Tornadoes Again Rake Missouri; Casualties Rise

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Tornadoes struck a second death blow at Missouri yesterday in as many days by claiming 14 more lives for a total of 51 and 270 injured. Small towns in southern and eastern Missouri were hit by a rash of tornadoes even as workmen still dug in the rubble of Kansas City suburbs where less than 24 hours before a tornado claimed 37 lives and injured 200 persons. Six persons were killed in a twister which leveled Fremont, a town of 207 which only 10 days ago was hit by a flash flood. One man was killed at nearby Van Buren and a hundred miles to the north-east seven more persons perished in and around Desloge, 60 miles south of St. Louis. Some 70 persons were left injured in the wake of the deadly black funnels. Hundreds were homeless. The rapid-fire chain of tornadoes, spawned by the same sultry weather disturbances that gave birth to the year's deadliest tornado in Kansas City's outskirts at midnight Monday, struck the most vicious blow at Fremont. There a twister sheared the second floor from a two-story brick school and then roared on into town. "It sounded like a jet plane as it came in from the west," Alvin Bell, one of the survivors, related. He credited a tornado alert four hours earlier with saving at least 100 persons who took cover in storm cellars. Only seven homes at Fremont were left intact. Six business buildings and 40 homes were flattened. Thomas Hood and his son-in-law Bill Harris, barely missed the twister at Fremont on their way home from an Arkansas fishing trip. They joined in the rescue work, unaware Hood's own home had been destroyed in another twister. "When we reached Fremont it looked like a ghost town," Hood said. "People were walking around dazed. The town was so badly destroyed there was no one to take charge." When Hood finally reached home, he learned his wife escaped the Desloge twister only by taking refuge in a cellar. At Desloge, witnesses said residents were lucky to escape with only three dead as a twister cut a path of havoc six blocks wide. Three other persons were killed at a family reunion at a farm home 15 miles northeast of there. O. M. McLeod, a miner of nearby Flat River who watched the twister hit Desloge, said it sounded like "a steam engine with burned-out bearings pulling a string of freight cars." The twisters did many strange things. At Desloge it picked up Bobby Tiefenauer's two-story frame house and turned it about before setting it down 200 yards away. Only an hour before the storm struck, some 400 students at the Desloge High School had completed classes and were dismissed. The school was heavily damaged. Only the walls were left standing. Mrs. Leo Nelson was home alone with her two sons, age two and six, when she heard the storm roaring down on Desloge, a town of 2,000. She huddled with her children in a closet and prayed. Her glasses were blown from her face as the house cracked and splintered. But she and her two were unharmed, and later she found her glasses under a table, unbroken.

Digging For The Dead In Kansas City Tornado

A bulldozer works its way into the wreckage of a supermarket at Kansas City in search for the bodies of victims killed by a tornado that struck Monday night. The supermarket was in suburban Ruskin Heights. At least 37 persons were killed in the 80-mile path of the storm across sections of Missouri and nearby Kansas. (AP Wirephoto).

Sees 'Gamble' In Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Demands for big cuts in foreign aid spending persisted in Congress today despite President Eisenhower's charge that economy advocates are gambling blindly and recklessly along a road to free world "disaster." The President stripped off the velvet gloves last night in a nationwide television-radio appeal for support of the administration's $3,865,000,000 mutual security program. He spoke of "those blindly striving to save the money that must be spent as the price of peace," and said he doesn't propose to "take that gamble." A week ago last night Eisenhower made a strong pitch on television and radio for his general $7,500,000,000 spending budget for the fiscal year starting July 1. But at a meeting with newsmen the next day he refused to take a tough line with members of his own party in Congress who disagree with him on spending and other matters. He talked again at that time of the possibility of squeezing fat from the spending program. Eisenhower went on the air last night after formally submitting his foreign aid program to the lawmakers during the day. In a special message he said it would be "supreme folly" for America to cripple its allies against communism "through an overwearing zeal to scrimp." Committees of both the House and Senate arranged to start hearings today on his proposals. In his talk to the nation Eisenhower came up with the fighting-saying anew that the cost of peace is high. "Yet the price of war," he added, "is higher and is paid in different coin—with the lives of our youth and the devastation of our cities. "To cripple our programs for mutual security in the false name of 'economy' can mean nothing less than a weakening of our nation. "To try to save money at the risk of such damage is neither conservative nor constructive. It is reckless. "It could mean the loss of peace. It could mean the loss of freedom. It could mean the loss of both. "I know that you do not wish your government to take such a reckless gamble. I do not intend that your government take that gamble." At another point Eisenhower called the aid program "a saving shield of freedom." He added that ending or weakening the program would vastly increase the risk of future war. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas took a wait-and-see position, saying "the question of what constitutes a 'minimum' figure is one that can be determined only after a searching scrutiny of the details. "But Sen. Uzzell (R-ND) said Eisenhower still is "asking for too much money—about a billion too much." Sen. Aiken (R-VT) said a half billion dollar cut "won't hurt the program too much." Eisenhower was in a solemn mood during the TV-radio speech from his White House office. Watching from a red sofa to the right of his desk was his son John, an Army major. After the 30-minute talk under glaring floodlights the President mopped his brow and remarked with a chuckle to son John: "Hot work."

Jury To Receive Vote Fraud Case

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A federal court jury is expected to begin deliberating today the case of six Madison County Democrats accused by the government of conspiring to "fix" the 1954 general election. Ten men originally were brought to trial but Judge Wilson Warlick yesterday acquitted four of them on grounds of insufficient evidence. The four were Leroy Shelton, Arthur E. Cantrell and Merit and Jeff Whitl. Warlick held that there appeared to be sufficient evidence against the rest to warrant jury consideration. They are Zeno and E. Y. Ponder, B. K. Meadows, James W. Baldwin, W. T. Moore and Roy Freeman. The jury will hear concluding arguments and Warlick's charge before it begins considering the case. The government rested its case yesterday after sending some 75 witnesses to the stand. Defense attorneys offered no testimony and moved for a directed verdict of acquittal. At that point, Warlick acquitted four of the defendants. Defense attorney Roy Francis of Waynesville, in his argument yesterday, labeled the trial "a political fight." He said it was brought into court at the behest of Atty. Gen. Brownell, a Republican.

Atomic Test Is Again Delayed

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—For the seventh straight day high winds have caused a postponement of the atomic explosion that will start a summer-long test series. Turbulent activity in the upper air caused weather experts to put the explosion off until tomorrow morning at the earliest. The forecasters said they expected the adverse conditions that have held the tests up for a week to start changing for the better tomorrow.

Loot Should Be Easily Identified

DALLAS (AP)—Houston police have asked their Dallas counterparts to be on the lookout for three juveniles believed vacationing here. The trio, all 14 to 15 years old, stole three high-speed motorcycles. They should be easily recognized. One motorcycle is painted white and is equipped with red lights, siren, and a two-way Houston police radio.

County Jail Safe Was 'Otherwise'

Charlie Jackson, Negro trusty at Pitt County Jail, apparently had one grand time spending Deputy Sheriff Loyd Manning's money over the past month or so. Jackson has been indicted by the Grand Jury for larceny of $220 belonging to Deputy Manning from the County Jail safe. It all happened one day in April, according to Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson. Manning had placed eleven $20 bills—his personal money—in the jail safe. It was in an envelope with his name on the front. One morning when he checked in the safe for his money, Deputy Manning, who is in charge of the jail, found it missing. The sheriff and deputies launched a long investigation which involved checking on prisoners who had been discharged and other prisoners who remained in jail. Finally the suspects narrowed to Jackson, a trusty who had drawn a 12 months sentence. The sheriff said that upon questioning Jackson, who hails from the Charlotte area, admitted taking the funds. He had spent all the money and none was recovered. Yesterday the case came before the Grand Jury and a true bill was returned. Jackson is scheduled for trial in Superior Court today. Sheriff Tyson emphasized that no county funds were involved in the theft. Money taken in at the jail is brought to the court house for safekeeping. Jackson, incidentally, won't be facing a larceny charge for the first time. He drew his County Jail sentence as a result of a conviction on a charge of larceny.

Apologies For Stealing Cash

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Somebody robbed the cash register of a downtown dry cleaning establishment last Saturday. Later owner Paul Divers received a note of apology. The note said: "Ever since Saturday I've been a nervous wreck. I'm sorry for what happened. I hope you will forgive me." With the note Divers received $28 in cash. He said the cash register checked out $27.80 short after the robbery.

