Hodges Asks 15 And 11 Per Cent Pay Hike To Teachers, Employees

Fought Fire In High Wind

FIGHTS FIRE—This fireman fights a fire which broke out in a dwelling at 301 W. 14th St. around 8:30 last night. High winds and a heavy rain fall hampered firemen as they battled the flames. Several front rooms were heavily damaged and some furnishings were destroyed. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

House Is Heavily Damaged By Fire

A dwelling on 14th St. was heavily damaged by fire which broke out during a wind and rain storm last night.

The Fire Department reported that the house was owned and occupied by John J. Moore of 301 W. 14th St. The flames apparently originated in a closet and quickly spread through the front portion of the dwelling.

Three trucks answered the box alarm and firemen used booster lines from two high pressure trucks to fight the blaze.

Flames at times broke through the roof and licked from beneath the eaves as the high winds fanned the fire. However, firemen were able to knock the flames down before they spread to the outside of the dwelling.

Furniture in front rooms was destroyed and fire burned into the ceiling to spread throughout the attic.

Fire fighters tore weather boarding from the sides of the structure to fight the attic fire. Later when flames had been extinguished in the lower rooms the firemen were able to fight the attic fire from within the dwelling.

Rain fell throughout the period that the fire was underway and high winds whistled around the house. Lightning at times silhouetted fire fighters on ladders about the dwelling.

Earlier yesterday afternoon the Fire Department was called to 1305 W. Fourth St. when electric wires shorted. The wires led from the utilities pole to the house.

Some 120 People Left Homeless In Robeson Town

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP)—Some 120 persons were homeless today in this Robeson County community, one of the areas hit hardest by last night's tornadoes.

Harry W. Locklear, Civil Defense director, said residents didn't realize the extent of damage here until daylight.

Some 75 to 100 homes were badly damaged. About 25 houses were a total loss, Locklear said. A tornado hit here about 8:30 p.m. and then moved northeast across Robeson County.

Civil defense workers, National Guardsmen, the Robeson County Rescue unit from Lumberton and firemen from Red Springs moved into Pembroke, 12 miles west of Lumberton.

Paris Turns Out To Cheer As Britain's Queen Pays Respects

PARIS (AP)—Looking a bit tired from her strenuous arrival day, Queen Elizabeth II was driven through crowded streets today to pay her respects to the 2,000-year-old city of Paris.

In fluent French broadcast throughout the nation, the 30-year-old British monarch told an applauding audience at the City Hall "Your capital is a home away from home toward which, at each new generation, the United Kingdom has sent its elite, attracted by the radiance of your science, spirit, art and good taste."

Elizabeth was visibly moved when she was presented flowers by a French boy and girl, chosen because they were born on the same days as her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Pierre Ruais, president of the Municipal Council, presented Elizabeth with a miniature Paris subway train for Charles and a set of dolls for Anne.

The National Assembly recessed for its members to watch the Queen's 25-car procession pass its home, the Palais Bourbon. The member who proposed the recess, partly explained the Assembly had "received a poor share of the invitations to the different receptions for the Queen" and the Palais Bourbon was the "only place where the Assembly members could see her."

For her morning visit, Elizabeth wore a dark blue two-piece suit with dark blue accessories, a necklace and a small white off-the-face hat trimmed with pink flowers.

Her next stop was the Palace of Versailles for luncheon and a tour of the home of France's kings. Awaiting her in Marie Antoinette's bedroom there was her luncheon outfit—a short-sleeved dress of light blue corded silk, beige gloves, shoes and a bag and a matching blue coat trimmed in pink.

An excited, cheering throng had jammed the vast Place de l'Opera until the early hours today to see her.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Luther Hodges today recommended pay raises of 15 per cent for school teachers and 11 per cent for other state employees of North Carolina. The governor made his recommendations to a joint session of the General Assembly at noon.

The increases he asked today compared with a raise of 9.1 per cent he and the Advisory Budget Commission originally proposed for teachers and 8 per cent for other state workers.

The governor outlined a plan for finding the money to provide the pay increase. The plan calls for the state to issue 10 million dollars in bonds to finance a portion of a proposed permanent improvements program at state institutions.

It calls for the highway fund to continue as the sole support of the prison system for the next two years instead of having the general fund share in the cost. This would release $4,269,000 for the pay increases.

The governor said $1,000,000 more than originally estimated could be expected from the state's non-tax revenues during the next biennium and that the general fund credit balance expected at the end of this fiscal year is now estimated at $64,400,000 instead of 60 million even.

A proposed revolving fund of nearly nine million dollars for self-liquidating projects, such as dormitories, at state institutions would be reduced by $2,811,000.

Finally, under the governor's plan an additional $2,500,000 would be appropriated from the highway fund to provide the additional pay increase for highway employees.

This would give a total of 25 million dollars, and Hodges said the 15 per cent raise for teachers and 11 per cent raise for other state workers would use all this but 14 million "which can be used for other appropriations or contingencies."

Before the prisons separation bill passed second reading in the House last week, the lawmakers received assurances that prisons support would continue to come solely from the highway fund.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Deadly tornadoes swirled across the Carolinas and Virginia last night after hitting three other Southern states earlier.

At least six were killed, all in North Carolina, and more than 150 were injured as business buildings and dwellings were torn to shreds.

Stormy weather, caused by the clashing of a cold front with warm Southern air, lashed other areas of the South with damaging winds, torrential rains and hail.

The worst of last night's tornadoes whirled their black funnels along a 150-mile strip through northeastern South Carolina and into eastern North Carolina.

Four members of two Negro farm families living across the road from each other died in their homes as a twister hit the Highsmith Farms section southeast of Roseboro, N.C.

A Raleigh, N.C., couple were killed when their car crashed head-on into a truck near Raeford, N.C., during the peak of a wind and rainstorm on the edge of the tornado area.

Hospital facilities in parts of the stricken area were flooded as injured were brought in by ambulances, private cars and trucks.

Velocity of the wind in the Greenville area yesterday about noon was 40 miles an hour, and last night the Greenville Utilities recorded gusts of 48 miles an hour. No serious damage was caused by the blow.

The lowest temperature here last night was 44 degrees and at noon today the temperature was only 54 degrees.

All available rescue facilities were mobilized in the Carolinas but injured from isolated areas straggled in hours after the twisters hit.

Communication and power lines were torn down, trees uprooted and buildings demolished.

No immediate estimate of damage was available, but it obviously ran into the millions.

The first South Carolina community was hit shortly after 6 p.m., and the storm hurried North Carolina until after 9 p.m.

A tornado struck the Norfolk area about 5:20 p.m., ripping roofs from buildings and tearing down wires. Norfolk was partially without power for an hour.

The twisters banged into northern Mississippi before dawn yesterday and wrecked more than $100,000 worth of property before moving eastward into Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas.

More than 70 persons were injured at Falkville, Ala., and the storms also hit Hamilton, Winfield and Grayson, Ala. Five were hurt at Hamilton.

A tornado cut a zig-zag path through a mountain farm area between Calhoun and Fairmont in northwest Georgia. Five were hurt and houses and textile buildings seriously damaged. Windstorms, rain and hail also lashed south Georgia, injuring at least two persons in Telfair County. Crop damage was feared heavy.

The twisters first hit the Carolinas at Jefferson, S.C., a community of 650 some 45 miles southeast of Charlotte.

The roaring funnel marched down the main street, damaging 23 of the 25 buildings, most badly. Only a few were hurt there.

The twisters hit Wallace, S.C., a village between Chesterfield and Cheraw, both of which suffered damage from side winds. The Wallace station blew onto the New York-Miami main line of the Seaboard Airline Railroad, temporarily blocking the tracks, but they were quickly cleared.

Then the tornadoes moved into North Carolina and the communities of Johns, Daystrom and Pembroke, where 14 were hospitalized.

Perhaps the hardest hit was the farm area south of Roseboro, N.C. It was there four were killed, two of them in a house blown 100 feet. At least 32 persons were injured in that section.

Thirty-Four Die In DC3 Wreck

ALGIERS (AP)—Air France officials said today 34 persons died in the flaming crash of a DC3 transport last night at Biskra in northeast Algeria.

The victims were 5 crew members and 18 Moslem and 11 European passengers. There were no survivors.

The European dead included 2 women and 2 children.

Yarborough's bill came on the heels of a racing accident in his home county last Friday night which claimed two lives.

His measure, Yarborough said, was in response to "popular demand."

"Several dozen persons spoke to me over the weekend demanding that we put teeth in racing laws as a result of the tragic accident," he declared.

Two classes of racing, pre-arranged and spontaneous, would be set up under his bill. Conviction of pre-arranged racing would carry a mandatory jail sentence of 30 days to two years. On the other charge, punishment would be in the discretion of the judge.

Under the bill, the commission of motor vehicles would be authorized to use plainclothes patrolmen, in unmarked cars, to investigate instances of alleged racing. The bill also stipulates that a person who allowed his vehicle to be used for pre-arranged racing would be liable to prosecution. Officers could confiscate an auto used in racing.

Yarborough said his proposal was "stronger in some respects" than Whitley's bill.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill aimed at prevention of sand dunes on the Outer Banks. Under the measure, it would be a misdemeanor to remove a dune or any of its vegetation without a permit from county or municipal authorities.

Green Monday, Award Prizes At Fat Stock Show

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP)—Between three and four thousand acres of pine timberland that waved green in yesterday morning's breezes lay blackened and ruined this morning.

Forest fires that broke out about noon yesterday lapped across the tract, situated about four miles northwest of the Sunny Point Army Terminal in Brunswick County.

Fire fighting crews of the North Carolina Forestry Service, paper companies and Sunny Point finally defeated the crackling conflagration by blowing fire lines. The flames, driven by high wind yesterday afternoon and last night, frequently jumped the lines, forcing the fighters to drop back and plow additional furrows. Finally, the flames were pointed into a swamp where they quenched themselves.

Paul-Jackson Vows Exchanged In Greenville Christian Church

Miss Betty Jane Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smithwick Jackson of Greenville, and Mr. Ralph Clifton Paul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie H. Paul of Greenville, were united in marriage at the Eighth Street Christian Church on Saturday at 4:00 o'clock.

Dr. H. Glen Haney, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with a background of bridal greenery consisting of emerald green, huckleberry and plumose greenery. Large floor standards of white gladioli and white pompons were placed in between seven branched candelabra with myriads of cathedral candles. At the altar was a decorated Prie-Dieu with white silk cushions. On either side were single candelholders covered with white gladioli and holding tall cathedral candles. In the center the communion table with brass candelholders were flanked with slanting seven branched candelabra.

Pews were marked with white satin bows and plumose fern. A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mr. Curtis Paul, brother of the groom, organist; and Mr. Ralph Sullivan, whose selections included "O Promise Me" by De Koven, "Because" by d'Hardelet, and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of rose-point chantilly lace over satin. Fashioned on the princess silhouette, the gown featured a scalloped cape type yolk traced with seed pearls, long fitted sleeves, and small Peter Pan collar embroidered in seed pearls. Her tiered finger-tip veil of imported illusion was attached to a scalloped calot of matching lace outlined in seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white mums and a pure white orchid tied with embossed bridal satin.

