READ WHAT BILLY GRAHAM SAYS ABOUT JIMMIE JOHNSON!

BILLY GRAHAM
September 14, 1953

Mr. Jimmy Stroud
Memphis Union Mission
107-11 Poplar Avenue
Memphis 1, Tennessee

Dear Jimmy:

Thank you for yours of September 2. In my opinion, Jimmie Johnson has no peer in evangelism today. His evangelism is church integrated, sane, sensible, Biblical, searching and challenging. I have recommended him all over the United States. He and I have been friends for many years. In my opinion, he is one of the great men of God of our day. He has had a profound influence in my life.

God bless you, Jimmy. We think of you constantly.

Your pal,
Billy Graham

NOT SO LONG AGO...

It doesn't seem so long since she was a little girl herself, picking out a card for her mother on Mother's Day. Yet this morning there was a card at the breakfast table, reading, "To Mommy, with love..."

On this day, she feels a special meaning as she goes to church with her little girl's white-gloved hand clasped tightly in hers. As they kneel in prayer together a wave of tenderness comes over her, and as she looks at the small figure by her side she at once feels grateful to God for making her a mother, and awed by the responsibility which is hers.

She prays God to endow her with the qualities all mothers need: common sense, a touch of humor, tenderness, wisdom, the capacity for comfort, a large measure of courage, quick laughter, and just a dash of sternness. And she is deeply thankful that in this, the most important task of her life, she has her Faith and her Church to guide her.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Fictional Possibilities In Eastern N.C. Noted By Pierce

They Could Share Belt-Tightening

We find it rather unusual that the President should take his budgetary and foreign aid problems back "to the people" at this late stage of the game. They can solve nothing for him.

The Congressional timetable leaves little opportunity for a new ground-swell of public opinion; and even if this were not so, a clear mandate hardly seems likely in view of the Administration's own confusion over what is wanted.

It would appear that President Eisenhower could more profitably address his remarks directly to Congress. The lawmakers are the ones who will have to decide one way or another.

On one point all are agreed: the national budget is fantastically huge. Expensive tastes in government are easy to acquire; so difficult to curtail.

Taxpayers will understand the need to strengthen allies and win friends and influence people. They can understand that when their homeland is confronted by a foreign menace, measures for meeting that menace can be costly.

What they cannot understand is the great divergence of opinion as to what is necessary and what is not; how much is "luxury," how much is essential; how much is waste, how much is utilized to the greatest possible extent.

We think Americans would have no hesitation in footing even larger federal outlays than presently proposed . . . if they were convinced there was no other way to meet the crisis, and they knew money was being doled out with an eye to getting a dollar's worth of return on each dollar spent.

Unhappily, their experience has not been so reassuring.

There is a strong suspicion that "Business as Usual" attitudes prevail among the free-spending crowd; and that instead of tightening their own belts during this protracted period of emergency, some bureaucrats are passing the belt-tightening process back to the taxpayers.

In turn, this suspicion give rise to another thought; that scores of money-spending schemes on the domestic front are needlessly branded "necessary," or highly desirable. On the international scene, there is another stack of expensive programs, all labeled "must" or "should do".

Myth Of 'They' Handed Setback

By ELMER ROESSNER

The myth of a "they" in business was set back a bit by the recent "business war game" held by the American Management Association in its New York headquarters.

You hear about "they" frequently. You are told that "they" are planning to push prices up a little further, or that "they" really would like a little recession because it would get labor off their backs, or that "they" are shifting investments from durables to soft goods.

Many people believe in the reality of this "they." They believe there is a cabal consisting of giants of business who think alike and who, with a raise of an eyebrow or a flick of a cigarette, coordinate their activities to control the market, politics and the country.

NO COMMON CONCEPTS

This myth always fades when efforts are made to pin it down. It faded again in a rather curious way.

The A.M.A. gathered 21 big-shot corporation presidents together, divided them up as executives of five imaginary corporations, gave them imaginary plants, inventory and capital and set them to work producing and selling a common, competitive and equally imaginative product.

The executives were called upon to make decisions on price, research and development, marketing, marketing research and plant expansion and contraction. Decisions were fed into an IBM electronic machine which, on a basis of pre-arranged formulas, reported how much those decisions meant in sales and assets.

This wasn't for fun. It was a test of the game which the A.M.A. will use to teach decision-making in management seminars later on.

"THEY" USUALLY AT ODDS

In five hours the teams went through two years and three months of decision-making. Each team made gains, which was not unexpected because an expanding market had been built into the electronic formula.

But the decisions of each team were always at variance. When the team of Alfred E. Perkin, president of the New York Central, was cutting prices, the team of Patrick B. McGinnis, president of the Boston & Maine, was raising theirs. When the team of Don G. Mitchell, Sylvania chairman, was spending like crazy for marketing and market research, the group captained by Wayne J. Holman, Jr., Chicopee president, was trimming research investments. And when the team of H. Bruce Palmer, Mutual Benefit Life president, was expanding production facilities, at least two other teams were selling off excess plants. And so it went, hour after hour. Any time any two of the prototype groups of "theys" did exactly the same thing, it was pure coincidence.

While the game proves that top management does not think alike, it does not necessarily prove that management does not sometimes act in concert. At the start, Franc M. Riccardi, A.M.A. vice president running the game, laid down the rule that teams must not talk with other teams. No price fixing, no mergers, no combinations in restraint of trade.

NO SHARES FOR CONSUMERS.

The presidents also set back another myth. During the game, every team spent a lot of imaginary money for "research and development," thereby lowering the cost of producing the imaginary product.

Sometimes they cut prices. But each time they did it was in an effort to gain a larger share of the market. Never once was it to "pass savings along to consumers."

This corresponds to real life experience. Somewhere, someone some company may have cut its price to pass savings along. But practically all price cuts have been to meet competitors' prices, to bring prices down to what the market will pay, or gain a larger share of total sales.

"We're passing savings on to you!" is usually a big white lie intended to call attention to low prices and win customer good will.

It should be remembered that the top-heavy government outlays are laid to emergency conditions and should be of a temporary nature. All such spending must be weighed in the light of what we can do without for the present, and what we cannot do without.

If this country should ever spend itself out of circulation, it won't be the necessary operating expenses that will do the job. Instead, it will be the non-essential frills.

Drop All Exemptions? Sounds Like An Idea

At a House Committee hearing this week, North Carolina's proposed new minimum wage bill was again kicked around with no new conclusions apparently made.

The most outstanding contribution we've read of that session was made by a spokesman for the opposition, J. C. B. Ervinghaus, Jr. He was serving as general counsel for the North Carolina Hotel Association.

In explaining his fears that a 75 cents hourly minimum wage law would do more harm than good, he threw in one suggestion that in its simplicity is a joy to behold. "If you really want to do something for North Carolina," he said, "enact a bill without a single exemption".

Living with today's inflated prices, it's not easy to understand a standard wage under that 75-cent minimum; and we can envision the economic benefits North Carolina might reap with a higher income among the very group who apparently need it most.

Doing away with all exemptions, which weaken the ultimate benefits of the bill, would be well worth the trouble to re-evaluate by all parties concerned.

Industry Seeking N.C. Suppliers

By LYNN NISBET

INTELLIGENT — An idea conceived by Henry Maubert, purchasing agent for the Westinghouse plant at Raleigh, resulted in a meeting at the plant which was unique in North Carolina industrial history and termed by Governor Hodges as a "farseeing and intelligent approach" to a problem.

Westinghouse invited 175 manufacturers and processors in the State, who might be in position to supply the company with raw materials now being bought from out of the state, to see if they could supply the materials. The Westinghouse plant is now buying about $750,000 worth of materials and supplies each month, only $10,000 from North Carolina firms, the rest from other states and foreign countries.

A large number of items can be made here in quality and quantity suitable for Westinghouse needs. The making of these items here would add to State income and would save the plant thousands of dollars in freight.

The guest suppliers held a sort of clinic with Westinghouse officers for a couple of hours, followed by a luncheon and a tour of the plant. At the clinic details of plant needs were discussed.

Later Manager J. A. Babcock told the guests that members of the staff were available that day for personal conferences, or would visit the suppliers in their home offices to further develop the plan. He noted that in addition to the technical items required to go into the making of watt hour meters, a plant as big as this needs a lot of house-keeping and maintenance equipment.

Governor Hodges said it was the first time he had known of a big corporation calling in a lot of people and asking them to "please sell us something." Usually the shoe is on the other foot, and the burden of making contact is on the seller.

OPPORTUNE — The timing of the conference was opportune. It came just at the time the finance subcommittees were giving favorable reports to the administration tax revision laws and the prospect of new industry lends force to arguments that the revised laws will promote industrial development.

Figures recently obtained by sponsors of the tax changes show that last year there was spent a total of $36 billion dollars for new and expanded industrial plants in the United States. North Carolina got about $140 million, or less than one half of one percent. That tends to confirm the argument that we are keeping pace with other states, although it does not answer the question of why we are not.

GHOSTS — A familiar ghost stalked the Senate chamber Thursday. During nearly two hours debate on the bill to require applicants for automobile license plates to display a certificate that the vehicle had been listed for ad valorem taxes in the county, many references were made to the ill-fated mechanical inspection law of 1949. That ghost has walked before in debates over bills tending to strengthen enforcement of safety laws.

The tax listing bill also afforded another instance of conflict in interests among small counties and big ones. Generally the little fellows wanted the law, the big boys argued it would impose an impossible burden on their tax offices. After two or three amendments and a motion to send it back to a committee had been defeated, the bill was voted down 23 to 16.

Admittedly one of the most compelling arguments against it was that it would stir up more revolt among the people than mechanical inspection ever did.

REAL ESTATE BOARD — Prospects are very bright for licensing board for real estate brokers and salesmen. Efforts to bring a workable law on this point have failed in nearly every Legislature since the supreme court some 15 years ago ruled unconstitutional a board which operated in fewer than half the counties.

The present bill, which has passed the Senate appears to be acceptable to lawyers in the House, since it has been amended to make sure that real estate agents cannot practice law, although lawyers can deal in real estate.

