

New Grimesland Gym, Extra Classrooms Ready By Next Term

GYMNASIUM—This is the new gymnasium which will soon be completed at Grimesland Negro School. Built at a cost of around $85,000 the structure includes a stage and shower rooms. It has an asphalt tile floor.

GRIMESLAND—A gymnasium and a ten classroom section will be completed on the Grimesland Negro School shortly.

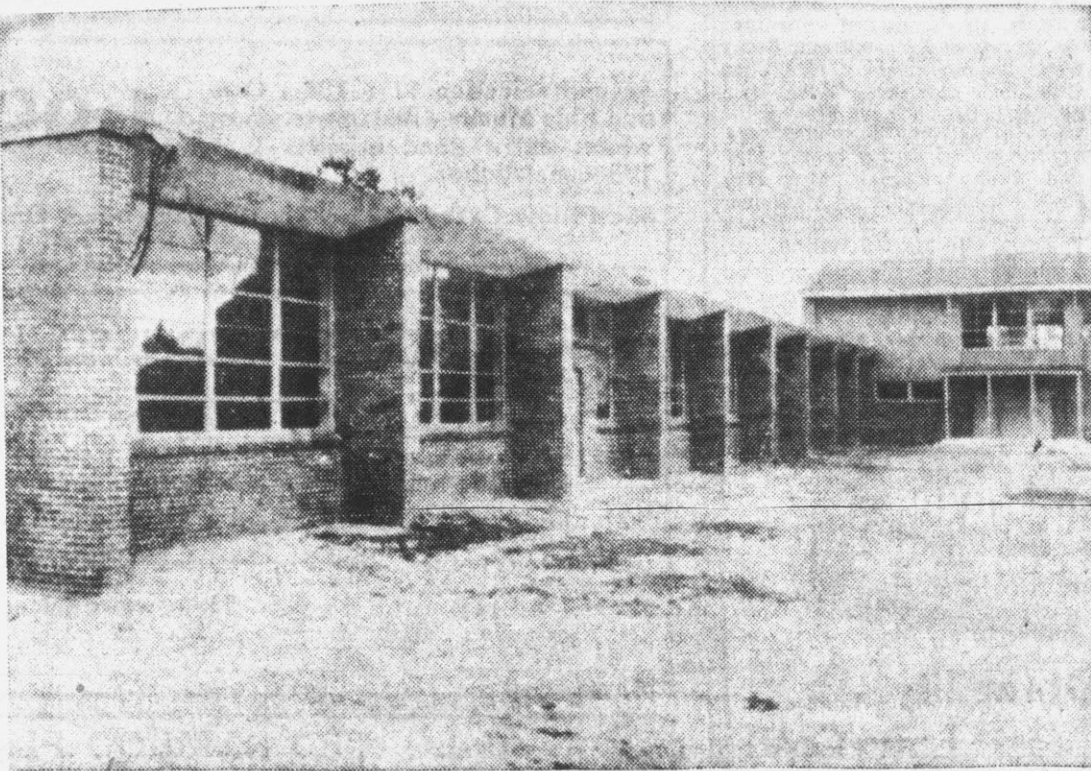

County School Superintendent D. H. Conley said the additions are virtually completed and they will be ready for full use when the school opens next fall.

The classroom section, constructed at a cost of approximately $100,000, contains a library, a science laboratory, two large primary rooms and an office in addition to general classrooms.

The gym cost around $85,000. It includes a stage and shower rooms. The gym has an asphalt tile floor and removable seats for auditorium use.

An eight room section at the school was completed some years ago and the ten new classrooms bring to 18 the number of classrooms at the school.

There are two older wooden buildings on the school grounds, Conley said one will be torn down and the second is to be moved.

Virginian's Leaf Measure Liked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Virginia congressman's bill to simplify enforcement of tobacco quota allotments is favored by the Department of Agriculture.

Rep. Jennings (D-Va.) has been advised by the department that it recommends passage of his bill to change the method of imposing penalties.

The bill would shift the basis for penalties on tobacco growers for exceeding quotas from the quantity sent to market, as at present, to the quantity harvested.

Under present law a grower can harvest an acreage greater than his allotment and then dispose of the excess without penalty.

The change to basing over-production penalties on harvested acreage is designed to simplify enforcement of quota allotments, an aide said.

A grower can now harvest an acreage greater than the farm-acreage allotment and as much as three months later (prior to marketing) elect to dispose of the excess tobacco. Thus, on the basis of having adjusted his tobacco available for marketing to the farm marketing quota, the grower can avoid payment of marketing penalties.

For Pitt Farm

RALEIGH (AP) — Pitt Rep. Walter Jones this morning introduced a bill in the House of Representatives calling for the establishment of a Tobacco Research Farm in Pitt.

The bill was sent to the Appropriations Committee.

The bill provides for the appropriation of $28,000 to the Extension Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture for establishment of the research farm to serve Pitt and surrounding area.

President Reaffirms Goal Of Ultimate Arms Control

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today reaffirmed that the United States is confident "controls and reduction of arms are possible, desirable and in the last reckoning, indispensable."

The President's view was set forth in a statement issued at his vacation headquarters after he conferred for 75 minutes with Harold E. Stassen, his disarmament adviser.

Stassen flew to Augusta from Washington for the conference and made ready to start back to London for resumption of United Nations disarmament talks there tomorrow.

Those talks which started last month and recessed over the Easter weekend, have caused United States officials to be cautiously hopeful that Russia finally may be ready to take some small first step toward bringing the East-West atomic weapons race under international control.

An attitude of cautious hopefulness by the administration is reflected in Secretary of State Dulles' decision that Stassen should travel to Augusta for a report to Eisenhower before returning to London.

An administration official at Eisenhower's headquarters said it would be wrong to conclude that the purpose of today's conference was to draft any new disarmament proposals.

The main U.S. proposals so far put forth, as outlined by officials here, are:

- 1. The U.S. call for a two-step 25 per cent reduction in non-nuclear or conventional armament, coupled with a reciprocal inspection system.
2. The suggestion by Eisenhower that production of atomic weapons be "frozen" without destruction of existing stockpiles. This would follow establishment of an acceptable inspection and control plan.

3. The Eisenhower "open skies" program, first advanced by him at the 1955 Geneva summit conference, for mutual aerial inspection of military establishments. This has been broadened to provision for some ground inspection.

Inflation Fears Of Publishers Stressed

NEW YORK (AP) — William Dwight, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., said today the "threat of inflation" has become a "major concern" to the nation's newspapers.

Several other executives joined Dwight in sounding the same warning in talks prepared for the start of the ANPA's 71st convention at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The publishers were to meet in three executive sessions — for newspapers with circulation under 10,000; 10,000 to 50,000; and over 50,000.

Dwight, of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript-Telegram, told the under-1,000 group that publishers' problems are becoming "increasingly complex" each year.

"The threat of inflation is added to the 1957 list of major concerns," he said. "This system of people's capitalism we have developed in the United States, in fact our way of life, is at stake; and we newspaper publishers must apply our full powers and resources to the cause of halting the trend that can only lead to the destruction of our assets."

"There is no group in the land who can do more to fight inflation," he added.

David B. Lindsay Jr. of the Sarasota (Fla.) Herald-Tribune and Journal told the 10,000-to-50,000 session that publishers face "a constantly rising curve of costs in all the labor and materials that go into our newspapers."

"It is no longer possible to threaten and brandish weapons," Dwight wrote. "Times have changed and any military measures can only end in failure. The Soviet Union cannot stand aside from this question. We wish to warn you in a friendly way as to the dangers which might follow if necessary prudence is not shown."

Replying, Eden reminded Bulgann that Britain, France and the United States had called an international conference to discuss the canal in response to President Nasser's "provocative and illegal acts." Egypt, he added, had refused to attend.

Bulgann also warned that "all the Arabs would rise in sacred struggle against a foreign invasion." This prediction failed to pan out. Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia were bound to Egypt in a military pact but did not come to her rescue.

"The exchange began with a letter from Bulgann to Eden Sept. 11, seven weeks before the British-French invasion.

This letter told Eden military action would result in the sabotage of the canal and oil fields and pipelines in the Arab states.

"This means," Bulgann wrote, "that material loss, particularly to Britain and France and for that matter to the whole of Europe would assume immense proportions."

After the invasion began, Egypt did sink ships to block the canal. Syria blew up the oil pipeline from Iraq leading inside Syria and cut the vital flow to Europe.

Hussein Govm't Charges Crises Set Off By Funds From 'Outside'

AMMAN (AP) — Premier Hussein Khaldi's government has taken the propaganda offensive against its enemies in Egypt and Syria. A government spokesman charged yesterday that "some neighboring Arab countries and foreign countries paid lots of money" to set off Jordan's recent government crisis.

Although he would not name the countries, he obviously referred to Syria, perhaps Egypt, and the Soviet Union.

Khaldi himself, in a statement broadcast by the Jordan radio, rejected charges of Western interference in his country's internal affairs and said such charges "caused confusion and have been used in a way contradictory to the best interests and security of this faithful country."

The Premier urged the Jordan people to ignore rumors and called on other Arab countries to use caution in their comment. "until things have taken their normal course," he obviously meant Syria and Egypt, whose propaganda machines have been grinding out scorching attacks against the recent developments which tossed the leftists and pro-Communists out of power in Jordan. The government reimposed strict censorship on outgoing cables. All Egyptian and Syrian magazines coming into the country have been confiscated for the past 10 days.

(Masterson's dispatch, which was delayed, indicated censorship had been extended to all outgoing news reports. Previously censorship had been reported operating only for military news.)

The government spokesman said the funds from abroad had been "paid to parties and others." He did not specify how much was paid out or name the parties.

The spokesman said the situation in Amman "is very good" in the wake of the weekend switch in the army command, and "the country is calm and under good control." He added that the government did not fear demonstra-

"The leftists have tried several times and failed," he declared. "The west bank of the Jordan river is the most dangerous, and still they failed."

The strongest leftist movements are on the west bank, in the former Palestinian territory, and demonstrations usually begin there in such towns as Nablus, Ramallah and even Jerusalem. The leftist-dominated National Steering Committee was meeting in Nablus to pass resolutions calling for the ouster of Khaldi's Cabinet and demanding the recall of U.S. Ambassador Lester Mallory.

An American Embassy spokesman said it was still not decided whether James P. Richards, President Eisenhower's special envoy to explain the Eisenhower Doctrine, would come to Jordan.

"For my part," one government official said, "I think it would be better if Richards did not come at this time. It would give the leftists an excuse to start trouble."

(Despite Khaldi's appeal to Arab countries for caution in the Jordan crisis, Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency reported the demands of a "conference" of some Jordan political leaders at Nablus in Palestine yesterday.

(The demands included: withdrawal by the United States from Jordan's internal affairs; refusal of an invitation to James Richards, President Eisenhower's Middle East envoy; firing of Khaldi government, and King Hussein's palace chief, Rahhat Fahoum; reinstatement of the former chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, and several other arrested army officers, and release of several civilians.

(Lebanese Foreign Ministry sources in Beirut indicated that country was trying to calm the situation. Foreign Minister Charles Malik was said to have urged Iraq not to send troops into Jordan, to have conferred with British Ambassador George Middleton, and to have made contacts with the Jordan government and royal palace.

President And Labor Sec. To Talk Rackets Action

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today called Secretary of Labor Mitchell to a Thursday conference here to discuss the possibility of legislation to deal with situations such as disclosed by the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

In announcing the conference plans at Eisenhower's vacation headquarters, White House press secretary C. H. Hagan replied "Yes" when asked whether he looks for the administration to ask that Congress enact legislation in that field at this session.

But Hagan stressed he does not expect that Eisenhower and Mitchell will get down to the point of even any preliminary draft of such legislation at their Thursday session.

The press secretary also emphasized that the President and Mitchell plan to discuss other phases of the general labor picture and the possibility of legislation in such areas as union health and welfare funds.

