

Heavy Smoke Impedes Fire-Fighters

FIRE LAST NIGHT—A fireman above aims a stream of water from an aerial ladder nozzle into the second floor window of Scott Motor Sales last night. The flames broke out in the tire recapping section of the building shortly after 9 o'clock. Burning tires caused heavy smoke throughout the building. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Firm Suffers Heavy Smoke And Fire Damage In Night

Burning tires in Scott's Motor Sales on Fifth St. last night caused heavy smoke and fire damage to the building, cars and equipment. The fire was discovered shortly after 9 o'clock last night. Fire Chief George Gardner said the flames apparently broke out in the tire recapping section, located midway the building on the Reade St. side. The fire burned into a large stack of recapped tires and flames were licking through the edge of the second floor along the wall when firemen arrived. Chief Gardner said heavy smoke generated by the burning tires hampered the firefighters in reaching the blaze. Four trucks answered the alarm and the firemen quickly threw booster lines from two high pressure trucks upon the flaming section of the structure. Two 2 1/2 inch hose lines were stretched from a pumper hooked to a plug at Fifth and Cotanche St. a block away to back up the high pressure lines. Firemen also raised an aerial truck ladder to the second floor windows of the building and poured water into the flames from a nozzle and line on the ladder. The flames burned tires in the recapping department. In addition a petition between that department and the parts section was damaged. The wood beams under the second floor were also burned to some extent. Dense smoke from the blaze filled the entire building and firemen donned smoke masks to enter the fire area. They were also forced to break windows and open doors to ventilate the building. Still smoldering auto tires were pulled from the building by fire fighters in order to hold down smoke. Walter Glenn Scott, operator of the Studebaker sales and tire recapping business, said this morning that he had been unable to determine the full extent of the damage. However, he noted that there were seven new cars in the building. None were destroyed but, as with other equipment, all received smoke and water damage. Scott said he had some insurance to cover the damage caused by the blaze. Firemen were called by telephone around 9:10 last night and at the same time an alarm was turned in from a box in front of the building. A large crowd quickly gathered to watch firemen in action. The crowd for the most part remained on the high school grounds across the street and in front of the building. Firemen remained at the scene until about 11 o'clock last night.

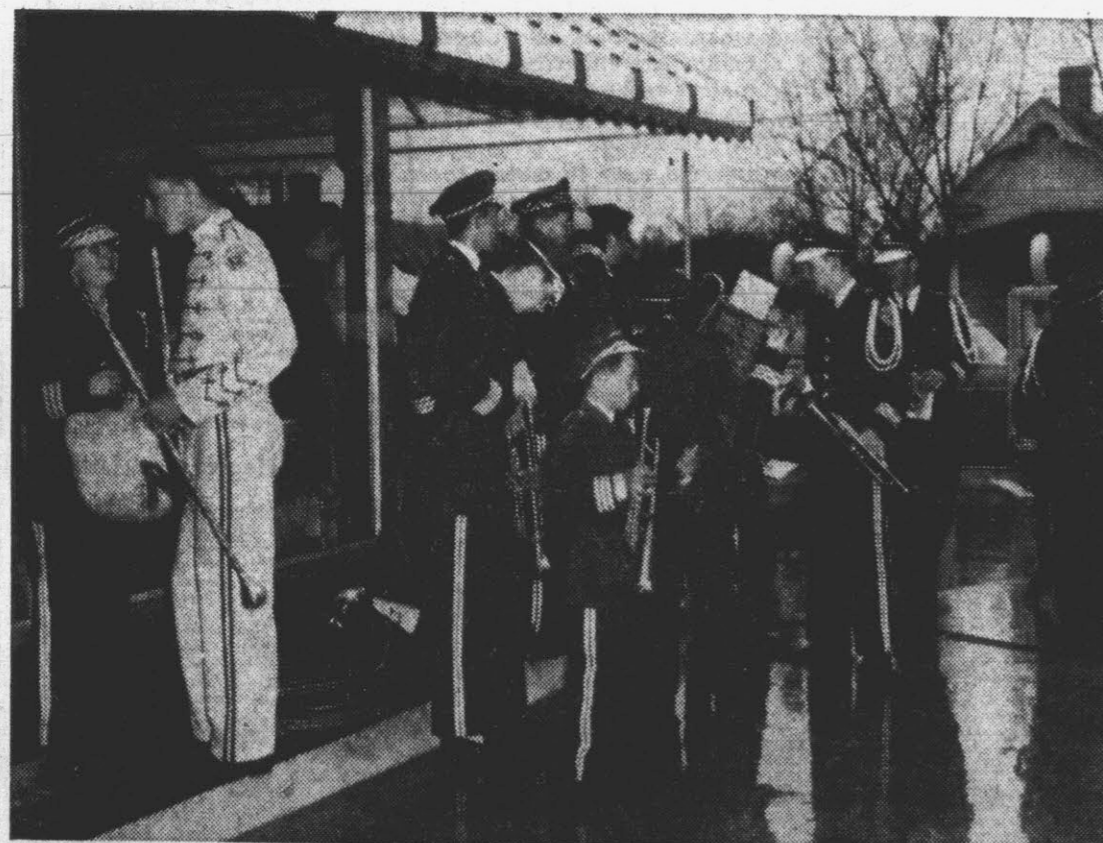

Clean Up-Mop Up Begins In N.C. Following Spring Storm Sweep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolinians began the task of cleaning up and mopping up today in the wake of fickle spring weather which bombarded the state with torrential rains and tornadoes. At least one person was killed and several other persons were injured. The forecast today was for cloudy skies and mild weather. The Weather Bureau reported at mid-morning that the storms had completed their sweep across the state and had moved out to sea. However, there were reports of gusty winds in the state. They reached 50 miles an hour at Wilmington and 30 or more in the Raleigh area. They were expected to diminish tonight. A small auto repair garage on Highway 15-A near Raleigh was blown down last night, while its owner was viewing the television weather forecast at a nearby house. Yesterday's heavy rains sent many a mountain river and stream cascading over its banks, inundated highways, blocked traffic, damaged fields and caused schools to close in six counties. The widely scattered damage, more severe in mountain districts, could total in the millions. At least three tornadoes sliced through North Carolina communities yesterday and last night. The weather bureau warned of the possibility of others, but they did not develop. At least one person died as a result of the weather. Herbert Jack Wall of Harmony was killed when his car ran off Highway 117 during a driving rainstorm near North Wilkesboro Thursday night. Roofs were damaged, smaller buildings were blown down; trees were uprooted and electric and telephone service was interrupted by the tornadoes. High winds, believed to be tornadoes, hit near Elizabeth City, High Point and Yadkinville. A tornado hit the soundside section of lower Pasquotank County about 20 miles from Elizabeth City, jumping the Pasquotank River before hitting the Old Trap section of Camden County. Winds which sounded like a freight train whipped up High Point's main business district, scattering several plate glass windows in business establishments. Several persons were injured by broken glass in front of a supermarket. U.S. 421 was a path for a twister at Yadkinville. The wind swirled from the West Yadkin community to Yadkinville's west city limits. The wind snapped two 100-year-old cedar trees which fell across the highway, almost stopping traffic. The Yadkin River at North Wilkesboro crested at 18.43 feet early today, leaving bottom land between Wilkesboro and North Wilkesboro inundated. Because of flooded secondary roads, all Wilkes County schools were closed yesterday. The French Broad River was 2 1/2 feet over flood stage at Asheville, and Highway 191 which runs beside it was closed to traffic. Many businesses along the highway were flooded. The river also overflowed at Marshall in Madison County. A rock slide closed all four lanes of U.S. 70 between Old Fort and Ridgecrest for a while, but highway crews got two lanes open. The Marshall High School was flooded and all schools in the county and Buncombe, Haywood, Jackson, and Henderson counties were closed. National Parkway officials hoped to get the link across the Craggy Mountains open for traffic by noon today after 100 feet of fill collapsed near Craven Gap closing the link two miles east of the Oteen entrance, about seven miles from Asheville. A slide at Barnard, north of Asheville, blocked the Southern Railway's Carolina Special from Asheville to Cincinnati. Passengers were transported by bus to and from the slide and the trains reversed their runs. Also over its banks yesterday was the Swannanoa River which flooded near Swannanoa on U.S. 70 and at the Biltmore section of Asheville. Roads under water yesterday included U.S. 25 east of Hendersonville and Highway 81 near Asheville. Louis Britt, 13, got his foot stuck in a muddy culvert at Brevard. He was trapped for nine hours before help came. Waters from the culvert swirled under his chin at one time. At least one school was closed in Caldwell County yesterday and heavy rains put old U.S. 321-A under water after a dam broke. The freighter Carolinian, en route from Baltimore to Washington, N.C., to pick up a load of grain, had to be towed to Washington after developing engine trouble in the rough water of the Pamlico River. The Coast Guard also sent a cutter to the assistance of the British ship Sprucebranch, which lost her rudder. The ship had run aground off Frying Pan Shoals, then refloated herself.

