Ike Lauds Britain's 'Nerve' In Arms Cut

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he admires Great Britain's courage and nerve in deciding to put its military program on a new look, streamlined basis.

Eisenhower was asked at his news conference to comment on such British decisions as the conclusion that the "home islands cannot be adequately defended against atomic attack."

Asked about the impact of those decisions on other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, Eisenhower replied there is no question that Britain's new program has disturbed some NATO nations.

But he went on to say that Britain has had a hard time in recent years—has had a heroic row to hoe in trying to keep its economic nose above water.

Responding to another question, Eisenhower said Britain's intentions to streamline its military forces were thoroughly discussed with him when he met with Prime Minister Macmillan in Bermuda last month.

Eisenhower noted that Britain's decision to cut back its ground forces simply means in some cases that ceremonial regiments, such as the one in Bermuda, are being eliminated.

The President also said it is an age-old truth that the security of any nation never should be measured entirely in terms of troop strength. Such things as spiritual, intellectual and economic qualities also must be taken into account.

Then he went on to say he admires the courage and the nerve of the British government in deciding to take what he called a new look at its military program. The President recalled that his own administration did that same thing back in 1953.

In the course of the news conference, Eisenhower also talked on:

PERSONAL CRITICISM—Displaying some amusement, Eisenhower said that so far as he knows no personal criticism fired at him has had any adverse effect on his health. He made that remark after a reporter said the President has been criticized recently with respect to White House acquisition

Crops Unhurt By Scattered Frost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Scattered light frost struck early blooming fruit trees in central North Carolina today, but orchardists in the big Sandhills peach section said quick checks indicated their crops escaped damage.

The miles upon miles of pink-tinted acres in the quadrangle of Moore-Montgomery - Richmond - Randolph counties were visited in the night by low temperatures of 36 and 37 degrees.

E. L. Harris of Sandor, in the heart of the Sandhills peach area, said he had heard of no damage and "hadn't even heard of anybody burning smudge pots" last night.

In the mountain counties to the west, heavy frost lay across hills and mountains this morning, but because of the higher elevation few fruit trees in that area have bloomed. The state's major apple orchards, in Henderson and Haywood counties, are about two weeks away from full bloom.

Canton, on the eastern edge of Haywood and 20 miles west of Asheville, had a low thermometer reading of 25 degrees. The Asheville - Henderson Airport reported a low of 27.

Other low temperatures included Charlotte 34, where scattered light frosts were reported; Greensboro 33, which reported no frost damage; Durham 33, light frost and no damage reported; Raleigh 33, and Wilmington 37.

The Raleigh Weather Bureau said that frost and a light freeze were general in the western mountain areas and that light scattered frost was general over the remainder of the state.

Meanwhile, an Atlantic storm churned up by Monday's tornadoes, was continuing a northeastward course this morning and was in the vicinity of Newfoundland.

The North Carolina toll of six dead remained unchanged. The tornado wake extended from Jefferson, S.C., just south of the North Carolina border, and struck in the North Carolina counties of Scotland, Roberson, Bladen, Sampson and Duplin counties.

The outlook was for generally fair weather today and tonight, with increasing cloudiness Thursday. The Weather Bureau said a slow warming trend will set in today and will last through Thursday night. The prediction was that tonight would be cool, but not cool enough to bring general frost.

Believe Arrests Erased Illegal Narcotics Base

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Federal agents and state officers today worked on the loose ends of a series of narcotics arrests yesterday and the capture of what was termed the illegal narcotics traffic headquarters of the Carolinas.

The arrests, started during early morning hours in Charlotte, stretched into South Carolina before the sun set.

Agents seized quantities of narcotics said to be worth thousands of dollars in illicit trade.

Merchandise, believed stolen to finance drug operations, also was confiscated.

Federal narcotics agents, aided by city police and the State Bureau of Investigation, nabbed six persons in Charlotte, two in the house believed to be the distribution center.

Agents and South Carolina Law Enforcement Division officers arrested two in Columbia and one in Gaffney, S.C.

Narcotics agent John L. Kelly Jr. of Greensboro identified these defendants:

Harry Lee Gray, 44, of Charlotte, held under $10,000 bond.

Ruth Starr, 32, Gray's stepdaughter, freed under $2,000 bond.

John A. Johnson, 57, of Charlotte, held under $10,000 bond on narcotics charges here and $1,000 bond on a Spartanburg, S.C., narcotics charge.

Faye G. Beck, 29, of Charlotte, held without bond.

Dolores Alva Gentry, 29, of Charlotte, under $500 bond.

John Wilson Mullis, 36, of Charlotte, held without bond.

Bessie Foulk, 48, of Columbia, held under $10,000 bond.

James William Watson of Columbia, held in lieu of bond.

Dewey Goode Jr. of Cherokee County, S.C., held under $5,000 bond in Spartanburg, S.C.

Jets For Nasser

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today it had been reliably informed that Egypt "probably" is receiving improved jet fighters from the Soviet Union to replace aircraft lost in last fall's invasion by Britain, France and Israel.

In a copyright dispatch from Washington, the newspaper quoted authoritative informants as saying Egypt probably is getting some of a "large number" of MIG17, MIG19 and Yak25 jet fighters ordered late in 1956 or early this year. All three are much better aircraft than the MIG15s supplied Egypt earlier by the Soviets.

Egypt was said to have had about 90 Soviet MIG15s and 45 IL28 twin-jet light bombers when attacked last fall. Reliable sources estimated British-French attacks on Egyptian airfields and a few aerial clashes with the Israelis knocked out a third to a half of Egypt's aircraft.

The Herald Tribune said the essence of its reports was that the Communists are helping Egypt rebuild its armed forces, which were battered badly in last fall's fighting; are helping to expand the armies of Syria and Yemen and to train the soldiers of all three nations.

C-of-C Board Is Told Of Three Industry Queries

Three industrial organizations seeking to locate in Eastern North Carolina received information from the Industrial Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce during March, Chairman Leonard Bloxam reported this week.

Bloxam told members of the Board of Directors of the Chamber that the requests had come from a plastics manufacturer, a metal products manufacturer and a garment manufacturer. The plastics manufacturer had been referred to the Greenville committee by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development after making a request for a location that could supply approximately 200,000 square feet of floor space and a 350-man labor supply.

The other two firms wrote to the committee for information. Bloxam said. He added that the metal products firm is presently located in another North Carolina city but is seeking a new plant site. The garment manufacturer requested information on other garment plants in this area.

In addition to receiving Bloxam's report, the directors approved prizes for the Negro 4-H swine and poultry chain projects, accepted a date for the annual Newcomers' Party and endorsed an action by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Swine and poultry chain prizes will be awarded in the fall to outstanding Negro 4-H club members. The project has been sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce for several years.

The Newcomers' Party will be held May 15 at the Moose Lodge under sponsorship of the Chamber and ten other local civic organizations. Co-sponsors of the annual affair will be the Business and Professional Women's Club, Credit Women's Breakfast Club, Exchange Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Merchants Association, Recreation Commission, Rotary Club and Civitan Club.

The U. S. Chamber action that was endorsed by the directors was one which calls for a $4,397,000 reduction in the national budget. Local directors voted to brief a special study made by the U. S. Chamber and send the briefs to local chamber members, with a request that local members forward their opinions to members of Congress.

Couple Pleading 'Guilty' To Spy Conspiracy Count

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York couple arrested on spy charges pleaded guilty today to a count carrying a maximum prison term of 10 years.

The couple, Jack Sobel and his wife Myra, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring with Russian nationals to obtain documents and other material relating to U. S. defense.

They had been indicted also on a charge of conspiring to transmit to the Soviet Union secret information vital to U. S. defense. The maximum penalty for this is death.

