House Committee Slashes More New Funds, Criticize Practices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today slashed 23 per cent from new funds requested by the State Department and the United States Information Agency. It criticized them both for what it called "a rising and unprecedented" personnel practices.

It refused to approve any money for 2,123 new positions the two agencies requested and for continuation of 950 jobs established during the present fiscal year without prior consideration or appropriations by Congress.

In a sharply worded report written by Rep. Rooney (D-NY), the committee decreed "fiscal irresponsibility on the part of the State Department" and "irresponsible handling of the taxpayers' money" in connection with foreign programs financed with funds appropriated to the President.

requesting that appropriations for the USIA not be reduced but the committee still turned the proposal down.

1958" and ask for 2,123 new positions. The committee said it could not understand how the Bureau of the Budget "would permit such a thing, until it was discovered that they too had resorted to the same device" on a smaller scale.

Hits Obstacle

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill to separate the state's prison system from the State Highway Commission, one of the major proposals in Gov. Hodges' legislative program, was killed by the Senate Committee on State Government today.

Chairmen Meet, Discuss Steps To Development

Committee chairmen of the East Central North Carolina Development Association met in Greenville last night to further plan for coordinated development efforts in the nine county area.

The group discussed plans being made to develop 155,000 breeding hens on farms throughout a 29 county area of Eastern North Carolina and the possibilities of developing new agricultural crops in the area for processing.

O. J. Howell, Jr., representative of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, outlined for the group a plan being initiated by the bank to help farmers finance facilities and equipment to go into breeder hen production.

By action of committee chairmen last night a special planning committee is to be named by general chairman Harry C. Wooten, Jr. of Kinston to coordinate the work of the various committees which are functioning. A new fisheries committee of the association will also be named.

Operating On Eden Tomorrow

BOSTON (AP)—A hospital bulletin said today an operation will be performed tomorrow on Sir Anthony Eden to remove a tube placed in the bile duct in 1953 for relief of a duct obstruction.

Dr. Richard B. Cattell of the famed Lahey Clinic, who performed the operation four years ago, will be the surgeon tomorrow also.

Special Honor

Green Light, Greenville High School newspaper, has received the All Columbia award for general features in newspapers entered in the Columbia University Scholastic Press Association competition.

Notification of the award was received today by Mrs. C. J. Goodman, advisor for the Greenville High Journalism class which publishes the paper. It is the first special award won by the high school paper in one of the sub-categories of the competition.

At the Columbia Scholastic Press Association meeting recently Green Light received a medalist rating, the highest award given for newspapers entered in the competition.

Another Small Area Is Annexed Into City Following City Council Hearing

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor

A small area along the eastern edge of the city limits was annexed into the city following a public hearing last night.

City Councilmen voted to take in the area after City Manager Leonard Bloxam told them that more than 90 per cent of the property owners had petitioned for annexation.

The area begins at Tenth St. and continues to a point just east of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. It is north of Tenth St. and South of Greene Springs Park.

No protests to the annexation were heard at the public hearing.

Councilmen approved the purchase of a lot next to the present Carver Memorial Negro library. The lot will cost $800.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam said an attempt will be made to place funds in next year's budget for the construction of a masonry building to house the library.

Bloxam said the present building, which is rented, is not suitable for library use.

A North Carolina Equipment Co. bid of $14,000 for a crawler type tractor was accepted by the city fathers. The tractor is being purchased with bond issue funds. It will be used by the Department of Public Works.

A 30-year franchise for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. to operate in Greenville was approved on first reading by the councilmen last night. The franchise will replace a 20-year franchise which is expiring this year.

Attorney Lewis G. Cooper, representing the telephone company said the number of free telephones furnished the city would be increased from the 20 authorized in the old franchise to 40.

The franchise must be read to the Council a second time at their next meeting.

A recommendation from the city manager and Chief of Police

S. G. Gibbs that no parking be enforced on E. Third St. from Jarvis to the first drive was accepted by the council.

The restriction for the remainder of the block would be lifted.

City fathers had restricted parking along the entire block on a trial basis.

Councilmen approved authorizing the advertising of delinquent 1956 taxes beginning May 13. The advertising must be done 30 days prior to actual commencement of collection.

They approved the supplementing of the retirement of E. D. House, who has been a member of the police department for more than 25 years. The supplement would bring his retirement pay up to approximately one-half his present pay.

Bloxam said House had requested retirement June 1.

Councilman S. Eugene West requested that March meeting minutes be changed to show him voting against the city's new charter. The charter is now before the General Assembly awaiting their approval.

West said this morning that he was voting against a portion of the charter which would require voters to vote the maximum number of positions open on the city's governing body.

Rather than requiring voters to cast their ballots for the maximum number of positions open, West said he felt voters should be required to vote for a majority of the positions open.

He said he understood the "one shot" requirement would not be in the charter when it was approved last month.

Despite the vote change the charter will remain in the Legislature as it is. The other four councilmen voted for the charter.

West pointed out that regardless of how the charter is worded it will have no effect on the upcoming city election.

Move For New Post Office Allocation Starts In House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today voted to give the Post Office Department an extra 41 million dollars in a move to prevent prolonged curtailment of mail services.

The committee's action, taken behind closed doors, was by a vote reported as 37-10.

The amount approved is six million dollars less than the Post Office Department requested and is for use during the next 2 1/2 months.

It is 24 million dollars more than a subcommittee had recommended after Postmaster General Summerfield said it would be necessary to halt Saturday mail delivery and cut back other postal services if he didn't get more money immediately.

The House will consider the Appropriations Committee's recommendations Monday and is expected to approve them speedily so the Senate can act at once and get the bill to the President.

The new allotment would boost to $2,165,000,000 the funds given the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Summerfield told newsmen yesterday he would not be able to restore any of the scheduled mail service cuts until a bill giving him sufficient funds has passed both House and Senate and has been signed by President Eisenhower.

Under orders already issued, all post offices will be closed on Saturdays and Sundays and all city and rural mail delivery will be stopped on Saturdays, except for special delivery items.

On Monday, deliveries to city business districts will be cut to two a day and post office window service will be reduced.

All third class mail — chiefly advertising matter and small merchandise — is scheduled to be discontinued April 29, except for certain medical items. On the same day, sales of money orders will be halted at first and second class post offices.

A suit was filed in Federal District Court here yesterday seeking to restrain Summerfield from suspending the third class mail service.

Associated Third-Class Mail Users Inc., with headquarters here, and Spencer Gifts Inc., of Atlantic City, N.J., filed the injunction suit jointly. They contended Summerfield's order, as it applies to third class mail, "constitutes an exercise of unlawful authority." They said the suit "will continue to suffer irreparable damages."

Sen. Potter (R-Mich) told the postmaster general yesterday, during a Senate Appropriations Committee hearing, that he had heard "by the grapevine" that the House committee might give Summerfield 41 million dollars.

Summerfield replied that if Congress gave him 41 million, then he would rescind all the cuts he could, but that he wouldn't do it until the money was available.

Another Cargo Of Booze Caught

Pitt County ABC officers, after a "hot" pursuit, captured an automobile loaded with illicit whiskey early last night.

Officer J. M. Ward reported this morning that eight cases containing 48 gallons of whiskey was found in the automobile. The ABC officers and Sheriff's department have now confiscated a total of 33 cases of non-tax paid liquor in the past two days, picking up 22 cases Wednesday night from an automobile and a house.

The liquor-laden car was spotted by ABC officers on the Farmville Blvd., at which time they gave chase. After being pursued for a short time, the driver jumped out of the automobile on Battle Street.

Officers said the driver was in such a hurry that he didn't bother to close the motor off, nor did he close the door behind him when he got out. The vehicle continued to roll and finally stopped in the flower bed of a nearby yard.

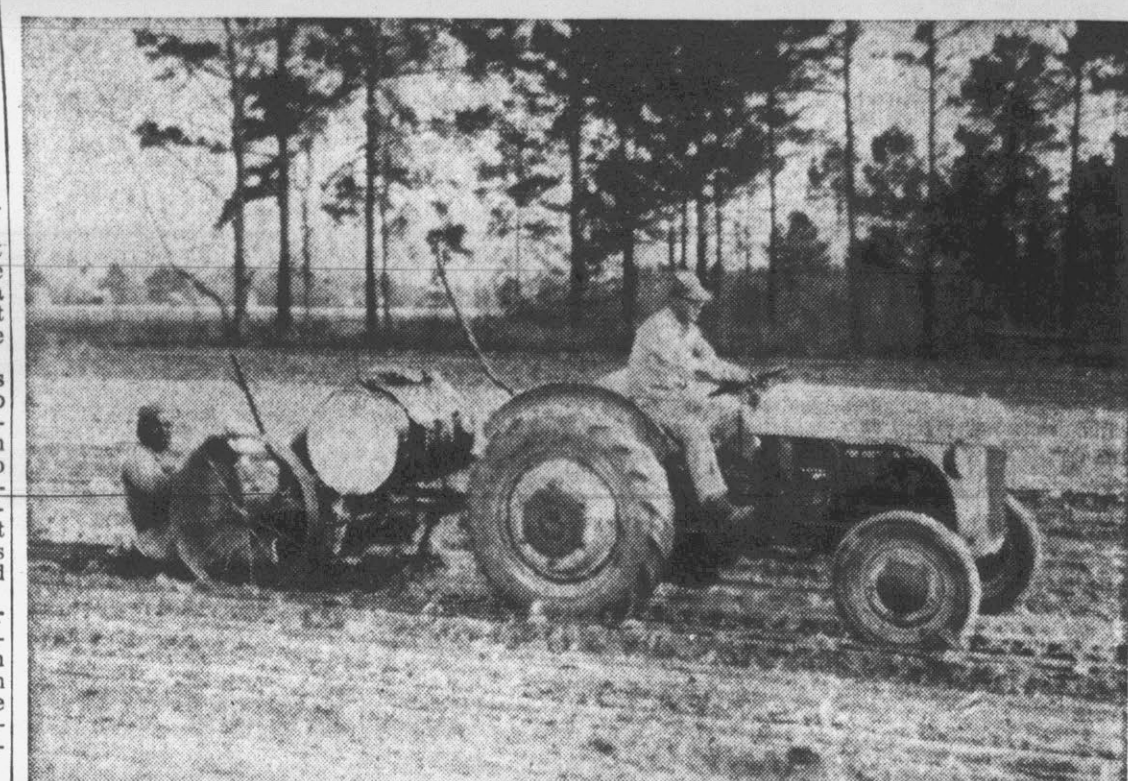

No damage was incurred upon the 1949 automobile, it was said. The car was reported stolen by Fred Lee Anderson of Greenville R. 6, Anderson told Greenville police that the car was taken from his home.

