of Truck

An elderly Greenville man was injured early yesterday afternoon, falling out of a pickup truck at the intersection of 11th and Evans Streets.

The injured man, William T. Stancil of 113 East 11th Street, fell out of the truck as it was making a left turn from 11th onto Evans Street. He was treated at Brooks Clinic for a broken finger on his left hand and abrasions of the forehead.

The accident took place at 1:15 p.m.

State College Students Face Trial For Rioting

RALEIGH (AP)—Some 27 North Carolina State College students were arrested last night during a riot which erupted as basketball fans were leaving the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament. The students are to be tried in city court today on breach of the peace charges.

Police Lt. H. T. Bailey Jr. said four police officers on the scene at the start of the demonstration used tear gas in their effort to quell the demonstrations in which several hundred students participated.

He said he got the impression the students were irked because basketball fans had parked their cars so as to block the student dormitory parking lots.

Lt. Bailey said the riot broke out around 11:30 p.m., calmed down, and then erupted again at midnight.

He said he arrived on the scene about 12:45 a.m. There were about 300 students in the street about a block from Reynolds Coliseum, scene of the basketball tournament.

"They were disorderly, throwing rocks and damaging cars and using some of the worst language I ever heard," said Bailey. "There were gangs of about 50 boys," he added, "and when we broke one up a new one would form."

Witnesses at the earlier demonstration said the officers had to back the demonstrators away so that some of the basketball fans could get their cars out. They reported two cars were overturned.

The four officers on duty at the start were reinforced by other police officers, highway patrolmen and deputy sheriffs until a force of about 25 were on duty.

Bailey said students slashed automobile tires with knives, and broke windshields with rocks and let air out of tires. He said one officer was hit on the arm by a rock.

He said tires were cut on about 6 or 8 cars and 3 windshields were broken, including one police car.

One officer, Charles Sweikert, was slightly burned on the hand by tear gas, and another, W. D. Miller, was scratched on the nose in a scuffle.

The State Prison Department furnished a bus which the police used in hauling some of the students to the police station. About 10 of the students were jailed briefly while the officers were bringing the riot under control.

Early this morning all 27 students were released in the custody of a State College official.

One student told a reporter that the student demonstration resulted from basketball fans who blocked dormitory parking areas.

"You can't get in and you can't get out when there are basketball games," he said. "We just gotarked and decided to do something about it."

Broadway Plays Described

Mrs. W. D. Tucker entertained the Chatham Book Club Tuesday at her home on East Rock Spring Road. She had as her guest speaker Mrs. Agnes Barrett who discussed four plays that she had seen in New York.

Mrs. Tucker greeted the arrivals and invited them into the living room where the president welcomed Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Morris Brody, guests, and led a short business meeting.

Members decided to send a contribution to the Red Cross chapter and to honor the late Mrs. Nina Williams in their gift to the library memorial garden.

Mrs. N. S. Beard and Mrs. Charles Blair assisted the hostess in serving a salad with appetizers and coffee.

Mrs. Barrett, presented by program chairman Mrs. T. M. Watson, gave a resume of "Auntie Mame," "Happiest Millionaire," "Diary of Ann Frank" and the "Matchmaker." She pointed out that they were stage "hits" because of superb acting, engrossing theme, or expert handling of difficult material.

Service League Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Service League was held Monday at Elm Street Park Recreation Building. Mrs. Wesley Harvey, president, called the meeting to order and led members in repeating the Prayer of Christian Service.

Mrs. Willford, projects chairman, announced that Red Cross solicitations would take place the second or third week in March.

Finance Chairman Mrs. Parkinson reported a most successful bridge tournament on Feb. 28 and thanked all who had helped to make it successful. She also secured workers for shrubbery sale being sponsored by Service League on Wednesday and Thursday, March 6-7, at New Carolina Warehouse No. 2. Mrs. Best reported one pair of crutches and a hospital bed were being used from the Lending Chest. She read a letter to members received from Mrs. Cox, chairman of sale of articles made by the blind, expressing her sincere appreciation of help by Service League members in recent sale.

BPWC Hold Annual Dinner

When the Business and Professional Women's Club holds its annual dinner meeting at the Woman's Club on Thursday, March 14, Dr. Eva Williamson of the Education Department of East Carolina College will be the guest speaker. Miss Camille Clark, chairman of the National Security Committee of the club, states that the monthly theme is "The Door Opens to Alert Americanism." The committee of which Miss Clark is chairman is composed of Mrs. Katherine Adams, Miss Gladys Stokes and Mrs. Margaret Farley. Members of the club bulletin committee, Mrs. Susie Webb and Mrs. Chester Walsh, will be hostesses for the meeting.

Miss Cynthia Mendenhall, director of the College Union, East Carolina College, will be guest soloist for the occasion accompanied by Miss Julia Fisher, immediate past president of B.P.W.C. Members and visitors who desire to attend the dinner should contact Miss Josephine Saad or Miss Mildred Manning and make a reservation by Tuesday, preceding the meeting.

Mrs. Eugene West, Emergency Charity chairman, reported answering thirteen calls during the month of February. Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee announced that six patients were helped at Pitt Memorial Hospital during the month and that two were being helped now.

Mrs. Little reported an outstanding month at the Coffee Shop and expressed appreciation to the Lakewood Pines Garden Club for dish gardens they had made and given to the hospital to be used in patients' rooms.

Mrs. Morris Brody secured more workers for the hospital and explained in detail workers' duties. Girl Scout Chairman Mrs. Wright said Girl Scout cookies would arrive Tuesday and be delivered as soon after as possible. Mrs. Harvey asked for men's magazines to be taken to hospitals at Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point.

Allied Youth Program

Mrs. L. R. Jones discussed the Allied Youth program at the Wednesday night meeting of the Junior Woman's Club held at the Woman's Club Building.

This program is an organization of teenagers that encourages social activity without alcoholic beverages. She was asked to investigate further the possibilities of an Allied Youth Club in Greenville.

At the beginning of the business meeting presided over by Mrs. E. Harrington Jr., president, the club collect, roll call and minutes were read by Mrs. N. C. Pierce. During the meeting the club voted to support financially the project of the Junior Clubs for improvement of the exterior of the general headquarters at Washington, D. C., a confederation

30 Years Ago Today

March 8, 1927

According to E. F. Arnold, County Agent, Pitt County will ship another car of poultry today. Yesterday 3,961 pounds of live poultry was loaded in a car at Ayden and 5,275 pounds at Bethel. The shipment at Bethel brought the farmers $1,167.30 in cash at the car door. The banker wondered what had hit the town when farmers began to roll in with their checks which kept up throughout the day. The car from Ayden is in Greenville today and at noon was more than half loaded. This car will put between $2,500 and $3,000 cash in the pockets of Pitt County farmers. Does the lowly hen pay?

Aries Book Club Elects

The members of the Aries Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Fred Sauve on Tuesday night.

During a brief business session, the following officers for 1957-58 were elected: Mrs. Stephen Bartlett, president; Mrs. Kenneth Rite, vice-president; Mrs. Carl Pierce, secretary; Mrs. Ed Parkinson, treasurer; and Mrs. Leo Jenkins, librarian.

After the business session Mrs. Astor Richardson presented an entertaining paper on the present King of Saudi Arabia, Saud, and his father, the former King Ibn Saud. Mrs. Richardson spoke on the restoration of the Saud Kingdom which was brought about by Ibn Saud and completed in 1926 and the many accomplishments and reforms of the old King which have been furthered by the new king, Saud.

Coca-Colas, sandwiches and nuts were served by the hostess who was assisted by her mother, Mrs. V. P. Scoville, and her niece, Mrs. Zack Taft.

Social Notes

Mrs. E. W. Harvey Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Harvey Jr. have returned from Burlington where they attended the funeral of Mr. Paul Morrow.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Recent surveys show that eight out of ten college women would choose marriage to a career, reports Dr. Elmer G. Millian, of the National Council of Churches' staff. As to the choice of a career, he notes that 40 per cent of the girls held that parents should not interfere in their choice of a husband.

Endorsement of the principles incorporated in President Eisenhower's Civil Rights program, and his proposals calling for technical assistance and economic development to impoverished areas of the world through the United States government and the United Nations, has been voted by the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. The Board also went on record endorsing legislation now before Congress supporting the President's recommendations for measures to legalize the status of Hungarian parolees now in the United States as well as other parolees who may seek haven in this country in the future. Mrs. Sevilla Millis is the Y.W.C.A. general secretary.

"In the old days when we wanted to do reverence to Unya Shungu, the Creator, we went together as a family; even the children and grandmother went. Every month when the moon was full we went quietly and reverently to the sacred pole. We said to the children: 'You must not make any noise at all; you must not even scratch.' We came singing to the pole, and after we had struck the palm leaf on our clenched fist to call the spirits, we knelt around the pole. We thanked Unya Shungu, the Creator, for life and children and for the good things we had. Then we asked for the things we needed for life: for a good husband for our daughter, and for health for all the family. Even the small children had a part. When we had finished and each one had tied his string on the pole, we went away singing a song. Now when we have the light of Jesus in our hearts we do not have to go out by moonlight to speak to the Creator. We can talk with Him every day in our own homes; we can meet every day as a family and sing hymns of praise to God for His new light, which has made the darkness disappear." This testimony to "the new way" was given recently in a religious drama by women of the Otetela tribe in the Belgian Congo, according to Mrs. Alice MacIn, of Cadillac, Mich., missionary in Lodja, B. C.

Mrs. Ray Garris Speaks To Club

AYDEN—Littlefield Home Demonstration Club heard their Family Life leader, Mrs. Ray Garris, discuss "Faith in Our Family and Home" at the monthly meeting March 1.

