Fields Are Prepared For Spring

Senate OKs $41 Millions For Post Office Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate quickly passed and sent back to the House today a money bill carrying 41 million dollars to restore normal postal services. The Senate took up the measure as soon as it met today and passed it by voice vote without any debate. The Senate Appropriations Committee had approved it unanimously at a 10-minute session shortly before. The senators did not take the opportunity either to lambast or defend Postmaster General Summerfield. The House spent several hours doing so yesterday afternoon before passing the measure. The administration had asked for 47 millions to carry the department through the remaining 2 1/2 months of this bookkeeping year, but Republican congressional leaders said President Eisenhower is willing to settle for the 41 millions voted by the House yesterday. They reported that after the weekly legislative conference at the White House, saying Eisenhower "recognizes the very practical problems involved." Chairman Hayden (D-Ariz.) of the Senate committee said he would try to call the measure up early this afternoon for expected quick passage. However, the bill will have to go back to the House because the Senate Appropriations Committee added to it $300,000 for Senate investigations and other house-keeping items. That is all but certain to be only a formality, however, since neither branch questions such allotments for the other. The $800,000 for Senate activities was the only change made by the Senate committee. Eisenhower's attitude was outlined to newsmen by Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California and House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts after their regular Tuesday morning conference with Eisenhower. The call for emergency money to restore normal mail operations was discussed as the Senate made ready to act quickly on the 41-million-dollar appropriation measure approved by the House yesterday. Knowland told a news conference at the White House that he looks for the Senate to get the bill to Eisenhower's desk either tonight or tomorrow morning. In addition to the postal money, the bill passed by the House provides 481 million dollars for other purposes. Both Knowland and Martin expressed belief that the bitterness stirred up in Congress over the post office request for additional money and curtailment of mail deliveries last weekend won't jeopardize the administration's chance for winning congressional approval of an increase in postal rates. However, prospects for such a rate hike this year appear dim. The House sent the bill to the Senate by voice vote late yesterday after several hours of debate during which some of the lawmakers criticized Postmaster General Summerfield for ordering service curtailed. No effort was made in the House to increase the postal money to the 47 million dollars Summerfield has said he must have for the next 2 1/2 months. Two efforts to reduce it to 1 million were defeated decisively, one by a 121-12 standing vote and one by voice vote. It appeared that the Senate also would go along with the 41 million dollar figure. Several senators said they assumed that if the bill goes to Eisenhower today or tomorrow, the major postal service cuts already put into effect will be restored this Saturday.

Military Keeps Tight Rein On Jordan After Clean-Up

AMMAN (AP)—Bedouin troops and security police held Jordan under tight control today as the moderate new government got down to the hard work of restoring stability to the country. Its first job, following the hectic six-day Cabinet crisis from which King Hussein emerged with a decisive victory over extremist elements, will be to clean the Communists and their sympathizers out of key posts in the government and the army. Only two minor demonstrations were reported today. In Old Jerusalem, students and teachers staged a parade. Members of the Moslem Brotherhood waylaid them and, in a brief skirmish, a few persons were injured. The other demonstration took place in Nabulus. In Amman, leaders of leftist groups have been warned drastic action will be taken against them if they start trouble. The future of Maj. Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, 34-year-old chief of staff of the Jordan army, remained in doubt, informed sources said. Brig. Sadik Sharara, deputy chief of staff, is returning from London. Maj. Gen. Ali Hayar is acting chief of staff. Nuwar has officially been given 14 days leave, and later information available indicated he remains in Syria. He switched his loyalty during the crisis when it appeared the National Socialist part of Suleiman Nabulsi, whom Hussein ousted from the premiership last Wednesday, would be victorious. Whether Nuwar will be forgiven remains to be seen. (The Damascus newspaper Al Alam quoted Nabulsi, foreign minister in the new Cabinet, as saying in a telephone interview that Nuwar will resume his duties shortly. The general was in Damascus with five other high-ranking Jordanian officers. In Baghdad, Iraq's Parliament discussed foreign policy in secret session. Premier Nuri Said was reported to have spoken about re-

Score Victory

RALEIGH (AP)—Administration forces scored a victory in the Senate today by putting back on course a bill to separate the prisons system from the State Highway Commission. By a voice vote, the Senate adopted a minority report from its State Government Committee recommending passage of the measure strongly endorsed by Gov. Hodges. It already has been approved by the House. Adoption of the minority report brought the bill itself up for debate and final legislative actions on the Senate floor. Surprisingly, there was no call for a count of votes after the close voice vote which favored the minority report.

District Nurse Ass'n Endorses Nursing School

Members of District 20 of the North Carolina Nurses Association have officially endorsed the establishment of a School of Nursing for East Carolina College. A resolution passed by the group calls on the General Assembly to "approve legislation making available adequate funds to finance such a program, and to make appropriate provision for this program on a permanent basis." The resolution reads: "Resolved that whereas the acute shortage of nurses in Eastern North Carolina has become a very serious problem in providing competent nursing care, and that hospitals are greatly hindered in their efforts to furnish proper services to their patients. "Whereas the bill to provide appropriate funds for establishing a School of Nursing at East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C. has been presented to the North Carolina State Legislature, now in session, and that such a School of Nursing, if established, will help alleviate the critical shortage of nurses in Eastern North Carolina. "Now therefore be it resolved that the General Assembly of North Carolina be requested to approve the legislation making available adequate funds to finance such a program and to make appropriate provision for this program on a permanent basis." The resolution was signed by Mrs. Phyllis Martin president of the organization, and Miss Margaret Ray, secretary.

Sets Sights On Trading Stamps

RALEIGH (AP)—A state senator has leveled his sights on the trading stamp business as a source of additional revenue for North Carolina's general fund and the public schools. Sen. Edwin S. Lanier of Orange introduced a bill last night to increase the taxes on trading stamp dealers and to turn over to the state the value of unredeemed stamps for the benefit of the public schools. Lanier declared that the companies which sell trading stamps to merchants and operate redemption stores are "pilfering our family shoppers' pocketbooks and dragging their hands through our merchants' cash registers." "These trading stamp dealers," Lanier said, "are paying only a token privilege tax for the exorbitant profits they are making." He estimated the profits at 70 per cent. Under Lanier's bill, the state's privilege tax on each redemption store, where the stamps are exchanged for merchandise, would be increased from $200 to $600 per year. It also proposes that "100 per cent of the premium exchange money value" on unredeemed stamps be given to the state to help support the public schools. The bill would require a "substantial faithful performance surety bond" by the stamp sellers to "guarantee such payment to the state." Lanier estimated the value of unredeemed stamps at six million dollars a year. The bill would levy a 10 per cent trading stamp sales tax on each stamp dealer, a 2 per cent use tax on each merchant issuing trading stamps, and would allow each county to levy a $200 privilege tax on the county redemption store in the county. It also would permit each city to levy a $300 tax on each redemption store in its limits. Meanwhile, Sens. J. Benton Thomas of Hoke and Henry W. Jordan of Randolph introduced a bill to create a state board of examiners in psychology which would examine and license psychologists. The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to provide a uniform method of fixing the pay of state administrative officers. The state now fixed in varied ways, would be set by the governor with the approval of the Advisory Budget Commission.

Norway Shrugs Off Red Threat

OSLO (AP)—Norway has told the Soviet Union that membership in NATO is a vital part of Norwegian policy for obtaining peace and security and it has no intention of quitting the Western defense alliance. Moscow was given that word in reply to its threat that establishment of NATO guided missile and atomic weapon bases in Norway would bring atomic destruction in the event of war. The 2,100-word message from Premier Einar Gerhardsen was delivered in Moscow Saturday and made public here last night. Gerhardsen did not mention the possibility of NATO's equipping Norwegian forces with guided missiles and atomic weapons, but his letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin said Norway is carrying out its policy of not letting foreign forces be stationed on its soil in peacetime. Gerhardsen said Soviet warnings that Norway might, "as a consequence of her membership in NATO," be forced to have foreign forces or weapons stationed on her territory against her will "can only be due to a misunderstanding." "It is Norway's constitutional bodies which will at any time decide whether our country is exposed to a threat of attack," the Premier declared.

After Nearly 3 Years, Find Still

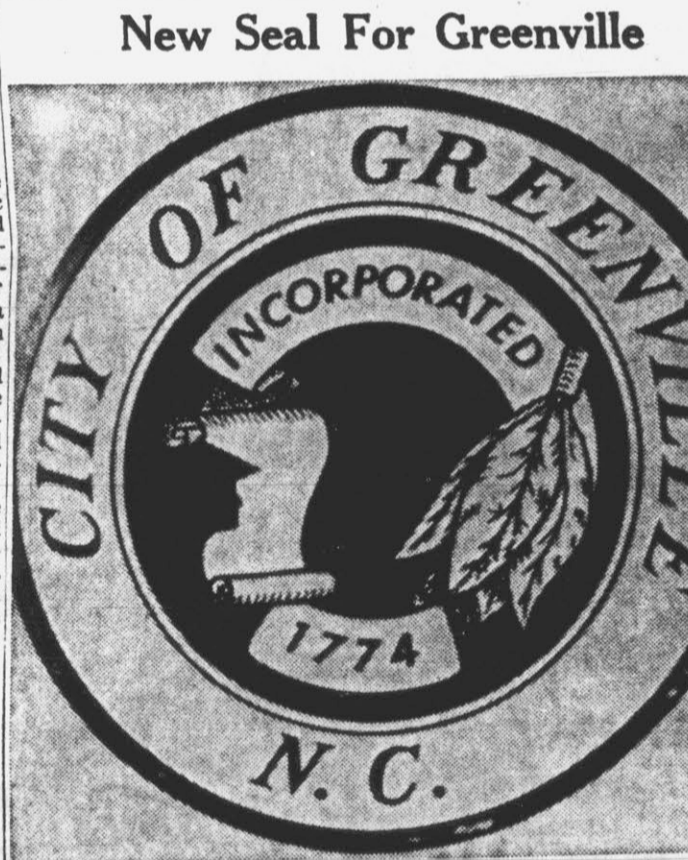

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—The "white ghost of Straight Creek" has been destroyed. But it took nearly three years to do it. The "ghost" is a 200-gallon still uncovered by officers Sunday on a small plateau near a mountain top in southeastern Kentucky. Officers said the still, described as the largest of its kind found in Harlan County, had been in operation some three years, defying efforts of police to find it. If the special tax is approved in the county-wide election, the commissioners will set up a 17-member industrial development group. Representatives to the development commission will include one from each of the county's 15 townships and two at-large members. One of the at-large members will be the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners. When it was originally drawn, the bill provided for a 12-member commission but the number was changed to 13 after Bethel residents protested that they were not included in the original plan of membership. County commissioners to amend the membership provisions to include at least one representative from each of the county's 15 townships.

