County Commissioners have apparently worked out a solution to the County ASC office space problem with time to spare before the May 15 deadline set by the State ASC.

Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners B. Alton Gardner announced that the Soil Conservation Service has agreed to trade its offices on the main floor of the old hospital building for the upstairs offices of the ASC.

Council Candidates Talk Problems In Open Meeting

Seven candidates for City Council discussed their attitudes toward industry, taxes and other issues at a public meeting last night in City Hall.

On the basic question of industry, which Aman termed "the $54,000 question," Bennett said, "there has already been a lot done."

West also said that when he was a member of the Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Development Committee he advocated construction of small building on industrial sites as an inducement.

Hightower Backtracks On His 'Anti-Influence' Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—An Anson County senator who stirred up a hornet's nest in the Senate Friday backtracked last night. He asked the Senate to table his bill designed to curb the governor's influence on legislators.

bill drew sharp comment from senators and Gov. Hodges. Hightower, only senator to speak on the measure last night, said he "did not anticipate as much excitement as this bill has caused."

County Commissioners voted to pay moving expenses of the tenant in the dwelling if he would move by May 1. That would set up the date on which the county could take possession of the house by a month.

In addition the county was also high bidder for the Edwards building, located next to the Court House on Evans St. The bid must remain open for a 10-day period which ends May 3.

Texas Girds For More Flood; 'Disaster' Label

DALLAS (AP)—Cities and towns in east and southeast Texas girded today for their worst flood threat in decades as rain-swollen rivers receded toward the Gulf.

Cities and towns along the rain-swollen Colorado, Brazos and Trinity also prepared for flood crests surging downstream.

summed camps for boys and girls, passed it again, and sent it to the House by special messenger.

The agreement was that the Soil Conservation district and county offices would shift upstairs and the ASC offices downstairs until such time as Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose's office is moved out of the old hospital building. At that time the Soil Conservation county office would move back to the main floor. The district office will remain on the second floor.

The Shreveport Weather Bureau said the Sabine crest at Gladewater would reach 45 feet by tomorrow, higher than any ever recorded. At Logansport, La., on the Texas border, the crest was predicted to hit 42 to 44 feet about a week from now.

"We are expecting a fairly good turnout," James said. "We are hoping 350 will vote in the election but of course we don't know."

Brides-Elect, Bride Honored At Lunch

Speaker Rowe Explains, Reads Modern Poetry

A luncheon honoring Miss Virginia Perkins, Miss Hannah Proctor, Miss Mary Ann Waldrop, and Mrs. Graham Flanagan Jr. was given Friday by Mrs. Sellers Crisp and Mrs. Owen Marshburn at Mrs. Marshburn's home, "Andalusia." The guests were greeted by the hostesses in the garden where an appetizer was served. Luncheon tables were placed throughout the living area.

The flower arrangements created by Mrs. Marshburn were notable. In the dining room the brides' table had a Chinese arrangement, a pale pink bowl with a white ivory fan interlaced with pink roses and valley lilies.

On the sideboard, a figurine, "The Goddess of Love," with a background of Beauty Bush flanked on either side by white jade Chinese vases, was a conversational piece.

Each of the honorees was given leis of white narcissus. A two-course luncheon was served.

Honor Society Names Local Women To Posts

MRS. LUTHER HERRING

MRS. HOWARD W. MIMS

At the 23rd State Convention of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society, an International Honor Society for women teachers, just concluded at Pinehurst, Mrs. Nettie B. Herring was elected president for a term of two years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mims of Greenville was elected Corresponding Secretary for the same term.

More than 1,500 members of Delta Kappa Gamma in North Carolina in 34 chapters were represented at this convention. There are chapters of this honor organization in every state in the United States, the District of Columbia, four provinces of Canada, Hawaii, and Alaska.

The membership of this Society consists of experienced teachers and distinguished women educators who have shown their values in the teaching and related education fields.

Mrs. Herring, a former librarian and teacher of mathematics and Latin, was connected with the Greenville High School for approximately 30 years.

Now she is devoting her time to the activities of homemaking and rigid efforts to improve her golf score.

When asked to say something about her philosophy of life, she replied, "There is happiness everywhere, if one would look for it; there are friends to be cherished in a spiritual fellowship; there are ambitions to be fulfilled in careers. All of these are important, but paramount in my philosophy is my love of my family and my consecration to the Divine Will."

Local Woman Recives Good Citizenship Award

Mrs. Wendell Jordan of Waycross, Ga., the former Miss Clara Crumpler, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cadmus Capehart of this city, was recently honored at Atlanta, Ga. at the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs as being named "The 100% Good Citizen of Georgia."

Mrs. Jordan was also accorded the honor of "Woman of the Year in Community Service" in the 8th District of Georgia.

In addition to being president of the Waycross Junior Woman's Club, Mrs. Jordan is also 8th District Junior Woman's Club president, Regent Lyman Hall Chapter Daughters of American Revolution, president of Grace Episcopal Church Auxiliary and Executive Secretary of Community Concert Series. She served as Ware County Chairman of Polio Drive and has been Mothers March Chairman of same for three previous years.

Mrs. Wendell Jordan

She is immediate past president of the Green Thumb Garden Club and is a past president of V.F.W. Auxiliary. She has received numerous local and state awards, among them the "E. Kay Williams Trophy" for community service in Waycross for three consecutive years and a citation from the Polio Foundation for outstanding work in the field of polio prevention.

Mrs. Jordan will be remembered here as one of the Crumpler twins who were drum majorettes of the high school band and were representatives of North Carolina to the Annual Twin Convention in Waco, Texas when they were attending East Carolina Teachers College in 1940. They were designated by the late Gov. Clyde R. Hoey to represent North Carolina.

Mrs. Jordan's twin sister, Mrs. James Martin Jr., resides in Norfolk, Va., and is also active in civic affairs. She also has been president of the Norfolk Junior Woman's Club.

Another 60 Days Can Hurt No One

Whether the ASC office for Pitt County remains in Greenville or moves to some other place in the county, State ASC officials can have no legitimate complaint about efforts made by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to find suitable quarters for the offices in Greenville.

The Commissioners have made every reasonable effort to rearrange the quarters of the ASC offices which are now located in the old hospital building. It must be realized, however, that the quarters of every other county, state and federal office now located in buildings owned by the county cannot be arbitrarily appropriated for use by the ASC. In spite of demands of the state ASC committee for better quarters immediately, some consideration must be given by the commissioners to the other agencies.