Miss Nina Jean Paul, sister of the groom, attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a waltz length dress of pale blue permanently pleated nylon chiffon with scooped-out neckline, cap sleeves and featuring a Parrot blue nylon sash. She wore matching shoes and carried arm bouquets of Better Times carnations, pink and yellow snapdragons and blue dutch iris tied with Parrot blue satin.

Mrs. Benjamin Williams of Rowland, N. C., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was fashioned identical to that of the maid of honor and she also carried arm bouquets of Better Times carnations, pink and yellow snapdragons and blue dutch iris tied with Parrot blue satin.

Little Miss Sarah Jackson, sister of the bride and junior bridesmaid, wore a full length dress of pale blue, fashioned similarly to those of the maid and matron of honor. She carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers tied with Parrot blue satin.

Wesley C. Stocks was best man. Ushers included Alfred Vester Jackson, brother of the bride, James Albert Weston, and Charles Radford Paul and Shelburne Webster Paul, brothers of the groom.

For the ceremony, Mrs. Jackson, mother of the bride, chose a dress of beige lace with matching flowered hat and a corsage of hybrid purple orchids.

Mrs. Paul, the groom's mother, also wore a hybrid purple corsage with her black suit. Her accessories were black.

Immediately after the ceremony, the couple greeted guests in the vestibule of the church. Later for a trip to unannounced points, the bride changed to a lavender costume suit with which she wore white and navy accessories, and she wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

After-Rehearsal Party

On Friday evening, immediately following the wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whichard were hosts at their home in Grimesland to the members of the Paul-Jackson wedding party, out-of-town guests and close friends of the young couple.

District Governor Is Altrusa Guest Speaker

The governor of the third district of Altrusa International, Miss Ellen Miner of Columbia, South Carolina, was the guest speaker at the April meeting of the local club at the home of the hostess, Miss Margaret Purvis, on East Fifth Street. Miss Miner is the third district governor to visit the Greenville club in the past two years; last year Mrs. Lucille Alexander from Florida came, and the year before Mrs. Ernestine Milner of Guilford College in North Carolina.

Altrusans everywhere, Miss Miner reminded the group, are observing the birthday of the Club, which was established on April 11, 1917, in Nashville, Tennessee, as the first women's classified service club. She spoke briefly of the major achievements during these forty years, but she talked more fully about the future. She stressed the need of staying alert to the relationship between the local units and the larger units—district and international, explained some of the important points about major and minor classification with particular attention to a few changes in the new guide. Holding an annual workshop and having at least one meeting in July or August might be helpful, the speaker declared. Miss Miner answered questions from the members.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman presided; Mrs. Ruel Tyson read the Altrusa pledge. Mrs. Argent Q. Smith, sister of the treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Quinerly, was a guest. After the discussion which followed the talk, members and guests had a social half hour with a dessert served by the hostess, Miss Margaret Purvis, assisted by Miss Louise Galphin.

Jean's Job No Lark

JEAN SEABERG

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Want to be an actress? Maybe because you dream of it as a cinch-job, one where you can lie in bed all day and dream, sit on a chaise-louche holding a long cigarette holder, stay up nights having your picture snapped at chic night club?
Well, lovely 18-year-old Jean Seaberg who just has returned to the United States after filming "Saint Joan" abroad.
"Any teen-ager would be surprised at how much work is involved in playing a movie part," she says. "I was. You must give up a great deal, although it is well worth it."

Jean, who at 17 won Otto Preminger's competition for a young unknown actress to play the role of St. Joan, was born at Marshalltown, Iowa, attended college at the State University of Iowa, just six days—just long enough, she says, "to go through sorority rushing and learn a lot about girls."

Since then she has been on a merry-go-round, winning the contest, making the picture and making plans to do her second movie, "Bonjour Tristesse," posing for photographs, giving interviews, being fitted for clothes. It's a full working day in anybody's date book, she says.

"My movie break was mostly luck," she says.
Jean went through the usual adolescence—having crushes on movie stars, but she didn't really dream of becoming one herself.
"Oh yes, I used to emote, sing and gesticulate in front of the mirror, and imagine I looked like the biggest movie star of the moment. But I never really thought seriously that it could happen to me."

The tiny Jean's blonde hair has been cut like a boy for her role of St. Joan. It embarrassed her at first, she said, and she wore caps and hats to conceal it, but now she's become used to it.

"I met Ingrid Bergman abroad," she says, "and Ingrid commented that Jean's hair gets shorter every year. Nobody knows where it will end."

Jean is proud of her parents for "encouraging her without pushing," the way some parents do. As a matter of fact they are good at prodding too, but just at the right time when a bit of encouragement is needed.

Her grandmother wanted to be a bareback rider in the circus, and when Jean told the story in Paris recently, she was misunderstood by the press. One paper said her grandmother rode a bear in the circus, another reported her grandmother rode bare in the circus. Grandma will just laugh about it, she says.

Sidewalk Show TV Panel Topic

The Sidewalk Show, a feature of Greenville's annual Fine Arts Festival, will be discussed Friday afternoon on the League of Women Voters weekly televised panel discussion.

Mrs. T. K. Walker and Mrs. John Behr, both members of the steering committee for the Sidewalk Show, will be on the panel. Discussion will be moderated by Mrs. Michael Luskin, chairman of the Sidewalk Show and a member of the League of Women Voters. The program will begin at 1:15 p.m. on Channel 9. This week's discussion will be in lieu of the regular discussion of U. S. foreign affairs and foreign policy.

Mr. Richard Leonard, outgoing president and assistant laboratory technician at Pitt Memorial Hospital, gave a program on "Medical Technology to the Layman."

New Member, Fund-Raising Sale Are Junior Women's Club Items

The Junior Women's Club held its monthly business meeting Wednesday night with Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr., president of the club, presiding.

Mrs. H. M. Wilkerson was welcomed as a new member of the club.

It was announced the Watson Memorial Fund balance for underprivileged children was only $76.33 and fund-raising plans were made for a peanut-butter sale Thursday night, to take the place of the usual bread sale.

The club voted to send $50.00 to the Children's Home Society from the general fund and to postpone decision on other financial appeals due to lack of funds.

Two recommendations of the executive board were voted on and passed. One was that each member be assigned to one of the working departments of the club; the other was to submit to the secretary an amendment to the constitution to raise the annual dues to $6.00.

Mrs. T. R. Jones reported that she and Mrs. Joel Lawhorn had taken 261 magazines and 20 records to Caswell Training School this month.

The installation dinner meeting with husbands was planned for May 15 at the Silo Grill.

The hostesses for the social hour were Mrs. Mack Stocks and Mrs. Charles Lewis.

Liberties To Be Subject At Unit Meeting

Individual liberties will be discussed tomorrow night at a unit meeting of the Greenville League of Women Voters.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Ann De La Mater. Included in the discussion will be cases that have been studied nationally, and findings of a recent congressional investigation of methods used by congressional committees.

Added Spur To Industrial Efforts

The fact that industrial expansion in North Carolina during the first quarter of this year did not keep pace with the comparable period of last year shouldn't depress efforts of the state's communities to attract new industries and payrolls.

If anything, the decrease in the number of new plants and industrial expansion programs should spur the individual communities and the state's industrial development program to greater efforts.

Investments in new plants and expansion in the state during the first three months of this year came to more than $23 million. Together the programs involved 93 plants, and the increase in jobs will amount to more than 4,500. The potential annual payroll in the state will be increased by almost $14 million.

While this rate of growth is not up to that for the same quarters of 1956 or 1955, it is evidence that North Carolina is continuing to prove an attractive site for industrial expansion. This is particularly true when one considers that the nation-wide rate of industrial expansion has decreased appreciably since last year.

With the decrease of immediate prospects for new plants and expansion programs, the competition between states and communities for new industries has increased. In the case of North Carolina that means greater effort must be put forth to see that the state's industrial growth does not bog down.

North Carolina—and particularly the eastern agricultural section—is feeling more keenly now the need for industrial growth and industrial payrolls than it has in recent years. Cut-backs in important agricultural crops have forced many families from the farms. These factors have resulted in a growing pool of idle workers who must find jobs or look to relief rolls to maintain their families.

The situation is gaining more attention and consideration in communities throughout the eastern part of North Carolina. More and more people are beginning to realize that industrial growth is becoming a necessity in this area if the economic level is to be maintained and pushed upward to keep pace with the rest of the state and the nation.

The fact that industrial expansion in North Carolina was lower in the first three months of 1957 than in the same period last year should spur the state particularly the eastern part of the state to greater efforts toward industrial development.

Eastern Carolina can and does offer industry many advantages over other sections of the county. But if industry is to take advantage of these potentials, this section of the state must intensify its efforts to let industry know what the area has to offer.

Highway Racing Bill Can't Be Softpedaled

North Carolina must take firm and perhaps harsh action to stamp out the highway racing which is claiming more lives in the state with each passing year.

Before the 1957 General Assembly adjourns, the legislators should place on the books an anti-racing law with sufficiently sharp teeth to dissuade those who are tempted to turn highways into death-dealing race tracks for their own amusement.

Although participants in such races are sometimes victims of the tragic accidents, far too often it is the innocent driver or passenger of another car using the highway legitimately who is killed.

Some legislators apparently are prone to soft-pedal legislation to curb highway racing. They seem reluctant to make the crime a felony. They appear reluctant to provide sufficient punishment for those found guilty of the offense.

While law enforcement agencies and the courts share in the responsibility for curbing the practice of this insane sport, the legislature cannot escape a major portion of the responsibility for wiping out highway racing in North Carolina. It is up to the legislature to provide the framework of law within which the courts and law enforcement agencies can act to cope with this growing highway menace. Up to now the laws referring to racing on the highways have not contained sufficient teeth to really put the bite on racers.

Unless and until the legislature sees fit to provide sufficiently stiff punishment for highway racers, the number of highway racing victims will continue to grow. Already the number is too high.

Single Purpose In Varied Plans

By LYNN NISBET

EQUALITY. Various plans for apportioning membership in the General Assembly have a common purpose: To afford as nearly as possible equal voice of every citizen in legislative halls. Dean Carroll Weathers of Wake Forest Law School, who headed a commission which has studied this question for two years, prefers the term "sensitive representation." He explains that to mean representation that is able to discover and respond to the will of the people.

Sensitive representation cannot be achieved by applying a surveyor's chain or a mathematical formula. There must be consideration of area and population density factors, of communication facilities and the degree of common interest among the people. The only static element is area. Population density moves from year to year, the community of interest is in constant flux with economic developments, and modern communication methods have brought peoples who live a thousand miles apart closer together than the river or on the other side of the mountain.

The present constitution recognizes both area and population as basis for assigning legislative representation. Geography is paramount in the provision that each county, regardless of area or number of people shall have one member in the House. The other 20 members are distributed solely on population. Population is paramount in the requirement that the Senators shall have as nearly as possible the same number of people in their district, with concession to geography in the provision that no county shall be divided for senatorial districting, unless the county be entitled to two or more senators.