Expected To Be Poor Dancers

BELLEFLOWER, Calif. (AP)—A woman dance instructor says women more or less expect all men to be poor dancers. "Some men dance beautifully," Toni Olivera observed, "but the average man is a bulldozer." "Some athletes are good dancers. Tennis and basketball players generally are good, but, by and large, football players are just plain murder."

Rigged Union Elections, An Appeal By Scranton Mayor Told To Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Paul Bradshaw, former Scranton, Pa., Teamsters official, testified today Scranton's Mayor James T. Hanlon asked him to "hold off" disclosures about other union officials until after an election. Bradshaw gave the testimony to the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee under questioning by Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.). It was not immediately clear what election he referred to, whether the city or some other election. "Has it been general knowledge in Scranton that the mayor approached you?" Goldwater asked. "No Sir," Bradshaw said. He said he told of the incident to Senate committee investigators and to J. Harold Brislin of the Scranton Tribune. Bradshaw, 36, a former boxer who said he now does odd jobs around Scranton, was convicted some time ago of implication in the dynamiting of a home being built by nonunion craftsmen. Since his conviction, he has been ousted as a steward of the Teamsters Union and has implicated other union officials in the dynamiting. Before his references to the mayor, Bradshaw told a story of beatings and rigged elections in the Scranton Local No. 229 of the Teamsters. Bradshaw, seeming a bit shy and embarrassed over his appearance before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, said that in a 1954 local union election he and others "voted six or seven times" to re-elect the local's incumbent officers. Bradshaw said he and other stewards of the local were instructed to cast their votes for J. C. (Pinky) Hart as the local's president and Bob Malloy, as business agent. "We had quite a bit of extra receipts," Bradshaw testified. The receipts represented dues payments and eligibility to cast ballots. "They were passed around among the boys. We voted six or seven times and we were supposed to vote for Pinky Hart and Bob Malloy. They were both elected." "We expect to develop in these hearings what may be a classic example of the use of force and violence in labor-management relations," said Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) in a statement prepared for the start of the hearings before a special Senate committee which he heads. He predicted the testimony will show "terror tactics" by some labor union officials against members of their own unions as well as against employers in the Scranton area. Committee sources said one phase of the hearings will deal with conversations recorded secretly by Helen Canfield, 27, a pretty dark-haired divorcee, and her friend Paul Bradshaw, in an effort to show that Bradshaw is innocent of dynamiting charges. The recordings were made after Bradshaw was convicted on charges that in 1954 he dynamited a house under construction by a nonunion contractor. He still is awaiting sentence on the charge. Bradshaw, a onetime prize fighter and former Teamsters Union steward, is among the scheduled leadoff witnesses. Miss Canfield's story of how they "bugged" her apartment with hidden microphones and secret tape recorded conversations of other persons they contend are the real terrorists has been told in criminal trials in Scranton. But committee aides said the recordings, which may be used as evidence, never were played publicly before.

CITY SEAL—Above is pictured the city's new seal which was officially adopted by the Council last week. The one shown above will appear on the sides of city vehicles. The official stamp to be used on papers will include the word "Seal" in the outer circle.

A Five-Year-Old Idea Takes Shape

A seal which highlights tobacco and education has been officially adopted by city fathers. H. H. Duncan, Greenville's city clerk, decided in 1952 that the city should have an up-to-date seal. He studies seals of several cities and in particular the Great Seal of North Carolina. Then he discussed the matter with K. A. Conway, a designer. Conway designed the seal and Mrs. R. B. Starling contributed to the completion of it. Duncan says the seal was designed to "depict the great Bright Leaf tobacco industry of our city and Pitt County." It is represented on the seal by the hand of golden leaf. "The City of Greenville's educational advantages—our good city school system and East Carolina College, in which we take such great pride, was portrayed by the designer with a diploma scroll and a figure dressed in an academic cap and gown," the city clerk points out. Beneath the scroll and tobacco hand appears the date 1774—the year Greenville was established. Duncan presented the seal to the City Council at their meeting last week. It was adopted and officially became the seal of the City of Greenville.

The bill had been requested by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Disillusioned, But Not Down

RENO, Nev. (AP)—American Cancer Society officials here were somewhat disillusioned today, but they weren't down. Saturday, they put coin collection boxes on a number of downtown parking meters. Officials confidently predicted nobody would disturb the boxes. More than 30 of the boxes had been cut open and their contents stolen by yesterday. But society officials said they would leave the remainder boxes in place.

Easter Hats Are Plain Or Fancy

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

This is the year when there's an Easter hat to suit every woman's type and whimsy, says Fred Fredericks, millinery designer for the upper crust.

His spring collection includes hats big and little, flowery and tailored, plain and fancy. Says he: "Whatever you do, be decisive. If you're the tailored type, wear a daring, dashing, big-brimmed hat with no trimming at all except a band. If you go for glamor, go all-out, and wear a whole garden of flowers on your hat-brim. Both types will be seen this Easter, and both will be effective, if worn with assurance, and the right costumes."

Though big hats still are rampant throughout the land, the little woman who doesn't want to be overpowered by her headgear can find a hat scaled to her dimensions. There are small, head-hugging cloches and trim pill boxes for the petite, dashing cartwheels for the king-size glamor girls. Those who don't like the inverted flower-pot worn flush with the eyebrows will find many flattering off-the-face styles this spring. And those whose hair is in that unhappy growing-out stage will have a wide choice of deep-crowned hats that cover the hair.

Pick the hat that suits you best—but be sure to pick something. For this year it's old-hat to go hatless.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thirty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to FORTIFY and STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAIID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAIID's great moisturiz-ing capacity, plus COLONAIID's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAIID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAIID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions. It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAIID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAIID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98¢ for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2¢ per tablet.

Clearly Some Accounting Is Due

Judging by reports of the huge stacks of mail which piled up at post offices around the country during the week-end, Postmaster General Summerfield didn't save the taxpayers any money by his sharp curtailment of mail service.

He didn't save the mail clerks any time, and so far as we can see about all he succeeded in doing is delay mail service to millions of taxpaying Americans.

House action to give the Post Office Department another $41 million dollars, and anticipated concurring action by the Senate promises to alleviate the immedi-

Point To Be Decided On Its Merits Alone

Senate approval of the bill to separate the Highway Department and Prisons should be forthcoming despite the adverse committee action which developed unexpectedly last week.

The separation of the two government agencies should be decided on its merits—not upon the whims of a few politicians and members of the legislature who may not approve what Gov. Hodges is doing and trying to do.

If the matter is decided on its merits, the Senate will have no trouble mustering the necessary votes to accept the minority report of the Senate Government Committee rather than the majority report which looked with disfavor on the bill.

It has been apparent for a number of years that the state government would function better if the prisons system and the highway department were made separate agencies of government. To be sure they will have to cooperate, and they may even work together in some instances, but that is true of each and every government agency. By separating the two, North Carolina stands to gain both a better prisons system and a more efficient and smoother working highway department. It can profit greatly by both.

Certainly this matter now before the Senate should not degenerate between a pro-administration and an anti-administration fight. It is a matter which should be resolved in the best interest of the people of North Carolina. And the best interest of the people of this state will be served by a separation of these two agencies of the state government.

ate problem—keeping the postal service going. But these appropriations alone will not alleviate what appears to us a more serious problem which must be coped with.

Postmaster General Summerfield knew at the beginning of the current fiscal year how much money was appropriated to operate the Post Office Department. With proper management the Post Office Department could have been operated within the financial scope set forth by Congress in its appropriations. Apparently that proper management was lacking. Summerfield saw fit to come to Congress and practically dare them not to hand over the additional money he demanded for the last three months of this fiscal year. He went so far as to seriously curtail the mail service.

What is to keep the same thing from happening again next year? What is to keep the same thing from happening at any given time?

Though Congress is disposed to appropriate the additional millions for the remaining months of the fiscal year, it should not stop there. It should call on Summerfield to answer for the poor management of the Post Office Department during the current fiscal year. It should not allow Summerfield to get by with what the Comptroller General has called violation "in spirit" of the anti-deficiency law designed to prevent overspending by federal agencies.