She pointed out that we must reveal our faith in our actions, make our religion attractive to others, and turn to God for new insights into problems.

Mrs. Lester Garris, president, presided and devotions were led by Mrs. Thad Hart Jr. who played religious records for the group.

Reports were heard from Mrs. G. G. Garris on gardening, Mrs. G. E. Garris on salt, and Mrs. Levi Worthington on clothing.

During the social hour the recreation leader presented a game of matching religious women of the Bible with their occupations. Mrs. Levi Worthington was hostess.

Women Meet For Church Program

FOUNTAIN—The Women of the Fountain Presbyterian Church recently met for their regular monthly meeting in the church with eleven members present.

Mrs. G. E. Trevathan, chairman of World Mission Committee, had the program. For her devotion she used verses taken from Matthew, which were read responsively followed by prayer. Mrs. Trevathan gave a very interesting and informative talk on Mission work.

Mrs. Mark Owens, president, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Hardy Johnson gave the secretary's report and Mrs. J. L. Dozier, the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Pauline Burnette, Church Extension Chairman, spoke on the urgent need for help in the flooded area of Kentucky.

Are You Bored With Your Face? Try Changing It With Makeup

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

If you are bored with that old face, be it masked in comedy or tragedy, hang it back on the totem pole and begin all over again.

Why not? Cosmeticians have us convinced that, unlike the leopard, you can change your spots to suit your fancy. If you don't like your hair, skin, shape or sway, improve it or change it completely.

Beauty and fashion authority Lilly Dache, now making available instructions on modern make-up techniques, says you can minimize any unattractive feature if you'll just give yourself a few minutes with your mirror.

Here are some corrective measures to modify that problem, all done with makeup and mirrors. But remember, don't be obvious about it, she cautions.

HOOKED NOSE . . . Foundation may make this less obvious. Blend a darker shade down the bridge of your nose, a lighter tone down each side, fade shades well so that shade-off is gradual. A make-up stick in darker tone can be touched to the "hook" and blended into the foundation.

BROAD NOSE . . . Highlight middle of the nose with light foundation, play down width by applying two strokes of darker foundation down each side of the nose. It will make it appear more slender.

TOO-LOW FOREHEAD . . . Use a lighter foundation at the forehead. Hair usually looks best brushed up, and back of the ear. If bangs are worn, make them short and high, separated or rounded.

SCRAWNY THROAT . . . A

BEFORE MAKEUP . . . She has good features but needs brightening effect of makeup, which shouldn't be overdone.

AFTER MAKEUP . . . Her makeup looks natural, like her face "grew that way."

Light foundation blended well around and upward from the base of the throat so there will be no line of demarcation should help. A rich throat cream will help to improve throat and neckline.

DOUBLE CHIN . . . Use a regular foundation shade, then apply a darker tone. This will tend to minimize the chin area. It seems ready to smile.

The application of it should be just under the jawbone, blending from ear to ear along the jawline. A hint of upturned corners will counteract this tendency. A tiny tilt with your lipstick at the corners of your mouth will make them seem ready to smile.

Dr. Staton Tells Bethel Club Communists Need God And Faith

BETHEL—Mrs. Carey Hammond and Mrs. Alvah Jackson were co-hostesses to the Book Exchange Club on Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. L. Brown.

Arrangements of spring flowers were used in the living room, dining room and den. After a short business session, presided over by Mrs. A. L. Whitley, president of the program chairman, Mrs. Jackson, introduced Dr. Mary Lois Staton, of the Education Department of East Carolina College who spoke to the group on Communism.

Dr. Staton began her talk by describing both the physical and emotional characteristics of the Russian people. She told the group that Russian children feel no emotional tie to the mother as do American children.

Reminding the club of the strength of Russian women, she said that they do most of the physical labor in the homes and on the farms.

Another interesting point that Dr. Staton brought out was that the Russian people are highly cultural people, loving music, art and dancing.

Having presented the background and history of the Russian people, Dr. Staton moved next to an interpretation of Communism. The foundations of Communism were laid by Karl Marx and Engels. Their ideas were kept alive

Planning Fair And Stunt Night

RED OAK—A spring fair and stunt night is being planned by the Red Oak club for March 15 with each club member contributing hand made articles or food for sale, announced Ways and Means Chairman Mrs. Sue May, Mrs. Wynn, Mrs. Rena Manning and Charles Jackson.

Mrs. F. L. Allen presided at the Wednesday meeting and welcomed Mrs. H. L. Roberts as a new member. The devotion was given by Mrs. Manning.

Mrs. Lucy J. Allen, delegate to the Music Training School at Tarboro, gave a history of the hymn for the month, "All Hail the Power." Members then sang the first stanza accompanied by Mrs. Lanman.

During the business session, Mrs. Manning, progress chairman, reported that questionnaires are still coming in. It was announced that club ladies will do overalls and paint 100 mail boxes. Club members voted to go en masse to the Cancer Clinic in Rocky Mount.

Mrs. Sue May suggested that a tour of Red Oak Club members' homes be made in April and that the husbands be asked to accompany them.

Sees Need For More Interest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alfred M. Gruenther says Americans must show more interest in foreign affairs or risk losing the cold war to the Russians.

The retired four-star general, former commander of NATO in Europe and now president of the American Red Cross, told a news conference yesterday Soviet Russia operates in "a faster league" than does the United States.

"I am not sure by our tradition or education we are able to handle this load—the propaganda battle for men's minds," Gruenther said.

"We are not exercising our full talents in the psychological aspects of the cold war because our basic concern, historically, has been in North America."

Anniversary Of Horizon-Widening

Today marks the 50th anniversary of an historic day for Greenville and all of Eastern North Carolina. It was 50 years ago today that the state legislature took final action on a bill to establish the state-supported East Carolina Teachers Training School. The school, according to the legislative act, was to be established east of the main north-south line of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

In months that followed the legislative enactment, each of the towns in the eastern part of North Carolina busied itself with persuading the State Board of Education that its community was the logical site for the school.

Citizens of Greenville and Pitt County passed two simultaneous bond issues of $50,000 each to be presented as a gift to the new school if it were established here. The $100,000 in local funds turned the trick, and Greenville was picked for the site of the school.

During the 50 years since the legislature created the institution of higher learning in the eastern part of the state, the college has grown in influence and in service. Today it has an enrollment of approximately 3,400 students. From its campus and classrooms have gone literally thousands of young people to take up their places in communities throughout this section of the state. Many of them in classrooms of public schools. Others of them in various types of jobs. Through the higher education which East Carolina College afforded them, these alumni have helped to make their communities and their state a better place in which to live.

Few of those who witnessed the passage of the legislative act on March 8, 1907 dared envision a college of more than 3,000 students, twelve departments of instruction and more than a score of buildings. Far sighted as they were, few leaders of that day dreamed that this East Carolina Teachers Training School would grow into one of the leading educational institutions of the state, broadening its sphere of influence beyond sectional and even the state's borders.

No other institution, public or private has brought greater benefits to the people of Eastern North Carolina during the past half century than East Carolina College.

And what of the next 50 years? Demands upon the college are growing with each passing year. Enrollment in the past 10 years has tripled. Even so, the college each year has had to turn away students for lack of facilities to afford them the education they desire. The number of young people in this section who want a college education is increasing each year. There is no indication that the demands upon East Carolina College will do anything but to continue to increase.

Looking back over half a century, and at the same time forward to another half century, it is evident that North Carolina has spent wisely every cent it has put into East Carolina College. If permitted to do so, and afforded the facilities with which to work, ECC will continue to lead this section of the state into a better way of life.

March 8, 1907 was a day which opened broad new horizons for Eastern North Carolina with provisions for a state-supported college in this section. Through its service during the ensuing half century, the college each day has opened broad new horizons to the young people and has thus enhanced and fostered the growth and development of the entire area.

Agreement As To Ports' Need

By LYNN NISBET
PORTS — The outstanding fact that developed from a three hour session of the State Ports Authority is that North Carolina must put a lot more money and effort into the project before its deep sea ports can successfully compete with those in South Carolina and Virginia.

A second development was that a large part of any effort will be wasted unless there is greater individual recognition given each port, less emphasis on one general operation based at Wilmington.

A large part of the meeting was taken up with James G. Buckley explanation and attempted justification of his recent survey report indicating that 95 per cent of port business between 1960 and 1965 would be handled at Wilmington, only 5 per cent at Morehead City, and attack upon the validity of these conclusions by Rep. D.G. Bell of Carteret.

There were frequent charges of bias and prejudice leveled at the entire Ports Authority, especially Col. Richard S. Marr, director of ports, who lives and has his office at Wilmington.

The issue hinged chiefly on difference of opinion about the advantage to Morehead City likely to accrue from acquisition by the Southern Railway System of the Atlantic & East Carolina lease on the State-owned line between Goldsboro and Morehead City, and the potential in tobacco traffic through the Morehead City port.

Admittedly a lot of the conversation was based on opinion rather than factual data. Preponderance of opinion seemed to be, as indicated by questions and reaction of Authority members, that these points had not been given proper consideration in the Buckley conclusions.

MONEY — Much of the criticism of the director and the Authority for inefficient promotion of the Morehead City port stems from insufficient personnel, which means not enough money. The ports people took their case to the Joint Appropriations Committee a few minutes after their own meeting adjourned seeking more adequate finances.

