"The Bridge at Andau" is now firmly entrenched in the best-seller lists, and is a stirring account of happenings in the revolt against the Russians in Hungary, from the point of view of one of the participants. . . . Looking further back to World War II, Walter Lord, in "Day of Infamy" describes the exact history of December 7, 1941, going into details on every little event of that fatal 24 hours. Lord wrote "A Night To Remember" last year, another detailed account of a short but vital day, describing the sinking of the "Titanic." . . . Now a new war book has just come out about an even more recent conflict, the defeat of the Egyptian army by the Israelis last fall, sparking the blockade of the Suez Canal that's just been straightened out. "A Hundred Hours to Suez" is by Robert Henriques and describes how the Israelis ran the Egyptians out of the Sinai Peninsula, losing 171 dead and one prisoner, while killing between 1000 and 3000 Egyptian soldiers and capturing another 5600—quite a victory, any way you look at it, and Henriques does not hesitate to say he thinks so, too. . . .

Odyssey
If you're interested in poetry and want to take a trip to Europe, here is your meat. On July 12 the luxury liner SS Olympia will be sailing out of New York harbor bound for Greece. Aboard will be poets or people interested in poetry, and they will visit Greece and take a cruise around the Ionian and Aegean Islands, following in Ulysses' footsteps, visiting politically significant spots and generally getting a chance to have a first class literary frolic. . . . Clarence Decker, president of the Poetry Society, and poet Witter Bynner will lead the tour. Anyone interested in going should write to Gustav Davidson, secretary of the Poetry Society, at 227 East 45th Street, New York. . . .

We think it's time for people to start getting ready for the annual Fine Arts Festival that will be starting only a week from today—Friday, April 12. . . . It will last through the 28th, and will include art exhibits, lectures, movies, dinners and what-all. Featured artist will be Hobson Pittman, who will exhibit his paintings during the Festival at the Community Art Center at Sheppard Memorial Library, and will give a lecture at Joyner Library, E.C.C., on April 24, on American Art. . . . For Literature Lovers, climax of the Festival will be the annual literary luncheon at 12:30 on Saturday, April 27, in the College cafeteria. The program will take the form of an Animated Magazine, with live features by such outstanding authors as Paul Green and Ovid Pierce. . . . The annual Sidewalk Art Show, which to us always has been the outstanding event of the Festival, will be staged on Thursday, April 25, on the grounds of Sheppard Memorial, if it doesn't rain—which we hope it won't. . . . Also outdoors, and also an outstanding annual event, will be the Lakewood Pines Garden Club's Spring Fair, being held next Friday, April 12, from 10 to 4, at 211 Pineview Drive—in the garden, again if it doesn't rain. On sale there will be all sorts of desirable items, with proceeds going to the Garden Club Civic Projects committee to do some good around Greenville.

MARK TWAIN ON THE MISSISSIPPI. By Earl Schenk Miers. Cleveland: The World Publishing Co., 1957. 246 pp. $3.00.
"Mark Twain on the Mississippi" is a very amusing story based on the life of Mark Twain. It tells how Mark Twain grew up in Hannibal, Missouri, on the Mississippi. Mark Twain was really Samuel Clemens. As a boy, he was very mischievous, always up to every kind of mischief you can think of. One night Sam and his friends, Will Bowen, Tom Blankenship, and Gull Brady let loose fourteen cats in the rooms of Western Star Tavern in Hannibal. The cats' noisy fighting brought all the men, women, children, and especially dogs of Hannibal running to the Tavern. In a nearby tree, Sam and his friends were laughing so hard that they almost fell, and Sam said, "This is better'n a fire!" As Sam grew up, he and his little brother Henry became newspaper apprentices for their big brother Orion. Sam became less mischievous the more he worked for Orion. When Sam was eighteen he left home to travel around in the big cities in the eastern part of our country. Everywhere he went he worked for newspapers setting type. But he was homesick for the Mississippi, so he quit his job and went to New Orleans to train himself to be a river pilot. He became one of the greatest pilots that ever worked on the Mississippi. He wrote "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer." Some of the events in these books happened in his own life and in the lives of other boys that grew up on the Mississippi. These books became famous and Sam Clemens became one of the most beloved authors of our country.

Driver-Training Over One Hurdle

House Finance Committee Approval for a state-wide driver training program in North Carolina's high schools puts the proposition one step nearer reality. It does not, however, assure that driver education will be available at state expense in all the high schools of the state. There are a number of legislative hurdles yet to be crossed.

Eleventh-Hour Demand Raises More Doubts

Postmaster General Summerfield's ultimatum concerning postal service and his demand for 47 million additional dollars for the Post Office Department rubs us the wrong way.

The Postmaster General has asserted if the additional money isn't appropriated immediately he will curtail postal service beginning Saturday. Maybe it's necessary to curtail the postal service as outlined by Summerfield to insure not running over the budget by the end of the year. But it sounds to us more like Summerfield is trying to use a whip on the House Appropriations Committee.

According to a member of the Committee, Summerfield says the additional $47 million is needed to operate the Post Office Department for the last three months of this fiscal year. If it isn't forthcoming by Saturday he will discontinue city carrier deliveries on Saturday; close all post offices on Saturdays and discontinue rural delivery of all classes of mail; discontinue sale of money orders; reduce deliveries in business districts of cities to one per day; embargo acceptance of all third-class mail except merchandise; and suspend all annual leaves of employees until after July 1.

When this fiscal year began, Summerfield knew how much money was appropriated for the Post Office Department. He should have known how much the Department could afford to spend during the first three quarters of the fiscal year to leave enough to operate the last quarter of the year. We can see no justification for his bullish demands here at the 11th hour. Unless, of course, poor management of Post Office Department affairs during the first three quarters of the year has allowed funds for the entire year to be gobbled up.

When the Postmaster General or any other member of the Cabinet sends an ultimatum to Congress, it's time for a change in the Cabinet—not in Congress.

Commerce Will See Jet Impact

By ELMER ROESSNER

Commercial jet planes, due in volume next year, will have great effects on commerce as well as on property values.

Jets fly faster. They can fly further. They can carry more passengers, freight. They are cheaper to operate. That's right. Cheaper. They use more fuel, but a cheaper kind. A good kerosene will do. They will get in twice as much mileage between each 2,000-hour overhaul. Crew costs will often be less than on prop planes. Two crews are required on almost all prop plane flights from New York to almost any point in Europe within an eight-hour flying day. And because they fly twice as fast, jets can make twice as many trips as their predecessors.

THE BIG, BIG "BUT"

All these economies will vanish, however, if planes are not kept full with pay loads. Jets may move twice as fast as prop planes, but they will lose money twice as fast if they travel light.

In department store terms, the break-even point as well as the margin is higher.

Airlines will therefore be compelled to develop more freight and passenger traffic.

Most lines are already hard at work on this problem. Their approach to the freight problem is this: Since they can carry more freight at lower cost, rates can be lowered; lower rates, backed with dynamic salesmanship, can bring in more classes of goods.

For instance: It now pays many shippers to send silks, other fine fabrics and high-fashion apparel from Europe to America by air freight. But if rates are lowered, it may pay them to send somewhat less expensive goods by air. Air freight does not compete on price alone; a shipper's ability to get goods to market faster, thereby lowering financing, insurance and storage costs, is also a factor.

FROM FAR-AWAY PLACES

In many other industries it is now the custom to send sample and display goods by air, both domestically and internationally, and to ship the bulk of orders by surface. Airlines hope to get more of the bulk shipments—in shoes, pharmaceuticals, nursery items, small appliances, etc.—with their jet rates.

The higher speed of jets may open new markets in tropical fruits and other foreign delicacies. In recent years, planes have created new markets for many exotic edibles in America. With faster planes it may be possible to pick tropical fruits when ripe, instead of half ripe as at present, with 1,000 per cent improvement in taste.

Jet passenger travel promises even more exciting possibilities.

Most airlines expect that many passengers will hang back from rides on jet planes until the idea becomes well accepted and that traffic will then become heavier than ever.

However, this will take planning and promotion, probably along two lines.

Shorter time between familiar places will be stressed and, at the same, ability to visit non-hard-to-get-to places will be promoted.

Week ends in New York, Washington, Los Angeles and other interesting spots will be promoted domestically. In the overseas field, week ends in Paris, London, Rome and other centers will be eminently practical. With prop planes, it is possible to leave New York Friday night, have dinner and see a show in London on Saturday. A voyager would have to leave early Sunday to get back on the job Monday morning. But a jet trip would give the traveler two full days in London, or almost any other city of his choice.