Sobel, 53, and his wife, 52, stood pale and motionless before U. S. Dist. Judge Richard H. Levett as their plea was entered by their attorney.

They were indicted, along with Jacob Albam, 64, on six counts. One count, conspiring to transmit to the Soviet Union secret information vital to U. S. defense, carries a death penalty on conviction. The government did not say immediately whether it intends to prosecute the Sobels on the other five counts.

The Sobels were arrested in their New York apartment by the FBI on Jan. 25. Albam was arrested the same day at his New York residence.

Judge Levett scheduled the Sobels' sentencing for May 3 on the charge to which they pleaded guilty.

When the Sobels' attorney informed the judge that they wished to make the plea, Sobel reached out one hand toward his wife. The judge asked them:

"Do you understand the significance of such a plea and the possible sentence which may accrue?"

"Yes, we do," the Sobels answered in unison.

"Have you been promised by the U. S. attorney's office or anyone else anything in return for the giving of that plea?"

"No," the couple answered together in a loud voice.

Their attorney told reporters that the couple told him they "wanted to recapture their souls for the first time since they came to this country" in 1941. Both were natives of Soviet-dominated territory.

"The motivating factor was the long arm of Russia," said the attorney, who added that indications were that the Sobels "were unwilling tools of the Soviets, forced to do its bidding."

Their attorney also indicated that the couple would be "cooperative" in the government's continuing investigation of espionage.

Russians Claim Canal 'Protest'

LONDON (AP)—Russia said today it has protested to the United States that Soviet ships going through the Panama Canal were subjected to long "discriminatory" inspections.

Moscow radio said the State Department was handed a note Monday charging that since Jan. 1 American armed guards have stopped three Soviet vessels for many hours while inspectors combed through their cargoes and photographed "all technical equipment."

A State Department spokesman in Washington said he knew of no such protest being delivered. He added that the Russians had "tried to make propaganda in the canal area before about such things as not being able to buy hydrographic maps there."

The Russian ships got much the same treatment as that given American ships calling at Soviet ports.

The Moscow broadcast charged the inspections "are a flagrant violation of the principle of complete equality in the use of canals under international law."

The Panama Canal Treaty of 1915, the note said, is armed cargo guards boarded the motorship N. Ostrovsky Jan. 2 at Balboa and inspected it for seven hours. It said the ships was held up until the following day, when it sailed with the guards still aboard and a police cutter acting as escort.

The note also charged discrimination against two other Soviet ships—the I. Babushkin and the Admiral Senavin.

Earlier reports from Panama said the Ostrovsky and the Senavin cleared the canal after certain "security" precautions were taken which ruffled the Russian crewmen.

The two ships arrived at the Pacific entrance Jan. 2 and were ushered to an anchorage reserved for ships carrying explosives and other dangerous cargo.

Requests for charts of the area and for fuel were turned down and the crews' cameras were impounded while passing through the waterway. No crewmen were permitted ashore.

The vessels were inspected and checked out in less than five hours. The Ostrovsky, bound for London, carried a cargo of tinned fish. The Senavin, en route to Novorossisk, carried zinc concentrate.

The Senavin's master, Capt. K. Konstantin, protested that the inspection was "too difficult." He said his crew and cargo had been subjected to minute examination.

Reports Beating And Robbery On Bethel Highway

A man who appeared at the Greenville police station Monday afternoon claimed that he was beaten and robbed when he stopped to assist several men changing a flat tire.

He was identified by Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson as James Teel, Negro of 811 Douglas Ave.

Teel told officers that the robbery took place on the Bethel Highway near the new bypass intersection. He said he stopped to assist several men changing a tire and he was beaten. He awoke in a nearby church, he reported.

The sheriff said Teel was not seriously injured. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Fire Department rescue truck.

Deputies Duke Andrews and Loyd Manning are investigating.

Budget-Trimming, Pay Issue, Assigned To Subcommittee

RALEIGH (AP)—The difficult task of trimming the state budget for the next biennium and-making an initial decision on the pay raise issue will be turned over to an Appropriations subcommittee.

This was decided yesterday by the Joint Appropriations Committee after Gov. Hodges outlined his recommendations on the important pay raise question.

Sen. Joe Eagles of Wilson, Senate Appropriations chairman, said he and Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow, House Appropriations chairman, hope to name the 25-member subcommittee in time for it to begin work tomorrow.

To the subcommittee will fall the time-consuming line-by-line study of the budget. It will make recommendations to the full committee.

Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange said the decision to turn the budget bill over to a smaller subcommittee could enable the Legislature to wind up its session "30 days sooner."

Eagles said the decision will speed up the appropriations work considerably.

He expressed the hope that the subcommittee can complete its work and report back with the budget bill in two or three weeks.

Eagles said, "The governor gave us something to base our work on. In my opinion his program is fairly sound. I think in general the Senate liked it very much."

Hodges, addressing a Joint House and Senate session, asked the lawmakers to increase the pay of school teachers 15 per cent and other state workers 11 per cent.

"In order to provide these increases," he said he was willing to take a "calculated risk" that the state's economy would produce sufficient revenues to avoid a deficit in future years.

He cautioned "that to go any higher on these and other figures would be very risky and a course of action of which I could not willingly be a part."

There was favorable reaction among lawmakers to the governor's plan, with some predicting it would be followed. Others lauded Hodges' proposals as a big stride toward solving the pay problem, but they reserved decision as to whether they would support it.

To provide the pay raises, Hodges outlined a plan to raise 25 million dollars. This calls for: (1) a 10 million dollar bond issue to finance a portion of a projected permanent improvements program at state institutions; (2) using $4,289,000 budgeted from the general fund to help support the Prisons Department if it is separated from the Highway Commission, leaving the highway fund as sole support of the prisons system; (3) $4,400,000 by revising upward the estimate of the state's surplus at the end of the current fiscal year; (4) one million from an upward revision in the estimate of general fund non-tax revenues for the next biennium; (5) $2,811,000 from a proposed capital improvements revolving fund of $9,486,000; and (6) an additional 2½ million from the highway fund to provide the additional pay increase for highway workers.

Of 58 million dollars budgeted for pay increases for state workers, 34½ million would come from surplus or "non-recurring" revenues, Hodges pointed out in discussing the "calculated risk" to which he referred.

He said he hoped the 34½ million "will be replaced by new revenues from improved business conditions resulting in part from a revised allocation formula (for figuring corporate income taxes) which will make our taxing of industry more equitable and more competitive."

Hodges reasserted his full support of the personnel council's formula plan for distributing the pay raise to state employees. Under this plan, two-thirds of the pay raises would get more of a pay raise than under an across-the-board increase.

The State Board of Education requested a pay raise of 19.31 per cent for teachers, while the two state employ organizations asked for 15 per cent for other state employees.

Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission had originally recommended a 9.1 per cent pay boost for teachers and 8 per cent for other state workers.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, said "we appreciate the governor's recommendation of an additional 5.9 per cent raise in salaries. One more hefty boost will put the salary question over the hump."

'Ridiculous' Term Is Misapplied

If there's anything "ridiculous" about the present post office crisis, it's not the Appropriation Committee's approval of $17 million additional funds for the Department.

It's Summerfield's demand for $47 millions for his department with no questions asked, backed up by his threat to slash postal service by Saturday if his demands are not met.

The Postmaster General termed "ridiculous" action of the Appropriations Committee in approving the additional $17 million for his department and taking under consideration the request for the other $30 million.

There is certainly nothing ridiculous about a Con-

'Home Rule' Attitude Will Not Be Balked

Cumberland County voters last week showed in clear terms they want to run the affairs of their own county without dictation or interference from the legislature in Raleigh. And we don't blame them.

