April 8, 1927

One hundred and thirty-six colored persons, converts of the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church, were baptized in the icy waters of Tar River yesterday afternoon at two o'clock in probably one of the largest baptismal services ever conducted in this community. The ceremonies were watched by a crowd of 3,000 people, gathered from all parts of the city and surrounding territory. Considerable religious zeal was displayed. Ferd Barnhill acted as master of ceremonies. He is one of the oldest members of the congregation. The Sycamore Hill Baptist Church is one of the oldest and largest institutions in this section of the state and has been a leader in religious and educational activities for a number of years.

"EASTERN CAROLINA'S SHOPPING CENTER"

You Can Use These Shortcuts In Your Home

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

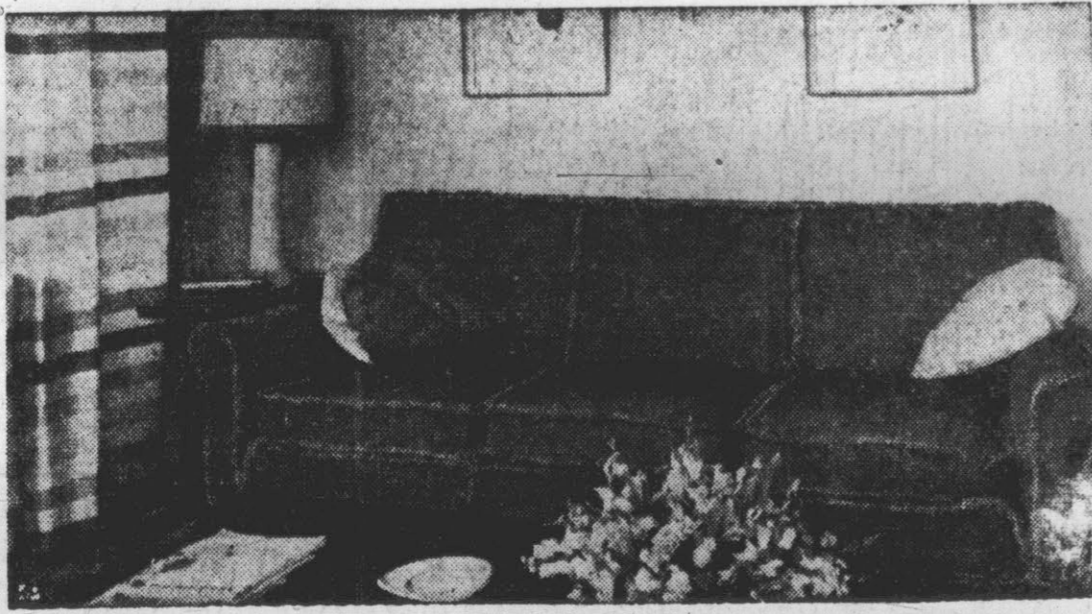

A COMMON COMPLAINT of homemakers is that the furniture has outlived its beauty but not its usefulness. If you are planning a new color scheme for spring, don't despair if the budget won't stretch to include new furniture or reupholstering. Imaginative slip covers can work decorating magic and a new window treatment can give a lift to the whole room.

If your living room has an old-fashioned high ceiling, you can create an optical illusion by making drapes with bold horizontal stripes. One good choice in fabric is a new Roman striped fortisan and American viscose rayon blend, which makes a dramatic window treatment.

With the Roman striped drapes you may make solid-color slipcovers of moss green rayon and cotton accented by throw pillows of gold and turquoise, to pick up the colors of the stripes. Texture interest is added by generous use of matching nubby moss fringe on slipcovers and valances.

Professional Tricks
Local sewing center experts have some quick-trick techniques for making slipcovers and curtains. They recommend pinning and fitting the slipcover pieces (wrong side out) right on the furniture. After the slipcover is pinned and smoothly fitted, it may be removed and stitched together on the sewing machine.

Here is how to pin-fit slipcovers. First measure all parts of the chair or divan, including width, length and depth of the chair back inside and outside, size of cushions and height of seat from floor. Following your measurement chart, cut out pieces you need for covering, adding one inch all around for seams and fitting. Make sure each section is cut with the crosswise grain of the fabric running across the chair or divan. Cut the widest sections first, reserving balance of width for long pieces such as cushion boxings or flounces.

DO IT YOURSELF . . . It's easy to make gay new slipcovers and drapes at home, if you follow professional shortcuts. Room above has bold Roman-striped drapes with slipcovers and pillows in solid colors, picking up the various colors of the stripes.

Pin-Fitting Cushions
Start with cushions when assembling pieces. Pin top and bottom pieces on. Pin on boxing, inserting fringe or cording in seam line as you pin. Leave one side of each pillow open to get the pillow out. Continue process for other sections of slipcovers, always fitting the fabric on the furniture wrong side out so that the slipcover may be stitched without repinning when removed from the chair or couch.

Remove pinned slipcover carefully, then top-stitch seams. Openings may be closed with zippers or snap tape.

The valance is made of perrette, a specially treated buckram which may be washed or dry-cleaned without losing its stiffness. It is covered with the same fabric as the drapery, with stripes running vertically. Nubby moss fringe edges the valance.

A good decorating rule is to put a bold pattern in one place in the room—at the windows or on the couch—and select solid colors for the pattern for remaining fabric covered pieces. Be careful, too, to get all your fabrics and trimmings at once, so you can be sure of matching colors.

Stitch heading on the wrong side at the top of each drape and insert hooks for perfect pleats. The ingenious hooks lock each pleat in place and may be removed so that

N. C. Baptist Student Union To Stage Training Conference

"Our Witness to the Campus" is the theme for the annual Leadership Training Conference of the Baptist Student Union of North Carolina which will convene at the First Baptist Church of Sanford on April 26-28. Approximately 30 students from East Carolina College, who are active in the work at the Baptist Student Center and Memorial and Immanuel Baptist Churches, will be among those present. Those interested in attending should make reservations by April 10. The East Carolina group will be one of the largest in attendance.

Reverend Warren T. Carr, pastor of Watts Street Baptist Church of Durham, Dr. Jack Noffsinger, pastor of First Baptist Church, Gainesville, Fla., and Reverend Sam Hill Jr., graduate student at Duke Divinity School, will have the three major addresses. These addresses will deal with the content of our witness, the context of our witness, and the imperative for our witness.

In addition to the general emphasis of witnessing on a college campus, there will be three hours of time given to workshops in which the new officers will be trained to assume their various responsibilities.

One of the most interesting items of business during the Conference will be the election of the new State BSU Officers on Saturday afternoon. Other program features include four worship periods led by Dr. J. Allen Easley of Wake Forest College; special music by the 65-voice State BSU Choir of which several East Carolina students are members; a presentation of the Southwide BSU emphases by Dr. William Hall Preston, Associate in the Student Department of the Southern Baptist Convention; a discussion of "Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State;" and a presentation of the two student missionaries who will represent North Carolina Baptist Students in Nigeria and Oregon during the summer of 1957. Miss Eugene Hayman of ECC will be the worker in Oregon.

Dr. William Hall Preston, Associate, Student Department of the Southern Baptist Convention, Nashville, Tennessee, will speak at the Leadership Training Conference of the North Carolina Baptist Student Union, at the First Baptist Church, Sanford, the weekend of April 26-28. Dr. Preston will address the students on "The Southwide BSU Program."