Tornado Alert Lifted For Area Early This Morning

A tornado warning that put Greenville's Civil Defense organization on a stand-by basis yesterday was removed at 3 a.m. today. Greenville police said that the warning was lifted after the early-morning report from the U. S. Weather Bureau in Raleigh. Civil Defense authorities had ordered a stand-by basis shortly before noon yesterday when the Weather Bureau forecast severe storms and the possibility of tornadoes in Eastern North Carolina. Although the Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station on Tar River reported gusts up to 42 miles per hour, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said there were no reports of damage of major consequence. Bloxam said one of the commission's power lines in the Stokes section was knocked down by a fallen tree but the damage was not of a major nature. Heavy rains that fell on Greenville yesterday afternoon brought a total of 67-hundredths of an inch of rain in the 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today. The Utilities Commission reported Tar River at a six-foot level but said wind was holding water back in the river. Normal level for the river is three to five feet. Temperature last night reached a low of 55 degrees. It had climbed to 58 degrees at 8 a.m. today. Wind this morning was from the southwest with gusts ranging from 15 to 42 miles per hour. City policemen, state highway patrolmen and city firemen who were put on the alert basis yesterday were taken off this morning. None of the organizations reported any evidence of damage within the city. The only report of damage received from rural areas was one from the Stokes community which said that some windows were knocked out in the Stokes School agriculture building. School officials could not be reached, however, to substantiate the report.

Martin Farm Bureau Meet And Stock Show-Sale Held

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer ROBERSONVILLE—The 15th annual Martin County Fat Stock Show and Sale and the annual Martin County Farm Bureau meeting were held here yesterday and Thursday. Despite heavy rains yesterday afternoon and storm warnings, most observers felt that the show and Farm Bureau meeting were "very successful". Coming to Robersonville for the first time, the combined events were expected to attract between 2,500 and 3,000 farmers and Farm Bureau members during the two days. On Thursday a fairly sizeable crowd attended the fat stock exhibitions and the judging of the 13 steers that took place at 1:30 p.m. Yesterday was to have been the big day on the agenda with hogs exhibited to be judged, a big parade and the Farm Bureau meeting and barbecue. However the rains came, making it virtually impossible for the local Chamber of Commerce to stage the parade. An attempt was made but rain "washed out" the event. According to reports from D. M. Hardison, president of the Robersonville Chamber of Commerce, this parade was the first in the history of the Fat Stock Shows and Farm Bureau meetings. Hardison stated yesterday that over 20 local merchants were scheduled to have floats in the parade in addition to six units sponsored by the Shriners of North Carolina who were to have six floats in the parade showing the humanitarian work this organization is doing and has done throughout the United States. Bands from Robersonville, Farmville, Windsor and Contentnea were to lead the parade. As a highlight of the Farm Bureau meeting, Fred Royster, noted farm leader and former legislator of Henderson, delivered the principal speech. Congressman Herbert C. Bonner was also slated to speak at the meeting held in the Robersonville High School auditorium but was unable to make the trip from Washington, D. C. due to inclement weather. The present agricultural situation in this area concerning flue-cured tobacco and its prospects for the future were the main topics discussed by Royster who spoke to an attentive crowd, comprised of farmers and farm leaders. "Agriculture is a rapidly diminishing undertaking. We, in the last 20 years have seen the farm population drop approximately 50 per cent. At this time, farmers only comprise 12 per cent of the Nation's total population," Royster stated. He added, "We are faced with a serious situation and, certainly unified action must be taken of we are to maintain our place in the sun." The speaker went on to say that at the end of 1956 there was a surplus of 650,000,000 pounds of tobacco in this country. This situation was due to the change in manufacturing processes by cigarette makers. (Continued on Page 6)

Accord Near On Aid For Poland

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Communist Poland appeared today to be near agreement on a $75 million dollar American aid program to bolster the hard-pressed Polish economy. Henryk Kotlicki, chief of a Polish economic mission, said the United States had made an offer in a meeting at the State Department yesterday and "we shall continue negotiations so we can come to an agreement." State Department Press Officer Lincoln White reported that yesterday's session had not itself produced an agreement. But he said that next week experts of both countries will try to narrow the gap between the maximum American offer and the minimum Polish request, reportedly totaling $25 million dollars. The Poles are seeking primarily large quantities of American cotton, mining machinery to increase their coal output, farm machinery and fertilizer to raise their agricultural production. The United States pegged its top offer at $75 million, officials said, adding that this represented the total amount of funds available at this time. The Poles are understood to have been advised that later this year, when new funds become available for Congress for foreign aid operations, they may present further requests, if they wish. The immediate problem as defined by American officials is to determine what goods the Polish negotiators feel are most important for them to obtain in the immediate future.

Postal Cutback Briefly Deferred By Summerfield

WASHINGTON (AP)—Postmaster General Summerfield has tossed the postal service ball back to Congress by ordering the nation's 37,000 post offices to prepare for drastic mail delivery reductions starting next Saturday. Summerfield said yesterday that cutbacks will get under way at that time unless Congress, meanwhile, gives him 47 million dollars he contends is "necessary" to continue postal service at present levels for the remaining three months of the 1957 fiscal year. Summerfield issued the instructions only a few hours after Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee told the House the postmaster general was pulling what Cannon called "an unadulterated bluff" in talking about reduced service, and that "they'll deliver the mail." The Appropriations Committee earlier in the day had voted to give Summerfield 17 millions and to consider the remaining 30 millions next Friday. But at a news conference Summerfield described as "ridiculous" the committee decision to defer action on the additional allotment for a week. The postal chief said he had planned to make some cutbacks today, but that it had been physically impossible to circulate the necessary orders through the field in time. He announced "with great regret" that starting a week from today, all post offices will be closed on Saturday and Sundays, and that there will be no mail deliveries, city, suburban or rural, on Saturday, except for items bearing special delivery postage. Saturday streetbox pickups will continue on Saturdays, but on limited Sunday schedules, he said. Starting April 15, he said, post offices will limit window service on week days to a maximum of 8 1/2 hours, and that on the same day business district deliveries will be limited to two a day.

Three More File For City Council

Three more persons filed with the City Clerk's office this morning as candidates for City Council. Those filing on the final day were W. G. (Blue) Dunn, Godfrey P. Oakley and George Pugh. The clerk's office closed at noon. The three new candidates join three present members of the council who are seeking re-election and five other candidates in the race for the five seats on the city's governing body. Mayor W. L. Whedbee and Councilman A. C. Ruffin had announced earlier that they would not seek re-election. The other three councilmen, S. Eugene West, E. Wesley Harvey Jr. and J. A. Collins Sr., had filed earlier during the filing period. Others who are in the race include: the Rev. O. J. Rooke, Negro pastor, Lester Turnage, Lester D. Page, J. D. Aman and Elbert H. Bennett. Today was the last day on which candidates could file. Judge of City Court Charles Whedbee and Solicitor Eli Bloom are both unopposed as candidates for re-election. Godfrey P. Oakley is associated with the Frank House Insurance Agency locally in the insurance and real estate business. He was born in Winterville and raised in Greenville. The 41-year-old candidate attended Greenville City Schools and East Carolina College. Oakley is a member of the Elks, Masons and Shriners and the Pitt County Safety Council. He is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. In announcing his candidacy Oakley said he stood for progress in the city government. George Pugh was born in Beaufort County and he moved to Greenville in 1938. He attended Greenville City Schools and Bath Schools. He is married to the former Margie D. Hudson and they have four children. He is a member of the Moose, Woodmen of the World and Redmen. Pugh operates a service station. He served on two-year term on the old Board of Aldermen prior to the enactment of the City Council government in 1953. "I want to do the best I can," Pugh said this morning. "The working class of people need someone to represent them." W. G. Dunn was born and raised in Greenville and he attended Greenville City Schools. He is in the general construction and building supply business. Dunn is married to the former Ann Oaks and the Duns have five children. He is a member of the Kiwanis, Elks, Moose, and he is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Dunn promised to work toward "future growth and good sound city government" if elected.

State Employees Sticking To Pay-Increase Position

State employees in Eastern North Carolina are sticking to their request for an across-the-board 15-per cent salary increase. More than 1,000 state employees voted unanimously last night to send two resolutions to the General Assembly. One of the resolutions supports previous requests for the across-the-board raise and the other rejects a "yardstick" salary increase proposal made by the State Personnel Commission. The employees, members of the State Employees Association and the State Highway Employees Association, met at the Pitt County Court House in the final of a series of six meetings held across the state. An estimated 200 additional persons were turned away from the meeting last night because of a lack of room. In addition to the salary resolutions, the delegates also unanimously approved a commendation for Senator Luther H. Hamilton Sr. of Morehead City for his stand on salary increases. A member of the Assembly's Joint Appropriations Committee, Senator Hamilton has insisted throughout the legislature's present session that salary increases for state employees and teachers be considered before other appropriations. M. H. Bynum of Greenville, president of Area 5 of the State Employees Association, presided at the meeting. He was assisted by J. G. Gibbs of Greenville, a member of the Highway Employees Association. Speakers last night included Otis M. Banks of Raleigh, executive secretary of the Highway Employees Association; Ivan Hardesty of Raleigh, president of the highway employees; Ralph Monger of Sanford, president of the state employees; and Miss Leonora Carawan and Miss Dorothy Austell, both of Raleigh. Miss Carawan is past-president and Miss Austell is secretary of the state employees group. While each of the three resolutions passed unanimously when a vote was taken, there were some dissenting comments from the floor during discussion of legislative programs for the state and highway employees. R. W. King, formerly of Greenville but now a resident of "Edenton," told the group he had "given the matter a lot of thought and could not see anything wrong with the percentage-increase proposal of the Personnel Commission." Salary requests made by the state and highway employees are for a across-the-board increase which would affect all employees equally. The Personnel Commission has recommended, in lieu of the 15-per cent across-the-board increase, a sliding scale which would raise salaries on a percentage basis according to an individual's present pay status.

