New City Council Meets, S.E. West Chosen Mayor

Bloxam To Stay On As Manager

Accedes To Council Request That He Withdraw Earlier Resignation

City Manager Leonard Bloxam, asked by the new City Council to remain in his position, agreed to do so this morning.

Bloxam last Friday offered his resignation to the council in the midst of a heated political campaign.

It was W. L. Whedbee who, just unseated as mayor, suggested that the new council's first act be to "request Bloxam to reconsider his resignation and continue in the position as city manager which he has so ably filled."

He made the suggestion a motion and it was seconded by J.A. Collins.

Bloxam told the council that the action he took last week "I felt no more than justified in taking."

He said that if the city is going to have the city manager form of government the city manager should be head of the administrative portion of the government.

"He should be pledged to cooperate with the council and he should be pledged to cooperate with the people to the best of his judgement," he declared.

However, he indicated that if the city manager position is to become involved in politics the city should "go back to the mayor-alderman form and every two years upset the tea kettle with a political wrangle so to speak."

"If this City Council and the people of Greenville want me to continue as city manager I will do so."

He pledged his "100 per cent support" to the council.

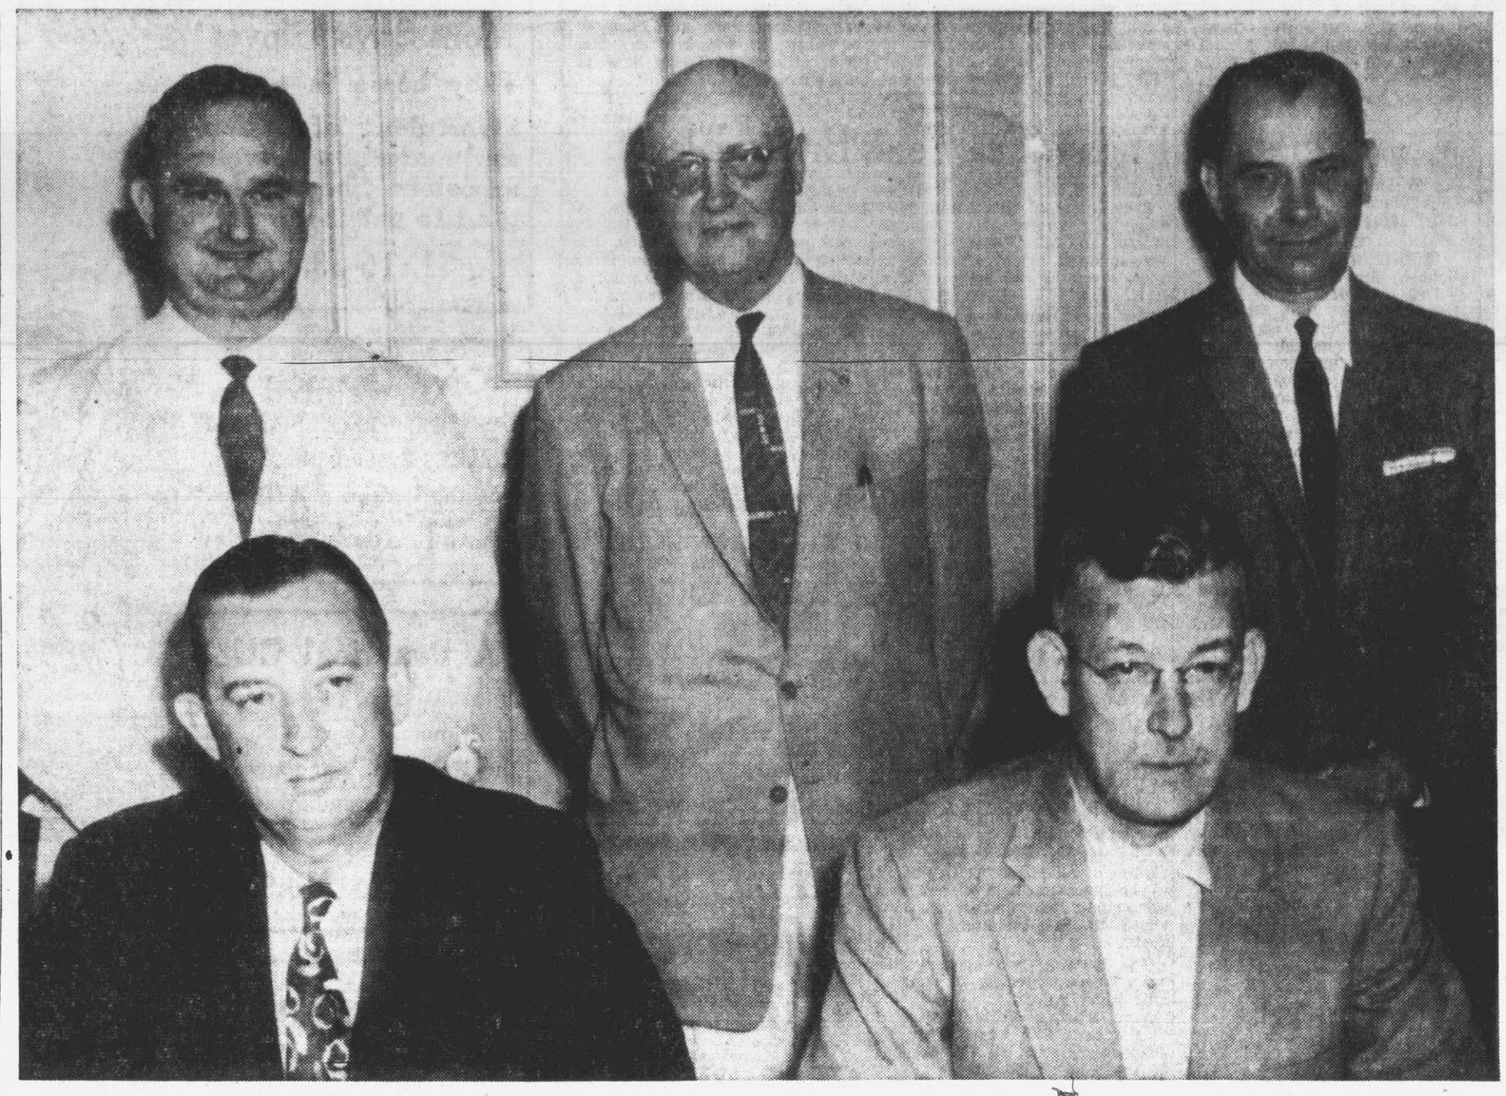
He asked the councilmen's cooperation in channeling as many of the problems that arise as possible to himself and to department heads to "let us see what can be done."

If they are unable to solve the problems they will be brought before the council for action.

In his resignation last week Bloxam blasted an unnamed candidate for council because he "has seen fit to make the position I hold as City Manager somewhat of a political football."

The candidate has seen fit to "criticize" the present City Manager unjustly and in a manner unbecoming to any candidate running for office."

If the resignation had become effective Bloxam would still have continued to serve as superintendent of the city's Utilities.



NEW COUNCIL—This is the City Council which will guide the municipal government for the next two years. The councilmen were sworn in this morning. Seated to the left is Mayor S. Eugene West and to the right Mayor Pro-tem C. Wesley Harvey. Standing are Councilman Lester Turnage, Councilman J. A. Collins, Sr. and Councilman W. L. Whedbee. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Harvey Elected Mayor Pro-Tem

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

S. Eugene West this morning was unanimously elected mayor, replacing W. L. Whedbee who has held the position for the past four years.

The tall 43-year-old contractor was elected mayor after Whedbee's nomination for the office failed to draw a second.

Although City Attorney R. B. Lee later explained that no second was necessary for a nomination, the results would have still been the same since three votes were needed among the five councilmen to elect the mayor.

It remained for Lester Turnage, who had been sworn in as a member of the council replacing A. C. Ruffin only minutes before, to break the deadlock between the four old members of the council.

Councilman J. A. Collins nominated Whedbee because, he said, "I polled the largest number of votes in the election yesterday, but the large write-in for Bill Whedbee is a demand from the people and clearly shows that they want him to continue not only as a member of the council but also as mayor, and I hereby nominate him as mayor of Greenville."

Turnage, whose vote would have been necessary to elect Whedbee, remained silent.

When no second was forthcoming, Whedbee, who had turned the meeting over to City Clerk H. H. Duncan, nominated Collins as mayor.

"I'd like to note that Mr. Collins received the largest number of votes and I'd like to place his name in nomination."

Again the key man, Turnage, remained silent.

Then Councilman C. Wesley Harvey, pointing out that West placed third in the election, said: 'I'd like to nominate him."

"I second the motion," Turnage promptly said.

Duncan called for a show of hands and the vote for the new mayor was unanimous.

West Takes Over

When West took over the meeting he called for nominations for mayor pro-tem, a job which West, himself, has held for the past four years.

Whedbee pointed out that Collins led the ticket and nominated him for that position. It was at that time that City Attorney Lee said that no second was needed. However, the nomination failed to carry when only Whedbee and Collins voted for it.

Turnage then nominated Harvey for mayor pro-tem and he was elected unanimously.

In accepting the mayor's position West offered his "thanks to all of you. I want to ask you for your support. I'll certainly appreciate it."

Later in the meeting Whedbee offered his "full cooperation to the mayor and mayor pro-tem."

"Mr. Whedbee, you don't know what that means to me," West replied. "I'll certainly appreciate it."

The old City Council met long enough to certify the election returns at 10 o'clock this morning. Following that, Councilman A. C. Ruffin, who did not seek reelection, stepped down from the Councilmen's table and Lester Turnage came from the audience to take the vacant seat.

City Court Judge Charles Whedbee told the city fathers they could be sworn in as a group or separately and the councilmen decided they wished to be sworn in collectively.

All placed their right hand on a Bible as they repeated the oath of office.

Before stepping down Ruffin told the council "I've enjoyed working with you for the past four years."

Turnage expressed his pleasure in becoming a member of the city's governing body.

The Rev. H. Glenn Haney led both old and new councils in prayer.

The city's new mayor is a member of the P. S. West Construction Co. He is married to the former Vivian Smith of Greenville and he has been a resident of this city for the past ten years. The Wests reside at 1101 E. Tenth St.

Over The Top

The 1957 Red Cross campaign in Pitt has gone "over the top" for the fourth successive year, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chairman of the county Red Cross Chapter reported this morning.

Collections in this county totaled $16,000 this year. Pitt is the first chapter in the area to exceed its quota, it has been reported.

Dr. Jenkins said, "We, of the Pitt Red Cross chapter, are grateful to the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County for their marvelous support throughout the campaign."

City Chairman Dick Green, and Mrs. Lillie Little, county chairman, were cited for their work. Others commended by Jenkins were: Maurice Brody, Hartwell Campbell, George Wilkerson, the Jay-C-ettes, Junior Woman's Club, the Greenville Service League, Dr. W. H. Pott, Dr. K. B. Pace, WNCT, WGTC, and the Daily Reflector.

Farmville Voters Re-Elect Charles Edwards Mayor

FARMVILLE — Farmville voters went to the polls in record numbers for a municipal election yesterday and re-elected Charles S. Edwards to his second term as mayor.

The voters also returned incumbents Glenn Newton, Bernice B. Turnage and W. C. (Lum) Wooten to their seats on the town council and elected John D. Dixon and Frank K. Allen as new members of the town's governing board.