A Salute To Educators' Progress

Education in the United States has made giant strides in the past 100 years. That progress has been the result of many factors: An increased concern for the welfare of this nation, an optimistic belief in the ability of all men, the fundamental truth that youth must be educated to preserve the greatness we have come to know and must continue to improve.

There is another forceful factor in that growth:

Trash Containers Do Not Insure Cleanliness

A trash receptacle on the street is of little value if people continue to toss cups, paper and other trash into the gutters rather than placing this debris in the receptacles.

Fifteen new trash receptacles have been placed along the sidewalks in Greenville's business district. Another 35 receptacles are on order by the city and will be put in use as soon as they are received.

But the purchase of these receptacles will not, in itself, insure a cleaner, neater appearance for the city's business district. That will be entirely up to the citizens of the city. If these conveniently located trash containers are used as they should be, there will be a great deal less debris along the streets of the business district. If the containers are ignored as local citizens follow their old habits of tossing debris on the sidewalks and in the streets, little will have been accomplished toward keeping Greenville cleaner.

Now that the trash containers are available for use, the people of Greenville should use them. Every resident should take a personal pride in the city's appearance. And every resident should be willing to do his bit to keep Greenville cleaner.

Latest Word On Representation Business Trends Must Be Equal

By ELMER ROESSNER
Here is another batch of business predictions. The presages are analyses of developing trends, helped along with a few leaks, tips and bits of advance information.

Meat prices will rise. This year's production will be 2 or 3 per cent lower than last year's, about six or seven pounds less per person. Rising personal income will cause a bidding up of prices of what's available.

Spot steel shortages will develop. Auto and appliance manufacturers have cut back purchases and, with supplies easier, many other industrial users are buying only for current needs. A rise in auto or appliance production can create some uncomfortable scarcities.

World sugar prices may slip again. Heavy fertilizing and now good weather indicates an abundant Cuban crop — big enough to affect world prices.

LEXAN AND CURON

A new round of competition in plastics is coming. Two new plastics may capture big shares of the market. One is Lexan, by General Electric, said to be tough enough to replace metals in many uses. The other is Curon, by Curtiss-Wright, a foam with insulating properties that has great possibilities in outdoor wear. Meanwhile, many processors may find them superior to other plastics they are now using.

Next year's TV sets will be smaller. That much-talked-about RCA 100-degree tube is now in volume production and available to all solvent TV set manufacturers. It's only half as long as 90-degree tubes now in use, and new sets need by only 15 inches from front to back. But the 160-degree tube, making possible a set so thin it can be hung on the wall like a picture, is still in the laboratory.

Wash-and-wear men's suits are coming. In fact, they are now being tested in a few markets around the country. They are made of a mixture of Dacron, rayon and mohair, with inner materials designed not to pull them out of shape. When washed, then dried in a direct air-flow vented dryer, they come out ready to wear, with every crease

The organization of professional educators into groups such as the National Education Association, the North Carolina Education Association and local units of such groups.

Pitt County's two local units of the NEA and NCEA observed the National Education Association's centennial Thursday night. Both occasions were combinations of serious thought and light-hearted activity. But below the surface of the occasions was the solemn realization that though progress has been great in the years since 1847, education in America in these times faces new problems and new challenges.

Professional educators, with but few exceptions, have not hedged on the responsibilities that are theirs. In the past 100 years they have, indeed, considered teaching and the training of young minds as something that is done gladly, reverently, confidently, proudly and hopefully.

Professional educators will continue, without question, to realize the challenges that a modern world offers in development of an intelligent and responsible citizenry.

The Reflector is a firm believer in the principles of education and the benefits that come from it. We hold, in the heart of this newspaper which has seen education grow and meet the challenges of changes in Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina, that our county, our section, our state and our nation will continue to grow as education of our people grows.

Organization of professional educators has meant much to all of this nation. We are proud of the accomplishments of these organized efforts, and we are proud, too, of the accomplishments of individuals in the education profession.

We join with the grateful people of North Carolina and the United States in helping educators celebrate the centennial year of their National Education Association.

And we join with these teachers in their optimistic outlook for the next 100 years.

NEW AIR CONDITIONERS

A portable air conditioner will hit the market in a few days. It weighs 120 pounds, light enough to be moved from room to room, and can be installed by the user. Meanwhile, several manufacturers are working on summer designs and picture-thin coolers may be here before those picture-thin television sets.

A new price-fixing move will soon emerge. The so-called "fair traders" have taken a dozen licks recently as state courts have found retail price-fixing by manufacturers unconstitutional. However, the fair traders have been working on a new legal gimmick by which Federal laws would strengthen their hands. The proposal may be introduced in Congress any week now.

Full sportswear will be brighter than ever. A check of cutters shows bright blue, fire red, vicuna, taupe, a rich olive and a bright blue green are most popular, with the brighter colors frequently used as accents on the neutral shades, which include beige and mouse as well as staple blues — near-rayons, porcelains, indigo, Swiss navy and a parma violet — seem to be most popular in women's wear. OLD PROMOTER PROPOSES ANNUAL MATERNITY SALES

"Retailers are missing a bet," the Old Promoter remarked as he strolled in today, unscrewed the head of his cane and poured himself a drink.

"Yeah," we said. "Not one has hired you as an idea man."

He ignored the jab. "I have been looking over government statistics," he said. "They show that just as June is the most popular marriage month, September is the most popular birth month. Last year the national birth rate rose from 22 a thousand in May to more than 27 a thousand in September. If retailers can make money promoting back-to-school sales in the late summer, why can't they make even more with back-to-the-maternity-ward sales then?"

We said we'd have to think about that.

"Say!" the old fellow went on. "I also discovered that the birth rate increased 8.8 per cent in Delaware last year. Something is going on there!"

REPRESENTATION — A fundamental concept of representative democracy is that each citizen has an equal voice in government. From ancient Greece to present day North Carolina men and women have diligently sought to achieve the ideal state. Millions have fought and thousands have died in efforts to attain the goal, without ever having full understanding of what constituted real equality.

The matter of apportioning legislative membership and voting strength is a vital factor in equal representation. The question is to the front in North Carolina right now. But it isn't new. The issues are essentially the same now as when the constitution of the United States was adopted 170 years ago, and not greatly different from those confronting the Roman Republic just before beginning of the Christian Era and the barons who exacted Magna Carta from King John at Runnymede in 1215.

The constitution of the United States effective in 1789 and the constitution of North Carolina adopted in 1868 made concessions to both population and area in establishing the formula for legislative representation.

The Federal constitution allotted two senators to each State, regardless of area, and allotted members in the House of Representatives on basis of the number of "free" persons, including those bound to serve for a period of years but excluding Indians not taxed, and including "three-fifths of all other persons."

The State constitution based senatorial membership on number of persons "excluding aliens and Indians not taxed," and the excess of Representatives above one to each county are allotted on population basis not including aliens and untaxed Indians.

TOTAL SIZE. The first Congress of the United States had 28 Senators from 13 States and 65 Representatives. Each State added since 1789 brought two additional Senators until the present Senate membership is 96 from 48 States. Membership in the House of Representatives increased as population grew until the number was "frozen" some 30 years ago at 435.

