

Modern Education Trends Noted By Speaker At ECC

The "unique feature" of the modern educational renaissance which now seems probable in this country will be an extension of cultural advantages to the many rather than, as in the past, to only a few.

President Henry H. Hill of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., told an audience of approximately 2,000 people at East Carolina College yesterday.

Dr. Hill was principal speaker at exercises marking the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the college, March 8, 1907.

The tremendous growth in population in recent years has brought a change in education, he continued. In the attempt to educate the masses, many think that we have lost the standards and sacrificed the competency and excellence of another generation to a cult of mediocrity, he said.

Declaring that there is no stigma in being average, he continued, "I do not share their alarm. . . . We have the wit and wisdom to provide in higher education the kind of opportunities that ought to be there, we shall receive good and not bad from this increased enrollment," he said.

One of the changes which he noted in modern education is a movement away from "the single standard book mastery curriculum" and toward "achievable goals."

"I believe unequivocally that the dollar which North Carolinians pay in support of their public schools is their most productive dollar," he declared.

The development of electric and atomic power, he explained, is rapidly diminishing the number of those who earn a living by manual labor. This change in our way of life, he said, "makes possible and well-nigh, compulsory both mass education and mass enlightenment."

In the South, he continued, we are "well advised to prepare more hundreds of thousands of skilled occupations and professions."

The genius of America, he stated, lies in the extension to an increasing majority of the inhabitants of the United States of those blessings and opportunities formerly reserved for a tiny minority.

The clash of opinion over segregation, he said, may constitute a check to the modern educational renaissance, and may "sound educational retreat."

"I am far more concerned," he said, "with the enhancement in value and scope of our public school system than I am with the precise method of living with the Supreme Court decision. The cornerstone of my credo rests on free universal education, and I am willing to sacrifice some of my personal tastes and preferences in order to keep that cornerstone.

An ignorant America, he declared, "cannot possibly survive or keep any of the ordinary liberties which we so value today, much less share an educational renaissance."

The renaissance, he concluded, must be based on "our American system of education, its unique contribution to a classless society and to a freedom and tolerance largely unknown among countries with class educational systems" also on "educational options offered the American people."

Dr. Henry Hill, president of George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee, delivered the address at East Carolina College's 50th anniversary convocation yesterday. Dr. Hill spoke to more than 2,000 people assembled in Wright Auditorium yesterday morning. He was introduced by Dr. James Harris Purks, Jr., chairman of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education. Mid-East Policy Is Signed

Eisenhower Puts Final Stamp Of Approval On Middle-East Resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today signed the Middle East resolution declaring this country's readiness to fight if necessary to block any Communist aggression in that trouble area.

The President said in a statement that the proposal, which he recommended to Congress two months ago, marks "an important forward step in the development of friendly relations between the United States and the Middle East area."

It is, he said, a "further demonstration of the will of the American people to preserve peace and freedom in the world."

Eisenhower signed his name to the resolution in the presence only of newsmen and photographers.

His special counsel, Gerald Morgan, handed him a copy and he wrote "approved" and affixed his signature and date.

The Senate and House completed action on the resolution earlier this week.

In addition to declaring the willingness of the United States to use force in event of open Communist aggression the measure authorizes the spending of 200 million dollars for military-economic aid to Middle East nations by July 1 without some of the restrictions in existing law.

Eisenhower in his four paragraph statement said the resolution and the unity of national purpose which it reflects will "increase the administration's capabilities to reducing the Communist danger in the Middle East and to strengthening the general stability of the area."

He noted that his special ambassador, James P. Richards, will leave Tuesday for the Middle East to explain the resolution to nations in the area.

The Richards mission, he said, is an essential and important first step in carrying out the new Middle East policies. He declared:

"As those policies are based on the concept of cooperation and the assistance contemplated by the resolution will be extended only in response to requests from Middle Eastern governments, we must achieve the greatest possible measure of understanding and recognition of common interests with the area governments and their peoples."

"Ambassador Richard's mission is to advance this understanding and recognition of common interests. I know that he will bring to this task the integrity, ability and sound judgment that have marked his long and distinguished career in public life."

Richards, a South Carolina Democrat and former chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said yesterday he may visit 18 or more countries in a two-month trip to the Middle East.

Before signing the resolution today, Eisenhower conferred briefly with Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Wiley said afterward the discussion was about foreign policies and part of it concerned the Middle East.

Two Men Die In Crash Of Auto Reported Stolen

RALEIGH (AP)—Two sailors traveling in a car which had been reported stolen died yesterday when the auto skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a truck.

Two men riding in the truck received minor injuries in the accident which occurred just inside Chatham County on the highway between Raleigh and Pittsboro.

The victims were identified as Roland Dale Hoff, 22, of Greenville, S.C., and Grover M. Rogers, 20, of Catox, S.D. Highway Patrol Sgt. Victor Aldridge said the two crew members of the USS Valley Force docked at the Norfolk, Va., Naval Base, went on leave yesterday morning.

Egypt Announces Plan To Collect All Tolls At Suez

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)— Egypt rejects a Western Big Three proposal for a neutral agency to collect Suez Canal tolls and split the proceeds with Egypt 50-50.

The Egyptian government will not accept any such proposal because it violates Egypt's rights according to the 1888 convention on the Suez Canal," Hatem said in an interview.

The United States, Britain and France told U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold last month they favored payment of tolls to the World Bank or some other neutral international agency when the canal gets back in business.

The collection agency, under their plan, would give Egypt half the income for operating costs and keep the rest until the toll issue is finally settled. The tolls used to gross about 100 million dollars a year.

Hatem's declaration came as U. N. salvage authorities awaited assent from Cairo to final clearance of the 103-mile-long waterway.

Egyptian engineers began operations on the 841-ton tug Edgar Bonnet, sunk midway in the 103-mile waterway near Ismailia during the British-French and Israeli invasion last fall. They said they had to remove explosives from the vessel before it could be raised.

Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler (U. S. Army ret.), head of the U. N. salvage operation, said Egyptian authorities had not given him final permission to remove the Edgar Bonnet and the 1,461-ton Egyptian frigate Abukir, sunk four miles above the southern end of the canal.

Wheeler said today at Ismailia that Egyptian divers still were removing explosives from the tug.

He said his salvage crew was ready to start work on the Edgar Bonnet "right away" and predicted it would take three or four weeks to clear it from the channel.

When both ships are removed, vessels up to 10,000 tons will be able to sail the entire length of the canal. But Egyptian officials have made it clear this does not apply to Israeli shipping, which was barred even before the October-November fighting. Egypt maintains it is still technically at war with Israel, despite the 1949 Palestine armistice.

Meanwhile, eight small vessels, all under 500 tons, transited the canal yesterday.

Stiff Sentence For 'Touching'

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)— A five-man court-martial today sentenced a marine drill instructor, Cpl. William R. Walsh of Lyndhurst, N.J., to three months at hard labor for illegally touching recruits.

In addition, the court, headed by Maj. Gen. Glen W. Rodney of Joplin, Mo., ordered Walsh reduced to private and fined $40 a month for three months.

The stiff sentence caught the courtroom by surprise, since only yesterday the court had thrown out 20 of the 24 charges of hazing or mistreatment of recruits.

Of the four remaining charges, the court reworded the accusations to reduce them in nature from the more serious charge of "struck" to "touching" for the word "struck."

Defense attorney Fred W. Shields of Mount Vernon, Va., a civilian, said, "I think the sentence is outrageous. I am going to fight it as long as I can."

canal yesterday. This was the first large movement of shipping since the waterway was blocked more than four months ago.

With the end apparently in view to physical barriers in the canal, the West squared off for negotiations with President Nasser over how the canal will be operated.

The Egyptian President ordered the nationalization of the waterway last July 26 and Egypt set up its own Suez Canal Authority to direct its operation.

Reports from Washington, said the State Department was producing Nasser cautiously for an answer to the last Western proposal for collecting canal tolls, which used to total 100 million dollars annually. Last month the United States, Britain, and France told U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold they favored letting the World Bank or some other neutral international agency collect the tolls.

Under the plan, the agency designated would give Egypt 50 percent of the income for operating costs of the canal and retain the remainder until the canal question is settled permanently.

However, American officials believed Nasser was proceeding with his own plan for operating the canal on Egyptian terms.

While the focus of world attention shifted back to the canal, Israeli forces turned over to the U. N. Emergency Force (UNEF) the Sharm el Sheikh area guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba. U. N. officers said their troops would patrol the coastal area and set up observation posts. About 200 Finnish troops in UNEF took over from the Israelis.

Young Dynamite Bomber Shot Down During Threats

MONTREAL (AP)— A weirdly masked young bomber laden with enough dynamite to wreck a city block — was shot down by police yesterday as he threatened to blow up a bank building.

"You may have me now," the wounded bandit told police, "but at 4:45 p.m. three places in the city are going to be blown to kingdom come."

There were no explosions at that hour but a key found on the youth led police to a time bomb overdue to go off at Montreal's Central Station.

Fearful that other bombs might have been planted in public buildings in the pattern of New York's Mad Bomber scare, police searched Windsor Railroad Station and City Bus Terminal but found nothing.

The youth, identified as Andre DeBois, 21, was shot through the neck and wounded seriously after he had held a gun on employees and patrons of a Toronto-Dominion Bank branch for 20 minutes.

Waving his gun, he had threatened to blow up the building with 39 sticks of dynamite fastened to his body and attached to a wire contraption on his head. The youth had a nylon stocking mask pulled over his face and was wearing a false nose, dummy glasses and a bathing cap.

Police said he carried enough dynamite to raze the bank building and damage all the others in the vicinity.

Police and bank officials gave this account of the attempted hold-up:

The strangely disguised man drove up to the bank in a stolen taxicab.

Entering the building, he ordered the employees and four patrons to stand still. He then told bank manager John McFarlane to lock the front door.

McFarlane offered the gunman money if he would leave, but the latter opened his coat and revealed the sticks of dynamite in his overalls.

"Go ahead and shoot me if you like," the youth said. "If I die, a thousand people will die with me."

He told the manager to bring out two chairs and get two "police chiefs" to sit in them. He then shoved his revolver into McFarlane's back and tried to push him into the vault.

As he did so, the manager jumped aside and threw the alarm switch. The signal brought police to the building within a few minutes.

The gunman drilled a shot into the ceiling, yelling "tell the police to drop their guns and come inside."

Police fired through the glass front, dropping the gunman.

Sgt. Leo Plouffe, police bomb expert who dismantled the explosive device found in a parcel locker at the railway station, said it was still "live and dangerous" but apparently misfired because of some mechanical defect. He said it consisted of five sticks of dynamite expertly wired to a detonator and an alarm clock set to go off at 5 p.m.

Scheidt Proposals Are Given Cool Reception

By JEAN REILLY The Reflector Bureau

RALEIGH—Comments terming mechanical inspection proposals backed by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt ranged from "inadequate" to "unnecessary" following the death of Greensboro newsman, John McLeod, on a Raleigh city street earlier this week.

Meanwhile, talk of a bill more stringent than the Scheidt measure sifted through the usual chaff and settled on a particular Senate group.

If introduced, the bill will provide for automatic automobile inspection by highway patrolmen and removal from the highways of vehicles with visible defects. It would also require mandatory inspection of mechanical equipment at allotted check-points or of dryers stopped for misdemeanors.

In contrast with the Scheidt proposal which requires an annual physical inspection of automobiles, either by the State or by privately owned garages, most legislators feel this proposal will work with more efficiency and comfort to the public.

"I doubt if accidents are caused by mechanical failure in more than five percent of the cases," Representative John Henley of Cumberland said.

"Sure I'm for doing everything I can to make the situation safer, but I've heard of the brakes on new cars giving way and I'm just not certain a yearly inspection would do it," Henley added.