Airman Ordered To Pay $1,800 To Family Of Man He Killed

Prayer for judgment was continued yesterday against an Air Force enlisted man on condition that he pay $1,800 to the family of a man he killed. Theodore Boyd, 24-year-old Negro stationed at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, was ordered to make the payment by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, presiding at a criminal term of Superior Court which opened Monday. Judge Frizzelle stipulated that Boyd was making immediate payment of $1,000 and monthly payments of $50 each until the $800 balance is paid. Boyd was also ordered to pay court costs. Boyd had been charged with murder in the original bill of indictment that grew out of the March 30 death of Joe Arthur Tyson, 18-year-old Winterville Negro. In court yesterday, however, Boyd entered a plea of nolo contenders to involuntary manslaughter. Tyson died after being stabbed in the left leg and having the main artery in the leg severed. The cutting occurred in front of the Tropicana Club on Bonner's Lane. Other judgments handed down yesterday included: Jerry Lee Hancock, Greenville, embezzlement, jury verdict of not guilty; James H. Cox, Negro, no address listed, receiving stolen goods, 30 days suspended upon payment of costs and $25 for use and benefit of Louis Fleming. William Perry King, no address listed, assault on a female and public drunkenness, no plea with leave; James A. Harper, Negro, Pitt Street, Greenville, assault with a deadly weapon, 60 days; Axie Lee Erickson, Route 2, Greenville, larceny, 12 months suspended upon condition defendant re-

Disagreement On Tax Bill Dims June 1 Adjournment Hope

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today about half of the 2½-billion-dollar cut in defense funds voted by a House committee would cut directly into the nation's guided missile and aircraft programs. The country is going to suffer if the reduction approved by the House Appropriations Committee is allowed to stand with respect to those fields, Eisenhower told a news conference. He also said he never will agree to a tax cut while the budget is in what he called its current precarious state of balance. Discussing the 2½-billion-dollar defense reduction approved by the House committee, Eisenhower said about $1,300,000,000 of it is not a budget cut at all but a book-keeping tactic. He went on to say that $1,200,000,000 of the proposed reduction would, however, cut directly into the defense program in such fields as aircraft and guided missiles. At that point, Eisenhower said he is not barred from talking to individual members of Congress along that line, so long as he notifies the leaders regarding his intentions. POLITICS—Eisenhower said he always endeavors to support all Republican nominees for congress because he feels so strongly that both the White House and the legislative branch should be controlled by the same party. He went on to say, that when it comes to who he is for enthusiastically for congressional office and who he is just for, that is another matter. Eisenhower's remarks were in reply to a question whether he would follow his practice of the past and give blanket endorsement to all Republican candidates for Congress, regardless of their voting records. DISARMAMENT—Eisenhower said the United States must make every possible effort to work out a disarmament agreement with Russia. The more that intelligent men think about the arms race, the more they realize progress toward disarmament must be made. Eisenhower added, Alluding then to talks with Russia which have been going on in London, Eisenhower said the United States must not be play-actish and must be willing to meet the Russians half way. But in the light of history with respect to the way the Soviets fail to keep agreements, he said, this country must also be especially careful in entering into any inspection pact. REACTION—Eisenhower said public reaction to his television, radio and news conference efforts in behalf of his spending budget has gradually turned in favor of the administration's position. At first, he added, most people either were inclined to question the administration's spending plans or to hostile. Asked whether he plans more direct-to-the-people appeals, Eisenhower replied—with a smile but emphatically—that as long as he is in a fight he never rests. Until he gets what he wants in the way of adequate funds to wage the peace and carry out the rest of his program, he will never stop fighting, he added.

Move To Revive Minimum Wage Bill Is Awaited

RALEIGH (AP)—There was a likelihood the House may act today on a Senate request to recall the administration's minimum wage bill from a House committee where it was pigeon-holed last week. The Senate request would bring the issue to the floor of the House. His motion was sponsored by Rep. E. T. Bost of Cabarrus, former House speaker, expressed the opinion that a two-thirds vote would be required to get the bill out of committee. The issue of the minimum wage bill bobbed up yesterday when Sen. Ed Lanier of Orange moved that the bill be recalled from the floor. His motion was approved without opposition. The Senate already has passed the bill which would set an hourly minimum wage of 75 cents. The House committee on Manufacturing and Labor voted last week to table the bill. Since the committee made no report back to the full House, no minority report could be filed as planned by backers of the bill. Meanwhile, Sen. Richard L. Long of Person sponsored a resolution condemning the action of the House committee in bottling up the measure. The action, he said, was "an inherently dangerous one." He proposed in his resolution an amendment to the Senate rules which would provide that after a bill, passed by the House, remained in a Senate committee for 10 days, it could be recalled by the Senate president (the lieutenant governor) and placed on the calendar. Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan, chairman of the House rules committee, sponsored a change in the House to deal with the situation. He was joined by 10 other House members. Under Uzzell's change, a committee would be required to report any final action on a bill to the House floor and a minority report could be filed. Uzzell planned to summon the rules committee into session today to consider the change. A two-thirds vote would be required to amend the House rules, legislators said.

Expert In Field Becomes Victim

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One of the nation's leading authorities on criminology and penology, Dr. Negley K. Teeters of Temple University, was unable to meet one of his recent classes at the university. Instead, he allowed his students to use one of his tape-recorded discussions for the hour session. The next day Prof. Teeters found that his tape recording on criminology had been stolen. The Senate subcommittee also wants to eliminate from the bill a provision to allow public utilities, principally railroads, to deduct interest on bonded indebtedness for income tax purposes. The House group approved the provision. Highlight of the appropriations subcommittee's action was the controversial issue of expenditures for the state ports at Wilmington and Morehead City. The Advisory Budget Commission recommended $3,100,000 in permanent improvements for the Wilmington port and none for the Morehead City port. The subcommittee cut the amount for the Wilmington port to $2,525,000. It added $225,000 to the $575,000 lopped off the Wilmington budget and approved $800,000 for the Morehead City

He added with emphasis that he intends to stand by that platform. And he said he has no intention of ever going behind the backs of Republican congressional leaders in an effort to get his program through. However, he added, he feels he is not barred from talking to individual members of Congress along that line, so long as he notifies the leaders regarding his intentions. UNC Trustees Formally Elected

RALEIGH (AP)—Twenty-nine trustees of the consolidated University of North Carolina were elected today at a noon joint session of the House and Senate. The two branches of the General Assembly sat together briefly for the formality of voting on the members of the university's board of trustees. The 29 were nominated last night by the Legislature's Joint Committee on University Trustees. The list included 17 new members. Twelve of the 19 present trustees up for reelection retained their places on the board. The seven members unsated in the committee balloting were: B. B. Everette, Palmira; Mrs. R. S. Ferguson, Taylorsville; Harry A. Greene, Raelord; F. D. B. Harding, Yadkinville; C. Wayland Spruill, Windsor; D. L. Ward, New Bern, and James L. Woodson, Salisbury. Trustees renominated were: Sen. Roy Rowe, Burgaw; Thomas J. Pearsall, Rocky Mount; George Nick Noble, Trenton; Kemp B. Nixon, Lincolnton; Mrs. Albert H. Lathrop, Asheville; H. P. Taylor, Wadesboro; W. Frank Taylor, Goldsboro; J. P. Stedman, Lambert; C. Lory Tate, Chadbourn; F. E. Wallace, Kinston; Mrs. Mary McIver Stanford, Chapel Hill, and H. L. Riddle Jr., Morganton. New members nominated to the board were: James L. Pittman, Scotland Neck; Clarence L. Pemberton, Yanceyville; J. W. York, Raleigh; Mrs. Emily Harris Preyer, Greensboro; Dr. Jesse B. Caldwell, Gastonia; A. B. Smith Jr., Dunn; Dr. Francis A. Buchanan, Jackson County; Mrs. George Wilson, Fayetteville; former House speaker Larry Moore, Wilson; Dr. John Gilmer Mebane, Rutherford County; Dr. Roy B. McKnight, Charlotte; Dr. John C. Taylor, Wilmington; Sen. Calvin Graves, Winston-Salem; Camron S. Weeks, Tarboro; Marshall Y. Cooper, Henderson and Wilbur H. Currie, Carthage.

Arrest Eighteen As Result Of Ayden Robberies

AYDEN—One Negro man was arrested on charges of breaking and entering and 17 other Negro men and boys were charged with receiving stolen property last night by the Ayden Police Department. The arrests were made following a series of break-ins at the Ayden Tire Company over a period of the last several months. Maurice Chapman, young Ayden Negro, was arrested on charges of breaking and entering and placed under a $500 bond. He is presently in the Ayden jail. The other 17 were arrested and charged with receiving stolen property, officers said. All 18 were placed in jail during the night, following an extensive investigation and series of arrests. Police Chief H. V. Chandler Jr. stated this morning 32 or more tires had been taken over a period of several months and that Chapman had been passing the stolen tires to the other 17 arrested.