Instances were cited to the committee of real estate men obtaining money from clients under false pretense in such manner as to make criminal indictment difficult. It was noted that real estate brokers handle more money belonging to other people than any business or profession except banking. Lawyers also handle a lot of money belonging to other people, but bankers and lawyers are regulated by licensing boards as well as being subject to the same civil and criminal laws as other citizens. Every State in the Union has a law comparable to that which here except Massachusetts, Rhode Island and North Carolina.

There are 2,661 real estate agents in North Carolina who have paid Schedule B privilege license tax. Spokesmen for the bill estimates there were almost as many doing business without the license.

The General Assembly has not taken kindly to increasing the number or extending authority of licensing boards. The Supreme Court recently outlawed the title contractors licensing board. Sen. Pat Cooke of Gaston, author of the bill, pointed to the difference between such "innocuous occupations" as tile layers and dry cleaners on the one hand and those acting in fiduciary capacity like lawyers and realtors.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOUL'S REAL ENEMY

What is the greatest obstacle in the living of an upright moral life?

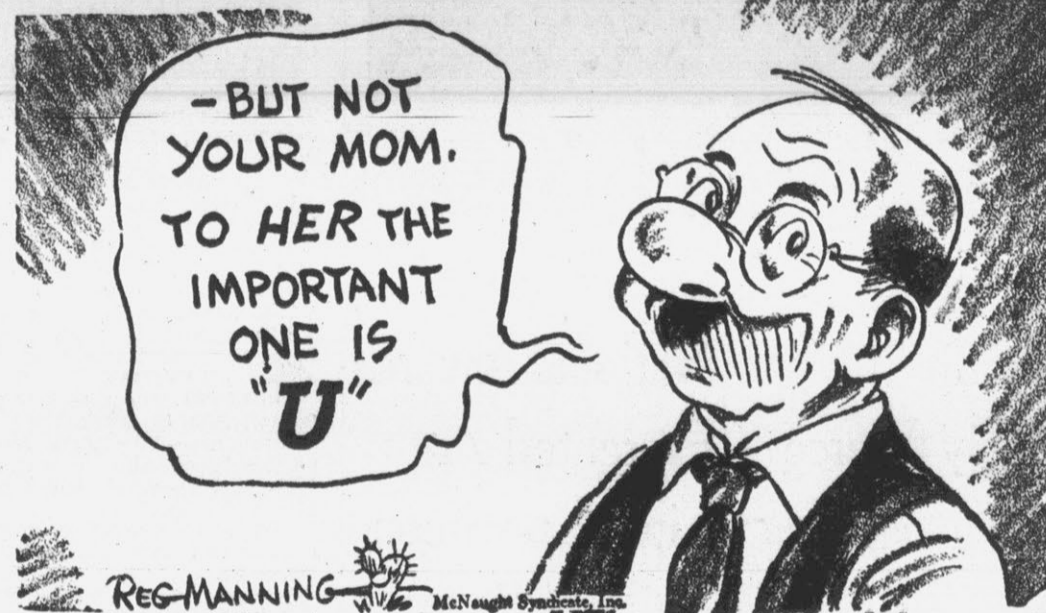

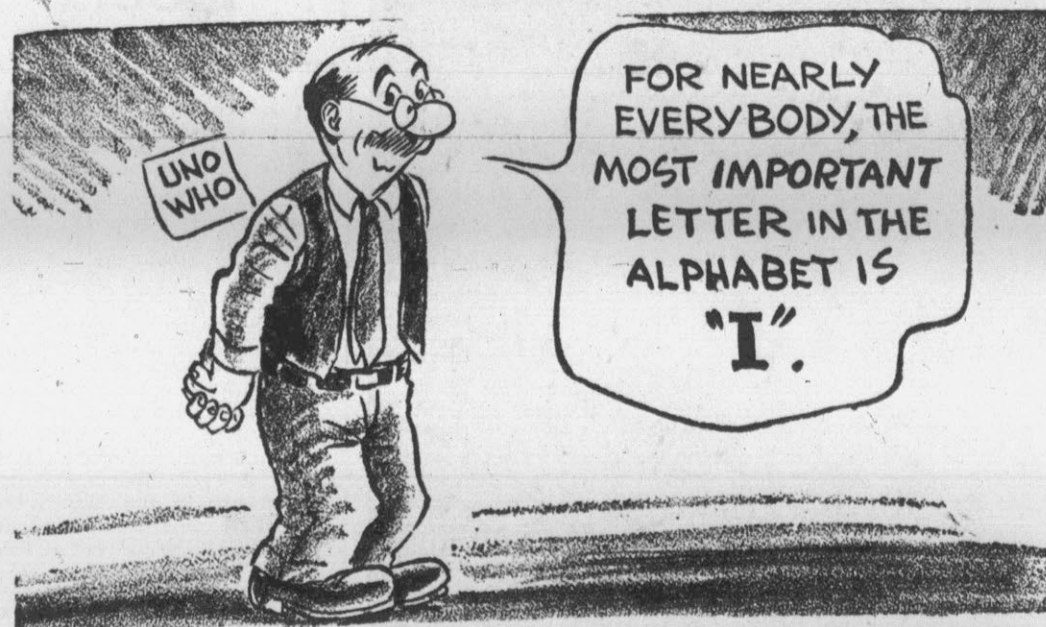

Undoubtedly it is compromise. Occasionally we are overcome by some great temptation. Usually, however, we descend from higher ideals to lower by an incline which is sometimes so gradual that we are not conscious of the fact that we are on the way down. Some little compromise, almost unnoticed at the time it was made, results later in a transgression of such size and significance that our whole life may be shaken to its foundations. We may shrug our shoulders today over a little dereliction, but tomorrow it may involve us in no end of trouble.

But one of the most appalling things about moral decline is that often we come to the end of the road without the realization that we have hurt and damaged our souls to a serious extent. Many a man who at the end of his life admires himself and is admired by others is doubtless looked upon by God with stern displeasure. Thrift easily becomes avarice. Striving sometimes grows into ambition which dominates and warps the lives of others. Cherished grudges become with the passing of the years inveterate hatreds. Evil thoughts establish mental patterns hard to change.

And the whole descent begins with a little compromise — that compromise which is the most deadly and subtle foe of the human soul.

Mother's Letter

By JIMMY ELLIS Rescuer Of The Meat Loaf

I was almost a hero Thursday evening.

My Fair Gwen, the Wee Urchin and I were expecting company for supper (we refuse to urbanize and call the evening meal "dinner") and the late afternoon hours were filled with the hustle and bustle that has a way of coming with company.

When such situations arise, we try to split up the chores so that everything runs smoothly. My Fair Gwen moved into the kitchen in the same fashion Stoneval Jackson used at First Bull Run. Wee Urchin and I went the other way, into the living room, where a few mopping up arrangements were necessary.

Chow call was sounded early for the Wee One, and I prepared to handle that while My Fair Gwen worked on the cooking. Wee Urchin, cooperative little cuss that he is, dallied over his bowl of cereal and glass of milk — perhaps with the idea that the longer he could keep me in the dining room, the less I would have to do in the pots and pan's department.

Number one item on the menu was meat loaf, a culinary treat the way My Fair Gwen fixes it. She was zipping around the kitchen (it's big enough to be zipped in), peeping occasionally into the oven to check that meat loaf.

Both My Fair Gwen and I got involved with what we were doing, and ignored the meat loaf in the process. Suddenly she called from the kitchen.

"Honey," she said, "you'll have to do something with this eye. It's smoking."

I left Wee Urchin between bites and moved into the kitchen to survey the situation. Sure enough, the eye was smoking.

My Fair Gwen allowed as how she would check the meat loaf while I was checking the eye and stooped down to open the oven door. She was greeted with a great cloud of smoke.

I, of course, being the man of the house since Wee Urchin was momentarily confined to his high chair, gently removed her coughing personality from the kitchen and went back to investigate. By the time I got back and opened the oven door the whole oven was blazing away.

"Save the meat loaf! Get it out of there!" were my instructions from the Chief, who tossed the words over her shoulder as she and Wee Urchin abandoned the house. I braved the flames and pulled it out, all the while quietly trying to determine just what the devil had happened.

I figured out that grease had evidently splashed onto the floor of the oven. That's what was blazing away so brightly.

I debated for a moment about whether or not to call Fire Chief George Gardner and three or four of his boys to help me out. I finally decided I could handle it.

I closed the oven door, walked to the back porch and wondered whether or not the smoke would mess up the house before the fire burned itself out. It didn't.

I lost my chance to be a hero by simply ignoring the fire. I guess I just realized there was little I could do except see that it didn't get out hand, which just about ruined all chances of being a hero.

On second thought, though, maybe I was a hero.

I saved the meat loaf.

Other Editors Saying --- Live Your Own Life

(Jackson (Miss.) Daily News)

Want to stay young? Then don't let other people put you into a social strait-jacket. In short, be yourself. That's the advice of New York State's Senator Thomas C. Desmond, who urges men and women of middle age and over to start living their own lives.

"Don't mind being called eccentric, if your eccentricities make sense to you," says Sen. Desmond in the Journal of Lifetime Living.

Throughout history, the great men and women have been those who dared challenge senseless taboos and cared nothing about keeping up with the Joneses. Pasteur did not abide by the traditions of the Joneses that find their way even into science. Ford ignored the business practices of the Joneses of commerce. Frank Lloyd Wright achieved success by ignoring the stick-in-the-mud architectural conventions.

Many older people are often made "elderly" simply because they let themselves be cast into stereotyped roles we commonly associate with age. The Joneses of the world may approve of mature men and women sitting in rockers, caring for grandchildren or putting around house and garden. But they look askance at anything they think is not "dignified."

Some taboos may, of course, have a basis for existence because they are designed to help protect an older person's health, safety or well-being. But many, if not most, are simply remnants of the Victorian era.

"My plea is not to play the fool at 50 or 60 or 80. It is simply not to be hog-tied by unreasonable taboos," says Sen. Desmond. "Examine the restrictions on your activities, your way of life, and your way of thinking imposed by others. Then start living your own life!"

STILL THE GREATEST BARGAIN

(Huntington (W.Va.) Herald-Advertiser)

The cost of publishing newspapers continues to increase and more and more newspapers are finding it necessary to pass some of these increases along to subscribers.

During the past year, almost 100 of the 1,738 American daily English-language newspapers increased subscription and newsstand prices. A total of 379 of these dailies now sell for 6, 7 or 10 cents per copy.

