Mrs. Jenkins Is Hostess To Aries Book Club Tuesday Night

The Aries Book Club met Tuesday night with Mrs. Leo Jenkins. The president welcomed the club's guests for the evening, Mrs. N. M. Jorgensen and Mrs. Jim Mallory.

After dispensing with old business, Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, in the absence of the new president, Mrs. Steve Bartlett, called on the incoming vice-president, Mrs. Kenneth Hite, to read the new committee. They are as follows:

Book Committee—Mrs. Leo Jenkins, Mrs. Reginald Gray and Mrs. R. S. Moye.

Emergency Committee—Mrs. Fred Sauve.

Membership Committee—Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, Mrs. Billy Morton.

Program Committee—Mrs. Astor Richardson, Mrs. Troy Dodson, Mrs. Marshall Starkey.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Carl Pierce who gave the program. She chose as her topic Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser. She stated that Col. Nasser is a very important person in the world situation and is a very controversial figure; it is hard to decide whether to praise him or to bury him. A man of unbelievable personal charm and champion of honest progressive nationalism, he convinces most interviewers that all he wants for Egypt is peace and prosperity and all he wants for the Arabs is the removal of British influence.

A discussion followed the program with members volunteering information about Nasser.

Mrs. Jenkins then invited the group to her dining room table where Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin poured punch and members helped themselves to nuts, mints, cookies and brownies.

After books were exchanged, the meeting was adjourned.

Soup Tops Sunday Night Fare

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Many families have special Sunday night supper menus that they frequently repeat. When we asked among our friends, we found soup and a salad was a favorite combination for this meal. Often canned or frozen soups are used; other times soups are homemade although they may utilize a prepared soup as a base.

If you are in the mood to make your own soup, here's a recipe for a delicious and nutritious chowder. It uses a can of beef bouillon plus milk, vegetables and cheese as its main ingredients. The pimiento-stuffed olives it calls for may be some left from a jar opened for a party; they add tangy flavor. This is a hearty soup—the cheese adds protein and a golden color that looks pretty with the green beans and the green-red of the olives.

After this soup you might like to serve a salad of greens, cold meat (ham, smoked tongue or corned beef) and hard-cooked eggs. Arrange the foods for the salad attractively so this course will look appetizing while your family is eating the soup. Mix the salad dressing right at the table, using olive oil, wine vinegar, prepared mustard, salt, freshly-ground pepper and any salad herbs. Toss salad ingredients and dressing together in front of everyone—you'll find this little ceremony fun and it also helps stimulate appetites!

VEGETABLE CHEESE CHOWDER

Ingredients: 1 can (10½ ounces) bouillon (beef broth), 1-4 cup water, 1 cup finely diced onion, 1 cup finely diced celery, 1 cup cooked shoestring-cut snap beans, 3½ cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups (½ pound) grated cheddar cheese, ½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, pepper.

Method: Put undiluted bouillon, 1-4 cup water, onion and celery into a large saucepan. Cover and boil gently until tender—about 10 minutes. Add snap beans and 3 cups of the milk; heat until there are bubbles around the edge of the milk. Gradually stir the remaining ½ cup milk into the flour until smooth; add to soup mixture. Cook and stir constantly until slightly thickened. Stir in cheese over very low heat, or off heat, until melted. Add olives, Worcestershire sauce and pepper to taste. Reheat gently (do not boil) if necessary. Make 6 servings.

REAL-LIFE MENUS

Here are other menus that several friends tell us are favorites in their families for Sunday night suppers.

1. Crisp waffles (homemade) with creamed chicken; salad; ice cream. This menu comes from a family with several school-age children.

2. Platter of cold meat (left from mid-day roast) with Swiss cheese, tomatoes and celery; French bread or crusty rolls and butter; coffee. This is from a bride and reflects her husband's tastes.

3. Chow mein, rice, crisp fried noodles; tea; pineapple and preserved quonats. One family orders the chow mein from a nearby restaurant that caters to "carry-out" orders; in another family the chow mein is made at home whenever a pork roast is served at a preceding main meal.

Net $3.50 After Legal Battle

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—Nearly a month of court action and the investment of at least $148 has netted two men here $3.50 each. The legal battle began last month when Byrd Hensley and Kelsey Meadows claimed ownership of a female blue-tick hound. Each showed up in Harlan Circuit Court with five witnesses to back his case. Calling it a practical draw, Judge Edward G. Hill ordered the hound sold at auction and the money split between the two men. The auction was held yesterday and the hound was sold to C. W. Pennington, Cawood, Ky., the highest bidder, for $7. Meadows and Hensley will split the $7. Their total court costs were $13. Estimated attorney fees were $50 each, leaving them $106 in the hole.

APT RESPONSE
WINKLER, Man. (AP)—Rev. J. H. Quering announced during a service that it was the 97th anniversary of the founding of the Mennonite Brethren Church and said "It is a commendable custom to give birthday presents on anniversaries." The collection came to exactly $97.

Andreas Feininger and Beaumont Newhall are two dedicated men in photography who recently have made major contributions in their special spheres as authors of new books.

Feininger, formerly an architect and engineer, has made skilful use of close-up photography to explore "The Anatomy of Nature." He has used his technical background to make an interesting study of nature and some of its wonders in 176 beautifully printed photographs (Crown Publishers, N.Y.).

Newhall, America's authoritative photo historian, has compiled a reference book of photography's original historical material and presents it in facsimile reproduction. Entitled, "On Photography—A Source Book of Photo History" it is published in limited edition by Century House, Watkins Glen, N.Y. Half a dozen other publishers had considered it too risky a gamble.

Beaumont Newhall, curator of George Eastman House in Rochester, devoted the best part of the past seven years to rounding up the original documents exactly as they first appeared in publications, most of them long since out of print. The first one appeared in 1832, "An Account . . . of making Profiles by the agency of Light upon Nitrate of Silver. Invented by T. Wedgwood, Esq." The last one reveals the philosophy of the gifted French photographer, Henri Cartier-Bresson, in "The Decisive Moment," printed in 1952.

