Racket Probers To Delve Into Alleged Payoffs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate racketeers today said they will explore more deeply into alleged payoffs to Teamsters Union officials in Scranton, Pa. One question intriguing them is whether—if you can't jail them both—the giver or the taker of a payoff should be prosecuted. The Justice Department has obtained federal indictments accusing three business agents of Scranton Teamsters Local 229 of receiving illegal payoffs from business firms. The Senate committee conducting the inquiry has ordered its staff to ask why no charges were brought against any of the companies or their officials. "We are going to find out why they were not prosecuted," Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) told reporters. "It is something we ought to find out." In reply to a question, he said, "It might be the subject of an investigation." Meantime, replies to some of McClellan's questions came from outside the hearing. A pragmatic explanation came from Oliver Dibble, the special federal prosecutor in charge of the Scranton case. "If we indicted both men in such cases," he told newsmen in Scranton, "we wouldn't be able to make one testify against the other," and he added:

"The grand jury decides which one is, so to speak, the more guilty and returns the indictment against him. Then the other serves as a witness."

Also speaking out was Earl P. Bettendorf of Texarkana, Tex., who said at his home he had sent McClellan a telegram asking the right to appear as a witness "so that your committee can correct the injustice done me at today's (Thursday's) hearings."

Bettendorf, named as one of the businessmen making the payments, said news reports of the hearing "clearly indicate your committee is not in possession of the true facts in this case." He asked to appear and present records concerning the matter.

Earlier he had told newsmen that "the only settlement we made with the union was above board," and added that the FBI "understands this case 100 per cent and has known about this case for two years."

Joseph McHugh and Robert Malloy, two of the Scranton union's business agents, are charged in an indictment with accepting $4,200 from Bettendorf, who was providing warehouse pallets to the Army's Tobyhanna Signal Corps depot near Scranton during construction work there in 1953-54.

Second Story Burned Out

Vacant House Is Damaged By Fire

The second floor of an unoccupied dwelling on McKinley Avenue was burned out by an early morning fire today. The dwelling, located at 613 McKinley Ave., was reported to be owned by John D. Payton. A box alarm brought three fire trucks to the scene around 2:30 a.m. Firemen had extinguished the blaze by 3:30. Two high pressure trucks, one from the substation and a second from the main station, were used in fighting the blaze and a third pumper stood by. Firemen used four high pressure fog lines to hold the flames to the second floor of the dwelling. Fire fighters said flames had appeared through windows when they arrived. There was no furniture in the house and Fire Chief George Gardner said electric current had been disconnected. Damage is expected to be extensive. The fire chief said cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Burning Airliner Lands Safe; Tragedy Averted

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An airliner landed in flames at Greater Pittsburgh Airport yesterday but thanks to a quick-acting pilot, a calm stewardess and expert fire fighters a major tragedy was averted. Fifty passengers poured out of the Capital Airlines DC4 seconds after it ground to a halt while firemen riding alongside in trucks poured flame-quenching foam on the plane. Not a person was injured seriously. Nine were treated either for shock or bruises. "When we stepped on the ground we thanked God," said Mrs. John Burnham of Buffalo. "He was with us today." Mrs. Burnham, her husband and two young daughters were on the first leg of a vacation trip to Florida. There was no indication of an emergency as the big airplane, piloted by R. L. Calhoun of Alexandria, Va., circled the airport and approached for a landing. But the plane landed "hard," an airport official said. A Capital spokesman said instruments in the cockpit indicated the landing gear was not secured so Calhoun zoomed the big ship into the air. Seconds later the right in-board engine caught fire and flames raced along the fuselage. As the passengers tensed, the airplane's public address system blared: "Prepare for a crash landing." There was a momentary rush of

Study Reveals High Percentage Of African Origins

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio State University researcher said today a study indicates that more than 21 per cent of Americans classified as white are descendants of persons of African origin. And from the study, said Dr. Robert P. Stuckert, graduate instructor of sociology at the university, "it is possible to estimate that in less than two generations more than half the persons classified as white will have some African ancestry." He said one conclusion stands out from the data: the study. "The belief in the racial uni-

Federal Court Hears Four Argue 'Unfairly Rejected'

RALEIGH (AP)—Four Negroes — three women and a male college student — sought to convince a three-judge federal court today that they had been unfairly rejected when they tried to register as voters in Northampton County last year. The three women read and wrote portions of the state constitution for the three judges in an effort to show they could pass the state's literacy test for voters. They contended they were arbitrarily rejected by Mrs. Helen H. Taylor, registrar of Seaboard Precinct in Northampton County — which has one of the highest percentages of Negro citizens among the counties of the state. The suit was filed to challenge the constitutionality of the state's literacy test for voters. A motion by the state to dismiss the case, made at the conclusion of testimony, was overruled by the three-judge court headed by Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte. After the ruling, lawyers in the case made their arguments. The case originally was filed by Mrs. Louise Lassiter, but the complaint later was amended to list Mrs. Mary Ellen Edwards and Mrs. Sarah Harris. Mrs. Lassiter said Mrs. Taylor turned her down and gave as reason that she had mispronounced several words. Mrs. Edwards said she tried to register several times and was told two or three times only that "I can't pass you." On another time she said she was told she had misspelled words and another time that she did not explain the meaning of words correctly. Mrs. Harris, who told the court she came as a witness and did not understand that she was one of those filing the suit, also said she was rejected when she tried to register. The college student, Alexander Faison, also testified he was rejected because he mispronounced words. However, the state contended that Faison was not a resident of the precinct. Mrs. Taylor, the registrar, testified that since she took the post in 1952 she had registered 29 Negroes. She said last year she registered 21 and rejected 20. She said that in the test she gave if a person mispronounced enough words she would reject them. She said if they mispronounced words she asked for their meaning to give those seeking to register "a second chance." Besides Judge Parker, Judges Wilson Warlick of Newton and Don Gilliam of Tarboro heard the case. When the case was filed, law-

Council Deletes Vote Rule

"One shot" voting will not become a part of the city's new charter now before the State Legislature awaiting approval. City Councilmen decided in special session this morning to eliminate a portion of the charter which would require voters to mark as many candidates on the ballot as there are positions open. The sentence to be eliminated from the charter read: "Any ballot marked less than the number required for an office shall be declared void."

Its effect would have been to require voters to vote for five candidates in City Council elections. If any less than that number were marked the entire ballot would have been voided. The charter stipulation would not have affected the upcoming city election in any case. At this morning's special session Mayor W. L. Wheedbee said that city fathers had consulted a number of local attorneys about the matter. "There seems to be some doubt as to the constitutionality of it," he said. If some future election was contested on the "one shot" matter and the voting requirement were not upheld by the Supreme Court, it would mean that the contested election would have to be held a second time. If that happened, the matter could remain in the courts for months before the election were finally decided. City fathers also approved an amendment to the charter placing a one-year time limitation on claims against the city. Formerly there was no time limitation on presentation of such claims. Mayor Wheedbee said the limitation was made to give the city added legal protection. The charter was revised to bring it up-to-date under the Plan D form of government. It had not been changed since the old Board of Aldermen type government was voted out in 1953. Mayor Wheedbee said that the new charter follows closely the Plan D form voted in by the people.

Bloodmobile Enjoys One Of Best Collections In City

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

Yesterday's Bloodmobile was the most successful staged here since 1953, according to reports from Dr. S. R. Bartlett, chairman of the Blood Program for the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter. There were 157 successful drawings made from 12 o'clock until 6 p.m. Figures show that 250 prospective donors came to the Bloodmobile that was located at the Greenville Moose Lodge. Of this number 28 were rejected for various medical deficiencies. A total of 65 pints of blood was obtained as replacement. This is the largest number that has been drawn since the Bloodmobile began its visitation here January 15, 1952. Replacement blood is given by individuals to replace blood previously used by a friend or relative.