Economies Go Over $4 Billion Mark

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST WASHINGTON (AP)—A $2,586,775,000 cut in recommended new funds for the Defense Department has boosted the congressional budget-cutting drive over the four billion dollar mark. But there was considerable difference of opinion today among House fiscal experts as to how much of the reduction is real and to what extent it will affect overall government spending in fiscal 1958 starting July 1. The White House declined comment on the committee action pending a detailed study. Appropriations Committee members said the "actual" cut in new funds for the Defense Department recommended yesterday by the committee amounted to from $1,200,000,000 to $1,900,000,000. The difference between those amounts and the $2,586,000,000 listed by the committee as reductions from President Eisenhower's requests is in the area of bookkeeping transactions and reductions which may have to be restored later. Rep. Mahon (D-Tex), chairman of a subcommittee that drafted the $33,541,225,000 measure, told newsmen he considered "the actual cut" to be about $1,900,000,000. But he said he had no idea of how much the cut would reduce spending next year. Much of that spending will be from funds previously appropriated. Another committee member said his own estimate was that "about 125 million dollars will be cut from government spending next year as a result of the cut in new defense appropriations." Funds appropriated by Congress in one year are not always spent the following year. For example, the defense bill appropriates 300 millions for a new atomic attack carrier, but the entire amount won't be spent until the vessel is commissioned some years from now. The bill emerged from the committee with only one vote of opposition. Rep. Canfield (R-NJ) said he believed the committee should follow the President and not cut defense funds. The bill was the 11th annual appropriation measure sent to the House floor this year. They embodied requests for $55,100,000,000 in new funds. Nine of them already have passed the House with cuts aggregating $1,400,000,000.

Plans No Inquest In Traffic Death

After a preliminary investigation, Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated this morning that no inquest will be held in the death of Helen Winifred Kalar who was instantly killed in a traffic accident Monday. Coroner Rouse said that he had not talked with Jack Allgood, the driver of the pickup truck involved in the head-on collision. However, his investigation has shown that the accident was unavoidable under the circumstances, he said. Allgood suffered a broken left elbow, extensive abrasions and lacerations in the wreck. His condition was described as "satisfactory" today.

at Butler Training School, $75,000 for a new hospital building at C-3 well Training School in Kinston, and $45,000 for staff physician houses at the State Hospital at Goldsboro. The subcommittee recommended more than 5½ million for permanent improvements at State Hospital, training schools and other health facilities; more than three million for state-supported teacher colleges and Negro colleges, and 1½ million for community colleges. Recommendations also included $535,200 to the North Carolina School for the Deaf in Morganton, $436,700 for the North Carolina School for the Blind and Deaf in Raleigh, and $688,000 to the Department of Conservation and Development for maintenance of state parks.

Miss Pat Beatty Honored By Miscellaneous Shower

A miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Pat Beatty by Mrs. Willie Pate, Mrs. Earl Morgan, and Mrs. Edgar Denton. The event took place Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Denton.

Miss Beatty, whose marriage to Amos Evans will take place May 28, was dressed in a French blue shantung dress and wore a yellow rose corsage which was presented to her by her hostesses upon arrival. Mrs. Evans, mother of the bridegroom, also was given a corsage.

Guests were greeted at the door by the honoree, and Mrs. Denton. The home was decorated with white and pink roses, while the center table in the dining room was decorated with the traditional

Speaker Says Three Elements In Religion

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. R. W. MacKenzie was hostess to members of the Lector Book Club.

Guests for the afternoon were: Mrs. M. T. Simpson, Mrs. Wiley Forbes, Mrs. Jack Horton, Mrs. John Drake and Mrs. Hill Horne. Upon their arrival Mrs. MacKenzie served strawberry shortcake with coffee.

Mrs. Harold Forbes presided over a short business session when minutes were read by Mrs. Powell Speight, secretary.

Mrs. MacKenzie, program leader for the afternoon, spoke on religion. "There have been thousands of different definitions of religion, but the many religions cannot be defined by simple, neat statements. Usually persons who write about religion are in favor of a particular one. Every religion of history is made up of three elements—The Ideal, The Cult, and Theology or 'world view.'"

"A living religion is constantly changing in its ideal, cult and theology. Only a dead religion such as the mythology of the Greeks and Romans remains at a standstill," she mentioned.

"Religion has been one of the most powerful forces in history. Many persons have died for their religious beliefs. Nations have gone to war because of differences between them and their enemies. But in the history of mankind there has never been a tribe of men who did not have some form of religion," she concluded.

Books were exchanged before the meeting adjourned.

Seven Pines HD Club Participates In Local Contest

The Seven Pines Home Demonstration Club is the fourth club to participate in the Furniture Arrangement Contest sponsored by Bostic-Sugg Furniture Company in Greenville.

They have furnished a living room and separate dining room. The living room is furnished in traditional mahogany with a Duncan Phyfe sofa flanked by end tables with matching lamps. Two large chairs, one in rose beige, the other in green, pick up the colors in the floral pattern of the sofa.

The secretary is flanked by a pair of matching needle point chairs. The lamps, ash trays and cigarette box carry out the colors of green and rose. The lamp table between the chairs, as well as the occasional rocker and all have the same rose carving as the sofa. A magazine rack and glass topped coffee table with a green plant in a brass planter complete the living room.

The dining room is furnished in traditional combined with modern. The furniture is mahogany. The china cabinet is filled with modern white china.

The table has six matching chairs upholstered in a soft rose stripe. The dropleaf table is placed against the wall and above it are five Chinese prints, framed in black and brass.

The table is centered with a green plant in a rose bowl. And placed on the buffet are two matching black and brass lamps. Centering the buffet is a large container of fruit, with three large Chinese prints over the buffet.

Keep Beauty In Hand

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Working girls are outstanding for their fastidiousness, but often neglectful in hand care. Strangely paradoxical perhaps, but true.

The typist who works with carbon paper often goes out to lunch with hands smudged, the factory worker is likely to eat her sandwich in the locker room using grimy fingers, the file clerk is spotted every time for broken fingernails and ragged hangnails. Time is of the essence for the working girl who often must cram photographers are often at a loss for a model. Even if the average model's hands look good, they are likely not pretty enough for close scrutiny.

Housewives may display clean hands due to frequent immersion in soapy water, but other hand problems result from household chores—redness, chapping, broken fingernails.

The average woman may find it a chore to keep hands in shape because, unlike makeup for the face, hand grooming aids are not kept at the fingertips. A little sit in the locker or desk at the office, or in the kitchen cupboard may make one mindful of hand beauty.

If you do not like to invest in hand cream only, get one labeled hand and body lotion. Use it on legs, arms and neck besides your hands. One petal pink lotion has been especially formulated to lubricate dried-out skin, also beneficial for brittle fingernails and for softening the cuticle.

An easy way to keep the hands looking pretty is through a connective idea pattern. Push the cuticle back when you wash your hands or bathe in the morning, use the emery board when you are relaxing at the radio or at TV, use hand lotion after you wash your hands, remove your nail polish before dressing for a date—leave it off completely or apply the new polish before going out. Nail polish should be removed whenever it begins to chip, and it's a good idea to carry a small bottle of remover in the purse or leave it at work just in case an emergency lunch or evening date comes along.

Stork Shower

Timothy HD Club Hears Miss Jones

Assistant home demonstration agent Miss Lois Jones gave the monthly demonstration when the Timothy Home Demonstration Club met for their May meeting with Mrs. Ivey Wall as hostess. The subject of the demonstration was "Better Frozen Foods."

Mrs. W. R. Wall, president, called the meeting to order and the song "Church in the Wildwood" was sung. The devotional was led by Mrs. T. G. Wall.

Twelve members were present with one visitor.

A nominating committee was appointed, with Mrs. Tommie Adams as chairman.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Herbert Taylor on beautification, Mrs. Fred Wall on gardening and Mrs. Z. O. Whitford on food.

Miss Jones urged everyone to attend the Progress Program meeting in June.

The hostess served a salad plate during the social hour.

Let Women Pick "Perfect Car"

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
If it weren't for women, all cars would be black and the only inner refinements would be a cigar lighter and ashtray.

Leaders of the automobile industry acknowledge this fact freely, and now are so eager to find out what women want in their new cars that they are going to sensational lengths to get the information in hand. Most recent is a contest among state finalists in the current Mrs. America contest for the winning essay on designing a 1958 car.

Mrs. Linwood Findley, of Arlington, Va., the winner of the essay contest, wants mostly bigger doors to make it easier to get in and out of cars, and also suggests that a red light flash on the dashboard when the gas gauge shows near empty. The last suggestion will be greeted by cheers from every woman driver who has endured a husband's wrath when she forgot to get gas in time.

Other ideas submitted in the contest bring to mind many common tragedies of the feminine motorist. Such as that of Mrs. Lillian Wass, of Centerville, S. D., who asks hopefully for "no sharp points anywhere." You can see that this is a lady whose nylon mortality rate is high.

A number of women request washable upholstery, and many think safety belts would be good as standard equipment.

Mrs. Hugh MacLier, of Omaha, Neb., wants a safe baby seat in her next car and Elizabeth Jane Messersmith, of Buckhannon, W. Va., wants a built-in wastebasket.

Mrs. William R. Wilson of Santa Fe, N. M., wants a tissue holder and brass trim instead of chrome.

