Best-Dressed Woman

Select The Best With Care Explains Mrs. Lee Hannah

Here are some fashion tips by Mrs. Lee Hannah who was recently named one of the ten best-dressed women in North Carolina.

Almost 2,000 votes were cast in a recent poll conducted by the Woman's Department of the News and Observer and fashion editors of leading state newspapers to choose the state's ten best-dressed women.

What is the secret that caused this Greenville woman to be selected from such a large number of candidates from every corner of North Carolina?

"When I buy, I try to get quality and then I can wear the same garment for years," she answered. By thinking first where she will be going and what she will need, Mrs. Hannah is able to select her wardrobe with care and forethought.

Another important factor in a good wardrobe is the constant care that you must give it. "I always take care of my clothes and have all of them altered to fit perfectly whenever they need it," she pointed out.

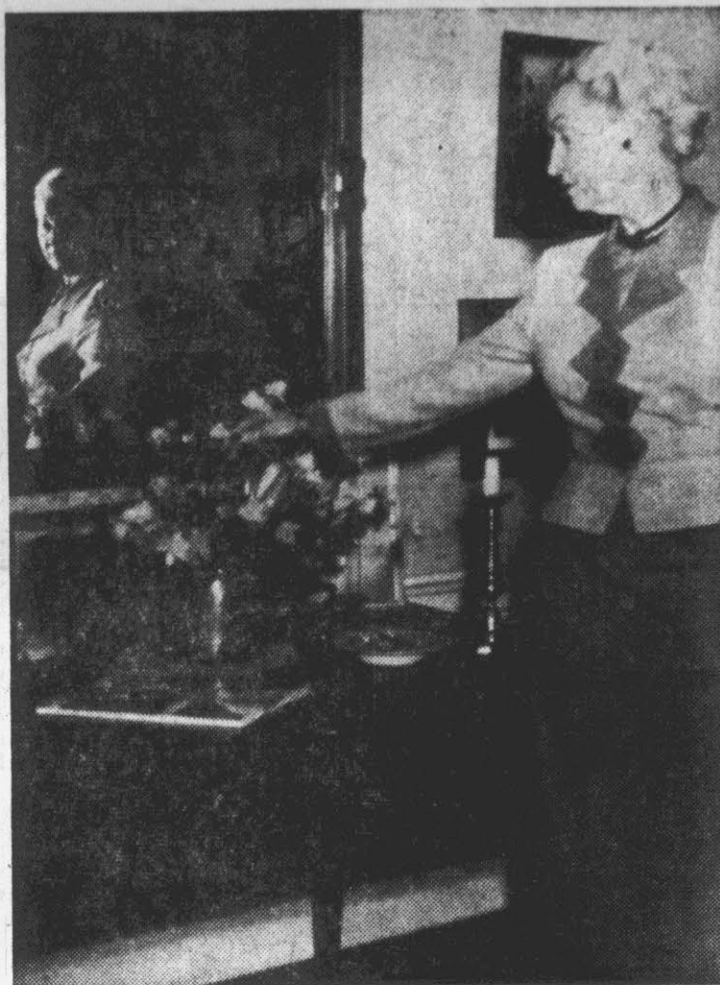

Right Accessories When a woman selects a wardrobe she should consider whether she has the right accessories to make her new outfit complete. This is one of the keys to being well dressed. In her own clothes Mrs. Hannah strives for perfection and says, "I never wear anything if I don't have everything to go with it."

Fads are constantly influencing the women's fashion world, and Mrs. Hannah says she prefers the new look... "but not to the extreme!"

Clothes are not the complete answer to appearance, she explained. "I think a person should be well-groomed at all times to create the perfect look," she explained.

Suits Are Backbone For her active life, she quickly chooses suits and tailored clothes as the backbone of her wardrobe. A good suit can be worn many years, and Mrs. Hannah readily admits that some of hers are "two or three years old."

Hats are her favorite accessory and she considers them quite important in any woman's wardrobe. To set off her blonde hair worn in a chignon and her classic features, Mrs. Hannah uses many varied hat styles. But when she buys a new hat she always looks for an "advance style that can be worn the following years."

Many Interests At the top of her list of interests is her work in Alcoholics Anonymous. "My primary hobby is the benefit and the satisfaction of the work in Alcoholics Anonymous," she said.

As an original hostess, Mrs. Hannah is widely known.

At a recent party she placed an old buggy on the porch for the guests' hats and coats. "I guess I inherited my originality from my mother (Mrs. R. W. King) who was also quite an original hostess," she noted. She loves to entertain and often acts as hostess for her husband who is a distillers' broker for several states.

Traveling is another phase of her many-sided life. She often goes to New York to shop and with her husband on business trips. "I just love to travel anywhere," she commented.

Early American Furniture Her home is completely furnished in American antiques which create a sharp contrast to Mrs. Hannah who is quite modern in her dress and style.

She began collecting the furnishings 35 years ago and many of her most prized possessions are pieces given to her by her mother.

A great deal of Mrs. Hannah's time is spent with her three grandsons, Lee Hannah, Sidney Worth and Steven Huntington. They are the children of her daughter, Mrs. Nancy Dunn.

Today's grandmothers are as style conscious as their daughters and Mrs. Hannah is a perfect example of the active and attractive woman.

Air Wave Opera Can Be Enjoyed

St. Patrick Inspires A Blaze:

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor IT'S A GREAT DAY for the Irish and a great day to give the small fry a thrill with the wearin' of the green.

Since spring is a signal to the home seamstress to unfurl her sewing machine, a gay way to start is by stitching up a St. Patrick's blazer for your favorite youngster.

Easy to make and fun to wear is a felt jacket that can be worn proudly on St. Patrick's Day and that will do duty on many chilly days of early spring. Local sewing center experts suggest a green felt blazer appliqued with white felt shamrocks and trimmed with white bias binding. Choose a standard pattern for a jacket that may be adapted for either a boy or a girl, and make your own pattern for the shamrocks.

Less than 3-4 yard of 72-inch felt is needed to make the jacket. The inch rulers printed on the pattern piece make sleeve and length adjustments easy and accurate. And a felt jacket is a breeze to make, since it needs no seam finishes.

When appliquing the shamrocks, use a close satin stitch on your automatic swing-needle sewing machine or your automatic zig-zagger attachment. Remember to leave a generous margin when cutting the applique, and apply the shamrocks on the pockets before stitching pockets to jacket. In the case of the elbow patches, applique these before sewing up the seam on the sleeves.

If you don't want to go all-out on the Irish motif, you can use other decorations for the blazer; transfer patterns in the pattern envelope offer a choice of a fleur-de-lis, a pine tree of a heart—all decorative applique designs to brighten up a smart and practical jacket.

Club Women Hold Camellia Show

A Camellia Show will be held at the Woman's Club Friday from eleven a. m. until five p. m. The show is sponsored by the Greenville Garden Club and is open to the public.

Anyone interested in bringing a specimen for the showing must label each piece with the names of specimen and grower. These must be at the club building by 10 a. m. Friday.

Mr. John Barnhill will talk at 2:30 p. m. on grafting camellias. There will be nursery exhibits with an opportunity for the visitors to buy plants.

It doesn't matter how the singers look—the drama is in the voice. That is one reason, she believes, why the Metropolitan Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts have continued popular for 17 years.

"I have been working on these opera broadcasts for all 17 years," says she, "and I haven't been bored yet. Every time an opera is performed it is different. That's what makes it fascinating. And that's why I wouldn't trade my job for all the uranium in Canada."

Geraldine Souvaine is a tall, good-looking gal with light brown hair and a sparkle in her eye. She has a sense of humor, even about opera, and enjoys fighting for her point of view in a conference with sponsors.

Geri started out to be an opera singer herself, and departed from her Kansas City, Mo., home to study in Italy at Stella Vise (an English convent) and at the Rome Conservatory of Music. In France she attended College Montmorency, the Sorbonne and the Paris Conservatory of Music.

Instead of becoming a prima donna, Geri married Henry Souvaine, original producer of the air-borne Met, and worked with him until his death in 1954.

Co-Hostesses Entertain Garden Club in Grifton

GRIFTON—The Grifton Garden Club met for their March meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dewey Wall on Church Street with Mrs. Jack Carson as co-hostess. For the occasion lovely arrangements of daffodils were used as decorations.

Mrs. Clifton Jackson presided at the business session and heard reports from various committees. Mrs. B. C. Troutman reported that the bluebird houses had been distributed to twenty members.

The Nominating Committee, Mesdames L. L. Mewborn, Roger Johnson and Bill Mahler, presented for the state of officers for 1957-58 the following: president, Mrs. Don Casey; vice-president, Mrs. Jack Carson; secretary, Mrs. B. C. Troutman; treasurer, Mrs. Bill Mahler.

Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mrs. Archie Rogers were appointed as a committee to work out details for a "Clean-Up Day" in Grifton.

