Airman Is Bound Over For Grand Jury In Slaying

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

Theodore Boyd, a clean-cut Air Force enlisted man from Winterville, has been bound over for grand jury action in the knife slaying of Joe Arthur Tyson.

Boyd's bond was reduced from $5,000 to $2,000 in his preliminary hearing, to $2,000 by Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse who conducted the inquest in City Court room last night.

An orderly large crowd witnessed the inquest and was extremely quiet as the Coroner's Jury announced that probable cause had been found in Tyson's death and recommended the accused be bound over for grand jury action.

The verdict climaxed a thorough and contested inquest. A parade of witnesses took the stand during the course of testimony. According to their statements the two men were "playing and kidding around" at the time of the cutting.

The incident took place in front of the Tropicana Club on Bonners Lane Sunday night at approximately 10:30 p.m. Shortly after the slaying, Boyd returned to the club after taking his girlfriend, Hazel Waters, to her home in Grimesland. Upon his arrival a Greenville police officer took him into custody and turned him over to investigating officers.

Boyd stated, "I did not know that I had cut Joe. We were good friends and I did not mean to hurt him." Witnesses substantiated this.

According to witnesses no one knew that Tyson had been seriously cut. He asked Melvin Brooks Lincoln, of Winterville, to take him to Pitt Memorial Hospital but he died enroute. Medical authorities stated that death came as result of excessive loss of blood.

Greenville attorney J. W. H. Fire Damages Some Items In City Jail Cell

Damages amounted to approximately $162.50 as a result of a fire in the city jail yesterday afternoon.

Roberts assisted Coroner Rouse during the inquest. Louis W. Gaylord served as counsel for the accused.

The first witness called to the stand was Paul Sugg, a friend of both the murdered man and the accused, who was standing nearby when the cutting took place. After him came the following: Hazel Waters; Lt. R. E. Rogerson of the Greenville Police Department; Milton Carmon, a friend of both men from Winterville; Melvin Brooks Lincoln who took Tyson to the hospital; and Joseph Bell, three Air Force officers from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro were present but were not asked to take the stand.

Sugg, the first witness, underwent a thorough questioning by both Gaylord and Roberts. He said that he had borrowed Boyd's car and had gone to the Casino. After about an interval of one hour, he returned with several more boys and proceeded to park the car in front of the Tropicana.

Shortly after arriving Sugg stated that Boyd told him that he was ready to go home and proceeded to get into his parked automobile. About this time Tyson came in and started kidding with Boyd but the witness said, "I didn't know what they were talking about."

The deceased struck at Boyd who almost immediately returned the blow as he was getting into the car.

After the incident, the accused drove off with his girl but Sugg added, "As far as I know Theodore did not know he had cut Joe."

The next witness, Hazel Waters, stated, "I did not hear the conversation between Joe and Theodore." She added that she didn't know Tyson, and did not know that he was dead "until police officers came to my house Monday night."

According to Milton Carmon, who was standing next to Tyson before he was cut, he came over to the car and asked Boyd, "Who is that babe?" After making the statement, Carmon testified that he swung at the accused with his hand in a "joking sort of way."

"Everyone was smiling during this time," added Carmon and there was no arguing going on. Boyd, in a statement to investigating officers, said that he had known Tyson for a number of years and they "were the best of friends." He maintained that he did not mean to hurt the young 18-year-old Negro and "was only playing and kidding around."

Growers Voice General Okay To Controls Plan

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Sen. Scott D-NC convened his tobacco subcommittee here today for the last of two weeks of hearings throughout the Southern tobacco belt on proposed new controls.

The subcommittee has met in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and yesterday in Wilson, N.C.

The controls, which Scott proposed would regulate tobacco production on a combination of acreage limitation alone. Proponents argue that the proposal contains the answer to marketing problems caused by heavy production of some leaf grades.

In Wilson yesterday, growers generally favored the proposal but some offered terse, emphatic objection.

Sam A. Yancey of Fuquay, a grower, declared: "The people who will benefit (under the new plan are the ones who got us in the fix we're in today."

"Next thing you know, they'll come along with a bill to regulate how many eggs a hen can lay and how many gallons of milk a cow can give."

On the other side, J. B. Teague of Henderson said: "The bill is not perfect. But I still favor it 100 per cent with its imperfections."

Paul Swisher, Colorado agriculture commissioner, said the storm "might be the forerunner of the end of the drought" that set in eight years ago.

Three Denver men died of heart attacks while shoveling snow or pushing automobiles stuck in the mushy drifts. Two men died in traffic accidents blamed on poor visibility.

Thousands Watched In Fear And Awe As Twister Hit Dallas

By WHITEY SAWYER

DALLAS (AP) — A huge tornado that spun out of an ominous, black cloud cut a deadly 21-mile path across Dallas yesterday afternoon as thousands watched in fear and awe. Nine persons were killed.

As rescue workers searched the wreckage for others still reported missing, the Weather Bureau warned that more tornadoes could be expected. A heavy rain fell.

Some 196 injured persons were treated at hospitals. Unofficial estimates placed the injured as high as 400.

No official estimate of damage had been made, but Asst. Police Chief Jess Curry said it would be more than 1 1/2 million dollars.

Unofficial estimates said 800 homes and business buildings were destroyed or damaged.

Tornadoes also plowed into southern Oklahoma and killed at least five persons. Another person was killed near Paris, Tex., as a series of tornadoes skipped around north Texas.

The tornado lashed out of a black rainstorm. An estimated hundred thousand people watched as it swayed a leisurely, jerky course from South Oak Cliff through west Dallas and north-west Dallas. For 40 horror-filled minutes the lashing funnel filled the dark sky above a frozen city.

Passengers and crew of a Braniff Airlines plane watched from the air as the plane circled after takeoff from Dallas' Love Field. Traffic piled up into fantastic jams all over western Dallas.

"Oh, lawd, it roared down like a freight train and then was on us tearing our house down," Robert Thurman, 31, sobbed. Blood oozed from a wound in his head.

He trembled from shock as he sat beside his injured wife at Parkland Hospital.

The hospital was jammed with crying, wailing, bloody people. There were dozens of children, many numb and soaked with blood.

Four of the dead were children, including three in one family. One was a month-old girl and the three brothers and sisters, aged 5, 3, and 2 years.

The funnel was one of a series of twisters which hopped over the state. Other scattered injuries and damage were reported. A wide band of the northwest part of Texas was under a severe weather warning.

Panic rose in the streets as traffic piled up.

"I've got to get out of this jam—it's hitting my house and my wife is home," a tearful old man begged and cried.

Many simply abandoned their autos, fearing the tornado was heading toward them. Police cars and ambulances, their sirens screaming, fought for passage.

The tornado was first spotted near Red Bird Airport, about 10 miles south of the heart of this north central Texas city of half a million. It then plowed northward like a giant top, spinning through residential, business and manufacturing areas. It slammed through Oak Cliff, part of the Trinity industrial district, west Dallas and on to the north.

It finally broke up near Love Field, northwest of downtown Dallas.

The base of the funnel apparently varied from 150 to 500 feet in width. Huge pieces of debris were whirled an estimated 2,000 feet into the air and sailed out sideways as the twister smashed houses, businesses, trees and vehicles. Brilliant flashes kept hopping about the base as power and trolley-bus lines snapped.

The twister slammed into a Negro district of small frame houses in west Dallas, leveling 46 of them in a three- or four-block area. Nearly 50 persons were injured there.

Police evacuated a 13-block area where 197 homes were destroyed.

Ike Slaps Down Resigning Rumor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today reports he will resign before the end of his second term and turn his duties over to Vice President Nixon are the worst rot he has heard since taking office.

Eisenhower also told a news conference, in comment on his speedy trip to Gettysburg, Pa., last Friday, he has issued orders that his limousine is never to exceed the speed limit at any place.

A reporter told Eisenhower there have been reports and rumors lately that he might step out of the presidency, when world conditions permit, and have Nixon take over.

Eisenhower appeared to register some surprise. Then he said emphatically those reports are the worst rot he has heard since he has been in office.

Showing irritation, he said he knows of no reason why any speculative writer should doubt his basic integrity and honesty.

He recalled that at the time he announced for a second term he reported that his doctors felt he was able to carry on, and that he himself had decided he was able to do so.