The first Legislature in North Carolina after the constitution of 1868 had 50 Senators and 120 Representatives. That number has remained constant, despite the growth of population. The constitution has required reapportionment and redistricting after each decennial census in order to assure reasonable equality of representation. The mandate has been ignored after some census counts, including that of 1950.

Adjustments were forced in 1911 by creation of two new counties — Hoke and Avery. The 1941 apportionment came by reason of mandate of the Democratic party platform. The Senate allocation bill for the first time wrote into law the recognition of place of residence of Senators. It spelled out that one Senator from the 21st district should come from Cabarrus and one from Rowan. Ten years later the rotation agreement in the most westerly 33rd district was also written into law. All other residence or rotation plans are by agreement among the counties involved.

The 1951 Legislature adjourned before the 1950 census count was officially certified, and opponents of reapportionment contended they did not have "official" figures upon which to act. Legislatures of 1953 and 1955 pleaded that since the constitution said the reapportionment must be made by the "first session" after the enumeration, they had no right to attempt reapportionment.

UNIMPORTANT. Actually the reapportionment of the 20 excess Representatives is not very important, except for the four or five counties which might be directly affected. The last change made in 1941 and effective for the 1942 election gave one additional member each to Uncombe, Cabarrus, Cumberland, Guilford and Mecklenburg. It took one each from Halifax, Nash, New Hanover, Rockingham and Wayne.

If the membership had been reassigned after 1950, Cabarrus would have lost back to Rockingham the members it got in 1941, and Alamance would have been given one from Pitt. That would have made some difference to the hour counties, but very little if any of the trend of State legislation.

Since Senatorial representation is based almost entirely on population compliance with constitutional provisions would have brought a good many more changes in the Senate, resulting in possible switch of the balance of power from the East to the Piedmont.

Fact is, the reluctance on part of legislators to redistrict for the Senate and reassign House members stem more from personal than from major political considerations. The fellows who have gotten used to working with leaders in adjoining counties, whether in senatorial, judicial or congressional districts, just don't like to have their "connections" broken.

When the new judicial districts population, revisions were made were established two years ago on basis of geography and population, revisions were made in original lines of several districts because of pleas on part of citizens who came to Raleigh to beg the General Assembly not to put them in districts with strangers, but to leave them with the same people they had been working with through the years.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LEARNING HOW TO LIVE
Most of us rebel at discipline. If we have to submit to it, we snarl and complain. Our idea of a happy life is a life free of discipline.

But such a life would not be a happy life at all; it would be a hellish existence. The word discipline comes from a Latin word which means "to learn." Discipline involves the learning process. The significance of life depends upon our ability or willingness to grow. Some people stop growing mentally and spiritually very early in life. Across the faces of some people of middle age and beyond, there is written a peace of soul which has come because that person knew the meaning of discipline and accepted it. The truly happy person is always a disciplined person.

This does not mean that one is not happy unless every urgent desire in his life is suppressed. Discipline may at times involve suppression, but that suppression should be the first step in the process of growth. We may have to suppress certain evil impulses within us until we can control them. Discipline means the capacity to control. The person who has finally learned the lesson of discipline is the person who has finally brought his desires under control.

Let us never forget that discipline is related to learning. It is the process by which we learn how to live.

Fast Man In Reading Job

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—You've heard a lot about private eyes. But Ed Haupt probably has America's swiftest public eyes. A sort of prose detective and big name hunter, he is perhaps the nation's fastest reader.

"I can scan up to 20,000 words a minute," admitted Haupt who gallops through the pages of scores of publications daily for the Luce Clipping Bureau.

After 30 years in the business, Haupt, a mild-mannered, slow-talking family-man who lives in Yonkers, is the acknowledged kingpin. Most of the 400 professional newspaper readers who work for the $9 U.S. press clipping services are women.

They regard Haupt with something akin to awe. Few can read at even half his pace.

As he reads, Haupt marks any mention of the names of some 8,000 people, products and companies. The list of clients, of course, has daily changes.

Other Editors Saying--- Transfer Of Power

(Wall Street Journal)
In presenting the Administration's proposal for a Constitutional amendment to clarify what happens when a President is incapacitated, Attorney General Brownell made this comment:

"No mechanical or procedural solution will provide a complete answer if one assumes hypothetical cases in which most of the parties are rogues and in which no popular sense of Constitutional propriety exists."

This seems to us a sensible approach to the problem. It is important to clear up the Constitutional confusion, which comes about because the basic law does not explain who should decide that a President is disabled. But since a popular sense of Constitutional propriety does exist, the precise procedure to be adopted—so long as it is a reasonable one—perhaps matters less.

Certainly the merits and defects of the various possible procedures can be argued indefinitely. President Eisenhower and Mr. Brownell believe their plan is best, and it is at least a well thought out plan which tries to deal with a number of contingencies. It would confirm, in the first place, that on a President's death or resignation, the Vice President succeeds as President for the rest of the term.

In the case of disability, the President himself could declare this in writing, with the Vice President becoming Acting President for the duration of the disability. If, however, the President were unable or unwilling to declare his inability, the Vice President plus a majority of the Cabinet could do so, with the Vice President temporarily taking over as Acting President.

The involvement of the Cabinet is the part that draws the most criticism. The Cabinet members are appointed, not elected, officers, and his plan seems to some critics to give them too much power. Also the very closeness of their association with the President, some argue, might make it difficult for them to render an objective opinion.

Others think a Constitutional amendment is unnecessary, that it would be enough to have an act of Congress expressly saying the Vice President has the duty to determine Presidential inability. Still others would leave the issue to hands of a special outside commission, including physicians.

There are serious objections to all these ideas. For our own part, we think the administration plan comes closer to adequacy than the others so far advanced. It provides for prompt action, which could be urgent necessity in a time of national emergency, and it provides reasonably well against the dangers of usurpation by an unscrupulous Vice President or Cabinet clique.

That is not to say the plan is perfect. It is a beginning, though; if anyone can improve on it or produce a better plan, let him do so.

But let us not worry about the mechanics so much that nothing is done. Even if Congress adopted the Administration proposal tomorrow—it probably will take no action at all at this session—it could be as much as seven years before the necessary ratification of three-fourths of the states were obtained.

We doubt that it will prove impossible for men to agree on a procedure for an orderly and safe transition of executive responsibility. It is possible, however, to create excessive delays by exaggerating the dangers of usurpation.

He looks for key words, names or phrases, underlining them as he goes. The stories are slipped later by other workers.

The biggest occupation dangers for professional readers such as Haupt are daydreaming and getting too interested in a subject.

"You can't let that happen," he said. "But no matter how fast I skip over the pages, some of the information sticks in my mind. You get so you know a little bit about practically everything."

His terrific reading has had no bad effect on his eyes. He still wears the same lenses in his glasses he did 10 years ago.

His hobby?

"I like to read the newspaper going home from work," Haupt said. "But leisurely."

Banks And The Present

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK Mass. — I have great respect for bankers. My father was a country banker in Gloucester, Mass. It is safe to trust a banker for the protection of your deposit. His first and foremost aim is to protect the money which you leave with him. Based on my large acquaintance with leading bankers all over the world, I unequivocally support their 100 per cent desire to protect your savings. Furthermore, barring the ravages of war over which they have no control, they will give you back every dollar you deposit with them. Never criticize a banker for refusing to make a loan.