Bus And Auto In Minor Collision

According to Highway Patrol reports a collision occurred last night at the intersection of N. C. Highway 11 and U. S. 264, involving a bus loaded with members of a local band and an automobile. Highway Patrolman Bill Whitehurst stated this morning there were no injuries. The investigation is incomplete. The driver of the bus was identified as Coley Vance Deal of Aurora. Reports show that the automobile was being driven by Lawrence Britt Hagans of 1022 West 5th St.

Monk were sworn in for new three-year terms, following appointment by the Pitt County Board of Education. Sam D. Bundy was re-elected to an eleventh term as Principal of the Farmville Public Schools and Mrs. Lula Beaman was re-elected for a fifth term as building principal of the primary school. H. B. Sugg was re-elected to a 39th term as principal of the Negro school that bears his name.

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER 25
The arrival of the dispatch rider from Fort Laramie brought General Wessels to his office. The orderly signed for the dispatch case and mail pouch, then came in with the saddlebags over his shoulder.

"Dump it on the desk," Wessels said. The orderly sorted the mail in three piles, official, enlisted men's, and officers'. Wessels took charge of the dispatches and official mail and the orderly went out with the other two piles to distribute them.

A bulky letter drew Wessels' attention and he spread it on his desk to read:

Fort Laramie, Wyoming Territory,
Office of the Commanding Officer,
May 5, 1867
To: The Commanding Officer,
Fort Kearny, Dakota Territory.
Subject: Charges for court-martial.

On or about April 20, 1867, Captain Nathan B. Kincaid, Infantry, unassigned, sustained wounds in an engagement east of this post, which resulted in his death. Mrs. Kincaid, widow of the deceased, was accompanying her husband in his new assignment when this tragedy occurred.

In a sworn deposition, Mrs. Kincaid states that it is her belief that her husband's death was the direct result of unauthorized surgery performed, without anesthesia, by Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker, temporarily commanding E Troop, 3rd United States Cavalry.

It was my sincere wish that an informal hearing be conducted to clear this matter in order that Mrs. Kincaid's pension could be probated. I personally placed a negative endorsement on the pension documents due to the unusual circumstances surrounding Captain Kincaid's death. Mrs. Kincaid has filed formal charges with Department of Plate, removing the matter entirely from my hands.

Since Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker has been transferred to your command, the following endorsements will be required on the pension documents: Two on the Adjutant General's copy, Three on the Commander, Department of Plate's copies. One on the affidavit stipulating that Lieutenant Emil Schwabacker will be freed from all duties, at a time to be established by higher authority, to answer these charges.

I remain your most respectful, obedient servant,
General Philip St. George Cooke, Commanding, Dept. of Plate, Nelson Ashford, Brevet Colonel, Commanding, Fort Laramie, Wyoming Territory.

"Tattoo" was being blown when General Wessels left his office and walked to the infirmary. He knocked on Emil Schwabacker's door before entering. Schwabacker was surprised and tried to sit up, but Wessels waved him down and pulled a chair close.

"Captain, do you feel up to a patrol?"
"I believe so, sir."
"Then I want you to sneak forty of those rifles and four thousand rounds of ammunition up the Bozeman Road to Fort Smith."
"How, sir?"
"Good God, use your originality!"

Powell entered then, out of breath and Wessels said, "Major I want an issued that these rifles will be fired slowly with the usual pause between each shot. At no time will they be fired rapidly unless the detail bearing them comes under overwhelming attack. The minute a trooper fires his new breech-loader rapidly, our hand is tipped. You have orders, now see that they're obeyed. I want to challenge Red Cloud on my own ground, with our new weapons and then we'll see whether he beats us or not."

"I understand, sir," Powell saluted and left Wessels' office. The general turned to Emil Schwabacker. "I'll expect you to vacate the post with your troop by nine tomorrow morning, Captain. There will be no wagons or pack animals. Any questions?"
"None, sir. We'll get the rifles

Farmville Garden Club Hears Mrs. Dunham At Luncheon Meet

FARMVILLE—Mrs. R. S. Dunham of Cary was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Farmville Garden Club Tuesday at the Major Benjamin May Chapter House. Her topic was "Gourds—Their Uses and Cultivation." She said that few things in all plant life had made equal contribution to the evolution of man as has the gourd; they have been used by primitive and civilized man throughout the ages—in prehistoric times and before Christ. She pointed out that present dishes, pots, pans and jugs are the descendants of these original gourds.

Mrs. Dunham gave directions for planting and harvesting, stating that early planting in good, loamy garden soil in a sunny location is necessary.

Mrs. Dunham, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Phillips of Cary, displayed an exhibit of gourds in all shapes and sizes. She showed slides depicting the growth, flowers, pollination, diseases and uses.

She said they are attractive in arrangements with marigolds, zinnias, Chinese lantern and some dried leaves and weeds.

Mrs. E. B. Turnage sang "Sylvia" and "Trees," accompanied by Mrs. E. C. Holmes.

The luncheon table was covered with an imported cut-work linen cloth centered with an arrangement of purple and white iris with yellow and white jonquils in a silver bowl.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Dunham, Mrs. Phillips, of Cary, Mrs. Sam Jenkins of Walsenburg, Mrs. R. A. Fountain Sr. and Mrs. W. R. Harris of Fountain, and Miss Edna Robinson of Ivanhoe. From Farmville: Mesdames Charles A. Moringo, H. D. Moye, Paul Allen Jr., Anna Belle Allen, H. D. Johnson, John E. King, John D. Dixon, Willie Gray Allen Sr., A. C. Monk Sr., W. Jesse Moye, Z. M. Whitehurst, Joe Henry Bynum Sr., W. Leslie Smith, George Beckman Jr., Louise D. Harris, Dunbar Lamar, Jack McDougal, B. B. Turnage, E. W. Holmes and J. I. Morgan Sr.

Each member answered with a current event as the secretary, Mrs. Carlos Womack, called the roll. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and business old and new discussed.

Mrs. McWhorter had charge of the program and gave an interesting discussion on the advancement of schools. She spoke of the advantages and disadvantages of the past system, the improvements of the present, and the possibilities of better schools and methods in the future.

New officers were voted in. Mrs. Womack serves as secretary again; Camille Staton was elected treasurer; custodian, Mrs. Sam Whitehurst; president, Mrs. Clara W. Roberson; and vice-president, Mrs. John Mayo.

Preparedness Experience Pays Off

No one really likes the thought of severe storms or disasters. No one really enjoys the task of preparing for a disaster—natural or man-made—which might possibly engulf a community.

It must be said, however, that Pitt County's experience with hurricanes in the past few years has enabled the Civil Defense organization in this county to become a smooth machine, ready to go into action on short notice.

There was a marked contrast between the situation yesterday when possible tornadoes were predicted for this area, and the situation a few years ago when the first real hurricane threat to the county became a reality.

A few years ago when Hurricane Hazel set her path through Pitt County, Civil Defense workers did an admirable job of coping with the situation which resulted. But as the real-life drama unfolded there were obvious flaws in the organizational procedure, there were delays, indecision and developments which had not been prepared for. Mobilization of CD units showed ragged spots.

Yesterday, though the tornadoes bypassed Pitt, it was a different story. The warnings came, and in a minimum time the entire Civil Defense force of the county was alerted and ready to move into action. There was no panic; no lost motion. There was little change in the normal routine of the hundreds of Pitt Countians who make up the various Civil Defense units. But they stood ready to take up their emergency chores at a moment's notice should conditions necessitate.

Their past experience at coping with the possibility of such emergencies showed it is paying dividends.

We are grateful that Pitt County was spared the impact of another natural disaster. We are grateful the Civil Defense organization did not have to go into action. It is, nevertheless, comforting to know that the Pitt Civil Defense unit has now become a well-oiled, closely knit organization, able to cope with emergencies should they come.

N.C. Assembly Shows Safety-Consciousness

Every North Carolinian who values his life should be thankful the General Assembly shouted down a bill which would have eased the penalty for driving drunk on the state's highways.

At a time when the state's highway safety problem is becoming more acute, it is most encouraging to see that the legislature is not inclined to take a backward step where highway safety is concerned. And it is apparent the proposal which would have left in the discretion of judges or some state agency the penalty for driving drunk would have been a backward step.

Legislative concern for the state's highway safety problem has been indicated by several acts in the current session. They have rescinded their action of two years ago by permitting again the use of unmarked cars for highway patrol work. They have refused to reduce the penalty for driving drunk. A House Committee has approved a program to provide driver training for high school students on a state-wide basis.

Still pending are proposals for more highway patrolmen, chemical tests for drunken driving and the old question of a workable mechanical inspection for motor vehicles.

All of these things are needed to help North Carolina cope with its highway problem. How many of them will be written into law by the 1957 General Assembly remains to be seen. The overall attitude of the legislature toward bills which will improve the highway safety program is, however, encouraging.

Study Of Area Income Trends

By ELMER ROESSNER
People in Delaware, the home of the du Ponts, have the highest average incomes; those in Mississippi have the lowest, according to a new study by the Department of Commerce.

The study, Personal Income by States, since 1929, continues through 1955. It is possible, though not probable, that ratios have changed since then. In general, incomes in the 26 years covered have tended to be higher in the industrial Midwest and in the Far West. They have been lowest in the Southeast.

