Legislation To Reorganize Highway Commission Has House Committee's Okay

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation to reorganize the State Highway Commission took a big leap toward final passage today when a Senate-passed measure won the blessings of House Roads Committee.

can Rep. Dan R. Simpson of Burke to insert in the Senate-passed bill a strict ban on political activity on the part of Highway Commission employees.

Bills approved by the Senate Roads Committee would: (1) regulate parking on public school grounds; (2) allow the Highway Commission to designate one-way highways with violators subject to a fine of up to $50 and 30 days imprisonment; (3) make the drunk driving statutes apply to places off the highways where the public generally is permitted to drive; (4) require steering gear on autos to be maintained in good working order; (5) allow the motor vehicle commissioner to prescribe specifications for safety belts installed on cars; (6) allow the installation of more than two headlights on cars; (7) eliminate a $10, minimum fine for a number of minor traffic violations, and (8) make it unlawful to dump trash within 150 yards of paved highways in Buncombe and Scotland counties.

Well Is Meeting Weekend Needs

Greenville's water plant is not needed during the weekends now that the city's new deep well is in operation.

"We don't run the water plant on weekends," Bloxam said. "The well will carry the water demand on Sundays."

The superintendent said that last weekend the water plant, which treats river water for city use, was taken out of service at 3 p.m. Saturday and began operation at 8:30 Monday morning.

Greenville's first deep well was drilled at the city's 13th and Washington St. tank and recently placed in service. Prior to that time all the local water supply was taken from Tar River and treated in the water plant.

Bloxam proposed the deep well at that time and the commission authorized a test well.

Bloxam said the well water requires very little treatment. Only a small amount of chlorine must be added to meet State Health Department requirements.

The well is now pumping an average of 200,000 gallons per day, the superintendent continued. Its maximum capacity is 1,500,000 gallons per day.

Study 12-Month College Service

RALEIGH (AP)—Year-round operation of the 12 state-supported colleges is under study by the State Board of Higher Education.

D. Hiden Ramsey of Asheville, board chairman, told the Joint Appropriations Committee yesterday he hoped a program aimed at operation of the institutions on a 12-month basis could be worked out in time for consideration by the 1959 Legislature.

"North Carolina is too poor a state and our college needs too great a need to use the institutions year-round," Ramsey said, adding, "The state has a large investment which is partially idle for three months."

He told the committee the institutions are operating at only one-third capacity during summer now.

The water plant extension which was originally planned would have cost $150,000 and produced 3,000,000 gallons of purified water each day.

Thus with a second such well the city could get the same capacity for around $60,000, Bloxam declared.

The superintendent also reported that an electrical manhole has been constructed at Third and Washington Sts. to serve the court house which is to have new electrical equipment. A transformer vault is also being constructed in the sidewalk nearby.

The commissioners agreed to execute two agreements for water and sewer lines in new subdivision areas. One was for the Lincoln Park area to be opened off W. Fifth St. and the second for an addition to Coghill subdivision.

Bloxam also reported on progress of various water and sewer projects.

Notes Military Service Certain

RALEIGH (AP)—State Adj. Gen. John Hall Manning says it should be apparent to all fathers and mothers that the chances of a youth not having to enter military service "are rather remote."

He made the statement yesterday in advising parents "to make a careful study of their son's future with respect to his military obligation. Too many parents feel that a prolonged delay in enlistment will eventually lead to no service in a uniform."

Manning declared the National Guard has "more to offer the young man of today than at any other time in the Guard's history, especially in fulfilling his military obligation with minimum interruptions to his education and future business plans."

Report Decline In ABC Sales

RALEIGH (AP)—A $37,000 decline was reported in liquor sales in North Carolina's ABC stores during February as compared with the same month last year.

Sales last month amounted to $4,662,331, the State ABC Board reported. Mecklenburg, with $742,706, led the way. Greensboro was next with $470,444, followed by Asheville's $331,092 and Winston-Salem's $322,095.

clined to go further on security grounds.

The vice president lauded Ethiopia as "one of the United States' most stalwart and consistent allies." He expressed confidence the country would not succumb to Red blandishments, even though it was a "major target of Communist influence."

Halle Selassie received American newsmen for 20 minutes in his throne room. Asked about the possibility of granting base rights, he said: "Ethiopia desires to collaborate with the United States, but only on an equal footing."

"To have a seaport without the necessary facilities is not much benefit to a country," he added in an obvious reference to hopes of American aid in developing Massawa.

"Ethiopia needs much greater assistance if she is to develop her natural resources and water resources to raise the standards of her people," he said.

U.N. Soldiers Search Arabs In Gaza Strip

N. troops took over the policing of the Gaza Strip area after Israeli forces withdrew March 7. At right, an Arab refugee, returning home in the Gaza Strip, is searched by a Swedish soldier on the Rafah-Gaza road. Israel Reserves Right To 'Act' In Gaza Dispute

JERUSALEM (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion told the Israeli Parliament today that his government "reserves its freedom of action" if the Egyptians return to the Gaza Strip.

It was Ben-Gurion's first comment since Egypt announced it was resuming control of the disputed Mediterranean coastal area. The tough old Israeli leader who ordered Israel's blitz invasion of Egypt last October warned that if "the time comes when action is appropriate and necessary, the Israel government will not, of course, give prior notice of its actions."

The Gaza Strip, Ben-Gurion told the Knesset, never belonged to the Egyptians and was "of use to them only for the purpose of attacks or threats against Israel."

In Cairo, U. N. officials and the Egyptians appeared to be moving toward a compromise providing for Egypt to handle the civil administration in Gaza while U. N. troops police the Israeli-Gaza border.

Israel withdrew from Gaza last week on the assumption that the U. N. Emergency Force would administer the strip and that Egyptian control would not be reimposed.

U. N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche and Egyptian President Nasser met for the first time to discuss the Gaza crisis.

Bunche talked for an hour and a half with Nasser, then told newsmen the U. N. Emergency Force would cooperate fully with the Egyptian administration in the Gaza Strip.

Ben-Gurion spoke in reply to a deputy asking assurance the Israeli government would take "all political and security steps" to prevent the return of an Egyptian regime to the Gaza Strip.

For the present, the Premier said, Israel is trying to head off an Egyptian return to Gaza by "political measures." He did not specify these, but Ambassador Abba Eban hurried back to Washington from a Florida vacation to confer with U. S. officials.

Ben-Gurion expressed surprise at Bunche's earlier statement that the U. N. troops are in Gaza with Egyptian consent.

"It was not in the power of the Egyptian dictator to agree or disagree to this since he was ignominiously expelled from the Strip," the Prime Minister declared. He charged that Egypt got the Gaza Strip in the first place by making war on Israel in 1947 in "violation of the U. N. charter."

"I must add with regret," Ben-Gurion continued, "that Dr. Bunche's superiors in the U. N. have sometimes been more concerned with the prestige of the Egyptian dictator than with the fulfillment of Egypt's international obligations or the preservation of peace in the Middle East."

Before his statement, Ben-Gurion won what were virtually two votes of confidence. The Knesset defeated two opposition proposals for a debate 51-24 and 53-44.

Tension was eased somewhat by a statement from an Egyptian official that the Cairo government has no plans for the present to send troops into Gaza to back up a civil administration. This apparently meant UNEF would serve as a border buffer between Egyptian and Israeli forces for the time being.

U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was reported leaving Saturday for Cairo to talk with Egyptian and U. N. officials on the continuing controversy. Informants said he would remain on the Middle East scene "as long as it is necessary."

A source close to Hammarskjold said it was not certain whether the secretary general would go to Gaza and Israel.

The U. S. State Department got out a statement which officials said was meant primarily for Egypt — urging cooperation with the U. N. "to maintain peace and tranquility in the Middle East."

It said the U. S. government strongly supported the role of the U. N. and "specifically the functioning of the U. N. Emergency Force."

President Says Budget Cut Is Congress Responsibility

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he will be as helpful as possible but it is up to Congress to determine how and whether the administration's $71,800,000,000 budget can be cut.

The President also told a news conference he has abandoned tentative plans to go to Florida for his health.

He said that instead he plans to leave probably tomorrow night for Bermuda by Navy cruiser.

Eisenhower's remarks regarding budget cutting were in reply to a request for comment on House passage yesterday of a resolution asking the President to point out where the administration's budget can be cut "substantially."

The resolution, merely a statement of the House's position, has no force of law. The vote was 219-178, with most Democrats for it and most Republicans against.

Asked what he plans to do about that House call for advice, Eisenhower said anew that he would have no objection to re-examining the budget, and added he will be just as helpful as he can in trying to find ways to cut spending.

But he went on to say it is Congress which authorizes specific projects and provides the money to finance them, and for that reason it is up to Congress to decide where any cuts should be made.

Eisenhower made one suggestion—that Congress move to eliminate the Post Office Department's deficit by providing for greater mail revenue.

This was Eisenhower's first news conference since he announced at his meeting with newsmen last week that he had developed a head cold which had temporarily impaired his hearing.

Asked today how he was feeling, the President replied he feels some better. At this point, he added, it seems to be just a matter of wearing out the ailments that have been bothering him.

Eisenhower noted that he went to Walter Reed Army Hospital yesterday for a new physical checkup. He said the doctors told him he was in good shape.

Eisenhower also dealt with these other matters: MIDEAST—United States' views regarding the current situation in the Mideast, where there is threat of new trouble in the Gaza Strip.

Nothing more was heard from fluoridation officials until the group appeared at the February meeting.

Fluoridation is simply a process of adding fluoride to the water as it is processed for public consumption.

Those favoring the process have presented literature to show the fluoridation reduces dental decay if it is taken by children during their earliest years. Opponents claim that the chemical can have adverse effects upon the body. However, those who approve of the process say that is not true if the chemical is taken in proper amounts. The approved amount is one part fluoride to one million parts water.

Mayor W. L. Whedbee urged all local persons who are interested to attend the open meeting tomorrow night.

"We invite everybody that's interested to appear before the council and feel free to express their opinion on the matter," he declared.

'Losing War' On Traffic Mishaps

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation is losing the war on traffic accidents, a safety authority said today.

He suggested that the know-how and resources of business and industry may well be the secret weapon to win the fight.

"The nation has turned to business and industry for special effort time after time when wars have seemed to be going against us," said Paul Jones of the National Safety Council, "and never have business and industry failed to come through."

"Well, the war on traffic accidents is going against us, and the last year has brought severe reverses. So it is only natural that the nation once again should turn to business and industry to help pull us out of the hole."

Deaths on the nation's highways last year were estimated at 40,000, one of the highest in history, said Jones in a prepared speech to the Office Management Assn. of Chicago.

Jones, the council's director of public information, said that nearly twice as many Americans have been killed in traffic accidents than in all of the country's wars—including the Revolution.

Jones, asking "Do we classify war by the size of the toll?" gave these figures: 604,733 dead on the battlefield; 1,150,000 killed on the highway.

He blamed public apathy and lack of citizen support for a large part of the failure to reduce the traffic toll.

Fluoridation Decision Slated Thursday Night

Tomorrow will be the big night for fluoridation proponents and opponents.

They will have a chance to present their sides of the big fluoridation argument as the City Council holds a public meeting to finally decide whether or not to fluoridate the city's water supply.

The hearing is to be held at 8 o'clock in the court room on the third floor of City Hall.

Forces on both sides of the issue are expected to roll out their biggest guns in an effort to swing the city's governing body to their side of the issue.

Councilmen set the final hearing on fluoridation after a number of dentist and other local persons who favor fluoridation appeared before the council at the February meeting to urge immediate passage of the process. They brought with them Dr. J. W. H. Norton, North Carolina's state health director, who spoke in favor of fluoridation of municipal water supplies.

During earlier months of the battle a number of local individuals appeared before the council to protest the plan.

The battle reached a climax last July when voters approved fluoridation by a vote of 347 to 320 at the same time a bond election was being conducted.

Nothing more was heard from fluoridation officials until the group appeared at the February meeting.

Union Finance Records Said Mostly Destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Reginald (Reg) Mikesell, secretary-treasurer of Portland, Ore., Joint Teamsters Council No. 37, testified today that most of the financial records wanted by Senate racketeers investigators have been destroyed.

Mikesell was the first witness called on the 10th hearing day of the investigations into an alleged plot by some Teamsters Union bosses, public officials and underworld elements to control Portland vice profits.

Mikesell said that most financial records of Council No. 37 for the period from mid-1954 to mid-1956 have been destroyed — "to make more office space."

He said financial records for the period from 1937 to 1954 were intact.

Investigators said they expected William M. Langley, Multnomah County (Portland, Ore.) district attorney, to be the day's major witness.

Langley, a Democrat, has been linked in prior testimony to an alleged plot of high Teamsters Union bosses to "take over Oregon law enforcement" and capture control over underworld profits. He is under indictment in Oregon on charges of malfeasance and failure to conduct prosecutions.

Robert Kennedy, Senate committee counsel, said he expected to question an unnamed witness about "destroyed" Portland Union

Teamsters Union financial records and to play at the open hearings approximately 40 minutes of tape recordings.

It has been previously testified the recordings were taken in secret by James B. Elkins, Portland gambler, when he suspected Langley and others were about to "double-cross me."

In Portland, Elkins and an employee, Raymond F. Clark, were ordered to stand trial March 26 on an indictment charging violation of the federal wiretap law in connection with some of the recordings.

Another witness, due to be recalled briefly, was Clyde Crosby, Oregon teamsters union boss. He has denied much of Elkins' testimony about Seattle gamblers being sent to Portland by teamsters bosses to take over control of the city.

Crosby testified the Teamsters Union paid hotel, telephone and airline travel expenses for one of the Seattle gamblers, Tom Malone, but said it was his own idea, not that of West Coast teamsters czar Frank Brewster. Brewster is to testify tomorrow.

Crosby was asked also about the destruction of records wanted by the committee. He said he didn't "know for sure" when asked whether records of the Teamsters Union Joint Council 37 had been destroyed.

SEATO Council Conference Closes; Objectives Decided

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—The SEATO Council of Ministers ended its third annual conference today with a call for more economic cooperation coupled with continued military vigilance to combat Red aggression in Southeast Asia.

Winding up a three-day session, the eight-nation council put out a communique outlining four main objectives:

1. Tighten SEATO's defense and intensify measures to safeguard the internal security of its member states.

2. Develop economic resources of SEATO members to keep them from coming under the domination of the Red bloc.

3. Encourage multilateral cultural program to promote mutual understanding among SEATO members.

Secretary of State Dulles declared, "We have every reason to be gratified with what has been accomplished at Canberra."

Britain's Earl of Home said the most notable feature of the parley was that friendly nations have been able to find identity of purpose on methods for countering communism and maintaining freedom in the Southeast Asia area.

The final communique said that the ministers felt that although the immediate military threat to peace in Southeast Asia has waned "the military strength of Communist China and of North Viet Nam is continually being increased."

The council said the Communists have stepped up their campaign of subversion aimed at undermining the people of SEATO nations. The ministers directed the SEATO research service center to do all in its power to smoke out such tactics and make them known to member governments.

In the economic field, the council "recommended specific projects" to ease the financial burden of defense and help in the economic development of Asian members. These projects, too, were not revealed.

The ministers expressed hope that neutral nations which have opposed such collective security arrangements as SEATO would come to appreciate the advantages of the organization and eventually join it.

The council agreed to appoint a secretary general and a deputy secretary to head up its permanent headquarters in Bangkok.

Among those mentioned in conference circles for secretary general are Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand, president of the 11th U. N. General Assembly, and Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the United States.

U.S. Bases In Ethiopia Given Favorable Look By Emperor

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie is reported favorable to a U. S. request for Ethiopian bases flanking Egypt—provided Ethiopia gets more American aid.

Vice President Nixon during his current visit has pressed the American request for an Air Force communications base and anchoring facilities at the Red Sea port of Massawa.

Word of the American aims brought immediate reaction from Moscow and Cairo.

Russia was said to have warned Ethiopia it might get embroiled in a major war, alleging the United States wants to store atomic and hydrogen bombs on Ethiopian soil.