WHAT ABOUT INFLATION?
When you draw your dollars out of a bank, whether your dollars will buy as much in food, clothing, and shelter as they would have when you put them in is another question. The bankers have little control over what your dollars will buy in the future. It, however, is only fair to say that the bankers are fighting inflation in every possible way. Inflation hurts not only the value of your deposits but also the value of every bond which the bank holds!

Furthermore, if it should be remembered that a banker should naturally be conservative. It is said that only one thing is more easily frightened than a banker, —namely, a "pair of bankers." Bankers brag of their deposits; but the greater their deposits, the more they owe! In their hearts they realize that deposits represent debts. The depositor sits in the driver's seat. The depositors of any bank could close the bank in a week. Hence, I repeat we should not blame bankers for being cautious.

ASKING BANKERS FOR INVESTMENT ADVICE
Bankers may be making a mistake associating so much with other bankers. Instead of attending Bankers' Conventions, they perhaps should attend conventions of physicists, chemists, and other scientists. Instead of asking the advice of other bankers who close the bank in a week, hence, I repeat we should not blame bankers for being cautious.

OFFICERS OF BANKS
In my humble judgment, the president of a bank should be a graduate of some highly professional school, such as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, if he is to give investment advice. He needs to know what is ahead, the wonders which are now on drawing boards and in test tubes.

He should read scientific journals and associate with men who are acquainted with the wonderful changes which will come about during the next 50 years. Furthermore, there should be more "egg-heads" on bank boards of directors, whose knowledge is not limited to existing industries.

THINK BACK 50 YEARS
Fifty years ago, the telephone companies had comparatively few subscribers. There were only 140,000 automobiles compared with 54,000,000 today. Then there were no radios, televisions, electric refrigerators or stoves, and only a few chain stores. Over half our present national income and wages come from industries not even dreamed of 50 years ago.

My first job was surveying for a horse car line in Gloucester, Mass. A half century ago this changed to an electric car line, and now the tracks have been ripped up and buses provide the only public transportation. My second job was as bookkeeper for Andrew's Spar Yard, which brought great spars from Oregon to serve as masts for the fishing vessels. The chief industry of Cape Ann was making paving stones. These industries have now vanished.

WHAT ABOUT THE DOWN-JONES AVERAGES?

Budget Front's Confusion Grows

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Secretary George M. Humphrey has now joined President Eisenhower and Secretary Sinclair Weeks in contributing to Congressional befuddlement over the Administration's budgetary attitude and strategy. The incident has provoked the first faint stirrings of criticism of the able and personable Cleveland industrialist.

It was Humphrey who first aroused suspicion that the $71.8 billion bill was too big to suit him. He indicated that he thought Congress should try to reduce it below the Administration figure. He seemed to share these views, although both men backtracked when the legislators took them seriously. They now maintain that it is a "tight budget" designed to finance programs demanded by "the people and Congress."

Secretary Weeks confirmed the Capitol Hill belief that the White House and Treasury were "passing the buck." On Television, he boasted that he could eliminate certain services "wished" on him by the legislators. In a private committee session, however he insisted that he needed every penny he had requested.

Subcommittee, headed by Senator A. Willis Robertson of Virginia. Although agreeable to the Coast Guard cut, he utilized it to make an extremely unusual request.

He asked the right to have a 5 per cent leeway in allocating his Treasury budget among various functions and agencies under his control. He did not want to be bound by Congressional pinpointing of his appropriations. Within the 5 per cent limitation, he wanted to be able to spend his money as he saw fit, not in accord with Congressional mandate.

He apparently did not realize what heresy he had committed. For many years, the careless and indiscriminate use of appropriations by the Executive Departments has been a major grievance on Capitol Hill. The legislators complain that it violates the Constitution, transforms them into mere money messengers, destroys budgetary validity and responsibility. It deprives them of any control over the expenditure of funds which they appropriate.

Duration Of Foreign Aid Remains Costly Question

By RELMAN MORIN
 WASHINGTON (AP) — How long will the United States have to go on helping other nations with its foreign aid programs?
 These programs, over 10 years, have cost an estimated 56 billion dollars. That's about $330 to every American man, woman and child.
 What's the outlook? More of the same?
 "Stop the whole thing right now," some people say.
 "Impossible," others retort. "This is a long-haul contest with the Russians and it may go on for another 50 years."
 "Make the setup more efficient," one view urges, "so that you get better results for less money."
 "Encourage American private enterprise to take over as many of the economic development phases as possible," runs another argument.
 Congress itself is divided over the next step. Never before has the foreign aid program been under such a hot white searchlight. Official figures indicate that military aid takes by far the biggest chunk of the money Congress appropriates each year. A long study prepared for the Senate concludes that these costs are not likely to go down in the immediate future. It says:

 "For the years immediately ahead, the military aid program should be regarded as an integral part of the defense program of the United States. It has served materially to stabilize the free world and discourage aggression," the study report said.
 But what of economic aid? Point Four? The industrial plants built for other countries? The roads? The American technicians sent overseas to work at the expense of the American taxpayer?
 Here, thunderous controversy rages.
 Sen. Ellender (D-La.), a fierce critic of economic aid, says, "If we continue our policies, those countries will never try to help themselves. Why should they?"
 But Sen. Case (R-N.J.) calls for consideration of a "comprehensive, systematic and adequate program of economic assistance for underdeveloped nations."
 Another Senate report says the United States might resolve the cold war in "two or three decades" by fostering "self-sustaining growth in underdeveloped countries."

 As if in reply, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said recently, "We should not attempt to remake the world in our economic or political image. It is time for them (other countries) to start living within their means and for us to do likewise."
 But John B. Hollister, director of the International Cooperation Administration, which handles the foreign aid programs, said, "As long as the foreign policy of the United States stays unchanged, and as long as the world situation remains as it is, I don't see how you can greatly modify our program."
 Sentiment in Congress today appears to be for a sharp cut in the funds requested for foreign aid. President Eisenhower has asked for $4,400,000,000.
 Even that part allocated for military assistance may get a severe going-over. The economic parts are expected to generate a fierce battle.
 And the consensus in Washington is that foreign aid, in one form or another, will be with us for a long time yet.

Record Year Seen For Church Fund-Raising

By EDWARD S. KITCH
 CHICAGO (AP) — "There is every indication that this will be a record-breaking year for church fund-raising — not only in the United States but throughout the world."
 This is the opinion of a man who has helped churches raise more than a half-billion dollars since World War II. He is Col. Lewis G. Wells, 52, chairman of the board of Wells' Organization, Inc.
 In the past decade, Wells' firm has completed fund-raising canvasses for 6,000 churches.
 "We reached canvassed objectives in 98 per cent of the projects," he said.
 "We not only help the church obtain its funds, we are part of the upsurge in the present wave of church building. There is an increasing pressure for churches in new communities. We are a church fund-raising counsel. The churches wanted to do it, and didn't know how to do it. We showed them how."
 Wells' firm employs 624 people, with 324 of them in America. There are 25 offices in the United States, 12 in Canada, 3 in New Zealand, 6 in Australia, 3 in South Africa and 1 in London.
 When the Wells organization undertakes a fund-raising project, it conducts a four- to eight-week canvass for a church to determine the amount that is likely to be raised. It trains parishioners to call on fellow members of the church in a face-to-face appeal for funds.
 Wells handles the firm's business on a public relations basis. It organizes committees and trains leaders, Wells says, a flat fee is charged for the service — the size of the church determines the amount of the fee.
 Among the 1,000 churches handled last year the average Wells' fee was $3,000. Wells figures his fees have averaged 3.6 per cent of the total funds raised. He estimates that campaigns now in progress by 200 churches will result in more than 200 million dollars. His fund-raising organization dates back to 1910. His father, the founder, Herbert Wells, now 82, remains honorary chairman of the board of directors.