Congress should go still another step. It should call on the General Accounting Office to determine why the Post Office Department was allowed to overspend its appropriation without the matter being called to the urgent attention of Congress and higher levels of the administration.

The Eisenhower Administration apparently is not going to take any action in this Post Office Department or that of any other administrative division of the government which spends too much money. It therefore becomes a matter for Congress. And Congress should see that something is done. After all, taxpayers look to their Congressmen as their immediate representatives in the federal government. They expect members of Congress to keep a careful eye on waste to prevent the squandering of tax dollars.

Unenthusiastic Over Bond Issue

By LYNN NISBET
BONDS — The current Legislature is not enthusiastic about authorizing bond issues for any purpose without a vote of the people, and there is some reluctance to approve popular voting for debt. Revenue bonds which do not pledge full faith and credit of the governmental unit issuing them, but which unavoidably involve the good name of the issuing unit, also are unpopular.

There appears small chance that the Assembly will issue the $10 million bonds proposed by Governor Hodges for permanent improvements, replacing the part of the surplus originally earmarked for the purpose but diverted to school teacher and employee salaries.

Four and two years ago there was considerable interest in revenue bonds for the construction of super highway toll roads. The Federal interstate plan knocked that idea in the head. Advocates of revenue bonds, with or without the backing of full State faith and credit, to construct toll bridges across the Alligator and Cape Fear rivers are meeting cooler reception as the session advances.

Despite the keen interest in promoting industrial development several proposals for county or municipal revenue bonds to provide industrial sites for prospective business are having a tough time. Early in the session the Rowan delegation got a bill through the House authorizing Rowan County or any municipality in it to issue bonds for industrial construction, the plant to be leased to a private firm and the bonds retired out of rental payments.

A few days later the Robeson delegation obtained House approval of a similar measure for their county. By the time these bills got to the Senate the Local Government Commission woke up to the potential damage they might do State and municipal credit, and the bills were stopped in the Senate Finance Committee where they now repose.

RED LIGHT — Edwin Gill, State treasurer and director of local government, and W. E. Eastler, the active administrator of the Local Government Commission, turned the red light against the bills. They argued convincingly that even though it was written on the face of the bonds that they do not involve the public credit, the very fact they are issued by a county or municipality unavoidably places responsibility on that unit to protect investors.

Furthermore, the tax-exempt provisions of the bonds and income derived from them would tend to jeopardize the tax-free status of all municipal bonds. Tax exemption features have enabled the State and its subdivisions to sell bonds at very attractive rates. There was the further argument that the Rowan-Robeson plan came dangerously close to violating the constitutional ban against using public credit for private profit.

The Board of Conservation and Development, the agency primarily charged with promoting industrial development, is on record opposing tax concessions or other gratuities by governmental units. The C&D folks have wholeheartedly endorsed the Business Development Corporation sponsored by Governor Hodges, and similar private capital promotional organizations in various sections of the State. Assistance is offered local Chambers of Commerce in securing new industry, but without special hand-outs at taxpayer expense.

It is the policy of the State of North Carolina to maintain fair laws for all business enterprises, to encourage the investment of private capital by citizens in sound business—perhaps sometimes to venture into risk capital investments—but not to permit the use of public credit or the investment of tax money for purposes primarily intended to make a profit for a few individuals.

CHAMPIONS — Champion introducer of bill in the Senate is Sen. Linsford Crew of Halifax. In the House honors were divided with Reps. Joe Hunt and Clyde Shreve of Guilford tied.

Senator Crew's name appeared on 30 of the 311 bills offered in the Senate, through last week. Reps. Hunt and Shreve signed 40 of the 725 House bills. Runners up in the House were the other two Guilford representatives, Ed Kemp and Tom Turner, with 33 each. Rep. Addison Hewlett of New Hanover has his name on 25 bills.

Sen. Calvin Graves of Forsyth with 27, Sen. Pat Cooke of Gaston with 26, and Sen. Seavy Carroll of Cumberland with 23 are in the top row for Senate introductions. Complete analysis has not been made of the statewide and purely local aspects of the bills, or of individual sponsorship. It is believed that the majority of statewide bills had multiple signatures, and a good many of them stemmed from commission study or administration requests. It is also true that a majority of the local bills affecting counties with two or more representatives were signed by all the members. That explains the dominance of the Guilford delegation.

For purely local individual introductions Sen. Carroll is perhaps the champion on his side of the capitol. In the House the honors are probably distributed among Reps. Addison Hewlett, Clifton Blue of Moore and Marcellus Buchanan of Jackson.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LIFE IS GOOD
Big money for prize fighters and for wrestlers; starvation salaries for teachers; Millions for Hollywood stars; twenty-five hundred a year for missionaries! Fabulous prizes for answering a few questions on TV; hard work and more than a fifty-fifty chance of bankruptcy in building up a modest business over four decades!

Is it fair? Well, that's the way it is anyway — fair or not fair. As long as we keep questioning the justice of this life, we can be sure that we shall get very little out of it. The way to get something out of life is to start to live it. Some people don't see this and take to alcohol. Others get the dope habit. The vast multitude of discontented people just sit around chewing their pills and being even more miserable than the devil himself could make them. They are their own worst devil. They keep crying, "It isn't fair! It isn't fair!" and life, which is hard at best, gets so rough that the going becomes almost impossible.

The justice of life, as we have to live it, is something for God to worry about — not for us. We can do nothing about it anyway. But one thing we can do to live. And when we live — every day — right up to the hilt — behind this thing called life suddenly becomes glorious — a thing of joy and of indescribable beauty.

Typical Easter Season Scene

Hot Off The News Beat

Attorney Lewis G. Cooper appeared before the City Council last week in behalf of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

He was asking that a new franchise be approved since the old one expires this year. The expiring franchise ran for 20 years, Cooper said, but in general most municipalities were granting 30 year franchises now and he asked that the new permit run for 30 years.

One councilman pointed out that 30 years was a long time in this fast moving age.

"Would you feel bad if you got 20 years instead of 30?" Cooper was asked.

No, the attorney said, anything the council did would be all right.

However, he added: "I'd feel like the boy they sent to the mill to get two bags of corn and he didn't get but one."

When the laughter died down there were no further questions by the councilmen and the franchise was passed — for the 30 year period.

At the same meeting a public hearing was held on the question of annexing a small area just east of the city limits.

As usual Mayor W. L. Whedbee asked: "Is there any objection to this move from those in the audience?"

None of the four persons still in the audience let out a peep.

Of course there was a reason. They were, from left to right: the fire chief, the police chief, the assistant city clerk and the superintendent of public works.

For those who haven't yet seen the Passion Play this year there is still time to attend the last performance tonight in Wright Auditorium at 8 o'clock. The play which is presented by the Protestant churches of the county, draws its audiences from all over eastern North Carolina.

With the experience gained by participants each year, Pitt County's Passion Play could grow to become one of the outstanding religious productions of the nation.

Much depends on support of local persons.

The Reflector received a card in the mails this morning: "Please ask whoever is responsible for selecting the serial story that you run in your paper to please select something besides a war story or detective story."

"The last three or four that you have printed were meant for men only and I don't believe many men read serials. So how about one for the ladies now?" The card was signed "A lady subscriber."

We're always glad to hear from our readers, of course, and we immediately checked to see what's upcoming in the continued story line.

When the war story currently being published is completed, what's next for publication? A detective story.

Today's column was prompted by this intriguing note from News Editor Don Schlenz: "At the sound of the chime its column time."

Contest Judge Tells All

By EDWARD S. KITCH
CHICAGO (AP)—So you submitted "25 words or less" the most sublime description imaginable of why your favorite products should sweep the country, but the jury overlooking the Rivera went to someone else. Why? Did the winner have an inside pull with the sponsoring company?

The answer is absolutely not, according to A.M. Anderson, a 57-year-old vice president of Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. who supervises the judging of about 80 per cent of the national contests conducted in the United States each year.

Last year Donnelley "executives" in Los Angeles, Chicago and Mt. Vernon, N.Y., judged some 300 contests involving 50 million entries and five million dollars in prizes. The firm collects 4 1/2 cents for each entry it handles.

The contest judging operation requires some 300 experts. Most judges are college graduates. Virtually all have had some college training, Anderson says.

Are all entries really read and judged? They are. Winning entries, Anderson adds, are judged at least four times.

Mechanized Operation
Entries are machine-opened. As many as 250,000 letters are handled in one eight-hour shift. Clerks remove the entries from envelopes and make sure that boxtop or label, if required, is submitted with the entry.

All entries are then carefully reviewed by a qualified board of primary judges. They use check-sheets based on the rules of the contest. Before any potential winning entry is eliminated, it is carefully considered by a supervisory board of junior judges.

A board of senior judges then reviews all potential winners and passes the highest-rated ones to a group of executives for final selection of the winners.

Contestants themselves often interfere with a smooth-running contest. They try to call attention to their entries with elaborate decoration. Every contest involving cakes brings hundreds of cakes. Others fashion three-dimensional cutouts, handpainted plaques, embroidered tablecloths, booklets, folders and holders.

But all these efforts are wasted. They do not influence the judges, Anderson says. The entry is judged on its own merits.

Expert Advice
His advice to contestants is: (1) Follow the rules as closely as possible, (2) submit sincere and original entries, and (3) if you should not have the good fortune to win, lose graciously and not be a poor sport.

When it comes time to pick the big winner, the only investigation made, says Anderson, is to determine if the entrant is eligible, since employees or sponsors usually are not.