A constitutional amendment submitted by the 1953 Legislature and voted down by the people in 1954, would have limited the allotment of Senators to one to a county. Result of that plebiscite has been variously interpreted as being against any geographic basis for allotment, as against any change in the existing plan, and as in favor of giving the big counties two or more Senators if their population count justifies that allocation.

Bills are now in the Legislature proposing amendments that would increase House membership to 130, leave the Senate number at 50, but providing that no county should have more than two Senators and no senatorial district should embrace more than four counties.

This plan is sponsored by the Carroll Weathers Commission and has the backing of Governor Hodges. It is supported by a number of newspapers. An amendment to the bill signed by 20 Senators would completely reverse the approach.

This plan would reduce the number of representatives from 120 to 100 and allot them one to each county, regardless of size. It would increase the number of Senators from 50 to 60 to be distributed wholly on population. That would give some counties three senators and would decrease the number available for small districts.

The net effect would be to reduce representation for Guilford and Mecklenburg now, prevent Forsyth, Buncombe, Wake and other large counties from gaining increased representation as they grow, and tend to strengthen control of legislation in hands of members from small rural counties.

The plan would assign the additional 10 Senators until after the next redistricting so as to give Mecklenburg and Guilford three each, Forsyth, Buncombe, Wake and other counties two each.

Sixty senators divided into four and a half million population gives a ratio of one Senator for each 75,000. Strict application of that ratio would not permit Pitt County to retain a full time Senator and would cost the county one of its Representatives.

Opinion is general around capitol square that the purpose of the amendment is to defeat the Weathers plan and prevent any sort of reapportionment.

Another Weathers recommendation is for a reapportionment commission independent of the General Assembly to do the job after each census. The commission would be composed of the Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House, the Attorney General, the Secretary of State and the State Treasurer.

Considerable opposition has developed to that idea among legislators who contend that the General Assembly should not abdicate its own authority in this field. In view of the past record, there is little comfort for advocates of equal representation in promises that the Legislature will act.

In order to get a constitutional amendment before the people it must be approved by three-fifths of both branches, which means a favorable vote of 80 in the Senate and 72 in the House. Action has been scheduled in the Senate for Wednesday, April 10. As of now it appears doubtful that the 60-senator amendment will get by. The Weathers plan for 30 Representatives is accorded almost no chance, and the independent reapportionment commission is well on its way to the cemetery.

Many legislators argue that it is too late to reapportion on basis of 1950, too early to make the law for the 1960 count. Looks like the whole matter will be continued until 1959.

No 'Death' For Downtown Area

By ELMER ROESSNER

There just isn't anything to the theory that worsening traffic congestion will eventually choke to death the downtown sections of American cities.

The sole basis of that statement is a knowledge of human nature. People just won't allow billions and billions of dollars worth of property to crumble away without doing something about it.

Except in a few isolated cases, the problem won't be solved by including people to park their cars in outlying areas and use mass transportation facilities to get to shopping areas.

The sole basis for that statement is the fact that Americans get what they want, regardless of cost. When mass transportation facilities are faster and more convenient than private cars, those facilities will be used. But those who want to ride in cars will continue to do so. They are too important financially, economically and politically to be denied.

TROUBLES APLENTY. There is no doubt that downtown areas in almost every large American city are having a peck of difficulties. Congestion slows traffic almost to a standstill. High parking fees and ticket-happy cops make driving expensive. Many shoppers have been driven to suburban shopping areas.

But the lure of downtown is still there: the large number of big, exciting stores, the excitement of the crowds, the wide choice of restaurants, the best in shows and the wide choice of services available, from pedicurists to head-shrinkers.

And because of the billions invested in downtown properties, in good will there and the intangibles of city pride, property owners, management, taxpayers and others will simply make over downtown the way people want them, and in the way people will support them.

There will be more freeways and super highways giving access to central areas; there will be more parking facilities, both in parking buildings and in new office buildings and hotels. Laws requiring all new buildings to provide parking for the increase in auto traffic they will cause are under consideration in many cities.

"GIANT NEW INDUSTRY"

The foregoing echoes—and in some points goes beyond—the opinions of Carlisle F. Managuth, Los Angeles parking engineer, in the current newsletter of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

"Theories have been advanced, most of them unsuccessful, to restrict auto use downtown, to encourage car pools, buses and mass transportation," he writes. "But my organization believes we are seeing the birth of a giant new industry, specializing in the rapid and efficient storage of autos at the point where drivers decide where they want to be, rather than trying to take away from them the privilege of going where they wish."

Mr. Managuth adds: "Some of the best real-estate opportunities today are in downtown areas and the older industrial sections."

Meanwhile, William G. Barr, director of the National Parking Association, after a study of the traffic problem in 25 cities, is recommending stiff fines for overtime parking; better use of off-street areas; free parking for shoppers; encouraging private parking operators to change rates to favor short-term parkers, and to encourage workers and other all-day parkers to use locations outside of the center of cities. He also suggests that at least one parking operator be included in each civic parking organization.

Three Guesses

Where Men 'Reign'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Europe is a strange continent where men are still so ruggedly independent they won't stand for backseat driving.

"A husband there would not let his wife tell him how to drive," said Gilberte Thirion, a pretty sprout from Brussels who at 29 is Europe's top feminine auto racing star.

"He is the boss — in the car, as well as in the home."

"I am amazed to see so many women behind the wheel in this country. The man sits beside her like a small babe."

"In Europe if you see a man and a woman in the car, it is almost always the man who is at the wheel. He would not trust her to drive."

Miss Thirion, who has won 20 of the 60 races she has participated in during the last five years, came here for the international races at Sebring, Fla., last month. She and her co-driver, Mrs. Nadege Ferrier of Switzerland, piloted a Renault Dauphine and finished first in their small car category.

"I compete mostly against men," said the tawny-haired Belgian mademoiselle, who was named by her small nation as its top sports performer of 1956. Trimly built — she is a meter and 70 centimeters tall and weighs about 60 kilos — she showed the stamina last year to win Italy's famed "Mille Miglia" race through a 15-hour stretch at the wheel.

She first learned to pilot an old Army jeep and was trained in racing technique by her father, Max, a veteran racer himself. In a road race she picks up about $7,500 in prize money.

Her racing costume consists of a custom tailored jacket, men's trousers and a white crash helmet.

"My pants are blue," she says. Although European racing is not as dangerous to spectators as well as drivers, she has been hurt only once. In 1953 she broke a wrist in Italy.

Gilberte said, however, that ordinary American traffic made her more nervous than driving in a real race.

"It is very dangerous here," she said. "The speed limits are so low in this country that everybody falls asleep at the wheels, listens to the radio or starts talking to a passenger."

In three weeks Gilberte expects to marry her fiancé, a young French Alpine climber.

"He does not like too much the racing," she said, laughing. "He thinks it is too dangerous. But I tell him that I don't like it too much that he climbs the mountain. One can be hurt worse, worse bad falling from an Alp."

"I think maybe I give up the racing when I have children."

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That is no wonder the guy who wrote "The Rubaiyat" is known as Omar the Tentmaker. It would take a tent to put up his full name, which was —

Ghiyathuddin Abul-fath Omar bin Ibrahim al Khayyami.

That, pound for pound, lemons contain more sugar — 9.3 percent — than do watermelons, 6.7.

That Kate Smith, who had recorded more than 2,300 songs, says her all-time favorite is, "The Rosary."

That there's no English word that rhymes with oblige.

That more than half of the U.S. presidents had military records. President Eisenhower is the 19th.

That the New York State governor in 1848, Hamilton Fish, was succeeded by a Washington Hunt.

That the White House, originally called "The President's Palace," was designed by James Hoban, an Irish-born architect, in a competition that won him $500.

That every year divisible by four is a Leap Year except those divisible by 100 and not by 400. Which is a complicated way of saying that 1700, 1800 and 1900 weren't Leap Years, but 2000 will be.

Flowers, Teak & Throne

The weather was good to Big Marshall's flowers this weekend.

And about 500 people strolled all over his Italian rye grass Sunday to get next to the azaleas, camellias, tulips and other flowers that have filled his yard with a profusion of beauty. I don't believe a single one of them was disappointed in what he saw.

Big Marshall is my father-in-law. He raises flowers because he likes them, and because he enjoys being a sort of assistant in the creation of beauty.

He has done a good job. I just wish I had the patience to fuss with temperamental flowers the way he does.

A quick trip from the sublime to the ridiculous:

Occasionally, we run across little items in other papers or trade journals the we like and stick on the bulletin board. My personal preference runs to puns, and there was a good one in the last issue of the Associated Press house organ, "AP World."

It seems that a Mr. Chan owned a gift shop which sold, among other things, little teak items. Brother Chan had been missing some of his more valuable pieces of teak, so he hid in the shop one night to catch the thief.

At midnight, in came a big bear, wearing—of all things—boy's shoes. Just as the bear reached for two prize teak pieces, Chan came out shouting: "Stop, you thief!—You boyfoot bear with teaks of Chan!"

And then there's the story of the African tribal chief whose most prized possession was a great throne, made heavy with inlaid gold, diamonds, other precious stones and such. The thing looked rather ungainly in the chief's grass hut and he worried constantly about somebody sneaking in under cover of darkness to steal it.

To ease his mind, he had a new grass hut built. The structure was to serve as a combination house and office, and it included a second story where the throne could be stowed.

Well, the chief was a lot happier after that. The little chair he sat in fell far short of matching the heavy throne's elegance, but the chief was contented. He quit worrying about someone taking his valuable piece of furniture, stored safely on the second floor, directly over his new chair.

One day, the heavy throne crashed through the grass floor of the second story and fell on the chief. He was seriously injured but before he passed on to his happy hunting grounds he passed along to his successor this bit of wisdom:

"Remember this one thing, my son: People who live in grass houses shouldn't stow thrones."

Opinions In Brief

"I haven't the slightest worry about the future of Israel. The Egyptians will not beat her, nor will the entire Arab world, nor even the whole Soviet Union. It is impossible to beat people who go into the desert, with the Bible in their hands, and the leader says, 'There was a spring here in the days of King Solomon—start digging.'—(Harry Golden, in The Carolina Israelite).

"Peace and justice are two sides of the same coin."—(President Eisenhower).

Other Editors Saying--- One For The Records

(Henderson Dispatch)

Here is one for the records, and one we had never expected to see. It is quite out of the ordinary and a pronounced reversal of trends of recent years. That's what makes it worthy of notice.

Down in Raleigh the other day the House of Representatives by unanimous consent — and that of itself is remarkable — approved a resolution urging Congress to desist from enacting any new programs of grant-in-aid to States and to re-examine all such existing programs and end or reduce their costs wherever possible."

The resolution declared that the Federal government, "by extravagant and unnecessary spending, is forcing North Carolina to spend extravagantly to match and thus obtain back part of its own money." It was set forth that money the State receives under Federal programs is "reduced by bureaucratic control" and is provided with conditions which "interfere with local government, complicate the enactment of State legislation and force the State to spend in fields it believes unwarranted."

