Farmville Offers Rent Free Space For ASC Use If Offices Moved

Mayor Adds No Rivalry With Greenville Intended, But Space Is Available

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. FARMVILLE—Mayor Charles S. Edwards sent a telegram to H. C. Godfrey, ASC State administrative office, this morning offering rent free space for the ASC office in Farmville.

However, in making the telegram public, Edwards made it clear that Farmville is not "endeavoring to have the ASC office moved from Greenville to Farmville."

The officials of Farmville and the officials of the Bank of Farmville are happy to find that the required amount of space on the second floor of the Bank of Farmville building available for the Pitt County ASC office.

The State ASC office has given the County Commissioners until May 15 to provide what they consider adequate facilities for the County ASC office.

Presently the county office is located on three floors of the old hospital building in Greenville, where other federal and county farm agencies are located.

The ASC administers crop allotment and other farm programs. County Commissioners have purchased a dwelling adjacent to county house property and they have bid on the Edwards building nearby.

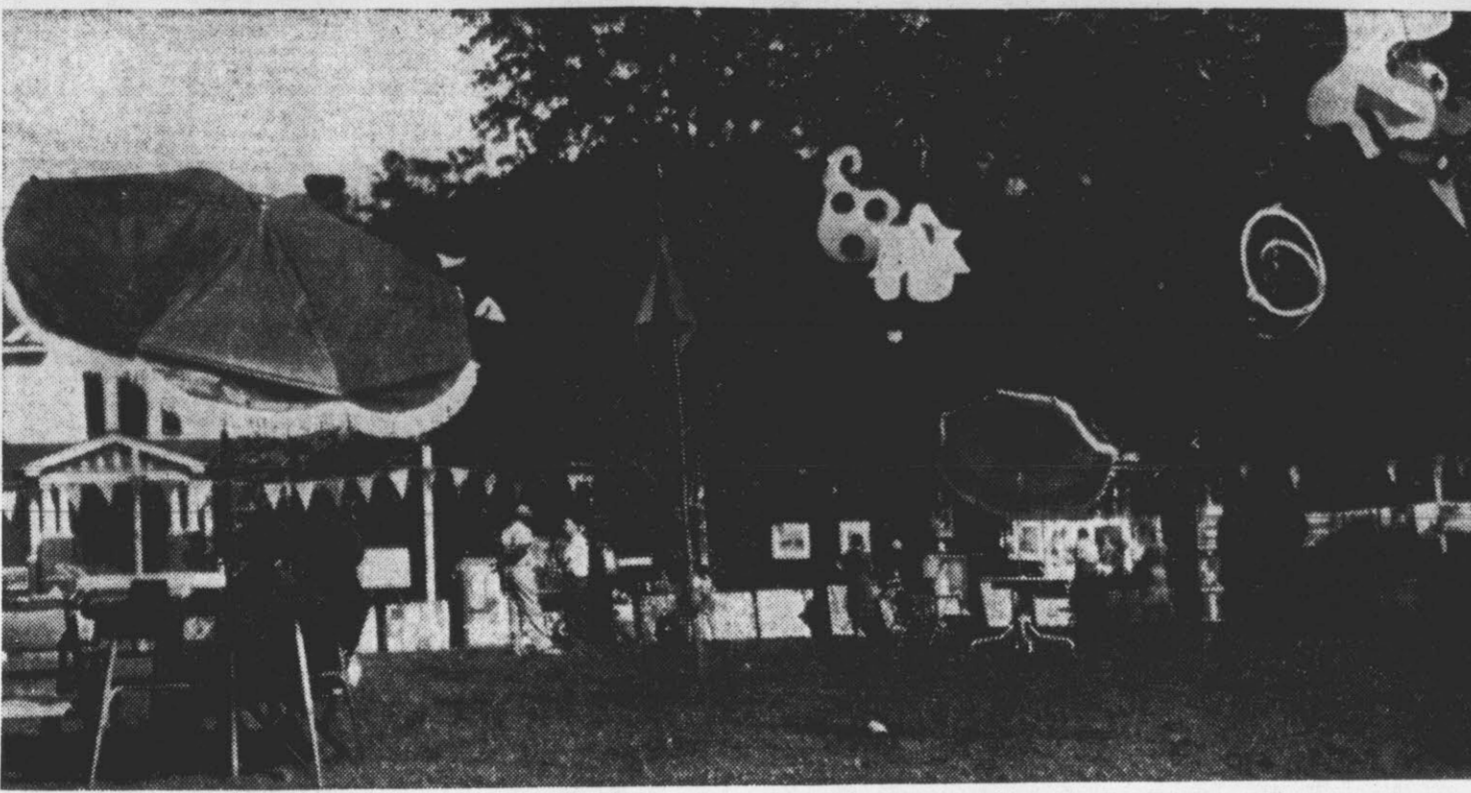

Patton said there is talk in Washington of giving federal lawyers power to come into North Carolina and issue a restraining order on anyone they wish.

He said the government plans "to work it so that the restraining order would be in effect even before we lawyers could exhaust the possibilities of hearings in lower courts."

Speaking to the Greensboro Bar Assn., Patton criticized the U.S. Supreme Court and the federal government for what he called "invasion of states' rights."

Patton said the average person in the South doesn't know what is going on in Washington. "But I know, because I've been up there to take a look I know where those Washington people are pointing their fingers. Right down here," he declared.

Minimum Wage Bill Recall Is Urged By Sen. Whitmire

RALEIGH (AP)—Sen. R. Lee Whitmire of Henderson wants the Senate to recall the minimum wage bill to remove a provision which he says is "so contradictory that it sticks out like a sore thumb."

Whitmire offered his motion last night, and Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt set it for consideration by the Senate when it meets Monday night.

Only 10 senators were on hand for the night session. Most of the other legislators were on their way back from a trip to Manteo to attend the dedication of the William B. Umstead Bridge.

The bill calling for a 75 cents an hour minimum wage was passed by the Senate Wednesday by a 43 to 4 vote after it weathered a shower of amendments.

Whitmire, a former Superior Court judge, said the bill gives minimum wage coverage in one section to people receiving lodging and food as part of their pay and excludes them in another section.

Heel doctors who make more than $15,000 a year. It would impose a tax of 2 per cent on receipts in excess of $15,000.

The revenue would be turned over to the State Medical Care Commission, which would distribute it to public-supported hospitals on the basis of need.

Speight offered another bill to prohibit the deduction of losses from farm operations in figuring income taxes unless the taxpayer realized more than 50 per cent of his total net income from farming.

Speight said the target of his bill "is those fellows who make a racket" of "buying a farm and letting Uncle Sam and the state of North Carolina pay for it through income tax deductions."

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Community fund-raisers from over the Southeast were told by one speaker here yesterday that consolidation of fund drives saves wasted effort, and by another speaker that it can lead to apathy, indifference and "depersonalized" charity.

James A. Linnen, publisher of Time Magazine, told the Southeast regional conference of the United Community Funds and Councils that the trend toward federated fund drives is a good thing.

"Multiple drives," he said, are wasteful. Chaos and confusion inevitably result.

But John E. Canaday, a vice president of Lookheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif., wondered if "we are not now approaching the point where we pay too much for the benefits of United Fund raising."

As dangers in consolidation of fund-raising, Canaday suggested the danger of standardization and arbitrary decision-making taking the human and emotional factor out of giving.

Linen, who also is president of United Community Funds and Councils of America, added his prediction that juvenile delinquency in America will increase between 62 and 90 per cent by 1975.

Pick Pilot To Fly At 4,000 MPH

By HERBERT D. WILHOIT, LOS ANGELES (AP)—A pilot who looks more like a banker than a space man may be the first human to fly 4,000 m.p.h.