The Reflector has previously voiced its approval of a state-wide driver education program in high schools. We have likewise suggested that the program be financed as other parts of the educational program are financed, rather than setting up a specific tax for the support of this particular phase of the school program.

It is apparent now that if driver training is to be offered in all the high schools of the state, state funds must be provided for the program. It is likewise apparent that the legislature and public school officials are not disposed to provide for the program except through a special additional tax on auto license plates.

Under those circumstances, we feel it is better to add the $1 additional tax to auto license tags and have the driver training program.

Some 60,000 youngsters a year in North Carolina reach the age of 16 and the vast majority of them immediately get under the steering wheel of a car. At present the vast majority of them lack sufficient comprehension of the power of the machine which they control or fail to control when they drive a car. Consequently each year brings injury and often death to countless young drivers.

Statistics in states where driver training is offered in public schools show a marked improvement in the highway safety record. Reduced insurance rates for young drivers who have completed driver training courses in high schools is another tangible evidence of the better safety record which the program produces.

Driver training in all the high schools of North Carolina will greatly improve the highway safety program in this state. It will be a major factor in holding down the number of highway deaths and injuries. It will prove well worth the investment made by North Carolina's taxpayers.

The House as a whole and the Senate should follow the example set by the House Finance Committee in giving its approval to the bill which would provide driver training in all the high schools of the state.

Board Sees Bill As 'Acceptance'

By LYNN NISBET

RESPONSIBILITY — The State Board of Health does not regard the proposed legislation which places much more authority in the board as an effort to seek more power. Rather it is acceptance of responsibility. That is what Dr. Lennox Baker of Durham, a member of the Board of Health, told the Joint Health Committee considering the big reorganization bill, which rewrites most of the public health laws.

Dr. Baker was a bit chagrined to have to confess the original intent of the bill gave the State Board too much power to be covered by the guise of responsibility. He said the Board had made 172 changes in the first draft of the measure, and he proposed several amendments to the printed bill.

"We were so zealous," he said, "to protect the people against the exercise of too much power by other agencies we were hardly conscious of the effect of transferring the authority from these agencies to the Board of Health."

Dr. Baker proposed amendments, and acceded to others, which tended to lessen Board power in some respects—but still leaves it as the most powerful lawmaking body in the State other than the General Assembly. It will retain the power to make rules and regulations with force of law, but authority to enforce its own regulations was decreased in several instances. "We are not too much concerned about who enforces the regulations we make," said Dr. Baker.

One opponent of the bill pointed out that the blanket control granted in the bill over "all matters affecting the health of the people" included food, clothing, housing, water and air—as well as the hours spent in bed and the type of work in which any person might be engaged. Even the good doctor admitted that was going too far.

DEFINITIONS — There cropped out in the hearing definite indications of jealousy between the medical profession and the relatively new profession of public health. The doctors did not take at all kindly to an amendment suggested by the dean of the School of Public Health at Chapel Hill that the act should require the State Health Officer to hold a degree in public health. They insist that an M. D. degree plus some training and experience in public health is enough. Both the present law and the new bill require the Health Officer to be licensed to practice medicine in North Carolina.

Point was raised by several speakers before the committee that since the Board of Health is an "independent agency," that is, not directly responsible to the electorate, its authority ought to be clearly defined and limited.

The proposed amendments, including one to prohibit the Board from adopting regulations governing the healing arts or practices by professions licensed by the State, will be codified into the body of the text by a subcommittee and the amended bill will be considered at another joint meeting next week.

PROTECTION — The sole purpose of public health legislation is to protect the people. Members of the Board of Health naturally think, and don't mind saying, they are best qualified to perform this function or discharge the responsibility.

Limitations upon authority embraced in amendments, guarantees of public hearings before laws are enacted, and assurance of "limited access" to vital statistics records in court houses and State offices removed from the pending bill many of the most objectionable features.

UNIFORM POLICY — Sen. Henry Jordan of Randolph has a background experience of eight years on the highway commissioner—four as division commissioner and four as chairman. He has a statewide point of view on road problems. He doesn't like special local legislation affecting acquisition of rights of way or other matters involved in the rapidly expanding highway system.

Neither does he feel that the State should foot the entire bill for rights of way through incorporated towns. On the other hand he recognizes that in some instances the relocation or widening of a street which is a link in a primary highway may not contribute much to the development of the town itself.

Dr. Jordan said the other day he is about ready to sponsor a bill requiring municipalities to pay 25 per cent of the cost of rights of way, instead of the present one-third—reduced some years ago from one half.

The former highway chairman made the observation during discussion of a bill that would relieve towns of 5,000 or less from sharing in right of way costs. The statewide 5,000 exemption bill grew out of a special local that would have relieved the town of Kill Devil Hills in Dare county.

While it is true that in many cases, as at Kill Devil Hills, the new location would enhance property values in one part of town, majority of the taxable property is in the part that might be damaged by changing the road. Effect of that situation is to make property owners pay for a road that will depreciate the value of the property on which the current taxes are levied.

RESPONSIBILITY OF GREAT GIFTS

Alexander Graham Bell, while still a very young man, was working on his first experiment with the telephone. He asked his teacher, Joseph Henry, "What would you advise me to do; publish the result of these experiments and let others work them out, or attempt to solve the problem myself?"

"You have the germ of a great invention," said Joseph Henry, "Work at it yourself."

But, of course, the same basic facts of character operate with these men as with the ordinary run of us. They have no exemption from the unyielding principles of the universe. They must obey the principles which underlie all achievement.

There can be no doubt about the special gifts of the genius, but probably many a genius languishes and dies without achieving anything because he was not willing to work, did not have the patience to hold out to the end, or wasted the substance of his moral character in play and dissipation.

The genius has the same qualities you and I have only in greater quantity. Upon him and us rests the responsibility for careful, diligent utilization of capacity.

It Could Happen To You

There are many ways that a person or persons can die accidentally. Any one of these could have or can be prevented.

Words rarely mean much to the individual who feels that "that tragic accident" always happens to the other fellow. These, a majority that may well include you and I, must have DEATH or SERIOUS INJURY to prove a fact. A terrible way to learn, I can assure.

In the last few months I have had the misfortune of having seen many dead people—people who just a short time before had been happy and full of life. Why shouldn't they have been happy? Young and energetic with life ahead . . . and then, DEATH strikes.

This happened one day not too long ago.

The morning had been a busy one for me. All of a sudden the phone rang and I was informed that a woman had just drowned in the Tar River.

I grabbed my camera and pad and very soon was on my way to the scene of the accident. Presently I arrived at the river and was able to obtain a seat in one of the Rescue Squad's boats that was going in search of the woman's body.

As we made our way down the treacherous river I began to feel the weird sensation of death in the air. In the distance could be seen three or four boats searching for the body.

We were lucky they found her before we had to go through the unwanted task of searching the defiable water. Her body had been caught in a clump of bushes near the shore.

The search party brought the body on to the boat landing near the bridge. I looked at the weeping husband as he peered through his hands, held over his face, at the body lying in the bottom of the boat . . . this body just an hour earlier so full of life. Now his wife would never breathe again.

Her body was taken from the boat and placed on the bank of the river, that seemingly passed on as if nothing had ever happened. My heart almost stood still as I looked at the body, then at the river, then at the large crowd that was beginning to gather on the bridge all peering down anxiously, almost without regard to their own safety.

It was explained by the woman's husband that he and his wife had fallen out of the boat while they were in the process of changing sitting positions in order that she might "run" the motor. A tragic thing, one he will probably never forget. His lesson in safety while boating or fishing was costly. . . a loved one.

Spring is here and summer is just around the corner. A large number of Pitt County citizens are boating and fishing fans. As a consequence, they will spend a considerable amount of time on the water.

DON'T LET YOUR LESSON IN WATER SAFETY COST YOU. HOW MANY OF US CAN AFFORD TO PAY THE PRICE OF DEATH? Remember, the accident doesn't always happen to the other fellow.

Opinions In Brief

"Once the federal government gets into a field it never gets out and it inevitably increases its contributions from year to year."—(Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia)

Other Editors Saying --- Swifter Justice

(Washington Daily News)

A few years ago cries were being heard all over North Carolina about the fact that criminal and civil courts were so far behind with their business of meeting out justice that the situation looked hopeless to many.

It was feared that courts would not clear up their business for many years to come. With a big backlog of cases on the docket and with new cases being entered all the time, it was felt that the state was being placed in a most unfortunate position. That applied to both criminal and civil cases.

But Governor Hodges long ago realized the predicament into which the courts had fallen, and he knew that some practical steps must be taken to remedy a bad situation.

Accordingly, more judicial districts were created, and with it of course came more judges. And they were charged with the responsibility of cleaning up the court calendars.