From the intervening span of 150 years, choice observations of inventors, scientists, artists and critics make interesting current reading. Daguerre and Fox-Talbot's announcements are followed by a delightful account of a visit to a photo studio by Charles Dickens in 1853. The growth of photography is recorded and the struggle to make it an art. Then in 1890, Peter Henry Emerson's powerful blast at photography as an art in reproducing in a black-bordered, "The Death of Naturalistic Photography."

The corpse was revived, however, by Alfred Stieglitz, among others. He got away from heavy view cameras on tripods and pioneered in the use of hand cameras in all kinds of weather, widening photography's scope around the turn of the century.

As we approach the contemporary period, the views of Paul Strand, Edward Weston and Ansel Adams, the satire of James Thurber and the revolutionary invention of Edwin Land's one-minute camera are all brought into focus. It adds up to a unique reference book that should entertain as well as prove of value to serious students of photography.

To get back to Andreas Feininger, he went back to an original source also — nature itself.

The beauty of nature, he feels, is in its functional purpose which dictates its design. Nature constructs with minimum materials to achieve maximum efficiency. There's beauty and engineering purpose in a spider's web, in snowflakes, in flowers, in our very bones and

By comparison, man's architecture and engineering principles are often poor imitations of nature's craftsmanship in almost every aspect of animate or inanimate life in the universe. Under magnification, man's handiwork looks pretty crude where nature's work takes on added beauty.

For the technically minded, a chapter at the back gives the details of cameras and equipment used in taking the photographs and some hints on nature photography. One of the points worth repeating is that extra exposure is necessary on ultra closeups. A light meter reading determines only normal exposure when the lens setting is at infinity or for most normal distances. When the lens comes far forward for closeups, there must be an increase in exposure. For example, when your image on the negative is the actual size of the object, it requires four times the exposure. A complete table in the book is available for anyone contemplating that type of photography.

Sees Big Impact In New Highways

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A city planning expert predicted today that highway construction over the next 20 years will change the character and structure of metropolitan areas more than all the work of metropolitan planners since 1945.

John T. Howard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology associate professor, offered with his prophecy on the impact of the expanded federal highway construction program this lament:

"We are ill prepared, now that the new highways are upon us, to say where they should be built in the best interests of the metropolitan areas."

Howard, addressing the American Society of Planning Officials, argued that the purpose of highways was not "the carrying of traffic but to serve the community."

He said a highway so designed and built that it produces land development patterns "worsening the livability and efficiency of a metropolitan area is a disservice to the community."

He declared the U.S. Highway Act of 1956 proposing the building of billions of dollars worth of modern highways "does not recognize these all-important aspects of highway design."

"In the absence of metropolitan planning and development policies, each decision on highway location will be based on highway engineering, traffic engineering and costs," Howard contended.

He noted that the federal act—silent on planning—gives route locating authority to state highway departments.

He expressed hope "that the state and federal engineers, even though they are in a hurry and even though the law does not require, will pause and listen to what metropolitan planners have to say."

"And, where it is not too late, that they will modify their plans if they recognize the soundness and wisdom of what they hear."

'Wonder Mare' Dies, Aged 33

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Lady Wonder, a brown mare with a reputation as the "swami" of the four-legged set, is dead at the advanced animal age of 33.

A veterinarian attributed the horse's death yesterday to a common human failing, a heart attack.

Over the years Lady attracted almost as much attention pecking away at a horse-sized typewriter contraption in her stall as did her more fleet-footed relatives on the nation's tracks.

Her mistress, Mrs. Claudia Fonda, claimed Lady could read minds and was clairvoyant. There were many who were willing to concede this while skeptics insisted if there was any clairvoyance it was possessed by Mrs. Fonda herself.

But whether it was clairvoyance or sheer coincidence, Lady's "answers" more than once caused a flurry of excitement.

In 1952 the mare was credited by police in Quincy, Mass., with providing clues that led to the finding of the body of Danny Matson, a 4-year-old child missing for two years.

A psychologist and specialist on extra-sensory perception, Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke University, once said Lady gave evidence of some telepathic ability. He later asserted, however, there was evidence of signaling.

TAJ MAHAL COSTS
NEW DELHI (AP)—India's brightest tourist attraction—the Taj Mahal—has an annual maintenance bill of about $15,000, a Government of India announcement says.

Sentence Two

SENDAI, Japan (AP)—An American soldier and his Japanese girl friend today were sentenced to death by a Japanese court for robbing and killing a Japanese woman, then setting her home afire to hide their crime.

Pvt. Orvis L. C. Boone, 24-year-old Galveston, Tex. Negro, and Sheeko Sasaki were sentenced by Dist. Judge Mizuo Yamada to be hanged for the triple crime last Sept. 4 in Sendai. The prosecution had asked only for life imprisonment.

The conviction can be appealed first to Japan's appeal court and later to the Supreme Court.

Boone already is under an Army court-martial life sentence for the bludgeoning slaying of U. S. Army Specialist Edward K. Maunakea, 21, of Honolulu, last July 31. His court-martial included testimony that Miss Sasaki would lure victims to an isolated spot for Boone to rob them.

Japanese courts since 1953 have tried American service personnel for offenses committed off their bases and while off duty. American civilians have been tried by Japanese courts for violations of Japanese laws since April 28, 1953, effective date of the San Francisco Peace Treaty.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures

There's hardly a time of the year when everybody isn't talking about the weather. . . one way or another.

But there's never a time when the conversation about the weather is as verbose as it is during the hot summer months. Americans who once used to accept sizzling temperatures as something that had to be endured are now trying to do something about it. Some, planning future homes, are thinking in terms of houses which will be cooler than their present ones. Others are figuring out ways and means of dropping the summer temperatures in the dwellings they now occupy.