When Mrs. Beeman and her husband had been married only two years, they had four sons, Ronald and Donald were born

PARIS, TEX. (AP)—Harassed young mothers can take comfort that they don't have Mrs. Jack Beeman's plight.

When someone upsets the cookie jar, she has a double problem trying to pin down the culprit—two sets of identical twin boys.

The first pair, Donald and Ronald, are 4 years old and the second set, Jeffy and Terry, are 3.

Twins are the rule in her family rather than the exception. There were five sets of identical twins in her family and two in her husband's family. The Beeman family originally is from Ablene.

Aug. 14, 1952, and Jerry and Terry made their entrance Aug. 30, 1953.

Looking after four energetic boys so near the same age is difficult for one person, Mrs. Beeman says. But her task is multiplied because she has a hard time telling them apart.

But she takes her problems in stride.

Do You Visit Market In Trance?

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor
When you go into the supermarket and start wandering up and down the aisles, did you know you're in a trance-like state?

When you emerge with twice as many items as you intended to buy, and wonder where the money went, did you know you are a victim of a deep-laid psychological plot known as motivational research?

Did you realize that you really don't know what you want, until the double-domes employed by modern advertising agencies figure it out for you, plant the subconscious desire and trigger the buying action by an irresistible package?

Well, it's all true, says Vance Packard, author of a new and highly controversial book, "The Hidden Persuaders."

In his chapter, "Babes in Consumerland," Packard traces the movements of women in a supermarket, as reported after exhaustive study, hidden cameras and other devices by various research groups.

Interestingly, many of these women were in such a trance that they passed by neighbors and old friends without noticing or greeting them," he says. "Some had so entranced as they wandered about the store plucking things off shelves at random that they would bump into boxes without seeing them. . . ."

Women seldom go to market with a shopping list any more, Packard reports. Instead, they depend on impulse buying, as planned and plotted by the psychological research teams of manufacturers and agencies. Anything in a red package is likely to appeal to a woman, he says.

Men, on the other hand, reach for blue.

The result of all this motivational study and delving into the consumer's psyche is that we all more than we used to, says Packard—but then we have more fun doing it.

Benny To Leave His Bed Today

MANORVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—Benny Hooper expects to be back on his feet today for the first time since his rescue from the bottom of a well.

The 7-year-old boy is due to leave his bed briefly at Bayview General Hospital in nearby Mastie Beach. He probably will return to his home here Friday or Saturday.

"I'm feeling better," Benny said yesterday. "I want to go out and play."

Last Thursday the youngster tumbled into a 24-foot well dug by his father in the back yard of their home. He was trapped 23 1/2 hours.

"5 WAYS TO A PERFECT FIT" AT 5 POINTS

A Long Overdue Knuckle-Rapping

Action of the House Appropriations Committee in criticizing rivalry among the three branches of the armed services is long overdue.

Eastern North Carolina has had a striking example of the foolishness that goes on with the squabble over Stallings Air Force Base at Kinston. The Navy owns the property but leases it to the Air Force for use as a primary flight training center.

The Air Force recently announced its decision to

Some Satisfaction In The Defeat Of DST

We have no big quarrel with Daylight Saving Time, but confess to some satisfaction the General Assembly decided against decreeing how our clocks should be set.

Some local governing bodies take DST too seriously; one went so far as to set a fine for business firms who ignored the new schedule . . . and, we're happy to say, lost a resultant court test.

The idea appears to have some merit in industrial areas; but agricultural regions would find it worrisome.

At present, we suspect there is more nuisance value to Daylight Saving Time than practical value. The system is not uniformly adopted, and the result is only a maze of confusion.

The House debate must have been well worth hearing in light of passage on two readings, then the downfall in its third reading.

Arguments opposed to the bill included this gem by Rep. John Kerr of Warren: "There is no need at this time for this type of legislation and puny men as we should not tamper with God's own time."

Anyway, he counted as a vote against it.

Transport Czar Idea Takes Hold

By ELMER ROESSNER

The idea of a single Federal agency to control interstate transportation, proposed before the Transportation Association of America by Edwin G. Nourse, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, is attracting considerable attention.

Dr. Nourse, wise in the ways of government from his Washington sojourn, didn't say that's exactly what we need. He said there should be an immediate Congressional study of the advantages of a permanent agency for developing a national policy in transportation and applying it to all forms.

There doesn't seem to be a unified policy at present. To hear those regulated tell it, various agencies try to help truckers at the expense of railroads, railroads at the expense of barge lines, barge lines at the expense of airlines and airlines at the expense of railroads. Maybe it isn't as bad as that. On the other hand, maybe it is worse.

TAX BASES DIVERGE

Airlines and buses complain that their fuels are taxed but that the railroads are not; the railroads complain that the government subsidizes airlines and provides the equivalent of rights of way for trucks and barge lines. Shipments of gas in tanks are regulated but Congress is trying to free the transportation of gas in pipelines. And so it goes.

The biggest reason for co-ordination, however, is the fact that transportation industries are no longer separate little empires. There is a great mingling of various types of transport now and, if efficiency and defense are to be best served, there will be a lot more in the future. People traveling by air must make part of their journeys by bus or train. Goods moving from plant to market often take a truck-train-truck trip. The days when goods or people moved either by train, boat or horses are long gone.

Truckers and railroads are rapidly getting together; the piggy-back freight car is their marriage bed. Alfred E. Perlman, president of the New York Central, said his company is seeking a "long-range classification as a rail-truck-water transportation agency not as a railroad." That's good. Probably the only reason he doesn't want to make it a rail-truck-water-plane agency is that he does not want another set of government re-

MULTIPLE CONTROLS

Interstate transportation policies and controls are now in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Army Corps of Engineers and a variety of other agencies. In the Department of Commerce there's the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Bureau of Public Roads, the Maritime Administration, the Federal Maritime Board and the Defense Air Transportation, all under the Undersecretary for Transportation. The Coast Guard regulates the transportation of explosives and certain phases of shipping. In the State Department the Office of Transportation and Communications seems to have something to do with inland transport.

The Department of Agriculture has a section to worry about farmers' transportation problems; the General Service Administration controls transportation rates charged the Federal government.

Creating a National Transport Administration to take over major policy and regulatory functions would not, however, be a means of restoring economy to government operations. The NTA would have to have its own echelons of administrators and its staff and then each of the other organizations mentioned would have to set up and staff new bureaus to co-ordinate its work with the NTA. Liaison, they call it in government.

OFF-BEAT ITEMS IN THE BUSINESS NEWS

Great Britain now produces chocolate rumb from Ireland, can be made in Ireland, and this is hurting the Irish milk business. close the base. One of the basic reasons cited for the decision was the Air Force's inability to make major repairs at the base because it was Navy property.

It would appear to us that the Navy and the Air Force—and the Army—have but one common objective. That is to maintain the military advantage of the United States over its enemies. There is certainly no better way to maintain that superiority than for the three branches to cooperate among themselves for the common good of this country.

The struggle among the various branches goes, of course, beyond the control of real estate, in North Carolina or anywhere else. The House Appropriations Committee laid the basic cause of the trouble on "the desire on the part of each service to control the 'ultimate weapon,' the ballistic missile."

Whatever the reason, it is high time for the Army, Navy and Air Force brass to realize that they can accomplish their mission—protection of the United States—only by cooperation and joint effort. The United States will not get full benefit from its military agencies when they are squabbling among themselves.

Money, it is said, frequently talks louder than words. Perhaps if the House Appropriations Committee makes it clear that duplicate appropriations will not be made when activities can be coordinated and unified, the military branches will make some concerted effort to iron out their difficulties.

In the event such action is not taken, perhaps it would be wise for the President of the United States, who certainly should realize the value of joint and co-ordinated efforts, to take the appropriate steps.

Out-Of-Staters Are Interested

By LYNN NISBET

UNIQUE — The out of state editors who have spent the past five days touring North Carolina found many things different from other parts of the country, some of them unique. They were amazed at the diversity of terrain, scenery and industry.

Most of the tour was made by air and the route was arranged not for the purpose of saving time getting from here to yonder, but to afford a sort of bird's eye view of the whole area. Unfortunately there were some clouds, though the weather generally has been fine, and the views shortened if not obscured. If all the time had been clear passengers on the plane could have seen almost every square mile of Tarheelia.

Short trips were made by automobile and local buses took the party through cities where scheduled stops were made. There were special subjects of interest for individual visitors. Editors of Business Week, Dunn's Review and the financial editor of the New York Times obviously were concerned with business conditions. Editors of National Geographic, See America Magazine (a brand new publication), the outdoor editor of the Washington Post, and the Sunday editor of the Washington Star were more interested in recreation and scenery.

Editors of Coronet, Editor & Publisher, the Hartford Courant, the Providence Journal, and top level staff men of Newsweek, Time and Life Magazines, the Indianapolis News, the Miami Herald and other Knight chain papers looked at all segments with equal interest — business, recreation, travel and social customs.