After the business the hostesses served cookies and Coca-Colas and then retired to the school agriculture building where Mr. Paul Bradley gave a talk on the seeding and care of lawns, illustrating his talk with a film strip.

Mrs. Murphy Has Dessert Bridge

GRIFTON—Mrs. Wilbur Murphy entertained at dessert bridge on Friday night at her home on Queen Street. Guests for the evening were club members and invited players for three tables. Arrangements of spring flowers were used in the home.

Mrs. Becky Worthington scored high among the club members; Mrs. Clifton Jackson, second high; the visitor's award went to Mrs. Woodrow Smith, and Mrs. Johnnie Smith received the consolation.

The other players were Mesdames Walter Murphy, David Parker, Conrad Hart, Bryan Davis, John Coward, Frank Davis, Roy Jackson and Miss Ruth E. Smith.

The hostess served fruit pie with ice cream and coffee.

Informal Birthday Dance Is Given

GRIFTON—An informal dance at the park club house was given by Mrs. Ed Owens Friday night. The dance, in honor of her daughter Connie, celebrated her twelfth birthday. Twenty friends were guests for the occasion.

The birthday cake carried out the pink and white color note in decoration and was served with iced drinks, nuts, and candy at the refreshment hour. Mrs. Henry Tyndall assisted Mrs. Owens with the party activities.

Credit Woman Hear Saieed

The Credit Women's Breakfast Club held its regular meeting Saturday morning at the Olde Towne Inn with President Callie Rue Williams presiding.

Mr. Dan Saieed, a sponsor of the club, taught the third lesson of the present study course entitled "You—The One Girl Office." The discussion was informal and one in which the club participated by relating the different business and personal interruptions that occur while at work. Some very excellent solutions were suggested.

As this month is the eighth anniversary of the C.W.B.C. in Greenville, it was decided that the annual birthday party be held at 7:15 p. m. Wednesday, March 27, at the Woman's Club. All bosses and sponsors are invited to attend.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Ruth Brady and Mrs. Cora Powell.

Pitt Students Hear College Choir Today

Between 1,700 and 1,800 county school students attended a special concert of the East Carolina College choir today.

The concert was held in Wright Auditorium under the direction of Dr. Elwood Keister of the college.

St. Patrick Decor Used At Party

GRIFTON—On Thursday night, Mrs. Dewey Wall was hostess at her home on Church Street for supper and bridge. Bowls of yellow daffodils decorated the home for the evening. Table appointments and tallies were of the St. Patrick's motif. On arrival a barbecue supper with cherry pie a la mode was served.

During the bridge games which followed, Mrs. Thurman Williams scored high and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn second high among the club members; and Mrs. Wiley Gaskins for visitors. Others playing were Mesdames J. L. Quinerly, Eleanor Gower, Jack Tucker, Ben G. Tucker, Alton Chapman, Misses Marie Chapman, Louise Mewborn and Hazel Patrick.

Progressive Step, Or A Retreat

Will Greenville's youngsters be afforded the benefits of better teeth and better health through fluoridation? Or will the City Council deny them this benefit?

Fluoridation of municipal water supplies is desirable as has been shown by studies in city after city

Three Years Make A Difference To Us All

At what age does a person attain sufficient intellect and discretion to entitle him a vote in the affairs of government?

Is the average person sufficiently mature to assume full responsibility of citizenship at 18? At 21? At 45?

The question of allowing 18-year-olds a vote is again before North Carolina's General Assembly as it has been for several sessions. From all indications, the movement of franchising 18-year-olds is no stronger now than it has been in previous sessions when it failed to receive legislative sanction.

Age alone is not the only determining factor of an individual's willingness or ability to exercise full responsibility of citizenship. A youngster at 18 may take more seriously the responsibility of citizenship than someone else who is 21, 45, or 65. On the other hand, the older one becomes, usually the greater discretion he exercises and the more keenly he feels his individual duty as a citizen in a democratic society.

The average person matures a great deal between the ages of 18 and 21. The knowledge of government, politics and public issues gained during this three-year span stands the young voter in good stead when he casts his first ballot. To thrust upon him at 18, the full responsibilities of citizenship and voting would be doing him an injustice.

across the United States. Endorsement of fluoridation by physicians, medical, dental and scientific groups as well as national, state and local public health authorities and organizations underscores its benefits. These would not have been forthcoming were there any question about benefits of fluoridation or if there were any margin for belief that fluoridation could be harmful to any segment of the population.

Aware of the benefits which may be derived from fluoridation of the city's water supply, voters of Greenville went to the polls at the request of the Council and expressed their desire to be afforded these benefits. In spite of the fact that this action took place six months ago, the Council has made no move to carry out the expressed wishes of the people at the polls.

It is the responsibility of a governing body to give its citizens the best which the government can afford, be it education, police protection, streets, public health, or other services. The responsible government does not balk at giving its people the best it can afford. While it may balk at jumping at a radical idea, it does not hesitate to take a proven, progressive step.

As long as the subject of fluoridation has been before Greenville's City Council—more than a year now—it should be decided positively or negatively. As long as the matter has been before the Council it would be a backward step for the Council, which has prided itself in giving Greenville positive, progressive government, to deny citizens of the city the benefits of fluoridation.

Thursday night is the date the Council has set for itself to decide the issue. Reduced to its simplest terms, it is a question of whether the council will, by another progressive step, afford its citizens better health; or whether the Council by a negative decision will deny its citizens benefits they can and should be afforded.

Potentials Of Atomic Energy

By ELMER ROESSNER

The opening of the 1957 Nuclear Congress and the International Atomic Exposition in Philadelphia today may serve to make Americans aware of the terrific potentials in atomic energy.

Then again it may not. For some reason, many Americans appear to be wall-eyed to the possibilities of atomic energy. Maybe it is psychological: People dread the atomic bomb and therefore shut their minds to everything concerning atomic energy, even its pacifying as well as peaceful uses.

Make a test yourself. Pick any person not engaged in physics, some phase of atomic development or in the power industry and ask him (1) approximately how many nuclear-fuel plants are now under construction in the United States and (2) by what date will atomically-generated electricity flow in commercial and household power lines.

THE ANSWERS

The chances are you won't get reasonably good guesses. The answers are (1) about a dozen and (2) before July.

Two small units in California are scheduled to begin generating power late this spring. A 60,000-kilowatt reactor being built by the Atomic Energy Commission at Shippingport, Pa., is scheduled to feed power into Duquesne Light lines by September.

Development of atomic energy is one of the biggest guarantees of long-term prosperity.

In the next 10 years it will bring in more than 110,000,000 kilowatts of generating facilities.

This will involve $4 billion or more in construction each year, with a good chance that the figure will soar above that mark.

It will lower fuel costs. One new plant is expected to use only six-tenths of a pound of coal per kilowatt hour; 10 years ago twice as much was required.

POWER ANYWHERE Atomic energy will mean inexpensive power anywhere in the United States and, eventually, the world. Efficient plants can be established far from sources of hydroelectricity or other fuels.

It will create thousands of new businesses and make thousands of old ones more profitable. The by-products of atomic research will cause thousands more to flourish. Even today 1,100 business firms and organizations are putting secret data from the AEC to use. These include chemists, city and state agencies, engineers, insurance companies, accountants, research organizations, trade associations and utilities.

Atomic energy is being developed speedily in Europe, too. Britain recently doubled its production program.

This will make all nations with atomic power less dependent on others. Notably, it will make Europe less dependent on the oil kingdoms of the Middle East. And that may help bring peace to the world.

It will be a long time before autos and motor-bikes run on atomic power, of course. But the use of atomic energy for factories, mines and ships, and for domestic electricity, will free rivers of petroleum products for transportation and other uses.

NEWS THAT CUES BUSINESS TRENDS

Tranquilizers and hormones accounted for half the 8 per cent increase in medical-prescriptions filled last year, the Merimetric Institute reports.

Failures of retailers of apparel and accessories, dry goods and general merchandise dropped 60 per cent in February, Dun & Bradstreet says.

Rising costs now leave the average tavern owner only wages at this take, declares C. Leroy Jensen, president of the National Licensed Beverage Association.

January was hot, as far as fire losses were concerned. The National Board of Fire Underwriters lists losses of $115,272,000, higher than in any month in 1955 or 1956.

Outdoor advertising spending in 1957 will set a new record for the 14th year in a row, Printer's Ink predicts.

Of 417 plants polled by Mill & Factory, 93 per cent use vending machines and in 30 per cent of the plants, they are employees' sole source of food at work.

New York bought more TV sets than any other state last year—1,287,424. The Radio-Electronics-Television Manufacturers Association reports, Wyoming bought the fewest, 9,965.

The Surplus Is In Big Demand

By LYNN NISBET

WHOSE MONEY? — Who should have first claim upon "surplus" money in the North Carolina general fund? It is elementary that this surplus, like all other money, belongs to all the people.