Scott Crossfield, 35, was named yesterday to pilot the rocket-powered North American X15 on its maiden flight next year.

Almost anybody would take this conservatively dressed, 150-pound man for a quietly confident businessman or an aeronautical engineer, which he is.

He is the man who first flew twice the speed of sound—1,327 m.p.h. in the Douglas Skyrocket in November 1953—and he is the man who may pilot the X15 higher and faster than any other manned aircraft.

"This is my business, my life work," Crossfield said matter-of-factly when newsmen asked how he felt about approaching this project.

U.S. Using All Resources To Prevent Jordan Crises From Exploding Into War

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER, WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States was reported using every resource of its diplomacy today to prevent the Jordanian crisis from exploding into a new Middle East war.

The possibility of American forces becoming directly involved under present circumstances was generally discounted here.

But no official could say when circumstances might change radically.

It was understood that American representatives in Middle East capitals were under instructions to emphasize to all the governments there the extreme seriousness of the situation and to urge that they do nothing to "rock the boat."

Senate Republican Leader Knowland (D-Mont) conferred for 40 minutes with Secretary of State Dulles yesterday.

Knowland told newsmen that "everyone in that area of the world would be well advised not to rock the boat."

State Department press officer Lincoln White had said earlier that the "independence and integrity of Jordan" were threatened by "international communism," a statement which appeared to provide part of the basis necessary if Eisenhower should decide on American intervention.

Under the Eisenhower Doctrine adopted by Congress in March, American intervention would require a call from the Jordanian government of King Hussein for help.

White said that no request for American aid has been made by Hussein so far as he knew.

Asked whether the President's Middle Eastern policy of using American forces if necessary to protect nations in that area against open Communist aggression would apply in the case of Jordan, Knowland said, "It depends on what conditions arise."

"If there should be outside intervention by the Soviet Union it most certainly would apply," he said. "It might apply under other circumstances too."

In advance of the conference, Mansfield issued a statement saying the situation presents "all of the ingredients of a major war."

It is quite possible that this country will become involved if events are not brought under control," he said.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, set off on a 2½-week tour of Latin America, saying he did not consider the Middle East situation serious enough for him to delay the trip.

Aims Bill Directly At Hodges

RALEIGH (AP)—Anson's plain-spoken Sen. E. Avery Hightower created something of a ruckus in the Senate today when he offered a bill aimed directly at Gov. Hodges—which stated that a majority of Tar Heel citizens believe that the executive department of state government has in the past and is now "exercising undue influence over the members of the legislative branch."

The bill brought heated comments from other senators including one from Sen. Lunsford of Halifax that it was "the most absurd piece of legislation I have seen in my three sessions here."

After a confused squabble in which the little-used point of no-quorum was raised and several senators pointed out they were under an informal agreement to consider only local measures today, action on a motion to take the bill up for immediate consideration was deferred until Monday night.

The bill normally would have gone to a committee, but Hightower moved for a suspension of the rules to bring it up for consideration immediately.

The bill would forbid the appointment of any member of the General Assembly to a position in state government until 24 months after the adjournment of the Legislature of which he was a member.

Over 350 Pitt Scouts, Scouters At Camporee

Over 350 Boy Scouts and scouting officials representing the Pitt County Scouting District left early this afternoon for Kinston and the annual East Carolina Camporee.

Jim Mallory, Camping and Activities Chairman for the Pitt District, stated today, "This is one of the largest number of scouts ever to represent the district at an East Carolina Council Camporee."

At the Camporee the patrols compete for blue, red, white or green ribbons, the latter being given for participation, and the troops themselves are in competition for a blue or a red pennant.

Schools throughout the county cooperated by giving the Boy Scouts time off today in order that they might leave early this afternoon. Greenville scouts were released at 12:30 p.m.

Plea Of 'Guilty' By Accused Spy

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacob Albam, accused member of a Soviet spy ring, today pleaded guilty to conspiring with Russians to obtain U.S. defense data for transmission to Russia.

Albam, 64, was the third member of an espionage ring seized by the FBI early this year to confess his guilt.

His action came 16 days after two cohorts in the plot, Jack Sobel, 53, and Sobel's wife, Myra, 52, entered similar pleas, and threw themselves on the mercy of the court.

By so doing, they apparently sought to escape a death penalty.

Federal Judge Richard H. Levett, who received the pleas from all three, set next Friday for sentencing them. Each could get up to 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000 or both.

The trio, all refugees from the Iron Curtain, were charged on a six-count indictment, detailing spy activities here and abroad.

Their pleas of guilty were to one court only, concerning conspiracy with Russian agents to obtain defense documents, photographs and other data, knowing it would be sent to Russia.

His decision to change his plea from not guilty to guilty came after prolonged consultation with his attorney, Harold O. N. Frankel.

The three were arrested by FBI agents last Feb. 25. Sobel and his wife in their home on Manhattan's West 78th St., and Albam in his apartment on Riverside Drive.

Hightower told the Senate his bill was not aimed at the governor but was a "simple statement of policy." However, he said there had been newspaper articles which said that when the governor said "jump," the Legislature answered simply "how high?"

Claims Distrust Of Own 'News'

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Russians distrust their own news sources, are endlessly curious to know more about the U.S. and are beginning to think for themselves.

Robert B. Button, director of the Voice of America, said Button, speaking before the Pennsylvania Broadcasters' Assn. said he sometimes thinks "even the Russians are bored with all that contrived ideology."

COMMITTEE MEMBERS—Several of the Sidewalk Show committee members stop to admire one of the modern paintings that was included in the exhibit. They are Mrs. Michael Luskin, Mrs. John Behr, Mrs. Theima Walker, and Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell. All of them agreed that yesterday's show was the best one that has ever been in Greenville because of the superb paintings exhibited, the perfect weather, and strong interest.

ACCORDIAN PLAYER—Bill Norwood of Greenville serenaded the visitors at yesterday's annual Sidewalk show to the pleasure of the adults and the wonderment of the children. Clifton and Shep Edwards couldn't resist stopping Norwood to find out where the music came from.

Many View Art At Library Lawn

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Yesterday the Sheppard Memorial Library grounds was a profusion of color and gaiety.

Hundreds of paintings—oils, water colors, ink drawings, and charcoals—were placed side by side on a fence encircling the grounds.

There was a strolling accordion player, a flower cart heavy with fragrant blossoms, gay, multi-colored mobiles, a refreshment table and exhibit tables displaying sculpture, hand-made pottery, and handcraft.

During the day approximately 600 persons from Eastern North Carolina attended this third annual sidewalk show which featured paintings of artists from Greensboro, Goldsboro, Edenton, Plymouth, Kinston, Robersonville, and many other Eastern Carolina communities. Sixty-seven painters exhibited their works yesterday.

Archie Griffin, a craftsman from Robersonville, brought an unusual exhibit of woodwork. From cypress knees and wood he creates lamps, wall plaques, and other home furnishings.

The American Home magazine has bought one of his bird prints depicted on wood and plans to have an article in a future issue of their magazine about his method of reproducing the print onto wood.

Many of the higher priced paintings were sold yesterday, as well as a number of the water color works and other exhibits. Dr. Robert Lee Humber purchased one of Frith Winslow's paintings for his personal collection.

"This is the first year that the higher priced paintings sold," Mrs. Michael Luskin noted. Beautiful weather, a collection of superb paintings and exhibits, keen interest all helped to make yesterday's Sidewalk Show a huge success.

Children Take Trip

BELL ARTHUR—Forty-two boys and girls of the first and second grades of Arthur School and their teachers, Mrs. Bruce Strickland and Mrs. Bob Branch, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Young, participated in an outing Wednesday that featured a train ride on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad from Wilson to Rocky Mount.