Two years ago the legislature stripped Sheriff Leon Guy of Cumberland of all his police powers. The action in effect made the sheriff's office a figurehead, empowered only to serve civil papers. It was wrong for the legislature to step into a political fight raging between the sheriff and the County Commissioners of Cumberland. But because of political pressure the legislature sided with the County Commissioners and did their dirty work for them.

Last week the people of Cumberland County had the opportunity to voice at the polls their opinion of the legislative action two years ago. Overwhelmingly they voted to restore to the office of sheriff the normal duties and powers which the office carries. They flatly refuted action taken by the legislature.

It is quite likely that a good many Cumberland citizens who voted to restore the powers to the sheriff's office do not agree with many of the things Sheriff Guy has done. A good many of them might not vote to re-elect the sheriff should he seek another term in office. But they were determined to right the wrong which the legislature did Cumberland County two years ago.

When the legislature, for political reasons, steps into a local scrap in any county in North Carolina it can only expect ultimately the action taken by the people of Cumberland last week. The people of North Carolina want home rule for their county and municipal governments. They do and should resent legislative attempts to conduct the affairs of the individual counties.

Coal Leads Way In Profit Report

By ELMER ROESSNER
Annual reports for 1956 have now been issued by almost all big corporations. The First National City Bank of New York has made its annual tabulation of the leaders and finds that the total net profit of 3,485 corporations was 4 per cent higher than in 1955.

The largest gain in profit after taxes was by 22 coal mining companies tabulated. Their profits increased 84 per cent. Wait until John L. Lewis digests that statistic!

The second largest gain was by 18 corporations in the construction field, with net after taxes up 52 per cent. They were followed by 11 shipping corporations, with net up 44 per cent, 168 machinery companies, up 38 per cent, and 22 drugs and medicine companies, up 30 per cent.

NOT ALL GRAVY
However, there wasn't poured on prosperity for everybody. The 62 fire and casualty insurance companies totaled made 54 per cent less than in 1955, netting a mere $84,325,000.

Thirteen auto and truck companies reported an aggregate decline in profits of 36 per cent. Here the drop hurt, the decline in the total being from $1.7 billion to $1.1 billion.

Other groups to show declines were: 57 auto parts companies, down 8 per cent; 16 glass products companies, down 7 per cent; 22 amusement concerns, down 6 per cent; 24 brewing companies, down 5 per cent; 116 class 1 railroads, down 4 per cent; 68 chemical products, 10 agricultural implements and 96 electrical equipment, radio and television corporations, down 3 per cent; 10 distilling companies, down 2 per cent, and 19 furniture and wood products companies, down 1 per cent. In addition, a group of 10 mining and quarrying corporations, in other than metal or coal mining, showed a 7 per cent dip in net.

No group of corporations showed a net loss.

FOOD CHAINS IMPROVE

Among the other groups to make much better than average gains over last year were 27 food chains, up 27 per cent; 27 wholesale and miscellaneous trading companies, up 27 per cent.

Among the industrial divisions (each of which includes several groups) the mining division and the amusements and services division made the handsomest increases, each up 15 per cent.

Third was the public utilities division, up 11 per cent. The 268 corporations in the public utilities field also made the highest percentage of profit on sales, 13.5 per cent. The lowest percentage of sales was made by 204 retail and wholesale trade companies, netting only 2.6 per cent of sales.

The total profit after taxes of the 2,465 corporations was $19,169,000,000 compared with $18,506,000,000 in 1955. This represents an average margin of 6.3 per cent of sales.

The bank observes that in broad perspective, this is in line with the average since the early 30's. "It compares with around 7 1/2 per cent in the best years of the late 30's and of the post World War II, and Korean War booms," the bank says, "and with a low under 4 per cent during the World War period of price controls and excess profit taxes."

gressional Committee giving consideration as to how the taxpayers' dollars are to be spent. There is nothing ridiculous about Congress balking at a cabinet member's demand for additional millions until they determine whether the additional expenditure is justified. As a matter of fact, the American taxpayers would be much happier if members of Congress would be a little more cautious about tossing around millions here and there every time an administration official makes a proposal.

The post office situation now has boiled down to a question of whether Congress or the Postmaster General determines what calibre postal service the country is to have and at what cost. While the Postmaster General is charged with the responsibility of operating the vast postal service, he is also charged with the responsibility of operating that government agency efficiently. It is not his place to dictate to the elected representatives in Congress what shall or shall not be done. It is not his place to tell Congress how the taxpayers' money is to be spent or what they are to have in return for their tax dollars.

The Appropriations Committee should hold Summerfield's feet to the fire in this struggle. If he can't operate the Post Office Department within the scope designated by Congress, he should be removed from office and another person put in his place.

There's No Such Thing As A 'Temporary Tax'

It's folly for legislators to talk about "temporary" taxes to tide the state over a anticipated two-year financial hump created by increasing salaries to teachers and other state employees and meeting the needs for additional state services.

They are just kidding themselves. They will not be kidding many people of North Carolina with talk of "temporary" taxes just for the next two years.

If it is necessary to raise taxes to provide things the state must have, the legislators should call a spade a spade. Any new taxes created by this session of the General Assembly will be just as real and just as permanent as those which already exist. They'll be retained by the state so long as the state needs the revenue they produce for meeting its operating costs.

When the legislature starts talking about "temporary" taxes, it sounds like it is trying to sell the people of the state a bill of goods.

North Carolinians are well aware of the emergency general sales tax which became effective in 1933 as a depression measure. When it was adopted the people had the solemn promise of the governor and the legislature that the special tax would be lifted as soon as the emergency was over. That was 24 years ago, and the state still has the sales tax.

Many "temporary" tax measures which have become mainstays of the tax structure could be cited in both state and federal government. It suffices to say the once-popular "temporary" adjective before taxes no longer fools the taxpayer. When a new tax is levied he holds out little hope of ever being without it.

If the legislature has in mind new taxes, they should be forthright with the state's citizens by leaving off the meaningless prefix "temporary."

Need Yardstick For Evaluating

By LYNN NISBET
SPOKESMEN — One of the things that bothers members of the General Assembly a great deal is how much credence to give speakers who appear before committees in support of or in opposition pending bills. There is no difficulty about the fellow who comes on his own as an individual and expresses his personal opinion. Nor with the witless who comes armed with certified copies of formal resolutions adopted by local governing bodies at official meetings.

The trouble begins when someone is introduced as head of a statewide or regional organization and purports to speak for the entire membership. Questions often elicit confession that the organization as a whole has never passed upon the issue. Sometimes even the executive committee or directors have not acted. The head man is stating his own opinion and claiming to speak for so many hundreds or thousands of members.

Furthermore, some of the associations claimed to be represented are composed of only three or four — on occasion perhaps only one — persons, although it marches under a banner suggesting a huge national membership.

It is recalled that Rev. G. A. Fisher, a Negro Episcopal minister of Raleigh, obtained spots on several forum discussions as representative of some kind of ministerial league, until it was discovered that he was the sole member of his "league." The demands for special consideration for Negroes which he had made in the name of his league were only his personal demands.

It is remembered, too, that hundreds of members of the State PTA Congress rose in protest when the president implied she was speaking for the whole group instead of a very small segment of it in opposition to the Pearsall Plan at the special session last summer.

BEROBE — A favorite device of those with special ideas or projects to put over is to have the sponsoring groups dressed up in robes bearing the name of the President or the Governor.