The Senate's Permanent Investigations subcommittee is conducting a far-reaching inquiry into racketeering activities in the labor-management field.

A highlight of the probe has been the investigation dealing with the big AFL-CIO Teamsters Union headed by Dave Beck.

Hagan told a news conference that Eisenhower and Mitchell will discuss the possibility of legislation to deal with situations which are "an outgrowth of investigations that are now going on in this country."

Hagan said he had the work of the Senate committee specifically in mind in making that statement.

Hagan noted that at his last Washington news conference the President was asked whether he felt there was "any need for new federal legislation growing out of the labor disclosures that have been made during the investigation."

In reply, Eisenhower alluded to disclosures regarding use of union funds and said: "It would appear that when funds can be used in a way that apparently does create scandal in the country, then there ought to be some legal means of looking at these things in advance so that kind of abuse of labor cannot take place."

Asked at that time if the administration was making any study of whether specific legislation was needed, Eisenhower replied the Labor Department was watching the situation very closely to see "whether we have any responsibility, or anything we could do reasonably."

Hagan said the Eisenhower-Mitchell conference has been arranged against the background of that Labor Department study.

The press secretary said he could not forecast what specific new legislation the administration may recommend, but he announced that Mitchell plans to hold a news conference here after he confers with Eisenhower.

Seek Reason For Clean-Up Brakes

RALEIGH (AP) — Swain County residents are a little perplexed over the reversal of state policy on antipollution legislation, and have demanded to know why.

Rep. C. R. Crawford of Swain said he was awaiting a reply from a letter to Gov. Hodges asking to know the reason for the sudden change.

The House Committee on Conservation and Development gave an unfavorable report last Thursday to a Swain-sponsored bill to require a clean Tuckaseegee River by 1962. The action came after heads of two state agencies made effective speeches opposing the bill.

Director William P. Saunders of the Department of Conservation and Development and Earl Hubbard, executive secretary of the State Stream Sanitation Committee, described the Tuckaseegee bill as "unnecessary" and "disruptive" of the committee's statewide antipollution program.

A similar measure to require a clean-up on the Neuse River by Jan. 1, 1962, passed the House a few weeks ago despite opposition by Kingston and Smithfield legislators.

Jackson County Rep. Marcellus Buchanan and representatives of the Mead Paper Corp. at Sylva told the House committee the Tuckaseegee Bill would bring "economic disaster" to Jackson County because Mead would have the requirements of the bill.

In his letter to Gov. Hodges, Rep. Crawford said he felt the actions of Saunders and Hubbard "have set back progress" in my county for several years. "The people of my county are demanding a personal explanation which they feel should be given here in Bryson City, of the action of these two men before the committee."

Crawford said the two state officials "suddenly and without warning" made before the committee and made a very effective speech opposing this bill."

One million railroad workers are to get an added three cents an hour effective May 1. The other groups of workers—due to get smaller hourly pay raises of one to two cents an hour—are in the electrical, aircraft and textile manufacturing industries, and in construction.

The Labor Department also reported that average weekly earnings of factory workers in March, after deduction of federal taxes, dropped by a little more than 30 cents, to $74.65 for a worker with three dependents and $67.25 for a single worker.

Factory workers' buying power also declined over the month, reflecting shorter working hours as well as higher living costs.

March was the first month in more than 2½ years in which factory worker take-home pay adjusted to living costs showed no gain from a year before.

Practically all major elements of the average family budget — food, clothing, housing and services—have been climbing since the middle of last year.

The living cost level is nearly 4 per cent above what it was last spring.

Today's living cost figure, due to be announced by the Labor Department, is expected to mean automatic pay boosts for 1,200,000 workers. This probably will amount to a 75-million-dollar annual payroll increase.

More Twisters And Rain For Southwest

DALLAS (AP) — A squall line that spanned a new flurry of tornadoes swept across the eastern part of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas today, trailing hail and thunderstorms behind it.

The Weather Bureau said heavy rainstorms were trailing as much as 100 to 200 miles behind it, but the squall line appeared to be losing much of its punch as it moved east.

Swollen rivers and creeks posed new flood threats in some Texas areas after heavy downpours the last four days.

Eight confirmed twisters were sighted or struck in Texas yesterday, causing considerable property damage. Five tornadoes struck or were sighted in Kansas and five more lashed portions of Oklahoma yesterday and last night. No injuries were reported.

Heavy rain soaked portions of the worst drought area of west Texas last night, but began tapering off early today. The area is the only one in which state officials say the seven-year Texas drought has not been broken by heavy spring rainfall.

A deluge measured up to 1.48 inches drenched San Angelo, where President Eisenhower visited on his drought tour in January.

The thunderstorm almost doubled the year's rainfall in the area, which measured 1.83 inches before the rain last night. Hail and winds buffeted small towns near San Angelo and at least half an inch of rain fell across a wide section of the drought-parched area.

The heaviest damage in the Texas tornadoes yesterday was caused by a twister that dipped down near the Leslie community, about 16 miles west of Memphis in the Texas Panhandle. Homes, barns and outbuildings were damaged or destroyed on at least half a dozen farms.

Three others hit in the South Plains, three in east Texas and one near Odessa. Hallstones covered the ground at the Midland-Odessa air terminal. One of the twisters in east Texas damaged windows and a roof at Jacksonville.

Streams in Navarro and Freestone counties were at flood stage, and flooding was expected on the Nueces and Rio rivers in south Texas, along the Trinity south of Dallas and the Sulphur River near Naples.

British Reveal Soviet Warning On Suez Attack

LONDON (AP) — Britain disclosed last night Russia warned her before the Suez invasion that such an attack would prompt the Arabs to sabotage the canal, cripple Middle East oil lines and unite in holy war. The first two predictions were correct.

Publication of an exchange between Soviet Premier Bulgann and then Prime Minister Eden also revealed the British appeal to the Soviet Union to help in internationalizing the "disputed waterway."

Prime Minister Macmillan's office made the hitherto secret letters public barely five hours after the Russians announced they would come out today with the exchanges between Bulgann and French Premier Guy Mollet.

Britain apparently hoped to take some of the propaganda punch out of what was viewed as a Soviet move to picture Russia as guardian of the Arab world, counter-

Middle East acceptance of the Eisenhower Doctrine and drive a new wedge between the United States and her two chief allies.

Officials in the French Foreign Ministry said Mollet's replies to Bulgann would remain locked in the files as far as the French government is concerned.

"The Russians are simply trying to show that only the Russians are helping the Arabs," said one Foreign Ministry official. "The Kremlin is just trying to remind (Egyptian President) Nasser that he didn't win his political victory without Russian help."

Another French official said that Russia is obviously concerned about the attraction to the Arabs of American policy, especially the prospects of American economic aid under the Eisenhower Doctrine. He said the Kremlin plan to publish the notes was part of Russia's attempt to block the American doctrine. Leonid Ilyichev, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman, told newsmen in Moscow yesterday the letters would be made public to blunt Western attempts to cast "a shadow on the peaceful aims of Soviet foreign policy."

The exchange began with a letter from Bulgann to Eden Sept. 11, seven weeks before the British-French invasion.

This letter told Eden military action would result in the sabotage of the canal and oil fields and pipelines in the Arab states.

"This means," Bulgann wrote, "that material loss, particularly to Britain and France and for that matter to the whole of Europe would assume immense proportions."

After the invasion began, Egypt did sink ships to block the canal. Syria blew up the oil pipeline from Iraq leading inside Syria and cut the vital flow to Europe.

Cashmere Sweaters Go Everywhere Now

COSMOPOLITAN CASHMERE... This sophisticated little jacket is two-ply cashmere, waist length, with ribbed trim, by Hadley.

AP Newfashions
Sweater girls should be happy this spring, for sweaters run the full fashion gamut, from morning to night.

There are trim little sweater jackets for morning, dressy low-necked sweaters for afternoon, festive embroidered sweaters for evening. There are rare cashmires and thrifty fool-the-eyes blends of angora and wool. There are sweaters that double as coats and others that team with floating chiffon skirts of an evening.

No longer is a sweater a classic. There are new necklines, new dressmaker touches, new high fashion touches that make it possible for a girl to live in sweaters, if she's so inclined.

Particularly new and popular this spring are short jackets of two-ply cashmere, which may double for a suit jacket when teamed with a coordinated skirt. These have the smart bulky look, hug the figure and come in tender pastels as well as black and white.

Miss Perkins Luncheon Honoree

Miss Margaret Fleming honored Miss Virginia Perkins, bride-elect, at a luncheon Saturday afternoon at the Proctor Hotel dining room.

Miss Fleming and Miss Perkins greeted the guests at the door and invited them into the dining room where a pink and white color motif was used. The centerpiece featured pink gladioli, white asters, and fern. Burning white tapers flanked the table.

Easter bonnets made of pink marshmallows, cookies, flowers, and ribbon streamers made unique place cards.

After a first course of tomato juice, a turkey dinner with cranberry sauce, peas, candied potatoes, celery, pickles, rolls and tea were served, followed by lemon pie for dessert.

The hostess presented Miss Perkins with a white carnation corsage and a dinner plate in her china pattern.

The honoree wore a tan and white nylon dress with matching accessories.

30 Years Ago Today

The Daily Reflector
April 23, 1927

Greenville society raided every second-hand shop and dime store yesterday. The result was a great success at the country club last evening when the Cotillion Club gave a "Tacky" dance. The costumes were a scream and a riot of color. Some boys were girls and some girls, boys, mothers, grandmothers and possibly great-grandmothers wedding dress was in evidence. It was indeed a grand success. The ladies' prize for the best costume went to Mrs. Lee Hannah. She wore a vivid creation which must have been part of a gypsy costume. With this she wore shoes which belonged to the sixteen button toothpick age. Her most fetching feature was the lack of front teeth. Mr. James Patterson carried off the honors for the men. Kerosene lamps and the lanterns which the owners of horse-drawn vehicles have refused for years to carry on the highway at night, shed their mellow glow on this brilliant scene.

Fine Art Collection Shown By Talented Biddle Family

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Friends and critics studying the portrait of Mrs. Francis Biddle, wife of the former attorney general, were of two opinions. Some liked it. Others didn't.

"They don't think it looks like her at all," observed a neutralist in the group previewing a collection of paintings, prints and sculpture gathered in over 30 years by the Biddles and now on exhibition at the Corcoran Art Gallery here.

Mrs. Biddle, who, as Katharine Garrison Chapin, is widely known for her poetic works, is pleased with the painting by the Philadelphia, Franklin C. Watkins. She has written a poem about it.

"It concerns a mood induced by the painting," Biddle told me. In the collection is a portrait of Biddle too. It was done by his brother, George, whose murals enhance the Department of Justice building here and public buildings in Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro and elsewhere. The distinguished lawyer and author, the essence of dignity and impeccability is pictured in a cap, bow tie and rather flashy sports clothes.

"It makes me look like a jockey," he admitted. "I like it. That's the way I feel." Along with the valuable works by such as Picasso, Toulouse-Lautrec, Modigliani, Albert P. Ryder, Matisse, Degas, and Charles Demuth, are fine works by other members of the Biddle family. George's wife, sculptress Helene Sardeau, is represented by a carving in wood. Mrs. Biddle's sister, Cornelia Chapin, an animal sculptress, whose marble pelican is in Corcoran's permanent collection from the Biddles' Georgetown home. Mrs. Biddle's niece, Lella Caetani, daughter of the Duchess of Sermoneta, has contributed a landscape.

Mrs. Biddle has written several books of poetry, numerous critical works, three long dramatic ballads which were set to music and a couple of plays. She is now making some recordings for the Library of Congress where she is a consulting fellow in poetry as well as for foreign broadcasts.

Biddle himself is a writer of note. Currently, he's finishing off his reminiscences.