Senator Jim Hoyle of Lee said that he wasn't satisfied either that an annual inspection would do the job.

"I think this accident was a terrible thing," Hoyle said, "but I also think it will take a different type of legislation to stop accidents."

Senator H. P. Eller of Wilkes, who manages the Wilkes Transportation Company, said that his buses undergo nightly inspection, but that doesn't mean that something can't go wrong with them.

"The 1949 mechanical inspection law didn't work," Senator Perry Martin of Northampton said, "and I don't believe one today would work any better."

W. Lunsford Crew of Halifax cited the abuses such an act could precipitate.

"If mechanical inspection is turned over to private garages you can get your sticker with five gallons of gas and the garage collects from the State. Would that be inspection?" he asks.

Concurring basically with Senator Crew, Senator Edwin Lanier of Orange said that he would go along with almost anything to stop present "highway slaughter."

Ranks Break As Students Return

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Dr. J. R. Otis, president of strikebound Alcorn A&M (Negro) College, said students were returning to classes today, the first break in the week-long student demonstration against a professor's writings.

Dr. Otis made the statement as he arrived at the emergency meeting of the all-white college board, called after reports indicated all 585 students at the 86-year old educational school walked out yesterday.

The president said he was informed about 95 students were returning to class. He added 17 teachers were behind their desks and all buildings—except the dining hall—normally open on Saturday were open.

The college board specifically ordered the dining hall closed at noon yesterday if the students refused to return to class.

One co-ed who identified herself only as Juanita said by telephone that the dormitories were being closed "sometime this weekend."

A portrait of Radford Marvin Garrett, 1886-1955, was unveiled during dedication of Garrett Hall yesterday. Garrett Portrait Unveiled And Presented To College

A portrait of R.M. Garrett was unveiled and presented to East Carolina College yesterday afternoon during dedication ceremonies of Garrett Hall.

Mrs. Garrett, widow of the late Greenville tobacconist, presented the portrait after it was unveiled by her sons, Ralph and Dwight, and a grandson, Radford Marvin, III. She made the presentation "in memory of his love for and service to East Carolina College."

E.E. Rawl of Greenville accepted the portrait for the college. Dedication of the building, the college's newest residence hall for women, was held as a part of East Carolina's 50th anniversary celebration. A large crowd of faculty and staff members, special guests and other friends of the college attended the ceremonies which were held in the hall's reception parlor.

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, termed Garrett as "a friend to me and a man who is enshrined in the hearts of all of you here."

In his acceptance speech, Rawl said, "I knew Ralph Garrett for 35 years and was closely associated with him for the last 10 or 15 years of his life."

"I learned to love and to know him as few people knew him. He had a deep and sincere dedication to principles. He was a man who expressed a deep love for his family, and a love and dedication to his community. His greatest concept, however, was his conviction and dedication as a humanitarian. He was the greatest humanitarian I have known and he loved this institution."

The dedication program said of Garrett, "As a member of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina College, he showed deep interest and unflinching energy in making the services of the college richer and fuller. In 1954 the Board of Trustees expressed appreciation of his work by naming in his honor a new building, designed as a dormitory for women."

"As a member of the Board of Trustees, he was an untiring, purposeful, and enthusiastic worker. His vision of how this institution could serve Eastern Carolina was a challenge that awakened responses in many others."

The dedication program also included a selection, "Glory Now To Thee Be Give," by the College Singers under the direction of Dan Vornholt, and a solo, "Bless This House," by Miss Barbara Harris. The Reverend W.H. Howard of Jarvis Memorial Church offered the dedicatory prayer.

A reception in the building followed the ceremonies.

JUST RACKETEERS DALLAS (AP)—L. Owen William K. Harrison told a Kiwanis group that the Communists "are nothing more than racketeers and criminals, and the same goes for General Nasser of Egypt." Harrison, who negotiated the armistice in the Korean War, is executive director of the Evangelical Welfare Agency of Chicago, which sponsors placement of orphans in Christian homes.

Charlotte Woman New NCEA Head

RALEIGH (AP)—Rosalee Andrews of Charlotte today was officially named president of the North Carolina Education Assn. for the coming year.

Miss Andrews, a teacher at Charlotte's Shamrock Gardens school, has been a vice president of the organization for the past year and was unopposed for the presidency.

O. P. Johnson of Kenanville, Duplin County superintendent, is the outgoing president.

Further Tremors Damage Villages

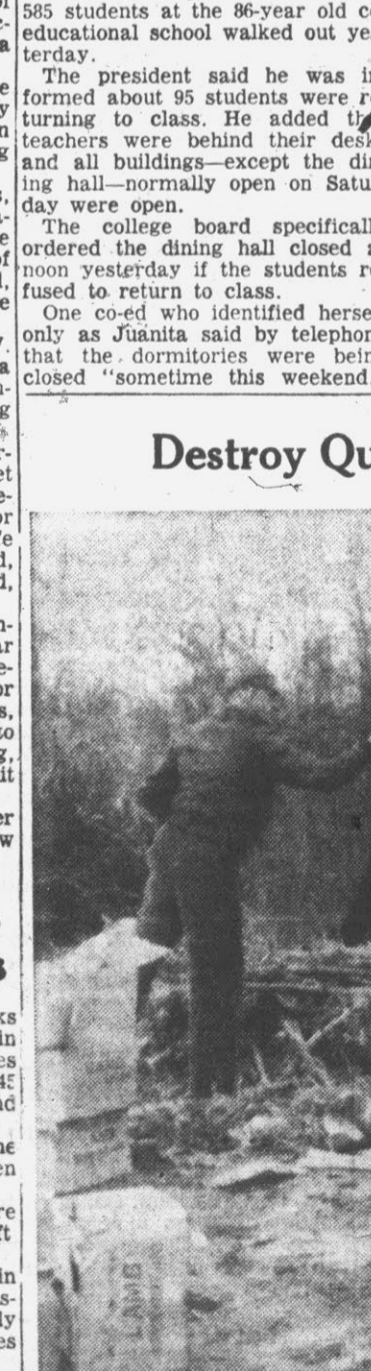

ATHENS (AP)—New earth shocks caused further damage today in central Greece where two quakes killed almost 500 people and destroyed 45 villages and communities and damaged some 4,000 buildings.

The disaster, has caused one known death and injured between 40 and 50 persons. Unofficial estimates said more than 20,000 persons were left homeless.

Authorities said 7 villages in the Volos region and 17 in Larissa are in ruins. Volos was nearly wiped out in a series of quakes two years ago.

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER I
First Lieutenant Temple Jocelyn removed the slender cigar from his lips to speak.

"Mr. Schwabacker, inform Sergeant Finnegan that I wish to leave the post within the hour. I suggest double ammunition issue and rations for five days." Jocelyn's voice held the brittle twang of Vermont and the dogmatic surety of New England, characteristics which continually placed him at odds with the like of Emil Schwabacker, who had not yet learned to conceal his uncertainties. Yet there was more to Jocelyn than this: Schwabacker felt it. Disappointment, perhaps, a forced withdrawal that left him, misunderstood, apart from his fellow officers.

"Do you anticipate the hostilities will force action at last, sir? Second Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker's manner was respectful, as it always was in the field, and as it was in the barracks. Perhaps you are not mentioned in dispatches, or bleeding, but you have a job. See that you do it well, Mr. Schwabacker."

"Yes, sir." Finnegan came forward with his report. "Ready, sir." "Mount the troop informally," Jocelyn said and took the reins from the bugler. He stepped into the saddle and waited while his troop swung up. He turned and looked back at the double row of poncho-draped men. "Mr. Schwabacker, take the second section, please."

Another glance at his watch and he lifted his hand. The patrol left the stable yard, skirted the parade at a slow walk and at exactly eight o'clock passed through the gates of Fort Laramie to the dismal land beyond.

This was Second Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker's thought. "I've lost count during the past year. Has it been that long? Another year of it and I'll be like the rest, not giving a hoot. It has been a year since Colonel Henry B. Carrington came through with his seven hundred. A year of inaction. A year of waiting, a year of one dreary patrol after another. How many times have I promised myself I would transfer? A dozen! He looked at Temple Jocelyn at the column's head. Two years of his inflexible exactness, his cold reserve. How much can a man stand?"

Through the rain-dulled morning the command moved across rolling and densely wooded terrain. Patches of open ground appeared, running to tall grass bent by the pelting rain.

During the noon stop, Lieutenant Jocelyn spoke to the bugler, a lad of sixteen. "Sound 'officers' call, please."

The rain and vast reaches of this land swallowed up the bright tones of the "C" horn. Lieutenant Schwabacker came up at a gallop and flung off.

The expression on his face led Jocelyn to say, "I trust you'll excuse the unexpectedness of the horn, Mr. Schwabacker, and contrary to your present opinion I haven't lost my senses. It seemed wise at the time to intensify our presence here." He waved a hand across his face, brushing water to the point of his chin. "At this moment there is a company of infantry approaching Ryndlee's ranch buildings, so until dark we will proceed due east at the best possible rate of march. I'd like to swing south tomorrow morning. This will put me into Ryndlee's around supper time tomorrow night."

WHAT A BIG BOOK!

Of course the Bible is big. Not only in size... but in the endless depth of the messages to man.

God never intended the Bible to be studied without help. When an Ethiopian official centuries ago wrestled with a passage from Isaiah, God sent the evangelist, Philip, to meet the man's chafing, climb aboard, and explain the text's reference to the crucifixion of Christ.

Explaining and applying God's Word are still two of the major aims of the Church. Every sermon, every lesson, every discussion topic your church offers is intended to focus your attention on the timeless truths of Scripture and help you thread them into the pattern of your life.

Cherish your Bible... read it regularly... and let your Church guide you to the richness of its message.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

30 Years Ago Today
March 9, 1927

The Winterville, Ayden and Swain Creek townships held their literary meet yesterday at the Ayden school. The literary department of the Greenville Woman's Club was represented by the following judges, Mesdames T. R. Rouse, J. H. B. Moore and V. E. Staton.

Britain's next big test is promised in India. Non-Asiatic observers predict trouble and "tragic discontent." They find everywhere a demand for "liberty" which is interesting, considering that in five thousand years of Indian literature the word "liberty" was never printed until recently.

The sale of used homes is almost 35 per cent ahead of last year, a survey by the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Assn. reveals. The association says that two existing homes are sold for every new home put on the market. Shower Given Recent Bride WINTERVILLE—Mrs. Humber White and Mrs. C. L. Bowen honored Mrs. James Lynn with a miscellaneous shower Wednesday.

The Winterville Community building, decorated with pink carnations and greenery, was the setting for the party which was attended by approximately 25 guests.

Mrs. White greeted the guests and introduced them to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. Heral Bowen, Mrs. James Lynn, Jr., and Mrs. James Lynn, Sr. Mrs. George Haddock presided over the register.

Mrs. White poured punch and Mrs. Heral Bowen served cake to those attending.

After games were played, good-byes were said to Mrs. James Ward.

The recent bride, the former Miss Connie Bowen, received many useful gifts and a hostess corsage of white carnations.

Club Speaker Has Landscape As Club Subject

FARMVILLE—Mrs. E. C. Carr was program chairman for the Garden Club meeting which met Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. B. M. Lewis.

Mrs. Carr used landscaping for her subject. She said that according to Biblical records man's creation took place in a garden; living surroundings should be planned by the builder, therefore, with care and taste. She stated that it would be wise to have complete details worked out by a landscape architect before building. He can plan to locate the house for better living from a landscaping viewpoint.

Mrs. Carr named a step by step plan for home planting: preliminary landscaping; location of one or more shade or flowering trees; establishment of an open and well-prepared lawn; foundation planting with larger plants at the house corners.