SURPRISED — The Yankee visitors expressed surprise at the high quality of a Negro housing project at Wilmington, and the excellence of tax supported Negro colleges at Greensboro. They got a new slant on race relations when Tom Robinson, president of the N. C. Press Association, joint host with the State of North Carolina presented to the dinner audience at Charlotte Galveston Hagood, one of the headwaters at the City Club, to recite with appreciative emotion General Robert E. Lee's farewell address to his troops after Appomattox.

Those mainly interested in business were eager to learn of tax policies in this State, and amazed to find that North Carolina does not have a public toll road or bridge. Jack Forrest, the NY Times man, said he believes this is the only State to make that claim. The integrity of general fund, agriculture and highway accounts maintained along with a common budget intrigued the financial writers.

This was the first time several of the visitors had seen our mountains and the first time others had ever one on a deep sea fishing trip. It was not planned but it was a lucky break that the two biggest fish were caught by Aubrey Graves, outdoor editor of the Washington Post, and Bill Foote, managing editor of the Hartford Courant. There will be stories with pictures in their papers and others about the joys of fishing in the ocean off Wrightsville.

Stories like that and like those about fiscal policy and taxation will be worth more to promote development of North Carolina than thousands of dollars in paid advertising.

An interesting sidelight: When an advance poll was taken to see how many wanted to go deep sea fishing, every man said yes. Only two asked for any special arrangements to play golf.

NON-POLITICAL — Political tones were noticeable because of their complete absence throughout the trip. Two or three of the visitors commented on this. Sure, there were some politicians at the stop-over social functions, and several State officials — including Governor Hodges — rode the plane. They were there not to further the interest of any part or faction, but to promote the economic development of the state. They were concerned about taxes and government spending only as these matters affected business prosperity. Nearly all of them represented high income levels.

For that reason it was difficult to get a fair impression of community sentiment. Governor Hodges' tax program had unanimous support among attendants at these meetings. However, the questions they asked in off-side private conversations (the subject was never brought up in public) indicated they sensed adverse sentiment in the rank and file of the citizenship.

The visitors had only objective interest in these matters. They only wanted to know what is going on so they can report to their readers throughout the country. Time after time they wondered out loud "Why don't the State or the communities or the people who have money invested in recreational facilities do more to publicize them to the world?"

Despite the efforts of the State Advertising Division and the chambers of commerce, it looks maybe like the late Irvin Cobb was right when he said what North Carolina needs is a good press agent. It also appears that we recruited fifteen part time workers in that field by the air cruise program.

Postman Always Rings Twice

by DON SCHLIENZ

Another Year, New Hope

Among other things, this is also the time of year when fishing tales, tall and true, permeate the air.

Boats either have been, or are being, overhauled; tackle cleaned and replacements considered.

Stories are making the rounds of big catches and the "ones that got away."

A couple weeks ago, a nephew returned home wet and disheveled, with a story of a herring-run he saw in which the fish were racing through some shallows virtually gill-to-gill. He killed some with a stick. His father, and a couple of others who drove to the scene, agreed they'd never seen anything like it before.

There's hasn't been much opportunity so far this year for me to get into the fisherman act. Too many preoccupations. And it is a regrettable fact that fish seem to know when I'm around. I have sat in a boat, using the same kind of bait, same size hook, as my fishing partner; he was catching, I was wishing.

And I have trolled waters apparently notorious for abounding in rockfish (everybody else said so, anyway), and succeeded only in losing lures on underwater snags. So it goes.

But there is one bright ray of hope amidst all my sackcloth and ashes: "This year will be different."

A letter last week, from my younger brother, says he has been ordered to Japan. A Navy career-man, he enlisted soon after graduating from high school. He's a CFO now, and in a few years eligible for retirement.

My sister-in-law says they've got the word plenty of housing is available, and they're selling their Stockton (Calif.) home. The family is going with Jim; taking their first in a series of immunization shots and looking ahead to that ocean voyage with a lot of excitement.

The two youngsters, aged 4 1/2 and 2 1/2, seem hardly old enough to get steamed up about such an adventure. . . . but they manage.

My helpmate and I ruminated on briefly living in Japan. Decided we'd like it. For such a relatively short time, we agreed it would be more of an "experience" living in a Japanese-style house, with Japanese furnishings, and trying to adapt ourselves to Japanese living. Not a whole lot of sense (we think) in living "American" when all the novelty of "living Japanese" was surrounding us.

The more we thought about it, the more attractive that duty in Japan sounded. While stacking the dinner dishes, my lifetime girlfriend turned to me, "— and why aren't you in the Navy?" she said.

That Asiatic bug must have bitten her, but good.

Opinions In Brief

"When you find a crooked labor leader who took a bribe from a crooked employer, put them both in jail for about fifteen years and give them plenty of time to talk it over among themselves." — Walter Reuther.

"The Department of Labor Consumer Price Index rose from 59.4 in 1939 to 118.2 in January of this year. In other words, in that time the purchasing power of the dollar was cut almost precisely in half." — Industrial News Review.

Other Editors Saying -- Sugar Sale, Blockade

(Hartford County Herald)

The Internal Revenue Service has announced that it is going to take a crack at one of the South's—and sometimes this country's—biggest industry at the place where it will hurt the most. They are going down to the sugar roots of the thing.

The industry under attack is the moonshine distilling business. The government fellers have found themselves unable to cope with the moonshine boys in the woods. They cannot break up the stills as fast as the blockade can set them up.

It is not just the fact that the moonshiners are breaking the law that disturbs the law enforcement officials. The morality of the thing is not the motivating cause for action. The government is not concerned about the folks who consume the white whiskey from the backwoods.

The government agents are going into action for the same reason that the moonshiners are in the business. It is a question of money. The Internal Revenue Service is disturbed over the large amount of whiskey taxes it is not collecting from the river bottom distillers.

So the Revenue boys have decided that they are going to quit chasing the moonshiners and go after the wholesalers who furnish the distillers with sugar, fruit jars, copper and such things. It is a logical attack and one that might prove embarrassing to some merchants, as well as making things difficult for the blockade.

Moonshine distilling is not considered a too respectable occupation in these parts, having some pretty tough characters making good money out of such clandestine operations. But the sale of sugar, mason jars, pint bottles, copper and such is a most respectable business regardless of who the customers for these products may be—and even when the purchases are in such quantities as to cause suspicion.

It takes about 100 pounds of sugar to make 100 gallons of mash. This in turn will produce 10 to 12 gallons of white whiskey, the Revenue Service says. So now the Revenue Service is going to go around checking on persons who are buying sugar in quantity. Most folks these days buy sugar for their coffee and cakes in small packages, not over ten pounds maximum, from the corner grocery and nearby super-market. When purchases of larger quantities are made, the government boys are going to want to know how come.

And, they say, they are not going to depend on voluntary cooperation alone. The law says the Revenue men can demand cooperation from manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. Furthermore, they have announced that the law, if necessary, will be vigorously enforced. Any sugar seller who refuses to cooperate and sells to suspect persons may wind up in the jail himself on a conspiracy charge.

There is a distinct possibility that some very profitable volume in sugar sales will be lost in this area. This goes also for mason jars and pint bottles. The respectability of supplying bootleggers with the materials for their illegal business also will lose some of its attraction, considering the possibility of public revelation of the transactions and of prosecution along with the bootlegger.

Today, We Can Win Atomic War

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The United States could undoubtedly win an atomic war against Russia because of our superior industrial capacity and our geographical remoteness from the center of conflict, according to our top military experts' testimony before closed-door sessions of the House Appropriations Committee. But it would probably be a long drawn contest rather than a sudden death affair, as generally believed.

Unless one side or the other utterly destroyed the enemy in a surprise A-H attack, a collision would be only a sort of preliminary skirmish. Because of our bases that rim the Communist empire, as well as our geographical position, the United States should be able to survive this early atomic duel.

In their strategic plans, however, the Pentagon staff must assume that Russia will also remain unconquered and able to resume the war after licking her wounds. The eventual victor then would be the nation which can recuperate and launch another major attack the more quickly and effectively.

RUSSIA'S DISADVANTAGES IN A WAR In a sense, after the first head-on clash, there would be an interlude like that which followed after Hitler conquered almost all of Western Europe. He had to curtail aggressive operations because he was not prepared to follow up with an invasion of England.

Under Churchill's driving leadership and American aid, Britain had a chance to prepare for the second round of fighting. The same reasons and resources which led to eventual Allied victory in World War II, it is believed, will prevail in any future clash.

Russia will suffer from a great disadvantage, according to this viewpoint, because of our overseas installations. The Soviet can be attacked atomically from every point of the compass, from Northern Europe to South Korea, whereas she cannot win without knocking out the United States. REDS' AERIAL, ATOMIC MIGHT NOT UP TO THAT OF U. S.—Moscow must disperse both her aerial and atomic might, so Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the Committee, are now inferior to our own, both quantitatively and qualitatively. He admits, however, that the Communists are now narrowing the gap.

