Hussein's New Army Chief Resigns; Asylum In Syria

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Maj. Gen. Ali Hayari resigned today — via a telephone call from Syria — as the new chief of staff of Jordan's army. The political crisis King Hussein had battled for a week took a new turn, perhaps for the worse. Hayari, described by his friends as a career soldier with little interest in politics, took over the top army job only Thursday, and apparently strengthened Hussein's control over the restive kingdom. He replaced Maj. Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, a pro-Egyptian soldier-politician who was driven from the country to Syria last week. Several high officers accompanied Nuwar. Yesterday the new chief of staff was sent to Damascus to ask Syrian authorities to extradite a group of the Jordanian dissidents. But an official spokesman reported that, on arrival, Hayari tele-

Sixty-Five People Injured In Subway Train Collision

NEW YORK (AP)—A subway train rumbled around a sharp curve in a Brooklyn tunnel last night and smashed into the rear of a stalled train. Sixty-five persons were injured, one seriously. A city transit official said later he felt "man failure" caused the accident. Both trains were en route from Brooklyn to Queens with several hundred passengers when the first train stalled with a jammed brake. Motorman Victor P. O'Britis, 46, of Queens climbed out, released the brake and headed back to the controls of his eight-car train. He was just entering the cab when the second train struck. "There was a crash," O'Britis said. "Some people were knocked to the floor and some of the injured got panicky and began screaming. I said to them, 'take it easy.' "I had to calm them down. They used the emergency exits themselves and a lot of them walked out."

Weigh Literacy Test Law Suit

RALEIGH (AP)—A three-judge court today weighed testimony and arguments on the constitutionality of literacy tests for registering to vote in North Carolina. With Judges John J. Parker of Charlotte, Wilson Warlick of Newton and Don Gilliam of Tarboro on the bench, the court yesterday heard lawyers for a group of Northampton County Negroes argue that the tests should be thrown out. Atty. Gen. George B. Patton joined with defense lawyers in contending that the tests are constitutional. The court refused a defense motion to dismiss the suit. Lawyers on each side were given 20 days to file briefs containing their arguments. Each side then will have 10 additional days in which to answer the opposing briefs. Enactment by the Legislature last week of a new state law giving an avenue of appeal to per-

Some Cash Lost In Two Break-Ins

Robbers netted around $80 from a break-in at Dr. Allen Taylor's Clinic Thursday night and approximately $8 from a break-in at the Health Department building nearby. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the thieves entered the clinic through a rear door. They broke open a cash drawer to obtain the money. The robbers entered the Health Department also by breaking open a rear door. They searched several desks in the building.

Major Cities To Get 3 Deliveries Of Mail Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Business districts of "many major U.S. cities" again will get three daily mail deliveries beginning Monday, the Post Office Department says. But Postmaster General Summerfield said yesterday that Saturday deliveries in downtown areas will continue to be restricted to no more than one a day. The announcement marked a further restoration of postal service temporarily curtailed April 5 when Summerfield was trying to get Congress to vote an additional 47 million dollars for postal operations up to June 30.

No Time For Tears

NOT TOO PLEASED—Steve Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Syd Dunn, Jr. of 1805 Circle Drive, does not seem to be too pleased with the outcome of the Easter Egg Hunt staged this morning at Elm Street Park. The youngster was one of several hundred who came out in search of eggs at the annual city wide hunt sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department. (Staff Photo by Everett Parker).

High Winds And Rain Lash Texas

DALLAS (AP)—Heavy cloudbursts and high winds lashed north central Texas for the second straight day today, flooding highways and driving streams out of their banks in some areas. A tornado struck ground near Dallas as the turbulence swept northeastward, but no injuries or damage was reported. Torrential rains that flooded parts of Waco last night tapered off, but continued today. The Department of Public Safety said motorists were warned that highway travel on some roads between Dallas, Fort Worth and Weatherford, and south on U. S. 81 through Waco was unadvisable. Highways 77 and 81 were closed by high water in some areas near Waco. The Tarrant County sheriff's office in Fort Worth said a small twister developed near Midlothian, Tex., near Dallas early today veered westward and north of Irving, and hit the ground northwest of Dallas before disappearing. A report of another funnel over Dallas was not confirmed. Torrential rains, hail and high winds lashed the city of Dallas, causing a power failure in a small downtown area. Most of the heavy turbulence, however, swept past the city before dawn and the weather bureau lifted the tornado and severe weather alert for Tarrant County and Dallas.

Logging Truck Hits Building, None Hurt

STOKES—Three men sitting in Peck's Service Station here yesterday afternoon narrowly escaped serious injury when a logging truck crashed into the building. Charles Whitehurst of Bethel was sitting on a bench not more than four feet from the point of impact but a large air tank prevented the truck from doing further damage and possibly saved his life. One of the occupants of the station said the impact was so great that it knocked the elderly man several feet across the floor. Patrolman J. B. Surles of the State Highway Patrol investigated the accident and estimated the damage to the building at approximately $300. In addition to breaking the front plate glass window, the truck broke a sizable hole in the corner and side of the building, facing the railroad. There was no damage to the front of the 1949 truck. The truck was being towed by a 1952 log truck that was also transporting a diesel unit. Surles said the driver of the lead truck was David Brown, Negro, of Bethel. Johnny Lee Howard, Negro, also of Bethel, was identified as the driver of the truck involved in the accident. There were no other occupants of the two vehicles which belong to H. L. Briley of Bethel. Patrolman Surles quoted the drivers as saying they were preparing to turn in to the station to get some air. After crossing the railroad the truck being towed made the turn but was unable to stop before colliding with the single story station operated by J. Henry Whitehurst of Stokes. Brown was charged with driving on the wrong side of the road and over-length towing. The investigating officer charged Howard with improper registration, no brakes and operating a motor vehicle on the wrong side of the road.

Stood Alone

RALEIGH (AP)—Sen. Edwin S. Lanier of Orange was the lone senator in that body today as a typical Saturday session was held. He presided over the 50 empty senators' seats, reading the Easter story from the Bible to the dozen or so visitors, newspapermen and clerks who were present. "This story means more to the Legislature of North Carolina than anything it can enact," Lanier stated. He concluded the session with a prayer taken from Peter Marshall, late congressional chaplain, and then adjourned until Monday night when the other senators will return from home following the Easter holidays.

Explanation For About-Face On Bill Is Demanded

BRYSION CITY, N.C. (AP)—Opposition by two state employes to defeated legislation which would have provided for anti-pollution measures in the Tuckasee River has prompted the bill's sponsor to write in protest to Gov. Hodges. The bill, killed Thursday in the House Committee on Conservation and Development, was offered by Rep. C. R. Crawford of Swain County. In his letter to Gov. Hodges yesterday, Swain said William B. Saunders, director of the State Department of Conservation and Development, and Earl Hubbard, executive secretary of the State Stream Sanitation Committee, "suddenly and without warning... came before the committee and made a very effective speech opposing this bill." Crawford said in his opinion that without this "interference," most Swain citizens believed the bill would have passed. He wrote Hodges, "I resent this plea of my county most certainly intrusion personally, and the personment of it. I feel that by their (Saunders' and Hubbard's) actions, they have set back progress in my county several years. "The people of my county are demanding a personal explanation which they feel should be given here in Bryson City, of the action of these two men before the committee," his letter read. In an accompanying statement, Crawford said, "It is a great mystery to all of us why these two men, who are employes of the state of North Carolina employed for the sole purpose of abatement of stream pollution and for the purpose of a general cleaning up of rivers throughout the state, should appear before the committee and actively and effectively oppose this legislation. "These men stated they had spent several million dollars of the taxpayers' money since 1951 to promote the very thing that Bill 429 proposed to do in Swain and Jackson counties. Thus far, we do not know of any progress made on this particular river during this time," he said.

Oakley Removes Self From Race

Godfrey P. Oakley withdrew as a City Council candidate yesterday afternoon. He became the second of the 11 candidates to withdraw from the race. Service Station operator George Push withdrew last Wednesday. Oakley said this morning that he was dropping out of the race because "I wouldn't have the time to devote to it." However, he said, "I'm interested in the progress and growth of the town and I wish everybody well." There are now nine candidates in the City Council race. They are J. A. Collins, Cr. E. Wesley Harvey, S. Eugene West, the Rev. O. J. Rooker, Lester Turnage, J. D. Aman and Elbert Bennett, Lester Page and W. G. Dunn.

