Hurry-Up Disaster Repairs

Kansas City Leaders Plan Restore Ravaged Suburbs In 60-Day Program

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Civic and business leaders have launched a plan designed to restore 739 homes in Kansas City's tornado-devastated suburbs in no more than 60 days.

Eighty-six of the more than 200 hurt in Monday night's storm still were in hospitals today, four of them in critical condition.

The death toll stood at 37.

President Eisenhower yesterday ordered disaster area designations for the suburban area on the south edge of Kansas City, in adjoining counties in Kansas and for wrecked towns in southeast Missouri where 14 more were killed Tuesday by twisters.

The Red Cross mobilized 300 case workers at Kansas City and tentatively set aside $900,000 to help 1,200 families with their food, clothing and shelter problems.

Main target of the plan for quick, systematic rebuilding of homes was the Hickman Mills-Ruskin Heights residential development, hardest hit area just south of Kansas City.

John M. Popkess, president of a Kansas City mortgage company, said the finance companies holding mortgages on the destroyed or damaged houses, the insurance companies with policies on them and the Veterans Administration had agreed to the idea.

Insurance money will finance at least the major part of the rebuilding cost and owners will continue their present mortgage arrangements.

"This will save refinancing at higher interest rates," Popkess explained. "It will avoid additional financing costs and preserve present long-term loans for the owners. Heavy obligations for new personal effects might make it impossible to recast loans for owners on any other basis."

Prather & Sons, developer of the Ruskin Heights residential area, said it was ready to start work.

J. O. Mack, president of the Carpenters District Council, promised to put 500 men on the job at old pay rates as soon as they are needed. Carpenters in the Kansas City area are on strike for higher pay.

Despite martial law and a 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. curfew in the devastated area, five persons were arrested yesterday and charged with looting.

Lt. Col. William Howard, commanding National Guard troops on patrol, said he had ordered his men to fire on anyone ignoring two warnings to halt.

Authorities adopted plans to keep the area blockaded against the curious at least through the weekend.

Long Memories

RALEIGH (AP)—Members of the House Roads Committee proved today they have long memories as they voted 17 to 9 to hand an unfavorable report to a bill providing for mechanical inspection of motor vehicles.

The vote to give an unfavorable report to the bill, backed by Gov. Hodges and Motor Vehicle Commissioner Ed Scheidt, came on motion of Rep. C. Blake Thomas of Johnston. They argued that inspection of cars is "working on the wrong end of highway safety" because "it's the speed of the new cars that is causing most of the accidents."

As they voted, many of the House members could recall the popular outcry that arose nearly 10 years ago when the state tried compulsory mechanical inspection of automobiles for one year. The 1949 Legislature repealed the inspection law, and all efforts since to pass another have failed.

Reapportioning Proposal Killed By Senate Vote

RALEIGH (AP)—The latest attempt to reapportion the House and Senate has met the fate of similar proposals.

The Senate yesterday killed by 26 to 20 a proposed amendment to the state constitution dealing with reapportionment.

Under the bill, sponsored by Sen. Claude Currie of Durham, each county would have been given a senator. This would have increased the senate's membership from 50 to 100. Each county also would have had at least one House member, with 60 additional members being divided among the larger counties.

Sen. Stator P. Williams of Stanley, one of those opposing the plan, declared it would constitute "a political favor" for the Republican party. He said it was "a Republican bill" authored by a Democrat. Williams told the Senate he was "fighting for my existence" and appealed to it "not to go on record as voting Republicans into this body."

He apparently meant that if each county should send one member to the Senate, Republicans would be elected from counties which are now combined into senatorial districts with Democratic counties.

Other legislative highlights included: The controversial bill to extend Charlotte's city limits was enacted into law when the Senate concurred to a House amendment.

The Senate Committee on Propositions and Grievances approved a bill to allow an election in Southport on the question of opening an ABC liquor store. The measure has passed the House.

The Senate passed and sent to the House two bills designed to continue the campaign against mosquitoes in North Carolina's coastal counties.

Disarmament Talk Top Foreign Aid Official Sees No Lowered Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign Aid Administrator John B. Hollister urged Congress today to make future appropriations for foreign military and economic aid available for spending over an indefinite period.

Hollister, head of the International Cooperation Administration, said current restrictions against a long-range program, while intended to encourage sound management, "have had the opposite tendency."

Hollister told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a hearing on President Eisenhower's $3,865,000,000 foreign aid bill that the aid program "is absolutely essential to the security of the United States."

"If we are to continue in the role of free world leadership, not only must we continue our mutual security program," Hollister testified, "but it seems difficult to see how we can substantially reduce its over-all cost."