CHARLES EDWARDS

Edwards received 647 votes in defeating former mayor O. G. Spell for the town's top elective office.

Whedbee, Turnage, Collins, West And Harvey Elected In Big Turnout

Greenville citizens voted in droves yesterday and they returned four present council members to office for two-year terms along with Lester Turnage as the fifth member.

Some 2,421 voters moved through the polling places during the 12 hours that the election was in progress to cast their ballots. It may have been a record vote for a municipal election.

Veteran city lawmaker J.A. Collins, Sr. led the ten-candidate field with a whopping vote of 1,599. He was followed by write-in candidate W.L. Whedbee who polled 1,493. Mayor Pro-tem S. Eugene West ran third among the five with 1,453 votes. Turnage, a newcomer to politics, was in fourth place with 1,120. He was followed closely by C. Wesley Harvey, the fourth member of the city's original City Council, who polled 1,117 votes.

Thus was decided the five men who will lead the city government for the coming two years.

Next candidate on the ticket was more than a hundred votes behind the lowest man to be elected. Elbert Bennett polled 1,013 votes.

Of the other four candidates in the race, none was able to poll as many as a thousand votes. W.G. Dunn had 896 votes when the final tally was in, Lester D. Page, 851; J.D. Aman, 543; and the Rev. O.J. Rooks, 409.

Whedbee Campaign

Highlight of the election was the success of Mayor W.L. Whedbee's unprecedented write-in campaign. Whedbee ran second among the ten candidates when the votes were tallied—only little more than a hundred votes behind the leader of the field.

The mayor had announced before the filing deadline that he would not be a candidate for reelection. Then only four days before the Tuesday election, he received petitions urging him to seek election as a write-in candidate. Last Thursday afternoon Whedbee announced. "I'll be more than glad to serve on the City Council Council if the people want me and should elect me on a write-in vote."

Good Weather

A clear, cool day meant perfect weather for an election and voters took full advantage of it. Pollholders reported that there were lines at their polling places through out the day. It was a rare occasion when those who handled the polls found themselves without voters during the day.

Virtually forgotten in the hot council election were two other municipal posts. City Court Judge Charles Whedbee, brother of W.L. Whedbee, was running unopposed for reelection as was City Court Solicitor Eli Bloom.

Each received a heavy number of votes, however.Charles Whedbee polled 1,730 votes and Bloom received 1,588.

Of the 2,421 persons who voted in yesterday's election, 1,232 cast their ballots at the main fire station, where wards 3, 4 and 5 were voting and 1,189 voted at the court house, the polling place for Wards 1 and 2.

In addition to Whedbee's heavy write-in vote, there were the usual write-ins for various individuals. None of the other write-ins were signficiant, however.

The Rev. O. James Rooks, only Negro candidate on the ballot, didn't receive the expected number of "one shot" ballots. Those who observed the counting last night said the majority of the ballots on which Rooks' votes appeared were also marked for other candidates.

Whedbee, Collins, West and Harvey were all elected to the City Council in 1953—the first year of the Council-City Manager form of government. Elected along with them was A.C. Ruffin. In 1955, the entire group ran for reelection and they were unopposed.

This year Ruffin announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection.

Heavy voting yesterday was in sharp contrast to the election of two year's ago. In 1955 only 162 persons voted in the city election.

The heavy vote meant long hours for those who counted the ballots last night. Usually city election results are known early in the evening. Last night it was nearing midnight before the final results of the election were known.

Parker was home for the weekend from his legislative chores when he suffered a heart attack Monday. He was taken to the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital where he died.

At Raleigh, the state house of representatives adjourned its session today in Parker's memory after hearing brief eulogies of the newspaperman - legislator.

Parker was born at Ahoskie and attended high schools there and at Wise, N.C., before entering Wake Forest College where he graduated in 1914.

Also at Raleigh Gov. Luther Hodges stated "I am deeply distressed to learn of the sudden passing of Rep. He was deeply interested in the progress and growth of North Carolina. We shall miss him greatly."

Only 12 And 13, But Try Holdup

STERLING CITY, Tex. (AP)—Four boys only 12 and 13 years old were taken into custody last night after a filling station attendant was shot to death in an attempted holdup.

They were captured after their car ran a police roadblock and turned over at San Angelo, Tex., 43 miles southeast of Sterling.

Sheriff Bill Green of Sterling County identified them as Mike Martinez, 13; Herman Lee Wright 13; Doyle Hail, 12; and Mickey Rocha, 13.

Martinez, Wright and Hail were slightly hurt when the car wrecked.

Lying on a stretcher at a hospital, young Wright asked policemen and Don Coopedge, a reporter for the San Angelo Times:

"What happened to that guy in Sterling City?"

"He died," a policeman answered.

"I knew we shouldn't have done it. Mike shot him. I didn't know what we were going to do. Mike shot him six times. He ran to the car and said: 'Let's go on.' Then he made me give him more bullets."

All the boys live at Big Spring, 45 miles northwest of Sterling in west Texas. No charges were filed against them immediately.

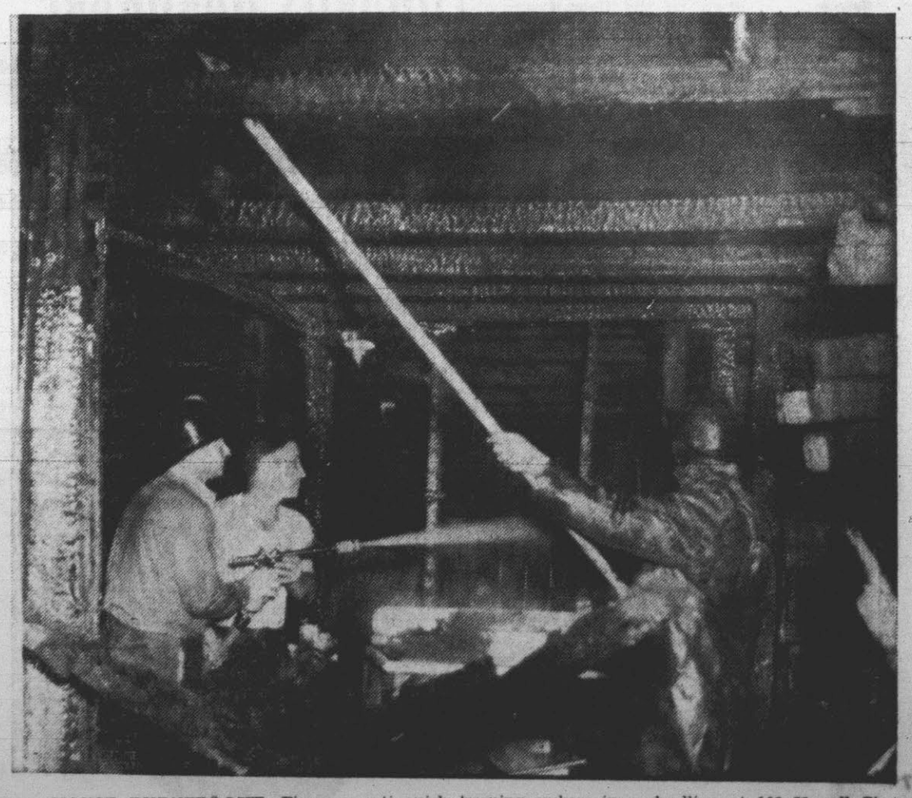
Two Widows, Children Are Burned Out



HOUSE BURNED OUT—Firemen extinguish burning embers in a dwelling at 102 Howell St. which was burned out last night. Some furnishings were saved. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Two widows and two children were left homeless last night when fire raced through their six room home on Howell St.

The house was occupied by Mrs. Pearl Harper, owner, and Mrs. Rena Davis, both Negro, along with Mrs. Davis' two grandchildren. It is located at 102 Howell St.

Firemen were called to the blaze at 6:50 p.m. yesterday and before they arrived a great column of smoke rose from the rapidly burning dwelling.

The firefighters used booster lines from two high pressure trucks and a 1½ inch line from a pumper to fight the blaze. The flames were extinguished before the house collapsed but the entire interior had been burned out.

Some clothing, bedding and furniture were pulled from the house by neighbors and firemen but much of the furnishings were lost.

Mrs. Davis said that she had been cooking on an oil stove in the kitchen earlier and had turned the stove off only a short while before the fire broke out.

There was some insurance on the house, she said.

Firemen remained at the scene until shortly after 3 o'clock last night

Nervous Bank Bandit Failed To Scare, Caught Within An Hour

HUNTERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A gun - flourishing bandit was captured today less than an hour after he lost his nerve and fled emptyhanded from the Huntersville Branch of the Bank of Cornelius.

Officers arrested a man they identified as J. L. Waters, a Gastonia fireman, at his home in Gastonia. Officers said he admitted guilt. They described him as about 40 years old.

His escape from the bank in this North Mecklenburg County village into adjoining Gaston County had been followed closely by Highway Patrol radio cars and the patrol's Salisbury station.

"This is a stickup," he told Frank R. Barnett, the branch's manager. Barnett, stalling, told the intruder he had no money.

The man, wearing dark glasses with his hat brim pulled low, entered the one-story building afoot. As he turned in through the door a woman customer was leaving. He ordered her to remain but she raced out. Officers concluded that it possibly was the fear of what the woman would report that caused the intruder to abandon his robbery effort after a minute or so and run out. His car was parked nearby.

He reportedly fled southwestward toward Mount Holly.

About half an hour after the attempted robbery a car answering the description of the one he drove was sighted speeding westward near Dallas, north of Gastonia in Gaston County.

The Highway Patrol called all cars of the division into a radio-guided hunt for the car and man.

Police in Gastonia in neighboring Gaston County said the license number reported for the automobile was registered by a Gastonia life insurance company. The officers said the vehicle probably had been stolen.

A bank official said the gunman demanded money of a teller, who refused. The bandit then fled, the official said.

The FBI in Charlotte said there was no explanation why the robbery attempt failed.

Mecklenburg County police said a man who works at the Huntersville railway station, 12 miles north of Charlotte, followed the getaway car for some distance and got the license number. Police said the car was spotted later on Highway 16, headed north, which would be away from the direction of Mount Holly.

The county officers said Mecklenburg and Gaston police cooperated with the Highway Patrol in throwing up immediate road blocks in the vicinity of the robbery.

BEAUTY HINTS

From . . .
Harrell's Beauty Salon

This year (thank goodness!) the fashionable look for ladies is—the ladylike look. Men prefer it, you know. Fragrant, fastidiously groomed feminine appeal provokes a gentleman to kiss your hand—or at least think he'd love to!

Ladies don't wear fluffy "hoyden" hairdos. They favor planned, sculptured waves that stay where they ought to. And restrained curls, placed where they soften your features, make your eyes wider, shorten a forehead, or lend a youthful look.

How to make your hair behave beautifully?—Start with professional cutting and styling.

Buddy Harrell

(Only properly trained stylists can shape the hair so you can handle the coiffure easily between settings.) Then treat yourself to a good professional permanent—one of the new waves specially formulated to bring beauty to your kind of hair, whatever its problem condition might be.

When the last lovely wave has been shaped, the whole given a fine mist of spray to hold the hair in its delicious new "do"—isn't it fun to look into the mirror? Think of the compliments you're going to get!