It is safe to say that all these increases were made reluctantly. From the days of the "penny papers," which first appeared in the 1830's, newspaper publishers have sought the widest possible readership at the lowest possible circulation rates, with advertisers paying the largest part of operational costs.

The formula is still universally followed. Even at the highest prices charged by any American daily, readers pay only a fraction of the cost of the paper they buy.

Considering the vital news, the entertainment and information about the "best buys" in merchandise, which the newspaper alone supplies, it is still the greatest bargain in the country today.

I, of course, being the man of the house since Wee Urchin was momentarily confined to his high chair, gently removed her coughing personality from the kitchen and went back to investigate. By the time I got back and opened the oven door the whole oven was blazing away.

I debated for a moment about whether or not to call Fire Chief George Gardner and three or four of his boys to help me out. I finally decided I could handle it.

I closed the oven door, walked to the back porch and wondered whether or not the smoke would mess up the house before the fire burned itself out. It didn't.

I lost my chance to be a hero by simply ignoring the fire. I guess I just realized there was little I could do except see that it didn't get out hand, which just about ruined all chances of being a hero.

On second thought, though, maybe I was a hero.

I saved the meat loaf.

No Comfort For 'Conservatives'

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Russia's greatest bluff since the Berlin airlift crisis has been called by the anti-Communist nations from Northern Europe to the Middle East, with a score of small nations daring to defy the Kremlin under the economic and military leadership of the United States.

The current month of May, the Reds' period of proletarian festival, may mark a turning point in the 10-year-old cold war.

This defiance has coincided, and not accidentally, with this country's most martial gestures in peacetime since the days of Theodore Roosevelt, when he sent the "White Fleet" around the world as a warning to Japan and Germany. Diplomats everywhere attribute our apparent success in current difficulties to the Administration's audacity, although the drama is not yet ended.

ANGER IN MOSCOW

Khrushchev and Bulganin fumed and fulminated against these aggressive actions. They sent sharp notes to every pro-Western capital, threatening them with possible atomic destruction. They underwrote these warnings by staging five atomic explosions in less than a month. With typical ineptitude, they produced several obviously phony offers of disarmament and aerial inspection.

But the small nations did not respond to the stick or the carrot brandished in Moscow. In equally strong answers, they informed the Kremlin that the question of national security and the means to maintain it were nobody's business but their own. Finland, less than an hour's flight from Russian airfields, took this moment to elect its most rabid anti-Communist as Prime Minister.

These Kremlin inconsistencies — the threats and the peace proposals — convince the State Department that a feeling of frustration has befallen the commissars. P. D. B. and Churchill admittedly "babied" Stalin during World War II lest he make a separate peace with Germany.

About That Budget

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's budget and his foreign aid program will still be big news for weeks to come. He had offered a record peace-time budget of almost 72 million dollars, including $4,400,000,000 in foreign aid.

Nothing in Eisenhower's four White House years has exceeded the confusion over this budget. The end is not in sight.

Eisenhower had insisted his budget was as tight as he could make it. When the reaction set in — demands in and out of Congress for cuts — he had second thoughts and began talking of ways reductions could be made.

Most of them were bookkeeping reductions. Money he suggested be skipped this year would have to be voted in another year. So the reductions were postponements.

Four months of this session of Congress have passed and he still hasn't explained to the lawmakers in detail why he wants the foreign aid money or what he'll do with it. He'll do his explaining in a special message to Congress next week.

Meanwhile, after watching demands for budget cuts mount, Eisenhower has decided to make two broadcasts, appealing to the public to put pressure on Congress to ease up on its zeal for axing the budget.

In preparation for the message he sends to Congress next week, Eisenhower called congressional leaders to the White House. He suggested, as he had previously, that as much as 500 million might be chopped off foreign aid.

Later this writer asked two of those leaders for an explanation in some detail of what Eisenhower had in mind. One was so vague he said all he knew was that a 500 million reduction was suggested. The other said he was so puzzled he wasn't sure what the administration had in mind.

But even the 500 million cut talked of by Eisenhower may be simply a bookkeeping rearrangement for this reason:

While telling Congress it can chop 500 millions off his $4,400,000,000 foreign aid figure, Eisenhower may propose that it reapportion 500 million of which was previously voted for this year but hasn't been obligated. Unless revoked, it can't be spent.

Eisenhower's love of old platitudes — which he manages to state with such earnestness that sometimes they sound almost like new platitudes — helped open the door for Congress to rush in with its budget-cutting ax and a budget-cutting desire.

But in this the President had a major assist from Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey. A timetable of what the two men said will show the origin of some of the confusion.

On Jan. 16, the day Eisenhower sent his budget to Congress, Humphrey said: (1) it was as tight a budget as the administration could produce but (2) "I think there are a lot of places in this budget that can be cut."

At his Jan. 23 news conference Eisenhower echoed Humphrey. He said it was the best budget that could be offered at this time. Then he stated his platitude: "If Congress can cut the budget, it's Congress' duty to do so."

Congress didn't have to be told that. Under the Constitution it's Congress' job to control spending.

Almost at once Congress was in a budget-cutting mood — too moody to suit Eisenhower. Budget-cutting talk snowballed around the country.

At his March 13 news conference Eisenhower said he hadn't asked Congress to do a hatchet job on his budget. All he meant to say, he said, was that if Congress could find a place to cut it ought to cut.

It was the day before that — March 12 — that the Democrats in Congress threw the ball back to Eisenhower and asked him if he had any idea how savings could be made.

On April 3 he held a news conference he saw no place where cuts of as much as two billion dollars could be made. And he still stuck, he said, to his basic request of $4,400,000,000 for foreign aid.

Then on April 18 he suggested to Congress where a reduction of almost $1,800,000,000 might be made. This was the bookkeeping cut previously mentioned — with 500 million of it coming out of foreign aid.

But he sent no fleet or atomic bombs abroad as evidence that he would pit American power against Russian might. And there was always the chance there still is — that an enraged Kremlin might seize upon our current intervention as a pretext for local or all-out war.

Eisenhower's bold policy has led to renewed diplomatic speculation on what might have happened if Britain and France had made similar gestures when Hitler occupied the Rhineland, when Japan first invaded China and when Mussolini bombarded barefooted Ethiopians. Historians and statesmen have often argued that there would have been no World War II, if those bluffs had been called in the 30's.

Elon Topples ECC 5-2, To Finish Buc Title Hopes

Watts Limits Bucs To Six Baseknocks

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

The season is over for East Carolina. Last night, before a crowd of some 3,000 spectators, Elon's hard-hitting Christians knocked the Pirates out of the race for the North State baseball crown with a solid 5-2 victory.

Gilbert Watts, a rawboned right-handed hurler, kept the Bucs on their heels with a fine performance, limiting them to six hits and striking out seven.

Coach Jim Mallory, whose Bucs will probably finish third in the loop now, commented after the game that "It can all be summed up in one sentence: Too much Watts."

Watts went the full distance for Elon, giving up runs in the first and final innings. East Carolina used three pitchers, all of whom had trouble with the Elon batters. George Williams started, was relieved in the fourth by Leonard Lilley. Ben Baker, a lefthander, came in in the seventh to finish. Williams was the loser.

Elon picked up a run in the first inning on a walk and a single by Buddy Montgomery, an outfielder. They came back in the third to break a 1-1 tie, by scoring three on a double, two singles and a walk. Their final tally came in the sixth on two more singles and an error by shortstop Jerry Stewart.

Gary Treon, second baseman, scored both runs for East Carolina. The peppery sophomore from Alexandria, Va., walked in the first inning and scored from second on a long single by Berney Stevens. In the ninth, he clouted a tremendous triple into right-centerfield and scored moments later on a fly.

Champions
Last night's loss dumped the Pirates out of contention for the conference crown and hoisted Elon into perhaps the best position of any club. The Christians were to have met Atlantic Christian this afternoon at Wilson. Should they topple the Bulldogs, the North State title will be theirs. They are heavily favored.

This year will mark the first time since Jim Mallory came to ECC as head coach that another team has been able to take the championship. Mallory came to Greenville in 1954 and took over

This Clout Brought In A Run

BERMY STEVENS, an outfielder on the ECC club, cracks a long single in last night's game against Elon at Guy Smith Stadium. The single scored one of ECC's two runs. Elon dumped the Pirate hopes of winning their third consecutive North State title, by whipping them 5-2 last night. The game was the final match of the year for the Buccaneers.

Mystery Meeting Ends With Hidden Results

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The Dodgers are still in Brooklyn, the Giants are still in New York and George Christopher still is mayor of San Francisco. That sums up the surface news of yesterday's mysterious baseball conferences, conducted in a cloak-and-dagger atmosphere.

Because Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick dropped the Iron Curtain on all public discussion of big league franchise transfers by clubowners, the real story is hidden.

The New York Post said last night that the Dodgers were going to go to Los Angeles in 1958 while the New York World Telegram and Sun reported the Giants were considering San Francisco.

Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, did meet with the mayor of San Francisco and Francis McCarty, chairman of the San Francisco major league baseball committee, in a New York hotel yesterday afternoon. Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, had lunch with the trio and then left for another meeting after showing them a model of his pet project, an all-weather stadium with a top of some synthetic material.

"We had a discussion about the possibility of bringing major league baseball to San Francisco," said Christopher. "Mr. Stoneham is prohibited from commenting further by reason of a telegram from Commissioner Ford Frick with which he desires to comply. As a result there will be no further statements by any of the parties."

After it was over, the mayor was asked if he felt San Francisco has gained ground in its search for big league ball for which it has a "contingent" appropriation of $5,000,000 for a new stadium.

Ortega's Second Win Over Logart Boosts Chances

By MURRAY ROSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Gaspar Ortega's second straight victory over Cuba's Isaac Logart has boosted the strong Mexican Indian's claim for a title shot at welterweight champion Carmen Basilio.

"We want Basilio and nothing else," said Ortega and manager Jimmy Stinson after Gaspar's bull-dozing power assaults had gained him a close split decision in a telecast 12-rounder last night in the War Memorial Auditorium. Ortega's contention was backed by Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club.

"Right now we hope to make the Basilio-Ray Robinson middleweight title fight for this summer," said Markson. "If we can't make that for July, we'll try to get Basilio to defend his title and we feel Ortega deserves the shot off his win over Logart."