In advance of the hearing, some senators said their mail indicates growing public backing for the foreign aid program. Others disagreed, and Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) proposed that Eisenhower's program be cut to 2 1/2 billion dollars.

He called for "the elimination of all economic assistance abroad except a reasonable technical aid program."

Russell, chairman of the Senate Services Committee, said in an interview he is vigorously opposed to setting up a proposed revolving fund for making easy-term loans for economic aid abroad, adding that "Congress would lose all control over where this money is going."

The debate over the program continued in congressional cloakrooms as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called John B. Hollister, director of the International Cooperation Administration, for public questioning on details of the administration's proposals.

In advance of that hearing, Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ) said the issue comes down to a choice of "spending dollars now or spending billions and endangering our boys later."

This was the line taken by Eisenhower in his television-radio appeal Tuesday night. The White House yesterday characterized as "amazing" the public response to that appeal. It said messages were running 9-1 in favor of foreign aid.

Case said messages to his office indicate "the great majority of the American people share the President's convictions and are wholeheartedly behind the mutual security program."

Sen. Javits (R-NY) said he had observed "a dramatic shift in public opinion" since Eisenhower's Tuesday night speech. Javits said his messages are running 10-1 in support of the President's program.

Stassen, on the other hand, is reported to be somewhat optimistic about chances for a limited disarmament agreement, and to favor making clear to the Russians that the United States does give them some credit for good faith in their proposals.

Eisenhower, at his news conference yesterday, seemed to align himself most closely with Stassen's views than with Radford. "I think our first concern should be making certain we are not ourselves being recalcitrant, we are not being picaresque about the thing," Eisenhower said. "We ought to have an open mind and make it possible for others, if they are reasonable, logical men, to meet us half way so that we can make these agreements."

He agreed with Radford that Russia has a history of breaking agreements and that this country must be especially careful. "We must, at the same time, though, keep our minds open and keep exploring every facet of this whole great field, to see if something just can't be done. It just has to be done in the interest of the United States."

Humphrey said the disarmament subcommittee and Senate leaders would be briefed on all proposals advanced at the London conference before Stassen's return.

"The fact that the cold war has not lessened in recent weeks indicates that the pace of armament competition itself must be the explanation for the new disposition to negotiate," he said in a statement announcing the meeting.

By ERNEST B. VACCARO WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration scheduled today top-secret meetings today amid reports it may be nearing a new major policy decision on disarmament negotiations.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said there are indications that "a genuine negotiation may actually be in the making" in London arms control talks on a limited, experimental agreement.

The London arms talks recessed last week to permit the negotiators to confer with their governments. The talks resume Monday.

President Eisenhower called Harold E. Stassen, his special assistant for disarmament and chief negotiator at the London conference, to a White House meeting of the National Security Council.

Later, Stassen and Secretary of State Dulles will report to a closed meeting of the Senate Disarmament subcommittee of which Humphrey is chairman. Major Democratic and Republican Senate leaders were invited to the meeting at Dulles' specific request.

Chances that Adm. Arthur W. Radford and Stassen might air their apparent differences on disarmament policy faded when it was disclosed that Radford would not attend the Security Council meeting.

As chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Radford frequently sits in on meetings of the Council, the nation's top policy-making body. In talking with reporters Sunday about East-West negotiations, Radford commented.

"We cannot trust the Russians on this or anything. The Communists have broken their word with every country with which they ever had an agreement."

Stassen, on the other hand, is reported to be somewhat optimistic about chances for a limited disarmament agreement, and to favor making clear to the Russians that the United States does give them some credit for good faith in their proposals.

Bomb Warning Hoax

Unknown 'Informer' Sets Off Quiet Investigation Of Alleged Bomb Plant

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

Three phone calls from an anonymous person early last night who called, he said, "to disclose the location of a bomb planted at the United Crusade services," received statewide publicity and turned out to be nothing more than a hoax.

The calls were received between 8:30 p. m. and 9 p. m. According to the "informer," the bomb was planted in the speaking stand being used by Evangelist Jimmie Johnson and "was scheduled to go off in 10 minutes."

This was the information given to a fireman at the Fire Department who took the first call. Another call was placed to the same location approximately 25 minutes later; this time the fireman informed the caller to give his information to the Police Department. He did.

The Police Department received the call at 8:55 p. m. and immediately dispatched plainclothesmen to make a thorough investigation of the incident. This was done without the knowledge of the Evangelist or the crowd of 600 people in Austin Auditorium.

Nothing was found to substantiate the caller's information. Greenville Police Chief S. G. Gibbs said this morning, "The bomb planting, in my opinion, from investigation was a hoax and completely unfounded."