LADIES guard their curves too . . . by walking to the supermarket instead of driving, taking one small cookie instead of three different ones at tea-time. And most especially by remembering that a good foundation garment makes all the difference . . . in costume, in posture, in coming-or-going appearance!

Spend five minutes a day at a good old-fashioned "bicycle" exercise . . . down on the floor, back flat, legs straight up, making giant circles in the air. This strengthens tummy muscles, tones down hips. (Hard at first—but don't let temporarily sore muscles stop you. The rewards are worth it!)

Do You Know What You Are Wearing?

(Editor's Note: Following is the April demonstration given by Pitt County Home Demonstration agents to the county's HD clubs.)

By MISS LOIS JONES

Do you know what you are wearing? Until about thirty years ago textiles for clothing needs were met by four natural fibers—cotton, silk, wool, and linen.

It was possible to make beautiful fabrics but nature controlled their quality and supply. There are still only a few fibers, but with the growth and development of the chemical industry and modern science, many improvements have been made in the natural fibers and new fibers have been added.

What is a fiber? A fiber is the fine individual substance from which yarn is made. It is twisted into yarn and made into fabrics. There are four types of fibers:

1. The Naturals—made from animal and vegetable juices
2. Man Made—transformed from Robert Mewborn, a visitor, was remembered with a gift.
woodchips or cotton
3. Synthetics—fibers brewed in a test tube
4. Blends—contained vitrus of different fibers

Natural Fibers

Cotton is one of the most used of the natural fibers. It is a soft fiber that is strong, comfortable, easily dyed and long wearing. Previously, cotton was considered a seasonal fiber for summer only. Today, depending on the yarn and the weave, cotton may be used the year round.

Some of the new cottons are: wrinkle-resistant cottons, polished cottons, embossed cottons, wash and wear cottons, and cottons with permanent pleats.

Wool, another of the natural fibers, is an animal fiber made from the fleece of sheep or lamb. Wool is warm, retains press, and absorbent. Good qualities of wool wear long.

Wool is a springy fabric that sheds wrinkles easily and is available in all sorts of weights from sheer challis to heavy fleece. Wools can be treated to reduced shrinkage and moths or insects. Many wool garments today are moth proofed before purchased.

The label will always tell the wool content. It may be reprocessed wool, reused wool, wool product or virgin wool.

Linens as in the case of other age-old fibers have undergone great improvements. It is known for its cool crispness, strength and washability. Linen's tendency to wrinkle have been overcome by special processes which makes the fabric resist wrinkling.

Silk, another natural fiber, is an animal fiber that is obtained from silk worms. It is the strongest of the natural fibers. Silk has a natural luster and luxurious feel that dyes to clear brilliant colors.

Man-Made and Synthetic Fibers

Rayons are the first of the man-made fibers. Both rayon and acetate are made from the cellulose found in wood pulp and cotton linters. The viscose rayon can be ironed with a higher temperature iron than acetate rayon. It does not fuse or melt.

Acetate rayon will fuse or melt in contact with a hot iron. Look for the label. It should tell what type the rayon is and have it should be cleaned. Usually the smooth, flat fabrics of rayon are likely to be washable, while the flat fabrics in the crepe family should be dry cleaned.

Nylon is made from coal or petroleum, air and water. It is a strong, elastic, durable fiber and washes well and dries quickly. Nylon is excellent to blend with other fibers.

Many have classed nylon garments as the ideal for travel because of their ease in packing, fast-drying, and non-ironing qualities. When sewing, nylon or mercerized thread should be used. Nylon should be pressed with a warm iron or pressing over a damp cloth may give a smoother finish.

Orlon and dacron are used mainly for curtains, sheets, suits, and dress fabrics. Orlon fabrics launder easily and dry quickly. Dacron is made of salt, natural gas and air with qualities similar to wool. It is lightweight, but strong. It will resist wrinkles, stretching, shrinking, sunlight, fire, mildew, moths, and other insects. It is washable and dry cleans.

Acrilan made of air and natural gas. It's lightweight, but strong. It may be dull, fussy, smooth, crisp, soft, or shiny. It is easy to launder and requires very little ironing. Its qualities are much like those of orlon.

Vicara is a protein fiber which resembles wool. It has the soft luxury look of cashmere. Vicara is usually found in blends. It blends with both nylon and wool.

Blends

Just as cooking ingredients are blended for new treats, fibers are blended to produce new and unusual fabrics. The wrinkle resistance of one fiber can be combined with the absorbency of another through blending.

The fiber used in the larger amount of a blend will determine how the fabric will perform. A safe rule to follow in washing blends is to wash according to method recommended for the more delicate of the two fibers.

With the many new fabrics and finishes, it is most important that one look for tags and labels. Today, most of the fabric and garment manufacturers provide information tags on their products.

What should tags and labels tell? Fiber content, what it is made of; manufacturer's name or trade mark; color fastness, to light, dry cleaning, laundering; fume fading, resistance to perspiration; manufacturer's guarantee; shrinkage; special finishes; and care instructions

Bethel HD Club Enters Display

BETHEL—The Home Demonstration Club of Bethel was the second of the eight clubs to put an educational exhibit in the window of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Store.

The home management leader, Mrs. J. A. Edmondson, and her committee chose as their project a two-in-one room, a den and dining area.

Their selection of furniture was a combination of maple and provincial pieces chosen for the warm atmosphere it gives a room. A color scheme of green and brown with bronze accessories was used to complement the furniture. Lamps were chosen from the practical standpoint as well as for beauty.

In this area good reading material can be found to meet the needs of the entire family. A room of this type is the heart of the nome where the family can gather to work, play and worship together.

Bethel club members extend a cordial invitation to the public to visit their exhibit which will remain in the window of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Store through May 10.

Repercussions From Tobacco Cuts

Though tobacco farming is more directly associated with Eastern North Carolina than other parts of the state, there can be little doubt that reduction in tobacco acreage in recent years is a contributing factor in the increase in unemployment noted in this state.

At a recent news conference Gov. Hodges pointed out that 73,000 people applied for jobs through the state's Employment Security Commission during the month of April. The governor termed the situation "not too serious", but "not good."

Taking seasonal factors and other things into consideration 73,000 unemployed people in North Carolina during April may not be "too serious". At the same time the fact there were 23 persons on unemployment roles for every available job listed with the unemployment offices is a serious matter.

And what is in store during the summer months when unemployment rolls in the Eastern agricultural counties normally drop to almost zero? Will seasonal employment on the farms—which has necessitated importing thousands of workers from other states for peak periods—take up all the slack. Or will the unemployment rolls of the state continue high even in the peak harvest season?

North Carolina is now beginning to see the repercussions of decreasing tobacco allotments which have forced hundreds upon hundreds of families off the farms and into the towns in quest of jobs. North Carolina is beginning to see now in its increasing number of unemployed that intensified efforts must be made to find employment for these people if the state is not to suffer serious economic losses.

Unemployment compensation claims for April of this year were 28 per cent over those for the same month a year ago. It that not a serious situation? Twenty-three applicants on unemployment rolls of the ESC for every available job. Is that not a serious situation?

North Carolina must continue its efforts toward industrial development in order to create more jobs for its people and a better economic climate in this state.

Extra Office Space Will Be Very Welcome

The new office building purchased by Pitt County adjacent to the court house will be a major asset to the county as demands for office space by its own agencies and those of other levels of government continues to increase.

Though the county has expanded its office facilities greatly in the past 10 years, it has been apparent for the past two or three years that more space would be needed. It has been apparent too that additional office facilities near the court house would be desirable after a decade of decentralization of office space scattered in various parts of Greenville. Conversion of the old hospital building into county offices slightly more than five years ago relieved appallingly crowded conditions in many county offices. Construction of the new Pitt County Health Department building since that time has further served to relieve overcrowded conditions.

The little elbow room these new facilities provided a few years ago has now disappeared. Personnel in various agencies of the county as well as in federal offices housed in county buildings has increasing work load, more space is needed, not only for the present, but also for future growth.

The Commissioners were wise in purchasing the available property adjacent to the court house. It will provide space for relieving cramped conditions in departments now housed in the court house and at the same time provide additional space for offices now located elsewhere. It will provide additional county office facilities at a more central location than would have been the case had a site in some other area been selected.

Pitt County needs the additional office space the new facilities will provide. And the commissioners, in our opinion, purchased the additional property at a reasonable price.

Other States In Same Difficulty

By LYNN NISBET

REPRESENTATION — North Carolina is not at all lonesome in the predicament of inequitable representation in its law making bodies. Nearly every State in the Union has the same problem, some in less some in more degree than North Carolina. In almost every instance the problem has been accentuated within the past two decades by population trends.

The United States as a governmental entity has the same problem and for the same reason. Basically it is the problem of equitably adjusting the factors of area and population in light of communication facilities. To use the somewhat highbrow language of Dean Carroll Weathers of the Wake Forest law school, who headed a study commission in this state last year, it is the problem of keeping representation "sensitive," which means maintaining contact between legislators and their constituents.

The Federal constitution which provided for two Senators from each State, regardless of area or population, and members of the House of Representatives based entirely on population, was adopted by eleven original States along the Atlantic seaboard. After the Bill of Rights was adopted, which did not change the representation formula, the other two of the original thirteen colonies—North Carolina and Rhode Island—ratified the formula. Only change in that formula since 1789 has been to limit membership in the House of Representatives, which since 1921 has been fixed at 435.

Growth in total population and steadily westward movement has resulted in reduction of House representation from one member for each 200,000 to one for each 400,000, and increase in Senate membership from 26 to 96.

NATIONAL — Every decennial census since 1850 has tended to give more power to the west at expense of the Atlantic seaboard States. If mid-term estimates hold up the allocation of national representatives after the 1960 census will give tremendously more power to the West, especially in the House of Representatives.

Under the 1950 census allocation the six New England States with 66,608 square miles of area and aggregate population of 9,314,425 have 12 Senators and 23 Representatives in the Congress. Meantime Texas with 267,339 square miles of area and 7,711,194 people has only two Senators and 21 Representatives in the Congress. California with 158,693 miles of area and 10,586,223 people has two Senators and 30 Representatives in the Congress.

In other words, the 67,000 square miles east of the Hudson river has six times as much voting strength in the United States Senate as the 267,000 as the ten and a half million in California. Area does not change, but population does move. If trends of the past decade continue the 1960 census will give to California and Texas, as well as to other Western states, greatly increased membership in the House of Representatives.

The only way to prevent substantial loss in number of congressmen for Eastern States, including North Carolina, will be to enlarge the House membership. There is a good deal of feeling that the body is already too cumbersome for efficient legislative functioning. The National House membership may be increased or reduced by congressional act, without constitutional amendment or vote of the people.

STATE — One reapportionment bill has been killed in the current State Senate, and another is pending. Also there are bills in both branches to redistribute membership in the General Assembly on basis of 1950 census, which is not reapportionment at all in that the idea does not involve any change in number of legislators or in number of people they will represent as provided in the present constitution.

The study commission headed by Dean Carroll Weathers recommended a reapportionment plan, calling for the present number of Senators (50), but with limitation that no county should have more than two and no Senator should represent more than four counties. House membership would have been raised from 120 to 130. That plan was killed by an amendment sponsored by Sen. Lee Whitmire of Henderson and others, and then their amended bill was voted down.