The business session was presided over by Tabitha M. DeVisconti in the absence of Mrs. A. C. Turnage, the president. Mrs. L. E. Turnage read the minutes.

Miss DeVisconti outlined the joys of a walk in the woods or a park to study the birds, trees and flowers.

Plans were made for the luncheon meeting to be held in April at the home of Mrs. E. C. Holmes when Mrs. Dunham of Cary will speak on "Gourds and Their Uses." Mesdames George W. Davis, Jesse T. Hardy, B. M. Lewis and L. E. Turnage were appointed on the decoration committee; Mrs. A. C. Turnage and Miss DeVisconti, on the food committee. The luncheon will be on April 2 at 12:30 p.m.

The club voted to cooperate with the town in the litterbug and Clean Up campaign the second week in April, to sponsor a Junior Garden Club, to feature a small flower show at the May meeting at the home of Mrs. L. E. Turnage, and in the fall to stage a flower show for members and townpeople desiring to make entries.

Miss DeVisconti reported on the Mid-Winter Board meeting held in Pinehurst on February 7.

Model arrangements of spring flowers used in the Lewis home were criticized by the members to show how they could be made more pleasing.

Sandwiches, carrot-nut cake, cheese pretzels, pickles and coffee were served buffet, style by Mrs. Lewis after the session.

Dr. Humbert Shows Collection

Mrs. Herbert White Lee was hostess to the Delphian Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Beaumont Drive. The members and guest, Mrs. Jake Stauffer, were invited into the den where a short business meeting was held.

The meeting was turned over then to Dr. Walter Humbert who gave his first Greenville showing of his collection of Italian china, pottery and glassware. Dr. Humbert told the history of some of his pieces and how he acquired them.

Dr. Humbert has several that are collector's items of which he is very proud.

After Dr. Humbert's interesting talk the hostess served coconut cake, nuts, and coffee. The dining table was centered with a bowl of pink snapdragons. Mrs. Lee used yellow snapdragons and yellow gladioli in her den and yellow jonquils throughout the rest of the house.

Toys Product Of Modern Age

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Since this is the week when the nation's merchants flock to New York to select toys for next Christmas, I feel it only fair to warn parents that this time the toy manufacturers have gone too far.

As if today's children weren't already critical enough of their elders, one of the country's biggest toy firms is introducing a new kit by which small fry can analyze their parents. This promises to create further pandemonium in American homes, as well as to the Toy Fair, where it is to be unveiled.

When Pop tells Junior he can't have the car tonight, he may from now on expect Junior to whip out his analyst kit and announce: "Your psyche is all out of whack and you're harboring a power complex. You are living in the past and you're just not hep. It says so right here."

The new kit provides the means for analyzing handwriting, having been worked out by a handwriting psychologist, and proves that the way you write your p's and q's may have dire meanings.

There are other things too that may well make the Christmas toy pack an ominous affair. There are building blocks to build structures big enough to be occupied by several children—so if today's small boy decides to leave home he can build his own residence in the back yard.

There are frighteningly efficient electric drills and lathes, and chemistry sets with which Junior might well construct his own bomb if he grows annoyed with conditions at home.

Tourists Spark Boom In Tortoise Jewelry

Matched earrings. The cutting of shells, figured plus, bracelets and other items is slightly different. In many instances the design in the tortoise shell must match another piece. For example, a fish earring with a light light streak, running through its fin must have a matching earring with a similar streak.

There is an art to producing the glistening brown and golden yellow surfaces, and finding and fashioning matching pieces.

Tortoise shell, rarely as much as a quarter inch thick, is put through a laminating process using a combination of heat and pressure to blend several thin sheets together into a workable and lasting thickness.

It requires many tons of hydraulic pressure to laminate tortoise shell to the proper thickness for a compact or cigarette case.

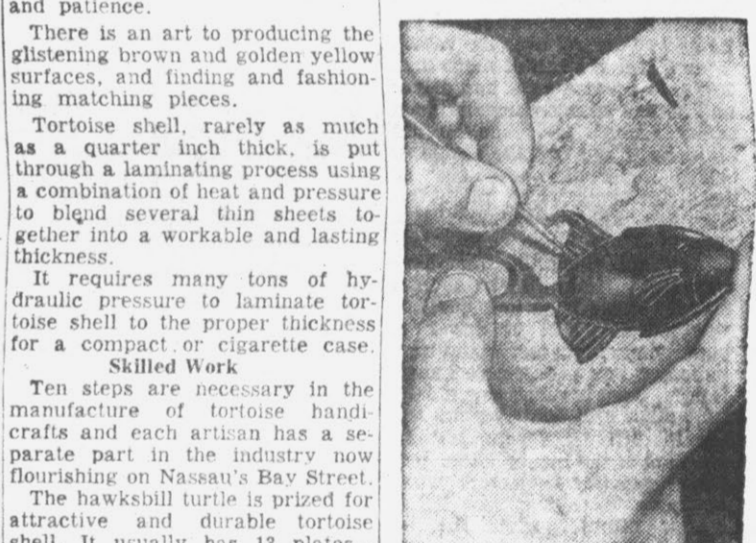

Skilled Work

Ten steps are necessary in the manufacture of tortoise handicrafts and each artisan has a separate part in the industry now flourishing on Nassau's Bay Street.

The hawksbill turtle is prized for attractive and durable tortoise shell. It usually has 13 plates—like large scales—on its back and 24 small bordering or fringe plates called "chimes." The four center plates, two on each side, have uniform thickness and are best for most tortoise shell items.

At the factory, the tortoise shell is scraped, marked out, cut, filed, sanded, polished, hand engraved, molded, given a final polish and assembled into the finished product.

A workman assigned to letters chooses either old English or block letters and traces one letter at a time from a metal pattern on a natural tortoise shell plate. He uses a jeweler's saw to cut out the letters and often must drill a tiny

After the piece is cut, the shell must be ground to an even thickness, edges filed and rounded off. A dull coating is scraped from the shell, which is then wet-sanded, polished and buffed.

Decorative touches are added by hand engraving. The piece is then molded into shape and given final polishing touches.

Hand work completed, the tortoise shell souvenir goes to the display room for final checking and sorting before finding its way to a tourist's suitcase.

Talk Turns Attention To Ports

Charges, counter-charges, accusations and denials have flown thick and fast in Raleigh in recent days as the controversy over the state's two ports reached a crescendo.

An Extra Incentive To Voters Of Ayden

Ayden's bond election for improving and extending that town's sewer system took on a new look with the announcement of a federal grant of $92,129 if the bond election carries Monday.

Ayden voters go to the polls Monday to say 'yes' or 'no' to a proposed $275,000 bond issue to provide the municipality with a sewer system to meet its needs. The town's acute need for a more adequate sewer system in itself should be sufficient to cause voters to pass the bond issue by a comfortable margin. If that were not the case, however, the fact that the federal government has now allocated $92,129 to help with the project should add impetus to Ayden voters' willingness to go ahead with the project.

The federal grant means that Ayden will have to assume only two-thirds of the cost of the project while the federal grant takes care of the other third. It should also mean that at least one-third of the $275,000 bond issue can be held back until some future date when further extension of the municipality's sewer lines is needed.

Monday's bond election offers Ayden's citizens an opportunity to cope with a serious community problem and at the same time take advantage of the federal government's offer to help defray the expense.

The verbal battle has left the people of the state confused on some points of the state's ports program. It has made clear other things concerning the ports, and it has brought forth suggestions that some changes in operating and administering the ports might be beneficial.

The State Ports Authority itself has said in recent days the recommendations for outlays at Wilmington and none at Morehead City during the coming biennium have been antiquated by developments since these recommendations were drawn.

Citizens of the state, we think, generally recognize the wisdom of a two-port situation in North Carolina and are anxious for both ports—not just one—to be developed.

North Carolinians also have seen that not only competition, but keen jealousy as well, exists between the state's two deep-water ports. While the former situation could spur activities in the interest of each port, the latter could cause detrimental repercussions against both the state's ports.

The Reflector seriously questions the wisdom of having the headquarters of the State Ports Authority and the office of its director located at either of the ports. Other states with more than one port have found it advantageous to have the ports authority headquarters on neutral ground, where overall problems and potentialities may be viewed more objectively by those whose responsibility it is to make the policies and carry them out.

If this year's ports squabble has accomplished nothing else in North Carolina, it has focused the attention of the people on their ports and compelled them to give the ports greater attention than ever before. Tar Heels have gained a better understanding of their ports situation and have subsequently realized more fully their stake in the development which two progressive ports in North Carolina.

Long, Long Trail A winding

Critics And Friends

By W. G. ROGERS
NEW YORK (AP)—Dearest friend and severest critic—that's what Mrs. Basing is to Mr. and Mrs. Basing. They have criticized each other's writings so severely that they couldn't take it face to face.

"He would read my pages," said the attractive Mrs. Basing, whose novel, "Home After Dark," has just been published by Random House, "wrote out what he thought of them, leaves his pen on my desk, and then runs like sixty out of the house."

Was he that much of a brute? Basing confessed he was. "We are two writers under the same roof. I have a career wife, she has a career husband. So we insist on the best."

Now they are braver, or tougher-skinned, and have reached the point where they can say what they used to have to write. They think it's a joke, but they are serious about it, too. And seriousness plus harsh criticism has paid off. They write and sell—they have realized a dream they share, I am sure, with thousands and thousands of other hard-writing couples in this country.

Eileen Basing has written juveniles, but "Home After Dark," is her first novel for adults. Robert Basing has spent a lot of time doing scripts for TV shows, the big ones, too, on a freelance basis. Both have written short stories that appeared in the magazines and collections particularly hard to crash, like Mademoiselle, New World Writing and Discovery.

"She's such a disciplined writer," said the husband, nodding toward his wife and sounding rueful, envious and proud all at once.

"I can't get to work. I pace the floor. But I hear her sit down at her typewriter and almost immediately she starts typing. She's typing and I'm not. That hurts. I ask myself, what's wrong with me?"

She picked it up at that point: "He isn't so worried about what's wrong with him as what's wrong with me. He takes what I type, looks it over judiciously, shakes his head, and finally remarks, 'I don't know what it is, Eileen, really, but this is terrible.'"

He couldn't have said that about this novel? Well, this one had a hard time getting written, she said. She began it as a treatise on the way people of unbalanced minds are let out of mental institutions and sent back to just the same trying domestic situation that had served to unbalance them.

Then she did a whole draft of a novel, and tore it up. "Literally tore it up." "Tore it up and burned it, too." She continued:

"But now I have started on another novel. I have 100 pages done."

What did her severest critic think of it? "He hasn't seen a line of it yet," she declared.

She comes from Massachusetts, but she has made her headquarters in Los Angeles. She always wanted to write, but together they committed themselves to writing careers when they sold their home and furnishings and moved for a couple of years to a small village near Guadalajara, Mexico. They rented a two-room adobe house for $5 a month, and by spending about $1,000 on it made it comfortable and attractive.

Even so it was fun, but not always smooth going. For instance, they had thieves, who stole their two typewriters, one after the other, and who one night broke into their larder, stole six eggs, sucked them calmly seated in their patio and left the shells there for them to find. The police told Basing to get a revolver and fire at marauders, so one night Basing did, "with both eyes shut, and shaking as much as if I was being fired at instead of doing the firing."

The thief was unscathed; they think he got so rich on them he opened up a shop of his own in Guadalajara. But for a time they got poorer, and they too had to open a shop. What did they miss most? Books and candy. So they sold fudge—"she got a recipe out of a cookbook, she stirred and I beat, and it sold well"—and rented books, mostly from her own private library of psychiatric and medical works.

Now they are back in Malibu, Calif.; he hopes to turn soon to more serious and lasting writing, she is pushing her second novel—he's waiting to get a critical crack at it.