Many so-called experts peddle ready-written entries to unsuspecting contestants. The Donnelley judges laugh these off because they have learned to spot them on sight.

Anderson also recommends common sense to contestants. One entry read like this: "I'm glad I use Dial. I find fashions a bore With my skin in high style, I can ignore Dior." This catchy verse had humor; was apt, but lost out because it recommended nudism.

Other Editors Saying --- Moravian Easter Service

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
Every man owes it to himself to attend at least one Moravian Easter sunrise service at Winston-Salem. The man of feeling will find in that service an elevation of soul. I think the man of cloddish reflexes even will find himself strangely moved.

It has been a full ten years since I attended the service, but my recollections of that resurrection morn are as clear as if it were yesterday. Easter was in April that year and the dark night was pierced only by flickering stars as I awoke at the Robert E. Lee Hotel. Through the window came the sound of a strange sweet music. The music of trumpets, played with softness and with confident joy. From far out in one direction of the city in the other direction the refrain was answered as if by echo. The effect on the spirit was marked in its calming and soothing.

It was the music of the bandmen of the church who train for this one glorious morning.

One dressed hurriedly and descended to the street. The Easter or Sunday silence is broken only by the antiphonal music now here and now there, and by the sounds of multiplied hundreds of feet moving toward the church and the old cemetery, the city of the equal dead. You join your group, and you speak in a lower key. The feeling of the miracle is upon you and to shout loudly or boisterously would be a sacrilege.

From every point of the compass reverent crowds are moving toward the church. You still are a long way off when your going is all but stopped by the solemn throngs about you.

As the first streaks of dawn appear in the east, the Bishop appears from the church, majestic of mien. He intones the ritual which has served men of Moravia even from the days in Europe:

"The Lord is risen."
And the great multitude raises its voice as one and with full confidence replies: "The Lord is risen indeed."

The ancient ritual is complete and the throng moves with the Bishop and the bands to the City of Equal Dead. There every man has the same simple marker at his grave. The women have come the day before and on hands and knees with water and soap they have washed each headstone clean.

An early spring shower begins to fall. The throng scatters for shelter but without the shouts of escape which usually go up when rain hits a big crowd. The spirit of the hour is upon them.

Queen's Visit Is Badly Tangled

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The prospective visit of Queen Elizabeth to the United States to attend the Jamestown Festival has become entangled in politico-economic and diplomatic difficulties arising from the Middle East crisis and its aftermath. Several unsolved problems have been raised on both sides of the water because of her unique status.

Both the White House and 10 Downing Street recognize that there exists a mutual understanding of resentment over recent British and American policies. This feeling has been sharpened rather than allayed by the Eisenhower-Macmillan meeting at Bermuda, as well as by Her Majesty's recent ceremonial voyage to France.

There is a suspicion on Capitol Hill, as well as in England, that neither the President nor the Prime Minister told all in reporting the problems and decisions which they had under consideration. It is generally believed, in view of Macmillan's subsequent deviousness to cut both his defense forces and taxes, that Ike may have granted too many concessions. British people have a completely contrary reaction.

INVASION OF EGYPT RANKLES
The Anglo-French invasion of Egypt, which was launched in the face of Eisenhower's last-minute protests, has not been forgotten or forgiven on Capitol Hill. In Congressional opinion, the real loser in that unfortunate affair was the United States.

It antagonized the Arab world against us as well as the French and British. It brought us into sharp conflict with Russia in a remote and dangerous area. It has forced us to assume new and costly commitments at a time when Congress winces under demands for cuts in the budget and in taxes.

DEPENDENT ON U.S. PROTECTION
And yet, quite undiplomatcally, Macmillan chose this post-Bermuda moment to cut down military forces at home and abroad, and to proclaim openly that Britain would depend upon the United States for defense. This sentence in Whitehall's recent White Paper has caused caustic comment on Capitol Hill: "The free world today is mainly dependent for its protection upon the nuclear capacity of the United States."

To make matters worse for the Queenly appearance, the Macmillan government also announced that it would reduce taxes by $274,000,000. From the standpoint of Anglo-American relations, such a statement could not have been made at a more inopportune time.

While the American budget has hit a peacetime peak, with $40 billion for defense and $4.4 billion for foreign military and economic aid, Britain finds it possible to grant relief denied to American taxpayers. The obvious Congressional conclusion is that Uncle Sam is paying the bill for Suez and subsequent costs.

METHOD IN ROYAL VISITS
It is against this background that Her Majesty's proposed visit must be weighed. Despite her popularity and attractiveness, it is journey to France or the United States simply to gaze at the Arc de Triomphe or the Washington Monument. Diplomatic necessities and high affairs of state are always associated with a British ruler's voyages abroad.

Thus, there is a strong suspicion that a trip to the United States and Canada, like her journey to France, will be designed to appease and placate us—in short, to persuade us to accept with better grace the sacrifices which British policies have imposed upon us. It is largely in moments of crisis that Buckingham royalty comes to this country.

Elect New Officers Of Student Council

By ANNE HARRIS
 Belvoir-Falkland Reporter
 Dorothy Harris will serve as president of the Belvoir-Falkland Student Council during the 1957-1958 school year.

She was selected in a secret balloting by BFHS students Monday, and her election was the only one in the Student Council voting that did not require a run-off. Other officers who were selected in a special run-off Tuesday were vice-president James Joyner, secretary Barbara Parker, treasurer Arthur Gwaltney and reporter Linda Smith.

The 24 candidates for the Student Council officers presented campaign speeches Monday morning prior to the actual voting.

A dramatic presentation of North Carolina history was made Friday by eighth grade students. Under direction of Mrs. Randolph Fleming, the students' program included highlights of state history and was presented to the entire student body.

Future Homemakers of America held their annual Mother-Daughter Banquet Friday night, April 12, at a Greenville restaurant. President yall Garris presided as mistress of ceremonies and extended a greeting to F.H.A. members and their parents. Nellie Gwaltney gave the official welcome to the banquet.

Mrs. Maggie McLawhorn responded to the welcome for the mothers who were attending. Gloria Rackley entertained with an Easter story before the meal was served.

A program designed to effect a better understanding of FHS and its purposes was presented by Iris Smith, Brenda Windham, Linda Smith, Margaret May, Lila Garris, Barbara Parker, Barbara Bullock, Marie Harrell and Deanie Eakes.

Belvoir-Falkland students received report cards Wednesday to officially end the school's fifth marking period. Thirteen students wound up with all A's on academic subjects and all Honor grades on their conduct to make the Honor Roll.

In addition, 61 other students were placed on the Principal's List for making grades that included at least half "A" grades and the remainder "B" on other academic, and either Honor or Satisfactory grades on conduct.

Honor Roll students included (first grade) Ginger Lewis; (second grade) Carol Lewis; (fourth grade) Becky Sue Harris, Patsy Jo Teel and Rodney Tyson; (sixth grade) Steve Little, Elizabeth Boyd and Harriette Turner; (seventh grade) Joyce Boyd, Linda Clark, Donald Mills and Melvin Nelson; and (tenth grade) Alice Laughinghouse.

Principal's List students included (first grade) Jimmy Halton, Patsy May and Jean Morris; (second grade) J. E. Warren, William Harris, Frances Powell, Marie Stalls, Yvonne Pollard, Peggy Lou Harris and Marlene Sutton; (third grade) Linda Kaye Stancill, Linda Joyner, Peggy Rose Wallace, Larue Nelson, J. P. Brewer, Thomas Clark, Donald Lewis, Roy Nelson, Sidney Scott and Danny Whitaker.

(Fourth grade) Linda Morris, Carol Peaden, Janice Whitaker and Mary Etta Cannon; (fifth grade) Linda Ann Freeman, Audrey Lee Harris and Carolyn Hathaway; (sixth grade) Mary Ann Tingen, Robert Cannon and Fay Brewer; (seventh grade) Joyce Strickland and Pauline Flake; (eighth grade) Edna Colville, Carolyn Harris, Betty Harrell, Patsy Mills, Shirley Spain, Nadine Garris and Joan Harris.

(Ninth grade) Ernest Lewis and Marie Harrell; (tenth grade) Nellie Gwaltney and Gail Garris; (eleventh grade) J. W. Pollard, Marie Waters, Jean Flake, Berchle Tripp, Sheila Wooten and Anne Harris; (twelfth grade) Patricia Allen, Linda Garris, Glorice Langston, Mary Laughinghouse, Joan Parker, Annie Mae Spain, Peggy Wallace, Joyce Waters, Shelby Harris, Joyce Jenkins, Wadie Lewis and Lois Whitely.

Clever, But It Didn't Hold Up

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)—Joe Williams, a junkyard employee, found a 1957 Kansas auto tag and a 1956 Arkansas truck tag and by clever cutting and patching came up with a pretty convincing version of a 1957 Arkansas truck tag.

Things went well until he carelessly parked the truck in a no-parking area. When the officer bent close to read the license plate in uncertain light the fake was discovered.

It cost Williams $125 for using a fictitious license.

 QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—Earl Conrad Ohnemus, 27, pleaded guilty in police court to the charge of assault and battery preferred against him by his estranged wife, June Ohnemus, after a ruckus when she refused to allow him to claim her as an income tax deduction. Mrs. Ohnemus claimed she receives no support from him and refused his request.

'Wolfpack' Slated Prowl Highways

By JEAN REILLY
(The Reflector Bureau)

RALEIGH — A wolfpack of highway patrolmen will prowl Tar Heel highways should certain pending legislation pass. Their prey? Speeders and racers and other automobile drivers endangering life and property.