 Col. Wells is a Presbyterian. His father is an elder in the Presbyterian church in Steubenville, Ohio.
Advises Against Accepting Funds
 NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother, says private universities would lose their independence if they accepted federal help for their general operation.
 Dr. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, spoke last night to about 400 alumni from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut who honored him at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Hear Tax Study Report At Meet

E. O. Parkinson, at the Exchange Club Friday night, discussed the highlights of the report by the Tax Study Commission appointed by the 1955 Legislature.
 "The Commission was appointed to study to North Carolina tax structure and make recommendations for its revision. The report is now under study by the Legislature," he stated.
 "The Commission made a thorough study of the tax laws in all states. It arrived at the conclusion that corporate and personal taxes are far higher than any other of the Southeastern States. This is a great detriment to obtaining new industry to locate in the State," the speaker declared.
 "There have been no basic changes in the state tax laws since 1932. During this period, there was a vast migration of industry into the South, but North Carolina has not gotten its share, due to the tax picture, Parkinson declared.
 "The Tax Study Commission has recommended a number of changes in inheritance taxes, personal income tax, intangible tax, and corporation taxes. These changes will reduce state income approximately 7,000,000. This sum will have to be compensated for through other types of taxation."
 Parkinson concluded his remarks with a request that everyone make a study of the report, then give his views to representatives in the state Legislature.
 President J. Howard Moye presented a request for memberships in the Pitt County Historical Society, which is planning a 200-year celebration in 1960.

ECC Netters Crush Elon To Wrap Up Winning Tour

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's tennis team defeated Elon, 7-0, Saturday afternoon in a regulation North State Conference match at Elon to wrap up the first successful road trip in the history of the sport at ECC.

Along with that first, it also marked the first time an ECC team managed to claim a victory over an Atlantic Coast Conference club—and the Pirates did away with that mark, whipping N. C. State 7-1, and added a 7-2 victory over Wake Forest for good measure.

Saturday's triumph over Elon was the fourth consecutive victory of the season for East Carolina against only one loss. The loss was an exhibition match against Kalamazoo College.

At Elon

The Buccaneers whipped through Elon Saturday, winning every event in the seven-event match. In an earlier tilt between the two teams, at Greenville, ECC posted a 9-0 win.

Winning singles for East Carolina Saturday were Maurice Everette, John West, Billy Hollowell, John Savage and Mike Katsias. In the doubles, the number one Pirate combo of West and Savage leveled Elon's Johnson and Juratic 6-0, 6-1. The second doubles event was taken by ECC's Everette and James Blake, 6-0, 6-0.

On this current road trip, in 25 individual events, the Bucs grabbed 21 victories and lost three. Their only defeats were a singles and a doubles loss to Wake Forest and a single loss to Wake Forest.

Including all their matches this season (except for the exhibition tilt with Kalamazoo), the Pirates have played a total of 33 events and have lost only three times.

Conference Favorites

East Carolina's play thus far this season has quickly zoomed them into the favorites role in the North State Conference, although they have met only Elon in loop play. Their decisive wins over the two ACC clubs, their fine 7-2 showing against Kalamazoo, and their twin victories over Elon has assured them the respect of their North State neighbors.

Coach Raymond Martinez, however, refused to become too optimistic. "We still have a lot of rough edges to smooth out," he is reported to have said following the last match of the road trip.

Martinez, of course, was well pleased with the showing his club made against State, Wake Forest and Elon. He has stated that he thinks his team will "do well" against North State teams this year but he also points out that his Pirates have a rough schedule coming up.

ECC's next tennis match will be at home Thursday, against the Citadel, a Southern Conference powerhouse. Tilt time will be at 3:00 on the College Courts.

Following that match, East Carolina will journey to Guilford for another North State tilt. Last year ECC, Guilford and High Point finished the season in a three-way tie for the conference championship. This match with Guilford may be the first real indication of how ECC will stack up against the toughest of their league.

Summary: ECC - Elon
Singles:
Maurice Everette (ECC) defeated Charlie Johnson, 6-1, 6-1.
John West (ECC) defeated John Meadows, 6-0, 6-0.
Billy Hollowell (ECC) defeated Lloyd Farthington, 6-0, 6-0.
John Savage (ECC) defeated Ed Juratic, 6-0, 6-0.
Mike Katsias (ECC) defeated Dick Simpson, 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles:
West and Savage (ECC) defeated Johnson and Juratic, 6-0, 6-1.

Buc Baseballers Handed Setback By Elon's Nine

CULLOWHEE—Coach Jim Malory's East Carolina baseballers, after taking a 6-0 clip on the jaw from a tough Elon team Saturday, will move into Western Carolina today for another North State loop game.

It marked the first North State tilt of the year for the Bucs, who had an earlier conference meet with ACC rained out.

Elon nabbed the 6-0 win from ECC on the strength of a hour-hit pitching performance by pitcher Gilbert Watts. Watts, a sophomore, fanned five Pirates and kept the visitors well in control throughout the game.

The win set Elon's conference record at 1-1. For ECC it was their first loop game and their second loss in four contests. They lost to Delaware earlier and posted two wins over VPI, in non-conference games.

Centerfielder Buddy Montgomery of Elon was the big man with the bat in the Elon contest. He blasted a two-run homer in the fourth inning to set his team in the lead. Singles by Buddy Way and Tom Shepperson gave the Christians a 3-0 lead.

Bucky Reep, spunky shortstop for ECC, paced his team with a double. Losing pitcher for the Bucs was Mack McPherson. He was relieved by Charlie Russell in the fourth inning and Bruce Shelley came on in the eighth.

Today's contest is expected to be another tough one for the defending North State champs. Coach Malory is expected to start either Leonard Lilley or George Williams on the mound against the Catamounts.

PIRATE TENNIS TEAM—These six young men were the East Carolina Pirates who went to N. C. State, Wake Forest and Elon this past weekend and came home with three impressive victories, to mark the first successful road trip in the tennis team's history. They are, left to right, Mike Katsias, James Blake, Maurice Everette, Bill Hollowell, John West and John Savage.

Doug Ford Adds Master's Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Doug Ford learned to swing on a baseball diamond, cultivated a putting touch on a billiard table and turned fighter to become the new Masters Champion and currently golf's most successful money collector.

"I didn't think I was aggressive enough, so I changed my grip this year with the idea of getting closer to the pin," the 34-year-old touring pro from Mahopac, N.Y., said today, fingering the $8,750 first prize check of the Masters.

The windfall raised Ford's golf winnings of the year to $25,684, well ahead of his competitors. "I never was one to play it safe," he added. "I guess you'd say I'm a gambler all the way."