Egypt's President Nasser sent a special envoy to Addis Ababa before Nixon arrived, reportedly with an urgent request for the Emperor to visit Cairo. Nasser views the vice president's African tour as part of a concentrated U. S. attempt to isolate Egypt.

from her neighbors.

The American request, according to well-informed sources, included the right to anchor three warships at Massawa in peacetime and more in any common war effort. Warships there would be in a strategic position to back up American and Israeli claims to navigation rights in the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba, some 600 miles to the north.

There has been considerable speculation that the United States would force a showdown by trying to send ships through the gulf after Egypt reoccupied the Gulf of Aqaba coast. The closest other bunkering port open to the Americans is the British colony of Aden 300 miles south of Massawa and just outside the Red Sea.

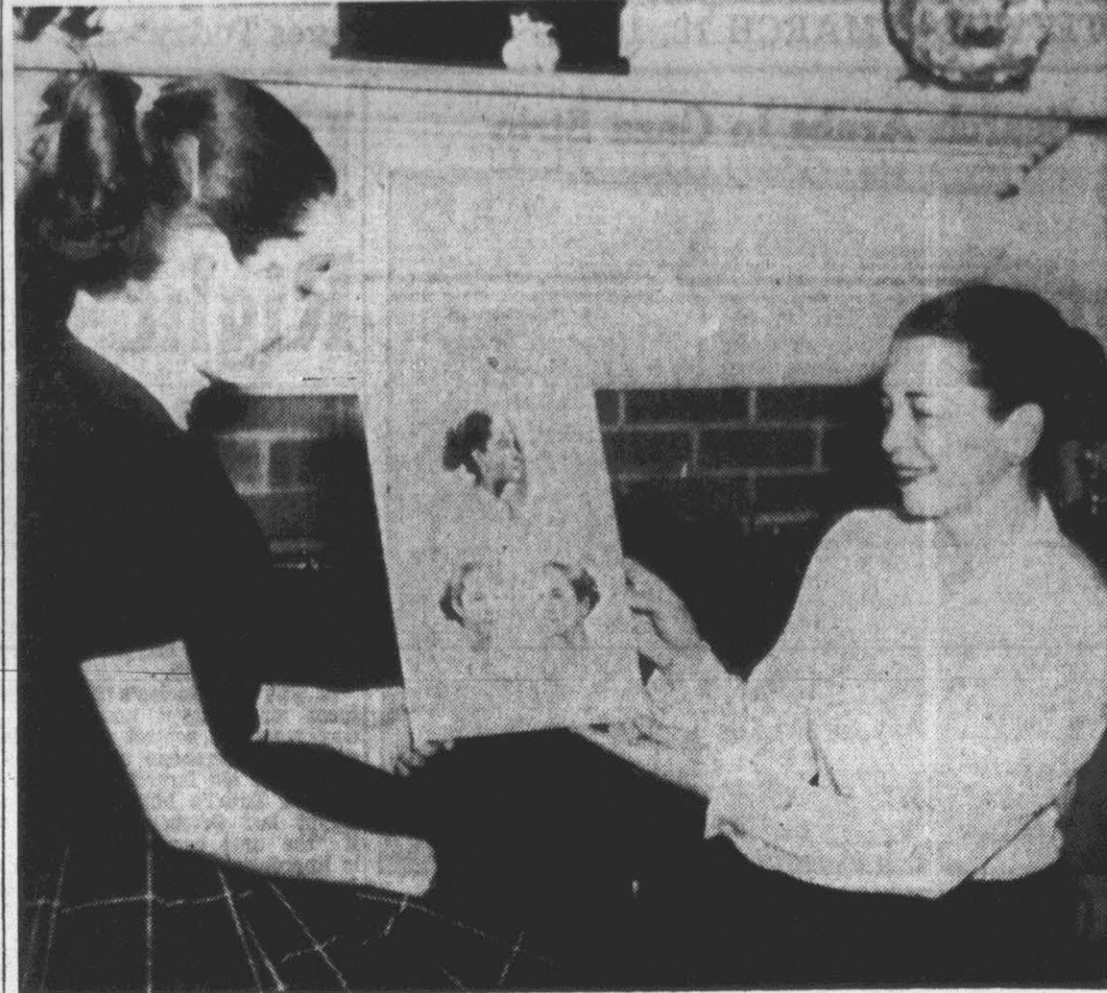

Nixon and Haile Selassie conferred for almost two hours yesterday, and the vice president was understood to have gone over the question of American bases.

Nixon told newsmen he and the Emperor had discussed increased "United States activity." He de-

 Despite the fact that we are enjoying a normal substantial growth the question is often asked: "Is Greenville making an honest effort to grow and attract new industries?" and the answer must necessarily be in the negative. What Greenville needs most at this time if it is to take advantage of the many opportunities offered it to attract new businesses and industries is a live Chamber of Commerce.

New Look At Rulebook Is Needed

The growing need for a new look at high school athletic rules has been brought into focus locally by disqualification of Ayden High School in State Class A basketball playoffs.

The Tornadoes, Pitt County champions, were disqualified Saturday in the district tournament at Williamston because they had played three games in a single week—the limit authorized by state rules. Two of the games were in district competition. The third was a preliminary playoff, March 4, between Bethel and Ayden for the county championship.

Williamston, a team Ayden defeated in the district championships, was selected to replace the Tornadoes and is representing District 1 in the state finals.

Appeals from Ayden have been turned down by district and state committees. The appeals were denied because of a failure of the Pitt County champions to abide by state rules, rules which are not flexible enough to take into consideration situations into which Ayden was placed.

The playoff game with Bethel was the game which actually cost Ayden a place in the district championship. That game, according to state rules, should never have been played although county rules state that if the regular season winner does not win the conference tournament, the tournament champions and the regular season champions will meet to decide the county's representative in the state playoffs.

The situation is not a new one in Class A basketball competition. Several years ago, St. Stephens High School was declared ineligible after reaching the state tournament and the championship was awarded to Newport High School. Despite that occurrence, nothing has been done to revise the rules to eliminate such circumstances.

With the number of Class A basketball teams in the state, it is apparent that some flexibility must be allowed to permit every team a fair chance at the championship without running the risk of disqualification because of having played—out of necessity—a certain number of playoff games within a prescribed number of days.

On the local level, and that means Pitt County, school officials should recognize the necessity of complying with existing regulations which require county tournaments to be completed by February 23. Pitt County's tournament was not completed by that time because the East Carolina College gymnasium, site of the county tournament, was not available at the time.

Some county coaches are reluctant to change the site of the tournament. East Carolina's gym offers excellent facilities in a central location. It is also a neutral court since none of the county teams play there during the regular season. It is, frankly, an ideal location for the county tournament.

It must be realized, however, that when there is a risk of not obeying inflexible state regulations, another site must be chosen—even if there is the questionable chance of giving a particular team a questionable advantage of playing on its home court.

Ayden has been the victim of an unfortunate sequence of events. State and local officials should take positive steps to eliminate such ever happening again, the state through putting some flexibility in its rules, particularly for tournaments and playoffs, and local officials through realizing that county championships should be settled in time to allow the winning team a comfortable time margin before district and state championships.

Flaws Are Apparent In Proposed Changes

The proposal for staggered terms of Greenville's City Councilmen proposed at the March 7 meeting appears to us too impractical to be considered seriously by the governing board.

As set forth at that meeting Greenville would at two-year intervals elect two councilmen for four-year terms and one councilman for a two-year term. Every candidate at each election would be eligible for either the short or long term. The four-year terms would be awarded the two candidates with the highest number of votes and the candidate with the third highest number of votes would receive the short term.

In the first place the term of each member of the city's governing board should be the same length. There is certainly no reason to elect four members of the board for four-year terms and the fifth only for two-year terms. Under the present form of municipal government Greenville has, each member of the council has equal authority and is of equal importance. There is no distinction between the five offices.

The election of four members of the Council for four-year terms and the fifth for only a two-year term would immediately alter the "equal" status the city now has in its governing board.

While staggered terms of members of a governing body assures continuity of government and policies, Greenville should not rush into the matter with a system of staggered terms which has obvious flaws.

The Council should give serious consideration to the matter of staggered terms and the system by which it will be brought about before they decide definitely to ask the General Assembly to pass legislation to alter the city government plan.

Five Industrial Groups 'Down'

By ELMER ROESSNER

Big corporations did pretty good last year. According to the First National City Bank's annual survey, the 2,550 leading corporations earned $16,065,537,000 after taxes last year. That's a rise of 3 per cent over 1955, which wasn't a bad year, either.

Only five groups of corporations showed drops from 1955. The 49 autos and parts corporations netted 32 per cent less than still $1.3 billion ahead of the tax a year ago, but they were still $1.3 billion ahead of the tax collector.

Other declines were: 116 Class 1 railroads, down 4 per cent; 84 chemical products companies, down 2 per cent; 27 beverage companies, and 17 amusement corporations, down 1 per cent.

HOTELS BOOMINGEST

The biggest increase was registered by 24 restaurants and hotel corporations, up 50 per cent over 1955. Mergers, higher prices, more travel and more conventions were probably responsible. However, the take wasn't as lush as the percentage figures indicate. The net was $29,339,000 compared with $19,820,000, which is considerably less than half a million dollars per corporation. And what can one do with half a million in a hotel these days? Or in a restaurant, for that matter?

The second biggest gain was registered by 23 mining and quarrying companies, not including metal mining. The net was up 36 per cent. Metal mining companies gained only the average — 3 per cent.

The third biggest gain was by food chain corporations, up 29 per cent, from $92,460,000 in 1955 to $119,015,000. This may come as a surprise to some, since food chains conducted a public relations campaign last year to get over the point that their profits were almost infinitesimal.

While the 116 Class 1 railroads were making less money than in the previous year, 43 other transportation corporations were doing nicely, making 27 per cent more than a year ago. However, the average railroad company's profit was still three times the average profit of the other transportation companies.

Other groups showing substantial increases in take-home profits were 30 drug, soap and cosmetics firms, up 24 per cent; 35 business services (excluding hotels and restaurants) concerns and construction companies, up 22 per cent; 17 paint and varnish companies, up 18 per cent, and 4 real estate corporations, up 18 per cent.

OTHER GAINERS

In shift from corporate profits to physical output, the bank puts its finger on strong and weak spots in the economy. In declines in production in 1956, compared with 1955, autos did poorest, down 27 per cent. Other declines cited by the bank: housing starts, down 16 per cent; synthetic fabrics, down 15 per cent; farm machinery, down 5 per cent; steel, down 2 per cent; cotton consumption, down 1 per cent; household durables, down 1 per cent.

On the up side were industrial and commercial machinery, 16 per cent higher; aircraft and parts, up 14 per cent; electrical apparatus, up 14 per cent; electricity and gas, up 10 per cent; industrial chemicals, up 7 per cent; petroleum refining, up 6 per cent; industrial production, up 3 per cent, and nonferrous metals, up 1 per cent.

These figures emphasize variations between profits and production. For example, synthetic fabric production was down 15 per cent and cotton consumption down 1 per cent, but the 57 leading textile products corporations increased their earnings 6 per cent from 1955 to 1956.

-To Be, Or Not To Be

A Look At Passing Scene

NOTES FROM HERE AND THERE . . .

Pitt County in a certain sense of the word has lost a good man to another field of endeavor. Pfc. James Boykin is leaving the North Carolina State Highway Patrol.

Jim, as he is known by everyone throughout the county, has been a definite asset to the patrol during his tour of duty in Greenville as well as in various other communities. Despite long hours on the road in the line of duty, he has found time to be very active in the civic life of his town, being a strong supporter of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce. In 1954 Jim was awarded the Book of Golden Deeds by the Greenville Exchange Club which is given for outstanding community service.

No doubt his friends wish him much success in his new field. Good luck Jim!

The citizens of Ayden are to be commended for taking a "giant step" toward the future. Their March 11 bond issue for sewer improvements was passed by more than a 20-to-1 margin.

Much preliminary work had gone into the election by town officials who could readily see that some changes had to be made in sewer facilities that were more than 40 years old and had originally been built to serve 300 people.

This Pitt County town has shown much progress in the past several years and will certainly make considerably more in the years to come.

Throughout the county the 1957 Red Cross drive has gotten in full swing and, according to early reports from county and city chairmen, is progressing very well.

As has been said many times before, there are always questions that arise in the mind of the donor.

A question brought to mind by one Red Cross representative is one that is asked by many people. Why does the National Red Cross President make such a high salary and where does it come from?

It was explained that the $30,000 received by the national president doesn't come from campaign contributions but is financed out of a trust fund established in 1919 by a Miss Mabel Bordman. Funds making up the trust were secured from a group of wealthy businessmen for this sole purpose along with the eventual purchase of a home for the president.

The representative further stated that the trust fund is self-perpetuating. Some presidents have served without compensation.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

"APOSTOLICS ANONYMOUS"

An outstanding religious leader from Europe, now touring this country, recently said: "We at home suffer from too superficial a faith to meet our day. We seek to adjust the gospel to meet our times rather than to adjust our times to conform to the gospel. We seek to make our people feel at home in their environment when it should be our costly duty to change the environment."

He then goes on to say that he feels we of the Western hemisphere are not entirely free of these spiritual failings. He suggests starting a new movement which would be called "Apostolics Anonymous," its membership to be composed of all who admit our churches to be inebriated with respectability and drunk with complacency. We will commit ourselves to "sober up and be sobered up, by the mutual confession of our failure—and nonetheless to remain cheerful."

Just today I received a letter from a man serving as a missionary in Africa. It told of conditions there almost beyond our comprehension. But instead of reflecting a mood of discouragement the letter was full of hope. Into the unbelievable degradation surrounding him this brave man was advancing with the Sword of the Spirit. No compacency about him. Not "Apostolics Anonymous" but "Apostolics Militant."

Secret Of The Spread

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you know how to tell whether you have "middle-aged spread?"

A woman always seems able to, but a man can't — or else his vanity won't let him.

If a friend tells him at lunch, "Joe, you better cut down on the chesecake, you're getting middle-aged spread," he simply doesn't believe it. At home that night Joe pulls in his stomach until his face gets purple, looks at himself in the mirror, and says, "Not bad. That guy at lunch must've been trying to kid me."

But there is one thing that doesn't kid anybody unless it's made of rubber — and that's a tape measure.

Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, director of the Physical Fitness Research Laboratory, has figured out an easy way to detect middle-aged spread.

This is it: Simply measure yourself around the abdomen. Then measure yourself around the chest while it is expanded. If your belly girth is larger, brother, you've got it — middle-aged spread.

And Dr. Cureton, who also acts as a health consultant for Cooper's Inc., makers of underwear — they want to keep middle-aged men alive longer because dead men don't buy underwear — warns you'd better do something about middle-aged spread as soon as you detect it.

Many middle-aged men regard dieting as the only solution to the problem of middle-aged spread.

Dr. Cureton says a proper diet, of course, is helpful. But he says that the middle-aged man also has to grunt his way out of his swivel chair and take proper exercises to get real results.

"It has been very impressive to see how men and women above 40 years of age have been able to improve their fitness by taking up physical training," he adds.

But Dr. Cureton feels that the ordinary social-recreational types of casual exercise obtained in a few casual games of bowling, golf, volleyball, table tennis, or shuffleboard won't do the trick.

Regular exercises with continuous rhythm do more to improve the circulation.

Here are Dr. Cureton's suggestions for getting rid of middle-aged spread and restoring lost muscle tone:

"Reduce starchy and fried foods in the diet, and eat more fruits, vegetables and protein foods.

"Breathe more deeply, try to stay unslumped, move parts of the body frequently, even while sitting.

"Fifteen to 50 full knee bends are excellent. As you breathe deeply, draw the abdominal muscles in toward the spine as far as you can with each breath.

"Walk two miles each day with a swinging stride, or swim 200 to 400 yards, or cycle five to 10 miles."

In a month your middle-aged spread should be gone. But if you quit your diet and cease exercising, in another month that tire around your tummy will be right back again.

School Bus Fee Is Suggested

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOL BUSES — Albert Ellis, Jacksonville attorney and civic leader comes up with a suggestion to alleviate the problem of who should ride the free school buses.