The railroad officials had reserved an entire car for their use. Mr. T. H. Nichols, ticket agent in Wilson, welcomed them and escorted them to the train. As the train was leaving the station, the children were shown the Pullman, the dining car and the kitchen. They arrived in Rocky Mount at 10:30, and board their bus which took them to the city park. They visited the Children's Museum and Kiddie Zoo and rode the train and hobby horses.

Mrs. Mae Bell, TV personality, showed them a movie on an Indian boy living in the Everglades. A cabin had been reserved for eating their lunch.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
By special arrangement with the weather man, this week's Art Festival events have run off without a hitch, and we hope you've enjoyed them as much as we have, especially the Sidewalk Art Show, where we were charmed by the variety and tastefulness of the exhibits. Closing event is the big luncheon on Saturday, which is going to be an Animated Magazine — instead of reading it, you listen to the authors say what they have on their minds. . . . We think Greenville should send a personal bouquet of orchids to all the folks who have brought the Arts Festival here with such great success—it's one of the most worthwhile community projects we know about, and we hope it keeps on going, year after year.

The Humanities
This past week we've been to Cleveland, Ohio, attending a conference on "Human Values in the Age of Automation," sponsored jointly by the College English Association, Standard Oil Company and Ford Motors. . . . College professors were there, and also representatives from many of the big industries of the country, to discuss the function of the so-called Liberal Arts in an age when technical skill and science count for such a lot that people sometimes forget about the Arts. We were inspired and filled with many new ideas, and happy that industrialists and big businessmen are concerned with problems of this kind. . . . A striking coincidence hit us at one of the dinners, where the main speaker was Mr. T. O. Yntema, vice president in charge of Finance, Ford Motor Company. Instead of talking about accounting, Mr. Yntema quoted a passage to illustrate his main point from a selection that we had been teaching in our English class a couple of days before—from John Henry Newman's "The Idea of a University," written over 100 years ago. Talking about the advantage of a general Liberal Arts education over too much specialization, Mr. Yntema quoted the following, which is Newman's idea of what a Liberal Education is and does:
"To open the mind, to correct it, to refine it, to enable it to know, and to digest, master, rule, and use its knowledge, to give it power over its own faculties, application, flexibility, method, critical exactness, sagacity, resource, address, eloquent expression, is an object as intelligible. . . . as the culti-valuation of virtue. . . ."

Faulkner Opus
Back in his native Yoknapatawpha County—where we think he belongs — William Faulkner has just completed a new novel, "The Town," to be published May 1 by Random House. It's a sequel to "The Hamlet," which appeared in 1940, and is the second in a trilogy which will be completed by "The Mansion," which Faulkner is now working on. All three books concern the influence of Flem Snopes and his family on Mississippi in particular, and the South and the World in general. "Snopesism" is a word that connotes materialism, shrewdness, the upsetting of old and honored values—and these are what Faulkner's trilogy is about. We prophesy that "The Town" will be hailed as one of his greatest books, and that it will bring him back into his own as America's foremost living writer.

The Local Scene
We hope you got—or will get—to see "As You Like It," the Shakespearian comedy running for two performances only this week in Flanagan Sylvan Theatre at E.C.C.—Friday the 26th will be your last chance and we think it's an excellent show. . . . Next Tuesday, the 30th, sees the opening of the three day run of "A Connecticut Yankee" at McGinnis Auditorium—it's a musical with lyrics by Hart and music by Rodgers, so how can you miss—and with an all-star student cast? . . .

Today's Review
Miss Jane E. Bennett contributes her criticism of a "juvenile" novel aimed at the 12 to 16 age group. She's in that group, so we think that what she has to say should mean something. . . .

CONQUER THE WINDS by Ernie Rydberg. Longmans, Green and Company, New York, 1957. 153 pages. $2.75.
"Conquer the Winds" is the story of a teenage boy, Rocky, whose parents, who are in Europe, have left him in the care of the family housekeeper. When Rocky's new car is wrecked by a girl, his license is revoked. Some friends get him interested in gliding. This becomes very important to him and he becomes a member of the Gliders' Club. Meanwhile Rocky is involved in some difficulties in which circumstantial evidence points to his guilt. He proves himself innocent of serious charges and his driver's license is returned to him.
But Rocky's interests in gliding still remained and he appreciated the friends he had made in the Gliders' Club.
Most people in their teens or the years just before will enjoy this book, especially if they are interested in aviation. I found it very interesting.

A Bootstrap Bill Facing Pressure

North Carolina now looks to its House of Representatives to follow through with action which will give some 60,000 citizens of the state a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour.

There will be intense pressure on members of the House before the bill is finally decided upon in that body of the legislature. Forces which are opposing the new state minimum wage law are formidable in spite of the fact they could not succeed in persuading the Senate to kill the bill or water it down to ineffectiveness.

Efforts against the bill which were apparent in hearings before the Senate Committee and again on the Senate floor will show no signs of slacking as the House considers the measure already passed across the hall.

At the same time the sentiment in favor of the bill is evident by the 43 to 4 vote by which the Senate approved the new state minimum wage.

Passage of this minimum wage bill will boost the income of that portion of the people who needed it most—those in the lowest income bracket. It will put several million dollars a year into the pockets of North Carolinians and in turn will help the lowest income groups raise their standard of living. It will be a major step in North Carolina's program to lift itself by its own bootstraps to increase the per capita income of its people.

As the House considers this important legislation it should carefully guard against amendments which would render the bill ineffective. Following the Senate's example, members of the House should beat down the shower of amendments which are sure to be offered. Amendments tacked on by the Senate have already weakened the bill considerably. Its effectiveness should not be further impaired by the approval in the House of more exemptions to the proposed 75 cents an hour minimum wage.

Opening Of Broad New Horizon For Everyone

The opening of a new link between one location and another means the opening of new horizons for both.

Opening of the new three-mile long bridge across Croatan Sound opens broad new horizons for the coastal area of the state which has heretofore been semi-isolated from the mainland. It will be a key to funneling thousands of additional tourists annually to historic Roanoke Island and the outer banks from Nags Head to Hatteras, the new National Seashore Recreational Area and quaint, quiet Ocracoke. The bridge will be the key which opens new horizons for the development of processing plants and new markets for the important fishing industry which long has been a mainstay of the coastal area's economy.

Just as North Carolina's excellent highway system has played an important role in the economic development of the state, this new bridge which forms a link between a section of the outer banks and the mainland to provide new economic possibilities for an area which sorely needs economic advancement.

Boom Looms In Aerosol Usage

By ELMER ROESSNER

We may be at fuse-length from the darndest boom in aerosol containers you ever dreamed of. The day may not be far off when Mother pushes a button to spray a pancake on the griddle or Dad sprays an even coating of mustard on his wrist.

About $300,000,000 worth of aerosol containers were sold last year. That does not include the value of the content. But authorities agree this is only a beginning. Eventually $2 billion worth of containers may be sold each year.

The big block right now is the fact that the propellants—the gasses under pressure that force out the contents of the can—have not yet been approved. But, as the Arthur D. Little Industrial Bulletin points out, the toxicity of propellants has been under examination for some time and "approval for use of some of them is expected within the year."

PLASTIC BAG SUGGESTED
Whipped cream is already sold in pressurized cans. Carbon dioxide is the propellant, but this is not satisfactory for many edibles.

"One suggestion for pressurized packaging of viscous food materials calls for encasing the propellant in a plastic bag to avoid any question of toxicity to the consumer," Little says. This, or the development of a propellant that does not contain flourine, might zoom pressurized food sales.

The potentials are endless. With an assortment of aerosol cans, a cook could ice a cake quickly in multicolor designs or convert a gob of plain ice cream into a sundae of endless colors and flavors. Tenderizers and liquefied charcoal could be sprayed on steaks and exotic flavors laid between the folks of an omelet.