The figures suggest that working for the government is a fairly comfortable existence. Per capita income in the District of Columbia has always been near the top. It was higher than in any state in 1929, the highest and more than twice the national average in the four depression years that followed, and continued to be the highest until 1942, when income in Connecticut moved ahead. In 1955, Delaware, Connecticut and Nevada topped the District.

INCOME RISES
The figures show a fairly consistent rise in personal incomes since 1933. The national per capita in 1929 was $703 in 1933 it was $757; by 1937 it had climbed to $773; fell below that mark for three years; went up to $719 in 1941; $1,102 in 1942 and, with the exception of dips in 1949 and 1954, continued on up to $1,847 in 1955.

Part of the rise is illusory, however, since it resulted from the inflation of money and credit. The leadership among states has shifted over the years, but always within the industrial and Far West groups.

In significant years, the two leading states were: 1929, New York and Connecticut; 1933, New York and Connecticut; 1940, Delaware and Connecticut; 1944, Delaware and California; 1954, Delaware and California.

In 1955, the seven states with the higher income per person and the states; averages were: Delaware, $2,513; Connecticut, $2,499; Nevada, $2,434; New Jersey, $2,311; California, $2,271;

New York, $2,263, and Illinois, $2,257.

MISSISSIPPI TRAILS
In percentage of the national average of $1,847, the per capita incomes in those leading states were: Delaware, 136; Connecticut, 135; Nevada, 132; New Jersey, 125; California, 123; New York, 123, and Illinois, 122.

Mississippi has usually been in last place and in 1955 was the only state where per capita income was under $1,000, being $946.

The figures indicate that regional gaps have been narrowed, but the narrowing has been slight and income equality is not in sight.

In 1929, the average in the Midwest group was $973 and in the Southeast group, $368, and in 1933 they were $543 and $207. In 1955 they were $2,145 and $1,291. By that time, incidentally, the Far West states, as a group, had moved into the lead with $2,189. Thus the ratio of income in the Southeast states, once almost only a third of highest group, is now more than half as much.

In total income, as differentiated from per capita income, New York has consistently led all other states, followed by Illinois or Pennsylvania until 1940 and by California since then.

The study fills a 229-page book and includes sources of income by states and other data. It should be an almost indispensable guide in planning sales and advertising campaigns in considering business expansion, in opening new markets or locating new plants or branches. Copies are $1.50 at the Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

AIR RIGHTS VALUABLE, TAX COURT HOLDS

The right to build one building on the roof of another building has value, and if that right is given to a charitable organization, the value is deductible for tax purposes, the Tax Court has ruled. It held against the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who thought no property had been given. The court decided that "air rights are frequently the most valuable rights connected with the ownership of land."

Not Much Time For Considering

By LYNN NISBET
CONFIRMED—The General Assembly in joint session required less than three minutes to confirm appointments to the State Board of Education submitted by Governor Hodges. The constitution requires such legislative confirmation. Only once has the General Assembly failed to go along with the Governor.

In 1951 then Governor Kerr Scott submitted names of two women, Dr. Roma Sawyer Cheek and Miss Margery Alexander, and the joint session adjourned without voting on them. That meant the men who were then on the board continued for two years.

Governor Hodges was on safe ground with his list because he was reappointing members who have proven their capacity and willingness to serve. The continuing members are Charles H. Rose of Fayetteville, Charles W. McCrary of Asheboro and Dr. H.L. Trigg of Raleigh, all for eight year terms. First appointed by Governor Scott in 1949 Trigg is the only Negro ever to serve on the board.

There has been in other sessions and this time some criticism of the policy followed by the Governors in keeping the nominations a deep dark secret until sprung on the legislators after they have convened in joint session for purpose of confirming. Since the constitution imposes upon the General Assembly the responsibility of confirming, in the same manner it confers upon the Governor the right of nomination, many people think there should be time for legislators to study and qualifications of the nominees for the important place of trust, rather than vote for or against them purely on basis of like or dislike for the appointing Governor.

Usually the Governor gives several months consideration to the selection of members for this and other boards. The legislators, who must share responsibility for their efficiency or lack of it, are usually given about one minute to think about the matter.

JAYPEES—Another in a long chain of efforts to raise the standards of justice of the peace courts seems doomed to the fate of earlier attempts. The bill sponsored by the Association of County Commissioners providing for better accounting and closer checking of warrants and other papers handled by JP's, is vigorously opposed by the magistrate lawyer members of the General Assembly. The magistrates take the position that the proposal to have warrants and receipts pre-numbered and accountable for, and to have periodic full audits of costs, fines and forfeitures collected impugns their integrity.

One objection of the pending bill, which is now in hands of a subcommittee of House Judiciary I, is that it imposes a hardship on the magistrate who does not have an office with facilities for filing papers or a recognized place to hold "court." Sponsors of the bill admit this situation is what they are trying to clear up — to get rid of the hip-pocket operators, who issue very few papers and hold few trials, but whose failure to make reports sometimes throws sand into the judicial mechanism.

Nobody knows and it would be almost impossible to ascertain how many justices of the peace are eligible to function in North Carolina. H. A. Bland, Raleigh JP and president of the State Association, says there are about 300 "actively practicing." Not many years ago one Legislature appointed more than 2,700, according to a JP Association man. Unofficial but well-informed sources estimate the total number of elected and appointed Justices of the Peace who have taken the required oath at more than 5,000 (an average of 50 to a county) of whom perhaps 1,000, or ten to a county, perform some official duties during the year, but less than 500 who can be considered as really active.

Yet — any one of the approximately 5,000 has authority to issue warrants in any criminal action, try many criminal cases, repossess furniture or automobiles — and put a fellow in jail for contempt of his court.

CONTROLLED Members of the General Assembly are not at all happy about some of the trends they are furthering by their reluctant votes. Most of the reorganization proposals contain elements of centralization of powers which are distasteful, but the argument in favor of "efficiency" outweighs objection in most instances.

The controlled access highway bill is practical certain to get through the mill, despite vigorous opposition to some phases of it. Numerous amendments sent up in committee by Rep. Gus Zollicoffer of Vance, Shelton Wicker of Lee, Dan Simpson of Burke, Watts Hill of Durham and others, striving diligently to keep some of the benefits of the super-duper interstate highways for local roadside residents, are accorded little chance of adoption.

These roads are not for the benefit of local property owners or operators of business," explained Highway Chairman Sandy Graham. "They are to serve through traffic. The property owners are paid for the land going into the right of way, and for damages suffered by reason of the limited access. To permit traffic to enter the super highway every quarter mile or so would completely destroy the purpose of these roads."

The State has very little voice in the engineering or access to interstate highways. On many of the State's own primary highways, constructed with Federal aid, there are problems of controlled access somewhat less acute but still bothersome. Arguments for the highway reorganization bill sparked with intimations that local government units would have more control over highways than at present. Chairman Graham explained to the committee that if amendments offered to the controlled access measure were adopted it would mean giving control to local officials rather than the director of highways and might jeopardize Federal aid for road building.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
YOUTH OF ATHENS

The young men of Athens used to take this oath upon attaining the age of citizenship:

"We will never bring disgrace to this city by any act of dishonesty or cowardice; we will fight for our ideals and the sacred things of the city both alone and with many; we will reverence and obey the city's laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those about us; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty; and thus in all these ways, we will strive to transmit this city not only less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us." That last statement is particularly arresting. Can it be said of us that if we were to leave our communities, we would be leaving them in better and more exalted condition than we found them, and leaving them so because of something definite we had done for their betterment? Millions of people go along day by day without the least thought of social responsibility. They do their work, talk things over with their neighbors, read the newspapers, eat, sleep, get up each morning, and go about their work again.

But the effect of one consecrated life can change a whole community—sometimes even the whole life of the world.

Some May Disagree, But

Someday I expect to say "Son, in addition to your formal schooling, don't miss the experience of at least one term of enlistment in the Army, the Air Force, the Navy, the Coast Guard or the Marines."

Of course, some such service is required these days; and it may be so sixteen years in the future. But regardless whether military service is required or not required, I'm one of those who believe it can do more good than harm to a growing young man.

Some, admittedly, are psychologically unable to adjust to the life; but on the whole its standards must be flexible enough to absorb a reasonably wide range on either extreme of the "average" personality. The young man going into military service gets a first-hand look at all the kinds of people in the world; and learns how to live with the timid, the ambitious, the mild, the cruel, the introvert, the dullard, the greedy, the kind, the scholar, the extrovert . . . and so on, ad infinitum. It is a lesson worth knowing.

Once in uniform, the service man can further develop and apply his skills, or learn new skills that conceivably will be of value in civilian life. Something of even more importance: he learns at first hand about how people in other parts of his country live as compared with his own home community; he may, if fortune smiles, also see how peoples of other countries fare and in turn better understand his own good fortune to be an American.

Too, it's my conviction that the qualities of a man are more rapidly brought to the fore while in the armed services. While he works with others, and for others, he also learns he must depend on himself. Certain standards are set, and if he adopts them as his own they will serve him in good stead years afterward. Don't tell me, I know it isn't all tea and crumpets. There's work; there's ennui; there's frustration, friction and restriction. It's part of the picture, but not the whole. You can find those irritants in civilian life, too.