A real measure of success has been realized, we feel. In talking with judges, it has become quite evident that the huge backlog of criminal cases has been whittled down considerably. We haven't made as much a success in cleaning up the civil docket as many had hoped, but some progress has been made.

With the improved appearance of the criminal docket has come swifter justice in cases which might be termed as "current" ones. Less appeals are being noted because, we suspect, when a man knows that an appeal will be taken up immediately, particularly from Recorders' courts to Superior courts, he is more reluctant to appeal.

We still could afford to improve our court picture more. From time to time outstanding lawyers say that the real root of much of the evil in our criminal court division today lies in the matter of rotating the judges. They point out that today no one is really responsible for the court docket, and there still seems to be some of that attitude of "let the next judge worry about these cases."

But by and large great improvement has been shown, and we would be amiss in our duty if we failed to point out that fact.

As to the improvements needed in civil courts, we still have not made as much progress as expected there. In many counties we are told that civil dockets are still lagging far behind in this matter of clearing them up. Some counties still have a hundred or so civil cases awaiting trial.

When we reach that point where both criminal and civil cases can be heard within a reasonable time after they are docketed with the clerk of court, then we can truly say that we have made magnificent steps in both directions in giving swifter justice, better justice, and surer justice.

Plutocracy And Reign Of Terror

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON The thousands of union members' letters pouring into Senator John L. McClellan's office depict conditions in many unions fully as shocking as the conditions alleged to exist in Dave Beck's Teamsters' organization. It would take the committee several years to pursue all the "leads" it has been given in these thousand-a-day complaints.

They describe a reign of terror and selfishness, plutocracy and unionism, on the part of many union officers. The members and their wives thank and congratulate the Arkansas Senator for offering freedom and deliverance from such unchallenged dictation as Beck has enjoyed. But so great is their fear of reprisal for their confessions that McClellan has had to impose rigid restriction on newspaper summaries of their contents.

These communications disclose that many organizations have not permitted elections for many years. When they are held, they are "packed," for the officers usually control through favors or threats. Critics or opponents, if vocal, are fined, suspended and deprived of work during the suspension period. Employers do not dare to refuse to lay off these dissenters for fear of a costly strike.

"UNIONS ARE FAMILY CORPORATIONS" There are not regular audits or reports on collections of dues, special assessments, or the use of funds. When they are made, they are alleged to be sketchy and untrustworthy. Local officers give well-paid union jobs to their wives, children, in-laws and friends to such an extent that the organizations are known as "family corporations."

They own fine homes, although none are as luxurious as Beck's, enjoy expensive vacations and buy the finest cars. They retire on lush pensions, although it may have been years since they were on a private payroll. Many have built fortunes in real estate or in industries which they bought into on easy terms because of their power to order a destructive strike.

Certain union officers, according to some letters, have promised to organize groups of workers, accepted preliminary dues of $10 for expenses, and then vanquished. Beck and Frank W. Brewster, head of the Western Teamsters' Conference, are charged with having addressed such a meeting, and failed to set up the promised union.

CORRESPONDENTS' ATTACK Beck Numerous letters say that Beck has broken strikes at certain plants by driving his trucks through the picket lines, and then moved in to organize the plant himself. The McClellan Committee is especially interested in Beck's reported role of union leader and friend of the employers. It has evidence that Beck has, in this respect, violated the Taft-Hartley Act, which is extremely repugnant to the men who trusted him.

Several letters report that employers have been forced to buy group insurance policies from the

Hobby Lies In Ships

SAUGATUCK, Mich. (AP)—A Lilliputian fleet, being assembled by the skilled handiwork of Saugatuck utilities manager Abbott B. Davis, recalls the early heyday of Great Lakes sail and steam navigation.

Davis is constructing replicas, at a scale of one millimeter to the foot, of sailing and steam ships which hauled Saugatuck's lumber and fruit cargoes to other Great Lakes ports.

The original ships and their crews made Saugatuck their home port from about 1860 through the 1890s.

Soon to retire from Consumers Power Co., Davis plans to continue at his hobby until it includes all the better-known ships of the era. The average model contains more than 100 carefully shaped pieces of wood.

Lifeboats, the thickness of a kitchen match, have seats, oars and oarlocks.

Tools at the Davis "shipyard" include a jeweler's eyeglass, razor blades, tweezers, microscope, metric ruler, fine sandpaper, thin glue and a tiny lathe.

Hulls are fabricated from gum wood; his lathe turns out delicate masts of black walnut, red cedar produces trim; old tissue provides sails and the models have silk thread rigging.

Davis gleans authentic detail from old pictures and from conversations with some of the old-timers who once sailed aboard the original vessels.

Flagship of the Davis fleet is the O.R. Johnson, termed the fastest ship on the Great Lakes in the 1860-70 period. The model is 142 millimeters long and contains 114 tiny pieces of wood.

Davis says records show the original ship, built at Saugatuck in 1862, set the pace for others sailing from the port.

First to sail and last to lay up for the year, the Johnson's work season often extended from January to December, he says, including 60 or more round trips to Chicago.

LILLIPUT FLEET — Abbott B. Davis, Saugatuck, Mich., utilities manager holds up tiny sailing ship, the flag ship of a model fleet Davis is building.

A typical cargo for the Johnson was 125,000 board feet of lumber from the mills of Saugatuck and the now sand dune-covered Singapore.

Besides his model of the Johnson, Davis exhibits replicas of the steamers A.R. Colburn (1882) and H.A. Root (1886); the barge J.S. Ebersole (1880) and the three-masted schooner Ida Keith (1873).

The Keith model features a complete furnished cabin with bunks, stove, table, chairs, lamp and clock and cooking utensils in the galley.

Davis keeps no record of the actual time he spends on the fleet, but said it took him most of one winter to complete two of the models.

Jesus Faces the Cross

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 26:1—27:10.

The chief priests, scribes and elders met in the palace of the high priest and consulted how they might take Jesus into custody and kill Him.

As Jesus sat in the house of Simon the leper, a woman came with an alabaster box of rare ointment, which she poured on Jesus' head.

To Jesus in Gethsemane with His disciples, Judas brought a great multitude of people. Judas went to Jesus, saying, "Hail Master," and kissed Him.

When Judas saw Jesus bound before Pilate, he repented of his betrayal and gave back the money given him. MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 26:39.

Jesus Faces the Cross

JUDAS BETRAYS HIS MASTER WITH A KISS

Scripture—Matthew 26:1—27:10.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE FIRST event in our lesson tells of the chief priests, scribes and elders of the congregation meeting at the palace of the high priest, to plot a way to seize Jesus and bring about His death.

They decided that they could not carry out their plan until after the Passover, as the people would be in an uproar. Then Judas Iscariot came to them and bargained to betray Him for 30 pieces of silver.

Can you imagine a group of men, the common people's leaders, meeting to hatch a plan to seize an innocent man, from whom they happened to differ in religious views, and have him brutally killed?

There are many gatherings of Christian people in our own day, ministers and members of certain churches, gatherings of pastors and people from churches of differing creeds who meet amicably to plan improvements in church affairs and also in civic, national not desert Him, even if he lost his life. Christ answered him that "this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny Me thrice."

In the garden of Gethsemane to which Jesus took Peter, James and John, Christ left them to watch while He went aside to pray: "O My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me; nevertheless not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

Going back to the Apostles Jesus found them asleep, and He said: "What, could ye not watch with Me one hour?" Leaving them again to make the same prayer, only to find them sleeping on His return. He prayed again, then said, "Rise, let us be going; behold, he is at hand that doth betray Me."

Then came Judas and a multitude of people, some armed. Judas went up to his Master, saying, "Hail, Master," and kissed Him, and that was the sign agreed on that Christ's enemies would know their man and take Him into custody.

Jesus was taken before the high priest where the scribes and or international living and religious conditions for all.

Jesus realized that His time on earth was nearly over and told His disciples that two days after the Passover He would be betrayed and crucified.

Then we have the incident of the woman with the box of precious ointment pouring it on Christ's head and angering the disciples who said it might better have been sold and the money given to the poor. Christ said she was anointing Him for His burial, and that her deed would be remembered wherever the gospel was preached.

The breaking of bread and drinking of wine at the Passover feast and Jesus' words that they symbolized His broken body and the spilling of His blood, should be studied by the classes, but we must be brief in our summary of the many incidents of the lesson. It was at the Passover that Jesus said that one of the Apostles would betray Him, causing His companions much sorrow and wonder.

After the Passover feast, when they went to the Mount of Olives, Peter declared that whatever happened to his Master he would elders were gathered, and questioned. Peter had followed his Master, but sat afar off, and when he was accused three times of being a companion of Jesus he denied it vehemently. When the cock crowed, Jesus' words came back to him, and rushing out, he wept bitterly for his disloyalty.