Representatives of two of the large tobacco leaf exporters complained that solicitors from Virginia ports visited them much more often than did representatives of their own State ports. These men—J.F. Todd of Austin Carolina Co., Kinston, and T.N. Ryan of A.C. Monk & Co., Farmville—resented the fact that high level port folks were paying much more attention to textile shippers than to exporters of tobacco. They pointed out that the Buckley report rated tobacco as the major product for developing general export business. Chairman Edwin Fite several times explained that his board is a State agency, equally interested in every area, and that many of their plans for enlarging port facilities and increasing business could not be carried out because the Legislature did not appropriate sufficient money.

In that connection, the parenthetically, many legislators have contended that the ports ought to pay their own way, and that no operating funds should be allotted above receipts. Advocates of port development come back with the contention that ports now pay their way, and will make increasingly larger indirect contributions to State progress by providing more profitable use of highways and taxpaying business. They can show that multiplied thousands of dollars are going to neighboring State treasuries that might come to North Carolina if our ports are put on competitive basis.

POTENTIAL — A third fact emerging from the conference, opinion, charges and counter charges at the prolonged session, is that the value of North Carolina ports is potential rather than present or actual.

North Carolina people have cherished two dreams for two centuries. One is for a major east-west land-based transportation system; the other for deep sea ports for competition in world-wide trade. More than a hundred years ago the State put public money into railroads designed to achieve the land transportation objective. Not until recent months when the Southern manifested keen interest in the rail line from Goldsboro to Morehead City, linking that area with the Mississippi Valley was there much hope of attaining that goal.

Major highways built a quarter century ago emphasized the east-west need, but connections beyond State borders were ragged. Even now the huge interstate Federal highway system fails to serve the east-west needs. These super-highways, like the big railroads and the main air lanes, run north and south.

If the Southern Railway takes over the Atlantic & North Carolina line, it will be the first instance of a real east-west transportation system. Clifford Toal, assistant to a vice-president of the Southern, told the Ports Authority Wednesday that there is still an "if". Although he thinks the deal will go through. That will mean potential development of central Eastern North Carolina, and the Morehead City port, beyond any reasonable expectations without that advantage.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE UPWARD LOOK
Hills and mountains occupied a conspicuous place in the life of our Lord. He delivered His outstanding message seated on the side of a mountain. He often went up into the mountains to pray. He was crucified on a hill called Golgotha. He ascended into heaven to resume His glory from a hill that has been known as the Mount of Ascension.

The Psalmist had written many centuries before, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help; my help cometh from the Lord who made heaven and earth." As one looks at the hills, there appears to be rescue abiding therein. Out from its valleys will stream horses and chariots. Down from its crest will come hosts of angels to bless and redeem.

The life that looks up is the life which is really happy and truly significant. Some folks go through life looking down. Some see only the world round about them, their life lived at eye level and no higher. But those who look up find indeed refreshment for their souls. Help cometh from the hills.

On one occasion, the prophet Elisha besought the Lord to open the eyes of one of his young followers and the young man looked, "and behold, the mountains were full of horses and chariots round about."

Toy Industry In Confident Mood

By ELMER ROESSNER
Despite squiggles in some other lines, the toy industry expects to set one more sales record this year. In fact, some manufacturers seem to think that if people spend less money foolishly for securities, autos and housing, they will have more for the important things of life, especially toys.

The reason for confidence is based on the fact that, regardless of what else is happening in the American economy, personal income is continuing to rise and the number of births is increasing. Those two things add up to more toy sales as surely as two and two make four.

In connection with the 54th annual American Toy Fair opening in New York yesterday, Abraham Swedlin, president of the Toy Association of the U.S.A., predicted that retail sales this year will reach $1.5 billion compared with about $1.3 billion in 1956.

ELVIS UNHORSES DAVY
The toy fair is one of the more sprawling shows of the year. Exhibits are spread through two large hotels and one major office building and spills over into a dozen other buildings through 10 blocks of mid-Manhattan.

There are many new trends this year. There are almost no new Davy Crockett toys and only a moderate number of new space devices. Elvis Presley toys seem to be the striking new field, and there are a number of toys and playthings bearing his name. If you can fill in numbered spaces with correct colors, you can paint his picture in oils, for example.

The trend toward scientific playthings seems to be growing. One of the model electric trains has a rocket-launching flat car. The rocket, fortunately, does not have an atomic war head. Newest in chemistry sets is a crime-detection laboratory. If that does not determine whether the butler did it, there is a microscope with a filter which permits seeing magnified objects in color.

If laboratory sciences fail, there is a new handwriting analysis kit. If a child can get a sample of the butler's handwriting, he can determine if that servant is the murdering sort. It also can be used to enable a child "to determine whether his parents are talented, virtuous, influential, friendly and sexually stimulating." That's what the announcement says, kiddies.

OTHER RUMBLES
New aerosol shampoos are on the way. A new chemical that eliminates crustiness, previously encountered in shampoo sprays has been developed.

Soap contests will move into high gear next week. A new one will have a $37,000 top prize and may move a 50-year-old soap into a higher bracket. Count on other soap makers to meet the challenge.

Still-higher freight rates are likely. The new rises granted railroads give truckers space for upward moves, and higher wages will compel many to take advantage. Still to come is another round of railroad rises, after which airlines may make some upward adjustments.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:
I am a Junior in Farmville High School, and because my teachers have meant so much to me, I would like to express my feelings in their behalf.

During my high school career many outstanding teachers have guided me on the uncertain path of my future. One who has definitely made an imprint in my history teacher. He has taught me more in the past three years than facts in Civics, U. S. History and World History. He has given me a better understanding of our government and of our heritage and how to be a better citizen of our U.S.

He is each and every student's friend and lucky am I to have had the privilege of being taught by such a fine person. I am not thinking of myself alone (as I had had the experience of being in all of his classes) but I am thinking of the students that have not entered our high school — even beyond that, the children not yet in school.

My history teacher is leaving this year — not because he no longer likes to teach, not because he doesn't like the pupils, school, or faculty, but because our state legislature decided it for him. He has a family to support, and this cannot be done on his present salary. Our state legislature wants to raise our teachers' salaries, but our state's revenue is not sufficient to do so. Our state's revenue is now receiving not more than $2400 salary. By the way, did you know that a sweeper at General Motors makes more than the highest paid teacher in North Carolina. Is our education not worth more than that? The future of our U.S. lies in the hands of us, the pupils, or should I say the citizens of the U.S.

Statistics show that N.C. is fifth in educating their teachers but is thirty-eighth in paying them. A great many of the students graduating from E. C. C. are leaving our home state for higher salaries. One student leaves for New Jersey as a beginning teacher at a starting salary of $4400.

I ask you why not raise our teachers' salaries twenty per cent, the minimum suggested by our Board of Education, as a start. Let's pay our teachers more and stop spending our money in educating them and then sending them away. Why send them away? Is our education important or not?

Plotting High Strategy

Genlemen: The staff has been summoned together again to contemplate, devise and map anew the spring and summer campaign against our perennial foe.

It has been said that "to be forewarned is to be fore-armed," and with that thought in mind we should even now be armed to the hilt.

Earlier this week we awoke to a sparkling blue sky, wine-like air and an invigorating spring to the turf which denotes winter is nearing its end.

Some weeds are already making their appearance in the lawn, and the time to decide our course of strategy is NOW.

I will read the final report on the operations for 1956: "Success was marked on two fronts. Chickweed and clover were generally obliterated by direct assault, i.e. uprooting them. Sundry other lawn pests were similarly dealt with, but the campaign also included chemical warfare so the precise value of the two separate modes of combat were indeterminate. Together, there was marked success.

"Only in one respect did the operation fail. Wild onions invaded and took over another 100 square feet of yard space and continue to multiply."

"In six years wild onions have extended their occupation area ten-fold. Conventional weapons have proven adequate against all other foreign growths."

The floor is open to suggestions.

"Pa... er, I mean Field Marshal... why not let's move?"

"None of that now. We've been running all weeds, ragged except for one; and besides, we've here to plan for Victory not Defeat."

Next?

"Mr. Field Marshal, can I go out and play?"

Silence in the ranks.

I see the Household Commander has a suggestion. What is it dear?

"Well, I bought a mixture of Butoxy ethoxy propionyl ester of 2, 4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid last night. According to directions on the can it should be applied early and repeated as new onion spikes appear. The distributor warns it is dangerous, though, and I'm not sure it would be safe for the child—, I mean, there's some fall-out hazard."

We've tried chemical warfare before, Commander; safety precautions were observed and we suffered no casualties. I should remind you though, it failed against wild onions.

"You only used it twice, dear, and that 2,4-D Amine weed-killer label advised repeated applications. A little more persistence might have won the day."

We're all aware that I take the field on every permissible occasion. It's too bad there's so much demand for my time elsewhere but that's the way it is. Any more suggestions?

"Daddy, can I go out and play?"

Very well, then. We'll use the new weed-killer and redouble our uprooting and try more frequent sprays. This may well be a year of decision. The prospect of paving the yard and painting it green does not appeal to me.

Meeting dismissed.

Other Editors Saying-- Out Of Proportion

(Wall Street Journal)
The Israeli agreement to withdraw from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba is a credit to the diplomatic ingenuity of the Secretary of State Dulles and to the good sense of the Israelis. Paradoxically, perhaps, it is also a rather unhappy commentary on some of the premises of American foreign policy.

For weeks on end the best brains in the State Department have been trying to resolve this "crisis." Yet it was hardly the most momentous matter in the world—a territorial and navigational dispute between two small nations; not so many years ago it would not have furored the brow of a single American diplomat or average citizen.

Admittedly there was some danger in the situation. B a long stretch of the imagination it was possible to conjure up the threat of war, perhaps even involving the Russians. And, of course, the timing of the clearing of the Suez Canal to some extent hinged on the Israeli withdrawal issue.