With A Minimum Of Interferring

Though most people like government regulations as far removed as possible from their recreation, there is and has been an urgent need for more safeguards on boating which has boomed to amazing heights in the past few years.

The Congressional Committee headed by Rep. Herbert Bonner of this district has come up with some sound proposals which should provide important safeguards to the millions of Americans who take to the water in pleasure boats. At the same time the commit-

Two Tax Proposals We Can Do Without

The legislature would do well to drop from current tax proposals the unnecessary occupational tax as well as the permissive provision which would enable municipalities to levy up to $10 for auto license tags.

While North Carolina's tax laws are badly in need of revision, there is no reason for keeping these two unreasonable proposals in the "package" where they will only serve to delay final consideration of the overall plan. The sooner these two proposals are removed from the package plan, the sooner the respective tax committees can get down to brass tacks on other tax proposals.

Unless and until these provisions are removed they are going to hinder work on the important tax bill.

There is certainly no logic in the proposal which would permit a municipality to levy an occupational tax upon every person who works within its corporate limits. In the first place there are few cities in which the citizens would stand for such a tax if the local governing board wanted to levy it. Secondly, it appears to us a poor precedent for North Carolina to set after sticking to its guns on the so-called "right-to-work" law which prohibit union shops in this state. If North Carolina is right in asserting no individual should have to be a member of any labor union to hold a job—and we think the state is right in its stand—certainly the state cannot pass legislation which requires an individual to pay a special occupational tax to a municipal government for the privilege of holding a job within the city.

The proposal which would allow municipalities to charge up to $10 for city auto license tags is obviously an attempt to get the municipalities to throw their weight behind the package tax program. As a support-getting gimmick for the tax plan, and as a possible new source of revenue for cities in need of more funds, the proposal has backfired completely. The cities will be better off without the proposed permission to hike the cost of auto license tags to ten times the present level, and the tax bill would be better off without it too.

Generally the proposed revisions in the state's tax structure make sense. But these two proposals certainly do not. The sooner the legislature discards and gets on to other proposals for revising the antiquated tax structure of the state, the better it will be.

Suggests Boom In Babies Ending

By ELMER ROESSNER
Now comes V (no period) Lewis Bassie, director of the Illinois University's Bureau of Economic and Business Research, to suggest that the baby boom is approaching the end.

Parents, he says, may stop building up their inventories of children.

There has been a boom in births since the early days of World War II. "The subnormal rates of marriage and child-bearing in the 1930's created a large backlog of young adults without children," Dr. Bassie writes in the current Illinois Business Review. "Marriages reached an extreme peak just after World War II, and the newly created families have generally wanted more than one child. Births rose to a peak in 1954-56. The rate was as high as one out of four for women in peak fertility years of their early twenties—implying that close to half of the married women in these age groups were pregnant at least part of the time in each of the last three years."

QUESTIONS CENSUS ESTIMATES
Dr. Bassie questions Census Bureau estimates that indicate a continuation of the population increase around present rates. "It assumes that women now having children in their twenties will continue having children in their thirties at the same rate as those now in their thirties," he writes. The number of children a mother has will have an influence on the number of additional children she will bear, he points out.

"It seems more likely that marriages and births have pretty well used up the backlog existing at the end of the war." This statement seems a bit obscure. Backlog of what? Desires for families? Virginity? Love? But Dr. Bassie continues:

"Because of the small numbers coming of marriageable age, marriages cannot be expected to recover for several years. The possibility of maintaining the birth rate depends, therefore, upon a substantial increase in the size of families. The fact that births have followed each other in quicker succession is not conclusive evidence that there will be more.

A CONTROLLABLE PHENOMENON

"The possibility of larger families is increased, but since the process is subject to control, the possibility does not automatically result in the actuality. When parents have enough children, they may stop having more.

"It is, in effect, a problem of inventory control. . . . As the point of saturation is reached, the controls will tend to bring the baby boom to an end."

tee's proposals should cause a minimum of inconvenience and government interference with the enjoyment of this sport.

After holding hearings in a score of cities throughout the country, the committee has come up with some common-sense proposals.

It would require over three million outboard boats not now registered by the Coast Guard to apply for and receive periodically registration numbers. It would also require pleasure boats up to 65 feet in length to apply for registration numbers once every three years rather than only once as is now the case.

According to Rep. Bonner the proposals would also require the following:

1. Reporting to the Coast Guard by a boat operator of an accident in which he is involved.
2. Imposition by the Coast Guard of civil penalties for violations of law prohibiting reckless or negligent operation of pleasure boats. At present, only criminal penalties are permitted.
3. Each applicant for a boat number must certify to the issuing Coast Guard officer that he knows the pilot rules for operating boats.

While some people who enjoy pleasure boating may object to some of these provisions, it is evident that their enactment will make boating safer for everyone. And in this era when the number of boats are increasing annually by leaps and bounds more consideration must be given to safety measures which will protect life and property.

Rep. Bonner and his committee have done a commendable job of evaluating this growing problem. They have made a sound approach to the matter in recommending measures which will afford maximum protection with minimum interference of the individual's pursuit of his hobby. We trust Congress will follow recommendations of the committee to make pleasure boating a safer pastime for literally millions of Americans.

Churchman Sees School Economy

By LYNN NISBET
CLASS ROOMS — North Carolina can save literally hundreds of millions of dollars for new school building construction if full utilization of existing facilities is made, says a highly successful business man and prominent churchman, who objects to being quoted by name.

There are thousands of Sunday school class rooms in educational annexes to churches which are essentially used only one or two hours a week, he said, but which are furnished with seats and blackboards that are readily adaptable for public school use. His own church in a Piedmont city has 59 classrooms to serve a membership of 2200, which probably means 500 to 600 attendants at Sunday school. He would not be willing to turn over all the facilities to the public schools, but he says his own church could afford day school accommodation for three to four hundred pupils without in any way interfering with the educational or social program of the congregation.

Most of the church class rooms are small, but many of them are equipped with movable partition walls. Even if the conditions are not fitted into regular public school classes, these facilities might be utilized for special courses for mentally retarded or exceptionally bright pupils for public schools now confronting the school authorities.

Suggested use of such facilities for public schools does no violence to the traditional concept of the sacredness of the dedicated sanctuary in church buildings. It is recognized that many North Carolinians would object to classes in economics or geography or secular history being taught in a room which had been dedicated solely to the worship of God. Yet there are numerous historic precedents for using churches as hospitals, sleeping quarters or public schools in emergency cases. And there are even more precedents for civic club dinners, public forum meetings and similar programs in church buildings.

COMPANIONS — The freedom loving people who settled North America recognized that churches and schools were boon companions, continued the man who suggested this idea. The first public building in every settled community was a church, the second was a school house. In many instances there was just one building, used for secular education during the week and religious services on Sunday.

Hundreds of instances can be cited where school houses and college auditoriums have been used for church services, and almost as many where church buildings have been used for secular classes. The same folks pay for both church and school buildings. Generally churches are built by voluntary contribution, school houses by enforced collection of taxes. Duplication of facilities for part time use is wasteful.

SEGREGATION — The main barrier to free use of church property for public schools is the segregation idea. Not only racial segregation, but also the almost as clearly defined lines among denominations. If only Baptists paid for a church building they might be expected to contend that only Baptist doctrines should be taught there. Same would apply to Episcopalians, Lutherans, Methodists or Presbyterians. That so closely approaches the obnoxious principle of purely parochial schools that difficulties are certain to arise.

The difficulties are mostly on paper. It is well known that the youth activity programs of every church embraces Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Junior ball teams, etc., without regard to the religious faith of the parents.

The fact is obvious that if available classrooms in church educational buildings were utilized by the public schools, the taxpayers of North Carolina could save hundreds of millions of dollars.

STATEWIDE — Rep. Carroll Holmes of Perquimans in his capacity as chairman of the committee on Counties, Cities and Towns, has had to deal with a lot of purely local legislation. He introduced a series of bills the other day designed to incorporate in statewide acts many of the solutions sought by special bills applying only to one county or municipality.

Without analyzing the character of all bills, it is believed that fewer bills this session than usual have general or statewide character. A number have been introduced labeled as purely local, but which have the effect of putting the particular county under an existing state law. Several counties, for example, have been removed from the list of those exempted from application of the law against dumping trash on or near highway rights of way. Others provide for the county to come under the law permitting commissioners to fix salaries, or some other general act. While in one sense these are local bills, in the real sense they are not because they apply statewide provisions to the specific counties.

Apparently there has been more than usual effort to write stream legislation, dramatic description of the law against dumping trash on or near highway rights of way. The act can be applied to any area within the framework of a general statute. It is still true that when the Session Laws of 1957 are published there will be many pages cluttered with acts applying to only one small community or to one officer in a single county. It is further true that some of the general acts, which make no reference to individuals or localities, actually affect only one or two persons or places.

SACRAMENT
"And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the apostles with him."

In these simple words, St. Luke introduces the account of our Lord's institution of the Last Supper. He took the bread and wine, declaring the former to be his body and the latter his blood, and commanded his disciples to partake of these in remembrance of him.

That was a little over nineteen hundred years ago, and to this day the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is observed in every branch of the Christian Church. It is the re-enactment in Symbolic form of the crucifixion. It is designed to hold fast in our memory the realization that our Lord's death on the cross is the most important circumstance in the whole of Christian belief and practice. Furthermore, it emphasizes the unity which exists between Christ and His followers. As the bread and wine, consumed, becomes part of the worshiper's body, so Christ, spiritually partaken of, becomes part of the worshiper's life.

Also this sacrament teaches us that the human soul can feed on nothing less than Christ Himself. He is our spiritual sustenance.

These facts need to be recalled to our minds on Thursday of Holy Week. In the quiet of these hours, we remind ourselves that this Man who claimed to be our Lord is our Lord indeed, that He is one with us, and that, spiritually, we feed upon Him and upon Him alone.

Some 'Opinionated' Items

As I sat at my desk yesterday, thinking about the old days, I began to hum a song that was very popular a few years ago, "Cigarettes, Whiskey and Wild-Will Women."

The second line, if my memory serves me correctly is, "they will drive you crazy, they'll drive you insane."

Of course every one has their opinion as to what all three do together or individually can do to a respectable man or any man as far as that goes. Many of these opinions I have heard but due to some sort of newspaper code made up some years ago, it will be impossible for me to put any of these in print.

This morning, however, while looking through some newspapers published in neighboring towns, I found an opinionated article about one form of these "evils" white lightning.

This short article appeared in a recent issue of the Sanford N. C. Herald:

"White lightning," Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn noted "other day in Guilford County Superior Court, can make a rabbit spit in a bulldog's eye."

"We expect His Honor is right. Yes, sir, we've heard it said white lightning would do that."

"Heard it said too that it can make you smack your mother-in-law, and want to fight a buzz-saw, and stand up to a rattlesnake and tell him, "strike, damn you, I never been better prepared."

"We've been told that corn squeezin' will make you high as a Georgia pine, and cockeyed as a hootin' owl, and frisky as a he-horse on the way to a county fair."

"It's been told in front of us that still drippin' will tangle your feet, and make you walk slouchways, and limber your legs like a dishrag."

"They tell us it will part your hair, and jar the fillings out of your teeth and knock you flat on your backside."

"Yeah, it's said to be a fact that sugarhead will hang you over lower than a snake's belly-button, or give you the shakes like a kooch dancer at the second show, or leave your mouth as dry as cotton worth 15 cents a pound."

"Judge Burgwyn knows that old corn whisky. Right there in big court he sure called its name and pointed to its pew."

Another subject that is controversial in this area (hot as much as cigarettes, whiskey and wild women however) is the wearing of Bermuda shorts by the male.

The following editorial, in part, appeared in the Goldsboro News Argus a short time ago entitled, "Bermudas and a Coat, Aww!"

"Bermuda shorts by themselves are wearing enough on those around. They are as unsightly as Scottish kilts. The average man's knees and legs are offensive to behold. They are knobby, gnarled, lack form, and are much more beautiful when covered."

