Pat Nixon Rates Fashion Spot

FASHION SENSE: Pat Nixon, wife of the vice president, displays a new spring suit, one of many articles in her wardrobe that have established her as one of Washington's best-dressed women.

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — A second look is due the second lady of the land. Pretty Pat Nixon, wife of the vice president, already has won admiration as a model homemaker, wife and mother. Now she's being acclaimed for her unerring fashion sense as well as her poise, stamina and charm.

Housekeeping comes naturally for some women as does the art of being an understanding and helpful spouse or an understanding and wise mother. Some are born clothes horses and endowed with all the attributes to stand them in good stead in public life. Few women encompass all these desirable virtues, Pat does.

Mrs. Nixon's boundless energy, equilibrium and unflinching good humor have been demonstrated over the past year and a half with the ever-widening scope of her husband's office. In addition to her own heavy schedule, she began taking some of the load off Mamie Eisenhower shortly after the President's heart attack, filling in for her at luncheons and teas. With the vice president she has presided over numerous important official functions.

Since 1952, when her husband was elected to be second top man in the government, she has traveled with him to 32 countries — to the Far East in 1953, to Latin America in 1955 — as well as toting up more than 15,000 air miles during the '56 political campaign.

Through all this she has managed to keep a smoothly-run household and a close and happy relationship with her daughters, Patricia, 10 and Julie, 8. What's more, she does laundry, cooking, mending and some of the sewing for the children. She used to make some of her own clothes and practiced economy to such extent she was wearing her "last year's" cloth coat among the minks of other official wives long after her husband became vice president.

Always dressing with taste and a feeling for what was right for her slender, patrician type, Pat Nixon has now added a new chic to her appearance, as well as some "Republican prosperity" furs. Her husband gave her a mink wrap for Christmas. She wears an ermine stole with her new wardrobe of evening clothes.

Replacing the cloth coat for daytime is a simply-fashioned coat of Afghan lamb pelts, given to her by the Queen of Afghanistan.

Some fashion experts already are predicting Pat Nixon will be on next year's list of best-dressed women. As one local authority put it, Pat Nixon knows the "first, and hardest, principle of best-dressing her type."

How Patterns Are Made

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
IN TODAY'S high cost of living, one of your best bargains is a modern dress pattern.

Have you ever wondered how a pattern is made, how long it takes, how many people are involved? Well, here's the low-down, from local sewing center experts:

It takes 50 people working steadily for three months to produce a new pattern for the home seamstress. Consider that an average pattern catalog contains more than 1,100 patterns and transfers, and that 30 or 40 new designs are added to this catalog each month, and you may get some idea of the magnitude of the operation.

Behind the Scenes
Let's take a look behind the scenes at one of the largest and oldest pattern companies. Inspiration usually begins with the Paris showings. Then a designer begins the pattern with a fashion figure sketch. She may sketch as many as 10 slightly different designs for each one that finally is put into the line.

After she has made her sketches, the designer makes up a miniature pattern in muslin, fitting it on a mannikin less than three feet high—half the size of a regular pattern mannikin. After changes are made on the half-size garment a full-size muslin copy is made. Each pattern piece is then checked against a pattern "staple," which is one of a series of heavily glazed paper pattern pieces representing every pattern part, to insure absolute accuracy.

Muslin Pattern
The muslin then is made up in every version shown on the pattern envelope—with short sleeves, long sleeves, full skirt, slender skirt. Then a live model tries on the muslin garment to make sure it has ease and practicality in movement. After adjustments are made, the muslin receives an okay from the designer.

Now the fabric expert comes into the picture, to decide on suitable fabrics to recommend for this design. The pattern then is made up in the chosen fabrics.

Next artists sketch the dress as it will appear in color on the pattern envelope and in the catalog, making sketches perfect in scale and color, including the actual trimmings used on the "pilot" dress.

The finished sketches and the muslin model now go to the diagram department, where the dress is cut in half. The right half is ripped apart and the notches and construction indications are put on the right half of the muslin. The left half remains whole for comparison. The right half is pressed flat and an exact duplicate of each piece is made on heavy paper, which becomes the master pattern. A different master pattern is made in each size, then each is traced, to include cutting lines, margins, seamlines, darts, inch-ruled for alterations, arrows to indicate the straight of the goods and other construction details.

Sewing Guide
The master pattern also is used as a guide for the complicated "cut and sew guide" that appears in every pattern envelope, as well as for yardage requirements printed on the envelope. The pattern is laid out on fabrics of varying widths, and as each layout is completed it is sketched. The same is true for trimmings, interlinings and such. After the "cut and sew guides" are finished, a sewing expert writes instructions which are printed in English, French and Spanish.

Meanwhile tracings from the master pattern go off to the printing plant. There zinc plates are

Lenten Reading On Display At Local Library

Of particular interest to the thoughtful reader are the books for Lenten reading now on display in the Sheppard Memorial Library. Printed copies of both the Protestant and Roman Catholic lists are available.

Among the volumes selected to fit every taste and need are:

AND WALK IN LOVE, by Henrietta Buckmaster. A distinguished novel on the life of St. Paul. Its purpose is reverent: "To re-visualize in some measure the simple and overwhelming facts of early Christianity." Pair it with Sholem Asch's The Apostle.

CRISIS IN COMMUNICATION, by Malcolm Boyd. Apt reading for a season of self-examination in this fresh, fascinating "Christian Examination of the Mass Media." What do the popular arts, especially TV and movies, have to say about values? What of religion in these media?