Eisenhower added he had no idea where the reports that he might resign came from.

The first question at the news conference was a request for comment on the fast trip to Gettysburg last weekend.

A reporter told him the trip got a lot of attention because news-men trying to keep up with his car were flagged down for speeding.

With a slow smile, Eisenhower replied that he did not mind at all expressing his views on the subject.

For a good many years, he went on, he has used the back seat of his car to carry on conferences.

He said that on the trip last Friday he was engaged in a conference. He made the journey with

Col. Walter R. Tkach, assistant White House Physician. Because of that conference, Eisenhower said, he had no idea of his limousine's speed.

The driver was a Secret Service man. Eisenhower said he now has issued orders that his car should never exceed the speed limit at any place.

With that, Eisenhower chided the newsmen a bit, saying that several of them had been accompanying him on his travels for years. And none of them, he said, ever before had brought to his attention that he had caused any of them any inconvenience.

On other matters: TAXES AND BUDGET—Eisenhower said he certainly hopes there can be a tax cut before the end of his second term but he declined to speculate as to just when a reduction may be possible.

As for the administration's $71,800,000,000 budget for the new fiscal year, beginning July 1, Eisenhower said he sees no chance for what he called a substantial cut such as two billion dollars.

But efforts are being made constantly to find ways to achieve savings, he said, adding that the goal is to tighten up wherever possible without abandoning essential programs.

In the specific field of foreign aid, Eisenhower noted he said last week that some savings might be possible in the military aspect of that program, as well as in certain other areas.

But he said the administration still is committed to its basic request for $4,400,000,000 in mutual security aid for the new fiscal year.

CHINESE ISLANDS — Eisenhower said he never has given the Chinese Nationalists any assurance the United States would help defend the islands of Quemoy and Matsu if Red China attempted to take them.

Jubilation After Spring Snowfall

DENVER (AP) — The heaviest spring snowstorm in 22 years moved out of the Rocky Mountain states today, leaving five dead and abundant water for the area pinched by drought since 1949.

Jubilant farm leaders said the stacks of snow—some as high as five feet—on the mountain watersheds more than offset any livestock losses. The parched plains were drenched with rain and snow.

Schools in Denver, Cheyenne, Wyo., and most other cities joined in jubilation in closing down until tomorrow.

Rail, highway and air travel—snarled and erratic for 36 hours—was due to return to normal today.

Heaviest snowfalls were reported in the mountains and in cities along the eastern slope of the Rockies. Denver measured 16 inches— heaviest spring fall since 20 inches in April 1935—Colorado Springs 15, Cheyenne, Wyo., 10 and Leadville, two miles high in the central Colorado Rockies, 27 inches.

"This is the greatest thing that could have happened moisture-wise to our state," said Gov. Steve McNichols of Colorado.

Paul Swisher, Colorado agriculture commissioner, said the storm "might be the forerunner of the end of the drought" that set in eight years ago.

Three Denver men died of heart attacks while shoveling snow or pushing automobiles stuck in the mushy drifts. Two men died in traffic accidents blamed on poor visibility.

Colorado Springs, 70 miles south of Denver, received the heaviest blower from the storm. City Forester Fred McKown said the damage to trees was the worst since a September 1935 storm.

Scores of utility and telephone lines in the Colorado Springs area snapped under the weight of falling tree limbs.

Red Cross officials declared Colorado Springs a disaster area and throughout yesterday a score of jeeps, manned by El Paso County sheriff deputies, ran emergency errands. These included supplying medicines and special foods to stranded householers.

According to reports, the woman drowned after falling out of the boat in which she and her husband Frank Manning of Greenville Rt. 6 were riding. The accident occurred approximately one-half mile below the Pillsbury bridge on the Belvoir-Falkland Road.

Officers said that the husband tried unsuccessfully to save his wife. After his vain attempt, Manning went to a nearby store for help.

A searching party found the body tangled in some bushes near the Tar River shore before the Greenville Rescue Squad arrived at the scene. The body had been in the water approximately one hour when she was found.

Members of the Rescue Squad gave the woman artificial respiration for a little more than 90 minutes but were unsuccessful in their attempts to revive her. A member of the party that initially found the body gave her artificial respiration while she was being transferred from the point of the drowning to the boat landing located by the bridge.

Two Reapportionment Plans Now Face Legislators

RALEIGH (AP)—The General Assembly is faced with two legislative reapportionment plans and a resolution calling on it to reapportion its membership on the basis of the 1950 census.

The latest plan was proposed yesterday by a coalition of 19 senators. It caused the Senate to postpone until April 10 a showdown on the controversial issue.

The new plan would amend the state constitution so that House membership would be reduced from 120 to 100 and the Senate membership would be increased from 50 to 60.

law school, when amendment was sent up by Sen. R. Lee Whitmire of Henderson proposing the new plan.

Two bills are pending to carry out recommendations of the Weathers commission. These would: (1) increase House membership from 120 to 150, (2) limit any county to two senators, (3) limit one senatorial district to four counties, and (4) set up a reapportionment commission to handle the task of reapportioning if the Legislature should fail to act.

Meanwhile, Sen. Seavy Carroll of Cumberland, one of the sponsors of the Whitmire amendment, offered a resolution which would pledge the General Assembly to remain in session until it reapportioned on the basis of the 1950 census in accordance with present constitutional provisions.

The 1951, 1953 and 1955 Legislatures declined to reapportion. If reapportionment were carried out on the basis of the 1950 census, Mecklenburg and Guilford counties would have two senators instead of one and Alamance and Rockingham counties would have two representatives instead of one. Pitt and Cabarrus would have one House member instead of two.

Carroll, noting that he favors the Whitmire plan to change the basis of representation in the House and Senate, said he felt the Legislature should first abide by present constitutional provisions.

Under Whitmire's proposal, there would be a representative from each county. The 10 additional senators would be allocated, at first, as follows: 20th District, Mecklenburg two; 17th, Guilford two; 22nd, Forsyth one; 31st, Buncombe one, 7th, Carteret and Lenoir one; 10th, Cumberland and Bladen one; 13th, Lee and Wake one; and 9th, Pender and Sampson one.

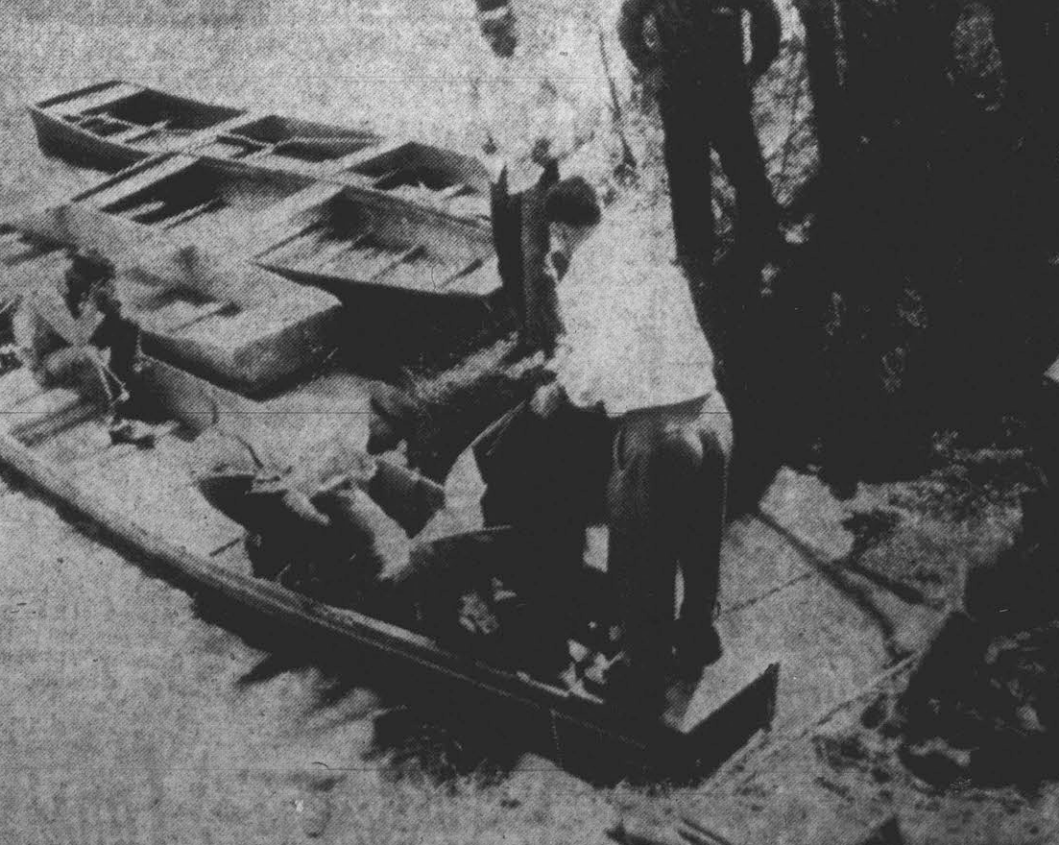

Under the proposal, the 1961 Legislature would have the duty of establishing new senatorial districts, based on the 1960 census, to provide for the election of the 60 senators.