"If there is any excuse for Bermuda shorts for males, it is to give coolness. But the sensible way to be comfortable is to wear an open-collared, short-sleeved shirt, leave off the tie and the coat."

"Here is hoping a band of hungry mosquitoes seize upon the next Bermuda short clad individual in the tie and coat."

Editor's note: Opinions, opinions, but evidently everything has its designated place in our society today.

Other Editors Saying --- 'Inertial Guidance'

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
Two inventions in the news recently could have far-reaching consequences for the human race. One of them unveiled by scientists at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, can guide any craft or missile to any spot on earth, free from man-made or natural interference.

The scientists say this device, called "Inertial Guidance," operates without magnetic compass, radio or radar and without a glimpse of the earth, the stars or the sun. It needs no electronic signal or radar beam and therefore cannot be jammed by enemy apparatus.

The other invention, by Dr. Mac Van Valkenburg, makes use of the shaped charge technique to fire plastic pellets at constantly increasing speeds into wax targets. As the velocity increased, it might be expected the pellets would penetrate deeper and deeper into the target. And they did. But when they reached the speed of 8,500 miles per hour a mysterious thing occurred. The pellets exploded. Always at speed over 8,500 miles per hour the explosions occurred.

It is not too difficult to draw some conclusions, military-wise, about these two inventions. The MIT invention could ultimately replace piloted planes, or missiles, and still afford great accuracy for the intercontinental missiles being developed by this country. With the device, the U.S. could be assured of great accuracy when launching the missiles against an enemy country.

The other development, as demonstrated by plastic pellets, could be expanded for defense purposes against enemy missiles directed at this country. Missiles now being developed by Russia can fly so high and so fast that it is virtually impossible to bring them down. With Dr. Van Valkenburg's technique this is no longer true. His experiment suggests that another missile could be exploded electronically in the path of an oncoming ballistic missile aimed at the U.S.A. A fragment of the exploded missile coming in contact with the enemy missile at speeds far greater than 8,500 miles per hour would have the mysterious explosive effect. It might thus be expected to cripple or destroy the enemy missile.

This sounds very well for the U.S. and its allies until and if such knowledge of these two developments fall into enemy hands. What then? Man is still struggling for the ultimate in weapons. With the hydrogen bomb already being refined by both sides, there already appears to be sufficient means for getting rid of the human race.

General MacArthur's statement, "There is no substitute for victory," has since been superseded by President Eisenhower's observation, "There is no substitute for peace." That still seems to be the best prescription for survival.

'Pure Election' Laws Not Wanted

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON Pure election and anti-lobbying laws have no chance of passage on Capitol Hill because of partisan excesses in denouncing violations by the very advocates of these safeguards—namely, the Democrats. Dave Beck also shares responsibility for inaction.

The famous Gore report on 1956 political contributions has now been exposed as a deliberate and calculated catalogue of Republican sins. It depicted with some justice the GOP as the Party of wealth and as the beneficiary of certain interests giving—the bankers, utilities, investment houses, railroads, munitions makers, etc.

It headed, industry by industry, millionaire by millionaire, the amounts which they had contributed to Republican candidates on national tickets. Contrariwise, although many corporation officials and members of wealthy dynasties kicked in to the Democrats, they were listed as individual donors, and their names scattered throughout the document in such a way that only scientific research revealed their generosity.

REPORTS ONE-SIDED FEATURE
But the Gore report's most one-sided feature was its utter failure to show the tremendous contributions to the Democrats by the labor unions, which may yet be disclosed in future questioning of Dave Beck. The committee's Democratic majority accepted the theory that these ballot-box efforts were only "educational," although the Supreme Court has evidenced its doubt with regard to "Professor" Beck's and "Professor" Reuther's activities.

The Gore investigators disregarded the speeches, the literature, the meetings, the enforced collections of extra dues and the door-to-door solicitation of votes by Beck's teamsters in Oregon, Washington and California, by Walter P. Reuther's auto workers in Michigan and neighboring states, and by David McDonald's steel operators in Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

BECK MAY YET GIVE INFORMATION
Beck may yet be forced by the McClellan Committee to call of his union's costly campaigning for prominent Democratic Senators in the Far West. It has not escaped their colleagues' notice that a number of professed purists and progressives have not raised their voice in condemnation of Beck's operations, which Senator McClellan characterizes as "theft of union funds."

These silent men include such Senators as Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, Wayne L. Morse and Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon, and a score of House members from Western states where Beck is labor dictator in industry and politics.

As a matter of fact, since Beck began to assume control, he has helped to transform Washington, and Oregon into Democratic strongholds in Senate races. And Oregon used to be as solidly Republicanism as

Doubts On 7th Heaven

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The business world is buzzing with a proposal that has stirred the canyons of commerce more than anything since some unknown inventor invented the expense account.

The proposal is to protect that little shepherd of the till, the business executive, from wrinkling cares by forcing him to take every seventh week off with full pay.

Bart Schwartz, a textile company president, has just put the executives of his own firm on this program of compulsory leisure after testing it for four months himself.

"It works," he said, "we'll all live longer, work harder, be happier, make more money."

I wonder.
The idea of a week of vacation for every six weeks spent on the treadmill sounds like seventh heaven to the ordinary office employe. It may please the wives of executives, too. But how about the executives themselves?

They are excited by the thought of getting paid 7 1/2 weeks out of the year for doing nothing except improve their health. But they are inclined to look for the thistle hidden beneath this latest fringe benefit.

"Great suggestion," said one executive I talked to. "Our work load is terrific. It'll keep a lot of us from killing ourselves if it becomes widespread in industry. But in my own case, I don't feel that I really need it or want it."

That is a typical reaction. Every executive is sure that a vacation every seventh week is fine medicine — for the other fellow, not him.

Why? Let's explore the situation.
The proper care and feeding of its herds has been a problem with all civilizations.

But in the old days, when the warrior was the hero, the solution was simple. If the hero won a crucial battle, he was rewarded with a big slice of the defeated enemy's tax money, a palace or two, and a couple of dozen more girl grape-fetchers to enlarge his harem.

Today we have a different brand of hero. The real hero of 20th century America is neither the warrior nor matinee idol, neither Gen. Douglas MacArthur nor that troubled troubadour with the talented sideburns, Elvis Presley.

Our national hero is that magician of the marketplace, the business executive. And no hero in history has been harder to keep healthy or compensate adequately.

The present-day business executive seems to be as sensitive as a Swiss watch, likely to get wound up and break down with everything from ulcers to athlete's foot, from heart attack to hernia.

Every possible reward of a materialistic society is held out on a platter to cheer the tired tycoon and keep his hormones humming. He is often given a high salary, a fat expense account, an office-paid car, office-paid "business" trips to Florida that are in reality vacations, stock deals, bonuses, free insurance, medical benefits for him and his family, and pensions that would match a king's ransom.

Some firms even provide a staff psychiatrist and he can lie down on a couch and talk about his troubles on company time.

Why, showered with all these goodies, do executives fall prey to more physical and emotional ills than you can find in the average clinic? Is it all because of the responsibility of their jobs?

There could be another answer. That the executive enjoys so many golden benefits he worries himself sick for fear that someone will take them away, or when he dies he won't be able to take them with him. He has so much security it makes him feel insecure. After all, what can heaven promise him that his firm hasn't already given him?

Which brings us right back to why most executives are leery of Mr. Schwartz's daring idea of multiple vacations for executives. It's simply too good to be safe.

Big Fires Shatter Previous Records

BOSTON (AP)—Big fires shattered all previous records in numbers in North America last year and registered a new high in dollar losses, the National Fire Protection Assn. reported today.

The association said 430 "large-loss" fires—each causing destruction a quarter of a million dollars or more—occurred in the United States and Canada in 1956—for a total direct loss of $330,156,000.

The 1956 totals were "excessively" larger than those of previous "worst" years, the association reports in its quarterly magazine for April, published this week.

Of 401 persons killed in large-loss fires, 333 lost their lives in big aircraft fires—accidents, the report said.

The total of 430 big fires exceeds by more than a third the 1955 high of 316 large-loss fires, and the direct dollar loss of last year's big fires is greater by 50 million dollars than the previous record loss of $274,374,500, set in 1953.

The 401 deaths compare with 236 in 1953 big fires.

Persons injured in more than aircraft fires totaled 1,026.

In number, aircraft fires are only .03 per cent of all fires, but they account for nearly a quarter of the estimated total fire loss of 1956—expected to total $1,385,000,000.

The industrial fire toll was the largest in history, the study showed, with 117 large-loss fires compared with 78 the previous year. These constituted the largest factor in the huge over-all increase.

Excluding transportation fires, 304 of the large-loss fires occurred in the United States, and 34 in Canada.

States with the largest numbers were California 26, Illinois and Pennsylvania, 25 each; New Jersey, 23; New York and Ohio, 22 each; and Indiana, 16.

Folsom Claims Federal Control Phony Argument

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Folsom today labeled as "simply a phony" the argument that federal aid for classroom construction would mean federal control of education. Folsom said this is a "major fallacy" raised by some critics of the administration's proposal for a four-year program to provide 325 million dollars annually in grants to the states to help build more schools.

And he reiterated that opponents of the proposal who he said contend that "the classroom shortage is a myth or figment of imagination" have made seriously misleading and clearly inaccurate public statements. Reports from state school authorities, he said, show a shortage of about 159,000 classrooms.

A House subcommittee has approved 6-1 a five-year 400-million-dollar annual grant program as a compromise between the administration's bill and a more liberal proposal introduced by Democrats. Action by the full House committee is expected early next month.

Folsom, returning to his former home city to receive the Rotary Club's 1957 public service award, said in a prepared speech: "Let us understand what is proposed here. The federal government would allocate some funds to the states. The states would put in some money too, and then the state would administer grants to the local communities which need help very badly to provide schools for their children."

"So even in the building of the schools, the federal connection would be pretty remote," he said. "But even more important, by the time the first teacher or student entered the new school, when the actual education of children begins, there would no longer be any federal involvement or connection whatsoever."

Folsom said the administration's proposal specifies that no federal official or employee shall exercise any direction, supervision or control of any school or school system aided under the bill, and added:

"I don't see how it can be put any plainer than that."

'As You Like It' In Sylvan Theater Thursday, Friday

Roberta Blalack of Phoenix, Arizona, who will play the leading role of Rosalind in two performances of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" at East Carolina College Thursday and Friday of this week, is a newcomer at the college but a veteran performer on both the amateur and the professional stage.

The attractive brunette, a student of voice at East Carolina is now making her home in Greenville with her sister, Mrs. Clay Burnette, 118 Park Drive.

The presentation of the comedy will be a joint enterprise of the college and the city of Greenville. The second in a series of Shakespearean plays to be staged at East Carolina, it will have as sponsors the college, the college Student Government Association, and the Greenville Community Theater.

Performances will be included among programs of the Greenville Fine Arts Festival and of the Golden Anniversary Programs marking the founding of East Carolina College in 1907.

The play will take place at 8 p.m. in the Flanagan Sylvan Theater at East Carolina College. There will be no admission charge.

Miss Blalack will head a cast of actors and actresses from the campus and city, all of whom were chosen through tryouts. Under the direction of Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the East Carolina English department, rehearsals have been in progress for several weeks.

Beginning her career on the stage at the age of thirteen, Miss Blalack joined a professional company and, as ingenue with the group, toured Arizona and Southern California. Later she appeared with both civic opera and little theater groups and studied in the drama department of the University of Arizona. She has also been a singer and dancer in night clubs and worked as a professional model.

first big part in a Shakespearean play. She has previously specialized in musical comedy. The role of Rosalind, she says, is "challenging, since it is different from any I've ever had before."