Presently buses are operated by the State only in rural areas. Pupils in cities and towns must walk or ride at their own expense, regardless of how far they live from the school house. Regulations also arbitrarily fix a mile and a half as the distance beyond which rural pupils will be transported.

City patrons have complained for years about the discrimination against them, since they pay as much taxes to operate the buses as do their country cousins. Also there are numerous instances of pupils living just inside the mile and a half limit right on the route of a school bus who feel the bus ought to pick them up.

Ellis suggests that a nominal fee be charged for transportation and that bus seats be assigned on basis of advance reservations. He would not attempt to make the buses self-supporting. The small fee is intended to reduce, if not remove, the feeling of discrimination by making the bus users conscious of the service and putting some responsibility upon them to arrange in advance for transportation.

The Jacksonville man isn't making any crusade for the idea. He says he has talked to several patrons who like it, but so far has had less than favorable reaction from school people. Hundreds of city school children pay from 15 cents to 25 cents a day each to ride city buses to and from school. The State Board of Education has requested funds to operate city buses, but the Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly have turned them down. A number of city administrative units operate buses out of local taxes, collected from patrons who also pay the State taxes for rural buses.

SHOCKED — Charlie Parker, State advertising man, got a shock the other day. A big industrial firm with plants in a number of states had written for some pictures of one or two communities in North Carolina to be used in a brochure for general distribution as an advertising project. Several of the North Carolina photos could not be used, said the company, because they showed conditions so much better than the average. They had decided not to publish this type scenery at any of their places. Parker said he is accustomed to having pictures returned as unacceptable for various reasons. He does not recall that any others have been turned down because they were too good. At least, that reason had never been given before. Maybe North Carolina does have something besides high taxes to offer prospective industry.

BREAKFASTS — Last week the egg producers gave a breakfast to kick-off Egg Month. Monday morning the breadmakers and other nutritionists gave another free meal to start "Better Breakfast Week." On both occasions Governor Hodges and Commissioner of Agriculture Ballew were present. The importance of a good breakfast joined in emphasizing the importance of a good breakfast to start the day.

H. S. Baumco, safety director for the Industrial Commission, cited statistics to show that workers who ate breakfast had much better safety records than those who do not. A two-year survey in textile plants proved that 75 per cent of the accidents are traceable to people who did not eat breakfast. One big mill started a chuck wagon to go through the plant around mid-morning, with result that the accident ratio dropped tremendously.

TIME — All hands agreed that breakfast should be a more leisurely meal instead of the snatch-grab habit of most people. Ballew bemoaned the fact that even farmers are not eating as good breakfasts as they used to eat. It used to take work animals an hour or more to eat their breakfast, he said. During that time the house wife could cook a real meal and the farm hands had time to eat it before harnessing the mules. Now the farm worker, like his neighbor in town, has only to step on the starter to get the motorized equipment in action.

Governor Hodges, as he has done many times before, bragged on the high quality of foodstuffs produced in North Carolina, but deplored the inefficiency in its preparation for the table at most public eating places. He said it might be a good thing if no such place could obtain the designation as a "Quality Restaurant" unless the cook had taken a course in food preparation. A newsmen asked him later if he contemplated an examining and licensing board for restaurant cooks. He laughed and replied he didn't think it would come to that, and anyhow the Supreme Court might not stand for it. (The Supreme Court last week knocked out the tile contractors board. Several years ago it invalidated a real estate board and a dry cleaner licensing program.

Other Editors Saying - A Reappraisal Needed

(The Farmville Enterprise)

The Enterprise shares with the Farmville Board of Commissioners regret and disappointment over the county Board of Commissioners' decision not to help foot the bill for extending water mains to the Formica plant site here. There is danger, however, that the entire affair could be blown out of proportions, resulting in needless harm and damage.

The local officials had a legitimate request and they have no reason to apologize for making it. They realized months ago when they made the agreement with Formica to extend the lines that they might have to do so without outside help. But they are fortunate the local treasury has funds for the work. The contract has been awarded—and that comes very near settling the matter.

The local board has reason to be disappointed over the apparent short-sightedness of the county Commissioners and their plea for non-action on basis of "setting a precedent." That's what governing boards are for—to face issues, analyze them, and make decisions—precedent or no precedent. If this were not so, boards could be abolished and government be operated by one strict set of rules.

The local board likewise has reason to be disappointed in not having an ally in Commissioner Woodrow Wooten, who represents this district.

While Farmville lost the decision, we believe the entire county stands to gain by it. If Monday's action is indicative of the Commissioners' attitude toward industrial expansion and development, it would be the height of folly for the county to approve a three-cent tax levy for industrial promotion. The Commissioners have voted to submit the issue to the voters—an indication they think highly of the idea—but what they did Monday speaks so loudly we can't hear what they are saying.

It is time for voters throughout the county to reappraise the situation and to analyze carefully the proposal to levy an additional tax of three cents for industrial promotion and development. Certainly, voters should refrain from casting a vote for the tax until they learn how the Commissioners plan to spend it.

Skepticism Rife On Economy Plea

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Despite an unprecedented deluge of popular demands for Federal economy and tax cuts, Members of Congress have reason to be skeptical of the sincerity and reality of these pleas. They question whether this sort of generosity pays off at the polls.

They doubt that the American people, including ultra-conservative Republican businessmen, really want a low-cost Government. Moreover, they question whether reducing expenditures and taxes is profitable politics. In their opinion, supported by specific evidence, it does not make friends or win votes.

There is no exaggeration to say that this practical problem of political survival versus tax-cutting is the most discussed topic on Capitol Hill today, on the floor, in the corridors and at luncheon sessions.

Yet the very idea that saving hundreds or thousands of dollars for individuals and corporations is not the way to earn ballot-box gratitude, is shocking and nothing short of sensational. It shakes and shatters the platform on which politicians have been asking support for years. And if accepted as axiomatic by the legislators, it means that more evil years lie ahead for the already overburdened taxpayers. STRANGE DISCOVERY But Representative Robert Winthrop Kean of New Jersey, banker and financier, believes that he has incontrovertible proof of this theory. And since he produced his evidence, other veterans have come forward to confess similar doubts of the re-election efficacy of pinching pennies at Washington. the polls, there will be no economy. PERHAPS CONSTITUENT WAS HIMSELF GROGGY There are numerous technical expressions with regard to Congressional practices and activities which are not generally understood by the constituents back home, especially in areas remote from the Nation's and State Capitals. One of them is the explanation that "He is on the floor," meaning that a member is attending a House or Senate session, and cannot be reached at his office.

A certain member who shall be nameless recently found that this simple statement has destroyed his reputation for sobriety. It seems that a constituent had tried for weeks to contact the M. C. by telephone, only to receive the secretarial answer that "He is on the floor."

"I don't understand what's happened," Congressmen said, since he went to Washington, the constituent told the community. "He used to be a sober and God-fearing man before he was elected to Congress. But now he can't get up off the floor to answer the telephone."

San Souci Meets At Woman's Club

Mrs. Haywood Dall and Mrs. W. M. Scales were joint hostesses for the members and guests of the San Souci Book Club on Tuesday at the Woman's Club.

A delicious three-course luncheon was served. Immediately following the meal, the president, Mrs. J. T. Cheatham, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Charles Skinner, a former member who has been making her home in Danville, Virginia for the past several years, was welcomed back into the club.

The members voted to participate in a gift of money to the Red Cross, also to plant a shrub at the library as a memorial to one of its deceased members, Mrs. Charles Woodard.

A delightful letter was read from one of the members, Mrs. W. L. Hall, who is touring Europe with her daughter, Jane.

At the conclusion of the business, Mrs. J. H. Waldrop presented a lovely pre-Easter program entitled "The Resurrection and the Destiny of Man". Mrs. J. H. Waldrop stated that when we have achieved spiritual consciousness, we shall be one with God. "The Easter Truth comes with dynamic and glorious power. He is risen! Death cannot hold spirit. When we become aware of His life in us and accept it as our own, then death cannot hold us. Life is Eternal!"

Shamrock Sundae Is Irish Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

IS IT A PARTY you're planning for St. Patrick's Day? Then why not serve that good old standby, ice cream and cookies?

Use a shamrock cookie cutter to shape the ice cream appropriately, then make up a pineapple sauce with mint flavored green maraschino cherries. Here's the recipe:

SHAMROCK SUNDAES

INGREDIENTS: 1 quart vanilla ice cream, 1 can (1 pound and 4 ounces) crushed pineapple, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup (about 15) chopped mint-flavored green maraschino cherries, 1/4 cup broken walnut meats (if desired).

METHOD: Slice ice cream about 1 1/2 inches thick. Cut ice-cream slices with 3-inch shamrock cookie cutter. Place on waxed paper. Freeze until firm. Drain pineapple and reserve syrup. Stir cornstarch and salt together in a medium-sized saucepan; gradually add pineapple syrup, stirring until smooth after each addition. Cook and stir constantly over low heat until thickened and clear. Add well-drained pineapple and chopped cherries; mix well. Chill. Add walnuts to sauce before serving. Serve sauce over ice-cream shamrocks. Makes 4 to 10 servings.

RECIPE NOTE

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER 4

The Indians broke from flank attack to the circle and the troopers cut into them with individual fire, thinning the painted ranks again. Emil Schwabacker was closing in now, shooting as he came on, and the hostiles were squeezed between the combined fires. Breaking through, Schwabacker wheeled his section to the rear of the soddy, cutting off a hostile flanking movement that had completely escaped Temple Society's attention.

Jocelyn's command had taken cover behind the soddy and was for a moment. The battle teetered, then fell to the Army as the Indians backed out of range and waited.

"Cease fire" followed "recall," and Jocelyn went about the business of reorganizing his command. Four dead, six wounded; he had no accurate count of Schwabacker's losses. Jocelyn had the wounded carried into the road ranch.

Schwabacker came up, bleeding badly from an arm wound. He knew that he had performed gallantly, yet there was none of the brag about him. His young face was darkened with powder residue and a splash of blood mottled one cheek. He saluted left-handedly and said, "A complete route, sir."

"Not quite," Jocelyn said with customary dryness, "although I will certainly mention you in my dispatch for gallant action." He wiped his bloody saber in the dirt, then cleaned off what remained with gloved fingers before returning it to the scabbard. "Please observe, Mr. Schwabacker, that the hostiles remain in warlike numbers." He smiled thinly.

"For the moment we've merely joined the besieged," said Sergeant Finnegan and a detail hazed the horses into the stout corral behind the main building while Jocelyn walked around the yard, inspecting the shot-up stage and dead mules. From the position of the animals, he surmised that the Indians had killed them in harness while they stood in the yard. But he and Schwabacker silently cursed the infantry commander for not caring for his mounts. This neglect had now reduced a heretofore clumsy force into complete immobility.

Near the wagons four infantry soldiers lay grotesquely postured in death. Schwabacker said, "Fill my mess here, sir." He had his blouse half off and was wrapping his neckerchief around his arm, trying it with his teeth and an awkward left hand.

"Help you there?"

"No, I've got it, sir," Schwabacker didn't have it, but there was a core of pride in him that prevented him from admitting it.

Jocelyn summoned Sergeant Finnegan with a small hand motion. This always surprised Schwabacker, and left him with the feeling that Finnegan must watch his commander like an obedient dog in order to catch these slight signals.

"Sergeant," Jocelyn was saying, "inspect the mail pouches. There may be a letter for me."

"Aye, sir," Finnegan wheeled away and a frown crossed Schwabacker's face like a shadow. How many times had he heard that? A hundred at least. Same tone, same buried hope beneath the flat twang of Jocelyn's voice. Did he actually expect a letter? From whom? His wife?

Finnegan came back. "Nothin', sir."

"Thank you, Sean. Perhaps on the next mail." He turned away and Finnegan handed Schwabacker a letter. As he took it he caught the lingering fragrance of sachet, and with it a picture of candlelight, and soft music and gleaming shoulders. Schwabacker turned away and carefully opened the letter. Impatience urged him to rip apart the concealing paper, but remembrance of Henrietta Brubaker's innate gentility made such impetuosity seem improper.

He opened the note and read: St. Albans, Vermont April 9, 1957

My Dearest One:

Your wonderful letter of the 3rd instant is at hand and I hasten to reply. We enjoy good health here and the hard winter is leaving us. Dear Heart, we miss you and Pray for your speedy return. Last Wednesday your mother and sisters invited me to dinner. We had a pleasant time, talking about times past and about the time when you will return to stay. Please, do not think I fail to understand your choice of a military career instead of completing your medical studies. But you are so far away and your mother worries over your welfare, as I do.

Your father enjoys good health, although he approaches his sixtieth year, and I know he wants you to have his blessing, although he never mentions your name, or allows it to be mentioned. It is everyone's hope that time will soften his bitterness.

I long to be with you, even in that Savage land. Can you come back for me soon? It is my wish, please believe me. We could be married in the Grove Street Church. I miss you and think of you constantly. God keep you and speed Your safe return.

Devotedly,
Henrietta

Schwabacker carefully folded the letter and slipped it into his inner pocket. Jocelyn had strolled over to the ambulance and was looking inside. Schwabacker joined him and together they lifted a large leather trunk to the ground. Jocelyn threw open the lid, then grunted in surprise when he discovered women's petticoats. Inspection of three other satchels revealed them filled with women's clothes, and Jocelyn jerked his head around when a feminine voice spoke from the soddy door.

"Those are mine!"

They turned as one. Ryndlee appeared a bear of a man with dark, round eyes peering from beneath heavy brows. He tried to take the woman's arm but she shook him off and came toward the two officers. "I said those things are mine. Please leave them alone."

She was a woman in her late thirties and beneath the dirt on her face Emil Schwabacker detected the last vestiges of beauty. She was tall, firm-bodied, and she gave a level look. Her eyes reminded him of a large aquarium, a shimmering green, clear, yet fathomless. There was pain in her expression and a trace of fear pinched her lips. Blood had dried on one cheek and the bodice of her dress.

Temple Jocelyn bowed slightly; he had the height to do this gracefully. "My apologies, madam. Finding a woman here was a bit of a surprise. I'm Lieutenant Temple Jocelyn, commanding E Troop, 2nd United States Cavalry. May I present Mr. Schwabacker, my second in command."

Schwabacker swept off his kepi and bowed, his heels meeting like two blocks of wood. Even with his dirty face and wounded arm he was the epitome of gallantry.

Sergeant Finnegan sidled up, eyeing the hostiles a few hundred yards away. "Shall I be moving the troop inside, sir?"

"Yes," Jocelyn said and took the woman by the arm. He turned her toward the door and she walked with the wooden steps of the nearly exhausted. Ryndlee closed the door after them, sliding the oak bar in place.

The main room was large, a combination dining room and bar. Along the base of the east wall, Jocelyn's wounded suffered in stubborn silence. Four more infantrymen lay with blankets covering them. "Died in the night," Ryndlee said, stomping around, fretting like a woman who finds a strange dish in her cupboard.

From another part of the house a man moaned in a high, pained voice and the woman's eyes grew round and alarmed. She struck at Jocelyn's hand, then ran through a doorway. "It's her husband," Ryndlee said. "Pretty bad off. He lost all his men."

Kirk Douglas Sees Best Chance To Win 'Oscar'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—Kirk Douglas stands his best chance to win an Oscar this year, but he won't be here to collect it.

He's leaving for Europe, where he'll film two movies for his own Bravura Productions. If his third try for an Academy Award is successful, his wife Anne will have to accept it at the March 27 blow-out.

Douglas makes no bones about wanting to win.

"Sure, I want it," he admitted. "Any actor would. I've gotten all kinds of awards—the Mexican Oscar, the Japanese Oscar. Now I want the real Oscar."

What are his chances?

"How should I know? I only hear the good things from friends; naturally they're pulling for me. But that's no indication. They had me so convinced I was going to win the Oscar for 'Detective Story' that I was working on my acceptance speech. Then I wasn't even nominated!"

Kirk has been nominated before—for "Champion" and "The Bad and the Beautiful." It weighs in his favor that he has been a bridesmaid but never... etc. Plus which his role as Van Gogh in "Lust for Life" has been honored by the New York and San Francisco critics, the Hollywood foreign press and various magazines.