But after granting all that, the fact remains that the issue was not of over-riding significance to the interests of the United States. Certainly it was of considerably more immediate importance to any number of other nations. Why then should the United States be expected to produce the solution all by itself?

The answer is that over the postwar years the United States has got itself into a position where it is expected to do something about almost any difficulty that any nation, big or little, manages to involve itself in. The results this policy of total interventionism deserve more attention than they receive. One result, illustrated in the Gaza-Aqaba question, is that grappling with minor issues leaves little or no time for dealing with the important ones—which in the case of the Middle East are a workable agreement on the operation of the Suez Canal and a settlement of the Arab-Israeli war. How can the United States have a coherent and effective foreign policy if its highest diplomats must constantly try to patch up every crack everywhere?

Another result affects the responsibility of the nations concerned. The basic trouble in the Middle East is the doing of nobody else except the Middle Eastern nations. Yet by taking charge, as in the withdrawal imbroglio, we take these countries off the hook of the responsibility that morally rests squarely on them. And that is a dubious accomplishment.

Finally, meddling does not customarily win us friends. The world would probably not be much worse off, and there would be a good deal less ill will toward the United States in certain quarters, if we had not tried to settle the problems precipitated by Nasser's nationalization of the Suez Canal—problems which, again, concerned other countries much more directly than they did the United States.

All this is not an attempt to argue that the United States can divorce itself from the problems of the rest of the world, or that it should never offer its good offices in international disputes. The realistic question is not of isolationism versus interventionism. It is simply a question of proportion.

A foreign policy based on an unemotional evaluation of national interest will work and will command the respect of the world. A foreign policy based on sentimental acceptance of everybody's woes, no matter how remote, from our own national interest, can do neither.

Where Will It All End

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Curbsome comments of a Pavement Plato: There was a time when the American dream called for a bathroom in every home, an electric light in every room, a car in every garage and a chicken in every pot.

This was the goal of prosperity, and the hope was that it all could be won by working a 5-day, 40-hour week.

How old-fashioned that dream seems now! The present dream is one of multiple plenty. A family is falling behind the Joneses if it doesn't have at least two of everything — and maybe three.

The goal now is two telephones and two television sets in every home, a bathroom for every bedroom, a radio and at least two floor lamps for every room, and at least two cars for every garage. All this is supposed to be achieved now on a 5-day, 35-hour week.

The kitchen that once contained a single gas stove and an icebox now overflows with an electric stove, an electric oven, a broiler and a refrigerator as big as a closet—the deep freeze is so big it has to be put in the basement.

Once the American home was kept clean with a dustmop and a broom. Today it has a dustmop, a broom, a carpet sweeper, and a vacuum cleaner with 37 different kinds of attachments.

Remember the first pioneer in your neighborhood who bought a room air-conditioner? Now it isn't enough to air-condition even the entire house. At least one of the family cars should be air-conditioned, too.

Where will it all end? Why, we aren't even half-way to happiness yet! In the last campaign Vice President Nixon foresaw a day when Americans might work only four days a week. When this day arrives, and the nation's long-range, high-speed highway network is completed, other crystal ball gazers foresee the rise of the two-home family — which will shuttle between its dwelling in the city and its weekend refuge in the country.

Each family home — the one in the city, the one in the country — will, of course, need a broom, a dustmop, a carpet sweeper, a vacuum cleaner, two telephones, two television sets, a radio and a bathroom for every bedroom, three kinds of stoves, a refrigerator, a deep freeze, air-conditioners, and a garage that will hold two or three cars.

This automatically will double the present prosperity, as new automatic factories stamp out fresh millions of the material gadgets that spell out America's high rate of living.

But prosperity always has a price tag on it.

One price of the existing prosperity may be reflected in the fact that one out of every two hospital beds in the country is occupied by a mental patient, and one out of every 12 children born today will suffer a mental ailment.

The sale of aspirin has risen steadily with the rise in living standards, and some war has figured out that for every $40 earned in the United States somebody gets a headache.

The price of prosperity — worry is also shown by the widespread increase of the number of people who are unable to slumber without taking a sleep capsule, and who can't face the duties of the day unless they glup "happy pills" as if they were peanuts.

But the people in America who are sick now are sick because they haven't been able to find contentment while surrounded by more creature comforts than any other people in history.

The one-home family now can get by with a single family doctor. If the hypertension, ulcer and heart attack problems are doubled in the one-home family home, probably will require at least two doctors.

Such being the case, if we are to go on madly trying to eat higher and higher on the hog, perhaps the educational goal should be fewer kindergartens and more medical universities to turn out more physicians to write more "happy pill" prescriptions.

Where will it all end? Where, indeed?

Is Knowland Writing His Platform?

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Senator William F. Knowland has already begun to write the platform on which he may seek the Republican Presidential nomination in 1960, in the opinion of Capitol Hill colleagues and observers. And his current preview of his plans will inevitably lead him into a clash with a fellow-Californian cherishing a similar ambition — Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Knowland carries all questions on his course after he voluntarily quits the Senate next year. He will not say whether he will try for the 1958 California gubernatorial nomination and election, which would be a necessary preliminary step toward the White House. If elected governor, he could probably switch the convention delegation to himself instead of to Nixon.

But the Senate Minority Leader shows a greater interest in political and governmental affairs than expected of a man yearning for delivery and self-entary retirement. He does not seem to be preparing for such an active but nonpublic career as publisher of the family newspaper at Oakland. Unless all signs mislead, he is flexing his muscles for a serious try at the Presidency.

KNOWLAND'S CONTEMPT FOR THE U.N.'S DOUBLE STANDARD He shows every indication of following in the footsteps of one of California's greatest sons—the late Hiram Johnson, who led in the movement to block American entry into the League of Nations. Knowland, in recent declarations verging on criticism of Eisenhower-Nixon foreign policy, is setting himself up as an ultranationalist and anti-Communist in everything. Like Johnson, he is an "irreconcilable" in many respects.

He does not, for instance, share his President's faith in the United Nations. Although a U.S. delegate to that body, he has said that he would resign if it voted sanctions against Israel, or if it accepted Red China as a member. Although sympathizing with this attitude, Ike's responsible role might force him to accept such bitter decisions.

Knowland can barely conceal his contempt for what he calls the U.N.'s "double standard." Although it might have meant war, he favored employment of sanctions against Moscow because of the Hungarian massacres, even if it led Russia to resign from the international organization. Ike concedes the existence of a "double standard," but bows to realities which the Senator reviles.

RIGHT WING SUCCESSOR TO LATE SENATOR TAFT Similarly, the Senator is such a stout supporter of Chiang Kai-shek and Syngman Rhee that he detests even the thought of diplomatic palaver with the mainland Communists. Yet it is conceivable that Ike would not violently oppose Peiping's admission to the U.N., if it could obtain the necessary two-thirds vote in the General Assembly. But Knowland would walk out if that happened. He might quit the Senate in advance of his schedule as a protest.

Although the Senator has a good record for supporting the Administration's domestic program, he is still regarded as the right-wing successor of the late Senator Robert A. Taft. He is not too keen for the Eisenhower philosophy of "modern Republicanism." He stands closer to the center than Eisenhower or the Vice President.

It is true that Nixon's "liberalism" is suspect, especially by Democrats and professional liberals. But, as Ike's alter ego, he must support and promote many White House policies, domestic and foreign, which Knowland criticizes openly or privately.

For other reasons, a Nixon-Knowland clash in 1960 seems inevitable. And the politicians' expectation of a California collision likes in the fact that all other possibilities — Dewey, Lodge, Hester, Dirksen, etc. — are falling by the wayside.

Unlimited Forgiveness

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 18—20.

Christ's disciples asked Him, "Who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" Jesus set a little child in their midst, saying, "Whoever shall humble himself as this little child, he is greatest."

Many mothers brought their little children to Christ to be blessed by Him. His disciples would have sent them away, but Jesus said: "Suffer little children to come unto Me." He blessed them.

James' and John's mother brought them to Jesus asking that in the kingdom of Christ one might sit on His right hand and one on His left. Jesus said that was not within His power.

Jesus said that he who would be first in heaven would be he who served others, as Jesus came to minister and to give His life for many.

MEMORY VERSE—Ephesians 4:32.

Unlimited Forgiveness

CHRIST TEACHES US TO PARDON OFFENDERS AND TO BE HUMBLE

Scripture—Matthew 18—20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL OUR LESSON is titled "Unlimited Forgiveness," but there are a number of other lessons to be learned in the chapters assigned for our study.

"Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" asked Jesus' disciples. Did Christ need to answer that to the men who had been His constant companions for so long?

Jesus called a little child to Him, set him in the midst of them, and said: "Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

A very small child is very humble, uncertain of itself, dependent upon mother and father. As the child grows and develops he gains confidence in himself, becomes more independent and may then develop the desire to be thought superior to others which Christ deplored.

Humbleness need not be carried to extremes and make us appear inferior. We can respect un-Christian than to harbor malice in our hearts against others or to offend another and not ask forgiveness.

Peter asked Jesus how many times he should forgive—seven times? Jesus answered 70 times seven.

Then he told a parable about a king one of whose subjects owed him a tremendous sum of money and had nothing with which to pay. The king at first was going to sell the man's wife, children, everything he possessed, to get his money, but the man begged so piteously and said he would pay if given time, that the king relented and forgave him the whole debt.

What did this man do then? He went to a fellow servant who owed him a comparatively small sum, and threw him into prison although the man promised to pay if time was given him. Hearing of this the king was very angry and punished the wicked servant.