This analysis of how a third World War will be waged has necessitated a change in earlier military and popular thinking, to wit:

(1) Overseas alliances and forward positions, especially in the Middle East close to Russian oil fields and refineries, have become more essential than ever before. So has peace in that area, and resistance to Communist infiltration.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HOW WE DEVELOP ORIGINALITY

Robert Louis Stevenson is said to have developed his remarkable literary style by copying the style of scores of distinguished authors. For some weeks he would try assiduously every day to put what he had to say into the form used, perhaps, by Cicero or Spenser. Then again he would copy Voltaire or Tolstoy. Next he would choose some of the literary men of his own day and try to write in such fashion that a critic could not distinguish between his writings and the writings of these his contemporaries.

Raphael did the same thing in art. He never saw anything in the technique of any artist that he did not try to copy the technique absolutely.

The result both in the case of Raphael and Stevenson was not that they became mere copiers of others. Out of their slavish attempt to incorporate into their own work the best they found in the work of others, there emerged for each in his field a technique amazingly original. No one has ever painted just like Raphael, and no one has ever had literary style just like Stevenson. Yet the art of these men was the result of diligent attempts to copy the best they encountered in men everywhere.

If we are not afraid to learn, the whole world will come forth gladly and lay its treasures at our feet. Everyone has something to teach us, and the man with the sharpest ears and eyes develops the most pronounced originality.

Moose Club Wallops Elks, 17-0

Joyner Pitches, Gets 3 Hits To Pace Moose Nine

Kenneth Joyner and his Moose teammates had a field day yesterday at Elm Street Park as they clobbered the Elks 17-0, in the wildest-scoring game of the young Little League season.

The Moose gathered in runs at a furious clip, scoring in every inning except the third. It was only a six-inning affair.

Joyner and centerfielder Coltraine blasted homeruns to add the cause and the teams as a whole clouted 11 basenocks. The club also poled four doubles.

Joyner started on the mound for the Moose and went the full six innings. He allowed the Elks only two hits, struck out 13 and issued only one base on balls. Besides being the winning pitcher, the pint-sized righthander also cracked the homer, one double and a single in four official trips to the plate. He was the only man on either team to collect more than two hits.

The Elks used three pitchers but were unable to stop the Moose onslaught. Denny Hardee started and was relieved in the second after the Moose had tapped him for five runs. Frank Moye came on in the second and was also taken out in the fourth, after giving up seven runs. Davenport was the last Elks hurler. The Moose clubbed him for five.

The combined efforts of the Elks hurlers gave up 11 hits, struck out eight and walked nine.

The first two tallies of the game came on hits by Joyner and Cavendish, and an error by the Elk third baseman. Both of the above-named scored.

In the second stanza, leftfielder Byrd singled and went to second when Elk second baseman bobbled a roller hit by Webb. With two on, Joyner cracked a long double to score them. He came in later on another error by the second baseman. The score was 5-0.

The third inning was a scoreless one, but the Moose made up for it in the fourth with seven big tallies. The runs were scored on a homerun by Joyner, a double by Partridge, a single by Forbes, one man hit by a pitched ball and five walks. It was 12-0.

Three more were scored in the fifth. Aycock singled and came across the plate on a double by Coltraine. He scored on an error by the left fielder later. Partridge, who got on on an error, also scored.

In the final frame, Coltraine homered with Cavendish on board, for the last two runs.

Two Games Today A double-header is scheduled for this afternoon at the Park, featuring both the North State and Tar Heel League clubs.

In the first game, the VFW and the Jaycees clash, at 3:30. The Pepsi-Cola and Exchange teams meet at 5:00.

Table with columns: Name, Position, Ab, R, H. Rows include Maloney, Greene, Hardee, Proctor, McGoy, Moore, Moye, Davenport, Sumrell, Smith, Whitchard, Cain, Gaskins, Totals, and Moose players.

FIRST MOOSE RUN—Kenneth Joyner scoots across home plate with the first run in yesterday's 17-0 Moose victory over the Elks. Joyner was the outstanding performer of the day, pitching a two-hit game, clouting a homerun, a double and a single and scoring four of the 17 runs himself. The Moose outfit collected 11 hits in the wildest-scoring game of the young season. Their record is now 1-1. (Reflector Sports Photos by Billy Arnold).

PROCTOR FANS—Elk catcher Proctor gives with a pained expression yesterday as he took a big cut at his third strike, above. It just wasn't his day or his team's day. They took a 17-0 licking at the hands of the Moose at Elm Street Park.

Perry Hurls Third No-Hitter In Row

WILLIAMSTON—Gaylor Perry, the terrific righthander from Williamston, hurled his third consecutive no-hit ball game last night against Rock Ridge, a 7-0 victory.

It was the fifth no-hitter of the season for the Williamston junior and it came against a previously unbeaten club. Rock Ridge was playing the Williamston Wave in a best-two-out-of-three series to decide the Class A title.

Perry, who had a string of 14 strikeouts going at one point in the game, set down one of the stronger clubs in the Class A circuit with ease. Rock Ridge was unbeaten in 16 games before last night.

It was Perry's 12th win without a loss this season and the victory gave Williamston a one-game edge over Rock Ridge. Losing pitcher was Earl Boykin, who carried a 10-0 record into last night's contest.

The smooth-working righthander walked only one man during the entire game. One other batter reached first base on an error. From the third to the seventh inning, Perry sent down the 14 batters without allowing a man to reach first. He fanned 17 in all.

Williamston got three runs in the first three innings, and took their time getting the other four. Perry had things well in hand. He also collected two hits himself. Snelton Chesson added three hits to the cause.

The second game of the series will be played Friday night at Williamston.

Five Duke Players On All ACC Baseball Team

RALEIGH (AP) — Duke University's Atlantic Coast Conference champions placed five players on the all-conference baseball squad announced today by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn.

North Carolina State is represented by three players and Wake Forest and North Carolina two each on the 12-man squad. ACC baseball coaches participated in the voting along with members of the press, radio and television.

Pete Maynard, Duke's hard-hitting sophomore outfielder, was the only unanimous choice, being named on each of the 42 ballots cast in the poll.

Other Duke players named on the first team are outfielder and track ace Dave Sime, pitcher Dick Smallwood, shortstop Lon Bonczek and third baseman Andy Cockrell.

N.C. State placed catcher Bob Kennel, outfielder Dick Hunter and first baseman Eddie Wyant. Wake Forest contributed second baseman Al Baker and utility infielder Bill Barnes. North Carolina is represented by pitcher Jim Raugh and utility outfielder Dick Hudson.

Bonczek is the ACC's leading hitter with a .397 average. His late season spurt enabled him to move past teammates Sime and Maynard, who are hitting .395 and .389 respectively. The trio will lead Duke into the NCAA playoffs in Gastonia next week.

The first team: Eddie Wyant, N.C. State, first base; Al Baker, Wake Forest, second base; Lon Bonczek, Duke, shortstop; Andy Cockrell, Duke, third base; Bill Barnes, Wake Forest, utility.

Pete Maynard, Duke; Sime, Duke, and Dick Hunter, N.C. State, outfield, and Dick Hudson, UNC, utility infielder.

Bob Kennel, N.C. State, catcher, and Jim Raugh, UNC and Dick Smallwood, Duke, pitchers.

White Sox Whip Yankees, Dump Them To Third Place

By JOE REICHLER The Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox, with an eight-game winning streak, a two-game lead in the American League race and their first triumph over the New York Yankees, are making manager Al Lopez look like a first class prophet.

Before last night's game at Yankee Stadium, the smiling senior declared:

"The Yankees can be beaten and we're one of four teams that can do it. I think we have the pitching, speed, defense and sufficient hitting to win."

It's a long way to October but Lopez has nothing to apologize for today. His White Sox are three games in front of the Yankees, whom they whipped 3-1 last night and dumped into third place, a game behind Cleveland. The Indians defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-2 in an afternoon game.

Detroit's fourth place Tigers took a sizzling 16-inning 2-1 thriller from Baltimore to advance to within two games of the Yankees. In another American League game Washington shut out Kansas City 3-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Camilo Pascual.

The Brooklyn Dodgers whipped Cincinnati 6-1 to tie Milwaukee for second place in the National League, a game and a half behind the front-running Redlegs. Rain ended the Braves-Philadelphia game with the score tied at 1-1 after 5 1/2 innings. The game will be replayed.

Chicago won its first home game in nine starts, coming from behind to score two unearned runs in the ninth to beat the New York Giants 4-3. Rain postponed the game between Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Billy Pierce, ace White Sox southpaw, handcuffed the Yankees with four hits and struck out eight to post his sixth victory against two defeats. Billy did not permit a hit after the fourth inning, when the Yanks scored their lone run.

Chicago got six hits off loser Whitey Ford, first of three New York pitchers. Two of them accounted for all their runs. After Larry Doby drew a one out walk and second baseman Bobby Richardson dropped a throw on Jim Landis free play grounder, Jim Rivera singled in one run, Bubba Phillips squeezed in another and Pierce drove in the third with his second single.