Cereals with cream could be sprayed in a breakfast bowl. Salads could be thinly coated with dressings. Countless spreads could be sprayed on sandwiches; the variety of hostesses' canapes could be limited only by the number of aerosol cans in her refrigerator. And imagine a slice of rye bread sprayed with pure of pastrami!

A WAR BABY
"The forerunner of the aerosol unit was the World War II bug bomb, a Department of Agriculture development that used freon-12 refrigerant gas to propel DDT." The Little bulletin recalls. "Between 1946 and 1948, the throw-away, low-pressure container evolved."

Its earliest uses were for insecticides, hair sprays and shaving creams but other applications have become important, among them being mothproofers, room deodorants, pigmented and metallic paints, fire extinguishers, cosmetic products, medicinals and pharmaceuticals, and artificial snow. About 40 pharmaceutical products, including anti-infectives, bandages, burn remedies and inhalation sprays are in use.

The bulletin recounts results of a survey to determine consumer awareness of three aerosol products: personal deodorants, burn sprays, and paints and enamels.

JOB FOR ADVERTISING

"Personal deodorants or anti-perspirants are used by 85 per cent of U.S. housewives, but only 34 per cent know they are available in aerosol containers," the bulletin notes. "Burn sprays are used by 73 per cent of those surveyed, but only 4 per cent were aware of an aerosol product and very few had used one. Although introduced as early as 1949, aerosol paints, lacquers and enamels were familiar to only 35 per cent of the families interviewed."

Friends Poised With Daggers

By LYNN NISBET

SHARP STILETTOS—Sel-dom has any piece of legislation had as many professed friends willing to stick a dagger in its back as the minimum wage bill developed in the Senate.

Time after time Senators arose to sponsor amendments tending to further weaken an already very limited bill. In every instance the amenders professed devotion to the principle, to the laudable purpose of raising per capita income—but one by one they asked to have large segments of industry exempted.

By relatively narrow margins, ranging from 26-18 to 23-22, the Senators voted down proposals to exempt hotels, summer camps, laundries, domestic laundry women, coal and ice dealers. By similar margins they adopted amendments exempting school children under 18, commercial fishermen, and employers of four or fewer people.

Temper flared at times, and President Barnhardt twice had to rule Sen. Cutlar Moore of Robeson out of order for referring to votes by members in committee, and once had to call down Sen. Lee Whitmire of Henderson for his vigorous resentment at Sen. Moore's allegations. Whitmire, primary introducer of the bill, said he offered it at request of the Governor after Senator Moore, chairman of the committee, on Manufacturing, Labor and Commerce had declined to introduce it. He added that he voted against every amendment in committee, and resented the statement by Moore that he had voted for the amendments. But, when the committee had exempted—over his protest—three others.

The final vote for the bill with mid-amendments was preponderant. House members listening in on the Senate squabble voiced majority opinion the bill will have difficulty in the House committee, and if it survives there, will die on the floor.

FRAYED—The flare up in the Senate came one day after a less obvious, but in some respects more serious, squabble in the House over the Charlotte annexation bill.

Fact is, the legislators have been working hard. General sentiment is they have been driven to long hours and tense discussions, resulting in inadequate conclusions because of the feeling of frustration on account of lack of organization.

If the foregoing sentence is poorly constructed it offers further evidence of the confused atmosphere around the capitol.

The minimum wage bill has full support of the Hodges administration. The administration has marshaled forces to defeat the committee amendments, but had not been effective in preventing others being offered. The debate raged for two hours, while buses were waiting to take the legislators to Nag's Head and the Croatan Bridge dedication.

Senators were restive, tempers frayed, and there was general expression of futility in considering vitally important legislation under such conditions.

EXCEPTION—An exception should be noted to the listing of all amenders as professed friends of the principle of the bill. Sen. Carlyle Rutledge of Cabarrus spoke out against the whole idea of governmental fixing of wages in private industry. He can see no more justice in a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour than in a maximum wage of $2 an hour.

It was also noted that the full Republican delegation, Sens. William Cobb of Burke, H. P. Eiler of Wilkes and John C. McBeed of Mitchell voted against all amendments and for the bill. Senator Cobb made a short speech in support of the principle of minimum wages, and voiced some doubt that the amount in the bill was adequate.

PERSONAL—Frequent mention has been made of the personal origin of a great deal of legislation. Adoption and divorce laws, retirement provisions and many laws governing civil and criminal actions in courts are based on experience of one or two individuals.

Several of the current reorganization bills conferring enlarged powers on the Governor stem from the admiration and confidence members of the General Assembly have for Governor Luther Hodges.

During informal discussion of the property management bill in House State Government Committee it developed that several agencies want to carry on more independently than would be possible under the proposed bill, which tends to centralize control of property. One of these agencies is the State Hospitals Board of Control.

John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill is chairman of that board, and also a member of the committee as representative from Orange county. At a previous meeting of the committee he pointed out where the centralized plan might hamper the hospital board. During the informal discussion this week, when Umstead was absent, Rep. Ashley Murphy of Fender, who was a member of the reorganization study commission and a prime introducer of the property management bill, said in view of the tremendous contribution John Umstead has made to the mental hospital program, he (Murphy) is about ready to give him anything he asks for.

It is conceivable that other members of the General Assembly would be willing to do the same thing, just as they have demonstrated willingness to give more power to Governor Hodges.

Unfortunately, neither the name of Hodges or Umstead appears in the bills, or in the laws if the bills are enacted. Luther Hodges will not always be Governor of North Carolina and John Umstead will not always be chairman of the hospital board. Legislators who might be willing to accord them almost unlimited powers are reluctant to give that power to perhaps an entirely different type man who will succeed to the office.

'So I Walked Out On Her'

I'm a man in love. And I want you reader(s) to be the first to know.

I saw her on the corner the other day. A lovely blonde in a beautiful yellow outfit. That was it. I flipped.

I floated over to her. Permission received from her guardian, the two of us soon sailed off down the streets of Greenville. We made a handsome couple, she and I. Folks on the street corners turned to stare. Although I realized it was her to which their stares were directed and not myself, I still could not resist returning a smile of pride.

Ah, but this one was fickle. As the few hours of bliss sailed by, I began to realize she was out of my class. This thing of beauty was made for one with the necessary funds to keep her in the style to which she was accustomed.

I argued with myself. I tried to view the situation coldly. I told myself it did not matter that she was meant for one of better financial means than myself.

But in the end I realized it was true. Sadly I spun the steering wheel and headed back to Flanagan Buggy Co. There I turned back to her guardian, Ed Harris, that hard top convertible and walked out of her life, probably forever.

Overlooked in the city's recent Clean Up-Paint Up Week was the work of Utilities crews in painting fire hydrants.

All the city's hydrants got a new coat of bright red paint and the tops were painted silver.

While they were at it the crews inspected the hydrants and several were replaced.

Tom Rivers has a good idea for cutting shore city board meetings.

The other night at a Planning-Zoning Board meeting the question of an earlier starting time for the meetings came up.

The meetings now start at 8 o'clock and it was suggested that they begin at 7:30.

"We'd still meet until 10 o'clock," one member said.

"Let's start at 5:30," Rivers quipped.

By starting before supper, he noted, board members would all get hungry before long and go home.

The board didn't take too kindly to the idea and the meeting time was left at 8 o'clock.

Local citizens who want a good course in personal development and salesmanship should sign up for the Bob Bale course to be given in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The course costs $15 per person.

Bale has been to Greenville once before and those who attended his classes are enthusiastic about the results.