Meanwhile, other major legislative happenings yesterday included

The House, after a flurry of debate, killed a bill which would have given judges discretion in the revocation of drivers' licenses.

Senate Judiciary 2 Committee approved a "work release" plan under which some prisoners would be allowed to work at their jobs by day and stay in prison cells at night. Several amendments were adopted, one of which would allow only misdemeanants to be sentenced under the plan. Another would make it possible for local jails as well as state prison camps to be used under the plan.

Housewife Fools The Doctors

MRS CATHERINE ALLEN... Successful head of Kansas City Vari-type firm watches an assistant, Mrs. Dorothy Thomas, operate one of the machines in her busy downtown office.

By RAY STEPHENS
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ten years ago a physician told Mrs. Catherine Allen she never would walk again.

He couldn't have been more wrong in his wheelchair diagnosis.

Not only has the 45-year-old Kansas City housewife learned to walk again, she also has converted what could have been a tragedy into a business which grossed $60,000 last year.

It was a bleak day in 1947 when a 10-ton truck crashed into the car which Mrs. Allen was driving near Kansas City. Her right leg virtually was crushed in the accident.

"You'll never walk again," the doctor told me," says Mrs. Allen. "But I just knew that if I got a wheelchair, I might as well give up."

"Instead I insisted on being put into crutches. One doctor did say that if I wanted to walk badly enough, I would do it, providing I could stand the pain."

For three long months after she left the hospital, Mrs. Allen was confined to her home while she worked to regain use of the leg. She couldn't keep house for her husband, Kenneth, and their three sons.

So, with too much time on her hands, Mrs. Allen began looking for something that she could do. Using the last $600 of the money she had obtained in a settlement as a result of the accident, Mrs. Allen purchased a second-hand Vari-typewriter. This machine is operated in much the same manner as a typewriter, and produced type of various sizes.

"I worked at it until I felt I had it mastered, and then I called on printers, stationery firms, churches and anyone else I thought might have use for such work," Mrs. Allen says.

She set up an office in the dining room of her home, but within 18 months the business had grown too large for the house. Mrs. Allen borrowed $2,000, hired another woman to help her, and moved into a one-room office in downtown Kansas City.

Today, the company is in its third office, and 13 persons are employed by Mrs. Allen. The company specializes in producing layouts for catalogues, but also handles special jobs for printing companies.

Clio Club Has Music Program

The Clio Book Club was entertained by Mrs. Ed Wilkerson at her home in Brookgreen on Tuesday afternoon. Upon arrival the guests were served a delicious salad plate with coffee followed by a sweet course. Background musical records were played throughout the afternoon.

During the short business meeting Mrs. Dink James, president, stressed the importance of each one taking part in the clean up campaign. The club also voted to send a donation to the Cancer Drive.

When Mrs. Wilkerson introduced her speaker for the afternoon the members were surprised to know the club president was to be speaker. Mrs. James had chosen as her subject for a paper "Women In Music." She showed women as the inspiration for many musical scores but pointed out that few have been creators of great music. Mrs. James stated, "Woman has inspired the creations and then interpreted them to the world through her voice. Many may possess the intellect behind musical composition, woman as its heart and soul. What she has not done with music matters little compared with the great glory and beauty she has given to music."

Following the exchange of books the club adjourned.

Hostess Has High Tea For Book Club Members

High tea was served when the End of the Century Book Club met with Mrs. E. W. Harvey and Mrs. J. Picklen Arthur.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. C. B. Brooks of Kinston, Mrs. C. Wesley Harvey Jr., Miss Elizabeth Copeland and Miss Louise Fleming of Raleigh.

Old fashioned bouquets of camellias, jonquils, flowering almond and anemones accented the lower floor of the Arthur place.

Dr. A. D. Frank, guest speaker for the afternoon, summarized current trends in present day affairs. Beginning with Iran and the unfortunate kidnaping situation, he continued to say that in his opinion the Mid-East situation is chronic and will not be solved for many years, but that any fighting should remain localized and spasmodic.

Of special importance was Dr. Frank's plea to the members that they support all state bills and legislation now pending to promote highway safety and that they increase their supports of bills for more and better public schools.

Womer: In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Speaking to the leaders of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church recently, the denomination's home missions secretary, Dr. W. Vernon Middleton, of Philadelphia, asked, "Is America really a Christian nation?" Answering his own query, he noted: "Consider, for example, the rise of juvenile delinquency in our land. The authorities point out to us that the largest increase is among teen-age girls. We all know that each local church in America has a responsibility to youth, but we also know that the breeding place of crimes is usually the centers of the great cities, from which Protestant churches have retreated. When we become aware that crime and disease spread from the urban centers to every other place where people live, then we begin to realize the seriousness of the challenge of America as a mission field. Then again, we have discovered that our religious majorities have not been too concerned over the increased use of drugs and alcoholic beverages, gambling, the excessive emphasis on sex which is flaunted before us at every opportunity and the petty dishonesties of life. These aspects of human conduct produce the soil in which flourish non-Christian attitudes and actions."

A survey of ministers in the Scandinavian countries reveals that of 476 women trained in theology in recent years, only four are ordained ministers serving parishes. And the four are all serving in Denmark, where they are, in addition, 25 more young women studying for theological degrees. The survey noted that in Sweden and Finland there is no legislation permitting women to take holy orders; and in Norway, where such an Act was recently passed, no woman has yet applied for ecclesiastical appointment. It is noted also that there are 256 women graduates of theology in Finland, of whom 20 per cent are employed as parish workers; 160 in Sweden, of whom only a few are directly engaged in parish work; and 35 in Norway, of whom one is employed at a hospital, and two are in parish work.

Stage Courtesy For Latecomers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Arthur Treacher was most accommodating when a group of about 35 women arrived at the Fred Miller theater ten minutes after the start of the play starring the British born actor.

Treacher paused in his lines, stepped into the aisle and helped an usher seat the women. "I suppose it would help you to know what has gone on before," he said on returning to the stage. He began a detailed explanation before pausing.

"Let's start the play over again," he said. Then Treacher began the play, "Clutterbuck," once more.

The boy picked up the can and started out of the courtroom with it. Then he put it down and went out without it.

Irresponsibility In One-Shot Ballot

Legislation designed to prevent "one-shot" voting in elections of two Pitt County municipalities already has hit the hoppers in Raleigh this session and a similar measure for a third municipality will also be introduced.

The Reflector is frank to say that we believe such legislation is in the interest of better government for the municipalities. Bills have been introduced which will eliminate one-shot balloting in the municipal elections of Fountain and Grifton. A similar provision is also included in the revised charter of the City of Greenville which also will receive legislative consideration this session.

In the case of Greenville's City Council, the legislation will require that each voter vote for five candidates for the Council at the city's biennial elections. If a voter votes for less than the required number of candidates to fill the post on the board, his ballot would be invalid.

While some citizens may oppose this voting requirement which related to the city's governing board, the measure is, in our opinion, in the interest of better local government. It is a supporting requirement which makes the intent of the election regulation binding on the individual voter.

In theory, each voter casts a ballot for one candidate for each five posts on the City Council. In actual practice, however, some voters elect to cast a vote for only one man, rather than five, giving the one man a better chance of winning by denying votes to four others. Thus the one-shot voter is casting one vote for one member of the council and sacrificing four other votes in order to make one vote count more for one candidate.