The Police Chief went on to say, "Even though we felt the call was a hoax, officers did make an investigation of the building as a precautionary measure. Nothing was found and officers conducting the investigation are thoroughly convinced that the whole thing is nothing more than a hoax."

City Manager Leonard P. Bloom was sitting on the Austin Auditorium stage at the time the bomb was supposed to have gone off, stated, "There absolutely has not been a bomb scare. The manner in which the calls were received and the information given, indicated that it was strictly a hoax to create disorder."

"The Police Department did go to the auditorium and make a thorough investigation. As a result of the investigation it was felt there was no due cause for alarm, consequently the matter was dropped without disrupting the services," he added.

Dr. Jimmie Johnson, who is conducting the United Crusade which began here Sunday night, feels that "This sort of thing is evidently a bad now. It is my sincere desire that the people will look upon this childish prank as such."

Further, he said "This incident, of course, will not affect the growing interest in the Crusade but in the end will contribute to its success."

This "hoax" call last night was one of several that have been received by the Police Department and Fire Department in recent weeks.

Several anonymous callers have reported a serious cutting, a fire and an automobile accident involving personal injury. After investigation, all the calls, taking place in the same night, were unfounded, officers from both departments reported.

Ten Acquitted Of Vote Conspiracy

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A spokesman for 10 Madison County Democrats, acquitted of federal conspiracy charges election, declares he will ask the county grand jury to carry out an investigation of the election.

Zeno Ponder, former chairman of the Madison County Board of Election, made the statement yesterday after a U. S. District Court jury freed him and five other defendants—Sheriff E. Y. Ponder, E. K. Meadows, James W. Baldwin, W. T. Moore and Roy Freeman.

Judge Wilson Warlick of Newton had directed verdicts of acquittal Tuesday for the other four—Leroy Shelton, Arthur E. Cantrell, Merit Whit and Jeff Whit.

The 10 were charged with conspiring to rig the election, especially by the alleged improper use of absentee ballots.

The jury deliberated only 27 minutes after a lengthy charge by Judge Warlick. The judge emphasized that the jurors should consider only evidence that seemed to indicate conspiracy among the defendants. During the trial the jurist had repeatedly thrown out testimony because he said it pertained only to alleged improper acts by individuals.

Ponder said that the county grand jury, which meets Monday, will be presented the county election material, impounded by the government, as soon as federal officials return it.

The government took the records of the disputed election before a Madison grand jury could begin looking into possible violations of state election laws.

Judge Zeb V. Nettles ordered a county investigation in 1954. Asked yesterday whether the order still would hold good, he suggested that U. S. Dist. Atty. J. M. Baley Jr. be consulted. "He's the one who has charge of the thing."

"I don't think the state could do anything about it now," Judge Nettles added.

But he said the government could not appeal the court's decision of this week.

Judge Nettles explained that since the government has had election record books and other materials in its custody, it would be difficult to prove in another trial these materials were those used in the election.

The election determined two federal offices and numerous state and local offices. The government case pertained only to possible violations in the federal part of the election.

Weather Again Holds Up Test

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—High winds have caused postponement for the eighth straight day of the opening shot in the summer long atomic test series.

The delay was announced shortly before midnight after weather experts once again declined to take a chance on the turbulent upper air.

Schoolboy Kills Mother, Sister

RYE, N.Y. (AP)—A 14-year-old schoolboy shot his mother and older sister to death in a wild burst of rifle fire last night after a quarrel with the sister over his homework.

The father, who hustled a younger son to safety and disarmed the older boy, collapsed from a heart attack after police arrived. He was reported in critical condition in a hospital today.

The slayer, Andrew Casey, a tall and sturdy Rye High School freshman, was not told his mother and sister were dead. Police described him as "terribly sorry" for shooting them.

Slain in the gunfire—in which at least a dozen shots were fired—were Mrs. Dorothy Casey, 48, and Sheila, 20, an employee of the Rye National Bank.

The 50-year-old father, Gene R. Casey, is a public relations firm executive, and a former reporter for the Boston Globe and magazine writer.

Tots Suffocate In Refrigerator

CAMPBELL, N.Y. (AP)—Two young sisters suffocated inside an abandoned refrigerator yesterday.

The victims, Kathleen, 6, and Margie, 4, were two of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Taft.

The refrigerator had been left on the patio of the Taft's farm home, near this southwestern New York community.

Police said the interior showed signs of their struggle to free themselves.