Tragedy Came Close To Home

By LYNN NISBET
TRAGEDY—Tragedy struck close to the General Assembly this week. John Allen McLeod, Jr., assigned to cover the Legislature for his paper, The Greensboro Record, died in Rex hospital about noon Thursday, result of a traffic accident on Morgan street at the head of Fayetteville street, right on the doors of the capitol.

He was struck down while crossing the street by a Raleigh city bus operated by White Transportation Company. Testimony of eye witnesses is that he had the green light and the "walk" signal in his favor. Testimony of John Wynne, driver of the bus, is that his brakes failed and he had no control over the vehicle. Wynne is a veteran of more than 20 years service as a bus driver and he has an exceptionally good safety record. Evidence he did all he could to avoid the accident.

This apparently was one of those accidents which might be classified as unavoidable. But actually there is no such thing. Somewhere along the line there was human failure or mechanical failure. There is serious question whether any sort of driver or pedestrian safety test would have indicated any prospective human failure. John McLeod was a careful walker and John Wynne is a careful driver. Mechanical inspection of the bus by either public or private inspectors would not have insured against failure a few minutes after the inspection.

A General Assembly with membership more acutely safety conscious than any in recent years has this deplorable object lesson to emphasize the need for tightening rather than loosening all laws dealing with traffic safety, whether they involve human or mechanical failures.

McLEOD—From here on this column is going to be more personal. The device of third person reference and the editorially plural "We" will not be used. John McLeod was my friend, and 50 years newspaper experience does not enable me to deal quite the same way with close friends as with census statistics.

He was a good news reporter, but his strong forte was thorough research and accurate analysis. He was not greatly interested in headlines or by-lines, although he was concerned with accuracy in every detail of any article he wrote, and I have known him to spend hours tracing down a relatively unimportant factual item.

He was too dedicated to his job and too devoted to his family—a wife and two children—to be interested in playboy antics. So, he was not as well known among the rank and file membership of the Legislature as are some of the other newsmen who have longer tenure as legislative reporters, and closer day by day contact with legislators.

The esteem in which he was held was clearly illustrated by two incidents occurring a few minutes after news of his death reached the capitol. The House, having no really urgent matters on the calendar, adjourned for the day in his honor, carrying over until next day the assigned work. That action was taken at the instance of Speaker Kemp Doughton and upon motion of the entire Guilford delegation formally made by Rep. Ed Kemp of High Point. I was happy to be recognized by the Speaker and to express to the House membership the appreciation of the whole capitol news corps for this courteous gesture to one of our best loved colleagues.

TANGIBLE—The Senate had too much vitally important public business to permit adjournment without clearing the calendar—and John would have been the first to protest against letting anything that happened to him interfere with carrying on public business.

At the instance of Sen. Dave Rose of Wayne an informal voluntary collection was taken in the Senate chamber yielding $26 for flowers or for any object which McLeod's family might designate. The newspaper group also sent flowers.

There have been times when relations between the Legislature and its committees on the one hand and the news reporters on the other were not cordial. Cross charges of prejudicial bias in news reporting and attempted shenanigans in secret committee sessions were common.

Occasional attendance in other sessions and regular assignment to full time legislative reporting this year of John McLeod helped to improve this situation. Although he pulled no punches in his stories, no legislator ever questioned the accuracy of his statements or the integrity of their purpose.

HARD HIT—Newspapering in North Carolina generally, and the afternoon newspapers more and the Greensboro Record specially have been hard hit the past week in the sudden deaths of two top level men. Bert Brown, associate editor of the Record, and John McLeod of the editorial research staff, will be hard to replace.

Packagers Talk Better Design

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is the talking-about-packaging season.

This month and next there will be several packaging exhibitions and countless conferences of package designers. Businessmen, especially those who burrow through trade papers, will read a lot about "packaging visibility" and "packages that shout, 'Buy me!'" from the shelves.

They may take some comfort from the fact that at least one package designer is fed up with these tired cliches. He is Harry Lapow, whose studio is in New York.

"Visibility is an overworked stereotype in package design," he said. "There never was such thing as invisibility in the first place. Good design always out. Manufacturers don't have to talk about high visibility, color psychology and buy-me configurations any more. Package design has got beyond that."

Modern packaging, the designer said, should have:

"Bagability. That's size and shape that convince the buyer the package will ride all right in her bag. One of the worst offenders, I think, is the conventional waxed milk carton. Rough handling by careless shoppers often opens seams. Square corners sometimes saw holes in bags. Whenever you see a bag burst and strewn groceries on the sidewalk, the chances are that a sharp, damp container was to blame.

"Dispensability. A modern package should be easily opened and dispense a measurable or reasonable amount of the contents. A torn fingernail can mean a lost customer. Worst offenders today are some of those six-packs of cans. It often takes courage, persistence and a sharp instrument to get the cans out of the pack, and the product is still in the cans.

CONVENIENCE IMPORTANT. "Portability. Tall containers and others in awkward shapes slow sales. The packaging industry may not yet be ready for a modular scale, in which all packages would be in multiples of a standard unit, although the frozen food industry has pointed the way. Meanwhile, the package that is difficult to fit into shoppers' bags may find itself left on shelves, crying 'Buy me!' in vain."

One of the most important considerations of all, he said, is the "giftability" of the package. Mr. Lapow, you see, designs words as well as packages.

"There is almost no socially acceptable item that in the course of a year may not be a gift if the packaging does not discourage it. It's not necessary to put red ribbons and gold bells on every package, but if the package has a certain special quality to it, it may become one of the 4 to 5 billion gifts Americans buy every year. And there are some psychologists who believe that most things purchased are the buyer's gift to himself!"

INFLATION DISTORTS PICTURE OF ECONOMY

The decline in the purchasing power of the dollar tends to confuse Americans, and give them a distorted picture of the economy, according to a study by Dr. Franz Pick, monetary specialist.

Since 1946, he points out, bank deposits seem to have increased 33 per cent but, in stable dollars, they rose only 1.1 per cent and, considering the population increases, they actually fell 16 per cent.

The gross national product, seemingly up 63 per cent, is actually only 16 per cent greater.

And in yields, an investor in the 30 per cent bracket—which included many salaried workers—must get a return of 10 per cent before taxes to gain a 4 per cent income without loss of capital.

Dr. Pick's study, "The U.S. Dollar—A Cold Analysis of Critical Depreciation," is priced at $25, which amounts to $9,496 in 1946 dollars.

ONE WAY TO MAKE SALES IN LAWN SEED BUSINESS

The Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C., has issued a new bulletin on "Lawn Insects and How to Control Them." Single copies are free, but seed dealers might do well to get bulk rates and distribute copies to customers—making sure, first, that recommended insecticides are in stock.

HIGH COST OF BABY SITTERS.

There is another trend, toward games that both children and adults can enjoy. The high cost of baby sitters is responsible, explains James J. Shea, the Milton Bradley president. Parents, forced to spend more time with their children, want games that bore the elders, Mr. Shea said. More schools are using educational games these days, making it nice for his and other game companies.

The do-it-yourself trend is still strong. There are many new sets designed to teach children to cook, keep house and make repairs. Among the latter are electric drills, sanders and lathes, powered by batteries. One drill kit includes rubber bits, sanding disks, a polishing bonnet, a paint mixer and an interchangeable chuck.

If grown-up housing lags, play housing for children doesn't. There are a number of play houses children can build themselves, some with wood and others with reinforced paper. Teepees, play domes and other play structures are possible. Plastic swimming pools, by the way, are getting bigger and deeper.

There is the usual number of novelties, including a plastic apple from which a funny-face worm wiggles when the apple is squeezed; an electric cartoon machine that can project up to 500,000 combinations of funny faces; a device that makes bicycles sound like motor bikes, heaven forbid!; a game that helps children select their own careers; a puzzle game called "Hole in the Head," and a plushy, four-foot cat with a zipper abdomen. When the zipper is opened, three tiny kittens tumble out. Educational, perhaps.

For details on any toys mentioned, don't write to Uncle Elmer, but to the Toy Information Bureau, 200 Fifth Ave., New York 10.

I.R.S. SAYS WAITERS NOT PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

Even if he does not account to his employer for the tips he receives, a waiter can't count them as "earnings from self-employment," the Internal Revenue Service says, thereby dashing hopes of those who wish to build up Social Security benefits. However, the tips are still taxable as income.

Quite A Birthday Party

East Carolina College celebrated its 50th birthday yesterday. I personally enjoyed the party, thank you. The college has come to mean a great deal to me in the past six years. And I am looking forward to associations in the years to come.

The day-long celebration was an impressive thing. There were many kind words, a world of fond recollections, and an optimistic look to the future.

East Carolina has come a "far piece" since it became a part of the life of Greenville, and, indeed, a part of the life of North Carolina.

There is every reason to believe the college can continue to grow and serve the people of North Carolina. There is a growing realization among the people of our state of the place the college holds and the job it is doing for every citizen.

Dedication of Garrett Hall, a solemn and serious occasion, was not without its lighter moments.

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, presided over the ceremonies. As a part of the program, he introduced members of the Garrett family who were assembled for unveiling a portrait of R.M. Garrett, for whom the dormitory is named.

Dr. Messick was going down the line and introduced Mrs. Garrett and sons Ralph and Dwight. He also got in an introduction of one of the grandchildren but was stymied by a pair of young ladies.

"If the two children would introduce themselves. . .," Dr. Messick said and looked at one of them.

"I'm Dwight's wife," one of them laughed.

The program went on after a short interruption for general laughter by the assembled group.

The academic procession by faculty members and guests was an impressive sight. About the only time the faculty personnel put on all their finery is at commencement exercises and the vivid colors of their academic gowns and hoods was an unusual thing for March.

One wonders, however, if it would be half so impressive if our college folks would adopt the British custom of wearing their gowns all the time. . . especially, when Dr. Ed Hirschberg reminds us that in jolly old England the gowns are never cleaned.

I wonder, too, if there was a single person in Wright Auditorium yesterday morning who was not moved by the beauty of the music that was presented.

I was, and I felt better because I heard it.

Opinions In Brief

VAN NUYS, CALIF. NEWS: "Straight from records of the New York Stock Exchange: Two out of three people who own common stock have incomes over $7500 a year. . . . Nine out of ten stocks listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange paid dividends last year, and more than 300 of them have paid dividends every year from 25 to 108 years. And remember, when you own stock you are a part-owner, and if it grows and prospers you grow and prosper with it."

symbolic setting forth of a great truth. What we have always proves enough if we maintain our faith in God and use what we have under the guidance of His Spirit. Many a person has found the principle of the meal and oil which proved sufficient demonstrated over and over again in the events of life. We have felt that we were near to live for. We were deserted and helpless. And lo, the little we had proved sufficient. The handful of meal and the little cruse of oil did not fail until we were fully served and God glorified.

God is indeed our sufficiency. Jesus marvelled at Men's lack of faith in his day; He must marvel at ours.

work. While conscientious in a desire for justice these public servants are not equipped by training, education or temperament to deal judicially with violations in this special field.

With the setting up of state courts, counties would have the services of judges who would assume responsibility frequently shunned by clerks of courts as well as probation officers and case workers experienced in child welfare work.

The same arguments apply for the construction of detention facilities. Where there is only occasional need it is folly for counties to build elaborate detention homes. Yet certain cases have arisen where youthful lawbreakers have been placed in county jails for lack of any other facility and in violation of North Carolina law. District-wide detention homes should take care of this situation.

So while congratulating Currituck County on its lowered incidence of juvenile delinquency we repeat that this good performance is still an argument in behalf of state-supported, district-wide family courts.