The high priest found Christ guilty of blasphemy, and those near spit in His face, buffeted and struck Him.

Bound next morning and brought before Pontius Pilate, Judas, seeing that Christ was condemned, resented his evil deed and brought the money he had received for Jesus' betrayal to the chief priests and elders, saying, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood," to which they answered, "What is that to us?" Judas then threw down the silver and went away and hanged himself.

When disaster seems about to strike, or when it does, remember Jesus' words: repeated in our Memory Verse. If we cannot avert it, bear whatever comes with resignation, saying with Christ: "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

Loses His Fight Against Salary

WEST CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa. — Harry P. Mosman has been burgess, or mayor, of West Conshohocken for 18 years, and has always managed to fight off efforts of the Borough Council to pay him a salary. He says his only interest is "work for the borough and its people." The other night, the Council again voted him a salary. At long last, Mosman gave in, saying, "Well, if you insist. . . . He'll get $120 a year, retroactive to Jan. 1."

Telephones Lost Personal Touch

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I. (AP) — This island's telephone service switched yesterday from the magneto system to dial telephoning, and some of the 357 subscribers are not happy about it. The islanders used names instead of numbers and the telephone operators knew where to get practically everybody. "We're losing something," said George Steadman. "We're going to miss the personal touch those operators gave us."

Bray Again To Play Passion Play Role

Lloyd Bray, Jr., is shown above studying the exact location of Alsace, France, where he will attend a world-wide Christian work shop this summer. This is the second year that he will portray Christ in the annual community-church production, "The Passion Play," slated for April 14, 15, and 16. (Reflector Staff Photo by Anne Singleton).

Lloyd Bray, Jr. who appeared as Christ in last year's Passion play and who will again portray him this year is planning to enter Duke Divinity School in September as a ministerial student and also continue working in religious drama. "There are very few people in the world who have the opportunity to portray Christ. . . . I feel that it is an honor to be one of them," says Bray. Before being cast as Christ, Bray portrayed John in the Passion play for two years. This is the fourth year for the community-church production of the last days of Christ on earth. Performances are slated for April 14, 15 and 16. Bray has also appeared in many religious dramas with the Wesley Players.

This Greenville actor who is a senior at East Carolina College has also starred in campus productions in his three years of college. Some of his leading roles have been Henry Higgins in "Pygmalion," as a Russian officer in "Darkness at Noon," a cockney speaking sergeant in "Devil's Disciple," and Banquo in "Macbeth." He was technical director of "State of the Union."

While at the work camp in North-east France Bray and other students will be doing manual labor when they work together restoring churches and youth centers in this area. He pointed out that, "This is a good opportunity to learn about people from other nations as you work and live together. With the world so small today, we need every chance to learn about them — their habits and ideals."

"This is a good experience to have behind me," Bray notes. "For the next three summers I'll be doing pastoral work in connection with my studies at Duke University."

More Than Ever, Americans Will Be Going Abroad

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — More Americans than ever are expected to seek fun and culture overseas this year — and to spend more money in the pursuit. All of the Big Three tourist outlets — Europe, Far East and Latin America — are in on the boom.

In the first two months of the year this wasn't so for Europe. Bookings were trailing last year by as much as 20 per cent, travel agencies, airlines and steamship companies report. Touring ardor was cooled by fears of war and of gasoline and other shortages. As a by-product, travel to Latin America and the Far East took a sudden spurt.

Then sentiment about Europe changed sharply. The war scare died down. Gasoline rationing all but disappeared. Where it survives, tourists get special rations. The rush for reservations in the last month leads transportation firms to predict overseas travel will be up around 10 per cent. Both airlines and surface lines are adding equipment.

"The dollar shortage in Europe is so pressing this year," American Express President Ralph T. Reed says, "that special efforts are being made to keep the American tourist comfortable and happy."

"The American traveler is assured of ample supplies of gasoline across Western Europe, including Great Britain and France, where rationing for local nations is in force. Car rentals continue as usual. Hotel accommodations are generally better than in 1956. Prices in most European countries may be slightly higher than last year."

The Pacific Travel Area Assn., covering 18 countries, says advance bookings indicate a continuing rise in travel to the Orient. Americans spent about 45 million dollars on this last year, up about 35 per cent over 1955.

Travel to South America would be up 25 per cent this year, American Express predicts. Both surface and air lines are booking more tours.

The second Annual Spring Session of the South Roanoke Baptist Association will meet Tuesday of next week in the Fountain Baptist Church. The meeting will open at 10:00 a.m. and adjourn at 3:00 p.m.

Association moderator, Earle J. Rogers of Washington, asks that messengers and visitors bring their lunches. The food will be spread and drinks provided by the host church.

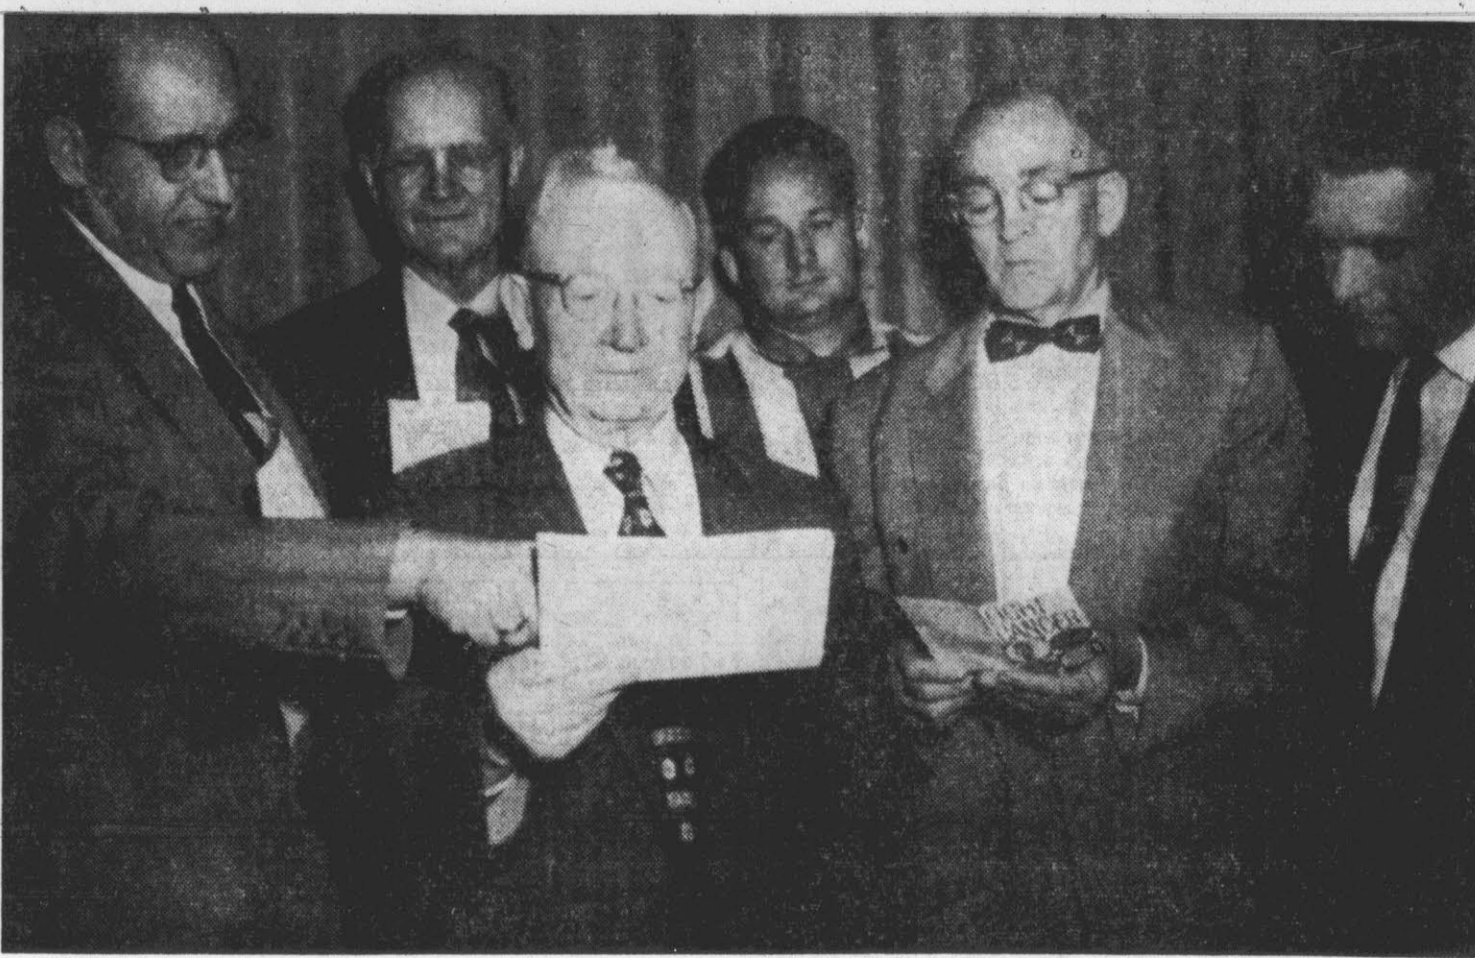

This session of the Association has been planned to emphasize the inspirational and educational phases of Baptist work. Routine reports and other business will be held to a minimum. It is expected that the only business matter of major importance will be the semi-annual report of the Executive Committee by Rev. C. E. Baucom, of Wilson.