Large Bootleg Still Raided In Grindle Creek Section

One of the largest illicit liquor stills found in this immediate area in recent years was raided yesterday afternoon. Pitt County ABC Officers, aided by Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crandall and Grifton Township Constable Walter Joyner made the raid.

The large unit was in operation when officers made the raid and Willie Frank Koonce, 39-year-old Negro of Kinston Rd. 2 was arrested after a short chase through a nearby wooded area and swamp.

Koonce, previously convicted on a federal liquor charge, was placed under a $300 bond and is presently in jail.

The distillery had a 200-gallon capacity and was being fired by wood. In addition, there was a 300-gallon and a 200-gallon cooler as well as a 200-gallon pre-heating unit and two 60-gallon boilers found at the site.

Approximately 3,000 gallons of mash were in mash boxes. Officers found 115 gallons of liquor already made and 44 cases of one-half gallon jars ready for use.

Relatively new, the large "liquor-making" plant was found in the Grindle Creek section located in the Swift Creek Township, about four miles east of Grifton.

Participating in the raid were J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley, Walter Taylor, James Ross, Deputy Sheriff Crandall and Constable Joyner.

Big Revenue Bill Seen Forthcoming

RALEIGH (AP)—In a move designed to hasten legislative adjournment the big revenue bill for the next biennium was expected to be reported to the full House and Senate Finance Committees today.

It had been thought yesterday that the bill would not reach the committees before Monday because of differences by the Senate and House Finance subcommittees on some minor provisions.

However, Sen. Nelson Woodson of Rowan, Senate Finance chairman, said that while the subcommittees have been unable to agree on three or four minor provisions, "they are not irreconcilable differences."

Woodson said his committee would plunge right into the major issues of the bill today. The House Finance group was expected to do likewise.

Woodson added the two committees are still shooting for June 1 as the target date for legislative adjournment. Many lawmakers and close observers predict, however, that the session will continue into the first week of June.

Woodson said "it's possible that the House Finance Committee will report the revenue bill by Monday."

The time table figured out by Woodson would have the bill coming up for its second and third readings in the house next Tuesday and Wednesday. The Senate, the way he figured it, would get the bill for second and third readings next Thursday and Friday and wind up with a final reading on Saturday, June 1.

Meanwhile, the Joint Appropriations Committee gave quick approval yesterday to a bill authorizing a 10 million dollar bond issue to finance permanent improvements. The Joint Finance Committee approved the bill Tuesday.

The measure is part of Gov. Hodges' plan to provide 15 percent pay raises for teachers and 11 percent for other state employees. The bond issue would release funds for use in making the pay increases.

Defer Action On Seaplane Base For Hertford

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee yesterday deferred action on an $8,051,000 construction authorization for a naval seaplane station at Hertford, N.C.

The committee took no action on a $6,795,000 request for a similar facility at San Diego, Calif. Committee Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) questioned the necessity of immediate construction of the stations.

He said the bases, proposed in the military public works bill, are designed to house and service the large Sa Master planes before there is any certainty the planes will fly.

Safety Check Lanes See Good Response

CHECK LANES—According to reports from officials of the Pitt Safety Council excellent response has been given to the annual volunteer Safety Check by motor vehicle operators in this county. Lane workers have been constantly busy since opening time yesterday afternoon. The lanes will remain open until 6 p. m. today. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Saturday Is Proclaimed 'Poppy Day'

POPPY DAY—Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, American Legion Auxiliary president, pins a poppy on Mayor S. Eugene West as Jewelle Jackson, Janice Williams and Jane Jackson look on. These children and members of the American Legion Auxiliary, will participate in the sale of the little paper flowers on Poppy Day Saturday. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Mayor S. Eugene West has proclaimed Saturday as National Poppy Day locally.

The sale will be conducted by the American Legion Auxiliary and children.

The mayor urged citizens to cooperate by purchasing the Veteran Poppies in honor of dead and disabled veterans.

"Those bright red poppies that you will see on the streets Saturday and paper replicas of Flanders Field Poppies which covered the graves of our battle dead during World War I; their fame as a symbol of fidelity has been spread throughout the nation for more than 40 years."

"On Poppy Day American Legion Auxiliary Poppies will be pinned over American hearts in memory of our war dead from the Argentine to Korea. Wear a Poppy and help keep the memory bright."

Proceeds from the sale will be used to help disabled veterans and their families.

Children who wish to help with the sale may call Mrs. Kennedy.

Officers Elected, Members Honored

ORMOND SERVICE CUP—Each year the outstanding Service League member is recognized by the Ormond Service Cup for her interest, willingness to work, participation, and variety of activities. This award yesterday was presented to Mrs. Boley Farley, left, by Mrs. Tyson Bilbro.