Ford's daredevil gambling instinct and his new-found aggressiveness carried him to the greatest finishing round in the Masters history—a 6-under-par 66—which left favorites gaping.

Doug's total of 283 for four rounds over Augusta National's exacting course was three shots better than that of Sam Snead, the front runner for two days. Jimmy Demaret followed at 287 and Harvie Ward Jr., the brilliant national amateur champion, was another stroke back at 288.

Demaret called one hole—the 11th—a "coward's hole," and Snead, Ward and defending champion Jack Burke Jr., who shot 291, all admitted that Augusta National wasn't a course which could be attacked. It had to be "babied."

Reynolds May Posts 69 Sunday To Clinch 1957 Medal Play Tourney

Reynolds May, veteran Greenville golfer, posted a blistering 69 in the new 18 holes of the Greenville Golf Course, yesterday, to clinch the championship of the 1957 Medal Play Tournament, here.

May shot a 149 for the tournament, having an 80 for the first 18 holes and the 69 for his final. It was the first Medal Play championship for May.

Runner-up to him in the championship flight, on Sunday, was Simon Moye, Jr., who played a 156. In the first flight play, the winner was Colonel Partridge of ECC, with a 160. Conner Merritt was close behind with a 161. Lucian Bryan, Jr., nabbed the top slot in the second flight action, shooting a 163. Gene Ward was runner-up with a 167.

In third flight play, Jack Edwards was low with 184 and Jim Clark was runner-up with 188.

Tournament Record
Reynolds May's 69 on the final 18 holes marked a record in Medal Play action. His 149 is also possibly a record low for the tournament.

May had a 35 on the front side, which was one under par. He gained this by shooting an eagle on the first hole, a birdie on the four, and two bogies.

On the back side, he posted a 34, which was also one under par. He achieved this with three birdies and two more bogies.

The Medal Play Tournament was originated in 1953 and has since become one of the leading golf tournaments in this section of the State for Greenville and near-Greenville golfers. Past winners have been Eitel Webb, W. L. Allen and Molt Massey, Jr., the defending champion this year, was lost in the field Saturday, when May and championship runner-up Simon Moye, Jr., jumped far ahead.

A field of over 50 golfers participated in the event and a good crowd of spectators witnessed. Trophies were awarded after the final stroke of action on Sunday. Receiving trophies were the winners of each flight and May received two trophies for his championship play.

The Medal Play Tournament committee, who did so much to make it a success, were Simon Moye, Jr., Eitel Webb, Harold Thomas and Lucian Bryan.

CHAMPION—Reynolds May (right) is the new Medal Play tournament Golf champion. May set a new Tournament record with 69, Sunday, as he finished up the final 18 holes, to grab the title with a 149. Runner up was Simon Moye, Jr., Dave Mosier, Greenville Golf and Country Club president, presents May with the championship trophy.

Snow-Plagued Great Plains Are Given A Respite

By FINIS MOTHERHEAD
Associated Press Staff Writer

Snow-plagued sections of the Great Plains just east of the Continental Divide breathed easier today as another batch of violent spring weather shouldered into states to the east and south.

Cold air which dumped as much as a foot and a half of snow in Colorado spread across a vast area. Its collisions with warm, moist currents prompted precautions against tornadoes or severe thunderstorms in a wide sector from east Texas to Tennessee. Farther north the result was expected to be roads slicking snow from northeastern Kansas through northwestern Missouri, southeastern Nebraska and southwestern Iowa.

It was the third major storm in an unseasonable series coursing across the nation, but so far had not caused the loss of human life or livestock.

Behind the storm front, temperatures dipped sharply today in a small area centering around the juncture of Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska. The mercury dived to zero at Fort Collins, Colo., 4 above at Laramie, Wyo., and 12 above at Sidney, Neb. Readings in the 20s and 30s were reported elsewhere.

The snow, then accompanied by brisk winds, closed several main highways Saturday night in Wyoming. It measured up to 13 inches at Lander, Wyo., on the east face of the Rockies. Smaller amounts fell in South Dakota and western Nebraska.

By yesterday the storm had fanned across eastern Colorado, burying Colorado Springs in 18 inches of snow, and into western Kansas and northeastern New Mexico.

Ground blizzards raged at intervals during the day, closing a section of highway east of Colorado Springs and at least one of the state's higher mountain passes. Warming sun started melting the snow blanket over most of Wyoming and eastern Colorado by late afternoon. All main routes were quickly reopened.

These averages will soon become obsolete, as are horse cars, the Oregon mastis, and the paving blocks. The Dow-Jones Averages which so many bankers now worship are only tombstones of fading great industries. These "Averages" will be eroded and decline, while the basic wealth of our nation — barring war — will continue to climb higher and higher.

HOW TO MAKE A FORTUNE

I scarcely dare to tell you again in this column about a little non-profit organization in New Boston, N.H., known as the Information Center, which will show you for $3.00 how a fortune could be made. Old Boston, Mass. will tell you old ways of getting 4 per cent interest, but go to New Boston, N.H., for the coming ways of making millions by investing in nuclear power, electronics, rare metals, and other miraculous industries of the future.

One thing more: Give attention to Church Averages rather than Dow-Jones Averages. Consider the graduates from our Colleges and the work being done by Youth Organizations. The Hearts and the Brains of our young people are what will determine employment and business conditions.

Would Deodorize Exhaust Fumes

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Roused by complaints about its buses' exhaust fumes, the Philadelphia Transportation Co. set out to develop a suitable deodorant.

PTC technicians, working with a General Motors representative, produced a chemical that it is hoped will ease the problem.

The aromatic formula is put into a cylinder, so mounted in the mechanism, that the deodorant mixes with the exhaust fumes, acting as a purifying, perfuming filter.

The project is still in the experimental stage but the PTC says only a little more research and trial are needed to make it a practical and welcome innovation.

SCENT OF ROSES

DETROIT (AP)—The aroma of roses may soon filter through Detroit buses. A fragrant formula devised by technicians of General Motors blends a deodorant with the unpleasant exhaust fumes which find their way into the bus cabin.

Urge Gamblers To Take Up Chess

HONG KONG (AP)—An evil old capitalist left-over—gambling—is still causing trouble in Communist China. An official Red newspaper suggests that addicts take up chess.

The Kiangsi Province Daily News, reporting that gambling was still a "serious" problem, commented "these comrades have not yet developed a high level of political consciousness."

Why have they addicted themselves to this evil practice, and not to wholesome recreational activities such as seeing movies, reading books, playing ball and chess games?" it asked.

CHAPTER 26

Brevet Captain Emil Schwabacker found Sergeant Finnegan near the stable. The sergeant straightened as Schwabacker approached.

"You got th' divvill in yer eye, sor."

"Patrol tomorrow," Schwabacker said. "An important detail to Fort C. F. Smith. I want the troop mustered at eight sharp."

Finnegan didn't seem to share Schwabacker's eagerness. "You'll rip open th' doctor's sewin', sor."

"Nonsense," Schwabacker said. "I'm healing nicely."

Finnegan shook his head. "It's a stubborn man you are, sor. What's th' detail?"

"We're taking forty rifles and four thousand rounds of ammunition to the garrison at Fort Smith. No wagon, no pack animals."