James and John, the sons of Zebedee, were brought to Jesus ourselves but not yearn to lord it over others; to always want to be first, as the disciples seemed to desire.

Christ also warned that "who shall offend one of these little ones, it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

The Scripture assigned us is very long and filled with episodes, and we cannot go too much into detail. On the subject of forgiveness which is the principle theme of the lesson, Jesus said that if a brother sinned against another the offended one should go at once to him and tell him his fault.

If he listened and acknowledged the fault, they could be friends again at once. A good many quarrels could be settled if this procedure was tried.

If one of us should be the offender, however, let us confess to the injured person and try to make amends at once. This applies to children as well as grown-ups. Nothing is more childish and by their mother, who asked Christ if, in His kingdom, the sons might sit one on His right and one on His left side? Jesus asked the men if they could endure the things which were in store for Him, and they said yes. Jesus said, however, that the privilege to sit beside Him was not His to give.

The other Apostles were justly angry at the brothers, but Jesus said: "Whoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant; even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many."

The last verses of our lesson tell how Jesus restored the sight of two blind men, "having compassion on them."

Three lessons may be impressed on the classes—to forgive others their trespasses against us as we expect forgiveness, to be of an humble spirit, not self-asserting, desiring the best places for ourselves, and to serve instead of demanding service from others.

Stuart Symington (D-Mo) has suggested that some of the secrecy surrounding missile tests be lifted so the public will have a better understanding of this defense effort.

"Under the procedure, I believe it would be a good idea if responsible members of the press were allowed to see more of the actual operations here," Symington said after inspecting the missile sites at Patrick Air Force Base yesterday. Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, said the public is "somewhat confused" over missiles. Contradictory news stories have developed in the wake of a few mishaps during tests.

Big Problem Is Two-Way Travel DALLAS (AP) — An Air Force scientist says modern science now can create an artificial environment which would sustain human life on the moon but that the problem is getting there and back. Lt. Col. John P. Stapp, chief of the Aero-Medical Field Laboratory at Holloman Air Development Center, N. M., said his laboratory is conducting tests on the creation of such artificial environments.

Wake Forest Makes Fourth Bid To Unseat Tar Heels

Maryland Meets S. C. In Second Tilt

By KEN ALTYA
 RALEIGH, N. C. — Wake Forest, beaten three times this season by undefeated North Carolina, but conceding nothing to the nation's No. 1 college basketball team, gets its fourth shot at the Tar Heels tonight in the semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

Their 7:30 p.m. meeting will be followed by a contest between South Carolina and Maryland, other winners of yesterday's first round games.

After watching North Carolina polish off Clemson 81-61 for its 25th in a row, Wake Forest did a workmanlike job of defending champion North Carolina State 66-57.

The day's first game produced the only upset, South Carolina upending third-seeded Duke 84-81. Second-seeded Maryland squeezed by Virginia 71-68, but may have lost the services of guard Nick Davis, a 21-point performer. He sprained his right ankle severely in the closing minutes.

The afternoon doubleheader drew 10,550, with the night games attracting 11,500. Sellouts of more than 12,000 are assured for tonight and tomorrow when the finalists battle it out for a berth in the NCAA eastern regional tournament at New York next Tuesday.

Lennie Rosenbluth, North Carolina's All-America ace, scored 43 points as he broke the tournament scoring record by three points and hit a record 19 baskets in 31 shots. He succeeded where Grady Wallace of South Carolina just missed in leading the upset of Duke with 41 points, one shy of the old mark set three years ago by Buzz Wilkinson of Virginia.

Rosenbluth hit 12 of 16 first half shots and piled up 27 points to direct his mates to a 47-30 half-time lead.

The Tar Heels face in Wake Forest a team that has bowed to them three times by a combined margin of only 16 points and given them two very rugged tests in the past month.

Wake Forest never trailed as it handed North Carolina State Coach Everett Case his initial first round conference tournament loss in 11 years here. The Deacs led 24-20 at the half, opened the last half with four quick baskets and then let State foul itself into defeat. Wake Forest took only four shots in the last eight minutes, hitting 17 free throws in that period.

Little guard Jackie Murdock hit 8 of 14 of his free throws and ended high scorer with 22 points. South Carolina, which had dropped two games to Duke by 41 points during the season, fell 14 points behind the Blue Devils three times in the first half before cutting the Duke lead to 40-35 at the intermission.

Wallace, slow to start, went almost eight minutes without a basket and had only 14 points in the first half. Duke, with a 39 per cent floor average, left the door open for the belated Gamecock uprising by missing six straight foul shots in the last four minutes. It was after the last of these lapses that Wallace drove down the court to drop in a layup that tied the score at 81-all with 26 seconds left. He was fouled on the play and added what proved to be the deciding point. Duke was unable to strike back and two more fouls by Wallace with five seconds left wrapped it up.

South Carolina played only six men, starting three sophomores. Sixteen points by soph Ray Pericola and 10 by 6-8 center Fred Lentz who grabbed 14 rebounds helped Wallace in his big effort.

Jim Newcome, with 20 points and 18 rebounds, was Duke's pace setter. Maryland's victory over Virginia was its fourth over the Cavaliers this season, two others coming by four points.

Virginia raced into a 20-12 early lead and it was 35-all at the half. After Maryland took a six-point lead early in the last half, its biggest margin, Virginia stormed back to take the lead three times and make a finish fight of it. Four foul shots by soph Bill Murphy in the last 49 seconds furnished the eventual winning margin.

Each team hit about 37 per cent from the floor, Maryland dropping three more fouls on as many more chances to gain its edge. Davis' 21 points and 16 by John Nacincik were Maryland's best scoring efforts. Herb Busch, 6-7, 245-pound Virginia soph center, scored 18 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Scrapper Bill Miller, a 5-9 bespectacled guard, hit 16 for runnerup honors.

Two N. C. Cities Talking Hockey

CHARLOTTE — The Eastern Hockey League champion Charlotte Clippers got two hat trick performances here last night in whipping second place Philadelphia 11-3.

Jim McNulty scored five goals for his sixth hat trick of the season while Gerry Sullivan followed with three goals. The hat trick is a player scores three goals. It was Charlotte's 19th straight home victory, a league record. The attendance of 4,774 brought the season's home total of paid admissions to 150,235 for 32 games.

Ice hockey at Charlotte has proved so profitable that two other North Carolina cities may join the Eastern Hockey League in 1958.

League President Tom Lockhart said here yesterday that Raleigh and Greensboro "have made inquiries about joining our league." Raleigh already has a coliseum while Greensboro will have one ready for play in 1958. Lockhart, who presented Charlotte with league's championship trophy last night, said he expects that someday the league will have a southern and northern division.

The only addition to the league next season will be the New York Rovers, a team scheduled to have played this season but forced to withdraw at the last minute when their arena at Huntington, L.I., was not completed.

Welters Collide In Tonight's Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Garnett (Sugar) Hart and Walt Byars, a couple of ambitious welterweight newcomers who have almost forgotten how defeat tastes, collide in a television fight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Hart, a power-punching 21-year-old from Philadelphia, has won 12 straight in nearly two years. Byars, 25-year-old Boston boxer and holder of the New England 147-pound crown, has an unbeaten streak of 10 for about the same period.

Despite the impressive records of both, Hart has been made an almost prohibitive 4-1 choice for the 10-round.

'Monopoly'

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ruled today the International Boxing Club of New York, Inc. is a monopoly to restrain trade.

He found the club, its officers and affiliates guilty of monopoly to restrain interstate trade and foreign commerce in promoting and presenting professional championship bouts throughout the United States.

"The defendants, as a result of their activities, acquired power during the period covered by the complaint June 1, 1949, to May 15, 1953 to exclude competitors from the promotion of championship contests in the United States," the judge said in a 59-page opinion.

Pirate Jayvees Swamp Kinston Cagers By 91 To 63

A BAD NIGHT FOR AMOS—Coach Amos Sexton, Kinston high school basketball coach, seems troubled. Perhaps he has good reason. Last night, the East Carolina Jayvees handed the Red Devils the worst defeat they've suffered in over a year, swamping them 91-63 on the Kinston court. The Pirates finished the season with an undefeated card, winning 11 straight contests. Sexton's crew is preparing to enter competition to retain their Class AA State championship.

Ayden Tops Perquimans; Reach District Semifinals

WILLIAMSTON—Ayden's Tornados whipped Perquimans, 71-45, last night, to advance to the semifinal rounds of the District 1 Class A Tournament here.

Coach Stuart Tripp's Pitt County representatives outscored the Perquimans outfit in every period of the game except the third and were never behind in the game.

Burt Tripp, 6-4 center, was high scorer for the winners with 23 points. Leslie Stocks netted 13 and Lindy Dunn threw in 10 to aid Tripp in the scoring department.

Tommy Edwards was a key rebounder along with Tripp and Billy Vandford. Coach Tripp used 10 substitutes during the course of the game, indicating that the Maroon-and-White had little trouble in winning.

For Perquimans, Tom Matthews collected 11 points.

Ayden grabbed an early 22-12 first quarter advantage and poured it on in every period following. In the second stanza, Tripp and Company scored 18 to Perquimans' 9 and in the final period, they outscored the losers, 17-7. In the third period, Perquimans outdid them by only three points, 17-14.

Winner of the District Tournament here at Williamston will battle for bigger stakes in the regional tourney. Winners of the regional tourneys throughout the state will tangle for the State Class A championship.

KINSTON—East Carolina's Jayvees copped their eleventh consecutive victory of the season last night, swamping the Kinston Red Devils 91-63 here on the Devil court.