MARVEL OF UNBELIEF

There is a beautiful story in the 17th Chapter of the first book of Kings which tells how the prophet Elijah, upon the command of the Lord, sought out a widow in the town of Zarephath and asked that she give him a morsel of bread. But the woman declared that she and her son were starving with only a handful of meal in a barrel "and a little oil in a cruse," Elijah declared to her, however, that the barrel of meal would not waste nor the cruse of oil fail for many months to come. And it turned out precisely as Elijah declared it would.

We have here not only a miraculous occurrence but a beautiful the Sudan and Yemen—got nothing. Here are the actual advances: Saudi Arabia, $2 million; Egypt, $27 million; Iraq, $8 million; Jordan, $22 million; Lebanon, $14 million. These comments, of course, do not apply to Iran, Turkey or Pakistan. As members of the Baghdad Pact, they obtained considerable economic and military loans and grants.

MONEY ARABS DID NOT RECEIVE

AGGRESS DID authorize the expenditure of $170,000,000 in the Arab area, but it was not spent because the prospective recipients did not meet our requirements for aid. They had no projects planned that could be developed wisely or advantageously.

This fact also furnishes the answer to many other readers, who have asked why Senator Russell of Georgia and so many other Southerners opposed the economic feature of the Middle East Doctrine. The reason is, based on this experience, that they do not believe the $200,000,000 wanted by the President could be devoted to constructive developments.

They figured that factors and emotions stirred by the immediate Suez Canal dispute would play too large a part in the distribution of the money. Moreover the 1958 foreign aid bill will provide a vehicle for even additional funds for the Middle East, if necessary.

"What effect, if any," asks M.K., of Oakland, Calif., "do you think the McClellan Committee's expose of Teamster Union 'scandals' in the northwest will have on the labor movement and problem?"

Answer: I am afraid that it will hurt many honest and legitimate unions, just as a few bad apples damage a whole barrel, unless extracted. Political and economic interests antagonistic to unions will undoubtedly try to make capital of these revelations.

It represents the AFL-CIO hierarchy with its most difficult situation since their amalgamation. If Teamster President Dave Beck is connected with these goings-on, he must be disciplined by President George L. Meany and his executive committee. It may mean a showdown with the head of one of the largest and most powerful unions in the united organization. It could mean a crack-up.

Nation Watching UNC-Gamecock Tilt In ACC Finals

Hook By Rosie Gave Tarheels 61-59 Victory

By JOHN CHANDLER
The Associated Press
The North Carolina Tar Heels, on the brink of disaster last night before running their undefeated record to 26 straight games, tangle with South Carolina tonight in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament at Raleigh, N.C.

A dramatic hook shot, followed by a foul conversion by All-American Lennie Rosenbluth with 45 seconds to go, saved the nation's No. 1 college team from defeat by Wake Forest. The Deacons' Jim Gilley had put his team ahead 59-58 with 55 seconds remaining. Rosenbluth's three points gave the Tar Heels a 61-59 victory.

South Carolina upset second-seeded Maryland in the other semifinal 74-64. Grady Wallace of South Carolina, the nation's No. 1 scorer, got 31 points.

In the Southern Conference tournament at Richmond, Va., favored West Virginia mauled Richmond in the last half, and won 83-62, to gain the finals along with Washington and Lee, a 68-54 winner over Virginia Tech.

Winners of both tournaments will enter the first round of the Eastern NCAA regional tourney Tuesday at Madison Square Garden. The Southern Conference tourney winner meets Canisius, while the ACC winner tackles Yale. Connecticut and Syracuse meet in another game on the triple bill.

North Carolina led all the way until Gilley canned two conversions. Rosenbluth had 23 points, one less than Jack Williams of the Deacons.

West Virginia had trouble with Richmond's zone defense until midway in the final period. Then All America Rod Hundley began to connect. Lloyd Sharrar led the winners with 20 points. Hundley had 17.

Texas Western withdrew from the NCAA tourney after Charles Brown, high scorer and rebound star, was declared ineligible. Hardin-Simmons, second-place team in the border conference, now will meet Idaho State in the first round of the Far West regionals Monday night at Pocatello, Idaho.

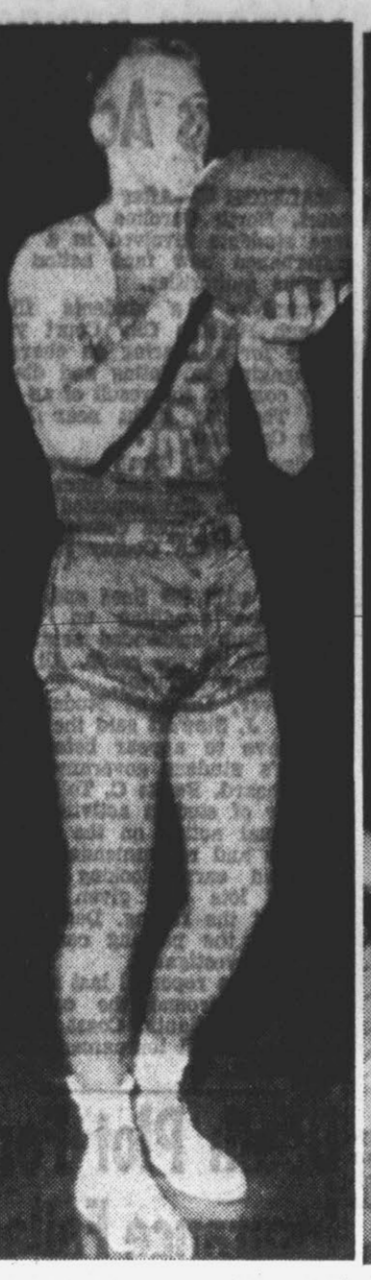

The Bradley Braves, who play in the National Invitation tournament at New York, were handed a 68-53 thrumping by Oklahoma A&M in a Missouri Conference finale. It was the fourth loss in the last five games for Bradley.

California, another team headed for the NCAA, clinched at least a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference title by beating Southern California 61-55. The Bears can win their first undisputed FCC title in 11 years by again beating the Trojans tonight. Washington kept alive by nipping Washington State 73-72.

ACC Finals To Match Wallace And Rosenbluth

ACC Finals To Match Wallace And Rosenbluth

By KEN ALYTA
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The Atlantic Coast Conference championship basketball tournament has come down to the battle of the Carolinas, winner of 26 straight and No. 1 in the nation, faces upset-conscious South Carolina at 8 p. m. with a bid to oppose Yale at New York Tuesday in the opening round of the NCAA Eastern regional tournament for the winner.

North Carolina slipped past Wake Forest 61-59 in the semifinals last night on three points in the last 45 seconds by All-American ace Lennie Rosenbluth. South Carolina followed its first round upset of third-ranked Duke with a 74-64 trimming of second-seeded Maryland last night as Grady Wallace, the nation's scoring leader among major colleges, threw in 31 points to bring his two-game total to 73 points, three off the tourney record for three games.

Rosenbluth, whose 45 points against Clemson Thursday set a single game tournament record, has 68 in two tourney starts and also should better the record.

Wallace's 28-game average is 31.4. In regular season play North Carolina pulled out a 90-86 overtime victory at South Carolina, despite Wallace's 35 points. The Tar Heels won the return game at home 75-62, Wallace being held to 11 points.

Wallace had plenty of help in leading the Gamecock upset of Maryland. Three sophoms, Cookie Pericola, Dick Hoffman and Fred Lentz, all hit in double figures as did Bobby McCoy, a senior, whose ball-stealing antics in the last half started Maryland on the downgrade. Lentz, 6-8, grabbed 17 rebounds.

With Wallace getting 18 points, South Carolina fought back to a 30-30 tie at halftime after trailing by eight.

John Nacinek, whose 20 points led Mar. drew his fourth personal in the third minute of the last half and sat out the next 11 minutes. With him on the bench and South Carolina starting to roll, the Gamecocks shot ahead by 16 points as Maryland once went four minutes without a point and fell completely out of contention.

In beating Wake Forest for the fourth time this season, twice in the final minute of play, North Carolina demonstrated that the good big men have the edge over the good little men.

The starting combination of senior Rosenbluth and four juniors seeded the only one man over 6-4. Wake Forest, with four seniors and a soph starting, had only one man over 6-3.

The Tar Heels grabbed 45 rebounds, 14 by Joe Quigg and 13 by Bob Cunningham, against only 21 by Wake Forest, a tournament record.

The Deacons, shooting only when the best opportunity presented itself, hit 52.5 per cent against North Carolina's 38.8. Wake Forest matched the Tar Heels' 21-basket total but had only 40 points against 54. The paper-thin victory margin came at the foul line where Frank McGuire's club had two more chances and made both good.

Twice in the first half North Carolina had an 11-point lead and three times in the last period it led by eight before the big Wake Forest push in the last five minutes had the crowd of more than 12,000 in a constant uproar.

HS Coach Gets $10,000 Salary

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — It is usual for a Texas high school football coach to get a college-size salary if he's winning. One of the biggest winners is Chuck Moser, coach of Abilene High School, and he has just been rewarded with a new five-year contract at $10,000 a year. It's a raise of $1,000 a season.

Moser has a fantastic record at Abilene, winning 46 games, losing 3 and tying 1 in four years, during which he captured three state championships and compiled a 37-game winning streak that is now running.

Moser has been a high school coach for 12 years and has an overall record of 109 victories, 24 losses and 3 ties. He started at Lexington, Mo., then went to McAllen, Tex., and came to Abilene.

The University of Missouri was making passes at him when it needed a new coach recently. But Moser liked it here so much he turned down feelers to go to his alma mater to coach. Abilene High saw to it that he was content to stay and come up with the new contract.

Tennessee State In NAIA Tourney

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Tennessee State, a 100-80 victory over Winston-Salem Teachers tucked in its pocket, will represent District 29 in the NAIA tournament at Kansas City, March 11-16.

Tennessee State led the entire championship game last night here, sparked by Ronald Hamilton and John Barnhill, each with 22 points. Wilfred John of Winston-Salem collected 24 in a losing cause.

In the consolation game, Grambling defeated Greensboro A & T 93-86.

Battle With Supreme Court Is Concern To Boxing World

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing men the world over were buzzing today with speculation over "what happens next" in the case of the government versus the International Boxing Club. Nobody right now has any definite idea of what's going to happen.

Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan touched off the bombshell yesterday by ruling the IBC was a monopoly and conspiracy in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in the promotion of world championship fights. The ruling was only on title fights and not on the weekly non-title bouts promoted on Wednesday and Friday nights by the IBC in coast-to-coast radio and television programs.

Just how this alleged monopoly will be broken up remains to be seen. Judge Ryan directed both the government and the IBC to submit proposed decrees within 30 days. Hearings then will be held before a final court order is handed down.

There were indications that if James D. Norris, president of the IBC, and his associates named in the civil suit, thought a final ruling by Ryan was too severe they would appeal to the Court of Appeals and, if necessary, to the Supreme Court. This takes plenty of time.

Most observers felt the government might try to clip the IBC's empire this way: Force the IBC to relinquish some of the big arenas to control Madison Square Garden in New York, Chicago Stadium, Detroit Olympia, etc. Nullify the club's exclusive contracts with champion fighters and make it give up either the Wednesday or Friday night network show.

Ryan, in his 59-page opinion, decided that the IBC of New York, the IBC of Illinois, Madison Square Garden Corp. Norris, who is president of all three, and Arthur M. Wirtz of Chicago, Norris' principal associate, were "a combination and conspiracy in unreasonable restraint of trade and commerce in the promotion of professional world championship boxing contests."

Exhibition Season Open For Majors

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The 16 major league clubs got down to serious business today when they all took the field for the opening of the exhibition season.

Mickey Mantle, the triple crown winner of the New York Yankees last season, was scheduled to try it out for at least a few innings against the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla. He is bothered by an ailing knee.

Card Manager Fred Hutchinson will test bonus baby Lindy McDaniel, probably for the middle three innings.