It is common knowledge that the Commissioners have been trying to acquire additional property adjacent to the court house to utilize as additional office space. They have purchased a house on Washington Street behind the jail. They have entered the highest bid for the Edwards Building next to the court house and are now waiting for their offer to be confirmed.

The County has told the state ASC committee that it will have better-arranged office space available for the Pitt office not later than July 1. The state committee, however, apparently insists that the space be made available not later than May 15. If the space is not available then, spokesmen for the state committee have said the offices will be moved elsewhere.

In spite of their previous diligent efforts, the Commissioners are still trying to make the necessary arrangements for the ASC offices by the May 15 deadline.

Because of the location of offices of other agricultural agencies in Greenville, it is obvious that the city is likewise the most suitable site for the ASC offices. The state ASC committee has expressed its preference for office space in Greenville although it has sought rent-free quarters in other towns of the county.

Under the existing office space situation so far as Pitt County is concerned, and in view of the diligent efforts which have been made by the County Commissioners to arrange better quarters for the local ASC offices, it is our opinion that the May 15 deadline set by the state ASC committee is unreasonable. The state ASC committee has shown little inclination to give proper consideration to the obstacles which the Commissioners have been seeking to overcome in rearranging office space allotments to meet ASC demands.

The Commissioners have gone out of their way in an effort to meet the demands of the state ASC committee for different office arrangements. The commissioners are still exploring every possibility in an effort to rearrange the local ASC offices by May 15. If, under these circumstances, the Commissioners cannot possibly make the necessary changes in office space allotments by May 15, the state ASC committee should defer its deadline rather than pulling up stakes here on May 16 and moving to another location in the county.

At the outside, another 60 days beyond the present deadline would afford the county ample time to rearrange office space to meet the ASC demands.

'One Cash Box' Idea Takes Hold

By LYNN NISBET
HIGHWAYS—The commission on reorganization of State government made numerous recommendations for centralizing control of State business in the Governor's office. It also suggested transfer of some authority from the constitutional Department of Agriculture to the Statutory Department of Public Health. The State Board of Health on its own motion proposed a complete revision of the health code, giving the board much wider powers than it has been accorded in the past.

A separate study commission recommended material changes in the organization of the highway commission, and still another group came up with proposal to separate prison administration from highways. The General Assembly enacted into law the bills introduced to effectuate these recommendations, but not until they had been so vitally amended as to materially change their effect. In every instance the changes made tend to strengthen control of the Governor over departmental activities.

Proposed reorganization of the highway set up had more advance publicity than any other matter anticipated for action by the 1957 Legislature. As finally passed the act accomplished very little except to reduce the number of commissioners from 14 to seven. The original bill was amended to provide for selection of commissioners from different areas, to assign specific responsibilities for certain territory to each commissioner, to place in the full commission rather than in the director final authority on policy matters. Many of the matters complained about in highway administration had been corrected under the existing laws prior to convening of the Legislature.

The new law does give the chief executive more control, in that seven men are easier to contact from the top and harder to contact from the level of general citizenship than the former 14 man group.

ONE BASKET—By all odds the most important and significant trend in the current Legislature is toward one cash box, into which all moneys collected in taxes and fees by the State of North Carolina would be put, and from which all moneys needed to render any kind of service to citizens would be drawn, without regard to source of the revenue or implied obligations to use it for any specific purpose.

That idea would destroy the integrity of the highway fund and the agriculture fund, and would involve revenue from fishing-hunting licenses, fees paid for license to operate business and professions, and many other special purpose accounts. It might involve constitutionality of certain inspection fees charged and jeopardize Federal aid in some instances, especially for highways.

There is precedent for both sides of the argument. There have been Federal court cases about inspection fees charged by the Department of Agriculture. Several of the cases were compromised by agreement that the revenue derived from fees would be used exclusively for agricultural purposes, even if not limited strictly to the cost of inspection.

Precedent on the other side was set when the agriculture fund was called upon to pay for Patterson Hall at State College and the agricultural building in downtown Raleigh, both of which are used extensively for non-agricultural purposes. Some six years ago Commissioner L.Y. Ballentine, recognizing that a great deal of the activities of his department were non-agricultural, obtained practical de-segregation of the special agriculture fund and put the whole departmental budget in one pot, with general fund allocations making up what ever the special fund could not pay.

Further integration of funds came when the highway fund was called upon to find activities of the highway patrol, the paroles and probation commissions and the entire prison deficit—regardless of direct affiliation with highway activities.

PRISONS—The one fund idea was most clearly emphasized in the recent Senate battle over the bill separating prison control from the highway department. The late Governor Umstead sponsored separation on the theory prisons should be an obligation of all the taxpayers, not a special class of automobile operators. Governor Hodges repeatedly stated that same concept at news conferences and in public speeches.

In his second budget message to the General Assembly he switched positions and said prison control should be divorced, but prison financing should remain in the highway fund. When Sen. C.V. Henkel of Iredell sought—and won by narrow margin—provision in the prison bill that no part of the cost should be charged to the general fund, the administration forces vigorously objected.

Since the Governor only a few days before had said the expenses should be borne by the highway fund, why did his group oppose limiting support to that fund, unless there was in the background the idea that come next session there won't be anything but one general fund?

The general fund now has a surplus of some $65 million, the highway fund has a surplus of some $30 million. The general fund has to provide for courts, schools, welfare, et cetera. The highway fund, traditionally at least, has only to provide roads. The obvious trend is to consider an overall "surplus" of almost $100 million, and to let the roads wait while other obligations are cared for.

DIVERSION—Several states have constitutional prohibition against diversion or mingling of highway revenue with other funds. North Carolina does not except for one cent a gallon of gasoline tax, amounting to about $10 million a year, which is earmarked to retire the $200 million second-ard road bonds. Back in 1949 Governor Kerr Scott bitterly fought the idea of incorporating the tax levy in the secondary bond election program. He lost that fight and it now appears that the one cent dedicated to secondary road bond retirement is the only money which cannot be diverted.

Two Sides To This Coin

So it's been rather warm? So the weather has been good for fishing, sunbathing, freedom from constricting attire, boating, golf, swimming, croquet and riding around in a convertible with the top down?