On the whole, the Army was very good to me. It stationed me in New Orleans and San Francisco; gave me time for train trips from coast-to-coast, and bus rides from Louisiana to North Carolina; and there was one brief fling at the night life of New York City. The Army also gave me an island tour in the Caribbean, through the Panama Canal (several times), and showed me Hawaii and points West . . . to Australia and the Philippines.

I had an easier time than did most of the millions who served in World War II. There were also times when it would have been pleasanter anywhere else; nevertheless, my ledger still carries a balance heavily in favor of the experience of military service. I'd recommend it to anyone who asks me.

Other Editors Saying--- Dulles 'Double Think'

(Greensboro Daily News)
With publication of the newest apology for the U.S. secretary of state, the biography "John Foster Dulles" by John Robinson Beal, "double think" arrived fully upon the American scene.

The device George Orwell dreamed up for an imaginary future totalitarian dictatorship in his 1984 "double think" is the trick of saying the opposite of reality and persuading people that it's the truth.

A breath-taking example is Mr. Beal's presentation of enormous Dulles blunders in the Middle East as unparalleled diplomatic triumphs. The Daily News, for one, remains unconvinced.

In fact, Mr. Dulles himself believes Mr. Beal went too far in this laudatory volume. He began the back-down process at a Tuesday press conference by contradicting his biographer on two main points — that (1) he withdrew the Aswan dam offer to Egypt as a calculated risk to force a showdown with Russia in the Middle East and (2) President Eisenhower made a secret commitment to Chiang Kai-shek to defend Matsu and Quemoy.

Regardless of what Mr. Dulles now says, the American public is likely to go on believing that the new version of history in Mr. Beal's book did indeed come straight from the secretary of state. It has the tireless tergiversations that have become the exasperating trademark of Dulles diplomacy.

Can anyone seriously conceive that Mr. Beal fabricated the explanation of the Aswan dam cancellation out of the whole cloth?

According to Mr. Beal, that action was a calculated risk on a grand scale comparable to Dulles brinkmanship in Korea, Formosa and Indochina, forcing a showdown with Russia and smacking down Nasser at the same time. Moreover, it was a move which had to be forthright and positive, to warn other neutrals. In brief, this was a bold stroke in the cold war — not an unthinking blunder which brought the unanticipated nationalization of the Suez Canal.

If that is correct, then the British, who thought that the dam project was being postponed, were deceived. In view of subsequent Dulles double crosses at the canal users conferences, they can be forgiven a large measure of distrust in the American secretary of state. And if it were Dulles' intention to teach Nasser a lesson, the lesson stopped abruptly and was never well learned. Nasser is still leading the U.S., the U.N. and the West around by the nose.

The truth is that Dulles has committed incredible errors in the Middle East and in typical fashion tried to explain them away. Now he has backed away from these unlikely stories, leaving the credulous, sympathetic John Robinson Beal holding the bag.

Graves Likes Island

By W.G. ROGERS
NEW YORK (AP)—"The English writers most interested in keeping the English language pure and clean are the ones who have lived abroad," said Robert Graves.

He named, off-hand, Max Beerbohm and Norman Douglas, both of whom settled in Mediterranean lands; and we can add the name of Robert Graves, who for a quarter of a century has made his home in Majorca.

"You go abroad yourself," the poet and novelist said while he was here on a flying lecture tour, "you leave your home, but you take your language with you."

Did he hear a lot of English in Majorca? "To much, now," he complained. "But that was the trouble, even more the trouble, with England. It was too crowded."

"It must have been a lovely island in Elizabethan times when it had its eight million inhabitants and there was room for them. Now there are rather less now than then."

Resembles Stein
Graves is a tall, broad-shouldered, fidgety, gray and shaggy-haired fellow just turned into his 60s. One of the cameramen who snapped him on his visit said he looked like Gertrude Stein, and he does.

It was Miss Stein who advised him, in 1929, to try Majorca—she was always, like Alice B. Toklas, enamored of the Spanish. Wright begins his new book, "Pagan Spain," with the incidental remark that it was she who had urged him, too, just before her death, to try Spain.

Graves had built his own home in Deya, on Majorca, by 1932, and except for a period at the end of the Spanish Civil War and the start of World War II, when he was here and in his native England, he has been there ever since, raising eight children, teaching them their Latin, among other lessons, and writing.

"I write all the time," he said. "I allow interruptions, but in fact I give all my time to writing." That has meant a long list of books in all mediums—"I Claudius," "Wife to Mr. Milton," "Hercules, My Shipmate," among the novels; the autobiographical "Goodbye to All That;" and a lot of poems, of which his first, if he remembers correctly, appeared in London in The Spectator when he was 13. His New York publisher, Doubleday, hopes his name and fame will spread even farther this spring with another story, "They Hanged My Saintry Billy."

Likes Elow Room
Mistrustful of crows, preferring elbow room, he said, "I doubt if there was ever a good poem written in London." Then he thought that over in his slow way but he didn't change his mind. It reminded me that Robert Frost once claimed that there was never any good writing out of Greenwich Village, and Frost is one of the American poets of whom Graves approves.

"Poems should have a minimum of sense," he argued. He could understand that French, a kind of "straitjacket" language might drive a poet to experiment on the grounds of what he called its "irksome" restraint, but he felt English did not justify that.

"I don't like the 'esperanto' idea in the arts. People shouldn't 'go French' or 'go Japanese.' For us, New England, John Crowe Ransom is the South. I even wish Picasso had stayed home in Spain."

"As for my own work, I think it has nothing in it that is not fundamentally English. There is perhaps one olive tree in my poems, otherwise they are from my native island, not my adopted one."

During his visit he spoke and read his poems at several meetings in this city, at Mount Holyoke and at the Library of Congress.

As Thin-Skinned As Anybody Else

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—"Is President Eisenhower becoming thin-skinned and irritable?" asks Mrs. H.J. of Tulsa, Okla. "I refer, of course to his refusal to invite Senator McCarthy to an official reception at the White House, and his angry answer to the reporter who asked if he was going to use helicopters to fly to his golf course."

Answer: Every President I have known personally or journalistically—Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower — has been extremely sensitive on certain subjects. The only possible exception was Coolidge who permitted nothing to interfere with his sleep or his digestion. EISENHOWER'S FAVORABLE PRESS Save for F.D.R.'s first hundred days, when he appeared as a savior to a stricken and fearful people, no president in recent history has enjoyed such friendly and favorable press treatment as Eisenhower. He has a likable and attractive personality, and he knows how to turn it on — a great asset in politics.

But now, he is under severe criticism, and he cannot understand why. On the day he demeaned the reporter who asked the helicopter question, a nationally famous cartoonist and Pulitzer prize winner, had published in a Washington newspaper a cartoon on the same subject.

It pictured Ike flying in a helicopter over a National Capital bewildered and divided by both his domestic and foreign policies. It depicted Ike as indecisive and indifferent to the fate of his program. Ike is as thin-skinned as all of us. But none of our skins are so exposed to the slings and arrows of politics as his epidermis. He needs smarter advisers than he has around him now.

"Has Senator Wayne Morse shown any interest in the current investigation of Dave Beck's operations in his state of Oregon?" inquires C.R.B., of Williamsport, Pa. "I understand that Morse was the recipient of the Teamster Union's political and financial support when he was re-elected last year." Answer: Senator Morse, the great liberal and protector of the workman, has not peeped on the question of Beck's alleged "theft" of union members money, his mismanagement of his union and his defiance of the United States Senate. BECK WAS STRONG FOR MORSE AS C.R.B. notes, FOR MORSE down the line for Morse.

The teamsters spent thousands of dollars on Morse literature, they rang doorbells for him, and they insisted on union members supporting him. Without their support, Morse might have been defeated.

Morse has no defense because of the fact that he is not a member of the McClellan Committee. For no man in House or Senate butts into so many legislative and national and foreign problems as Morse. The Congressional Record is cluttered every day, and at a cost of $80 a page, with his interjections and interpolations on every subject from the police department of Washington to the grass grown in the Gobi Desert. But in Beck and alleged labor corruption, in his own state, the great liberal and reformer, is as silent as the Teamster Union's boss.

Business discussed at the meeting included plans for attendance at the Beta Convention in Asheville next weekend, changing laws of the local club to permit students to become members at the end of the freshman year rather than at the end of the sophomore year, and appointing a committee to name a slate for 1957-1958 club officers.

Members also decided to delay their "tapping" ceremony until next fall so that persons who are now freshmen can be included.

Fifty people attended a semi-formal dance sponsored a week ago by the Senior Class. The high school gym was decorated for the dance and refreshments were served.

Chaperones were Mrs. Levi Wooten, Mrs. Carson Baker, Mrs. Gene Tucker, Mrs. Betty Moore, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bodkin, and Mr. and

Graduates Who Plan Enlist Are Advised To File

High school graduates who plan to enlist in the army during June should file applications for schools of their choice during April, Greenville area recruiter Sergeant Thomas D. Thigpen said today.

"Early filing is necessary because of time involved in processing the applications," Sergeant Thigpen said. "Applications may be filed 90 days before the applicant plans to enlist but since a large number of enlistees are expected this year, some of the schools may be filled before the time expires."

Thigpen also announced that persons who wish to enlist for two years should contact him, at his office on the third floor of the Greenville Post Office. He added that there was no limit on the number of applicants who can enlist together and be assured of taking their first eight weeks of training together.