Speakers for the occasion will include Rev. D. H. McCollough, Grifton; Rev. Irby B. Jackson, Greenville; Rev. Paul Russell, Chocowinity; Rev. Lee Pridden, Raleigh; L. P. Yelverton, Fountain; John M. Simms, Raleigh; and Dr. E. L. Spivey of Raleigh.

Denies Any Kind Of Link To Beck

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland has said he doesn't know Dave Beck, president of the Teamsters Union.

Furthermore, said McKeldin, he knows "of no contribution by Beck, none at all" to his campaign fund.

A national news magazine has said that the Republican governor's campaign fund for re-election in 1954 received $5,000 from the union leader.

Beck's handling of union funds has been under investigation by a Senate subcommittee on labor racketeering.

Attempts to chase the insects with a spray gun were unsuccessful, so the court, jury and attorneys retired to an empty courtroom to continue the trial.

East Carolina Tennis Team Trims N. C. State College

Pirates Take 7-1 Raleigh Victory

RALEIGH—East Carolina's tennis team thrashed North Carolina State yesterday afternoon 7-1 in the Wolfpack's own backyard. The Pirates took five of six singles matches and were in the process of copping all three of the doubles events when darkness intervened to stop the action. It marked the first time an ECC tennis outfit has topped State and was one of the worst defeats that the Atlantic Coast Conference team has felt this season. Only One Defeat Only one man on the East Carolina club was defeated in singles play, giving State their lone point. Maurice Everette, ECC's number one man, was defeated by Mickey Solomon 6-0, 6-4. Everette is the North State loop's defending singles champ. Winners in singles for the visiting Bucs were John West, Bill Hollowell, John Savage (all freshmen), Mike Katsias and James Blake. In doubles competition, Everette and Hollowell copped their match 6-3, 6-2, over State's Dye and DeCorsey; Katsias and Blake defeated State's Moss and Beatty 6-3, 6-2. East Carolina's number one doubles team of West and Savage had a 2-0 lead over the Wolfpack's top doubles outfit when the match was halted by darkness. Coach Raymond Martinez, working his third season as head mentor for the Pirate tennis team, told his club after the match that it was "a very excellent team effort." He also pointed out James Blake and Bill Hollowell as playing their most impressive games to date. Wake Forest Now The Pirates journey to Winston-Salem today for another match with an ACC team, Wake Forest. The Demon Deacons have an annually strong team and are rated slight favorites over the visiting club from Greenville. Following the match at Winston-Salem, ECC will swing back into the North State play with a contest at Elon. The Bucs have met Elon already once this year and topped them 9-0 on the Greenville courts. Yesterday's victory fixed the Pirate record thus far at 2-1. Their only loss came at the hands of powerful Kalamazoo College of Michigan. The summary: Singles: Solomon (State) defeated Everette 6-0, 6-4. West (ECC) defeated DeCorsey 6-3, 6-2. Hollowell (ECC) defeated Dye 6-1, 6-1. Savage (ECC) defeated Campbell 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Katsias (ECC) defeated Moss 6-0, 6-4. Blake (ECC) defeated Denton 6-0, 6-2. Doubles: Savage and West (ECC) defeated Solomon and Campbell 2-0 (called). Everette and Hollowell (ECC) defeated Dye and DeCorsey 6-3, 6-2. Katsias and Blake (ECC) defeated Moss and Beatty 6-3, 6-2.

GHS Track Team Is Handed First Setback At Meet

They Placed For Phantoms At Raleigh

GREENVILLE'S ONLY FIRST—Yesterday, at a triangular track meet in Raleigh, the Capitols walked away with a lopsided victory over Greenville and Henderson. Raleigh polled 96 1/2 points, while Greenville scored 27 and Henderson added 16 1/2. The home club took every first place on the sheet except the mile relay, which was captured by GHS. The Phantom relay group that emerged victorious in that event were Robert Howell, Billy Sermons, Ed Wilkerson and Jimmy Kelly, left to right, above. (Reflector Sports Photo).

RALEIGH—Raleigh high school turned on the power in yesterday's triangular meet here against Greenville and Henderson to take a lopsided victory from the other two. Raleigh compiled a tremendous 96 1/2 points to top the team honors. Greenville came in second with a 27 point total and Henderson finished third with 16 1/2. For the Green Phantoms, it was their first match of the year in which they did not take winning honors. In three previous contests, one against AAA competition, the Greenville club finished first. All But One The Capitols took first places in all but one event to race their score to almost the century point.

Greenville's only first came in the mile relay event. Henderson compiled their points by finishing close behind the winners in three events. The powerful Raleigh club snatched victories in the 120 high hurdles, the 800, the shotput, the 100 dash, the 200 dash, the broad jump, the mile run, the high jump, the 440 run, the pole vault, the 180 low hurdles and the discus. Greenville's mile relay team of Billy Sermons, Robert Howell, Ed Wilkerson and Jimmy Kelly swept to a 3:58.5 time to defeat the other two outfits and nab their only first. Green Places Greenville placed boys in the following events: Roberts took fourth in the 120 high hurdles; Barrett placed fourth in the shotput; Sermons placed fourth in the 100 yard dash; Sermons and Howell placed second and fourth in the 220 yard dash, respectively; Sermons placed third in the broad jump; Everett placed third in the mile run; Kelly placed fourth in the 440; Boyd, Fisher and Nunn took second, third and fourth places in the pole vault; Howell placed third in the 180 low hurdles; Barrett placed third and Martin and Fisher tied for fourth in the discus. Phantoms Host To Pam Pack Baseballers either Charlie Staton or lefthander Ronnie Finch today, however, Staton, a fireball artist, was Bynum's chief cohort last year and also was something of a workhorse. Finch saw little duty in 1956 and is expected to get plenty of work this year. All three are sophomores. Hudson Miller, a senior righthander, also may have been in line to start for the Phantoms this afternoon. Miller worked with the team year before last as a regular pitcher, but was unable to play in 1956. Other Slots Today's starting lineup for the other eight positions was probably as follows: Dick Evans at first base; Mack Roebuck at second base; Billy Cox at shortstop; Walker Lee Allen at third base; Joe Wingate, Bobby Edwards, and Charlie Smith in the outfield. Angus Duff behind the plate.

Washington high school invaded Greenville's Brookgreen Field this afternoon in search of a Northeastern Conference victory over Coach Booley Farley's first-place Phantom baseballers. The Greensies, going into today's game, were situated on top of their Class AA league, having gained that status by winning their only loop game of the year thus far. Wednesday the Phants dropped New Bern 4-2 to grab a slice of the Northeastern first place slot. Farley, whose club had a 7-7 season last year, praised his team and said that he thought "they did very well for an opening game." Merrill Bynum hurried a three-hitter to gain the winning pitcher role. Another victory today would give Greenville a far-away lead on the league's top position for the time being.

Pitching Bynum, a sophomore who saw duty last season as a freshman for the G-Men, is regarded as the top moundman in the Phantom camp. Farley, who suffered badly from a lack of depth in the pitching staff last season, used Bynum often and the burly righthander came through well in most instances. He is capable of pitching two games in a row without losing any team. It is probable that Farley used

One Non-Loop Game For ACC Teams Set Today By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Only one Atlantic Coast Conference baseball game, a non-conference affair, was scheduled today as the other ACC teams rested before a flurry of action tomorrow. Harvard's touring nine was to face Virginia at Charlottesville today. Monday at the Crimison lost to Maryland, another ACC club, 2-1, in a game called after six innings because of rain. The only action yesterday saw South Carolina edge Erskine 3-2. A single run in the first and two in the fifth did the trick for the Gamecocks. Bob Ramsey, who parted with 10 scattered hits, was the winning pitcher. Maryland's invasion of Georgetown yesterday was canceled because of rain. Two ACC games, North Carolina State at Wake Forest and North Carolina at Maryland, top tomorrow's card. Furman is at Clemson in the other action.