Dr. Bartlett stated this morning, "I want to thank the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County who responded so well to this Bloodmobile visit. We owe a debt of gratitude to the sponsoring organization and its chairman, Ashley Hudson, who did a fine job of organization and soliciting donors. The publicity given this operation by the Reflector, radio and TV station was certainly instrumental in the success of the visit. Our thanks also go to the volunteer doctors, nurses and canteen workers who made the smooth operation possible." "I am particularly pleased at the number of replacements received. This is the largest number we have had to date. We hope all who were unable to come yesterday to replace blood received by friends and relatives will do so today at Bethel or at the next visit of the Bloodmobile in June," the Blood Program Chairman added. Mrs. Phyllis Martin, Home Nursing Chairman for Pitt, staffed the following nurses, Mrs. S. R. Bartlett Jr., Mrs. Gladys Duval, Mrs. Howard H. Gradis, Mrs. Hoyt Nararain, Mrs. Beulah Causey and Mrs. Eva McCotter. The following doctors assisted in the operation of the Bloodmobile, Dr. S. R. Bartlett, Dr. C. F. Indian Doctor Is Brief Guest Here

Dr. Krishna Naraini (left) of Punjab, India, visited in Greenville Wednesday night and yesterday on a trip that marked her first stay in an American home. Dr. Isa Grant (right) of Raleigh, a UNC classmate of Dr. Naraini, accompanied Dr. Naraini on the visit to the home of doctors Fred and Malene Irons. Dr. Grant is Dr. Malene Irons' twin sister. (Reflector Staff Photo).

An Indian obstetrician, in Greenville Wednesday night and Thursday for her first visit to an American home, didn't feel out of place at all. In fact, the overnight stay at the home of Greenville's "Doctor Fred" and "Doctor Malene" Irons was simply another facet of something that Dr. Krishna Naraini has been accustomed to for a long time. The visiting doctor has been acquainted with Americans most of her life and all of her professional career. Her training as an obstetrician was taken in India at a school sponsored by Americans. Her practice, as a member of the staff of the Presbyterian Mission Hospital in Punjab, India, has been with Americans. And a special course she is taking at the University of North Carolina is with American doctors.

"It's rather obvious that I was used to American society long before I came to the United States," Dr. Naraini said yesterday. "I don't feel strange and there are no difficulties adjusting to the formal situations I have encountered." The visit to Greenville was with "Dr. Malene" Irons' twin sister, Dr. Isa Grant of Raleigh, as the first leg of an Easter vacation trip. Dr. Naraini is a classmate of Dr. Grant in maternal and child care classes at UNC. Yesterday, Dr. Naraini visited Pitt Memorial Hospital, Dr. Malene's pediatric clinic, and classrooms of the three Irons' children. On the first two stops, Dr. Naraini asked the questions and got answers, but the situation was reversed in the classrooms. Classmates of Tom, a 10-year-old fifth grader; Ben, an eight-year-old second grader; and Fred, a six-year-old kindergarten student, asked questions about India and had them answered by Dr. Naraini. She was attired in the traditional dress of Indian women on the visits. After the Easter trip, Dr. Naraini will return to Chapel Hill where she has been a student since September. She will return to India, and the Presbyterian Mission Hospital, in August. "I would like to stay here," she said, "but my work demands that I go back." Except for a change in locale and scenery, the return to India won't mean any radical differences in Dr. Naraini's personal and professional lives. She will still be associated with American medical people.

Holidays Begin

School children in Greenville and Pitt County began Easter holiday periods today. Children in the city system were dismissed at noon and will resume classwork next Thursday, April 25. County school children were dismissed at the end of their regular school days and will return to class Tuesday, April 23.

Sidewalk Show Will Feature Art Exhibits

Featuring the work of various painters, the annual sidewalk art exhibit will open at 10:00 a. m., April 25, on the Sheppard Memorial Library lawn. In case of rain, the works will be exhibited in the armory. This exhibit will follow the overall theme of the twenty-second annual arts festival, Fine Arts in Eastern North Carolina.

Since no invitations were sent locally, the committee is using this article as its sole means of inviting all painters to display their work in this exhibit. Each picture must be brought to the library ready for hanging between 2:30 and 5:00 p. m., on Wednesday, April 24, or before 10:00 a. m. on Thursday to be registered.

Each painting must give the artist's name, whether or not it is for sale, the price, and whether or not the painting may be sold on a monthly payment arrangement plan. The purpose of this plan is to encourage more people to purchase good art work for their homes.

The committee would like to emphasize that the major part of this show is for painters. They are encouraged to bring their work and need not notify the committee beforehand.

To stimulate interest in all arts, the committee has arranged various other exhibits. In one of the featured attractions, Mr. Bill Persick will demonstrate the use of the potter's wheel. Various pieces of pottery, hand-made by Mr. and Mrs. Persick will be on sale.

Francis Neal's art class from East Carolina College has completed mobiles to be used as decorations. These works will be on sale during the show.

The committee is working on pins to be used as identification for exhibitors.

Volunteers will serve as hostesses and aides on the grounds. Anyone wishing to serve should contact Mrs. R. V. Keel at 2807 before Thursday.

POTTERY DISPLAY—Mr. and Mrs. William T. Persick, professors in the Art Department of East Carolina College, are now working on various pieces of pottery which they will exhibit and sell at the Art Festival Side Walk Show April 25. Their exhibit will appear on the Library grounds from 9 a. m. until 12:30. They have both exhibited their work in other states, but this will be the first appearance they have made in Greenville. Persick will display a potter's wheel along with his work and will demonstrate how the many sizes of pottery are made. He received his masters degree from Ohio State University and his wife finished her masters degree work at Alfred University, New York. (Reflector staff photo by Anne Singleton).

Mrs. J. E. Winslow gave an informative talk on the American Indians in North Carolina. She said North Carolina is the home of almost 4,000 Indians who make up the Eastern Band of the Cherokee reservation. In the Great Smoky Mountains is the largest in Eastern America and covers some 50,000 acres adjoining the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The table was very attractive with a centerpiece of Easter lilies and ferns. Five courses were served. Mrs. Diener was assisted by Mrs. E. W. Harvey and Mrs. W. S. Harden. Covers were laid for Rev. W. S. Harden, J. S. Ficklen, C. W. Harvey, B. W. Moseley, N. O. Warren, W. C. Dresbach, E. W. Harvey, G. V. Smith, W. H. Rogers Jr. and F. W. Brown.

Coke Hour For Mrs. Pollard

BETHEL—Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst and Mrs. Clayton Carson were hostesses at a recent Coca-Cola hour honoring Mrs. Julius F. Pollard, a recent bride. Arrangements of mixed spring flowers decorated the hall, living room and dining room.

About 50 guests were present. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Banks Cozart, mother of the bride, Miss Wynnette Garner and Miss Linda S. Whitehurst of Greenville; Mrs. Vernon Bunting, Mrs. Tom Barnhill and Mrs. Leman Barnhill of Williamston.

Refreshments were served.

Florist Speaks To Fountain Club

FOUNTAIN—For the April meeting of the Fountain Woman's Club, Mrs. R. A. Fountain, chairman of gardening and Mrs. M. D. Yelverton, hostess, had a program in flower arranging which combined the beauty of flowers and Religious Emphasis Week.

Around fifty other guests from local towns and communities met at the Fountain Baptist church. Mrs. Fountain presented Bennett Barnes, florist from Rocky Mount, who made four different arrangements and answered many questions from the audience.

Mrs. Yelverton served refreshments from a decorated tea table in the church dining room.

Add fresh dates and raisins to that platter of cheese and crackers you are planning to serve for dessert.

Fabrics Studied At HD Meeting

FOUNTAIN—Mrs. C. E. Case was hostess to the Fountain Home Demonstration Club, Thursday afternoon, April 11.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Alton Moore.

The roll was called. Fourteen members and two visitors, Mrs. Howard Moyer from Farmville and Mrs. Jimmy Bell of Fountain were present.

Clean-up week and the progress made was discussed. It was also decided to have a call meeting Monday afternoon, April 15 at 2 p.m. to work on the Pitt County Progress report.

A motion was made and carried to have a silent auction sale at the May meeting to make money for the treasurer. Each member was asked to bring things that other members would like to buy.

Mrs. Ruby Gardner gave a report on clothing and the new fashions for the season.

Mrs. Albert Bell gave a safety report. She said "Your car can be a means of survival in case of an atomic attack, your car radio can be your information, your car can also provide transportation. It is necessary to keep your car in good condition by always keeping gas in the tank and air in the tires, and when on the highway practice highway courtesy."

Mrs. Willie Killebrew reported on Mental Health. She said that the Club Collect should be used as a prayer from day to day.

Mrs. J. C. Parker, Mrs. Alton Moore and Mrs. Carlton Gardner gave four book reports.

Mrs. Jones, our agent, gave a report and demonstration on "New Fabrics and Finishes."