Well there's another side to it. Sure. The mercury has been playing around the 90 mark; no rain; we haven't seen a spring like this since Hector was a pup. But some of our tobacco farmers are hurting. . . and here's why: Some . . . a handful . . . began their transplanting before Easter; most of them waited for after Easter. Last week saw a lot of them pulling plants and putting them in their fields. It was hot. Hotter than many of them liked.

Early this spring there was a lot of rain. Now, when it was needed, with new plants in the ground, there was no rain. The soil in those broad level fields is dry.

One hard-worker I know finished planting his 11-acre allotment Saturday. As tobacco acreage goes, it isn't so much, but before the reduced quotas began hitting him he had quite a lot of land devoted to tobacco. But, to go on:

His eleven acres had been planted by Saturday, and already he was grimly facing up to the probability he would have to replant seven of those acres. The plants that had been set out first were dying. A few more days of no rain, and he'd have the whole job to do over again.

I suspect that story is being repeated on farm after farm over Pitt County; all over Eastern Carolina, for that matter.

The lack of rain at just the right time can spell a lot of extra work for a man who is growing tobacco. Effectiveness of last evening's showers remains a question mark.

So if you (and I) are enjoying this early taste of summer, it's well to bear in mind that the coin has two sides.

You could call this section "The Comet I didn't See."

I heard first about our high-flying visitor Thursday morn from one of the paper's linotype operators, and promptly forgot about it in the rush of everyday affairs. He saw it again that night, and asked me Friday if I had.

There was the usual mental note (futile, in my case) to look that night.

Then Saturday we carried a comment on the comet in our Public Forum. That night I looked. . . but I remembered too late; or maybe it wasn't flying that night. More likely, our betailed visitor had passed over the horizon.

Sunday night there was a slight haze in the sky, and I couldn't see it. Monday night I was busy.

Don't suppose that comet will be with us forever, and it would have been something to marvel at.

All I know about comets: Years ago I remember reading that comets didn't necessarily drag a tail. It (the tail) could extend in any direction from the moving mass. Seems the comet's tail could be pointed in any direction by sunlight.

Anyway, that's the way I recall it; and if things have changed since I read that, then blame it on the changing times. One can't keep up with everything, including comets, with so many other day-by-day developments.

Other Editors Saying --- Soliloquy On The Mule

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
Every year or so for a long, long time, newspapers in the South have printed and reprinted the soliloquy on the mule. You know how it goes. How the farmer compares his lot with that of the mule.

O.V. McGee got George Beasley to reprint it in the Monroe Journal the other day. It is a sparkling piece, but it is out of date now. It is outmoded because the mule is rapidly becoming extinct and is no longer in general use. The piece also speaks of the farm family toiling in cotton. That is about gone in North Carolina also.

Somebody should rewrite this soliloquy and base it on a tractor instead of a mule.

Some of you readers read the mule piece and then see if you can change it so as to modernize it and make it fit the farm picture of today. Here is the mule piece.

"Bill, you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man, made in the image of God. Yet, here we are hitched up together year in and year out. I wonder if I work for you, Verily I think it is a partnership between a mule and a fool, for I surely work as hard as you do, or harder."

"When plowing we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I do it on two. I therefore do twice as much work per leg as you do."

"Soon we'll be preparing the corn crop. When the crop is harvested I will give one-third to the landlord for being so kind as to let me use this one speck of God's universe. One third goes to you, and the balance is mine."

You consume all your portion with the exception of the cobs, while I divide mine among seven children, six hens, two ducks and a banker.

"If we both need shoes you get 'em. Bill, you are getting the best of me; a mule, the son of a jackass, to swindle a man—the lord of creation, out of his substance!"

"You only help plow the land and cultivate it, and I alone must cut, shock and husk the corn while you look over the pasture fence and hee-haw at me."

"All fall and most of the winter the whole family from granny to the baby picks cotton to help raise money to pay taxes and to buy new harness and pay interest on you. And what do you care about the mortgages? Not a hoot, you ornery cuss. I even have to do the worrying about the mortgage on your tough, ungrateful hide."

"The only time I am better off than you is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. After the election I realize that I was fully as great a jackass as your pappy. Verily, I am prone to wonder if politics was made for jackasses, or to make jackasses out of men."

"And that ain't all, Bill. When you are dead that is supposed to be the last of you. But me: The parson says that when I die I go to hell forever unless I do just as he says. And the most of what he says keeps me from getting any kick out of life."

"I tell you, Willyum, considering these things how can you keep a straight face and look so dumb and solemn?"

Psychology And Sale Technique

By ELMER ROESSNER
A book published today may cause a bit of stir in and out of business. It is Vance Packard's "The Hidden Persuaders." It shows how merchandisers use psychological tools, symbols and devices to make you, and you buy things you might not otherwise want.

Mr. Packard offers little that is sensationally new, but he has dredged up and put together a vast amount of facts and fancies previously familiar only to psychologists, readers of the advertising magazines and inmates of advertising agencies.

For example: Most men are attracted to convertibles because they suggest a mistress but they buy sedans because they know they are stuck with their wives; that's why auto agencies display convertibles in front windows, but try to sell hard-tops. . . . Men smoke cigars because it reminds them of childhood pleasures of having something in their mouths. Men who chew their cigar ends were mail-billers. . . . Fleischmann's Gin rounded the corners of its labels on a psychologist's advice that this would make the label more feminine and appeal to women.

FOOLED BY COLOR
In a test, a detergent manufacturer packaged its product in three differently colored boxes. Women who used it from yellow boxes said the detergent was too strong; those who used it from blue boxes and it left their clothes dirty; those who used it from blue-and-yellow boxes said it was wonderful. . . . An agency asked psychologists to find out why heavy drinkers drink — an important question because 85 per cent of the white key is consumed by 22 per cent of the drinkers. They found heavy drinkers undergo changes in personality that "would make your hair stand on end." A psychologist concluded "a man wouldn't drink unless he got a change in personality that was satisfying to him." Sales of a brand of margarine increased every time the four-leaf clover on the package was made larger. A psychologist concluded that "baking a cake traditionally is acting out the birth of a child," hence makers of cake-mixes must allow the housewife some creative part, such as stirring in milk or eggs. . . . On the other hand, when Jell-O depicted elaborate desserts in ads, sales did not rise because housewives were afraid they could not duplicate them. Mr. Packard spells Jell-O with a small "o." Probably frightened by a balloon when a small child.