Nor is that all the resolution said. Read on. It was added that the State Legislature "feels that its citizens know better than the Federal government how to spend the citizens' money and that local government is more capable and efficient than the Federal government in managing local problems." What an axiom indeed that is.

While the resolution will have no legal effect, copies of it were ordered sent to the President, the vice-president, the Speaker of the House, the North Carolina delegation in Congress and to presiding officers in legislatures of the other forty-seven States.

Well, sir, we couldn't have expressed these sentiments, which are our own hundred percent, any better than this. We had not expected ever to hear of a North Carolina Legislature in these days of grabs and handouts taking such a stand, and certainly not by unanimous consent. Maybe, after all, there is hope yet for a return to sanity in public affairs. Perhaps there is left some sentiment in favor of States' Rights and against Federal usurpation of the powers granted the States by the Constitution. While we are not timid enough to assume that anything will come of this expression of sound patriotism, it impresses us as being one of the most encouraging things either house of the present General Assembly has done at the current session.

And, finally, we'd just venture to add the hope that this feeling and attitude will prevail in the Legislature's handling of its own affairs also.

Bad Time For Liberal Measures

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Almost every so-called liberal measure designed to underwrite "modern Republicanism" will be defeated or diluted drastically by Congress, unless President Eisenhower makes a more eloquent and personal plea for his program. Since such face-to-face intervention violates his concept of the Presidential office, he shows no signs of doing so at this session.

To the liberal of both parties, the 85th Congress will undoubtedly be the most disheartening and exasperating since the famous coalition of diehard Republican and Southern conservatives killed the Roosevelt reform movement after his second term, and blocked Truman's faint-hearted attempt to revive it. The reason for the conservative trend then and now are similar.

ROADBLOCKS TO REFORM Progressive proposals always suffer in times of foreign crises and domestic prosperity. Even F.D.R., after Pearl Harbor, said that "Dr. Win the War" would supplant "Dr. New Deal." With the economic recovery that marked the 1939-1941 period, due largely to war preparations, there was no inspiration or incentive for further experimentation at Washington.

In addition to these two roadblocks to reform or expand, President Eisenhower labors under other handicaps. A powerful GOP faction, including some Capitol Hill leaders, oppose his brand of Republicanism, and they derive congressional and political support from the fact that he cannot run for a third term.

Whatever the reason, the havoc among the liberals is appalling, as an examination of the current parliamentary situation reveals only three months (possibly two) from the day of adjournment.

SCHOOL - CONSTRUCTION BILL SEEMS DOOMED The school four years, seems doomed. The construction measure, which Ike has requested for more than four years, seems doomed. The White House has not convinced Congress that the nation needs $1.3 billion worth of additional classrooms, in view of local expansion and excessive Federal taxes.

If enacted at all, his Civil Rights Bill will emerge in a bedraggled and weakened form. Even sympathetic members are concerned over its threat to individual liberties and an orderly society, and to Federal usurpation of local and state rights.

Far from achieving proposed softening of the Taft-Hartley Act, organized labor will be subjected to more severe restrictions and penalties. In view of the Beck - Brewster - Hoffa scandals and public indignation, not even the most ardent liberal dares to advocate legislative moderation.

Even the garrulous and promiscuous Wayne L. Morse has been struck dumb. Such liberals as Senators Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and Irving M. Ives of New York are shocked.

SUPREME COURT AND CONSERVATIVE TREND The Supreme Court has joined the conservative trend in several remarkable decisions. It hurt labor when it held that all members of an employer organization could go to the aid of a struck firm under certain conditions. It pointed toward the possibility of a common and stronger front for management.

It dashed the dreams of Roosevelt-Truman public power advocates when it upheld the Federal Power Commission's award of the Hell's Canyon project to the Idaho Power Company. It is the worst defeat they have suffered in 20 years. The other remaining power site of importance — the Niagara River — will not be developed as they desire in bills turning it over to the New York State Power Authority.

BANKING SYSTEM INVESTIGATION The long overdue investigation and remodeling of the banking system was withheld from the hands of radical reformers like Representative Wright Patman, Texas Democrat, by a decisive vote. If ordered at all, it will be conducted by a more impartial and judicial body.

The drive for economy, as well as criticism of our major Allies, will cut down Ike's foreign aid request by possibly a billion dollars. Overseas generosity has been the "liberals' baby" since before World War II, starting with F.D.R.'s lend-lease and destroyer-swap ventures. It commands the backing of Dewey-Stassen-Herter Republicans and the Humphrey - Kefauver - Morse Democrats.

But it has become extremely unpopular at Capitol Hill, along with many other manifestations of Roosevelt-Truman New Dealism and Ike's "modern Republicanism."

Solicitation Captains For West Germany's Army Cancer Fund Drive Named Prepares For New Role

Ed E. Rawls, Greenville City Chairman for the 1957 Cancer fund drive campaign, announced this morning that the various solicitation captains have been named.

In making the announcement, Rawls stated, "It is my pleasure to announce that a competent number of local citizens have consented to work in behalf of the cancer fund drive this year. With this capable group of workers I firmly believe that we will exceed our 1957 quota."

The captains are: S. G. Gibbs, Police Department; George Gardner, Fire Department; Leonard Bloxam, Greenville Utilities; Blair Wheelock, Court House; M. E. Vandish, Lawyers; Dr. Ray Minges, Physicians; Julian White, automobile dealers; Phil Moore, air conditioning and plumbers; George Wilkerson, florist and funeral homes; Jack Ray Hardie, banks; George Saad, restaurants; Lee Roland, barber shops; Jack Minges, bottlers; Sherman Husted, TV station, radio station and music stores; Jack Turnage, real estate and insurance offices; Charles Lewis, building contractors; Guy Langston, laundries and dry cleaners; Dr. M. W. Aldridge, dentists; Dan Saleed, department stores; Jarvis Allgood, drug stores; Malcolm Williams, appliance dealers; Louis Tedeau, Carolina Sales; Mrs. Blanton Little, employees county offices; Howard Hodges, feed mills and fertilizer companies; John Lautares, jewelry stores.

J. A. Taylor, 5-10-25 stores; Clark Stokes, hardware stores; J. A. Laughinghouse, furniture stores; Vance Overton, independent grocery stores; Ed Radcliff, chain grocery stores; George Coffman, men's shops; Lewis Clark, oil jobbers; John D. Aman, plumbers; Jimmie Wells, service stations; C. D. Ward, hospital; Bill Taylor, Carolina Dairies; John Grier, Chamber of Commerce buildings; Evelyn Beasley, Greenville Mills; W. C. Taylor, truckers, railroad agencies; Ronnie Morton, bakers and bakeries; H. L. Ormond, wholesale grocers; and Mrs. Annie Ruth Joyner, beauty shops.

Rawls also announced that Mrs. John W. Shannonhouse has been appointed chairman in charge of residential solicitation.

Mrs. Shannonhouse has named area chairmen for the coming home solicitation. It was learned. The newly appointed chairmen will announce their co-workers at a later date, the residential drive chairman stated today.

The area chairmen are: Mrs. R. H. Heidenrich, 3rd Street; Mrs. J. L. Waters, Englewood; Mrs. Sidney Dunn, Forest Hills; Mrs. Howard Wilson, Elmhurst; Mrs. Kenneth Whitley, Coghill; B. T. Batson, Colonial Heights; Mrs. Duke Andrews, Meadowbrook; Mrs. W. M. Seales, College Court; Mrs. Ed Rawls Jr., Rock Springs; Mrs. R. R. Ross, Hillside; Mrs. T. R. Jones, Lakewood Pines; Mrs. Sam Weeks, Brookgreen; Mesdames Clarence Crawford, Marjorie Cannon and Ralph Sullivan, West Greenville; and Mesdames C. D. Ward, Fred Haar and L. W. Edwards, 19th Street.

It was also announced that Dr. James L. White will be handling the East Carolina College solicitation this year.

George Lee Jenkins will serve as chairman of the Greenville Negro solicitation for the cancer fund drive.

"Research in the treatment of cancer has shown some encouraging developments in the past 10 years and I feel that, with additional funds, much more progress can and will be made," Rawls stated.

BONN, Germany (AP)—The walls of the new West German, armored training school are plastered with the menacing silhouettes of Russian Stalin tanks.

Across the turrets and guns are blazoned the words:

"Don't ever forget this."

The tanks are the type the Red army used to crush the Hungarian revolt. Thousands of them are massed in East Germany and other satellite countries.

Disarmed since World War II, West Germans are nearly ready to take their place in the Western defense line.

The first three new German infantry divisions are to be handed over to the North Atlantic Alliance July 1.

NATO naval forces have acquired two squadrons of German minesweepers.

The first 9,733 German draftees were called up this week, boosting West German defense forces to 90,000 men.

The German contribution to Western defense was first proposed in 1950 during the Korean crisis. After years of international squabbling and indecision, the military buildup is finally beginning to show results.

The target, possibly by the end of 1960, is a highly mobile army of 12 divisions, a tactical air force of 1,300 combat jet planes and a small coastal navy.

All will be trained for atomic warfare. The original manpower goal was 500,000. But this may be reduced in line with new thinking on the size of divisions.

When the new German forces were planned, West Germany was prohibited from making the "ABC" weapons—atomic, biological or chemical.

Since then such tactical A-weapons as artillery shells and guided missiles have been developed. Lt. Gen. Adolf Heusinger, chairman of the Bonn Joint Chiefs of Staff, has made it clear that West Germany expects to get these weapons.

For 10 years after the war West Germany was subjected to "anti-militarism re-education." Wearied by two catastrophic defeats in a lifetime, many West Germans still dislike the idea of rearmament. So Parliament insisted on a clean break with the Prussian past.

A new military code for "citizens in uniform" was drawn up. Harsh traditional punishments like solitary confinement with only bread and water were abolished. Conscientious objection to bearing arms was recognized in law for the first time in German history.

High-ranking officers had to pass the tough scrutiny of a special committee set up by Parliament. A training center colonel said:

"Since the war we have been screened, rescreened and screened again—so those of us who passed must be surely fit to go straight to heaven."

Many officers and soldiers don't like to wear their uniforms in public. There have been some cases of soldiers being beaten up by rowdy teenagers.

There is an easy informality between all ranks though the military courtesies are carefully observed. Officers explain rather than bark orders. Noncoms lead, rather than drive. There is no goose-stepping.

The soldier has few kitchen chores. These are done by civilians. Officers may relax over brandies in a canteen with privates and corporals.

The new air force, or Luftwaffe, is developing along U. S. Air Force lines. It is a product of American factories, American planning and American training.

Propose Playpen For Area Dogs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A playpen for dogs has been proposed for Philadelphia's fashionable Rittenhouse Square.

As suggested by City Representative Frederick R. Mann, the retreat would be in the center of the park, fenced in and protected further by shrubbery. Dog owners would not be shut out, but they'd be urged to leash their pets for uninhibited frolicking.