In Greenville's municipal elections it is the duty of the voters to elect five men to compose the city's governing body. The one-shot voter quite obviously is not upholding his responsibility in selecting five men to compose the governing board. He is seeking to put one man in office regardless of what happens to the other four posts in the Council.

Elimination of the one-shot ballot in municipal elections will make for better government because it will mean that those who are elected to the governing body will have the votes of a much larger number of voters than would otherwise be the case. It will eliminate the possibility of one candidate being put into office by a relatively small number of voters employing the one-shot method in marking their ballots.

Another Instance Of 'Go-It-Alone' Tactics

Eastern Carolina communities are not the only ones who have trouble getting together on a joint airport proposition.

Dreams of a bi-county airport for Guilford and Forsyth Counties apparently were gone with the spring breezes this week as the Commissioners of Guilford County approved an expansion program for the Greensboro-High Point airport and called a halt on pending legislation which would have set up the bi-county airport authority.

By all rights, economically speaking, the Greensboro-HighPoint-Winston-Salem triangle should have the best air service in North Carolina. But according to statistics from airports of the state, that area does not have the best air service. The service is split between the Smith Reynolds airport at Winston-Salem and Friendship Airport which is the Greensboro-High Point facility. From past statements, neither thinks it has the service it deserves, and neither has been able to greatly improve its service to the par it thinks it should be.

From where we sit, it seems that individual community and county jealousies have again doomed this latest effort to construct a joint airport to serve both Forsyth and Guilford Counties. Guilford is going ahead with expansion of its own airport rather than holding up its program to further consider a joint effort.

Prominent business leaders from that area have long pointed out the need for a joint air facility between Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point. They have cited the advantages of much better air service which such a facility would provide the entire area. But the powers that be apparently have again turned a deaf ear toward that sound advice. Where this new move will lead remains to be seen.

It suffices to say, however, that if Greensboro and High Point jointly, and Winston-Salem individually can get the air service they think they need through individual effort, there seems little hope for any community in Eastern North Carolina to get adequate air service on its own hook. A joint air facility which can serve a part of Eastern Carolina on an area basis is the only answer to adequate air transportation in this section of the state. As long as Eastern Carolina communities follow the go-it-alone tactics regarding air service, the area will continue without adequate air service to its own detriment.

Looking Back On Azalea Festival Impact Of Spring Felt

By JIMMY ELLIS

By LYNN NISBET
COL. HESS—Honor guests at the Wilmington Azalea Festival included such celebrities as Lauritz Melchior, the opera star; George Jessel, stage and screen comedian; Kathryn Grayson, Queen Azalea X, and a dozen or more famous beauties from North Carolina and all over the country. There were four congressmen, dozens of members of the General Assembly, university and college presidents and municipal officials galore. Military uniforms with stars and eagles were on every corner.

Perhaps the most highly honored, judged by applause and autograph hunters, was Col. Dean Hess. The ordained minister who left the pulpit for a fighting plane in Korea and has now dedicated his life to caring for child victims of war was the popular hero of the occasion.

Proceeds of his book "Battle Hymn," and the movie based upon it goes to help finance an orphanage in South Korea where from 500 to 1,000 children are cared for. He says he is of course interested in the money, which is so sorely needed, but his major objective is to show what happens to children in the event of war. Most people think of the effects of war on economics, the general social order, the political rights of people. He wants them to know about the tragic impact on the personalities of children.

The plight of Asiatic children is perhaps worse than those in other countries, because of attitude of the people and the prevailing poverty. There are a half million unmarried or widowed mothers in South Korea and there are no jobs for women in that country. Col. Hess has some ideas about that.

NIMBLE — FINGERED — Among Asian peoples the Koreans are best in caring for children, he said. The mothers are nimble-fingered and gentle in changing clothing and otherwise handling the babies. Why can't these skillful hands be trained to make electronic gadgets and other delicate mechanisms, he asks. Main road block is the absence of markets due largely to trade barriers through international treaties.

THOUGHTFUL — One could readily discover the secret of Col. Hess' popularity by watching him move through the crowds. Never alone or to be alone for a minute, he often detached himself from groups to speak to someone, especially some lonely looking kid, who did not appear to be very happy.

By reason of an unfortunate oversight the Teen Age Princess was not recognized at the coronation pageant Saturday night. It almost broke her heart. Many of her friends were expressing sympathy and telling her not to worry about it. Not Col. Hess.

He didn't say anything about it. He just bought another copy of the souvenir picture book and autographed it with some such sentiment as "To the fairest princess of all," and presented it to her.

TIMING — One of the chief problems in arranging a thing like the Azalea Festival is the time element. The dates have to be set months in advance in order to get the celebrities, and the bands and the floats on hand. And weather is a vital factor. The first of March Wilmington folks feared that the azaleas would all be gone by festival time. Cool days and cold nights retarded them, so that actually the festival came ten days before the peak. The azaleas, dogwood and wisteria will be better this weekend and next than it was last Saturday.

STATE AID — The State of North Carolina has contributed a good many thousands of dollars to historic pageants like The Lost Colony, Unto These Hills and Horn in the West. It has even given money to help finance the show at Kings Mountain in South Carolina. Grants in aid have been made to associations and societies interested in preserving or restoring birthplaces of Vance, Aycock and other prominent North Carolinians. A lot of money has gone into the rebuilding of Tryon's Palace at New Bern.

Opinion varies widely on whether this is a proper use of tax money. The precedent having been established, it is difficult to see how the State can turn down requests for aid in preserving and restoring historic buildings at Bath and Halifax.

While based on historic fact, the dramas presented each summer at Roanoke Island, Cherokee and Boone represent a lot of literary license at expense of historical accuracy. The "restoration" of Tryon's Palace is really a replica of the original, not a restoration in the true sense.

The Old Salem project, which State contribution has been made, and the projects at Bath and Halifax which are asking for State help, might more accurately be termed restorations. The purpose is to preserve what is still there of ancient historic value and to replace segments which have been destroyed, rather than to rebuild entirely from old records and dramatic imagination something that may be like, but can never be the same as, the original.

The Lost Colony and Unto These Hills dramas had powerful political support. Old Salem and Tryon's Palace had the nucleus of private capital which seemed to justify State aid in order to complete the projects. Bath and Halifax have little except their authentic historic background to commend them for public money.

Why Do They Smoke?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—One of the odder aspects of the controversy over smoking is that most people who smoke don't know why they do.

A survey of 5,300 smokers by Dr. G.W. Rapp, head of the research department of Loyola University in Chicago, found that only 4 per cent smoked because of an actual liking for the taste or flavor of tobacco.

The 119 other reasons they gave were grouped by Dr. Rapp under the five following categories:

- Conformity because others smoke — 31 per cent.
- "A habit"—22 per cent.
- "Just enjoy it"—11 per cent.
- "Nervous release"—8 per cent.
- A number of women said they smoked because they felt it made them look more sophisticated. Many men said they smoked because it gave them something to do with their hands.

A teen-age girl replied, "It's the thing to do." A teen-age boy answered, "It makes me look more mature."

The possibility of a connection between smoking and lung cancer, raised by recent investigations, is merely the latest issue in an argument over the medical effects of tobacco that has been raging for centuries.

Dr. Rapp, who has spent many years in tobacco research, recalled that in the 18th Century French doctors said smoking caused premature gray hair, English doctors held it hastened aging, and Irish doctors believed it caused kidney stones.

"In past centuries in other countries," added Dr. Rapp, "smoking was thought to cause deafness, sallow complexion, baldness, sterility, the stunting of growth, and tooth decay."

"On the other hand, some tribes of Central America to this day smoke tobacco as a means of atoning for their sins," he said. "And among the Indians of South America smoking is employed to spark the sex urge."

Few of the persons polled by Dr. Rapp wanted to stop smoking entirely. But many wanted to cut down the number of cigarettes they puffed each day.

Dr. Rapp said that his research disclosed an effective agent was a drug called bantron, a combination of antacids with the alkaloid lobeline sulphate.

"When taken into the blood stream, this drug displaces the nicotine in the body chemistry," he observed.

"It's the nicotine that's the real offender when it comes to creating the habit. When the nicotine is gone, so goes the craving to smoke—and the jitters."