No ordinary highway patrolmen these. They will be a technically trained and highly organized group of undercover men slipping in and out unseen until they pounce and that's it, brother. They'll have their evidence.

"That's why we call them a wolfpack," Senator Wilbur M. Jolly of Franklin said today.

"They'll roam the State in ordinary cars, perhaps a new red and white two-tone or a conservative black and they won't wear a uniform, but the clandestine racer will know when they flash a badge," he said. Time's up. That's it. Whether in the shadows of a moonlight night or broad daylight, these wolves will stalk their prey.

"After that? If proven guilty the racer will spend a mandatory 30 days in jail. Rich or poor, he'll have thirty days to think before he plans another race," Jolly said.

He could also lose his automobile, unless it belongs to his father and Dad had no pre-arranged knowledge of the race and can prove it. In some less affluent cases it could mean the family would be glad to ride around in an older model, somewhat less snappy than the new 1957 that hit the county auction block.

"This law is similar to the confiscation of concealed weapons," Jolly said. "Though not concealed, the automobile is admittedly a dangerous weapon in the hands of incompetent or careless drivers and should be treated as such."

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt said he considered the thought behind the bills introduced by Jolly and Rep. Edward Yarborough, also of Franklin, a good one.

"It's certainly an improvement over existing laws," he said. "Of course, we (the Department of Motor Vehicles) asked in our program that racing be made a felony. There are quite a few problems that would have to be ironed out of this bill, but it could be made workable."

Senator James Poyner of Wake was of the opinion that a felony charge for racing would be a sufficient deterrent.

Franklin and Wake Counties were the scenes of two fatal accidents, both attributable to racing, within little more than a week. The Franklin County wreck involved the death of a 15-year-old boy.

"I knew that boy well," Jolly said, "and a more industrious youth can't be found. We used to tell him he was going to make a fortune before he was twenty and I believe he would have too — if he hadn't been killed in a race," the senator added.

U. S. Seen Ready Allow Suez-Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is now about ready to allow American ships to pass through the Suez Canal under Egyptian terms—provided they do so under protest against Egypt's operating arrangements.

Top officials who disclosed this today predicted such a go-ahead to pay tolls direct to the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority.

The government move would void earlier State Department "advice" that American ships keep away from the canal until physical and negotiating hazards involved in reopening the waterway had been overcome.

Some American commercial ships are reported already approaching the canal, anticipating that the government will lift the ban within a few days even though Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser has refused to meet Western terms for operating the waterway.

The new American government attitude, officials said, would be made known about the time the Eisenhower administration officially informs the United Nations its confidential talks with Egypt have failed to yield a satisfactory settlement.

Such a report is expected to be made to the Security Council sometime this week. It will make clear the United States hope that further talks with Egypt will be held on the nine-month dispute which touched off fighting last October.

Although they have yielded little to the private U.S.-Egyptian talks have continued in Cairo. U. S. Ambassador Raymond Hare met for half an hour yesterday with Egypt Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi.

Responsible authorities said the American report to the U. N. Security Council would contend that Egypt has failed to live up to six principles it pledged to follow last September in negotiating differences with Western shipping nations.

They said Nasser has refused to agree to an arrangement which would insulate the operation of the canal from the politics of any single nation. This was one of the six principles Nasser agreed to follow.

It is understood the Eisenhower administration will continue to freeze some 37 million dollars in Egyptian government assets seized since Nasser grabbed the canal last Oct. 26.

These funds, it was said, would provide means of compensating American companies in event the old Suez Canal Co. successfully sues ships that use the waterway under Egyptian terms.

Egg Hunt

The Greenville Recreation Department will sponsor the annual city-wide Easter Egg hunt for local youngsters on Saturday, April 20 at 10 a.m.

Hunts will be staged at Elm Street Park for white children and Epkes Athletic Field for Negro children. Prizes will be awarded to the children finding the most eggs in three age groups and to those finding specially wrapped eggs.

It has been announced that there will be an Easter Basket Parade also, with a prize being awarded the boy or girl with the most attractive basket. All children are urged to decorate their own baskets and enter them in the contest.

The Boys and Girls Committee of the Kiwanis Club will give everyone at the Elm Street Park a free ride on the Kiwanis Train after the hunt.

In case of rain, the hunts will be held on Monday, April 22. Recreation officials stated this morning that the two hunts will begin at 10 a.m. at the same specified locations.

Slaying Father Ruled Justifiable

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — A frail, 12-year-old boy's slaying of his raging, threatening father was justifiable, a coroner's jury has ruled.

The jury yesterday cleared Hubert Lee Cain Jr. of responsibility in the Sunday shotgun death of his 31-year-old father at their Clearwater home after a family argument.

The boy did not testify at the inquest, but earlier had tearfully told officers his father had flown into a rage after church, threatened his mother and threatened him.

Aiken County Coroner James L. Gregory said "ordinarily, where adults are involved, we don't accept a verdict of this nature. However, in this case, I felt it best to leave the decision entirely in the hands of the jury."

Mrs. Cain told of her husband's spells of rage during which he would beat her unmercifully. There was no contradictory testimony.

During the Sunday argument, she said, Cain threatened to kill her and their children. The boy got the small-bore shotgun in an adjoining room and loaded it.

"If he's got that gun I'm going to kill him," she quoted her husband as saying.

"I didn't mean to kill him," officers quoted the boy, who said the gun went off as his father lunged for it. "I was so scared I didn't know what I was doing."

Luck Changed On His Bus Trip

ASHLAND, Va. (AP) — James Bergdoll, a senior at Randolph Macon College, reported his car stolen. He took a bus to Washington to participate in a discussion of the graduate school program at American University.

Near Fredericksburg, Va., he saw his car parked alongside U.S. 1. The bus driver obligingly waited 15 minutes while Bergdoll reported the find to State Police. The next day he stopped at Fredericksburg and recovered his car.

Found Too Many Freeloaders

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two Methodist ministers have dropped newspaper stories about church dinners — too many people read them.

The Revs. Oscar Magarian and A. G. Hardee said invariably "a bunch of strangers" show up after a notice of a free meal for the congregation and this free loading became a burden. Henceforth, they'll rely on less public communications.

Fourth Straight Victory Racked Up By Pirates

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina collected its fourth consecutive victory in four games here yesterday, dropping Appalachian State College 8-1 at College Field.

For the Pirates it was their fourth North State Conference win in eight days. Their loop record now stands at 4-1 and their overall mark is 6-2.

Bruce Shelley, a junior transfer from Campbell College, starting his first assignment for ECC, went the full distance and allowed only four scattered hits. The solid right-hander was in full control of the game all the way, striking out six Mountaineers, walking only one, and allowing no earned runs. The lone App tally came on a walk and an error by first base man Robbins.

Good Hitting
East Carolina whacked out 11 big hits to account for most of their scoring. Dean Robbins, freshman first base man from Lenoir, paced the way with three for four, including two long doubles. Berney Stevens, senior outfielder contributed two for four. Joel Long, Bucky Reep, and Gary Treon also placed base knocks. Shelley posted two hits himself to further his own cause.

The Pirates exploded in the bottom of the first inning, driving in five runs to grab the lead, and never felt an Appalachian threat after that. Robbins drove in two of those runs with a double and Treon and Shelley brought in the others.

Another Pirate run came in the fourth inning on a long sacrifice fly.

Again in the seventh frame, ECC tallied twice more. Berney Stevens' long double brought in the scores. Appalachian's only run came in the fourth inning on a walk and an error by first base man Robbins.

Leading man at the plate for the losers was Carl Montsinger, who posted two for four.

Bob Froneburger, a righthander, went all the way for the visitors on the mound, was touched for those 11 hits and walked four. It was his first loss of the season, as well as the first loss of the year for his club.

Again Wednesday
The same two clubs will meet at College Field again on Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 2:30. The second encounter was originally scheduled to take place today, but the date was altered to allow Appalachian to meet ACC tomorrow in a double header at Wilson.

Coach Jim Mallory, commenting on his team's play after the game, said, "The boys are looking good. They're hitting good and Shelley came through with a good ball game on the mound." He also stated that he expects to use sophomore Leonard Lilley Wednesday.

Big Boxer Under Suspension On Doctor's Advice

BOSTON (AP)—Ewart Potgieter, 7-2, 330-pound boxer from South Africa, was under suspension in Massachusetts today as a result of a doctor's plea that the young giant needs medical treatment.

Dr. Oscar Hirsch, who operated on the boxer for apertury gland condition affecting his eyesight last December, said Potgieter requires treatment "to assure he is cured for lifetime."

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission suspended Potgieter—and sent notice to other state commissions—when it was unable to locate the 24-year-old former farmhand from Vryheid, Natal.

Potgieter later was located at a motel in Vancouver, Wash., with his manager, Johan Eloff, who expressed surprise at the commission's action.

After being given a medical o.k., Potgieter made his U.S. boxing debut Jan. 14 in Holyoke, Mass. A group of 10 Boston doctors watched him drop a 10-round decision to Jeff Dyer of Springfield.

Potgieter then headed west to continue his ring career. He won two fights and then lost a 10-round decision to Johnny Holman of Chicago last week in Portland, Ore.

COMING IN LOW—Joel Long, ECC outfielder, is snapped by the camera as he digs into home plate in a low slide in yesterday's ECC-Appalachian contest at College Field. Long scored on a long fly by Berney Stevens. East Carolina won the game 8-1 behind the pitching of newcomer Bruce Shelley, bringing their North State record to 4-1. (Reflector Photos by Billy Arnold).