THE DEAD SEA SCROLLS AND THE ORIGINALITY OF CHRIST, by Geoffrey Graystone. The briefest, clearest, and generally best book I have yet seen to introduce the layman to the facts and meanings of these importance joys.

JOY IN BELIEVING, by Henry Sloane Coffin. A collection of brief, meditative and devotional writings and prayers of the late Dr. Coffin. Never published before, these materials may well comprise one of his warmest and best-loved books.

MAN AT WORK IN GOD'S WORLD, edited by George E. De Mille. A Christian theology of work is explored here by many contributors. Essays by Arnold Toynbee and Bishop Emrich alone would make the book notable. All our lives are compassed by work, so it speaks to all of us of how we should dedicate and discipline the work we do.

NAUGHT FOR YOUR COMFORT, by Trevor Huddleston. A profound, moving, disturbing examination of the Christian social conscience by an Anglican monk who has worked dangerously within the racial tensions of South Africa. Eminently appropriate to anyone's Lenten self-examination, it bears upon American moral dilemmas.

NEW TESTAMENT CHRISTIANITY, by J.B. Phillips. An attempt by an able Gospel translator to relate the spirit and character of the historical early church to Christian life in our times.

THE PRAYERS OF KIERKEGAARD, edited by Perry D. LeFevre. Ninety-nine prayers of the great Danish theologian, superb in devotion and free of the difficulties of his philosophical writings.

THE SAVING PERSON, by Angus Dun. A splendid study of man's relationship to Christ, the What do the popular arts, especially TV and movies, have to say about values? What of religion in these media?

TILL WE HAVE FACES, by C.S. Lewis. A novel with an underlying framework of Christian meaning, like earlier ones by Lewis, or like the novels of his twin sources of inspiration, George MacDonald and Charles Williams.

I WAS CHAPLAIN ON THE FRANKLIN, by Joseph T. O'Callahan. A personal chronicle of faith and heroism by the sole World War II chaplain to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor.

JESUS AND HIS TIMES, by Henry Daniel-Rops. A revised Catholic translation, using the Knox, version, of the most popular French life of Christ. A new appendix discusses the recently discovered Dead Sea Scrolls.

THE LAST OF THE CONQUITADORS. JUNIPERO SERRA (1713-1784), by Omer Englebert. An intimate biography, largely based on Serra's unpublished journal, that recounts vividly the courage and faith of a Franciscan missionary whose statue represents California in Washington's Capital and whose cause for beautification has been introduced.

LIVES OF THE SAINTS, by Alban Butler, Herbert Thurston, and Donald Attwater. Next to the Scriptures we should turn most often to the examples of the saints and beati. In this superbly written and handsomely designed set are presented over 2,500 lives. Scholarship and literary ability are well blended.

MOSCOW WAS MY PARISH, by Georges Bissonette. A popular, autobiographical account of two years (1953-1955) as Moscow's only clergyman, ministering to the foreign colony.

Upset-Minded Challengers Await Chance At Tar Heels And Kansas

Charges Fly As To Officiating

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—Did referees "protect" Wilt Chamberlain, the 7-foot-tall Kansas center, in his team's 81-61 victory over Oklahoma City in an NCAA playoff at Dallas last weekend?

Or did Oklahoma City players deliberately foul Chamberlain in a move tinged with racial prejudice?

Those charges flew across the country in the wake of the story game, which was interrupted by one point by spectators throwing cushions and coins onto the floor.

Oklahoma City Coach Abe Lemons said the referees were "protecting" Chamberlain. He said he told his players they could earn foul shots by getting in front of Chamberlain as he ran down court "because he can't turn within 20 feet." He expressed indignation that the plays were not called that way. The cushion-throwing was by fans who agreed with him.

"The real trouble seemed to be that Chamberlain and guard Maurice King were dark-skinned," said Referee Al Lightner in his report on the game. "I am a sports editor of the Oregon Statesman here. He said Oklahoma City players were 'deliberately dumping Chamberlain.'"

Lightner said Lemons had warned of trouble "if that big nigger piles onto any of my kids" and that the Oklahoma City players kept remarking about "those niggers."

"You can ask my boys, and I know they never made a statement like that. I've never called a colored boy a nigger in my life," said Lemons at Oklahoma City.

He denied his players were "dumping" Chamberlain.

Lightner said Abb Curtis, South-west Conference supervisor of officials, said afterwards that "he had not seen such a display of unethical basketball in years. He told us that under the circumstances with which the game was played by Oklahoma City, we did a good job."

KANSAS CITY (AP)—College basketball's two top teams — North Carolina's Tar Heels and the Kansas Jayhawks—still must dispose of upset-minded challengers if they are to meet each other in the National Collegiate tournament this week.

North Carolina, with 30 straight wins during the season and ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press basketball poll, encountered slow-starting Michigan State in the first of the semifinal games Friday night at 8:30 (EST).

Kansas, ranked No. 2 on a 23-2 record, will take on SFAN Francisco University in the other semifinal Friday night.

The championship game will be Saturday night, after a consolation game will take on San Francisco University in the other semifinal Friday night.

The championship game will be Saturday night, after a consolation game will take on San Francisco University in the other semifinal Friday night.

The payoff games are in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium and its 10,000 seats have been sold out for weeks.

NCAA headquarters in Kansas City indicated there is a possibility both the big nights of basketball will be televised nationally. There was no elaboration.