Time Is Ripe
Just how a home owner goes about cooling his house depends to a large degree on how much money he wants to spend for the job. One of the least expensive methods is the installation of an exhaust fan to cool the attic and draw air throughout the house. And this is the time of the year to consider whether such an installation will provide the answer to your summer problem. Waiting until it actually becomes unbearably hot before deciding what to do usually results in a hasty decision and perhaps (especially if you do the installing yourself) a hurry-up job.

On a hot summer day, attic temperature might easily run as high as 130 degrees, even more. Normal insulation will bring this temperature down somewhat, but there is so much absorption of heat by the walls and ceiling that sleeping may still be uncomfortable. An attic cooling system keeps the air moving during the day and prevents much of this absorption, producing a considerably lower temperature at night—not only in the attic, but throughout the house. In addition, there is a constant flow of fresh air for easier breathing and an increase in evaporation of body perspiration, two factors that aid in getting a good night's sleep.

The first question to be decided is what size the fan must be to provide adequate cooling. This depends on the size of the house and the number of complete air changes desired each minute. One air change per minute is recommended throughout most of the United States, but satisfactory results may be obtained with one change every minute and a half in the extreme northeast and northwest sections. Each fan bears a tag telling how many cubic feet of air it will displace per minute. To determine the cubic feet of your house, multiply the width times the length times the height of every room and add them up.

The ideal spot for location of the fan is in the center of the house. . . in the second floor ceiling, for instance, if a two-story house. The flow of air must be unrestricted. If located close to a wall, or in a corner, the fan capacity may be greatly reduced. There must be adequate exhaust openings if the fan is to be effective at all. The actual area of these openings is determined by several factors, such as whether or not mesh screening or hardware cloth is used, whether the louvers are constructed of wood or metal, the thickness of the louvers or whether it is to be a completely unobstructed opening.

Handy Chart
One of the largest manufacturers of attic fans has compiled the accompanying table showing proper size of exhaust openings for their fans under various conditions. Instructions on how to install specific fans are contained in the cartons housing the fans when they leave the factory. Where local codes and ordinances govern electrical installations such as these, a licensed electrician can do the necessary wiring while the home handyman does the rest of the job.

Old Friend Had Surprise Visit

SAYRE, Pa. (AP) — Ralph Warner got an anonymous telephone call. The caller said to meet him downtown and that it was important. Warner kept the date. He was greeted by Frank Cevalina, a World War I buddy he hadn't seen in 39 years. The two recognized each other immediately.

Definition Has Easy Application

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A 19-year-old blonde arrested in an apartment with two men on bank robbery charges said she didn't know the meaning of "aiding and abetting." U. S. Commissioner C. O. Lundquist explained that the charge would apply "even if all you did was fry an egg" for the bank robbers.

Sweater Industry Notes Growing Sales To Men

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — The sweater business which always comes up with some interesting figures of one sort or another has some new statistics today on production and sales in this year's intensifying battle of the fibers.

Leaders report a growing market for men's sweaters — and an increasingly competitive fight for it as well as for the industry's old standby, filling women's needs in sweaters.

The wool industry predicts its knitwear sales this year will top those of any year in more than a decade.

In the man-made fiber field the acrylic, or "warmth fibers," will see a scramble for markets between at least seven varieties. A couple of them newcomers to the fray.

Revival of interest in men's sweaters—there has never been any drop in interest in women's sweaters—started in 1954.

In 1950 production came to 1,620,000 dozens. By 1953 this had dropped to 1,270,000 dozens. But in 1954 sales started up again and last year output neared the two million dozen mark. This year, the sweater makers expect to go over that figure. For one thing they are coming out with some new types of yarn they think will do the trick.

The Woolknit Associates, Inc., base much of their hopes on the development of cold water soap which hits at one obstacle in the past to expanding woolknit garment sales.

For women's wear the makers in the fashion field stress the old standby, lamb's wool sweaters and cashmeres, and are touting mohair, "knitted like spun sugar," and a 50-50 mohair and wool honeycomb stitch.

The industry's spokesman says that in the men's field high fashion influences two thirds of sales of wool sweaters and cardigans. At lower priced levels the man made fibers have been gaining much of the market.

Du Pont, which produces Orlon acrylic fiber, says its entry accounted for 25 per cent of total fiber usage in men's sweaters in 1954, and 47 per cent last year. Du Pont claims 70 per cent of the market for women's sweaters.

Hindsight Makes For Wishing

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A former assistant director of Temple de Hirsch says it was easy to decide the most disgruntled group of persons he met during a summer visit to Israel.

once held Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser as a prisoner-of-war. It was during the Israeli-Egyptian hostilities of 1948 and Nasser, then a lieutenant colonel, had been captured. However, under United Nations terms, he was released within a month.

"As you can imagine," said Rabbi Plotkin, now chief rabbi of Temple Beth Israel at Phoenix, Ariz., "the people of Mordecai are very unhappy he did not remain behind barbed wire."

New Coins Bear Revolt Symbol

CAIRO (AP)—The Egyptian government has replaced coins with the effigy of former King Farouk by new ones. The new silver coins bear on one face the sign of the Egyptian revolution—an eagle. On the other side is engraved the amount of the coins and the name of the Egyptian republic.

Also a 25 piasters (about 71 cents) coin commemorating the nationalization of the Suez Canal will be issued soon, says a government official.

Jackie Gleason Plans Drop His Weekly Show

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—It now appears certain that Jackie Gleason will not be presenting a regular, weekly television show on CBS-TV in the 1957-58 season.

Gleason's manager George Durgom says that no contract for a weekly show has been signed with the network for next season and that Gleason does not want to continue a weekly program.