However, McDaniel wasn't the only rookie who got the once-over from his manager. All told, about 30 fledglings were down for three-inning stints.

The IBC, on advice of counsel, confined its comment to one state-ment by Norris.

"The court's decision was, of course, a disappointment to me," he said. "All I can say at this time is I hope we will not be prevented from continuing to present Wednesday and Friday night fights which have proved such popular television and radio attractions."

Meet Postponed

The Greenville high school-Jacksonville track meet, scheduled for Guy Smith Stadium yesterday afternoon, has been postponed indefinitely, due to rainy weather.

The meet was to have been the opening event of the season for both clubs and the Northeastern Conference.

A triangular meet is scheduled for Thursday of next week between Greenville, New Bern and Elizabeth City here at Guy Smith Stadium track and will serve as the opening match of the year for the locals.

Greenville was the Northeastern Conference champion last year under the coaching of Guy Lewis.

Roster For Locals In All-Star Benefit Game To Include ECC Stars

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
When the North Carolina State All-Stars invade Memorial Gymnasium here Wednesday night, they will tangle with some of the best basketball talent ever produced in this section of the state.

The roster for the Greenville All-Stars has been completed and was released this morning by publicity chairman Ford McGowan. The game, of course, is a benefit affair designed to air the athletic situations at both Greenville high school and East Carolina College.

The local lineup will include four starters from this season's East Carolina Pirates and former All-State East Carolinian Sonny Russell. The four Pirate stars will be Don Harris, Nick Nichols, Guy Mendenhall and Ike Riddick.

Russell, a lanky ex-Pirate who has been acclaimed the most celebrated cager ever to play at ECC, will be playing his first game in Memorial gym since his final season in 1952-53. Russell is the only basketballer in the local school's history ever to have his jersey retired. He gained All-Star honors by the busheis during his career at ECC.

Mendenhall, Harris, and Nichols were regulars on this year's East Carolina outfit and both Nichols and Mendenhall will be back again next season. Ike Riddick, a freshman performer on the 1956-57 Pirate aggregation, is a former All-Stater from Greenville high school.

Also performing for the Greenville club will be Smith Worthington, formerly of GHS and Hal Stout, another former high school All-State athlete. Others will be Brownie Tripp, Charlie Roberson, Gene Tripp, Bobby Coggins and Dan Gordan.

NC State Stars
Playing with the North Carolina State All-Stars this season have been some of the South's top basketball stars. The team contains at least three players who have made national All-America honors during their basketball careers.

Sime Wins Award As Top Athlete

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Anthony J. McKeelin Award for the outstanding athlete in the Atlantic Coast Conference belongs to sprint star Dave Sime of Duke.

The award, voted by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn., went to Sime for his record-breaking performances last spring before a leg injury knocked him out of the Olympic trials. The award is for the 1955-56 school year.

Sime, also a baseball player, received the award at halftime of the North Carolina-Wake Forest game at the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament yesterday.

The award, given annually, is in memory of the late Anthony J. McKeelin, former sports editor of the Raleigh News and Observer. McKeelin's daughter, Johanna, made the presentation.

Second Round Of NCAA Tourney Going On Tonight

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — Mt. St. Mary's entertains North Carolina College here tonight in the second round of the NCAA small college basketball tournament.

The winner will advance to the quarter-finals at Evansville, Ind., next week, where eight teams from four sections of the country will begin play March 13 to decide the national champion.

North Carolina College, champions of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Assn., won its first round game from Florida A & M 78-61. The Eagles record for the season is 16-3.

Sad Sam Jones, 6-4 senior, has led the Eagles this season with an average of about 18 points a game. His principal help has come from 5-10 Jim Sligh, who scored 21 points against Florida A&M.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doug Adams scored two goals here last night as the Charlotte Clippers topped the Philadelphia Ramblers 3-2 in an Eastern Hockey League game.

Bibery O'Hearn collected the other goal for the EHL champions. Charlotte goalie Les Binkley made 53 saves in a busy night.

Referee Ruby Goldstein scored 11-2-1 record for his 2 1/2 years of pro boxing. The loss snapped Hart's winning string at 12 and was only his second defeat. His record is 20-2, including 18 knockouts. Byars weighed 144 1/2, Hart 145 1/2.

The win stretched Byars' unbeaten streak to 11 and gave him a 17-2-1 record for his 2 1/2 years of pro boxing. The loss snapped Hart's winning string at 12 and was only his second defeat. His record is 20-2, including 18 knockouts. Byars weighed 144 1/2, Hart 145 1/2.

Byars, a smile on his face throughout the fight, kept moving in and out, rarely giving Sugar enough room to unload his slashing punches. A lot of punches Hart threw missed or were blocked.

Byars, fighting out of a crouch, and moving his head side to side, was a difficult target to hit. He kept his gloves on the side of his face to block off punches and he warded off other blows with his arms. He got in his share of punches, too, especially right hand leads to the jaw and several good right uppercuts.

Hart, downcast over having his streak broken, demanded a return bout.

The school's principal is Gordon Rodeen. He's the coach, too. F. Y. Trine serves as official timer for home games when he's not teaching.

Linden's population is 4,152. Nearly every resident is a roofer. The fans got pretty hot at a recent game. They didn't like the officiating.

So Principal-Coach Rodeen posted notices around the community. They advised that if officials didn't get more respect in the future, games would be played afternoons instead of evenings and without spectators.

Public Schools Better Than Critics Admit; Says Hill

Civic Clubs Hear College President

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

"Our public schools are a lot better than some people think," Dr. Henry H. Hill, president of Peabody College, told members of six civic clubs at the annual Inter-Civic Club meeting last night.

"They are better than a lot of critics admit," he declared.

Dr. Hill was speaking to members of the Civitan, Exchange, Jaycees, Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary Clubs who gathered for a dinner meeting in the college dining hall. Earlier in the day he had spoken at Founder's Day exercises on the college campus.

The educator described the public schools as a distinctly American institution and he outlined in six points that which he considered "right with the public schools."

First, he said, the schools give an "unfettered chance in the race of life to all normal boys and girls."

"Every boy and girl regardless of race, creed or color shall have his chance," he declared. He believed the idea of mass education originated with Henry Ford's mass production in 1912.

"We found we no longer needed boys and girls to work around the home. Where were they to go? Well, we put them in the schools."

Next, he continued, the schools of today are interesting and attractive. Third, the curriculum is varied and better meets individual differences.

Dr. Hill's fourth point was that quality is better in breadth, scope and range. "Not only do more millions read but they read better and they read more widely."

Fifth, he said, "Our schools are comparatively inexpensive." He pointed out that it costs around $125 per day to educate each child.

Finally, he noted the schools have promoted the physical development of the nation's youth. "Youth of today are bigger, healthier and weigh more," he declared.

Dr. Hill pointed out that there are 16 million children in the nation between one and four years old. "What are we going to do about all these extra millions of children anyway?" he asked. "Well we are going to put up some buildings, spend some money and take care of them somehow."

"Let's enjoy this," he continued. "The increased millions of upcoming citizens mean more customers, more taxpayers in the future."

Dr. Hill was introduced by Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College. Presiding over last night's meeting was Dr. M. W. Aldridge, president of the Lions Club. The Rev. Percy Upchurch delivered the invocation and a string quartet under the direction of Dr. Dan Vornholt performed during the dinner. Dr. Paul Hickfang of the college faculty sang three numbers during the program.

Frank Strawn served as chairman of the committee which made arrangements for last night's program.

Anniversary Of Raid By Villa

COLUMBUS, N. M. (AP) — Forty-one years ago today, Mexican guerrilla Pancho Villa and his followers swarmed into this little border town.

The 13th U. S. Cavalry, camped nearby, was taken by surprise by Villa's two-mile spurt into the United States.

The cavalry, however, quickly gained control and drove the Villistas from Columbus.

Seven U. S. soldiers and eight civilians were killed, and five U. S. soldiers and two civilians were wounded.

An Army spokesman said Villa admitted loss of 190 men.

Col. Frank Tompkins, executive officer with the cavalry unit, wrote of the battle in his book "Chasing Villa," published in 1934. He said one soldier in the stable crew killed a Villista with a baseball bat, and when a group of raiders broke into an Army kitchen, a cook soured them with boiling water and another sailed into them with an ax. All the attackers were killed in the doorway.

Students Facing Campus Action

RALEIGH (AP)—After their day in court, North Carolina State College students involved in a wild disturbance now face action by campus authorities.

Twenty-six students filed through Raleigh City Court yesterday for a hearing on charges of engaging in rioting and disorderly conduct, the result of an uproar Thursday night near Reynolds Coliseum.

Judge Albert Doub gave suspended sentences and fines to 17 of the group and acquitted 9 others. Eight of those convicted appealed to Wake County Superior Court.

Others paid $25 fines and court costs, the condition on which Judge Doub suspended sentences of 30 days on the roads. All sentences were identical.

However, Dean of Student Affairs J. J. Stewart said the group will have to appear before the college's student government judicial board, Banks C. Talley Jr., director of student activities, will take final action on the board's findings and recommendations.

Parked cars blocking student parking lots was given as the cause of the rioting. Dean Stewart said the parking complaints will be investigated.

Calm was reported last night in the area around the coliseum, where the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament is being played.

Death Plot For Insurance Failed

SELDEN, N. Y. (AP)—A mother of three children is under mental observation after failure of an alleged plot to dynamite her husband for his $5,000 insurance.

Mrs. Elvira M. Hough, 35, was committed yesterday to Central Islip, N. Y., State Hospital. Police said she tried to hire a man to rig up a dynamite charge on the family car which would kill her husband, Willard (Buddy) Hough, 31.

The other man involved, Oscar Farrell, 52, a truck driver, went to authorities.

Last Wednesday, Farrell said, Mrs. Hough approached him and "promised me $2,000 if I would wire Hough's station wagon with dynamite so that he would be blown up when he stepped on the starter."

Farrell said Mrs. Hough gave him the $22 he needed for dynamite and wires. He quoted her as saying: "Good luck tomorrow, but if Buddy doesn't die when he turns that starter I'm coming after you to kill you. You'd better not fail."

Police said Mrs. Hough later told them: "My husband and I quarreled over the weekend and I decided to get rid of him." She said the quarrel was over family matters.

Mrs. Hough was held by Justice of the Peace Leon Guiffreda on an open charge pending a 60-day observation period at the state hospital. No charges were filed against Farrell.

The husband, a crane operator, was stunned by the alleged scheme.

"I just can't believe it," he said, "I thought the police were joking when they told me."

Large Fertilizer Stock Burns At Ohio Factory

SOUTH POINT, Ohio (AP)—Fire ignited in 45,000 tons of fertilizer at the Allied Chemical & Dye Corp. plant early today generated clouds of acrid fumes that endangered a wide area, as far away as Huntington, W. Va., 12 miles to the east.

Nearby communities in the Ohio Valley were alerted, and in Huntington the National Guard was summoned for emergency duty.

Firemen from Ironton, Ashland, Ky., across the river, and Huntington joined the plant's firefighting unit in combatting the blaze.

The fire, in a storehouse, 100 yards wide, 600 yards long and 100 feet high, was still smoldering at 9 a.m., some eight and a half hours after it was discovered.

Mobile cranes were moved near the structure and hoses mounted on the booms to pour water into the fire area.

Ominous Signs Of New Trouble

By The Associated Press

Faced by ominous signs of new trouble in the Middle East, Dag Hammarskjold today began work on long-range measures aimed at preventing a recurrence of Israeli-Egyptian conflict.

The problem was left in the secretary general's hands last night when the U.N. General Assembly adjourned its regular 11th session after hearing an official report that Israel had completed its withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the Sharm El Sheikh area.

The assembly adjourned subject to the call of its president.

Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge pledged the full support of the Eisenhower administration for the secretary general's peace efforts.