SYMBOLISM IN PRODUCTS
Certain products are symbolic of various traits. Some cigarettes are considered masculine; some autos sophisticated, responsible, etc. Mr. Packard reports a conversation with two psychologists. One said, "Now take the man who drives a Studebaker smokes Old Golds, uses cream-based hair bil, an electric shaver, carries a Parker 51 fountain pen. Obviously he's a salesman, an active man, aggressive in face-to-face situations and wants to make a good impression. Probably he was quite a romantic type in his youth." The other added, "Also, you'll find he is wearing loud shorts."

These discoveries grow from deeper probing into the psyche of the consumers, from discovering the hidden complexes that make them do what they do. The least reliable guide to why people do things is the answer they give themselves, the psychologists are quoted as believing. The discoveries are being used to influence voters, control public opinion, orderly and balanced groups.

While Mr. Packard does not go that far, it would seem that when enough psychology is understood it will be possible to color package and advertise a product — any product, maybe just a bag of rocks — so that no conscious person can refuse to buy it. Or to so present a candidate so that he will win any election unanimously. The book, incidentally, is by David McKay Co., New York, at $4.

Genius Is Won Over

By W. G. ROGERS
NEW YORK, (AP) — You are not allowed to make a film of me — so declared Albert Schweitzer to a lot of people, in particular Jerome Hill and his photographer associate Erica Anderson.

Well, you may make one provided it is not shown during my lifetime — that was the next position taken by Schweitzer — organist, preacher and doctor, scholar in Jesus, in Bach and in Goethe, and humanitarian who has given half his 80 years to tending to the sick blacks of Lambarene, Africa.

Finally the picture was finished, by Hill and Anderson, and run off for him. It runs one hour and 20 minutes in the American and French version, and two hours in the German. It was the two-hour show Schweitzer saw. And what was his response?

"I'd just as soon have it long-er."

So Hill and Anderson's severest critic was won over before the film was ever shown to the public, which has seen it here and in Boston and is about to see it in other cities across the country.

The film has been praised not only for its colorful scenes of the Alsatian hills and tiny tidy villages planted at the foot of them, where Schweitzer grew up, not only for the exotic scenes of Africa, but also for Schweitzer's face: the alive eyes, the mussed hair, the ill-kempt mustache, the ruddy tropical complexion — probably the most photogenic features you can find today in the two fields of the humanities and the arts.

Hill, here in New York for the premiere, said Schweitzer's objections were broken down gradually by various events, partly by seeing some other work done by Hill in a straightforward documentary fashion and by hearing a play-back of some of his, Schweitzer's, performances at the organ in the church of his native Gunsbach and nearby Colmar.

It was a statue in Colmar's public square, by Bartholdi of Statue of Liberty fame, which helped at the start to interest Schweitzer in Africa. It commemorated a Colmar native, Admiral Bruat, commander of the French fleet in the Crimea, and on the base was a giant figure of a Negro. For some reason in World War I, when Gungsbach was right at the front lines, Germans systematically smashed the entire statue, but a man who ran a little chocolate shop overlooking the site managed to save the Negro's head. Schweitzer, returning after the armistice, had a plaster cast made of it.

He had that black in mind, and also the memory of his preacher father's missionary sermons, when he decided at 30 to become a doctor and go to Africa. "When we were getting along toward the end of the filming," said Hill, "he really got interested, took over some of the direction, told his neighbors in Alsace where to stand, when to speak and when not to, and ordered the Africans around to ease the task of the cameras as much as possible."

But in the first years — the project was begun in 1951 — even members of the family could not be told there was a film in the making; Mme. Schweitzer thought the camera aimed at her was taking still pictures. The only one in on the secret was Schweitzer's sister.

Schweitzer is a name with many connections. His brother is married to the sister of conductor Charles Bunch of the Boston Symphony. His great nephew, or great great nephew, whom he was right about in a baby carriage, is writer Jean-Paul Sartre. His great uncle was the American Socialist Eugene V. Debs — and one of the still pictures borrowed from the family album to insert in the movie was taken, said Hill, to send to Debs in this country.

The voices of Fredric March and Burgess Meredith are heard in the film — Schweitzer speaks in the French and German versions; there is music by Alec Wilder conducted by Leon Barzin.

Penalty For Retaining Stassen

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON President Eisenhower is now paying the penalty for retaining Harold E. Stassen in the important role of disarmament adviser and negotiator. In view of the Minnesota's demonstration of lack of judgment in his anti-Nixon campaign, his optimistic reports on a more co-operative Russian attitude are not taken too seriously at Washington. Skepticism still prevails at the State Department, at the Pentagon and at Capitol Hill.

Nor did President Eisenhower or Secretary Dulles accept Stassen's report of Russian reformation at face value. After only a one-hour talk with Ike and Dulles, he returned to London negotiations with orders to propound a series of sharper questions to Valerian A. Zorin, Moscow's delegate to the United Nations Disarmament Subcommittee.

Although Stassen's authority is extremely limited, Dulles explained that Russian disarmament offers, which refer chiefly to nuclear tests and weapons, must be weighed in the light of other and contradictory Kremlin policies. He had in mind the Soviet's continued subjugation of the satellites, especially East Germany, and its pernicious intrigues in Jordan, Egypt and the Middle East generally.

CAPITOL HILL SKEPTICISM
ABOUT STASSEN In short, Ike and Dulles sent Stassen back to London as a less optimistic but more realistic diplomatic trader. But he must still overcome Capitol Hill skepticism as to his capabilities, based largely on the Nixon fiasco, and suspicion of Russia's ulterior motives in its reform act.

Ironically, a Stassen superior at State in the current approach to the disarmament problem is the man he sought to substitute for Nixon on the 1956 ticket—Undersecretary of State Christian

A. Herter. As an original architect of the Marshall Plan, Herter favors "liberation and encirclement" to "appeasement" of the Soviet.

MOSCOW'S DECEIT, TREACHERY Russia's new offers of peace and disarmament, in Washington's official opinion, are not attributed to any change of heart or strategy at Moscow. They are regarded as another effort to deceive and disunite the Western Alliance, and to achieve propaganda gains in the turbulent Middle East. They are needed to offset memories of the Hungarian massacres.