Last week Sen. Claude Currie and others sent up another bill, calling for one Senator for each of the 100 counties, and a House roster of 160. That plan would give the largest counties as many as seven Representatives with one Senator, the smallest counties one member in each branch.

The Weathers plan would have slightly relieved the existing imbalance, the Currie plan will greatly aggravate it. It will tremendously increase both the numerical and relative voting strength of the small counties. It would also give the Republicans more than double relative Senate strength. If the plan were in effect now there would be 13 Republican Senators out of 100 instead of three among fifty.

That thought slows enthusiasm of some small eastern counties, which have used the potential Republican increase as argument against redistributing membership on basis of the 1950 census.

Amateurs And Song Publishers

By ELMER ROESSNER

About this time every year, a subtle change takes place in the body chemistry of thousands of people. They stumble over cracks in sidewalks, step in front of moving bicycles, and scribble on the backs of old envelopes. Eventually they write something like this:

In the radiance of June,
Beneath the stars above,
With you I'd spoon

And incontrovertibly demonstrate my unquenchable love.

They show it to their friends, who pronounce it better than anything on the Hit Parade, a damnation that usually escapes the authors.

Eventually, they send it off to someone advertising "Songs Wanted." A letter comes back remarking on the charm and originality of the song and hinting that all America will soon be singing it. So, it adds, send $50 for music and professional copies. The bite used to be $30 or $35 before inflation. Now it's usually $50, $75 or some convincingly odd figure like $98.78. Sometimes there's a second bite for "incidental expenses," or "searches" or "arrangements" amounting to $25 or $100 more.

THIS IS A GYP?

After a time the writer will get his song back printed on four pages, with music—real music, notes and all. The printing may not be very good and there may be something slightly familiar about the music, but it will be his song, all right, set up so anybody can sing or play it.

The writer usually gets quite a few "professional copies," enough for his friends and a few left over which the local bakery or music store may agree to display in the window. The writer is assured professional copies also have been sent to leading radio stations, name bands and popular singers.

After that, nothing happens. The local store sells no copies, the song is never heard on the air and no royalties come from the publisher simply because nobody in their right mind would buy the atrocity.

And about this time of the year, Better Business Bureaus start their annual scream about gyp song publishers, warning amateurs against excessive promises, and assuring them that if songs are good, the publisher pays the writer, not vice versa.

VANITY, VANITY

Of course, it is wrong for a publisher to promise fame and riches to the author of a stinkeroo. Getting money under false pretenses should be punished. But is this kind of racket really wrong when the suck — writer, that is — is not being fooled?

No Better Business Bureau has ever cracked down on a rich man who paid $50,000 to a public relations counsellor to jockey him into position for an honorary degree from a fresh-water college. No BBB ever jumped on a department store for selling a $100 coat to a woman who could get along on a $49 coat. If people can pay $51 to $50,000 to satisfy their vanity on other scores, why can they not pay $50 to $250 to see their name as the author of a song?

It would seem to be worth at least $50 to be able to remark, offhand at a cocktail party, "My last song didn't do so well but my publisher is in a turmoil to get my next one." (True, he will be.) And if you have nothing else to leave your children, imagine the comfort they will get from a line in your obituary reading, "He was the author of 'Unquenchable Love,' a popular song of 1957." Everyone will have forgotten that the popularity was limited to the author.

WHAT TO DO

It is often impossible for an amateur to distinguish between song publishers interested in making money from writers and those interested in making profits through the sale of songs and various performing rights. However, it's a good rule to look sharp whenever a publisher asks a writer for money.

Another good step is to get in 55th St., New York 19. It won't touch with the Songwriters' Protective Association, 158 W. 55th St., New York 19. It won't find collaborators or publishers, or criticize songs, but it will give other help to beginners, and offers associate memberships at $15 a year.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

RULES FOR PRAYER

Today let us look at some of our Lord's counsel regarding prayer.

First of all, He said, let us pray with sincerity — not as those who love to make show of their piety, but as those who pray in secret that the Father who seeth in secret may recompense them.

And pray, said Jesus, in a forgiving spirit. "And whensoever ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any one; that your Father also who is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses."

Pray with alertness, said Jesus. ""Watch ye in every season, make supplication, that ye may prevail to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

And in our praying, let us always remember that God's will is supreme. Our Lord's prayer on the last night of his life was: "Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." If we pray for anything contrary to the will of God, we invite disaster.

Especially important in all praying is the necessity that we pray in faith. "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer shall receive." That is, our very believing," said Jesus, "ye shall receive." That is, our very belief that our prayers will be answered is a definite factor in causing them to be answered. If we pray in doubt, half the potency of our prayer is destroyed; if we pray believing, the divine promise is that we shall receive.

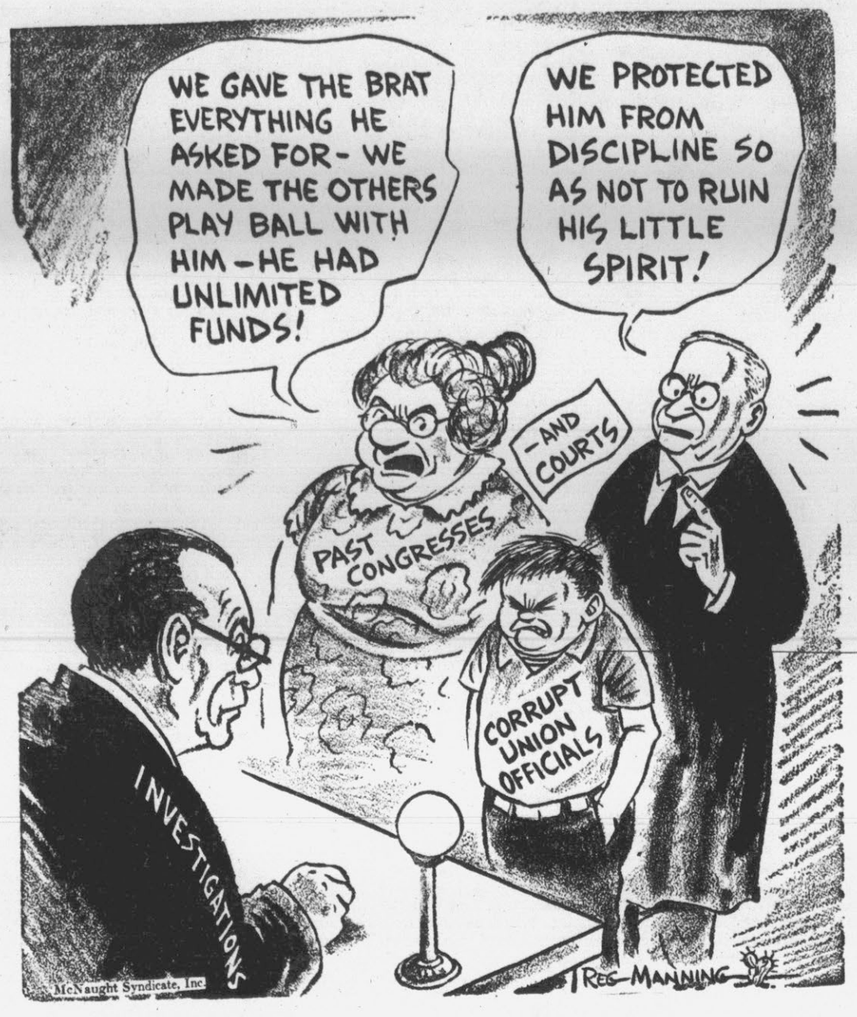
They Reared The "Delinquent"



by ALVIN TAYLOR

Already It Is 'History

By the time this is in print Greenville's municipal election will be history and the five men who will guide the city government for the next two years will be officially chosen.

As this is written it appears the vote in the election will be heavy, perhaps a record vote.

Observers were predicting a vote of 2,500 or better which will be in sharp contrast to two years ago when only 162 voted in the municipal election.

That goes to show what can happen when issues pop up in a campaign. In 1955 there were no issues. Indeed, there was no surplus of candidates that year. The five councilmen ran for re-election and they had no opposition. In addition the City Court Judge and solicitor were unopposed.

This year the camapign was far different. Judge Charles Whedbee and Solicitor Eli Bloom were again unopposed. But the picture was different in the council race.

Instead of five incumbents in the race, three present board members filed for reelection; and eight other candidates filed.

As the campaign moved on, two of the candidates withdrew from the race. Then last week two bombshells exploded on the political scene with City Manager Leonard Bloxam turned in his resignation because a candidate "has seen fit to make the position I hold as City Manager somewhat of a political football," and Mayor W. L. Whedbee announced he would be a write-in candidate.

The weekend saw as intensive campaigning locally as has ever been witnessed in a political campaign.

Rumors of deals and counter deals flew up and down the streets. As a result voters turned out in droves yesterday.

Many found they weren't registered, however.

"I'll bet 25 people have come up to me and told me they were going to vote for me but they found they weren't registered," one candidate said toward the end of the day.

Many went to the polling places where they voted in county, state and federal elections. Those who went to Third Street School found a sign erected by someone who wanted to be helpful.

"Vote at the fire station," it said.

The sign backfired, however. Folks in that area were supposed to vote at the court house in the city election.

Anyway, by the time this is read five new or old councilmen will have been sworn in to head the city government for two years.

Other Editors Saying--- Salary Or Fee?

(Washington Daily News)

From what we have been reading lately we are bound to conclude that some Justices of the Peace in North Carolina are getting fairly rich, while others are making little or nothing.

By the same token we must conclude that some JP's are much more able than some others.

If we understand correctly, as the situation now is, a Justice of the Peace gets nothing in a criminal matter unless there is a conviction. While it must be generally concluded that the vast majority of JP's are honest and conscientious men, there is bound to be some abuse of any power that allows pay to be determined by the type of justice meted out.

It takes a Justice just as long to hear a case where there is an acquittal as it does to hear one in which there is a conviction. But when the Justice knows that he gets nothing if an acquittal is given and gets paid only through a conviction, then there possibly are fellows in the ranks who eye the dollar more closely than they eye justice.

The first procedure which comes to our mind then is that we ought to get rid of the bad applies as soon as they appear. If we get rid of the bad ones, there surely will be less criticism of the good ones.

As to the present proposal to pay Justices of the Peace a monthly salary rather than allow their income to be based on convictions, we are of the opinion that regarding criminal matters, they ought to be placed on a salary rather than have to depend on fees. Regardless of how conscientious a JP might be, if he has to depend on fees, he is bound to suffer more undue criticism with the present method than he will if the change to a salary basis is passed.

Charges have been brought in several places, we understand, that law enforcement officers will carry their cases to a certain Justice because "we are sure to get a conviction." That is a most serious charge, not only against the Justice but also against the law enforcement officers where such charges have been made.

It would seem practical to us to have far fewer Justices of the Peace throughout North Carolina and at the same time we should make every effort to get qualified men. Justice is important to every defendant, be the case a minor traffic violation or one of the more serious offenses which come before JP courts.

If the resident judge in each judicial district is to name Justices of the Peace, then such a procedure seems rational to us. In our case here in the Pamlico area, it would mean that Malcolm Paul would name them.

Past publicity shows us the need for certain reforms in the matter of JP courts. Getting rid of the bad ones, appointing qualified persons, and paying salaries for their work in criminal cases might be the best answer.