"It was by far the most difficult role I've ever done," he said. "In 'Lust for Life,' I had to play so many variations of inner turmoil. Van Gogh was an extremely complex character."

Opening Of Suez Canal Spells New Complicated Problems

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK—Re-opening of the Suez Canal and the oil pipelines across Syria will also reopen some old problems and intensify some new ones.

1. It will enlarge the question mark tied to the hike in gasoline and fuel oil prices and make the chance of price wars this summer more of a bogeyman for the oil industry.

2. It will fan the fight over importing sizable quantities of oil into the United States.

3. It will reshuffle oil tanker routes around the world.

4. It will test whether all that Europe needs to extend its industrial boom is less costly oil than the American variety.

Oilmen say return of Mideast oil to Europe in volume isn't likely to change:

1. The desire to become as independent as possible of any future closure of the canal and to look for other pipeline routes for the same reason.

2. Plans to step up atomic energy programs in Europe.

3. Long-term plans of American companies to invest still more in Mideast oil production in spite of increased tension.

4. The race to build up world tanker fleets—especially the giant vessels that can carry oil around Africa or South America as economically as the small ones do through the Suez or Panama canals.

The National Petroleum Council set up to advise the Interior Department, reports that so far this year nine million deadweight tons of additional tanker capacity have been ordered, bringing to 38 million tons the amount now projected. It figures the world's shipyard tanker capacity is now fully booked through 1961. If all the other vessels talked about turn into blueprints the yards would be busy through 1964.

Not Much Chance, But Stassen Urges 'Hope'

DURHAM — Harold E. Stassen, disarmament adviser to President Eisenhower, said here last night he is neither "optimistic nor pessimistic" about the Big Five disarmament conference starting in London Friday. Stassen, here to address students at Duke University, added, "The outlook is not bright for agreement because of the Soviet attitude." But he cautioned, "it is never justified to take an attitude of hopelessness. The obstacles are immense but that is no reason for not trying." Stassen spelled out the destructive potential of modern weapons in no uncertain terms. He asserted: "One squadron of modern bombers in one flight carrying hydrogen bombs can deliver more destruction than all the bombers in all flights on both sides in World War II." He cited this capability as the reason the United States should not give up hope for general arms reduction in both Western and Communist nations. However, Stassen emphasized, "The United States does not have a policy of endeavoring to eliminate all nuclear weapons. We would retain a deterring capability." Stassen outlined the three major proposals the United States will make at the conference: 1. Cutting of U.S. conventional armaments and armed forces of 2 1/2 million, the same for Russia and a relative proportion for other nations—provided there is an adequate inspection. 2. A neutral system to provide against surprise attack Eisenhower's "open skies" proposal at Geneva. 3. Under inspection, a program to ease nuclear arms stockpiling and convert fissionable nuclear materials to non-weapons purposes.

Civil Rights Bill Supporters Meet Determined Opposition

WASHINGTON — Supporters of a civil rights bill worked against parliamentary odds and Southern determination today to get approval by the House Judiciary Committee before the day ends. Southern members on the committee, who consumed most of yesterday's session with debate on a single amendment, had a dozen or more proposed changes to offer today. Efforts by Chairman Celler (D-N.Y.), a strong civil rights supporter, to force a committee vote today were further hampered by the prospect of roll call votes in the House on a money bill and farm legislation. These would make it difficult to hold a committee majority in session, even though the House has granted special permission for the group to sit during conduct of general House business. Celler said he hopes to finish committee consideration during the day, but will continue to meet the rest of the week if necessary. He said the committee will positively act this week. Among the amendments Southern members have prepared are language changes that would guarantee jury trial of persons accused of violating injunctions issued in civil rights cases; deprive the proposed civil rights investigating commission of subpoena powers; and strike out the provision for a special assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights matters or reduce the size of the staff to be authorized for him.

Haircut Adds To Casting Problem

CALDWELL, Idaho — Director John Sellers had so much trouble, because of illnesses and "scholastic difficulties," in filling out the cast for the College of Idaho production of "Ten Little Indians" that he tapped a freshman, Lenn Messman, for the part of a young British speed demon. Then Messman went to see the movie "Anastasia" and showed up for rehearsal the next day with a Yul Brynner haircut. Sellers is now wondering whether to order a toupee for the freshman, or start holding tryouts for the part again.

Woodpecker Is Complaint-Cause

SOUTH PASADENA, Calif. — Tricked by a persistent ringing noise near his bedroom window, Louis S. Kurze complained to the telephone company. A lineman came out, couldn't find the source of the trouble, but said he was certain it wasn't in the telephone equipment. The ringing continued. Kurze called the Southern California Edison Co., which supplies his light and power, and for three days a trouble-shooter tried to find the source of the noise. Finally he located it. Inside a metal transformer box a woodpecker was hammering away. Chattering and screeching, the woodpecker flew away as the lineman tapped the box.

Airlines Slowed By Bomb Scares

NEW YORK (AP) — Three bomb scares yesterday and last night caused three major airlines to search 32 planes in 10 cities in the East, Midwest and South. No bomb was found but some 800 passengers encountered delays of up to an hour.

Trans World Airlines had 28 planes searched in a four-hour period after receiving a hoax call at its Manhattan ticket office in early afternoon.

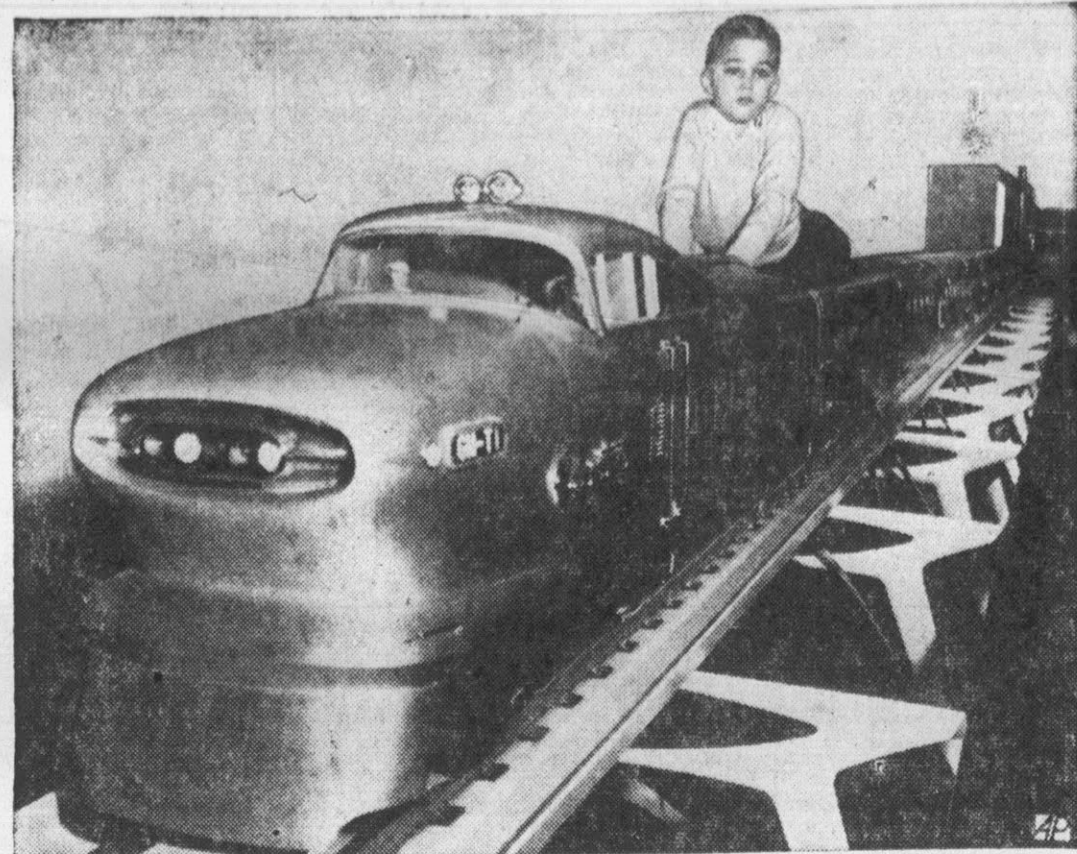

Twenty-two of the planes were searched at New York's two airports, Idlewild and LaGuardia, and at Newark, N.J.

Another six planes were ordered out of the air and told to land at their nearest airports. These planes set down at Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Cleveland.

TWA officials swung into action after an anonymous young male caller telephoned this threat: "There's a bomb on your plane. You better get it off." Then the caller hung up.

Since no particular plane was singled out as the bomb target, TWA officials took all precautions.

American Airlines, on the basis of a telephoned threat received by its Philadelphia office, had one of its twin-engine Conquairs searched as it landed here last night on a flight from Boston. A woman caller said 12 sticks of dynamite had been placed on an American Con-

Dave Beck Evades Question As To Extent Of Personal Wealth

By JAMES HUTCHESON
SEATTLE (AP) — Is Dave Beck a millionaire, as he oft-times has been described?

The Teamsters Union president wouldn't say yes and he wouldn't say no to newsmen here last night.

"It's as easy to say Beck is a millionaire as it is to say he has $200," said the voluble onetime truck driver in answering questions about his financial status as head of the nation's largest labor union.

He did it while asserting that if the special Senate committee for investigating alleged labor union rackets tries to pry into his personal financial affairs, he is prepared to invoke the Fifth Amendment unless his attorneys advise him otherwise.

As to union affairs, including the union's purchase of his swank lakeside home for $163,000, Beck said he will be ready to testify freely "the minute they tell me of a date" to appear in Washington.

He insisted his record as head of the union and as a financier is clean.

But, he declared, any probing into his personal finances would affect other people—his associates and his wife—and "it is far removed from union affairs."

Of his good fortune in real estate, he said:

"I actually am working for nothing," because, at 62, he qualified last June for retirement at full salary.

But he declared he "positively" intends to seek another term.

The Senate committee has indicated a desire to quiz him on reports that unions funds may have helped pay for building the home which the union bought from him and now provides rent-free and tax-free.

Beck's retort: "There is no lot of truth to it."

Then, at his first news conference since his hurried flight home from Europe under the pressure of Senate investigators, he listed some of the real estate deals that he said had brought him a tidy fortune.

STUART, Okla. (AP) — A local service station operator is looking for a thoughtful man who put everything back in its place.

Apparently low on gas the stranger tried to phone both of the town's gas station operators early in the morning. When neither answered, he drove to the nearest station, broke the glass door, unlocked the gas pump, filled his gas tank and then locked the pump and returned the key. But he failed to leave any money.

"I sold one tract at a profit of $130,000. The teamsters had nothing to do with that."

"I sold business district property at a profit of over $200,000. The teamsters had nothing to do with that."

"I invested in the Grosvenor House (one of the city's big, new and swank apartment houses). The teamsters had nothing to do with that."

Beck gets $50,000 a year as general president of the teamsters, but he commented:

City On Danube Becoms Funnel For Returnees

PASSAU, Germany (AP) — This Danube River city on the German-Austrian border has become the main crossing point for Hungarian refugees who want to return home.

They come here from France, Belgium, West Germany and other West European countries.

Theoretically, they are entitled to repatriation if they ask for it.

In practice, it is almost impossible for them to go back legally. This is mainly because Austria, carrying the brunt of the refugee burden, fears that second-thinking repatriates may wind up in Austrian camps again instead of going home.

The homesick Hungarian refugee may apply for an Austrian transit visa. But the lists are long and he may have to wait for months. After a few frustrating days in the care of the Catholic Caritas welfare organization here, most try to go it alone.

What is driving them back? Welfare officials agree that in most cases it is homesickness, the yearning to be back in the fold of a family they have left behind.

A few disillusioned people are among them — those who had thought of the West as a sort of lazy, luxurious refuge. Others say the French tried to draft them into the Foreign Legion. Some complain that working conditions in Belgium's coal mines did not agree with them.

And there are those indoctrinated by Red agitators. German police are certain such agitators mingled with legitimate refugees in the great exodus.

Exact figures on those who have already returned are not available here. West German officials say about 1,000 Hungarian refugees in Germany have asked to be repatriated.

McGuire Playing Each Game In NCAA Tourney 'One At A Time'

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ NEW YORK (AP)—Coach Frank McGuire of North Carolina hopes his formula for success works as well in the NCAA basketball tournament as it did for him and his undefeated Tar Heels during the regular season.

The smiling Irishman from New York City plans to play each game in the NCAA "one at a time" after his team turned back Yale 90-74 in an Eastern regional first round game last night.

McGuire's victory formula worked to perfection during the regular campaign as the Tar Heels, voted the nation's No. 1 team in the final Associated Press poll, posted 27 consecutive triumphs. All America Lennie Rosenbluth and Co. capped the season by winning the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and the NCAA tournament berth that goes with it.

Last night McGuire's "transplanted" New Yorkers extended their winning streak to 28, but the soft-spoken coach hopes that the Tar Heels "are looser in Philadelphia against Canisius Friday than they were against Yale."

McGuire said that the boys, most of whom come from the New York City area, were trying too hard before their friends and relatives. "Playing in New York is worse for us than playing in a strange city," said McGuire.

"The team was jittery and tight in the first half. We played poorly in the first 20 minutes, but part of it had to do with Yale's pressing tactics."

North Carolina was behind most of the first half, but gained a 40-41 lead at intermission. The game was tied six times in the second half before the Tar Heels pulled away for good with 11 minutes to go.

McGuire, watching Canisius out-class West Virginia and All America Hot Rod Hundley, was impressed by the Golden Griffins from Buffalo. "They're a smart ball club," he said. "They like to hold the ball until the other team makes a mistake."

Rosenbluth, who was bottled up by NYU's box zone defense earlier in the season at the Garden, experienced a bit of trouble with the Elis' collapsing zone. Harried

Rosenbluth, who was bottled up by NYU's box zone defense earlier in the season at the Garden, experienced a bit of trouble with the Elis' collapsing zone. Harried by two defenders most of the time, the 6-5 agile forward still managed to collect 29 points and snare 17 rebounds.

Johnny Lee kept Yale in contention with 25 points and Eddie Robinson added 20. Four of the starting Bulldogs fouled out.

"Before the game we knew nothing about Yale," Rosenbluth said. "No one ever saw them play in high school."

Lee, a 6-3 redhead with a variety of shots, played high school ball in Brooklyn. McGuire seemingly had the lithe-junior all wrapped up for North Carolina, only to have Lee enroll at Yale. Rosenbluth admitted that he oft-

Elon Falters

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Elon College fought a strong first half here yesterday but faltered in the second half to fall from the National Intercollegiate (NAIA) basketball tournament with a 76-61 loss to Pacific Lutheran.

Pacific Lutheran with a 24-0 record was top-seeded in the tourney.

Jimmy Crump scored 21 points to pace the Elon attack. At the game's high scorer was Roger Iverson who netted 24 for Lutheran.

Of Canisius, Rosenbluth said: "They really run on a fast break, and I like the way they hustle. They'll be tough for us to beat."

The Yale-North Carolina game was tough and got during the first half. The game was tied three times in first six minutes, but three minutes later Rosenbluth's tap-in put the Tar Heels in front 15-14 for the last time in the half.

With five minutes left before intermission, the Bulldogs led by six points, 31-25, but Tommy Kearns lay-up got North Carolina even at the buzzer 40-40.

The lead see-sawed in the first nine minutes of the second half before a pair of baskets by Bob Cunningham put the Tar Heels ahead 66-62. Cunningham, Pete Brennan and Joe Quigg then clicked for 10 straight points after Lee's three-point play and North Carolina pulled away to a commanding 76-65 bulge.

Hank Nowak and Joe Leone sparked Canisius, which led at halftime 34-18 and then staved off a late West Virginia drive that closed the gap to 52-50. Nowak hit for 19 points and Leone 18. Hundley was outstanding for the Mountaineers with 17, but had little assistance from his mates.

Looks On Baseball As 'Big Business'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Celler (D-NY) says he doesn't think Congress needs a full investigation to determine that major league baseball is big business and thus subject to anti-trust laws.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said in an interview yesterday, "I don't need any hearings." And he said Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick is trying to play the role of grand "Pooch-Bah" for all baseball.