Your reporter was one of North Carolina's representatives at the White House Conference on Education in December, 1955. That was one of the most widely publicized conferences held in a decade. But it goes no closer to the White House than the Sheraton-Park Hotel and the White House got no closer to the conference than to send V-P Nixon for a speech. Conclusions as contained in the final condensed report were those that might have been written in advance by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the clique of midwestern business men who handled the program. We have had in North Carolina during recent years a number of meetings called by the Governor and widely publicized as the Governor's reforestation conference, the Governor's forest fire prevention conference, the Governor's industrial health conference, the Governor's rural health conference, the Governor's safety conference, et cetera ad multum.

At each of these conferences Governors Scott, Umstead or Hodges made a brief appearance and a short speech. At some of them there was opportunity for questions from the floor and limited discussion of the issues involved. Most of the time the program was so tight with big shot speakers and presentation of resolutions prepared in advance and submitted for approval without debate, that the rank and file of the audience had little chance to express any opinions.

It is of common knowledge that resolution were adopted at some of these conferences by less than one-third of those present voting for them, none voting against — and they are being heralded before legislative committees now as having been "unanimously adopted" by the "Governor's conference" on this or that.

CONFERENCE — The very word "conference" implies discussion, the exchange of ideas, compromise agreement on a common ground between the extreme positions originally held by the conferees. If there is no free discussion and no opportunity for agreement or compromise, it is not a conference. It is a lecture course or a briefing session.

Some legislators are beginning to wonder if proposed legislation ostensibly approved by "Governor's conferences" on water resources, highway safety, and other matters were really approved by a "conference" or were endorsed by "lecture courses" at which results were pre-determined.

GROWING — Twenty years ago when the State advertising program was initiated with a few thousand dollars to spend, there was not an advertising agency in North Carolina with facilities for handling it. The job was farmed out to a Georgia firm — which did an excellent job for the State.

Ten years ago a couple of North Carolina agencies were able to handle the State account. Periodically since then competition has increased at every renewal date for the working agreement. This year five North Carolina agencies made presentations of proven capacity to handle the State's advertising as well as any outside firm could do.

Mixed Reception

Better Fire Protection

An alarm brought Greenville fire fighters to a burning house the other night. When the firemen arrived at the scene the entire front portion of the frame dwelling within was in flames. In addition high winds were blowing and fanning the fire.

Ten years ago firemen would have been unable to save such a house. They would have confined their efforts to preventing the spread of the fire to other buildings.

Yet the other night fire fighters brought the blaze under control within 30 to 45 minutes. The rear portion of the dwelling suffered little damage and furniture in one front room was saved. That, in spite of the fact that the rooms which were burning when firefighters arrived were completely gutted and the fire had also burned into the attic and even threatened to break through the roof on occasions.

One of the reasons fire fighting has so vastly improved in recent years, according to Fire Chief George Gardner is the addition of high pressure trucks equipped with booster lines and fog nozzles.

Three of the city's fire engines are now of this type. They each carry two rubber hose lines on reels atop the vehicles. When firefighters pull up to a blaze such as the one the other night, they simply begin pumping, grab a fog nozzle from its clamp and begin fighting the blaze.

If the fire is large enough they can run a line to any hydrant to keep the fire truck tank filled, all while the fire fighting is in progress.

Rather than a steady stream of water the nozzle delivers a fog into the fire area which tends to smother the flames. It is by this method that firemen have saved a number of dwellings in recent years which would have been completely destroyed in other years.

In the old days, firemen would have had to pull two and one-half inch lines from pumps for the fire the other night. They would have had to hook into hydrants, losing precious seconds and then poured many gallons of water into the burning house to draw the flames.

Greenville's first high pressure truck was purchased back in 1950 when even fire chiefs used to argue the merits of such equipment, Chief Gardner says. The truck proved effective and in 1953 when the West End substation was opened a second such truck was purchased.

Thus when the substation and main station answered calls firemen could throw four booster fog lines into action.

When voters approved another fire truck last year a third high pressure truck was ordered for the main station. Now two high pressures and one pumper answer every alarm. If the substation truck answers high pressure one truck remains on standby in the main station.

For business area calls an aerial ladder truck is also dispatched.

New equipment has brought better fire protection for Greenville property owners.

Other Editors Saying --- Senator Crew's Bill

(Washington Daily News)
Under terms of a bill introduced by Senator Lunsford Crew a Justice of the Peace in North Carolina will be allowed to pass judgment on claim and delivery actions involving sums up to $200. JP's are now limited to an amount not to exceed $50 under the present law.

The Crew bill contains a great deal of merit. And merchants throughout North Carolina will probably look with high favor upon the bill. It does give Justices of the Peace more power. At the same time it makes for quicker justice in such actions.

And that matter of slowness in meeting out justice in claim and delivery actions has harassed many merchants in our state in recent years. But there is one factor which should not be overlooked. And that factor, we feel, is very important.

Mr. Crew admits that today in North Carolina there are many Justices of the Peace who have no business whatsoever serving in that capacity. Mr. Crew said "there are many good Justices of peace in North Carolina, and there are some sorry ones — I shall be happy to get rid of the sorry ones."

The point we want to make is that we ought to make a concerted effort to get rid of the sorry ones before we give more power to Justices of the Peace. As the matter now stands incapable JP's have as much power as do the good ones.

We need in North Carolina to day to give not only more power to good Justices of the peace, but we need to give the office more prestige than it now has by eliminating those who have no business in the first place serving in that capacity.

In a community one bad justice of the peace can give the average citizen an unfortunate attitude toward the office. One bad one can do more to tear down the prestige of the office than a dozen good ones can do in building it up. And we need to recognize that fact.

There ought to be some method of determining who is capable and who is incapable. The Bar associations in various counties ought to have a good insight into the capabilities of the men serving in that capacity. If we can eliminate the political angles, then we can be able to judge a man's ability on what he is and what he stands for.

We have been told at various times that the Bar associations are reluctant to take on such added responsibilities because it places an arbitrary power into their hands. But no other organization is in such a prominent position to judge quality in this regard as are the Bar associations.

We think Mr. Crew's bill has much merit. But we also think that first things should come first. When we devise some system to qualify justices of the peace whereby we get the capable ones and eliminate the bad ones, then the bill would mean a great deal to the people of our state.

Opinions In Brief

"During the six years, 1950-1955, North Carolina not only failed to improve her position concerning personal income, but could not even maintain the relatively good position achieved during the 1929-49 period." (University of North Carolina News Letter).

"The legal technicality involved notwithstanding, it is neither sound law nor sound practice to permit the unionization of employees of government at any level." (Dallas Morning News).

Doesn't Miss An Arm

By HAL BOYLE
INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (AP) — When Dick Oliver has a job he wants to finish in a real hurry, the first thing he does is take off his left arm.

Although Dick is grateful to the government for buying him the arm, he explained:

"I can work faster without it."

He can, too. The one-armed, 38-year-old Navy veteran has just completed building his third home.

Dick, a construction clerk here for the Universal Atlas Cement Co., a subsidiary of U. S. Steel, can also answer the phone, type 65 words a minute. He drives his own car, buttons his clothing, ties his shoes and neckties, and is an expert marksman with either rifle or shotgun.

The story of Dick Oliver is the story of a man who refused to be handicapped. In 1939 while on leave from the naval base at Pearl Harbor he was playfully jostling with some buddies on a railway platform at Topeka. He slipped, fell, and a passing train cut off his left arm above the elbow.

"It was on my 21st birthday — and some present," he recalled. "At first I felt lost and useless to myself. But after the first shock wore off I realized I was no different from anyone else. I still had a living to make."

Dick finished high school, and perfected his skill at typing with only one hand. But he felt an odd compulsion to prove that he could do anything he turned his mind to.

He went to the Pacific Northwest and became a lumberman, felling the big trees. He worked in the farm equipment field, with an auto supply firm, even did a turn at radio announcing.