We are inclined to agree that a JP's fee should not be based on an conviction.

Opinions In Brief

"Our federal budgeting and accounting is not adapted to today's enormous expenditures. Two things have resulted. No one can tell what the actual expenditures of the Government really are. And for this reason, and the continuing appropriations, Congress has lost control of the purse — the very foundation of free men."—(Herbert Hoover)

Sen. Byrd, A Friendly Opponent

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A conservative Democratic Senator for whom President Eisenhower and Treasury Secretary Humphrey profess warm regard has become the most vocal and effective foe of their financial and budget policies. Although a successful millionaire businessman, he fights chiefly their alleged costly favoritism toward certain great corporate interests here and abroad. It is the most fascinating human interest drama on Capitol Hill.

This influential individualist, whose conduct bewilders even as it gratifies most of his colleagues, is Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia, the aristocratic apple-grower from the Shenandoah Valley. Regularly assailed as a "reactionary" by Democratic radicals and liberals, he is now aligned with them, albiet for different reasons. He has turned his attack on policies that would benefit banks, private utilities, bond houses, vast corporations and petroleum interests.

If the $71.8 billion budget is seriously reduced, it will be due largely to Senator Byrd. As Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and leader of the Southern bloc, he wields enormous influence in the Upper Chamber. And it is this body which generally restores whatever appropriation cuts have been made by the House of Representatives.

WILL WIN SENATE SUPPORT

Byrd's stand will win Senate support because he shows utter disregard for politics or personal friendships. They recall that, chiefly because of his attitude, the Old Dominion twice cast its electoral vote for Eisenhower. He has expressed his admiration for Secretary Humphrey, regarding him as the ablest Secretary of the Treasury in 25 years, and the Cabinet member considers the Senator his "good friend."

OPINIONS DON'T INTERFERE WITH FRIENDSHIP This remarkable friendship persists, although this is the third time that the Senator has opposed policies which seemed to benefit his admirers in the banking and business community.

When Humphrey proposed that the huge road - building program be financed through the issuance of private bonds, thereby removing the cost as a current charge against the budget, Byrd denounced it as "legerdemain." His single blast killed the idea. Although it would have profited the issuing bond dealers, it would have cost the taxpayers extra billions in the long run.

Today, the Senator is checking on several other devices designed to assist "big business" interests, although there may have been justification for them in the wartime emergency. Ironically, in this venture he is lined up with such liberal extremists as Senator Wayne L. Morse of Oregon and that other but different Humphrey — the Senator from Minnesota.

"INDEFENSIBLE" PRIVILIGES Senator Byrd criticizes as "indefensible" the fast tax write-off privileges granted by the Treasury to firms supposedly engaged in national defense production. In his opinion, most of these temporary tax deductions are unjustified because the beneficiaries do not qualify, while causing a tremendous loss in Federal revenue. And the incident which angered him most involved a quick amortization grant to a great utilities project and company. He has introduced a bill for repeal of this provision.

Byrd is also concerned over apparent tax favors to five great oil forms operating in Saudi Arabia under the name of Aramco. It has been charged that they escape U. S. income taxes of $100,000,000 a year by paying prearranged taxes and royalties to King Saud. In short, bookkeeping manipulation is suspected.

CONSERVATIVE CRITIC AND OTHERS Finally, Secretary Humphrey's conservative critic has begun an inquiry into the Administration's general monetary policies, which will embrace the Treasury and Federal Reserve "tight money" policy's effects. It has been charged by the Morse-Humphrey bloc that their higher interest rates on lending and borrowing money have benefited the bankers and bond dealers at the expense of small business, home buyers and little consumers generally.

A strange man, so Ike and Humphrey must think, is this wealthy, friendly Senator from the historic and lovely Shenandoah Valley!

Both Sides Divided

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans both look like they've been hit on the head with an ax that kept on going. They're both split down the middle.

For more than four years President Eisenhower has acted towards Congress as if he thought his role was to be a tranquilizer to keep it soothed and relaxed.

But it seems he's fresh out of pills. He's in trouble. And he looks puzzled. His Republicans are milling around, aching to cut his budget.

The two most distinguished Democratic leaders — former President Truman and would-be President Adlai Stevenson — at a party get-together here over the weekend cautioned Democrats against slashing into Eisenhower's budget.

But while they were blinking their amber light, the party's leader in the House, Speaker Rayburn of Texas, was talking of cutting the budget by billions.

This was an echo of what Rayburn's opposite number and fellow Democrat Lyndon Johnson, the Democrats' Senate leader, has already been saying.

Southern Democrats, in an effort to kill civil rights legislation this year, have offered an amendment to the bill for a federal law to ban union shops.

But the Democrats' advisory council, a 24-man group of Democratic leaders including Truman and Stevenson, came out against an anti-union shop amendment.

In short, there's no more unanimity in the Democratic party than there is among Republicans.

Each party has members who consider themselves liberals — a mere handful — and a big batch that come under the conservative lable.

And among the conservatives of both parties are those who take a stand far to the right of Truman, Stevenson and Eisenhower.

Truman's idea of dealing with Congress was to belt the opposition on the nose. He was in constant fights with the lawmakers.

Eisenhower tried tranquilizing them. He seldom fought for his programs and, by avoiding name-calling, he avoided being called names.

Some of his programs were massacred. But, by and large, in his first four years, he didn't do too badly on the total amount of legislation passed.

But now he's in real trouble: his budget seems certain to be cut. It's only the degree of the cut which is not yet clear.

He says he needs the money he asked for. But, faced with heavy slashes, he appears uncertain what to do.

Even a White House report that he might go on radio and television to appear for public support was indecisive.

And well it might be. Asking the public for support is a poor substitute for taking a vigorous stand with Congress and his own Republican leaders.

The two Republican leaders in Congress — Sen. Knowland of California in the Senate and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts in the House — have both publicly stated their desire for reductions in the budget.

The place for Eisenhower to put on the heat was with those two men. But, after talking with him the other day, they seemed completedly unmoved in their opposition.

The budget is only one of a number of his programs which are in jeopardy.

It was predicted after Eisenhower's election victory last November that he'd lose control of his Republicans in Congress.

They kept fairly quiet in his first four years. That was when, because he could run again, he might carry the party back into control of Congress. But while he won, the party didn't.

And now, because of the constitutional ban on more than two terms, he can't win again. So he has outlived his political usefulness to a lot of Republicans.

Tax Allocation Formula Given Legislative Push

RALEIGH (AP)—A proposed revision in North Carolina's corporate income tax allocation formula has received a big push in its legislative journey toward likely enactment.

The Senate Finance Subcommittee voted unanimously yesterday in favor of the formula, designed to boost industrial development in the state and strongly backed by Gov. Hodges.

The House Finance Subcommittee has approved the formula, but on a tentative basis. Sen. Nelson Woodson of Rowan, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, told his group the formula "is so important we ought to nail it down with a permanent recommendation."

Several legislators have expressed the opinion that the formula will win legislative approval. It would cost the state an estimated eight million dollars in revenue annually.

A letter from James Webb, vice president of Cone Mills of Greensboro, was read to the subcommittee by Sen. Edwin Lanier of Orange. It endorsed the proposed formula as the "essential answer" to the problem of raising North Carolina's low per capita income.

Cone Mills, a North Carolina corporation, has considered dropping its charter in this state and obtaining a charter from another state because of tax advantages it would receive under present laws. Woodson said the company has not done so because of "sentiment."

Under the revised corporate income tax law, domestic and foreign corporations with multi-state operations would be treated alike.

Glad To Receive An 'Open Letter'

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP) — Haywood Waters, a print shop employe, celebrated his 15th wedding anniversary by buying a full page, $120 ad in a weekly newspaper.

A heart was centered on the page and underneath it this message:

"Today marks a very important time for me. For it was on this day 15 years ago that my wonderful wife Margaret was married to me . . . These 15 years have been the happiest, fullest, most joyful that any man could hope for. My love for you Margaret has multiplied a thousand times and . . . the years ahead promise even greater love. Happy Anniversary, Margaret."

Said Mrs. Waters "He sure is sweet."

Thirteen Proves A Lucky Number

MILWAUKEE (AP) —Twins Roland and Donald Bezella are 13, and their parents have the figures, mostly 13, to prove it.

Ronald and Donald each have 13 letters in their names and were baptized on the 13th Sunday of the year. The boys will graduate from the eighth grade on June 13.

Wild Melee By S.C. Lawmakers

COLUMBIA (AP) — Angry South Carolina senators broke up a filibuster last night with a series of punches and a wild melee of grappling on the Senate floor.

When it was all over, they exchanged apologies and shook hands. The filbustering senator—Ralph Gasque of Marion County—then announced that his talkathon would continue today.

Gasque, a professional prizefighter in his youth, landed one body punch on his heavier adversary from Clarendon County—Sen. James Hugh McFaddin.

But the only injury in evidence to McFaddin, who weighs well over 200 pounds, was a bruise under his left eye which he suffered when he hit the speaker's stand as he rolled to the floor with the short, stocky senator from Marion.

McFaddin attacked with a rush when Gasque twice called him a "damn liar" on the floor of the Senate.

Gasque had been trying to talk to death a measure which regulates small loan companies. His opposition was based on the lack of regulation of insurance rates which loan companies may require of borrowers.

McFaddin angered Gasque by charing that the latter was "retained by Household Finance (a loan company) and is being fed material by Yancey McLeod (an attorney for Household)."

Former 'One Man Army' Of Bataan Now Sherif

By FRANK PITMAN

GOLDEN, Colo., (AP)—Uncle Sam's "One-Man Army of Bataan," Art Wermuth, has slowed down.

He's working only 14 hours a day as sheriff of Jefferson County, a booming suburban area in the Rocky Mountain foothills west of Denver.

"I love being sheriff," says the stocky 202-pounder with crew-cut hair. He's credited with singlehandedly killing 116-enemy Japanese in the Philippines during World War II.

Wermuth, 41-year-old Republican, was appointed last January to the sheriff's job after a predecessor got into income tax trouble.

If things develop like he hopes, Wermuth will seek re-election.

Wermuth's postwar career has been just as exciting as his time in Army service. During the war he won the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star, five Purple Hearts and put in three years and four months in a Japanese war prisoner camp.

Since August 1945 he's been an impressario of a flying circus, a drug salesman, service station operator, city marshal of Wichita, Kan., and an oil engineer in Venezuela.

After the South American venture—ended by his wife's illness—Wermuth settled at her home town of Lakewood, Colo., a Denver suburb. He prospered as an insurance salesman, built a home at Evergreen and acquired a 108-acre ranch at Conifer, Colo.

As sheriff of Jefferson County, Wermuth has a staff of 38 and jurisdiction over 12,000 square miles and 98,000 persons.

The physical dangers of law enforcement pose no problem for Wermuth, who candidly—not boastfully—says "I'm not afraid of anything."

His big goal, he says, is to straighten out juveniles who get into trouble.

Wermuth and his wife, Patricia, a former parachute jumper in his flying circus, adopted an 8-year-old boy last year and have applied for the adoption of a girl about the same age.

"Kids are great, I love 'em," he says.