Gave 44 Pints To Bloodmobile

BETHEL—The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected 44 pints of blood here yesterday on the second stop of a two-day visit to Pitt County. Donations were taken from residents of Bethel, Pactious, Belvoir and Stokes areas. Yesterday's visit was sponsored by the Bethel Lions Club and directed by co-chairmen B. R. Ayers and J. S. Moore. KILLED IN WRECK SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP)—June Warren, Negro man, 47, was killed last night 11 miles north of here on Highway 58 in the wreck of a speeding car, the Highway Patrol reported.

The Miraculous Story

... And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for He is risen, as He said. Matthew: 28:5-6.

Christians Prepare For Easter Rites

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Catholic and Protestant services will be held at Camp Kilmer, N. J., for Hungarian refugees still remaining at the reception center. The American Committee for Liberation will broadcast Easter services from Munich, Germany, to people behind the Communist Iron Curtain. Weather permitting, New York's Fifth Avenue will see its usual throng of Easter paraders. Hundreds of thousands are expected to witness other Easter parades on the broadwalks of Asbury Park and Atlantic City in New Jersey. The place where the sun first touches the United States will be the scene of one of the Easter sunrise services. That is the top of 1,520-foot Cadillac mounted on Mount Desert Island, Maine. The mountain is the highest point of land in the northeast corner of the nation. The traditional Moravian sunrise service that attracts throngs in Winston-Salem, N.C., will have added significance this year as the Moravians celebrate the 500th anniversary of the denomination's establishment in Moravia. An estimated 30,000 persons attended last year's service. In expectation of a similar turnout, a corps of 600 ushers will be on hand. Bishop J. Kenneth Pfuhl, 82, spiritual leader of Southern Moravians will conduct his 27th consecutive service. In Washington, sunrise services will be held at Walter Reed Army Medical Center for the 30th year. Traditional sunrise services at Arlington National Cemetery will be attended by government officials and broadcast nationally by NBC. Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield will give the prayer. Catholic and Protestant services will give the prayer. BUS INTO CANAL CAIRO (AP)—Reports reaching Cairo today said 25 persons were drowned when a bus overturned into a canal yesterday near Dammanhur. Only eight bodies have been recovered so far. Dammanhur is about 63 miles northwest of Cairo.

News From See Labels, Miss Jones Says

FALKLAND—The April meeting of the Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Miss Anna Little on Thursday night with Miss Little and Mrs. Leslie Peaden as hostesses.

The president, Mrs. Frank Peaden, opened the meeting with "America." Mrs. Pittman was at the piano. The secretary, Mrs. Marguerite M. Wooten, read the minutes and gave a report on the Bingo party for the March of Dimes this spring which netted $50.00. Six dollars was contributed by Miss Anna Little. The secretary then read a creed which was published in a state magazine for H.D.C. women and was written by a Pitt County club member, Mrs. Janie Gold Starling.

Miss Anna Little gave her report on the treasury and then made plans for attending the District Meeting in Lenoir County next Thursday. The president read a letter from the Historical Society of Pitt County inviting the club to join and help compile the first complete history of Pitt County and its citizens who have served both locally and abroad. Mrs. Peaden reported from the county Civil Defense meeting of the danger in not preparing a medical kit and storing canned food in this bomb conscious era. She suggested each person think of a basement nearby they could seek shelter in.

The completion of the State H. D. club house on the State College campus was discussed and the group planned to contribute next month.

A call meeting was scheduled for next Tuesday night at Mrs. Fiel Tyra's home. Mrs. Frank Peaden, Miss Anna Little, and Mrs. Marguerite Wooten will compile the progress sheets for the 1,300 prizes to be given the county clubs in May in Greenville.

Miss Lois Jones, agent, gave a demonstration on lovely new summer fabrics which are made at DuPont and stressed great importance of always asking to see labels on goods to tell the type of cleaning it will demand. She issued booklets of helpful information on fabrics.

Miss Pollard Is Feted Wednesday, Bridal Tea

Mrs. Julius Fleming Pollard was honored at a tea Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Moye Dail in Brookgreen.

The home was decorated with spring flowers carrying out a pink and white motif.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. George Derock Vincent, and presented to the receiving line. In the line were Mrs. Moye Dail, Mrs. Julius Pollard, Mrs. Banks Cozart and Mrs. F. F. Pollard.

Mrs. C. W. Ward directed the guests into the dining room. In the dining room the table was covered with a pink organdy and lace cloth, and was complemented by a centerpiece consisting of white and pink snapdragons arranged in a cut crystal bowl, with pink Tapers in silver holders.

Mrs. Harvey Dail and Mrs. A. C. Tadlock served punch. Misses Doris Davenport, Carol Ann Tadlock, Barbara Davis, Mrs. Sam Weeks and Mrs. R. W. Davenport assisted in serving party sandwiches, cheese biscuits, bridal cakes, and nuts.

Mrs. T. Clarence Tugwell directed guests into the den where Mrs. Irby Jackson presided over the

Mrs. Moore Guest Speaker

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was guest speaker at the program meeting of the Junior Woman's Club last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Moore was presented by Mrs. James Davenport, chairman of the Fine Arts Department. Color slides of her trips to India, Philippine Islands and Hong Kong were used by the speaker to illustrate her lecture. She also shared with the group her impressions of her visit to London during the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth.

At the conclusion of her travel program, Mrs. Moore cordially invited club members to attend all events of the Fine Arts Festival.

A brief business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Mack Stocks, first vice president. Mrs. Tom Vicars gave a report on the recent candy sale sponsored by the club for the Watson Memorial Fund.

Mrs. Quentin Avery and Mrs. Worth Baker were hostesses for the evening.

Vary that omelet! You can serve it with Spanish sauce, mushrooms, smoked salmon, cheese or jelly.

Florida Meet Has Dr. Williams On Ulcer Surgery

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Two members of the C&O Hospital staff participated in the Southeastern Surgical spring meeting which was held from Sunday through Friday of last week at the Hotel Vinoy Park.

Dr. Harold Williams, chief surgical resident at the C&O Hospital in Clifton Forge, read one of the most thought provoking papers at the meeting. His subject was "Surgical Treatment of Perforated Ulcers." The discussion was conducted by Dr. J. M. Emmett, chief surgeon of the C&O Railway Co.

Dr. Williams is the son of Mrs. Mattie Williams of Greenville, N. C. and the late Mr. J. L. Williams.

Legion Auxiliary To Meet Thursday

The American Legion Auxiliary will meet Thursday evening with Mrs. Woodrow Worthington in Winterville, at 8:00 o'clock. Co-hostesses will be Mesdames J. L. Rollins, Burney Tucker, M. C. Sermons, J. O. Edwards, and N. O. Hodges. Mrs. James R. Worsley will be in charge of the program on child welfare, and Mr. K. T. Futrelle will be the speaker. New members are to be initiated.

Duplicate Club Winners Announced

The Faculty Duplicate Club met Friday evening with seven tables engaged in the evening's game. At North-South, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Greene, Abbeville, S. C., tied with Mrs. Ina Bryan, Louisville, and Mrs. Cal Rouse for high; and Mrs. Ralph J. Cunningham scored next high.

East-West winners were Miss Mary H. Greene and Dr. J. H. Stewart, first; Mrs. Percy Scott and Miss Mary Eakes, second; and Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Steelman, third.

Stage Junior-Senior

FOUNTAIN—The Junior-Senior Banquet was held at Fountain school Friday, April 12, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Prom began at 8:30 and lasted until midnight.

The guests consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Conley, Mr. Arthur Alford, Stancil Dida, D. W. Jefferson, C. B. Phillips, Curtis Owens, E. B. Beasley, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Stokes. All the teachers were present.

Two Questions For Communities

Communities throughout the South are constantly asking questions of themselves and others about what must be done by a community to attract new industrial plants, new jobs for their people and new year-round payrolls.

For the most part there are as many answers as there are questions. Some of the answers are vague, some specific. Some which may be applicable to one community do not seem to fit in the case of another. Each seeks the answers which will best fit its peculiar circumstance.