Breathed Life Into Limp Colt

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (AP)—Midnight Miracle, an aptly named Shetland pony, is alive today because her owner literally breathed life-giving air into her nostrils.

The colt was born limp, and with no sign of life, after the mother quit trying to deliver it after a 1 1/2-hour struggle. Owner Vic Daley, who helped accomplish the delivery, tried artificial respiration, then blew his own breath into the baby's nostrils.

Transplanting Off To An Early Start

Report On Effect Of Cigarettes

CHICAGO (AP)—Twenty to 30 years of cigarette smoking brings six changes in tissues lining air tubes of the lungs, scientists reported today.

- 1. The hairs get shorter on cells that wave whip-like cilia or hairs to eject foreign particles from the lungs.
2. The tissues become 10 to 25 per cent thicker than those of the non-smoker.
3. There are fewer of the cells that produce mucus.
4. There are more fast-growing basal cells.
5. The lining shows more surface furrows.
6. The lining has more inflammatory cells than tissues in non-smokers.

These changes, found in men and women alike, were described in reports prepared for the annual meeting of the American Assn. for Cancer Research.

The long-time study was made by a team directed by Dr. E. V. Cowdry and Dr. Valentina Surtzoff of Washington University, St. Louis. Members included Drs. Brian Spencer, now of Cardiff in Wales, S.C. Chang of Seoul, Korea, Genshire Ide of Japan and Allan J. Rossell and Adele Croninger of Washington University.

Dr. Everts A. Graham, well-known St. Louis surgeon who died last month of lung cancer, also contributed to the studies. Long a heavy smoker, he had quit in 1951 when his other research indicated an association between cigarette smoking and cancer.

The changes in the air tubes or bronchi were traced in autopsy specimens from 155 men and women, all over 40.

The changes were greatest in persons who had smoked heavily for 30 years. In less than 20 year smokers the alterations were mild, if present at all.

They appeared in women who had smoked for many years as well as men.

Fire Controlled In New Hanover

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Wearry firefighters reported last night that a forest fire which blackened an estimated 8,000 acres in New Hanover County was controlled.

The fire first broke out Wednesday. It was believed controlled then but broke out again yesterday. It was centered in the north-eastern section of the county.

The fire, believed to have started by the careless burning of a farmer's field, was fought by crews from the International Paper Co. and the Wrightsboro and Casie Hayne volunteer fire departments.

NEW SEASON BEGINS—This scene will be depicted many times in the county in months to come. The tobacco is being planted on a farm operated by Johnny Lockamy. Actually transplanting will get in full swing around the last of April.

Junior High Plan Adopted For City

Effective this fall there will be six years of elementary work, three years of junior high, and three years of senior high in the Greenville city school system.

A study of the junior high school set-up has been carried on by all of the teachers in the Greenville schools for the past fourteen months and was adopted by the City School Board of Trustees this week. Previously, the school system consisted of eight elementary grades and four years of high school.

As a temporary measure, the ninth grade will attend the new senior high school building in the fall because a lunchroom will be established at the old high school which will require certain space. This cafeteria will be located under the auditorium in its former site.

"This plan will leave the seventh and eighth grades located at the old high school building where all of the junior high school program will be carried on as if the ninth grade was also there," explained J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools.

He further added, "Eventually we will have the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades together in the same building."

Easter vacation Greenville school children will observe Easter vacation beginning on Monday, April 15 through Wednesday, April 24, announced Rose. The trustees also added seven new teachers to the school system for the next school year. They are: Mrs. Eudelle Brown, Mrs. Geraldine Paige, Mrs. Ann Brooks, Mrs. Mary Rose Stocks, Miss Georgia Morris, Mrs. Margaret Latham, and Mrs. Doris Duval Flanagan.

Other business included the reelection of J. H. Rose for a two year term as Superintendent of city schools and Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll as Supervisor of elementary schools. All principals and teachers in the city schools were re-elected.

The Educational Committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce met with the Board of Trustees Monday night to continue studying the future plans of Greenville schools, their expansion and their needs.

Under the tax relief plan for bus companies, refunds of gross receipts tax payments would be provided for bus operators who failed to show a profit return of 6 per cent, after income taxes, on their gross North Carolina revenue. The refunds would go up to an amount sufficient to give a company a return of 6 per cent. In no case, however, would the refund exceed the amount of taxes paid. Crew said the plan has been approved by Gov. Hodges, the Revenue Department, State Utilities Commission, and State Highway Commission.

New Plan For Justices Of The Peace Is Introduced

RALEIGH (AP)—A state senator has proposed that North Carolina's justices of the peace—now on a fee system—be appointed by judges and paid annual salaries.

A bill to abolish the free system and set up the new plan for paying justices was introduced by Sen. Perry Martin of Northampton.

Martin said "It's a bad system of justice when a person has to be tried before a judge who is paid only if he convicts you. I certainly think it should be eliminated."

Under his plan, senior resident superior court judges would appoint justices of the peace in their district. There would not be more than one for each 5,000 population. Annual salaries for justices would be fixed by the judges upon recommendation of county boards of commissioners.

Meanwhile, the House made a big dent in its backlog of local bills by passing 83 and sending them to the Senate. An afternoon session was held to clear away the measures.

Other major developments in a busy legislative day included: 1. The Joint Finance Committee heard spokesmen for the printing and vending machine industries argue against a proposal to bring their products under the 3 per cent sales tax.

2. Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax and Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan introduced identical bills which would provide refunds of gross receipts taxes for all bus companies. A hearing on the proposal was set for Tuesday.

3. The Senate enacted into law a shoplifting bill urged by merchants. It will make willful concealment of unpurchased merchandise on the person a misdemeanor. Presence of such merchandise on a person will be prima facie evidence of guilt.

4. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would limit the functions of the State Board of Water Commissioners primarily to those of an advisory group. The board would retain emergency powers to be used in the event of a severe water shortage.

5. The House enacted a bill making changes in the law covering literacy tests for voters seeking to register. Persons rejected by a registrar will have the right to appeal to the county board of elections. If the board turns them down, they can take an appeal to the courts. Heretofore, registrars were the sole judges in determining literacy qualifications of voters.

6. Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange sent forward a petition in the House signed by some 550 maintenance workers for the University of North Carolina protesting the proposed method for distributing prospective pay raises. The petition claimed that proposed salary reclassifications by the Personnel Department would work against promises that low-salaried employees would benefit under the selective pay method. The petition was endorsed by the North Carolina State Employees Assn., which is backing an across-the-board raise.

Greenville City Schools Contribute To Arts Festival

Since its organization in 1935, the promoters of the Community Fine Arts Festival have enjoyed and benefited by the active participation of the Greenville City Schools. The schools, both white and colored, have every year made contributions in both exhibits of art work done by the pupils and in programs of songs and dances given by them.

This year the Festival will begin April 12 at 8 o'clock with a program in the McGinnis auditorium given by the children of the Wahl-Coates School, Beatrice Chauncey, director. Immediately after the program, open house will be observed throughout the school building so that everyone may see the art work done by the children during the year.

On Monday, April 15, at 1:15 on TV Station WNCN, the Glee Club of West Greenville School will present a program of songs. Marian Polk will direct the program. Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the C. M. Eppes High School, Madge Allen will present an original skit entitled "Sense and Nonsense." Specimens of art work done by her pupils will be on display in the building.

Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Third Street School, there will be a program of movies and music, followed by open house throughout the building for a visit to art exhibits.

Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the Elmhurst School a musical program and viewing of the art work will be given.

Friday morning at 8:50 in the auditorium of the Greenville High School a program featuring the theme of Easter will be presented by the Greenville High School Chorus, directed by Ona Shindler. The High School Band will be featured in the Sidewalk Show on Thursday, April 25.

The public is cordially invited to visit the schools at the scheduled hours for the programs and to see the exhibits which open every day from April 15th through the 19th 2-5 p.m. and April 25 and 26 from 2-5 p.m.

Miss Perkins Is Honor Guest At Party Luncheon Wednesday

Mrs. Helen White Hawes and Mrs. Samuel Tilden White entertained at luncheon for Miss Virginia Perkins Wednesday at Mrs. Hawes' home on Fifth St.

Mrs. White met the guests and presented them to Mrs. Hawes, Miss Perkins, and Mrs. Reid Perkins.

On the hall table a silver wine cooler filled with white and red tulips, blue and white iris, spiraea, and white and red gladioli was centered in front of an antique mirror.

Luncheon appetizers were served in the den, where red tulips and lavender wisteria arrangements in majolica vases decorated the mantel.

Guest tables were placed in the music room and the drawing room; the bridal table was placed in the dining room.

The music room contained large bouquets of white and yellow narcissus, mums, tulips and gladioli. Flowers in the drawing room were colored gladioli and tulips.

The bride's table held an antique silver container with mums, white tulips and gladioli on a white organdy cloth; white and green, the color motif. Individual tables had sprays of white and yellow flowers. A three-course turkey luncheon was served. Bridal ices in wedding molds were served as the dessert course.

The hostesses presented Miss Perkins with a carnation corsage. Approximately 24 guests were present.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE

How sickness as well as sin can be overcome through spiritual understanding of God, divine Principle, will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the Golden Text from Psalms (103:2-4): "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction."

In addition to passages from the King James Version of the Bible, selections will be read "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy including the following (406:1-6): "The Bible contains the recipe for all healing. The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations." Sin and sickness are both healed by the same Principle. The tree is typical of man's divine Principle, which is equal to every emergency, offering full salvation from sin, sickness, and death."

30 Years Ago Today

April 12, 1927

The Board of Governors of the Greenville Country Club, in a regular meeting last night, transacted business of importance. Plans for rebuilding the dam of the fishing lake, as submitted by committee composed of W. H. Dail Jr. and S. T. White, were approved and work will be started immediately, which will insure completion in ample time to be restocked with fish. M. K. Blount was elected chairman of a committee to erect living quarters for the golf pro and stewardess of the club, adjacent to the present club house. This arrangement will prove very popular as it will insure a properly chaperoned club house at all times. The Board of Governors, with a hundred per cent attendance last night, had the pleasure of meeting Mr. J. E. Wells, the golf pro.

Welcome News As April 15 Nears

Hints of possible federal tax reductions next year are welcomed by American citizens, particularly as April 15th makes its impact on millions of wage earners.

If the Democratic Congress continues, as it has begun, to trim administration recommendations for spending during the next fiscal year, taxpayers may hold some hope for the much-needed tax relief. So far

Needed: Someone To Live Up A Budget

Thousands of Pitt County families this evening are wondering whether they'll see the familiar mail man tomorrow. They are wondering whether Postmaster General Summerfield will back down on his threat to sharply curtail mail service or whether Saturday deliveries will go out as usual.