For the high school club, winner of the Northeastern Conference title and defending Class AA State champs, it was their worst defeat in over a year. In 31 games, they dropped only one other decision, a 63-61 decision to the Atlantic Christian Jayvees last week.

The Baby Pirates hit accurately on 39 out of 72 shots from the floor and grabbed 48 rebounds to dominate the play from both the shooting and rebound angles. Kinston, having its worst night of the year from the floor, was able to sink only 22 of 57 shots for 38 per cent.

Tim Smothers, 6-5 sophomore center from Bethany, was ECC's top scorer with 21 points, although he played only half of the ball game. The rangy 210 pounder had an amazing accuracy, dropping in 10 shots out of 14 tries.

Stanley Led
 Bobby Stanley, Kinston, led all scorers with 25 points. Coach Earl Smith, Pirate mentor, cited Stanley and Kinston forward Charles Lewis as "the two Kinston boys who showed the most poise. They held their heads throughout the game and kept plugging away despite the score."

Smith also named four of his own boys as outstanding. He used his entire bench and all the boys played about an equal amount of time. "Wallace Lewis did a good job on the boards for us; Roy Dennis' shooting in the first half gave us the real advantage in the game work set up a lot of shots for us. Dennis O'Brien played a good general all-around ball game."

He also praised Ike Riddick and Charlie Adams. "The whole club played a cool, steady ball game."

On Mound

TOMMY HARKEY—This former service pitcher who helped pace East Carolina to a North State baseball crown last year, will be back on the mound for the Bucs when they open their defense of that title for 1957. Markey and his mates are now in training for their opening games against VPI and Delaware at the ECC field.

and didn't get upset at all. It was their best game of the year."

Big Lead
 The Baby Bucs took an early 24-14 lead in the first quarter and extended it into a 44-27 lead by halftime. By the end of the third stanza, East Carolina had racked up more points than Kinston scored all night. They had a 69-41 advantage.

It ended 91-63.
 For East Carolina's Jayvees, the Kinston game wound up a perfect season of 11 victories. Kinston will now proceed to take up the defense of their State title in the various playoffs required.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

We hope you've been able to take in some of the stirring events this week commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of East Carolina College. The World Affairs Institute on Thursday brought a large group of fresh air and information into Greenville, where people are inclined to be a little insulated from affairs on the outside, and the ceremonies on Friday, complete with academic procession and visiting dignitaries, were impressive and appropriate. We felicitate East Carolina on its healthy 50th—and wish it many more anniversaries as healthy. . . . Not that it didn't have a healthy start—all you have to do is look at the pictures in last Saturday's Reflector to see what a really good—and attractive—beginning the College had, as far as the appearance of the Faculty was concerned. . . .

Censorship

Last week the U. S. Supreme Court handed down an important decision that had nothing to do with Segregation. It concerned the prohibition of the circulation of books that might tend to corrupt American youth. The Michigan Penal Code does prohibit the circulation of books for this reason, and the Supreme Court found that this part of the Code is unconstitutional. In other words, books can't be kept off the shelves of libraries or stores simply because some people think they're immoral. According to Justice Felix Frankfurter, consenting to this type of censorship "reduces the adult population of Michigan to reading only what is fit for children. It thereby curtails one of those liberties . . . that history has attested as the indispensable conditions for the maintenance and progress of a free society. . . ."

We must say that we agree with Justice Frankfurter in principle—but we still hope this decision won't bring back a flood of the kind of comic books that have been a disgrace to the American publishing business and only recently have been disappearing. If keeping them off the newsstands is censorship, then we're for it—but that's the only kind we're for, we hasten to add. . . .

Here and There

Recent issues: A new novel based on the notorious Leopold and Loeb murder case, "Nothing but the Night," by James Yaffe. Meyer Levin's "Compulsion," based on the same case, is high up among the best sellers. Crime, after thirty years, is paying off. . . . Talking about juvenile delinquents, "Seed on the Wind," by Bill Geagan, shows that if a boy can be properly guided when he's young to love the great outdoors, he'll never be a delinquent because he'll be too busy camping, fishing and hunting. Sounds all right to us—as long as he hunts and fishes for the right things. . . . "Religion In and On the Job" is a collection of newspaper columns by Eugene Carr, which have appeared over the past three years and deal with everyday problems and their relationship to the principles and beliefs of religion as it is taught and practiced today. . . . A new and revised edition of E. Franklin Frazier's "The Negro in the U. S.," incorporates recent changes in the urban life of Negroes, and includes a section on reactions to the Supreme Court's segregation rulings. . . .

Panacea

"Pray Your Weight Away" is a brand new book presenting a fool-proof formula for reducing. It's by Rev. Charlie Shedd, a Presbyterian minister who lives in Houston, Texas. Desperate because he couldn't lose even a pound, and weighing a cool 300, one day in despair he dropped to his knees and asked God for help. "From this simple beginning," says his publishers, "he evolved a new method of whipping the problem of obesity." If Rev. Shedd can do it, why can't you? Anyway, "Pray Your Weight Away" tells you how, so come and get it.

Bake your next HAM this easy Reynolds Wrap Way!

HAM IN FOIL

Place ham lengthwise on long sheet of Reynolds Wrap. Pad bone ends with fold of foil. Wrap by bringing foil from both sides up over ham and overlapping 3 to 4 inches. Press to sides of ham. Bring underneath foil up over top piece letting it extend up 3 inches to hold juices. No need to seal. Place wrapped ham in shallow pan in moderately hot oven (400° F.). Bake mild cure "cook-before-eating" ham as follows: whole ham, 16 min. per lb.; half ham, 18 min. per lb. Bake "cooked, ready-to-serve" ham as follows: whole ham, 1 1/2 hours; half ham, 1 hour. Remove from oven, open Reynolds Wrap, with large spoon remove fat from foil, then spread out to form liner for pan. (No scouring!) Remove rind from ham, score fat and stud with cloves. Spread with mixture of 1 cup brown sugar, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 2 tbsp. wine, vinegar or fruit juice. Return to oven 15 minutes to brown.

Crop Insurance Being Classified

On the basis of production history for six years, 1950 through 1955, tobacco farm owners in Pitt County have been considered for crop insurance coverage and those eligible for this insurance protection were placed in one of three coverage groups. This was announced by H. Kellom James, Dist. Supv. for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

The Corporation's Underwriting Division, in an effort to recognize the cost of production variation between individual farm owners, worked out the classifications effective for 1957, James stated. In other words, Group-1 represents the lower production producing owners which on an average invest less in growing an acre of tobacco than those producing much higher yields. The Supervisor further explained that Group-2 represents the average range of yields while Group-3 represents those on the top side in production history. The insurance coverage, or protection, per acre of tobacco by groups is as follows:

Group	Per Acre Coverage
1	$270.00
2	337.00
3	410.00

EXTRA COVERAGE FOR IRRIGATION

Additional coverage of 10 per cent is added to the above group coverage for individuals, where it has been determined that certain standards in irrigation have been met. For example, an insured in Group-2 above and meeting the irrigation requirements would have $370.70 coverage per acre. James pointed out that the extra coverage for irrigation is in recognition of reduced risk from drought and is really an experiment in Pitt County only in this Eastern area. With or without the extra coverage for irrigation, the premium rate is the same for the three coverage groups. The premium rate is only $8.20 per acre. With past records as a basis for classification, James stated that "the risk is considered to be about equal for the coverages established and for that reason the same premium rate applies to all three groups." Insureds who have had crop insurance protection for seven or more years without a loss payment will receive a 25 per cent discount on their premiums in recognition of their individual good experience. There are approximately 350 policyholders in Pitt that will receive the premium discount in 1957.

Plaintiff Draws 5 Days In Jail

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A beauty parlor operator complained to police that her husband beat her, but she refused to testify against him, so today she is serving a five-day jail sentence for contempt while the husband has gone free.

Judge Lyman B. Suster imposed the sentence on Mrs. Dorothea E. Divers, 39. She told officers at the time her husband Robert, an electrician, was arrested, that he had beaten her 10 times since last April, and had beaten her 25 times since they were married seven years ago.

'Other Moose' Was A Horse

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—The sight of two sheriff's deputies escorting a moose out of town prompted a great deal of interest and overstimulation at least one person's imagination.

A short time after directing the moose back to the Delmo Lake region, Deputies James O'Rourke and James Konen were called on to handle another moose in a different section of town.

They hurried to the scene but returned empty-handed. Konen explained: "That other moose was a horse."

After 7 Brides, He Has 'Had It'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Superior Judge Elmer D. Doyle arched an eyebrow and commented: "This must be the record—21 marriages between two people."

Before him yesterday were Mrs. Beverly Avery, 46, and her 13th ex-husband, Raymond J. O'Malley, 41. Mrs. Avery's 14th mate, Gabriel Avery, 46, was with her when she sought $233 back all money from O'Malley, who informed the court she had been his seventh bride. He said he would pay up and that he never would marry again.

"You mean you've had it?" queried the court.

"I've had it," O'Malley solemnly replied.

Ill for Doctor Barton
 Elizabeth Siefert. Copyrighted by permission of the publisher, Head & Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 26
 Mid-afternoon of the day after the disaster, Dr. Grady Barton came to Judge Cowan's home, and a smiling Aaron took him up to see "his patient."

"June's doing very well, Doctor," said the nurse, rising from her chair.

"She looks it," said Grady, smiling at the girl in the four-poster bed, her eyes still shielded with dark glasses; but her cheeks were pink, and her parted lips were healthily red.

"Tired?" June asked, stretching her hand to him.

"He took it," he agreed. "Washed out. But with it all, very content."

Her fingers tightened in his. "Now that I know you're going to be all right," he went on. "Does your head ache?"