A strong, pressure drive in the ninth, tenth and eleventh rounds of a bitterly waged battle—marked by a low blow knockdown of Ortega in the second round carried the 21-year-old Mexican to his important triumph. He won those three rounds for the narrow edge.

Early in the second round, Ortega staggered his 24-year-old rival with three long rights to the head. Logart backed into a neutral corner and, as Ortega moved in, lashed out with a low left. Ortega dropped to both knees clutching his groin.

Both fighters were spraying some of their blows low and Ortega was warned in the tenth round to keep 'em up.

Ortega, a 2-1 underdog, also knocked Logart in the 11th round with a right to the jaw.

Logart won his rounds with his polished left hooks to the head and body. Bert (7-4-1) and Judge Harold Barnes (6-5-1) voted for Ortega. Judge Joe Agnello scored it 7-5 for Logart. The Associated Press had Ortega ahead, 6-4-2.

Ortega, who weighed 147 to Logart's 146, now has a 2-1 edge over the Cuban and a 40-8 record. Logart is 49-7-5. A crowd of 2,188 paid $5,700.

ECC Tracksters Favored To Win

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—East Carolina's Pirates, with a crack squad headed by dash star Jim Henderson, were favored to take their second North State Conference track title in a row today.

Henderson owns or holds a share in three meet records and his activity this season would indicate he'll be at peak form for this one-day meet. Henderson equalled the conference record of 9.9 for the 100-yard dash, set the record of 14.9 in the high hurdles and posted a record 21.6 in the 220-yard dash.

He'll receive top competition from other dash entries, such as Eddie Bridges and Larry Gregg of Elon, Bob Maynard of East Carolina and Sam Geisinger of Guilford.

Bob Rosier of Guilford was favored in the 440-yard event, and injured right eye of pitcher Herb Score will be ready for the examination which will indicate how his sight was affected.

Dr. Charles I. Thomas, Cleveland eye specialist, is encouraged by the way the million-dollar southpaw's eye is clearing. He said the eye may be clear enough for an examination today, but more likely it will come Sunday.

A line drive crunched into Score's face at Cleveland Stadium Tuesday night when the Cleveland Indians' ace was pitching against the New York Yankees. Since then bleeding has limited his medical treatment mainly to rest and quiet and some drugs to ease pain and stimulate absorption of the hemorrhage.

Demaret Enjoys Improved Links

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) The Hot Springs Country Club course continues to improve for Jimmy Demaret, the Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., pro can start counting the prize money in the $20,000 Hot Springs Open.

"This course sure has improved," Demaret said jokingly, after he turned in a 66 card yesterday in the second round. He had a first day 73.

The sizzling score didn't earn first place for Demaret. Big, blond Al Besselink put a 68 with an opening day 70 for a 138 that gave him a one-stroke lead over Demaret and three others.

Jackie Burke, who shared the first round lead with Marty Furgol, shot par-72 yesterday and dropped into a six-way tie for sixth place at 140. Furgol skied to 75 and was out of contention.

Billy Maxwell, Bill Casper Jr., and Johnny Palmer shared second with Demaret. Maxwell had 69 yesterday and Casper and Palmer shot 70s.

Besselink, who said he is just beginning to play well again after a three-year bout with injury and illness, made five birdies in his 4-under-par round.

Sanford And Maris Pace Rookie Title Prospects

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

Philadelphia's Jack Sanford and Cleveland's Roger Maris are the early season favorites for the major league rookie-of-the-year honors.

Sanford, 27-year-old righthander for the Phillies, leads all National League pitchers with a 4-0 record. Maris, 21-year-old Cleveland, is up among the American League leaders with five home runs and 17 runs batted in on a .315 batting average.

Sanford's three-hitter last night highlighted Philadelphia's 3-1 triumph over Pittsburgh which boosted the Phillies into fourth place, a game back of Brooklyn. The rookie fanned 10 and had a shutout until the ninth when a walk followed by Hank Foiles' triple produced the only Pirate run.

Maris clouted a home run with a mate aboard in Cleveland's three-run rally against freshman southpaw Gen Host. The Indians' victory over Kansas City boosted the Tribe into third place, a half game behind New York. The Chicago White Sox made it two in a row over Detroit with a 6-4 victory that gave them undisputed possession of first place, a full game in front of the Yankees who were beaten by Baltimore 4-1. Rain forced the postponement of the scheduled game between Washington and the Red Sox in Boston.

Milwaukee snapped its three-game losing streak with a 10-5 victory over St. Louis that increased the Braves' lead over the Cincinnati Reds to one game. The Reds' scheduled game with the Cubs in Chicago was postponed because of rain. The New York Giants dropped third place Brooklyn two games from the top with a 2-1 triumph over the Dodgers.

A pair of wild pitches by Luis Arroyo, in relief of Ronnie Kline in the eighth inning, allowed two Philadelphia runners to cross the plate with what proved to be the winning runs.

Juan Pizarro, Milwaukee's rookie southpaw, gained his first major league victory with the help of teammates Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews who drove in eight of the Braves' 10 runs. Logan batted lead off with a home run, a two-run double and a pair of run-scoring singles. Mathews smashed a two-run homer, doubled and added a run-producing single.

Willie Mays came off a hospital bed from a virus bout to wallop a triple and two singles, drive in one run and score the other in the Giants' 2-1 victory over Brooklyn. Righthander Ruben Gomez limited the Dodgers to seven hits for his fourth triumph against one defeat. The loser was Sal Maglie.

The White Sox broke their batting slump with a 13-hit attack against three Detroit pitchers, slugging rookie Don Lee from the mound with a four-run assault in the fifth. Billy Pierce gained credit for his fourth victory but Gerry Staley had to quiet the Tigers in the ninth.

Mike Garcia had a two-hit shutout until the ninth. Then three singles produced a Kansas City run and brought in Ray Narleski, who quickly disposed of the next two batters.

Connie Johnson made his first victory of the year a beauty by limiting the world champion Yankees to eight hits and striking out eight batters.

Ball With A Handle

COACH BO FARLEY, of Greenville high school, presented his club with a special ball with a handle on it earlier this year, as a means of reminding them to catch properly. Joe Moyer, Phant first baseman, holds the ball above. Shutstop Billy Cox watches. GHS goes to Kinston tonight and finishes its season Tuesday night against Jacksonville at Guy Smith Stadium.

GHS Whips Jackets; At Kinston Tonight

Greenville high school's baseballers pulled a 4-3 victory out of the fire Thursday afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium, defeating a visiting Roanoke Rapids crew.

The game was a Northeastern Conference affair and was GHS' sixth victory of the year against four losses.

Charles Staton, a righthander, hurled the full seven innings for the Phants and secured the win.

He limited the visitors to nine hits. Greenville collected six.

Kinston Tonight
Coach Boley Farley's club travels to Kinston tonight for still another loop contest. Greenville has lost once to the Red Devils earlier at Brookgreen field here.

The Red Devils are pacing the Northeastern League at the moment with a 9-0 record, which is good enough to clinch the title with a win over the Phants tonight.

Coach Farley stated that he would probably start Hudson Miller on the mound against Kinston. Other starters will probably be Walker Lee Allen, Mack Robeuck, Arthur Andrews, Billy Cox, Joe Wingate, Charlie Smith, Dick Evans.

Night Contest
The Phantoms wind up their season Tuesday night at Guy Smith Stadium with a conference encounter with Jacksonville. Proceeds from the gate will go to aid the school's baseball program.

Either Miller or Staton will start against the Cards. Ronnie Finch, a lefthander, will be held for relief duty, if needed.

Tight Money Is Also Crippling Treasury Plan

By G. K. HODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP)—The treasury's latest effort to refinance the national debt finds the government caught in the same tight money pinch that has other segments of the economy hollering "uncle."

The treasury yesterday took a preliminary peek at the results of its offer last week to exchange more than four billion dollars in 1 1/2 per cent notes sold in 1954 and maturing next Wednesday.

What it found wasn't unexpected, but it wasn't exactly what was hoped for, either.

Although the proffered 11-month certificates at 3 1/2 per cent and the 57-month notes at 3 per cent carry the highest government interest rates since the bank holiday of 1933, the new issue was only 72 per cent subscribed.

In other words, 28 per cent of the holders of the 1954 notes did not want to exchange them for new government securities—they wanted cash. This means that the treasury next week must dig into its reserves and pay off about $1,167,000,000 of the maturing notes.

Ever since the new issue was announced last week, treasury officials have been saying they expected an attrition rate of about 25 per cent, with a cash payoff in the neighborhood of one billion dollars. They explained that most of the maturing notes are held by corporations, and that the corporations have earmarked them for their June tax payments.

This is part of the answer, but only a part. Another important factor is that the demand for money outruns the supply in the lending market. Banks are not too interested in loaning to the government—despite the security—if they can get better rates elsewhere.

This two-way squeeze may force the government to offer even higher interest rates to meet the competition. That, in turn, will boost the price the government must pay on its debt. Right now, with the national debt around 274 billion dollars, the interest on it comes to some 7 1/2 billion dollars annually.

However, treasury officials do not expect the billion dollar payoff to put the treasury in a squeeze. The cash reserve now is about five billion dollars. The treasury, in effect, will pay off a billion dollars of the national debt from these reserves.

Training For Crusade Workers Next Week

Greenville's United Crusade for Christ is only a week away. Preparations are proceeding rapidly at the Crusade office set up in the old Daily Reflector building on Evans street.

A joint operation of all twenty-five of the Protestant white Churches of Greenville and vicinity, the Crusade is sponsored by Greenville Ministerial Association. Services begin at 7:30 May 19 in Wright Auditorium. Personal Workers have been appointed by local pastors to help persons coming forward to make decisions for Christ. Three training sessions for these workers have been scheduled for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of next week, May 13, 15, and 17. At St. James Methodist Church these classes will begin each evening at 8 o'clock.

Personal Work Chairman J. Malloy Owen pointed out this morning that a completely interdenominational approach will be used in the prayer room, as everywhere else in the Crusade. "Denominational differences will not be mentioned, for we are interested only in the simple Plan of Salvation revealed in the New Testament, and on this all of our Churches agree."