After repeating the Club Collect the meeting adjourned to meet in May with Mrs. Albert Bell.

Following the example of three previous legislatures, the 1957 General Assembly has washed its hands of the controversial reapportionment issue and left it for their successors.

For all practical purposes, the legislators now in Raleigh have postponed decisive action on reapportionment until the 1961 session of the General Assembly.

Hoover Report Result Illustrated Roadblock

In its efforts to find ways to reduce the federal budget, Congress should give careful attention to recommendations of President Eisenhower. At the same time, Congress should intensify its own efforts to find places where federal spending can be reduced without endangering the nation's security.

Because of individual pressure groups, demands of sections of the nation and segments of the population, it is difficult for the federal government or members of Congress to reduce expenditures. This fact was pointed up vividly several years ago following the Hoover Commission report. Though the report outlined in detail a number of ways to reduce federal spending without seriously affecting services of the federal government, few of the recommendations were actually written into law.

Each group seemingly was quite ready for the other fellow's appropriation to be reduced, but he was indignant and fighting mad over even the suggestion that the budget for his department might be trimmed.

Can we go on indefinitely with mounting spending by the federal government, sharp increases in federal employment from year to year and demands for increased appropriations on every hand?

We believe, quite frankly, that the annual federal budget can be reduced as much as 10 per cent without adversely affecting the nation's security. It is our opinion that Congress and the administration, with sufficient determination, could squeeze that much fat out of the budget by eliminating waste and non-essential spending which year after year costs the American taxpayers billions of dollars.

There is little hope that federal waste will be eliminated, however, until the taxpayers of the nation demand it in no uncertain terms. The sooner the American people shake off the mistaken idea that everything from the federal government is "free", the sooner a more sane spending program will be possible for the government.

There is one fact we cannot escape. Every dollar spent by the federal government was collected from some taxpayers. And every nickel wasted by the federal government is that much of the taxpayer's dollar which has gone down the drain.

Talk of reapportionment may continue in Raleigh throughout the remainder of this session; but now that the Senate has defeated a much-amended reapportionment bill, there is hardly a chance that any other proposal concerning the issue will receive more than passing consideration of legislators at this session.

When the General Assembly meets in 1959 it will be only one year away from a new census year. Under those circumstances it would be unreasonable for the legislature to seek to reapportionment representation on the basis of census figures which will then be nine years old. It would be more logical to wait another year and do the job with current population figures.

But what if the 1961 legislature would take the same attitude toward the 1960 census figures as was the case when reapportionment came before the 1951 General Assembly?

North Carolina cannot indefinitely keep its apportionment of representation in the legislature based on the 1940 census figures. At the same time it is quite apparent that some modifications in the basis of allotting representation in the various counties must be arrived at before the legislature will be willing to make changes.

In view of these conditions, some further move must be made to come up with a new plan for apportionment of legislative representation throughout the state. The fact that recommendations made by a special study commission on this matter were turned down by the legislators is discouraging.

Yet, some solution to the problem must be found. As the elected representatives of the citizens of the state, it is up to members of the legislature to come up with some proposal on which they themselves can agree and submit to the people of the state for ratification.

Behind-Scenes In The Assembly

By LYNN NISBET
EMINENT DOMAIN — The right of the State as a sovereign to take lands from private citizens, even against their will, when such property is needed for public purposes has long been recognized. It is also well established that the sovereignty of the State is not absolute, in that it cannot take the lands without just compensation.

Lawyer members of the General Assembly are jealous of the rights of citizens as well as the sovereignty of the State, and they are reluctant to enlarge the scope of eminent domain. Bills approved at this session have tended to remove special advantages for school boards acquiring property by condemnation. Every time the question arises in connection with government reorganization bills any proposed change in the eminent domain statutes is carefully analyzed.

It is understandable that a bill introduced by Reps. Falls of Cleveland and Childers of Gaston "by request" has little chance of getting by a committee. This bill would delegate to a private corporation the authority to condemn land upon certification by either the Board of Health or the Stream Sanitation Committee that the property is needed for the more profitable operation of the private business. The bill stems from a situational land to take care of waste and sewerage disposal and thinks the price put on the land by the owner is too high.

There is some doubt about the unlimited right of health and steam sanitation forces to exercise eminent domain. The legislature is not at all likely to delegate that sovereignty to a private-profit enterprise upon endorsement of already questionable authority. It is inherent in the North Carolina concept that if private property is taken against the will of the owner the public purpose should be clearly shown.

RETIREMENT — Despite the attitude of government employees, including school teachers, that retirement benefits should not be counted in their total compensation, there is increasing evidence that they regard retirement a major item. Every legislature since inauguration of the retirement system 16 years ago has broadened the coverage and extended potential benefits. The pending appropriations bills include some $15 million annually of tax money to match employee contributions. This is essentially that much additional salary although it does not show up in the monthly pay checks.

The original theory that contributions to the retirement fund by employees and the governments affected were to buy insurance on standard actuarial basis has been revised many times. Several hundred persons not originally eligible were added to the beneficiary list without matching contributions on their part. In other cases benefits were increased above strict actuarial tables, and provisions for refunding amounts paid in by employees upon separation have been greatly liberalized.

Bills now before the Legislature provide for several optional choices as to types of participation, all of them more favorable to the employees. They provide also for refund of all sums paid by the member, plus interest, in many cases of separation from service and in case of death after retirement but before all contributions by the members had been exhausted in benefit payments.

Action on one bill was held up for a week at instance of Rep. W.W. Wall of McDowell, who pointed out that it afforded insurance practices. The point was made that the retirement systems constitute a 4 per cent to 5 per cent addition to salary for insurance, and if the insurance features are to be disregarded it puts the State in the savings account business.

SINGLE CASH BOX — While the hassle over the prison separation bill has definite political tones involving personalities, it has very significant under tones of long range State policy. It points to abolishing the integrity of the highway fund and toward the policy of putting all the money collected by the State of North Carolina from taxes, licenses and fees into one basket, from which all services rendered by the State would be financed.

Governor Hodges has many times implied his opinion that all tax money should be used for the people, regardless of its source. In numerous news conferences he advocated separation of prisons from highway control, and said prisons should be responsibility of the general fund. In his second budget message to the General Assembly he advocated separation of control, but leaving full financial support on the highway fund.

When Sen. C.V. Henkel offered his amendment to the prison separation bill providing that no part of the financial support should come from the general fund, the administration forces marshalled their full strength against the proposal. The amendment prevailed by the narrow margin of 25-24. Numerous referenda have been made to the inconsistency of Senator Henkel, who opposed separation when the cost was to be assessed against highway revenue, and to the Governor's supporters for objecting to requirement that full support should come from that fund—when Governor Hodges had so recommended.

Impartial observers read into this situation less inconsistency than appears on the surface. Those who voted for the Henkel amendment want to maintain integrity of the highway fund, even with diversion. Those who voted against the amendment obviously were supporting the idea of just one fund, which would necessarily be "general." A lot more will be heard about this difference in approach during the rest of this session and several more legislatures to come.

GIFT OF WISDOM AND LIFE
 What does the Bible mean to you? Is it the Holy Book gathering dust in your library, a compendium of wise sayings for pious people who care for that sort of thing? Is it a closed book to you because of doubt? Is it a piece of ancient literature which has been outgrown and outmoded by modern literary endeavor?

If so, then you are allowing yourself to be a victim of a great and fatal mistake. For the Bible, first of all, is the most interesting and entrancing Book the human mind has ever come upon. We do not need church councils to assure us that it is the Word of God; an earnest reading of it will convince us of its divine origin and authority. Do you realize that the world's best literature is based upon this Book? Are you unaware of the extent to which the moral teachings of the Bible have been incorporated into the laws and governments of all civilized nations? Do you realize that it is a Book of promises — promises made of old that a Savior would come, and promises made after He came that faith in Him would bring about the forgiveness of sins and change our natures from the misery of wickedness into the glory of goodness and salvation?

Read this Book. It is God's message to man, supernatural in origin and power. The lik of it has never appeared on the earth, and we believe that the like of it will never appear again.

Our Hole-In-The-Ground

Most of the time, a hole-in-the-ground is just that — and nothing more.

Occasionally, however, an individual runs across, into or through one that makes an impression. Holes-in-the-ground, for instance, like the fox holes you dig in basic training; or the mud holes you splashed through when mother was on the other side of the yard hanging out the wash; or plain old wash-outs in the little back roads that Governor Scott's paving program didn't reach.