Both North Carolina and Kansas worked their way into the finals with wins in regional tournaments Saturday night.

The Tar Heels beat Syracuse 67-58. Little Tommy Kearns stole the show from Lennie Rosenbuth, North Carolina's All America. Rosenbuth got 23 points, one more than Kearns, but his smaller teammate was sensational in engineering the Tar Heel attack.

Kansas dumped Oklahoma City 81-61 as Wilt Chamberlain, the sensational Kansas sophomore All America, scored 30 points.

The game was enlivened by cushion throwing, catcalls and a complaint about the officiating.

Michigan State, ranked No. 11, won its way to Kansas City with an 80-64 victory over Kentucky, ranked No. 3 and the only team ever to win the national championship three times.

San Francisco posted a 50-46 win over California, the Pacific Coast champion. San Francisco has won the national tournament the last two years in a row and still has a chance to become the first team ever to take three straight.

In consolation games of the regional playoffs Southern Methodist beat St. Louis 78-68, Canisius beat Lafayette 82-76, Notre Dame beat Pittsburgh 86-85 and Brigham Young beat Idaho State 65-54.

The National Assn. of Basketball Coaches will hold its annual convention in conjunction with the tournament. It begins with committee reports Wednesday night.

The tremendous success of the Villanova University spiked shoe Australia, missed the team only because he suffered a leg injury just prior to the final try-outs.

An outstanding quartermiler at Villanova, Elliott returned to coach at his Alma Mater almost immediately after graduation in 1935. From the very start, his coaching career was spiced with outstanding performers but it was not until this year Jumbo managed to collect sufficient talent to sweep the current Villanova squad boasts considerable sophomore and junior talent it is safe to assume that Coach Elliott is destined to dominate the spike shoe set for some time to come. Certainly, there are few more capable track tutors in the country.

Elliott has built a powerful track team, paced by Ron Delany, the Smiling Irishman who won the Olympic Games, but Elliott also developed Charley Jenkins who won the 400-meter event title for the United States. In addition, Phil Reavis represented the U. S. in the high jump, Don Bragg, the Wildcats 15-foot-5 1/2 pole vaulter who might have been a winner in Australia, missed the team only because he suffered a leg injury just prior to the final try-outs.

Seattle Making First NIT Start Against Bonnies

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—Top-seeded Seattle, boasting Elgin (Rabbit) Baylor, 18 straight victories and two 6-foot-7 players, makes its first start in the National Invitation Tournament against St. Bonaventure in Madison Square Garden tonight.

In the other half of the quarter-final double-header, Manhattan takes on Memphis State.

All indications point to an uncomfortable night for St. Bonaventure. The Bonnies have a 16-5 record compared with 22-2 for Seattle and certainly cannot come near the Chieftain's height.

Baylor is 6-6, but he is dwarfed by Dick Stricklin and Thorton Humphries, each at 6-7.

As for Baylor . . . well, he may not be the eighth wonder of the world, but if he keeps up at his present pace, they're going to have to legislate against him.

He brings the following credentials:

1. A 720-point season average, or 30 points a game.
2. A 488 shooting average from the floor.
3. A total of 483 rebounds.

If that isn't enough, he has been called the "best college basketball player in the country" by Santa Clara Coach Bob Feerick. Seattle drew a first-round bye, but St. Bonaventure showed it could hustle in its 90-72 rout of Cincinnati Saturday night.

Manhattan, probably the top team in the New York area, will be slightly favored over Memphis State in the other half of the twin bill. This is despite the fact that State shows a 22-5 record against Manhattan's 15-8.

Memphis State is a fast outfit, but didn't live up to expectations in downing Utah 77-75 Saturday.

The quarter-finals will be completed tomorrow night with second-seeded Bradley (19-7) playing Xavier of Cincinnati (20-7), which swept past Seton Hall 85-79, and Temple (18-8) tangling with Dayton (19-8), which trounced St. Peter's 79-71.

The semifinals are scheduled for Thursday and the final for Saturday.

Need $5 Million To Stage Games

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland officials, with six weeks to dig up nearly five million dollars more for staging the 1958 Pan American Games, still cling to the faint hope that Congress will provide necessary funds.

If Cleveland can't arrange financing by May 1, a special congress of the Pan American Olympic Committee ruled yesterday in Caracas, Venezuela, the games will be shifted to Guatemala City.

The committee voted 11-2 to extend to May 1 Cleveland's deadline.

Committee Chairman Douglas P. Roby of Detroit said he had been advised that if Cleveland does not receive the federal grant it will ask to be relieved of its obligation.

In Cleveland, Curtis Lee Smith, chairman of a planning committee for the games, said this city could not be host to the games without the federal appropriation, which would bring to 13 million dollars the funds provided for the event. City, county and state would provide the other eight million, needed primarily for construction of facilities.

But Cleveland Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze, while remarking that "holding the games without federal money would be very difficult," said the extension "will also give us time to explore some resources we have not yet checked."

Both Duke And UNC Elevens Show Punch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke and North Carolina closed out spring football drills Saturday with intrasquad games that saw plenty of offensive punch.

In the Duke camp, a Blue team quarterbacked by Bob Brodhead stopped a White team 21-7. At Chapel Hill, a White team quarterbacked by Dave Reed defeated the Blues 38-12.