Dr. Rapp, recognizing that smoking helps many people escape from modern tensions, takes this position in the controversy: "Smoking in moderation isn't as harmful as many people have been led to believe. Like the abuse of any food we take into our system, excessive smoking can cause problems. But so can health-giving vitamin A in cod liver oil cause serious liver damage when taken in excessive dosages over long periods."

"The person who smokes in moderation has no real problem."

Proclamation

WHEREAS, the Epistola Sigma Alpha International Sorority for Charitable and Philanthropic Work, has agreed to raise funds for the purpose of providing wheel chairs for crippled white and colored individuals, who are unable to purchase or rent same for themselves and

WHEREAS, this campaign will be conducted on April 6, 1957 in the City of Greenville,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, W.L. Whedbee, Mayor of the City of Greenville, do hereby declare April 6, 1957 as Wheelchair Tax Day for this worthy purpose, and request the citizens of Greenville to give it their support.

WITNESS my hand this 1st day of April 1957.

W.L. Whedbee, Mayor

This warm sun and these gentle breezes are stirring the wanderlust in me.

Thus far, I've managed to resist the temptation to forget my job and go wandering through the woods. I have, however, slipped off my shoes and wigged by bare toes in the backyard's growing grass.

I even took the fishing equipment out of the closet Sunday and blew a little of the dust off it. If the weather holds up, I'm just liable to skip work one of these days. And if anybody wants me I'd suggest they start looking on the shady banks of the lazy Tar River.

The flowers My Fair Gwen's father fusses over in Washington are reaching their peak of beauty under the caresses of the spring weather.

Big Marshall's azaleas are shining all over his yard, and I can't be convinced that there are prettier azaleas in Wilmington, Charleston or Mobile. The Azaleas, however, aren't the whole show.

Other Editors Saying --- N.C. And Jamestown

(Greensboro Daily News)
Virginians, who have a lot of history to commemorate, this week started an eight months' celebration of theirs and the nation's beginning 350 years ago. It was at Jamestown in 1607—13 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock—that the English successfully began colonization of the New World. Tar Heels are aware of the ill-fated Lost Colony which mysteriously failed on the North Carolina coast about 20 years earlier.

The second Jamestown festival of this century—the first was the Jamestown tercentenary exposition in 1907—will be a big affair. Twenty-five million dollars have been invested; President Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain have been invited, and 3,000,000 less notable tourists are expected.

And as usual when Virginia celebrates, it called again on a North Carolinian to provide poetry and drama for the occasion. Paul Green, author of Williamsburg's outdoor THE COMMON GLORY, has written THE FOUNDERS for the Jamestown festival to tell of the earliest days of discovery and settlement.

In a much quieter way next month North Carolinians will take note of their connections with the Jamestown colony. Unlike Virginia and some other original states North Carolina's colonization did not begin with a dramatic single incident but is veiled in obscurity.

The earliest permanent settlement is believed to have been on a piece of land between the mouths of the Chowan and Roanoke Rivers in what is now Bertie County. The first recorded exploration to the Chowan River was made 15 years after the landing at Jamestown—by John Pory, secretary of the Virginia Colony, in 1622. In 1653 the Virginia Assembly gave Roger Green a grant of 1,000 acres for himself and 10,000 acres for the first 100 people who would settle on the Roanoke River south of the Chowan "next to those persons who have had a former grant."

Then there is definite evidence that by 1657 the first permanent settlement had been established. That evidence is the Comerford Map of that year, showing a house marked "Batts House"—the home of Nathaniel Batts, who first was Governor of Roanoke and then Governor of South Albemarle, and presumed leader of the settlement.

The North Carolina Literary and Historical Association will meet May 10-11 in Bertie County to observe the 300th anniversary of the Comerford Map—documentary evidence of North Carolina's first permanent settlement. By chance it coincides with Virginia's elaborate celebration of its 350th birthday.

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The McClellan expose of certain union officers' financial irresponsibility shows the United States Senate at its investigating best. It stands in sharp and constructive contrast to Senator Joseph McCarthy's demagogic investigation of the Army. It was a needful antidote in these days when democratic government is under Communist attack.

Chairman John L. McClellan has treated witnesses fairly and courteously, even when the Arkansas Puritan's expressive countenance and dry comment mirrored his disgust with the Beck-Brewster misuse of union members' funds, and with Beck's retreat to the refuge of the Fifth Amendment.

Unlike the McCarthy fiasco, Senator McClellan and his counsel, the able and attractive Robert F. Kennedy, spent months in the preparation of their case against union officers alleged to be guilty of mismanagement. Instead of vague charges and groundless suspicions, their questions are based on solid evidence obtained during months of painstaking research and investigation.

with the barber, however. Reluctance, I suppose, to make him grow up and become a BOY instead of a baby.

The warm weather and daily visits to the comfortable backyard have also helped Blair disclose dogs. He's fascinated by them, especially the larger ones.

There is one big boxer in the neighborhood that Blair has practically adopted. He looks for the big dog each time he goes into the yard, and sometimes Gwen and I think that Blair would trade us both for the dog if he had a choice.

Someday, I guess, we'll have to get another dog of our own. Boys and dogs, and warm weather, just seem to go together.

Opinions In Brief

CHICO, CALIF., ENTERPRISE-RECORD: "Unions are private non-governmental organizations. So are churches, so are political parties. The membership activities of private organizations normally range in the recruitment realm of voluntarism, and such organizations, in our opinion, enjoy no ethical rights of arbitrary proscription."

DILON, S. C., HERALD: "We should not allow our young people to enter the adult world unarmed against Communism. They should have the best armor that we can give them. And the best armor against Communism is the truth about it—what it is, how it originated, what it does to destroy individual rights and human freedoms. Thus armed, our young people can be vigorous champions of Democracy, and not merely subservient followers of it."

WARWICK, N. Y., ADVERTISER: "The increasing number of unqualified and sometimes dishonest income tax auditors' has prompted the Internal Revenue Service to issue a strong warning to taxpayers to be careful whom they consult for help in preparing the 1956 Federal tax returns. Nationwide, the Intelligence Division of the Service turned up a record number of fraudulent and incompetent assistants last year."

GLENWOOD, IOWA, GLENWOOD OPINION-TRIBUNE: "It may be worth your life to consider not only your car's condition but also your own limitations each time you slide in behind the steering wheel."

Senate Probes In A Better Light

Fletcher of Florida (Wall Street). The writer covered all but one of these inquiries as a reporter. TWO MINDS WITH MAIN THOUGHT Although only 31 years old, Lawyer Kennedy has shown himself to be a worthy successor of such Congressionally appointed counsel as Samuel Untermyer (the 1914 Pugo investigation); Ferdinand Pecora (the 1933 expose of Wall Street); and Joseph Welch, the shrewd and philosophic Bostonian, who became McCarthy's gentle gadfly.

Like their distinguished predecessors, Senator McClellan and the Kennedy keep in mind that the basic purpose of Congressional investigations is to reveal the need of remedial legislation. All the inquiries listed above had this healthy effect, ranging from founding of the Federal Reserve System to creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission to watchdog Wall Street and to safeguard investors.

DENOTES NEED FOR NEW

Art Moves Into Business Arena

By ELMER ROESSNER
Along with decorated turtles and bathing-girl neckties, you can now buy paintings by Greenwich Village artists on Times Square. A Midwest supermarket sells oil paintings as well as cheddar, chopped chuck and chili.

Art is no longer slow starvation to the grave. It's big business. All over the country—even in cities that couldn't support a book store 20 years ago—art salerooms, usually called galleries, have sprung up. Saloons as well as supermarkets have held shows and sold off the oil and oily works of local brush and canvas boys. And girls. In addition, department stores, hardware stores, book stores and stationers' shops, as well as art goods stores, are now selling canvas, brushes, pantographs, how-to books and colored goo. At nice mark-ups.

PIGMENTED BOOM
There is, in short, a boom in painting. Many persons now make a living making pictures. Some do more than that. Many manufacturers, retailers, auctioneers and agents are doing better than ever.