Scouts Prepare For '57 Council Jamboree In Kinston

By EVERETTE PARKER
Reflector Staff Writer

April 26 will be the first day of the 1957 East Carolina Council Boy Scout Camporee to be held this year in Kinston.

This three-day camporee is probably one of the most looked forward to events of the year for the youngsters of Eastern North Carolina. Not only do the Scouts look forward to practicing what they have been taught by their superiors, they are eager to compete with Boy Scouts in other towns and communities throughout the Council.

Competition among Scouts has always been keen but strictly in a friendly manner. Their esprit-de-corp is something to marvel at.

Weather permitting 3,000 boys and leaders are expected to attend the East Carolina Council Camporee whose theme this year is "Jamboree Camporee." These Scouts will be representing 21 counties in the Council.

Scouting has come a long way in Pitt County and the ardent supporters of the movement feel much more will be accomplished in years to come.

This year a large number of Pitt County Scout Troops are planning to attend the Council Camporee. According to reports, between 22 and 25 Troops are planning the trip.

Carl Knott, District Scouting Executive, stated this week, "I have never seen more preparation and enthusiasm in the movement. In my opinion our scouts will be better prepared for the camporee than ever before."

The main reason for this is the fact that Scout troops throughout the Pitt Scouting District are conducting PRE-CAMPOREES like the one pictured on this page.

Participating in the pre-camporee pictures are members of Greenville Boy Scout Troop 340, sponsored by the Saint James Methodist Church. Roy Honeycutt is Scoutmaster and Harold Bowers is serving as Assistant Scoutmaster.

Predominate in the minds of the Scout leaders is the thought of having their troop's patrols win a Blue Ribbon. It stands to reason that the better prepared a patrol is, the better chance it has to win this coveted ribbon.

There are no prescribed models of equipment, types of menus or methods. Each patrol develops its own menu, provision list, equipment, arrangement of the Patrol Camp, sleeping and tentage. All preparation is done prior to going to the Council Camporee.

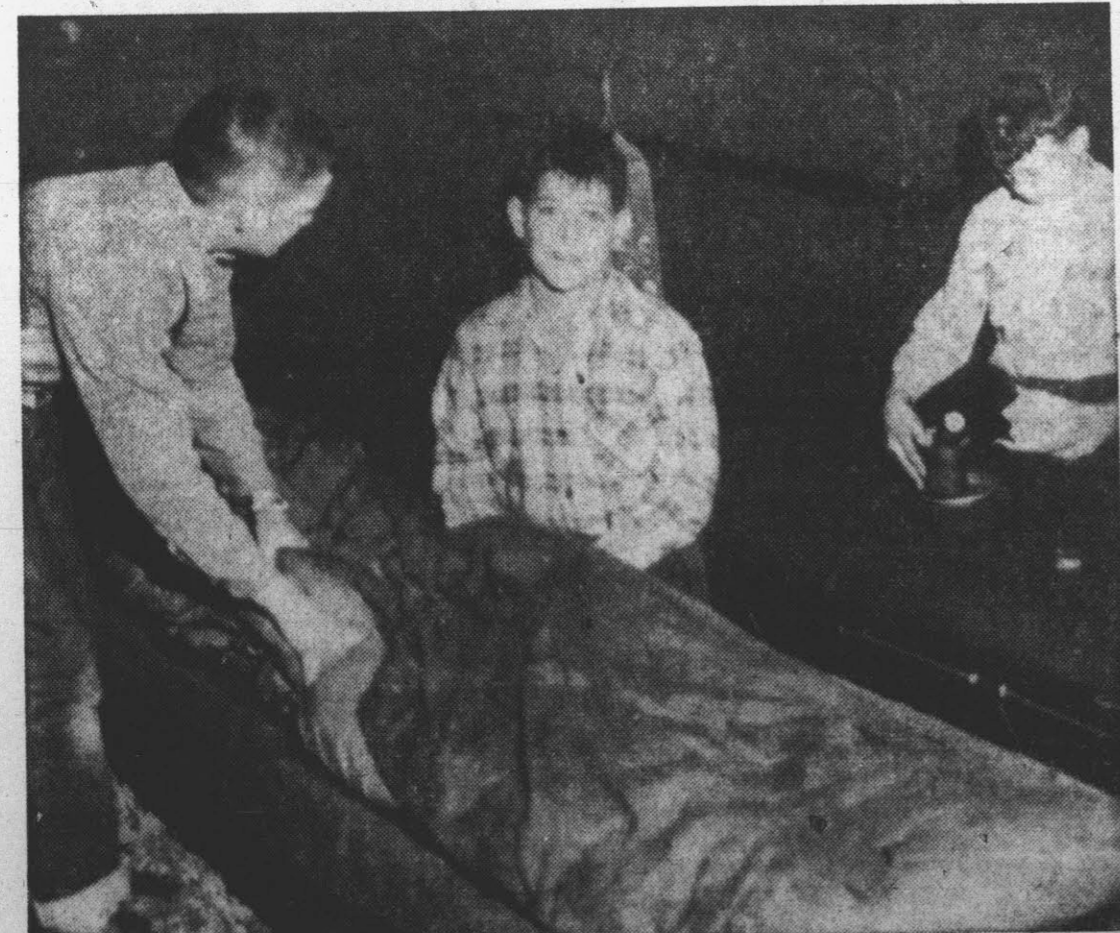

The Pre-camporee for Troop 340 was held last weekend on the lawn of the St. James Methodist Church, Friday afternoon after school closed, the boys began to pour onto the Troop site that was only a barren lawn at the time.

Aided by their leaders, Scoutmaster Roy Honeycutt and Assistant Scoutmaster Harold Bowers, the youngsters went about their task of "setting up camp."

Little by little, the site began to take shape. First the headquarters tent for the troop officials was pitched. Then the patrol sites were uniformly designated for each patrol.

INSTRUCTIONS—Assistant Scoutmaster Harold Bowers is shown above giving instructions to members of his troop on how to properly stake out a tent. This instruction will enable the scouts looking on to stake a tent with the least possible delay once they arrive at the camporee site. Scoutmasters and their assistants throughout the Pitt District are spending many hours in preparing their troops for the upcoming Camporee.

PREPARING FOR THE "SACK"—These Scouts have finished their work for the day and are preparing for the night's meal and bed. During the camporee most of the boys will sleep on canvas cots, air mattresses, while others will prepare ground beds. Evidently the Scout in the background is already hungry since he is already getting out his eating gear.

and his patrol as a unit were ready to win the BLUE RIBBON at the Council Camporee. Anyway a lot of progress had been made toward the ultimate.

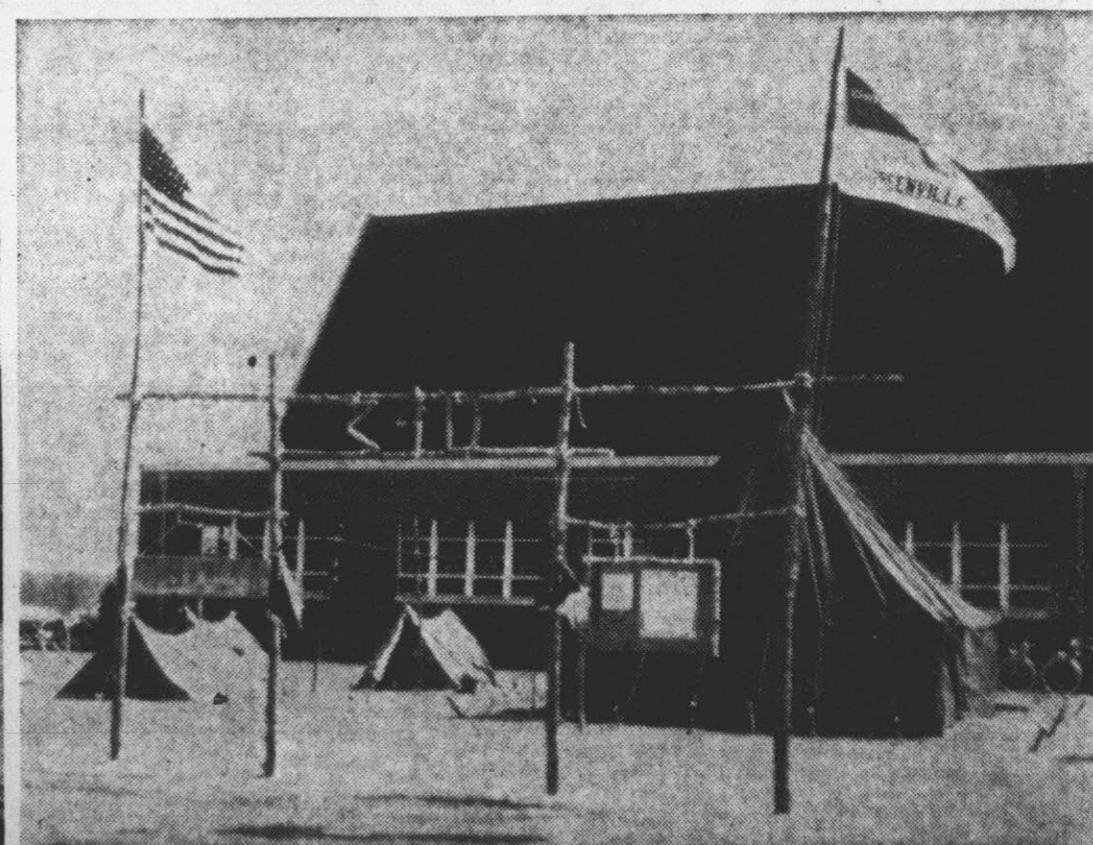

The Pre-camporee for Troop 340 was held last weekend on the lawn of the St. James Methodist Church, Friday afternoon after school closed, the boys began to pour onto the Troop site that was only a barren lawn at the time.