"A little—and my hand's numb. But, like you, I'm happy enough."

He bent toward her and kissed her soft lips. "June?" he began, then looked over his shoulder, for Aaron had come to the door.

"You wanted on the phone, Dr. Barton," said the houseman.

Grady hesitated. June's hand pushed him away. "Answer it and come back," she said, smiling.

He was gone for five minutes, and she watched him when he returned to the room. It had been months since Grady had walked in just that manner, assured of step, spine and head erect, his mouth firm.

Again her hand reached for his, and he moved the armchair closer to the bed.

"What was the call?" June asked him.

He looked surprised, then nodded. "Oh—a child at Neighbors. Sore throat, some fever—"

"Aren't you going over?"

"That was the idea—but no, I don't think I'd better. June."

"But why not? Dad says your contract, and your license, are all in good order. He said that your license had only been suspended and that Kopp has dismissed the lawsuit—so the license trouble is over. Didn't you know that?"

Grady nodded. "Yes, I knew it. Knew too that a committee of citizens had called upon Mo Chronister with a resolution of confidence in your doctor."

June sought to lift herself from the pillows, and his hand pressed her back. "But Grady!" she persisted. "It means you can stay here and work."

"Yes, I suppose it does," he said gravely. "But I think I have a better idea, June. I'd like to be able to give this place to Tom-need you! That's been proven. "Yes, but—" "Won't you try it?" "I have tried it, June. After the original suit, remember? And—I didn't work."

She sighed.

"Medicine is a somewhat exact science, June," he said gravely, "but the people we apply it to are not exact. And every time I would seem to make an error, the people here would remember this suit, and..." His broad shoulders lifted in a shrug.

"The people here," she repeated softly, her pretty face troubled. His brow was wrinkled, his manner anxious, and she laughed at him gently.

"There are some good things here, Grady," she teased.

"Yes, ma'am!" he assured her. "And I plan to take the best of them away with me. The thing, really, that I came to the Hollies to get remember? The girl with the boat. I hoped of course that you'd like to go to the city with me."

"Why, Grady! I'd even stay here with you."

And, laughing, they were in each other's arms. He held her gently, lovingly. "Get well fast, darling," he urged. "I want to marry you, soon."

"Oh, I am getting well, Grady. But—just now—wasn't there a call for Dr. Barton?"

He laughed and stood up—tall and strong. He took his bag, hefting its weight in his left hand, then he came back to bend over June and kiss her.

Smiling, she watched him walk out of the room, his head up, his shoulders straight, the bag swinging from his hand. Pride filled her heart. Grady would lose all bitterness and be his own man again—her man.

He'd been that—from her first sight of him—one day way last fall when she's raked leaves with Candy. She'd never told him about that. And she must—some day. Soon.

Ammunition In Attic Turned Up

READING, Pa. (AP)—When Mrs. Rose Guy opened an almost forgotten suitcase in her attic, enough ammunition fell out to start a small-scale war.

There were 37 mm. and 20 mm. shells, rifle grenades, a bazooka rocket, the nose-fuse of a plane rocket, a flask of gunpowder, a belt of .50-caliber tracer cartridges, several hand grenades, many clips of .30-caliber ammo and another small arms ammunition.

Mrs. Guy said a friend stored the suitcase in the attic five years ago and never came back.

Norman Lachman, a bomb disposal man, said it would take him two days to deactivate the ammunition.

LICENSED TO WED
 NEW YORK (AP)—Actor Henry Fonda, 51, and Italian Contessa Aldera Franchetti, 24, have obtained a marriage license. They did not disclose their wedding plans. Fonda has been married three times. It's her first.

Kindley Field in Bermuda is operated by the U.S. Air Force. Just across the harbor is St. George which served as mid-Atlantic headquarters for the U.S. submarine fleet during World War II.

Christian Church Announcements

The guest minister for the morning service at the Eighth Street Christian Church on this Sunday will be Dr. Ben E. Watson of Lexington, Kentucky. Mr. Watson is a special representative of the Resources Department of The United Christian Missionary Society and will be visiting several points in North Carolina in behalf of the program of Capital For Kingdom Building.

Dr. Watson served for several years as a missionary in the field of education in Tokyo, Japan. After his return to the United States he helped to organize the Japanese Christian Church in Los Angeles, California. During World War II he served as religious consultant for USO work and the YMCA.

Along with Dr. Watson will be another missionary, Mr. Kenneth Potee, of India, who will conduct a conference on Thursday night March 14 at 7:00 o'clock for leaders of the Christian Churches in Pitt County. A complimentary supper will be served by the ladies of the Christian Women's Fellowship. It is hoped that every church of Pitt County among the Disciples of Christ will have its suggested quota of leaders present.

The Christian Women's Fellowship will hold its March meeting on Monday afternoon at 3:30 March 11 in the ladies parlor of the church. Circle No. 4 will be in charge of the program and welcome. The program committee has secured as speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Walter Bowen, a prominent member of the Christian Church in Washington, North Carolina. Mrs. Bowen will speak on the famous painting by Leonardo da Vinci entitled "The Last Supper." During this period of Lent this will be a very appropriate study.

The project of calling the roll of the members of the church will continue Sunday morning with the names of about five letters of the alphabet being called. This is a part of the program of Church Loyalty emphasis during the five Sundays of March.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market declined slightly early this afternoon in the duller session of the week.

Key stocks were off from fractions to around a point but steep losses appeared in aircrafts.

No particular selling pressure appeared in any group, however.

United Aircraft tumbled around 3 points. Boeing, General Dynamics and Glenn L. Martin were all down a point or more.

Amerada, a big domestic oil producer, dropped about 2. Royal Dutch and Gulf Oil were easy to fractionally lower. Texas Co. was firm and Sinclair down a small fraction.

American Telephone bucked the trend with a gain of about a point as utilities, though mixed, outperformed the rest of the market. Consolidated Edison and Southern California Edison were steady.

News of merger discussions between Underwood and National Cash Register put the spotlight on both stocks. Underwood added a point to its gain of 1 1/2 yesterday before the news was out. But National was about unchanged.

Down around a point or more were U.S. Gypsum, Anaconda, Kennecott and International Nickel.

U.S. Steel was off a major fraction and Youngstown close to a point. General Motors, Chrysler and Ford were off fractions. Santa-Ea posted a small gain. Southern Pacific and Illinois Central were firm and New York Central took a small loss.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 5 cents to $173.60 with the industrials down $1.00, the rails down 30 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers unsettled, confirmed farm sales at 20 to 21, mostly 21; 6,000 sold f.o.b. plant at undetermined prices.

Raleigh eggs steady. A large 32-35; Durham eggs steady. A large 32-33; Asheville eggs steady. A large 30-32; Charlotte eggs steady. A large 32.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—Hog prices steady. Tops of 16.25 to 17.00 at Tarboro, Enfield and Bethel; 16.25 to 16.75 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Nahant and Pine Level; 16.00 to 16.75 at Wingo and Rocky Mount; 16.00 to 16.50 at Mount Gilead and Siler City; 16.25 at Rich Square, Lumberton, Smithfield, Newton Grove, Mount Olive, Clinton, Fayetteville, Castle Hayne, Goldsboro, Shallotte, Spring Hope, Clayton, Dunn, Bailey, Micro and Elizabethtown; 16.00 at Kenly and Tabor City.

MOOSE DANCE SATURDAY

The Melodiers will play for the Greenville Moose Lodge dance at the Moose Temple Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Members may invite their dates, out-of-town or prospective member guest couples.

School Faculty Hears Speaker

FALKLAND—Dr. Eva Williamson of the East Carolina College faculty spoke to members of the Falkland School faculty Monday at the Falkland group's regular monthly meeting.

Dr. Williamson discussed "The Child, The Curriculum, and The World of Science" with the teachers. She spoke of how early in infancy a child becomes conscious of scientific facts and of how his parents, his first teachers of science, can affect his interest.

"Dr. Williamson emphasized, also, that the teacher in elementary grades must work to stimulate the natural curiosity of children and teach them to explore the world about him with responsibility. She warned, however, that teachers cannot expect the same type of response from every child.

A demonstration of various simple, home-made items which can be used to teach younger children followed Dr. Williamson's talk. She also named helpful books and bulletins for source material which will supplement regular texts.

City Will Return To Its Old Plumbing Code

The city will return to its old plumbing code, dropped last March when a new State code was adopted, for 120 days while a study of the two codes is made.

Councilmen approved that plan after J. D. Aman, a local plumbing contractor, appeared before the Council to protest use of the present code.

Aman told the city fathers that he was asking that the new code be repealed and the old plumbing code reinstated. Then, he said, he was recommending that a committee be appointed to study the old code and make amendments to it if necessary.

Councilmen approved the plan upon recommendation of the City Manager Leonard Bloxam.

Aman said only three North Carolina cities have adopted the state code and "Greensboro is having trouble with it," he declared.

"We don't need this," Aman said, indicating the new code. "We can't force this code on our people. To put this code on them will be more than they can stand financially."

Aman said he was working "for the people" in opposing the State backed code.

"I'm the only plumber opposed to it," he declared. "I want you to understand that."

The new code was adopted a year ago as a part of a plan to obtain a uniform state-wide plumbing code.

Bloxam said last night that he "went through it carefully" before recommending adoption. He said he had talked to various state and municipal officials.

However, he said: "If it is working any hardship on the public that I don't know about I wouldn't be adverse to finding out if we have made a mistake and if so, what the mistake is."

He then recommended that if "the council sees fit, we use the old code for a certain time and let the committee come up with definite, specific recommendations."