Other Editors Saying-- Harder To Enter College

(Richmond Times-Dispatch)
The present crop of high and preparatory school students had better awaken speedily to the educational facts of life. It is becoming harder and harder to get into college, and many who would have been accepted automatically a decade ago won't get in at all 10 years hence.

The vast jump in the number of applicants, which is already making itself felt, and the limited facilities available to this horde of would-be matriculates, account for the problems confronting our prospective collegians. Drastic readjustments will have to be made in Virginia and all other states, in order to accommodate a reasonable proportion of these young people.

Entering, say, the University of Virginia or VMI, under existing conditions, is hard enough, since the current situation is totally different from that which existed 20 years ago. But when it comes to getting into such institutions as Princeton, Yale or Smith the would-be student finds that the chances are heavily against him.

Princeton has 4,000 applicants for 750 openings in next fall's freshman class, and the situation at Yale is virtually identical. Smith has 2,188 applications for 600 openings. With the number of boys and girls of college age expected to double by 1970, the squeeze is sure to become much worse.

All of which should cause our educational authorities in Virginia to do some hard and constructive thinking, to the end that the looming problems in the state can be met with a minimum of dislocation to our schools and colleges, and a minimum of disappointment to the rising generation of boys and girls who hope to go to college a few years hence.

take care of the deluge of applicants which will soon be overflowing our entire system of higher learning. All of which makes almost inevitable a further tightening up of entrance requirements by these privately-refinanced institutions.

Magazines and newspapers are pointing out that school officials and parents ought by all means to begin stressing these facts now, so that boys and girls who have just entered high or prep school will realize that they won't be accepted by the colleges unless they do more than just "get by." If this spurs them on to greater effort, it will be a blessing in disguise.

Even today, colleges and universities in the Old Dominion are becoming more and more selective, as they find that the number of applicants greatly exceeds the available places. A high school diploma is no longer accepted as evidence of ability to do adequate work, either in state-supported or privately-supported institutions. Neither is graduation from a top-flight preparatory school. The recipient of a school diploma today must do more than just pass. He must reveal definite capacity and show that he is able to cope successfully with college courses.

The privately-supported institutions of higher learning are likely to be even more selective hereafter than their state-supported counterparts. They are under no political pressure to accept boys and girls who are graduated by the high schools. They are also less able, by and large, than the state institutions to expand their facilities to

Federal Control Blocked By Fan

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Two of the American people's most popular sources of entertainment—baseball and television—will remain free of Federal encroachment and regulation through the efforts of a stubborn individualistic Brooklynite and Dodger fan—Representative Emanuel Celler. As Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, the veteran legislator fiercely opposes current proposals for tolls on TV programs, and for making the great American game subject to the antitrust laws, as professional football was so placed by a recent Supreme Court decision.

Although not generally advertised by their sponsors for fear of a popular uprising, there is a strong demand on and off Capitol Hill for these spectacular and far-reaching changes in these home and outdoor sports. In Celler's opinion, however, the proposed revisions would anger and harass millions of baseball and TV fans.

TOLLS ON TV PROGRAMS? George C. McConaughy, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, has indicated that he favors a test of subscription TV, which would mean that listeners would have to drop payments for each program in a slot attached to the set.

But he seems afraid to try it out without Congressional authorization or what he calls "guidance." He apparently shrinks from even a trial of such a startling innovation.

The Senate Interstate and Commerce Committee, which is headed by Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, recently considered a staff report on the subject. Although not yet made public, it recommended that Congress authorize FCC to conduct tests.

FEAR TO TAKE INITIATIVE A committee majority refused to act on or approve the report. The situation is that neither Congress nor the FCC dares to assume the initiative or accept the responsibility for even a limited experiment. They are certain that millions of TV viewers, especially housewives and youngsters addicted to daytime programs, would turn the house—and Congress—upside down.

In view of these simmering threats to now free TV, chairman Celler has introduced a bill expressly forbidding the FCC or Congress to charge customers for programs, whether they be Ding Dong School for kindergartners, fashion shows for Mom or championship prizefights for Pop.

MYSTERY CONCERNING BASEBALL'S IMMUNITY Getting baseball an antitrust status has gained some support from the Supreme Court's finding that professional football is a monopoly. Since the latter's contracts are far more flexible than baseball's, and more fair to the individual performer, many Members cannot understand why organized baseball, especially the allegedly monopolistic major leagues, should enjoy immunity.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 1-2.

God made two great lights, the sun to rule by day and the moon by night. Then He made the stars and set them in the heavens to give light upon the earth.

And God created great whales and every creature that lives in the waters, and every winged fowl, and told them to be fruitful and multiply.

God created man and put him in a beautiful garden. He told Adam he might eat of the fruit of every tree but one, but if he ate of that one he would die.

God brought all living creatures, beasts and fowl, to Adam to be named. Whatever he called them was to be their name. MEMORY VERSE—Genesis 1:31.

Book of Beginnings

GOD CREATES THE EARTH, HEAVEN AND ALL LIVING THINGS

Scripture—Genesis 1-2.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN THIS LESSON we go back to the beginning of the earth and its creation. The Bible does not give any date of the creation. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith says scientists think it was between eight and ten billion years ago.

The sixth day He created the living creatures of the earth—cattle, insects and the wild beasts, and last of all man, made "in His own image." "And God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good."

There are two accounts of the creation of woman. In the first chapter, we are told that "God created man in His own image; male and female created He them." In the second chapter, we read that God made woman later for a helpmate for Adam.

And on the seventh day God rested from His work and He blessed that seventh day and called it holy.

Dr. Smith says, "I believe that verse 1 is an introduction to the entire chapter, and verse 2 describes a condition of chaos prevailing around the globe ultimately to be called the earth. All geologists agree that a heavy vapor originally surrounded the earth, what is known as chaos, unformed matter."

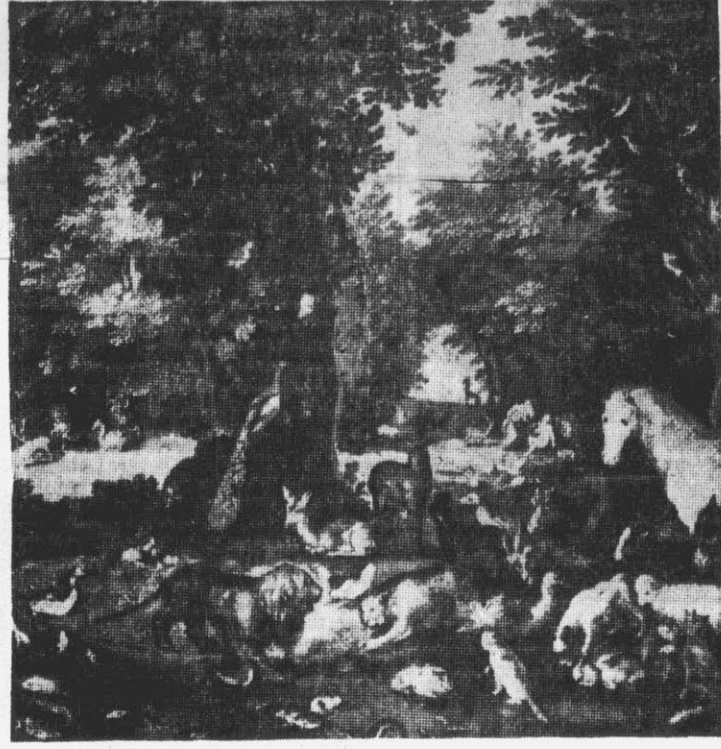

God had not caused it to rain, but "there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground."

"The earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

God then planted a garden and put the man He had made in it. In the garden there were trees that were "pleasant to the sight," and those bearing fruit for food. The Lord God told the man, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it; for in the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die."

To Adam were brought all the beasts and every fowl of the air for him to name them, and whatsoever he named them, that was their name.