Chicod Trounces Grifton, 14-3

Chicod high school opened its 1957 baseball season yesterday, trouncing Grifton 14-3 on the Chicod field. The winners tallied 14 runs on 11 big hits and committed only one error. Grifton scored their three runs on five hits and pulled four errors. Winning pitcher for the Chicod outfit was Walter Haddock, who went all the way except for the final seventh inning. Grifton used four hurlers. Outstanding at the plate for Chicod were Phil Smith and Bud Dennis. Smith polled a triple and double and a single for four trips to the plate. Dennis collected two for three attempts. Wade of Grifton was their leader with two for three. Chicod's next ball game will be at Winterville Thursday. Chicod 561 110 1-14 Grifton 010 000 1-3 Winning pitcher: Haddock. Losing pitcher: unavailable.

Ralph Gardner Offers To Buy Washington Redskins In Deal

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Does owner isn't he." George Preston Marshall intend to sell his Washington Redskins of the National Football League or is he playing it cozy? The Charlotte Observer said today that Ralph Gardner of Shelby, N.C., who practices law in Washington, had offered to buy the team from Marshall in a deal that would involve close to a million dollars. Observer Sports Writer Dick Pierce, who contacted Marshall in Chicago, quoted him as saying, "I'm glad to hear Ralph is worth that much — he's really well off 20 per cent of the total stock. Wismer, who in recent years has differed with Marshall, has used Marshall, alleging Marshall used about $50,000 yearly of club funds for personal comfort. Marshall, in denying the charges, called them "ludicrous." In commenting on Gardner's offer, the paper quoted Marshall as saying, "Oh, Ralph said something about if I ever sold, or if available, he'd like to have it. But I'm not getting out of the business. If I had a winner last season I might. But this is not the time to quit—I want to quit on top." If he bought the team, the paper quoted Gardner, Washington would have to build a stadium with 60,000 seating capacity for him to keep the team there. Marshall agreed with Gardner on that point. "If Washington is going to retain its major league franchises in both baseball and football," he said, "a new stadium is necessary. You build me a stadium that will seat 60,000, and I'll move to Charlotte," Pierce quoted Marshall. Gardner is the son of the late Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina.

Speiser Rules A Heavy Favorite

DETROIT (AP)—It will be the slam-bang style of Chuck Speiser against the quick-fisted counter-punches of Tony Anthony when the two light heavyweights battle tonight for the right to meet champion Archie Moore here June 7. Speiser is a heavy favorite in the scheduled 12-rounder which will be televised nationally (NBC-TV, 10 p.m. EST) from Detroit's Olympia Stadium. It's the "two-time Olympic battler's first 'big' fight. But Anthony, who has 22 knockouts to his credit in his 29-4 record, asks, "Where do they get that business of 13-5 odds? Who did Speiser ever beat, anyway?" Anthony, the quicker of the two and a capable puncher with either hand, feels he can elude the rock-hard body punches with which Speiser has been so successful. The Detroit fighter generally moves in just one direction — forward — and is most effective at close range. Speiser, 27 and Anthony's teammate on the 1952 Olympic boxing team, is regarded as the No. 1 contender for Moore's crown. On the strength of six straight victories, Anthony is third-ranked. Speiser has won 19 bouts, 14 by knockout, has lost four times and fought to one draw.

A crowd of 5,300 saw the All-Stars grab a 35-27 halftime lead behind the shooting of Notre Dame's John Smyth, who led his team with 17 points. One Of Beck's Errors Was Ignoring English

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody makes mistakes, but one of Dave Beck's worst was ignoring John Beacons Hill section of Boston. As general secretary-treasurer of the Teamsters Union, English began drawing the reins on Beck's tangles financial deals with union funds long before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee became interested in the Teamsters president.

Beck never paid too much attention to English, his No. 2 man in the Teamsters. He dealt with English's subordinates on money matters.

But back in 1955 English balked at the union's buying Beck's Seattle home for $160,000 and letting Beck continue to use it rent-free. That didn't seem too sensible to English, a conservative and careful man. He gave in on the home purchase only after the union's entire executive board put an okay in writing.

A year later, English wouldn't pay out some $50,000 for the union to buy Beck's home furnishings — even with board approval. And he recently quered Beck's plan for a million-dollar, union-paid publicity program in Beck's behalf.

That followed Beck's statement — and refusal to testify — that he used some $300,000 to $400,000 in union funds from other echelons of the union than the national level over which English guards the pursestrings. Saying "no" to Beck took a bit of courage.

What type of man is this courageous Teamster? He shuns publicity. Practically every newsman in town wants to interview English, but his "no" to them, through aides, is as firm as his replies to Beck.

The one thing English wants known at the moment is that he is not, repeat not, volunteering information about the Teamsters to the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

Yes, he has seen the committee's counsel, Robert Kennedy, a few times. Yes, he has answered Kennedy's question and produced records, but only in each case after Kennedy produced a subpoena for that document.

This — plus a few lines of biographical material — is all English will put out right now. His brief "background information" discloses he has been a Teamsters Union member for 53 years.

But a few other facts are known. He is a robust, tall, cigar-smoking individual with a wooden leg, although agile with his cane. He claims to have been known at one time as "Boston Johnny—the Friend of the Working Girl." This no romantic note—he once helped some women in a Boston candy plant get a pay raise.

Beck has never fooled him. He was a friend of old Dan Tobin, the late Teamsters president, whom Beck hustled out of office. When Tobin was around, English was a traveling auditor and organizer, who reported things to Tobin.

One of those things was Beck's power buildup with the union's West Coast units. Tobin, like English, believed in a decentralized union. Together they worked against what Beck was driving for—centralized power.

Few people could be more opposite than Beck and English. Where Beck blusters and talks in millions, English is the old politician type who works the alleys and byways, shaking hands and making friends.

Is English shooting for Beck's job? The answer is no. English has annuities salted away. He is not the ambitious type.

English is a satisfied man with his $50,000 annual union salary—the same as Beck's. He can't understand all the commotion about making another dollar when he already has one in his pocket.

But it's understood that if no one else does, English will oppose Beck's announced plan to run for another five-year term next September as Teamsters president.

Certainly any serious Beck opponent will have to clear with John English.

Headache After Headache In Foreign Aid Operations

By REILMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suppose you are the director of the agency that operates the multi-billion dollar American foreign aid program. You are dealing with more than 60 nations and territories. Among these governments are Communists, Socialists, dictators, constitutional monarchies. In foreign policy, some usually stand with the United States; others are "neutralist." Still others stand closer to Russia. Some are brand new, with delicate national sensibilities, their economies still embryonic, are susceptible to inflation and limited in the size and type of projects they can usefully absorb. Some are strategically located, smack up against the Iron Curtain. Others are oceans away. This one possesses vital ores and minerals that the United States lacks and must import — chrome, graphite, nickel, tin, manganese, mercury, mica, tungsten, cobalt. That one possesses little or nothing of apparent value to the non-Communist world as of today. It's a gigantic jig-saw. No two problems are exactly alike. As each project comes up, there will be reasons for and against approving it. Take some individual cases. Afghanistan — Population 12 million, remotely situated, adjoins Russia, tends to vote "neutralist" in the United Nations. Project — To build airfields and train the air force. Cost, 14 1/2 million in loans and grants. The ICA approved for several reasons, but primarily to keep Russia from doing the job with its technicians and equipment. What would you have decided? Here's another. Indonesia — Population 80 million, gained independence after World War II, rich in resources, "neutralist" in foreign policy. Project — A survey of economic development potentialities to be made by a private American engineering firm. Cost, $3,680,000. But—Indonesia insists that the engineers' findings be not made known to the ICA. Notwithstanding, the project was considered "in the best interests of both nations" and was approved. Each day brings a different kind of headache. There's that fertilizer plant for Korea. Cost originally estimated at 2 1/2 million, later upped by 9 million. Engineers first recommend another. Which is more efficient? The plant is under construction while all these angles are still being re-surveyed. But the ICA's problems are by no means confined to its overseas offices. Some dwell in Washington. For instance — Congress approves foreign aid funds on a yearly basis. The work against long-range planning, hampers flexibility. More important, funds not "obligated" by a given date go back to the Treasury. What happens? Here is an excerpt of a letter from Abbott K. Hamilton, former ICA official, to President Eisenhower: "At several staff meetings in early 1956 we were told that only six months remained in which to dispose of the $1,200,000,000 and that special effort must be made by all to start obligating at the rate of $200,000,000 a month; otherwise any uncommitted funds would go back to the Treasury and be lost. "Could anyone think of a more wasteful and unsuccessful method of operation?" ICA's director today is a tough-minded Ohio lawyer, John B. Hollister. He was a law partner of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, a former judge, congressman, and State Department consultant. He is 66 years old. He has a staff of 8,620, of whom 5,161 are Americans. The total monthly payroll is around $3,780,000. Hollister says he thinks the foreign aid program is "adequate" now. Lack of flexibility, he says, is one of ICA's biggest problems. "You can't tell a year ahead of time what you may have to do in a given region but you have to formulate your plans anyway." As to the year-by-year pattern of congressional appropriations he said: "We try not to do things in a slipshod way. On the other hand, Congress keeps the pressure on you to obligate money within a given period. It obviously isn't the best way." Does he personally favor the program? "I'm a Middle Western lawyer who left a good practice to come down here. Why should I do that if I didn't believe in what I'm doing?"