Early Wynn's seven-hit pitching and Chico Carrasquel's grand slam homer highlighted Cleveland's victory in Boston. The Red Sox helped the Tribe with five errors, four in one inning, three of them by shortstop Billy Klaus. It was a wretched afternoon for Klaus, who was forced to leave the game in the seventh when he was hit under the right eye by Al Smith's grounder.

Reno Bertoia's single in the 16th scored pitcher Paul Foytack with the run that gave Detroit its 4 1/2 hour victory over Baltimore. Foytack, who relieved starter Jim Bunning in the 14th, opened with a single and advanced to second on catcher Joe Ginsberg's passed ball. Ray Moore pitched the first 15 innings for the Orioles and allowed only eight hits. Mike Fornele, who took over in the 16th, was charged with the defeat.

Charged with felonious assault, Bauer will get a hearing on June 21 on a complaint by delicatessen store owner Edwin Jones, who claims he was beat up by the ball player during the fracas.

Bauer's lawyer Sidney Friedman pointed out Bauer was fingerprinted, mugged and arraigned in felony court yesterday as a result of a "citizen's arrest."

"This is not an arrest by the district attorney or police authorities," said Friedman. "Both have refused to make one. It is an arrest by a private person. Any person has a right to make a citizen's arrest."

But Friedman also had a warning for Jones.

Jones' complaint stated he had been informed by his brother, Leonard, and his nephew Phil Esposito, that Bauer had slugged him in an alcove of the night club.

Mounting Cost Of Crime Felt By Governments

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The mounting cost of crime and criminals is putting fresh pressure today on already bulging budgets of federal, state and local governments.

At the rate the number of prisoners is increasing and at the rate older prisons and jails are becoming rundown or overcrowded, some prison authorities predict that the taxpayer will be asked to put up one billion dollars by 1975 for new bastions. The cost of keeping up the buildings and guarding prisoners also is rising.

Others, however, say that if there were a bigger shift away from the fortress type prison, both construction and maintenance figures could be sharply cut without loss of security.

Most existing prisons are the maximum security type. To build more like this would cost today about $15,000 an inmate, the federal Bureau of Prisons estimates. It says a medium-security, regional type can be built for about $5,000 an inmate. Camps in rural areas for minimum custody offenders cost about $2,000 an inmate.

James V. Bennett, federal prison director, says 315,000 prisoners are now held around the country on felony convictions, with about 185,000 of them jailed for serious crimes. Add those held on non-felony charges and those awaiting trial and the prison population averages about 800,000 and is rising.

Clarence B. Litchfield, of the New York architectural firm of Litchfield, Litchfield & Partners, which has been designing correctional institutions for 40 years, says about 15 per cent of the prison population is of the confirmed criminal type which can't be rehabilitated.

He holds that the others should be screened thoroughly and divided up among medium-security prisons, rehabilitation institutions and prison camps where costly walls and guarding aren't needed.

Litchfield contends that smaller rather than larger penal institutions should be built. Improved grading of offenders would permit sending a majority of them to less costly institutions especially designed, he says, to meet the needs of educating and training them for release.

Mollet Out; France Again Is Hunting For A Premier

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
PARIS (AP)—President Rene Coty today began the recurrent, wearisome task of looking for a new French premier. The National Assembly last night rejected Guy Mollet's austerity program to finance the Algerian campaign, and the Socialist Premier promptly resigned.

Another long period of political instability appeared in prospect, with the likelihood that the government eventually would fall to another of the uneasy center coalitions which has ruled France most of the time since World War II.

The new political crisis threatened to cancel or at least postpone Coty's official visit to the United States. He is due in New York June 3.

Most prominently mentioned as successors to Mollet were Pierre Fillard, national chairman of the left-center Catholic MRP—the Popular Republican Movement—and former Premier Rene Pleven, leader of a splinter group affiliated with the so-called Leftist Rally.

It was thought either might win the support of both Mollet's Socialists and the conservative Independent Republicans, whose opposition caused the defeat of Mollet's government. Because the Assembly membership is divided among so many factions, any Cabinet needs the support of both parties to command a majority.

Normally Coty would call on the Independent Republican leader, former Premier Antoine Pinay, to form a new Cabinet because his party brought down Mollet's government. But after what happened yesterday, Pinay's chances of getting Socialist backing were virtually nonexistent.

The Assembly voted 250-213 yesterday to reject Mollet's proposals for new taxes and cuts in the non-military budget to provide more than a billion dollars for the French campaign against the Algerian nationalist rebels.

Actually 298 votes—a majority of the total Assembly membership—were required to force the government's resignation on the vote of confidence. But Mollet, because he had lost, conformed with tradition and took his Cabinet's resignation to Coty just before midnight.

Seizing on the constitutional pretext that the government actually had not been voted out of office, Coty did not accept the resignation at once. But Mollet said he was determined to quit.

The Socialist premier resigned after 16 months in office, a post-war record for France. For months he had stayed in power because of the "benevolent neutrality" of the conservative Independents. Although they opposed Socialist domestic policy, they supported Mollet's tough policy against Egypt in the Suez Canal dispute and against the rebels in Algeria. Accordingly they abstained on many crucial votes, reducing the size of the majority Mollet needed to turn back his more determined opponents.

In the final debate Mollet's followers again sought refuge in the international situation with appeals for support in Algeria and by reopening the Suez Canal dispute before the U. N. Security Council. This time the maneuver failed.

At the Pentagon, it was indicated today a new weapon, probably designed specifically for use with the Convair B58 supersonic bomber, would be undertaken.

The committee report said investigation by the committee's staff had indicated that a reduction in the Rascal air-to-ground missile program was justified and that the Defense Department agreed "that this particular missile is in the marginal area."

There had been some speculation that the Rascal, a rocket-powered supersonic missile which can carry a nuclear warhead, might be used with the B58. In development, it has been launched only from B36 and B47 strategic bombers, both of subsonic speed.

The House Committee said programs in addition to the Rascal project "also have been challenged by staff investigation and need to be resurveyed by the Air Force and Department of Defense" with a view toward eliminating duplication.

In another field of missiles, the committee asserted that "the ballistic missile program has top priority and must be pursued to an early conclusion. Testimony made public by the committee showed a figure of $935,700,000 asked by the Air Force for ballistic missile work during the year beginning next July 1. However, this figure is understood to be incomplete.

The committee cut nothing from the ballistic missile programs, but did recommend trimming 75 millions from guided missile programs.

The committee proposed an over-all $2,586,775,000 cut below the $36,128,000,000 outlay asked by Secretary of Defense Wilson for all the services.

Wilson goes before a Senate committee on Thursday to begin testimony on the Pentagon's budget.

Air Force Seen Aiming At New Missile Concept

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force apparently is aiming at development of a new design of guided missile for use with the supersonic bomber in attacking heavily protected enemy targets.

A House Appropriations Committee report on the Defense Department budget yesterday disclosed that an existing "air-to-ground" missile program had been cut back.

At the Pentagon, it was indicated today a new weapon, probably designed specifically for use with the Convair B58 supersonic bomber, would be undertaken.

Suez Canal Debate Is Again On UN 'Shelf'

By WILLIAM OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Suez Canal issue was back on the shelf today after an inconclusive Security Council debate touched off by France's call for new negotiations on Egypt's unilateral operation of the waterway.

The two-day discussion achieved only one concrete result—a request by Council President Henry Cabot Lodge of the United States that Egypt amplify her rules for running the canal.

Egyptian delegate Omar Loufi indicated he had little intention of making any such amplification.

Loufi received quick support as usual from Russian Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev, who asserted Lodge's summary at the debate reflected the views of individual members and not the Council as a whole.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, who came to New York to press demands for new attempts at a canal settlement more to the West's liking, told the Council the debate had cleared up "important questions."

Observers in Paris had felt Premier Guy Mollet's government was reopening the canal question in an effort to confound critics at home of its domestic policy. If that was the purpose, it also failed. As Pineau spoke, the National Assembly in Paris defeated the Cabinet on a vote of confidence and Mollet resigned.

Both Loufi in a statement and Lodge in his summary ignored a Colombian suggestion for new negotiations on operation of the canal. Pineau said later "maybe" France would agree to negotiations.

The French government announced last week it would ask the Council to "call upon Egypt to comply with the six principles" for a canal settlement that the Council okayed last October. Then Pineau refrained from proposing a resolution after Russia flatly endorsed the declaration Egypt made last month on her operation of the canal and the United States again said the Egyptian should be given a fair trial.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 28

When Mr. Potter had finished his breakfast the swinging door from the kitchen opened and Esther Garrison came in, starched and spotless, her face swollen from lack of sleep.

"Mr. Black said you want to see me but I hope you'll say whatever you've got on your mind as soon as possible. I haven't had any rest and I'm going to need it."