Brodhead scored once from the five and tossed several passes good for long yardage in Duke's Blue team win. Halfback George Dutrow pounded over from the two and fleet halfback Bobby Honeycutt reached 46 yards for the Blues' other touchdowns.

White sub quarterback George Harris scored his team's touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

Outstanding in the backfields were Wray Carlton, quarterback Fryor Milner and fullback Hal McElhane for the Whites and Brodhead, Dutrow and Honeycutt for the Blues. Honeycutt was the day's top gainer with 102 yards in 11 tries.

Passes played a major role in North Carolina's intrasquad game. The winning White backfield was composed of Reed at quarterback, Daly Goss and Jim Schuler at halfbacks and Bob Shupin at fullback.

Halfback Danny Droze set up the first touchdown for the Blues on a 49-yard interception of a Reed pass. Halfback Emil DeCantis passed to end Jim Jones for the score.

But the Whites bounced back, tying the score when Goss scored from the four. A Reed to Al Goldstein pass set up the second White score, tallied by Shupin, and the Whites were ahead for keeps.

Wake Forest, North Carolina State, Clemson and South Carolina will end their spring drills Saturday with traditional intrasquad games.

GHS Trackmen To See Action

Having copped their first track meet of the season against Washington and New Bern here last week, Greenville high school will work with three clubs again Thursday afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium.

Coach Guy Lewis' Northeastern Conference Champions will match cinder talents against Washington, Roanoke Rapids and Elizabeth City.

The Phantoms racked up an impressive 58 points in their opener last week, to win out over New Bern (33) and Washington (27). They will be expected to make as good a showing in Thursday's trials.

The meet is expected to get underway at 3:00.

Coach Lewis' club is loaded with talent this year in almost every department. Against the New Bern and Washington competitors, Greenville racked up first places in the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run, the mile relay, the shotput, the discus, the broad jump and the pole vault.

N. C. Basketeers Swamp S. C. In Kiwanis Classic

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina held a 2-1 lead in the annual Kiwanis Basketball Classic today after the Tar Heels swamped South Carolina 83-62 in this year's game, played here Saturday.

A slim Coliseum crowd of about 1,500 saw the Tar Heels make a run-away of the game between picked high school seniors of the Carolinas.

North Carolina boasted the game's most valuable player in High Point's Dickie Culler, a six-foot playmaking guard who bagged 11 points, second best scoring effort in the North Carolina lineup.

Three-fourths of the population of North Carolina uses sub-surface water for their domestic water supply.

This May Be Year For Zimmer With Dodgers

By JOHN CHANDLER
The Associated Press
It appeared today as if this will be the year that Don Zimmer will make the grade as a regular infielder with the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

Zimmer's second home run of the spring off Jim Bunning of the Detroit Tigers accounted for all of Brooklyn's runs yesterday as the Dodgers won a 3-2 grapefruit exhibition at Miami.

Badly injured twice during his career by bean balls, Zimmer—who played second base, probably his opening day position—was almost hit in the head by Bunning's first pitch.

Zimmer got up swinging and on the next pitch lined the ball over the left-center wall 360 feet away. He knocked in three runs.

Zimmer, 26, was purchased by the Dodgers from their Mobile, Ala., farm club in 1952 and optioned to St. Paul of the American Assn. in 1953, billed as the eventual successor to Pee Wee Reese at shortstop. On July 7 that year a pitch fractured his skull at Columbus and he was out for the season.

Last June 23 at Brooklyn in a game with Cincinnati, Zimmer suffered a cheek bone fracture and concussion when struck by a pitch thrown by Hal Jeffcoat. He played only 17 games all season and in 20 times at bat got six hits for a .300 average.

In other games yesterday the Washington Senators defeated the Milwaukee Braves 5-3, the New York Yankees blanked the Cincinnati Redlegs 9-0, the Philadelphia Phillies downed the Boston Red Sox 4-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates squeezed out a 2-1 decision over the Kansas City Athletics, the Chicago White Sox walloped the St. Louis Cardinals 12-3, the Baltimore Orioles took an 11-5 verdict from the Chicago Cubs, and the New York Giants defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-6.

Pittsburgh, with a 7-2 exhibition record—best in both leagues—won in the sixth inning at Fort Myers, Fla. Gene Freese walked, went to third on Dick Groat's double and

Plans For Softball Leagues Will Be Made At Tuesday Night Meeting

Plans for the 1957 softball leagues in Greenville will be getting underway Tuesday night at a meeting at Elm Street Park at 7:30.

Anyone interested in any way with the softball program for this summer, should be present at the meeting, according to Greenville Recreation Department heads.

The Recreation Department plans to sponsor two complete leagues of activity this year. The fast Industrial League, which has been in effect for several years now will provide play for the working men of Greenville in a highly competitive loop. Also for the first time it is hoped by Recreation officials that a new Church League can be sponsored. The Church League is expected to be a slower style of ball, which can be played by men of any age.

A Recreation Department bulletin this morning stated that the Industrial League will be "a fast brand of ball and will require men that are still very active."

The same bulletin said the following about the Church League: "The Church League will be the slow pitch softball, and the game is considerably slower than the Industrial League, enabling any man, regardless of age, to take part. This league will also have restrictions as to players and such so that all men will feel free to come out and engage in the program and have fun and wholesome exercise."

Anyone interested in either or both of the proposed leagues is invited to attend the meeting and all suggestions will be appreciated by the Recreation Department.