William P. Register, junior from Goldsboro, will play opposite her as Orlando. He received his training in drama from Clifton Britton of the Goldsboro Goldmasquers, one of the nation's outstanding high school dramatic clubs, and at Emmanuel College in Georgia. Like Miss Blalack, "As You Like It" will provide his first opportunity to act in a Shakespearean play.

Other principals in the cast include Eugenia Trulove of Wilmington, as Celia; Robert C. Forney of Greenville as the Melancholy Jacques; Dr. George Cook of the East Carolina English department, as Touchstone; and Robert J. Vetter of Greenville, as Duke Senior. The comedy, with its woodland setting, lively plot, gay dialogue, and youthful high spirits, as well as its touches of sadness and its philosophic overtones, has through the years been a favorite with students, stage managers; Mrs. Susie Webb of the college Alumni Office staff, costume chairman; Patsy Baker of Greenville, make-up chairman; Franklin J. Thomas, East Carolina student, properties chairman; and Leon Ciperin of Greenville, technician in charge of lighting.

'Pen Pals' Use Tape Recordings

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP)—Mrs. Donald Williamson and her distant friends have pulled a switch on the old "pen pal" practice. They use magnetic tape. She exchanges tape-recorded conversations with—among others—a French family, a Japanese doctor, an English nurse, a Swiss dentist and a Houston short story writer.

Binghamton, N.Y. (AP)—Moses Edwards, 82, got the services of Mrs. Leola Matthews, 50, as a housekeeper after all. The widow answered a newspaper ad Edwards placed last fall but then decided she didn't want the housekeeping job. Moses was president and began calling on her. They were married last week.

SAFETY PRECAUTION

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—A parking lot owner was puzzled by a lone, unattended car when he opened for business. Under the windshield wiper was this note: "I am drunk. I do not want to drive. I parked it here. Whatever it costs I'll pay." The owner signed his name.

Woman Claims She Was Held Captive 105 Days

LONDON (AP)—A 23-year-old brunette claims an eccentric inventor held her captive for 105 days in a dugout beneath the back garden of his suburban home.

Police removed Marjorie Jordan from the underground den yesterday after a neighbor found a penciled note asking for help.

Her captor, John Bridal, 26, told reporters: "She was not brought here under force, but she needed some persuading. She was not enthusiastic but agreed to help me with my experiments. I did not keep her against her will, except for the first few days."

In a statement to detectives however, Miss Jordan declared Bridal, a complete stranger, kidnapped her from her bedroom in a lodging house two miles from his home the night of Jan. 7.

"She said he taped her mouth, put her on the rear seat of his motorcycle and took her to the underground room. Reached by a shaft made from a large pipe, the room was 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 7 feet high. The shaft exit was secured by a screw-down cover of the manhole type. "He said, 'I need an assistant for some experiments I am going to make on metal work and machinery,'" Miss Jordan reported. "He would come to the room each night and let me come up to his house. He would stand guard outside the bathroom door while I washed. Then he would lead me back to the room.

"He got an electric stove and fixed up current in the hole and then, every day, he would lower down food which he brought from shopping lists I made out for him.

"About three weeks ago he decided that I was resigned to my fate and he let down a wireless set.

"I had my handbag compact, luckily, so I was able to do my face each day and keep my self-respect a bit. But golly how I longed to go to the hairdresser or else have a darned good bath.

"I think I threw out six 'help' messages in all. I dropped them as we walked in the dark for my wash and I threw the last one over the fence into the next garden."

In his statement, Bridal said he was "perfecting a grinding machine and a coal conveyor. She was my assistant doing laboring work while I did designing and the lathe work."

Miss Jordan said that most of her time was spent helping Bridal make the dugout bigger.

"I shoveled out earth," she said, "and put it into buckets which he pulled up. Sometimes we loaded as many as 60 buckets a day."

Bridal insisted that he met Miss Jordan early in January while she was working as a shop attendant and "she said she would like to work for me."

"Her room in the cellar was a very good room," he told reporters. "She had every comfort. I even went to the library for novels for her."

Detectives studying the conflicting statements took no immediate official action.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures
AT LEAST ONCE in a lifetime nearly every family is confronted with the problem of whether to buy or to rent.

The purchase of a home is a major undertaking not to be entered into lightly. If permanent satisfaction is to be found, the house must be well built, its location and surroundings must be carefully studied, and the availability of schools, churches, shopping areas and transportation must be taken into account.

How much can a family afford to spend for a home, whether it is built to order or purchased as is? The savings and mortgage division of the American Bankers Assn. has this advice: the total monthly charges for the mortgage, interest, taxes and insurance should not exceed one week's take-home income.

Other Expenses Important

Also to be considered are the estimated costs for heating fuel and air conditioning, electricity and gas; cost of maintaining the property, making repairs, contemplated improvements, painting and redecorating; and the estimated annual income in future years. People who own their own homes experience a feeling of satisfaction and security which goes deep into the roots of human nature. It is doubtful whether the desirability of home ownership could be completely defended without taking this psychological element into consideration.

On the other hand, the renter's position is more flexible. If a change in the locale of his occupation takes place, he does not have a house to sell. Also, he incurs no capital debt, his cash resources are not depleted to make a down payment and he does not have the responsibility of making major repairs that entail cash outlays.

Something Retained

There is an important difference in the long run between buying and renting. At the end of a specified period of time, the owner has bought something with his money payments, while the renter has no more of an estate than when he started. It is true that depreciation of property is a factor, but owner-occupied homes have made a very favorable record in this respect. If the choice was well made at the start and the property adequately maintained, the house may increase in value as the community develops. But, even assuming the worst, the property still has a market value.

There is a movement afoot to induce the government to lower the down payments on houses built under FHA supervision. This reduction may very well come about—and undoubtedly will be a boon to many persons who otherwise could not buy a home at the present time. Yet the prospective home owner would do well to look a little more in this down payment phase of house buying.

Downpayment Important

Assume you want to buy a house for $15,000. If you put down $2,000, you will require a mortgage loan of $13,000. If this costs 5 per cent and you repay it over 25 years, or at the rate of $76 a month, the total interest cost of the loan will amount to $9,900. Remember, that is only interest. But if you were able to make an $8,000 down payment, you would need only a $7,000 mortgage loan. Paying off the mortgage at $74.25 per month, at the same 5 per cent, it would take only 10 years to complete the payments. And the interest cost would be only $1,190—a savings of $8,710 on exactly the same house!

Granted that everybody doesn't have $8,000 to put down on a house, these figures nevertheless illustrate how important it is that a prospective home owner make as large a down payment as he can afford.

Entombed Coal Miners Found In Deep Shaft

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—A three-man rescue team found two exhausted miners last night resting at the bottom of a 1,000-foot air shaft some 12 hours after an explosive fire caused by a rock fall blocked off the mine's normal exit.

The two men, Walter Olshefski, 41, a section foreman, and Earl Hill, 33, a fire boss, made their way from the 1,500-foot level at the Glen Alden Corp.'s Inman Shaft, some 200 feet into the tunnel to the air vent before giving in to exhaustion.

Unable to climb the steep slope to the mine cage, they were hauled on a thick plank to the top of the shaft and taken to Community General Hospital. Physicians said they were "in mild shock" but had not been injured.

Evidence Bears Out Theory Big Plane Hit Earth

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Tiny cactus spines seem to bear out the theory that a loaded passenger plane actually scraped against the ground in losing 10 feet of its left wing. It landed safely half an hour later.

The twin-engine Frontier Airlines DC3 limped into Phoenix Sunday after diving an estimated 4,000 feet in a severe downdraft. Twenty-three jittery passengers and three crewmen climbed out unharmed.

Inch-long cactus spines were found embedded in the wing's leading edge yesterday. Newsmen also noticed what appeared to be rock scratches.

Capt. Everett Aden of Denver plans to fly about 50 miles north of Phoenix today to hunt for the missing 10-foot piece of wing. If the cactus spines in the wing match those in the area in which the wing is found, Aden said, "that will wrap it up."

History Of Golf Told At Rotary Club Meet

Harold Thomas, pro at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, spoke to the local Rotary Club last night tracing the history of golf as an international sport.

There has been a steady increase in the number of participants in golf since its origin in the late 14 or early 15th century, the speaker said. Participants now spend more than $50 million annually on golf equipment, more than is spent on any other sport.

The game, Thomas said, originated either in Holland or Scotland and the first course, St. Andrews Golf Club of Scotland, was founded in 1552. The first British Open tournament, the first golf tournament in history, was held there eight years later.

Golf was introduced in the United States in 1887 by John G. Reid, a Scotchman, and the first golf course in this country was built at Yonkers, N. Y.

Citing the growth of the game, Thomas pointed out that during 1956 there were 155 new golf courses opened for play and an additional 612 were being planned.

Interest in professional golf is also growing the speaker said. The 1957 PGA tour schedule promises the richest purses in history. Last year the PGA had 36 sanctioned tournaments worth $865,000 in prize money, $50,000 more than in 1955. Golf officials, he said, predict that in the next three to five years the professionals will be playing a circuit of 45 tournaments which will offer prize money totaling two million dollars.

Young Escapee Leaves Puzzle

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Sheriff Melvin Hawley mused today over a message from Chicago police regarding a 16-year-old boy.

Lyle Wilson, the message said, escaped from jail in a Chicago suburb where he was held on charges of stealing two cars.

"When you find the boy, ask him how he escaped," said the message.

Too bad, said Hawley, that Chicago police hadn't asked the boy how he escaped from the county jail here last February when he was being held on a burglary charge.

Frances Yeend, American lyric soprano, will sing at East Carolina College Wednesday night under the sponsorship of the college Entertainment Committee. The concert will be final attraction of the 1956-1957 Entertainment Series. Miss Yeend, who appeared in Greenville several years ago at the beginning of her career, is a leading soprano with the New York City Opera Company, and has appeared with other opera companies in this country. She has won fame also in oratorio and as a recitalist and soloist with symphony orchestras from coast to coast in the United States. Abroad she has won high praise from critics and popularity with audiences in Austria, England, Spain, South Africa, and Israel. The concert here is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Wright Auditorium.

ECC Trips Top-Ranked Catawba 6-2 To Tie For First

Two Pirates Homer To Pace Buc Attack

SALISBURY — East Carolina tripped top-ranking Catawba 6-2 here yesterday to hurl the North State Conference baseball race into a three-way deadlock for first place.

Catawba, ECC and Elon are now tied with records of 6-2.

Dean Robbins and Tommy Nance blasted long home runs to pace the Pirate hitting. Saturday it was Joel Long's homer and triple that helped clinch the Bucs' fifth victory, a 13-2 triumph over Guilford. Everybody's getting into the act.

Catawba's J. T. Davis and Gerald Whisenant also contributed homers to aid the Indian cause, but those two four-baggers were the only scores the host team could manage.

Shelley Pitched Bruce Shelley, a junior transfer from Campbell College, who is seeing his first season of duty with the defending North State champs, went all the way on the mound for East Carolina.

The 180-pound righthander from Mullins, S.C. limited the number one ranked club to only six scattered hits. Tommy Nance was the other half of the Pirate battery.

Two singles and a homer for ECC in the fourth inning netted them three big runs and gave them the winning margin in yesterday's encounter.

The Pirates jumped off to a quick lead, punching across one run in the top of the first inning. Catawba was unable to score until the bottom of the second frame, tying it up. It went another full inning at 1-1 before the Bucs erupted for their big three tallies.

Coach Jim Mallory's Bucs added another run in the sixth and still another in the seventh to round out their scoring for the day. The Indians' second homer of the afternoon came in the eighth for their only other run.

Can Repeat For the first time this season, ECC is on a level with the other leading clubs in the North State loop. This gives them a good chance of repeating as the conference champions. For the past two seasons, the Greenville team has topped the crown.

Coach Mallory has stated that he feels that his present team is capable of coping that 1957 crown. "It could be the best team I've had yet," he has said. However, he has also pointed out that the 1957 race is perhaps the tightest he's seen in eight years of affiliation with the North State league.