On his recent visit here, Stassen was reminded that, while Khrushchev and ulganin talked and promised friendship to Ike at the 1955 Summit Conference at Geneva, they were then secretly shipping arms to Egypt. And now, while giving encouragement to Stassen, they are trying to topple the pro-West regime of King Hussein in Jordan. WARNING ON SOVIET Without firm demonstrations of Russian good will in other places than the London Disarmament Conference, American concessions on nuclear weapons have become a military and political impossibility within the last few weeks, as Stassen has been warned.

For one thing, our principal European Allies—Britain, France and Germany—plan to reduce present or proposed forces on land, sea and air by one-half. During their change-over to a push-button defense, they have proclaimed openly that the "only protection for the West will be the nuclear capacity of the United States."

Indeed, our strength will be much more than mere "protection." It will be the only "deterrent" to a major attack by Russia, which is the principal reason for what Stassen describes as "encouraging overtures."

Concert Climaxes Art Festival

By MRS. ELEANOR TOLL
The closing event of the Greenville Fine Arts Festival was the recital given on Sunday afternoon by two talented young pianists, William Bynum Jr. of New Bern and Josef Dunn of Pinetops. Both of these pianists are winners of the Rennie Williamson Scholarship, presented by the Northeast District of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

Mr. Bynum is a pupil of Mr. George Perry and Mr. Dunn of Dr. Robert Carter. Mr. Perry and Dr. Carter are both members of the music faculty of East Carolina College.

Mr. Bynum opened the program with the French Suite No. 1, by Bach. He showed his ability to handle a melodic line and an understanding approach to the classical school of piano literature. Mr. Bynum's second group of numbers consisted of the Schubert Impromptu, Opus 142 No. 2, and two Ravel numbers, Piece en forme de habanera, and La vallee des cloches.

It was in the Ravel numbers that Mr. Bynum did some of his best piano playing of the afternoon. In both numbers he showed his ability at interpreting impressionistic music by being able to create and sustain a mood or impression by his control of rhythm and melody.

Mr. Dunn was presented in the second half of the program. His numbers consisted of selections from the works of Kabalevsky, Brahms, Faure, Carre, and Rachmaninoff. Mr. Dunn is a most proficient pianist. He plays with accuracy of notes and rhythm, and above all in a most musical approach and understanding of the composition he is performing.

The Kabalevsky Sonata, No. 3, was played with a bravura style and yet the melodic passages were done in a very artistic way. The two Brahms Capriccios, Opus 116, Nos. 1 and 3, were done in a good style for a young pianist, and the Impromptu, No. 1, by Faure, fared well. It was in the last two numbers, Passing Clouds by Carre and Elegie, by Rachmaninoff, that Mr. Dunn demonstrated some of his most beautiful piano playing of the afternoon.

His depth of tone and control of the melodic line was outstanding for a young pianist. He showed control of the brilliant passages in both numbers by speed, accuracy and a real concert pianist tone.

The teachers of both of these young men are to be congratulated for the artistic manner in which both Mr. Bynum and Mr. Dunn performed, and much success is wished to both of the performers.

30 Years Ago Today

April 30, 1927

At the regular meeting of the Rotary Club last evening the finance committee reported that all necessary monies to pay off the indebtedness of the club building was now in hand and that final payment would be made today. The event will be celebrated at the next meeting with a bonfire of all notes, bonds and mortgages involved in the erection of the building. One of the main numbers of the entertainment program was a solo by Judson Blount. In the midst of the meeting a cheer for the Rotary Club emanated from the reception room. This was followed by the entry into the dining hall of about 30 members of the Boy Scout organization of Greenville. Through their spokesmen, Charles Whedbee and Edward Ferguson, the scouts appealed to members of the club to furnish them leaders to help carry on scout work among the boys in the city.

Encountered One Big City Hazard

RALEIGH, N. C. — Eighteen-year-old Judith Gay of Youngsville came here to be interviewed for a state job—and the roof almost fell on her.

As she hurried along a midtown street during a sudden thunderstorm, lightning hit a building and dislodged its cornice. A stone block weighing hundreds of pounds fell on the sidewalk near her.

Frightened, she ran back to the building where she had been interviewed. She was given aspirin and a sniff of ammonia before someone noticed that the shattered stone had scratched her big toe.

After medical aid, state employes found her a ride home, away from city hazards.

Top TV Coverage For Senate Rackets Probe

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Newspapermen frequently upbraid television for failure to give extensive coverage to important news. Here at last is an opportunity to praise a work of fine initiative in TV reporting which should serve as a model.

The biggest news in Scranton, Pa., this past fortnight has been the Senate Rackets Committee hearings on union violence there. Thanks to the efforts of station WDAU-TV, an affiliate of CBS, Scranton television viewers should be thoroughly informed on the hearings.

On April 16, 17 and 18 station WDAU-TV presented 14,500 feet of sound film of the Washington hearings during eight hours of pre-empted commercial program time. In other words, the station felt it was more important that its viewers be well informed on a vital local matter than that the station should harvest the financial returns of that time from advertisers.

Just as long as the Senate committee focuses on Scranton WDAU-TV will continue to perform the same complete coverage, says station general manager Vance Eckersley.

It was a big project for a single television station, though it did have the hearty cooperation of the CBS news department in Washington. Here is how it worked under the direction of the station's news director, Tom Powell, with the cooperation of network Washington news chiefs:

- A WDAU courier was kept busy hurrying the rolls of film to the airport, where each of the five regular daily flights from Washington to Scranton were utilized to speed the reels to their destinations. At Scranton airport another courier rushed the film to the news room.
- To handle the extensive footage two special daily shows were arranged—both in commercial time. The first was at 6:30 p. m. in the evening when there was a half-hour program of the day's highlights, at 11:30 p. m. commercial time of two hours was pre-empted to run the entire day's hearings. Throughout the day there were special bulletins and regular news telecasts.

To The Taxpayers of Greenville:

Dear Friends:

I have lived in Greenville for 37 years and I believe I can be of great help to you, the taxpayers.