We at The Reflector practically adopted a new hole-in-the-ground outside the newspaper's quarters on Cotanche Street. It was a nice hole-in-the-ground, and intriguing because nobody knows how it got there.

This particular hole-in-the-ground was born on a warm day last week. It started out like any other rut: A mild depression in the asphalt that just grew with the times. Before filling it was a king-sized job, big enough to swallow up one of City Manager Leonard Bloxam's maintenance men.

There are several theories about our little hole-in-the-ground. The technicians among us swear it's the product of a leaky storm sewer. The practical individual (one) in our midst says it's the result of too much traffic making a one-way thoroughfare out-of-a two-way street. The dreamers claim that a leprechaun moved in on St. Patrick's Day and constructed a home for his bags of gold.

Now I don't know what to believe. I'll give some credence to the technical aspects of the story because there is a joint in the storm sewer just below the place where the asphalt dropped. I know, too, that there has been a considerable amount of one-way riding on the street. I'm just enough of a dreamer, though, to believe in leprechauns and elves and other little people who set up shop outside residences and business houses of those of us who lead good, clean and pure lives.

I managed to resist temptations to go out and join Brother Bloxam's crew in their search for the cause. I have a perfect horror of leaky sewers, storm or otherwise. I'm not too interested in depressions brought about by pressure, unless they are of the type that the Great Engineer, Herbert Hoover, tried to solve and couldn't. And I'm afraid that if our hole-in-the-ground had been a storehouse for leprechaun's gold I'd have to split it with several other people.

I even considered visiting the hole-in-the-ground under the friendly mantle of darkness to conduct a personal investigation. That wouldn't work too well, though.

In the first place, the city police department's night riders don't take kindly to folks who dig up streets without the blessings of Brother Bloxam.

In the second place, My Fair Gwen doesn't take kindly to nocturnal journeys unless she can go along. And Wee Urchin has her evenings booked up for the next couple of months.

Other Editors Saying --- 'Third Rate' Citizen?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
 We know a man who has a positive aversion against buying anything in the open market. This fellow, when he or his family need anything, whether it be groceries (other than a few perishable items), furniture, clothing or even gadgets, immediately starts looking for some place where he can "pull some strings" or browbeat some friend into getting the needed item at wholesale rates.

What's wrong with this? Certainly nobody is going to frown upon a bargain. But that is not the case.

In a most enlightening speech here Monday night on the occasion of the Rocky Mount Merchants, Association's annual meeting, Mr. Harry B. Price, prominent Norfolk businessman, declared that "we should not be ashamed to make a profit . . . We do not have to apologize to anyone for protecting the opportunity to continue to make a profit. With the making of that profit goes the responsibility to deliver benefits and services to customers."

In other words, our whole idea of business is to make a profit, one that is fair to the consumer, but one that is sufficient to warrant the effort put forth by the merchant. And the fellow who constantly tries to get everything wholesale, thus circumventing the honest middleman, appears to be doing his best to defeat the whole economic process in this country.

Luckily, this "wholesale" buyer doesn't live in some foreign country, where it is the custom for the seller to name his "best price" and the prospective buyer to name his "best price" — considerably lower — and then the bargaining starts.

Mr. Price, in his talk, declared that merchants, as a group, "have only been 'first class citizens' for a comparatively short time." Then, he invited a look "back to the old country. The trader or businessman was a third rate citizen. Why? Because he was a hagglor and still is. His word was no good and you never paid him the asking price. He originally wore a fez and operated in bazaars."

Who are our modern "third rate" citizens? Why, we would suggest that they are those very fellows who refuse to consider the fact that our merchants are responsible for providing a way of life in America that millions of people in the world still cannot enjoy.

Of course, we are not maintaining that all sellers of goods abide by the rules as explained by Harry Price. Still we believe them to be the exceptions to the rule and that they are men who are frowned upon even in their own professions. Avoid them! Sure, and you'll see some immediate increases in the ranks of the "first rate" citizens.

Reds Promote U. S. Foreign Aid

By RAY TUCKER
 WASHINGTON The twisted thinkers in the Kremlin, invariably but inadvertently, have given support to the White House in past demands for huge foreign aid appropriations by their acts of omission or commission against the United States. For this same reason, President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles feel confident that even a Congress insistent on economy will okay their $4.4 billion program again.

The Marshall Plan, which was first proposed in 1947, rode through because Moscow was then demonstrating that she did not mean to keep any of the pledges of friendship she made to Roosevelt at Teheran and Yalta, and to Truman at Potsdam. The Greek-Turkish underwriting coincided with the Soviet's earlier thrust into Northern Iran.

Despite constant Capitol Hill grumbling over the cost, those undertakings were continued year after year, because of the Berlin blockade, the steady swelling of satellite countries, the attack on South Korea, the renewed penetration of the Middle East, and the brutal slaughter in dealing with the Hungarian uprising.

RUSSIAN NUCLEAR EXPLOSIONS Once again, the Communists have applied the same sort of pressure, and rushed to Secretary Dulles' rescue. But this time they have a heavy assist from Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser, the dictator of the Nile. In fact, these current hostile operations impress Congress and the Pentagon as more menacing than all these other postwar gestures.

Within 10 days, the Soviet has exploded four nuclear weapons of an unknown type, making the twenty-second recorded explosion since 1949. There may have been many more experiments inasmuch as the Atomic Energy Commission makes public only those of an "unusual size and character."

Only semihumorously on Capitol Hill, it is suggested that AEC has taken special pains to publicize these tests in order to influence Congressional action on foreign aid and national defense, with its huge appropriations for A-H bombs, rockets, missiles, pilotless planes and similar devices.

SOVIET THREATS Two other events sharpen anxiety at Washington, although there is no fear of an immediate war because of Russia's general unreadiness. The first is the series of Russian threats of atomic retaliation to nations which permit us to stock similar weapons at our overseas bases.

The second is Britain's decision to shift from conventional to pushbutton defense, and the Macmillan admission that the United States must provide the only protection for the free world during the five or 10-year period of transition.

Still another happening may slow down the Congressional economy machine. It is the Sobols' confession in a New York Federal Court that they have been spying on us for Moscow since 1949, not so long after the two nations had

Unusual Easter Victim

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK (AP) — The Easter hat madness has an unusual victim this year — Blanche Thebom, the only girl in grand opera who can stand on her own hair without bending her knees.

"I feel like I had dived into a lily pond, and had come up with a lily on my head," said the Metropolitan Opera star as she put on the first hat she had bought in 14 years.

The beautiful mezzo-soprano gave up hats about the time she started letting her hair grow long. Now it is only six feet in length and the singer, who is about 5 feet 7 inches tall, actually can let it down and step on it.

Miss Thebom, who usually gets along by sticking a flower or a jeweled ornament in her hair, went on a bonnet buying spree this season because she is going to England soon. It wouldn't do to bump unexpectedly into Queen Elizabeth with nothing but a vitage orchid in her tresses.

Blanche isn't a girl who goes in for half-way measures. She descended on the hat shop operated by Mr. John, the noted chapeau designer, with the enthusiasm of a pirate raider.

Her enthusiasm was matched by that of Mr. John, weary at the moment of decorating girls who affect short bobs on even crew cuts.

"For a long-haired woman, the hat simply must be in proportion. Hat design, after all, is basically architecture, which is basically proportion."

Mr. John, whom Napoleon is said to resemble, tosses off bon mots like this all day long.

He came in with half a dozen colorful wide-brimmed hats with such romantic titles as "Meeting in Mayfair," "Brunch with a Beekeeper" and "Tea with a total stranger."

One hat which was two feet wide and named "Windsor afternoon" caught Blanche's eye.

"This is a black lace portrait hat," murmured Mr. John, "made of layers of summer black taffeta with a place petticoat brim, caught with a single summer rose, also black."

Intoxicated either by Mr. John's haunting creations or his haunted descriptions, Miss Thebom wound up with about a dozen big-brimmed hats.

"If you're going to wear a hat," said Blanche stoutly, "you might as well wear a mad one, so that a man can look at it condescendingly."

As she left Miss Thebom was heard to mutter:

"I think I'll have a happy Easter if I just don't have to go through too many revolving doors."

Prickly prejudices of a Pavement Plato:

You can't trust a maa who never has a dog around his house except the breed currently in fashion.

You can't trust any woman who will get rid of a cat just before it's about to deliver kittens.