Celler is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and has sponsored a bill to extend anti-trust laws to baseball. The senior Republican member of that group, Rep. Keating (NY), says he favors full hearings.

Keating added that although his ideas have not "entirely crystallized," he does not believe anti-trust legislation was designed to cover sports.

The question of whether baseball is big business came up again two weeks ago when the Supreme Court ruled professional football is subject to antitrust statutes. The court had previously declared baseball exempt.

Celler said he planned only short hearings, starting in another month or two.

"I think we already have investigated the matter," Celler said, referring to a 1952 congressional probe of baseball which he headed. Congress took no action after that study.

Celler criticized Frick for suggesting that baseball people decline comment on Supreme Court decisions.

"Frick wants to gag everybody," Celler said. "He wants to be the Pooch-Bah and the only one."

Meanwhile, Chairman Kefauver (D-Iowa) of the Senate Anti-monopoly subcommittee said he was awaiting a staff report on previous studies and rulings on professional sports before deciding whether to schedule hearings on the matter.

Harris Again Is On A Fast Start

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Smooth-swinging Gail Harris, who perennially tries to win a first base job with the New York Giants, again is off to a blazing spring start.

This time, the 25-year-old Harris, who yesterday delivered the second winning blow and has driven across 12 runs in four Giant exhibition games, may be ready.

"I'm more relaxed than I've ever been and I'm not pressing," said Harris after his three-run homer in the ninth gave the Giants a 9-3 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles. It was his second homer of the game and third of the cactus league campaign.

Harris, who batted .270 and belted 24 homers for Minneapolis of the American Assn. last season, slashed a bases-loaded single in the 10th to win for the Giants Sunday, also by a 9-3 count over the Cleveland Indians.

The first sacker from Abingdon, Va., now hitting .500 with 8 hits in 16 trips could be a big help in Manager Bill Rigney's effort to boost the Giants out of their sixth-place National League berth.

Rigney has a crying need for a cleanup batter to hit behind brilliant Willie Mays in the No. 3 spot. Rigney already has tested big Hank Sauer and Dusty Rhodes in the No. 4 batting position, but it looks like the job may go being for quite a spell. Gail could be the man.

Harris has been batting fifth and twice now has slammed a d across five runs in a game. He did it yesterday with his pair of homers and also on Sunday against the Indians with a homer and two singles.

"Gail has as much strength to hit for distance as anybody on the club, except Willie Mays," said Rigney.

ONE WILL BE MISSING—The three rough-looking young men pictured above helped blast East Carolina's baseball team to a North State Conference baseball crown last year under Coach Jim Mallory. This year, one of the three will be missing from the lineup. Ralph Zehring, (left) will return to his catching post and Bucky Reep (second) will again man the third base slot. Gene Turner, (right) an outfielder dropped out of school earlier due to scholastic difficulties.

Concedes 'Nothing' To Yankees

By ED CORRIGAN The Associated Press The Cleveland Indians refuse to subscribe to the popular belief that the New York Yankees only have to show up to win the American League race again.

When asked the other day if maybe he didn't think the Yanks would win the pennant, rookie Manager Kerby Farrell barked: "I do not. I concede the Yanks nothing. They have to beat us to win it and you can bet we'll give them a fight."

Farrell has no worries about his front-line pitchers. Three of them loosened up in yesterday's 8-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs at Tucson, Ariz. Bob Lemon gave up only one hit in the first three innings. Then Art Houtteman yielded three in the middle three and Don Missi held the Cubs to two in the final three.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, always hot during the exhibition season, won their fourth game without a defeat by turning back the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-4, at Tampa, Philadelphia and Boston each broke into the win column, the Phillies licking the Washington Senators 4-2 at Clearwater and the Red Sox defeating the Yanks 1-0 at St. Petersburg.

The Red Sox, who have yet to show any punch, beat the Yanks on a fluke run in the 13th inning. With two out and the bases loaded Bill Skowron, being tried at third base on an experiment by Manager Casey Stengel, stumbled after fielding an easy grounder. When he recovered, all hands were safe and Jim Piersall had scored.

In other games, the St. Louis Cardinals, behind home runs by Wally Moon and Del Ennis, blasted the Kansas City A's at Palm Beach 12-4; the Milwaukee Braves blanked the Detroit Tigers 1-0 with Frank Torre driving in the only run; the New York Giants won a 9-8 slugfest from the Baltimore Orioles on Gail Harris' three-run homer in the ninth inning; and the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Chicago White Sox 8-4.

GHS Track Champions To Open New Season

Coach Guy Lewis' defending Northeastern Conference track champions will open their 1957 cinder season tomorrow afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium against New Bern and Elizabeth City.

The triangular event was to have been the second match on the Phantom card for this year, but an earlier contest with Jacksonville was called off due to bad weather.

Regarded as the team to beat again this season, Greenville will welcome back seven veterans and a host of newcomers. Robert Howell, Billy Sermons, Jimmy Kelly, Retz Everett, Ed Wilkerson, Roy Martin and Barney Barrett are the veterans. The newcomers who will actively participate in tomorrow's events are not yet certain.

Lost from last year's fine team are Pete West, Hal Edwards, Bob Shackleford, Benny Perry, Jerry Drum and Fick Arthur. Despite is confident that his club will shape up well against many of the year's opposition.

This season Greenville will tangle with all the Northeastern Conference clubs and several AAA schools. Goldsboro is one of the bigger schools on the Phantom home schedule.

Greenville will also compete in the NEAC playoffs here, and will go to the North Carolina High School sectional meets at Raleigh and the North Carolina High School state meets at Chapel Hill.

Both New Bern and Elizabeth City are rated as strong clubs in the Northeastern Conference this season, trackwise.

ECC track coach J. O. Miller and assistants will handle the official end of the meet tomorrow afternoon. It will begin at 3:00 and last for about two hours.

Wilf Greaves Is Setting Sights On Gene Fullmer

CHICAGO (AP)—Wilf Greaves, young middleweight with limited experience, has his sights on Gene Fullmer's title and figures the best way to meet the challenge is by beating fourth-ranked Spider Webb in a 10-round bout at Chicago Stadium tonight.

Greaves, of Pittsburgh, who has had only 14 professional fights, is substiting for Randy Sandy, who injured his left hand in training.

Greaves, 21, has an 85-1 record. Webb is a 3-1 favorite. ABC will telecast at 10 p.m. EST.

'Strongest Man In The World' Takes First Professional Step

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The strongest man in the world, Paul Anderson of Georgia, was merely "warming up" for more difficult deeds as he practices for his new career as a professional lifter of things.

The warm-up wasn't anything, or so said America's gold medal Olympic games champion, somewhat apologetically.

He simply lifted, en masse, 29 normal sized Brownie scouts and one attractive teen-ager.

The stunt was just a sample of what this amazing, affable and highly articulate athlete intends to do as a professional.

Today, after a midnight flight to Atlanta, Paul took his first official step as a pro. He flew there to autograph copies of his new book.

"Paul Anderson's Easy Steps to Giant Strength."

The 24-year-old Anderson admitted before he left that his combined weight, an estimated 2,400 pounds, or the equivalent of two healthy race horses — is not one of the first easy steps toward acquiring giant strength.

Why did the world's greatest amateur weight-lifter turn pro?

Anderson, a completely sincere and dedicated athlete, believes that weight lifting is the foundation of greatness in any line of sport.

Amateur competition, such as in the Olympics, is limited to three types of lift, the press, the snatch and clean, and the jerk.

They can, over a long evening of competition, become dull, and will not provoke any mass interest for participation.

As a pro he can and will dramatically lift something that has not been done since the turn of the century and the heyday of such a man as the great Shadow.

Paul's manager, Howard Cantonwine, a former topnotch wrestler, emphasized that his charge will not turn wrestler, and that plans are for "a dignified presentation of the patents of the strongest man the world has ever known."

In the offing will be a national television appearance, plush night club engagements and the like. As a former wrestler, Cantonwine is no dummy in showmanship.

With that Paul "warmed up" some more. He did 10 deep knee bend squats without stopping, shouldering 560 pounds. Then he "warmed up" some more, with 810 pounds.

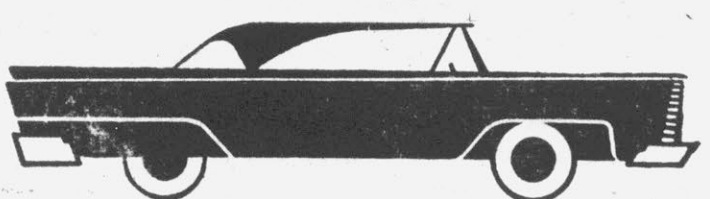

"Even in practice he breaks a world record any time he chooses," said Cantonwine.

When Anderson went to work on two 55-gallon steel gasoline drums filled with wet sand, weight 1,600 pounds, it was time to leave. Paul was gazing at the foundation of his manager's home.

Pleas For Appropriations-Increase Continue To Mount On Every Front

RALEIGH (AP)—Requests for increased state appropriations for the next biennium continue to mount.

Since Feb. 26 when it began hearings on the appropriations bill, the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee has been asked to approve requests for more than 13 million dollars above the amount recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

The committee was scheduled to hear requests today from East Carolina, A&T, Western Carolina, Appalachian State Teachers, Pembroke State colleges.

Meanwhile, the Joint Finance Committee continued to be briefed on proposed changes in the state's tax structure as recommended by a tax study commission.

The State Hospitals Board of Control yesterday asked the Appropriations Committee for $1,060,000 in additional funds for permanent improvements and $900,906 for operating costs during the next two fiscal years.

Request was outlined by Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange, board chairman. He declared North Carolina can have a mental care program second to none if it can get the requested funds.

Noting there are 733 mentally retarded children on waiting lists at institutions, Umstead said, "We need additional space. In fact, it is going to be necessary to build another institution in the western part of the state."

Umstead requested $700,000 for two dormitories at Butner Training Center to accommodate about 300 patients, $200,000 for a new hospital program at Caswell Training School, and $90,000 for six houses for staff physicians at Goldsboro Hospital.

He defended a request for $93,780 for a research program at the Psychiatric Center at Chapel Hill, describing it as the "heart of our program." The center would produce 12 psychiatrists a year.

Umstead said the problem of obtaining "trained personnel" is the answer to an adequate program. The teachers' and state employees' retirement system requested an additional appropriation of $2,656,936 to match funds under salary increases recommended in the budget 8 per cent pay boost for employees and 9.1 per cent for teachers).

D. Hiden Ramsey of Asheville, chairman of the Board of Higher Education, spoke out in favor of the proposed revolving fund to be used for construction of dormitories and other buildings at educational institutions.

In 35 years, he said, a 10 million dollar fund could grow to 35 million in new buildings. This would provide 15,000 new dormitory beds, double the present capacity at state institutions of higher learning.

Another item Ramsey urged legislators to consider was that of college libraries. The library facilities at the state-supported schools, he said, are "losing caste" in the adequacy of books.

Ramsey also called for salary hikes and for additional professors.

Meanwhile a recommendation to give cities permissive power to levy an occupational tax came under fire at a briefing before the Finance Committee. Two members of the tax study commission which drafted the proposal admitted they were not too receptive to the proposal, referred to in the discussion as a "right to work" tax.

E. M. O'Herron of Charlotte, former representative, discussed the license tax changes and said he was not "wholeheartedly" behind the measure. The tax study

Convict Two Of Fraud In Claims

Two Greenville Negroes were convicted yesterday of violating laws governing unemployment insurance.

The two, Emma F. Briley, 43, of 205 Stutts Street, and Ernest Reeves, 46, of 1505 South Railroad Street, were tried and convicted by Magistrate Luther D. Moore.

Prayer for judgment against the Briley woman was suspended upon payment of costs. Reeves drew a 30-day sentence suspended upon payment of costs and good behavior for 30 days.

The woman was convicted of a charge of giving false reports regarding her efforts to find work while filing for unemployment insurance. Reeves was convicted on a charge of presenting a forged notice of lay-off and giving false reports regarding the cause of his separation from his last employer.

The convictions will remain open for ten days. When they become final, both defendants will be ruled ineligible for unemployment benefits for one year and will be required to refund to the Employment Security Commission all money drawn since dates of their first false reports.

group, recognizing the plight of cities and towns seeking new sources of revenue, offered the occupational tax as a possible solution, O'Herron said.

Sen. James Pyner of Wake, another member of the study commission, said that of the 77 recommendations by the group, he was "least likely to cry about" rejection of the occupational levy.

Check-Up Shows Four Industrial Inquiries Heard

The Chamber of Commerce handled four industrial inquiries during the month of February, the organization's board of directors was told Monday night.

Manager Willard Kyzer, reporting for Industrial Committee Chairman Leonard Bloxam, told the directors that a request for information had come from a mid-west management consultant firm and a mid-west boat manufacturer. Another inquiry came from an eastern seaboard firm.

The Chamber has been in contact with a manufacturer of men's toiletries which plans to open a plant in the southeast.

The board heard a report from the Transportation Committee on resolutions calling for re-routing of US 13 along NC 11 and the US 264 bypass, and concerning the Morehead port. Both resolutions have received the support of the County Commissioners and the City Council.

Board members voted to refer plans for a local United Fund to the Civic Affairs Committee which will have power to act.

Under the study commission's recommendation, municipalities would be given permission to put a tax up to $10 on each person employed in the city and earning over $2,000 annually; and up to a $10 tax on each motor vehicle registered in the city.

Check-Up Shows Ike Is Improving

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new physical examination at Walter Reed Army Hospital shows President Eisenhower's condition is "improved," the White House doctor says.

But he still has not recovered completely from a cough, a head cold and an ear ailment, and so he "still hopes and expects" to get away to Florida later in the week in an effort to clear up those troubles. The ailments were described as "slight."

That was the gist of reports from Eisenhower's physician Maj. Gen. Howard Mcc. Snyder and his press secretary James C. Hagerty after the President returned from an hour's checkup at Walter Reed yesterday.

It was his second visit to the hospital in less than a month. He went there Feb. 21 for a checkup on a lingering cough, the aftermath of a cold which Snyder said he caught in January.

Last week, with the cough still hanging on, Eisenhower developed a new head cold and inflammation of the eustachian tube in the left ear. The ear trouble made it temporarily difficult for him to hear.

Taxpayers Have Little To Cheer Them These Days

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Many an American taxpayer getting up the cash for the year after year series of world crises that call for billions of dollars to save the pain have turned to the old hymn: "How Long, oh Lord!"

An answer comes today from a citizen's blue ribbon foreign aid advisory committee in its report to President Eisenhower.

For a long time to come. But the seven-man committee headed by Benjamin F. Fairless, former U.S. Steel chairman, urges the government to try to cut its spending both here and abroad.

And it says greater stress should be put on encouraging more normal commercial trade between nations—and especially on increasing private investment overseas as far preferable to U.S. government grants or loans.

This in turn, however, raises two more problems bothering businessmen.

Manufacturers who feel they will be hurt.

And how can you get Americans to invest their money abroad unless they have some assurance they won't lose their funds through the actions of foreign governments?

The Fairless report says the U.S. government should increase its efforts to induce foreign countries to make investments by private U.S. capital attractive.

It suggests further that Washington provide "more equitable taxation of foreign business income."

And it stresses the world's need for "the initiative, the managerial skill, and the technical aptitude which have proven of great worth to the American economy."

"Private capital," the report adds, "does not constitute a drain on the taxpayer."

The report, however, says that meantime the United States must go on spending at the current rate until economies can be made eventually — largely through en-

Grifton Class Will Stage 3-Act Play

By BARBARA TAYLOR, Grifton Glee Club, Grifton School Reporter

Senior Class members have chosen the play they will present in the near future. This year's production will be "Mama's Baby Boy," a three-act comedy by Charles George.

Cast members who have been chosen include Adelaide Reeves, Floyd Smith, Wayne Ervin, Peggy Parker, Jo Anne Hardison, Walter Craft, Betty Lou Jolly, Janice Manning, Shirley Coward, Pete Adams and Joyce Dudley.

Student director Betty Lou Jolly and Barbara Taylor received certificates for turning in high scores in the typing contest held at East Carolina College March 5.