There are some general conditions which apply to almost all communities, and these were pointed up vividly in a recent editorial in the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle. Says the Chronicle:

"There are two $64,000 questions' that are always asked and the one that is first is this:

"Is the community a pleasing place in which to live, work and bring up children?"

"No. 2 is: Does the community genuinely want industry to come in as an industrial neighbor?"

If a community cannot answer both these questions in the affirmative, there is little hope that it will enjoy the benefits of more employment, more payrolls and growth which industrial development brings. Unless a community can offer industry a good "home", other things is might be able to offer are of little importance.

Though we often consider industry an inanimate, impersonal thing, it is not. Like a person seeking a new community in which to make his home, industry considers many of the same factors in seeking a new location for a plant. It wants to be a good neighbor and in return wants to be accepted as a good neighbor in the community. It expects to shoulder its full portion of responsibility for community betterment and therefore wants to cast its lot with a community which is seeking self improvement, not from a selfish standpoint but with the general welfare of its people in view.

Eastern Carolina communities might well stand back and evaluate themselves in the light of these two fundamental questions concerning their industrial development potential.

True Easter Meaning Sometimes Forgotten

Easter, the season of new life, new hope and the promise of eternity.

Easter, the season of dyed eggs, flowered hats and new clothes.

In this day and time it is often difficult to distinguish the true meaning of the Easter Season from the superficial trimmings man has added through the centuries. For many people the glitter of the outer dressing which we have given to important occasions hides the true, the fundamental, the lasting significance which lies at the core.

How does the individual look upon this Easter? Will the sunrise bring meditation upon the Supreme Sacrifice, Golgotha, the cross and the Risen Lord in all His glory? Or will it only bring thought of what holds in store: donning fine clothes, the luxury of a flower to compliment the new dress, a day to be enjoyed as any other fine day in Spring?

Those who seek the joy and reassurance of the true meaning of this Easter Season will have no difficulty finding it in their churches, in family prayer and in meditation.

Inventory Trend Is Closely Eyed

By ELMER ROESSNER
Top management and its economists are watching inventory trends closer than at any time since the start of the war. So are government brains.

Inventories are a key economic factor. Rising inventories indicate boom. In fact, they help make booms. Declining inventories indicate and help make recessions, except during wars when accumulating inventories is usually illegal.

Here is why:
Over a long period, production and consumption balances. Mines, mills and factories produce as much as is consumed in manufacturing, trade and personal living.

HAPPY SPEED-UP
When business increases its inventories, it is causing more to be produced than is consumed. This is true regardless of the reason for the inventory buildup. An auto manufacturer may step up his purchases of steel because he fears a shortage, because he has confidence in a coming rise in sales, because he thinks the price will go up later on, or because his fortune-teller told him to.

But whatever the reason, he eventually causes an increase in steel production, which means more employment, more overtime, more purchases of equipment by steel companies, and more dividends.

The same process occurs on the consumer level. When families build up their inventories—such as adding a few air conditioners, buying a new stove before the old one is worn out, filling the freezer or acquiring an oil painting—they tend to stimulate sales, employment and profits.

THE DIRE UNLOADING
On the other hand, when manufacturers decide they need less steel in their warehouses; when steel companies think they can get along with smaller mountains of coal in their yards, and when housewives decide to live out of the freezer for a few weeks, recessive results attend. (Elmer means business falls off.—Ed.)

The entire situation is not as simple as that. While growing inventories help create booms, they are also a result of booms. When demand is rising, it always pays producers of raw materials and manufacturers to fatten their inventories.

It pays, but only until prices reach a peak. If cold rolled steel sheets are going to 6.90 cents a pound, then it pays to accumulate them at any price under that, but building inventory above that point can lead only to losses.

THE CONTRARY SIDE
On the other hand if a manufacturer, retailer or consumer scents a decline, it pays them to stop buying for inventory and to get along on what they have, because with a decline they replace their materials more cheaply. Therefore, falling inventories are a result, as well as a cause of recessions.

That brings us to just what is happening to inventories today. They are still increasing in value.

But part of that increase is a result of higher prices. And the rate of increase is slowing down.

The book value of manufacturing and trade inventories at the end of February, the latest tally, was estimated by the Department of Commerce at $89 billion.

The total rose $200,000,000 during February and the same amount in January. In the 10 months before that, it had been rising at an average of $500,000,000 a month.

The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank has observed that the slowdown in inventory growth has been a major factor in scattered layoffs in appliances, television, auto parts and steel, fewer freight car loadings, and price weakness in copper, tin and most scrap metals. This "inventory adjustment," as the bank calls it, is caused by the need to "conserve funds in the face of heavy demands for investment and working capital expansion," and "the speeding up in the delivery of new orders and the generally easier supply situation."

IF STEAK IS TENDER, WHO CARES ABOUT PRICE?
Price is no longer important in food advertising, William D. Tyler, Chicago advertising man, told a recent meeting of the Super Market Institute. He said:

"Food ads still talk to the housewife as if she were on relief, huddled with her tattered brood around a newspaper spread out on the floor of her cold-water flat, where she is reading by the light of a flickering candle, with the fingers of one hand clutching a few miserable pennies while those of the other run slowly down the food columns spelling out and comparing the prices of one chain against another."

REAR OF CAR VISIBLE IN FRENCH AUTO MIRROR
A French inventor has developed a driving mirror with which an autoist can see the side and rear of his car when backing or parking. It can be folded inside the car to prevent theft when not in use. The French manufacturer wants to license an American manufacturer. Details are available from Investment Development Division, Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D.C.

Trend Worries The Lawmakers

By LYNN NISBET
PRIMA FACIE—The familiar Latin words literally mean "at first sight." Established legal usage has given the term some weight more authoritative meaning. In common practice "prima facie" evidence is regarded as conclusive until outweighed by other evidence. Recognition of prima facie evidence puts the defendant in position of having to prove his innocence, instead of the State having to prove his guilt.

The growing disposition to declare by statute many items of questionable value as prima facie evidence of crime is giving concern to many lawyers in the General Assembly. It tends to reverse the time-honored theory that every person is innocent until proven guilty.

A bill designed to curb shoplifting and protect merchants against petty thefts from counters, would make the possession of certain unwrapped merchandise prima facie evidence that it had been stolen.

The bill legalizing chemical tests to determine the degree of drunkenness of automobile drivers would make a fixed percentage of alcoholic content in the blood prima facie evidence of intoxication. A number of the game conservation laws declare possession of game birds or fish during closed seasons prima facie evidence of illegal taking. The instances can be multiplied many times.

Rep. Smith Williams, the youthful Republican from Yadkin, has been most vocative in opposing further encroachment upon individual rights by statutory declaration of prima facie evidence. He had an able ally before the committee considering the chemical test bill in the person of Dillard Gardner, Supreme Court, librarian and marshal. Objection was not to legalizing chemical tests as evidence, to be considered and evaluated with other evidence, but it was to the "artificial weight" given this one part of the whole testimony by declaring it to be prima facie.

GOOD CASE—Proponents of the chemical test bill made out a good case for it. It was brought out that 25 states now have laws providing such tests, and bills are pending in 19 others this year. Experience in the 25 states has proven that the device tends more to protect the innocent than to convict persons charged with drunken driving.

Technical experts from the National Safety Council and other organizations testified that the amount of liquor consumed has little relationship to the degree of intoxication, which depends upon the physical condition of the consumer as much as anything else. The only sure test is the amount of alcohol which reaches the brain. Chemical analysis of blood, urine, breath, spinal fluid and other segments of the body are necessary to determine this amount.

Questions about the cost of the tests and who should pay the bill, how thorough the laboratory analysis should be, and whether the test should be mandatory or voluntary, did not greatly bother the committee. The prima facie clause did bother a great deal.

Gardner made the point that the test tube cannot be cross examined, and to give its testimony greater weight than that given to statements by the alleged violator, who is subject to examination, puts the defendant at a distinct disadvantage.

Fear was also voiced that the commendable zeal on part of the law enforcement officers to curb traffic accidents may lead to violation of fundamental constitutional rights, somewhat like the zeal for prohibition during the era of the noble experiment led to infringement of many guarantees against search and seizure. The bill went to a subcommittee to see if these defects can be cured and the major purpose served.