PRESIDENT'S TRAY—A member of the Board of Directors was chosen at the final meeting of the year for her outstanding and conscientious service as a League and as a Board member to receive the President's Tray. Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee, seated, is shown with the tray that was presented by Mrs. Reynolds May.

Highlighting the Greenville Service League's year is their annual business-luncheon meeting held yesterday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Two outstanding awards presented at the final meeting each year are the Ormond Service Cup and the President's Tray.

The Cup, which is given to an outstanding member who has shown interest, willingness to work, and participated in a variety of activities, was presented to Mrs. Boley Farley by Mrs. Tyson Bilbro.

Runner-ups for the outstanding league member of the year were Mrs. Eva Smith, Mrs. Alice Phelps, Mrs. Bruce Moye, and Mrs. F. F. Hendrix.

Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee was presented the President's Tray by Mrs. Reynolds May. This tray is given to a member of the Board of Directors who is chosen for her outstanding and conscientious service as a League and as a Board member.

Their names are engraved on these silver awards which they will keep during the ensuing year.

Officers installed by Mrs. Wesley Harvey, president, during the business meeting were Mrs. C. C. Hilton, secretary; Mrs. Milo Smith, treasurer; and Mrs. Robert Lang, corresponding secretary.

At the opening of the business meeting, Mrs. Harvey led in reading the "Prayer of Christian Service" and welcomed the guests for the afternoon, the provisional members, advisory board members, and the women from Roanoke Rapids who are planning to form a coffee shop patterned after the one sponsored by the Service League.

Members who had worked 100 hours or more during the past year were recognized by Mrs. William Reading Jr., secretary. They are Mrs. W. S. Bost, Mrs. P. K. Andersen, Mrs. Morris Brody, Mrs. Henry Coleman, Mrs. William Corbett Jr., Mrs. Boley Farley, Mrs. Robert Forney, Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee, Mrs. C. W. Harvey Jr., Mrs. Richard Heller, Mrs. F. F. Hendrix, Mrs. C. C. Hilton, Mrs. George Lautens, Mrs. R. G. Lang, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mrs. James T. Little, Mrs. Ray Minges, Mrs. Ed Parkinson, Mrs. James Phelps, Mrs. Vernon Priddy, Mrs. William Reading Jr., Mrs. J. W. Shannonhouse, Mrs. Milo Smith, Mrs. Hilda Tripp, Mrs. Ercell Webb, Mrs. Eugene West, Mrs. E. H. Williford, Mrs. W. A. Wright.

The secretary read a list of members who had perfect attendance records for one, two, three and four years.

Reports were then heard from various committees. Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee reported four patients are now being helped by the Laughinghouse Hospital Bed Fund. Mrs. James T. Little announced that summer workers had been secured for the Coffee Shop and Mrs. Ed Parkinson, finance chairman, reported that the bridge tournament had been a success. She reminded the members that the Bloodmobile would be in Greenville on June 14 at the Moose Lodge.

President's Report

Mrs. Wesley Harvey pointed out many of the accomplishments of the Service League that is now closing its nineteenth year of service in Greenville when she delivered her president's report. She reported that there are 77 members who have worked a total of 5620 hours. "Of these 19 Board members alone worked 2368 hours."

Nine provisional members were welcomed into full membership in February and 11 provisional members joined the club at the May meeting, she informed the group. It was noted that $674.34 was raised through various projects during the year to enable the club to continue with their work.

Activities of the Greenville Service League include house-to-house collection for the Community Chest, selling TB Christmas Seals, Blind Sale, house-to-house solicitation for the Red Cross, and working with the Mental Health, Heart Drive, March of Dimes, and Cancer Drive.

"The Coffee Shop, which is a new project, has been open seven hours a day, six days a week and 3 1/2 hours on Sunday with 39 volunteer workers for the first term and 37 for the second term," reported the president.

"During the past year we have taken care of 13 white and 22 colored patients with an expenditure of $1,445.88 through the Laughinghouse Bed Fund," she mentioned.

Other services she reviewed was the work with the Girl Scouts, emergency charity and Bloodmobile.

Fifteen layettes have been furnished and the hospital activities committee has many tray favors and were responsible for hospital decorations during the holidays, Mrs. Harvey continued.

Following the morning business meeting, a receiving line was formed, composed of the new provisional members of the Service League. Luncheon was served to the approximately 150 members. Mrs. Joe Moye said the invocation.

Miss Ann Parkinson, Miss Elizabeth White, Miss Milly Bowden, accompanied by Miss Ona Shindler, sang several selections followed by a "This Is Your Life" program honoring the sustaining members. Mrs. James T. Little was mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. Robert Lang won the cake drawing.