During the regime of Governor Gregg Cherry, which followed the war years when more money was collected in State taxes than could be spent on State services, the idea prevailed that the excess should be dedicated to debt payment and to permanent improvements.

In 1945 some $52 million was earmarked for debt service, and in 1947 almost as much was appropriated for capital improvements at State institutions. It was not then regarded as sound policy to use accumulated surplus for operating costs of the succeeding years.

Prospect of a $60 million surplus at end of the current biennium has occasioned numerous suggestions for its use. The Advisory Budget Commission recommends spending $33 million for buildings at the institutions; setting aside $9.5 million as a revolving loan fund for additional buildings—principally dormitories on a self-liquidating basis, and using some $17 million for operating expenses during the next biennium to offset anticipated loss of revenue through revision of tax laws.

Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland introduced a bill specifically setting aside some $30 million for debt service. Rep. Thomas Turner of Guilford offered a constitutional amendment proposing that all surplus funds, this biennium and hereafter, be put into debt service and capital improvements, and that none be used for current expenses.

There would seem to be reasonable arguments in favor of each of the numerous dispositions of surplus tax money.

DEBT — Dedication of the funds to retirement of the bonded debt can be justified, on the ground that the people now are deriving benefit from the bonds issued and to the extent possible they should relieve the next generation of the burden of repayment. This generation borrowed the money, and this generation ought to pay it back—if it can, say advocates of debt service dedication.

Use of the accumulated surplus to provide needed facilities at colleges and hospitals can be justified on the ground that if these facilities had been built when first needed, the surplus would not have accrued. It is only fair to pay for the buildings when we have the money instead of building them now and charging the cost to our children.

Somewhat similar approach is taken to the idea of using the surplus for operating expenses, especially for raising salaries. State employees were led to believe two years ago that they were entitled to some raise, and if the State had the money in prospect the raises would be granted. The raise was not granted, and now employees—including school teachers—feel they have a sort of first mortgage on the accumulated surplus, which would not be there if they had been raised before. They see nothing wrong in taking some of it to make up for the deficit of the past biennium.

The advocates of higher pay raises have their eyes especially on that $9.5 million revolving loan fund. Avowed purpose of that item is to lend money to colleges to build dormitories, the rents from which will repay the fund. Contention is that such "revenue bond" dormitories have been built by loans from insurance companies, and that process can continue.

RACE TRACK — The talk hasn't gotten above the whispering stage and that mostly in non-public places, but the probability of attempting to legalize horse and dog race tracks is found to be fairly strong in some resort communities in the mountains and along the coast. Even in those centers there is considerable opposition, and it is extremely doubtful that any bills authorizing race tracks with paramutuel betting would get to the floor of the General Assembly.

Public sentiment in North Carolina does not condone open cocktail lounges and bars, nor does it tolerate legalized gambling at card tables, roulette wheels or race tracks. Less than half the counties permit legal sale of packaged alcoholic beverages, none allows legal sale of liquor by the drink.

Without reference to the rightness or wrongness of this attitude, it is statistically true that North Carolina is losing industrial plants and tourist trade to other states which allow these types of recreation and entertainment. Per capita income is lower and tax rates higher in North Carolina than in many states which derive governmental revenue from sources that are outlawed here.

The back room talk is that a race track bill may be introduced by a mountain representative, will have the support of several representatives from beach-front counties, maybe some from mid-state resort areas—but will be snuffed under by opposition from preponderant majority of the lawmakers.

The one chance for enactment of such a bill is that it will provide for local option on establishment of race tracks, but for State control and State participation in revenue, somewhat along the lines of the present ABC system.

Some People You Meet

P.D. Gold, one of the original founders of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., spoke to stockholders of the Sentinel Life Insurance Co at their first annual meeting yesterday.

Gold helped found Jefferson Standard more than 50 years ago. Since then he has been to Hollywood and engaged in other activities.

Today at 81-years-old he is still writing insurance and he told Sentinel stockholders, he wrote about a quarter of a million dollars in insurance last year.

Thus it can be seen that Gold is still going strong. Will he quit in the near future?

"I'm 81 years old," he told the group, "and I'm going to live to be 100 if it kills me."

Gold told the stockholders of the local company that some persons who bought Jefferson Standard stock from him in 1907 became rich.

He said he knew of a man who bought $5,000 worth of Jefferson Standard stock in 1907.

That distinguished educator said he couldn't win when he was growing up under his aunt's care in Statesville.

If he finished his bath too soon, his aunt would say: "Why you couldn't have half-bathed."

If he took a longer time she would say: "Why I could have bathed twice."

Charles S. Edwards, mayor of Farmville, says a wealthy farmer in the northern section of the county thought that possibly the sewer lines to the new Formica plant to be built in Farmville could not be installed after the County Commissioners request for assistance on the project.

Edwards said the man offered to write a check for the full $25,000 needed and let the town pay it back in any way it saw fit.

"I assured him we'd already let the bank to pay for it without affecting the tax structure one bit," Edwards declared.

The mayor said there was never any question the line would be built but Farmville officials thought the county might like to assist in the project.

"If we can get another plant we'll build another line and we won't even bother to go and see the commissioners," he declared.

minimum importance to their forecasts. But they doubt whether President Eisenhower will dare to reject the advice of his own advisory commission after its two-month inspection of our overseas structure.

NO HOPE FOR TAX CUTS Congressional adoption of this foreign WPA-PWA program, it is agreed, would wipe out all hope of tax cuts, balanced budgets or even a pay-as-you-go attempt to pare the vast public debt. It would have a short-term inflationary effect, but with threat of a serious depression and deflation in the background. Mails Bring All This

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Times a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That you are worth more now than you were 20 years ago—the chemical elements in the human body would fetch slightly more than a dollar at present commercial prices, as compared with about 87 cents then.

That the reason "the little red schoolhouse" of yore was always painted red was—that color paint was the cheapest.

That Denise Lor, the TV singer, says she knows of a married wolf who won't wear a wedding ring for fear it would stop his circulation.

That the reason sleeping birds don't fall off their tree perches is simple—nature endowed them with a toe grip that automatically locks around a twig.

That there are 500 or more different kinds of flying bats in the world.

That the most outrageous pun of the year is a sign in a subway station snack shop window: "What foods these morsels be?"

That people who advise you, "Don't take any wooden nickels," probably don't realize a rare old wooden nickel today is worth more than a real metal one.

That, although a nickel seems to buy fewer things every year, the U.S. government Printing Office will still take one in exchange for a copy of President Eisenhower's second inaugural address.

That Dixie singer Jane Pickens and her hubby, who have a yacht named "Cotton" that carries a lifeboat called "Cotton Boll," now are adding a glass-bottom boat to be known as "Boll Weevil."

That malaria, regarded by some scientists as the greatest single menace to mankind's health, causes an annual death toll of 2 1/2 million among its 200 million victims throughout the world.

That Alexander the Great probably died not from drinking too much wine but from the bite of a malarial mosquito. And Cleopatra slept under a mosquito net to protect her beauty from insect stings.

That mules are immune to malaria, and in some countries are put out as live bait to draw the disease-carrying mosquitoes.

That a statistician has figured the hot dogs eaten by the average American in a single year, if stood end to end, would make a column 21 feet 3 inches tall.

That three out of four American homes now have electric toasters, more than 90 per cent have electric irons, 60 per cent have vacuum cleaners.

That khaki, first worn by U.S. soldiers in the Spanish-American War, comes from the Hindu word "khak" meaning "earth" or "dust." And every ex-infantryman will agree they picked the right word.

That sanitary people who want jewelry unobscured by human hand can now buy cultured pearls still intact in oysters vacuum-packed in a can.

That if America's 100-billion-dollar annual tax bill were distributed equally among the nation's 170 million people, it wouldn't be enough for a baby to be born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He'd have to arrive with $600 between his gums—or start life owing money.

That it was Col. Adolphus Busch who best defined the hidden woes of wealth by observing, "You can only drink 30 or 40 glasses of beer a day, no matter how rich you are."

Opinions In Brief

SYCAMORE OHIO, THE SYCAMORE LEADER: "State Legislatures should never adopt programs which would, in effect, extend public money to private schools and colleges. Control always follows money, in time, and we hope our private institutions of learning will remain free and independent of all governmental control, and that this separation can survive."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOOD BRAKES

"Then suddenly I realized I had no brakes."

My friend was telling of a harrowing experience. Here was a truck right in front and traffic jamming up pretty badly and suddenly no brakes.

Because the engine runs all the time and brakes are used only occasionally, we sometimes do not appreciate the overwhelming importance of brakes until we are called upon suddenly to use them. Likewise in everyday living, we often fail to appreciate the value of our inhibitions. There are nerves going to each organ which cause organs to work, but there are other nerves which keep it from working too much. Our lives are a mass of desires and aspirations. We push forward. But we can push too much. There have to be inhibitions.