GHOSTS—Ghastly apparitions of dominance by big counties, by little counties and by Republicans stalked through the Senate chamber this week. Enough senators were frightened by the ghosts to the point they decided just to do nothing about apportioning membership in the General Assembly. There will be no change in the allocation of seats in the 1959 session, and unless that Legislature takes positive action—which at this long range view seems very unlikely—there will be no constitutional changes effective in the 1961 session.

During a three hour debate Wednesday charges were openly made that the small counties are afraid of the big counties, that the big counties feel they are being hamstrung by illegal representation of the small counties. Big Piedmont counties contend that unless they are given proportionate representation the Republicans will take them over. The little counties in the east and far west countered with the claim that the Piedmonters are going Republican anyhow, and they have no idea of surrendering their numerical control of the Legislature.

At close of the prolonged constitutional changes in the basis of apportionment, a thoroughly innocuous bill was passed on second reading. Next day only 20 senators voted for the emasculated measures. A minimum of 30 affirmative votes were required to submit the amendment. Among the 27 who voted against the bill were some sincere advocates of reapportionment.

The child was so crippled they felt it kinder to administer a mercy killing than to send it out in the shape it was in.

Faced with imminent possibility that North Carolina will lose a representative in the congress after the next census, necessitating revamping of congressional districts, some legislators believe it wise to defer any reapportionment in the General Assembly until 1961.

Strength For Today

"Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him."
How strange these words from the 37th Psalm sound to the ears of modern man. The one thing modern man is determined not to do is to rest. He must be up and doing, conquering new areas and opening up highways by which he hopes mankind will march into a better future.

All this is fine. The very light of God's glory is shed over the whole of such aspiration. But good as it is, it is not good enough. Most disconcerting of all, however, is the realization that we would work better and achieve more if we could only realize that the center of our life is not in this world but in another, that we do not belong to ourselves but to the God who made us, and that all we are and all we have are tied up to projects and enterprises above and beyond the little area which we call our own lives.

In other words, since we are spiritual beings, we must constantly remind ourselves that the soul of our creative endeavor is to be found in the realm of the spirit. If we would really achieve, we must rest in the Lord. We must wait patiently for Him. We must put aside fretting and anger, and above all things, we must realize that those who wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength.

Baby's Hazard Unrealized

The sleek, late model auto pulled up in front of the post office. The woman driver jumped out and ran up the steps of the building. Left in the car was her young baby.

Then slowly the big black car began to roll backward. It was headed into the busy intersection.

Two pedestrians saw what was happening. They raced to the vehicle and grabbing its sides, halted its erstwhile journey. A third observer across the street had reached the car by this time. He stepped in and set the emergency brake.

The baby, frightened by all the activity, burst into tears. Danger over, the three went on their way.

In a few moments the lady emerged from the post office. She tripped down the steps, entered the vehicle and sped off, never aware that her child had been in danger only moments before.

Need a hobby? Try collecting Hi Fi records. A typical person who has been bitten by the record collecting bug is Nancy Sugg who hails from Princeton and presently is employed by Sentinel Life Insurance locally.

"You can enjoy listening to music but you don't feel you're a part of it until you have your own Hi Fi set," says Miss Sugg. "Then you are collecting something of your own, something you can keep."

The local record fan likes all types music "except hillbilly" and she has classical, semi-classical, popular music and albums from Broadway musicals.

Miss Sugg says she digs out classical records when she is in a serene mood. Popular music, such as Elvis Presley, is reserved for parties. The Broadway musical albums come in handy for quiet listening by small groups.

Miss Sugg busy records "every payday" and she is also a member of the Record of the Month Club. From that club she receives a classical record each month and she is obligated to accept only four records a year.

In about two years Miss Sugg has built up a collection which she estimates to have cost around $300.

However, to her, the collection is cheap at that price. "The enjoyment you receive from a record collection far more than compensates for the money invested."

The man-made tranquilizer affects this filtering process.

The result, says Dr. Bradley, "is not a distortion of the environment but the interpretation is different."

In other words, with the help of a tranquilizer drug, things that used to bother you are brushed off with a minimum of worry, anxiety and tension.

Transquilizers are billed as a way to beat the tensions of the fast modern pace without the dangerous effects of habit-forming drugs such as narcotics.

"But," said Dr. Killam, "counting on tranquilizers is like driving a car without a clutch pedal—soon you don't want to go back to a car with a clutch pedal."

He believes there is danger in the prolonged use of tranquilizers. "The dangers of self-medication are great," he said, "and probably worse than meeting the original problem."

Dr. Miller tempered his flat statement about the safety of tranquilizers with the advice that, "It's always better to try and arrange our lives so we do not need artificial help to calm our nerves."

He said a series of tests show "there is no effect on a person's reaction while under double the normal dose" of Miltown or Equanil, two common brand names for a tranquilizer prescribed for nervousness.

The study, conducted by the Mental Health Research Institute of the University of Michigan Department of Psychiatry, showed tranquilizers caused no effect on reflex ability to drive a car, on steadiness, mental alertness or vision, he said.

Russia Cornered In Atomic Era

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—"What is the meaning of all these Russian threats to destroy America's A-lies with atomic attacks?" inquires T. Y., of Dallas, Tex. "I notice that our experts do not seem to take them seriously, while British military men are quite concerned."

The Russians find themselves in a unique and dangerous predicament because of current and prospective developments of modern warfare and weapons. Our Pentagon specialists think we have driven them into a corner, and I shall try to explain the reasons for their conclusions without any technicalities.

Both Moscow and Washington have operable A and H bombs, although our experts insist that we are ahead of them in volume and efficiency. But it is a fair assumption that, in view of our own and NATO bases that ring the Communist empire from Britain to Japan and Korea, such a dispersed attack could hit them harder and cause more disaster than they could inflict upon us. And the U.S. mainland, in view of these buffer bases, should be relatively immune.

U.S. HAS ADVANTAGE OVER RUSSIA Since the United States would be the atomic and ballistic missile arsenal for our A-lies, it would be easier for us to destroy or cripple their atomic and missile plants, as we did the German airplane factories in World War II, than for them to knock us out of production.

In short, the American and Allied decision to wage all-out atomic war, in the Pentagon's belief, shifts the military advantage to our side. That is the basic reason for the Khrushchev-Bulgarian wallings.

The Kremlin is even more concerned about a conflict conducted with long-range and intercontinental ballistic missiles or unguided planes. Their threats are aimed at forcing us to withdraw from our advanced forward outposts during the transition period from conventional to the so-called pushbutton weapons.

YEARS UNTIL MISSILES ARE DEVELOPED Despite everything said or published, it is believed that the 1,500-mile rockets will not be ready for warfare use in volume for from three to five years. Some experts estimate that it will take almost 10 years to develop the 5,500-mile missile, which will have a range from our coastal batteries to the interior of Russia.

Pills In Today's Dispute

By TOM DYGAARD
DETROIT (AP)—You're got to make a speech, you're jittery, and so you take a tranquilizer pill to ease the tension.

The pressures of business weight heavily on your nerves. So you take a tranquilizer pill to ease the tension.

The irritating aspects of a conference or a personal ordeal are dusted off with a pill.

Doctors who have studied this relatively new antidote for the universal human ailment of nervousness differ in their opinions of its affects.

Dr. Keith F. Killam of Los Angeles, an authority on the effect of tranquilizers on the brain says flatly:

"These things are too potent to be messing around with over-the-counter sales."

Dr. Phillip B. Bradley of Birmingham, England, who has done extensive work with tranquilizers, cautions that they work in a "rather subtle" way. "They appear to act in a way which seems to interfere with our perception of the external world," he said.

But Dr. James G. Miller, a University of Michigan psychiatrist who has conducted extensive tests on the effects of tranquilizers, says:

"I see no reason why people should not take tranquilizers for their whole life if they feel better for it."

Dr. Killam and Dr. Bradley discussed tranquilizing drugs at an international symposium on the reticular formation of the brain at Henry Ford Hospital here. Tranquilizers, which first appeared 2½ years ago and reportedly now are second only to achromycin (an antibiotic) in number of prescriptions written in the United States, are believed to do their work in the core of the brain stem known as the reticular formation. It is believed that this network of fibers and nerves, which plays a major role in wakefulness and sleep, filters incoming information and controls attention.

The man-made tranquilizer affects this filtering process.

The result, says Dr. Bradley, "is not a distortion of the environment but the interpretation is different."