Maurice Everette Keeps Conference Singles Crown

GREENSBORO—East Carolina's Maurice Everette, a muscular junior from Robersonville, roared through two matches yesterday afternoon to successfully defend his North State Conference singles championship.

It was the second season in a row that the 180 pound netter has captured the singles title—and he still has another year to go.

Everette lost only one set during the day. The only loss came at the hands of teammate Billy Hollowell, a freshman from Kinston. The two mates wound up in the finals. Scores of the Everette-Hollowell match were 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

ECC Doubles

Another crew of East Carolina boys wound up in the doubles finals also, but lost out in the last match. The team of John Savage and John West battled fiercely against the defending doubles champs Bob Atlas and Jordan Washburn of Guilford, but fell 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 8-10, 6-2. The match took five hours to complete.

Although Everette was the only ECC man to cop a title, the North State matches this season clearly showed the strength of the Pirate agregation. In the finals, it was ECC's Hollowell against ECC's Everette in the singles, and ECC's West and Savage against Guilford's Atlas and Washburn in the doubles.

In the semifinals earlier yesterday, Everette topped John McCabe of Western Carolina, 6-2, 10-8, to move into the championship brackets. Hollowell romped over Howard Haworth of Guilford 6-2, 6-2 in the semifinals.

A Good Year

For Coach Raymond Martinez and his East Carolina netters, this has been the most successful season in many years. The Pirates finished their campaign with a 15-3 record and an undefeated record in the North State Conference. For the first time since ECC has been in the conference, a Buc club copped the title.

Martinez' boys went up against some of the strongest competition in the East this year and gave a good account for themselves. They met and defeated such teams as N. C. State, Wake Forest (twice), Jacksonville Naval Base of Florida, Stetson University, College of Charleston, among others.

Their only losses came at the hands of a powerful Kalamazoo, Michigan, team, and the Citadel (twice), a Southern Conference team.

Besides Everette, Hollowell, West and Savage, who went to the North State tournament, the team was comprised of Mike Katsias and James Blake, veterans, and newcomers Lawrence Brown, Dock Smith, Ken Chalker and James Daughtridge.

Benefit Match

The ECC - Elon encounter, which will be played at Guy Smith Stadium Friday night, will serve as a benefit match to aid the ECC baseball scholarship fund and the Jaycee Little League team.

College View Cleaners and Laundry, a local firm, has bought the entire gate for the contest and is generously giving away tickets to all who will ask for them. Proceeds from that sale and from the concessions will go entirely to the two areas mentioned above.

The Jaycees will use their share of the proceeds to sponsor the Jaycee Little League team this summer.

Tickets may be obtained also from any Jaycee member.

Dressen's Baseball Future Is Up In Air

DETROIT (AP) — Charlie (Chuck) Dressen, bounced from his job as manager of the Washington Senators, remained up in the air today about his future. Should he take a front office post with the last-place American League club or look elsewhere?

"So far," Dressen said, "I have no other offers."

Club president Calvin Griffith, who came here from Washington yesterday to replace the 58-year-old manager with his No. 1 coach, Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, offered Dressen a new position as co-ordinator of player personnel.

"I'm definitely interested," Dressen said, "but I told them it would have to be for more than one year."

Griffith said he planned to return to Washington tomorrow to talk with the club directors about a long-term pact for Dressen.

"That's a problem which will have to be settled by our board of directors," Griffith said. Griffith is the principal stockholder of the club and president of the six-man board.

Dressen made it clear that he would listen to any big league managerial offers he might get.

"I'm not asking for any," he emphasized. "I never have gone shopping in my life, but a front-office job would be something new for me. Managing a ball club is something I know. That's another reason I'm demanding a long-term contract in this new post."

Phants Shooting For Number Six

Greenville high school, with a 5-4 Northeastern Conference record thus far this year, will be shooting for number six tomorrow afternoon, when Roanoke Rapids visits Brookgreen Field.

The Phantoms lost their star pitcher Merrill Bynum this week due to scholastic difficulties. Coach Bo Farley stated today that "Bynum will be missed." The husky righhander was a consistent performer for GHS.

Expected to start for the Green tomorrow will be Charlie Staton.

Nat'l Golf Day Set For June 8

TOLDEO, Ohio (AP) — National Golf Day will be held at the Inverness Club here on Saturday, June 8, the Professional Golfers' Assn. has announced.

It will be the sixth annual event in which golfers throughout the country will put up $1 to match their score against that of Cary Middlecoff, 1956 National Open champion. In the past five years National Golf Day has resulted in a total of $542,750 being contributed to charity.

Uncertain As To Herb's Injuries

CLEVELAND (AP)—Not for two or three days-possibly longer-will doctors to able to tell how seriously Herb Score, Cleveland's southpaw strikeout king, was injured last night when a line drive struck him in the right eye.

The ball, hit by Gil McDougald, veteran New York Yankee infielder, knocked Score to the ground, but he remained conscious. Two cuts were inflicted-one along the eyebrow and the other on the side of his nose, and he bled profusely from the nose and mouth.

He could distinguish light from dark with the damaged eye, Dr. Don Kelly, Tribe physician, said after a preliminary examination.

"He could be perfectly all right, but we just won't know for two or three days," Kelly said.

His eye swathed in bandages, Score listened in a Lakeside Hospital bed to a radio broadcast of the late innings in which the Indians won their initial 1957 game with the Yankees 2-1.

The Pitch McDougald hit was only the 12th one Score threw, and it came on a 2-2 count. Score said, "it was right down the middle-maybe a little low-and probably straight as a string, and it came back that way."

"I didn't see the ball until it got a foot or two from my face. Then I saw too much of it."

Valdes Hopes To Improve Rating

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Nino Valdes, the Cuban ranked ninth among heavyweights, hopes to improve his rating in a nationally televised bout against Johnny Holman of Chicago tonight.

Valdes is established locally as a 2½-to-1 favorite for the bout, which is scheduled to start at 9 p.m. EST ABC-TV.

The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds, but both fighters predicted it would not go the limit, each announcing he was going for a knockout.

For Holman it is an opportunity to climb back into the top 10. He was knocked from the ratings after losing to second-ranked Eddie Machen and fourth-ranked Willie Pastrano.

Tebbetts Finds Another 9-Inning Pitcher, Things Are Looking Up

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

Birdie Tebbetts' unwavering faith in his much-maligned pitchers has begun to pay off for the "good - hit, no - pitch" Cincinnati Redlegs.

Last night, for the third game in succession, Tebbetts found a pitcher who could go nine innings. As a result the Redlegs have an eight-game inning streak, longest in the majors.

Hal Jeffcoat triumphed 9-2 over Brooklyn, putting Cincinnati half a game behind the second-place Dodgers.

The National League-leading Milwaukee Braves dropped an 8-4 decision to the Philadelphia Phillies as Robin Roberts stopped them with six hits. The New York Giants whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 8-5 and the Chicago Cubs took a 14-inning, 10-8 decision from Pittsburgh.

The Cleveland Indians nipped New York 2-1 to snap the Yankees' six-game winning streak but lost the services of Herb Score for an indefinite period. The prize southpaw was struck in the right eye by a hard-hit liner off the bat of Gil McDougald in the first inning.

Bob Lemon took over and held the Yankees to six hits for his second victory in six decisions. Tom Sturdivant, the loser, walked Rocky Colavito in the eighth with the bases full to force home the winning run.

The Yankees retained their half-game, first-place lead over the Chicago White Sox, who were beaten by the Boston Red Sox 4-3. Ted Williams drove in three runs with a single and his sixth home run. Tom Brewer hurled a three-hitter.

Kansas City beat Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings. Vic Power hit home runs on the first and last pitches of the Orioles' Hector Brown.

Detroit spoiled Cookie Lavagetto's managerial debut with Washington, defeating the Senators 5-3 behind the three-hit pitching of Paul Foytack.

The Reds pounded three Brooklyn pitchers for 14 hits, including run-scoring doubles by their hottest hitter, Don Hoak, who leads the league with a .410 batting average. Johnny Podres, who pitched the first seven innings for Brooklyn, was charged with his second defeat.

Warren Spahn suffered his first defeat of the season, after four victories, when the Phillies blasted Milwaukee pitching for 13 hits. Gram Hamner walloped a home run and single and Stan Lopata had a perfect day for the Phillies, three singles and a double.

The Giants pelted a pair of Cardinal hurlers for 15 hits, including home runs by Red Schoendienst and Dusty Rhodes.

Dale Long's two-run double climaxed the Cubs' four-run 14th inning rally against the Pirates.

A former Yankee, Gene Woodling, started the Yankees on their downfall. He singled with one out in the eighth and went to third when Al Smith popped a fly to right field which dropped in front of Hank Bauer and on which Bauer threw wild to second. A walk to Vic Wertz filled the bases. Roger Maris fanned before Co avito walked to force home th tie-breaking run.

Right-handed Dick Donovan o Chicago walked Williams three times — twice intentionally but the two times he didn't walk Ted it cost him. The Red Sox slugger singled in Boston's first run in the first inning and he drove in the Red Sox last two runs with a homer.

Ted Williams Is Enjoying Start, Still Cautious

CHICAGO (AP)—Ted Williams, Boston's temperamental thumper, is "happy to get off to such a good start" but warns it is too early to make batting title predictions.

Reluctant to talk at first after knocking in three runs with a single and a homer last night to lead Boston to a 4-3 victory over Chicago, Williams suddenly changed his mood and said:

"Sure I'm happy to get off to such a good start but it's early. I've only played 15 games and if I go 0-for-6 tomorrow my average will drop 150 points."

Williams, who is clipping along with a .453 average, was wrong. Should the still "splendid sprinter" get collard in six tries, which is unlikely, he'll drop to .406.

Williams' hitting and Tom Brewer's three-hit pitching kept the Red Sox in the thick of the pennant race, in third place 1½ games behind league-leading New York. Ted singled to left in the first to drive in a run and with Boston leading 2-1 in the ninth he blasted his sixth homer of the season with a man aboard. The White Sox remained in second place, ½ game behind the Yankees.

In between the two hits, Williams was walked three times—twice intentionally.

Williams' 400-foot homer proved to be the telling blow since Larry Doby slammed a two-run drive in the bottom of the ninth.

Williams, who at first made sure his interviewers weren't Boston writers, said he hit his home run "kind of good. I guess it was a fast ball."

The drive put Williams production far ahead of his 1956 pace when he didn't connect for No. 6 until mid-July and still finished with 24 homers.

Having missed four of Boston's last five games because of a chest cold and then getting hit by a pitched ball, Williams said he felt all right.

Guilford Golfers Win Team Title At Greensboro

GREENSBORO (AP)—Pat Brady of Guilford set a North State Conference golf tournament record yesterday with a two-under-par 140 for 36 holes.

The runnerup, Fred Sexton of East Carolina, finished 10 strokes behind with 150. Sexton was only two strokes behind Brady after first round play Monday.

Even though he shot a 78 today, Sexton edged John Broyhill of Appalachian, who had an 81. Broyhill was one stroke off the pace Monday with a 71. Broyhill and Fred Lloyd of Elon tied for third at 152.

All except Brady found the going tougher on the Starmount Forest Country Club course yesterday than on Monday. On the back nine, Brady had three birdies on the last six holes, which helped him to a two-under-par 34.

Guilford won the team championship with a score of 635. East Carolina was second with 669, Catawba third with 670, Appalachian fourth with 672, High Point fifth with 683 and Elon sixth with 686.