The only perfect surprise is to inherit money from a perfect stranger.

The most dangerous thing in the world is a small mind in the grip of a big idea.

There is no such thing as a born housewife; it takes the best years of a man's life to train one properly.

Education reaches its peak for most students in the kindergarten — from then on they memorize more than they discover.

The man who marries for money pays the highest of all income taxes.

Gossip never worries a saint — but it's what a deaf woman misses most in life.

Loving parents cannot cure pomposity in a teen-ager half so well as God does with a pimple.

Nobody knows how small the world really is more than a man who tries to keep up a home and a love next in the same town.

Show me a guy who puts on rubbers and grabs for an umbrella at the first sign of a cloud in the sky, and I'll show you a guy with a secret passion for buying wildcat oil stock.

Selling In Home Has Advantages

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Selling in the home seems certain to increase.

Ever since the first peddler of polished bear claws thumped at the entrance of a tribal cave, the home has been a market place. In recent years there has been a sharp rise in selling at the front door and in the living room.

Perhaps television has helped this along. It has brought a strange assortment of salesmen into the living room, offering remedies for tired blood, slipping dentures and flatulence. After them, real live salesmen selling vacuum cleaners, brushes and cosmetics may seem charming guests.

There is another factor: the increasing size of the average family. Other shopping may be so much of a rat race that many young mothers welcome the opportunity for relaxed buying in her own home.

BELLS ARE RINGING

Total "in home" selling is now around $4 billion a year and growing fast, Robert Lauter, Macy executive, told a recent National Retail Dry Goods Association conference.

The growth of door-to-door selling since the end of the war has been phenomenal. There are more doors, of course. There are also more salesmen and more products per door. The largest selling brand of vacuum cleaners, so the manufacturer says is sold only in homes. That brush man famous in anecdote now carries blades so husbands can shave their facial brushes.

Many department stores are getting into the act and more will, if they take Mr. Lauter's advice. He said the average in-home sales slip in 25 per cent larger than the average store check. Benefits of home selling are so great that stores can afford to send only their best salesmen there, he declared.

PARTY PLAN GROWS

In-home selling is also being increased by the party plan, used by more than 50 companies. Growth in this field is illustrated by the fact that one of the largest, the House of Stuart, has taken over three cosmetic firms, to make Stuart the largest party-plan company in the cosmetics field.

In party-plan selling, housewives and sometimes husbands are induced to hold parties in their homes where, over coffee and cake, the merits of various products are discussed and orders are filled out. There is usually a bounty of premiums, and sometimes local clubs or churches get payments.

It may not be the sharpest way to buy but, as party-plan promoters point out, it is the most pleasant. Where else can you exchange neighborhood gossip and recipes, sip tea and munch cookies while laying in your year's supply of talcum?

Party-plan parties tend to multiply by division, like amoebae. Sometimes each guest at a party will agree to hold a party in her home. The commissions and premiums on such parties could conceivably build a cathedral, but this hasn't happened yet. However, they have improved floral arrangements in some churches.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSBERG

We hope you're keeping your eye glued on the daily announcements in The Reflector concerning the stirring events now taking place in connection with Greenville's annual Community Art Festival, now going on at full tilt. . . . Just to remind you, important happenings this coming week are the lecture on "Looking at Pictures" by artist Hobson Pittman at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Joyner (E.C.C.) Library Auditorium, the sidewalk Art Show on Thursday, the 25th, and the two presentations of "As You Like It" in the Flanagan Sylvan (Outdoor) Theatre on 5th Street, at 8 on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, the 25th and 26th. . . . We hope you get to all of these, and to the final piece of resistance of the whole Festival next Saturday, the 27th, the "Animated Magazine" luncheon in the E.C.C. North Dining Room. . . .

Scholarship and Distinction

Two members of the E.C.C. Faculty have been honored within the past week, and we want to let you know about them. . . . Prof. Richard Todd of the Social Studies Department has been elected President of Phi Sigma Pi, the national Educational Honorary Society — equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa in Liberal Arts colleges — which is a national office of considerable distinction, and we want to congratulate Prof. Todd, with enthusiasm. . . . And Prof. H.D. Rowe of the English Department has just been informed that he has been awarded a substantial scholarship by the Southern Fellowships Fund for summer study leading to the completion of his book on Ezra Pound — and our heartiest congrats to him also . . .

Madame Bovary

One of Greenville's book clubs recently spent an evening on Flaubert's great novel, "Madame Bovary," and they will be glad to learn that a new translation into American English has just been completed by Francis Steegmuller — who has a very titillating piece about his adventures in translation in this week's N.Y. Times Book Review, which we recommend for anybody interested either in "Madame Bovary" or any other novel. . . . Steegmuller's translation should be a big lift for many readers in this country, since there is no version of the book in good, everyday American, and yet it's one that we feel every educated person should read, some time or other. . . .

New Titles

If you want sex and sensation in the Southern mode, we understand "Alabama Empire," by Welbourne Kelley is your dish, the wildest Alabama right after the American Revolution, with a heroine called Annie, "sensuous as the earth that yielded her," and Col. William Bowles, "A stallion of a man" — what more can anyone ask? . . . Newest arrival from the Library Extension division of U.N.C. is "Of Fact and Fiction," by Jane C. Bahnsen, describing a series of book programs on subjects ranging from "Queen Victoria's Children" — and there were a lot of them — to "Come Away from Home" and "In Marble Halls" — certainly enough variety for any book club, and if any of you book club ladies is interested please get in touch with This Column — these U.N.C. Library Extension publications are very useful things to have around for programs . . .

Today's Review

Mrs. Dora Fountain contributes her comments on a new novel about life and thought on a long sea voyage . . .

Freighter, by Susan Yorke

Freighter, by Susan Yorke, New York: John Day Company, 1957. $3.00
 This novel by Susan Yorke portrays a young and disillusioned man who is about to embark for Europe aboard a Freighter. The "whys" of his destination are not made clear, but his thoughts about the ship before boarding her are graphically described. We are led to associate the sensitive young man and his bedraggled state with the derelictions of the ship.

It is apparent early in the story that the hero has reached his state of degradation through a major disappointment in life. Being on the threshold of his career as a concert pianist, he suddenly engaged in an airplane disaster, which leaves him impotent as a pianist. He had surmounted many obstacles to realize this accomplishment, and felt strongly within himself his ability and his gift. It is understandable that for a time he should turn his face to the wall in complete despair. He felt his world had collapsed and he sought escape in many unsavory ways. As fate would have it, through a series of dramatic and larger-than-life moments, his ship-mates opened his eyes to his ability to perform musically in some medium despite his handicap. We follow this development with excitement and optimism about the eventual outcome.

"Freighter" is a philosophical story and shows the impact of one personality upon another. . . . Dora Fountain. . . .

The thermostat, a household heat regulating device, was perfected in 1883 by Al Butz, a Minneapolis inventor. He got his idea from a Scotch chemist of a half-century before.

Offers Ostrich Eggs For Easter

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—Appalled at the prospect of dyeing scores of Easter eggs for the kiddies? Wanna do things up big? How about an ostrich egg?
 Ralph Caylor, who operates the Model Markets here, has two ostrich eggs. He has cornered the market, so to speak, because there are no known ostriches in this area, and furthermore, ostriches are molting now and eggs are scarce.
 But before you start, consider these statistics:
 It takes 1 1/2 hours to boil an ostrich egg, a hackswab to open one, and the interior is equal to 3 1/2 dozen chicken eggs. Price, about $20 an egg.

Dynamite Caps All Over Town

COLLINSVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Instead of a needle in a haystack, people in this tiny Oklahoma town were looking for dynamite caps.

And Police Chief Don Brinkley was finding them all over town last night—in the coat pocket of a little girl, at an old coal pit, by the hotel.

Luckily, none of the estimated 100 dynamite caps taken by a couple of young teen-agers "goofing around" the United Brick Co. had exploded.

"But somebody could get his head blown off," said Brinkley as he led the search. About 85 had been recovered so far.

The boys told the chief they took the caps and some dynamite sticks early Wednesday. Brinkley said apparently some of the caps had been handled by various children in school for two days.

It was not discovered until early last night that dynamite caps were scattered around this little community near Tulsa. Then, police were notified some children were playing with the explosives.

One cap turned up in the pocket of a little girl's coat.

Another boy said he'd tossed a couple in a waste basket at school and another said he'd thrown about 10 in a creek.