New Anti-Aircraft Missile Claimed Able Destroy 'Anything That Flies'

READY FOR LANDING—Piquita, a three-year-old Chihuahua, rests in its traveling bag waiting to be picked up by owner following arrival by ship in New York from Europe.

By ROBERT EUNSON
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Army Ordnance has plugged a hole in America's defenses with a new guided missile it calls the Hawk.

Those who know say it is capable of destroying anything that flies, no matter how low.

Yank armers long have been saying that America's air defense was a sucker for tree-top-level attack. They base this belief on the fact that antiaircraft weapons in this country are designed primarily for high-altitude work.

What if the Russians hurled low-flying aircraft or missiles at American cities and industrial areas from submarines off San Francisco or New York?

Army Ordnance says the Hawk, details on which are yet to be released, is designed to stop such an attack.

"They can send it right down the road," one Army officer said, "and we'll kill it dead."

This new missile, when it is released, will carry an atomic warhead, capable not only of shooting down the target it goes after, but destroying also whatever weapon the enemy missile or aircraft will have on board.

The Hawk will become part of the Nike system of the Army Antiaircraft Command when Ordnance is satisfied with its final tests in New Mexico.

The Ajax and Hercules missiles are designed primarily for attack against high-flying targets. The Hawk will take care of low-flying targets.

Interviewed at his headquarters in Colorado Springs, Lt. Gen. Stanley S. Mickelsen, head man of the Army Antiaircraft Command, would only go this far: "We are perfecting a new weapon designed for the most effective operation against low-altitude flying."

His use of the word "perfecting" is interesting.

The Hawk already is a deadly, screaming missile, with electronic power to think for itself and to seek out and destroy once the target has been detected.

As soon as Ordnance is satisfied the Hawk is ready for use it will be turned over to Mickelsen's men.

Mickelsen's battalions of Nike antiaircraft batteries surround every major population and industrial area in the United States.

In order to coordinate attacks and guard against all batteries firing at the same target, the Nike system uses a missile master. This device is something like a TV console and keeps all batteries informed as to who is shooting at what.

The rest of the interview went like this:

Okay, the Nike system can destroy anything that flies. How about ballistic missiles, fired out of the atmosphere into space, such as the German V2 that terrorized London and Antwerp?

"The V2 is crude compared to the missiles we have today. We can track the V2, and have at White Sands, but perhaps this is taking unfair advantage of the missile because we knew where it was being fired."

What chance has a Nike battery against ballistic missiles fired from submarines off the coast?

"You could launch a ballistic missile from a submarine, I suppose, but it would have to have a large platform."

Is the defense of the United States adequate?

"You can't answer that question simply. It's our objective an airtight defense. I am hopeful, more than hopeful, I anticipate it can be done."

'Mr. Roberts' Affords No Room For Laxness

By DR. GEORGE A. COOK

In two performances this week, the East Carolina Playhouse presented in McGinnis Auditorium "Mr. Roberts," the navy's story of boredom in the backwaters of World War II.

The Thomas Heggen story adapted for stage by Josh Logan and since made into a movie has proved for countless viewers to be more than just an entertaining account of the crew of the cargo attack ship the U. S. S. Reluctant. It is seen as an authentic statement of here worship of admiration for the person who manages to be human under strain, of the loyalty and devotion that can exist between the followers and their leader. The converse speaks as eloquently for that relationship as the positive presentation.

The play, formulated into a dozen scenes in two acts, has difficulty making a unified impact, and any weakness in acting or directing is going to disperse the effect even more. This presentation was at its weakest, perhaps, in the opening scene between Mr. Roberts and Doc, and at its strongest in the scene depicting Mr. Roberts' departure. Opening scenes are understandably difficult, for the actors and feeling their way and in their efforts to be casual and natural frequently speak and act without enough vigor. Strength was imparted to the scene of Mr. Roberts' departure by the belief which are the players accorded that scene in delivery and action. But there would be many runners-up to the goodness of that scene: the spyglass examination of nurses' quarters on a nearby island (the players seemingly had no trouble in simulating watching girls); the fight that broke out because men had worn each other's nerves ragged; the stunning visit of the nurse aboard ship; the return of the men from liberty in bedraggled but satisfied state; and the elevation of soap-encrusted Ensign Pulver to fame.

The players who made outstanding characterizations of their roles were Al Carr, who played the part of the Captain, and "Bubba" Driver, who played Ensign Pulver. Carr was a sufficiently rasping and contemptible Captain, and Driver unified gesture, speech, and facial expression into a comical Pulver.

The two other chief roles, Mr. Roberts and Doc, were competently handled by Ken West and Tommy Hull. Both Mr. Roberts and Doc, his wise and knowing confidant, have to be played with dignity and restraint. West unfortunately depended upon his vocal cords and not his diaphragm when he shouted. There was also misuse of voice by one or two other persons. "A. B." Benfield, who played one of the sailors, showed a good sense of comedy but let his cigar and a carelessness in speech interfere with proper projection of lines. On the other hand, the shore patrol officer, played by Bucky Monroe, projected his lines well, though rendering them quite softly.

The sailors of the Reluctant provided in their cross-section of a navy crew from the the imitative naive youngster Lindstrom to the brash clerk Dolan to the domineering chief Dowdy—a liveliness, a humor, and a reality that made all the shipboard scenes credible.

Of the girl in the show, Gayle Simpson, who was the army nurse, it may be said that she stood out in this world of men.