While CBS has no official comment, it is known that a new hour-length mystery program based on the adventures of Perry Mason is tentatively scheduled for Gleason's Saturday night hour.

The breaking up of the Gleason troupe is imminent. Art Carney has announced that he is separating himself from Gleason this spring. Audrey Meadows' contract is up for option in June.

After seven years Gleason has found that a weekly TV program "is physically too tough," Durgom said. This does not mean that Gleason will not be seen on television. His contract with CBS has 15 years to run—and he will be paid whether or not he works.

But Gleason likes to work—in moderation. An excellent actor, he loves show business and obviously is interested in dramatic roles. He will play himself, for example, in a Climax dramatic production next month about the life of June Taylor.

This season his audience viewing ratings have slipped below those of Perry Como, who appears opposite him on NBC-TV.

'Dead' Only On Paper, They Find

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Estrada Rendon, an assault victim, was officially dead but police couldn't find the body where it was supposed to be, in the morgue of Juarez hospital.

They were sent there by the district attorney to verify officially the death of the man who has "three wounds from a sharp knife." Rendon was known to have been given first aid by the Red Cross and then sent to the hospital.

Finally it was learned Rendon was dead only on paper and recovering fine.

Killjoys Among Milk-Drinkers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Two officials proposed that Milwaukee County stamp out the coffee break, contending the practice by county employees is costing the taxpayers one million dollars a year.

The curb was asked by Anthony Romano, of the Civil Service Commission, and C. Stanley Perry, corporation counsel. They said they drank milk.

NIT Semifinal Round At Hand

NEW YORK (AP)—It's Bradley vs. Temple and Memphis State vs. St. Bonaventure in tomorrow night's semifinals in the National Invitation basketball tourney.

Memphis State and the Bonnies won their quarterfinal games Monday night. Bradley, making his first Madison Square Garden appearance since losing to CCNY in the 1950 finals of both the NIT and NCAA, astounded the crowd of 10,543 by routing Xavier after trailing 38-17.

Shelle McMillon scored the field goal that shattered the previous NIT record of 110 made by St. Louis against Connecticut in 1955.

The second-seeded Braves from Peoria rallied to within 52-44 at the halftime before the roof fell in on Xavier. The Braves went on an almost unbelievable 40-6 tear that tore the game apart.

The tide changed with the Braves trailing by 21. "We started an all-court press then," said Bradley Coach Chuck Orsborn. "The boys knew they were going to win at half-time."

CHAPTER 10

Second Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker maintained an unvarying three miles an hour throughout the night, halting only for house-keeping stops and to graze the horses. During these times he stayed with Lieutenant Jocelyn, who seemed to live only because a core of disciplined flame in his brain forbade dying. Jocelyn was a relaxed lump on his horse, too weak to raise his head off the animal's neck, but he looked at Schwabacker with unwavering eyes.

Once he spoke: "My congratulations. Perhaps in . . . time you may grasp . . . the fundamentals of command."

There was no more talk. Schwabacker ordered the troop on. When the wet and miserable dawn broke, Captain Nathan Kincaid released a final sign and Lydia's sharp call brought Schwabacker to the rear at a trot. He entered the ambulance and found there was nothing he could say to this woman. She sat with her back braced against the side boards, her hands folded calmly in her lap. Stamped indelibly were the hard years she had spent with this man. Years of hope without end, now turned to years of emptiness.

He realized that Lydia wanted to be left alone and departed as soon as possible.

Throughout the day he continued the march and at three o'clock he saw a band of Indians on the horizon, but they did not approach too close.

Finnegan said, "Spotted Tail, sor. You beat him twice, sor. He'll never forget it."

"He isn't supposed to," Schwabacker said. Later, with Forth Laramie in sight, he looked at his watch: five o'clock exactly.

The gates swung wide for him and he drew the command into formation on the parade edge. Schwabacker dismounted with great weariness. He spoke to Finnegan, "Sergeant, dismiss the troop and offer them my compliments. Have Sergeant McGruger fetch the contract surgeon on the double." When this was done, Schwabacker stripped off his gauntlets and stood with the rain coursing down his cheeks.

Mrs. Kincaid dismounted from the ambulance, and when she saw him standing there she came up.

The officer of the day trotted across the rumbly parade and led Mrs. Kincaid to the duck boards and the sanctuary of dreary quarters near Suds Row.

On the headquarters porch the commanding officer appeared, a round little man with the inflexible instincts of the natural-born military man. He took one look at the troop and knew what kind of fight they had been in. He read victory in their scars, for there was nothing tail-between-the-legs in their manner. The contract surgeons came on the run, followed by four orderlies and two ambulances. Jocelyn was lowered to a tarp spread on the parade and almost immediately transferred to a waiting ambulance.

Schwabacker straightened and with considerable effort walked to headquarters porch, where Brevet Colonel Nelson Ashford waited. "Come inside, man," Ashford said. He glanced at Schwabacker's tenderly cradled arm. "Is that serious, Mr. Schwabacker?"

"No, sir. Merely a flesh wound." "You're a poor liar," Ashford said, closing his office door. "You're as white as curd. How bad off is Jocelyn?"

"Through a lung, sir," Schwabacker made his report, briefly but completely. His statements concerning Lieutenant Eastwood were honest, uncolored and hardly flattering. Colonel Ashford dispatched an orderly to fetch Eastwood.

When Eastwood appeared, Ashford's frown was like the gathering of thunder clouds. "Mr. Eastwood, perhaps you can account satisfactorily for this impossible report of Captain Kincaid's losing his entire command."

"Indeed I can, sir."

"And I'm also interested," Ashford said, "in your personal action during this engagement."

"I was inactive, sir," Eastwood said. "When the Indians attacked, I disputed Captain Kincaid's orders. He ordered me into the wag on under arrest. His wife will verify that, sir."

"Thank you," Ashford said. "That will be all."