RAISING THE FLAG—A member of Greenville Boy Scout Troop 340 is shown above raising his troop flag on the camp site. In the background the American flag can be seen waving. Both flags are raised over the gate way.

PREPARATION—Members of a patrol above seem to be enjoying working together as a group. They are shown lashing together an eating table to be used during the pre-camporee and camporee. One of the primary purposes of this training program is to prepare patrol bulletin boards, boundary lines for patrol and troop areas, cooking cranes, tripods for food racks, charcoal stoves out of barrels and buckets, gateways and various other scouting equipment. This "homemade" equipment can be disassembled and will be taken on the Kinston camporee.

CAMP SITE—The camp site has been completed. Shown above is the gateway complete with the American and Troop flag. The boy Scouts put the gate way together by using square lashings. In the background is seen the troop headquarters tent in which troop-officers will live.

Boy Scout Troop To Receive Its Charter Sunday

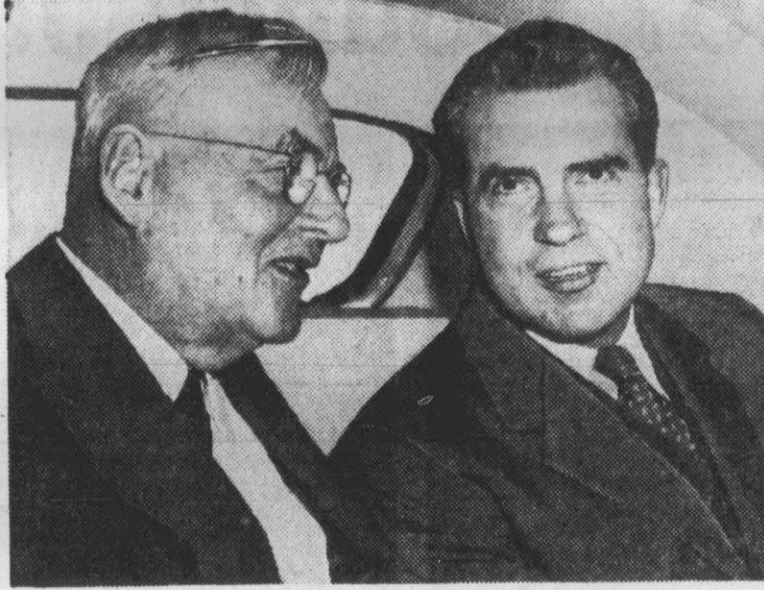

Boy Scout Troop 401, sponsored by Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, will receive its troop charter, Sunday night at the 8 o'clock service in Reedy Branch Church.

The investiture service will be under the direction of District Scout Official J.H. Mobley. Troop 401 was organized in January and is served by Paul S. Braxton, institutional representative; W. Reid McLawhorn, scoutmaster; J. Brooks Tucker II, and Graydon Tripp, assistant scoutmasters. The Troop Committee is composed of Eugene Averette, E.C. Davenport, R.E. Smith, James A. Little, Marvin C. Buck, and W.C. Little. Scout troop members are: Joseph C. Bowen, Darwin Paramore, Robin Russell, Jack Davenport, Marvin C. Buck, Jr., Rudolph Mills, Allen Lawson, Gene Hemby, George Darden, Ray Baker and Joe Baker. Rev. Henry Melvin, the pastor, will speak on the subject, "The Stuff Of Which Men Are Made."

Nixon And Dulles: No.1 Traveling Men

Grass doesn't grow under their feet.

The world has a familiar look to two famous American travelers—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Vice President Richard Nixon. Ever since President Eisenhower assumed office in 1953, Dulles and Nixon have journeyed far and often on important missions.

Dulles has spent nearly half his time away from Washington and has traveled by air approximately 380,000 miles, more than 15 times around the world. The rugged 69-year-old secretary loves hard work. He's a good traveler.

Nixon has traveled an equivalent of only four times around the world, but several of his trips have been really tough. In 1953, he took a 45,000-mile, 70-day tour of Asia and the Middle East. His trip across Africa covered eight nations and 18,000 miles. In between official talks, luncheons and dinners, he talks to as many people as he can to learn firsthand what they think of the United States.

INDIA, 1953: Secretary Dulles, unshod for visit to Ghandi cremation shrine at Rajghat, picks his shoes from lineup after paying homage.

NICARAGUA, 1955: Nixon is embraced by President Anastasio Somoza on his arrival at Managua airport.

AUSTRIA, 1956: Tiny Hungarian refugee wins broad smile from Nixon in Andau.

THE PHILIPPINES, 1954: Dulles signs collective security pact which binds eight Pacific nations against Red aggression in southeast Asia.

WEST GERMANY, 1954: Secretary Dulles reviews honor guard at airport on arrival in West Berlin for four-power conference.

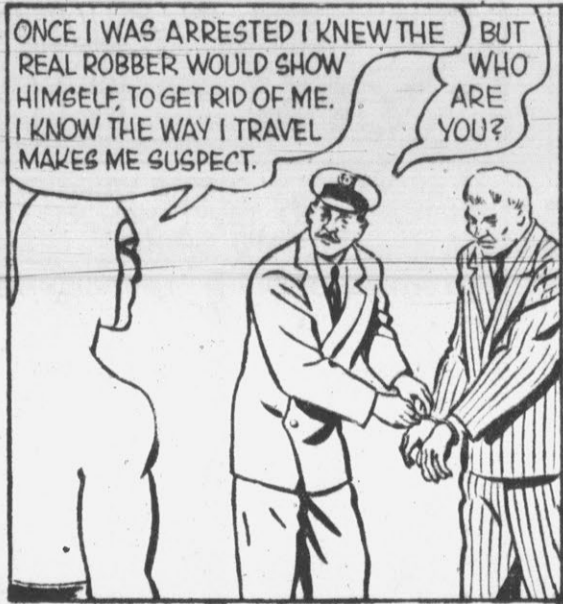

MOROCCO, 1957: The Vice President kneels as he shakes hand of little Arab girl in crowd at palace of Sultan Mohammed V after his arrival at Rabat.

WHILE SHOPPING OR VISITING, PARTICULARLY AT NIGHT, LOCK YOUR CAR TO KEEP OUT INTRUDERS WHO MIGHT ENTER AND HIDE IN THE REAR.

AND SO THE THREE KITTEN SISTERS DO THEIR LAST TUMBLING ACT AS THEY TUMBLE FROM A FLAMING STATION WAGON INTO THE HANDS OF THE POLICE.

AND YOU'RE THE HERO, SPIKE! IT'S DUE TO YOUR EFFORTS ALONE THAT WE CAPTURED THE GIRLS.

MAN, THIS IS THE MOST!

YOU OUGHT TO GET INTO POLICE WORK! THE WAY YOU USED MY 2-WAY WRIST RADIO WAS REAL CUTE.

NO, THANK YOU! I'D RATHER STICK TO MANGLING MUSIC!

INCIDENTALLY, I'D LIKE TO KNOW HOW YOU WERE ABLE TO POINT TO THAT ONE GIRL AND SAY, "YOU KILLED INGA YELMA."

COME IN THE LAB AND WE'LL SHOW YOU.

LOOK—THIS IS THE BOW THAT WAS USED TO MURDER INGA YELMA.

NOTE THE ARROW-REST IS ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF THE BOW. THAT MEANS IT'S FOR A LEFT-HANDED PERSON.

SEE, I'M SHOOTING LEFT-HANDED NOW.

"I DIDN'T KNOW THERE WERE RIGHT-HANDED AND LEFT-HANDED BOWS," SAYS SPIKE.

WHEN FIFI WROTE OUT THAT LIST OF THINGS SHE WANTED THE MATRON TO GET HER, WE KNEW THEN SHE WAS LEFT-HANDED, AND THE ONLY ONE OF THE THREE WHO IS.

FURTHERMORE, THE ARROW THAT WAS REMOVED FROM THE DEAD GIRL'S BODY BORE FEATHERS THAT HAD BEEN TRIMMED IN THE KITTEN SISTERS' WORKSHOP.

LOOK THROUGH THIS STEREO-MICROSCOPE, SPIKE.

I'M COMPLETELY AMAZED AT HOW YOU FELLOWS DO IT!

THINK NOTHING OF IT, SPIKE. YOU SHOULD SEE US TRY TO LEAD AN ORCHESTRA.

RUSTY RILEY by FRANK GODWIN

LISTEN, HELEN...I'VE GOT A SUPER-DUPER IDEA FOR A JOKE ON RUSTY AND BUCKSHOT...DASH OVER HERE RIGHT AWAY, WILL YOU?

YOUR BROTHER BUCKSHOT FOUND A CAVE IN THE RAVINE AND THEY'RE MAKING A BIG DEAL OF KEEPING IT A DEEP, DARK SECRET!

GOLLY, PATTY, THAT'S NOTHING NEW...THEY'VE ALWAYS GOT SOME OLD MYSTERIOUS SECRET!