"How th' divvill—"

"We're going to carry them, Sergeant. There was elation in Schwabacker's voice. "Each man will carry two carbines, one across the saddle and another on the ring. Double ammunition for each man. I know that two full belts around the middle will be uncomfortable, but this has to look like any other patrol."

Finnegan smiled. "You'll be a general yet, sor; you've th' imagination for it."

Schwabacker went to his quarters and for a while he just sat and massaged the muscles of his thigh to ease the soreness.

Sergeant Finnegan knocked just before evening mess. "I made a check of th' troop, sor. We'll be able to muster thirty-six men."

"Then have Linahan and Collins draw seventy-two of the new Springfield carbines," Schwabacker said. "We'll leave forty of them at Fort Smith and remain armed with the other thirty-two." He pursed his lips and his face grew studious. "Sean, how much of a march is it to Smith?"

"A day, sor. A long day."

"The general said to vacate the post by nine tomorrow. He didn't say at nine," Schwabacker snapped his fingers. "Sean, quietly alert the troop. I want troop mounting to take place in an hour." He looked at his bull's-eye watch.

a half before dawn they paused at Goose Creek and, for the first time since leaving the Kearny gate, relaxed a little; this was predominantly Crow country, and the Crows were hereditary enemies of the Sioux. Red Cloud respected the Crows, for they were fierce fighters, unrelenting enemies who gave no quarter and asked for none in return. Colonel Carrington, Schwabacker decided, had used his head when he built Fort C. F. Smith in the heart of Crow country. The attacks were lessened because Red Cloud was reluctant to move around freely with an enemy behind every bush.

The first glimpse of Fort Smith was a disappointment to Emil Schwabacker. He had known beforehand that the post was small, and manned with only a handful of troops, but nothing had prepared him for that first view. The post sat on a flat stretch of ground with timber on all four sides. The walls were not high enough and there was only one blockhouse visible from the southern approach.

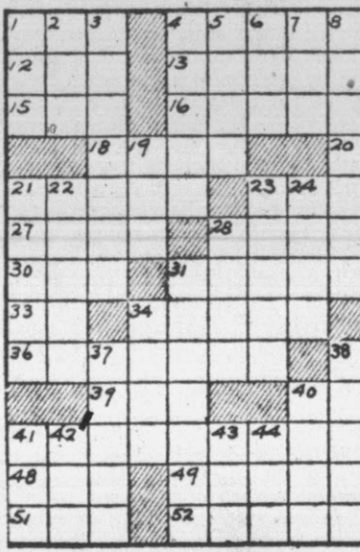

A sentry saw them, and when they drew near, a creaking gate opened and admitted them to the camped parade ground. On Schwabacker's order, Finnegan dismounted the troop and dismissed them, and judging from the meager buildings, Schwabacker guessed that they would spend the night on open ground.

Lieutenant Colonel N. C. Kinney was in command, a rotund man with a bull voice and a great respect for the Sioux. He came out of the headquarters building and ushered Captain Schwabacker inside.

Kinney stood by the single window in the office and observed Schwabacker's troop. "You are fortunate to have a strong force, Captain. Red Cloud's killed two couriers in the last eight days." He turned to face Schwabacker. "I would hesitate to send a force south in less than company strength."

Actor Shelving Career To Be A Screen Writer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor James Edwards is shelving his acting career to be a screen writer.

The reason is that Jimmy is a Negro.

"Sure, I like to act," he remarks, "but I've got to think of security. There just aren't enough good roles that come along for a Negro actor."

He now is writing his third script for films, and he appears to be the first Negro to find success as a screen writer.

"As far as I know, only two others have tried it," Edwards said.

Jimmy is a Muncie, Ind., boy, the first-born of nine children. His first job was to be a schoolteacher. While studying for a master's degree at Northwestern, a counselor advised him to take a drama course to fill in an hour's free time.

The acting bug took him to New York, where he became one of the pioneer students in the Actor's Studio.

Edwards appeared in a play called "The Torch Grows Dim" in Los Angeles, acting to 11 people on the closing night of the run. One of the patrons was Stanley Kramer, who tabbed the young actor for a leading role in "Home of the Brave."

The movie made a name for Edwards, and he has followed with many distinguished performances, the latest being "Men in War" and "Battle Hymn."

"But there weren't enough roles to keep me going," he remarked.

Edwards thought perhaps writing was the answer to his economic problem. He started writing plays for the stage. Next he turned out a movie script called "Silent Thunder." Allied Artists liked it, wanted to produce.

The script was submitted to Universal-International for a loan of Audie Murphy. The loan was fixed, but studio bigwig James Pratt liked Edwards' writing.

His first job was "The Boy From Korea," a true story of war orphan and a priest. The studio now has him working on a western, "Beyond the Pass."

"Mr. Pratt told me I was being hired not as an experiment, but because they thought I could produce," Edwards said. "That's the way I want it."

Tarheel Dailies Go Over Million In Circulation

RALEIGH.—Circulation of daily newspapers published in North Carolina crossed the one million mark last year. The Editor & Publisher Year Book, considered the most authoritative source of such information, gives total of 1,020,730.

That is almost one daily newspaper for every four persons, including babies and others unable to read.

The listing includes eight morning papers and 38 afternoon dailies. Majority of the afternoon publications are primarily local in circulation scope, but the aggregate for all P.M.s runs several thousand above the total for the morning papers. Actual figures: Morning papers 505,900; afternoon papers 514,830.

The 26 papers comprising the membership of the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies, which maintains the bureau at Raleigh for service to readers, have a combined circulation of 386,548, or 38.5 percent of the state daily paper total.

AID TO BABY-SITTERS
 CODY, Wyo. (AP)—The weekly Cody Enterprise has gone into the baby sitting business.

The newspaper publishes free advertising for about 20 Cody youngsters giving rates and times available for baby sitting.

FISHING TRAYTY
 TOKYO (AP)—Japan and Russia signed an agreement today fixing Japan's salmon catch in northwestern Pacific waters this season at 132,276 tons.

In primitive Samoa the natives built a double canoe which was capable of carrying 500 people. The Norsemen's famous long boats could carry only about 200.

CONSTIPATED? New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, blost or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thirty" colon, that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-E-E-T-C-H stimulate it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAL, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAL's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONAL's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAL is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAL neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAL exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAL, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98¢ for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2¢ per tablet.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Pain has ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyane)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H. At your drugist. Money back guarantee.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Aircraft and selected issues gained in an otherwise mixed stock market early this afternoon.

The gains and losses among pivotal issues ran from fractions to around a point.

Gulf Oil was an exception, stepping ahead around 3 points in brisk turnover.

For the rest of the market, trading was moderate although somewhat faster than on Friday.

Aircrafts were in active demand at the start as they made gains. Interest in this group slackened later as their advances were trimmed slightly.

The report of higher employment by commerce secretary Weeks and a slowing in the decline of steel orders were regarded as mildly encouraging.

Royal Dutch, another firm with big holdings in the Middle East, was merely steady. Texas Co. went ahead a fraction. Standard Oil (New Jersey) eased.

Among the aircrafts, Glenn L. Martin, United Aircraft and Douglas kept gains of close to a point but Boeing lost an initial gain in that range, remaining ahead a fraction.