One of the boys who admitted taking the caps led police to an old coal pit where about 15 and the sticks of dynamite were recovered.

"We built a fire and threw in some to see what would happen, but nothing did," one of the boys told police.

Ordinarily, the caps are exploded with an electrical charge.

Boy Says Peace Up To Politicos

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—An 11-year-old boy stood on a chair in the State Assembly yesterday and said world peace is up to the politicians.

He is Leonard Ross of Tulunga, Calif., who has grossed about $164,000 on two television shows by answering questions about the stock market.

Leonard said he would prefer to go into politics or government. People in that work are "the last hope we have for peace," he said.

Dizzy Dean Has Hollywood Offer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Dizzy Dean, who used to be a pitcher and now is a baseball announcer, may soon be a movie star.

C. V. Whitney, who heads a film producing company, said he has offered the onetime St. Louis Cardinals pitching ace a "four-week, five-figure" contract to appear in "The Missouri Traveler."

Ol' Diz, who reportedly favors the deal, would play the part of a small town storekeeper, Whitney said.

Ayden Election Picture Beginning To Take Shape

AYDEN— After a lull period, the political race in Ayden is beginning to take shape, according to Town Clerk A.W. Sawyer.

Offices to be filled in the May 6 elections are commissioners for the First, Third and Fifth Wards, mayor and judge of the Ayden Recorders Court. Town commissioners for the Second and Fourth Wards were elected last May for a two year tenure.

Mayor Corey Stokes filed for reelection last week. At the present time no other candidate has filed in opposition.

In the First Ward, Norman Dail has filed for reelection. R.H. Worthing, operator of a dry cleaning firm, has also announced his candidacy.

The most contested position in the race thus far is shown in the Third Ward. Three men have filed for the commissioner's seat. They are: J.B. Dennis and Edison Gibson, both in the restaurant business and John Clark Nobles, Commissioner L.G. Baldree has announced that he will not seek reelection. Harry Mumford is unopposed in the Fifth Ward.

Sawyer also stated that C.G. Moore has announced his candidacy for Ayden Recorders Court Judge. L.L. Kittrell announced he filed earlier last month.

Deadline for candidates to file has been set on May 1. Challenge Day will be Saturday May 4.

Mrs. Peggy Bright will serve as registrar for the coming election. The election judges will be T.R. Allen and Raymond Cox.

Easter Egg Hunters

WINNERS—Clifton Ray Daniels, right, is showing Eddie Lee Barnes the prize Easter egg he found yesterday at the Easter Egg hunt sponsored by the Circle K Club of East Carolina College for the first graders of South Greenville School. Eddie Lee found the most eggs—16. Both boys received Easter baskets as prizes. (Reflector staff photo by Anne Singleton).

Southern colleges and universities, especially to those wishing to complete work on doctorates; summer grant-in-aid to teachers; and college-teaching career fellowships awarded with the purpose of attracting people into the teaching profession. He mentioned also similar opportunities offered by many other foundations in this country.

Big business is becoming more and more aware of its responsibilities to education, Dr. Kiger said, as he cited educational opportunities offered to teachers by various corporations.

McCotter is presently unopposed. Registration books opened Saturday, April 13 and will remain open until April 27. It was disclosed that during the week the books would be located at the home of Registrar Miss Louise Mewborn on Queen Street. On Saturday, however, registration will be held in the Town Clerk's office.

Mrs. Harris stated that the election judges would be Stanley Gamble and Cecil Cobb.

UNIQUE ESCORT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Robert Briscoe, the Jewish mayor of Dublin, Ireland, visits Philadelphia next week he will have a unique honor guard and security force. Half the policeman appointed for this duty are Irishman; half are Jews.

More than 22 per cent of 1956 U.S. highway deaths occurred on Saturdays.

Little Activity In Griffon Race

GRIFTON — Town Clerk Mrs. M. C. Harris stated this morning that very little activity has been shown on the political front in Griffon.

Thus far only three candidates have filed for seats to be filled in the coming election to be held Monday, May 7. The filing deadline has been set for Saturday April 27.

Incumbent Mayor W.H. Gower was the first candidate to file on Tuesday of last week. Gower will be seeking his third term of office.

A Griffon truck line owner, Heber Wade, filed in opposition of Gower last Saturday morning. This will be Wade's second bid for the mayor's seat.

The two Board of Aldermen seats open for election are currently being held by Don Casey and W. L. Mahler. Neither have announced their intentions.

Judge R.B. McCotter of the Griffon Recorders Court filed for reelection Tuesday. He has served a full year by election and part of a term by appointment upon the organization of the court in 1955.

Foundations' Help For Teachers Cited In Talk

Dr. Joseph C. Kiger of Chapel Hill, assistant director of the Southern Fellowships Fund, outlined major funds and foundations providing educational benefits for teachers and prospective teachers at a dinner meeting Wednesday night at East Carolina College. He addressed the campus chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Dr. Kiger's talk and election of new chapter officers were chief events of the meeting, held in the East Dining Room on the campus. Dr. Edgar W. Hirschberg, of the college English department AAUP president, acted as chairman. Dr. Joseph Steelman of the social studies department introduced Dr.

Kiger to members and guests. New officers of the college chapter are Dr. Lawrence Brewster, president; Dr. Steelman, vice president; H. Fitzhugh Dade, secretary; and Martin Goldsworth, treasurer.

Approximately 50 per cent of the funds of the larger foundations are now being devoted to the teaching profession, Dr. Kiger told his audience. The present "crisis in education," especially in colleges and universities, he said, explains this emphasis.

He outlined three programs of the Southern Fellowships Foundations, with which he is connected. The foundation, he explained, provides fellowships to faculty members of

Goldsboro Wins Track Meet Here Yesterday

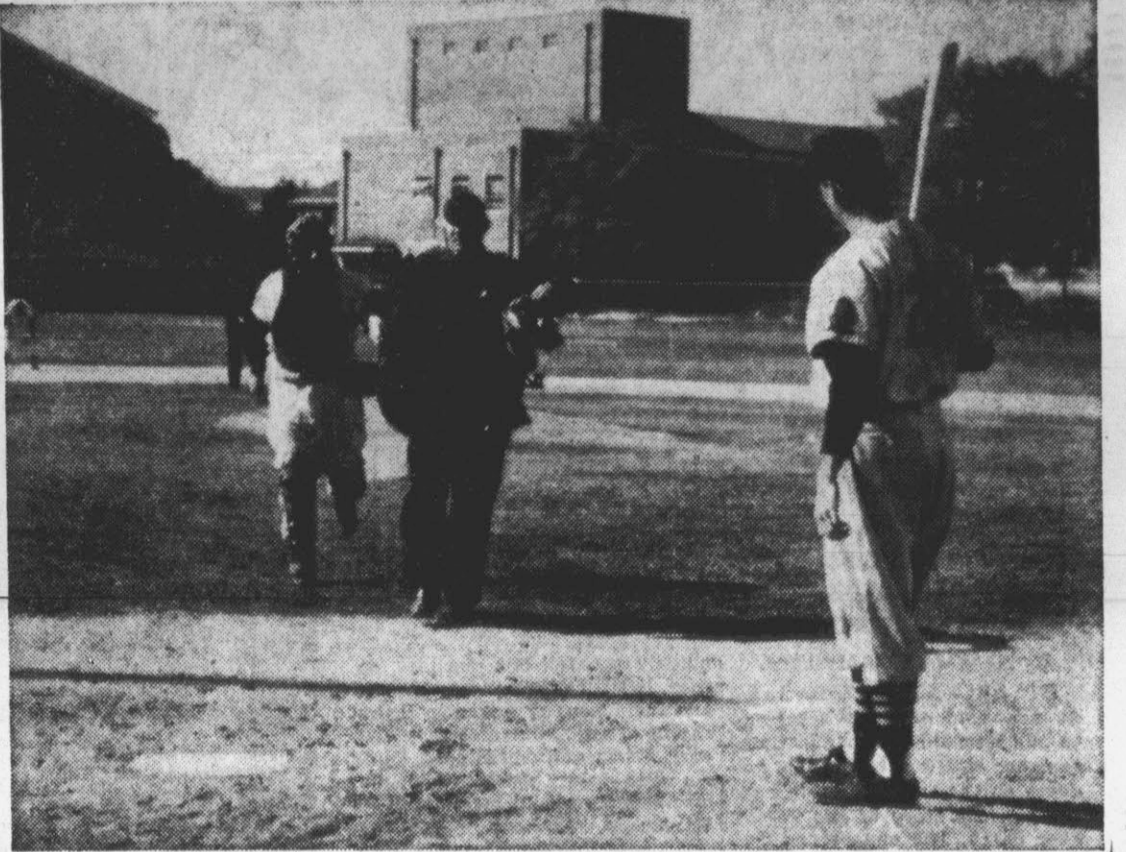

Goldsboro, a member of the Eastern AAA Conference, rolled up a total of 60 1/2 points to outscore AA teams Greenville, Washington and New Bern in a four-way track meet here yesterday at Guy Smith Stadium.