"Oh, I've done just about everything," he said. "Once I find I can do a thing well I get restless. I want to move on and try something new."

"Right now I'm studying civil engineering, and I think I'll stay with it. Engineering is something that has a changing problem every day."

Dick, happily settled in his new home with his pretty wife, Lorene, is now teaching his 10-year-old son, Gregg, how to be a baseball catcher.

"It isn't a joke to lose an arm or leg, but if anyone who does will get over his sensitivity and learn to treat it as a joke, he'll get along better," Dick says.

"People should offer sympathy and never offer help to a handicapped person except when he actually needs it."

"I don't know of anything a fellow can't do — he really wants to."

"The main thing is for an employer to give a man a little time to work out his own technique of handling a job. Then it will work out all right."

"But it is the employer — the man who gives the handicapped fellow a chance to show what he can do — who deserves all the credit."

Dick, who built his $22,000 three-bedroom, two-bath home in about a year, figures he saved about $8,000 in labor costs by doing his own work.

In one way he feels having only one arm speeded up the job. "I never had to worry about smashing a finger driving nails," he said, grinning.

Factor May Upset Budget Fight

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — A sensational upsetting factor has been injected into the controversy over cutting the budget and taxes.

The required number of states — 32 — has now ratified a resolution calling upon Congress to order a convention for fixing a ceiling on the amount of money that Uncle Sam may collect in taxes from individuals. Under Article V of the Constitution, this convention may propose amendments that shall become effective when ratified by three-fourths of the states. This method and machinery of amending the Constitution has never been used.

The sponsors of this movement, who include influential lawyers, economists, industrialists and lobbying organizations, propose that the Government shall not be permitted to take more than 25 to 35 per cent of an individual's income in peacetime. It would become inoperative in war or a national emergency.

IDEA OPPOSED BY PRESIDENT
The favorable response by 32 states, in addition to other evidence of a taxpayers' revolt, encourages the economy-minded promoters to believe that they can force Congress to fix a maximum on the Federal Revenue derived from personal income taxes. But they face many obstacles, largely because this field for revision has never been explored.

President Eisenhower and Treasury Secretary Humphrey oppose the idea on the ground that it would cut the Government's receipts by about $15 billion, annually.

Organized labor is bitterly antagonistic. It brands the scheme as a "rich man's amendment." Their spokesmen insist that the only beneficiaries would be people earning $25,000 a year and up, for lower bracket earners do not have to fork over 25 to 35 per cent of income. They fear that the lost revenue would have to come from small wage earners.

CONGRESSIONAL GROUP'S PROPOSITION
A small group in Congress, led by Representative Paul A. Fino of New York City, propose to make up for the drop in revenue with a legalized, national lottery. They estimate that it would net at least $10 billion, as against the annual $30 billion take of gangsters in the numbers racket. But the so-called "blue-nosers" shudder at this suggestion.

The unusual amendment formula may mean that the Supreme Court, not Congress, will decide how much Uncle Sam may extract from the taxpayers' pocket. For if Congress does not set in motion the machinery provided in Article V, now that the required number of states have acted favorably, the promoters will take their case to the courts.

VAGUE CONSTITUTIONAL WORDING
Like the amendment on Presidential disability, the Constitution is somewhat vague on this question. Article V says:

"The Congress... on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments which... shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of the several states or by conventions in three-fourths thereof."

Save for the popular resentment and indignation over alleged governmental extravagance, the enormous public debt and terrific taxes, Congress would normally react adversely to the proposed amendment and the 32-state mandate. The men on Capitol Hill are inordinately sensitive and jealous concerning their authority over taxes and appropriations and expenditures.

But the sponsors of a mandatory maximum, in view of their success so far, intend to force a showdown at this session. They want to strike while the iron — and the voters — are hot.

Reports On Weekend Assembly Of Jehovah's Witnesses In New Bern

The presiding minister of the South congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses reported last night that about 475 delegates and visitors had attended the New Bern assembly and had heard Mr. James A. Thompson Jr. of New York. He is an ordained minister, graduate of the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead and District Supervisor of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

In the Sunday afternoon address of a three day convention the highlight of the assembly was the public lecture, "Removing the Barriers Dividing Mankind."

In the onset of his talk he likened the world today to a four room house with walls but with no doors or windows. In each room is a member of a family. They need each other but can't join each other because of the barriers separating them. The barriers today are nationality, religion, race and language. He pointed to the urgent need to remove the barriers that divide mankind and if mankind can not learn to live together, they

Pitt Hospital Is Again Accredited

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital has been listed as an accredited hospital among the hospitals throughout North Carolina and the Nation.

This announcement was made in a recent report made by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. The Commission evaluates the status of hospitals throughout the United States, its possessions and Canada.

There are approximately 6,000 hospitals eligible for accreditation. The accreditation program is a voluntary one and only those hospitals which request surveys are visited. Further, the limited survey staff has made it impossible to visit all requesting hospitals during the Commission's four years of existence and thus a hospital not listed may have requested survey but not yet have been visited. Hospitals with less than 25 beds are not eligible for accreditation.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals is an agency established by five organizations — the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital Association, American Medical Association, and the Canadian Medical Association — to conduct the hospital survey and inspection program initiated by the American College of Surgeons in 1919. The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals began operations on January 1, 1953.

"Accreditation of a hospital means," Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, Commission Director said, "that it has voluntarily submitted to a survey of its facilities and its patient care. It is a badge of recognition which the hospital can display to its community to prove that it conforms to high standards of patient care."

Dr. Babcock said that the survey is undertaken on a confidential basis between the hospital and the Commission. "Therefore," he said, "The Commission cannot release any information about its work other than the annual list. All information concerning a specific hospital must be obtained from the hospital itself."

Dr. Babcock said the surveyors, physicians, rate a hospital on certain basic requirements such as: a safe physical plant free from fire hazards; proper supervision and review by the medical staff of the clinical work done in the hospital; maternal, infant and anesthetic death rates that are not excessively high; adequate medical records; ethical practices; investigation of all tissue removed at operation; mortality rates that are within reasonable limits; proper nursing care; proper administrative and medical staff organization. "It can be seen from this explanation," Dr. Babcock said, "that the survey covers the essentials of good patient care. The accreditation program is a tribute not only to the organizations which support it but to the hospitals which make it possible by their willingness to have their patient care judged by objective criteria. It is proof that, with few exceptions, our hospitals are striving constantly to improve the care they render."

Dallas Tornado May Be A Help To Weathermen

By ROBERT E. FORD

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas tornado April 2 was seen by more people than any other in history, two Weather Bureau executives said today.

"It also was the best documented and for these reasons may answer questions which someday may lead to tornado control, they said.

Robert G. Beebe, research forecaster for the Severe Weather Forecast Unit, Kansas City, said preliminary findings already have upset some ancient tornado theories.

"One theory," he said, "was that all air and debris flowed inward to the funnel and upward. That definitely was not the case in Dallas."

Instead, debris and even people are lifted from around the outside edge of the funnel, he said.

"The winds around the tornado were of sonic speed—somewhere between 500 and 700 miles an hour," said P. H. Kutschenreuter, assistant chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau, Washington.

"It was strong enough to pick up, or at least turn over, boxcars containing bricks."

It killed 10 people, injured nearly 200 and caused damage estimated up to four million dollars.

Beebe said the Dallas tornado confirmed that when a tornado is first formed, it has a very wide, stubby funnel. When it grows thin and tall, it probably is about to lift from the ground.

"However," said Kutschenreuter, "that doesn't mean that another funnel will not form immediately in front of it, or that it will not strike the ground again miles away."