Leading rails were irregularly higher. Illinois Central was up about a point and Southern Railway a major fraction but Santa Fe lost a fraction.

General Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker-Packard were steady. Ford dropped a fraction.

Republic Steel and Youngstown were up about a point. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem eased. International Paper was down more than a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents to $175.80 with the industrials up 30 cents, the rails up 20 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Driver Arrested After Accident

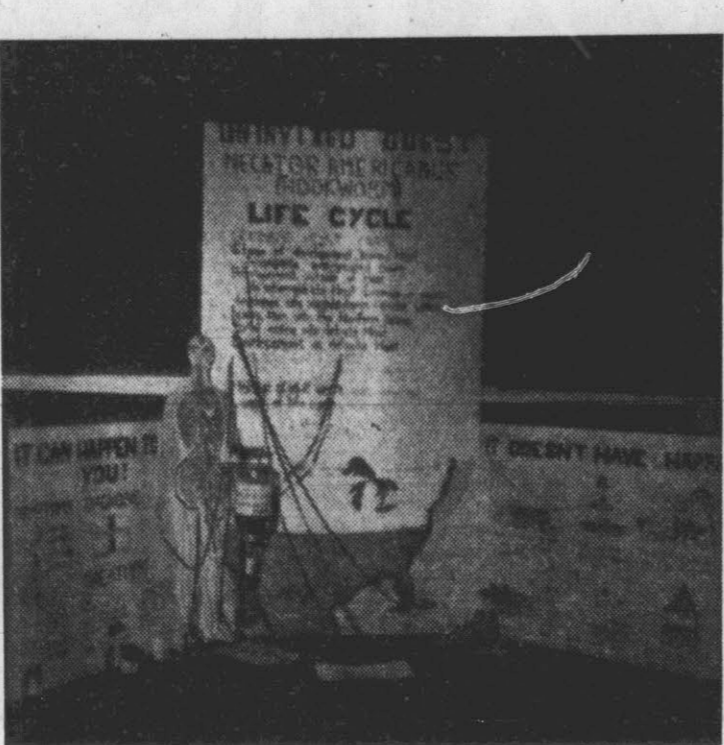

A Tarboro man was arrested on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol as a result of an accident here last Saturday night.

Investigating police officers identified the driver as Burke Parker of Tarboro Rt. 1. The accident occurred on West 5th St.

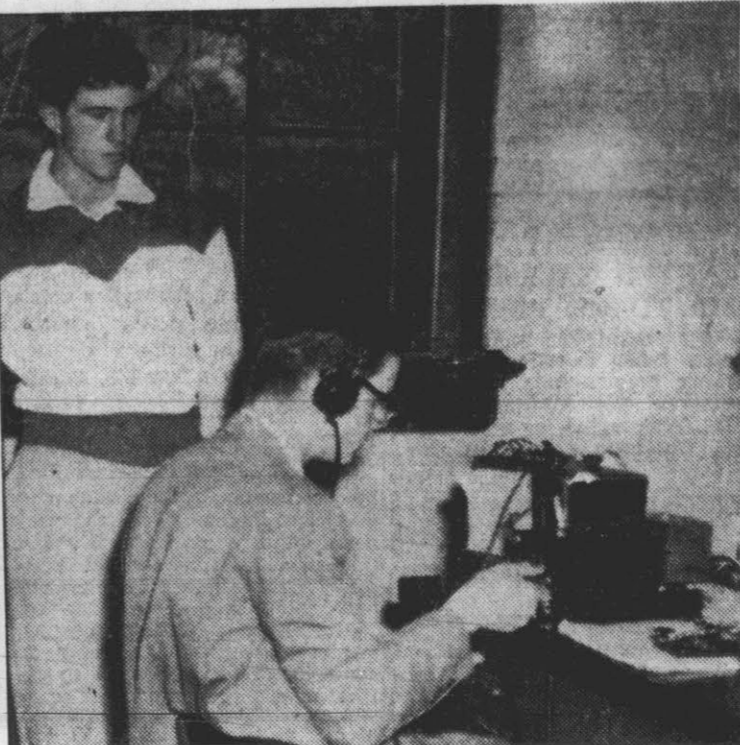

Involved in the collision that took place at 11:23 was Parker, driving a 1955 vehicle, and a parked automobile belonging to Edward Rogers, 53-year-old Negro of 613 Vance St. There were no personal injuries.

Damages were estimated at $125 to the parked car and $300 to Parker's vehicle.

Winners In Science Fair Announced

One of the five senior biological science entries selected for the State Science Fair in Raleigh is this exhibit, "Uninvited Guest", an explanation of hookworms. The exhibit was made and entered by Barbara Goodman of Morehead City. (Reflector Staff Photo).

A motor scooter made from scrap materials and an old lawn mower motor attracted considerable attention at the District Science Fair, even though it didn't win a prize. Carlton Gardner of Farmville built the machine in his spare time. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Nine students from Greenville and Pitt County were among award winners at a district science fair Friday at East Carolina College.

Horace Corbett of Farmville and James Ed Mills of Chicod won top honors in Senior Physical Science and Biological Science categories at the fair, which was held in conjunction with the college's High School Day. Corbett, and Ted Phillips of Morehead City, received chemistry sets from the American Chemical Society for their entries in the physical science category. Mills received a special cash award for his entry in the biological science division.

Ann Hodges and Earl Tyson of Farmville shared a second-place award in the Junior Biological Science division with their display, "The Digestive Tract of Man." Elbert Mayo of Farmville was second in the Junior Physical Science division with his "Semi-Conductors" and Bobby Buck of Greenville placed third in the same division with a coal mining display. Junior winners received medals.

Safety Program Director Addresses Pitt Council

S. R. Brooks, director of the Safety Program for the National Carbon Company, spoke on "Industrial Safety" at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council held last week.

Chairman F. Badger Johnson, Jr. introduced the speaker and called attention to the fact that the National Carbon Company flies a green and white flag for safety which they earned.

"You must sell people on the idea of safety and any thought is well spent," he told the group. He explained that the management in his organization is 100 per cent for safety and he strongly feels that "safety pays".

Safety has to be sold from the top man down the ladder to the newest employee. "Enthusiasm is contagious—so create an enthusiastic approach," he said.

Brooks then presented a brief outline of a feasible procedure that can be adapted to a safety program in any industry. "Start the safety program through committees, and at the committee meetings have general discussion" he stressed.

Each department head is given a special part in the four-phase program—namely, education, administration, engineering, and enforcement. "Challenge the interest of the people in the plant, for safety is a state of mind, and a planned program will locate hazardous spots," he added. He stated the program will die without progress. One safety device which his company has used are safety shoes. . . . "and they have paid off," he mentioned.

Following his talk, Brooks distributed pamphlets concerned with safety to the group. He also said that there are safety films, to cover any subject, that can easily be ordered.

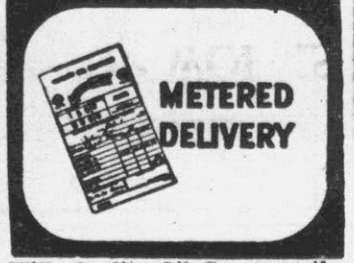

Chairman Johnson appointed Dr. Walter C. Humbert and Eli Bloom to serve with him on the Executive Committee of the Safety Council.