For a personal worker candidate to qualify he must attend at least two of the three training sessions. The worker must become familiar with the materials to be used and the procedure to be followed. "Volunteers should telephone the Crusade office Secretary, Miss Louise Jones, at 3927 Monday," Owen added.

Dr. Jimmie Johnson, the noted evangelist invited by local ministers to lead the Crusade, closes a campaign in Newport News, Va., Mother's Day, May 12. The Crusade organizer, Mr. Merrill Dunlop, is also with Dr. Johnson in Newport News this week. The Evangelist is expected to spend next week at his home in Fuquay Springs, while Mr. Dunlop will be with his family in Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago. Joining Johnson and Dunlop in Greenville next Saturday will be Crusade Song Leader Ralph McGilva.

Aching Back Ends Irvin's Career

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An aching back has ended the career of one of baseball's greatest Negro players—Monte Irvin.

Irvin, one of the chief agents in the almost miraculous drive that brought the New York Giants to the National League pennant in 1951, announced yesterday that he is retiring.

The veteran outfielder said the reason is a back injury he suffered in spring training. Because of the injury, he appeared in only four games for the Angels this season.

Newsman Close Session Tonight

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Panel discussions and a luncheon address by Thomas W. Willis of Farmville featured closing sessions here today of the Eastern North Carolina Press Assn.

Willis, director of the Farmville Economic Council, spoke on attracting industry to new localities.

Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, recently inaugurated as president of Atlantic Christian College here, told the newspapermen last night that colleges and newspapers have much common ground.

Dr. Wenger said, "While it is true that colleges and newspapers use widely differing means to achieve their ends, there is a considerable amount of common ground, principally in the broad objectives to which both aspire."

"Both assume the desirability of the broad dissemination of truth as a guarantee of sound and wholesome decisions arrived at by informed persons," he declared.

Other speakers were Wilson Mayor John D. Wilson; Bignall Jones, publisher of the Warren Record in Warrenton; Paul Liles, advertising manager of the Wilson Daily Times, and Dr. Randall B. Cutlip, dean of Atlantic Christian College.

Chief Trapped By Own Orders

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Police Chief W. Cleon Skousen was trapped by his own command yesterday. It caught the mayor, too.

Skousen ordered his department personnel to check their own drivers licenses to see if they were valid.

When Skousen checked his own license he found it had expired. Mayor Adlai F. Stewart went along with Skousen's order and found his, too, was no good.

The chief and the mayor quickly acquired 20-day temporary permits.

Nuclear Tests Not Deterred By Pleas

By JOHN A. HARRIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission went ahead today with plans for nuclear tests in Nevada this year as new appeals were sounded in India and West Germany for an end to such testing.

The AEC said yesterday it will invite representatives of 47 nations to observe some of the blasts in a series which begins May 27. This year's test explosions will have relatively low force. No representatives of Communist countries will be invited.

Nor were there invitations for such nations as India which seek to maintain a position of neutrality in the East-West cold war. The nations being invited to send observers are those which belong to mutual defense alliances of which the United States is a member, plus the Baghdad Pact, with which it has close ties.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru condemned atomic and hydrogen bomb tests in a speech yesterday at New Delhi.

And the lower house of the West German Parliament called for a suspension of tests for a limited time.

There were these other developments:

1. Rep. Holifield (D-Calif.) announced a special Atomic Energy Subcommittee he heads hopes to bring out more facts about radioactive fallout in hearings which will start May 27.

2. Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko said in Moscow the Western powers are afraid to halt nuclear weapons tests because, as he put it, they "are afraid the termination of tests will undermine their whole position on the use of nuclear weapons."

The AEC, in announcing foreign representatives would be invited to view some of the Nevada explosions this year, said the purpose is to familiarize other nations with U.S. testing policies and operations, "especially safety precautions."

Previously, the agency had said U.S. newsmen would be allowed to observe some of the blasts.

Museum Buys Unfinished Art By Old Master

DETROIT (AP)—An unfinished painting attributed to the Italian Renaissance genius, Leonardo da Vinci, has been purchased by the Detroit Art Museum for a reputed quarter of a million dollars.

There are not more than 30 authenticated works by the 15th century Florentine master in existence. Two of his more celebrated paintings are the "Mona Lisa" and "The Last Supper."

The work purchased yesterday is called "The Adoration With Two Angels." It measures 23 by 18 inches and depicts the Virgin kneeling in adoration of the Christ Child. The Madonna is unfinished.

Experts have attributed the finished work to "Da Vinci's" early period—about 1472. Da Vinci was born in 1452 and died in 1519.

The painting was purchased from M. Knoedler & Co., a New York art gallery. The gallery said it acquired the painting after World War II. It was said to have been in possession of an old family in Rome since the 17th century. It never has been publicly displayed.

Exchange Club Has Supper Meet

At the Exchange Club's supper meeting last night, Ed Parkinson announced that the quarterly State Educational Conference would be held in High Point May 18 and 19.

Ed Harris stated that the Exchange Club will take part in the annual Newcomers Party, to be held next Wednesday at the Moose Temple.

A Board of Control meeting was held after the regular club meeting, with Vice-President Fred Forbes presiding.

Thirsty Pigeons Sample Alcohol

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Thirsty Portland pigeons spotted a brimful city gutter and converged to delicately dip their bills.

Within minutes, nearly all were staggering blindly about. Someone, it appears, emptied a radiator filled with alcoholic antifreeze into the gutter only moments before.

Everyone is urged to prayerfully attend the "United Crusade for Christ" that begins May 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Wright auditorium with Rev. Jimmie Johnson as evangelist.

Baseball Dream Sparked Drive To Renovate Stadium

NEW LIGHTS—New and improved lights have been installed at the stadium. Workers completed the project made possible by a group of Greenville businessmen and civic leaders last week.

ADDITIONAL LIGHTING—The ballpark will have additional lighting, now that the newly installed lights are in working order. A workman from the Greenville Utilities is putting the last bulb in to complete the installation. The new system cost a local group approximately $2,500.

By EVERETTE PARKER

Reflector Staff Writer

Last night's East Carolina-Elon baseball contest under the bright lights of Guy Smith Stadium was another chapter in the story of hard work on the part of Greenville civic leaders, businessmen and the Recreation Commission.

Work that started on mere speculation, and has resulted in two college games under the lights, is part of the over-all effort to revive interest in baseball locally. The park will be used for Teen-er League ball during summer months.

The renovation program was initiated on a suggestion of Recreation Director Gordon Goodman at a meeting of the Recreation Commission. Goodman stated the stadium needed some immediate repairs, and he would like authority of the Commission to use some of the November, 1956 bond issue money to make these repairs. His request was granted.

Rather than contract the renovation job it was decided that extra help would be hired. The work was finished for the most part last Thursday, but Goodman reminds "The job is not yet completed. There remain several minor repairs to be made and improvements to be made throughout the summer."

The original idea was to fix the stadium for Teen-er ball and cost for repairs be held at a minimum. (A Teen-er League for boys 13, 14 and 15 has been organized by the Commission for summer activity.)

This ball will be played on the regulation diamond and games have been scheduled for roughly four nights a week. Recreation workers, for the past month, have been laboring night and day in order that the field might be ready in time for a major part of the baseball season.

The first project was to scrape and repaint the seats in the grandstand. After completing this "mandated" job, rest rooms, dressing rooms, gutters, walkways, screens and a concession stand were painted. All in all, it took over 250 gallons of paint.

More than 30 loads of dirt were hauled into the park by members of the Greenville Street Department. The dirt was needed to level the field and provide proper drainage. A motor grader, belonging to the city, was used to level and rework the field.

Several sports enthusiasts, on learning these improvements were being made, decided something more might be done to work up local baseball interest.