Such a romping place is needed, Mann believes, because of the ever-growing dog population of the area and the congestion of people who flock to the park in the spring.

The Park Commission has taken no official action.

Lieutenant Pleads Guilty To Charge Of Striking Young Enlisted Marine

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—First Lt. William D. Conroy pleaded guilty today to charges of hitting a young enlisted man and placed his Marine Corps career in the hands of a seven-man general court-martial at this Marine recruit training base.

The court, before passing sentence, followed military procedure and permitted Lt. Conroy to offer testimony in possible mitigation of the offense.

This was the first blemish on Conroy's four-year service record. Maximum punishment for the offense is six months' confinement and dismissal from service.

This was another in a continuing series of maltreatment trials which began after six men drowned a year ago last night on a disciplinary march into a tidal creek here.

Conroy became the first officer involved in such a case since the disastrous march into Ribbon Creek last April 8. The 26-year-old lieutenant from Richmond Hill, Queens, N.Y., was accused of striking Pvt. David L. Porter, and officially is charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Porter, 18, of Hartford, Vt., was a prosecution witness last month in a maltreatment trial in which

Cpl. William R. Walsh Jr. was convicted. Walsh was a drill instructor under the command of Conroy.

Conroy subsequently was relieved of his command and reassigned to a headquarters service company here. He was placed under arrest or restriction.

One of the two officers named to defend Conroy is Lt. George Guenther of Hamburg, N.Y., who was the trial counsel or prosecutor in the Walsh trial. He was chosen to assist Lt. Charles Washburn of Junction City, Kan., in the defense.

Testifying against Walsh, who was convicted of illegally touching or tapping recruits, Porter told the court he was struck by the drill instructor. He said he did not know what sort of object Walsh had used to hit him with.

Earlier, Porter had written home to his father complaining of having been struck with an iron bar.

At the Walsh trial, Porter admitted, under cross examination, that he had given conflicting testimony. Other witnesses contradicted Porter's accusations.

Walsh's conviction resulted in a 30-day sentence of 30 days at hard labor, a reduction in rank to private and a fine of $40 a month for three months.

Porter, finished with his "boot" or recruit training, served with a headquarters service company on the base pending completion of this trial. He next faces reassignment to another installation for further training.

He has been in the news since he wrote a letter to his father in which he complained of brutality at the hands of drill instructors.

Oilman's Tithe Is $2 Millions

DALLAS (AP)—A Texas oilman turned over two million dollars to his church as a tithe yesterday after selling his petroleum company interests in a multimillion-dollar deal.

Toddie Lee Wynne of Dallas, president of the American Liberty Oil Co., signed final papers transferring Amlico stock to American Petroleum, Inc. of New York.

The gross transaction reportedly involved an estimated 35 million dollars. Spokesmen said Wynne would get about 20 million after payment of outstanding debts.

Ten per cent of the net was given to the Texas Presbyterian Foundation, the largest gift it has ever received.

Wynne grew up as a Methodist but has been a member of the Presbyterian Church since 1925. He is a prominent layman.

Members of his family said they practiced tithing — the custom of giving a tenth or a specific share of wealth for religious or charitable purposes — for many years.

Dr. Hubert H. Hopper, director of the foundation, said $600,000 of the Wynne gift will be used for immediate financial help for three church institutions in Texas, and the rest would go to the endowment fund for use by various Presbyterian institutions in the state.

Report Record Radioactive Rain

TOKYO (AP)—Record radioactive rain this weekend was reported today from Fukuoka, northern Kyushu.

The Central Meteorological Agency said its Fukuoka weather bureau recorded 220,000 clicks per liter (33.8 ounces per minute) on a Japanese gauge.

The previous record of 130,000 also was clocked in Fukuoka, last Dec. 20.

The official said that hot rain may have been caused by a nuclear test but did not say whose test it might have been. The British Defense Ministry last week reported that Russia set off a nuclear explosion April 3.

School Children Are Assisting Clean-Up

According to Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll, supervisor of Greenville Elementary Schools, "Children in each of the city schools have been busy last week and will continue this week beautifying the school grounds and buildings in connection with the two week Clean-Up Paint Up campaign."

Several plays were presented at different schools throughout the city last week and posters are being made in connection with cleaning up the school area. Parents are also helping some of the students in their effort to rid the grounds of dead limbs, trash, leaves, and poison ivy and other school plans to have a "Clean-Up Day" this week.

Mrs. Frances Tyson's seventh grade at West Greenville School presented the play, "Are you A Litterbug?" last week. Mrs. Ester Teiterson's third grade at Elmhurst gave a chapel program Friday concerned with clean-up week. At Fleming Street School Mrs. L. J. Sledge's third grade Friday presented the play "The Clean-Up Elves Visit."

Mrs. Evelyn Blue's fifth grade at Wahl-Coates have been making posters for the City Clean-Up Council to distribute throughout the city.

South Greenville School is planning to have a "Clean-Up Day" this week with the students participating in cleaning closets, grounds and buildings. The children have also been making posters to enforce the clean-up drive.

Last Wednesday students at Third Street School invited their parents to help them clean up the school yard and they will complete this task this Wednesday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30.

Indicate Kadar To Delay Voting

BUDAPEST (AP)—Well-informed sources say Premier Janos Kadar and his Communist Cabinet are planning to postpone parliamentary elections in Hungary for at least two years.

This comes on the heels of Kadar's recent visit to Moscow. The present Parliament's term expires May 17.

Well-informed sources say Parliament will meet before that date and prolong its own life for two years.

The sources add that it was decided at Moscow not to permit non-Communist political parties to become active again, or to invite any of their top members to join the Cabinet.

Alston's First-Line Corps Of Pitchers Failing Him

By MIKE RATHET
The Associated Press

Manager Walter Alston of the Brooklyn Dodgers has been singing a confident tune this spring, but the plight of his first-line pitchers could find him whistling the blues.

Not one of Alston's big four — Roger Craig, Don Newcombe, Sal Maglie, and Johnny Podres — has gone nine innings in a grapefruit league game.

Podres, released from the Navy because of a bad back, has managed to stick around for seven innings. Newcombe has gone six times, Maglie has gone six and Craig has reached five.

But the Dodger skipper maintains "It's not necessary for a man to go nine in these games," and figures his twirlers will be ready for the season opener a week from today.

Craig was bounced in the second inning for a pinch hitter yesterday after giving up five runs in the first as the Dodgers bowed to the Milwaukee Braves 8-5 at Oklahoma City.

It was the Braves' fourth consecutive success over the Dodgers and over-all gave them a 6-2-1 record against the defending National League champions.

Ken Lehman absorbed the rest of the Milwaukee pounding while Ray Crone and Bob Trowbridge brought the Braves spring record to 18-8 against major league competition. The Dodgers are 13-15. Charley Neal and Gino Cimoli hit homers for the Brooks.

Elsewhere, Boston's Red Sox ended a six-game losing streak by defeating Pittsburgh 8-7 in 10 innings at Fort Myers, Fla.; Chicago's White Sox shut out St. Louis 3-0 at Charlotte, N.C.; Philadelphia downed Detroit at Clearwater 6-4; the New York Giants edged Cleveland 3-1 in a game held to five innings by rain at Mobile, Ala.; and Baltimore beat Chicago's Cubs 6-5.

Milt Bolling hit a homer in the 10th for Boston's victory.

Left-hander Jack Harshman and reliever Dixie Howell combined to limit the Cardinals to seven hits.

Ed Bouchee led a 12-hit Phillie attack on Detroit pitchers Paul Foytack and Jack Crimian with a homer, single and double.

Dusty Rhodes got a two-run homer and Foster Castleman a solo for the Giants.

Bob Nieman drove in five Orioles runs, one with a homer.

The 33-year-old New Yorker, who portrays Pfc. Claud Dillingham in Phil Silvers' Sgt. Ernie Bilko television show, said, "I just don't have it. I could see that right away."

"I was pushing my punches. It was laborious. I was even wonder-

GHS Golf Team Scores Win Over Elizabeth City

Despite the threats of a tornado and a sky full of rain, the Greenville high school golfers took to the links here yesterday to blast a visiting Elizabeth City club, 18-0.

It was Greenville's third victory of the season against only one loss, and it was the second time the Phantoms have defeated Elizabeth City. They topped them 17-1 earlier.

They also hold a victory over Washington high school. Their only defeat came at the hands of the Pam Pack, too.

Yesterday afternoon, Greenville's Wesley Topping was the number one man. Following closely were mates Louis Phelps, Lucian Bryan Jr. and Buddy Murray.

Qualifying Now

Qualifying for the local Club Golf Championship (Regular Spring Match Play Tournament) started Monday and will last through Sunday, April 21.

The qualifying round will be 18 holes and the low 32 scores will make up the championship flight. The next 16 players will be in the second flight and the others will follow in that procedure.

Boley Farley is the defending club champion, having defeated Simon Moye Jr. in last spring's finals.

Full instructions of qualifying rules are posted on the club bulletin board.

The tournament committee strongly urges all members to qualify as soon as possible, as pairings will be made at 6:00 p.m., Sunday, April 21, from the qualifying sheet in the Pro Shop.

Braves Tapped This Year To Win NL Pennant --- After A Struggle

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The strongest pitching staff in the National League, a well-balanced power attack and a burning desire to atone for their frightful 1956 fall collapse should combine to bring the Milwaukee Braves their first championship.

It's not going to be easy. The Braves have weaknesses at second base, left field and in the bullpen. Position for position, they are not as set as either Brooklyn or Cincinnati. The feeling here is, however, that Manager Fred Haney's Braves will outlast the Dodgers and Redlegs because:

1. There is a very good chance Milwaukee will complete a deal with New York for second baseman Red Schoendienst.

2. Brooklyn will badly miss retired Jackie Robinson.

3. Cincinnati hasn't been able to bolster its weak pitching staff. No other club appears capable of offering any serious resistance. The St. Louis Cardinals have a better looking team than last year but they still have a grave problem in center field and are not too secure in other positions. Pittsburgh is another improved club, but the Pirates are shy on power and have only two reliable pitchers.

The Philadelphia Phillies have potent pitching but little else. The New York Giants, stripped by Uncle Sam of their young stars, are attempting to plug the vacancies to ease the strain a bit for Willie Mays. Chicago has Bob Scheffing, a new manager. Unfortunately, he is not a playing manager.

How they'll finish in the National this year:

1. Milwaukee
2. Brooklyn
3. Cincinnati
4. St. Louis
5. Pittsburgh

6. Philadelphia

7. New York

8. Chicago

The Braves are standing pat with a team that tossed away the pennant last year and is going to find it hard to forget. But Haney is counting on Robinson's impugning remarks to light the much-needed fire. The boys are still seething over Jackie's off-the-cuff remarks that say times and late hours were directly responsible for their pennant loss.

Haney, who is doing his best to keep the blaze red hot, is counting on several of his key men—Eddie Mathews, Del Crandall, Danny O'Connell and Bobby Thomson—doing a better job. He was no worries regarding Johnny Logan, the most underrated shortstop in the league; Hank Aaron; Joe Adcock; and Bill Bruton.