When I came to Greenville it was a small town. For the last 15 years it has grown to be a large city, and naturally being in the plumbing business my business has grown with it. I am familiar with all the utilities, water sewer and gas lines; also the new annexes and streets. I am an owner of the Electric Suppliers which is managed by my son-in-law, Frank Strawn, and I am a plumbing and heating contractor and work around 12 hours every day. I would say that I am a successful business man which both of our local banks will acknowledge. I would say that a large majority of the taxpayers of Greenville know me and if you don't, ask your next door neighbor or your pastor or call your banker, he will know me. Having been here for 37 years and having grown with the city, I feel from the experience I have had, that I should offer my services to the taxpayers. My work is spread all over town, and having to look after my work naturally makes it easy for me to see just what is going on, and I see so many things that should be done for you, the taxpayer.

I am an active member of the Memorial Baptist Church and I am on the Board of Trustees of Chowan College, a Mason and a Shriner, having both Scottish Rite and York Rite ways.

I have always been conservative, but I believe in having everything you need if you are able. It has always been my motto to give as much for just as little as possible. So I am asking you, the taxpayer, when you go to the polls to vote for 5 good business men, to give me your support. If I am elected, I will do everything in my power to give the taxpayer full value for every tax dollar you pay.

Be sure you are registered and vote in the city election to be held on May 7th. Thank you very much.

East Carolina Netters Win Conference Crown

East Carolina won the North State Conference yesterday afternoon by whipping the Guilford tennis team, 6-1, at College Courts.

The Pirates' victory yesterday rounded out their conference mark at 5-0. They have two loop matches remaining, which could have no bearing on their position.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:00, the Cherry Point Marines will invade the College Courts for a non-conference tilt. Then, on Thursday, the Bucs will again play host to Atlantic Christian College.

League Champs

Coach Ray Martinez' group has two remaining North State tilts with High Point on their 1957 schedule. The Bucs' victory yesterday afternoon clinched the league title regardless of how the High Point matches turn out. But should ECC lose both tilts, Guilford could conceivably tie for the crown.

This year's championship marks the second time in two years that ECC has taken the crown. Last year, the Pirates shared a three-way title with Guilford and High Point.

Martinez praised his crew yesterday on their play against Guilford, but warned that the season is still not over.

All But One

East Carolina's outfit moved through yesterday's events, losing only one match out of seven. James Blake, a senior, lost a singles contest to Guilford's Hayworth, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2. Winning singles for ECC were Maurice Everett, John Savage, Billy Hollowell, Mike Katsias, and James Daughtridge.

The doubles combination of Everett and Savage topped Guilford's championship duo of Atlas and Washburn, 6-0, 7-5, for the Quakers' first loss in 29 matches. Atlas and Washburn are the defending North State titlists.

The other Pirate duo victory came when Mike Katsias and Lawrence Brown defeated Nixon and Trivette.

N.C. State Withdraws

Due to "conflicting difficulties," North Carolina State's tennis team withdrew from a previously scheduled match with the Bucs here, this Saturday. ECC will play the Wolfpack 7-1 at Raleigh earlier.

Besides East Carolina's five conference wins this year, they have posted wins over Wake Forest (2), N. C. State, Stetson University, College of Charleston, Jacksonville Naval Base. The only losses sustained by ECC this season have been to Kalamazoo, and the Citadel (2).

Next week the Pirates will journey to the North State Conference meet. Maurice Everett, the defending singles champion, will try again for that title. Billy Hollowell will also represent the school in that bracket. John Savage and either James Blake or John West will wear the Pirate colors in doubles competition.

Buc Nine Plays Bulldogs Today

East Carolina's baseball team met Atlantic Christian this afternoon at College Field, in a regular North State Conference tilt.

The Bucs, pacing the league with an 8-2 record, could not afford to lose this game or any of their other three remaining conference contests, if they are to clinch the North State championship for the third season in a row.

Expected to start for ECC today was Charlie Russell, an All-State hurler. Russell paced the Pirates to their two previous North State crowns, winning 10 consecutive contests in two years, without a defeat. He is a junior.

The other end of the Pirate battery was expected to be Tink Bowler. Dean Robbins, a freshman who is batting .400, was to start at first base. Second base was to be manned by Gary Treon, who is hitting well over .300. Jerry Stewart, a two-year veteran, was to start at shortstop. Third baseman Bucky Reep, also a two-year man, was also slated to start.

In the outfield, ECC starters were to be Tommy Nance, a regular freshman catcher who has been shifted to the outfield to give his big bat a regular slot in the lineup; Joel Long, who is batting .385 and leading the team in homers with three; and Berney Stevens, last year's leading slugger with a .391 mark.

After today's contest, ECC will battle Catawba Friday afternoon in another important conference game, then will tangle with North Carolina State in the first night game in Greenville since over seven years ago.

Final Trials By Little League

Greenville Recreation Department officials announced today that this week is the final week of tryouts for all boys interested in playing Little League ball this summer.

The trials began last week and about 150 boys have been working out in the Elm Street baseball park, according to the officials. Tryouts are held from 3:00 to 5:00 each day for boys between the ages of eight and 11.

Officials said that "not many boys in the 11-12 age bracket have been showing up and there is plenty of room for more. There is a good chance for any boys of that age to gain positions on Little League teams this summer if they are interested—and if they show up for the drills."

Sugar Ray Reminds Title Bout May Not Go Route; His Hopes Are High

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP)—"Why go 15 rounds if you only have to go one?"

Sugar Ray Robinson authored this pearl of wisdom yesterday in a press interview following his final three-round boxing drill for tomorrow night's title rematch with middleweight champion Gene Fullmer.

Attendance Up In Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league baseball attendance is up 7 per cent, an Associated Press survey revealed today.

The National League shows a gain of 61,632 over 1956 and the American 20,868 for an over-all increase of 85,500.

The world champion New York Yankees head both circuits. They attracted 129,736 customers for five home dates, 39,197 ahead of last year.

The Milwaukee Braves top the National League with 127,064, a hike of 19,191 over 1956. However, Milwaukee is moving behind its 1954 figure when it set the league mark and pulled 151,607 paid through the gates after six games.

Only five teams show deficits. Detroit Tigers (21,609), St. Louis Cards (19,035), Kansas City A's (10,373), New York Giants (6,803) and Chicago White Sox (2,916).

Other sizable increases are being recorded by the Pittsburgh Pirates (25,637), Cincinnati Redlegs (22,291) and Philadelphia Phillies (12,160).