"And when the tornado doesn't appear to be moving but appears to be growing larger, watch out. It's coming right at you."

Still unsolved, they said, are two questions which must be answered before tornadoes can be controlled:

1. How can forecasters pinpoint the very localized area in which tornadoes will occur?

2. What is the triggering mechanism which sets them off?

Once the answers are found, the Weather Bureau can begin seeking ways to spread the tornado's energy over a much wider area and to expend the energy over a longer time period.

The tornado here was seen by possibly 100,000 persons in sharp detail.

It remained on the ground 40 minutes or more, and cut a path 21 miles long.

Return Name To Deep Run Church

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—For the first time in over a century the Deep Run Presbyterian Church will be situated in Deep Run.

It was founded in that community, a few miles north of here, in 1725. But it merged with a bigger church established in Doylestown in 1894. The newer church took over its name.

Now a 50-member congregation is setting up a church in Deep Run. The Doylestown church is giving back the name.

Humanitarian Manhunt Is On For Future Victims

By FRANK CAREY

AP Science Reporter

BOSTON (AP)—A humanitarian manhunt test is on — to try to find likely candidates for high blood pressure and coronary heart disease before such maladies develop.

Dr. Caroline Bedel Thomas of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine said today the idea of the search — under way for a decade among students at her school — is this:

1. To find young people having a combination of certain physical and psychological characteristics which with a parental history of high blood pressure or coronary disease, are believed by Dr. Thomas to mark high susceptibility to these diseases.
2. To take such a group of youths, divide it in half, and place half on a program designed to test various preventive measures — utilizing the other half as an untreated "control" group.

The objective, the woman scientist told the 38th annual meeting of the American College of Physicians would be ultimately to work out means of preventing these diseases in the general population.

She said that some of the individual characteristics which indicate some degree of susceptibility to the disease are: higher-than-normal heart rates, overweight, athletic build, high blood cholesterol (a fatty substance), and high sensitivity to certain forms of stress.

"However," she told the doctors, "No one trait alone is thought to be significant. A constellation of these traits appearing in a normal person in the presence of a positive parental history mark a group in which the susceptibility to high blood pressure and coronary heart disease is thought to be high."

"Measures are becoming available for the prevention of these diseases. The stumbling block is the selection of a susceptible group."

She said studies designed to identify such a group have been under way since 1946 among healthy medical students at Johns Hopkins.

'Right Time' To Have House Fire

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—If he had to have a fire, Vincent P. Mara of Miami couldn't have picked a better time.

He was away when a blaze started at his home but his next door neighbor, Lawrence P. O'Brien, a retired New York City fireman, was on hand.

More than that, O'Brien was entertaining another retired fireman and two active firemen. All four rushed to Mara's house, broke down the door and put out the fire with a garden hose.

No Self-Styled Missionaries

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Suffolk County Sheriff Charles Dominy has barred what he calls "self-styled missionaries and banjo-playing evangelists" from visiting prisoners in the county jail.

Dominy said he took the action to prevent possible jailbreaks.

"It isn't any kind of feat to hide a submachinegun in a banjo case," he said.

Driver In Wreck, Impaled On Pipe

CHICAGO (AP)—Kenneth F. Brandt, 36, was impaled on a piece of two-inch pipe last night when he apparently lost control of his car and crashed into a fence in suburban Morton Grove.

Police Chief Milton Scanlon said the top rail of the fence was driven through the car and a long piece of pipe went through Brandt's left chest just above the heart.

A torch was used to cut off some of the pipe and Brandt was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston. A hospital attendant said a piece of pipe about three feet long was removed from Brandt's body. His condition was reported critical.

Busy Day For DA; Involved In 4 Legal Actions

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Dist. Atty. William Langley had a busy day in court yesterday. He was involved in four legal actions, all stemming directly or indirectly from grand jury investigations of vice and corruption in Portland.

Langley, 41, the highest legal officer of Multnomah County (Portland), started off the day as a witness in a hearing before U.S. Dist. Judge William G. East in the federal wiretap case against Portland gambler Big Jim Elkins and his henchman Raymond Clark.

Then his attorneys appeared before Judge East to hear the judge dismiss Langley's two-million-dollar suit against the Oregonian Publishing Co. and others. The suit was filed shortly after the Oregonian published stories which touched off the vice probe.

Then Langley made his first appearance at the criminal trial where he is charged with failing to enforce gambling laws.

And finally, he was served with two more indictments by the vice-probing grand jury—charging him with perjury and malicious issuance of a search warrant.

The federal case against Elkins and Clark is based upon a set of tape recordings seized by Langley last year in a raid on the Clark home. The raid was later declared illegal. Subsequently, the tapes were seized by the FBI and used as evidence by a federal grand jury summoned to investigate charges of illegal tapping of telephone lines.

Attorneys for Elkins and Clark contend that since the original raid has been declared illegal, the tapes should not be used as evidence against their clients. Judge

East will announce his decision on this later.

The two new indictments against Langley also stem from the raid on Clark's home. One indictment accuses him of "procuring maliciously and without probable cause" the search warrant to enter Clark's home by falsely swearing that he had information there might be obscene photographs there. The perjury charge accuses him of falsely swearing to the truth of these matters before a judge. Langley posted $2,500 bond after his arrest on the new charges and then was released.

Selection of a jury of six men and six women to try Langley on the charge that he failed to prosecute gamblers was completed yesterday. The charge is a misdemeanor and carries penalty of a fine ranging from $50 to $500 and removal from office.

Langley also has been indicted on charges of conspiring to take a bribe, conspiring to obstruct justice and malfeasance. Trial dates for these charges have not yet been set.

This is the first major trial of the more than 30 persons under indictment accusing them of corruption or vice activities. Many of those indicted appeared last month before the Senate committee investigating labor racketeering.

Turn Up Parade Of Balking Witnesses

NEW YORK (AP)—A House Un-American Activities subcommittee has encountered a parade of balking witnesses at the opening of an investigation of Communist influence in the field of music.

The subcommittee expects to hear more than 40 witnesses at four days of hearings here which wind up Friday.

Eleven witnesses yesterday invoked the First or Fifth Amendment or both to avoid answering all or some of the questions put to them. They persisted despite warnings by the chairman, Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo) that they were laying themselves open to possible contempt citations.

The 11 witnesses—all from the Metropolitan Music School in Manhattan—were the school's director, president emeritus, registrar, two other officials and six teachers. They refused to answer most all questions about past or present membership in the Communist party.

Road-e-o Event Again Backed By Ayden Jaycees

AYDEN—Officials of the Ayden Junior Chamber of Commerce have announced that their organization will again conduct the Teen-Age Road-e-o for Ayden, Grifton and Winterville High Schools this year.

This Road-e-o is a nationwide program designed to give the young motorists an opportunity to prove and improve their driving habits and attitudes and to stimulate community activities in bigger and better high school driver education programs.

Twenty contestants will be selected from Grifton, Winterville, Ayden and South Ayden High Schools and will compete in the local finals to be held in Ayden on April 28.

The winner of the local finals will then compete in the state finals to be held at a later date. It has been announced that the national winners will be presented three scholarships totaling $4,500 ($2,000, 1st; $1,500, 2nd; and $1,000, 3rd) and an all expense paid trip to Washington, D. C. will be given to the winner of each state Road-e-o.

Jimmy Jenkins will serve as chairman of the Ayden event. Jenkins stated that any boy or girl who will not have reached 20 years of age by August 15, 1957 and has a driver's license or permit, with a clean record of no moving traffic violations in the past six months may enter the Teen-Age Road-e-o.

It was also announced that the judging will be based on a written test based on driving knowledge and a performance based on four obstacle-type exercises.