Eastwood went out, closing the door softly behind him. Ashford waited a moment before speaking.

"You fought a brilliant action, Mr. Schwabacker. I'll see that it's included in my dispatch to General Cooke." He stood up and offered his hand. "You've done us a service, Mr. Schwabacker. Spotted Tail and his Cheyennes have been hanging around for a year, ever since Carrington first marched through with the 18th Infantry. Now I believe we know where we stand. Red Cloud means to use the Cheyennes to close off Wessels' supply route. That can only mean a bitter summer campaign at Kearny. Now that we're forewarned, we can be forearmed." His glance touched Schwabacker's wound. "Get over to Cove Butler's office and have that dressed. That's an order."

"Yes, sir," Schwabacker said and left immediately.

He found Cove Butler in the laboratory. "Rough patrol," Butler said. He leaned his shoulders against the wall as he towed his hands dry. He looked carefully at Emil Schwabacker, as though he too measured him, but with a newly formed opinion.

"I was glad it happened, Schwabacker said.

Butler nodded understandingly. "That looked like your parade awhile ago. From where I sat, Temple Jocelyn was just holding down his horse." Butler was a man of forty, dry-skinned and dry-humored. He seemed to regard the entire military system with a cynical amusement.

"How is he?"

"Resting," Butler said. He motioned for Schwabacker to sit down and took the bandage on the forearm. He examined Linahan's needlework, and rebanded it. "You leave me in a hole, Emil. I don't know whether to call you lieutenant or doctor."

"I'm not a doctor," Schwabacker said. "Jocelyn doesn't think I'm much of an officer either."

Butler's glance was amused. "A doctor amputated Kincaid's arm. And a doctor probed for the bullet in Jocelyn. What did you use?"

"A bent piece of wire," Schwabacker said.

"And a better job than I could have done, in either case." He turned away from his pipe. "You don't think you're much of an officer. Did Temple ever say so?"

"He doesn't have to say. He has a way of looking at a man that says enough." Schwabacker made a sweeping motion with his hand. "Go ahead, draw your own conclusions."

"Is that what I'm doing?" Butler packed and lighted his pipe. "Emil, you don't have to copy Temple Jocelyn."

"I didn't think it was that obvious," Schwabacker said. "Understand me, sir; I don't want to copy any man. It's just that he has a way about him that makes a man feel inferior. I know that feeling, sir, from a lifetime of living with it."

Butler puffed on his pipe for a moment. "What bothers you, Emil? Are you afraid of making a mistake Temple Jocelyn wouldn't have made? Something he'll hold against you?"

Before Schwabacker could answer the connecting door opened and Dr. Kiseiden came in. He said, "I've completed an examination of Jocelyn. The breast bone deflected the bullet to one side and only a portion of the lung was touched. Just enough to cause respiratory bleeding."

Budget-Cut Prospect Has Revived Tax-Slashing Talk

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of budget cuts today revived talk in Congress of income tax reduction.

Requested Stage Show In Morgue

BALTIMORE (AP) — The St. Davids Players decided a hall to stage "HMS Pinafore" May 24-25. Richard D. Byrd decided to call Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of city schools. He dialed City Hall and asked for Dr. Fischer. Identifying himself, he said, "We would like the use of your facilities for our production, doctor." "Are you kidding?" asked the voice on the other end. Assured Byrd was serious, he said, "It's fine with me but I've never heard of anyone putting on 'HMS Pinafore' at the city morgue."

Byrd was talking to Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner. There is a shipworm which causes millions of dollars worth of damage each year, says the National Geographic Society. It has a sharp shell which mines through the wooden timbers of ships.

spending by as much as three or four billion dollars might start a stampede for general tax relief. But the strong possibility remained that even if the budget is cut substantially, tax cuts "could be delayed until next year when Congress members could learn the actual size of a surplus, rather than an estimate of it."

President Eisenhower's budget estimates show an anticipated surplus of $1,700,000,000 for this fiscal year ending June 30, and $1,800,000,000 for fiscal 1958. If the President's 1958 spending budget of $71,800,000,000 is cut by three billion dollars, as some Appropriations Committee members say can be done, the government would start its new business year next July 1 with a prospect surplus of nearly five billion dollars.

Some leaders feel that such a situation might make it impossible to head off demands for general tax relief.

Thus far, Capitol Hill has been in general agreement with the Eisenhower administration that tax reduction is "out" because of its inflationary aspects at a time when curbs are being placed on credit expansion. The administration has contended also that any surplus should go toward reducing the national debt.

Rep. Mills (D-Ark), influential member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee who frequently reflects the attitude of House leaders, said:

"If we can create three or four billion dollars of surplus through reduction of expenditures, I would want the American taxpayer to enjoy a part of that reduction."

Rep. McCarthy (D-Minn.), also a member of the committee, said in response to a reporter's questions that in the event of a large surplus Congress might have to cut taxes "for the sake of the economy."

He said "a surplus of $1,800,000,000 probably would be about all the economy could carry."

Rep. Eberharter (D-Pa), another committee member, predicted that a Ways and Means subcommittee "without doubt" will recommend later this session a reduction in federal excise (sales) taxes of about 900 million dollars.

Rep. Reed of New York, the senior Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, told a reporter that he didn't expect the House to vote tax reduction until 1958, an election year.

Finally Learned Fate Of $430

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Tom Brett, Oklahoma Civil Defense director, finally has learned what happened to $430 in federal funds sent last Oct. 30 to a defense director in a small northwest Oklahoma town. The check was to go toward purchasing a disaster warning system. It was never cashed. The director died unexpectedly and Brett started investigating to learn what happened to the missing money.

Finally, he questioned employees at the late director's newspaper plant. Brett had mailed the check in the same type of envelope used for press releases.

"He always threw those in the waste basket without opening them," Brett was told.

Terms It Futile To Curb Output

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson told a press conference yesterday it is futile to try to hold down production.