The Pirates may have a quick chance to grab the league lead. They are scheduled to battle Atlantic Christian at Wilson today in another loop contest. Should they win, they will advance their mark to 7-2.

ACC is currently resting near the bottom of the fold with a 1-4 record thus far. Coach Jack McCormack's club is a green one this year with only one or two veteran pitchers returning from the '56 squad.

ECC is favored to whip the Wilson club, but the rivalry that exists between the two may help to eliminate the odds. In past seasons, records have meant very little when ECC and ACC have come together in athletic contests. A victory would be extremely helpful to both clubs. ECC ..... 100 301 100-6 10 2 Catawba .... 010 000 010-2 6 1 Shelley and Bowen; Jones, Williams (6), Harris (8) and Lee. Home runs — Nance, Robbins (ECC), Davis, Whisenant (Catawba).

ECC Net Troupe Blasts Stetson 9-0 At Florida

DELAND, Fla.—Coach Ray Martinez' ECC tennis team blasted Stetson University 9-0 yesterday afternoon to rack up their second straight victory of their current road trip.

Saturday, the Bucs whipped the College of Charleston, S. C., 7-2. Today the Pirates were to battle the Jacksonville, Florida, Naval Base. The Naval Base has put together a team of former college All-Stars, and are regarded as one of the strongest Florida teams.

Yesterday, here, Martinez' boys completely outclassed the hosts, winning every single match in the contest. They dumped six Stetson singles men and walked off with three doubles victories.

The team now has an 8-2 record for the season, having lost only to Kalamazoo and The Citadel. ECC will tangle with The Citadel after meeting Jacksonville Navy today.

Coach Martinez said today, "I don't think the trip will be a success unless we can defeat The Citadel and can avenge that 5-4 loss they handed us in Greenville."

Outstanding in yesterday's match were Maurice Everette, who downed Stetson's number one singles man, Jose Ravelo, easily. Bill Hollowell, a freshman from Kingston, also won again, giving him a total of nine straight wins in as many matches. He has lost only in exhibition to Kalamazoo.

Should the Pirates finish the current tour successfully, it will be their second of the season. Earlier, they defeated Wake Forest, N. C. State and Elon (twice) on their first tour.

Summary: Everette defeated Jose Ravelo, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

John West defeated Carroll Cleveenger, 6-2, 6-4.

Billy Hollowell defeated Bob McArthur, 6-3, 6-1.

John Savage defeated Bill Langer, 6-2, 6-3.

James Blake defeated Dave Howard, 6-1, 7-9, 6-3.

Jimmy Daughtridge defeated Kirk Gary, 6-0, 6-1.

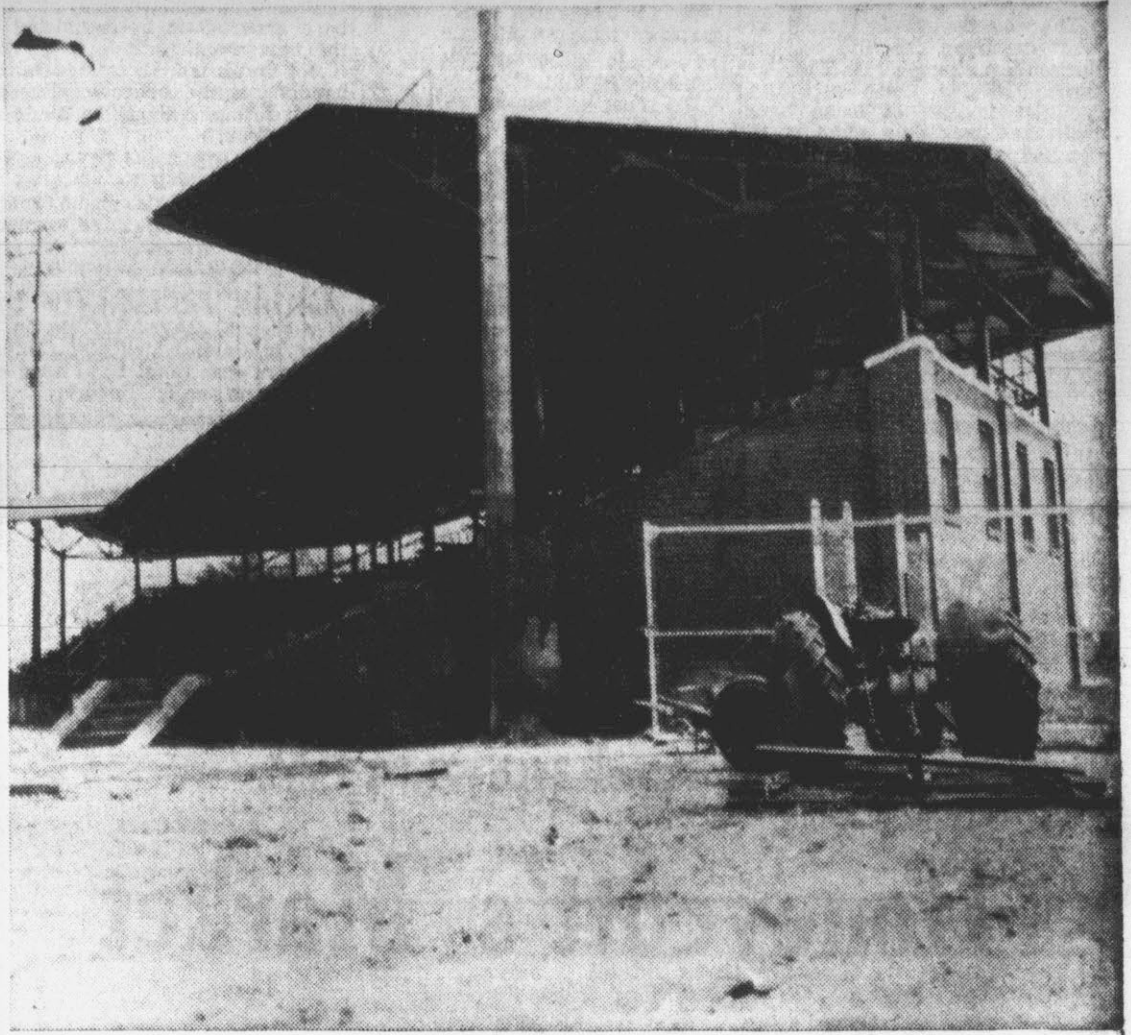

Doubles: Savage and West defeated J. Ravelo and F. Ravelo, 6-4, 7-5.

Hollowell and Everette defeated McArthur and Langer, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

Katsias and Daughtridge defeated Cleveenger and Anderson, 6-4, 7-5.

STADIUM GETS FACE-LIFTING—Guy Smith Stadium, home of the old Greenville Greenies Pro teams many years ago, is getting a new face-lifting job to prepare it for the coming East Carolina-NC State ballgame on May 3rd. It will mark the first time State has ever played in Greenville. Teen-er League ball will also be played there this summer at night. The stadium is being re-vamped about $6,000 worth. It is being painted from top to bottom, re-fenced, and now has a brand new infield ready. $2,500 worth of new lighting is also being installed. (Reflector Sports Photos by Billy Arnold).

Electric Worm-Rouser And Fish Caller Invented

By DION HENDERSON The Associated Press

Two new gadgets for the average fisherman offer him a helping hand from the science of electronics — and the average fisherman can use some help.

For years now, he's been advertised as "matching wits" with the fish. That's all well and good, but the whimsy of a man's family can get to be pretty hard on the vanity when he's a steady loser.

Neither of the devices newly announced is designed to dazzle the fancy of the dry fly purists. The first item, in fact, might be enough to make a man raise an eyebrow and wonder what it is.

It's an electric worm rouser, and it may be welcomed by those who have forgotten — or hope they have — what a shovel is for.

Item number two is even more shocking — not literally, but figuratively. It's a fish caller. To the casual reader accustomed to hearing about expert mouse callers, duck callers, crow callers and the like, that may not sound like much. But as a matter of record, the fish calling division of the hall of fame has been singularly free of candidates since no expert in simulating the call of a love-sick bluegill have shown up.

The fish caller doesn't, either. Just what it does simulate is not clear. Frank Birch, Milwaukee advertising agency executive who worked it out, says it sounds like an insect hatch in full operation. And it does, to people. But it works, spectacularly, even on aquarium fish that wouldn't know a caddis fly if it were mixed with their oatmeal.

The caller is a small watertight plastic gadget with high frequency buzzer inside. It works on a single flashlight battery. You start the thing by buzzing, drop it in the water and pretty quick all the fish in the neighborhood are hovering around.

The fish caller doesn't catch fish. This is where the bag produced from the front lawn by the electric worm rouser comes into action. The rouser, by the way, has a couple of rods that you put into the ground, then plug into the nearest house power outlet.

However, the mechanical as still has more work ahead, even in the field of fishing.

For instance, before the angler can catch the electronically summoned fish with the electrically roused worm, he has to bait the hook himself.

Four Teams Playing In ACC Games Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Four teams continued the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball wars today after a full slate of activity yesterday.

South Carolina traveled to North Carolina State and Clemson to Wake Forest in today's scheduled games.

In yesterday's conference games, Duke tightened its hold on first place with a 16-3 victory over Maryland; Wake Forest defeated South Carolina, 8-0, and North Carolina State defeated Clemson, 8-2. Both ACC teams which ventured against outside opponents suffered setbacks.

Virginia lost to VPI, 7-3, and North Carolina bowed to the McCrary semipro Eagles, 5-2.

The Duke-Maryland contest was called after six innings because of darkness, but not before Duke hitters jumped on four Maryland pitchers for 14 hits, including a 10-run sixth inning.

The victory left defending champion Duke firmly on top in the ACC race and didn't alter Maryland's sixth-place position.

Duke's Harleigh Fatzinger went the distance for his fourth victory of the season, against one loss. He yielded three hits, struck out two and walked three.

The loss was charged to Don Henderson, who started for Maryland.

Pete Maynard and George Atkinson, each with three for four, led Duke's hitting.

Wake Forest and South Carolina swapped places in standings par of 36-36 for the rugged No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club, extended to 7,000 yards as the tees were placed as far back as possible.

The combination of a long course and temperatures in the high 90s made par illusive, despite the presence in the field of many of amateur golf's biggest names.

The 16 men playing off a 79 today include such established players as former North and South champions Frank Strafaci of Miami Beach, Fla., and Mal Gallatta of Old Westbury, N.Y., Ed Meister of Cleveland, a former Walker Cup team alternate; Pinehurst's Dick Chapman, winner of the U.S. British, French and Canadian amateur titles, and Charlie Harrison of Atlanta, former Southern Golf Assn. champion.

Chapman's fight to stay alive in his quest of a title that has eluded him for 25 years was marked by a dramatic 10-foot putt on the final hole.

after their rain-abbreviated seven-inning game. The Deacons moved into the upper division, fourth place, and South Carolina dropped to fifth.

Wake Forest fielders pulled off three double plays to smooth the way for Bill Lovingood's two-hit shutout. South Carolina used two pitchers to try to halt the 10-hit attack of the Deacons.

First baseman Jack Phillips, second baseman Al Baker and centerfielder John Stokoe led Wake Forest's hitting with two apiece. Bill Barnes homered for the Deacons.

Jim Walsh pitched three-hit ball as North Carolina State downed Clemson. However, the righthander walked nine and hit two Clemson batters. State, led by Jimmy Hill with three, collected 10 hits off loser Harold Stowe.

Larry Baswell got two of Clemson's three hits.

The victory did not change State's third-place position but did make the wolfpack a stronger threat to the front runners. It was cellar-dwelling Clemson's seventh conference loss in eight starts.

Virginia Tech held a 5-0 lead after the first three innings of its game against Virginia and had little trouble holding to victory.

Nelson Yarbrough, the first of four Virginia hurlers, was charged with the loss.