Talks On Wood-Carvings

Claude Christopher, Greenville fireman and veteran wood carver as a hobby, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of East Carolina College Industrial Arts Club. Christopher spends much of his spare time carving wood inlays, pistol grips, gun stocks, and engraving and polishing semi-precious stones. His work includes gun stocks reworked and refinished for the famous Buck Rogers of New Bern, who is reputed to be one of America's foremost collectors of German shotguns and rifles.

Bill To Separate Prisons And Highways Approved By House

RALEIGH (AP)—The administration-backed bill to separate the Prisons Department from the Highway Commission July 1 has cleared another legislative hurdle.

The House passed the bill yesterday over the protest of Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland, who declared that under the plan the prisons system would "deteriorate." The measure was sent to the Senate.

Kiser predicted that after the next biennium the prisons would be supported by the general fund instead of the highway fund as at present.

The House also approved a bill setting Jan. 1, 1962 as the deadline on dumping of raw sewage or industrial wastes in the Neuse River. The bill goes to the Senate for concurrence in minor House amendments.

Legislators from Johnston and Lenoir counties made an unsuccessful attempt to delay the deadline three years. They contended Smithfield and Kinston are not financially able to provide sewage treatment facilities required under the measure. The House also beat down an attempt by Rep. Tom White of Lenoir to exempt his county from its provisions.

The Senate received a bill identical with one introduced in the House Monday night to stiffen punishment for racing on the highways. The bills by Sen. Wilbur M. Jolly of Franklin and Rep. Ed Yarborough of Franklin came after two persons lost their lives over the weekend in an automobile accident in Franklin blamed by the Highway Patrol on racing.

The two bills are similar to a measure already pending to provide prison terms of up to 10 years for highway racers. The Jolly-Yarborough bills would authorize the highway patrol to use plainclothes men in unmarked cars to nab racers. The owner of a vehicle would be liable if he permitted it to be used for racing, and officers would be allowed to confiscate cars used in racing.

Claims Wilson Directives Will See New Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Moss (D-Calif) said today Secretary of Defense Wilson's new information directives allow a clampdown on all Pentagon information, whether it is secret or not.

"It is my conviction," Moss said, "that additional shackles have been forged on the public's right to know by the Defense Department's action."

Moss' House Information subcommittee called top defense officials for questioning today on the new orders.

At issue were four directives Wilson issued March 28.

Moss said in a statement that instead of drawing a tight line between genuine military secrets and nonsecret "working papers," the directives provide for a broad and fuzzy "for official use only" classification for nonsecret material and for a stiff crackdown on any official who makes this material public.

Moss said that "under the new directives, the Defense Department claims authority to withhold all information, except what the Pentagon concedes is an 'official act.'"

"When an official is threatened with investigation and discipline for releasing nonsecret information which his superior may decide at a later date was improper, the official is virtually forced to play it safe and release nothing."

Moss said only one of the Wilson directives was aimed at stripping away unnecessary secrecy. That is an order setting up a declassification office. But the directive lacks teeth, Moss said, because it doesn't give the declassifier any power or tell him specifically what he's supposed to do.

Tot Fell Out Of Car, And Unhurt

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Four-year-old Michael Sanders fell from his father's car as it was going 45 miles an hour along the main route from Baltimore to New York yesterday, but the youngster was virtually unhurt.

Police said he opened the rear door while riding with his father, Marion, 28, of Smoaks, S.C., fell out, rolled "like a ball" and jumped to his feet with nothing worse than bruises.

Republicans To Diagnose Party Pains, Prescribe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans are sending national and Midwest state leaders to Omaha tomorrow to diagnose party pains and prescribe for the future.

"Concentrate on '58" is the slogan adopted for the eight-state meeting starting tomorrow night with an open house" or get-acquainted affair.

The Omaha meeting is the first of six regional conferences which by May 25 will cover every state. It opens for business Friday morning with a message telephoned from here by President Eisenhower, who has endorsed the regional conferences.

Then five working committees will hold secret sessions on organizational, plans for state-county conferences, Republican goals, Democratic weaknesses, and specific Senate and House races.

The committees will report Saturday in open session and delegates will debate the various proposals presented. The federal budget, "Modern Republicanism" and the farm question probably will give some attention.

Deaths Due To Barbiturates Up

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Deaths from barbiturate poisoning in the United States are on the increase, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's statisticians report. In 1955, the latest for which complete data are available, accidental poisoning by barbiturates claimed 411 lives, as compared with 345 in 1954, 337 in 1953, and 327 in 1952. This reverses the trend for the years immediately preceding.

"Careless use of barbiturates, predominantly by adults, presents a difficult problem," the statisticians observe. "With more stringent restrictions being placed on their sale in many localities, it is not clear why the improvement in mortality which was recorded from 1949 to 1952 has not continued. It would seem that greater efforts should be made to acquaint the public with the dangers inherent in using such drugs carelessly."

About 90 per cent of all deaths from accidental poisoning by solids and liquids during 1955 were caused by barbiturates; this compares with nearly 25 per cent for all other drugs and medicines. The remainder of the fatalities were caused by a variety of substances, including such poisons as wood preservatives, alcohol, lead compounds, carbon tetrachloride, benzene, kerosene, the alkalies, and insecticides.

Much can be accomplished in reducing the loss of life, the statisticians point out, by keeping drugs and medicines in properly marked containers, by storing insecticides and disinfectants away from food and other edibles, and by keeping poisonous substances out of the reach of young children.

All parents and teachers are invited to attend this informative meeting.

Jones Approves

RALEIGH — Senator Paul Jones of Pitt said here today that the Governor's 15-11 per cent program of raises for teachers and State employees was generally very favorably received by members of the General Assembly.

"I don't see how the governor could have arranged the schedule of raises any better," Jones said.

"There has been some comment that timing might have been better after the April 15 revenues were stabilized, but the governor has an ample picture right now and there was no need for him to wait longer," the senator added.

Startled When Police Burst In

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Patrons in Pat Cavanaugh's bar in West Philadelphia were startled to see a dozen grim-faced policemen, guns drawn, burst into the place.

Mickey Cavanaugh, manager of the place and Pat's brother, had an explanation.

Two plumbers who had done work for Pat had come in to present their bill. Mickey, with typical Irish good humor and a twinkle in his eye, told Pat's daughter to run upstairs and tell her father there were two bandits downstairs and they wanted money.

She told Pat just that. He called police.

Students Hear Chemist Speak

GRIMESLAND — Dr. Charles J. Shoaf, a research chemist of the "Dacron" Research Laboratory in Kinston, spoke to the students of Grimesland High School yesterday.

Speaking in connection with "Chemical Progress Week" being observed nationally April 8-12, Dr. Shoaf said, "The chemical industry presents an almost unlimited field of opportunities for individuals with a wide range of skill, education and interests."

The speaker also said that the need for more people with scientific interests and training is great, particularly in the South where the chemical industry is currently undergoing a very rapid expansion. The history and growth of the Du Pont Company was used by Dr. Shoaf as an example of the vast chemical industry.

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER 28
Brevet Captain Emil Schwabacker glanced at his watch: quarter to twelve. Opening his door, he stepped out to the edge of the duck walk and stood there, looking at the dark parade. A man came along the walk, his shoes lightly rattling the boards. When he passed Schwabacker, he turned and came back.

"Captain Schwabacker?"

"Yes?"

The man offered his hand. "I'm Allister Davis, a newspaper man. I've come from Chicago for an interview with you, Captain. You are big news. Two weeks ago you crowded the proposed trans-continental railroad off of page one."

"That's very flattering," Schwabacker said, "but what is it you want?"

"A story," Davis said. He nodded toward the open door of Schwabacker's quarters. "May I come in?"