He has tremendous pitching depth even though Warren Spahn, his 36-year-old ace, may not win 20. Bob Buhl, Lew Burdette, Gene Conley, Ray Crone, Taylor Phillips, Bob Trowbridge, Red Muff and maybe Juan Pizarro bode ill for opposing batsmen.

Phants Meeting Elizabeth City

Coach Boley Farley's Greenville Phantom baseballers opened their home season here today, facing the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets, at Brookgreen Field.

Farley's boys began their season last week, downing New Bern 4-2 there, in a contest that counted in Northeastern Conference standings. Today's match will also count in loop play.

Expected to start for the G-Men were Dick Evans, first base; Mack Roebuck, second base; Billy Cox, shortstop; Walker Lee Allen at third base; Charlie Smith, Bobby Edwards and Joe Wingate in the outfield; Angus Duff, catching.

Merrill Bynum, who hurled the first Phantom win, was not expected to see action today unless needed badly, according to Farley.

He declined to say which of his game, the Carolina Sales five will tangle with Greenville Parts and Metals at 7:00. A second game will begin immediately following, between the Pepsi-Cola and Carolina Dairy quintets.

On Thursday night, the winning two teams will battle it out for the Greenville title this afternoon. The Jackets boast good pitching.

Twin Bill Today For Pirate Nine

CULLOWHEE—Strong winds, rain and freezing weather called a halt to the East Carolina-Western Carolina baseball game, here, yesterday afternoon, so a double-header is on tap today.

It was the fourth time this season that a Western Carolina home game has been rained out. So far, WCC's record is perfectly clean, 0-0.

Coach Jim Mallory told reporters this morning that he planned to start freshman George Williams and sophomore Leonard Lilley in the two seven-inning affairs this afternoon.

Western Carolina Coach, Jim Gudger, said he would start Jim Brogden and Olen Williams.

The Pirates, on their first road trip of the season, lost to Elon Saturday, 6-0. Of that game, Mallory stated, "We just weren't hitting."

ECC's record thus far rests at 2-2, with their North State Conference mark standing at 0-1.

Expected to be the starting team today for ECC, will be Dean Robbins, first base; Gary Treon, second base; Jerry Stewart, shortstop; Bucky Reep, third base; Joel Long, Wally Cockrell and Berney Stevens in the outfield.

The catchers will be chosen from Doug Watts, Tommy Nance and Tink Bowen.

Following the double-header today, East Carolina will move on to High Point for another Conference tilt tomorrow afternoon. That will finish up their first road trip of the year.

Their next home baseball game will be with Appalachian, on Monday, April 15.

Dupas Earns Decision Over Vince Martinez

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Foxy Jack Kearns, a shrewd judge of boxing in anybody's book, conceded today Ralph Dupas is "one of the best lightweights in the world," but disagreed with the decision giving the New Orleans dandy his victory over high-ranked welterweight Vince Martinez.

Kearns, who steered Jack Dempsey to the heavyweight title almost 40 years ago, was in Martinez's corner last night when the handsome Paterson, N.J., puncher finished second best to Dupas in 10 rounds.

Martinez opened a deep gash in the corner of Dupas' right eye in the third round and the wound harassed him the rest of the bout. But Martinez failed to capitalize on the injury and allowed the 21-year-old Dupas, rated sixth among lightweight challengers, to regain his composure in the middle rounds. The quicker Dupas continually beat Martinez to the punch, with most of the attack centering on Martinez's midsection.

Dupas' aggressiveness and catlike reflexes paid off in swinging the nod to him. He weighed 141½, Martinez, 146½.

Dupas brushed aside any discussion on the racial furor centering around him last week when a Plaquemines Parish, La., woman accused him of having Negro parents.

"I don't worry about that business. . . . That was just a lot of ballyhoo and I forgot about it," Dupas brushed aside any discussion on the racial furor centering around him last week when a Plaquemines Parish, La., woman accused him of having Negro parents.

The State Athletic Commission overruled the woman's allegations. Such accusations if proved would have prevented Dupas from meeting white fighters in Louisiana.

Hard Luck Dogs Life Of McDougal The Pup

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—where he was a reporter on the News-Journal, to come to Albuquerque as a technical writer for Sandia Corp., he brought McDougal along.

McDougal promptly developed what a veterinarian called "a classic case of sebaceous ringworm" on his muzzle.

This cured, McDougal came through with a fungus infection which left bald patches on his body.

Still under treatment for the fungus, McDougal was sideswiped by another car and was limping from that accident when someone threw a pan of lye water in his face.

Thursday, still suffering from the lye, McDougal disappeared from home.

Jenkins figured that McDougal's luck, bad as it has been, had finally run out.

But yesterday McDougal turned up at home, footsore, weary and—for a change—unscathed.

Color photography was invented by Frederic Ives, an American, in 1892.

His master, William A. Jenkins, says McDougal is the "unluckiest dog in town."

He cites these examples to prove his point and to give 2-year-old McDougal a chance at the title of the unluckiest dog alive:

Shortly after the Jenkinses bought McDougal from a Pensacola, Fla., pet shop, the dog was sideswiped by a car.

"It knocked out a few teeth and bruised him," Jenkins said today. "The vet we brought him to gave him a rabies shot after treating him. The shot led to an infection and we had to have his shoulder lanced."

Then, Jenkins said, the veterinarian gave McDougal a penicillin shot and he developed an allergy—bumps appeared over all his body.

"That took another shot to cure," Jenkins said.

British Doctor Wins Acquittal In Death Case

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—Dr. John Bodkin Adams was acquitted today of a charge of murdering an 81-year-old widow to get a chest of antique silver and a Rolls Royce from her estate.

Atty. Gen. Sir Reginald Maudslayi immediately quashed a secret indictment accusing Adams of killing a second wealthy patient last summer.

Dr. Adams was allowed to walk out of the courtroom on bail but he still has minor charges hanging over him of violating the cremation act.

The jury of 10 men and 2 women deliberated only 44 minutes in acquitting the 58-year-old bachelor society doctor. The verdict ended a 17-day hearing in London's famed Old Bailey, the longest murder trial in British history.

Adams had been arrested after a prolonged Scotland Yard investigation into rumors that he had profited from the deaths of an unusual number of his wealthy aged patients in the seaside resort of Easbourne.

The 260-pound, Irish-born doctor heard the verdict with the same composure that he had maintained throughout the trial. He had pleaded innocent to the charge but did not take the stand in his defense.

The prosecution contended that he had pumped massive doses of heroin and morphia into Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, turning her into a drug addict and finally to a state of permanent unconsciousness.

Zworykin said the cost of development was $10,000. He estimated the pills could be mass-produced for $25 or $30 apiece.

The pills had been tested on two patients. Further tests are getting under way at the veterans hospital.

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP)—Four well-scrubbed and happy little boys lined up in District Court yesterday to get $605.21 apiece.

Dist. Judge Martin P. Miller ordered the money paid to Richard (Ricky) Tabor, 7, of Pueblo, Colo., and Duane Bickford, 10, Michael Asnicar, 11, and his brother Patrick, 12, all of Denver.

The boys found $2,910 last summer in a vacant lot at Derby, north of Denver. The money was split equally among them after Judge Miller set aside $489.16 for attorney fees and legal advertising costs.

He ordered that each boy be paid $230.21 in cash plus $375 invested by the court in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Ricky said he thought he'd save his money toward college expenses "but maybe I'll get a bicycle first."

The boys won't have to pay any income tax on their shares, but they will have to file tax returns in 1958. The law says any individual earnings $600 or more a year must file a return but taxes don't begin until the earnings reach $675.

ending her life. A medical expert for the defense claimed that the treatment was not unusual in such cases — Mrs. Morrell had suffered a stroke two years before her death in 1950 — and that Adams' treatment was intended only to ease her pain.

Mrs. Morrell's body was cremated after her death. Justice Sir Patrick Arthur Devlin had told the jury it was up to it to sort out the conflicting testimony of the medical experts.

Inside Story By A Plastic Pill

NEW YORK (AP)—A plastic pill packed with a tiny radio is ready to tell the inside story of man's digestive tract.

The one-inch radio station was demonstrated yesterday at the Rockefeller Institute.

A patient can swallow the pill with a drink of water. The radio in the capsule broadcasts information as it passes through the stomach and intestines.

A doctor holds a radio receiver close to the patient's body and picks up the signals from inside. The traveling radio transmits data on muscular contractions and fluid or gaseous pressures.

The radio is a tiny transistor oscillator. It has a life of from 15 to 24 hours.

The capsule takes from two to six days to pass through the body.

Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin, television tube pioneer, and Dr. John T. Farrar of the New York Veterans Administration hospital demonstrated the pill at Farrar's suggestion.

Zworykin said the cost of development was $10,000. He estimated the pills could be mass-produced for $25 or $30 apiece.

Soviets Respect Chip Bohlen For Refusal To Panic

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW (AP)—Through four years, Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen has served as the eyes and ears of the United States in the world's most trying diplomatic post. Even the Russians respect him, but now that he is leaving, they may well be glad to be rid of him.

"What we most respect about Ambassador Bohlen," a Russian official once grudgingly admitted, "is that he never panics, even when things are touchy, and as for repartee, he gives Nikita Sergeevich (Khrushchev) a run for his money."

The U. S. State Department's top Russian expert is going to Manila, to be U. S. ambassador to the Philippines, with, as he put it, "no complaints, no squawks."

But his friends say he would have liked to stay on and watch the Russian scene a little longer.

The Soviet Union has been likened to a jigsaw puzzle perched on a powder keg. In such a situation it's the stray pieces that count, and the eye to catch them.

Bohlen, 53, has gained a reputation as the ambassador in Moscow with the best background, the deepest knowledge of his subject, the most fluency in the Russian language.

Khrushchev and the other Soviet leaders will have reason to remember the easy-going, almost languid wit often displayed by the slim, athletic-looking diplomat.

At a French Embassy reception Khrushchev, with his usual ponderous humor, teased Marshal Georgi Zhukov for eating with such gusto.

"What do you expect?" quipped Bohlen. "You've just whacked his defense budget. Of course he's hungry."

Soviet leaders often sought out Bohlen at receptions and engaged him in long, serious conversations which probably gave him a more intimate understanding of the Soviet leadership personality than any other Western diplomat has.

"Chip knows you cannot win their confidence or liking," one of his intimates says, "but he also knows you cannot deal with them unless you have their respect."

No successor, regardless of ability, can easily assume the position Bohlen maintained among his fellow diplomats and in his relations with the Kremlin.

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP)—W. C. Daniel, national commander of the American Legion, told some 400 Legionnaires last night that he favors economy in government but not at the expense of this country's veterans.

Speaking at a dinner in nearby Manor, Daniel declared:

"We hear so much talk these days about the high cost of our veterans' program and about economy in government. I say to you quite frankly that I am for economy in government . . . but not at the expense of those who, throughout the years, have faced the enemy snipers and protected the rights and freedoms of all our people."