Moral conduct depends very greatly upon our capacity for inhibition and the extent that we use this capacity. Sound moral conduct consists in doing good things and abstaining from evil things. Both the doing and the abstaining are necessary. Alcohol and habit-forming drugs are destructive to moral character largely because of the adverse effect they have on moral inhibition. When our moral brakes get out of order, we are liable to do things which later may shame us.

Brakes are important for an automobile and for moral character as well.

Always More Foreign Aid Abroad?

MEAN FOR RED PROPAGANDA This would be broadcast by Moscow as confirmation of Communist propaganda that our overseas objectives are aggressive and warlike. Moscow will interpret it as a guns-and-dollars deal, as will Prime Minister Nehru and Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser, as they have done with respect to the Middle East Doctrine.

Moreover, the principal contributors to the collective security system are nations well able to build themselves — Britain, France, Holland, Belgium, West Germany, Italy. It is on this sector that we are concentrating our main military strength.

It is pointed out pungently that continued military shipments to this area will mean profitable orders for American industry — steel, trucks, machinery, road-building equipment, planes and tanks — and demands for loans from the bankers.

CONGRESS IN NO MOOD TO GUARANTEE LOANS The report also proposes that private investment be relied upon for aiding undeveloped countries. But these are the very areas which offer no field for bankers' loans or industrialists' credits. Their economies and governments are too unstable.

And yet it is these backward areas — Africa, the Middle East, Asia, the Orient — which are the most susceptible to Russian and Chinese Communist subversion and infiltration. The Fairless group, however, covers this situation in a manner that will not appeal to Capitol Hill cynics and critics.

It suggests that Uncle Sam might "guarantee" these private loans. In its present mood, Congress would not underwrite an advance to the Bank of England.

With protests against foreign grants and demands for tax easement pouring in from the Middle West, farmers will find no satisfaction in the program. It criticizes the Benson effort to divert surplus products at reduced prices on the ground that it interferes with "normal markets." On this basis, the South would be another loser.

LIKES A MILITARY MAN — Wanda Koets, nine, Ottawa, Ill., is fascinated by models of warriors, past and present, during her visit to a hobby industry show in Chicago.

Wants All State Cars Painted In Silver And Black

RALEIGH (AP)—A new wrinkle in highway safety legislation was offered in the House last night by Rep. W. D. Reynolds of Robeson. He suggested that all state-owned vehicles — except unmarked cars which might be used by the Highway Patrol, the governor's limousine and cars for state department heads—be painted with the black-and-silver markings of regular patrol cars.

When such a car came in view, argued Reynolds, the average motorist would be quick to slow down on the chance it might be a patrolman.

Reynolds said his proposal also would be a deterrent to the private use of state-owned cars. A measure to increase from $32.50 to $35 the maximum weekly benefits under the workmen's compensation law, introduced by Rep. I. C. Crawford of Buncombe, was included in a flood of new bills in the House. Crawford said the boost would be "in keeping with the rise in the cost of living."

Dame Flora Macleod, honorary chieftain of the Clan Macleod, brought greetings from Scotland to the lawmakers in brief appearances before the House and Senate.

She said Scotland takes "great pride" in its contributions to America and North Carolina through Scotch settlers. "Remember the old country and the ties that bind us together," she told the Tar Heel legislators.

Mrs. Luther Hodges, wife of the governor, accompanied Dame Flora to the legislative chambers along with Mr. and Mrs. J. Talbot Johnson of Aberdeen. Dame Flora's hosts on a weekend visit. Earlier, she had dined with the governor and Mrs. Hodges at the Executive Mansion.

The Appropriations Committee goes back to work on its budget study this afternoon, with the State Hospitals Board of Control scheduled to put in its bid for money to operate mental hospitals. Meanwhile, the Finance Committee will return to briefings on the proposed revenue bill incorporating tax changes recommended by a special study commission.

After 28 Years Of Service To Govm't, Pitt Native Is Retiring

Hinton D. Barnhill, a former employee of East Carolina Teachers College and the Greenville Post Office, will move back to Greenville in June — retired after 28 years of continuous government service.

Barnhill retired January 1 from his job as messenger in the office of Ezra Taft Benson, U. S. Secretary of Agriculture. He is presently at his Washington, D. C., home but will return to Greenville in June.

Prior to entering military service in World War I, Barnhill was in charge of all mail delivery to and from ECTC. After his military service was completed in 1919, he worked at the Greenville Post Office as a combination fireman and caretaker.

In 1926 Barnhill shifted to Washington, D. C., as an employee in the Treasury Department's office of Public Buildings and Parks. Later that same year he transferred to the Department of Agriculture where he remained until his retirement.

In the Department of Agriculture, Barnhill started with the old Bureau of Chemistry as a laborer. Since then his jobs have included service as a messenger with the Office of War Relations, and head messenger with the Office of Production, War Food Administration. Barnhill was born in Greenville on June 30, 1890, son of Ferndor and Atha Barnhill. His first job was as a delivery boy for a Greenville drug store. He worked for three years at a tobacco factory before going to work at the college.

His education was completed by attending grammar school and high school classes in Washington. He did not start grammar school until he was 12-years-old but had completed the sixth grade before entering military service in World War I.

Barnhill's retirement and record of service was written up in the February issue of The Ag Reporter, a publication of the Department of Agriculture's Welfare and Recreation Association.

Nine On Honor Roll At Belvoir-Falkland

Poodle Is Pawn In Divorce Case

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A blue chip French poodle named Brandy who dabbles in the stock market has been made the pawn in a divorce case.

His mistress, Mrs. June Garrett Modglin, won his custody from N. Kent Modglin, Culver City, Calif., garbage disposal manufacturer.

The poodle with the boodle has an account in a Beverly Hills brokerage house, Mrs. Modglin told Superior Judge Edward R. Brand. She said Brandy receives cards from family friends on all holidays "and each one contains money." She said the dog had made $1,500 on recent investments.

She won custody of Brandy and also gets $4,500 cash under a property settlement.

Coach Mallory Has Hopes For Third Baseball Crown

Coach Jim Mallory, the East Carolina coach who has guided his Pirates to two consecutive North State Conference baseball crowns in the past two seasons, is looking toward a third for 1957.

The Buccaneer baseballers have been working out for over two weeks now, mostly indoors, since the weather has been bad. Mallory has spent most of the time working with his pitchers and catchers. This week, with an improvement in the weather, the slender mentor has moved his forces outdoors for some real work. "The only way to get a team in shape," he said recently, "is to let them play themselves into shape."

Mallory has had a crew of some 25-30 boys out for the team this season. The number has dwindled down to a less impressive figure since drills began in earnest, but still more than the regular 15 are strong candidates for the club. Mallory stated earlier that he will have to cut the squad sometime this week.

Several Losses

Several losses from last year's championship club might be expected to leave large holes in the East Carolina aggregation this spring, but Mallory is not weeping. Though he will admittedly miss such hitters as Gene Turner and Nick Smothers (both batted well over 300) and snappy infielder James Sanderson, he is expecting to find others to fill their places. Also gone from the squad will be Tom Harkey, a veteran pitcher who played a large part in bringing in an ECC championship in 1956. Harkey dropped off the team this season due to scholastic difficulties, Mallory reported.

East Carolina's top hitter of last season, Berny Stevens, will be back for another try at an outfield post. Stevens whacked away at a .391 clip for the season and is expected to continue his hard hitting again for '57.

Also back in the outfield will be Ray Pennington, Bobby Clark and a host of other veterans. The infield was perhaps most seriously damaged by graduation. Sanderson and Smothers were first stringers at second and first base last year. However, shortstop Jerry Stewart and third baseman Bucky Reep will return.

Pitching

Mallory's mound staff is probably the brightest spot in the whole picture. Besides Harkey, only one hurler was lost, Bill Loving, who saw only limited duty last season. Graduates Others will be back. Names of the squad members have not yet been released, since Mallory has still to cut the roster. East Carolina will open its 1957 season at home on Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23, against a powerful Southern Conference outfit, V.P.I. Then Monday and Tuesday of the next week, the University of Delaware will also be at College Field.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen

Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Tabori Nursing Injury; Coach Answers Critic

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Hungarian four-minute miler Laszlo Tabori nursed a pulled leg muscle here today and his coach answered "pampered child" charges by a Milwaukee sportswriter.

Tabori, who trains at the University of North Carolina here, was scheduled to run in the Milwaukee Journal Games last Saturday.

His withdrawal prompted charges from Journal sportswriter Oliver Kuechle that the "pampered child" had better change some of his ways of thinking.

Kuechle said Tabori, even though the injury prevented his competing, should have made an appearance at the meet. He said the Hungarian runner, who refused to return to his native land after the Olympic Games, ignored a responsibility to the meet after accepting a Journal contribution of $500 "through the national AAU as a contribution for his living and training expenses in this country."

Tabori's coach, Mihaley Igloi, last night released the text of a telegram he sent Kuechle last Thursday advising of the runner's injury and withdrawal from the meet.