ECC Not Yet Out Of Running For Loop Crown

East Carolina's chances for capturing the North State baseball crown slipped a notch yesterday when Elon defeated Catawba, 3-1, but the Pirates "are not out of it, yet," according to Coach Jim Mallory.

With a 9-3 record, ECC is still in the running. Catawba, since their loss yesterday, are now tied with the Pirates for second place. Catawba has a 9-4 mark, but due to the fact that ECC plays two less games than the Indians, they are tied percentage-wise. With three games remaining on the Elon ticket—all of them this week—there is a chance that the Christians could also lose more games, throwing the league into a deadlock.

Elon Friday Night

The Pirates will have a chance to hand Elon one of those losses Friday night at Guy Smith Stadium. The game will be played under the lights on the new diamond and a good crowd is expected to attend the game. It could have a strong bearing on the outcome of the race.

Tickets for the game have been bought out completely by the College View Cleaners and Laundry, who are giving them away to anyone who ask for them. A spokesman for the firm stated today that the response thus far has been "fine." He said further that tickets may be obtained by going to the main station at 109 Grande Avenue, or either of the two sub-stations in Colonial Heights or on Fifth Street. "Also, our salesmen and drivers have been delivering them," the spokesman said.

Coach Jim Mallory has stated that he plans to send freshman George Williams on the mound against the Christians. Williams, a 180-pound fireballer from Shawboro, has been a consistent winner all season for the Bucs.

Game time Friday night is set at 8:00.

Some Few Surprises In N.C. Local Elections

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tuesday's elections were just a formality in many North Carolina communities but there were some surprises too.

In towns where the winners of the primary are considered elected, there was little enthusiasm on the part of residents. However, there were hot contests in such towns as Sparta, Carthage, Troy, and Mocksville.

Sparta Mayor T. Roy Burgiss was beaten by G. Glen Nichols, who was unseated by Burgiss two years ago. The vote was 167 to 137.

Carthage insurance man Jack Williams defeated A. L. Barnes for mayor by a vote of 250 to 156 in the race for mayor. Barnes had been mayor for eight years.

At Troy, Al J. Lincoln was elected mayor over R. L. White, who was seeking his fourth term. The unofficial tabulation was 180 to 171.

Mocksville Mayor John E. Durham was reelected to his fifth term. He defeated Fred Murphy, 417 to 204.

In a surprise turn of events at Starr, W. L. Grimsley, the only man to file for mayor, w. beaten by D. H. Cochran on a write-in vote.

Casey S. Fowler was elected mayor of Lillington, defeating Sidney G. Howell, 235 to 130.

In the biggest turnout for a city election in Raleigh in several years, voters elected seven councilmen and approved fluoridation of city water for the second time.

Guy Rawls, auto dealer, got 6,425 votes to top the field of 14 candidates for the council. The fluoridation proposal carried by 5,181 to 3,670. It previously was approved by a vote of 4,012 to 3,241.

James S. Smith was elected mayor of Charlotte and six incumbent councilmen were returned to office. Smith was without opposition. Former Mayor Phil Van Every retired after two terms.

Mayors W. H. Lowder of Mt. Gilead, W. I. Jenkins of Biscoe and D. W. Burkhead of Candor were returned to office unopposed.

Jesse Washburn was elected mayor at High Point. He was unopposed.

R. A. Ferguson was elected mayor at Gastonia without opposition. Gastonia voters also rejected by about a two to one margin a proposal to stagger the terms of city councilmen.

Emanuel Barber, a Negro, was elected to the Gastonia council for this third term. T. T. Morse, Negro councilman at Southern Pines was returned to office.

At Valdese, Valdo S. Martinat won a four-man race for mayor, succeeding Guy R. Cline, who had held the post for one term and who had been an alderman for 22 years.

Valdese voters turned down a proposal to fluoridate the town water by a vote of 454 to 289.

New mayors were elected in Black Mountain, Bakersville, Blowing Rock, Bryson City, Burnsville, Newland, Hayesville and Bostic.

Incumbents retained their seats in Columbus, Tryon, Hendersonville, Banner Elk, Rosman, Hot Springs, Marshall, Clyde, Weaverville, Robbinsville, Marion, Canton, Old Fort and Highlands.

Yadkinville elected R. V. Long to his third term as mayor. The first Negro ever to seek a seat on the Yadkinville Board of Town Commissioners, Richard Jarrett, was low man among 11 seeking the five seats on the board.

Ben G. Johnston was reelected mayor of Hillsboro without opposition.

Charlotte voters approved a four million dollar bond issue for expansion of Memorial Hospital by slightly less than a two to one margin, 7,269 to 4,587.

Politico Decides Remain On Fence

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Former Gov. John F. Simms, defeated in the last general election by Republican Edwin L. Mechem, recently announced he would spend most of his time mending fences.

Not political ones, he said. The cedar post and wire fences on his ranch near here need repair, he pointed out.

Decline Noted In Pitt ABC Sales

Sales in Pitt County's nine ABC stores through May 1 are $37,366.25 less than 1956 sales for a comparable period.

The sales are figured on completion of the tenth month of the fiscal year.

County ABC chairman J. W. Joyner reported to Pitt County commissioners Monday that in addition to the drop in total revenue, bottle sales are 20,112 less than for the comparable period in the 1956 fiscal year. Only two stores in the county's system have sold more bottles than they did in the 1956 period and only one of them has more revenue for 1957 than it did for 1956.

Store Number 8, in Greenville, has additional receipts of $14,587.60 and additional sales of 4,812 bottles. The Grimesland store has sold 228 more bottles but has lost $393.05 in revenue.

The losses in receipts range from $20,276.90 in Store Number 1 (Greenville) to the Grimesland loss. Losses in actual bottle sales range from 8,939 in Number 1 to 1,273 in the Bethel store.

Rotarians Hear Bethel Principal

BETHEL — The Bethel Rotary Club, at its meeting Tuesday night, heard talk on the Middle East by William Berry, Bethel Elementary School principal. After outlining this area on the maps, Berry stated, "This is an area alive with tension; therefore, it is imperative that we have a better knowledge of it and its peoples since our interests there are both economically and militarily."

A brief history of their religion, language, and customs was given. Then, stating that since it has about 50 per cent of the world's known oil reserve, it is an area watched by East and West alike.

Since this is primarily an Arab country, drawings of Arab dress were shown and a film showing the Middle East Powder Keg" on the rim of the Communist world was presented.

Geography Dept. Invited To Join In Map Program

Army Map Service, a branch of the U. S. Corps of Engineers in Washington, D. C., has invited the East Carolina College geography department to participate in a special map program. This program was organized in 1951 with 20 major universities participating.

The invitation to the East Carolina department is a unique one since the other participating institutions have large graduate departments, and a new school has not been added to the program for many years.

Army Map Service has extended this invitation because of the proximity of East Carolina to Washington, and because of the department's interest in developing this phase of geography. First offered at East Carolina in the spring of 1956, cartography has proved so popular that a second course will be offered next year. A total of 10 hours of college credit in cartography will then be available and will open many employment opportunities of geography graduates with courses in cartography.

The program as operated by Army Map Service includes supplying textbooks, materials for instructions, and exercises to the participating institutions. This program forms the cartography course itself, or is the foundation around which a course is built.

Emphasis is placed upon the applied aspects of map reading and map making together with work on practical problems and exercises. The program has been highly successful during the past six years, and employees at Army Map Service who took courses in one of the participating institutions is quite large.

East Carolina College has placed four geography graduates at Army Map Service during the past year.

Trio On Trial In Ambush Slaying

DOBSON, N.C. (AP)—Two women and a man faced a Surrey County Superior Court jury today as the state began to present evidence in the ambush slaying with which they are charged.

The state charged first degree murder against Mrs. Irene Holder Luster, 20, and Mrs. Mamie Luster, 36, both of Rt. 2, Pilot Mountain, and Amos Maynard, 40, of Rt. 1, Westfield.

The charges stem from the slaying of John Allen Branch, 58-year-old tenant farmer of Rt. 1, Pilot Mountain.

Johnny Liss Luster, 23, and Monroe Willard, 15, last week pleaded guilty to murder charges in the case and drew life sentences. Luster is the husband of the younger Mrs. Luster and stepson of the older. Willard lived on Rt. 2, Pilot Mountain.

The court yesterday spent 11 hours and went into a night session in selecting a jury. Attorneys questioned 56 prospective jurors before seating the final member of the panel at 8 p.m.

The attorneys selected four farmers, three housewives, two salesmen, a department store manager, a loan company vice president and a tobacco company worker.

Relative Few Of Hidden Heart Ailments Turn Up

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A study of hidden heart disease showed today that available medical techniques can spot only a small percentage of the seemingly healthy people who are about to develop that trouble.

Among 1,652 people found by various procedures to be normal, heart disease developed within 30 months in 52 of them and potential heart disease in 46 others. Thirteen of these 1,652 actually died of heart trouble in the 2½ years.

At the same time 30 out of 80 people who originally showed suspicion of heart disease had no cardiac symptoms after the 30 months. And 11 out of 165 people spotted as heart cases in the initial test turned out to have normal hearts 2½ years later.

Also among the 165 detected heart cases and the cases which developed among normal people in the 30 months there were 26 deaths from coronary disease. Examination techniques detected advance signs of coronary trouble in only 6 of the 26.

These findings were reported to the California Medical Assn. by a group of investigators headed by Dr. L. S. Goerke, assistant dean of the Public Health School of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The electrocardiogram had a batting average of only 29.3 per cent in diagnosing heart disease in normal people who were found to have suspicious signs. It showed abnormal readings in 249 persons who later were found to have no heart trouble.

The study included X-ray examinations which showed 688 of the group had abnormal heart shadows but further tests determined that 544 of them had no cardiac trouble. Thirty months later 60 of these 544 had either heart disease or potential cardiac trouble or were dead. Not all of these deaths, however, were from heart causes.

Dr. Goerke said the tests indicated the prevalence of heart disease among the general population is 73 per 1,000 persons.

Stranded Birds Appear Neurotic

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—More than a dozen sparrows marooned on an oil drilling rig off the Louisiana shore for seven months are showing signs of turning neurotic.

"The sparrows can't see land and they're afraid to fly," reported Ross Cummings, public relations direrctor for Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc. "In fact they hardly ever fly."

The birds built nests on the rig when it was under construction at Pascagoula, Miss. They stayed when it was floated into the Gulf of Mexico in the east Cameron area last November. They live on scraps tossed to them by workmen.

Plain Stability Now Watchword Of Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Stability is the key to business thinking these days. A sideways movement for the economy as a whole is what the majority is now predicting, rather than a pronounced downturn which many feared earlier in the year.

The big question, then, is whether something will come along late this year to set off another upward surge after the breather. Many stock traders are betting that something will.

And bankers point out that the Federal Reserve Board's thinking appears to be along that same line.

They note that the board hasn't relaxed the tight credit policy as it was urged to do when fears of a recession were widespread. The board, they say, seems to hold that after the sideways movement has continued for a time—perhaps through the summer—inflationary pressures will build up again, with a new boom as likely as not.

Bank economists recall that in 1953 when a recession was sighted in the making, the Federal Reserve reversed its tight money policy and made credit easy in an effort to hold the line and encourage spending. This time apparently it hasn't been as impressed with early signs of, or fear of, a recession.