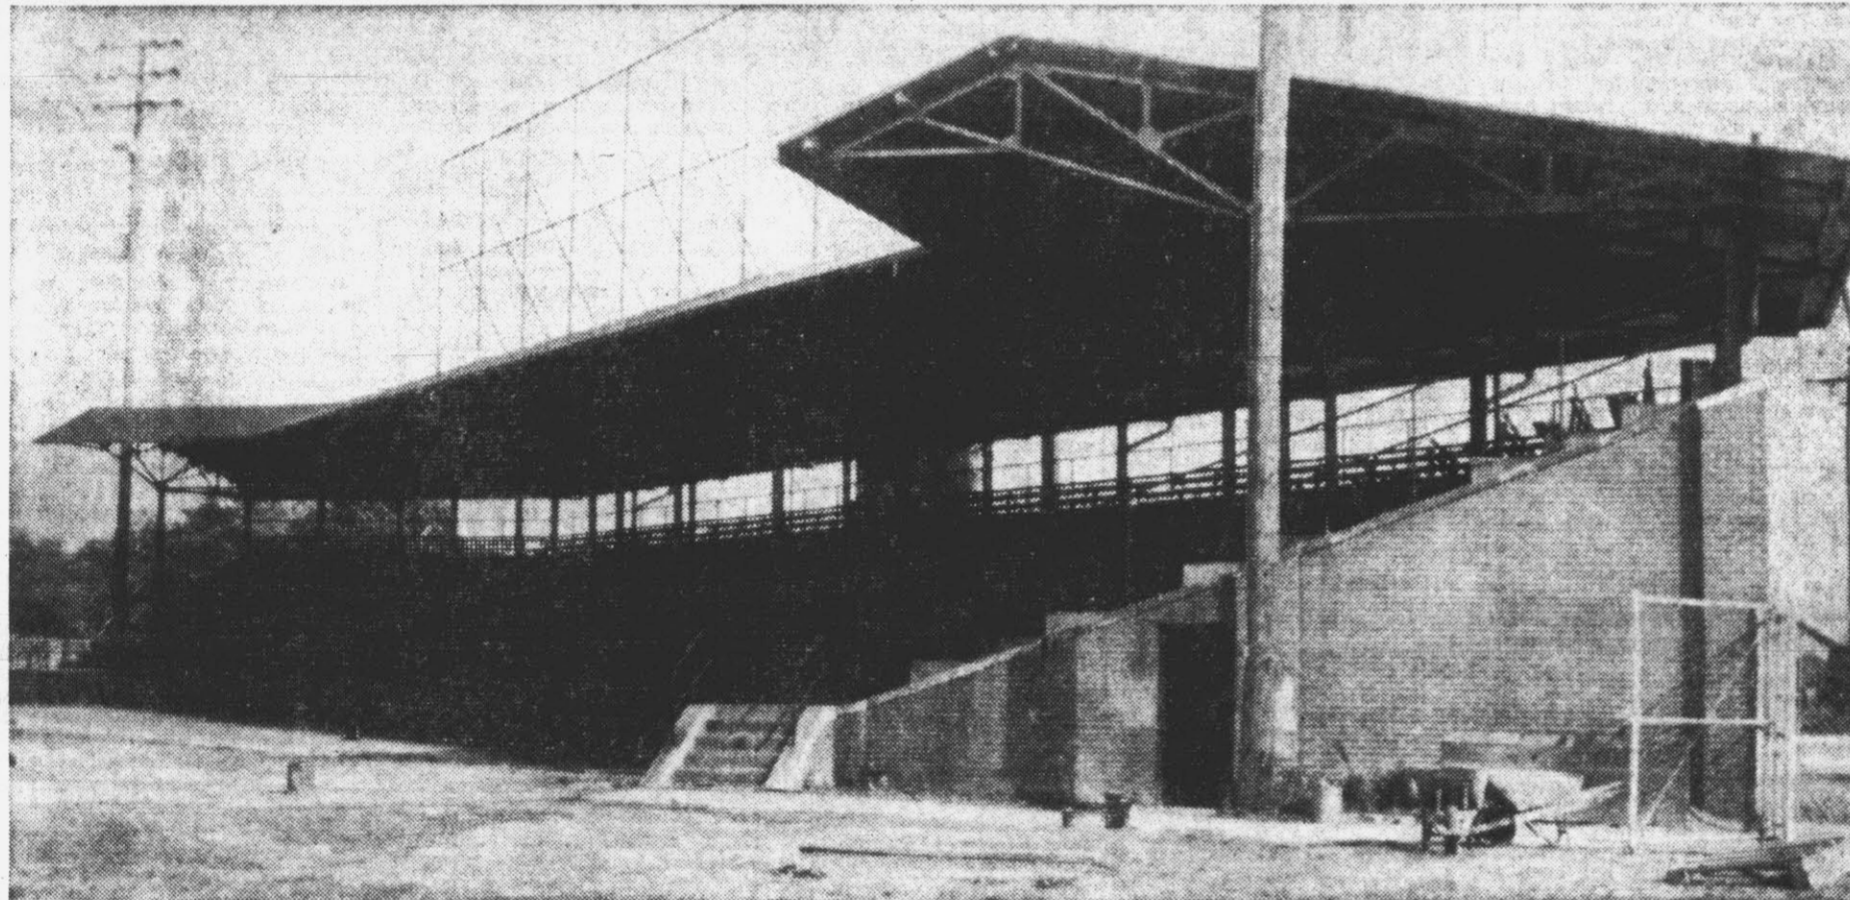

Members of the college athletic department and the Greenville Recreation Commission got together on the deal, and decided it would be more advantageous for all concerned to install new and additional lights in the revamped stadium.

With this agreement in mind, a group of businessmen met and voted to aid the cause. The group consisted of: W.M. Scales, Jr., Reynolds May, Badger Johnson, Judson Blount Jr., J. B. Kittrell, George Koutroulias, Joan Lewis, Dr. E.B. Aycock, Howard Hedges, Joel Lawhorn, Louis Gaylord and Dr. W.M. Aldridge. They had a three-fold purpose in mind:

The need for youngsters of Greenville to have adequate athletic facilities; to generate interest in baseball and the college team; and to possibly provide additional money for a college baseball scholarship fund.

Greenville individuals and firms contributed generously to the fund. In all, a total of $2,700 was raised by the group. The lights installed at the stadium were paid for, and additional money has been set aside for a college baseball scholarship fund.

Last night, the familiar "Play Ball!" was heard by several thousand fans. Possibly this cry will in the future be heard more often by people of Greenville and Pitt County.

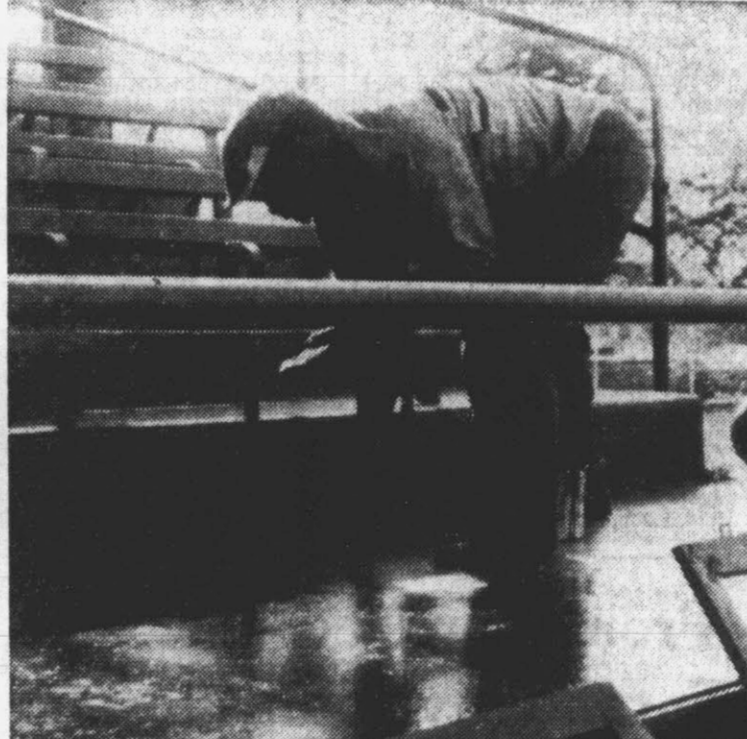

REVAMPED GRANDSTAND—Recreation Commission workers have done a thorough job of reconditioning the grandstand at Guy Smith Stadium. All the windows, seats, rest rooms, gutters, screens, concession stand and dressing rooms, have been repainted by workers who have worked on in into the night for the past month. (Reflector Staff Photos)

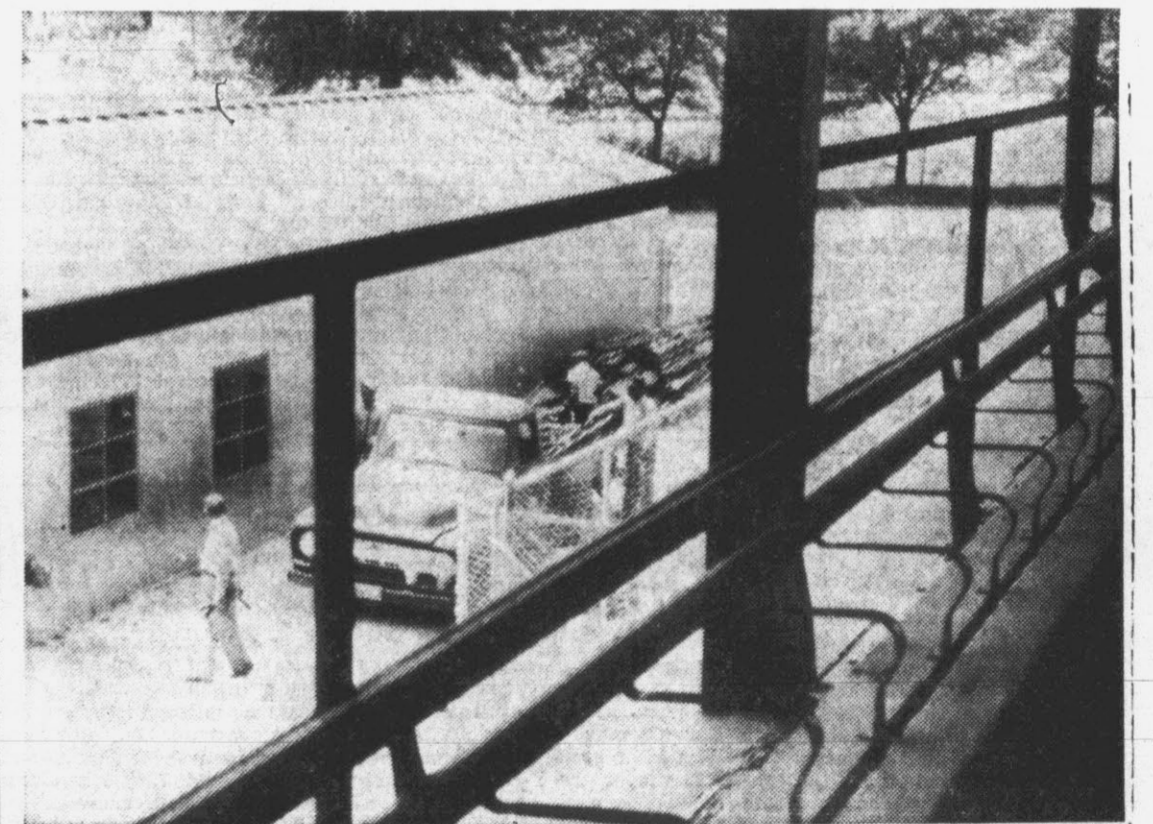

NEW LOOK—Over 250 gallons of paint have been used by workers who have been painting at the ballpark for several weeks. It took a considerable length of time to clean the bird nests from under and around the steel beams and seats. The wire backstop is in excellent condition.