North Carolina, by going against an outside foe while Duke won an ACC victory, fell to second place from a first-place tie with Duke.

By JOE REICHLER The Associated Press

The 1957 baseball season has officially opened as far as Birdie Tebbetts, Bobby Bragan and Mickey Mantle are concerned.

Tebbetts finally saw his Cincinnati Redlegs post a victory after four straight defeats — a 10-6 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bragan, who speaks his mind with no thought of the consequences, finally succeeded in bringing about a feud between his Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants after his team's 3-1 loss at the Polo Grounds. Bragan, a month ago, prophesied the Giants would finish last.

Mantle, after four homerless games, finally powdered his first four-bagger of the year as the New York Yankees thrashed the Washington Senators 15-6.

Milwaukee, the National League's sole remaining unbeaten team, made it five victories in a row with a 9-4 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Clem Labine turned in his third game-saving relief chore this season as the Dodgers whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1.

Kansas City, which hasn't been able to beat anybody else, gained its third straight success against Detroit 11-7. The A's tied it in the eighth and got four more runs in the ninth off Jim Bunning.

Baltimore beat Tom Brewer for the first time in his career, knocking off the Boston Red Sox 7-5.

Willie Mays hit his third home run in three days to account for all the Giant runs. Hank Bauer hit a grand-slam homer in the Yankees' rout of Chuck Stobbs, an old nemesis, while his mates rubbed it in by pulling off a triple steal.

The Reds clubbed Vinegar Bend Mizell for four runs in the second inning and added four more off Lindy McDaniel in the third.

Whitey Ford, supported by a 16-hit attack that included four hits by Gil McDougald, gained his second victory although he had to depart under fire in the seventh inning.

Eugene Ginsberg and Dick Williams drove in two runs each as the Orioles downed the Red Sox.

Miller, who turned pro at the age of 22, previously had been club pro at Boscobel, S.C., near Anderson, and at Morganton. He was a former resident of Durham.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in the Aaron Baptist Church at Montezuma.

Survivors include the widow, the former Miss Verner Suddreth of Montezuma; a daughter, Ruthie Miller of Spruce Pine; two half brothers, Allen Garrard of Stanton Island, N.Y., and Edwin Garrison of Columbia, S.C.; a half sister, Mrs. William Yates of Charlotte; and a step sister, Mrs. Louise Kennedy of Greenwood, S. C.

Firm Giving Out Free Tickets To Approaching Tilt

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Editor

Greenville's preparation for the coming East Carolina-North Carolina State baseball game on May 3 at Guy Smith Stadium resembles something like a major league baseball town getting ready for opening season.

The Stadium, abandoned several years ago when professional baseball died in Greenville, has been re-vamped, painted, re-done from the top to the bottom and new lights are being installed.

Tickets are selling like mad. The response has been quite big, according to those in charge of ticket-selling.

College View Cleaners and Laundry has purchased 1,200 tickets to the May 3 night game to be given away free to anyone who will drop by College View and ask for them.

Roy Tripp, owner and operator of the firm, said, "I have always been interested in baseball in Greenville and this will enable the town to have baseball on a college level equal to Raleigh and Durham."

He stated further, "One of the main reasons I am doing this is for the youth of Greenville. The Stadium will be used to establish Teen-er League and perhaps eventually American Legion ball here."

Reynolds May, one of the leaders of the group of businessmen who helped sponsor the coming game, stated that College View is performing "one of the finest civic gestures we've ever seen."

The ticket response has been big, as has been stated, and this may be an indication that the people of Greenville and Eastern North Carolina are eager to see big time baseball on the college level. That is exactly what they'll get.

North Carolina State, coached by the well-known Vic Sorrell, is a nationally-recognized club and has several times been a contender for the National crown.

This season in the rugged Atlantic Coast Conference race, State has met some of the toughest teams in the East. Their present record of 4-2 has lodged them in third place in the conference standings. At one time, they paced the league. This year's ACC race is perhaps the tightest it has been in many years. The number one and number two clubs, Duke and Carolina, both have suffered as many losses as has State. The Wolfpack is still in the running for the title.

East Carolina is in practically the same spot in their North State loop. Until yesterday, when they knocked off the top-ranked Catawba, they were settled in third place with a 5-2 mark.

Both State and ECC are quite capable of coming out victorious in the May 3 contest, according to some observers. Coach Jim Mallory, Pirate head man, says only that "My boys are looking forward to the game. State's tough, but we'll give them a good ball game."

Ballistic Missiles Nearing Their Test-Flight Stage

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON — The Air Force is moving into the flight test phase of its ballistic missile program and expects to begin launching virtually complete versions of weapons in the months just ahead.

The missiles to be tested are what designers describe as "production configurations." They are turned out on mass production facilities instead of being hand-built, and lack only some of the detailed equipment which will go into eventual fully operational use by ballistic missile squadrons.

First of the full-scale test firings, at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., probably will be that of the Thor intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM). It is to be followed by tests of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) and then of the second ICBM design, the Titan.

A vast amount of preliminary testing of parts already has been done, including not only rocket engines but gyro controls, nose cones and guidance equipment.

Experts say that the first test firings of the ICBM will not necessarily involve attempts to reach the full 5,000-mile range south-eastward into the Atlantic.

To attain a 5,000-mile range, it is estimated that the speed of an ICBM must be between 15,000 and 16,000 miles per hour. A somewhat slower speed is required for the 1,500-mile range of an IRBM.

Depending on the range desired, a ballistic missile may be sent up to a trajectory peak of between 300 and 800 miles above the earth.

One Air Force missile official expressed today "complete confidence" in the success of the ICBM project.

There is, he said, "no fundamental engineering problem," but

Piece Of Paper He Found Turned Out To Be Bond

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — J. E. Feather, 54, an engineer for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, couldn't restrain himself any longer.

Two pieces of paper that "looked like money" to Feather had been fluttering from a fence along his Louisville-Nashville run for more than a month. Finally he halted his freight train at the point near Cave City, Ky., where he is usually traveling only 10 miles an hour on an upgrade anyway. He plucked off the fence a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. The other "piece of paper" apparently had been blown away.

Feather's find was made out to Oren L. Gunnels, payable on death to Mrs. Mary A. Staples, Glasgow, Ky. Feather wrote to Mrs. Staples but received no reply. The Treasury Department is trying to track down the owner.

Feather found $500 in a phone booth not long ago. That time he found the owner.

Ike's Place In History Likely Hinges On Foreign Policy Work

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the frequently asked questions in Washington is: "What do you think President Eisenhower's place in history will be?"

His rating among the Presidents will probably be determined more by what he manages to achieve in foreign policy than by anything in sight for him to do at home.

Some of his critics get impatient because he does not take a tougher, or harsher, line with the Russians and because he insists on exhausting every reasonable means of dealing with Egyptian President Nasser.

But it is right here — in his policy of patience — that history may make the final determination on whether he was truly wise.

When he took office Asia was on fire. The fire is still there but the flame has died down. It can hardly be said his policy of restraint had nothing to do with that.

When the blaze shifted to the Middle East, he seemed to have a choice: crack down on Nasser or try to sweat it out. He might, by being rough, have won the skirmish with Nasser. But it might have antagonized the Arab world and opened it to Russia. The end result would have been a colossal defeat.

By patience, by an attitude of understanding for the new nationalism of the Arabs and their immaturity as only recently independent people, he may yet save the Middle East from communism.

But all this is in an evolutionary state.

The true value of what he has done in the foreign field — good or bad — may not show up for years after he steps out of the presidency.

It is only now that President Truman's vigor, vision and decisiveness are beginning to be appreciated. The steps he took to hold Russia by containment are not only accepted by Eisenhower but are being pursued by him.

At home Eisenhower is trying to lead the Republican party toward a more liberal course. He himself has not gone beyond the New Deal and "Fair Deal."

He has pretty much accepted both, adopted them, and is now trying to extend them.

Both deals are so much a part of American life — with broad benefits for so many people — that if Eisenhower had shown signs of wanting to undo them in 1952 and 1956 he probably would not have been elected either time.

The philosophy of Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower can be boiled down to this: They believed the government has a responsibility for the welfare of the people.

It is by no means certain that Eisenhower, by the time he leaves the White House, will have persuaded his party to pursue a steadily liberal course in its policies. There are plenty of grumblings about him now, and opposition to him, among the Republican conservatives.

If the conservatives capture control of the party after Eisenhower, and try to turn the clock back, they may well succeed in wrecking the party not only for years but forever.

That the voters themselves make a big distinction between Democrats and Republicans — in favor of the Republicans — was shown in the elections of 1954 and 1956.

In 1954, with Republican Eisenhower in the presidency, the voters gave Democrats control of Congress. And in 1956, while re-electing Eisenhower overwhelmingly, they again chose the Democrats to run Congress.

Nurses' Institute Here Tomorrow

Nurses throughout the state will have an opportunity to learn more about the alcoholic and alcoholism tomorrow when the 1957 Institute on Alcoholism is held here in Greenville in Room 101, East Carolina College Gymnasium.

Miss Millicent Griffith, R. N., Educational Director at the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Lyons, New Jersey, will be the principal speaker. She will discuss principles of nursing care in the treatment of the alcoholic.

This is the second year the Institute on Alcoholism has been held in North Carolina. The first such institute was held in 1956. Purpose of the Institute is to better acquaint nurses with the problems facing the alcoholic and those engaged in treatment of alcoholism. It is hoped that through the Institute, nurses will become better educated in ways in which to care for the alcoholic.

The Institute is co-sponsored by the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program and the N. C. State Board of Health. Professionals in the field of treatment and prevention of alcoholism will participate in the program, scheduled to begin tomorrow morning at 8:30 and continuing until 5:00 p.m.

Health leaders from Negro Home Demonstration Clubs in Pitt and eight neighboring counties will participate in an area cancer control training meeting to be held in Greenville on Thursday, April 25.

In addition to Pitt, Home Demonstration Clubs from Wilson, Greene, Edgecombe, Beaufort, Nash, Chowan, Perquimans and Martin counties will attend the workshop to be held in the Tucker Building.

The purpose of the workshop will be to train the health leaders in best methods for presenting cancer control programs in their clubs and community groups, with a view to reaching more homes with life-saving messages about cancer.

This meeting was scheduled as one of seven area workshops to be held during the month of April. The first meet was held on April 5 in Hillsboro and the last is to be held in Kenansville on April 30.

Medical consultants for the training sessions are physicians from the cancer committee of the Medical Society of North Carolina.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Donald Mabus, 12, is proving quiet a help to the sheriff.

On his way home from an ice skating pond here, he spotted a safe in a ditch. He told his father, who notified the sheriff. Investigating, deputies found a sledge hammer apparently used to burglarize the safe.

Almost in the same spot on May 4, 1955, Donald found $629 worth of postage stamps and 1,676 blank money orders stolen from a nearby branch post office.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Nora Pendleton knew someone wanted her to die. Until the night of October 12th, she had never known fear for herself. She had never had a care in the world until she met Stuart Young, an unemployed former medical student. Within five weeks they were engaged. Then Stuart was arrested for the murder of a young girl, "Candy" Kendrick. Nora's friends and kin believed Stuart to be guilty. But they had also thought him to be a fortune hunter, interested in Nora because of her wealth.

Nora had testified at Stuart's trial that he's been with her on a picnic at the time Candy was killed. But her cousin, Charles Deming, swore that he had seen Stuart and Candy just before the supposed time of the crime. The murder happened near the Connecticut inn run by Bert and Hazel Huger, distant cousins of Nora's. Charles' young son, Frank, was there; and the local druggist, Howard Ives; and Nora's aunt, Olive Riddle, who had served as her joint guardian with Lawyer "Finn" Black until Nora came of age.

As the story continues, Finn has phoned Nora that Stuart has been acquitted and will be at the inn in time for dinner. Cousin Charles' sudden appearance startles Nora and Aunt Olive, for it portends an embarrassing scene with Stuart. Charles appears the most surprised at news that the murder case is to be reopened by police.