Why? There are many reasons. Perhaps Americans, sensing their nation's role in world leadership, feel that it is their duty to assume the mantle of culture. Perhaps. But these are more likely reasons:
Income is high. When income goes up, especially when accompanied with more leisure, there is a natural tendency toward culture and the arts. Income and leisure per person in the United States are now the highest in the world. As ever known, the fact that Sir Winston Churchill and Dwight D. Eisenhower painted pictures removed the last doubt that painting was not a manly activity and encouraged others to take an interest in the art. If Adlai Stevenson painted better, he might have won more votes.

COLLECTORS HELPED
Closely associated with this is the fact that it is better known that celebrities also buy and collect paintings. The appearance of Edward G. Robinson and Vincent Price in whopping quiz programs helped make buying pictures seem acceptable and profitable.

The increase in art galleries—almost 300 in the last 30 years—has increased interest in paintings and stepped up demand for those worth displaying.

Even psychologists who have been urging patients to paint to relax, and the paint-by-numbers sets have increased interest in painting. An "artist" who painted by numbers and then tried painting his own surely must have gained respect for master painters.

And then there is another reason for greater interest in painting—a reason that keeps recurring through all changes in human endeavor—taxes.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LOSS INDESCRIBABLE

A few days ago I inquired about a young woman whom I had known as a child more than 20 years ago. I was shocked to learn that she is in the last stages of alcoholism. She has left husband and children. She shuts herself up and drinks day and night away. Humanly speaking, she cannot last much longer. The only hope for her is a miracle out of heaven itself.

This girl had everything. She had beauty; background, an intellect which put her near the top of her college class. But when she was 14 years old, her parents unwisely invited her to partake of a little sherry and a very mild cocktail. They would teach her to drink moderately. But moderation cannot be taught. Moderate drinkers are fortunate people. One out of ten drinkers ends up an alcoholic. And no teaching will make any difference. Alcoholism is the result of tendencies which certain people have within them or circumstances which they encounter in life. There is no alcoholic type. Any one may become an alcoholic who has a certain type of nervous system or who encounters certain disadvantageous circumstances.

I think what a loss this girl is—to herself, to society, and to the vast spiritual universe of which we are all a part. What can we be thinking about when we allow an evil like this to go on without protest?

Social Security Program In Pitt Shows Advances

Special work in Pitt County on Social Security has already resulted in approved 1957 claims of $309,140.

Social Security caseworker W. K. Whichard, appointed by the county commissioners to develop the program, revealed the figures in a progress report to the Board yesterday. He said that all but 46 of the Pitt County claims filed with the district office in Rocky Mount

JULIET JONES

588 applicants for Social Security benefits during January, February and March. Of that number, 533 have been classed as acceptable claims, with 284 of the acceptable claims classified as farm claims. He estimated that 20 per cent of the farm population over 65 years of age had been covered in action thus far.

Pointing out growth of the program, Whichard said that at the end of 1955, total benefits coming into the county were $695,304. Whichard, County Agent Sam Winchester and Welfare Department Superintendent K. T. Futrell figure of $309,140, which will be annual income for claimants in the county, with the Soil Bank program which is expected to send $212,000 into the county during the year.

Winchester and Welfare Department Superintendent K. T. Futrell asked the board to consider expansion of an original committee named by the commissioners in order to eliminate some problems which have come up. Whichard pointed particularly to lack of understanding of Social Security legislation and Internal Revenue laws, in asking for expansion of the committee.

The commissioners took the recommendations under study and promised action in the near future.

Annual Children's Play Readied By Drama Club

When ALADDIN AND THE WONDERFUL LAMP, produced by the East Carolina Playhouse, plays to the children of Greenville and Pitt County on April 8, 9, 10, and 11, in McGinnis Auditorium, it will be added to a notable series of children's plays started in February, 1941, under the auspices of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

The title role of Aladdin will be played by Jay Robbins of Greenville. Others playing important roles are Margaret Starnes of Raleigh as Princess Adora; Delano Driver of Richmond, Va., as the Magician; Charles Jenkins of Raleigh as the Sultan, and Patsy Baker of Greenville, as Aladdin's Mother. C. Thomas Hull, Jr., of Durham is serving as student director and Dan Yanchisin as technical director.

Dr. Joseph Withey of the English faculty is supervising the production, and Louise Williams of the East Carolina mathematics department is in charge of the project for the A.A.U.W.

"Aladdin," according to Dr. Withey, "is magnificent with the beauty and magic and mystery of the ARABIAN NIGHTS. Comedy and suspense join to delight the audience."

A fifth performance has been added this year, Miss Williams reports, in an effort to provide good theater for as many children as possible.

Children of the county schools and Greenville school children who ride buses will attend 1:15 performances on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week. Children living in town will attend a 3:30 performance on Tuesday.

On Thursday the Playhouse will take ALADDIN to Epbes High School for the children of that school and South Greenville and Fleming Street schools.

Passion Play Chorus To Begin Practice Sunday

Former members of the Passion Play Chorus and singers from Greenville church choirs, as well as other interested singers, are cordially invited to attend the first rehearsal of the Passion Play chorus Sunday, April 7, at 7 p. m. in Room 105, Music Hall, East Carolina College. A second rehearsal will take place Tuesday, April 9, at the same hour and place.

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, music director of the Passion Play, and George E. Perry, organist, will again work with the choristers in presenting the music, which has become an important part of the Passion Play performance.

This year's performances are scheduled for Palm Sunday, April 14, and the Monday and Tuesday following, April 15 and 16.

The schedule of rehearsals and performances are planned so as not to interfere with church activities during Holy Week.

Talks On College Recreation Work

Cynthia Anne Mendenhall, recreation supervisor of the East Carolina College Student Union, was guest speaker at a convention of the Virginia Athletic Federation of College Women held at Longwood College, Farmville, Va., during the past weekend. Her talk dealt with "On-the-Campus Recreation."

Stressing the need for a centralized recreation program on college campuses, Miss Mendenhall advocated a college union program which might serve as a coordinating agency for campus recreation. She indicated the need of instruction in recreation skills as well as a "laboratory" in which to practice them.

President Eisenhower and General Alvin G. Gruenther, former NATO commander, are skilled bridge players. Former President Harry Truman likes to play poker.

CHAPTER 22

Corporal Linahan was summoned, and when he knelt down in pre-dawn darkness by Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker he was made sergeant, which was a surprise to Linahan, whose drinking habits had broken him five times in nine years.

"Please summon Captain Blaine and Dr. Butler," Schwabacker said in a whisper. "Quietly now." He sat there and waited. Finally they arrived. Butler first, but Schwabacker said nothing until Blaine got there. "I think I have the way out," he said. The two men looked at each other. Butler was sure it was the fever, and Blaine was equally convinced that there was insanity in Schwabacker's family.

"We can't survive another day," Schwabacker said. "The Sioux softened us yesterday; they'll come to us at dawn and then it'll be another Fetterman affair."

"You don't expect us to attack again," Blaine said.

"No, I don't," Schwabacker said. "I'll attack with the cavalry and buy you the time to get out by the north end of the lake. Assemblable your command very quietly and move them out by companies. Form at the north end of the lake, in the rocks. You will hear us best I overheard."

"Strip the troop, Sergeant. Bring the horses in off pickets and get rid of anything that will rattle. We'll carry carbines and wrap rags around the rings to keep them from jingling."

"Aye, sor," he stood up. "How much time, sor?"

Schwabacker glanced at his watch, turning it so he could vaguely see the hands. "Thirty, forty minutes on the outside. Have two troopers come around and lift me on my horse."

"Aye, sor," Linahan said and ambled off, his words quietly fall-

"Stay here and there will be no chance at all," Schwabacker said. Captain Blaine left, but Cove Butler remained.

"Get Captain Jocelyn out of here, Cove," said Schwabacker. "I'll have Sergeant Linahan load the wounded into the ambulance too. It will be crowded, but you'll have to make do."

"We'll make do," Butler promised. "Can you make it with that leg?"

"Someone will put me on a horse. If I fall off, it won't matter. He touched Butler on the arm and dismissed him.

Sergeant Linahan knelt again beside Schwabacker. "Orders, sor?"

"Strip the troop, Sergeant. Bring the horses in off pickets and get rid of anything that will rattle. We'll carry carbines and wrap rags around the rings to keep them from jingling."

"Aye, sor," he stood up. "How much time, sor?"