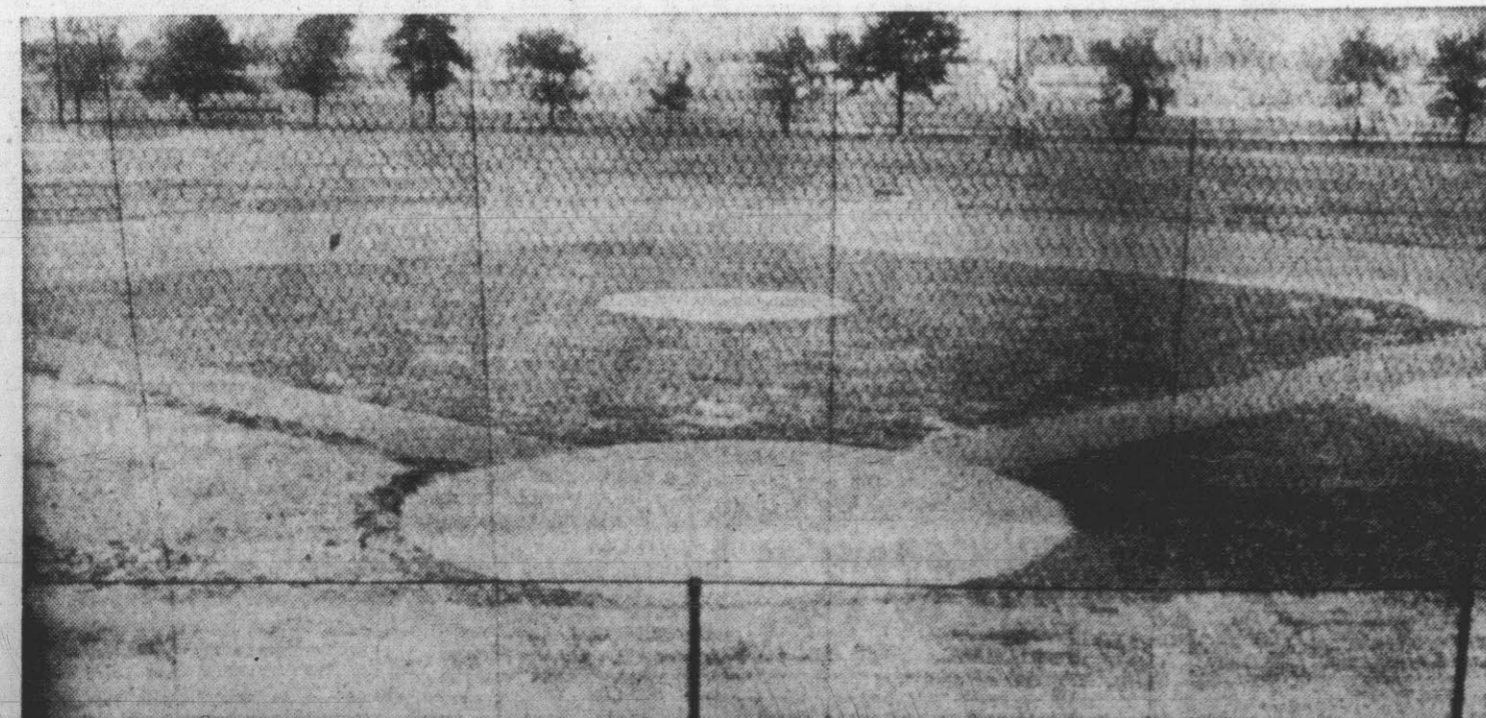

ROUGH SPOTS—These workers are smoothing out the rough spots in the Greenville ballpark's infield. More than 30 loads of dirt has been hauled into the park and leveled off to give the field proper drainage.

FINISHING TOUCHES—A Recreation worker is putting finishing touches to the grandstand walk. The painting was completed in plenty of time.

END OF A DAY—Workers are coming in with their tools after a long work day. Many of the Recreation Commission's workers have spent long hours in an effort to have the ballpark ready for a major part of the summer activity season.

IMPROVED INFIELD—A spokesman stated recently that the infield at Guy Smith Stadium is one of the best in the state. For several weeks the Recreation workers have been hauling in dirt and using the Street Department Motor Grader to level a large area around the diamond.

Conventional Auto Engine Near Practical Peak

AP Automotive Editor
DETROIT (AP) — The conventional auto engine may be nearing the peak of its horsepower output. There may be some power increases in engines in the low and medium price cars in 1958 but it is unlikely there will be any further boost in the top price lines.

Selective Trade In Fire Business

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — Hamlet Collier Sr. displayed his flaming loyalty recently. After the seat in his truck caught fire, Collier tossed it onto the bed behind the cab and drove almost a mile outside town to the Bourbon County Fire Department. The Paris Fire Department was closer but Collier passed it up. He's an auxiliary fireman on call at the Bourbon County station. "It was just a case of a fireman wanting to patronize his own fire station," commented County Chief Walter Ishmael.

At present the higher priced models boast the most powerful engines, some going as high as 325 horsepower.

There has been a steady increase also in the power output of car engines in the low and medium price fields since World War II. Some of them get up into the 200-plus horsepower rating. And the increases have been achieved largely through advances in the engine compression ratio.

The auto makers have been rather loudly criticized for what has been called a "horsepower race." They have denied any intent to increase the power output merely for promotion purposes. They say the power increases have been necessary to attain smoother operation and to provide the extra energy required to operate an increasing number of power-actuated accessories.

The top in this phase of engine design this year is a fraction above 10 to 1.

(The engine compression ratio is determined by comparing the space in which the piston travels to that into which the fuel is compressed at the instant of combustion.) Some engineers have said car engine compression ratios are nearing the point of "diminishing returns," that the gains are not equal to the added costs involved in providing the increased compression ratios and the higher quality fuel.

This may be one factor involved in the industry's reported decision to ease off on the horsepower advances. Several years ago Charles F. Kettering, then head of General Motors research division, experimented with a couple of car engines that had compression ratios in excess of 12 to 1. The engines presented design problems and required fuel of a quality not commercially available. The Kettering experiments undoubtedly contributed greatly to the development of today's 16 to 1 compression ratio engines. However, no car manufacturer ever has suggested 12 to 1 compression ratios are in sight for the engines of any stock model cars.

But a couple of new engines, one in the low price field, already have undergone tests for early introduction. One reportedly will develop 300 horsepower with 10 to 1 compression ratio and use a multiple barrel carburetor.

Ancient Vase Contains Heart

The vase, elaborately carved with the life history of the doge, was buried near the main altar.

Senator To Try Put CIA Back Into State Dept.

By WARREN ROGERS JR. WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said today he will try to get a Senate group to recommend that the U. S. Information Agency be put back in the State Department. "I am not opposed to USIA but I certainly think it is growing too fast," Mansfield said in an interview. "We should have one Department of State, speaking with one voice to the world." Mansfield is a member of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. It ended hearings yesterday on the USIA plea to restore 30 million dollars of a 35 million cut made by the House in the USIA budget request. Johnson was not at all optimistic he could get the Senate to go much above the House figure of 105 millions. USIA originally asked 140 millions for its propaganda activities around the world. "I can't go in there with a slingshot," Johnson told USIA Director Arthur Larson in demanding "facts and figures." Johnson and Mansfield hopped on Larson, often called the "prophet of modern Republicanism," for a speech he made last month in Honolulu. In that speech, Larson talked about a certain American political party being in the grip of an alien philosophy. Johnson, who has taken to referring to himself jokingly as a "modern Democrat," fired needling questions at the often red-faced Larson. Larson objected at one point to discussing his Honolulu speech, contending it had no connection with the subject under discussion. "You are here to answer questions," Johnson told them. "Look out you don't win the argument here and lose the sale." Mansfield said he would ask Johnson's subcommittee to put some language in its report calling for returning USIA to the State Department. Just before the hearing ended yesterday, three letters were read into the record. They came from The Associated Press, United Press and International News Service, which responded to a subcommittee question. AP and INS told the subcommittee they had no reason to believe USIA competed with them abroad. But UP said USIA "shows what appears to be a built-in tendency to jump over the fence and to cover the news in general." UP suggested USIA "keep its operation within the framework which Congress laid down for it."

Queen City Offers Holiday Lures

CHARLOTTE By PEGGY SMITH Reflector Staff Writer

Charlotte's personality is a pleasant blend of Up-East, Out-West, and Down-South. There's enough of Dixie permeating the largest city in the Carolinas to maintain the warmth, hospitality and gracious living for which it has become noted, but the influx of newcomers from across the nation brings an intersectional atmosphere to the city. In the heart of variety vacationland Charlotte is only a few hours' drive from the famous Great Smoky Mountains or the Atlantic Coast's beaches, accessible Charlotte has developed as the Central City of the two Carolinas. Its location is a boon both to the week-

Charlotte and to the bus-nessman who finds this city the natural nucleus of his Carolinas operations. For years this metropolitan namesake of Queen Charlotte, wife of George III of England, has uncontestably claimed the honor of having more churches per capita than any other city in America.

Quiet, stately edifices of all manor faiths lend dignity and reverence to the busy city and exert strong influences on its community activities. Multi-million dollar Owens Auditorium has become a new center of culture in the Queen City. Equipped to handle any type theatrical production and seating 2,500 persons, the beautiful structure joins the historic Mint Museum of Art, the Children's Museum and the Charlotte Little Theatre as a focal point of Charlotteans' keen interest in the arts. A diverse program of entertainment under the world's largest clear-span steel dome at Charlotte Coliseum headlines Charlotte's year-round recreational fare. Thirty-five parks and playgrounds, twenty-three motion picture theaters, eight golf courses (five public) and public and municipal swimming pools lend a wide choice to the sports-minded citizen. In addition there are five country clubs and several fine supper clubs. Nearby Catawba River is a Charlotte retreat for swimming, boating, fishing and water skiing.

Playhouse Honors Outstanding Actor

The East Carolina Playhouse at the annual "Laurel Day" banquet Wednesday night distributed awards to winners for outstanding achievement in theatrical work at East Carolina College during the 1956-57 season. Miss Alice Horne and Lloyd Bray received laurel awards for best actress and actor in leading roles. Miss Horne, sophomore at East Carolina College from Tabor City, was selected for the award for her performance as Eliza Doolittle in Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion." Mr. Bray, a Greenville senior, received his award for the portrayal of Henry Higgins in the same play. Margaret Starnes of Raleigh was named Best Actress in a supporting role for her work as Kay Thompson in "State of the Union." The Best Actor in a supporting role award went to Playhouse President Bubba Driver, of Richmond, Va., for the role of Ensign Pulver in "Mister Roberts."