To the director of the play, Charlie Briggs, a sophomore in the college—though he was fortunate in having the advice of two of the faculty—goes the credit for an excellent set, an effectively functioning staff, and a successful production. The set was deserving of a round of applause that it did not get; the practice of applauding a clever set should, it seems to me, be instituted at future Playhouse offerings.

More than 100 million gallons of water from underground sources are used daily by industries in North Carolina.

Federal Reserve Board Unready To Change View

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The relaxed business boom may be allaying fears of still further inflation of prices in some quarters. But the Federal Reserve Board will have none of it—yet.

The money managers see new pressures that could be building up—increased government spending for one.

While noting the growing opinion that it actually may be deflation that lies ahead, the board cites the official statistics which show that business in general is holding at a high level even if the feverish upward climb has given way to a lull which may or may not be temporary.

It's going to take more of a downturn in industrial production and in factory employment apparently to convince the board that inflation has changed to deflation.

Board Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. advises letting a free market subject to the laws of supply and demand take care of the present industrial and financial situation rather than pumping up a new business boom with easier credit.

Employment in general continues high. But the Commerce and Labor departments, making their monthly sampling in mid-February, estimated that factory employment was off by 22,000 from January. They noted layoffs in the home building materials, industries, in radio, TV and auto factories.

But the 17 million who were working in factories were averaging $82.41 a week, a record for February, and the work week was about unchanged at slightly over 40 hours.

It is these rising payroll totals that management has been using to explain part of the reason for hiking prices to the consumer.

Prices of industrial materials—another big cost item for manufacturers—have been fluctuating of late. The price of some metals has slipped from earlier peaks although the price of end products made from metals has mostly continued to rise.

Those who think that the stresses in the business world will shortly take care of inflation without government interference cite this softening in materials prices as one reason.

Another is that money isn't quite as tight as it was. This doesn't mean that credit is easy now nor that interest rates are lower. But bankers note that the demand of businessmen for loans to build up inventories isn't feverish now as it was this time last year. Nor is the demand for funds to expand production—although it is still high.

CHAPTER 8

"After you rig the litter for Captain Kincaid," Schwabacker said to Sergeant McGruger, "I want the troop moved into the yard and into the wagons one at a time. It is important that the Indians do not see you. This can be accomplished by placing the wagons in a right row, thereby hiding your movements."

"I understand, sir," McGruger said. "You want to move out while they think we remain in force."

"Precisely," Schwabacker said. "They'll no doubt attack the wagons, thinking they're empty, but I believe a surprise raking with volley fire will discourage them."

After McGruger left, Schwabacker opened the side door and stood there, watching the four men in the yard. He saw that Jocelyn's head was turned, his eyes still intent on him. On impulse he knelt and asked, "How are you, sir?"

"Better than . . . I expected to be. You're a good . . . doctor, Mr. Schwabacker." He found strength for a smile. "I couldn't help over-hearing. A bold plan. If they want to crush you, a volley . . . won't stop them."

"That's a chance I have to take," Schwabacker said. "Do you approve, sir?"

"Your decision, Mr. Schwabacker," Jocelyn paused to say for a moment. "When you command, seek advice from no man. Command is an . . . island. A lonely . . . island."

For a moment Schwabacker could not understand this man, then he did, fully. Temple Jocelyn would not offer advice. He was seeing Schwabacker to stand alone or fall, and if he fell, Jocelyn was the kind who would let him be. A hard school, Schwabacker decided, but not harder than that of his father, who neither understood nor tolerated weakness in anything.

Jake Ryndlee came up, his face wrinkled with worry. "What's goin' to happen to me?"

"I'd advise you to come along."

"They'll burn my place," Ryndlee said. "Never had trouble with the Indians 'til th' army started messin' around th' Bozeman Road." He jerked this thumb toward Kincaid's room. "That sojer bow thought he'd march right through 'em. Look at him now."

"How is it that you're alone here?"

"I'm the top of my horse's a-

"Be careful, Mac. Don't bang that arm now."

When they lifted Kincaid, pain engraved lines in his face. He cried out in a loud voice. Gently they carried him to the waiting ambulance. The troopers hiding inside helping lift him to the sling suspended from the top cross members. Ryndlee came out last, a sack on one shoulder and a Henry repeating rifle sagging in the crook of his arm.

Schwabacker urged Mrs. Kincaid into the ambulance, then mounted his horse, which the bugler led from the barn. Jocelyn was still tipped forward in the saddle, his head resting on the horse's mane. The command mounted — those who had been chosen to be in sight — and Schwabacker gave the hand signal to move out. Without haste they vacated Ryndlee's yard, and although he set this slack pace, Schwabacker found it drawing his nerves as tight as a dulcimer string.

The Indians broke away from their former position and one segment cut around to the rear of the moving column, finally drawing up in a line a hundred yards to the left. The remaining hostiles paralleled the troop on the right, keeping the same distance.

After a nerve-smashing mile of this, Schwabacker said, "Why don't they come in and get it over with? I'd have a button on his blouse undone and rone with his hand tucked into the opening."

Sergeant Finnegan, riding close on Schwabacker's right, said, "They haven't figured it out yet, sor. Be dark in another twenty minutes. If they're goin' to close, they'll do it before then. They don't like to fight 't' night without special medicine."

Swinging around in the saddle, Emil Schwabacker looked back at the closely bunched wagons. Troopers drove with their carbines across their knees, splitting their attention between team handling and the pacing Indians. The bulk of the command was in the wagons, completely hidden.