One of the most pressing problems appeared to be that of trying to get agreement for U.N. forces to be stationed on both sides of the 1949 Palestine armistice line to prevent a renewal of raids across the border from Egypt and Israel.

Many delegations, including the United States, feel that such an arrangement is necessary to stabilize the border area. Although Israel has expressed firm opposition, Hammarskjold is expected to urge Premier David Ben-Gurion to reconsider.

The United States was represented as feeling that the days of the U.N. force may be numbered if it is stationed only on one side of the demarcation line.

Inflation Hits
AHOESKIE — Inflation struck a death blow to a familiar Hertford County landmark this week—the five cent bottle of pop. Soft drink distributors selling in the county increased their prices from 80 to 96 cents per crate to their wholesale customers.

As a result the retail price of soft drinks went up to six cents in most places. One Ahoeskier firm stated that it was the first increase in price the company had made since it went into business in 1936.

Is The Bachelor's Life A Merry One?

AT WORK AND PLAY—It is a natural thing that the bachelor must work in order to be able to play. Shown above is Leon Moore on the job at his oil company here on Dickinson Avenue as well as preparing to leave for a few days on a hunting trip with "some of the boys". From the looks of things his hunting dog would prefer to stay home on this trip rather than enjoy the outdoors as do most of the Greenville bachelors. (Staff Photo by Everette Parker).

FORE—One of the more prominent pastimes for the "boys" is the highly competitive game of golf. The fine thing about this activity is that it can only be played in the daytime, leaving the nights free for dating and "club" work. Above from left to right are Lymond Ormond, Jack Whichard and Jim Lanier who are working up their game before teeing off at the Greenville course. (These three are listed in the phone book). (Reflector Staff Photo).

STRICTLY AT WORK—Greenville can be justly proud of most of its native sons. Dr. Charles Pace, considered very eligible, is shown treating a patient in the emergency room at Pitt Memorial Hospital, being ably assisted by one of the staff nurses. Work plays an important role in the lives of the majority of the local bachelors who still find time to enjoy the fellowship of civic organizations, fraternal groups and various forms of "club" work. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Well--One Will Soon Quit 'Club'

By EVERETTE PARKER
Reflector Staff Writer

"MARRIAGE—1. The act of marrying, or the state of being married; specifically, a compact entered into by a man and a woman, based on mutual regard, to live together as husband and wife until separated by death. 2. A wedding; a nuptial celebration; with or between. 3. Figuratively, any close union."

This definition appears in Webster's Dictionary but evidently none of the men on this page (with the exception of one) have attempted to look up the "word" for its meaning and the inevitable.

Eight prominent Greenville unmarried men were chosen for the picture story of the "what and how". There are: Dick Greene, an automobile salesman; Jim Lanier, lawyer; Jack Whichard, newspaperman; Lymond Ormond, student and wholesaler; Judson Blount, Jr., businessman; Charles Pace, MD; Leon Moore, an oilman; and Bob Ballard, radio announcer.

A question that in all probability enters into many minds is what do these bachelors do for enjoyment and relaxation as well as at work. This article is posed as a guide to those who wish to know.

One of the bachelors whose picture is shown on this page is giving up his membership in the Greenville Bachelor's Club during the month of May. Judson Blount, Jr., is the name of the "one who will no longer be with us." Despite the fact that his status is in jeopardy, he consented to have one last picture with the "boys".

REST AND RELAXATION—Taking a little R. and R. as it was known during his Army days, Dick Greene is doing what most of the "boys" do on some occasions here. He is listening to his high fidelity record player, relaxing in his favorite easy chair and reading some interesting literature. Dick has an excellent selection of records in his apartment on Rock Spring Road. This has proven to be a favorite pastime for local bachelors when not keeping company with the opposite sex, attending club functions or playing sports. (Reflector Staff Photo).

COOKING—This department is usually left to the opposite sex but Bob Ballard in a case of almost necessity, has "mastered" the art and appears to be doing very well. The local radio announcer is shown above preparing a multi-course meal in his apartment here on Chestnut Street (phone not listed in the book). This, however, is not the general rule for Greenville bachelors most of whom either live with their parents or prefer to "eat out". (Reflector Staff Photo).

LEAVING FOR THE WEEKEND—All the men on this page are definitely in the category of being eligible with the exception of Judson Blount, Jr., shown above who is dropping his membership in the Greenville Bachelor's Club in the next month or so. In the picture he is leaving for a weekend stay with his future bride in Wilmington on his plane at the local airport. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Local Pastor Speaker For 'Day Of Prayer' Service

In reverence a large group of people gathered yesterday morning at the Eighth Street Christian Church to observe the World Day of Prayer Service.

The Rev. Irby Jackson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, was the guest speaker. His address was in relationship to the worldwide theme for the day, "Who Shall Separate Us?"

"Who shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus Our Lord. It is this love that supports us and defiles the schemes of Satan," Jackson said.

He further added that, "Nothing will come between us and the love of Jesus Christ, for he is the risen, living savior with power and ever active sympathy."

"When will the world and our country learn that their only lighted fortress is in God?" he asked. He discussed the continuing struggle of man thirsting for earthly values and losing God. The bleak picture of refugees under the strong arm of communism was also mentioned by the speaker.

Mrs. Helen Sermons, president of the Greenville Council of Church Women, presided. She was assisted by Mrs. H. H. Bryant, Mrs. Sam Underwood, and Mrs. R. A. Fountain.

The soloist was Miss Barbara Harris a student at East Carolina College.

The Purpose
World Day of Prayer's purpose is to unite all Christians in a bond of prayer, to give individuals an opportunity to share in a fellowship of prayer with others around the world, and to witness to their belief that prayer has the power to bring the hearts of men into conformity with God's will.

In 1956, World Day of Prayer was observed in 20,000 communities in the U.S. and in 142 countries around the world.
This year services begun on the

Auto Designers Are Well Up On Future Models

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT — The men who design the nation's automobiles currently are working on models that will not reach the market for another three or four years; work on some 1959 models is so far advanced that they could be introduced for the 1958 model year.

Skipping a model year isn't done very often in the car industry; it involves the scrapping of a lot of costly tooling. But it has been done under the stress of competition. Some manufacturers have claimed this year that they were "able to present some models originally scheduled for 1958 model year introduction."

Some times a car maker will introduce a new series of cars in midyear in an effort to strengthen his competitive position. Right now Ford is completing plans to introduce a new car, the Edsel, in the medium-price bracket. Some time next month it also will have its retractable hardtop model ready.

But there is no suddenness about the introduction of either the Edsel or the retractable hardtop. Both have been in the planning stage for a long time. The Edsel, of course, has been planned to strengthen the Ford position in the profitable medium price field. The retractable top model will be something of a novelty. Its price tag still remains a secret.

Cadillac is about ready to put its new Eldorado Brougham on sale with a price tag of upwards of $12,500.

American Motors has just put its Rambler Rebel model into production. This is the car with a V-8 engine, on which American Motors will offer fuel injection.

American Motors has just announced the Rebel model's fuel injection system, electronically operated, and offered as optional equipment, will be priced at $395. The new car itself, equipped with a four-cylinder carburetor, has a suggested retail price of $2,785.90. Along with their work on future model cars the engineers are trying further to improve power plants, automatic transmissions, ignition systems and car brakes. Generators with greater output appear to be a certainty in many 1958 model lines. This is needed, the designers say, to accommodate the steadily increasing demands on the electrical supply.

One leading car maker reportedly is experimenting with a form of aluminum disc brakes, with a special cooling system. The car maker so far has neither confirmed nor denied the report. However, research in this connection goes on almost without interruption in the industry's engineering laboratories.

Some Counties Are Two-Seated

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Nine of Mississippi's 82 counties have two county seats each, complete with courthouse and full staff.
The two major reasons for two-seated counties were inaccessibility because of bad roads or lack of roads and just plain old bickering over location of the county seat.

Water Safety Display Given Safety Council

The East Carolina Swimming Team, Greenville Rescue Squad and the Tau Boat Club presented a water safety demonstration at the March meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council in Memorial Gymnasium on the campus Thursday night. A small but appreciative audience attended the meeting.

Coch Ray Martinez of the ECC swimming team presented the events. A demonstration of swim strokes was presented as a medley relay by Wallace, backstroke; Oliver, breaststroke; Sawyer, butterfly breaststroke; freestyle, Williamson.

A small boat safety demonstration was presented by Stuart Savage and Joe Wallace. Savage is training officer for the Greenville Rescue Squad. Dr. Sam White II is commanding officer of the unit.

Fred Forbes, charter member of the Tau Boat Club, urged the audience to follow safety rules when operating power boats. A swimming rescue was performed by Al Baugh, ex-Marine and trained lifeguard, with Stuart Savage as the victim. Manual and mechanical aids to respiration were demonstrated.

Next the Mulligan "Iron Lung" was demonstrated by Claude Christopher and Dr. White. A question and answer session was held and the audience showed interest in this equipment which is valued at $1,500.

Frank Diener, Graham Quinn and Ross Brigman of the Greenville Rescue Squad demonstrated recovery methods by using their boat and grappling hooks in the ECC pool.

Al Baugh next demonstrated the self-contained underwater breathing apparatus commonly called "Scuba" or skin diving equipment. The audience manifested interest in this equipment and participated with their questions.

A survival swimming demonstration by Stuart Savage, who was bound with rope hands and feet, showed that discipline and lack of panic can be valuable in moments of danger in the water. The final event was a diving exhibition by the top diver of the ECC Swimming Team, Kenneth Midyette.

The ECC Swimming Team has one more test this season—the NATA Swimming Championships to be held in Carbondale, Ill. beginning March 23.

Ministers Hear Noted Layman

A prominent North Carolina Presbyterian layman, Vernon Patterson of Charlotte, spoke to the Greenville Ministerial Association at its March meeting held here this week.

In town in the interest of helping in the organizational work for the coming evangelistic crusade, Patterson stressed the importance of the crusade to be held in ECCO's Wright Auditorium May 19 through June 2. Patterson also urged that the group select a Central Crusade Committee as soon as possible. It has been reported that this committee will be appointed in the next few days, along with the chairmen of the various other committees.

The Association also heard a report from Rev. Mark Owens of the Hilldale Baptist Church concerning the religious census of Greenville which will be taken the week of March 31. Each church in the city will be assigned a certain area, thereby surveying the entire area.

It was announced that the Union Good Friday Service will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church, with several Greenville pastors participating.

The Ministerial Association also heard recommendations from the Social Action Committee and from Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs and City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam about the problem of alcoholic beverages.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Nine of Mississippi's 82 counties have two county seats each, complete with courthouse and full staff.
The two major reasons for two-seated counties were inaccessibility because of bad roads or lack of roads and just plain old bickering over location of the county seat.

Procession Preceded Main Address

An academic procession of special guests and faculty members of East Carolina College preceded the main address yesterday morning during the college's 50th anniversary celebration. The procession started at Snyder Memorial Library and passed through Wright Circle before it entered the Wright Building where this picture was made. At least 58 colleges, universities, and other educational organizations were included in the procession which was led by members of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina. (Reflector Staff Photo)

District Science Fair To Be Held At ECC April 5

Plans are now being made for the annual science fair for junior and senior high school students of the northeastern district of the state. The event will take place Friday, April 5, at East Carolina College.

Exhibitions by outstanding high school students specializing in the physical or biological sciences or in mathematics will be displayed that day in the Flanagan building as an attraction of East Carolina's 1957 High School Day.

Dr. Austin D. Bond is district director for the fair in the northeastern counties in the state. He is a member of the East Carolina College department of science.

The Science fairs at East Carolina and six other centers in the State College, Raleigh, April 25-27, events to the State Science Fair at State College, Raleigh, April 25-27, where district winners will compete for awards. Local fairs are now being staged in high schools throughout the state.