In other words, with the help of a tranquilizer drug, things that used to bother you are brushed off with a minimum of worry, anxiety and tension.

Rae Foley's new mystery novel RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER I It was not until the night of October twelfth that Nora Pendleton knew someone wanted her to die.

well. Her physician had not allowed her to visit Stuart in jail or even to read the newspaper accounts of the case. It was Finn, at last, who had come a week ago to say that she was Stuart's only hope, and she had made her appearance in court to swear that he had been with her when Candy Kendrick's body had been put in the lake.

Slip, pale, eyes shadowed, face lined down by illness until she seemed more spirit than woman, she had taken the witness stand, met unflinchingly a battery of cameras and the crowd of morbidly curious spectators who filled the courtroom. She had answered Finn's deferential questions in a clear voice, like a good child repeating a well-learned lesson.

On the day of the murder she and Stuart Young had gone to the woods, taking a picnic lunch. They had built a fire, cooked the lunch and talked, planning for the future. All afternoon Stuart had been with her, but only for brief intervals while he gathered wood for the fire.

"Had there been any publicity about your engagement?" Finn asked. "We had decided only the day before," Nora explained. "No one knew except the people at the inn; my mother's sister, Mrs. Olive Riddle; my father's cousin, Mr. Charles Deming; his son, Frank; and the Husers, distant cousins of mine who run the inn."

She shook her head with gentle stubbornness. "He didn't kill her. There was no reason for killing her." "There was every reason," Finn said grimly. "He had scraped up an acquaintance with you, got engaged to you. And this girl was out to get him. If you found out about her, that would be the chance of getting the Pendleton money."

Nora had smiled at him. "Don't be angry, Finn. You can't shake my faith in Stuart. No one could." The lawyer had turned on his heel and left the room. But in the end Finley Black had agreed to defend the man she loved, had even come to like him and believe in him.

Surely the jury would not take much longer to reach their verdict. How could they have watched Stuart all these days and doubted him? How could they fail to realize that Cousin Charles had lied about seeing Stuart and Candy together shortly before the time, according to the medical reports, she was murdered?

There had been other damning evidence too: a handkerchief with Stuart's initials in the pocket of Candy's slacks; an anonymous letter identifying her murderer as Stuart Young.

Nora shivered and buttoned her cardigan with fingers that had grown thin during the months since Stuart's arrest. Shock and chills had brought on pneumonia and since then she had never been

AND THEN... IT'S EASTER!

Yesterday, these four were their Mothers' despair. Their faces were grimy, their play-clothes spattered with mud. They were even ready to put up their fists and fight when the rivalry between spacemen and cowboys became a little too keen.

Today, they are immaculate. They sing like young angels. They even look like angels... because today is Easter! And these boys are proclaiming the glorious message that Christ is Risen.

Easter is the time of promise, beauty, awe at the miracle of birth and rebirth. Easter is the time to let the joy of living seep into you. It is the time to tell yourself that you believe... and, if there's been any doubt about it, to start believing again.

District Governor Heard

Addressing nearly 200 Kiwanians of the Seventh Division of Carolina Kiwanis District at a banquet at East Carolina College last night, District Governor M. E. Gambrell of Hendersonville paid tribute to Lt.-Gov. John T. Barnhill and the 10 clubs for outstanding Kiwanis service.

Immediate Past President Ed Waldrop of Greenville introduced the speaker, President Charles E. Blair presided and Lt.-Gov. Barnhill was master of ceremonies.

Elizabethtown Kiwanis Club won the attendance prize for traveling over 1,000 miles to attend the banquet. Other clubs represented were Farmville, Goldsboro, Jacksonville, Kinston, Stantonsburg, Washington and Greenville, host to the visiting Kiwanians. The Wilmington and Wilson Kiwanis clubs were not represented.

Participating on the program were Secretary John O. Reynolds, District Secretary Herb Henning of Darlington, S. C., C. J. Hyslop of Elkin, chairman of the Atlantic City Convention Committee; District Key Club Governor James Bundy of Farmville, Past Governor of the Carolina Kiwanis District, Sam Bundy; Frank Allen of Farmville, chairman of the District Inter-Club Committee; Charles P. Gaskins, program chairman; Louis Clark and Charles V. Wilkerson, Past Lt.-Gov. Henry Bullock of Kinston, Dr. H. Glenn Haney and Rev. Leonard Topping.

Kinston Kiwanis President Tony Carey thanked Lt.-Gov. Barnhill for arranging for the Kinston High School Chorus to appear on the International Kiwanis Convention at Atlantic City in June.

Paul Hickfang of East Carolina College music faculty, with Mrs. Joseph R. Person and Rev. John A. Mebane will officiate. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lena M. Joyner; one son, J. Archibald Joyner of the home; one brother, Alonzo Joyner of Farmville; 22 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. Mr. Joyner was a charter member of Macedonia Baptist Church and he had served as deacon and trustee until his recent illness. He was the founder of Joyner & Sons Funeral Home, one of the oldest firms in the state. He retired several years ago and his son carries on the business. Mr. Joyner was a member of Galumet Lodge 273, I.B.T.O.E. of W and Livingstone Lodge No. 102, Free and Accepted Masons, Prince Hall affiliates. The body will be at Joyner's funeral home until 10:30 Monday, when it will be taken to the church.

Plan Organizing Grifton Jaycees

GRIFTON — Six young men met here with Greenville, Kinston and Ayden Jaycees last night to make tentative plans for the organization of a Grifton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The group elected Bill Ray, a Dupont employee, as temporary chairman.

The next meeting was set for next Friday night at 8 p.m. It will be held in the Grifton High School Auditorium. A permanent slate of officers is to be elected at that meeting.

Clarke Stokes of Greenville, extension chairman for the Ninth Jaycee district made plans for the meeting. J. B. Smith of Greenville, vice-president for the district, presided.

Jaywalking was costly in the U.S. in 1956 — 3,170 were killed.

Exchange Club Plans Sponsor Dance Revue

Projects Committee Chairman George Fleming announced final plans for the Exchange Club's annual sponsorship of Marie's School of Dance Revue at the meeting of the Club last night. Funds derived from the sponsorship of the dance revue are used by the Exchange Club in their youth work program.

Ed Harris was in charge of the program and presented Margaret James and Christine Smith in a musical program.

The members of the club, led by Miss James, joined in singing "Easter Parade." The program concluded with the singing of "Somebody Loves Me."

President Moyer read an invitation to the membership to attend Armed Forces Day exercises at Fort Bragg on May 18.

Two More Enter Farmville Race

FARMVILLE—Two more candidates have entered the race for places on Farmville's Town Board of Commissioners.

Will E. Joyner, a clothing merchant, filed with Town Clerk Cleveland Paylor Friday. C. L. Ivey, district manager for an insurance firm, entered the race earlier this week.

Joyner and Ivey will be competing with Glenn A. Newton, Bernice Turnage, W. C. Wooten, John D. Dixon, Frank Allen and Glasgow Smith for places on the five-man board. Newton, Turnage and Wooten are incumbents and Wooten is mayor pro-tem.

Deadline for filing for the commissioners' race will be May 1.

The race for mayor has only incumbent Charles S. Edwards and former mayor O.G. Spell running. Deadline for filing for mayor will be April 26.

Bethel Library Board Adds Two New Members

BETHEL—The Bethel Library Board of Trustees this week welcomed Mrs. J. L. Gurganus and N. Eugene Carson as new board members.

The group discussed improvements for the library and Mrs. L. G. Manning, librarian, was authorized to purchase new books and other publications. Mrs. S. D. Dewar, board secretary was authorized to receive bids on repair work for the library building.

Mrs. Manning suggested that a reading club be organized at the library during the summer months and the board approved.

At the conclusion of the business session, the hostess, Mrs. J. L. Gurganus, served refreshments.

Members present were Chairman Dr. C. G. Garrenton, Mrs. F. L. Blount Jr., Mrs. L. G. Manning, Mrs. S. D. Dewar, R. E. Reddick and N. Eugene Carson.

S. C. Ives was absent due to illness.

Second British Vessel To Begin Suez Passage

SUEZ, Egypt — A second British vessel was due in Suez today to enter the Suez Canal. The first voyage of a British merchantman through the waterway since the British-French invasion since the British-French invasion last fall was completed yesterday without incident.