BIG STICK—Dean Robbins, freshman first baseman from Lenoir, wields a big stick for East Carolina. Yesterday, he whacked out two long doubles (above) and a single to pace the Buc batters to an 8-1 victory over Appalachian State. The two teams will meet here again on Wednesday.

Martinez Squad Will Meet ACC Thursday

Coach Raymond Martinez's ECC tennis team, currently riding the top of the North State Conference with a 3-0 record, will journey to Wilson Thursday for a loop tilt with Atlantic Christian College.

The match will be an important one for the Bucs. They remain the only undefeated team in the North State league at the present and must continue unbeaten to clinch the conference crown cleanly. Last season, the crown was split three ways between the Bucs, Guilford and High Point. ECC has already trimmed Guilford and Guilford has already dropped High Point. ACC is not actually in the running, but a victory over them would boost the Pirates' claims to the title.

Martinez plans to take his regular traveling six to Wilson Thursday. They are Maurice Everette, Billy Hollowell, John Savage, John West, Mike Katsias and James Blake. Everette is the North State's singles champion of last year and is making a strong bid to repeat.

Atlantic Christian, though they haven't been a serious contender for the conference crown during the past few years, is usually strong in the net sport. Back this year for duty are veterans Billy Wigdon and Chuck Hester.

Following the ACC match on Thursday, the Bucs will leave for their Florida road trip. On Saturday they will invade the College of Charleston in S. C. Then on Monday they will battle Stetson University. Tuesday they will tangle with Jacksonville Navy and Saturday they will journey to the Citadel for a return match with the Cadets who topped them 6-4 here last week.

GHS Playing

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Greenville high school's baseballers, undefeated in three ball games thus far this year, met the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets here today in a Northeastern Conference tilt.

Coach Boley Farley started sophomore righthander Merrill Bynum on the mound for the Greens. Bynum already has one victory to his credit, against no defeats.

The G-Men are currently leading the Northeastern loop, and were favored to take today's game.

Triple-Play Man Dies In Hospital

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP)—Ernest H. (Red) Padgett, who won major league baseball fame for an unassisted triple play in 1923, is dead at 58.

Padgett, who accomplished the triple play while playing for the Boston Braves against Philadelphia, died last night in East Orange Veterans Hospital.

Robin Roberts In 8th Starting Role

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

It happens every spring. Robin Roberts will be making his eighth consecutive appearance as the Philadelphia Phillies' season-opening pitcher tonight against Brooklyn's defending National League champions.

The 30-year-old right-hander, who missed 20 victories last season (19-18) for the first time since his first full year in the majors in 1949, has a 4-3 record for the previous openers.

The game at Connie Mack Stadium also will pair Robin with big Don Newcombe in a season opener for the third time. Newk's still trying to win an opener against Roberts.

Cleveland's Indians pulled a surprise by optioning Hank Aguirre and Bud Daley to their San Diego farm club in a last-minute move to trim their roster to the 28-player limit last night. It had been thought the two youngsters figured to hang around as additions to the Indians' youth movement behind veterans Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia.

The Tribe also sold outfielder Dave Pope to the Pacific Coast League club in the cutoff. Elsewhere, Washington shipped shortstop Jose Valdivielso to Indianapolis of the American Assn., and Kansas City sent catcher Bill Shantz (brother of Yankee pitcher Bobby Shantz) to Rochester of the International League. The Phillies optioned right-handed reliever Angelo Lipetri to Miami of the International, while the New York Giants packed catcher Bob Schmidt off to Minneapolis of the AA and placed pitcher Ramon Monzant on the restricted list.

Injury also has knocked some veterans out of today's opening games. PeeWee Reese, sidelined by a bad back, will miss his first opener since becoming the Dodgers' regular shortstop in 1941. Outfielder Jackie Jensen of the Boston Red Sox didn't make the trip to Baltimore, staying behind for some tests on his ailing back. Southpaw Mel Parnell is on the Red Sox disabled list with a bum arm.

Qualifying Play For Golf Tourney

Bob Masten shot a 35 on the tough new back side this weekend to go with his front side 38 for a one-stroke lead so far in the qualifying for the Greenville Golf and Country Club championship.

Molt Massey Jr. was on his heels with a 74, as was Lucian Bryan Jr. with a 75.

A total of 46 golfers have qualified thus far and about that many more are expected to do this week. Qualifying closes Sunday, April 21, at 6:00 p.m. At that time pairings for match play will be made. No qualifying scores can be accepted after that time.

Plans Announced For 4th ECC Summer Music Camp

East Carolina College's fourth annual Summer Music Camp will take place July 14-27. The event is expected to bring to the campus a large number of senior and junior high school musicians, as well as teachers of music. Those enrolled will participate in a full program of instruction in music and in a series of social and recreational activities. The summer music camps, begun at East Carolina in 1954 under the direction of Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the college department of music, have increased in popularity each season and have had as participants music students from schools in North Carolina and other states. More than 300 attended last summer. Dr. Cuthbert will direct the camp again this summer. A staff of twenty-six instructors will include members of the East Carolina department of music; band and orchestra directors in high schools in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia; teachers of music; and experienced personnel in major techniques and drum major routines. The camp program announced by Dr. Cuthbert includes instruction in band, orchestra, choir, theory, music literature, conducting, and piano. A number of students will enroll in workshops for majorettes and drum majors. Each camper will take part in two of the major camp organizations and activities. Those attending the camp will be housed in college dormitories and may have their meals in the college cafeterias. Recreation will be carefully planned and supervised. Among activities will be dancing, tennis and other sports, movies, songfests, and picnics. Music teachers who enroll in the camp may earn three quarter hours of college credit. Teachers not enrolling for credit may attend without tuition charge. Climaxing two weeks of work at the camp will be a concert by the camp band, orchestra, chorus, majorettes and drum majors. The event will be open to the public and will take place July 27 at 5 p.m. in the Flanagan Sylvan Theater on the East Carolina Campus.

Revenue Bureau Returned Dollar

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP)—An unidentified taxpayer got a dollar back from the Bureau of Internal Revenue even before officials saw his income tax return. The bureau said the mail brought this letter: "I had my 1956 income tax made out. Now I can't find it. I think I mailed it to you but do not remember for sure. Will you please write and let me know? Get yourself some cigar for looking this up. Thank you." Enclosed was one dollar. Officials returned the dollar with a note that tips cannot be accepted. They added they would look for the missing return when the files are brought up to date.

Hutson Leaves On World-Wide Tobacco Survey

WASHINGTON, D.C. — J. B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associates Inc., left by plane today for a 10-week trip around the world to take a look at the prospects for U. S. flue-cured tobacco in overseas markets.

Hutson will visit the top officials of cigarette manufacturing establishments, or Government Tobacco Monopolies in Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand, Burma, India, Italy, France, Western Germany, and Holland. Most of these countries represent important markets for U. S. flue-cured tobacco.

Hutson, whose job is to promote world markets for flue-cured tobacco, said he will make a study in each of these countries of the present trends in leaf consumption, paying special attention to the various factors affecting the importation and consumption of U.S. flue-cured leaf.

He will also check on the status of market development projects, now being carried out in several of these countries, which are joint undertakings of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U. S. tobacco trade in this country, including Tobacco Associates, and the trade in each of the participating foreign countries. Tobacco Associates has played an active role setting up and supervising the operations of several of the projects, which are designed to increase the consumption within these countries of U. S.-grown tobacco.

While in Tokyo, Mr. Hutson will supervise the erection and operation of the U. S. tobacco exhibit at the International Trade Fair which will be held May 5-19. A feature of the exhibit, he said, will be manufacturing and packaging machines which will manufacture and package "Pearl" cigarettes, a brand containing 10 per cent of U. S.-grown leaf. Some two million people are expected to attend the Fair and free cigarette samples will be handed out to the visitors.

Masons Gather In Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—This city overflowed with Masons today as more than 2,000 persons gathered for the 170th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina.

Registration and pre-communication meetings took up the morning hours with the first general session scheduled to get under way at 3:30 p.m.

The communication will continue through tomorrow. Grand Master John C. Vance of Asheville yesterday held a reception for past grand masters. A banquet followed the reception.

By DWIGHT PITKIN DETROIT (AP)—Leonard Kerschke kept his rendezvous with death sooner than he expected. There were many things he planned to do.

He had written one article for The Associated Press on what his reactions were when the doctor told him Jan. 31 he couldn't expect to live much longer than six months.

He thought there was plenty of time to write several more. But time ran out for the 27-year-old Kerschke. He died last night of the inoperable cancer that had spread from his groin to his lungs.

Kerschke was working on a second article when his condition worsened. Saturday night his breathing became labored. He was taken to the Brent General Hospital.

Kerschke was stricken just as he was starting a new career as a gymnasium instructor with the Detroit Department of Parks and Recreation.

He had always enjoyed health until last fall when he first noted symptoms of a backache. At Christmastime he developed symptoms of pleurisy and pneumonia. In January he entered a hospital for observation.

An exploratory operation disclosed the malignant cancer that was to take his life.

Kerschke liked people. And the nationwide response — letters of sympathy and encouragement to his first article — gave him a lift.

When he talked of things he would like to do, he always came back to one thing. He wanted to visit Washington, D.C. He had never been to the national capital.

He would bundle his wife Athleyne and their baby daughters Darleen and Valerie into a car and they would be off to Washington.