"Emphasis should be on research for new markets and new products," he said. "Our problem is to learn to live with abundance."

He advocated sale of farm products in any amounts available to Communist countries provided deals favorable to the United States are offered. He said, "The prohibition against dealing with Red China and Russia should be eliminated."

Oil Boom Hits Downtown Area

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An oil boom is developing near the downtown area of Los Angeles. Three movie studios, a large chunk of Hollywood and a Los Angeles residential area constitute the parcel of several hundred acres that the Union Oil Co. is leasing with the intention of drilling this summer.

RKO and Columbia studios have signed leases, a spokesman said, and Paramount is coming in on the deal.

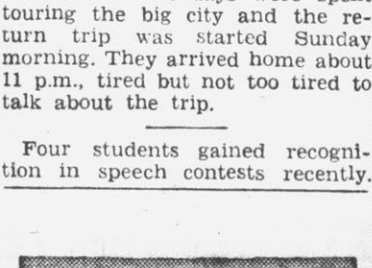

Chicod Class Back From Annual Tour

By IVA LOU BRUNSON
Chicod School Reporter
Members of the Senior Class returned home Sunday night from their annual trip to Washington, D. C., and New York City.

They left Chicod last Tuesday about 5 a.m. and went to Mount Vernon where they had a picnic lunch after touring the house and grounds. After lunch they went to Washington where they spent Tuesday afternoon touring the national capitol. One of the highlights of the afternoon tour was a walk up the steps of the Washington Monument.

After spending Tuesday night and Wednesday morning in Washington, the Seniors hit the road for New York. Five days were spent touring the big city and the return trip was started Sunday morning. They arrived home about 11 p.m., tired but not too tired to talk about the trip.

Four students gained recognition in speech contests recently.

Winston-Salem Meet For State FBLA Unit

Forty-seven chapters of the Future Business Leaders of America in North Carolina high schools and colleges will be represented in Winston-Salem Friday and Saturday, March 29-30, when the state FBLA organization will stage its second annual convention. Approximately 300 delegates are expected to attend events held at the Robert E. Lee Hotel.

Dr. James L. White of the department of business education at East Carolina College, state advisor of the FBLA, has announced the program for the two-day meeting. Included will be three sessions, a series of contests, group meetings, and a banquet and dance. The theme of the convention this year is "Better Business Leaders."

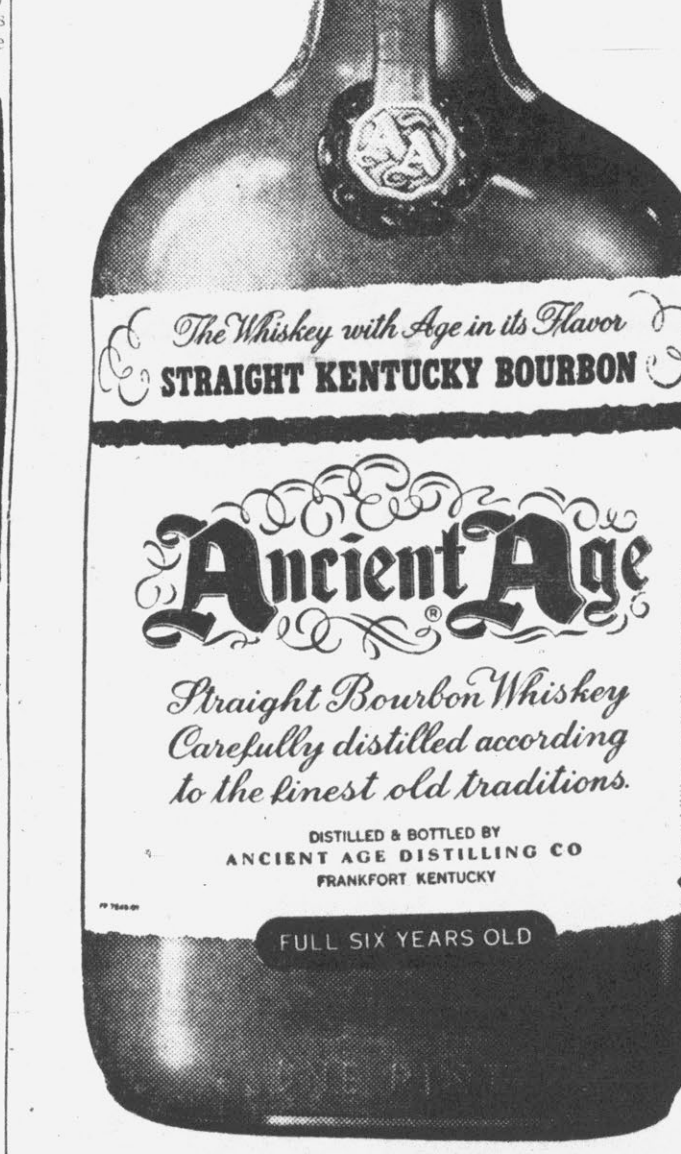

Principal speakers will be Charles E. Zoubek, shorthand editor of the Gregg Publishing Co., New York, and H. A. Davis, company secretary of Occidental Life Insurance Company, Raleigh. Mr. Zoubek will give a speed demonstration-lecture of short-

Mr. Davis, speaking Saturday morning at the second general session, will discuss the topic "Prestige." He has been active in many civic and cultural organizations of the state interested in programs for youth. The third general session Saturday afternoon will include a talent contest conducted by the FBLA chapter of the Randeman High School. Saturday afternoon's program will be devoted to a series of contests and group discussions of topics of interest to students of business.

British Prime Minister Expected Urge Full U.S. Support For Israel

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan meet on this Atlantic island today to try to restore British-American cooperation in the Middle East.

Macmillan during the four-day conference was expected to urge the strongest possible U.S. support of Israeli security interests in the Gaza Strip and shipping rights through the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez Canal.