Lopez Gets Chisox Off To Fast Start

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
Are the Chicago White Sox just off on their usual spring sprint, or has new manager Al Lopez got them hustling to go the distance?

Either way, nice-guy Lopez—only manager who did not concede the American League pennant to the New York Yankees in spring training—has the White Sox off and flying with a 6-1 record and a half-game edge over the Yankees for first place.

Lopez has mixed speed, great defense, youth and so far successful position shifts to win both the neat, close ones and the messy slugfests.

The Sox padded their slim lead with a 9-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday in a three-hour tussle that had 29 hits, 11 doubles and 25 stranded base runners. The Yankees were idle.

In the other AL games, Boston's Ted Williams—off to an unusually fast start—banged a two-run double and two singles for a 3-for-3 day as the Red Sox barged Washington 12-7, and the Cleveland Indians unfrocked the Kansas City A's, who had won three in a row, 5-3.

Only one National League game was played with the Cincinnati Redlegs pairing six hits with four errors to defeat Chicago's Cubs 6-3 for their fourth consecutive victory.

Despite 16 hits, six of them doubles, the White Sox had some trouble. They finally got the job done with Nelson Fox chipping in two doubles and a single, Minnie Minoso and Bubba Phillips each driving in a pair of runs, and Phillips and Jim Rivera both getting three hits, with a double for each.

Southpaw Jack Harshman won his second, but needed Millard Howell's relief work after giving way to a pinch hitter in the sixth. Tiger starter Billy Hoelt left in a three-run Sox third.

Boston tagged 15 hits off five pitchers as George Susce, making his first 1957 appearance, won it with three-hit relief work over 5 2-3 innings. He came on in the fourth, when Clint Courtney's two-run homer disposed of starter Willard Nixon, and didn't allow a hit until Courtney tripled with two out in the eighth.

The Indians got past the A's with a three-run seventh against Vally Burnette. A two-run double by Vic Wertz did the damage. Gus Zernial's two-run homer chased Early Wynn in the eighth, but Ray Narleski then nailed Wynn's first victory.

Golfers Wallop Kinston; Local Matches Start

Greenville's golf team walloped a visiting Kinston outfit, 114-48, Wednesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. In a regular match of the Coastal Golf Association.

Low scores for the winning Greenville club were as follows: Errel Webb 72, Bob Masten 78, Donald Conley Jr. 78, W. L. Allen 78, Conner Merritt 78, and Howard Waldrop 78.

Low for Kinston were Erwin with 72 and R. Baker with 78.

In local play this week, the largest number of golfers ever to qualify for the local Golf and Country Club Match Play championships, are currently in the running for the title this year.

First rounds of the play are supposed to be completed by Sunday night. They are playing at the rate of one match per week.

In the championship flight, Wesley Topping, a Greenville high school senior, defeated Simon Moye Jr., two and one. Charlie Bill Moye defeated Ben Harrison, one up. Ed Harris topped William Davenport, four and three.

Large Field Of Micro Midgets

Micro-Midget auto races are slated to get underway tonight at 8:15 sharp with a large field of racers from all over the Southeast.

Already this year racers have come from as far away as Norfolk, Portsmouth, Wilmington, Kinston, Williamston and other locations. Now, the local track promoters have received inquiries from race drivers in Greensboro, Burlington, and other western points. It is expected that some of these drivers will be on hand for tonight's race.

Heat races will be held before the regular main event tonight on the one-quarter mile track.

The track is located in North Greenville, at the Pitt County Fair Grounds.

Tickets 'Almost All Gone' For ECC-State Game

Officials in charge of the ticket sales for the East Carolina-N. C. State baseball game to be played at Guy Smith Stadium on May 3, have stated that almost all the tickets are gone now.

The College View Cleaners and Laundry purchased 1200 tickets early this week and is giving them away to anyone who will drop by and ask for them. Officials stated today that about 600 of the tickets were given away on the first day, 300 on the following day and only about 300 remain now.

Tickets may also be obtained by getting in contact with the East Carolina College Athletic Department, telephone 4809.

A sellout crowd is expected to be on hand for the contest, a night game at the re-converted stadium. It will mark the first time the Wolfpack has ever visited Greenville and will give Eastern North Carolina spectators their first look at a Big Four team as compared to the league-leading ECC Pirates in Greenville.

The Bucs are presently in sole possession of the North State Conference leadership with a 7-2 record. State is currently running third in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 5-2 mark.

In Greenville On May 3

STATE'S DICK HUNTER will be in Greenville on May 3rd for the NC State-ECC night baseball game at Guy Smith Stadium. Hunter is an outstanding outfielder and hitter for the Wolfpack and will be expected to pace the visiting ACC club at bat in the exhibition contest. ECC's record at present is 7-2, which puts the Bucs on top in the North State loop. State's mark is 5-2.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—Gene Sarazen said today modern golf courses are "obsolete as a model-T Ford" and predicted the sport some day would be played on tight, crew-cut layouts requiring less than two hours for an 18-hole round.

"The accent today is on speed," the forever-youthful 55-year-old onetime champion from Germantown, N.Y., said.

"What's the answer? Shorter, trickier courses 3,500 yards long instead of 7,000 and greater emphasis on brain work than on hitting power. It has to come."

Sarazen said the golf course of the future would be condensed within the space of a few city blocks instead of covering 300 acres.

"It will play a par 56 instead of 72, he added, with every shot calling for a premium on accuracy and finesse. It will be strategically trapped with gun-barrel fairways, tenacious rough and tricky, undulating greens.

"In these days who has time to spend four and five hours playing golf?" Gene asked rhetorically. "Golf today is an all-day proposition and, as a result, it is a game which for the normal person can be played only on weekends."

"Land is running out. Residential developments are devouring our established courses. It takes 300 acres for a course and another 100 acres for a parking lot."

Sarazen said he has noticed the diminutive courses, a bit bigger than the pitch-and-putts layouts, mushrooming in the South. "Soon

Gene said most of the holes would be par three but each nine would have one long hole requiring a good, long belt. The new courses will require less equipment—five or six clubs instead of 14—and no caddies, which are "like the buffalo, a dying breed."

Loop-Leading Bucs Meet High Point Nine Today

East Carolina's league-leading Pirates, after completing a successful road trip that netted them first place in the North State loop, took on High Point at College Field this afternoon.

It was the second meeting of the year for the two clubs. Earlier, at High Point, Coach Jim Mallory's club defeated the Panthers 7-1. In that contest, the Bucs took advantage of seven High Point errors and managed to secure the victory with only one earned run.

Ben Baker, a lefthanded sophomore from Zebulon, hurled six-hit ball against the Panthers in that first encounter. He was named by Mallory to handle mound chores again this afternoon.

After a rather dismal beginning this year, Coach Mallory's club has assumed a very familiar role here at mid-season. They are leading the league.

For the past two consecutive years the Pirates have finished first in the hectic North State Conference. The league has improved steadily each year and it would seem—ECC always managed to stay a notch better than the other outfits each time.

Mallory, who is by far the most successful coach operating in the North State Conference at the present (he also has several championship teams at Elgin before coming to ECC) has stated that the 1957 North State conference is probably the toughest and best-balanced in years. "Any team in the loop is capable of beating any other this year," he has said.

In keeping with the pattern, this year's Pirate team is probably the toughest and best-balanced club ECC has had in years, also. Earlier this season, Mallory went so far as to call it his best team since coming to the North State loop eight years ago. Of course, since that statement was made, several key Pirate players have been lost to the team.

Land, Russell Out
Tommy Land, regular outfielder, and Charlie Russell, an All-State pitcher, are still out of the lineup. Both boys were expected to be leaders on the 1957 outfit.