What could set off a new upturn? It could be increased consumer buying—like the splurge in 1955 of going into debt for new cars, appliances and homes.

It could be increased government spending—by federal, state and local agencies—coming on top of a continuing high level of business spending for new plants and particularly for new equipment. Fresh war scares and costlier weapons could keep defense spending rising steadily.

And it could be a less spectacular thing, a shift in business thinking that by fall would reverse the current policy of trimming or holding down inventories. Some industries already contend that their customers have gone about as far as they can in living off their inventories and must soon step up their ordering.

None of these possible forces to set off an upturn is in sight now, however. The over-all sideways trend—in which strength in some lines offsets weakness in others—appears to most observers as likely to be with us for awhile. Since this leveling off is at a very high level, and since the adjustments in the depressed industries aren't spreading, the general business sentiment is one of confidence again.

CHAPTER 16

"What on earth," Nora demanded, "are you doing?" Tom Jones, who was squatting on the floor in front of her bedroom door, looked up at her.

"Putting on a new lock. Anyone who can get in now will have to be good."

"Do you think they'll try again?"

Seeing her stricken expression, he said quickly, "Not a chance. This is purely for its moral effect on you."

"Oh." After a moment she added, "Thank you very much. It was a thoughtful thing to do."

He put the key in the lock, tried it several times, stood up and handed it to her with a flourish. "Your friend Potter didn't waste any time getting here, did he?" Seeing her startled look, he added, "I heard you call him, you know, so when you were all dewy-eyed surprise at his turning up I was interested."

"He's an old friend."

"A detective?"

"Heavens, no. He's a kind of unofficial friend - in - need. You could tell him anything, trust him with anything."

"He is also a very competent guy," Tom told her. "He found the picture of Candy that disappeared. Someone had torn it up and thrown it in the trash.

"Well," he turned away, turned back as she stood at her door unmoving. "You aren't still afraid, are you?"

"Not really. I just don't want to go to sleep."

"Come on then." He caught her arm. There was no one in the lobby and he got a jacket for her from the closet and propelled her outside. As she started toward the parking lot he said, "Oh, no, you don't. You aren't going to ride, you are going to run."

"Run!"

"Down to the beach," he directed. "Take off your shoes."

She looked at him in blank astonishment. "What on earth—"

"Take them off."

She stepped out of her pumps and he set them on a bench. "Now then, we're going to run down to the end of the beach."

"You're crazy."

He held her hand tight and dragged her along at a jog-trot. She broke into a run to keep up with him. When they had reached the end he turned around. "You run like a duck," he jeered at her.

Like a duck, was it? She began to run freely and easily. He dropped her hand but kept at her side. When they had reached the far end she dropped down on the bench, panting and laughing.

He reached for her pumps, bent over and put them on for her. "Your feet are damp from the sand. Go upstairs and soak them in hot water. Then hit the sack."

He straightened up, touched her jacket, her chin, bent over deliberately and kissed her. "Well," he seemed a trifle breathless, "off you go."

"You," she began.

"Therapeutic," he assured her. "Just to take your mind off your troubles. Good night, Nora." He added, "Lock your door."

But she didn't lock it that night. On the second floor Olive Riddle was staring at the new lock, her hand on the door knob.

Sitting on the veranda in the dark, Mr. Potter addressed himself wrathfully. Why do I have to get involved in situations like this? The detached onlooker, that's the stuff. Entertaining without involvment. But the words were empty and he knew it. He could not help being involved. He could not blind himself to the brooding atmosphere of the inn. He could not be detached while something ugly was in preparation.

The core of the trouble was Nora, and he could not make up his mind about her. The girl was surrounded by ill will. But it was Nora herself who had bothered him; the occasional blankness in her eyes, the dreams all added up to something unpleasant. What lay behind Nora's dreams?

He drew on a cigarette, watching it glow in the dark, and then ground it out under his heel. He felt in his picket where he had stowed the torn pieces of Candy Kendrick's photograph. Who had tried to dispose of it? And why had it been sent to Nora? Above all, who had attempted to smother her the night before? The answer to that question seemed more immediate, more pressing even than a solution to the murder of Candy Kendrick.

At the moment all the evidence pointed in one direction. The answer seemed inescapable, which, he consoled himself, was one reason for doubting its validity. It was too neat. Somewhere he had missed something.

A wind rose in the dark, set the leaves to rustling. Aware that he was getting chilled, he went inside, lifted the hinged counter that shut off the office from the lobby, settled himself at the telephone and made a long-distance call. After a long wait a sleepy voice answered.

"Sam? . . . Yes. Have you a paper and pencil handy? . . . I want a line on the following people, their financial situation, any brush with the law, whatever you can pick up . . . All right, here goes:

"Charles Deming, retired broker, New York City; his son, Frank, graduated in June from Brown; Tom Jones, supposed to be a tutor . . . I know you can't get needles out of haystacks but . . . Okay, keep your shirt on. Next, Mrs. Olive Riddle, widow. Home in Boston . . . Too fast? All right. Next, Stuart Young . . . I know the police checked on him . . . Bert Huger and his wife, Hazel Pendleton Huger. They come from Boston but you'd have to go back about ten years. Esther Garrison, registered nurse. She worked in the Stanleyville hospital last year . . . Howard Ives, druggist, also of Stanleyville . . . Candida Kendrick . . . Well, find out who her art agent was in New York, what family she has living, any close friends. . . . Oh, there's one more thing. See what you can get on Nora Pendleton . . . No, I was thinking rather of sanitoria, so-called rest homes, something of that kind." About each person Mr. Potter provided what information he had.

Mr. Potter put down the telephone. There had been a sound somewhere. He listened. There it was again, a tapping sound. A woman's high heels clicked on the stairs, although she seemed to be moving cautiously. Then, so quickly that it was difficult to follow the sequence, there was a loud gasp, a scream, high and terrified, a crash, a bumping sound, silence.

Mr. Potter knocked against the counter in his haste to lift it. By the time he had got through to the lobby, doors were opening, voices were calling. Olive Riddle lay in a heap at the foot of the stairs in a blue velvet robe, one leg twisted under her, one arm dangling, a high-heeled silver mule on the floor. Her head was turned at an improbable angle. Her eyes stared sightlessly at Mr. Potter. He knelt beside her. She was dead.

Finn speaks up: "As Nora's attorney, I suggest that you leave things in my hands. I've heard of your exploits, Potter, and frankly I don't care for them." Continue Chapter 17, here tomorrow.

Racers To Face Varied Charges

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Several young men, arrested early Sunday by combined operations of a State Highway Patrol "wolf pack" and "under-cover" patrol cars, will be tried in Union County Recorder's Court May 17 on charges of highway racing or trespassing.

Patrolmen arrested 30 to 35 men at a raid on a drag race at Fairview, 12 miles north of here. Officers said they hid their patrol cars in barns along U.S. 601 the night before to avoid being spotted by radio-equipped sentinels which the racers had spotted along the race route.

The raiders were assisted by a Highway Patrol "wolfpack" which had been cracking down on traffic law violators on U.S. 74. Officers said the hidden patrol cars came out to chase the racers, while the other patrol cars set up a roadblock north of Fairview.

Patrolmen said two racing vehicles reached speeds of 90 to 100 miles an hour.

Meanwhile, other officers descended on a group around a starting point for the racers, bonfire, arresting them on trespassing charges. Several vehicles, apparently abandoned, were hauled to Monroe.

Arrested were young men from several Union County points, cities in neighboring Mecklenburg County, Concord, and Mint Hill.

The raid was directed by Sgt. F. W. Reynolds and Cpl. A. C. Bovender.

'Pirates' Catch Navy Napping; Board Carrier

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Ten Sydney University students in pirate dress boarded the U. S. aircraft carrier Bennington before reveille Tuesday.

They climbed unchallenged to the bridge and sent 2,500 American officers and sailors to battle stations by sounding the general alarm.

It was more than five minutes before the ship's company realized they were victims of a Commemoration Day prank.

The gaily garbed students slipped aboard the carrier from a small launch about 6 a. m. Officers on the bridge were taken by surprise, and could not prevent one youth from pulling the action-stations alarm.

One officer later said the prank was taken in the spirit in which it was intended, but "they certainly gave us one mighty scare."

The Bennington, which arrived at Sydney May 1 in connection with Australian celebrations of Coral Sea Week, left Sydney Tuesday for Pearl Harbor and San Diego.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was slightly higher early this afternoon with aircrafts and rails showing strength. A few oils also moved ahead.

After opening mostly with gains, some groups ran into mild trouble. Metals weakened and steels slid back for small fractional losses.

Activity was fairly brisk early and then simmered down to a routine pace. It still ran above yesterday's volume.

In the rail section Pennsylvania jumped around a point, a rare move for this stock. Buying evidently was based on an estimate yesterday by the road's president that 1957 earnings "should be as good as, if not somewhat better than, last year."

These cheerful remarks perked up a little interest in other rails, too. Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central and Southern Railway were among the better gainers.

Aircrafts moved ahead for the second straight day. Douglas and United added more than a point. Fractional gains were registered in North American and Boeing.

General Tire continued active, but suffered from profit - taking after its 9 point gain of the previous session.

Peninsular Telephone moved up several points to a new high for the year, reflecting news directors of General Telephone had approved purchase of Peninsular by General. There was no sign of unusual demand in General.

Poor earnings reports continued to plague metals, particularly coppers, Kennecott led the group lower.

Scattered selling entered Bethlehem Steel on news the company had closed three more open hearth furnaces at Lackawanna, N.Y. It was the weakest stock in the generally easier steel section.

Gulf Oil jumping more than 3 points, stood out in a mostly higher oil list. Chemicals also were mostly ahead, paced by American Cyanamid.

Motors and utilities were mixed with rather small price changes in both cases.

Caterpillar Tractor raced up several points to a new high for the year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 30 cents at $181.50 with the industrials up 20 cents, the rails up $1.10 and the utilities down 10 cents.

Greenville Woman Found Dead In River

REMOVING THE BODY—The body of Ellen Barrett is being removed from the river. Due to high banks and dense undergrowth it was necessary for members of the local Rescue Squad to tow the victim for a short distance before the body could be transferred to land. Coroner Griffin Rouse ruled the drowning suicide. (Reflector Staff Photo).

The muddy waters of the Tar River has claimed another victim.

A Negro fisherman, Marion Blanco, discovered the body of a Greenville Negro woman caught on a snag yesterday afternoon about 3:15. The body was fully clothed.

Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse identified the woman as Ellen Barrett, 58-year-old resident of 301 Cadillac St. Rouse ruled the drowning "an apparent case of suicide."

The woman, according to her husband, Robert Barrett, had been missing since about 2 a.m. yesterday. Earlier in the morning several members of the volunteer rescue squad had searched the banks of the river but were unable to find any trace of a body.

Another call was received by the local Police Department later in the morning concerning the woman's disappearance but no trace of her could be found until the fisherman made his discovery early in the afternoon. Henry Brown, a companion of Blanco, who was fishing on the river bank at the time, called members of the Greenville Fire Department.

The body was found near the new U. S. bypass bridge. It is generally felt by investigating officers that the woman jumped from one of the several high banks near the scene where her body was discovered.