A good portion of the population already is pretty hot under the collar over Summerfield's threats about the mail service and the $47 million dollars he has said Congress must give him if mail service is to continue during the next three months. These people and thousands of others are going to be really mad come Saturday if Czar Summerfield carries out his threat.

Though the people of Pitt County represent only a small portion of the citizenry of the United States, they should make their feelings in this matter known to their representatives in Washington. They should not hesitate to register their protests over the outrageous action of Postmaster General Summerfield.

As The Reflector has said before, it is a sad state of affairs when a member of the Cabinet begins dictating to Congress what it must and must not do; when a member of the Cabinet tells the elected officials of the people how the tax dollars shall be spent and what shall be given the people in return for them.

If Summerfield deprives the people of their mail service Saturday, Congress should bring whatever action is necessary to have Summerfield removed from office and a man named who can administer the Post Office Department within the budget allowed and at the same time afford reasonable service to the American people.

Congress has cut one billion dollars from the proposed budget of $71.8 made by President Eisenhower. If Congress continues to insist on more economy in government and a dollar value for every tax dollar, it might be possible for the budget to be lowered another three or four billion dollars.

We frankly believe Congress can trim that much fat out of President Eisenhower's budget without adversely affecting the nation's economy or jeopardizing national security.

If Congress does succeed in squeezing the fat from appropriations from the maze of government bureaus and agencies, the long sought federal tax reduction can be made a reality. The American people are counting on Congress to make the tax reductions a reality.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn's assertion that prospects for a tax reduction beginning next January are "good" is the most encouraging news on the federal tax scene in several years. Taxpayers will be sorely disappointed if Congress fails to trim the budget sufficiently to permit some tax relief to the burdened citizenry.

'Little Bill' Is Now Major Item

By LYNN NISBET
MUSHROOM — A "little local bill" conceived by Rep. Bruce Etheridge of Dare to meet a peculiar situation in his county has mushroomed into a statewide major policy item.

The Dare legislators desired only to relieve the outer banks village of Kill Devil Hills of the requirement to pay one-third the acquisition cost of the right of way for the proposed relocation of US 158. The corporate limits of the town are long and narrow and the new road runs the full length. Furthermore, it will perhaps depreciate the value of some beach property which would have to bear the major burden of the required right of way payment.

When "Uncle Bruce" talked with highway folks about his bill, they suggested a uniform statewide measure exempting all municipalities of less than 5,000 people from cost sharing requirements. That ran into difficulty, because lots of towns just got 5,000 or worse off than some just below.

Next came proposal that the matter be left to the discretion of the highway commission to determine which towns should contribute. The highway folks want none of that. Suggestion that the Local Government Commission share responsibility in deciding ability of any community to pay did not help much.

In interest of uniformity as well as relief in hardship cases, there is further suggestion that the local percentage be cut to 20 per cent instead of the present 33-1-3, and that no municipality be required to pay any part of the interstate system right of way, or for major by-passes which might interest corporate limits but add nothing by way of service to the community. Also that cities and towns be made parties to court actions involving such rights of way projects.

CO-ORDINATION — The working agreement announced this week for three-way participation in agricultural marketing problems contains no really new plans. It does, in opinion of those who formulated it, extend the cooperation which has long maintained to somewhat more complete coordination of activities among the participating divisions at State College, in the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Conservation and Development.

Summarized the primary functions of each agency are set out as follows:
NCDA — The State department is responsible for regulatory and service assistance to agriculture and related industries.

State College — the experiment Station is responsible for research and the Extension Service for educational assistance.

C&D — The Department is responsible for providing assistance in business organization, financing and promoting interest on part of people both in and out of the state in agriculturally based industry.

Joint — the three agencies are equally responsible for promoting better marketing practices, assembling, sharing and disseminating information, and trying in North Carolina products with national merchandising concerns.

The agreement further establishes recognized points of contact among the agencies, spelling out which officials shall be contacted for specific purposes but not limiting coordinating efforts to these officials.

It is written into the plan that present relations between the Department of Agriculture, State College and the Federal Government shall not be disturbed.

CONTINUING — The problem of full coordination of activities among State agencies whose functions often overlap is a continuing one. Departmental jealousy and rivalry is unavoidable. The record will show that it is much less among agencies dealing with agriculture than it was a few years ago. Unbelievable as it may seem, there were times 25 or 30 years ago when relations between the State Department and the College agencies were so unfriendly that one agency actually opposed appropriations for agricultural promotion if some other agency was given administration of the project.

Many men had a hand in improving this situation. Some of the legislative leaders entitled to large credit were L.Y. Ballentine, Dudley Bagley, Thomas O'Berry, Gregg Cherry and James H. Clark. Their efforts and those of numerous colleagues resulted in a system whereby the various agencies concerned with agriculture got together in advance, formulated a comprehensive program and for the past decade or more have presented a united front in behalf of appropriations.

Within the past five or six years the item of processing and packaging produce for the market has brought the C&D Department into the picture. The agreement worked out by the three agencies and announced this week brings up to date similar agreements made in the middle thirties and rewritten in 1947. All three are based on the fundamental idea that production must come before marketing, that production without marketing cannot be profitable, and that wise practice in both fields depends upon research and getting the results of research to the people.

Mad Enough To Lick A Stamp

It Was In April, 1927

It's a good afternoon to browse through some old editions of The Reflector, and remember that things were much the same in 1927 as they are today.

Astaire Enjoys Work

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — After 52 years in show business, Fred Astaire would still rather talk with his feet than his face.

One of the most conscious artists of his generation when it comes to his trade, which is dancing, Fred is merely self-conscious when it comes to conversation about himself. Ask him a question and immediately his foot begins to swing nervously, as though his sophisticated toes wanted to tap the answer in a Morse code of their own. The man distrusts speech because, unlike a dance step, he can't rehearse and polish it to the perfection he aspires to.

Astaire, who recently completed his 30th film, "Funny Face," in which he costars with Audrey Hepburn, will be 53 next month. Here he is — unrehearsed: "I have been called the greatest dancer in the world. That is unbelievably complimentary — and undeniably erroneous. It rocks me when someone says it."

"What I have done is stand the test of time in my field — musical comedy and movie dancing. "People today are so age-conscious. It turns me up sometimes. I don't think of myself as being any older than I started in this business."

"I don't do anything particular to keep in shape. I don't have to. I play a little golf, and I keep a small racing breeding farm — three mares and four fillies. "My stable has paid well over the years. I won a quarter of a million dollars with one horse — Triplegate."

"Can a professional dancer do well at ballroom dancing? Naturally he can — but he rarely finds the time to do it. The cha cha is a great favorite to play now, but over the years my own favorite has been the fox trot. It's very comfortable."

"In films I've had a dozen great actresses as dance partners — ranging from Ginger Rogers and Joan Crawford to Miss Hepburn. No, I won't say which was the best — or the worst. Would you?"

"Men dancers last longer at the business than women generally. There are two reasons. They have more physical strength — and the girls get bored with professional dancing in time. It's too hard a life."

"He goes on: "Today show business is really frantic and more competitive than ever. Everybody's in show business."

"Television is all right for the youngsters, but I see no reason to hurry into it. I've reached the point where I don't have to grab all the money in sight. "The amount of entertainment talent in America now is fabulous. But I think some performers are becoming stars too quickly."

"I got a letter from a performer recently who said he had been dancing for a year and a half and was discouraged because he still wasn't a star. "I believe a slow and gradual rise will often win a more lasting recognition."

"Gas, bubbling from the banks of Grindie Creek canal near Pactolus, is the subject of much local speculation; and some talk was raised of having an expert determine the possibility of drilling for gas on a commercial basis."

A jury failed to agree, and mistrial was ordered in action against former Sheriff A.C. Jackson, charged with embezzling $21,352.18 in county funds.

Fight Brews On Mortgage Plans

By ELMER ROESSNER
A new fight is brewing over the question whether major appliances and carpeting should be blanketed into mortgages on new homes.

The battlefield is Washington, where legislation has been proposed to halt the practice of including these "rapidly wasting assets" in securities for government-backed mortgages.

Fighting to keep them are our retailers, backed by some bankers. Struggling to keep them in are home-builders and some manufacturers.

ARGUMENTS ON HIGH PLANE
Here are the ABC's of the situation: Years ago, builders sold only the bare house, with its plumbing, and the mortgage covered these "rapidly wasting assets" in securities for government-backed mortgages.

Then builders and bankers went along with them on the theory that those items lasted as long as the mortgages, if not the house itself.

In the hurly-burly of postwar competition, builders began adding washers, dryers, built-in television sets, built-in exhaust fans, mangles, loud-speaker and radio systems and other shimmering gadgetry.

There was some objection to this, but all on a theoretical plane. Professors and economists argued — and I think your boy Elmer seconded them — that it didn't make sense to include a washer in the assets of a 20-year mortgage because long before the 20 years was up, the washer would spout oil, lose its teeth and through other deterioration begin converting itself into scrap.

Thus, after 10 years or so, a buyer would still be paying on a washer long since hauled to a washer graveyard and, no doubt, making monthly payments to its successor.

FREZZERS OUTLAST PAINT
This was all fairly academic, because banks balked at lending 20-year money on 10-year appliances. However, government agencies showed a tendency to accept such kind of mortgages.

There was a persuasive argument: Outside paint and wallpaper would last only five or 10 years; the frame of the house would last for 50 years and the foundations for a century. Therefore, a mortgage was on an average of the values. If mortgage money paid for a five-year paint job, why shouldn't it cover a 10-year appliance?

However, inclusions began to increase. Wall-to-wall carpeting won some acceptance. If carpeting, why not rugs? If built-in conveniences, why not furniture? Even if the average-life theory was accepted, there had to be some limit. If not, builders would be stocking the freezers and buyers would be paying for 20 years for the hamburger they ate the night they moved in.

ASSOCIATION PROTEST
The National Retail Furniture Association and the National Retail Floor Covering Council protested. "There is a responsibility to the public not to stimulate overbuying by consumers on credit by offering consumer durable goods on long-duration mortgage credit terms," the NRFA pompously stated. The NRFC passed three resolutions opposing the inclusion of carpets under government-backed mortgages.

Some bankers agreed with these retailers. The Carpet Institute, some manufacturers and many home builders disapproved.

Want to know something, kiddies? All the arguments advanced may be altruistic, but every one of the arguers have personal stakes. Retailers have the public's interest at heart, but they are also worried by the fact that builders, in stocking houses, buy from manufacturers or distributors, instead of appliance and carpeting retailers. Bankers want government-type mortgages tightened, because they have to match the terms in private lending.