Betty Lou received her award for making the highest score among second-year Grifton students and Barbara received her award for making the highest score among beginning Grifton students. Beginners who represented Grifton included Barbara, Jessie Hardee, Lou Raye Mewborn and Audrey Tripp. Second-year students who entered were Betty Lou, Adelaide Reeves and Tommy Boye.

Various classes in the high school have begun work on projects associated with their particular courses of study. The bookkeeping class is in the midst of a study of income tax and the civics class is making a study of the Town of Grifton. Senior English students are working on their annual source themes.

Junior class members have shown a great deal of progress recently in plans for the Junior-Senior Prom and Banquet. The gala event is scheduled for April 26 with a theme of "Garden of Friendship."

Grifton was host to the Pitt County NCEA meeting last Wednesday night. About 25 persons attended the meeting which included a devotional by Mrs. Don Casey's Home Economics Department and three selections by the College Debates Research Grant

HAVERFORD, Pa. (AP)—Haverford College, a Quaker institution, is involved in a controversy over whether to accept Defense Department grants for nonmilitary research.

Taking sides in the dispute are members of the faculty, the Board of Managers and the students at the 124-year-old school, avowedly the oldest Quaker-operated institution in the country.

Some feel acceptance of the grants would conflict with the Quaker philosophy of pacifism. Others say rejection of the money would prevent the college from making significant contributions to the sciences.

The problem came up when Dr. Robert L. Waller, 37-year-old assistant professor of chemistry, recently asked the Board of Managers for permission to apply to the Defense Department for a $14,000 grant. He wants the money to aid research in organic chemistry.

The board took up Waller's request but has deferred a decision. Since then two similar requests have been made by other faculty members.

Some 250 students, faculty members and board members attended a meeting at the suburban Philadelphia school this week to discuss the question.

No immediate decision is expected.

Gains Repute As 'Indispensable'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Harold Hoeh, within the space of three days, was fired, rehired and gained a reputation as an indispensable man.

Hoeh, who handles replevins and other highly technical matters in the St. Louis county sheriff's office, was fired along with several other deputies the day Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger took office.

His successor quit the next day, explaining the duties were too complicated. No one else wanted the job, the sheriff said, and Hoeh was rehired immediately.

Stassen Departing Today For London Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, onetime "boy" governor of Minnesota and later president of the University of Pennsylvania, long has nurtured presidential ambitions.

He is representing the United States at a meeting of the United Nations Disarmament Commission's subcommittee. There have been persistent reports that he plans to quit his post when that meeting ends.

Stassen denied these reports March 1, but at the same time he declined to comment on other reports that he is thinking about running for governor of Pennsylvania next year.

At 50, Stassen is both a young man politically and a veteran politician. Aside from carrying on his disarmament responsibilities, he is known to be wrestling with a personal decision on his political future.

His friends say he has not yet decided whether to run for Republican nomination as governor of Pennsylvania or stay on as Eisenhower's disarmament aide or in some other Washington capacity.

Hodges Ignores Merit Pay Raises For N.C. Employees

By LYNN NISBET, The Reflector Bureau

RALEIGH — Governor Hodges has come out in full support of a plan proposed by the Personnel Department and approved by the State Personnel Council which completely ignores individual merit pay increases for State employees other than school teachers. It also throws out the across the board plan for giving the same percentage raise to every worker, but adopts a graduated scale of higher percentage raise for low paid employees, stepping down the percentage as the dollars go up.

The Personnel Department worked out three tables based on 6.6 per cent total raise, 9.9 per cent and 13.2 per cent. Governor Hodges and other leaders have indicated support of the 9.9 per cent list, which will cost the State $9,390,780, or about $82,000 less than a straight all the way across the board 10 per cent increase.

The increases for individual workers will range from 13.4 per cent for those now making less than $1920 a year, down to 7.3 per cent for those making between $9,000 and $10,427.

Of the 28,624 persons on State payrolls last September, more than two-thirds or 19,655, drew less than $3,588 a year. Under the proposed plan all of these workers will receive more than 10 per cent increase.

Governor Hodges said at this latest news conference that the "State workers, like all other people, can spend dollars, but they cannot spend percentages." He felt that those in the lower brackets perhaps needed the increases to meet the higher living costs more than did some of the better paid employees.

The average pay increase for all employees earning less than $1,919 a year would be $161 under the flat 10 per cent schedule, $216 under the personnel plan.

Those earning between $1,920 and $2,459, would get $252 more instead of $218.

The 144 employees earning more than $10,428 will receive an average raise of $828 under the personnel plan instead of $1,050 on a straight 10 per cent raise.

Crocodile Hunt On Nile Is Not For The Faint-Hearted

By E. A. JONES
KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—The huge swamps of central Uganda, where the Nile meanders through jungles of 10-foot papyrus and huge beds of floating weed, are a paradise for crocodile hunters.

Africans in the area do a flourishing trade in crocodile skins. Last year about 3,500 skins ended up as shoes and handbags in fashionable stores in America and Europe.

There are several methods of crocodile hunting. Shooting is no good, as a dead crocodile sinks like a stone and by time it floats again the skin is ruined.

One method is to fish with a meat hook on a wire hawser. The hook is inserted in an inflated pig's bladder, which is set adrift. The croc snaps at the appetizing looking object and gets a mouthful of air and a meat hook in its gullet.

More exciting and spectacular is harpooning crocodiles from a canoe by torchlight at night. I've sampled it.

Preparations were simple. Harpoon points were sharpened and fitted with loose wooden shafts to float free when the barb had gone home. A length of wire with a float at the end was attached to the harpoon head. Powerful flash-lamps and a couple of meat choppers completed the hunting kit.

A shock awaited us at the landing place, where our African hunters produced their canoes. Heavy, hollowed out tree trunks, the ancient dugouts rose only about four inches above the water and threatened to roll under at the slightest movement. Water trickled and splurged through cracks in the sides.

The water was dark and smelly, and a pallid marsh-glow shined where opened channels wandered through acres of weed. Despite severe misgivings, we climbed aboard and wobbled away from the bank.

Sebi, my harpooner, swept his torch over the swamp. Floating weeds gleamed silver-green in its beam. Nameless swirls and splashes rippled the surface as the light passed.

The beam of light steadied when twin red lights glowed and flickered from a black mess of papyrus roots.

"Gonya," breathed Sebi. He kept the torch trained on the red gleam of the crocodile's eyes as the paddler swung the canoe and sent it gliding forward.

As we crept nearer the horny black ridge of the crocodile's spine shone wetly above the surface. Its fat body showed greenish-gray in the halo of light which spread under the water. I leaned out for a better view.

Crocodile Retreats
The red lights flickered off, the water swirled softly and there was a faint rustle among the papyrus stalks.

Sebi cursed in Arabic. "When you leaned out the gonya saw there was something big behind the torch and took fright," he explained.

For hours the dugout slid quietly through the swamps. Twice more crocodiles' eyes glowed red in the torch beam, but each time they swirled beneath the surface before we could get within striking distance. One of the other canoes was luckier. It ran into a pack of young crocodiles and bagged two.

"Only small crocodiles left now," said Sebi sadly as we headed for home. "They frightened of light. Too bad big one didn't stay to fight, then—zup!—we get him."

His confidence in his crazy craft was reassuring, but it still looked like a floating coffin to me. I couldn't help feeling that if we had tangled with a big croc this never would have been written.

'Least Essential' Spending To Be Senate Demo Target

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today Senate Democrats will make "least essential" spending their prime target in a drive for "substantial" cuts in President Eisenhower's $71,800,000,000 budget.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, said forthcoming recommendations of Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) of the Senate-House Committee on Nonessential Federal Expenditures will be made the basis for a Democratic economy campaign.

Johnson disclosed this plan after the House voted 219-178 last night to ask Eisenhower to point out where "substantial reductions" could be made in his record peacetime budget.

Countering this, the Conference of All Republican Senators unanimously adopted at about the same time a resolution saying they were "in accord with the President's recommendation that Congress reduce the budget wherever, possible."

As their House colleagues had contended in lining up almost solidly against the House-passed resolution, the GOP senators said that the appropriation of funds for federal government activities is the constitutional responsibility of Congress.

Eisenhower has said that it is Congress' duty to cut his budget if it can, and he is expected to ignore yesterday's House action, which has no force of law.

The House resolution, supported by 209 Democrats and 10 Republicans, said cuts must be made "in the public interest." It requested Eisenhower to "indicate the places and amounts in his budget where he thinks reductions may best be made."

Against the measure were 3 Democrats and 175 Republicans. Some of the latter accused the Democrats of "back passing."

Final passage came after 160-142 rejection of a Republican substitute by Rep. Gubser of California. He proposed commending Eisenhower and Budget Director Brundage for their request to government agencies to review their budgets and report where savings could be made.

Democrats argued the President has the responsibility to effect economies and Republicans said the Democrats were ducking their responsibilities.

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts said—in obvious reference to Secretary Humphrey's call for economies—that "this is the first time in the history of this country that Cabinet officers have repudiated the President of the United States."

Rep. Arends (R-III) said House members were "indulging ourselves in a great big dose of politics." Rep. Halleck (R-Ind.) said the resolution was "a kind of cry-baby act."

It May Be Time For A Fresh Look At Poland

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—It may be time for Secretary of State Dulles to take a new look at the Polish Communist government. Months ago in a classified letter never made public he told Congress Poland now is not Soviet-dominated.

In last October's upheaval in Poland the Stalinists in control of the government were thrown out and Wladyslaw Gomulka, a Communist jailed for years as a "Titoist" by Stalin, was made boss of the Communist party.

Since then his government has shown signs—although there have been reasons for skepticism—of being independent of Moscow. And several weeks ago it sent a delegation to Washington to ask for American economic help.

Dulles' letter was sent to the House Foreign Affairs Committee weeks before the delegation arrived. Between that time and now most of his attention has been concentrated on the Middle East and getting the Israelis out of Egypt.

But on March 10 the New York Times carried a story from Warsaw which said almost all the leaders of the Stalinist faction which fought Gomulka's return to power have now been reinstated in government jobs.

As a result, the story said, there is a feeling of bewilderment in Poland over the Polish Communist tactics. And students have posted signs asking: "Are these changes of jobs or of policy?"

There can be no doubt of the desire among Poles—90 per cent of whom are Roman Catholic—for independence from Moscow.

What isn't known is this: Was the party shift-around in October a real attempt at independence by the Polish Reds themselves or an effort to quiet the wide unrest by putting on a different face?

There can be no doubt that some of the former harsh Communist controls have been relaxed under Gomulka.

But Russian troops are still in Poland. Under a treaty with Russia, they are forbidden to move around without the Polish government's permission, but this agreement could be broken instantly if the Polish people tried to throw out the Communists altogether.

And Gomulka on Jan. 14 said Poland must veer back toward Moscow's orbit. Poland recently voted in the United Nations for a resolution condemning the United States for alleged subversive activities in Iron Curtain countries and Russia.

What does it all add up to? It adds up to these questions: Has Poland shaken off Soviet control? If so, will this last or will the pro-Russian Poles take power again?

The State Department isn't saying much. Perhaps Gomulka, with Russia breathing down his neck, has to take it easy in trying. If that's what he's doing, to lead his people further away from Moscow. He may be under great pressures.

If this is a sincere attempt at a breakaway, it would be to this country's advantage to encourage it by economic help, just as the United States' aid to Yugoslavia's Tito helped him stay independent of Moscow.

Before Congress votes any help the Eisenhower administration is going to have to say openly, one way or the other, whether it thinks Poland is now free of Soviet control.

Hasn't Given Up In Hatching Egg

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—That first batch of eggs was a fizzle but L. R. J. Adams hasn't slackened his effort to make history down around the South Pole.

Adams, a dentist with the Navy detachment in the antarctic, said his trouble was due to the "humidity factor" on his makeshift incubator. That's been fixed.

In about eight days, the lieutenant from Memphis expects the second batch to turn up at least one chick—the first ever born at Little America. Adams is a member of the U.S. expedition that is participating in the International Geophysical Year.

This late report on one of the expedition's lesser activities was given last night by Bob Grice of Hubbard, Tex., in a radio chat from the South Polar regions with the Commercial Appeal. A ham radio operator was the intermediary.

"With any luck at all we ought to have a baby chicken here at Little America," said Grice. "We started this as a joke and then got into it over our heads. By George, we're determined about it."

"Lt. Adams is directing but he has some commissioners on the sidelines giving help and advice."

The last batch of eggs to hit the incubator, two dozen, came off the icebreaker North Wind, which brought them from New Zealand.

The new eggs haven't led so hard a life as the first batch, which were flown over and parachuted in a supply drop, passing through 31-below cold during the journey.

It's the lieutenant's first try at chicken hatching.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures
There is a growing awareness among prospective home owners of the necessity of a place for the home workshop.
Of the millions of home workshops in existence, few were planned that way. Most of the time, a workshop — whether it be in the basement, the attic, a garage or a spare room — is a gradual thing. You buy a hammer and a screwdriver and a pair of pliers and a few other essential hand tools for minor repair work around the house. Then, some time later, you decide you want a portable electric drill and some of its accessories. Before you know it, you find yourself with a workshop of sorts.

Planning Pays
You wish your workshop has grown up with you had done a little planning ahead of time. You discover you have tools which you seldom, if ever, use . . . and you learn, one way or another, that there are some tools you need but do not have. You discover that things are getting a bit crowded because you failed to allow room for expansion. You are forced to string an extension cord in some awkward arrangement because there is no handy outlet. And you run into other little annoyances which do not exactly prevent you from fixing and making things, but which do make your job more difficult.

A lot of this can be avoided with a little planning at the start. When you select a place to work, pick one that will allow for expansion — even if, at the time, you do not think you will get that serious about doing things yourself. Consider such matters as light, ventilation, heat, the availability of electrical outlets and space for wood and other materials you may be using.

Avoid the Makeshift
Buy or make a workbench that will be serviceable over the years, not one that is a makeshift affair that you'll never get around to changing. Give some thought to the kind and quality of the tools you buy. Decide that each new purchase will become part of a workshop that will last many years. In that way, you will not make the common mistake of buying the cheapest tools available — and being forced to replace them when you become a more serious craftsman.

Keep in mind the noise factor when selecting a place for the workshop. If you are the type of person who sometimes will be working in the shop late at night, you want to be sure you will not disturb members of your household who retire early. There are certain steps you can take later on to prevent some of the noise from leaving the workshop, but generally speaking, the best safeguard is the proper location for the shop in the first place. You're bound to get into the power tool field sooner or later, since you'll want to do your work faster and without so much effort. It's almost inevitable that you'll buy a portable electric drill. But from that point on use care in the selection of power tools, unless you have so much money you don't care how you spend it. You should select each tool on the basis of the type of work you expect to do most of the time. A lathe is useless if you aren't going to do much wood-turning. A circular saw is fine for straight-cutting and bevel jobs. A bandsaw and a jigsaw handle curves, the former doing its best work in the heavy-duty line, the latter in the intricate-design category. Or you may want to consider one of the combination power tools, especially where space is at a premium. The important thing is to choose a machine that will perform the kind of work YOU want it to perform . . . not the kind your neighbor has.

We're certain that most persons will continue to let their workshops grow without direction, figuring they will meet their needs as the occasion demands. But in the long run, those persons will spend more money to equip their shops than the planner . . . and with less satisfactory results.

WRONG CABIN
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A traveling couple here reported to a tourist court manager that they had been robbed of $1,500 and their baggage. The manager called police. The police found their possessions in their cabin—they had forgotten the number and thought they were next door.

The first long-distance pipe line in the United States was a two-inch line extending five and one-half miles from Newton to Titusville, Pa. It was built in 1872.