National Honorary Society Names Local Duke Student

DURHAM—Bruce Carroll Tyson Jr., rising senior at Duke University from Greenville, is one of 25 students at Duke who have been chosen for membership in Pi Mu Epsilon, national honorary society in mathematics.

Tyson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Tyson of Route 2, Greenville.

Use fresh cold water to cover bones and meat when you make stock.

Miss Shindler Feted At Tea

Miss Ona Shindler, who will retire from her position as public school music teacher in the Greenville City Schools on June 3, was honored with a tea Wednesday afternoon at the Hendrix home on Evans St. Extension. Joint hostesses for this occasion were Miss Alice Strawn, Mrs. F. A. Jordan and Mrs. F. F. Hendrix.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Ed Parkinson. The receiving line was composed of the honoree and the hostesses. The hall and living room were decorated with arrangements of roses, larkspur, and magnolia.

Miss Gussie Kuykendall invited the guests into the dining room where Miss Louise Galphin poured raspberry ice punch. Assorted sandwiches, cheese straws, salted nuts, chicken puffs and cakes were served by Miss Ann Parkinson, Miss Elizabeth White and Miss Milly Bowden. The table was covered with a handmade linen and lace cloth centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons complimented with pink candles.

Guests said goodbyes to Miss Deanie Boone Haskett on the side porch which was decorated with white hydrangeas, pansies and amaryllis.

The hostesses presented Miss Shindler with a white munt corset, a hand-painted tile, a hand-tooled copper trinket box, and iced tea spoons.

Mary Kathryn Johnson Awarded Statewide Tuition Scholarship

Miss Mary Kathryn Johnson, a sophomore at East Carolina College, has been awarded the James J. Pettigrew scholarship for study at East Carolina College by the North Carolina Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mary Kathryn Johnson

This statewide scholarship will pay her tuition at EC College annually until she graduates. Miss Johnson's scholastic record and civic and church participation were all considered by the Education Committee of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The local George B. Singletary Chapter of the U.D.C. endorsed Miss Johnson, who is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy W. Johnson and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Willard of Greenville.

An honor student with a one minus average at college, Miss Johnson plans to be a grammar grade teacher.

She is a feature writer on the "East Carolinian," the college newspaper, and previously was associate editor of "Green Lights," Greenville High School paper. She was the Advertising Manager of the high school yearbook "Tau."

Dance Recital

Marle's School of Dance will present its fifteenth annual dance recital in McGinnis Auditorium at East Carolina College at 8:00 o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings, May 30th and 31st.

The recital this year is again under sponsorship of the Greenville Exchange Club with all proceeds going to its Youth Activities Fund which is administered for the sole purpose of assisting the youth of Greenville to have a better community in which to live. Tickets for the recital may be obtained from any member of the Exchange Club, from any student of the School of Dance, and at the door on the evening of performances.

All children 12 years old and under will be admitted free.

FWB Auxiliary Buy Gutters For Educational Bldg.

"Send the Light to Africa" was the theme of the mission program presented by Mrs. Harry Avery at the Woman's Auxiliary meeting of the Piney Grove F. W. B. Church on Friday evening in the educational building.

Mrs. Charlotte Crawford presided over the business session when a group voted to have gutters put on the educational building after having completed the project of the cement walks from the church to the building.

During this time a report was given on the supper served by the auxiliary to the F. W. B. students at E.C.C.

Mrs. Louise Tyson reported shrubbery had been purchased and set out at the educational building. The auxiliary donated the shrubbery.

It was voted that a love gift from the treasury be presented to one of the members who had serious illness in the family.

The meeting closed with the regular benediction.

During the fellowship hour the hostess, Mrs. Jasper Nobles, served chocolate cake topped with ice cream to 22 members and one visitor, Mrs. Walter Beddard.

League Of Women Voters Board Members Meet, Plan Orientation

Mrs. Newton L. Pierce, organization secretary of the League of Women Voters of the U. S., and Mrs. Max I. Miller, president of the State League, will be in Greenville Wednesday, May 29, to hold an orientation program for the new local League of Women Voters Board members.

Mrs. Robert Forney resigned as president at the Board meeting last night held at the home of Mrs. M. P. Bailey. Mrs. Forney will assume the duties of first vice-president and will be in charge of the finance campaign. Mrs. Bailey moved from first vice-president to presidency. Mrs. Charles Adams resigned as chairman of Voters Service.