On the other hand, builders want to put in the extras because it helps them speed sales; many families can't buy a home AND fittings at the same time. Manufacturers like them because they get a chance to sell carload lots to builders when sales lag at retail.

The Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR: — Have you ever thought about this? If our car is old, the bumps and scratches that we put on it do not worry us too much, but if we have a brand new car, then we are very particular and worry a lot if we accidentally bend a fender or scratch it.

For nearly a hundred years we have had a road in our community that goes through a "pothole" and it has been a dumping ground for not only some people in the neighborhood, but also a very convenient place for people in Greenville to ride out and dump empty cans, bottles, cartons, paper etc.

This is a brand new paved road now — and oh! We are so conscious of all the debris along the sides.

The Red Oak Home Demonstration Club in their efforts to make our community more beautiful are working on this project. We are trying to get rid of these unsightly dump heaps.

Now, the purpose of this article is not to offend anyone, but to ask the cooperation of the neighborhood people and those citizens of Greenville who have at times emptied their trash along this road, to help make this one of the most beautiful roadsides in Pitt County.

There is a sign placed at each end of this new road that warns us that if we are found dumping trash along this highway. May we have your cooperation?

Thank you,
Mrs. B. L. Tyson
Member of Red Oak Progress Program.

OTHER PLANETS AND PEOPLE
Are there people on other planets?
Now, wait a minute, Madam — this is a religious column, not a scientific one. But if you are willing to take the scientific opinion of a preacher (and he knows mighty little about science), he will be glad to give you the best he has.

If there are no other inhabited worlds, it seems strange, does it not, that the Almighty has wasted so much good space. Our earth is a little speck in a vast universe of stars and planets. Are we the only persons in this vast unmeasurable universe? Perhaps, but it really doesn't seem reasonable. At least it doesn't seem so to me.

Other Editors Saying --- Poisonous Pottage

(Raleigh News and Observer)
The newspapers are entitled to no special privilege with regard to public information. No such privilege should be given to them. As advocates of free access to public information, they should decline such a privilege if it is offered to them.

Apparently some mistaken representatives of the press agreed to an amendment to the bill, making birth and death records secret. It would give the press among others a privileged status in the examination of such public records. The press is entitled to no such privilege. Neither is anybody else. Public records should be open to the public — and public should mean public.

Newspapers have no special right of access to information. As a matter of practice newspapermen serve as the unofficial agents of the public in gathering information for the public. But it would be just as wrong to give the press a privileged status in regard to access to public information as it would be to give any other group such a privilege. Furthermore, the press, if it accepted such a privilege, would be deserting its fight for public access to public information for a bribe of special consideration.

It would be better, indeed, for public records to be closed to all than made available only to a few. Secrecy with regard to the public business is a dangerous thing. But when privilege is added to secrecy a double evil is proposed.

But do we give these tired and disreputable old cliches the cold shoulder? Nope. We fondle and nurture them keeping right on in the same linguistic rut.

LINGUISTIC RUT
(Savannah Morning News)
It seems a description with all the colorful and dramatic that is immense power for accurate packed into the English language that we should rely so heavily on cliches that by rights should have died and been buried along about the time of Cotton Bather.

Why, for example, is a hound's tooth the acme of cleanliness? Aren't there many things sicker than a whistle? Rain can be right, but it can likewise be wrong. A cat's back is no real measure of altitude, and there are plenty of examples in nature of creatures madder than it is less sure than shooting. And we've no doubt there are riskier enterprises than the collud cat venturing into the bad place.

But do we give these tired and disreputable old cliches the cold shoulder? Nope. We fondle and nurture them keeping right on in the same linguistic rut.

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Walter P. Reuther has added to union officers' current anxieties with his demand for a four-day week in the automobile industry. His revolutionary proposal is generally regarded as his bid for eventual leadership of the American labor movement, and possibly for a Democratic Vice Presidential nomination in 1960.

Reuther's rivals are chiefly disturbed because of the timing of his Atlantic City suggestion. It comes at a moment when Congress and public are indignant over certain union bosses' arrogance and callousness, including the good and the bad, because of the Beck-Brewster scandals.

On top of Senator McClellan's startling revelations, the brash Detroit man's four-day week with five days' pay may destroy labor's ballot-box influence. It would in their opinion, drive living costs to an unbearable peak, as other unions in key industries would be forced to keep up with him in negotiating future contracts. REUTHER'S ASSOCIATES DISGRUNTLED His disgruntled AFL-CIO associates recalled that they found it necessary to emulate him when he won a multi-tiered guaranteed annual wage from the "big three" automobile manufacturers. They realize that they must keep pace with him now or be lost in the scramble for supremacy.

Reuther's proposal raises several bread-and-butter problems for his union competitors. There are many industries — David McDonald's steel workers and John L. Lewis' coal miners — in which a four-day week may not be practical because keeping machinery in operation would be difficult during a three-day lay-off.

WORLD JUMP PRICE OF CARS
In addition to the shorter work-week, it is understood that the head of the United Automobile Workers wants a 10 per cent increase in the guaranteed wage allowance, as well as other fringe benefits. His overall demand, it is estimated, would mean a 30-40 per cent increase, which might place automobiles beyond the reach of fairly large pocketbooks.

If management does not or cannot meet his 1958 contract terms, the controversy over this revolutionary development would undoubtedly become a major and sensational issue in the 1958 Congressional and the 1960 national elections.

This would become a certainty if Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Reuther's political ally — some say "protege" — should be the Democrats' candidate for the White House in 1960, or if Reuther should be the Vice Presidential entry.

There is no question in most labor leaders' minds that the young man is shooting for the highest stakes.

NIXON'S 1956 PREDICTION
Ironically, it was Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who may be the GOP's Presidential nominee in 1960, who first opened the door for Reuther's demand. In the 1956 campaign, Nixon declared that the four-day week would become a reality in the "fore-seable future."

Another source of inspiration was the government's recent report on employment. It said that, for the first time in history, the total engaged in trades, services, communications, etc., outnumbered those producing the nation's supply of commodities.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

If this column goes to press on Friday—which we certainly hope it does—it will coincide with the opening guns of the annual Greenville Community Art Festival, which will occupy most of the rest of this month for all Greenville culture-hounds. . . . All day today the Lakewood Pine Garden Club will be having its fair—which is not an official part of the Art Festival, but still will be very artistic—out on Pineview Drive. . . . And tonight the first official Community Arts program will go on at McGinnis Auditorium at 7:30, where Beatrice Chauncey of the Washington School is sponsoring and supervising a special program of music and dance by school children ranging in age from second to eighth grade. She tells that the dances include interpretive, folk and square, that there'll be songs by junior and senior glee clubs and two boy soprano soloists, and a boys' barber-shop harmony group, and that the numbers range from religious to humorous and include pieces by Handel, Schubert and Cyril Scott, among others. Sounds good, it's free, it's part of the Festival—so go. . . . For the rest of this month there will be a spate of cultural activities deluging Greenville—watch the paper, and don't miss a one, because—as the saying goes—Culture, here we come! . . .

ON LOVE

Though Valentine's Day is long past, love is something to write about all the time, or at least that's what the book publishers seem to think. . . . Just out is a new translation of a book about it that was first written 2000 years ago, the Latin poet Ovid's "The Art of Love," which includes the "Amores," the "Ars" and the "Remedia," all in one volume in English for the first time—and ask any Latin scholar if you don't know what those words mean. . . . A little different in its approach is "Love and Fulfillment in Woman," by Dr. Noel Lamare, coming out later this month. Its author is a French doctor who points out that the notion of what love is differs radically in men and women, and he considers in detail what these differences are. . . . And later in April "In Quest of Love: The Life and Death of Margaret Fuller," by Faith Chipperfield, will explain a lot of things about the Boston blue-stocking who has been called the "pioneer career woman" and who wrote "Woman in the 19th Century" as a declaration of independence for her sex—something they certainly don't need, these days, but we guess they did then. . . .

O'Neill Deal

We're just getting around to reading "A Long Day's Journey into Night," by Eugene O'Neill, and at the same time have been surprised to discover how much activity there is these days over his various works—much more than while he was alive. . . . "Journey" is representing the U.S. at the Paris Drama Festival next summer—and we certainly are glad the State Dept. people got around to picking something early—and is having a very nice run on Broadway. . . . "The Iceman Cometh" also is doing very well in New York, and "A Moon for the Misbegotten" is opening next month, as will "New Girl in Town," a musical version of "Anna Christie," starring Gwen Vardon, for which we prophesy immediate success, O'Neill or no O'Neill, having glued our glims on Gwen's gams for an entire matinee of "Damn Yankees" last summer. . . . What's good for O'Neill is good for his audiences, so hurrah for Gwen. . . .

Today's Review

Presaging the start of Holy Week next Friday, the review following is on a book about Easter, and is contributed by Rev. Tom Davis, who is Secretary of Albemarle Presbytery. It's a privilege to have him aboard, particularly writing about such an excellent book, the author of which is himself a North Carolinian, incidentally, from Chapel Hill. . . .

THE CROWN TREE. By LeGette Blythe, Richmond, Va.; John Knox Press, 1957. 329 pp. $3.50.

One thing stands out clearly in the early history of the Christian Religion. It is not dull reading! THE CROWN TREE by LeGette Blythe is no exception. Beginning with the crucifixion of Jesus and continuing through the events of those early days, he weaves a story of gripping interest. One is conscious of the broadening horizons of the Christian Religion as it pushes beyond the national boundaries of the Jewish people to other countries and nationalities. The faith of men as he is haunted by the memory of a just man being so condemned. LeGette Blythe, the author, is eminently qualified through his mature knowledge of the Christian Faith and the history of that early period to keep his story true to the facts and spirit of the times. He sheds much light on a period which may be vague to many, even though they have often heard these facts.

Throughout the book one is confronted with the amazing vitality of the early church and the faith that sent men and women to face with boldness all kinds of dangers. This faith is seen in its battle against the established religion of that day, and as it invaded the pagan-religion of Rome—and the corruptions of its political life. One is conscious of the broadening horizons of the Christian Religion as it pushes beyond the national boundaries of the Jewish people to other countries and nationalities. The faith of men as he is haunted by the memory of a just man being so condemned. Fiesta To Mark Pan-Am Day

The Spanish classes of Greenville High School will celebrate Pan American Day tonight from 7:30-10:30 in the high school auditorium by presenting a Fiesta.

Life and customs south of the border will be portrayed through a floor show which will be presented at nine o'clock. This show will feature an original script, Latin American dances, and songs. Prizes will be awarded for the three best costumes.