JACKSONVILLE — Greenville high school baseballers are back on the winning side of the ledger again now, having dumped Jacksonville 5-4 here yesterday.

The Northeastern Conference victory pushes the Phants' record to 4-1 for the season. They previously held wins over New Bern, Washington, Elizabeth City and lost one last week to Roanoke Rapids.

A big fifth-inning rally for the Phantoms pulled the game out of the fire for pitcher Miller. Behind 3-1 at the beginning of that frame, the G-Men whacked out four hits, and made use of a walk and an error to bring in their four runs.

DEVOTE POINTERS for home painters
What to do with paint leftovers — don't throw away. If full of lumps, strain through old nylon or silk stocking before using again.
How to apply varnish or enamel quickly — use a roller cover and finish by smoothing lightly with tip of brush.
Easy way to wipe up paint spatters — slip a pair of old socks over your shoes and "suck-up" paint drops on floor.
Tip for painting chairs and tables — Drive a nail part way into each leg-end. This prevents smearing the floor.
How to keep cam clean while painting — Drive several nail holes into lip of cam so paint flows back when brush is wiped on an edge.
For painting masonry surfaces — use a nylon brush for longer wear. Better ask for a "Super-Kleen" Nylon brush.
If paint runs down brush handle when painting ceiling, you're dipping brush too deep. Also don't "press" too hard — use tips of bristles.
How to keep window screens from staining house — paint copper or galvanized screens with Devco Zinc Dust Paint. One coat prevents staining for years.
YOU can get all the painting accessories that you need — and many more helpful tips — at our store. Why not stop in very soon. We'd be delighted to see you.

Jesus' Victory and Commission

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 27:55-28:20.

A rich disciple of Jesus, Joseph of Arimathea, went to Pilate and begged to be allowed to take the body of Christ. Pilate consented and Joseph laid Jesus in his own new tomb.

Next day the chief priests and Pharisees went to Pilate saying that Jesus had said that He would rise again on the third day. They asked that the tomb be sealed and a watch set.

The two Marys came to the tomb next morning. An angel of God sat there, telling them: "I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified. He is not here; for He is risen."

As the two women ran joyfully to tell the disciples of the Risen Lord, Jesus met them, saying, "All hail," and they fell at His feet and worshipped Him. MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 28:6.

Jesus' Victory and Commission

HE ROSE FROM THE DEAD AND COMMANDED THE DISCIPLES TO PREACH THE GOSPEL

Scripture Matthew 27:55-28:20

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN RECENT LESSONS we have learned of Christ's prayers to His Heavenly Father in Gethsemane; of His arrest, trials and death on the cross. Now we have the glorious story of His victory over death, His appearance first to women, then to His disciples in Galilee, and His commands for their future labors after His ascension.

To Pontius Pilate there came a man of Arimathea, named Joseph. He was rich and a disciple of Jesus. He begged Pilate to be allowed to take the body of His master and to put it in his tomb. Pilate gave his consent, and Joseph laid Christ in his own new tomb.

The chief priests and Pharisees also came to Pilate, saying that Jesus had said He would rise after three days. They wanted to be sure that the tomb was safely sealed with a great stone blocking the entrance, and a watch to be set to guard it, so that no one could take the body away and then claim that Christ had risen. This was done.

Some of the watchers went into the city and told the chief priests what had happened, but, after a counsel, they were given money to lie, not mentioning what had really happened, but saying, "His disciples came at night and stole Him away while we slept."

The 11 disciples went to Galilee into a mountain which Jesus had appointed as the meeting place. The disciples worshipped when they saw their Master, but some doubted. Then Jesus said: "All power is given Me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

"Teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

How many modern missionaries scattered all over the world, repeat those lines of the Lord when they are discouraged or in fear, perhaps of their lives, and go on with their work comforted and confident.

Dr. Wilbur S. Smith, commentator and preparer of "Peloubet's Notes," suggests that to interest the younger children of the Sunday school, you might, if possible, have a picture of a Palestinian tomb on a blackboard, showing the sealing, generally accomplished by stretching a heavy cord from one wall to the other, then sealing both ends. The watching soldiers could also be pictures, or later, when they lay "as dead men," with the stone rolled away and the angel sitting on it.

The angel also told them to go

Work Yet To Be Done On New Fire Station

FARMVILLE—Farmville's all-volunteer fire department, already at home in a new building on Main Street, will have to wait a few months before putting the finishing touches on the brick and block structure.

The 26-man department moved into the building about two months ago, although finishing work, painting and installation of a heating system have not been completed. Chief Haywood Smith and Assistant Chief-Driver W. C. Wooten said yesterday they hope to have the work completed during the 1958 fiscal year.

Completion of the fire house will take about $7,000 in additional funds. Expenditures have already pushed to the $20,000 total, including more than $8,000 in cash donations and donated labor.

The building is used to house two trucks one owned by the town and another owned by the Farmville Rural Fire Association. The town gets to use the rural truck in town by housing and maintaining it in the municipal fire house.

When completed the building will have space for the trucks and other equipment, a drying rack for hose and other lines, and central office space. The second story, which is still open, will include quarters for some firemen and a proposed space for the Farmville headquarters of the Pitt County Health Department.

The new station is the third the town has had for its motor equipment. The fire department's first home was a frame structure on Main Street. When the Town Hall was completed, the station was moved into the building but these quarters were vacated when the present structure was put into service.

The town plans to expand its municipal offices into the area formerly occupied by the fire department. Until the remodeling work can be completed, however, the town's Board of Commissioners has given permission to the National Guard to use the area for a vehicle and equipment storage section.

Farmville's new fire station furnishes adequate space for two trucks, one owned by the town and the other owned by the Farmville Rural Fire Association. In addition, the building, when completed, will have office space and quarters for members of the fire department, and space for the Farmville branch of the Pitt County Health Department. ## Twelve Days Of Rest And Work

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower, camped at his favorite golf course, hoped for clearing weather today and a tour of the links in warm sunshine.

The President flew here from Washington yesterday for about 12 days of rest mixed with work, only to find the afternoon marred by showers.

But despite an intermittent drizzle, he got in 18 holes at the Augusta National Golf Club, his headquarters on this Easter holiday. A half hour after stepping from his plane the President was out on the course.

The pattern was as usual here. Newsmen accompanied him from the airport to the entrance to the club grounds, but were not permitted beyond that point.

This is Eisenhower's 14th trip to Augusta as President and his 15th since he was elected in 1952. He plans to remain until about April 28.

Duplicates Same Auto 'Accident'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Edward English Boshers, 40, explained the automobile collision to police:

"The other man was driving with my wife in his car and I tried to break it up."

"Didn't you run into the same man's car several months ago for the same reason," asked Traffic Judge Willard Jett.

"Sure did," said Boshers, who was charged with assault and battery and reckless driving.

Another usual feature about the Eisenhower visit to Augusta is the presence of the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, who is especially hoping for good weather during this stay.

Since January the President has been fighting a stubborn cough and Snyder feels Eisenhower could get rid of it if he gets plenty of sun.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and a small staff of White House aides.

Inspector Willard Jett. "Sure did," said Boshers, who was charged with assault and battery and reckless driving.

CHAPTER 36

"May it please the court," Captain Temple Jocelyn said, rising. "Captain Kincaid's wound was received under the most peculiar circumstances, and Lieutenant Eastwood's action during the engagement leaves much to be desired in the way of military conduct."

General Sherman's gavel banged. "Captain, neither Captain Kincaid nor Lieutenant Eastwood is on trial at this time." Then Sherman turned to Eastwood. "Lieutenant," Sherman said, "are you aware that to properly clear this matter, the conduct of Captain Kincaid would have to be investigated? The matter before us is not Captain Kincaid's unauthorized surgery on Captain Kincaid, but whether an officer's widow is going to receive a government pension. Do you deny that the obvious reason behind these charges is to insure that pension?"