The first U. S. ship to use the canal since the invasion is scheduled to arrive next week. Following procedure suggested by the State Department, the American President Lines plans to pay the toll for its cargo-cruise ship President Jackson to Egypt under protest.

French-flag shipping apparently will continue to boycott the reopened canal for an indefinite period.

Grace F. W. B. Announcements

Let's break the record in Sunday School this Sunday. There were 313 in attendance last week. The record attendance is 322. We must go above that number. Why don't you come? Sunday School begins at 9:45 A.M.

The service at 11:00 is still on the air over WGTC Radio. You are invited to come and worship the risen Christ with us.

At 7:00 the League will meet at the church. All the young people especially are urged to attend. This is the time of training that all Christians need.

The evening service starts at 8:00. You are cordially invited.

The Sunday School Council meets with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fussell on the Belvoir Rd. at 8:00.

On Tuesday the Good News Club meets with Mrs. Johnson. The boys and girls are urged to attend.

Wednesday evening at 7:30 the choir will meet for study. At 8:00 the prayer service will be conducted. Following the prayer service the Choir will practice. During the prayer service the Good News Club meets.

Plan Organizing Grifton Jaycees

GRIFTON — Six young men met here with Greenville, Kinston and Ayden Jaycees last night to make tentative plans for the organization of a Grifton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The group elected Bill Ray, a Dupont employee, as temporary chairman.

The next meeting was set for next Friday night at 8 p.m. It will be held in the Grifton High School Auditorium. A permanent slate of officers is to be elected at that meeting.

Clarke Stokes of Greenville, extension chairman for the Ninth Jaycee district made plans for the meeting. J. B. Smith of Greenville, vice-president for the district, presided.

Jaywalking was costly in the U.S. in 1956 — 3,170 were killed.

Local Church To Hold Easter Sunrise Service

Celebrating the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, an Easter Sunrise Service of Holy Communion will be held at St. James Methodist Church at 5:30 Sunday morning. The service is timed to coincide with the actual rising of the sun at approximately 5:34 a.m.

Beginning on the lawn in front of the church, the order of service includes the proclamation of the resurrection, the affirmation of faith in the resurrection of Christ and of His Church in the 2nd Century words of the Apostles' Creed, and the singing of "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

Moving into the church, the congregation will then read selected prayers from the centuries-old ritual of the Christian memorial of the Lord's Supper. "Our reason for having communion on Easter Day is to remember that our Lord actually ate with his disciples after his resurrection," Pastor J. Malloy Owen explained today. Pointing to the last chapter of Luke, the Rev. Mr. Owen said, "He ate fish and honey. He had flesh and bones, and He invited His disciples to handle Him that they might know He was no mere spirit."

Radio Station WGTC will broadcast the entire service directly from the church at 5:30 for persons unable to attend in person. "Since so few local churches plan sunrise services this year, we especially invite the public, regardless of church membership, to attend," Owen declared. "All Christians are welcome to commune with the risen Christ in this joyous Day of Victory," the minister concluded.

St. James Church is located at 2000 East 6th Street and Forest Circle.

LOCAL OPTOMETRISTS ATTENDED MEETING

Dr. Kenneth Quiggins and Dr. Sam White of Greenville attended the regular monthly meeting of the Coastal Optometric Society in Jacksonville Wednesday.

The business session included installation of new officers.

Bad driving conditions prevailed in less than 15 per cent of the fatal highway accidents in the U.S. in 1956.

Local Gardens Are Ablooming With The Flowers Of Spring

SUNKEN GARDEN—Mrs. J. B. James and her granddaughter, Lucy, are completely surrounded by multi-colored flowers and bushes that bloom almost year-round in her sunken, terraced garden behind her home on Fifth Street. The terrace directly behind them is quite colorful with white double tulips, red tulips, candy tuft, blue moss, purple and white iris, pansies, tulip trees, red buds, and azaleas nodding to one another in the Spring breeze.

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Staff Writer

Featured on this page are an informal garden, a formal garden, and a border garden. These three are representative of the multitude of gardens that are now at their full brilliance all over Greenville.

Considered experts in gardening, Mesdames J. B. James, J. B. Kittrell, and F. B. Haar were each asked: What do you think the most important factor for someone to consider that is planning a flower garden?

Mrs. J. B. James quickly answered that, "A planter should place her flowers and plants according to the sun or shade that they prefer." She illustrated her point by explaining that azaleas and camellia plants take partial shade while others must have the full sun.

She warned the beginning gardener that, "Plants are finicky—they like particular types of soil." She explained that azaleas and camellia plants prefer acid soil, but the iris take the opposite type of soil.

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell tells the secret of her success with bulbs which has assured her of a lovely, old-fashioned picture garden each spring. "I dig up the bulbs each year and plant fresh ones," she explained. She also believes that a gardener should enjoy their garden and not let it become too time-consuming. In her garden she strives for mass color effect which a beginning gardener could easily achieve.

"A beginning gardener should first think about permanent evergreen and then later they can fill in with flowering shrubs and trees, such as the dogwoods and crab apples, to make a beautiful background for the flowers that they decide to plant," suggest Mrs. Haar.

CHARM—You enter the garden under a white archway and follow the stone steps that lead into the quaint cool garden. Mrs. James says she believes a garden has more charm if you keep it natural. This garden is considered to have one of the prettiest settings and collection of flowers in Greenville.