Twenty-one sovereign nations in the Western Hemisphere comprise the membership of the Pan American Union, known since 1948 as the Organization of American States. This international organization was founded on April 14, 1890, and works unceasingly for the ideals of cooperation, friendship, and peace between America and her Southern neighbors.

Police Holding 'Found' Items

Greenville Police Chief S. G. Gibbs announced this morning that the local police department has several unclaimed items that have been recovered during the past several months.

The unclaimed items are: Two English bicycles, one Goodyear tire and wheel, and one Goodyear Silver-toned tire and wheel.

Anyone having lost these items and are able to identify same, may pick them up at the Greenville Police Department, Gibbs said.

Signs Of Spring At Ayden High School

By JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON, Ayden School Reporter

It is really Spring at Ayden High School now.

The baseball team has gotten its schedule in full swing, and teachers and students have started coming to classes in cotton apparel.

Another sign of Spring was the fashion show by Home Economics students of Mrs. Jo Ross. The chapel period show was opened by a devotion by Jeannette Worthington, Elaine Mae Ormrod, Betty Lou Tripp, Annette Willoughby, Sandra McLawhorn and Jessie McLawhorn.

Brownie Tripp introduced the Home Economics students who modeled dresses made in their classes. Taking part in the show were Patricia Benson, Frances Booth, Carol Braxton, Sandra Carter, Gloria Crawley, Kay Curry, Ava Francis, Elizabeth Gaskins, Paye Highsmith, Rebecca Jones, Elaine Nobles, Dawn Rouse, Ann Willis, Carolyn Turnage, Brenda Wainwright, Betty Craft, Shelby Dupree, Dorothy Hart, Nancy Jackson, Evelyn Jones, Jessie McLawhorn, Sandra Beppard, Elizabeth Bennett, Barbara May, Linda Smith, Eva Buck, Sandra Sutton, Carol Dupree, Mary Hudson, Joyce Suggs, Nancy McLawhorn and Deloris Smith.

Bishop also has been active in student government, a member of the Press and English clubs, vice-president of his dormitory, and has been named as sports editor for the 1958 Yackety-Yack, the college yearbook. He also was an important member of the intramural basketball team that won the campus title.

Dr. Hirshberg To Assist Institute

Dr. Edgar W. Hirshberg, faculty member of the department of English at East Carolina College, has accepted an invitation to serve as a staff officer at the eighth annual institute of the Cleveland, Ohio, Humanities Center. A three-day forum, April 18-20, will provide discussion by industrial and academic leaders of the needs of man in an industrial society and of the responsibilities of education and industry to those needs.

The Humanities Center is an outgrowth of the College English Association Institutes for the Liberal Arts in an Industrial Society.

These Bottoms Are Tops

The shear angle of the new BULLET BLADE bottoms is only 36° for gradual, power-saving slicing action. In addition, you get soil-piercing penetration the entire length of the blade.

This seldom seen angle of the Allis-Chalmers mounted plows illustrates pointedly how the new BULLET BLADE bottoms save both time and fuel. New BULLET BLADES are replaced only when worn out. BULLET BLADES eliminate time-consuming blacksmithing needed on old-fashioned bottoms... and they cost less, too.

Let us show you a new mounted plow to match your Allis-Chalmers tractor.

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER 30
The night Emil Schwabacker returned to Fort Phil Kearny, on a badly jaded horse, the battle was over.

This was the fight, he heard. The United States Army had at last achieved victory over the Sioux. Schwabacker went to headquarters and entered General Wessels' office. The general was not there and an orderly went after him. There was a celebration in the officers' mess, with Major Foggell the hero of the hour. When Wessels arrived, he found Schwabacker slumped down in a chair.

"Good God," Wessels said, "I didn't mean for you to turn around and come right back!" Schwabacker tried to stand, but the general pushed him back in the chair.

Schwabacker said, "It's my pleasure to report, sir, that approximately nineteen men of Col. Kinney's command met and defeated over a hundred Cheyennes several miles from Fort Smith."

Wessels' mouth dropped open. "What?" He shouted it.

"Yes, sir. Colonel Kinney respectfully requests permission to hold at Fort Smith, sir."

"What a glorious day for the military!" Wessels began to pace back and forth. "Can it be that we've given the devils a licking? I must get a dispatch off immediately." He went to the door and shouted for the orderly.

Schwabacker said, "May I be excused, sir?"

"Of course," Wessels said. "You are relieved of duty for the rest of the week, Captain. And thank you."

Schwabacker was too tired to light the lamp in his quarters. He unbuckled his pistol belt and tossed it on the floor, then tugged off his boots, stretched out, fully clothed, and fell asleep.

In the morning, he was knocking his neckchief when General Wessels' orderly knocked.

"Up, sir? The general would like to see you right away."

Schwabacker frowned, but the orderly was hurrying along the duck boards. He put on his pistol belt, settled his hat and stepped out into the hot midday sun. A small headache pestered him, but he supposed that was from lack of sleep.

As he approached headquarters he saw the dispatch rider leading his horse toward the stable area, and a warning gong sounded in his mind. Wessels was in his office and his jocular of the night before had completely vanished.

He was reading a newspaper and not liking it.

"Sit down, Captain," Wessels said and gnawed on a cold cigar. "I've been reading your statements to that reporter, Allistair Davis. Somehow I get the impression that you are better informed on strategy than I am."

Wessels sat down and slumped the desk with the paper, "Captain, allow me to inform you that a peace commission is at Fort Laramie. Within mission is at Fort Laramie. Within a week or ten days, they will dispatch a representative to meet with the Sioux and Cheyenne leaders provided Jim Bridger can find them, and hold a preliminary peace parley. Provided of course that your insane comments fail to arouse the politicians!" Wessels spread the paper and read a few passages. "By God, I've been crying my head off for replacements and you sound as if we had the situation well in hand!" He blew through his nose and shook his head.

"I can think of a dozen politicians who will take this as gospel. I can already hear them making speeches about how the army is wasting the taxpayers' money. How can the peace commission hope to arrive at any sort of conclusion with the army pulling one way and the politicians pulling the other?"

"What can I say, sir?"

"I'll say it for you," Wessels snapped. "Captain Schwabacker, you are of this moment relieved of your command and placed on inactive status pending transportation to Fort Laramie, where equally grave charges await you. Now get out of here and let me think."

Leaving General Wessels' office, Schwabacker decided that the weight of command was not nearly as heavy as the weight of dishonor, and that was what he now feared.

Alone in his own quarters he tried to hate Allistair Davis, but could not. The man was doing a job any way he could, and if he had been gullible enough to provide the story, then Davis was not to blame. But, how easy it was to lay one's troubles at another man's feet. No, this was his own doing and whatever came of it he would have to accept like a man, without whining or casting blame.

He answered mess call in the evening, then went back to his quarters. When Finnegan came in after dark, Schwabacker was asleep, but woke when the sergeant stumbled over a chair.

"Light the lamp," Schwabacker said, and Finnegan struck a match.

"Heard th' news, sor," Finnegan said. "It's all over the post."

Schwabacker sat up and rubbed his eyes. "Jocelyn must be pleased. He has his troop back now."

"No, sor, I'd say he wasn't pleased."

"I don't get that."

"It don't matter, sor." The sergeant took a chair around and sat down. "What's th' way out?"

"No way out," Schwabacker said. "I'm through in the army, Sean. It's just a matter of time. But there's one thing I'd like to do before it's all over. Yet I'm scared; the thought alone is frightening enough."

"What's that, sor?"

Schwabacker looked at him intently. "Find Red Coud and his Cheyenne friends and sue for peace." He set each word out quietly, like a man handling fragile eggs. Finnegan stared, his mouth asabe. "Don't talk me out of it," Schwabacker said. "Sean, understand that there's a time for everything, a moment that makes an eternal difference. A moment that comes and goes, and if a man's not there at the right time, he'll never get another chance. That moment has come and gone for me all my life. But this time I can't let it pass. Red Coud's hurt, his medicine's backed off his face. Someone could get away with a peace parley now. Arrange a meeting for a month hence. Get his word. He's an honorable man. Once he gave it, he'd die before he went back on it."

"Aye, sor, I agree, but..."

"No but, Sean. I know, I wouldn't have authority, but who would they know? It wouldn't matter what I did, as long as I arranged the talks. Don't you understand? If the peace commission waits a couple of weeks, it will be too late!"

"Aye. What is it you want me to do, sor?"

"I've got to have a horse by the water gates. I can sneak out there and cross Piney Creek. After that, it doesn't matter whether the post is aroused or not; they won't come after me."

The seriousness of this plan made Finnegan's voice hoarse. "When, sor?"

"An hour at the outside," Schwabacker said. "Will you do it, Sean? I have no right to ask."

"You've every right," Finnegan said, "but there's one catch, sor; I go with you."

"No."

"Why not, sor? Jocelyn's going to chuck me in th' stockade as soon as he can get a court-martial to sit still. Besides, sor, this is a two-man job."

"All right," Schwabacker said. "But no firearms, Sean. Bareback and unarmed."

Finnegan nodded. "What time is it, sor?"

Schwabacker looked at his watch. "Quarter after seven."

"In an hour then," Finnegan said and went out.

There was little to do but wait and think. Another foolish move? Emil Schwabacker decided not. If he won, then his defeat would not be pointless; his shame would have some meaning, if only to himself.

The hour passed slowly, and in the last remaining minutes Schwabacker straightened his room. He figured two minutes to walk to the stables. Schwabacker blew out the lamp and stepped outside into the darkness. From that moment, there was no turning back, yet the thought did not unnerve him.

Finnegan meets his challenge. "...there's something else to say, but you ain't man enough to say it." Continues Chapter 31 of "The Brass and the Blue" tomorrow.

Farmville School Key Club Elects New Officers

FARMVILLE — The Farmville High School Key Club this week named 1957-1958 officers and gave formal congratulations to James Henry Bundy, new president of the Carolinas Key Club District and a member of the Farmville Club.

In election of new officers, Larry Dilda was named president for 1957-1958. He will serve with vice-president Horace Corbett, secretary Richard Dunn, treasurer Johnny Dixon, reporter Will Jones III, and sweetheart Faye Baker.

Plans were initiated for a banquet to be held next fall and a decision made to delay the annual soap sale until the fall. Club members also went on record to offer their assistance to Kiwanis Club members during the coming Farming Exposition and to the Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Committee during the current Clean-up campaign.

Cancel Trip For Local Guardsmen

A weekend training trip for Greenville National Guardsmen has been cancelled by U. S. Marine Corps officials at Cherry Point.

Members of Service and "C" batteries of the 295th Field Artillery Battalion were scheduled to go to Cherry Point Saturday for a two-day training mission. Commitment of ranges and other training areas to regular Marine Corps activity makes it impossible for the Guardsmen to use the base's facilities, a Marine Corps spokesman said.