"No — No, sir. I don't deny it. Neither do I blame Mrs. Kincaid." "Then I think I can dispose of this matter expeditiously," Sherman said. "Lieutenant, I have no intention of instigating an investigation of Captain Kincaid. The man is dead and beyond punishment. And I am not so heartless as to deprive a widow of her pension, however questionable it may be. Before me is the form, which requires my signature. Next to it is a letter of formal charges against Captain Kincaid. If I affix my signature to the pension document, the charges must be dropped."

Eastwood breathed with difficulty. Finally he said, "I — I agree to drop the charges, General." Sherman handed the document to General Harney. "Destroy this. It will be so entered in the record." He then placed his signature on the pension papers and Eastwood came forward for them. "Lieutenant, bear something in mind: I dislike pressure methods, and I dislike any officer who condescends that type of action. That is today. Spotted Tail and Little Wound both have stated that Red Cloud was talking medicine and that many of their people were inclined to go along with him."

Sherman smiled and it was fitting to see. "However," he continued, "it seems that Captain Kincaid's talents are not confined to the military, but embrace the political field as well. For nearly a year, we have been trying to enlist the press and public sympathy to our cause, and a just treatment of the Indians. Without shame I can say that we have failed, but Captain Kincaid has not. His interview was printed in many newspapers, and because of the attention aroused, we now have the authority to abandon Fort Philip Kearny and Fort C. F. Smith if necessary to bring a just peace to this land."

Schwabacker looked at the four generals and saw four dedicated men, kind men who spoke of peace and meant it. This time, he knew, their names on the peace treaty would carry weight. He knew Spotted Tail would believe it too.

"And so," General Sherman was saying, "I believe this court can adjourn with the recommendation that Captain Kincaid be breveted at the earliest possible convenience of his commanding officer, and extended our heartfelt thanks for service well rendered." Sherman's gavel rapped once. "This court is adjourned. I could use a cup of coffee."

Schwabacker turned to Temple Jocelyn, but Jocelyn smiled and pushed him toward Henrietta, who nearly knocked over a chair in her eagerness to embrace him.

Jim Bridger came up while he still held her, a smile behind his thick whiskers. He offered a gnarled hand.

"Been wantin' to make your acquaintance, Capt'n, but it seems that every time some dolgedone business come up an' I never got th' chance."

"You're a living legend," Schwabacker said softly. "It's an honor."

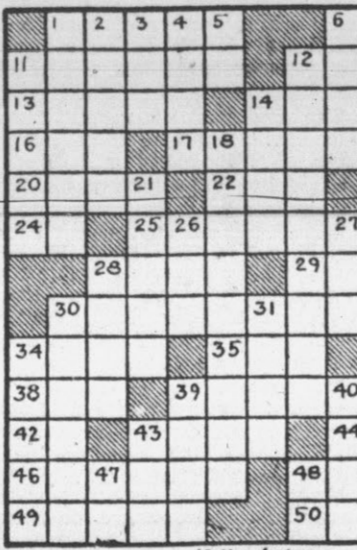

"Figured it th' other way," Bridger said. "You done made a few legends of your own."

The four dignified generals filed past, each offering Captain Schwabacker a brief handshake. The room emptied like a slowly draining bowl. Through the open door Schwabacker could see Sergeant Sean Finnegan waiting with an enlisted man's courtesy. Doctor Gustave Schwabacker came up then, hesitatingly. He said, "All your life I've given you advice, son. But I can see now that you were better off without it. Can you advise me now? Can you show me the way to say..."

"There's nothing to say," Schwabacker cut in. He didn't want his father to apologize. And he didn't want to explain either; he didn't think he had to. He saw his father in a completely different light — not a gib man, not God, but just another man, a little confused, a little uncertain now that he was removed from the accustomed security of his narrow threadmill. And with this shrinking stature came a deep affection. He put his arm around his father's shoulders — a thing he had never done before — and found that he was taller than his father. Schwabacker said, "It's all right, sir." His smile was an add-

Will Operate On Siamese Twins

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Surgery will be performed soon at Children's Hospital in an effort to separate Siamese twins Terry and Larry Powell.

Neurosurgeons said several operations may be necessary. Doctors have said the twins will have only a slight chance of surviving surgery if they have common brain tissue. But Mr. and Mrs. Jack Powell, parents of the babies, have consented to the surgery.

Terry and Larry, born March 10, are joined by a skull fusion 3 1/2 inches wide. Tests have shown they have major vein connections.

"What are you going to do now?" Henrietta said. "If you return to Kearn, I'm coming with you, Emil, we'll never be apart again."

"I don't think I'll return to Kearn," he said. "I'm going to request a year's leave of absence and go back East. It'll take me three months to bone up on my medical studies, then seven more months and I'll graduate. I want to be a doctor, Henrietta. I'll make a good doctor."

A frown crossed her forehead. "You're giving up the army?" "No," he said. "I love the army. But I want to be a military surgeon. There's work here, my kind of work. It's where I belong, with men like Jocelyn and Finnegan."

He looked at her. "Do you mind?" "I'll never complain," she said. "Never, Emil."

Impatience was upon him then. "I'll have to tell Jocelyn, and thank him for letting me command his troop." He stepped away from her but she took his arm and pulled him back.

"He won't want you to thank him," Henrietta said softly. "Emil, you're the equal to any man on earth. From this day on every man in that troop will look around when Jocelyn gives a command and wonder if that's the way you would have given it. There are no more ghosts to fight, Emil. The battle's over."

"Yes," he said. "I guess it is." Then he took his father's arm, and his fiancée's, and together they

Mother-In-Law On Honeymoon

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I certainly never expected to take my mother-in-law on my honeymoon," observed bridegroom Jerry Linville as he hopped from a train at Union Station.

Linville, a retired salesman, is 77. His bride Rachel is 77 too. And his mother-in-law Mrs. Elizabeth Hiers is 102.

Jerry and Rachel were childhood friends in Harrison, Ohio. But Jerry left town, married and moved here. His wife died three years ago. He found Rachel again, living with her mother in Detroit, and they were married.

It was the first time for Rachel. Her mother was quoted by a newsman at the station as saying she had begun to fear Rachel "might turn out to be an old maid."

DONE WITH SIGNS

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—A painter parked his truck in front of a building here and put a note on the windshield saying, "Painter working on the inside." When he came back, he found another note attached to a parking ticket. It said: "Cop working on the outside."

Complexion care for apples

Bigger and better fruit is yours... with good looks that are more than skin deep

Apples, peaches, and cherries all taste best when they look best. But even before the first bud appears, fruits are constantly exposed to attack from plant diseases that can stunt growth and leave ugly blemishes on the surface.

This battle with scab is now being won with a remarkable liquid chemical called CRAC-Glyodin. By preventing fungus growth, this highly protective spray improves the overall health of the trees and stimulates the natural glowing color of the fruit.

Farmers—and home gardeners, too—use other agricultural chemicals developed by the scientists of Union Carbide. For example, weed killers which cut down hand weeding on the farm and around the home

... and a repellent which helps increase milk and beef production by keeping livestock free from flies. These unique chemicals were created by research and proved in exhaustive field tests. Union Carbide is now developing still more products to bring better foods to your table.

Arrest One Man In Raiding Still

Pitt County ABC officers combined efforts with law enforcement officers of Greene County yesterday to raid a still in the Speight Bridge Township.

Afred Denton, 45, of Statonsburg Rt. 1 was apprehended at the site of the 55-gallon still. Denton was charged with ownership of a still, possession of materials and mash and possession of a firearm. Officers stated that the man was carrying a .38-caliber pistol at the time of his arrest.

Denton was given a hearing before U.S. Commissioner Mittida Turner in New Bern yesterday. Bond was set at $10,000.

A 1940 automobile, reportedly owned by Denton, was seized near the still. The vehicle was filled with empty fruit jars.

Officers said the copper still, complete, was not in operation at the time of the raid. Also found at the site was 700 gallons of mash. All were destroyed by the raiding party.

Participating in the raid were Deputy Sheriffs Wayne Lane and Walter Heath and Constables Joe Ellis and Herb Jones. Pitt County ABC officers were H. B. Lilley, Walter Taylor and James Ross.