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A woman being screened for jury duty told Municipal Court Judge J. Sydney Hoffman she didn't want to serve because she doesn't believe in capital punishment.

Judge Hoffman reassured her that the case did not involve life and death.

"It is merely litigation," he said, "in which the wife is suing her husband because she says she gave him $1,000 to put down on a fur coat and he lost the money at the race track."

"I'll serve," the woman replied. "I could be wrong about capital punishment."

WALLACE, S.C. (AP)—Truck driver David A. Petty of Reidsville, N.C., was taking his tractor-trailer truck through here when a tornado hit yesterday.

He said the giant rig was lifted off the road, flipped over and set back down on its wheels.

Petty told a newsman that a truck driver following his vehicle said it was so high above the highway that he could have driven under it.

Men Becoming Sheep Of Fashion, He Avers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Men are becoming sheep — just like women — in the field of fashion."

This bold statement comes from George Nader, the handsome, wavy-haired actor.

His studio had suggested that he get a haircut for his role in "The Dark Shore."

"I play an engineer in the picture so they thought I would look more natural in a crewcut," he explained. "Ridiculous! Do all engineers wear crewcuts? Of course not."

"What's more, I deplore the large number of men who are adopting crewcuts because so many others are doing it. Some have their hair cut short to hide bald spots or make themselves look younger. Why don't they just be natural instead of following the crowd. If your hair looks better cut short, do it—but not because it's the stylish thing to do."

That started him on a tirade against the Ivy League styles for men, which are all the rage these days. He spoke of the unpadding shoulders, the tiny lapels, the bold-striped shirts with extra buttons on the back of the collar, the charcoal and other drab colors.

"I get a kick out of all the actors jumping on the bandwagon with the Ivy League styles," he said. "The fact is that there's only one guy who looks good in them. That's Cary Grant. The others look terrible."

"Most men don't have the figures for Ivy League clothes. They are designed for boys, not men. But now men are abandoning their independence and following the fashions blindly. They end up like the women—all looking alike and most of them looking pretty bad."

Honor Dog With 'Nose' For Fires

UEDA, Japan (AP)—A 2-year old police dog with a unique nose for fires was honored today with a service medal and a new collar.

Kuma, a female Alsatian owned by carpenter Gempel Imai, 32, was cited by the city fire department for rendering distinguished service during the past year.

Kuma — the firemen said — never failed to arouse her master, volunteer chief of the city's 4th Fire Brigade; two or three minutes before the alarms whined from the fire hall. Awakened by Kuma's insistent barks, Imai dashes to the fire hall and has the engine ready to go when the rest of the company arrives.

Caught Blocking Railroad Track

PHILADELPHIA — Railroad detectives say they caught three teen-age boys building a fence across the Pennsylvania main line tracks to the south. They had used half a dozen wooden crates, cardboard cartons, stones and rocks. The obstruction was removed. The boys were charged with malicious mischief.

In Flin Flon, Manitoba, parking meters were removed because the meters couldn't stand the sub-zero cold.

Cadillac

The Choice That is Never Challenged!

Drive a Cadillac over any period of time you wish — and the odds are that no one will ever question your choice of a motor car.

For almost everyone understands the instincts that lead a man to Cadillac. Rare is the motorist, in fact, who does not have his own heart set on the "car of cars".

Certainly, this is as it should be. For Cadillac's virtues are simply too numerous to be overlooked — and too apparent to be misunderstood.

Who, for instance, could behold a new Cadillac and not proclaim it the most beautiful and majestic of automobiles?

Who could ride in a new Cadillac and not recognize its extraordinary luxury and comfort?

Who could drive a new Cadillac and not pronounce it the crowning achievement of automotive engineering?

And who — knowing of Cadillac's many economies of ownership could fail to recognize it as the finest investment in all motordom?

Indeed, the reasons for choosing Cadillac are as valid as they are numerous — and we urge you to visit your dealer at your first opportunity and discover all of them for yourself.

Why not spend an hour at the wheel — and select your favorite Cadillac model as your own?

You can rest assured — the whole world will approve your choice!

CHAPTER 27

The arrival of a passenger stage from Fort Laramie was an event that drew nearly every free trooper and officer to the palisade ramp, for nearly a year had gone by since the last stage had made a successful, uncontested journey along the bitterly fought-over road.

At the officer of the day's command, the gates of Fort Kearny yawned and the stage teetered through, the driver slacking the horses from a dead run. With a flourish, the driver braked to a halt by regimental headquarters, then dismounted while the coach still rocked back and forth.

The door opened and a man with gold-rimmed glasses and a yellow linen duster stepped down. He turned and offered a hand to a woman, who looked around the post quickly, as though she expected to meet someone. A boy, big for his seven years, jumped down. The man spoke a few softly murmured words to the woman, touched the brim of his bowler respectfully, then hurried onto the headquarters porch, there meeting General Wessels, who came to the door.

"The officer of the day hurried up, presented himself smartly to the woman, then said, 'Your name, please, madam?'"

"Mrs. Temple Jocelyn. I've come to see my husband."

The O.D. made a slight bow. "As you wish, madam." He offered her his arm, and the boy his hand, and conducted them around the parade to the infirmary.

Then Dr. Cove Butler took over. He led the way down a short hall and opened a door. When Evangeline Jocelyn and her son went in, he closed the door.

For a moment Jocelyn stared at them, and then the skin went black and his expression sagged like slowly melting wax. "I'm dreaming," he said, convinced of it. "I'm very real, Temple," Evangeline said. She gave the boy a slight push so that he stood before her. It was almost as if she were afraid to approach this man who was her husband, and wanted the child to make the first overture. "This is your father, Stuart, whom you've never seen, and who has never seen you."

The boy studied Jocelyn with wide-innocent eyes. He was going to have Jocelyn's height and lean ranginess in the cheeks. Slowly, with a strength and determination agonizing to see, Jocelyn raised himself to his elbows, and then to a sitting position with his arms out-braced. This required several minutes and the effort brought sweat to his face. His breathing was loud and labored.

He was a magnificent man, a determined man, and if he had to crawl those last few feet separating them, then he would. But he could go no farther. He sat in bed, braced on stiffened arms, this his head tipped forward and began to bob rhythmically and tears of defeat dropped to the covers, making small dark spots.

Evangeline Jocelyn broke past her son and went to her knees beside his bed. She touched him, encircled him with her arms, and the strength seemed to leave him, for she was now his strength, and she held him, rocking back and forth, whispering to him.

The boy began to cry, partly because he was frightened and partly because he was suddenly alone, on the outside of love, looking in. He came forward timidly and Jocelyn's hand came out, touching him lightly on the head. Silent understanding passed from one to the other in that touch, for they were father and son. The boy climbed up on Jocelyn's bed and kissed him.

The man in the yellow duster accepted one of General Wessels' fine cigars and a chair. Between puffs, he said, "you have no idea, General, how pleased I am with this assignment. It isn't often that a newspaperman gets an exclusive."

"Since Ridgeway Grover of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly was killed less than a mile from the main gate," replied Wessels, "both General Cooke and I have taken a dim view of noncombatant civilians on the post. However, the situation has changed, Mr. Davis."

"Indeed it has," Davis said. "General, the dispatch you released two weeks ago has been reprinted in every major newspaper in the United States. Public reaction was immediate and definite. A peace commission is coming west to make a new treaty with the Sioux and their allies. Reinforcements are on their way as soon as Jefferson Barracks can muster two regiments."

"Two regiments!" Wessels rubbed his hands. "Fantastic." He turned to the window overlooking the parade. "And I can thank Captain Schwabacker for this, Davis. He's a most capable officer."

"My newspaper seems to think so," Allistair Davis said. "They sent me all the way from Chicago to interview him. With your permission, of course, sir."

"Permission?" Wessels thought of the charges hanging over Captain Emil Schwabacker good publicity would have tremendous weight. Enough of it could tie a board's hands, make punishment impossible because of public opinion regarding a popular hero. "Yes," Wessels said, "I grant permission. Please clear the copy through my office. I'll dispatch it with my courier; you'll get faster results that way."

Allistair Davis rose. "Thank you, General. I've a story here. I can feel it." He thumped his chest to point out the place. He shook hands with Wessels and went out with his cigar streaming pale smoke behind him.

Brevet Captain Schwabacker's return to Fort Kearny aroused no excitement, for the hour was late, and since he bore only Colonel Kinney's written report, he sent this to General Wessels by messenger, then went to his quarters and poured water for a bath.

He had just dried off and was slipping into his underwear when Cove Butler knocked, entering on the heels of it.

"I want to look at that side," said Butler. He moved the lamp around and turned Schwabacker so that the healing wound was exposed to the light. Butler grunted in satisfaction, then indicated that Schwabacker could finish dressing. "A stage arrived this afternoon, Emil. Jocelyn's wife and son were on it. She left word that she wants to see you. Quarter H near the end."

"Now?" Schwabacker asked. "She said as soon as you returned."

Schwabacker found Quarter H

with little difficulty, and rapped softly. The door opened almost immediately and he snapped his heels together. "Captain Schwabacker, madam. I just received your message."

Evangeline Jocelyn stepped back. "Won't you come in, captain. It was good of you to come."

"Have you seen Captain Jocelyn, ma'am?"

"Yes, for over a hour," she gave him a direct glance. "Doctor Butler assures me that you're a capable medical man, Captain. Is he dying?"

"Dr. Butler is doing everything in his power to heal Captain Jocelyn's wound. If he is dying, it is because he refuses to respond to medical treatment."

"That's not what I asked," Evangeline Jocelyn said.

"Let's be honest with each other, madam. Had I not written and spoken of his serious condition, would you ever have communicated with him again?"

"Yes," she said. "The hate died years ago, and left nothing but emptiness behind. Any excuse would have brought me to him. You gave me that excuse, and I'll always be in your debt."

She turned her back to him.

"The war was terrible, Captain. Neither side will forget, but I was wrong in thinking we had to go on spitting on each other." She faced Schwabacker then. "And you, sir, are you going to make peace with my husband?"

"You make it sound very simple," Schwabacker said.

"I'm not trying to," Evangeline said. "He has preferred charges against you; he knows that he is wrong. You spoke in an angry manner against him. You know that you were wrong."

"Who told you of this?" "Lieutenant Butler, the surgeon," Evangeline said.

D-Butler and his nosy... Schwabacker glanced at his watch. "It's quite late," he said, "and you must be very tired. He turned to the door. 'Good night, and I wish you the best.'"

"But not my husband?" "I'm sorry," Schwabacker said. "I never wanted to compete with him. It was something beyond my control." He left her then and returned to his quarters.

Emil has cause to worry about talking too much to the wrong person. Continue "The Brass and the Blue" tomorrow in this paper.

New Production Role Has Emerged In TV Program

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A basic rule of the game with Wide Wide World is that everything must be done in live television, with no film allowed.

This makes the game of capturing themes and scenes of American life both more difficult and exhilarating.

Finding proper location scenes and appropriate talent (nearly always amateur) for Wide Wide

World is the job of a dark-haired, energetic woman named Evelyn Lifschultz, who has coined for herself the title of "local producer."