North Carolina track Coach Dale Ranson supported Igloi's position and added:

"They were pointing for this one and it was a bitter blow when the injury cropped up. Now Kuechle calls him a pampered child, saying that he could have at least made a token appearance even if he could not run."

And Igloi added:

"What Kuechle is overlooking is the fact that Tabori is undergoing daily treatment here that should heal the injury in time for him to run at Chicago and Cleveland meets the next two weekends."

"Had we interrupted the treatment for the three-day trip just to watch the meet and take a bow, it would have made it almost impossible to run in any more meets this season."

Igloi and Ranson said Tabori's expenses were handled by Dan Ferris of the AAU and they had no knowledge of how much individual promoters contributed to the fund for Hungarian Olympians.

Fay Is Leading Money Winner

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Fay Crocker of Montevideo Uruguay, is the leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. winter tour with $3,195.

In second place is Betty Dodd of Louisville, Ky., with $2,956. Mickey Wright of San Diego is in third place with $2,870, followed by Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., with $2,862 and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., with $2,664.

The touring professionals and a select field of amateurs are in Augusta preparing for the Titleholders Tournament which starts here today and will last about 20,000 a turning.

Bosox Losing, But Big Hitters Absent

By JOHN CHANDLER
The Associated Press

Boston fans don't be alarmed! True, the Boston Red Sox have yet to win a spring exhibition game, and they'll be battling the New York Yankees again today at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Red Sox have scored only two runs since exhibitions began Saturday. The Detroit Tigers thumped them 10-1 Saturday, the Washington Senators 4-0 and the three Yankee right-handers combined to shut them out 2-0 on three hits.

However, a good part of the Boston batting punch is absent in the persons of Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen. Furthermore, these power boys probably won't get into the lineup until the Red Sox travel to the West Coast later this month. Jensen is working out in California.

Williams, sore and stiff, watched from the bench in civilian clothes as the veteran Tom Sturdivant and rookies Ralph Terry and Jack Urban blanked his mates.

Yogi Berra, American League Most Valuable Player in 1956, played his first game of the spring and drove in one New York run with a sacrifice fly and the other scored on an infield out.

Manager Mike Higgins says its up to Williams, and Williams alone when to decide he's ready to play.

Unbeaten Pittsburgh Pirates made it three straight at Port Myers, Fla., defeating the Washington Senators 3-2 on catcher Danny Kravitz's run - scoring single in the last of the ninth.

Herb Score, Cleveland 20-game winner and rookies Jim Grant and Dick Mesa limited Baltimore to six hits as the Indians won 5-1 at Scottsdale, Ariz.

At Mesa, Ariz., the New York Giants broke a 4-4 tie in the top of the ninth and went on to defeat the Chicago Cubs 7-4. The Cubs have yet to win in three starts.

Art Schult and Pete Wiseman rocked rookie pitcher Angelo Li Petri for home runs and the Cincinnati Redlegs defeated the Philadelphia Phils 4-2 at Tampa, Fla. Rip Repulski and Eddie Kazanski homered for the Phils, who also have dropped three in a row.

Stan Musial blasted his second homer in two days for St. Louis Cardinals to defeat the Milwaukee Braves 4-3.

Brooklyn got classy two-hit pitching last night at Miami from Bob Darnell, Ken Lehman, Charlie Templeton and Don Elston, but the Chicago White Sox shoved across the lone tally in the fourth

Saddler Looks Forward To Fighting Successor

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Retired featherweight champion Sandy Saddler is eagerly looking forward to the day of his "retirement" and a chance to get a crack at his successor.

"All I hope is that this tournament they're having to get a new champion builds up a lot of interest so we can make a lot of money when we meet for the title," said Saddler today at Flower Fifth Avenue Hospital.

Hospital authorities say the lanky, 30-year-old Saddler is "coming along satisfactorily" after an eye operation and that if the healing continues as well as it has he should be able to fight again. He has a detached retina in his right eye resulting from an auto accident. He gave up his title on Jan. 22 for fear he was losing sight in the eye.

"When I get out of here I'm going to get in the merchant marine for a short spell and go places. Then I'm going back in training and will challenge the winner. I feel I can beat any featherweight around and that includes those named for the tournament."

Miguel Berrios, Puerto Rico, and Carmelo Costa, Brooklyn, who open the elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden, March 22, Nigeria's Hogan (Kid) Bassey and Cherif Hamia of France, were the four picked for the tourney by the World Boxing Committee.

"How come they didn't pick Willie Pep for the tournament?" asked Sandy. "He's still the best featherweight in the world next to me."

Ayden's Appeal Is Denied

The State Committee on Class A basketball, at a meeting with Ayden officials yesterday afternoon at Chapel Hill, denied the Ayden appeal of a "disqualification" issued at the District 1 Tournament.

Coach Stuart Tripp stated this morning that the State Committee for obeying the rules set up for Conference play and District action, and that there was no basis for an appeal.

Ayden was disqualified from the District 1 finals last week when it was discovered that the Tornados had played three games during the tournament week. The extra game was an Ayden-Bethel encounter to decide which of the teams would represent the Pitt County Conference in the District-tourney.

Williamston, a team which Ayden defeated on their march to the tourney finals, was finally declared winner of the District crown and will go to the State Class A tournament.

It was discovered at the Chapel Hill meeting that the Pitt County rules were in conflict with the state rules, concerning the dates for the County tournament. The state rule says plainly that all tournaments must be played and finished by February 23. Since the Pitt County Conference could not schedule the ECC gymnasium until after that date, the confusion followed.

Ayden, which made quite an impressive showing in both the Pitt County tournament and the District 1 playoffs, is just out of the picture.

Elon To Meet Top-Seeded Five

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Elon College of North Carolina, unseeded in the national tournament (NAIA) basketball tournament, faced top-seeded Pacific Lutheran at 4:30 p.m. today in the second day of first-round games.

The Villa Madonna College Rebels of Covington, Ky., stole the spotlight in first round action yesterday by upsetting third-seeded West Virginia Tech 93-91. Texas Southern, one of last year's finalists, escaped elimination from the week-long tournament by a narrow 65-64 margin over New Haven, Conn., State.

Sell-Out Crowd Expected For All-Star Cage Game

A sellout crowd is expected to be on hand tomorrow night at ECC's Memorial Gymnasium when the North Carolina State All-Stars invade to tangle with the Greenville All-Stars.

Tickets for the benefit exhibition event have been selling fast, according to publicity reports. They are on sale at Biggs Drug Store, Beddingfield's Drug Store and Kares Restaurant. They may also be obtained by calling either Greenville high school or the Athletic Department of East Carolina College.

VIC MOLODET
North Carolina State Guard

The money from the game will go towards improving athletic conditions at both Greenville high school and the College.

Top stars from the Big Four will make up the N. C. All-Stars. There will be such former collegiate performers as Ronnie Shavlik, Vic Molodet, Phil DeNardo and Sam Ranzino from State College, Lefty Davis of Wake Forest and Joe Belmont of Duke representing the visiting club. The boys named above have played on the aggregation during past games this season and are expected to be on hand for the Wednesday night affair here.

For Greenville, there will be a host of East Carolina College cagers, former ECC performers and other Greenville athletes.

The big drawing card in this area, according to Publicity Chairman Ford McGowan, has been Sonny Russell, former All-Stater for East Carolina in 1952-53. Russell, the only ECC cager to ever have his jersey retired, will pace the Green All-Stars Wednesday evening.

With Russell will be Nick Nichols, Don Harris, Guy Mendenhall and Don Harris from ECC. Others will be former GHS stars Smith Worthington and Ike Eldrick (now playing for East Carolina) and local athletes Brownie Tripp, Gene Tripp, Bobby Coggins, Dan Gordan, Charlie Roberson and Hal Stout.

Game time tomorrow night will be 8:15.

Tar Heels Race Ahead In Final Poll Results

By DON WEISS
The Associated Press

The North Carolina Tar Heels, who specialized all season in winning the close ones, have turned up a romping winner in the final Associated Press college basketball poll.

Unbeaten in 24 regular season games prior to a three-game sweep through the Atlantic Coast Conference championship tournament, the Tar Heels climaxed a two-month reign yesterday by drawing first-place votes from 55 of the 76 participating sports writers and sportscasters. Kansas, the runner-up after leading part of the season, drew nine.

On the basis of 10 points for first place, 9 for second, etc., North Carolina received 725 points to 602 for the Jayhawks. Kentucky, Southern Methodist, Seattle, Louisville, West Virginia, Vanderbilt, Oklahoma City, and St. Louis rounded out the top 10 in that order.

The nation's only major unbeaten team as they prepare for their first-round game with Yale tonight in the NCAA competition at New York, the Tar Heels succeeded the San Francisco Dons, No. 1 in the AP final balloting in the last two seasons.

Of their 27 consecutive victories, the Tar Heels — brought back to the national spotlight by Coach Frank McGuire — won seven by five points or less.