An orientation program for new members will be planned by a committee headed by Mrs. Michael Lusk. Mrs. James Polindexter and Mrs. T. W. Rouse will assist. There will be a leadership training workshop at Chapel Hill July 21-25, it was announced.

The local board endorsed submitting the name of Mrs. John Gillin of Durham to the National Nominating Committee for director on the National Board during the business meeting.

Board members will meet for dinner with Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Miller next Wednesday evening. A general meeting of the League will follow at 8 p.m. in the City Hall.

Don't Neglect Polio Vaccine For Family

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D., AP Newsfeatures

Have all your children had all three of their polio shots? Have you had yours? Has your husband had his?

There is hardly a parent in this land of ours who doesn't dread the very thought of a child coming down with the crippling disease polio, or infantile paralysis.

Now we have the knowledge with which this fear can be eliminated. After years and years of painstaking research the polio vaccine was finally discovered by Dr. Jonas Salk. It was first introduced in April 1955.

The vaccine has been proved effective. In 1956 the incidence of paralytic polio was vastly lower among those who had been vaccinated than among those who had not.

Favorable Report Isn't Enough

If you're a believer in the efficacy of safety belts in preventing serious injuries or death in automobile accidents, then a just-completed ten-year study of the subject should confirm that faith.

And if you are one who shrugs off safety-belts as "just another gadget", maybe the Cornell University Committee on Transportation Safety Research will affect your thinking.

The University's Automotive Crash Injury Research division has been working on the design and installation of auto seat belts for more than ten years. The effectiveness of these belts has been probed in actual traffic accidents.

"From more than 5,000 case histories of injury-producing accidents", says project director J. O. Moore, "we have reached conclusions which should remove all doubt of the effectiveness of safety belts in minimizing injuries in automobile accidents. In actual use, properly designed and installed seat belts will increase a car occupant's chances of escaping injury in an accident by nearly 60 per cent."

One reason for success of safety belts, says Moore, is they keep passengers inside a car in which car doors fly open. (Front doors open in 50 per cent of all accidents involving cars manufactured prior to 1956, and passenger ejection is the second most important cause of injury in automobile accidents.) Even in non-ejection accidents, safety belts tend to lessen frequency and severity of injuries by "packaging" the driver and passengers.

The Cornell announcement comes at a time when claims and counter-claims about the value of safety belts are being made by many widely varied groups and individuals. Moore says these claims are generally based on isolated cases or "test" crashes, in which dummies are used to judge the injury-producing potential of accidents. He contrasts this with the University's investigation of actual accident cases.

To be effective, Moore warns, the safety belt should meet standards established by the Society of Automotive Engineers, and be securely anchored to the basic structure of the car.

Our own observation is that the best kind of research and the best kind of safety belt in the world is of no value unless it is used each time the car is put in motion.

We can visualize acceptance of safety belts in automobiles when motorists undertake long trips; but for everyday use, it would appear that motorists would shrug off the minute nuisance of fastening and unfastening them each time they stepped into a car.

Something more positive than a "favorable" report will be needed before the motoring public will accept seat belts as being an integral part of automobile usage.

The Kind Of Thinking We Like In Gov't

This is the kind of thinking we like: Governor Hodges, in noting the Highway Commission will spend 390 million dollars during the next two fiscal years, said he has literally been "frightened" in the past at what might happen with that kind of money being spent.

He said his fear was not "because anyone is dishonest" but because of the "archaic" organization of the commission.

Hodges said he didn't know whom he will appoint to the new post of Highway Director but "he's got to be a strong person, and coupled with that a man of vision in transportation and roads; a man who is thinking 10 to 20 years ahead."

That sort of outlook should be standard in municipal, county, state and federal administrative government.

We talk of big sums of money, but the bigness is relative to the size of the governmental unit involved. "Big" money for a municipality may be $10,000; for a state, $2,000,000; for a nation, $1 billion. But whatever it is, and however it may be spent, the important thing is that it shall not be considered only in the light of contemporary needs, but with an eye to the future as well.

Few Following Assembly Work

By LYNN NISBET
INDIFFERENT — Government employees and reporters whose jobs square them close to capitol events thereabouts as the most important of anything going on in the state.

Although acts by the General Assembly and decisions by boards and administrative officers may affect every person in the whole state, it is surprising how few people really keep up with developments.

During the recent trip with the visiting editors your reporter talked with many people throughout North Carolina, mostly successful business men. Some of them asked if the Legislature is still in session, several wanted to know if the tax reform bills had been enacted, and if school teachers had gotten "the 10 per cent raise they had been promised."

Majority of the business men had kept up with progress of the finance committee's consideration of the tax measures, but few had any general knowledge of progress in other fields.