Considering that Olive's death and Nora's near escape from death had given them all two sleepless nights, Mr. Potter was not unduly sympathetic. "Get a wrap, will you? We'll sit out in my car for a few minutes. Only place where we can talk privately."

She came back with a coat. Her manner was stilted and her big jaw looked more unyielding than ever. "Now then," he said unexpectedly, as soon as she was seated in the red Jaguar, "what kept you awake last night?"

"Considering you were there yourself, you know why."

"But we didn't discover Nora's condition until nearly four o'clock. What happened earlier?" When she made no reply he said, "What were you doing with that glass when I came in?"

"I'd just been getting a drink."

"So you washed and dried the glass immediately? Very neat of you."

"We're trained that way."

He said, and his voice was hard, "You stood there listening to Nora's breathing. You knew she was in a coma, and yet your first reaction wasn't to help save your patient, it was to destroy any evidence there might be. If I hadn't come and forced you to get busy, would you have let her die?"

She cried out at that. "No. I'd have done anything I could for her. The poor girl has had enough to bear. Believe me or not, that's why I couldn't sleep. I was worried sick because she was out so late. Then, after she was in bed, I heard that breathing. When you came in I was listening to make sure it wasn't just another bad dream. It never occurred to me she had got the wrong stuff. I swear!"

"And the glass?" When she did not answer he said impatiently, "See here, Miss Garrison, it won't take the police long to find who filled that prescription."

"He didn't do it. He didn't!"

"You mean Howard Ives?"

"He filled the prescription but someone else must have tampered with it. Someone here at the inn. Anyone could have got at that medicine bottle. You know how this place is. The rooms aren't kept locked when there's no one but the family here. Anyone could prove all over the inn and not be noticed. That's the way it must have happened."

"Do you think your patient did it herself in an attempt to commit suicide?"

"I don't know," the nurse said slowly. "There's something wrong about her. She gets mixed up. She has awful nightmares. Dr. Ruys-dahl doesn't like it, he thinks there is something bothering her terribly. That's why he wanted me to stay on with her. It's why he and Mr. Black kept her away from the police. She says — queer things."

"Like claiming that someone tried to smother her? Or that someone tried to push her down the stairs?"

The nurse moved uneasily, reached for the handle of the door. "I'd better get some rest now. She'll need me later."

"I doubt if she needs you," Mr. Potter said grimly.

She seemed to be honestly indignant. "You don't think I'd hurt her, do you?"

"I think," he said deliberately, "you have already hurt her. You sent that anonymous letter to the police last year, didn't you, Miss Garrison, accusing Stuart Young of murdering Candy Kendrick. You pulled the whole house down around your ears."

"How did you guess?"

"You had the strongest motive. If it had been anyone close to Nora the police would have found out long ago. But at the time of the murder you were outside the house, except as it touched Howard Ives."

She cried for a long time. At length she talked, the slow, difficult words broken by hiccupping sobs. She was not an articulate woman.

A year and a half earlier she had got a job nursing at the Stanleyville hospital. She had been nursing in Boston for two years but she hadn't much chance to meet anyone in a big city and she thought a small town might be more neighborly. Mr. Potter interpreted this correctly as meaning that she would have more opportunity to meet unattached men.

Howard Ives had been introduced to her at a church supper and they had seen a lot of each other. Within three months they were going steady. Then Candy Kendrick moved to Connecticut and Howard changed. "Dazed, that's what he was," Garry said viciously.

Mr. Potter, whose unpredictable sympathies so often led him into difficulties, found himself feeling profoundly sorry for a woman like Garry on whom nature had bestowed charms with so niggardly a hand; the unwanted woman; the woman whose personal tragedy suffered the final indignity of providing one of life's classic comic situations.

The druggist had called her less and less frequently and when he had taken her anywhere he's been different, less interested. "He would be looking around, hoping to see that girl."

Then he tried to impress Candy by blowing himself to a swank vacation at the inn and half killed himself learning to ride a horse. On the day Candy was murdered, Howard had gone riding along her favorite bridle path, had had a spill and torn the ligaments in his knee. He tried to walk and couldn't. He lay where he was for two hours until Bert finally came along.

Bert had been high as a kite and surly. If he hadn't been drinking he'd have started looking for Howard as soon as the horse came back to the stables. So Howard didn't have an alibi and it was all Bert's fault.

If there was one thing she'd said over and over it was that the police should have paid less attention to Howard and more to Bert, whose alibi depended on an infatuated wife who claimed he'd been with her, painting garden furniture. A fat lot of painting he'd done in the condition he was in.

Right away, just because Howard had taken the girl out a few times, the police began to grill him. They were going to arrest him. So Garry had sent the anonymous letter to provide another suspect. After all, they had found a handkerchief in Candy's pocket with the initials S. Y. So Stuart Young could have been the one, couldn't he?

Perhaps Nora will be all right, physically. But Mr. Potter knows there's reason to be concerned about her mind. Continue the next installment here tomorrow.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP—NCDA)—Hog prices mostly steady, tops of 17.50 to 18.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Pine Level, Rocky Mount, Princeton and Blackmans Crossroads; 17.25 to 18.25 at Bethel; 17.50 to 18.00 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson and Nahant; 17.25 to 18.00 at Kenly; 17.00 to 18.00 at Hillsboro; 17.00 to 17.50 at Siler City, Mount Gilced, Denton and Winkate; 18.00 at Clayton and Castle Hayne; 17.75 at Clinton, Lumberton, Smithfield, Newton Grove, Murfreesboro, Elizabethton, Goldsboro, Shallotte, Micro, Whiteville, Clarkton, Dunn, Mount Olive and Bailey.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices receded gently as trading quieted early this afternoon. Continuing to back away from the series of new 1957 highs established in recent sessions, the market was undergoing a mild case of profit-taking, brokers said. Pivotal stocks took losses of from fractions to a point. Oils showed a firmer tone than other divisions, posting a number of gains early in the session but paring them later on. The oil shares were helped by optimistic forecasts by industry officials including the statement by M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil (New Jersey) that 1957 will be another good year for his company.

Lay Final Plans For Safety Check Lanes

FINAL PLANS—The Pitt County Safety Council made final plans last night for the Volunteer Safety Check being conducted this afternoon and all day tomorrow. More than 20 representatives from local civic clubs attended the meeting held in the City Courtroom. The three Safety Check lanes opened at 2 p.m. today. From left to right are: Willie Pate, vice-chairman; Badger Johnson, chairman; S. G. Gibbs of the Greenville Police Department; and Cpl. C. E. Whitfield of the State Highway Patrol. These four men will be instrumental in the coordination of the local safety program. (Photo by Lee Roland).

Grand Jury Returns 42 True Bills For Term

The Pitt County Grand Jury wound up its work for the May term of Superior Court by reporting to Judge J. Paul Frizzelle yesterday that it had returned 42 true bills of indictment. Jury Foreman F. F. Hendrix reported to Judge Frizzelle that the jury received 44 bills from Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. and returned only one of them as not a true bill. One bill was not passed on, Hendrix said, because of absence of a witness. The bill which was found not true was against Robert Lee Wells charged with burglary. True bills returned were against Tom Anderson, larceny; Leslie Moore, alias James Thomas Moore, alias Head Hazleton, larceny; Kenneth Ray Wells, no operator's license, careless and reckless driving; Rudolph E. Manning, forgery and uttering a forged check (14 counts). Tommy O'Mary, forgery and uttering a forged check; Alton Harrington, forgery and uttering a forged check (two counts); Jerry Lee Hancock, embezzlement; Roosevelt Josephs, embezzlement; Elbert Phillips, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey; Ernest Phillips, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey.

Awards Go To Farmville Pupils

FARMVILLE—Wade Mills and Dean Allen were principal award winners at Farmville High School's Awards Program, held in conjunction with commencement exercises Monday night. Wade received the Salutatory Award, presented by the Keyette Club; the DeKalb Agricultural Achievement Award; and the Best All-Around Award, presented by the Farmville Rotary Club. Dean received the Kiwanis Scholarship Award and the Business Education Award, presented by the Farmville Business and Professional Women's Club. Kiwanis Awards, for improvement in scholarship, went to freshman Bill Lewis, sophomore Linda Dail, junior Brenda Barrett and senior Jewell Gardner. The J. I. Morgan, Sr., Memorial Award, given to the student adjudged most dependable in activities not in the limelight, went to Hilda Owens. Not 75 Years

The summary of Superior Court action in yesterday's edition of The Daily Reflector incorrectly stated that a defendant was ordered to serve 13 five-year terms consecutively.

Rudolph Manning, convicted on 14 counts of forgery and uttering a forged check, was ordered to serve the terms concurrently with a ten-year prison sentence imposed on the first charge. Under terms of Judge J. Paul Frizzelle's judgment, Manning will be required to serve only ten years, instead of 75 years as the story implied. The Daily Reflector regrets any misunderstanding that may have arisen as a result of the incorrect use of the legal terms.