The top 10, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. North Carolina (55) 725
2. Kansas (9) 602

Reviewer Lauds College Choir And Its Director

By GEORGE E. PERRY

Last evening's concert by the East Carolina College Choir so far outshone their past efforts, their improvement in all respects so phenomenal, their performance so closely approaching the professional, that I, along with an auditorium-full of enraptured listeners, could scarcely believe what was heard. Past concerts by this group were truly wonderful, but they all seem dwarfed in the dust by this, their latest campus appearance, which climaxed the most successful tour they've had—a fact attested to by numerous letters from cities in which they had sung.

Noticeable, before a note was sung, was the alert attentiveness.

Children Relate How They Came To Be Adrift

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP)—An 11-year-old girl who has made 11 unaccompanied flights across the Pacific said of her 24-hour in an open boat, "We drifted so long I thought we were going right on to Europe."

Wrapped in a blanket and sipping hot milk after her rescue yesterday from Currituck Sound, Billie Susan Johnson admitted: "I cried a little, but we weren't too scared. We knew we had to land somewhere."

Billie Susan and her 12-year-old companion, Mitchell Perrebe, both of Sligo, were the object of an air and sea search by the Coast Guard Sunday night after they disappeared in a 16-foot boat Sunday morning.

The children said they decided to move a boat moored at Morgan's Landing to another mooring stake. The pole Buddy was using to move the boat snapped and the craft drifted off into the sound. Although the temperature dropped to freezing during the night and four-foot waves slapped the boat, the children suffered nothing worse than hunger, fatigue and cold, a medical examination disclosed.

Billie said, "We just sat in the boat and tried to keep warm. We could see the airplanes dropping flares. Four times a helicopter flew right over us. We shouted and waved but they couldn't see us."

Before dawn their boat drifted toward a spit. Buddy said, "I managed to beach the skiff. I went into the swamp and pulled up some reeds and swamp grass and made a bed in the bottom of the boat with it for Billy and myself."

"We stayed there until it started getting light," he said. Then, Buddy related, they decided to get out in open water again. Buddy said:

"I knew the planes would come looking for us again, and I wanted to be in open water where they could see us. When we got out into the sound, I moored the skiff to another fishing stake and waited for the planes."

And that's where Lt. Cmdr. Joseph Weber in a Coast Guard plane spotted the youngsters. Then Lt. Charles Mueller picked them up in a helicopter from the Coast Guard Air Station here.

Billie's mother, Mrs. Frances Johnson, commented: "I ought to be used to her adventures by now, but I'm not. She's traveled across the Pacific 11 times while we were stationed out there with my husband (a Navy communications technician). When she was in the Philippines she found an unexploded bomb dropped during the war."

"I ought to be furious with her about this, but I'm too relieved to have her back to be angry."

WEDDING BAND IS ON RIGHT HAND LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. Charles M. Blalack, the pretty newlywed, wears that shiny ring on her right hand.

She is the former Boni Buehler, 27, the onetime airline stewardess who lost her left arm and leg in a 1953 speedboat accident.

Boni and Blalack, 29, a San Marino, Calif., investment broker and social figure, were married here Saturday in the climax to an eight-month romance. They met on a blind date.

Boni walked down the aisle on an artificial leg. A cape on her dress hid the missing arm.

Polar Explorer Adm. Richard Byrd Dies In His Sleep Of Heart Ailment

BOSTON (AP)—Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, 68, noted explorer who headed two arctic and five antarctic expeditions, died in his sleep at his home last night. His wife and four children were at his bedside when he passed away at 6:20 p.m. at his home at the foot of Beacon Hill.

Byrd was the first man to fly over both the North and South poles and held numerous decorations, including the Medal of Honor, for his explorations.

He is credited with charting some two million square miles of the earth's surface previously unseen by man. No one has ever equaled that feat. He laid the basis for possible American claims to a third of Antarctica.

Once Byrd estimated his nose had been nipped by frost some 200 times. His face bore many tiny freezing marks.

After his graduation from the Naval Academy in 1912, a leg injury forced him into early retirement, but he came back to serve in World Wars I and II, pioneer in naval aviation and command the first multiengine plane to fly the Atlantic continent to continent nonstop.

He was commissioned a rear admiral at the age of 41, youngest of that rank at the time.

His last trip to the South Pole was in late 1955 and early 1956. On a 1947 expedition to Antarctica, Byrd found that food left 10 years earlier in his Little America camp was perfectly preserved.

This led him to suggest that the antarctic could serve as a vast natural refrigerator to store crops in bumper years.

"The world would never have another famine," he said at the time. "Surplus food could be stored away in the polar ice as insurance against lean production years."

During his 1934-35 antarctic expedition, he isolated himself for about six months in a tiny hut 82 miles from the base of operations to conduct meteorological observations.

Fumes made him desperately ill, but he refrained from summoning help lest the life of someone else be endangered in a rescue attempt.

Byrd narrowly escaped death on another, now forgotten occasion. It was in 1921 in England, where he had come to assist in navigating to the United States the dirigible ZR-2, just purchased from the British government.

He missed a train and arrived too late for the test flight. The dirigible exploded over the Humber River, killing 42 of its 46 occupants.

Byrd first flew to the North Pole in 1926 and to the South Pole in 1929.

His second flight to the South Pole was in 1947. After his fourth flight to the antarctic, he reported:

"There's an awful lot of coal down there and no one knows what other resources may lie hidden under the ice."

During World War II, Byrd explored the Southeast Pacific for possible sites for airstrips.

The crowning point of his career came when President Eisenhower named him "officer in over-all charge of the United States' permanent unit for antarctic activity."

Byrd, a native of Winchester, Va., married his childhood sweetheart, Marie D. Ames in 1915.

In addition to his widow, he leaves four children, Richard Jr., Boston; Mrs. William A. Clarke Jr., Swarthmore, Pa.; Mrs. Robert G. Brewer, Los Angeles; and Mrs. Lawrence J. Stabler Jr., Philadelphia. He was the brother of Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

One Of Dionnes Said 'In Love'

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Telegram said in a dispatch from Montreal today that friends of Cecile Dionne report she is in love and plans to be married next September.

The story says Cecile, one of the Dionne quintuplets, and Philippe Langlois, 25, already considered themselves engaged, although they do not intend to announce it until after Cecile's examinations as a student nurse in May.

The Telegram says the announcement may come on the quints' 23rd birthday, May 28.

Van Doraen Dethroned After 14-Week Reign

NEW YORK (AP)—An attractive woman lawyer with a knowledge of kings last night dethroned Charles Van Doraen from his 14-week reign as ruler of NBC's Twenty-One television quiz program.

By bumping Van Doraen off the show, Mrs. Vivienne Nearing, a 39-year-old blonde, picked up $14,000 and replaced the Columbia University instructor as star of the show.

It dropped Van Doraen's over-all winnings to $129,000, but still left him television's top winner on any single quiz show.

Mrs. Nearing, whose lawyer husband Van Doraen was one of Van Doraen's previous victims, took advantage of a rules option to halt the game when she was ahead 17-10.

Van Doraen had missed the first question and didn't get the 10 points he was trying for because of his inability to name Baudouin as the king of Belgium. It was one part of a six-part question dealing with the names of the kings of Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Jordan and Iraq.

Mrs. Nearing, who had first shot at it, correctly named the kings in order as Frederick, Haakon, Gustavus, Baudouin, Hussein and Faisal.

Van Doraen answered five correctly but stumbled over Baudouin. He mopped his brow and muttered, "The son of Leopold, the son of Leopold. . . I know that name." He couldn't come up with it but finally made a guess, admitting that it was probably wrong.

He named the present king as Leopold, who actually is the father of Baudouin.

It left Mrs. Nearing ahead 10-0. Playing it cautiously, the woman challenger selected a question that

The Brass and the Blue

WHAT IS HAPPENING
Second Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker was on edge. He'd had a year of inaction with the Cavalry at Fort Laramie, Wyoming. A year of waiting, a year of one dreary patrol after another. He felt pent up under the infallibly exacting, coldly reserved, First Lieutenant Temple Jocelyn. Even the thought of his fiancée, Henrietta, was not consoling, for she was back in Vermont, a painful memory.

But this patrol upon which he rode promised to be different. A company of infantry had been sent to reinforce Fort Laramie. Jocelyn's troop had been ordered to rendezvous with the company at Ryndie's ranch. Jocelyn was keeping his counsel, as usual, but action with the hostiles appeared likely at last. When signs that an Indian war party was near them became markedly conspicuous, Emil suspected that the well-defined trail was a trick.

CHAPTER 3
First Lieutenant Jocelyn was rolled in his tarp and blanket, the poncho over his head. Emil Schwabacker copied him, as he did in everything else, and lay there listening to the rain drum against his oilskins. He slept in fragments, waking often and at any slight sound. Finally he heard Jocelyn stir, and through a crack around the bottom of the tarp he saw a match flare as Jocelyn looked at his watch.