"Certainly," Schwabacker said and followed him inside. He closed the door, indicated a chair, then sat on the bed while Davis got out paper and pencil.

"A few unofficial opinions, Captain," Davis said. "You engaged Red Cloud, isn't that right?"

"I engaged a small portion of his forces," Schwabacker said. "I don't believe we have enough troops on the frontier to survive a mass attack."

"... survive mass attack..."

Davis stopped writing. "Captain, I understand that a new rifle has been issued to the troops. Do you feel that this will provide an advantage over the hostiles?"

"As long as we can keep it quiet," Schwabacker said. He lifted his head quickly. "Mr. Davis, this will be cleared with General Wessels, will it not?"

"Certainly," Davis said and went on writing. "Now, Captain, you say, as long as the issue can be kept quiet. What do you mean?"

"Well, we are aware of the fact that Red Cloud usually employs one method of attack when engaging our troops. It's the general's opinion that this method is successful because of our muzzle-loading weapons. However, if we can dupe Red Cloud into attacking in his usual manner, we can surprise him greatly by presenting a rapid-fire breech-loader in defense."

Davis' pen scratched on. "You've just returned from Fort Smith. What is your opinion of the post and its defense?"

"Barely minimum," Schwabacker said. "You can spread men just so thin, Mr. Davis. General Wessels has just so many to spread."

"I see. Do you feel that Department of Platte has been negligent in supplying troops and material?"

"That's not for me to say, sir."

"There's a peace commission preparing to journey west to Laramie, Captain. Do you think the Sioux are ready to talk?"

"Not at this time," Schwabacker said. "Mr. Davis, Red Cloud will have to be drastically reduced in fighting strength before peace terms can be presented. The Cheyennes may react quite differently. It's been my honor to have drubbed them thoroughly on two separate occasions. They're good fighters, but they lack the Sioux heart. Mr. Davis, the Sioux Indian is quite possibly the finest light cavalry in the world. The warriors are fanatically brave, their leaders intelligent, and they go into battle with prearranged tactics, like any other army. They deploy, flank, circle, attack in waves. All they lack is artillery and a quartermaster corps."

Davis laughed at this, but took care to write every word of it down. When he was finished, he said, "It seems to me that the peace commission will have difficulty arranging a meeting between the warring Indians and the government."

"That will be the most difficult," Schwabacker said, "the initial contact. Timing is of the essence where the Indian is concerned. If they believe their medicine has been turned against them, they will listen to talk. If they feel that the medicine is right, the man who enters their camp will probably never come out."

"That's an unpleasant thought," Davis said and flipped a page.

"During your patrol to Smith and back, did you observe hostile activity?"

"Mr. Davis, you can't step off the post without being among them. However, the bulk of the hostile forces seems to be shifting. They've abandoned harassment of the road between here and Laramie, and are concentrating forces between here and Fort Smith."

"For war?"

Schwabacker smiled. "Mr. Davis, they've been making war ever since Colonel Carrington built Kearney and Smith."

"Of course," Davis said hastily. He closed his book and stood up, putting the book in his inner coat pocket. "Thank you for the interview, Captain. The readers back East like to know what's going on over here. After all, it's the taxpayers' money that's being spent." He smiled and went to the door.

"You will clear this with the general?" Schwabacker reminded him.

"Of course," Davis said. "I have other material to gather. Good night, Captain."

"Good night," Schwabacker said and stood in the doorway while Allister Davis walked away.

Schwabacker wrestled off his boots and lay down on his bunk, his hands behind his head. He couldn't help thinking of Davis, coming all that way for a story. Must have taken him a week of day-and-night riding in dirty trains and dusty stages. He went over in his mind the many things Davis had asked, and wondered if he hadn't said too much.

The sentry at the main gate called for the sergeant of the guard and Schwabacker listened to the sounds. A pair of horsemen rode across the parade, then the gate squeaked and they were let out. The gate closed and the post fell silent.

Finally he got up, pulled on his boots and went out. At the guardhouse he spoke to the officer of the day, who was brewing a fresh pot of coffee to push back his sleepiness.

Schwabacker leaned against the rough wall and asked, "Which quarters are occupied by Allister Davis?"

A, with Lieutenant Eastwood, but Davis is not on the post."

"That's ridiculous! He left me not over fifteen minutes ago."

"I won't dispute that," the O.D. said, "but he's gone. He checked a horse out of the remount stables and left with the late courier. Davis is on his way to Laramie right now. Said he had an important telegram to get off to his paper."

"You fool!" Schwabacker snapped. "Did you check his pass? Did he have a clearance from General Wessels?"

"Well," the O.D. said, suddenly realizing that a captain was speaking to him, and that he was in trouble. "No, I didn't, sir. I supposed that he had cleared with headquarters. He came up with

"You thought! Mister, you're bragging!"

"I'm sorry, sir. I could send out a detail . . ."

"They'd never catch them," Schwabacker snapped. "Mister, you're on report!"

Captain Schwabacker stormed out, then stopped on the dark walk. What could he do now? Hold his breath until the newspapers started hitting the streets? . . . I'm in hot water now. Schwabacker could feel it eddying up around his feet while his impetuous remarks about the military situation changed in his head like a bell.

A week passed. Undoubtedly Allister Davis' story was in the papers, but with mail stages running few and far between, another two weeks could go by before a paper reached the frontier. Dispatch riders carried only letters. Papers and packages were too bulky for saddle handling.

It was the fifteenth day of July when Captain Schwabacker was having breakfast in the troop mess. He was wondering if General Wessels had received word from eastern headquarters when an orderly approached and said that the general wanted to see him.

Schwabacker has a question for the general: "Am I relieved of my command, sir?" Continue Chapter 29 of "The Brass and the Blue" here tomorrow.

New Edsel Auto Set For September Sale

By DAVID J. WILKIE AP Automotive Editor
DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co.'s new Edsel line of cars now is scheduled to bow into the medium-price field in September. Engineering and styling details continue a closely guarded secret.

Introducing an entirely new line of cars causes a lot of headaches and worries — even when the sponsor has the tremendous resources of the Ford Motor Co. Ford has said it is investing a quarter of a billion dollars in the new line. It also has said the Edsel car will be "different" from any passenger automobile currently in production.

Ford economists and marketing analysts made a thorough study of the nation's over-all car market before the decision was reached to bring out another line of cars in the medium-price field. Their report, as explained by a spokesman for the Edsel division, was that another car in that price field was "needed."

They reported that the nation's present car population of some 50 million units will grow to 70 million in another decade. Increases in the number of cars, they added, will be attended by further shifts to the medium price market.

They also reported that in 1955 (the industry's record year for production and sales) "people spent 19 billion dollars for automobiles." By 1965, they added, "this is expected to exceed 26 billion dollars."

All industry experts do not agree with these figures. Some say the volume estimated for only eight years hence is too high; that other things like new homes and their furnishings and other equipment are taking an increasing share of disposable income.

However that may be, the newest line of cars in the Ford family is nearing the production stage. There will be models in the lower and upper ends of the medium-price field. That will give Ford competitive models in all price fields.

Introducing a new line of cars is not exactly a new experience for Ford. It brought out the Mercury line in 1938. More recently it added the "Fairlane" series to its volume Ford line. The "Fairlane" has been described as highly successful and figuring substantially in the increased sales total Ford has garnered so far in the 1957 model year.

A couple of Edsel cars already have been registered in the Detroit area, but they are test models. The bodies give no hint of their eventual appearance and the detail required for the registration also was not enlightening.

Ford already has set up virtually all its administrative structure for handling the new vehicle. The merchandising body, to consist initially of some 1,200 outlets also is being established. It probably eventually will be more than doubled.