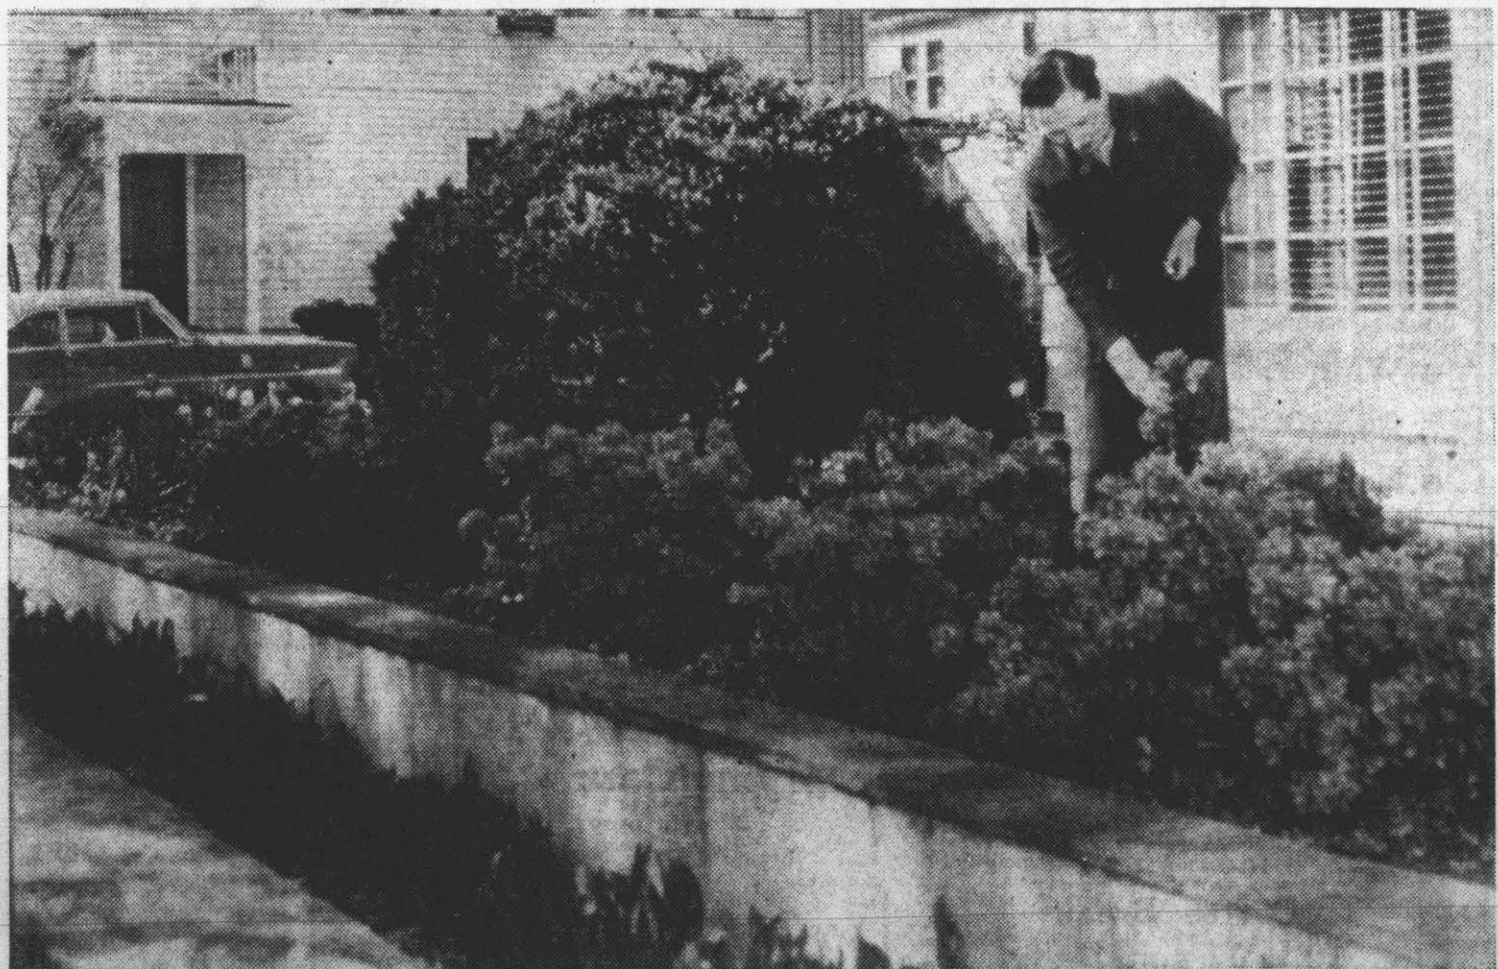

FOR GRANDMOTHER—Little Lucy stops to pick a flower for her grandmother. Mrs. James chooses the camellia as her favorite and she takes pride in the 50 varieties of camellia plants that bloom abundantly on her northern terrace. She is well-known for having the oldest and largest camellia plants in Greenville.

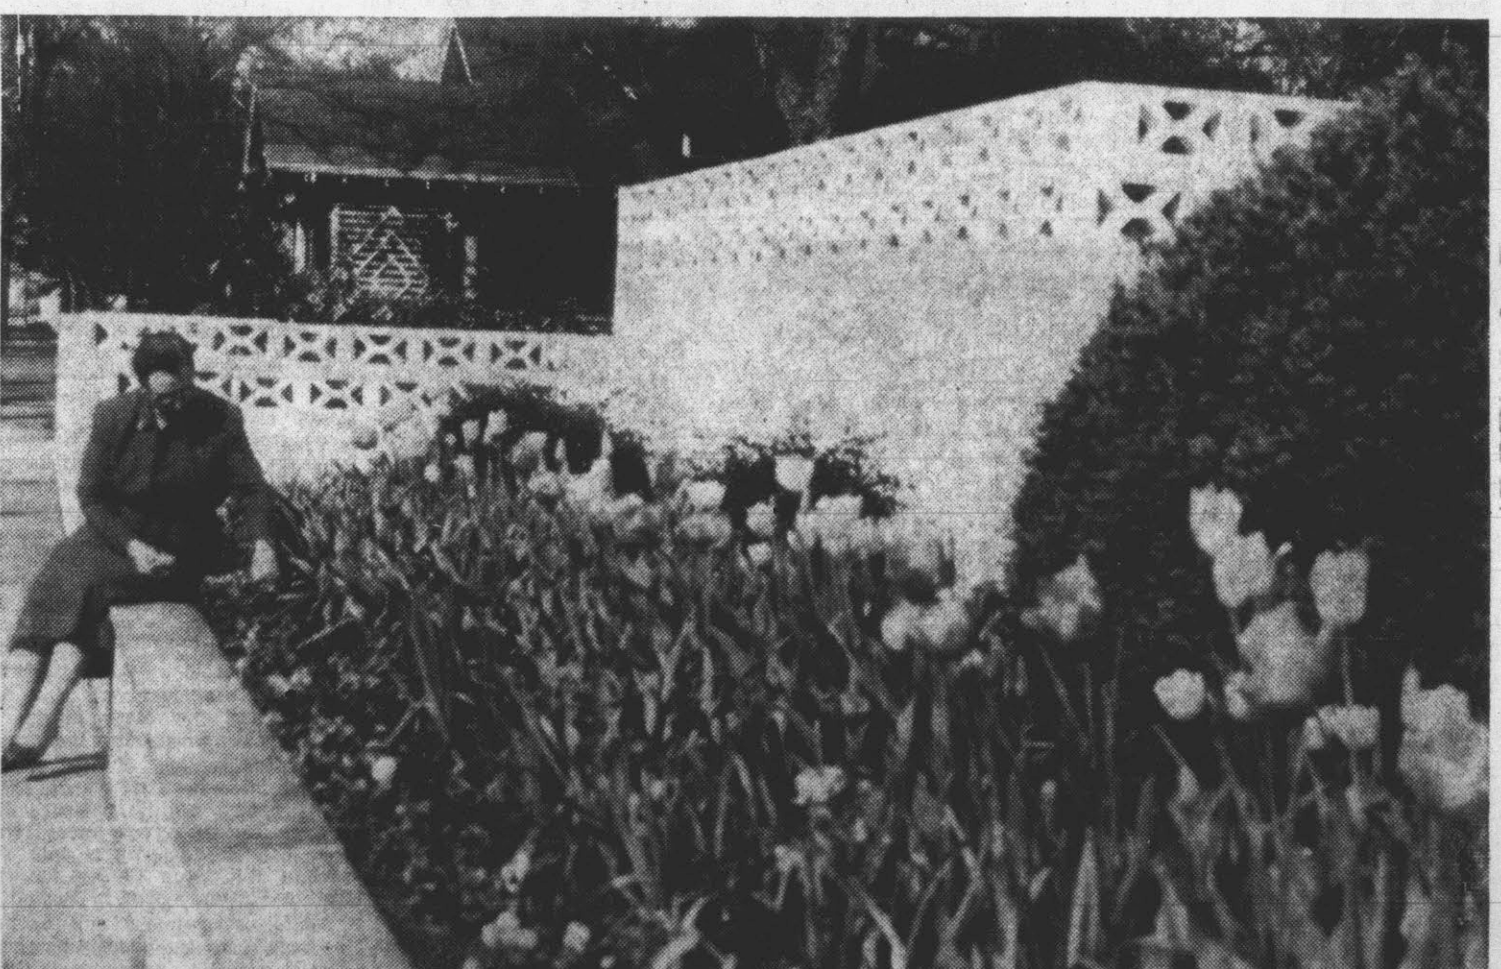

SPLASH OF COLOR—Mrs. Haar is shown above on the terrace that is blanketed by a splash of colors—pink and white dwarf azaleas, purple thrift, and formosa azaleas. She arranges her favorite flowers, azaleas, in order that the various colors will blend together. The natural setting of the college woods in the background creates a perfect backdrop to her widely-acclaimed garden.

MULTITUDE OF AZALEAS—Several hundred multi-colored azaleas border Mrs. Fred B. Haar's home on Ninth Street. Two college students are shown strolling through the gardens admiring the many varieties and specimens of flowers that enhance the yard. Mrs. Haar says she enjoys anyone visiting her garden and hopes they will come now while the flowers are still at their peak. (Reflector Staff Photos by Anne Singleton).

AZALEA BORDER—Mrs. J. B. Kittrell enjoys the brilliant color of the hindogesy azaleas that make many motorists on Fifth Street stop to take a second look. These flowers beside the green of the boxwood paint a striking picture against her white frame house. Along the walk is planted sage to bring out the red in the azalea plants.

HUNDREDS OF BULBS—The side border of Mrs. Kittrell's home is a brilliant array of nodding yellow, white and pink tulips and dainty blue pansies. Known for her expertness with bulbs, she urges bulb gardens for older people for she notes that with bulbs you are apt to forget exactly what colors you planted, thus you have pleasant surprises each spring.