Schwabacker glanced at his watch, turning it so he could vaguely see the hands. "Thirty, forty minutes on the outside. Have two troopers come around and lift me on my horse."

"Aye, sor," Linahan said and ambled off, his words quietly falling as he moved among the troop, bringing them to their feet.

Blaine's first company of infantry gathered in loose formation and shuffled past, remarkably quiet. Captain Blaine had stripped them of everything but their rifles and the accoutrements that served them.

The second company passed by a few minutes later, then the third. Schwabacker unfroged his saber, drew it, then fought to a one-legged standing position. The troopers came up and helped him mount. The effort left him sick and sweating. He was the only man mounted, and at his signal the troop moved toward the woods at a walk.

Sergeant Finnegan had taught him enough about the Sioux to know that they never camped in timber, for they possessed a deadly fear of ambush. So he went over the terrain in his mind, conjuring up a mental map, and remembered a large, cleared plain about a mile southeast of this timber.

Schwabacker moved his command to the very fringe without apparent detection. Then he held to the deepest shadows he could find, working his way around the west side. For almost an hour he moved at a slow parade walk.

An hour, Captain Blaine would be pushing his men hard, and with no packs to slow them, they were probably four miles from the lake by now. Schwabacker's head turned as he searched the sky to the east for the first shards of the false dawn. Indians were early risers. Dawn would bring them from their lodges, ready for war. He judged he had forty minutes left.

His knowledge of Sioux ways stood him in good stead, for on the other side of the timber lay their camp, the tall lodges built into a huge semicircle with the openings facing east, to the coming sun.

He raised his hand, halting the troop a thousand yards from the Sioux. The predawn darkness was still intense and he could barely make out the lodges. Could he close undetected to seven hundred yards? Five? Never before had he considered a man's chances for survival in so many feet, but there it was, measured out for him. The closer he got, the more damage he could do before they were completely aroused. The prize was tempting and he signaled a slow advance.

When he judged they were no more than five hundred yards away, the tension became too much and he hand-signalized them into the saddle. Carbines and pistols were cocked. The sound was like a bundle of small twigs being broken.

Schwabacker's nod sent the troop into a wild run. The first bugle notes of "charge" split the silence like huge rents in cloth.

A shrill Indian yell went up as the troopers broke through the opening of the camp. A brave made a foolish appearance out of nowhere and went down with his fact shot away. Into the lodges they drove, over men, scattering the Sioux in confusion. Guns pounded and muzzles lanced flame back and forth, then in an instance they were through and into the horse herd, cutting, shouting, driving them in frantic terror out onto the rolling land beyond.

Two men fell but there was no stopping now. Schwabacker led the troop into a wild race for a mile, and when the horse herd was scattered, he wheeled his horse and re-formed the command.

Four down; he knew without counting. A good officer gets that feel of his troop, knowing instinctively when there are gaps in the ranks. The Sioux camp was in an uproar and there were still sporadic shots aimed into the night.

To Linahan, Schwabacker said, "We're going back, Sergeant."

"Through 'em again, sor?"

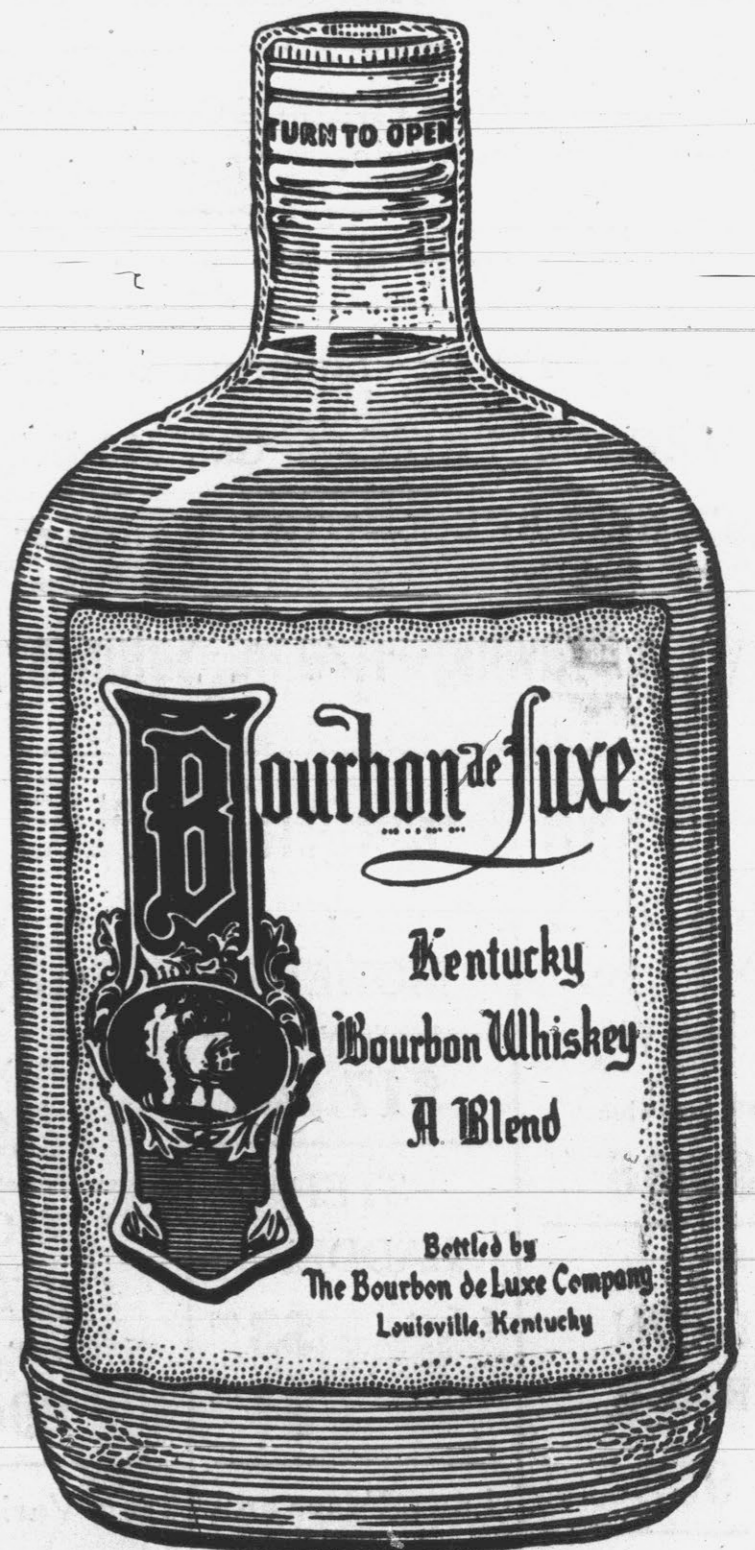

"Just into them, Sergeant."

"That's worse!" But Linahan was a sergeant now and the troop formed on him, pistols and carbines reloaded. Schwabacker flailed his horse into a dead run, straight for the shattered Sioux camp. Behind him a little over fifty men rode over their horses' necks. Fifty against two hundred, and there would be no surprise this time. The Sioux were waiting.

Their fire was undisciplined, ragged, but somehow two more saddles were wiped clean. Schwabacker felt his own horse stumble, break his stride, then pick up gallantly. The angry Sioux never lacked for courage, and at the sight of the charging long knives, raced out to meet them, shooting as they ran.

Suddenly Schwabacker halted his command; this was too good to pass up. And he caught the Sioux that way, in the open, away from cover, and poured in his fire dismounted. Carbines roared in chorus, in squads, then dropped back to reload while another squad poured lead into the Sioux. Horses went down, good cavalry mounts, and men went down, then the Sioux had had enough and broke, running back toward the village.

"Cease fire!" Schwabacker shouted, and the bugle took it up. His own horse was down, thrashing, and he mercifully put a bullet into its head. Several of the troopers were pairing off, going into the saddle double. Sergeant Linahan dismounted hurriedly and

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market was higher in early afternoon trading today.

Key stocks had gains of fractions to around 2 points, although profit-taking cut back the widest gains.

Trading was more active than yesterday with steel, metals, air-craft, and chemicals pushing ahead. Airlines were mixed and utilities tended to drag.

The market opened higher on some fairly large blocks, continuing the rally of yesterday, and maintained its advance as the session progressed.