Russell, who helped spark the Bucs to two conference titles, has been undefeated in collegiate play, boasts a 10-0 hurling record and is regarded one of the best pitchers in college circles in the South. He has had arm trouble all season and Mallory has stated that "he will probably be lost to us for the full season."

Land, a good hitter and a regular in centerfield at the season's opening, contacted glandular fever about a month ago and has been out ever since.

Despite these two serious losses, ECC has managed to fight its way up from a third position to undisputed possession of top place in the space of a week. Going into their last road trip, the Bucs were lodged in third place with a 4-2 record. They toppled Guilford 13-2, Catawba 6-2 and Atlantic Christian 12-4, all in succession to grab the top slot.

Important Game
Now with a 7-2 mark, the Bucs were shooting for a victory this afternoon against High Point. A win would improve their record to 8-2 and give them a comfortable lead over Catawba and Elon, the two nearest competitors.

Expected to pace the club at bat today was Joel Long, who is batting .385 and leading the club in homers with three. Dean Robbins, freshman first baseman who is hitting .400, is another steady contributor to the Buc batting parade. Gary Treon, Berney Stevens, Bucky Reep, Jerry Stewart, Wally Cockrell and Tommy Nance were expected to be the other starters. Game time was 3:00.

Coach McGuire To Head Mental Health Fund Drive

Frank McGuire, collegiate basketball's "Coach of the Year," has been named fund campaign chairman for the North Carolina Association for Mental Health.

Announcement of McGuire's appointment was made today by Dr. Marshall Fisher of Charlotte, president of the Association.

During Mental Health Week, April 28 to May 4, North Carolina, in conjunction with the National Association for Mental Health, is attempting to mobilize citizen interest and action in behalf of the mentally ill.

In a statement to the people of North Carolina, McGuire said today:

"If there is a mental health association in your community, get in touch with it to find out what you can do. If your community does not have a local mental health association, we strongly recommend that you make 'mental illness' the subject of the next meeting of the organization to which you belong, and that your organization go on record in behalf of a fair break for the mentally ill. The mentally ill can come back—recovered, healthy, normal—if you will help them."

McGuire called attention to a report of the National Association for Mental Health which showed that for the first time in many years there was a definite slowdown in the rise of the nation's mental hospital population.

"This is heartening news indeed," the campaign chairman declared. "For the past thirty years, mental hospital rooms have been climbing steeply and steadily, until in 1956 they reached the staggering figure of more than 750,000. This figure may have little meaning until we realize that it exceeds the total of all other hospitals combined."

McGuire, who coached the University of North Carolina Tar Heels to their NCAA Basketball championship this year, urged citizens of the state to "contribute generously to the campaign for funds to help the mentally ill of our communities."

The state president of the Association for Mental Health also announced today that Exchange

Clubs throughout North Carolina have adopted mental health as one of their major projects for the coming year. Richard P. Swigart, national director of the National Mental Health Association, will address the North Carolina Exchange Club state-wide educational conference in High Point May 18-19.

CHAPTER 6

Finley Black waited, standing before the fireplace, until they were all seated in the living room: Stuart beside Nora on one of the love seats that flanked the mantel, Olive and Deming on the one that faced it, Frank on a chair he had jerked sullenly into the group, Tom Jones on the arm of a sofa against the wall.

"Well, then," Finn began. "I think the situation is clear enough. Now that Stuart has been acquitted, the case is re-opening. Someone is stirring things up and this time the State won't make any mistakes. We've got a little leeway, but by next Monday they'll

"Well, of course, he's the one," Olive said in relief. "He had seen a lot of her, hadn't he?"

"Ives took her to dinner a few times. Don't imagine," Finn said grimly. "I wouldn't have settled for Ives if I could have pinned anything on him. But beyond that fact that he knew her, and that his alibi for the time of the murder wasn't substantiated, we didn't have a scrap of evidence against him."

Finn turned to Stuart. "You were another outsider, of course."

"That's right," Stuart said quietly. "As you know, I came to the inn in June. I'd been studying medicine and wasted a lot of time at it before I realized it was the wrong profession for me. I'd inherited a couple of thousand dollars and decided to take the summer off to figure where I belonged. I wanted to be sure I was right the next time. Toward the end of September Mrs. Huger told me the inn would close on October first and I was getting ready to move when Nora came. After that," he looked down at her and grinned. "It would have taken a strong man to dislodge me."

"You're leaving something out," Nora reminded him. "You're leaving out that I nearly drowned and you saved my life."

Hazel laughed. "Maybe Mr. Young thinks it was his persuasive ways kept him here but it was Nora. You should have heard her go on when I said you were leaving. She gave —"

"Hazel!" Nora cried.

Hazel laughed again. "Okay. We girls will keep our secrets."

"Nora," Bert said sadly, "gets what she wants around here. But she's always — fair about it."

Deming cleared his throat. "All this is beside the point."

"All this is the point," Finn said. "Because Stuart was at the inn all summer. And in one way and another such evidence as there was all pointed to him."

"I could have sworn it was Young," said Deming.

"You did swear it was Young," Finn reminded him.

"I was strolling along a path through the woods and came to the side road leading down to the lake. Then I saw the man who looked like Young kissing this girl. I don't understand how I could have been so mistaken."

"Where you made your mistake, Charles?" Olive said. "Was it coming out with it. Now you've got yourself in a mess and all over a cheap girl."

"She wasn't cheap," Nora said unexpectedly.

"I thought you'd never seen her," Stuart said in surprise.

"I never did," she said, wishing she had not spoken.

Finn's voice was icy. "Then what do you mean, honey?"

She told him about the photograph of Candy that Garry had found in her mailbox. "And the girl wasn't what you think, Aunt Olive. She was lovely and sweet."

"I don't like this," Finn said abruptly. "It sounds as though someone has it in for you, Nora. Was there any message?"

She shook her head. "Just the words, 'Love from Candy.'" Her voice got treacherously out of control. "She was laughing."

Stuart's hand tightened over hers. "Hold it," he said. "Steady there."

"I'd like to see that picture and the envelope in which it was mailed," Finn said.

Nora explained that it hadn't been mailed. There was no postmark. It had been put in the box. "Will you get it, honey?" asked Finn.

Nora opened the living room door and started up the stairs.

be on the job."

"But why us?" Olive demanded. "With the exception of Bert none of us ever saw the girl."

Finn sighed and settled his shoulders more comfortably against the mantel. "The only contact Candida Kendrick had with the inn. She was killed by someone who was staying here at the time." His voice hardened. "Someone who is here now. No outsider."

"Finn," Deming said sharply. "This is preposterous! In fact, I'm not sure it isn't libelous, or slanderous."

"Now, Charles," Olive said in the tone of sweet reasonableness that is so infuriating, "remember your blood pressure."

"Let's take it from the beginning," the lawyer said. "If any of you can find a different solution I'll be delighted to hear it."

It had begun when Candida Kendrick inherited from an old friend of her mother's a little cottage in the Connecticut village five miles from the inn. "You know how villages are," Finn said. "There aren't more than five hundred people in Stanleyville, including those on outlying farms. They know all about each other, whom they see, where they go, what they do for a living. Now Candy didn't go to New York all summer. We know that from her agent, who said she wrote or telephoned and didn't go in. She had no guests. That invalid across the street from her place even counts the squirrels. So we have to eliminate people from outside."

"But," Finn went on, "we know she had some contact with the inn. She rented horses at the stable to go riding. Her letter was found in that box outside the stable, and since she referred in it to the 'usual place' we can assume that other letters had been left here. The inn telephone number was the only one in her cottage. She died in the lake here."

"So, naturally, the police were interested in the inn from the start. Unfortunately, at the time of the girl's murder the inn was nearly empty — as it is now. There weren't many possible candidates for Candy's murder: Stuart Young, the two Demings, Bert Huger, and Howard Ives, the local druggist."