An officer, Schwabacker reminded himself, was supposed to draw conclusions, and he put his mind to this task. After a year of constant patrol in this area he had observed many things, most particularly the Indians, who always seemed to be moving about, but had never before been actively hostile. This attack on Ryndlee's was not a spur-of-the-moment result of some medicine man's preaching; careful planning was evident in the running off of Ryndlee's spare horses, which in turn drew the help away from the road ranch. And then there was the matter of organized intelligence: the Cheyennes had known an infantry company was marching toward Fort Laramie. And they had stopped it completely.

The conclusion was not hard to reach: Red Cloud had at last succeeded in uniting the Cheyenne and the Sioux for the all-out push against General Wessels and Fort Phil Kearny along the Bozeman Road.

First Baby Girl In 125 Years

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — For the first time in the last 125 years a girl has been born in the Lott family. It happened last night at the M. D. General Hospital in nearby Lawrence Park when Mrs. Delbert Lott, of Millcreek, gave birth to a girl whom they named Cindy. Lott, production manager of the Zurn Manufacturing Co., said 20 boys had been born in his family over past 125 years but nary a girl until Cindy came along.

If Complacent, No Votes Wanted

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — A candidate for the City Council, who says he needs the job "like I need a hole in the head," told voters: "Don't vote for me April 2."

Dr. David H. Smith, a physician, said in a statement yesterday that if citizens don't care about contaminated water, sewage dumped near city wells, too many gnats and flies going unsprayed, and unsanitary food establishments, they shouldn't mark their ballots in his behalf.

"If I am not elected, I'll go fishing," he declared.

Rattlesnake Hunters Are Feeding 'Indigent Snakes'

By SAUL FELDMAN OKEENE, Okla. (AP) - The International Assn. of Rattlesnake Hunters, rattled over prospects of their annual safari April 7 into the nearby Gypsum Hills turning in to failure, is now distributing food to indigent snakes.

own hands," Roberts said. "We had a feed company mix up this new chow."

"We've been scattering it through the hills all weekend and from what we can tell, the rattlesnakes are taking to it."

The rattlesnake roundup is a three-day event this year with 20,000 expected from more than a dozen states.

Saturday night, at the annual banquet, at least 300 pounds of prime sooner select rattlesnake steaks will be served.

Roberts says that with a warm, sunny day Sunday, the rattlesnake hunting should be good.

"That chow should put the snakes back in condition," he said. "It cost us $8,000 to get that

Pedestrian Hit, Driver Injured

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) - Ever hear of a pedestrian being hit by an auto then getting up and taking the driver to a hospital?

Altoona police say it happened here yesterday in this way:

Alfred Smith, 40, left his auto at a service station, walked a half block and was crossing a street at an intersection when he was hit by a car driven by Mrs. Frances Bryan, 34.

The Bryan auto then crashed into a tree. Smith walked back to the station, got his car and took Mrs. Bryan to Mercy Hospital. She was detained with cuts and bruises. Smith was treated for leg bruises then discharged.

A large paper mill uses roughly 50 million gallons of water per day; more than enough to supply a city of 500,000 people.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—Oils and steels took losses in a generally lower stock market early this afternoon. The decline was general but trading was quiet.

The Middle East situation remained a question mark to cause hesitation, while the lower steel output and softening copper prices were further dampeners on enthusiasm, brokers said.

Industrials were the worst losers today. Utilities showed slight declines and rails were narrowly mixed.

Gulf Oil was down well beyond a point. Royal Dutch and Standard Oil (New Jersey) each dropped about a point. Texas Co. was off a major fraction.

Youngstown's early loss of about a point widened. U.S. Steel worsened an initial decline to one of about a point. Bethlehem and Republic Steel were fractional losers.

U.S. Hoffman Machinery was down about a point in active turnover.

American Telephone was steady and Commonwealth Edison eased in the slightly changed utility group. Santa Fe was firm and Baltimore & Ohio gained a bit among leading rails. Illinois Cent.

GHS Team Wins Debating Round

Greenville High School's affirmative debate team defeated Williamston High School's negative debaters Friday in the first round of the State High School Triangular Debates.

Greenville's winning team of Ann Green and Goldis Starling, with Ann Briley as alternate, won the debate on the query, "Resolved, that the Federal government should sustain the prices of major agricultural products at not less than 90 per cent of parity."

In two other debates for the local triangle, Greenville defaulted to Scotland Neck and Williamston's affirmative debaters met Scotland Neck in Greenville High School auditorium this morning at 11 o'clock.

Winning teams qualify for district debates which are conducted for the North Carolina High School Debate Union. The state championship debate team receives the Aycock Debate Cup which is awarded annually.

See Results Of Project They Helped Dedicate

SPECIAL TOUR OF TELEPHONE BUILDING—Looking over equipment in the new Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company building here are several local business and civic leaders who toured the building Saturday. Guests of the company for Saturday's tour were those who took part in ground-breaking ceremonies for the building 16 months ago. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Some 25 business and civic leaders of Greenville and its environs who participated in ground-breaking ceremonies for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company's new building here in November 1955, were on hand at noon Saturday by special invitation to see results of the project they helped dedicate.

Local telephone manager Frank Harrington greeted the guests in the lobby of the business office of the new telephone building. After commenting that the guests were about to see well over $750,000 worth of building and equipment, Manager Harrington escorted the guests through various points in the new building where specialists explained functions and mechanics of various equipment installations.