The British are reported to feel that the U. S. government, having prevailed on Israel to withdraw its troops, is honor bound to support Israel actively in the present stage of the contest with Egypt.

Before leaving London Macmillan made it clear his prime purpose will be to restore understanding and friendship with the United States.

"This is one occasion when the British will be quite frank and I feel sure the Americans will be quite frank about what they feel," he said, adding he was confident "a great deal will be gained" from a frank exchange.

A military reception, complete with the precision-trained honor guard of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, was well rehearsed for Eisenhower's arrival.

But Bermuda officials said a prospect of wet weather would result in cancellation of outdoor ceremonies and substitution of a simple indoor welcome by Macmillan and Lt. Gen. Sir John Woodall, governor of the British colony.

No one wanted to risk a relapse in Eisenhower's throat condition by causing him to stand outside in the rain for 20 minutes.

Secretary of State Dulles was scheduled to arrive by air.

The formal talks between Eisenhower, Macmillan and their advisers will begin tomorrow in the drawing room of Bermuda's exclusive Mid-Ocean Club, where all four of the top men at the luncheon conference are staying.

It seemed certain, however, that informal discussions would start tonight.

Problems to be taken up range over the world, but the Middle East holds priority. It was over that strategic, turbulent region that the United States split with Britain and France last November because of their attack on Egypt. And it is there that the greatest dangers to peace exist today.

Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, in an interview published yesterday, said his army would march again if Egypt tried to block Israel's "historic and legal passage" of Israeli shipping through the Gulf of Aqaba. British diplomats speculate Israel also will retaliate with force if border raids are resumed from the Gaza Strip, which Egypt is now taking over from U.N. forces.

Concern over the possibility of such a move by Israel is heightened by the belief that every new outbreak in the Middle East gives the Soviet Union an opportunity to increase its influence, working through the Egyptian President Nasser's government.

Another major problem for Britain and France is the future operation of the Suez Canal, now under Nasser's full control. The United States is committed along with other Allied and friendly nations to seek an operating set-up for the canal "insulating" it from political manipulation by Nasser.

How to do this is a prime question for the Bermuda meeting. The hard fact which confronts the Western Allies is that since the collapse of the attack on Egypt last fall, the West no longer seems to have at hand any effective pressures to bring to bear on Nasser.

Big New Rocket Using Solid Fuel Put Under Test

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—A big new rocket engine, using solid instead of hard-to-handle liquid fuel for powering an intermediate range ballistic missile, has been developed and put under test.

This was disclosed today in a routine annual report to stockholders by the General Tire Co., which seemed to contain considerably more information about some weapons than has been announced by the Defense Department. The report said the new rocket motor went into its testing stage last October.

The motor was designed by the company's Aerojet-General Corp. and, said the report, is "the largest solid propellant power plant ever used in any ballistic missile."

The motor was developed for the Jupiter IRBM, the company reports.

However, Army experts told a newsmen that Jupiter IRBM program does not now include use of a solid instead of liquid fuel. This appeared to indicate the new rocket engine may be intended for use by the Navy in its Polaris IRBM. The Navy started out with the Army on joint development of the Jupiter, but a few months ago announced plans to go ahead with its own project.

For reasons of handling and stowage aboard ships at sea, the Navy favors a solid fuel instead of the fuming nitric acid and oxidizer used generally in Army and Air Force ballistic missiles.

The annual report also mentions these hitherto little known developments:

1. A new type of motor for torpedoes, using solid fuel like that for rockets instead of the traditional compressed air or alcohol-powered motors.

2. Development of a mine-searching "mini-sub" for the British admiralty.

3. A power plant for the Bullpup guided missile, a Navy weapon used for attack from planes against ships and other surface targets.

4. Development of a liquid-fueled booster for launching the Air Force's long-range Bomarc missile.

General Cites Plastic Future

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Plastics may shape the jet age future and determine America's aviation superiority, says Brig. Gen. Thomas L. Bryan Jr., commander of the Wright Air Development Center. He told the Society of Plastics Industry "We think we have the theory to pilot an aircraft 10 years from now at five times the speed of sound, and I think we could get to the moon now if we had the proper materials. We know how to do these things, but we just don't have the necessary things to do them with. Materials have become the key to our continued progress in aviation and to our superiority in the air."

Panama City was called the "Jewel of New Spain" in pioneer days because so much gold and jewels came through there from South America to be sent to Spain.

Rare Albino Was Surprise Guest

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—First it was skunks invading Stillwater in search of food.

And then workers in the municipal building got even a bigger start when a white, furry animal started walking around.

Patrolmen Don Prickett and Oscar Davis cornered the animal and it was identified as an albino opossum—a real rarity in these parts.

New Commander At Marine Depot

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—The Parris Island Marine Training Depot switched commandants today.

Maj. Gen. Homer L. Litzenberg officially ended his tour.

He is being transferred to Korea where he will be a member of the Military Armistice Commission.

Until his replacement, Brig. Gen. George R. E. Shell, arrives, Brig. Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr. will act as commandant. Greene is now head of the Parris-Island recruit training.

Collectors Like Guidance Title

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The men whose business it is to collect delinquent accounts don't want to be known as bill collectors. They would rather be thought of as "guidance workers" helping people who have mismanaged their budgets.

That was the opinion expressed by collection agents attending a central states conference of the American Collectors' Assn.

"People need assistance to get out of debt and modern collectors try to help those people," said Paul A. Root, operator of a collection bureau at Ann Arbor, Mich.

400-Pound Fish Jumped Into Boat

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carlsen were fishing with four friends in the Gulf of Mexico when a 400-pound devilfish, apparently trying to shake three sucker fish attached to its underside, jumped into the boat.