The plan was passed with three of the five councilmen voting for it. Councilman J. A. Collins made the motion calling for suspension of the new code for 120 days while the study is being made. It was seconded by Mayor W. L. Wheeler. They were joined by Councilman A. C. Ruffin to give the three votes necessary for passage.

Councilman Wesley Harvey voted against the motion and Councilman S. Eugene West abstained.

Mayor Wheeler appointed C. E. Williams, a local plumber, to the committee; Kelly Rowe, plumbing inspector; George Gardner, building inspector; Cravan Hughes, general contractor; Jimmy Harris, merchant.

The group is to report back within the 120 day period.

Last Rites Saturday For Mrs. Clyde Hart

Mrs. Mamie Franks Hart, 40, wife of Clyde Hart, died at her home in Vanceboro at 8 p.m. Thursday after six days' illness.

Funeral services will be held at Lane's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Saturday at 3 p.m. by the pastor, Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, and Rev. Sam Worthington, Holiness minister of Vanceboro. Burial will be in the Franks family cemetery nearby. The body will be taken from the home to the church one hour before the service.

Mrs. Hart, daughter of Mrs. Beesie Smith Franks of Vanceboro and the late Daniel Franks, spent all her life in the Vanceboro community. She was first married to Elshá Monroe and he died in 1947. Surviving this marriage are two daughters, Virginia and Kay Monroe of the home. In 1954 she was married to Clyde Hart, and she survives along with an infant daughter, Brenda Hart. Also surviving are her mother; two brothers, Billy Franks of Vanceboro and Barnie Franks of Havelock; and a sister, Miss Phoebe Franks of Vanceboro.

Eleven Students Will Take New York Trip

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE
Greenville High School Reporter

Skyscrapers, traffic jams, and the excitement of seeing New York City for the first time will be the fate of eleven Greenville High students next Tuesday as their train pulls into Grand Central Station around 6:30 p.m.

After spending Wednesday sight-seeing, the group will see a Broadway play, "The Most Happy Fella." Thursday and Friday afternoons will be spent at Columbia University where the Columbia Scholastic Press Association will be holding its thirty-third annual convention.

The afternoons at Columbia will include lectures, panels and interviews. These are studies aimed to help the journalists learn better writing, ethics, and page make-up.

Betsy Wheeler and Catherine Moore are the only sophomores making the trip. Juniors going are Ann Peaden, Mary Ann Bryant, Naome Gibbs, Margaret Ann Harrell, Judy Ferrish, and Martha Pierce.

Joe Dresbach, junior, and Buddy Murray, freshman, are the only boys going. The students will be accompanied by Mrs. Mary Goodman, adviser, and Mrs. Carlos W. Murray, parent.

For their four nights in the big city they will stay at Hotel Taft on West Fifth Street. They will also see the "Diary of Anne Frank" and tour the Empire State Building and the United Nations Building.

With Ed Sullivan's show as a theme the sophomore class will present the Debutante Ball March 22. In the previous years the sophomore dance has been called the Coronation Ball and last year was called the Story Book Ball.

Each homeroom selected the debutantes by popular vote February 19. Winners of the elections will not be announced until the night of the dance.

Class officers Louis Arthur, president; Billy Brown, vice president; Katherine Raynor, secretary; and Charles Ross, treasurer; will serve as overall chairmen for the dance. Heading the debutante committee is Kathryn Oakes. Floor show numbers will be directed by Carolyn Briley, Miss Ona Shindler, music teacher, is helping with some of the floor show numbers.

Tickets, advertising, and band arrangements are the jobs of Robert Taft, Robert B. Starling, history teacher, is faculty adviser for this committee. Sammy Pollard is in charge of coat arrangements.

Decorations committee heads, Bryce Cummings and Paye Hardee, are led by Guy L. Lewis, coach. The clean-up committee is headed by Judy Anthony.

Plans for carrying out Jazz Age, theme for the May 10 Junior-Senior, were initiated in a meeting February 18. Bob Bilbro, president of the junior class, appointed committees to begin work on the Junior-Senior.

Martha Pierce will serve as overall chairman. Chairmen for "the floor show" will be Cynthia Cranford and Carol Tadlock co-chairmen of arrangements; Ed Buchanan and Naomi Gibbs, chairmen of rehearsal arrangements.

Co-chairmen Marietta Northrop and Jean Waters are in charge of costumes; Joe Dresbach and Billy Fields, properties. Banquet chairmen are JoAnne Parks, programs; Ray Lane and Milly Bowden, table arrangements; Judy Jolly and Beverly Dunn, favors.

Other chairmen are Mary Ann Bryant, speeches; Ann Moore, menu; Barbara Davis and Lillian Moye, foyer decorations; and Margaret Harrell and Lynn Jorkensen room decorations. Jimmy Galloway will serve as chairman of the stage decorations.

This year's Junior-Senior dance and banquet will be at the Moose Lodge and The Dreamers of East Carolina College will furnish the music.

Topic for the March 14 Parent Teacher Association will be "Problems of the Teen-agers in the School." The panel chairman will be Dr. Frank Fuller, Department of Education, E.C.C. Other panel members will be Sam C. Winchester, Pitt County Farm Agent; Mrs. Thomas Carrawan, past president of West Greenville P. T. A.; and Mrs. Lina Reynolds, girls counselor at Greenville High School.

The students at Greenville High wish to thank the parents who have shown enough interest in the students to attend these P. T. A. meetings.

It was announced at the Student Council meeting last Monday that the election of next year's S. C. A. officers will be this month. All candidates must have their petitions in by March 13. Campaign speeches will be given March 18 and the election will be March 20.

Friday night Betty Lane Evans had a slumber party to celebrate her seventeenth birthday. Her guests were Camilla Henderson, Ruth Young, Cynthia Cranford, Barbara Davis, Judy Jolly, Ann Moore, Milly Bowden, Margaret Harrell, Florence Norman, Elizabeth White, Lillian Moye and Martha Lee Moye.

Convict Two Of Fraud In Claims

Two Greenville Negro women were convicted yesterday of charges of filing fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance.

Matilda H. Buñch, 1409 South Greene Street, and Della B. House, 112 South Side Street, were found guilty by Magistrate Luther Moore. When the conviction becomes final, each defendant will be ruled "not eligible" for unemployment benefits for one year and will be required to refund to the Employment Security Commission all benefits paid after the first false reports.

Testimony in trials of the two women showed that both made false reports by giving names of employers to whom they had not applied for work.

McGlohon Host To Kiwanis Club Officers, Directors At Dinner

Vice-President J. D. (Dixie) McGlohon was dinner host last night to the Greenville Kiwanis Club's officers and directors and several committee chairmen at "Nelson Hopkins' Tavern on the Tar in the Principality of Bruce." President Charles E. Blair presided.

The club will be well represented at the inter-club meeting of six civic groups at East Carolina College tonight at 6:30, it was announced.

Plans were made for the club to send a large delegation to the Kiwanis International Convention in Atlantic City in June.

Chairman Eli Bloom Advertising Chairman Ed Rawl Jr., led a discussion about the Kiwanis Minstrel Show. Dr. Walter C. Humbert outlined some activities of the club's Underprivileged Child Committee. Chairman Bill Corbett reported that the Kiwanis "Choo-Choo" Train will open the season at Kiwanis Park May 1. Treasurer John O. Reynolds read his report for February. Lt.-Gov. John T. Barnhill of Greenville reported on Carolinas Kiwanis District Governor M. E. Gambrell coming to a divisional meeting of 10 Kiwanis Clubs March 8 at the college.

Vice-president McGlohon's guests included Lt. Gov. Barnhill, President, Eli Bloom, Robert Elks, Bill Moore, Dr. Humbert, Secretary Reynolds, Bill Corbett, Advertising Chairman Rawl, Past President J. Ed Waldrop, Program Chairman Charles P. Gaskins, D. A. Blue and Program and Music Committeeman Elbert H. Bennett and Publicity Chairman Chester Walsh.

Beta Clubs ...

Edwards of Chocowinity were candidates for president; Richard Lassiter of Colerain, Mary Jo Reid of Central High School, and Jimmy Edwards of Grimesland were candidates for vice-president; and Janie Gurganus of Robersonville was the only candidate for secretary. Each candidate had a campaign speaker and students from sponsoring schools assisted in individual campaigns.

In addition to the elected officials for district offices, Mrs. Worsley, sponsor of the Williamson Beta Club, was named district sponsor for 1957-1958.

Following the election procedures, members of the Ayden Beta Club provided entertainment for the delegates and sponsors. Ayden Band Director Boyd Elliott and band members Tommy Edwards, Wayland McLawhorn, Herb Little, Bonny Rutledge, Leslie Stocks, Ronnie Tripp, Brenda Little and J. D. Willoughby played three selections.

Cecil Earl Hemby, Sandra McLawhorn, Kay Woodard and Billy Guthrell pantomimed "Dance With Me, Henry" and Bonny Rutledge sang "I Could Have Danced All Night." Janet Edwards, Rufus Keel, Mara Ruggles Gooding, Graham Gwynn and Dianne Merritt did a tap-dance routine and the Ayden High School Chorus, under direction of Mrs. Rosa Little, sang "He Watching Over Israel" and "Ride The Chariot."

After the business session was adjourned, delegates were guests at a social hour in the high school gymnasium. Punch and cookies were served by Henrietta Taylor, Carolyn Sumrell, Jo Anne Edwards and Mrs. Ross.

Assisting Miss Harrington in directing the convention were other 1956-1957 officers, vice-president Judy Highsmith of Robersonville and secretary Anna Gatling of Ahoskie.