But his energy gradually gave out. The pains grew sharper. He did not complain.

Leonard Kerschke was happy to be home with his wife and 1-year-old daughter Da een. His wife's parents had taken some of the burden off Mrs. Kerschke by caring for little Valerie, who was born Feb. 2.

Early in life Kerschke had an ambition to be a concert pianist. It was their mutual love for music that brought them together. Smilingly, Leonard Kerschke recalled their romance.

"I was 14," he said. "She was six months younger. I first saw her at the Bethesda Missionary Temple on Nevada Street near Van Dyke. That was my family's church and Athleyne was there as a visitor. I admired her from a distance and I knew she was for me."

Both Leonard and Athleyne studied music at the Detroit Institute of Musical Art. She played the violin. He took piano lessons.

Later, through their interest in church activities, they met again and they were married in her church — the Immanuel Bible Church — on the East Side of Detroit June 30, 1951.

Leonard Kerschke gave you the impression of being a religious man, but he did not encourage questioning about his beliefs. On a stand at the head of his bed was a Bible.

"It was a shock to me when I was told that I had only six months to live," he said. "My first thought was of my family and then the thought flashed through my mind of Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane and what he said, Thy will be done, not mine."

The Brass and the Blue

CHAPTER 33

At dawn, a very surprised sentry stared out over the palisade wall at the huge gathering of Indians camped less than two hundred yards away from Fort Kearny. He called for the sergeant of the guard, who took one look and decided this was a problem for an officer. The officer of the day was summoned on the double and, after a quick study through his field glasses, said, "Rouse General Wessels and be quick about it. Those are Cheyennes and they have Captain Schwabacker and Sergeant Finnegan with them."

Wessels stormed from his quarters a few minutes later, still sleep-rumpled and made irritable by his responsibilities, now aggravated by the escapades of Brevet Captain Emil Schwabacker. He climbed the ladder and looked out through the O.D.'s field glasses as Sergeant Finnegan rode forward, backed by two dozen armed Cheyenne warriors. The meaning of this irregularity was beyond General Wessels and he waited, angry-eyed, until Finnegan stopped, twenty yards out.

Finnegan said, "Mornin', General."

"— the pleasantries," Wessels snapped. "Who in the blue blazes is that out there with Schwabacker?"

"Spotted Tail, sor," Finnegan said. "Th' whole Cheyenne nation, sor, Wimmen, lodges an' all."

"In the name of sanity, how?"

"Well, sor, Captain Schwabacker figured he'd find Red Cloud's camp an' sue for peace, sor."

"Pea! He went into Red Cloud's camp?"

"Aye, sor. In an' out, but he brought th' Cheyennes. He's goin' to take 'em on to Laramie fer peace talk, sor."

"Good God, this is unauthorized."

"That sure is true, sor." Finnegan said, not losing his point. "But if th' peace commission wants to talk peace, here's someone to talk to."

"By all that's holy!" Wessels turned to the O.D. "Saddle my horse and be quick about it. I'm going to Laramie with this unprecedented upstart of a captain."

"We'll just go on ahead, sor," Finnegan said. "Capt'n Schwabacker don't want to be clapped in th' stockade before he's done his job, sor."

"Now you wait!" Wessels shouted. But he was shouting to Finnegan's back, for he was riding back to join the main party. Wessels swore beneath his breath and left the palisade ramp with long steps.

Schwabacker searched Finnegan's face for some clue to what had transpired between this sergeant and a general. But Finnegan only said, "Th' general's comin' to Laramie, sor."

"He's mad?"

"Hoppin', sor. But he ain't a man to pass up a good hand when it's given to him." Spotted Tail said, "We go now?" "Yes," Schwabacker said. "To Fort Laramie."

With this word he led the Cheyennes toward peace, and for himself an undetermined future.

General William T. Sherman was the ranking member of the peace commission, which was composed of three other generals — William S. Harney, Alfred H. Terry, and C. C. Augur — and four civilians, who were there to see that the army didn't get all the gravy from this forthcoming feast of peace.

The generals were sitting on the shady side of the veranda that ran around Sherman's quarters, when a crisp-looking orderly came up, saluted and said, "General Sherman, there is a la ge party of Cheyennes approachin' the post, sir. They are in the company of two soldiers, sir, a captain of cavalry and a sergeant major, same unit."

"You're sure of this?" Sherman asked.

"Yes, sir. A patrol sighted them through glasses not ten minutes ago. When the picket signaled the officer with the Indians, he received this answer, flash, on a piece of polished silver." He handed General Sherman the message, and all four generals read: Advise C. O. Cheyenne party approaching Laramie to discuss peace terms. — Schwabacker, Captain of Cavalry.

Sherman pocketed the note. "This is amazing, gentlemen. We haven't even selected an envoy yet, but here they are. I believe I'll observe this approach from the blockhouse. Will you gentlemen join me?"

Near the main gate a sentry called out, then all who had a high vantage position looked in one direction, along the westward reaches of the road. The post adjutant, acting upon Colonel Ashford's orders, wheeled out the regimental band and they stood in disciplined rows.

Outside the post, commotion rose in sheets of sound as the Cheyennes pitched a camp near the main gate.

Captain Emil Schwabacker rode into the post with Sergeant Finnegan while the band played and regimental colors fluttered in the breeze. Behind him rode five army Cheyenne chiefs, apparently unaffected by this folderol. The music broke off and the bugler played "the general" while the sergeant of the guard hoisted the general's flag beneath the regimental colors. In a line, like toy soldiers on parade, Generals Sherman, Harney, Terry and Augur left the blockhouse and solemnly greeted each of the Cheyenne chiefs.

Schwabacker stood to one side with Sergeant Finnegan. Turning to the O.D., Schwabacker spoke softly. "Lieutenant, I'm Brevet Captain Emil Schwabacker, absent from my command, without leave. Please place me under official arrest."

The lieutenant looked at the prize, then at Schwabacker, then back to the Cheyennes. Here was an officer who had delivered the military prize of the year, yet asked to be arrested. He said, "Captain, I don't think I'd..."

"If you don't," Schwabacker said, "you may deeply regret it. Will you assign quarters to me and see that Sergeant Finnegan is in the stockade?" He glanced at the sergeant. This is something we can't duck.

"Yes, sor. I understand."

The generals were talking eagerly with the Cheyennes, and amid this disciplined activity, Schwabacker turned with the officer of the day, leaving this chattering group. Sergeant Finnegan was remanded to the custody of the sergeant of the guard.

Schwabacker followed the officer of the day around the parade perimeter, and when they approached the guest quarters, Schwabacker stopped like a man stricken. A young woman smiled at him, and her eyes sparkled with the shine of tears. Then she lifted her skirts to run off the porch. A portly man grabbed to hold her back, then stood stupidly regarding her shawl, which was all he managed to retain.

She went into Emil Schwabacker's arms and he kissed her like a man starved and facing a feast. She spoke her name over and over until embarrassment made him release her.

The portly man came off the porch then and shook hands solemnly, like some businessman completing a deal that involved only the minimum profit for himself.

Emil Schwabacker said, "It's good to see you, Father." He stood with his arm around Henrietta Brubaker, then he remembered the O.D. and what he was waiting for. He dopped his arm away from her waist. "I'm sorry for the unfortunate circumstances, Father, Henrietta, but I'm under arrest of quarters. I'll ask the mess sergeant to serve three meals. Perhaps we can talk then."

Henrietta Brubaker would have spoken, but he shook his head. Doctor Gustave Schwabacker wouldn't have spoken if commanded to do so. He turned and went back to the porch while Schwabacker kissed Henrietta again.

"Seeing you again is worth anything," he said, then he joined the O.D., who saw that he was properly billeted in one of the better officers' picket quarters.

Emil Schwabacker stood by the open window alone with his thoughts. Now that his career was drawing to an end, everything seemed anticlimactic, even the shocking appearance of his father and Henrietta. At one time he had wanted her here, to lend him strength, but suddenly he discovered that he needed none. He was the strongest man on earth, and he wished now that she was not here so she would not have to share his disgrace.

"I said get out and leave me alone!" Emil storms at his father, with results told tomorrow in Chapter 34.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures
FEDERAL HOUSING Administration inspectors have many ways of determining the quality of work done by home builders. Some of them are much too technical to be used with any advantage by the average prospective house purchaser. But others have a definite value in an overall appraisal of a new home.

If an FHA inspector notes, for instance, that there are hammer marks, chipped edges and unset nails on the trim, he regards it as evidence of careless workmanship. If the hardware is neatly and accurately installed, the wallpaper carefully butted and matched, the paint with no brush marks or drips, he knows that the job has been done with care and pride.

These are seemingly small matters in construction work. And they would be useless without the more precise tests necessary for judging quality. Yet it is surprising how often the impression gained from observation of these little things is borne out by the kind of work done in the more important construction features of the same house.

The stapler has moved from the office to the construction industry to the home. Its story gives further evidence that the manufacturer often follows the lead of the public, even in the use of his own products. Staplers once were made primarily for the office. When carpenters and roofers began to make some use of them, heavy-duty staplers useful for fastening screensuch jobs as installing insulation and sheathing, fastening shingles to roofs and attaching ceiling tiles, to mention just a few. Then the home handyman began to find staplers useful for fastening screening to frames, repairing window shades, attaching upholstery, while the lady of the house discovered they could be used for tacking shelf paper, fastening lunch bags and dozens of other things.

The use of staplers in the home has become so popular that the world's largest manufacturer of these machines is putting out one designed exclusively for the home. It comes with a bracket which can be mounted to the wall, so that it can be used either mounted or detached.