The Guardsmen were scheduled to take qualification tests with individual weapons.

Phants Defeat Pam Pack By 5-2

Major Leagues See Hefty Turnover In Player Talent

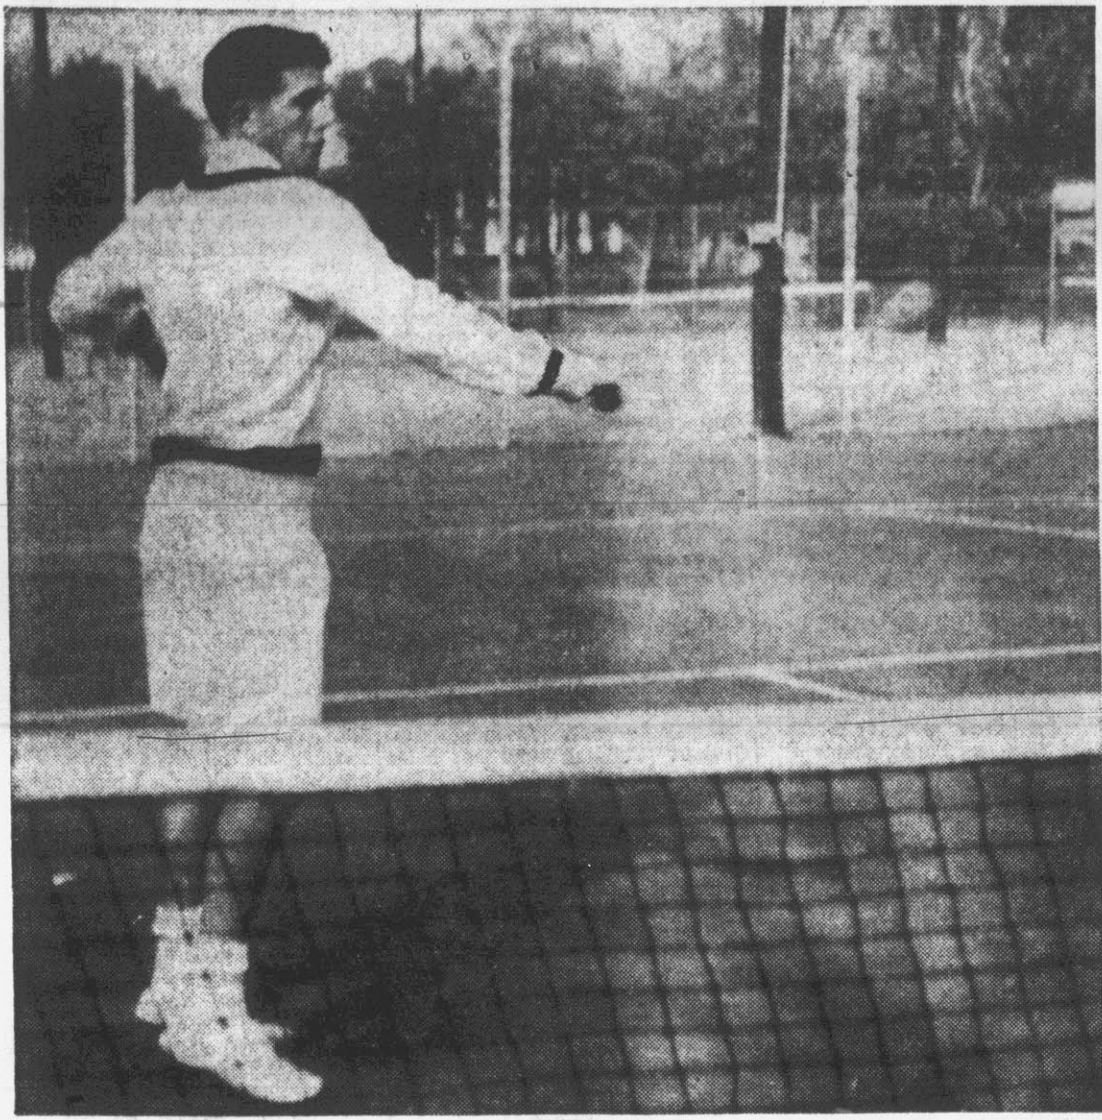

NEW YORK (AP)—There's been a hefty six-month turnover in major league baseball. Teams will have about 25 new players in the opening day lineups next week.

and Bowman are rookies up from Miami of the International League. Repulski was acquired from St. Louis and Fernandez from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

A new left fielder and No. 4 batter in Del Ennis, the former Philadelphia star. The Dodgers probably will have Gino Cimoli in left field. He was used sparingly in 1956 but has been a spring training sensation this year.

Greenville high school's baseballers took advantage of eleven walks, three errors and three hits to top Washington 5-2, here, yesterday in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

been tapped by Phant Pitcher Charlie Stator for a single. Cox then walked in two runs. He sent one more Phantom across the plate in the next inning on a walk.

WHAM—Maurice Everette, ECC's top single performer, takes a slice at the ball in yesterday's matches against the Citadel, at College Courts. Everette won his singles and combined with a teammate to win a doubles event, but the Citadel won 5-4. It was East Carolina's second loss in six matches this season. The contest was a non-conference tilt. (Reflector Sports Photo).

Two Home Games Face Bucs After Road Trip

With a successful road trip now beneath their belts, the East Carolina Pirate baseballers will settle back for two home games before they tangle on foreign grounds again.

After the road trip, ECC's mark in conference competition stands at 3-1. Their overall record is 5-2. In non-loop games, they took two from VPI and dropped a decision to Delaware.

Everette Wins Maurice Everette, ECC's number one singles man, beat out Citadel's top singles performer Sterling, 6-1, 6-4 for one of the locals' two singles wins. Billy Hollowell, a freshman, came through to record the other one, 6-1, 6-2, beating Anderson.

Appalachian State College a North State Conference outfit from Boone, will come to College Field Monday afternoon and Tuesday for two important conference tilts. The games will be the biggest of the season thus far for the Mountaineers, who will be trying to unseat the Bucs from their defending champions role.

Monday, Coach Mallory's boys will be seeking their fourth conference win. They may need to win every remaining conference game on the schedule, if they hope to maintain their position as the North State title holder, for the early season has shown that the other teams in the league have improved. Appalachian will be a definite threat to the Pirates' claim to the title and are capable of pulling an upset Monday or Tuesday.

Jesus Praised and Condemned

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 21:1-11; 27:11-54.

After questioning Jesus, Pontius Pilate wished to release Him. The chief priests and elders persuaded the people that He be crucified. Pilate washed his hands before the multitude, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just person."

Soldiers took Jesus into a hall. They put a scarlet robe on Him and made a crown of thorns which they put on His head. They bowed before Him, mocking Him by saying, "Hail, king of the Jews." They also struck Him.

Dressed in His own clothes, the soldiers led Christ away to be crucified. As they came from the hall, they found a man of Cyrene named Simon, and compelled him to carry the cross to the place called Golgotha.

Darkness covered the land when Christ died. The temple veil was rent and an earthquake occurred. Soldiers watching were frightened, saying, "Truly this was the Son of God."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 117:1.

Jesus Praised and Condemned

AFTER HIS TRIUMPHAL ENTRY, HE IS SENTENCED TO DEATH

Scripture—Matthew 21:1-11; 27:11-54.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL AS WE ARE PROBABLY quite familiar with the beautiful story of Jesus' triumphant entrance into Jerusalem from the slopes of the Mount of Olives, it may be gone over briefly. The younger children will be particularly thrilled over the command of Christ to two of His disciples, to go into a nearby town and command a donkey and its foal and bring them to Him, and the unquestioning obedience of the men.

The animals were brought and clothing thrown on them. The Master then mounted, and crowds of disciples spread garments in the way and cut down branches from trees and strewed them in the way. When they entered the city and people said, "Who is this?" the multitude cried, "This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee."

Will we be as obedient to Jesus' will when we are tempted to do ill? We know what is right, and can always ask His help in obeying.

ing, "I am innocent of the blood of this just man; see ye to it." Soldiers took Jesus to a hall, where they dressed Him in a scarlet robe, plaited a crown of thorns and put it on His head, and bowing before Him, cried mockingly, "Hail, King of the Jews." They also spit on Him and struck Him, then snatched the robe from Him, put His own clothes on Him, and led Him forth to be crucified.

Outside the hall they found a man named Simon, and they made him carry the heavy cross to Golgotha, "Place of the Skull," so named because it was a small hill shaped like a skull.

There they nailed Christ, the Sinless One, on the cross with a thief on each side of Him, while the soldiers cast lots for His clothing. Over His head Pilate had put the words: "This is Jesus, King of the Jews."

From noon until three o'clock there was darkness over the whole land. Matthew gives but one of the cries of Jesus in His suffering. "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

MEMORY VERSE

"O praise the Lord, all ye nations; praise Him, all ye people."—Psalm 117:1.

In last week's lesson we learned about the chief priests and elders questioning Jesus, and their opinion that He blasphemed and was worthy of death.

The Jews, however, could not pronounce the death sentence but must have the authority of a Roman ruler. Pontius Pilate was governor, so Christ was taken before him.

The first question Pilate asked was, "Art Thou the king of the Jews?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest." Pilate marveled when his other questions about the accusations brought against Him, were not answered.

Now it was a custom at the time of the Passover, that the Roman rulers would release a prisoner to the people. They had a notable prisoner named Barabbas in custody. Pilate asked which man should be released. The chief priests persuaded the people to call for Barabbas' release and demanded that Jesus be crucified.

Pilate therefore had not the courage but to do as he was asked. However, he called for water and washed his hands, saying, "I do with Jesus?" could be asked of each one of us? What shall we do? Love Him, try to follow in His footsteps and be worthy of His sacrifice.

Scout District Course In Leadership Saturday

The Pitt Scouting District Leadership Training course will be held at East Carolina College on Saturday, April 13. The course will be conducted in Graham Building and is being staged primarily for Cub and Boy Scout Leaders, Assistants, members of Pack and Troop Committees, institutional representatives and other leaders in the various phases of scouting. Officials have announced that the new basic training program will consist of four demonstration phases of scouting, all of which will be completed in the one big session. This will be done, so that by participating in one session, necessary training experience and credit can be earned.

This Spring meet will commence at 2 p.m. and terminate at 9 p.m. Chairman C. O. Pratt of the Cub training program has announced the following subjects to be covered during the course: what Cub Scouting is, the Achievement Plan and Den and Pack activities. The Boy Scout program will cover the following subjects, Bill Wright chairman of the Boy Scout training, has announced; what Boy Scouting is, Troop operation and meeting and activities. There will also be five new films and filmstrips shown in conjunction with the course. In addition exhibits and displays will be used in the training program.