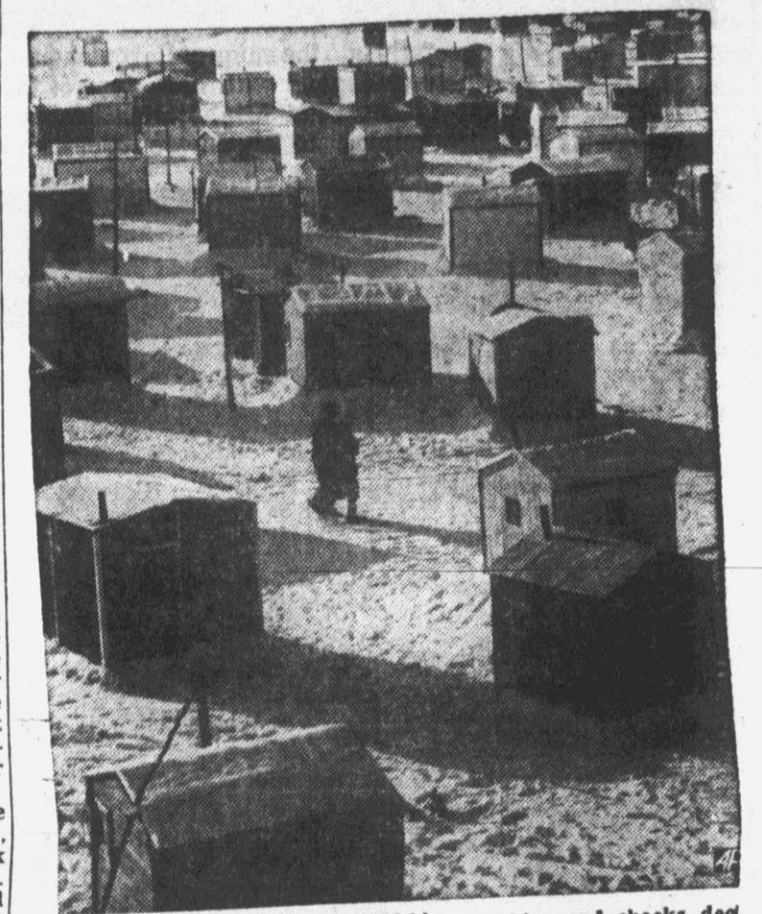

Decries Attacks

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — An attempt is under way "to destroy our fine training system," Brig. Gen. Wallace M. Greene, head of the Marine Corps recruit training command at Parris Island, S.C. said here last night. Greene said a similarity exists between the way Communist newspapers and the U. S. press "play up" happenings at the base.

"Since April 8, we get a tremendous flare-up in the press no matter what happens," Greene said. "We are always going to have trouble, but actually we only have one incident for every 4,000 men processed." It was on April 8, last year, that S. Sgt. Matthew McKeen marched a platoon of men into a creek at Parris Island. Six drowned. Greene was the principal speaker at an American Legion meeting.

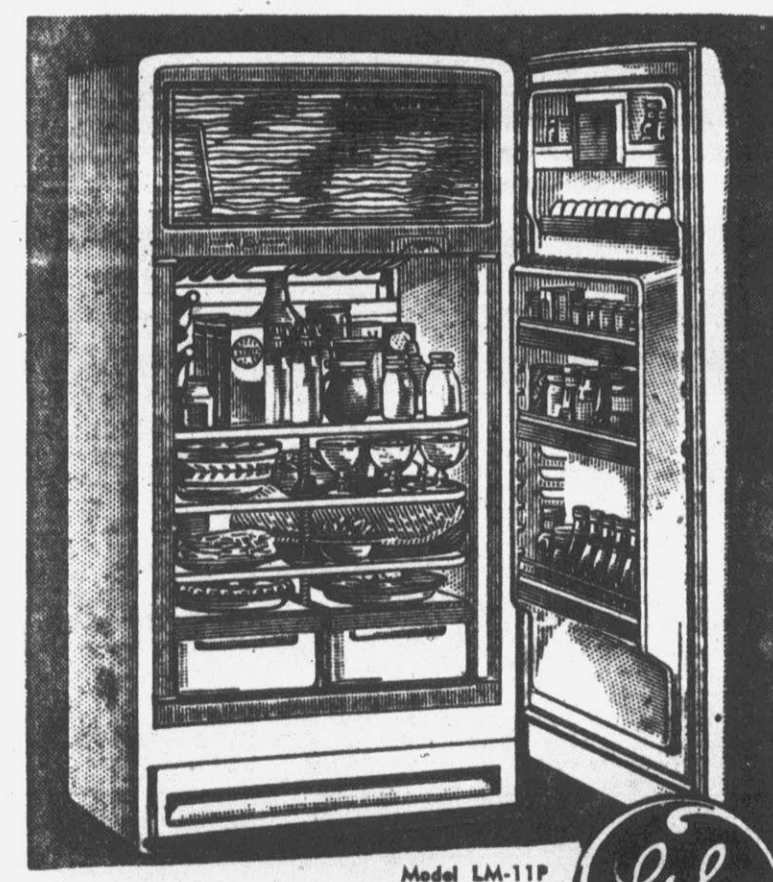

As for American youth today, the general said "These boys can do anything you ever did—some do it better." He said if there is another war, "these boys are going to win it."

SHARP EYE
INOLA, Okla. (AP) — When Don Vaught went fox hunting, he did it the hard way. Using a bow and arrow, he brought down a male fox at 40 feet.

TEMPORARY TOWN — Cabins and shacks dot the frozen surface of Canada's Ste. Anne river near Ste. Anne de la Paroisse as townfolk move closer to annual run of tommycod.

Buried City Brought To Light

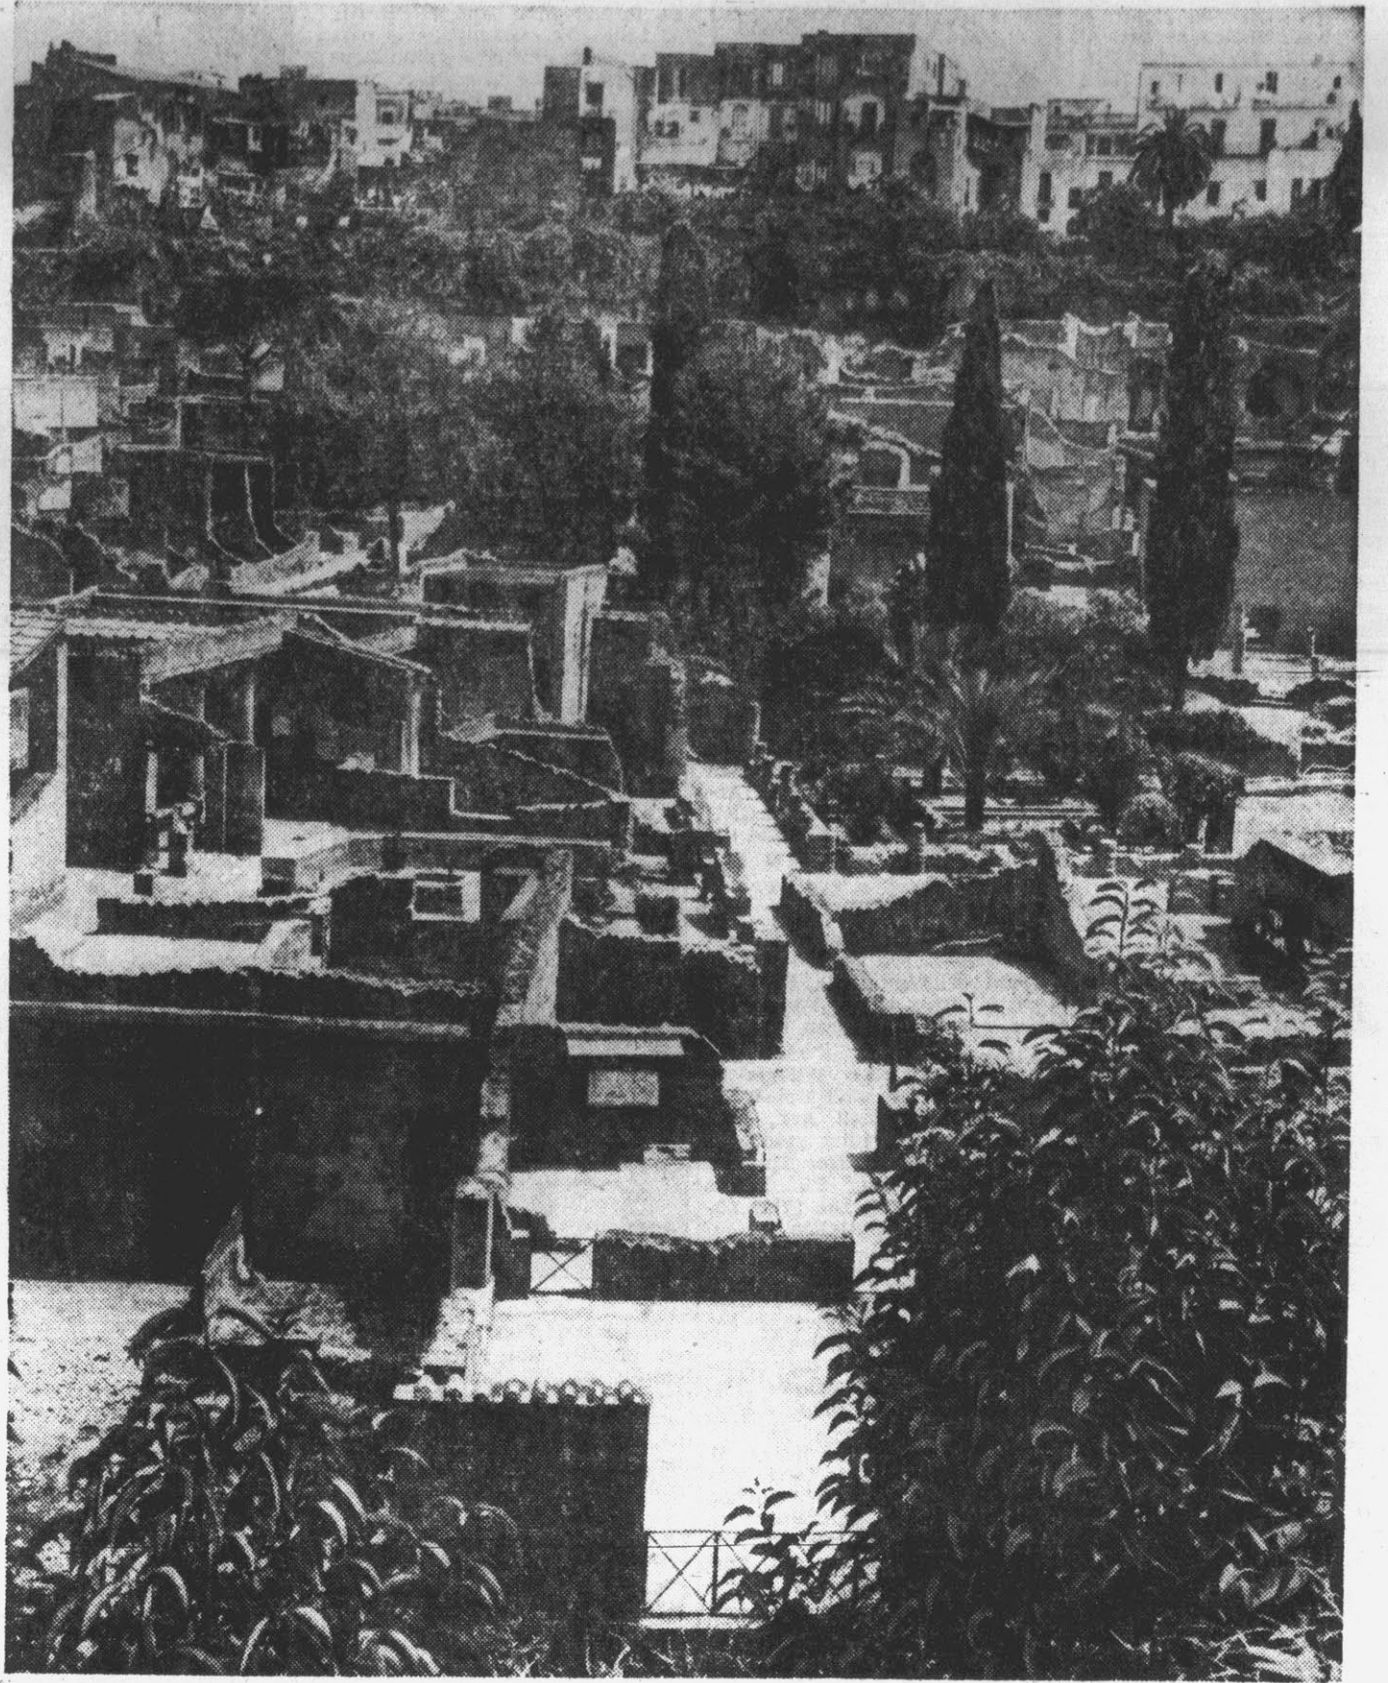

Workmen dig carefully into the ruins of Herculaneum, hoping to find new treasures with each turn of the spade. At right is Dr. Olga Elia, Italian archaeologist, who is helping to supervise operation.

The Italian peninsula is a veritable treasure house of buried wonders—villas and cities of the early Roman empire that time has trampled in the dust. Nature's violence, like the great eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D., helped the process of burial. But new excavations are uncovering more and more of the country's ancient treasures lying deep under its layers of lava, debris and ash.

One of the latest projects in excavation is being carried on, after a lapse of many years, at the long buried city of Herculaneum, some six miles from Naples. Herculaneum, like Pompeii, its "sister city," was destroyed by Mt. Vesuvius. Like Pompeii, too, Herculaneum was a bustling, prosperous Roman city. Archaeologists dug through the hardened ashes many hundreds of years later. They found priceless works of art and manuscripts, as well as the tools of daily living. The new diggings, which are being carried out under the auspices of the Italian government, promise to reveal more.

Excavations at Herculaneum present a tough problem. In some places the city is covered to a depth of 50 feet. Notwithstanding, the excavators hope to reach the Forum, the arena, and the bulk of the public buildings which made Herculaneum the great city it was.

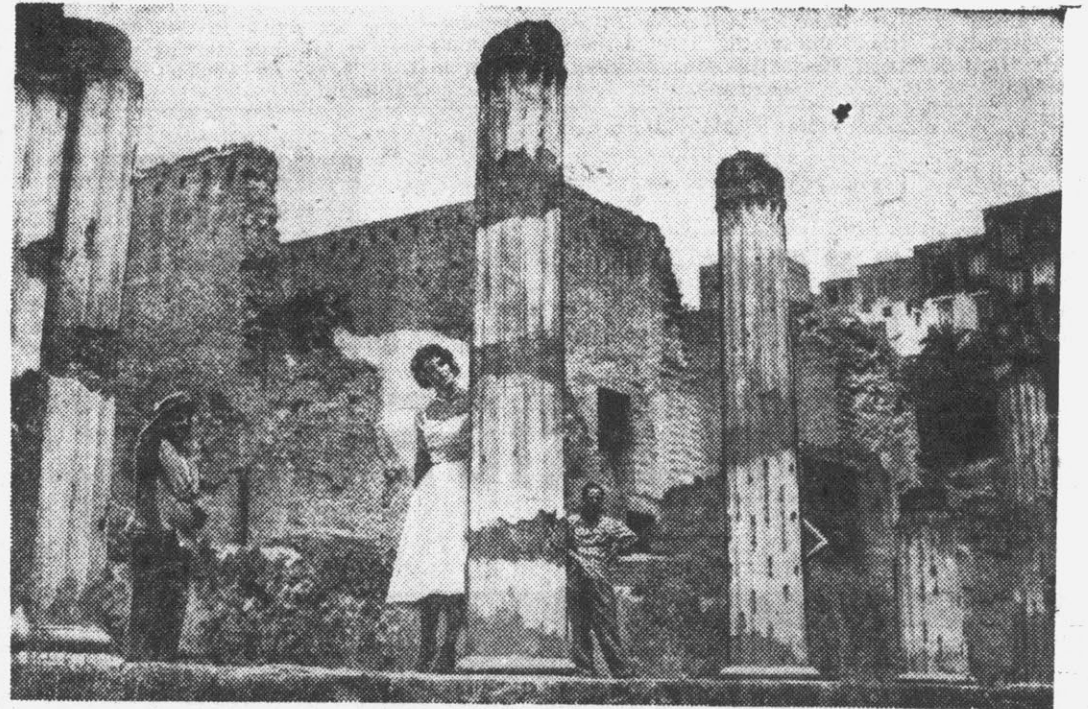

The new excavations, and some of Herculaneum's uncovered glories, are pictured here.