The Brass and the Blue

General Wessels called his staff meeting after the evening mess. Major Powell was there, and Jim Bridger, who had just come in from a brief "look-see," as he put it. Half a dozen officers were present and the first arrivals took what chairs were available; the others stood against the wall while Wessels paced back and forth, reducing visibility in the room with his rank cigar.

Finally the orderly closed the door and Wessels stopped pacing. "Gentlemen," he said, "I've called this meeting because I firmly believe we're on the threshold of something great, the turning point in our one-sided campaign against Red Cloud's Sioux."

The murmur around the room like a brook dropping down over rocks. When Wessels took his cigar from his mouth to speak again, the movement brought an end to their buzzing talk; they watched their commander with the same attention that a musician gives the symphony conductor.

"Bridger has been on a scout all afternoon," Wessels turned to him. "Did you learn anything?" "Red Cloud's lickin' his wounds, Gener'l. That young lieutenant shore give him jessy!" Bridger threw his arms out wide. "Wrecked his hull camp. You should've seen it, Gener'l; lodges an' traps scattered over a hull half-acre. Looks like a herd o' buffalo went through it lickety-split."

"You saw no sign of the Sioux?" Powell asked this. He was a small man, moon-faced, with a neatly clipped mustache and a manner that invited no nonsense. "Nope," Bridger said. "Reckon Red Cloud's somewhere behind Lodge Trail Ridge, cussin' a blue streak. You can't blame him none. All along he's been makin' some powerful medicine. Got most of his bucks believin' he's th' wind and the thunder." Bridger chuckled. "That there lieutenant sorta of his hand on his desk. "But at last Red Cloud has met a force in the field, vastly inferior to his own in numbers, but he took a licking. He gave ground, gentlemen. And I imagine that was a severe blow to his pride. No, I believe a great event has occurred, and I intend to make the most of it. Gentlemen, understand that a peace commission has stood ready to make overtures to Red Cloud and bring this bloody mess to an end, but we needed a victory on our side before we could argue. Think, gentlemen! The defeated army does not dictate terms to the victor, and until this afternoon, Red Cloud has been the victor!"

"But will this be enough, General?" Captain Tenadore Ten Eyck asked. He leaned against the wall, a slender man with dark, burning eyes. "Enough to insure peace?" Wessels shook his head. "I don't know. But it can offer hope. I've finished a report that will go out by courier tonight after tattoo. In this report I've suggested that the peace commission return to Fort Laramie, and that a possible meeting be arranged. We will never have a clear-cut victory here; I'm sure of that. But I think even Red Cloud will agree that it is ridiculous to waste lives on both sides when neither can win. He looked at each of them. "That's the situation as I see it. You're excused, gentlemen."

They filed out, all but Jim Bridger, who stayed because General Wessels signaled him. Wessels touched a match to his dead cigar and puffed furiously. Bridger remained slumped in his chair, his whiskered jaws working gently on a cud of tobacco. "Somethin' under your skin, Gener'l?"

"A command decision is always a difficult one," Wessels said. "For a week now I've been kicking a prospect around in my mine, unable to reach a conclusion." "About abandonin' Fort Smith, Gener'l?"

Wessels made no attempt to mask his surprise. He took the cigar from his mouth, and said, "How did you know, Jim?" "Warn't hard to figure," Bridger said. "Was I runnin' this shebang, I'd have done it. Fort Smith ain't big, Gener'l. You got a nigh more'n forty men there. Was there a fight, Red Cloud'd send Crazy Horse up there with a handful of good bucks an' huff down th' walls for you."

"I know that," Wessels said. "I sent a courier there days ago with express orders to have everything ready to move on a minute's notice. At that time it was my intention to buy Red Cloud's peace with Smith."

"He might've gone for it too, Gener'l." "That's what I thought," Wessels said, scrubbing a hand across his face. "But the complexion has changed, Jim. If I abandon Smith now, the peace commission won't have a dog's chance to talk with Red Cloud. How can I take a chance? They may not even come to Laramie, and I may not be able to arrange the talks. If that happens and I leave Smith occupied, they stand a good chance of being wiped out to a man."

"Got you between two rocks, ain't they?" Bridger hoisted himself erect. "You know somethin', Gener'l? I don't envy you a danged bit fer havin' this job."

Wessels stared at the door after it closed, and had he cared to admit it, he would have agreed with Jim Bridger. He settled back with the sour stub of his cigar and let his many worries have their way with him. He began to understand Colonel Carrington a little more clearly, and with this understanding came the first shards of pity, for Carrington had faced a hopeless cause from the very beginning. Lacking combat experience, he had been the unwitting whipping boy for post-Civil War politicians and ambitious generals.

Schwabacker's luck is about to change - for better or worse. Be sure to continue "The Brass and the Blue" in Chapter 25 tomorrow.

Off They Go Again, To Maintain Record

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE

Through contests and conventions Greenville High School has participated in varied fields on the district, state, and national level.

Trying to maintain its superior record, the high school band went to Greensboro Thursday and Friday to participate in the North Carolina State Band Contest. Eighteen members of the glee club will take part in the annual North Carolina Music Festival April 11-12. Miss Ona Shindler, music director, will accompany the group to Greensboro.

The school is allowed to send only the best paper from the two classes. Mary Ann Bryant junior, placed second in the state last year. A few years ago Diana Porter placed second in the nation. Both of these students were taught by Mrs. Howard Mims.

A collection of spring clothes, including matched shirts and blouses, bermudas, tailored and party dresses, were modeled by high school and college girls for the Future Homemakers of America's March 27 meeting. Russians Renew Dire Warnings

LONDON (AP) — The Russians, continuing their warnings to America's NATO allies, have threatened devastating retaliation for any nuclear attacks from bases in Britain, the Netherlands and West Germany.

Moscow radio made the warning last night in broadcasts beamed to the three countries. They followed recent letters from Soviet Premier Bulganin to the governments of Norway and Denmark, only Scandinavian countries in NATO. Bulganin told both countries that Russia wants peace but would retaliate with great destruction for any atomic attack.

The broadcast last night in Dutch commented on Dutch Defense Minister Cornelius Staf's current visit to the United States for talks on military aid. The broadcast said the Dutch people should be told "the grave truth—that the Soviet Union would, in the event of an attack, not shrink from destroying the springboards used for aggression against it."

Commentator Alexander Melnikov declared one H-bomb dropped on the U. S. base at Soesterberg, in central Holland, would "obliterate" Amsterdam, The Hague, Utrecht, Amersfoort and the whole area between these cities.

The broadcast to Britain said that in any nuclear war Western European countries could be "hit, and hit hard, all over their length and breadth."

West Germany was told that any move to equip the new German army with nuclear weapons would entail "many dangers" for the country. The broadcast said that West Germany would be the main theater in any atomic war.

TV Could Lose Kovacs To The Movie Industry

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Watch out, TV! You could lose one of your brightest young talents — Ernie Kovacs.

The brush-lipped, cigar-chewing comic is here for his first movie and has admittedly fallen in love with picture-making.

"This is the life!" he exclaimed. "I never realized how much fun performing could be. For the past nine years, I've been writing, directing, producing and acting in my own shows on TV. And what a struggle that is!"

"You go on the show with maybe 20 minutes rehearsal for an hour program. In the middle of everything, you realize you need a closeup next. So you look around the stage for the closeup camera and you give the director a lift of the eyebrow to signal him to bring the camera in."

Nowadays, he has a much softer life. He arrives on the set of "The Mad Ball," gives a quick study of lines somebody else has written for him and goes into the sewer to be directed by Richard Quine. The latter is the one-time actor and now sensational director of comedy hits like "Solid Gold Cadillac" and "Full of Life."