Like several members of the NBC program's staff, she's seldom in New York. "I've had troubles," Miss Lifschultz said, "but 90 per cent of them are technical. In general the American people can't do enough for you — even those who never saw a television set."

Take the Apache Indians. The United States never really subdued the Apaches—but Miss Lifschultz did. The scene was Tombstone, Ariz., some time ago when Wide Wide World decided it needed a couple of hundred Indians. The nearest were 150 miles away. Apaches who had their wares standards inflated by Hollywood movie-makers on location.

Hastening to the reservation, Miss Lifschultz conferred in solemn pow-wow with chiefs for several days. At the conclusion the chiefs presented a meticulous proposed bill that worked out to a cost of $25,000 for 200 Apaches delivered to Tombstone. (This is one tough tribe.) Knowing that Robert Sarnoff and other NBC chiefs in New York would let out a war whoop at this bill, Miss Lifschultz made powerful medicine.

She singled out a smart young Apache and made him a "packager." That is, the guy who delivered the goods at profit or loss. He delivered 100 Apaches in Tombstone for $2,500. To which one can only cry feelingly, "Geonimo!"

—AND A NEW TUBE
CHICAGO (AP)—Paul Benson, 33, told Judge William F. Barth in Domestic Relations Court he fired a shotgun blast into the TV set after his wife refused to turn it off. He was fined $15.

Guard These Precious Lives. Build Safer Schools with CONCRETE

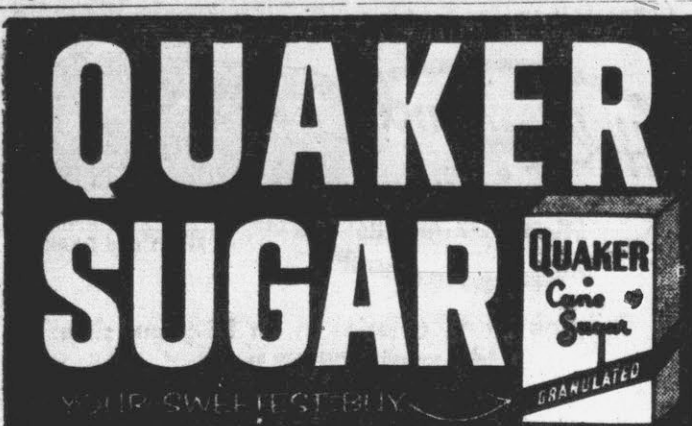

News of a school fire or explosion strikes terror into the heart of every parent. You can give your children and their teachers an extra measure of protection against tragedy by insisting that schools planned for your community be built with concrete frames and floors and concrete masonry walls.

A school built with concrete frames and floors has the strength, rigidity and toughness to withstand such destructive forces as hurricanes, earthquakes, and atomic blasts. These forces can spell disaster in a split second for buildings of less durable construction.

Only the best is good enough when children's lives are at stake. Play safe. Insist on durable, safe concrete construction for the new schools in your community.

Pontiac Springs Another "First!"

-Lowest Priced Car with Tri-Power Carburetion!

Pontiac started 'em all talking by tagging this eye-popping Chieftain below 30 models of the low-price three. Now Pontiac has tossed another firecracker into the low-price field... with Tri-Power Carburetion available at extra cost on any model. Pontiac alone at so low a cost offers this sensational track-proved* carburetion system that has officially outperformed super-charged and fuel injection cars. Here's how it works: For normal driving, only one of three double-barrel carburetors is in operation. When you want a safety-surge of power, press your toe and pronto!—the other two carburetors pour out a bonus of go as long as you need it. Ease up... and you're back to the gas-saving economy of one-carburetor operation! In short—your new Pontiac Chieftain can be tame or terrific—at the touch of a toe! Try it, and you'll see why they're biting their nails in the low-price field. Check the car... check the price... and all bets are that you'll graduate to Pontiac with plenty left over in your budget to celebrate the occasion!

Plenty Of Herb Doctors In China

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Dr. Gerald D. Doo, a Gettysburg surgeon and a native of Shanghai, says there are more herb doctors in China than Western-trained doctors.

"Even highly-educated people still go to them for help. This type of doctor seeks to treat the symptoms of his patient rather than the disease, itself. They employ medicine rather than surgery, treating superficial infections. They use a plaster for arthritis which is made up of a secret formula," Doo said in a speech.

Small, 3-Legged Deer On Runway

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Thar's many a strange animal in these West Virginia mountains. Witness: A small, three-legged deer that dashed across a runway at Kanawha Airport.

An airliner was on the runway at the time, but airport officials said "there was no interference."

The citizens of Bermuda stole 100 kegs of powder from the British and shipped them to Boston to aid the American forces in the Battle of Bunker Hill. General George Washington sent them a letter of thanks.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)—The stock market widened its gains in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks in most major divisions made gains of fractions to a point or better.

Shares of Western railroads steadied after their setback yesterday on news that the U. S. Supreme Court had barred Union Pacific from drilling for oil and gas along its right of way.

Du Pont was up around 5 points and a string of other chemical shares rose fractions to around a point; but Union Carbide dropped a fraction.

Gulf Oil paced leading oil shares with a rise of around 3. Gains by the others were mainly fractional.

General Tire was up around 2 points to a new all-time high for this stock.

General Dynamics and Dresser Industries got a play from buyers, each up around a point or better. Aircrafts met good demand. North American Aviation and Douglas were up a point or so. Boeing and United Aircraft gained fractionally.

Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe were steady to slightly higher. Eastern carriers showed fractional gains.

A block of 10,000 shares of Tri-Continental Corp. was traded at 30 1/2, up 1/2.

Steels were moderately higher, with Youngstown up more than a point. Chrysler was off a fraction. General Motors ahead a bit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 50 cents at $176.50 with the industrials up $1.00, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH (U)—(NCDA)—Hog prices mostly 25 lower. Tops of 16.75 to 17.75 at Rocky Mount; 16.75 to 17.50 at Tarboro and Edenfield; 16.50 to 17.50 at Hillsboro and Kenly; 16.50 to 17.25 at Bethel; 16.75 to 17.00 at Wingate; 16.50 to 17.00 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Nahunta, Siler City, Mount Gilead and Denton; 17.25 at Murfreesboro and Castle Hayne; 16.75 at Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Smithfield, Newton Grove, Mount Olive, Bailey, Dunn, Clarkton, Whiteville, Goldsboro, Shallotte, Elizabethtown and Micro; 16.50 at Rich Square.

RALEIGH (U)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers steady, farm price 19. Raleigh eggs steady, A large 30-32; Durham eggs steady, A large 29-32; Asheville eggs steady, A large 28-30; Charlotte eggs steady, A large 28.

Last Rites Set For Walter G. Scott, Sr.

Funeral services for Walter Glenn Scott Sr., 49, will be held at the home, 1000 West Fourth street, in Greenville, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock by his pastor, Rev. L. W. Topping. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Scott died at his home in Greenville at 9:30 Monday morning.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Florence Overton Scott; two sons, 2nd Lt. Walter Glenn Scott Jr. of U. S. Air Force, now stationed at Fort Eglin, Florida, and Harry White Scott, a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; a daughter, Florence Overton Scott of the home; four brothers, Carl Scott of Belvoir, Milton Scott of Pinetops, Col. Harold Scott of U. S. Air Force, now stationed in Texas, and Elmo Scott of Washington, D. C., and a sister, Mrs. Ben Weaver of Pinetops.

Mr. Scott, son of the late Solomon and Louetta Moore Scott, spent his early life in the Belvoir community. For the past 25 years he had been engaged in the automobile and tire retail business in Greenville. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and Greenville Masonic Lodge, and was a Shriner.

Free Polio Vaccine Near End, Parents Urged To Act

THIRD INOCULATION—Nineteen month old Anthony Skinner still doesn't quite trust the needle, although this is his third polio inoculation. Thousands of Pitt County children have been receiving their free polio inoculations at the Pitt County Health Dept., but it has been stressed that those children who have not begun their series of three inoculations should do so immediately. The clinic is open on Monday and Wednesday afternoon from 1:00-4:30. Miss Edna Corbett, nurse, is shown above with Anthony and his mother, Mrs. Willie J. Skinner. (Reflector Staff Photo by Anne Singleton.)

Has your child been vaccinated against polio?

"We want all parents to take their children to the Pitt County Health Department (on the Pitt County Hospital grounds) for their polio shots now," stressed J. H. Rose, chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

There is no charge for these shots and they are given every Monday and Wednesday afternoon from 1:00-4:30 p.m.

Rose warned that, "There may not be any more free vaccine after June 30," adding "We are lucky we still have some vaccine."

Each child should at least have two shots by June 1 when the polio danger period arrives. There is a period of one month between the first and second shot.

"Parents of children who are below school-age and are too young to go through the preschool clinics (children 5 and under) also need to get their children's two shots immediately," Rose said.

At the present time drives are being sponsored in all of the Greenville city schools to stress the importance and urgency of beginning the polio shots now. According to Rose, "We believe that all school children and six year olds in the city will be inoculated by the end of this school year."

Dr. Walter C. Humbert and his staff at the County Health Department are sponsoring this program to wipe out the plague which last summer took the life of one Pitt County child and victimized 16 others.

"The Greenville schools are behind this movement and we urge all parents to please not wait another day to begin your child's inoculations," Rose said emphatically.

Finished With Schools
"We finished giving polio shots April 8 with Greenville High School," explained Dr. Humbert. The Health Department has been going to every school in the entire county since September giving free polio shots to both white and Negro students.

Dr. Humbert added that, "Any child who did not get their shots at school, may receive them from their family physician or at the Health Department in Greenville, Farmville, Bethel, or Grifton."

Inoculations will be given in Farmville on Monday and Thursday afternoon from 1:00-4:30; in Bethel on the second Friday of each month from 1:00-4:30; and in Grifton on the second Monday of each month from 1:00-4:30.

He stressed that it is important for those children born since last summer who are six months old or older to begin immediately receiving their inoculations before June.

The free inoculations for expectant mothers is still available at the Health Department.

The Health Department's facilities do not include inoculations for persons 19 years of age or older.

John A. Campbell Dies Near Bridgeton

Mr. John A. Campbell, 77, died Monday morning at about 8:15 at his home near Bridgeton following an apparent heart attack.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Mr. Campbell spent his early life near Black Jack and later lived near Greenville, moving to Bridgeton 15 years ago. He was a carpenter until he retired in 1942. He was a member of Faith Tabernacle Holiness Church at Bridgeton. He was first married to Alice Adams and she died in 1914. He was later married to Helen McKel of Greenville.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Emory Campbell of Walterboro, S. C.; five daughters, Mrs. L. B. Whitehurst of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. L. C. White of Coolville, Ohio, Miss Mary B. Campbell of Durham, Mrs. C. H. Butler of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. L. J. Lajoie of New York City; a brother, T. G. Campbell of Vandemere; and two sisters, Mrs. Maggie Brooks of Monroe and Mrs. Willie Whitford of Durham.