Research Chemist Speaks To Bethel Pupils On Progress Of Chemistry

BETHEL — Dr. Cecil E. Reese, research chemist of the "Dacron" Research Laboratory, Kinston, North Carolina, spoke today to the students of Bethel High School. Speaking in connection with "Chemical Progress Week" being observed nationally April 8-12, Dr. Reese said, "Chemical progress while not as obvious to the consumer as progress in other fields such as the automotive, aviation, and electronics industries, has played one of the most important roles in the development of these and practically all other industries." He stressed the role that chemistry plays in the growing economy of the South and described fascinating job opportunities abundant in our society for those interested in achieving a scientific education. Various job possibilities were enumerated for each level of education and the requirements for these degrees were discussed. In concluding, Dr. Reese urged all individuals who possess a wide range of interests and skills to pursue a scientific education and take advantage of the ever-increasing opportunities.

Dr. Reese attended the University of Utah and received a B.S. degree in science in 1945, M. S. degree in chemistry in 1947 and a Ph.D. degree in physical chemistry in 1949. He joined the Du Pont Company in 1950 at Wilmington, Delaware and was transferred to Kinston in 1953.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Herman Kubiak, Milwaukee County Clerk, issued the annual county directory of public officials and discovered to his embarrassment that his own title has been changed. On Page 17 of the booklet the list of officials and their titles included this one: "HERMAN KUBIAK, COUNTY KUBIAK." A printer's error was blamed.

Judge Applied Some Arithmetic

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Delaware County Judge Henry Sweney used grade school arithmetic yesterday to rule that two dogs and two dogs make four dogs, or two more than allowed by the Radnor Township Zoning Board.

He upheld the board's ruling that William and Mamie Kerr get rid of two of four dogs after complaints by neighbors. Seeking to have the ruling upset, the Kerrs used a different kind of mathematics. They said the code permitted two dogs, two cats and one horse, adding up to five animals. Then they pointed out that two dogs and two puppies add up to only four animals, or one fewer than the law allows. The judge's arithmetic won out.

DON'T THROW CATS DENVER (AP)—Because her husband settled arguments by picking up their pet tomcat and throwing it at her, Mrs. Flossie Mae Martin won a divorce. She and were married in 1947 in Boise, her husband, Joseph, a butcher, Idaho.

JAMESTOWN: 350th Anniversary Of First English Settlement In America

350 YEARS AGO

FIRST SETTLEMENT. On their arrival at Jamestown in 1607, first settlers built this three-cornered palisaded fort as protection against Indians. Within it they lived, in small thatched houses, protected by guns at the three bulwarks.

America is celebrating this year the 350th anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, Virginia, the first permanent English settlement in the New World.

In 1607, three English sailing ships crossed the Atlantic, bound for the New World. They were the Godspeed, the Susan Constant and the Discovery, with 100 men aboard. After five months at sea, they sighted the broad waters of the Chesapeake. They sailed up the James River, and then chose a spot, 50 miles from its mouth, as the site for their settlement. They named the river and the settlement after King James I of England.

Life for the new settlers at Jamestown was a bitter one. Many fell ill of malaria. Food was scarce. Drinking water was bad. Hostile Indians raided the colony. On one of the expeditions in search for food, the colony's leader, Capt. John Smith, was captured by the Indians and condemned to die. According to his own account, his life was saved by the Indian chief's daughter, Pocohantas. She later married John Rolfe, one of the settlers.

In the years that followed there were constant attacks by the Indians. Other disasters followed. In 1676, the town was burned to the ground. Twenty-two years later another fire destroyed the village. The settlers left the ruins of their homes and moved to the so-called Middle Plantation. In 1699 the new settlement took the name of Williamsburg. No longer a town, Jamestown is now a national shrine.

In celebration of the anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, the Jamestown Festival is staging a number of plays, pageants and other gala events. On Jamestown Island, the settlement's first thatched-roofed homes, and fort, have been reconstructed, and, in the waters nearby, are replicas of the three ships that brought the settlers to their new home.

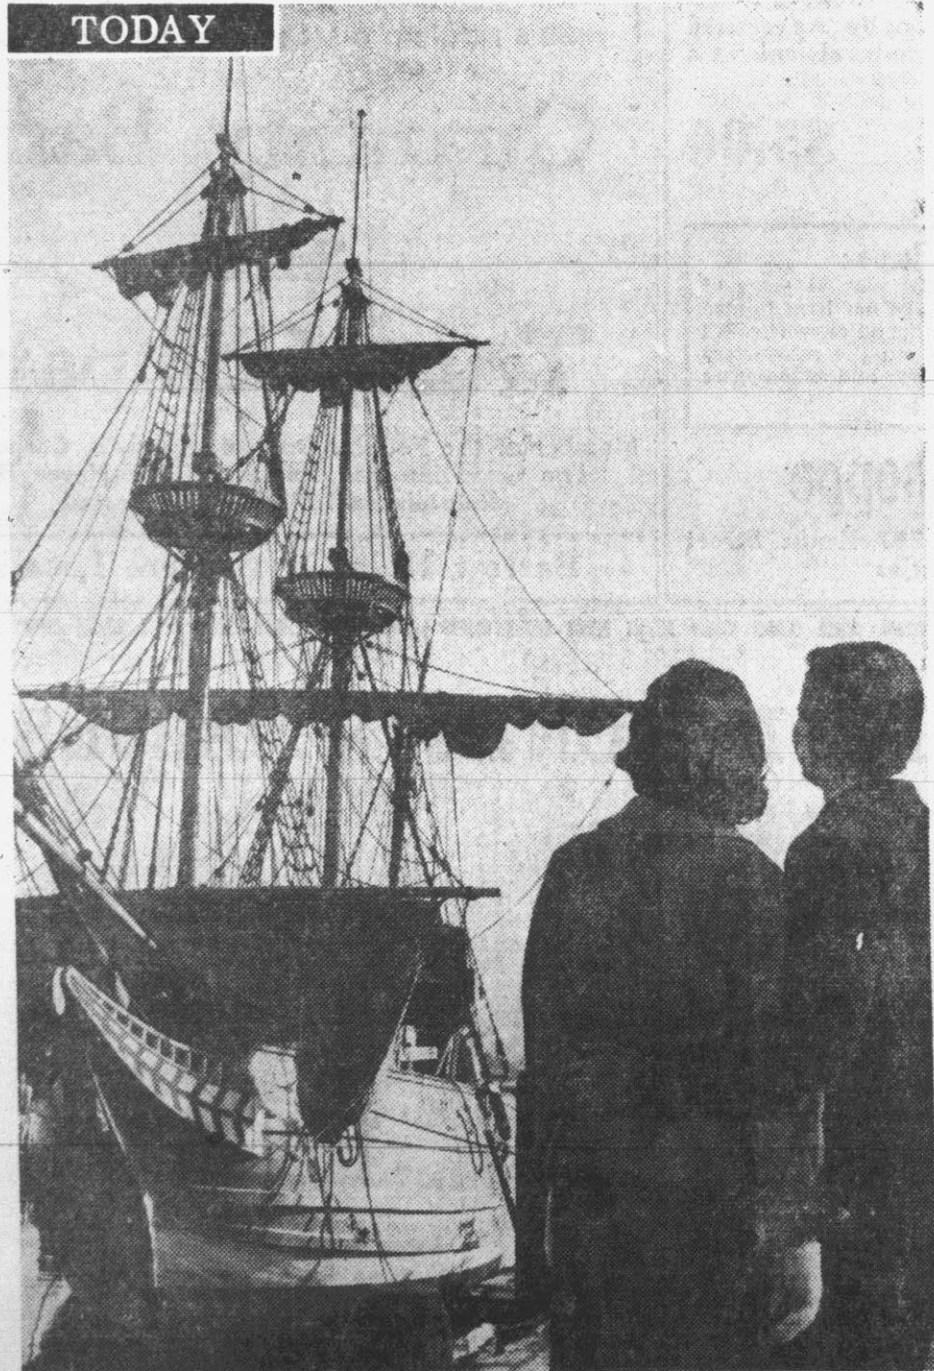

First settlers were all men. Later, as old print shows, girls arrived from England to become their wives.

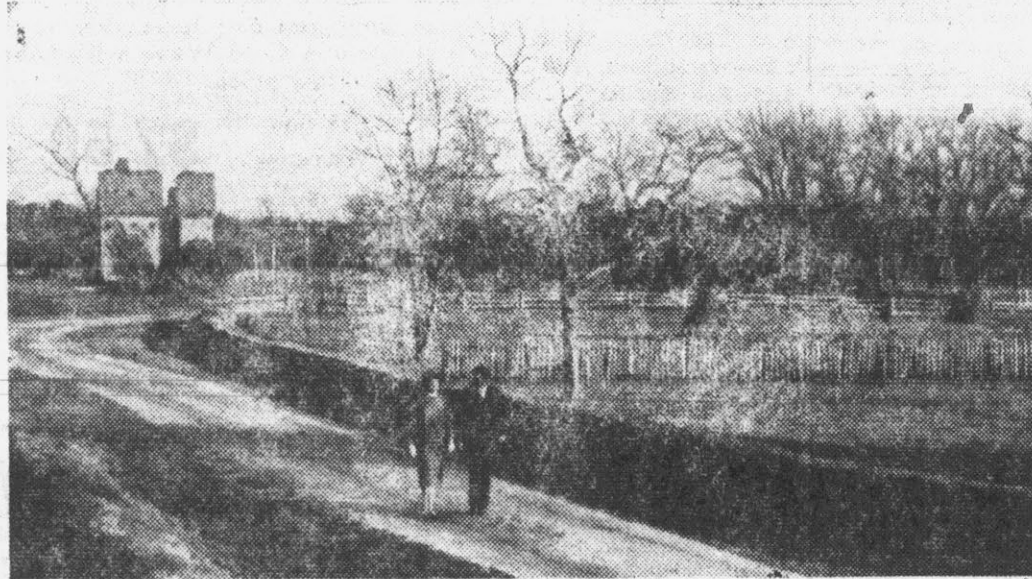

Lord Delaware arrives at Jamestown in 1610. His timely arrival with supplies prevented abandonment of Jamestown after the terrible winter of 1609-1610.