Garry was ahead of her, a glass of milk in her hand.

"Thought I'd like something before I went to bed," she explained. "Anything I can do for you?"

"No, thanks," Nora went into her room, looked in the wastebasket where she had dropped the envelope. It was empty. She took the lithograph off the wall. . . . The picture was gone.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged downward on balance in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Steels, motors and some oils moved briskly. Oils with interests in the Middle East lost ground on uncertainty over the Jordanian crisis.

Bethlehem and Chrysler were actively traded in the wake of their record earnings reports.

Despite the new Middle East crisis and normal pre-weekend reluctance to extend commitments, volume had a slight edge over yesterday.

Key stocks showed gains and losses of a point or more but there was a certain amount of churning of prices. Selected issues moved more widely.

Lukens Steel, while erratic, did not rise and fall over such a wide spread as in recent sessions but it still was heavily traded.

Bethlehem was about unchanged after scoring a slight early gain and then dipping to the minus side. Chrysler wiped out most of its early rise of more than a point.

Youngstown, still affected by Wall Street rumors of favorable developments regarding its proposed merger with Bethlehem, was up around 3 points.

General Motors dropped a fraction. American Motors was off 1/4 at 7 on a big 10,000-share block.

Gulf Oil continued its fall on the Middle East news, dropping more than a point, while Royal Dutch eased. Texas Gulf Producing resumed its rise, adding 2 points or so. Northern Pacific went ahead more than a point and Baltimore & Ohio a fraction.

Aircrafts were mixed. Boeing and Douglas showed losses while United Aircraft and General Dynamics rose.

Fine Presentation Staged Of Shakespearean Fantasy

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

William Shakespeare's enchanted Forest of Arden came alive last night on the rustic stage of the Flanagan Sylvan Theatre at East Carolina College. The comic fantasy of "As You Like It" unfolded before the eyes of an audience who seemed to love it, and anybody who didn't get a chance to see it should go tonight for the second and last performance of one of the best shows we've seen on the local campus.

The main feminine lead, Rosalind, was played by newcomer Roberta Blalock, who was everything that one of Shakespeare's most charming heroines should be—beautiful, sensual, keen, intelligent and loving. Opposite her played William Register as Orlando, and he handled the difficult and exacting role like a professional. The wrestling scene in the first act really threw the audience as well as Rosalind, and footballer Luke Taylor was convincingly dumb and rugged as Charles, the Duke's hired grappler—who was supposed to rub Orlando but who—but go and see the show.

Genia Truelove was a sweet Celia, particularly in her costume as shepherdess when she and Rosalind got to the woods. (The court costumes of both girls were not particularly happy and didn't do much for either of them.) Celia's lover in the end was Orlando's brother, Oliver, played by Robert Tyndall, who did his conversion from villain to her with conviction and sincerity.

Stealing the comedy scenes of the show were faculty members George Cook, Floyd Overly and Beatrice Chauncey. Dr. Cook was perfect as Touchstone, the clown, and he had the audience in the aisles every time he opened his mouth. He was completely at ease in the part and played it with the zest and savor of a true actor. Miss Chauncey as the country lass, Audrey, was just ill-favored enough to be a perfect foil for him—and her onion-munching was a delicate and convincing touch. Dr. Overly's Adam, Orlando's faithful old retainer, was a true picture throughout—he didn't forget to act like a real old man for a minute.

DuPont's threadmakers came in for their share of glory in the performance also. Bob Forney's Jacques was everything that a skilful actor should make him, though we didn't like the interruptions to his "Seven Ages of Man" speech, which we think is strong enough to stand by itself. Mike Luskin was a stunner and for his bidding Duke Frederick. Bob Vetter played his brother, Duke Senior, with appropriate appeal, though he might have spoken his lines with a little more vim and volume.

There were few weaknesses even in the minor roles, where Shakespeare's soft spots usually are found. Silvius and Phebe, the third pair of lovers, were nicely done by Tommy Hull and Joyce Whittle. She creates an awkward situation by falling in love with the wrong man, and Joyce carried it off well, despite a little trouble in projecting her voice. Claude West was convincing as Corin, the ancient shepherd with nothing left but his memories, and Joe Steel-

Among those who won applause in the college-community production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" last night at East Carolina were Dr. George Cook of the college faculty (left), as Touchstone the jester, and Claude B. West, Jr., of Greenville, as the shepherd Corin. The play, presented as an attraction of the city Fine Arts Festival and the Golden Anniversary Programs at the college, will have its final performance tonight at 8 p.m. in Flanagan, Sylvan Theatre of the campus.

man did Sir Oliver Martext competently, though he's a little too tall and handsome to be the type. James Kohler, on the other hand, was perfectly cast as M. Le Beau, the court dandy.

Other minor characters made for an almost professional perfection for the whole performance, and many of them, like Jim Trice and Norm Pierce, were doubling in brass as stagehands and whatnot. The whole affair was successful both as a community-college project and as a well-done Shakespearean play. Director Joe Withey deserves the highest praise for bringing the many complicated elements connected with production into orderly shape, and his handling of the big stage and varying levels at the Flanagan Theatre had the mark of true showmanship. The performance was not perfect—no performance ever is—but it certainly came close, and we can guarantee an evening of complete enjoyment to those of you who are lucky enough to get to go tonight.

Public Works Director C. K. Beatty pointed out today that city ordinances require each property owner to keep vacant lots cleared of weeds and tall grass.

Mrs. Birtha Wooten, 1208 West Third Street, is a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

He said if lots are not cut within a reasonable length of time, the city will have the work done and charge the owners with the cost of the job.

The city has made arrangements with Hendrix-Barnhill Equipment Co. to cut lots and they may be contacted by calling 4122 during the day or 2273 at night, Beatty said.

Lot owners who don't clean their vacant lots face the possibility of the city doing the job and the bill being sent to the owner.

Accident Victim Is Awarded $500

A jury ruled yesterday that a Greenville man injured in a June 6, 1955, traffic accident was entitled to receive $500 damages from the driver of the second car involved.

A Cecil Ellington was awarded the amount by the jury after completion of testimony in a suit in which Ellington asked for $20,000 from James R. Harrington. Judgment in the case was not signed, however, by Judge J. Paul Frazzelle, pending presentation by the plaintiff of a motion to dismiss the verdict.

In his complaint, Ellington said he was driving North on Evans Street in Greenville when his automobile was struck by another car operated by Harrington. Ellington claimed that as a result of the accident he was "totally disabled from June 6, 1955, to August 29, 1955".

The case was the only one completed in yesterday's session of a two-weeks civil term of Superior Court.

Notice was given yesterday however, that a verdict returned by a jury last week will be appealed to the Supreme Court. J. # Special School Plans Are Initiated For Mentally Retarded Children

Plans for establishing a special school for trainable mentally retarded children of first grade age were initiated Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shelton of Ayden were named co-chairmen of a committee which will investigate ways and means of establishing the school. Committee members are Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quiggins and Mr. and Mrs. George Pugh. Dr. Frances V. Henry of East Carolina College is serving as advisor for the group of 13 parents who attended Wednesday's meeting.

At the organizational meeting, Dr. Henry discussed problems existing for children and parents. She pointed out that if a day school of the type which is being proposed is established, certain standards would have to be met, including limiting it to an age group between six and ten.

A spokesman for the group has stated that the movement is not intended to conflict with anything set up in regular school systems. "We simply want to utilize ways to help these trainable children who might not be helped otherwise," he said.

The parents have set another meeting for May 8 at 8 p.m. in room 101 of the Graham Building at East Carolina College. Parents and friends of trainable mentally retarded children are invited to attend the meeting.