The impact broke the engine box to splinters and bent the steering column and gear shift. Mrs. Carlsen suffered a broken arm. The fish thrashed wildly in the bottom of the boat. It was brought ashore at Punta Rasa and shot. Mrs. Carlsen was taken to a hospital.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market moved cautiously higher under the leadership of steels, copper and aluminum early this afternoon. Rails lagged and utilities tilted slightly lower.

Trading was a little more active. Pivotal industrial stocks were generally ahead fractions to slightly more than a point.

A feeling the Middle East tension may have eased a bit helped the rise. Traders also noted a Federal Reserve Board forecast of continued growth in installment buying over the next decade.

In early dealings steels, oils and drugs showed a firm undertone. Later the aluminum group came in for a play on the ground these stocks may have been oversold in the steep slump from 1956-57 highs.

Special situations continued to attract attention. American Motors was actively traded, forging ahead as George Romney, president, met with Louis Wolfson, the major stockholder, at Miami.

After their meeting, the two said they had had a "very satisfactory discussion" concerning the future of the concern, but would not give specifics. Romney said he would go into details at a news conference in Detroit tomorrow.

American Motors stock opened at 8, up 1/4 on an 18,000 share block. Later it sold at 8 1/4, up 1/4.

Other special situations included Zenith, up 1/4 on reports the Federal Communications Commission may soon hand down a decision on pay-as-you-go television.

In the copper group Kennecott, inspired its rise of the previous session, continued largely by news sales were exceeding production. It gained 1/4. Anaconda advanced a major fraction.

Gains in the aluminum group were paced by Aluminum, Ltd., up 2, while Kaiser forged ahead a point and Alcoa a major fraction.

Gulf and Amstar led the upturn in the oil and chemical group. Gulf and Amstar paced gains in aircraft manufacturing.

U.S. Hoffman Machinery, recently very active, added 1/2 to its gain of the previous day.

Chemicals did not fare well. Dow and Union Carbide were both under pressure, giving up fractional ground. But Du Pont gained 1/2.

Another laggard group in the industrial list was motors, with the exception of American Motors. General Motors lost a fraction.

The rails failed to join in the rally. Prices changed in this group were small. Seaboard lost 1/4 while Southern gained a similar amount.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents at $173.90 with the industrials up 50 cents, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Prized Award Is Presented Scout

FARMVILLE—Shirley Ryan of Farmville Explorer Troop 25 was presented the God and Country award in ceremonies Sunday afternoon.

The Town and Country award is a Protestant scouting award and is available to any scout who meets the requirements set forth in the three different stages.

The stages are: (1) To qualify for the award the boy must be a First Class scout by the time the requirements are met; (2) The scout must work directly with the minister of his denomination, with the minister approving each project upon completion; and (3) To qualify for the award the boy works primarily on projects assigned him dealing with the religious aspects of his church.

Ryan received the award during ceremonies at the Emmanuel Episcopal church. Dr. Robert Wilfong, advancement chairman for the Pitt Scouting District, summarized the requirements after which Rev. A. Hum Cox, rector of the church, blessed and presented the award to the Farmville scout.

of the house and managed to walk to the church located on South Alley a little more than a block from the scene of the stabbing.

According to the witness, the injured man stated that he was out of breath and wanted to rest. Prayer then said that he went on and found Policeman Corbett who called the Rescue Squad. Kilpatrick was transferred to Pitt Memorial. He died in the emergency room at approximately 10:30 p.m.

Elizabeth Cross, the woman arguing with Kilpatrick, took the stand and verified the facts previously stated by the first witness. She also brought out the fact that the injured man did not at any time pull a razor out of his pocket or try to harm her.

The last witness, Policeman Corbett, was called to take the stand and related to the Coroner's Jury how he found Kilpatrick near the church on South Alley and the procedure of the arrest of the Smith woman.

Corbett stated that shortly after the bleeding man was taken to the hospital, he, Lt. J. W. Piver and Pl. R. E. Joyner went to the scene of the stabbing and then to the Smith woman's home at 519 Davis Street where they found Elizabeth Cross and the accused. Both were taken to police headquarters, with Ella Mae Smith being arrested and locked in jail on charges of murder. The arrest was made shortly after 9 p.m. Friday.

Shot In The Back
ROANOKE RAPIDS — Police officer J.F. Stanley was shot in the back yesterday about noon and a Roanoke Rapids man is being held in city jail without privilege of bond.

Albert Conner, 47, is being held on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and causing serious injury. Stanley, along with two other police officers, had gone to the Conner residence to serve a warrant for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. The warrant had been sworn by Conner's wife after he had threatened her with a shotgun. The wounded policeman is in satisfactory condition according to reports from medical authorities.

AHOSKIE — Albert E. Freeman, advertising and business manager of the Hertford County Herald for the past four and one-half years, is resigning the last of March to take a similar position with the Mount Holly, N.J. Herald.

John W. (Jack) Mitchell, business manager of the Bertie Ledger-Advance at Windsor and president of the Windsor Chamber of Commerce will succeed Freeman who has also been active in the business and civic life of his adopted community.

Appropriate $20,000
KINSTON — The Board of County Commissioners Monday afternoon agreed to appropriate $20,000 towards purchase of the Mitchell property for the Kinston Public Library and to pay one-half the cost of renovating the existing building on the site for library purposes contingent on a similar appropriation from the City Council.

The Board had informally agreed to the action as an ex officio meeting held out of session on March 4, but the decision was never officially recorded in the minutes. Monday's action made the decision official.

Youth Arrested In Store Theft
Greenville police arrested David K. Cradle, 16-year-old Negro youth of 1113 West Fifth Street, yesterday afternoon on charges of larceny of a sweater from Blount-Harvey Company.

The enforcement officers were given an assist by an employee of the local firm who observed the young boy leaving the store with the sweater and caught him after giving chase down Evans Street.

After Cradle was caught, he was turned over to the police. The sweater was valued at $5.95, it was reported.