View of Herculaneum looking east, with ruins of early Roman villas in foreground and center. They belonged to the wealthy and were elaborate in design. On cliff in far back are modern structures that will be torn down to allow further excavations.

Mosaic of colored marble tiles, depicting hunting scene, has been partially restored. People of Herculaneum were very fond of hunting and liked to decorate their rooms with scenes of the sport.

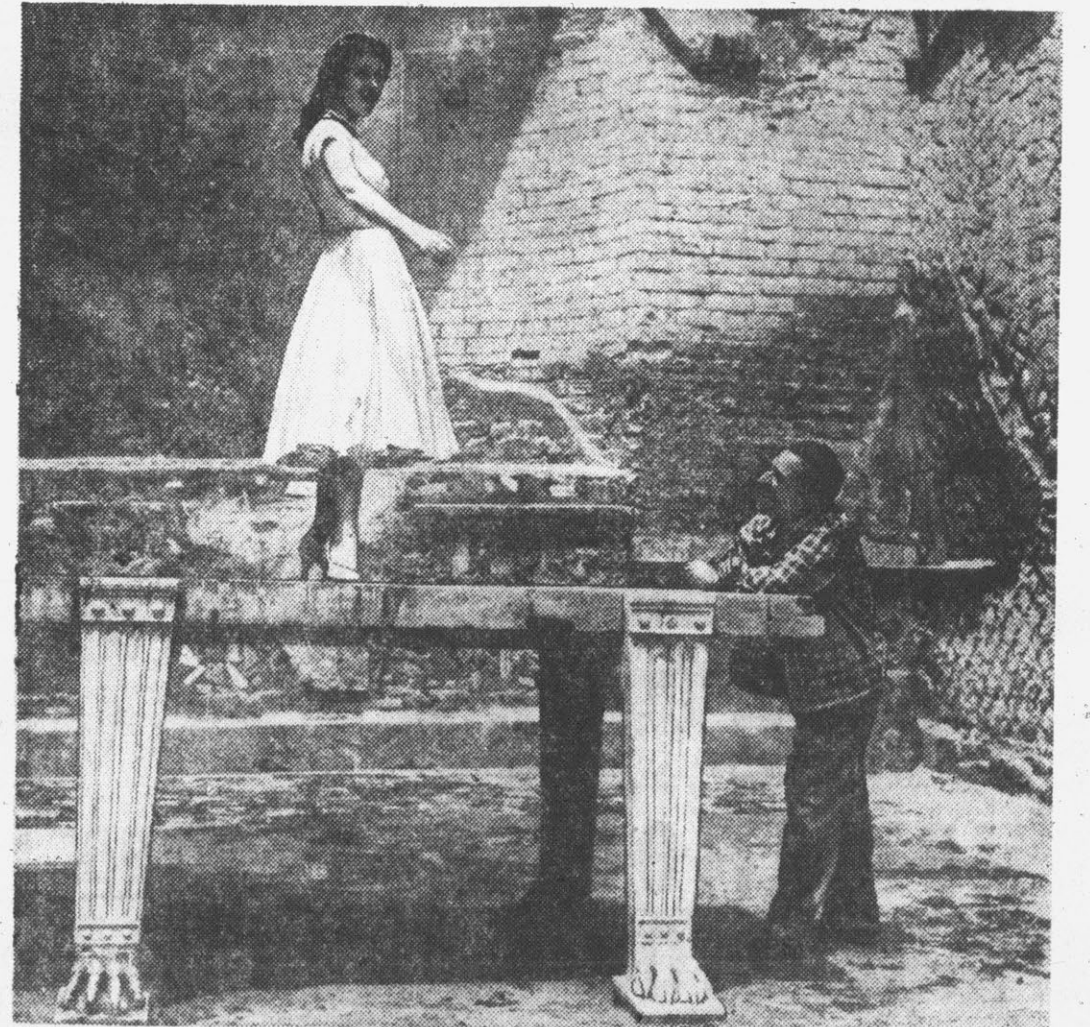

Entrance to Herculaneum's "palestra," or gymnasium area, was flanked by these graceful marble columns of Greek inspiration.

Two-story dwelling was occupied by several families in ancient Herculaneum. It was constructed of brick, wood and stucco.

Typical fountain basin of white marble which were usually found in the gardens of the better class villas of Herculaneum.

Dining room in villa of wealthy Herculaneum citizen. Solid marble dining table on which girl is standing was a recent find.

Many May Lose Old Age Benefits

Many Pitt County residents who are eligible for Social Security old-age insurance will lose some of their benefits unless they file claims before April 1, Pitt County Social Security Caseworker W. K. Whitchard said today.

People who are affected by the ruling, which prohibits retroactive payments for more than a one-year period, are farm people whose crops sold for as much as $800 in 1955 and $600 in 1956, whether there was a net profit or not. If they file claims before April 1, they may receive Social Security old-age insurance beginning April 1, 1956. If they do not file by April 1, they will lose a month's payment for every month they delay filing.

Whitchard said there are more than 6,000 people in Pitt County who are now over 65 years of age. He said 90 per cent of them should be receiving benefits under the Social Security law, but there are not more than 1,000 who have actually filed claims. He added, however, that claims thus far will result in more than $200,000 additional income to the claimants this year.

Whitchard has asked that all persons who are possibly eligible for the benefits to contact him at his office in the Welfare Department's quarters in the Old Hospital next Monday morning.

Legislative Pages Are Eager Group Potential Lawmakers

By JEAN REILLY.

The Reflector Bureau

RALEIGH — Stripped of the necessity for dignity and sedateness, General Assembly pages, mostly smaller images of the men they serve, are an eager group of potential lawmakers ready to comment on serious subjects ranging from Presley to parental discipline and girls to "drag strips."

Some are the third generation to serve the General Assembly like Dave Senter of Fuquay Springs and Edward Burt III of Biscoe both of whom had grandfathers serving as representatives.

Among those who compose a father and son team are Walter Jones, son of Representative Walter Jones of Pitt; Ed Wilson, son of Representative Edward H. Wilson of Caswell; and Sam White-hurst, son of Representative Sam L. Whitehurst of Craven. Bill McLaughlin, a Senate page from Statesville, is the son of a former representative.

Ages range from 10-years-old in the House to 17 in the Senate, and duties include transporting bills from the Attorney General's office to the Senate, running errands to the various government buildings, and fixing bill books.

Raleigh is the leading home town of most of the pages, contributing ten of the 28 boys. From Raleigh are Charles Clement, Frank Cella, Bobby Foxworth, Don Carmichael, Emily Lloyd, Robert McDaniel, Martin Greenwood, Hughes Pope, Bill Bowen, and Elizabeth (Sis) Strong.

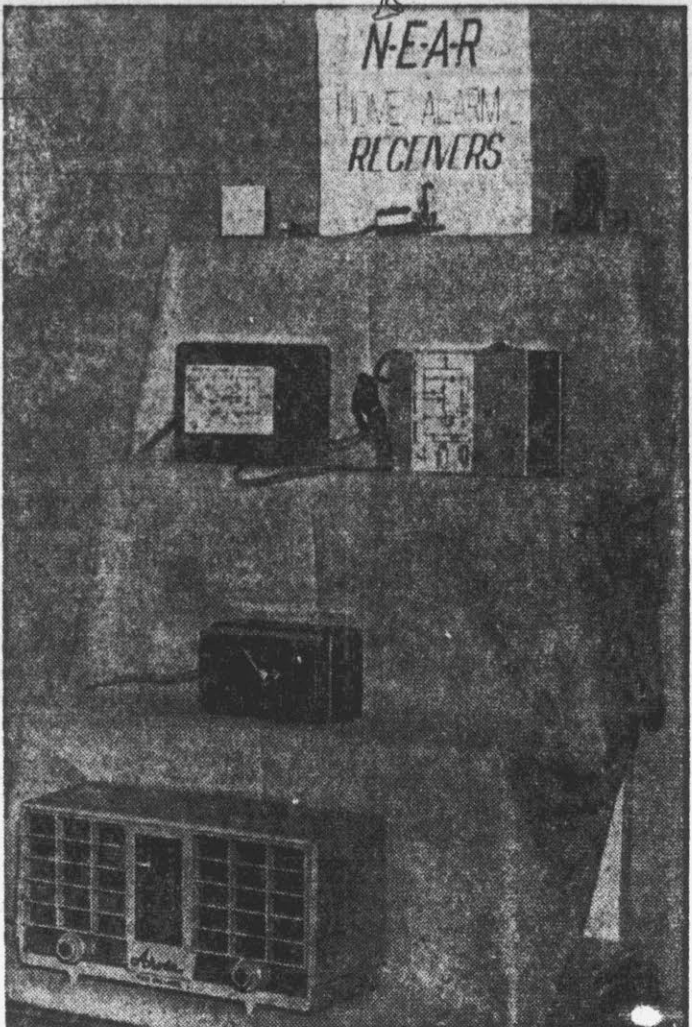

Martin Lancasier and Bill Kennedy, both hall from Goldsboro, and Joe Collier's home is Bayboro.

Pages represented from other cities include Jackie Hooks of

Blind Man Helps Ground Observer Post

BLIND OBSERVER George H. Burton, 61, supervisor of the Ground Observer Corps post at Columbiana, Ohio, demonstrates how he can detect airplanes by ear 15 to 30 seconds before they can be seen by a companion. Reports on low-flying aircraft from 400,000 sky watchers fill in "blind spots" in the nation's radar net and provide sufficient warning to alert military and civil defense forces and the populace to danger of attacking planes. (Canton, O., Air Force Filter Center)

HOME ALARM which could be plugged into an ordinary electric socket to sound a buzzer or bell and light signal of approaching air attack, tornado or other natural disaster is shown in three small units (top level) and larger versions (second level). Also shown are clock and radio which could be activated by the National Emergency Alarm Repeater (NEAR). These alarms are presently being developed under contract to the Federal Civil Defense Administration. NEAR would be triggered by a signal over the nation's power lines to provide an alarm inside homes, where residents might be asleep or otherwise not hear present sirens. Civil defense Conelrad radio would then provide survival details.

Film Tells Story Of Korean Bible

A motion picture film, in color, which tells a story of the Bible in Korea, will be shown for the Men's meeting at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church Thursday evening at 7:30.

The major part of the film was taken in Korea and includes war scenes supplied by the Signal Corps. Korean music used on the sound track is played on authentic Korean instruments. The film was produced by the American Bible Society.

The picture deals with the drama of Rev. Young Bin Im, General Secretary of the Korean Bible Society and the near-miraculous preservation of a Korean Bible manuscript during the strife between the Communist North Korea and the Republic of South Korea.

The troop is expected to resume regular weekly meetings in the near future.

4,000 Pounds Of Used Clothing

A Church World Service truck from New Windsor, Maryland, picked up approximately 4,000 pounds of clothing in Greenville yesterday for Hungarian Relief.

The clothing was donated by persons from Greenville, Morehead City, New Bern, Ayden, Washington, Edenton, Kinston and Roxboro and other towns in Eastern Carolina. It was assembled here under direction of the Council of Christian Women and the Greenville Ministerial Association, Mrs. Don H. Conley, chairman of the Clothing Project, stated.

Eighth Street Christian Church in Greenville is the center of the area for collecting used clothing in Eastern Carolina.

Another project for foreign relief is the collecting of women's used nylon hose under the chairmanship of Mrs. E. E. Rawl Sr. The hose is sent to Japan, where the women unravel the Nylon thread to make other garments.

Committee Named To Certify Academy Awards Contest In Area

It was announced this morning that a committee has been appointed by the managers of the Pitt and Meadowbrook theatres to certify winners of the Academy Awards Sweepstakes contest currently being conducted in Greenville and surrounding areas.

Named to this committee were Dr. J. D. Messick of East Carolina College, Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association and Willard T. Kyzzer of the local Chamber of Commerce. The committee will certify results and judge contestants' essays on why they enjoy theatre, a question included on the sweepstakes entry blank to be considered in case a tie might occur.

The managers of the local theatres state, "This is the only fair way to judge contestants in case there are ties among the entries."

According to reports, the response to the contest, that closes March 26, has been excellent. Many valuable prizes are being given by Greenville merchants and will be awarded to the winner or winners.

Free ballots are available at both "going out" to a motion picture theatre, a question included on the

NEW PROPOSALS

WILSON—Connor Vick, at a meeting of the City Board of Education Monday night, proposed that the $71,000 a year teacher supplement in Wilson be taken out of the hands of the city superintendent and administered by a supplement committee.

Two proposals were offered by Vick. One on teacher supplement and another which would set up a $2,000 fund which would be used to pay teachers who are sick.

GUEST OF HONOR

WILMINGTON—It has been announced that Dale Robertson, television and motion picture actor, will be a guest of honor at the 10th annual Azalea Festival March 28-31.

A native of Oklahoma City, Robertson will star in the new NBC television series "Tales of Wells Fargo" scheduled to commence in the near future. He has appeared in several movies in recent years.

CITY MANAGER RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, N. C.—J. A. Richards resigned his position as Washington City Manager at 8:30 a.m. yesterday to accept a similar position at Winter Park, Fla.

The announcement came at a special meeting of the council, and following a unanimous vote to accept his resignation with regrets, the council voted to take immediate action to fill the vacancy. Richards' resignation will become effective April 15, but the seat will be open on April 2.

HEROIC PATROLMAN

GOLDSBORO—The heroic efforts of State Highway Patrolman C. E. Greenhill are credited with saving the life of Johnny Edward Fate, 48, Goldsboro truck driver, after his truck plunged into the swollen Neuse River at Tolar Bridge about five miles west of Goldsboro yesterday morning.

Spectators said Greenhill shed his outer garments, jumped into the river and pulled Fate ashore after he was spotted clinging to a tree about 100 yards downstream. The near-drowned man was rushed to a Goldsboro hospital and treated for shock, cuts on the face and neck and possible chest injuries.

Fate was quoted by his doctor as saying that his senses came off as he approached the bridge and he was unable to see.

AND TWO MAKES 19

WILSON—Thieves struck twice last night, one in the city and once in the county. Their activity brought to 19 the total number of break-ins reported in Wilson and Wilson county in slightly more than two weeks.

The Silver Lake Grill was entered sometime after midnight, according to the proprietor. The machines, including a juke box and two game devices, were ripped open and emptied of their monetary contents. Later in the night, Jake Thompson's service station on West Nash street was broken into but the thieves were frightened away, police said, before they had a chance to bag any loot.

COUNTY SELECTED

WILLIAMSTON — Preliminary plans were advanced at a special meeting Monday afternoon for a "Driver Vision Screening Survey" in Martin County, it was announced by Mrs. Joe R. Winslow, Health and Safety Chairman for the home demonstration clubs in North Carolina.

Co-sponsored by the American Optometric Association Auxiliary and the National Home Demonstration Council, the project has three purposes, according to Dr. Henry D. Day, Jr., of Winston-Salem. The survey is: (1) To obtain information and statistics about vision as it relates to highway safety; (2) To determine the percentage of screened drivers meeting the standard minimum visual requirements for licensing; and (3) To reduce highway accidents by informing the public, of the driver aware of visual deficiencies to enable him, or her, to drive safely within his visual limits.

X-Ray Unit Here For Two Days

An X-ray mobile, affording the people of Pitt County and Greenville an opportunity of obtaining a chest X-ray without charge, will be located on Fifth Street at Five Points on Thursday and Friday, March 14 and 15.

It was announced that the mobile will be open from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. both days.

Health officials stated this morning that residents of this area should take advantage of the X-ray mobile's visit since it is a well known fact that early detection of certain lung diseases improves the possibility of the victim's recovery.

Coins Taken In Night Robbery

According to police reports, the Jenkins Cafe on Albemarle Avenue was broken into sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

The robber or robbers reportedly entered the establishment, presently under temporary padlock, by breaking a ventilator glass in the back. A juke box was forced open and an undisclosed amount of money was missing.

An investigation is being conducted by local police.