By the time Schwabacker got to his feet and rolled his blankets, Sergeant Finnegan had a crew gathering brush. The temperature had dropped and the rain carried a bone-numbing chill that made troopers flail their arms trying to induce circulation. Lieutenant Jocelyn was standing with his shoulders rounded in discomfort when Schwabacker joined him. This was a surprise, for Jocelyn was a man who showed nothing.

Finnegan soon was coming in with the brush detail. He had searched out the dead stuff, which was relatively dry. The piles grew as the two officers watched.
Schwabacker said, "That won't be much, sir."
"It gives us an hour I'll be grateful," Jocelyn said. He motioned for Finnegan to come up. "Get the troop away from the area before mounting. Sean, Mr. Schwabacker and I will light the fires."

"Yes, sir," Finnegan said and began to form the troop.
"Still looking for action, Mr. Schwabacker?"
"Yes, sir. The sooner the better, sir."
"I think I can promise you that," Jocelyn said.
When Finnegan had the troop clear, Jocelyn and Schwabacker

By CHARLES BISSETTE
Military Information
A friend of ours, a Corporal home on leave, dropped in this week with a picture problem that fits nicely into our regular question-and-answer period. Said he: "My girl's good looking, but the snapshots of herself that she sends me—ouch! WHY does she squint into the sun that way?"
A: It's easy to pose the kind of picture the Corporal wants. You avoid squints, scowls, and deep shadows under the eyes, by turning the subject's face slightly to the side, away from direct sun (or flash). The effect is softer, more flattering. We have a Kodak book, "Snapshots Exposed," for 35c. Want a copy for your girl?
Q: (From a nice uncle): What kind of camera should I buy for an eleven-year-old?
A: There's a fine choice. The simple Brownie Holiday Camera is easy to hold, gets clear pictures of anything from 5 feet away to infinity. Price, $3.25.
Q: We'd like to take movies—but aren't they expensive?
A: Thank YOU for asking! The answer is, no indeed! You can own a Brownie Movie Camera for under thirty dollars. And with low-cost 8mm film you get gorgeous color movies—up to 50 scenes!—on a single roll. Come in and see!

went around and ignited the four brush piles. As soon as the flare mounted they darted out of the circle of light and mounted their horses.

There were no more questions as Jocelyn led them east by south-east. Around three in the morning — Schwabacker had difficulty judging the time accurately — the rain slackened off a bit and the men rolled their ponchos. At five, Jocelyn halted the troop and had them unbit for grazing. To Schwabacker he said, "Well walk the rest of the way. I want your men alert." Shortly after six, and near seven shortly after eight, and near eight Schwabacker's alert ears picked up the muted pop of gunfire. A glance at Jocelyn assured him that he had heard it too. As a man, the troop lifted heads and eyes became widely alert.

Jocelyn spoke softly. "Mr. Schwabacker, it occurs to me that your suspicion of a trick is well founded. I'm going to mount the troop and go into Ryndie's at a gallop and under the horn. Pistol and sabers. Mr. Schwabacker, that's what you'll get. You'll command the second section and I want strict attention placed on the back trail. At the first sound of hostile pursuit, break away with fragments, waking often and at any slight sound. Finally he heard Jocelyn stir, and through a crack around the bottom of the tarp he saw a match flare as Jocelyn looked at his watch.

"Yes, sir!"
"Curb your eagerness, Mr. Schwabacker. Please remember that this is not a maneuver on the Plain along the Hudson. They watched our camp last night, the sly devils, but I think our squad fires lured them into believing that we remained an hour longer than we did. He arched his back to relieve a stiffened muscle. "They intended to squeeze us, Mr. Schwabacker, and I intend to beat them at their own game."
A nod to Finnegan placed every man by his horse, ready to mount. Jocelyn put his foot in the stirrup. "I'm going straight through to Ryndie's; no doubt the station is planned down. As soon as my section breaks through, I'll sound 'recall.' Leave the holding action and come in at a gallop. We'll lay down a covering fire with the carbines."
"Very good, sir."

Jocelyn stripped off his gauntlets and offered his hand, the first direct overture of friendliness he had ever presented to Emil Schwabacker. In the distance a buffalo Sharps boomed and this was answered by a rattle of trade muskets. "The criterion of the cavalry is the charge, Mr. Schwabacker." He stepped into the saddle as another fusillade rattled in the distance. Jocelyn smiled as he added, "No doubt there will be a letter waiting from your fiancée, Mr. Schwabacker. Having once had a lady, I might urge you to discharge your duties most expediently, read her letter, then marry the girl and bring her to your post. Don't wait, Mr. Schwabacker. That's been fatal to many a man."
"Sir, I don't under..."
But Jocelyn had already turned to the young bugler, who sat his horse with the horn bell resting on his thigh. Finnegan had the troop mounted and waiting — forty-three hard-prattled regulars, fifty-cents-a-day dog-face soldiers who listened to the struggle at Ryndie's and knew what it meant.

Jocelyn spoke to the bugler. "Sound the 'charge' and put some spit into it, Mr. Schwabacker, strip romance from your mind and take command of your section, please." Schwabacker wheeled, bawling an order to Corporal Linahan, then the bugler split the vast silence with piercing notes and the command bolted into action. The road ranch was visible against the gray distance, a cluster of low sod buildings backed against the river. A mile separated them, yet every man saw the high shapes of the ambulance and the stage, the three abandoned escort wagons standing by the corral, and knew what that meant. Circling Ryndie's, painted warriors strutted back and forth, occasionally shooting into the besieged buildings.

The column went in bent over the horses' necks, sabers and pistols drawn. Then Schwabacker saw the enemy coming up from the rear and suddenly wheeled to the right, turning about with his pistols cracked like brush fire and powder smoke was drifting haze. Jocelyn pulled away, racing on with his men, while Schwabacker drove through in a plunging wedge, breaking the Cheyennes into milling segments. He led a daring charge that shocked the hostiles into momentary helplessness. This was not the way of the "long knives," to press an attack. Confusion came into their ranks and Schwabacker took advantage of it, going after them stirrup to stirrup, sabers whipping in the gray dawn light.

Close in now, Jocelyn could see clearly the hostiles that ringed Ryndie's. There was no accurate way of judging the exact number, but he guessed. The bugler's blast had warned them and they wheeled to fight off Jocelyn's force. Trade muskets boomed, leaving puffs of dull smoke suspended for a moment before drifting with the wind.

The force closed to thirty yards, the new call of commencement firing spilling from the bugle's bell. Jocelyn rode with dropped reins, saber poised, his engraved pistol recoiling against his palm. Powder smoke watered back, rankly bitter, then the command was against the enemy, sabers drawn and drinking, pushing through, crushing the warriors who tried to block them. From Ryndie's saddy a cheer floated up and the buffalo gun belched flame and smoke.

Then they were in Ryndie's yard, Jocelyn milling his troopers while the hostiles gathered themselves for a furious attack. "Dis-mont!" he shouted. "First squad! Fire by volley! FIRE!"
This was his great fist, the heavy-caliber carbine, and he had been saving it for such a moment. Sergeant Finnegan's men were well trained, and while the hostiles poised for the trust, the fire caught them, opening great gaps in the first ranks. At Jocelyn's command, the bugler blew "recall" for Schwabacker's benefit. Troopers rammed paper cartridges down the barrels, seated lead bullets with wiping sticks, then capped their pieces while the second squad ripped into the Indians with volley fire.

A mile out on the flats, Second Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker was in the midst of a hot fight. When the bugle's clarion call ripped through the sounds of dying, he wheeled his section, gathered his wounded and began to race through, driving straight for the hostiles bunching again to storm Ryndie's yard.

On Wrong Side, Out Of Habit

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP)—State Police hope that Army Sgt. Clyde A. Geer, 36, of Miami, Fla., stays on the right side of the road. He had a head-on auto wreck near here, and his car was on the left side of the road.
"Gad," he told investigating officers, "I thought the other guy was on my side of the road and then I suddenly remembered I was on the wrong side."
Geer told officers he's just returned from a 3-year-tour of duty in England and had become accustomed to driving on the left side. He went on his way in a slightly damaged car after paying a small fine and $250 to the other driver for damages.

On Wrong Side, Out Of Habit

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP)—State Police hope that Army Sgt. Clyde A. Geer, 36, of Miami, Fla., stays on the right side of the road. He had a head-on auto wreck near here, and his car was on the left side of the road.
"Gad," he told investigating officers, "I thought the other guy was on my side of the road and then I suddenly remembered I was on the wrong side."
Geer told officers he's just returned from a 3-year-tour of duty in England and had become accustomed to driving on the left side. He went on his way in a slightly damaged car after paying a small fine and $250 to the other driver for damages.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Four denominations this weekend announced opposition to a new bill before Parliament to apply the Nationalist government's apartheid (segregation) policies to church services.