TODAY

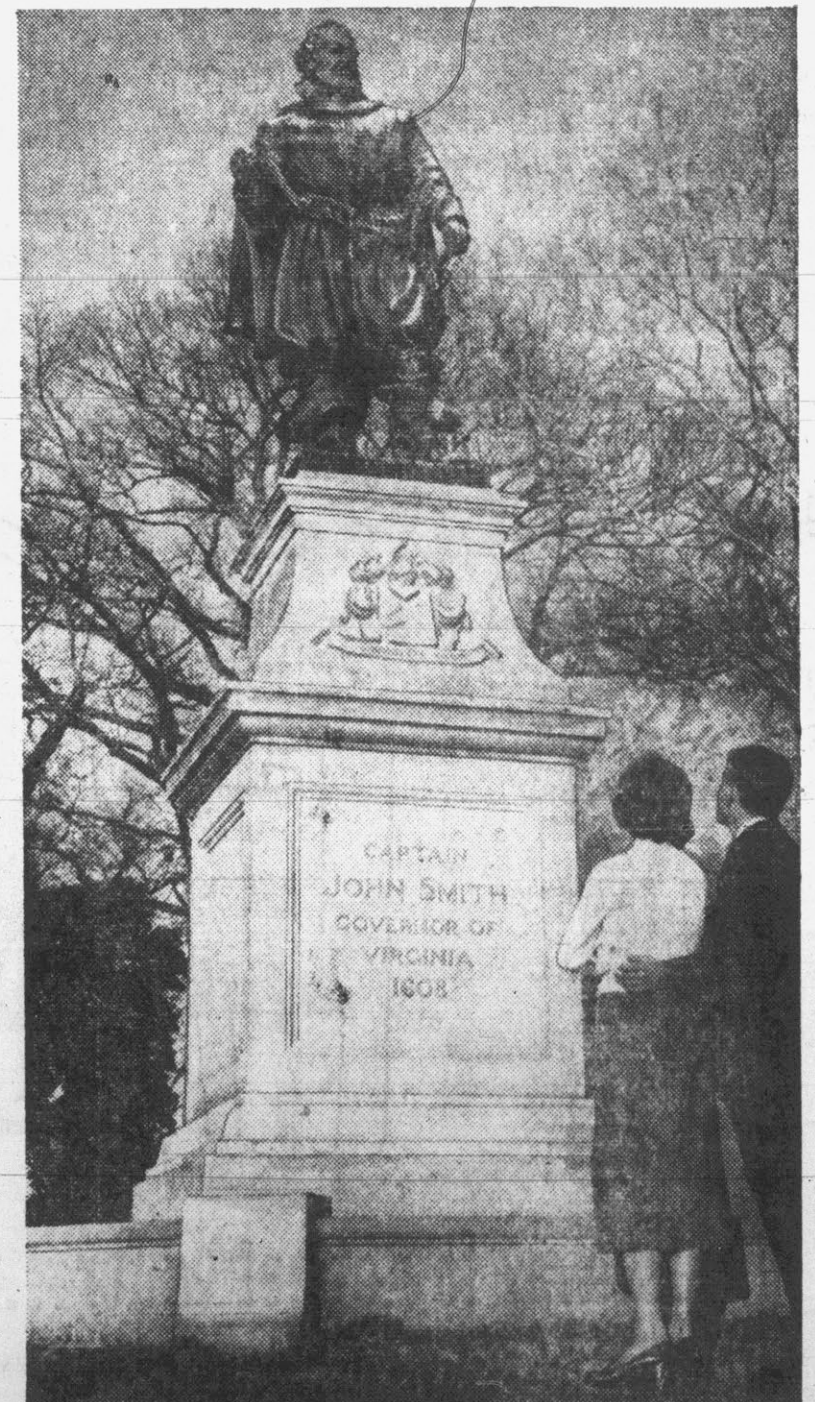

Students Julie Webber and Fred Aucamp, visiting Jamestown, look over replica of the "Susan Constant," the largest of the three ships that carried the settlers across the Atlantic in 1607.

The couple walk along street in "New Towne" section of Jamestown Island, now a national park. This was center of Jamestown in 17th century.

Julie and Fred peek in window of replica of Jamestown's first church, a thatched-roofed structure. It stands in Jamestown Festival Park.

The couple look at statue of Captain John Smith, leader of first English colony in Virginia.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Sugars and other selected issues made gains in an otherwise irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

The general pattern among key stocks was patchy. Gains and losses ran from fractions to a point, generally.

Sugars continued their rise yesterday on news of Russian buying. They were bolstered further today by reports Japan was in the market. The world sugar futures market was firm.

While steels continued to show effects of profit-taking after their leadership of this week's market rise, there were signs of a steady tendency.

Among the sugars, Cuban American, Great Western and West Indies gained fractionally.

In the steels, Lukens erased a loss of a point early in the session on profit-taking following this week's leap. U.S. Steel steadied. It was down 1 yesterday. Bethlehem and Republic Steel, however, were easy.

In the mixed motor group, Chrysler advanced about a point but General Motors took a small loss. Ford and Studebaker-Packard eased.

New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad and Southern Railway were among the losers in the rail division. Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio held firm.

Royal Dutch dropped a point or so. Gulf Oil showed a little change. Sinclair was off a fraction. Chemicals showed small gains. Du Pont, American Cyanamid and Allied Chemical rose fractions. Utilities were unchanged to lower but American Telephone managed a fractional advance.

Loew's was ahead around a point. It met some demand early following a denial of a published report that a group was about to buy control of the company in order to liquidate certain assets.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents to $178.00 with the industrials up 30 cents, the rails down 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices steady to 50 higher. All They Have Is Hole In The Yard

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. — One fact emerged today amid the debris and confusion at the Oscar Murphy home: there is a 15-foot hole in the back yard.

That's about all that is certain after two days of strenuous digging activity by Army Ordnance crews.

The Army, without ever quite knowing what it was looking for, yesterday called off the search that began Tuesday when the Murphy's 10-year-old son Pat found a strange hole two feet deep behind the house.

Shortly before the hole was discovered residents of suburban San Gabriel and surrounding communities had been jarred by a deafening blast, apparently caused by a jet plane breaking the sonic barrier.

While Air Force intelligence officers maintained a knowing, tight-lipped silence, Army demolition experts ripped up the Murphy's patio and clothes line poles.

When the two-foot hole had become a pit 7-by-7-by-15 feet and only a broken baby carriage had been unearthed, the digging was halted.

"If there's anything down here, it won't hurt anything if it does explode," said one officer.

The hole is being filled in today. The patio and the clothes line poles are being restored.

Flag Presented To City Council

The American Legion Post and Ladies Auxiliary presented an American flag to the City Council last night to be used at Greenwood Cemetery.

The flag is to be flown on a pole erected last year by the American Legion. It stands on a plot of land used for burial of veterans.

Sam Whitehurst and the Rev. H. Glenn Haney appeared before the council to present the flag. Dr. Raney presented it to Mayor W. L. Whedbee "in behalf of the post and auxiliary."

In accepting, Mayor Whedbee said: "I consider it a great honor and a privilege to accept from you this flag."

"Some people say that it is only a symbol, and it is only a symbol. But likewise the cross is a symbol."

The group requested that the flag be flown properly and they presented a booklet setting forth rules for proper handling of the United States flag.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll Scheduled To Address Church Women In May

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of the Elementary Schools of Greenville, will address the church women of this city at their annual May Fellowship meeting on May 3. This announcement was made by Mrs. James Keel, chairman of Christian Relations Committee, at the spring meeting of the Executive Board of the Greenville Council of Church Women when it met on Thursday morning at the First Presbyterian Church. It was also stated that the theme for May Fellowship is "Free Schools in a Free America." The luncheon will be held at St. James Methodist Church at 12:00 noon.

Mrs. Helen Sermons, president of the local council, presided over the business session, at which time she welcomed the women of the Lutheran Church into the membership of the Greenville Council of Church Women. The board voted to hold an interdenominational mission study class during the coming year and also to sponsor a year-around family welfare service project.

The board meeting attended by representatives from nine churches was opened with a devotional by Mrs. Leonard Topping and closed with the saying of the benediction.

Little, all officers of the camp.

Co-Chairmen Named For Local Co-operative School

Dr. Frank Longino and Dr. Woodrow Flanary will serve as co-chairmen of the Greenville Co-operative School for the 1957-58 term.

Their appointments were announced Wednesday by Mrs. J.E. Waltz, retiring president, at a meeting of Cooperative School parents. Dr. Longino will direct the school's Administration Section and Dr. Flanary will head the Testing and Education Guidance Section.

Dr. Longino also announced that Miss Elizabeth Wilson will be the school's teacher during the 1957-58 term. Miss Wilson, a native of Greenville and a graduate of East Carolina College, has been teaching in the public schools for the past 15 years and is currently employed in Bethel.

The Cooperative School was established two years ago as a non-profit organization for children who were ready for school, but not eligible for public school because of age regulations.

City Superintendent of Schools J. H. Rose endorsed the Cooperative School in comments made at Wednesday's meeting. He said it had been his feeling for many years that children mentally ready for school should be able to go if at all possible. He also said that he felt the policy of testing prospective students in the Cooperative School eliminated the possibility of pushing a child beyond his capabilities.

"The tests are comprehensive enough to give a true indication of the child's readiness," Rose added, "and only those children ready by ready are accepted." He stated that children who are accepted for the school could be sent through various pre-school clinics now being held in Greenville.

Testing will begin June 4 by Dr. Hazel Taylor of the Psychology Department and Dr. Flanary of the Education Department of East Carolina. The two will administer mental maturity, hearing, eye, reading readiness and dominance tests. Scheduling of the tests will be Dr. Longino and the board.

Registration fee for the school will be $25, of which $10 will be returned if the child is not eligible for entry. Otherwise, the $10 will be applied to tuition. The other $15 in the registration fee covers costs of testing each child.

Tuition for the school will be $15 per month for the nine-month session. Term and vacations will coincide with those of public schools in Greenville. Class hours will be 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Parents desiring further information about the school are asked to contact Dr. Longino at telephone 4520 or Mrs. Robert Forney at 7008.

Preparations In Final Stages

Preparations for the Passion Play moved into high gear last night when cast members and stage crew moved into the Wright Building on the East Carolina College campus. Last night, stage crew members began preparing scenery for the Sunday, Monday and Tuesday night productions of the play while (in the background) members of the cast reviewed their lines. Now A Seal

The city has an official seal as the result of City Council action last night.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam told the councilmen that the idea of a seal was originally conceived by City Clerk H. H. Duncan. The city clerk has been studying appropriate designs for some time, he said.

The seal has been in use unofficially for some months.

Mayor W. L. Whedbee expressed thanks to Duncan for his work on the seal.

"I think he deserves to be complimented for his work on it," the mayor declared.

Milder Weather Reaches Area

The weather moderated in the Greenville area during the last 24 hours. Lowest temperature last night was 56 degrees, in contrast to Tuesday night's low 40s and light frost. At noon today the temperature here was 72 degrees.