CHAPTER 3

"Time you came upstairs for a lay-down," Nora Pendleton's nurse was a stout girl who filled her crisp uniform to the bursting point. She moved noiselessly on rubber-soled shoes like a well-oiled, impersonal machine. Only the eyes, which were small and disconcerted, and the square jaw, which was inflexible and ruthless, hinted at a personality behind the starched uniform.

Nora turned without a word and let Miss Garrison lead her up to the big bedroom on the second floor of the inn, which she had occupied every October for years. She stood passively while the nurse took off her blue cardigan and blouse, skirt and shoes. All Nora's wardrobe was in various shades of blue.

The nurse handed her a wool robe. "Mrs. Riddle must have taken that down velvet one," she said. "It doesn't matter," Nora said. "Just to save money she'd wear your clothes and yet blue isn't her color," the nurse said tartly. She settled Nora on the bed and tucked an eiderdown quilt over her. "Half frozen, that's what you are. No sense at all. You can't afford to catch another cold, Miss Pendleton. Remember what the doctor told you."

"Dr. Ruysdahl is an idiot," Nora said impatiently. For the doctor had told her that organically she was perfectly sound. Her trouble was psychosomatic. "You mean," she demanded with indignation, "that I am imagining this temperature?" "No, he hadn't meant that. Her fever was real enough. Her illness was real enough. But they had continued too long. Her body had been let down by its inseparable partner. The basis of her illness was a troubled mind.

Anyone, Nora pointed out with some bitterness, might be expected to have a troubled mind under the circumstances, with Stuart under arrest on a murder charge. The doctor had agreed but he had appeared to be dissatisfied.

In a few moments the nurse slipped a hot-water bottle against the small icy feet and Nora began to relax.

"Think you can sleep?" "Not now. I'm too excited. But tonight I'll sleep," Nora looked almost furtively at the nurse. "And quietly."

It must, the nurse suggested, have been bad last night. The bed had been torn up, the pillows on the floor again.

"Such horrible dreams," Nora said with a shiver. "Such horrible, horrible dreams. Sometimes I think that I can't take it one more night, that I'll go crazy. They're so real."

"I was getting worried myself," the nurse admitted. "The strain has been too much for you."

Nora laid her hand on the nurse's scrubbed one. In the mirror the latter saw their reflections, the girl on the bed with fair hair and shadowed eyes, her own robust figure and found face with its full cheeks. She was only three years older than Nora but she looked ten years older, a fact of which she was resentfully aware.

"Garry," Nora said warmly. "I don't believe I could have kept sane without you. I'll never be able to find any adequate way of expressing my gratitude." "Gratitude!" There was an odd expression on Garry's face. She drew her hand away. "Anything you'd like? Some bouillon or a cup of tea to warm you up?" Nora shook her head, smiled and was suddenly lovely. "I have everything I want now, Garry. Everything."

The nurse watched, surprised as she always was, by the transformation which Nora's smile brought about. "I'm awfully glad for you," she said. "I heard that Mr. Young was acquitted. But it's a crying shame you have to go through the whole investigation again."

"They wouldn't," Nora assured her, both her much. After all she had never seen the girl in her life.

"Even dead, Candy Kendrick is a troublemaker," Garry said bitterly. Nora stiffened. "Why didn't you ever tell me you knew her?"

The nurse gathered up Nora's discarded clothes. "I knew who she was, that's all. Saw her around the village a few times while I was working at the hospital."

"What was she like?" "A cheap little flirt. Man crazy. I'd never put the blame on any man who got tangled up with her. Well, if you don't need me I'd better see Mrs. Huger. Your aunt won't remember to tell her she's got all these people to feed and make up beds for: the Demings and their guest, three; Mr. Young, four."

"And Finn," Nora said. "Finley

med edge and tore it open. There was nothing inside but a photograph. A photograph of an enchanting girl with a small vivid face, her head flung back, laughing. Across the lower right-hand corner were scrawled the words, "Love from Candy."

In the first moment of shock Nora could not think clearly at all. She was aware only that something intolerable had happened. As though the girl had risen from her grave to confront her. With laughter.

The picture dropped from nerveless fingers. Who could have done this to her? At length she picked up the piece of cardboard and looked long at the pictured face.

This was Candy. When Nora had thought of her at all it had been as the cause of her own tragedy, of Stuart's tragedy. It has been as Garry had so bitterly described her: a cheap little flirt, a troublemaker. Candy seemed like that kind of a name. But she hadn't been like that.

Nora stared at the picture of the girl with the sunlit face. Who had sent her the picture? And why? Was it a reminder that her death was unavenged? Was it a warning? There was no answer in the face that laughed at her, no answer in the mocking, "Love from Candy."

Gardening Firms In High Gear For $4 Billion Year

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP) — With Easter past the four billion dollar home gardening industry digs in today in earnest in millions of backyards and vacant lots.

Already millions of seed catalogues have pulled in the bedazzled. Two million tons of soil conditioners are on hand or in the ground.

Planting and harvest times are movable feasts in the United States. To the South most gardens are in or up. Along the northern border they're just getting under way.

Spending on lawns and gardens, the salesmen say, has increased ten fold since World War II and they predict retail sales this year will top four billion dollars.

This figure covers sales of plants, seeds and bulbs, garden tools and equipment, lawn mowers, hoses and sprayers, plant boxes, top soil, fertilizers soil builders and soil chemicals, insecticides and fungicides.

Business joins homeowners in creating this lucrative market. Thomas I. Jaeger, president of the Glorion Soil Builder division of Aluminum & Chemicals Corp., Greenwich, Conn., estimates factory landscaping now runs at 70 million dollars a year, while another 50 million is spent on plants and planters inside and out of new office buildings.

The garden supply industry in turn spends millions of dollars — for example, around 15 million a year on consumer advertising. And some 500 seed companies, doing a 50 million dollar annual business, send out an estimated 75 million spring and fall seed catalogues.

The National Garden Bureau says about 30 million Americans bought flower seeds last year and about 15 million invested in vegetable seeds.

The American Seed Trade Assn. predicts 150 million pounds of grass seed will be sold this year, with 15 million of it for new lawns.

Sales of soil and soil chemicals such as fertilizers and soil builders come to around 350 million dollars a year.

The Agriculture Department says that around 216 million pounds of vegetable seeds with about 70 million dollars retail value, are being grown.

In Bermuda, if you sell your automobile before you have had it for five years, you must wait an additional year before buying a new one.

Cadillac

Listen to What Its Silence Says!

Ever hear a motor car tell its own story? Well, just get behind the wheel of a new 1957 Cadillac—head for your favorite stretch of highway—and listen!

Of course, the truth of the matter is that you won't actually hear anything. For a 1957 Cadillac in operation is as quiet as human skill and ingenuity can make it.

But imagine, if you will, all the wonderful things the car will be telling you through the voice of its own silence!

First of all, it will speak—and most eloquently so—of the soundness of Cadillac styling. For the car is so scientifically designed that even the onrushing wind is reduced to a gentle whisper.

It will tell you of the genius of Cadillac engineering. For every aspect of the car's brilliant performance goes about its work in soundless harmony.

And it will reveal the care and the skill of Cadillac craftsmanship. For even when it travels the most neglected of byways, the car remains wonderfully silent.

If you have yet to sit at the wheel of a 1957 Cadillac and hear this wonderful story for yourself, then we urge you to delay no longer in doing so.

We hope you will visit your Cadillac dealer soon—spend an hour on the highway—and listen to the most eloquent message a motor car ever delivered on its own behalf!

Emphasis Given Athletics In Schools Is Evaluated

Because of the growth of and the amount of emphasis placed on the athletic program in schools today, administrators are giving increased attention to it.

The principal and superintendent are "becoming more and more the cogwheels in the process of developing a sound, well-rounded program of athletics as part of the primary purpose of the school."

a sound athletic program, Dr. De-Shaw says. Among problems cited and discussed are evaluation of the various activities and of their place in the program, securing adequate financial support and qualified leadership for all areas of the program.

Superior Court Session Resumes

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle opened the second week of a two-weeks civil term of Superior Court this morning.

Twenty-one cases are calendared for the week, cut short by yesterday's Easter Monday holiday. Cases which were not called last week will be re-calendared for a future civil term.

In its final action last week, the court denied a claim for $19,036.18 by J. Harry Gurganus against Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, administrator for the estate of Mary Gurganus, deceased.

Gurganus argued, through his attorneys, that two promissory notes had been issued to the deceased on August 5, 1946. He said that payments totalling $1,800 had been made prior to Mary Gurganus' death.

A jury ruled that Mary Gurganus had not delivered the notes sued on. The jury decision was made after a parade of witnesses, including handwriting experts who gave testimony on the validity of the notes and signatures on them.

Gurganus claimed that he brought suit for payment of the notes after the bank declined to admit his claim and refused payment on July 13, 1955. The notes, offered as evidence, were for $13,286.18, payable two years after date, and $5,750, payable three years after date.

Greenville Man Named Assistant To UNC Dean

Richard Carlton Wilson, Greenville native and principal of Wilkinson Elementary School in Rocky Mount, has been named assistant to the dean of the School of Education at the University of North Carolina. He will assume his duties in Chapel Hill September 1 in Dean Arnold Perry's office.

Rocky Mount Supt. of Schools D. S. Johnson said, "Wilson has done a good job in Rocky Mount and we hate to lose him." He had been principal of Wilkinson School four years and had been re-elected for another term, but the new position at Chapel Hill would prevent him from taking the principalship. Before going to Rocky Mount he taught in schools in Rockingham and High Point.

He received his B. S. degree from East Carolina College, Greenville, and his Master's degree from the University of North Carolina. Currently Wilson is editor of the N. C. Elementary School Principals' News. During his residence in Rocky Mount he was a president of the Current Topics Club and a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Several years ago he was chairman of the award-winning Americanism Committee of the Jaycees.

Wilson is a son of Mrs. Myrtle H. Wilson, 1018 Evans street, Greenville. His wife is the former Peggy Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Tucker, 2313 Dickinson avenue, Greenville, and they have one son.

Accident Victim Reported To Be Progressing

The condition of Roman Paul Cherry, 53, of 505 Perkins Ave., who was injured in a two-car collision Friday night, was described as "satisfactory" this morning by a physician.

Cherry suffered a number of fractured ribs and abrasions about the body as a result of the accident. He was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Involved in the accident also was Evelyn Wingate Mazingo of 503 Venter's Drive, Ayden. The Mazingo woman was admitted to the hospital shortly after the collision and released yesterday.

The accident took place at the intersection of U. S. Highways 264 and 264-A approximately one-half mile east of the Greenville city limits. Both automobiles were a total loss.

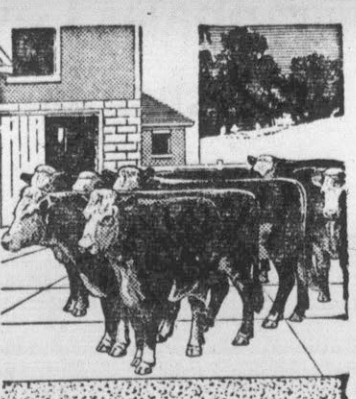

Mrs. Mazingo, driving a 1955 automobile, was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign by investigating State Highway Patrolman D. L. Minshew.

A CONCRETE lot helps you raise more beef with less feed and labor

A concrete lot boosts beef production because the feed is eaten—not trampled in the mud. Less work is needed to keep the lot clean and more manure can be recovered.

The cost of a concrete barnyard is surprisingly low. Many farmers find that a paved lot pays for itself in as little as one year.

A concrete lot requires little upkeep yet puts extra profits in the bank year after year. Write for free booklet on paving feed lots.

If you need help, visit a local concrete contractor, ready-mixed producer or building material dealer.