Fracture Due To Winter Golf

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Alton Deitch of Fox Chapel is suffering from a fractured right forearm today, and it's mostly because he tried to play winter golf in the North instead of the South.

Deitch and three of his friends were playing golf at Westmoreland Country Club Thursday. On the ninth hole, Deitch had a good drive that carried the ball within 75 yards of the green. For his pitch shot, Deitch selected a No. 9 iron but cut too deeply into the frozen turf and broke his arm.

SEATO Council Conference

Closes; Objectives Decided

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—The SEATO Council of Ministers ended its third annual conference today with a call for more economic cooperation coupled with continued military vigilance to combat Red aggression in Southeast Asia.

Winding up a three-day session, the eight-nation council put out a communique outlining four main objectives: 1. Tighten SEATO's defense and intensify measures to safeguard the internal security of its member states. 2. Develop economic resources of SEATO members to keep them from coming under the domination of the Red bloc. 3. Encourage multilateral cultural program to promote mutual understanding among SEATO members. 4. Extend SEATO's program of detecting and exposing Communist subversion.

The conference closed with mutual expressions of praise from the various ministers. Secretary of State Dulles declared, "We have every reason to be gratified with what has been accomplished at Canberra."

Britain's Earl of Home said the most notable feature of the parley was that friendly nations have been able to find identity of purpose on methods for countering communism and maintaining freedom in the Southeast Asia area.

The final communique said that the ministers felt that although the immediate military threat to peace in Southeast Asia has waned "the military strength of Communist China and of North Viet Nam is continually being increased."

The council said the Communists have stepped up their campaign of subversion aimed at undermining the people of SEATO nations. The ministers directed the SEATO research service center to do all in its power to smoke out such tactics and make them ors said they expected M. Langley, Multnomah (Portland), Ore., district jess, to be the day's major

Langley, a Democrat, has been linked in prior testimony to an alleged plot of high Teamsters Union bosses to "take over Oregon law enforcement" and capture control over underworld profits. He is under indictment in Oregon on charges of malfeasance and failure to conduct prosecutions.

Robert Kennedy, Senate committee counsel, said he expected to question an unnamed witness about "destroyed" Portland

Another witness, due to be recalled briefly, was Clyde Crosby, Oregon teamsters union boss. He has denied much of Elkins' testimony about Seattle gamblers being sent to Portland by teamsters bosses to take over control of the city.

Crosby testified the Teamsters Union paid hotel, telephone and airline travel expenses for one of the Seattle gamblers, Tom Maloney, but said it was his own idea, not that of West Coast teamsters czar Frank Brewster. Brewster is to testify tomorrow.

Crosby was asked also about the destruction of records wanted by the committee. He said he didn't "know for sure" when asked whether records of the Teamsters Union Joint Council 37 had been destroyed.

known to member governments. In the economic field, the council "recommended specific projects" to ease the financial burden of defense and help in the economic development of Asian members. These projects, too, were not revealed.

The ministers expressed hope that neutral nations which have opposed such collective security arrangements as SEATO would come to appreciate the advantages of the organization and eventually join it.

The council agreed to appoint a secretary general and a deputy secretary to head up its permanent headquarters in Bangkok.

Among those mentioned in conference circles for secretary general are Prince Wan Wattayakon of Thailand, president of the 11th U.N. General Assembly, and Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the United States.

Many Attend 4-H Club Achievements Banquet

Approximately 200 4-H teachers, community leaders and school principals attended a banquet at the Cornerstone Baptist Church last Wednesday night in honor of National 4-H Club Week, March 2-10.

The program emphasized the achievements of Pitt County's 19 4-H clubs and their 1,000 members. Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro Home Demonstration agent, was active in arranging for the event.

Special guests were Rev. J. E. Tillet of Edenton, pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church, Greenville; H. Reginald Gray, Pitt County auditor; Mrs. J. B. Spillman, executive secretary of Pitt County TB Association; Mrs. Hannah Brown, Pitt County health nurse; Miss Julia Fisher, supervisor of nurses, Pitt County; Miss Hazel Jordan, supervisor of Pitt County Negro schools; Rev. Sam Hembry, Greenville, and Rev. J. E. Heath, Raleigh.

Miss Annie Wilson, Ayden Home Demonstration Club, recited the "Home Demonstration Blessing." Mrs. Maggie Strong, president of Pitt County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, welcomed the guests. Rev. H. R. Reaves, principal of the Grifton School, and H. Reginald Gray, county auditor, responded. Assistant Home Demonstration agent Miss H. I. Grimley introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Minnie M. Brown, guest speaker, spoke on "Then and Now," emphasizing the changes made in our family of today than years ago; changes made in health because of modern science; families are able to save time, energy and money by improving their attitude through newspapers, TV, radio and movies. Our neighborhoods are different today than they were years ago—because of better transportation, telephone, consolidated schools, etc.; also recreation, which develops our boys and girls mentally, socially and physically. She also stated "that in spite of changes which we are faced with we should try to get in step with the changing times."

Mrs. J. M. Reaves, council treasurer and mistress of ceremonies, in behalf of the Pitt County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, presented corsages to Mrs. Minnie M. Brown, state home demonstration agent, Greensboro, and Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro Home Agent of Pitt County.

Pitt County Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode and Warren G. Barnes, assistant farm agent, were on the program.

Boykin Leaving Highway Patrol

Pfc James W. Boykin, member of the State Highway Patrol, stationed in Greenville, has submitted his resignation effective March 17.

Boykin said this morning he is resigning from the Highway Patrol to accept a position with Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and will remain in Greenville. A native of Kenly, he has been with the highway patrol since September 1, 1951.

Since being stationed in the Greenville area, Boykin has been active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce and other civic affairs. In 1954 he was recipient of the Exchange Club Book of Golden Deeds which is awarded to a citizen for outstanding community service.

The resigning patrolman stated that he wished to thank all the people of Pitt County for their "fine cooperation" with the highway patrol's various campaigns on highway safety.

Local Highway Employees Hold Dinner Meeting

G. A. Taylor Jr., Chapter Chairman of the NCSHEA, presided over the dinner meeting held at the State Highway Garage on March 8.

In observance of World Day of Prayer, the audience worshipped in silent meditation after which J. G. Gibbs concluded with prayer.

Following the introduction of guests, C. D. Bass, Unit 2 Chairman, briefly summarized the work that is presently being performed by the State Officers and various Standing Committees. Tommie Harris of Belvoir, pianist and singer, was introduced and was loudly applauded after rendering several selections announced by him.

The door prize went to W. F. Haddock.

The meeting adjourned after a memorial service, given by J. G. Gibbs, in memory of Paul E. Malison of Rocky Mount, Division 2 Prison Supervisor.

William R. Hodges Funeral Date Set

William R. Hodges, 82, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday at 9:35 p.m. following five weeks' critical illness.

Funeral services will be held at Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. by the pastor, Rev. Floyd Cherry, and Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the churchyard. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the service.

Mr. Hodges was born in Beaufort County and spent all his life in Pitt and Beaufort Counties. He was a farmer until he retired in 1942. He was married to Rebecca Moore Buck in 1907, and she died in 1947. He was a member of the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are three sons, Clarence and Theodore Hodges of Grimesland and Robert Hodges of Great Bridge, Va.; two daughters, Mrs. Troy Tripp of Grimesland and Mrs. Charlie Powell of Greenville; 21 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; a brother, Alonza Hodges of Grimesland; three half-sisters, Mrs. Tessie Herring of Goldsboro, Mrs. Dallas Staton of Scotland Neck, and Mrs. Nell Wilson of New Bern; and two stepchildren, Fred Buck and Mrs. Sallie Braxton of Black Jack.

re-elected J. Howard Moyer, first vice-president; Bancroft F. Moseley, secretary; John C. Proctor, treasurer; W. W. Speight, general counsel; J. T. Marston, Jr., chairman of the Finance Committee. The group heard Howard Hold-

Plan Funeral For B. G. Worthington

Airman 3-c Bryan G. Worthington, 33, died at his home in Bloloxi, Miss. Monday morning following a heart attack. The body will be brought to Greenville for the funeral and burial.

Mr. Worthington, son of Mrs. Hattie S. Worthington of Winterville and the late G. C. Worthington, was born and reared in Winterville and was graduated from Winterville High School in 1941. He served in the Navy from 1943 until 1947. He was employed in the furniture business in Greenville until he enlisted in the Air Force in October, 1956.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lois Harrell of Greenville, to whom he was married in 1948; his mother; five brothers, Lloyd, Carl, Norman and Gurman Worthington, all of Winterville, and John Worthington of Eureka; and a sister, Mrs. Dan Peele of Williamston.

CAP MEETS TONIGHT

The Greenville Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will meet at the airport tonight at 8 o'clock. Capt. Walter Bunch, commander of the local unit, invites all cadets, senior members and friends of the CAP to attend.