"Pygmalion" and "Mister Roberts" were tied for the Best Set award, with laurels being presented to Tommy Hull and Dan Yanchinson, the respective technical directors. They were chosen by a faculty committee. Playhouse members voted on 16 awards which were presented the following: Alice Anne Horne, best character actress for her performance in "State of the Union"; Bubba Driver, best character actor, Bubba Driver, for "Mooncall Mugford," in which he played the title role; most improved playhouse members, Edward Pilkington; most valuable playhouse member, Bill Dixon; most promising newcomer, Edward Pilkington; best lighting, Larry Craven for "Pygmalion"; best workshop play director, Bubba Driver for "The Monkey's Paw"; best makeup on an individual character, Edward Pilkington; best Benfield for his performance in "State of the Union," in which he became so confused as to render one of his lines, "I'll pull down the radiator and turn up the windows;" best ad lib to Tommy Hull for remarks interjected in "Gone Tomorrow;" and best trouper to Pat Baker for her last-minute substitution in one of the roles in "Pygmalion." Awards consisted of a laurel wreath in keeping with a tradition established by the ancient Greeks, who considered such an award to be a symbol of excellence. Pins bearing the Playhouse In-

Diem Convinced Visit Paid Off

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam brought his four-day state visit to a close today, convinced that his mission here has been a success. A joint statement by President Eisenhower and the southeast Asian leader was due to be issued by the White House later today. It will sum up the talks between the two presidents and top aides. Eisenhower took leave of Diem last night. "We are glad to have you here and I hope you enjoy every minute of your stay in the United States," Eisenhower said as he left a formal dinner in his honor given by Diem at the Viet Nam embassy. Aides said Diem was highly gratified at the way his conversations had gone. In a champagne toast to the American president, Diem recalled that Eisenhower, as leader of the free world, "brought to public attention the fact that if Indochina goes the rest of southeast Asia will go like a set of dominoes." Diem then thanked Eisenhower again for the "material, moral and moral support of your great country."

Honor Society Gains Six New Members

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE GREENVILLE High School Reporter In an assembly May 3 six new members were inducted into the Hasket Chapter of the National Honor Society, and a journalism trophy from the Southern Scholastic Press Association and the Northeastern Conference Track trophy were presented to the Greenville High School student body. Tapped into the honor society were juniors Jane Bass, Jean Ann Waters, Naomi Gibbs, Florence Norman, Martha Moyer and Judy Ferris. Stating the aims and requirements of the National Honor Society, four charter members spoke on the topics, Leadership, Scholarship, Character, and Service. Lois Eaton read a poem denoting the basis of good character. Ann Bryan, Margaret Harrell and Laura McArthur served on Service, Leadership, and Scholarship respectively. Following the four speeches, the new members were tapped and then presented with a gold National Honor Society pin on a blue and yellow ribbon flower. Each member took a pledge to uphold the standards and ideals of the society. At a recent press conference at the Washington and Lee University, The Green Lights was awarded first place trophy for being the best high school newspaper in the South in senior high schools with 300 to 400 students. In the assembly Friday morning David Whitchard III, alumnus and editor of The Daily Reflector, presented the award to O. E. Dowd, high school principal. Valedictorian Is Named Among Farmville Grads

FARMVILLE — Lucille Marian Pickett has been named valedictorian of the 1957 graduating class at Farmville High School. Principal Sam D. Bundy, in announcing Miss Pickett's selection, said, "She has maintained a consistently high average for four years in high school and is the only senior who has been on the honor roll for each reporting period." Bundy also announced that Wade Mills will be the class's salutatorian. The principal said, "Wade has a scholastic record which has been uniformly good and he has been on the honor roll or principal's list each reporting period." Miss Pickett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Pickett and will enter East Carolina College in Greenville next fall. Mills is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Mills and plans to attend North Carolina State College.

Real Comedians Aren't Sad, Claims Youngman

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—Henny Youngman wants to know what's all this talk about sad comedians. "If they're sad it's only because they're not comedians," says Youngman, a comedian himself—and not the least bit sad. There certainly has been a lot of talk recently about unhappy television comedians. Just the other day a fellow claimed that the majority of the best-known comics either have been or now are making regular visits to psychiatrists—which can be taken as a symptom of personal unhappiness. "Something different," he said. "An ad lib show. Which means a suspense show. You stay out of trouble or you're dead." Youngman feels that there is plenty of comedy talent, both in performers and writers. "And there's a colossal need for laughter today. People want to laugh." Many of the woes of television comics can be traced to the rating wars, he believes. Youngman himself is playing clubs — and likes it. (He passed through town on his way from Kansas City to Miami.) If he could obtain the staff he wants he'd like to try a regular television program. "You're either a funny man or you're not. A guy who claims to be a funny man and is sad isn't really a comedian in his heart. He's a manufactured comedian." Television has tried to manufacture a few too quickly, Youngman believes. "Some of the new ones just haven't had the seasoning of years in show business. They don't know what it is to compete for a spot on a stage. They've learned on routine — and that's all it's not enough. They've found success too soon. They become important people through a freak. And then they're slighted. It hurts 'em. A

New officers of the YWCA, in addition to Miss Johnston, are Tanya Anderson, Fountain, vice president; Annette Capps, Spring Lake,

Red Guns Again Pound Quemoy TAIPEI, Formosa. Promotion Needn't Prove Fatal, Say Statisticians

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—A promotion can kill you? It ain't necessarily so. The boss is likely to be in better health and to live longer than many of his underlings. The strains of being a top executive aren't as deadly as popularly supposed, according to industrial medical directors queried by the American Management Assn. But the health, physical and mental, of bosses is increasingly a concern to corporations, big and little. The practice of having regular physical, and sometimes psychiatric, examinations is spreading. The Institute of Life Insurance reports that the total of business life insurance, naming the company as beneficiary, is now around 25 billion dollars. Coverage has been increasing at the rate of about three billion dollars a year. Corporate health examination programs may be a prime factor in giving the boss a better life expectancy now than some other groups, the AMA survey suggests. One giant manufacturing company reports that in five years after it installed such a program the executive death toll dropped by 52 per cent. The National Office of Vital Statistics' figures also indicate that top administrators, managers and technicians, as a group, now have lower than average mortality rates. And an examination of

Milk Cartons Stolen By Dog

PATERSON, N. J. (AP)—Police have found who has been stealing milk cartons left for employees of the Medical Fabrics Co. A patrolman hid himself after the milkman delivered the milk at the factory and a few minutes later a dog appeared and carted the cartons off. General Nathan F. Twining, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Air Force, began his military career as an infantryman.

No Contest Over Divorce Suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Yma Sumac, the Peruvian singer whose domestic disharmony incited one of Hollywood's noisiest brawls last month, is going to get an uncontested divorce, says her lawyer. Attorney Jerry Giesler filed notice in Superior Court yesterday that a settlement has been reached between Miss Sumac and Moises Vivanco. Miss Sumac filed suit for divorce April 17. A week later a battle developed at Vivanco's home after she and a private detective arrived to pick up some of her belongings.

Host For 15th Mothers' Party

LANSFORD, Pa. (AP)—Dick Edwards holds his 15th annual mother's day party for parents 70 to 95 years of age tomorrow. Edwards, department store head, expects some 350 persons for the festivity. Edwards always comes up with one big surprise. He usually brings to the party, from some distant point, a relative of one of the guests. Last year he reunited a father with his son from South Wales, England.

TO PLAY HERE—Dean Hudson and his orchestra will furnish music at the annual private Greenville Moose Lodge dance to be staged at the Lodge tonight from 9 until 12 p.m.

How Much Life Insurance Did He Leave Her?

Think back to every conversation you've heard after a man has passed on. Have you ever heard anyone say, "How much real estate did he leave Mary?" Did they say, "I understand John left lots of bonds." Did they remark, "She won't have to worry about the future, because her husband left her many stocks."

NO! I'll tell you what they said. Either he left her an adequate income from LIFE INSURANCE or "He didn't have a dime's worth of insurance."

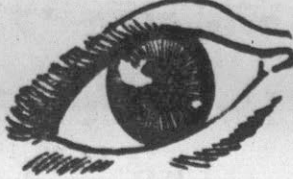

If you don't do business with me, buy more Life Insurance from someone today.

Rae Foley's new mystery novel RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 19 The three horses went at a foot pace along one of the bridle paths, moving from sun to shadow among the trees. The day was magnificent for a ride but Mr. Potter was aware that his companions were not enjoying it. Frank was subdued and Stuart was somber. Both of them, however, were making an effort to establish some links of good will, tacitly assuming that Deming and not his son was responsible for Stuart's year of imprisonment.

Fishing Lines Spelled Death

GRUNDY, Va. (AP)—David Blankenship, 34, of Harman, went fishing with his son Thurman, 14, and a girl from the neighborhood, Lydia Endicott, 13. Thurman somehow lost his balance and fell against the girl, sending both of them from a large rock into the Levisa River, according to Buchanan County Sheriff Burl Rife. The elder Blankenship plunged into the river and dragged Lydia to shore, where she was revived. He returned for his son, but both became entangled in the fishing lines and drowned.

The program of worship at the Eighth Street Christian Church Sunday morning at 11:00 will be appropriate for Mother's Day. Every worshipper is asked to wear an appropriate flower. Mrs. H. L. Carter will sing a solo of Malotte entitled "For My Mother" and the pastor will preach on the theme "Mothers of Today." The board of officers of the church will meet in a special called session on Tuesday night at 7:30 to consider the special project of air-conditioning the church. Two young men, W. M. Scales Jr. and Charles W. Howard, have challenged the membership of the church on this proposition and will make a report at the meeting Tuesday night at which time it is hoped that every officer of the church will be present. The May session of the Christian Women's Fellowship will be held in the church parlor Monday afternoon at 3:30 with Circle No. 5 in charge. The program of the afternoon will be conducted by Mrs. William S. Corbitt Jr. who led the mission study class last week with her neighbor, Mrs. Tom Davis, as resource leader. Mrs. Agnes Settle will lead the devotions Monday afternoon. At the service Sunday morning there will be the Dedication of Infants born during the past year. Any and all parents of babies born since last Mother's Day may bring them to this service which will appear on the program of worship immediately after the Doxology. The Eighth Street Church will be cooperating in every way with the United Crusade For Christ which is to begin in Greenville on Sunday night, May 19, at 7:30.

"Stranger At My Door"

Hard To Believe, Even By Texans

PARIS (AP)—The Paris newspaper Le Figaro, which has been enlightening its readers on the marvels of Texas, headlined the latest in its series of stories today: "Air Conditioned Cities for Millions." Correspondent Max Olivier-Lacamp said he asked some of his Texas friends, "Do you think that one day all of the air in Texas will be 'conditioned'?" The reply, according to Olivier-Lacamp: "We are certain of it. It is only a question of technique and means. Technical progress has no limit, and the means of Texas are unlimited."