The North Carolina Academy of Science is sponsor of the fairs. Operating organizations are the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, the Medical Society of North Carolina, a number of business firms and newspapers in the state, and the colleges and universities acting as hosts at district fairs.

Dr. Bond, commenting on the science fairs at East Carolina and elsewhere, explained, "In this day and age when the need for scientifically and technically trained people is increasing, science fairs have proven to be stimulators of interest."

Display Worth In Dollar Terms

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona State College students staged a stunt to show the local businessmen what their spending means to the area's economy. They went on a picnic to Grand Canyon, about 150 miles away, with $10,000 in silver dollars in their pockets — and spent the money along the way.

Guest Minister

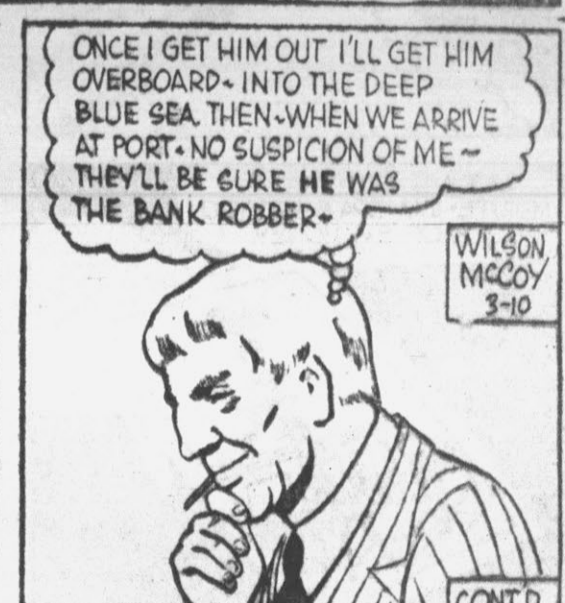

Dr. Ben E. Watson (above) of Lexington, Ky., will speak at the Eighth Street Christian Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Watson is a special representative of the Resources Department of the United Christian Missionary Society and a former missionary in Japan.

Solutions By Cities To Parking, Traffic Problem

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Downtown traffic and parking conditions are cause for grave concern in most North Carolina cities.

Even where the situation is temporarily under control, a growing population with more and more cars and other vehicles converging on the central business district cannot be ignored.

Here are some findings in an Associated Press survey of the problem, and what is being done about it.

CHARLOTTE:
The city traffic engineering department reports there are 8,059 off-street spaces and 1,026 on-street spaces in the 40-block central business district. These are called adequate for the time being, although some may be inconvenient. In a recent normal shopping day, 12,167 vehicles parked off-street and 9,764 on-street.

Charlotte has no public off-street parking. In addition to numerous private lots there are about six parking buildings, two of which hold 265 and 300 cars, respectively. Rates in a new tiered building are 30 cents for the first hour, 10 cents each additional hour, and 50 cents overnight. In a lot some distance from Independence Square, three hours costs 35 cents, and for 50 cents you can park all day.

Parking is prohibited at peak morning and afternoon hours on several blocks of Trade and Tryon streets, the principal business arteries. This provides six-lane movement and is quite effective.

Still, traffic engineers say the prohibition should be extended and predict that within a few years no street parking can be permitted downtown through the entire day.

ASHEVILLE:
Congestion is Asheville's biggest downtown headache. From the west U. S. 19-23 pours a yearly average of 20,000 vehicles a day through the city. U. S. 74 pours 17,000 a day. A one-way system of east-west main carriers has alleviated congestion somewhat on principal overstreets, where no on-street parking is permitted. Meters are on several streets off the main arteries.

Parking lots can handle some 6,000 vehicles, and the business district has about 600 meters. The city has 11 off-street leased lots. A parking building has been talked for some time, but no action has resulted. The Merchants Association recently announced a program to expand private parking facilities. Asheville's traffic-parking troubles increase with the influx of tourists, which extends from early April through late October.

RALEIGH:
The city operates one off-street parking lot at Memorial Auditorium with a capacity of 180 cars. Police Sgt. Willard Bunn says parking "is one of our biggest problems." Executive Secretary Wesley Williams of the Merchants Bureau says, "We should strive for 2,000 more spaces downtown."

The bureau organized the Raleigh Parking Corp. about six years ago. It operates two lots with a combined capacity of 150 and a daily turnover of about 600. The fee is 25 cents for the first hour at each lot, with $1 and $1.25 daily maximums.

Williams estimates Raleigh has 3,800 off-street parking spaces, including a large lot operated by a department store. "Except for peak hours, we have no real parking problem," he says.

GREENSBORO:
The city offers 544 off-street parking spaces plus a 220-space off-street lot charging $5 a month. Some 2,200 private parking spaces are available downtown, including a 500-space department store lot. There are 900 on-street metered spaces and a small lot charging only five cents for two hours. In addition, there are about 1,000 "free" spaces in or near the downtown area.

One parking garage can handle 265 cars, and another to be built soon will accommodate 350. The city plans to develop four lots with a total of 513 spaces.

One-way streets and new progressive timing, multiple cycle control traffic lights have helped control congestion. The city also has a multi-million dollar inner and outer loop plan for four, eight and 12 blocks from the heart of town to reduce the through traffic flow.

Gen. James R. Townsend, city manager, is credited with keeping Greensboro abreast with the demand for parking space for nearly a decade. He has insisted that meter receipts be earmarked for off-street parking and traffic aids.

GOLDSBORO:
Goldsboro is one of the few cities of its size without parking meters. The Board of Aldermen and the city manager have indicated they are in favor of meters, but have met with strong opposition from merchants.

Goldsboro has a double street running north-south through the business district which provides twice as many parking spaces as an ordinary street. Two-hour parking is permitted. In all, the downtown area has 1,242 parking spaces.

A bank and a department store have controlled parking lots and several other stores offer parking behind their buildings. The city has no off-street lots and few areas are available for that purpose.

ROCKY MOUNT:
The city has two off-street parking lots downtown with 159 spaces. One, more convenient, charges 10 cents an hour. There are other 5 cents an hour. There are 464 street meters at 5 cents an hour.

Police Chief J. I. Nichols reports that "on an average day the traffic situation is no problem in Rocky Mount. Even Friday and late-afternoon traffic usually moves along smoothly except when a train is stopped on the tracks that run through the middle of the business section."

HICKORY:
Although parking space slightly exceeds demand, there is a problem. Charles H. Davis Jr., traffic and planning engineer, said many spaces are poorly located with respect to demand, and many are "completely undesirable" for other reasons.

Since 1950 Hickory and the four-county trade area have had a 46 per cent increase in motor vehicle registration (it was 60 per cent in Catawba County) and curb parking has been reduced to speed the traffic flow.

The city has 1,629 downtown parking spaces, 768 of them off-street. Practical capacity of commercial off-street facilities is 474. Private facilities operated by stores offer 294 spaces, and there are 548 curb metered spaces. On a typical weekday last year, 29,081 vehicles entered the business area, and 8,335 parked. Davis estimates there is a present demand for 1,283 parking spaces, and that by 1966 there will be a deficiency of some 600 spaces in a four-block area unless more off-street space is provided.

One-way traffic regulations already in force, with more to come, have done much to speed traffic movement.

SALISBURY:
"Although the city is not faced with any desperate need for additional off-street parking facilities, they could always be used," says Police Lt. R. C. Kirchin. Congestion at peak hours is heightened by the load on busy U. S. 29. Bypasses and "loop" programs in use and projected should help matters.

Seven private off-street parking lots are within two blocks of the center of the city. The rates are 25 cents a day, $4 a month. There are 520 parking meters, expected to produce $42,200 this fiscal year.

SHELBY:
"The biggest need in the downtown area is parallel parking," in the opinion of a city official. Angle parking is permitted on one side of the four street circling the court square and on both sides of most perimeter streets. Traffic movement around the square has been expedited by a novel system under which the four streets are one-way, counterclockwise. The left of three lanes is non-stop except when pedestrians are in the mid-block crosswalks leading to the court house. Opponents complain that it's risky crossing the street, but the traffic engineer counters that it makes possible a 40-second stoplight interval — one of the lowest in the state.

SHELBY has a 60-car parking lot. About seven private lots can accommodate 100 cars, but most of the spaces are rented permanently.

HENDERSON:
A veteran observer reports that parking problems in the downtown area are increasing constantly, and that there are no immediate steps in prospect to help matters. There are few off-street parking lots. They charge 25 cents an hour. Parking meter rates vary with distance from the center of town. Traffic officers are stationed at the busiest intersections during peak hours.

NEW BERN:
The city has moved to alleviate the parking problem by operating off-street lots. The first one with 85 spaces, was opened in June, 1955, on one of the most valuable pieces of property in town. It rents for $300 a month. The rates are $6 a month, or 5 cents an hour. The lot took in $5,474 in the year ended June 31, 1956.

A second city lot was opened last Dec. 10, at the urging of the Merchants Bureau. Its 58 parking spaces are free of charge. The city pays $140 a month rent. Plans call for expanding this lot to accommodate 135 cars, and the merchants association has volunteered some financial help in buying the additional land needed. When the lot is completed the city will own part of it and rent the rest, and will install parking meters.

DURHAM:
City officials generally agree that parking and congestion in the downtown area are major prob-

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS—Greenville has done much to solve traffic and parking problems by opening off-street parking lots such as this one at Fifth and Washington Sts. The city also operates a metered lot on the old swimming pool property on E. Fifth St., a small lot at Evans and Second Sts. and a lot at Dickinson Ave. and Pitt Sts. (Reflector Staff Photo).

lems. Durham was one of the last large North Carolina cities to install parking meters, putting them into use Jan. 28. This summer the city plans to open its first downtown off-street parking lot, with 10-cent-an-hour meters. The lot will be financed through sale of revenue bonds.

City officials also have conferred with Southern Railway representatives in an effort to obtain railway property for more off-street parking space. Nothing conclusive has come of these talks.

GASTONIA:
Gastonia is in the enviable position of having a surplus of parking space almost all the time. Off-street parking space has tripled in the last two years.

In 1954 the city had only one sizable parking lot downtown — a 100-car lot in front of City Hall. Now there are three large lots leased to the city, and the county has opened a new lot behind the court house. A group of 40 up-town stores operates another parking lot, refunding the parking fee with purchases of $1 or more. The city and county lots offer eight-hour parking for 25 cents. And you can park free at night.

The city still maintains parking meters at the curb, but these spaces seldom are completely filled.

Principal streets in the business district are one-way.

GREENVILLE: This city has begun a one-way street system within recent years to improve its traffic system.

Parking meters are used on Downtown streets but the city government has also provided four municipal parking lots in various locations. Two of the lots are paved top roads approach pure pavement more than a 100 auto. The other two lots are dirt and unmetered. Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs says parking in the city is "working out well."

"Personally I can't see where we are having too much of a problem right now," he declared. "Off-street parking has done a lot to eliminate some of our problems."

Owner Happened To Have A Gun

DENVER—Police dispatcher William Threlkeld heard the voice over the telephone say: "I want to report a burglary. I just broke into a grocery store, and would you please send over a car right away."

Threlkeld called the caller, Alfonso Vigil, 27, explained he had phoned at the request of Raquel Cordova, 62, the store owner, who returned to work last night — and happened to have a gun handy.

Janet Blair To Quit Caesar Hour

NEW YORK (AP)—Janet Blair, Sid Caesar's third television wife, says she is bowing out of the comedian's TV show at the end of this season, June 15.

Miss Blair, who replaced Nanette Fabray in Caesar's Hour, said yesterday she was leaving the program because her role was not big enough. She added: "My association with Sid personally has been completely cordial. This is purely a professional split."

Caesar could not be reached for comment.