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who have been making threatening gestures in the direction of Los Angeles, are up 1,636. They have drawn 75,547 customers to Ebbets Field compared with 73,921 in five home dates a year ago.

Washington, which also considered moving its franchise last winter, is another team with attendance on the upswing. The Senators have played before 75,292 home fans and they had 69,780 in 1956.

The largest gate this year was 41,506 in the Braves' first home game April 18.

GHS Baseballers, Track Team Will See Action

Greenville high school's baseball team traveled to Washington this afternoon for a Northeastern Conference game—while the Phantom track team was in preparation for the NEAC track meet, which will be held here Thursday afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium.

For the Green baseballers, the Washington game will be their sixth match of the season. They have won four and lost two thus far. In an earlier game, GHS trounced the Pam-Pack 5-2 at Greenville.

Expected to start on the mound for the Phants will be either Charlie Staton or Hudson Miller. Both are righthanders.

Coach Guy Lewis' tracksters have been working out for over two weeks now for the big Northeastern Conference track meet, which is scheduled to take place here Thursday. The meet will be an all-day affair, including each and every team in the Northeastern Conference. Represented will be Kingston, New Bern, Washington, Roanoke Rapids, Elizabeth City, Jacksonville and Greenville.

The Green cindermen are the defending champions, having copied the 1956 title by a landslide. Several of the boys responsible for winning the title last year are back again to boost the Phantom hopes for 1957.

Expected to pace the G-Men will be Billy Sermons, Robert Howell, Bill Clapp, Edwin Wilkerson, Roy Martin, Barney Barrett, Klutz Fisher, Charles Ross, Burt Aycock, Sam Perkins, Billy Brown, Bob Bilbro, Steve Noble, John Boyd, Billy Crenshaw, John Wesley Hudson and Ralph Sullivan.

Trials are supposed to get underway at about 10:00 Thursday morning.

pressed. They still remembered his failure to cope with the sturdy bully boy from West Jordan, Utah in their Jan. 2 match at Madison Square Garden.

Reports persisted that Robinson plans to retire from the ring if he fails to regain the title.

As Robinson finished his pre-fight work, the odds reportedly dipped from 3 to 1 favoring Fullmer to about 2 to 1.

Fullmer, who ended his training with a rugged five-round drill Saturday, was hidden away at a country club, waiting for time to go into town for Wednesday's noon weigh-in.

"In 15 rounds I got a pretty good idea of what he has to offer," said Fullmer. "But then you never know what the other fellow will do in the ring. I've licked him once, and with faith in the Lord, I'll lick him again."

The Chicago branch of the International Boxing Club still was waiting for the predicted last minute ticket rush at Chicago Stadium. With the house scaled to a $25 top, the box office reported an advance sale of $97,000. A gate of $150,000 was expected although Jim Norris, IBC president, still talked of a crowd of 14,000 and receipts of $175,000. Their Jan. 2 bout drew 18,134 and a gate of $184,645.

The bout will be televised and broadcast nationally ABC 9 p.m. EST. Chicago and a 150-mile surrounding area will be blacked out on TV.

With $100,000 for TV rights and the money from the gate, Fullmer and Robinson each should get about $65,000. They are signed to contracts calling for 30 per cent each.

The Illinois Athletic Commission will instruct the referee who will work the 15-round match to call fouls for any signs of rabbit punching or holding in a clinch. As the bout will be scored on the "five-point must" system, a foul

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Gunfire shattered the quiet along a country road near here yesterday and killed two bandit officers said were plotting to grab an air base payroll today.

Gene Paul Norris, 35, an Oklahoma and Texas bandit known for a quick smile and a ready trigger, and William Carl Humphrey, 32, were felled by officers' bullets along the banks of rain-swollen Walnut Creek near Springtown, Parker County, northwest of here.

Texas Ranger Jay Banks said Norris and Humphrey planned today to kidnap a Carswell Air Force Base employe and a child of the employe and hold them as hostages. They then planned, Banks said, to use the employe's car during the holdup. The payroll at the base would run about $255,000.

The two men were being sought yesterday when they were spotted by Banks, Police Chief Cato Hightower, Sheriff Harlon Wright, Ranger Capt. Johnny Klevenhagen and Detective Capt. O. R. Brown near Lake Worth.

"We tried to stop them and they fired a shot," Banks said. The high-speed chase roared up a highway for several miles. Then the ex-convicts' auto took to a winding, muddy country road through farmland.

About five miles from the highway the bandits' auto skidded off the road and crashed. Both men spilled out of the car as Banks fought his auto to a stop.

"Then the shooting began," Banks said. "One of them, I don't remember which one, had a pistol. A shotgun came out of the car with them. They fired at us. We all came out shooting," he said. "They broke for the creek."

No Steaks For Mournful Minnie

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Mournful Minnie the Bloodhound won't get her steak dinner, but she had three grateful friends.

Minnie tracked down an alleged peeping tom in nearby Johnston County recently. Three witnesses, paid $1.60 each for appearing at the subsequent trial, forwarded their checks to State Prison officials. They thought Minnie should be rewarded with some steak for her detective work.

Robert A. Allen, director of prison field operations, said the checks—already returned once—will go back again to the senders. Meanwhile Minnie is doing well on plain dog food.

Late Filers

GRIFTON — Four candidates filed for the Board of Aldermen Saturday beating the deadline by only hours after Grifton experienced a period of very little activity on its political front for more than a month.

Town Clerk Mrs. M. C. Harris stated this morning that the four were: W. D. Casey Jr., co-owner of a heating and plumbing firm; R. L. "Chico" Matthews, DuPont employee; Charles E. Rose, also an employe of the Kinston DuPont plant; and Dr. B. C. Troutman, an associate at the Grifton Clinic. Casey is presently serving on the Board. W. L. Mahler also serving on the current Board did not file for re-election.

Judge E. B. McCotter of the Grifton Recorders Court is unopposed for re-election. There is a two-way race for Mayor between the present Mayor W. H. Gower and Heber Wade, a Grifton truck line owner who is making his second bid for the mayor's seat.

I don't know who hit which one," Norris' tattered body splashed into the muddy river. Humphrey, covered with blood and slime from the creek bed, fell about 50 yards away.

Banks said the gunfight climaxed several days of investigation by local law enforcement agencies and the FBI. He said other men believed involved in the robbery plan were sought.