Some demand may have been based on talk of tax cuts, W. Randolph Burgess, undersecretary of the Treasury, last night said that if the 1958 and 1959 budgets could be kept under control it would "justify a sizeable tax cut next year."

President Eisenhower at a news conference today said prospects are good for future tax cuts.

The advance developed despite news of additional lay-offs and a drop in steel scrap prices at Pittsburgh.

Lukens Steel again led the steel group, pushing ahead more than a point. Kennecott bounded up more than 2 points in the metals group while Reynolds Metal jumped about 3, including a 1,500-share block at 54 1/2, up 2 1/2.

Zenith raced ahead more than 2 points on pay-as-you-see television talk. In the oil Gulf scored a gain of more than a point while Sinclair and Standard of New Jersey added fractions.

U.S. Hoffman was heavily traded but lost an early gain. The street heard talk of management changes. Atlantic Coast Line, up a point, paced the rails.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.00 at $176.00 with the industrials up $1.80, rails up 80 cents and utilities up 20 cents.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—Hog markets today were steady to mostly 25 higher. Tops of 16.75 to 17.50 at Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Enfield; 16.75 to 17.25 at Smithfield, Newton Grove, Kinston, Nahunna, Wingate, New Bern, Benson; 16.25 to 16.75 at Siler City, Mount Gilead; 17.25 at Murfreesboro; 17.00 at Clayton, Castle Hayne; 16.75 at Rich Square, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Shalotte, Elizabethtown, Mico, Mount Olive, Bailey, Clarkton, Dunn, Whiteville, Goldsboro.

RALEIGH — (NCDA)—North Carolina fryers and broilers today steady, farm price 13, one lot 19 1/2; no f.o.b. plant sales reported.

Raleigh eggs steady, A large 30 to 32; Durham eggs steady, A large 30 to 32; Asheville eggs steady, A large 28 to 30; Charlotte eggs steady, A large 29.

Dies Of Burns After Brushing Power Lines

William B. Ebram, Negro employee of Greenville Utilities who was severely burned March 1, died in Duke Hospital Monday.

Ebram suffered second and third degree burns when he came in contact with power lines in a sub-station at the Utilities plant. He was welding at the time of the accident.

Ebram was working atop a ladder when the accident occurred. His clothes caught fire and he fell part of the way to the ground as he attempted to come down the ladder.

Other Utilities employees extinguished his burning clothes and he was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Duke Hospital.

Work Wins Recognition

Last Rites Thursday For Jay Brantley

Jay Brantley, 60, died at his home, 1304 Forbes Street, Greenville, at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday following several months' critical illness.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday at 2:30 p.m. by Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. R. S. Brodie, Methodist minister of Spring Hope. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Brantley was born and reared at Spring Hope and attended the local schools. He was a professional baseball player until he entered the United States Army during World War I, serving in France and Germany. In 1922, he was married to Miss Nicky Sutton of Spring Hope and they lived in Spring Hope until 1931, after which they lived in several Eastern North Carolina towns, coming to Greenville in 1941. He was a member of Spring Hope Methodist Church and Pitt County Post of American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was employed by the North Carolina Highway Department and Public Works Commission and for the past 10 years had operated an outboard motor repair shop.

Surviving are his wife, a son, W. M. (Bill) Brantley of the home; and a sister, Mrs. Hattie B. Bryant of Spring Hope.

The family requests that no flowers be sent, but anyone desiring to may send contributions to the Cancer Fund.

Farmville Board Agrees Offer Bonds On May 7

FARMVILLE—Farmville Commissioners last night agreed to offer the town's sewerage improvement bonds for sale on May 7.

The board's action followed a recommendation by W. E. Easterling of the North Carolina Local Government Commission that the bonds be sold on that date. The Local Government Commission will handle the sale which will include bonds valued at $430,000 for construction of a sewerage treatment plant and extension of existing sewerage lines.

Money from the bond sale will be added to a federal grant of $105,260 for the sewerage improvement projects.

The board tabled for further study two requests for franchises in the town. North Carolina Natural Gas Corporation had asked for a franchise to distribute natural gas in Farmville and Carolina Power and Light Company had asked for a franchise through a portion of Farmville in order to serve American Cyanamid's flake-board plant which will be constructed on the southwestern side of the town.

The gas company's request was tabled on a "further study" basis. Carolina Power and Light's request was delayed in order to modify certain portions of their proposed franchise.

Other action by the board included granting permission to the National Guard to use the old fire station for storage purposes. The Guard asked to use the quarters for safe-keeping of kitchen equipment and a vehicle. The board told Guard personnel they could use the old fire house until the town is ready to remodel it and extend town offices in the area which is adjacent to present quarters for town officials.

Farmville Sees Two More File

FARMVILLE — Two more men, one an incumbent and the other a newcomer to local politics, have filed for places on the five-member Farmville Town Board.

Incumbent B. B. Turnage and news-come Frank K. Allen joined the race by paying filing fees to Town Clerk C. M. Paylor this morning. They are joining incumbent W. C. Wooten in the race for places on the board which will be named in municipal elections scheduled for May 7.

Mayor Charles S. Edwards, completing his first term in the town's top governmental post, and former Mayor O. G. Spell, who lost to Edwards in 1955, filed several weeks ago for the mayor's job.

Three members of the present board have not filed nor have they announced plans to do so. They are Horton Rountree, Ernest N. Petteway and Glenn Newton. Rountree was recently named to a state job in Raleigh but is still maintaining a residence in Farmville.

The two men who filed yesterday are both farm implement dealers in Farmville. Wooten, the other candidate, is an oil dealer. Mayor Edwards, a former member of the Town Board, is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Tobacco Board of Trade. His opponent, Spell, is station agent for Norfolk Southern Railway.

Womanless Wedding Termed 'Success'

PACTOLUS — The Womanless Wedding sponsored recently by the Pactolus School PTA has been pronounced a success.

Duncan Moore, as the bride, and Marvin Beacham, as the groom, had leading roles in the program which was presided over by Bruce Hart, "mistress of ceremonies." Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Norwood.

Other members of the cast were Roscoe Barnhill, Preston Woolard and Nathan Scott. Mrs. G. E. Cherry and Mrs. W. F. Little were co-chairmen for the project.

Pactolus School PTA Officers Are Elected

PACTOLUS — D. R. House has been elected president of the Pactolus School P. T. A. for the 1957-1958 school year.

Elected to serve with him were Mrs. Bruce Hart, vice-president; Jimmy Whitchard, secretary; Mrs. T. J. Haddock, treasurer; and Mrs. Minnie Stancill, corresponding secretary. The officers were elected at the March meeting of the Pactolus PTA.

Sam Winchester, county farm agent, was guest speaker at the meeting and discussed Social Security benefits. He said that there are many people in the county who are unaware of their eligibility for Social Security benefits. That lack of knowledge, he added, is not only a loss to the individuals but to the county, also.

A dental health program was presented by Mrs. Stancill's fourth grade, and a letter from Representative Walter Jones was read to the group. The PTA had written Representative Jones, urging him to support increased salaries for teachers.

Cakes given for greatest percentage of parents at the meeting were won by Mrs. Alcorn's seventh grade and Mrs. Stancill's fourth grade. Miss Jimmy Whitchard and Mrs. Roscoe Barnhill donated the cakes.

Miss Ella Tucker Smith announced that the pre-school clinic would be held April 21 and asked for volunteers to assist at the clinic.

Plans were also made to serve the next Ruritan supper to add funds to the PTA treasury.

Hangs For Rape And Murder While In Korea

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — Ernest L. Ransom, 26, was hanged today for murder and rape committed while he was a soldier in Korea.

The hanging was in the power plant building of the U. S. disciplinary barracks, site of two other recent military executions Feb. 1. He was pronounced dead at 12:17 a.m.

Ransom, a Negro from Garysburg, N. C., was convicted in June 1953 by a general court-martial at Inchon, Korea, of shooting to death a Korean guard and raping a 14-year-old Korean girl.

Ransom in a regulation olive drab uniform devoid of insignia, showed no emotion as he was led down a ramp from the second floor of the building to the gallows.

Doctors listened for a heartbeat 15 minutes before pronouncing him dead.

No family members were present.