I KNOW...BUT THIS TIME THEY ONLY THINK IT'S A SECRET...I FOLLOWED THEM AND I KNOW WHERE IT IS!

YOU SAID YOU HAD AN IDEA FOR A JOKE ON THEM!

WELL, THE BOYS THINK IT MIGHT BE A PIRATES' CAVE, SO WE MAKE UP AN OLD-LOOKING TREASURE MAP AND PUT IT WHERE THEY'LL BE SURE TO FIND IT!

THAT'S A SWELL IDEA! AND WE OUGHT TO MAKE THE MAP SHOW THAT THE TREASURE IS RIGHT HERE ON MILESTONE FARM!

I THOUGHT OF THAT...THERE'S A FOUNDATION OF AN OLD RUINED HOUSE NEAR THE WOODS I MADE A ROUGH SKETCH OF THE LOCATION!

A LITTLE LATER... JIMINY, PATTY...YOU OUGHT TO BE AN ARTIST! THAT WAS A GREAT IDEA, USING THAT OLD PIECE OF PAPER!

AND I FOUND AN OLD WOODEN BOX IN THE BARN...IT LOOKS A HUNDRED YEARS OLD!

AFTER SCHOOL THE NEXT DAY... BUCK! COME HERE! I FOUND SOMETHING!

HUH? WHAT?

WOWEE! A TREASURE CHEST! MAYBE IT'S FULL OF PIECES OF EIGHT!

LET'S GO OUTSIDE AND OPEN IT!

OR WHEN SARGE ASKED YOU TO PUT THE ROOF UP ON HIS JEEP AND YOU THOUGHT HE SAID "SOUP-UP"

HOW ABOUT WHEN YOU SPRAYED THE SHUTTERS AND DIDN'T KNOW HE WAS STANDING BEHIND THEM?

AND WHEN SARGE TRIED TO SETTLE THAT FIGHT BETWEEN YOU AND COOKIE OVER THE SPAGHETTI! HA!

AND THAT TIME YOU THREW A ROPE TO HELP SARGE UP THE CLIFF... BUT FORGOT TO TIE YOUR END TO ANYTHING!

YOU'RE RIGHT! I'M JUST A SOFTHEARTED SENTIMENTALIST! I SHOULDN'T LET OTHER PEOPLE TALK ME OUT OF STAYING WHO'S BEEN TRYING TO TALK YOU OUT OF IT?

Judgment In 48 Cases Are Returned

Judgments were returned in 48 cases in Pitt County Recorder's Court this week but defendants in four of the cases will get another chance to be heard.

Three of the defendants gave notices of appeal to Superior Court and the fourth waived a preliminary hearing before County Judge Dink James.

Notices of appeal were given by Snodie Lee Smith, Route 2, Greenville, charged with driving under the influence and failure to stop for a stop sign; Milton Elliott Whitely, Tarboro, charged with driving under the influence and operating a vehicle without proper brakes; and Mark Turnage, Grifton, charged with larceny. Jerry Lee Hancock of Greenville, charged with embezzlement, waived a preliminary hearing and had his case transferred to Superior Court under a bond of $300.

Smith was given 12 months and had his driver's license revoked for two years. Bond and his appeal was set at $250. Elliott, who received 90 days suspended upon payment of $100 and costs, plus having his license revoked for 12 months, was ordered to post a bond of $300. Turnage had a $500 bond set for his appeal of a two-year jail sentence.

Turnage was convicted on a charge of stealing two bags of fertilizer from Robert Loftin. Testimony from ABC Officer Jack Russell and Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crandell stated that Turnage had asked the officers to give his car a push Saturday night, between Hancock's Church and Ayden.

The officers said they noticed marks made by driving bags across the ground and upon investigation found two bags of fertilizer in the boot of Turnage's car. The 32-year-old man was arrested and charged with larceny. Officers said that the theft took place between 11 p.m. and midnight Saturday.

Other judgments handed down by Judge James included:

Claim Spanish Gold Was Spent

LONDON (P)—Pravda said today Republican Spain deposited 500 tons of gold in the Soviet treasury in 1937 but later spent all of it fighting Franco's revolutionary forces.

In an article broadcast by Moscow radio, the Soviet Communist party organ denied what it said were "fabrications" by the foreign press that much of the gold was spent or retained by the Soviet government.

The article said the U.S.S.R. granted the Spanish Republican government a credit of "85 million dollars, but only 35 million dollars was repaid."

British Official Says 'Right To Differ' Retained

LONDON (P)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said last night Britain claims the right to differ on occasion from "its closest friends and allies" and proposed to "retain a spirit of robust independence."

"We do not wish to be the satellite of any country," Lloyd told a British-American audience at a dinner given by the Pilgrim Society to welcome U. S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney.

He emphasized what he called the differences that still persist between Britain and America although an open breach over Britain's invasion of Egypt has been patched-up.

Agreeing with Whitney that the recent Bermuda conference had restored the traditional alliance, Lloyd declared:

"We must never again take friendship for granted. It is a living growth which needs constant care and attention."

Whitney told the society the British-U. S. alliance had been re-forged as a "titanic force" for world peace.

Wild bulls were used by the Spaniards to help defend the city of "old" Panama against the British pirate, Henry Morgan.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS

1. Each Songram sentence has two words numbered (1) and (2) in brackets. Study the word choices in each Songram, but do not fill in the Entry Blank until after you have seen the TV show because a Visual Clue for each Songram will lead you to the identity of only the correct word. For example, you may think that one word is logically correct, whereas the Visual Clue leads to the other word. Regardless of the fact that your logic may lead you to choose Word No. 1 as correct, if the Visual Clue leads to the identity of Word No. 2—the Visual Clue must decide your choice and you should select Word No. 2 in order to be correct. With each Songram you are given a description of the type of clue-to-look-for, namely, an action, object, or sign which portrays or leads to a word (or part of a word) which has a definite relationship with the correct Songram word (or part of the correct Songram word). This relationship can take the following forms (and combinations of them): complete words, parts of words, definitions, synonyms and homonyms. Your clue description (see italics under each Songram) refers to the correct word choice in the Songram. When the clue is a part of a word particular attention should be given to the difference in construction of each word choice. For example, if the word choice in a Songram might be SHAPE or SHADE. Since both words begin with SH, the difference in construction here is a part of each word, A-P-E and A-D-E. In this case, your clue description might be "Synonym for part of a sign—Homonym for part of the Songram word." On the TV show you would see a sign "HE WANTED". The word HELP means, or is a synonym for, AID, which sounds the same as, or is a homonym for, A-D-E, which in turn, is a part of the correct Songram word, SHADE. This in this example, three forms of relationships are used: part of a word, synonym and homonym. Each Visual Clue in each production number will always follow the visual presentation of the Songram to which it applies. Visual Clues will be exposed so as to be apparent to all viewers who exercise diligence in watching the show. You must watch closely for the clues as some may not be as obvious as others.

2. PRINT CLEARLY on the Official Entry Blank in the box corresponding to each Songram, the number of the word choice you have finally selected as the correct word for each Songram A through Z. Print only one answer number in each box.

3. Enclose a self-addressed 3c stamped envelope (size approximately 4" by 9 1/2") so that you can be notified of the official number assigned your contest entry and that your entry fee has been received by the Contest Office. The correct answers and the judges' explanation of the clues to the Songrams will be mailed to you at the same time.

READ THESE OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES

JUDGING

1. This contest is one of skill, ability, knowledge, and effort. There is only one correct solution to each Songram. All Songram answers will be judged on accuracy alone by IBM high-speed electronic equipment. The decision of the judges is final and each contestant, by his entry, agrees to abide by the judges' decision and all instructions and rules of the contest.

2. THE SONGRAMS IN THIS CONTEST ARE JUDGED IN CONSECUTIVE ORDER. FOR EXAMPLE, EVERY CONTESTANT'S ANSWER TO SONGRAM A WILL BE JUDGED FIRST. EACH CONTESTANT WHO ANSWERS SONGRAM A CORRECTLY IS QUALIFIED TO HAVE HIS ANSWER TO SONGRAM B JUDGED. HOWEVER, IF A CONTESTANT ANSWERS SONGRAM A INCORRECTLY HE IS DISQUALIFIED AND ELIMINATED FROM THE CONTEST. THIS PROCEDURE IS FOLLOWED IN CONSECUTIVE ORDER FOR THE REMAINING SONGRAMS. INCORRECT JUDGING IN CONSECUTIVE ORDER MEANS THAT A CONTESTANT IS ELIMINATED ON THE FIRST SONGRAM TO WHICH HE GIVES A WRONG ANSWER.

3. The judging of Songrams in this contest will be continued until all contestants are eliminated except one. This is an old-fashioned "knock-out" contest. The next contestant who answers a Songram correctly will be awarded the prize. The next to the contestants in the order in which they were last eliminated. In the event ties exist after the completion of judging of the Songrams, which is probable, those tied will be notified and required to complete the tie-breaking phase of the contest. See STEP 4.

4. Grand Prize winners will be announced on "THE HIDDEN TREASURE SHOW" following completion of the judging. A list of all winners will be published in TV Guide magazine or your local newspaper following the announcement of Grand Prize winners on TV. Correct Songram answers and the judges' explanation of the clues will be mailed to each contestant providing he has filed his self-addressed 3c stamped envelope with his original contest entry. The correct solution to each Songram has been filed with the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York City prior to the beginning of this contest.