Norris was the brother of Thomas Nathan (Pete) Norris, Public Enemy No. 1 before being sent to Alcatraz. Gene Paul has a record of at least six convictions.

Humphrey, 32, born in Belton, Tex., has a long record of forgery.

Winterville Girl Is Winner Of Annual Award

WINTERVILLE—Helen Barrett, valedictorian of the graduating class at Robinson High School, has been given the Annual Award of The Reader's Digest Association for students who by their successful school work give promise of attaining leadership in the community. It was announced today by J. W. Maye, principal.

The award to Miss Barrett, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Barrett of Winterville, was made possible through the cooperation of Principal Maye and his teaching staff. They selected Miss Barrett to receive the award, designed to stimulate scholarship, citizenship, and continued contact with good reading after graduation.

Beans Remain In 'Banquet' Ration

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The armed forces apparently are toying with the idea of feeding combat troops in any future war banquet style.

On display here at a materials handling exposition is a packaged dinner that will serve 25. The Navy says proposed menus include filet mignon, tasty chops and succulent fowl.

The package also includes table settings for 25. But observers noted that the sample main course on display is that old standby—chile and beans.

Rae Foley's new mystery novel RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 9

Nora swerved to avoid a squirrel that raced madly across the road, watched a fat woodchuck dart into its burrow, saw the trees, red and yellow and mahogany, in their fantastic brilliance.

The world was too beautiful to leave and she was young and in love. She didn't want to die. She wanted to marry Stuart and be happy. She jammed her foot down on the gas and the car leaped ahead. There was a glitter by the roadside. Too late she realized that it was broken bottles. There was a loud explosion and the wheel was almost wrenched out of her hands. The right front tire had blown out. Nora opened the door and went around to inspect the damage. She had never changed a tire in her life but apparently she would have to change one now. She took the instruction book out of the glove compartment and read it carefully twice.

Someone was walking through the woods whistling a tune. In a moment Frank's tutor came in sight among the trees, wearing dark slacks and a crimson pullover, dark head bare, the hard planes of his face less forbidding than they had appeared last night. There were few people whom Nora would not have preferred to see but she welcomed Tom Jones with a sigh of relief.

He came forward, still whistling, nodded in reply to her "Good morning," and looked at the flat tire. "Got a spare?"

"Of course. I was just reading the directions for changing it."

He took her keys and unlocked the luggage compartment. He released the spare, rolled it out of the car, jacked up the front wheel and squatted down to remove it.

"I'm sorry about last night," Nora said diffidently. "Screaming at you like that. I don't know what made me do it—it's not like me. Now they'll think I imagined the—thing last night."

He tightened the bolts, stood up, took the jack apart. "What happened last night?"

"Someone tried to smother me with my pillow. All that stopped him was that he knocked something over and made a noise that woke my nurse. She heard me struggle and thought I'd been dreaming."

He was silent for a moment and then he remarked, "Curious woman, your nurse."

"Curious in what way?"

"Not peculiar, just inquisitive."

She hung around the lobby to get an earful while Black was holding forth last night. Hightailed it for the stairs when you went out to get that picture." He slammed the trunk shut. "There you are, right as rain. Everything under control."

"I'm terribly grateful."

He stood with his hands in his pockets looked at her. He said, almost angrily, "Just for the record, I didn't try to kill you last night."

"No, I—no, of course not. Can I give you a lift?"

"Thanks." He got in beside her and she started the motor.

She had an impression that he was laughing at her and wished she hadn't offered him a lift. She made no effort to talk and he seemed content to lean back in the seat, relaxed, very much at ease. Little by little, her own tension faded as she found herself considering the man at her side. Not the sort of tutor she had ever encountered before.

"What on earth," she asked at last, "does Frank want tutoring in?"

Tom grinned at her. "My Deming is preparing him for the full life."

"What is that suppose to mean?"

"We are arranging to fill every hour with activity, nicely balanced between earning and learning. So if the day should come with nothing planned and not even three bridge players available—"

"Horrible," Nora agreed. "A fate worse than death." She shivered.

The tutor, who had appeared to be intent on the foliage, said, "Hey, there, what's wrong?"

"I was just thinking how easily we say things like that: a fate worse than death, or I'd rather die first. But I want to live!"

"It's my guess that you haven't even started yet."

"Do you think I'll have the chance?"

He turned and surveyed her coolly. "You had better ask yourself that." He leaned back, eyes faintly mocking, one hand holding a chain on which the bright medal swayed to and fro in the sunlight. Her eyes followed it like a clock pendulum.

He put out his hand and righted the wheel. "Look where you're going! Wake up, Nora!"

"Everyone tells me that," she said dully.

"Poor Nora," he mocked. "And I regarded you as the pampered rich, without trouble or care."

Nora said abruptly:

"There was a young girl from Kildare
Who lived without trouble or care.
But when—
"Go on, I didn't suspect you of having a weakness for limericks," Tom said.

"It isn't my limerick. It's—look," her voice rose in excitement, "are you in a hurry or do you mind if we drive to Brewster? I want to make a private telephone call."

As she swung into Route 22, Tom said, "It sounded all right then."

"What did?"

"The reason I gave you for Deming hiring me."

"You mean it wasn't true?" she asked in surprise.

"Frankly I haven't the faintest idea. Our interview was about as clear as a jungle path. But one thing I'm darned sure of, Deming doesn't want a tutor for his son; he wants a watchdog."

"I can't imagine why. Unless—girls. Poor Frank, he ought to get away from his father altogether. Cousin Charles never approved of him, and Frank, for some reason, always longed for his father's approval."

"Well, if it's any consolation to you, I'm giving him plenty of love."

"What are you? A detective?"

"That seemed to amuse him. 'Hardly,' he said.

Red China Hikes Prices On Food To Balance Costs

HONG KONG (AP)—Red China announced today it is boosting prices of food and other consumer goods to recoup economic losses resulting from plunging to heavily in capital construction.

merce Minister Tseng Shan, Vice Premier Chen Yun, a tough former union organizer, replaced him.

Last year Peiping allocated $2 per cent of its 12-billion-dollar budget to industry. Only 12 per cent of that went for production of consumer goods.

Soon after, workers got heavy wage boosts. As a result they mobbed state-owned stores to buy goods, but few were available. By boosting the price of basic consumer goods, Red authorities reason the people will spend less on nonessentials.