Despite the galaxy of modern cleaning implements on the market, the broom is still being used extensively by housewives. And do you know why? Here's why, according to Social Research, Inc.: "Brooms symbolize an aggressive approach to dirt, and sweeping involves many assertive aspects."

The insulation of concrete block buildings and foundations has been made easier with the use of perlite, an extremely light material made of a volcanic lava substance that has been crushed and then "popped" under heat like popcorn. It weighs less than one-tenth as much as sand, is pure white and is poured directly from bags into the cores of the concrete blocks.

Perlite is stocked by building supply dealers under various brand names. It is said to be rot-proof, resistant to settling and not structurally affected by water.

Nearly 12 million power lawn mowers were used by American home owners in 1956. Three million more are expected to be sold this year. Of those three million house-holders, at least half will commit the most common mistake of new power mower owners—cutting the grass too short.

With the exception of bentgrass lawns, grass which is to remain healthy should be cut not less than 1 1/2 to two inches above the ground in moderate weather, three inches above the ground during hot spells. Bentgrass may be safely trimmed three-quarters of an inch high.

Unless your bathroom has some means of ventilation, you probably notice, after a shower, that the window and mirror are clouded with steam.

That's a warning to open the window; just a little and for only a few minutes will be sufficient. If you don't open the window, the moisture will be forced to find its own way out. As it penetrates the walls, it can cause damage to the materials with which the house was built and may cause the paint outside to blister.

Junior Is Really 'In The Money'

BERKELEY, Calif. — Dad always suspected it. Now a survey has confirmed it: Money-wise, a high school pupil is very much in the chips.

In fact, a survey of the 2,600 in Berkeley High School indicates they have a combined annual buying power of around $900,000. The survey, directed by Dr. Manville R. Pettes in this city housing the University of California, came up with these tidbits: Average income was $138.84 during 1956. Part came from allowances ranging from $1 to $17.50 a week. Part came from wages and salaries.

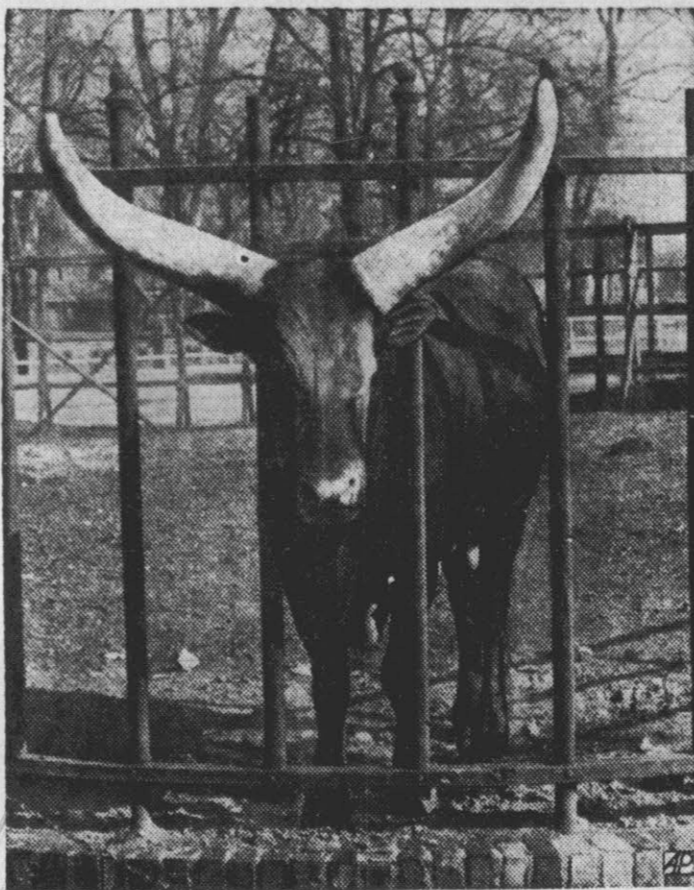

Most of the 2,600 got allowances. But most of them also did part-time work. More than a third received allowances from $1 to $2 a week; 30 per cent got $2 to $3; 25 per cent got $4 to $5; the remainder got $6 to $17.50.

Four out of five worked at least part time. Half worked all year. The average pay was 75 cents to a dollar an hour. Some earned $1.25 an hour.

Baby-sitting was the most popular job. Now for the expenditures: 60 per cent reported the major item as clothing, an average of $89.37. Entertainment took $51.36; food $63.40.

Highest average amount for any one expenditure was for a car. Car expenses for 14 per cent of the enrollment averaged $161.91.

Portland Mayor Faces Still Another Charge

PORTLAND, Ore. — A third charge was filed against Mayor Terry Schunk last night as five spoils of tape recordings embroiled men on both sides of a vice controversy in Portland.

The 44-year-old mayor, previously accused of taking a bribe and of lying when he received the bribe, was charged with making copies of the tape recordings after seizing them in a raid last year.

That was when he was sheriff. He said earlier he had made the copies in case the originals were destroyed or stolen.

A grand jury said the recordings contained conversations obtained through illegal wiretaps, and that making copies of them was as illegal as making the originals.

The same spoils having the mayor's enemy, Gambler Big Jim Elkins, 55, under indictment. He is accused in federal court of making the originals.

Selection of a jury for the Elkins trial is scheduled to start today. Also scheduled to go into court today is Dist. Atty. William Langley, 41, who was convicted last weekend of failing to prosecute gamblers. He will move for a new trial.

Langley and the mayor assert they are victims of a frameup by Elkins. All three earlier were witnesses in Washington, D.C., before the

Ex-Prisoner's Goal Is To Help Parolees With A Job

LAWTON, Okla. — A classified advertisement in Sunday's Lawton Constitution-Press has behind it the fulfillment of a prayer by Noel Phillips, 23-year-old masonry contractor.

The ad said: "Man or boy 18 to 23 years old. Must have court record. Prefer man who is on parole. Bring paper and apply in person."

Phillips said the ad was part of a promise he made at the Englewood, Colo., federal reformatory eight years ago. Kneeling in his cell, he prayed: "If I get out of here, I promise to help others like myself."

The following day he was paroled. Phillips, head of a rapidly growing company he started here five years ago, hires only former prison inmates like himself. He estimates he has employed 400 to 500 parolees or former convicts. He has helped many others by finding them jobs.

Phillips, married and the father of two young sons, is an active member of the Westside Baptist Church.

The young contractor said more than a third of his life has been spent in state and federal reformatories.

After his parents separated, he ran away from home at Duncan, Okla., when he was 7. Picked up in Albuquerque, N.M., he was sent to a training school in Oklahoma.

While at the Stringtown Training School, he said, he learned his mother was ill and when prison officials refused permission for him to visit her, he escaped. His mother persuaded him to return voluntarily.

After his return, he was sent to the federal reformatory at Englewood. He was 12.

He was paroled in 1949 at 15 and returned to Duncan, where he went to work for an electrical company.

Later he became an apprentice with the Bricklayers Union at Lawton and in 1952 founded his own company.

Phillips said he hopes to show prison inmates they can return to "outside" life and become useful citizens. And he has a further dream.

"I'd like to start something like 'Boys' Town,' he said. "The center could be a clearing house for former convicts and parolees needing work. Most men just out of prison are eager to work, to do anything to get back on their feet — but too often they don't get a chance."

There isn't a single wooden structure in the capital city of Hamilton, Bermuda. All houses must be built of stone as a fire safety measure.

Real Rarity In Traffic Annals

RUIDOSO, N. M. (A) - Paul Adam Coater has a rare distinction in the traffic annals of the State of New Mexico.

He's probably the only man in the history of automobile travel in the state who has ever run over a buffalo.

Coater, of Roswell, N. M., told state policeman R. W. Driggers he was driving east of here last night on U. S. 70-250.

He said he passed a car and saw, standing in the middle of the highway, a genuine American Bison.

Unable to stop, he struck the animal broadside, killing it instantly.

Benjamin Franklin retired from business at the early age of 42.

The general news background was mixed, including a seasonal expansion in industrial production, slightly higher interest rates in short-term Treasury bills and slackening demand for steel used in the auto industry.

Timken Roller Bearing was up around a point on news of a proposed 2-for-1 stock split. Rayonier also was ahead around a point as its president forecast improvement in earnings as the year develops. The firm announced a sharp reduction in earnings during the first quarter.

Among the motors, Ford dropped a fraction but Chrysler and Studebaker-Packard were steady. General Motors showed little change.

"Steinbeck's," men's clothing store, was welcomed as a new member to the Greenville Merchants Association at the Board of Directors meeting last night. J. L. Harris Jr., president, presided at the meeting. Trade Promotion Chairman, Larry Averette, gave a report and announced that the next event that would be sponsored by the association, is the annual "Straw Hat Day."

Other business included a report from the Director of the North Carolina Merchants Association, J. H. Blount, concerning the meeting he attended in Raleigh on March 27.

He reflected that, "I don't believe I've ever seen merchants throughout the State as interested in merchants' affairs as they are at the present time. They are showing it in actions as much as in words."

It was announced that salesmanship classes through the cooperation of Distributive Education, the Department of Public Instructions, and the Merchants Association, will start on Tuesday, April 23 under the leadership of Mrs. Virginia Heard.

The Board of Directors approved the office of the Merchants Association closing on "Wednesday afternoon" beginning April 24. This office will observe this half-day closing through the summer months.