"There's only one thing missing to make this perfect," Ernie sighed. "That's Edie."

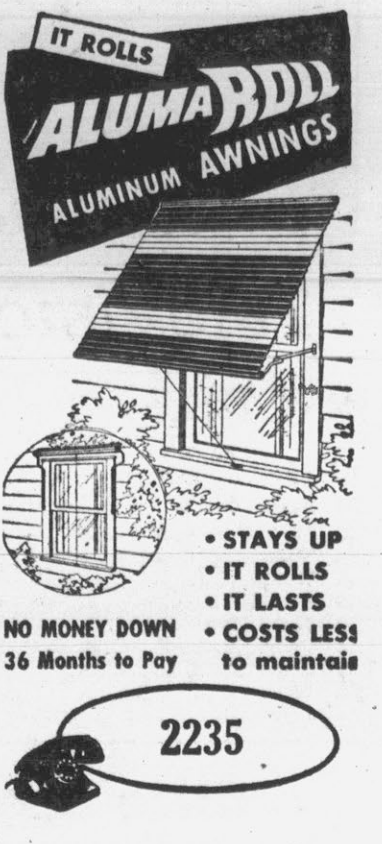

He referred to his wife Edith Adams. They are separated by 3,000 miles because she's one of the stars of "L'il Abner" on Broadway.

"I've been trying to get her out of the show for a week so she could join me," he said. "Maybe if you would put in the papers that I was being chased by some blonde out here, that'd get her out here sooner."

What are chances Ernie might settle in the film industry? "I'd love it," he said, "especially if Edie were out here. It's possible. I'm finishing up a novel called 'Zoomar,' which will be published in October. If it's made into a movie, I'd like to have some control over it."

His TV future is in doubt. He just turned down an offer to replace Sid Caesar's show this summer.

"I'd go on if they wanted to put the show on for 26 weeks," he reasoned. "But I think it's a mistake to get typed as a summer replacement personality. I did it last year for Caesar, and that's enough."

Landed Plane On Rural Road, Due Low Ceiling

WASHINGTON—Thomas E. Stancil, operator of Stancil Flying Service in Greenville and Washington, was breathing easier today—24 hours after landing a 1957 Piper Cub Tri-Pacer on an unpaved rural road near Charlotte.

Stancil, traveling from Washington to Charlotte with three passengers, was forced down yesterday morning by a low ceiling 30 miles from Charlotte. He landed on a rural road, got his passengers into Charlotte for a business meeting and then returned to the plane. He took off from the same road yesterday afternoon.

The landing and take-off was without mishap.

Civil Aeronautics Authority safety officials in Charlotte approved the landing and the take-off. Stancil elected to put the plane down on the road rather than try to return to an open airport in the eastern part of the state.

Passengers on the trip were DeWard Smith, Washington, and two Kincaid brothers, who were not identified by first names, representing an advertising agency in Charlotte.

After his take-off, which was near Bethel Church 30 miles from Charlotte, Stancil flew to High Point and then to Selma where Smith met business associates. Stancil spent the night in White Lake and returned to Washington this morning. He said today that the plane was not damaged in the emergency procedures and the re-

The pilot said the plane had been flying at altitudes between 1,000 and 2,000 feet until low clouds and fog forced it into the emergency landing. The landing on the unpaved road was completed within a distance of 300 feet. The take-off required approximately 250 feet.

which was set to music especially for the NEA's centennial year.

E. F. Johnson, principal of Ayden High School, welcomed the group to the school and the meeting. He was assisted in preliminary portions of the meeting by W. L. May, a member of the faculty at Ayden.

Following the meeting and ceremonies, Winterville teachers were host at a social hour which included serving portions of the giant-birthday cake.

Retiring President Latham announced that one of the 1957-1958 officers, Mrs. Elsie Cherry Lewis of Stokes, second vice-president, was unable to attend the meeting. She is accompanying members of the Stokes Senior Class on a trip to Washington, D. C.

The county unit's secretary-treasurer for 1957-1958 will be appointed by the president.

High School Day Program Underway At ECC Today

High School Day at East Carolina College, in progress on the campus today, includes as participants more than 3,000 juniors and seniors, their teachers, and faculty advisors from schools over a wide area in the Eastern and Piedmont sections of the state.

Educational and recreational activities scheduled for the day began this morning at nine o'clock with visits to exhibits in the various departments of instruction and tours of the campus. The High School Day program will continue until late afternoon and will include varied events planned for the instruction and entertainment of guests.

A general assembly in the Wright auditorium this morning brought visitors together for a roll call by counties, a "get together" with friends and new acquaintances, a program of music, and an address by President John D. Messick of East Carolina. Dr. Ed J. Carter, chairman of the college High School Day committee, presided.

Dr. Messick placed emphasis, in addressing the high school students, on present and continuous development in personal living, sincere and generous consideration of others, and the responsibility of the individual to society.

He pointed out the "absolute need" for basic education to deep-fund and widen understanding of the world in which we live. The student, he said, should further his formal education so that he may discover and understand his personal responsibilities toward his fellows and may develop his interest in and aptitude for a vocation or profession.

The College Choir, Band, and Orchestra provided a program of music for visitors. Group singing was led by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music.

Special convocations brought visitors and faculty members of the college together for discussions of the work in fifteen departments of instruction; the Air Force ROTC, and the student teaching program.

On display during the day were approximately a hundred exhibits entered in the Northeastern District Science Fair. These examples of work in the fields of science and mathematics were prepared by junior and senior high school students in counties of this area of North Carolina. Winners, to be announced later today, will participate in the State Science Fair this spring.

The program for the afternoon began with a barbecue luncheon served by the college dining room staff. A series of programs designed to meet the varied interests of visitors and to provide entertainment began at two o'clock and is in progress at the Daily Reflector goes to press.

A style show, sponsored by the college department of home economics, has as participants students style show was produced under the direction of Mabel Dougherty, faculty member of the home economics department. Hilda Apple of Gibma made in their classes, the young sonville served as narrator. Music women taking part are displaying was provided by the Women's latest in spring fashion. The Chorus of the college.

Pre-School Check-Up

PRE-SCHOOL CHECKUP—Everything seems to be in good working order as Dr. Harriet Wooten listens in on the chest of Randy Hodges, at yesterday's pre-school clinic at West Greenville School. Randy was one of the children scheduled to enter the first grade next fall, who reported to make application, get a checkup, and get acquainted with school. South Greenville and Wahl-Coates schools have both held their pre-school clinics. Fleming Street school's clinic was held this morning. Elmhurst will hold their clinic April 15, and Third Street on April 26. (Reflector Staff Photo by Anne Singleton).

The 1957 Cancer Fund Drive in Pitt County officially got underway last night in a kickoff dinner at a local restaurant.

According to reports from Society officials, 45 area and community chairmen were present. The primary purpose of the meeting was to coordinate campaign plans for this year's drive.

Principal speaker for the meeting was Dr. Howard H. Gradis, Greenville physician. The speaker's topic was based on "Importance of Educating the Public on Cancer Precautions."

He advised the workers to urge the public not to hesitate to go to a doctor whenever any of the cancer symptoms appear—whether or not accompanied by pain. "People so often wait too long before going to a doctor for an examination, stated Dr. Gradis, who added, "You often have to frighten people before they will take a medical examination."

The speaker stated 80 per cent of cancer is curable and that the one secret to cancer cure is "early treatment". He further pointed out that 75 per cent of the cancers can be seen or felt in the early stages, at which time they can be cured.

"If we can get across the need for complete and thorough physical examinations, our cancer problem will be partially solved," continued Dr. Gradis who added that men should be examined annually and women every six months.

Dr. John Winstead, Medical Adviser of the Pitt county Cancer Society, spoke briefly to the group and reemphasized the importance of frequent examinations. It was explained that our death rate in Pitt county, North Carolina and the Nation could be greatly reduced if this simple rule would be followed.

One of the highlights of the dinner came when an Ayden woman described to the workers how, by early examination, her cancer was diagnosed and cured by surgery.

James S. Jenkins, chairman of the Publicity Committee, announced that the 1957 quota for Pitt will be $6,000. This year's drive will continue through the month of April.

The workers learned that the Pitt County Cancer Society provided funds in the amount of $1,810.80 for county residents last year. Officials stated that 39 individuals received paid medical attention from the Society. These figures do not include the 10 cases that were referred to and treated through the State Cancer Section of the State Board of Health.

Elbert H. Bennett, county chairman, presided over the meeting. "With the competent workers who have agreed to work in behalf of the Cancer Society's fund raising drive that we will be successful in our efforts toward meeting our 1957 quota," Bennett stated.