Film On Life In California Has Been Keeping Berliners' Eyes Popping For Three Years

By REINHOLD ENSZ
BERLIN (AP) — Berliners are so curious about life in California that several hundred are willing to get up every Sunday morning to see a documentary film on the subject. They've been doing it for three years now. The film has been run off at a downtown theater every Sunday at 11 a.m. since Jan. 30, 1954. It is still drawing customers. "If business stays like it is," says Theater Manager Kurt Broschke, "we'll show the film for several more years." The movie was made in 1953 by a German, Hans Domnick. It looks at California in an amused, somewhat sarcastic manner. It conveys the impression that California is the land of the automobile. In fact, more than half of the 80-minute film is given over the showing view after view of rushing traffic, underpasses, overpasses, drive-in theaters, drive-in restaurants, filling stations, auto laundries, and acres of parking lots. Or, as the firm commentator puts it: "In California, a man without an automobile is lost." Domnick tried to emphasize this by taking his camera out into the suburbs of Los Angeles and shooting long views of empty sidewalks, with not a pedestrian in sight. But the streets are filled with autos. The auto is depicted as a powerful force which controls nearly all phases of life. Houses are torn down to make way for parking lots and highways. Huge bridges are thrown across San Francisco Bay and the Golden Gate. Teen-agers pile into hopped up jalopis and roar around dirt race tracks. Wheels fly off, two racers smash into each other, a third one roars into the wreckage, an ambulance charges up, and the mad race whirrs on. But there are also peaceful moments. If a Californian wants a snack, he jumps into the car and dines at a drive-in restaurant. If he wants to buy some bacon, he wheels over to a drive-in supermarket. If he wants to see a movie, he parks in a drive-in theater. If he wants to mail a letter, he drives to a curbside mailbox. To German eyes, such a car culture is a bit unreal. An automobile is still something of a luxury in this country and is put into the same category as the blue Sunday suit. So it's small wonder that the film is showing under the title: "Der Goldene Garten (The Golden Garden)." The film has been shown throughout West Germany and is now being readied for screenings in France. An English language version has already been completed, and Domnick hopes to show it in England and the United States. Maybe even in California! TACIT AGREEMENT EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Dr. Fred G. Alexander, a Michigan State University speech professor, made a study of one session of the Michigan Legislature to find out the influence of debate on legislation. He reported that 783 bills were presented but the lawmakers debated only one in four bills. LIKE RABBITS STANTON, Neb. (AP) — Raw carrots have replaced candy bars as fan-food at Stanton High School basketball games.

Lew Burdette Denies That He Used Spitball Hurling

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Lew Burdette really has his dander up against Birdie Tebbets in the latest development of their spitball feud that has reached the desk of Warren Giles, National League president. "I'm no spitballer and I'm no cheat," said the Milwaukee Braves righthander in retorting yesterday to the charge made by the manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs Thursday after Burdette had shut out the Redlegs 1-0.

Bucs Seek Fifth Loop Win Today Against Quakers

GUILFORD—East Carolina, the defending North State Conference baseball champions, will take on Guilford here today, seeking their fifth victory of the year in loop play. The Pirates hold a 4-2 league mark, having defeated Western Carolina (twice), Appalachian and High Point. They have lost to Elon and Appalachian. In overall action, the Bucs boast a 9-3 mark. Coach Jim Mallory was expected to send either Bruce Shelby, Mack McPherson or Ben Baker to the mound against the Quakers.

ECC Tennis Team Journeys To South For Several Contests

Coach Raymond Martinez and his six-man East Carolina tennis squad left Greenville last night, to begin a tour into the Southland. Martinez and his boys will meet four non-conference teams during the trip. Thursday the Pirates turned back Atlantic Christian College at Wilson, 7-0, in a North State Conference tilt. The victory was ECC's sixth against two losses. Their loop mark rests at 4-0 and they are currently leading the league. Pirate netters scooped wins in five singles and two doubles contests at Wilson.

East Carolina's trip opposition opens up today as the Bucs clash headon with the University of Charleston, at Charleston. Little is known of the University netters except that they were one of South Carolina's top teams last season. The Pirates will journey into Florida for their next match on Monday. Their opposition for the Monday match will be Jacksonville Naval Base, which boasts many former college tennis stars.

W-S Now Leads Carolina Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Winston-Salem surged to a clear lead in the Carolina League last night with a convincing 12-5 win over Greensboro. Durham helped force the Cardinals into first by beating Danville 4-1. The defeat knocked Danville out of a tie for the lead and into a deadlock with Durham for second. High Point-Thomasville, pennant winners of 1956, claimed their initial victory of the season with a 9-8 decision over Kinston. Home runs by Gene Davis, Gene Oliver and Jack Krol highlighted the 13-hit Winston-Salem attack against four Greensboro hurlers. The Cardinals got off to a roaring start with a six-run spree in the first, capped by back-to-back homers by Davis and Oliver.

Grant Announced For Workshop In Television

East Carolina College has received notification that the National Association of Educational Broadcasters has approved a grant-in-aid to be used at the college toward financing a summer workshop for a two weeks' course of study, presented to meet the special needs of parents, teachers, and other interested in educational opportunities offered by television, are now being made at the college. Rosalind Roulston, chairman of the College Radio and TV Committee, will direct activities of the workshop.

The course of study will extend from Monday, June 17, through Friday, June 28. In arranging and presenting the workshop program, East Carolina will have the cooperation of Station WNCT of Greenville, Channel 9. Staff members of the station will participate as consultants, and the facilities of the station will be made available for instructional purposes and for the production of a number of broadcasts.

The workshop will have a three-fold purpose. Its aims will be to stimulate the acquisition of information about television offerings and their best use, to provide guidance in the fundamentals of preparing and producing local programs, and to create awareness of the potentialities and applicability of closed circuit television in local educational institutions.

Consultants who will come to East Carolina to participate in the workshop will represent commercial and educational stations in various cities of the eastern part of the United States, major networks, and various organizations using closed circuit television. Announcement of the consultants who will be present will be made in the near future.

Discussing the grant-in-aid for the East Carolina workshop, Dr. Harry J. Skornia, executive director of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, wrote the college administration, "Yours is a promising workshop, which it is a pleasure for us to support." Commenting on the need for such a course of study, particularly among teachers, President John D. Messick of East Carolina, stated here this week, "Until teachers on the public school level in all sections of our country are aware of their connection with and responsibility for education-through-television both as provided by commercial stations and educational institutions, the medium cannot help us realize the national goal of an educated citizenry."

Lyric Soprano Frances Yeend Here Wednesday

Frances Yeend, who has been described as "the most gifted lyric soprano of our day," will appear Wednesday, April 24, on the East Carolina College Entertainment Series in the final recital of the 1956-57 season. She will sing in the Wright Auditorium. Wolf gang Schanzler, pianist, will be accompanist.

Miss Yeend, a young American artist, beautiful as well as talented, is a soprano whose greatest triumphs to date have been with the New York City Opera Company. With this company, in the fall and spring seasons, as well as in performances in Chicago, St. Louis, and Milwaukee, she has had the leading roles in at least eight operas.

She has also been leading soprano of the New Orleans Opera, the San Antonio Opera Festival, the Cincinnati Summer Opera, and the Northwest Grand Opera Association.

As soloist with many American symphony orchestras, Miss Yeend has appeared with the New York Philharmonic under the batons of both Bruno Walter and Leopold Stokowski; the Philadelphia Orchestra; under Eugene Ormandy; the Boston Symphony both in Boston and New York; the Minneapolis Symphony, under Dimitri Mitropoulos; and the Dallas Symphony under Antal Dorati.

Before outdoor festival audiences she has sung at the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood, the Hollywood Bowl, the Cincinnati May Festival, and the Lewisohn Stadium in New York.

Frances Yeend is the soprano soloist in the Boston Symphony's RCA-Victor recording of the Beethoven Ninth Symphony, a recording destined to rank among the greatest.

The concert of Miss Yeend in Greenville will be a musical highlight of the current season and is a replacement of the concert originally scheduled for Mimi Benzell. The Benzell concert date was cancelled because of the illness of the artist.

Weight Gussed On The Button

MCALISTER OKLA. (AP)—Baird Martin took a bulky package to the Railway Express station and remarked he thought it would weigh about 75 pounds.

Agent Warren Magruder replied: "I don't believe it will weigh that much. I'd say about 58 pounds."

He put it on the scales. It weighed 58 pounds.