On the first floor of the building, the guests inspected the company's new commercial offices and long distance equipment installations. Subsequently they toured the second floor of the building to see more long distance equipment, 24 new long distance switchboard positions and four information positions. In the basement they viewed additional telephone equipment, cable vaults and auxiliary power units for use in event of commercial power failure.

Following the tour of the new building and facilities, the visitors were guests of the telephone company for lunch.

Conference On Science Held At College Friday

A conference on science and careers in science was held March 15 on the campus of East Carolina College.

The conference was sponsored by the Eastern North Carolina Society of the American Chemical Society with the cooperation of the North Carolina State Department of Education, the chemistry department of East Carolina College, and the Kinston "Dacron" plant of the Du Pont Company.

The conference was attended by 127 public school students and teachers from eight Eastern Carolina counties. It was received with high enthusiasm on the part of the group, sponsors said.

Three scientific topics were discussed in the morning session of the program—"Atomic Energy," "Unusual Properties of Water," and "Experiments in High School Chemistry." Speakers were Dr. Newton Underwood of N. C. State College, J. O. Derrick of East Carolina, and Robert Hollar of Atlantic Christian College. Dr. Joseph Waltz, director of the "Dacron" Research Laboratory, spoke to the group at the luncheon meeting on "Chemistry in Industry," placing particular emphasis on the chemist.

The afternoon program was initiated with a discussion of "Chemistry in Textiles," by Dr. John M. Griffing, laboratory research manager for Du Pont. He outlined the scope of the chemical industry in a modern textile operation and the variety of roles played by chemists in specialized fields.

The most significant phase of the conference, according to Mr. Henry Shannon, State Supervisor of Science and Mathematics, was the concluding panel discussion, which drew questions from almost every participant. An hour was devoted to answering the key questions, which dealt with all phases of the preparation for a career in science. The program was kept on a non-technical level and discussions were geared to the needs of the group.

Teachers and students were enthusiastic in their appraisal of the program. Many teachers agreed they received helpful instructional data and the selected students evidenced a keen interest. The educators present described it as one of the most successful conferences of its kind they had attended.

Plans are being made to continue the programs on a semi-annual basis, with selected groups from various schools in the area being invited to Fall and Spring programs.

The Friday conference was attended by students from the following counties: Lenoir, Pitt, Wayne, Craven, Wilson, Beaufort, Duplin, and Nash.

Pitt County schools which sent teachers and students were Greenville, Stokes-Pactolus, Grimesland, Chocod, Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, and Grifton. Also in attendance was Mrs. Edna E. Baker, Pitt County Science Supervisor.

New Programs For Filling Military Obligation Offered By Nat'l Guard

New programs for fulfilling military obligations through the National Guard were announced today by Warrant Officer Mayo E. Allen of Service Battery, 295th Field Artillery Battalion.

Allen said the programs were valid for both of Greenville's National Guard units, Service Battery and "C" Battery. The first program, for youths between the ages of 17 and 18½, authorizes six months of active duty with the Army and three years in a local unit. The second plan, also for youths between 17 and 18½, requires a minimum of 11 weeks of active duty training with the Army and service in a local National Guard unit until age 28. The third plan, for men over age 18½ and under age 28 with no prior military service, prescribes six months of active duty with the Army and the remainder of a six-year ready reserve obligation in a local Guard unit.

Allen said the 11-week program will be available only until October 1, 1957. After that date all men without prior service who enlist in the National Guard must take six months active duty training.

Further information about the training programs can be obtained from either Allen or M-Sgt. Paul L. Jewett at the National Guard armory on Evans Street.

LITTLE HOPE
KINSTON—The chances of Kinston being exempt from a bill under study in the General Assembly to require all municipalities dumping raw sewage in the Neuse River to install sewage disposal plants appears to be remote, according to word received last week.

City officials point to the fact that there is no city downstream from Kinston that takes its water from the river. And, they add, the sandy bottom of the river east of here acts as a filtering medium to clean impurities dumped in the river by the city's outfalls.

HEAT WAS ON
ROCKY MOUNT—The "heat was on" in Municipal Building Friday morning. Not only in the police station where the phrase might be normally used, but in every room in the three-story building.

When city employees arrived at work, they found the temperature in their offices hovering around 90 degrees, and getting hotter all the time. The man with the red face in the situation—not because he was exactly responsible for the occurrence, but because the building thermostat was in his office—was A. D. Dozier, city purchasing agent.

SEEKS RELECTION
WASHINGTON—Mayor John P. Proctor has announced his candidacy for reelection to the City Council. Proctor said he decided to seek reelection after urging by many friends and expressions of confidence from other citizens. The primary, at which time five councilmen will be elected, will be held April 22. April 12 is the deadline for filing for the primary.

BUTLER SPEAKS
WASHINGTON—James W. Butler, executive secretary of East Carolina College Alumni Association, at a meeting of the Washington club, declared that "East Carolina College at Greenville is playing an ever greater part in the educational and cultural life of the state." Butler reminded that "the college now ranks third among the 12 state-supported colleges in North Carolina, but that it ranks tenth in per capita appropriations and next year will rank eleventh, according to budget recommendations."

HEALTH CONFERENCE
WILSON—More than 300 farm men and women attended a rural health conference in the American Legion building here Thursday. Farm and home accidents, their prevention and insurance protection was included in the health program. Home demonstration and 4-H clubs and various medical societies cooperated in sponsoring the 10-county conference.