At Wilmington there was keen interest in ports improvement and the Cape Fear bridge. At Charlotte several men asked about the community college situation, but everybody was talking about annexation. At Pinehurst major interest was in whether the afternoon golf and tennis playing would be rained out. His playing would be rained out, folks talked about tax reform, but more about chances for building an adequate airport. (Charlotte spokesmen said the airport there is rated perhaps the most important single asset for community progress.) At Asheville and Hendersonville taxes and the need for new industry were paramount.

LOCALIZED — The visiting editors quickly sensed the local and regional interests, and channeled most of their questions along those lines. They listened with apparent amused interest to repeated references to sectional rivalry with respect to control of State government by the East folks talked about tax reform, and payment of the bill by the Piedmont.

All of which proves that each person and each section thinks its own activities the most important. Time after time the question was asked why don't they do this, or let us do that. The

"they" in every instance referred to the legislators and officials at Raleigh. The same question was sometimes reversed, and in such a manner that no one was disturbed and nothing was damaged.

IMPRESSED — The visitors were chiefly impressed by three things as seen from the air: The percentage of land area covered by trees; the number of small streams, lakes and farm ponds; and the signs of new construction, both buildings and roads.

Louis Hiner of Indianapolis News said he had never seen as many bridges under construction or as many steel skeletons for buildings in the same length of time, except on planned trips for that purpose only.

The faith manifested by North Carolinians in the future of the State was contagious. Every one of the visitors expressed the purpose to watch North Carolina more closely and to help tell the rest of the world the story of a Southern State which has not been limited by the narrow concepts which have been charged to the whole South.

POTPOURRI — There is a little grave on the campus of Bennett College in Greensboro. Nothing is buried there, but the plot is well kept and a small wooden headstone bears the inscription: "Miss Idle Gossip, born Year One, died October 14, 1928. It seems the student body on that date agreed to kill and bury Idle Gossip, and the 'grave' is decorated and the mound rebuilt from time to time in token of continuing assurance that the dame ought to be dead."

Sedgefield Inn is becoming a nationally known popular place for relatively small conventions. Owner-manager Haywood Duke says one of the most unusual he has entertained was a weekend party for a Duke fraternity. The frat house would not accommodate the expected crowd, so the boys took over Sedgefield, brought along their dates and chaperones and had a delightful time.

W. L. Tomlinson, head of Tomlinson furniture, showed a group of visitors the other day what can be accomplished by arranging colors. He took up a handful of seven tatches of different colors and said that by different arrangements at least 210 results could be obtained of harmonizing shades and colors pleasing to the eye.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HE LOVED THEORY

There was a great theologian in this country some years ago who profoundly influenced the thought of thousands of people. Only a few, however, were aware of the fact that in addition to being a great theologian he was one of the best versed men in the United States on baseball. But the singular aspect of the matter was — he never attended baseball games.

Theoretically, he knew all about the game. He could give the batting averages of all the prominent players, keep a box-score, prophesy with accuracy regarding the outcome of the World Series. But he would not have crossed the street to see the most exciting game on record. The few games he had witnessed years ago had bored him almost to extinction. But baseball as a scientific study — Ah! that was a different matter.

Now curiously enough those who knew him well realized that the attitude the learned professor maintained toward baseball was precisely the attitude he maintained toward theology. To him theology was a science. He had little interest in the relation it bore to life. He loved to discuss theology, to spin theories, to draw distinctions without a difference. But he was frankly bored by the insistence of certain fanatical folk that religion should make a difference in the way a man lived. It made little difference in the way he lived. He had many superb qualities, but he was also selfish, vain, and implacable toward his enemies. He was fascinated by Christianity as a sound theory. He was impatient with those who insisted too earnestly that the theory must be applied.

Areas That Need Selling

By JIMMY ELLIS

The Wall-Walking Clique

I am not by any means an ancient person.

I am, however, occasionally moved to wish I were younger. Such an occasion came the other day.

Two or three little urchins were romping in front of Sheppard Memorial Library. Their play was exactly what it should have been: unrestrained, uninhibited, and in such a manner that no one was disturbed and nothing was damaged.

A prominent portion of their activity was the grand old game of wall-walking. That is the process of making a thoroughfare of any brick, stone or concrete wall wide enough to walk on.

Wall-walking is a sort of ambulatory King-of-the-mountain. It gives little people a position among their peers they can never attain by staying with conventional sidewalk walkers. It makes a boy master of all he can see.

There are, as in every game certain unwritten laws about wall-walking. One of them is that excitement increases proportionately with the height of a wall.

Sheppard Memorial's little wall is a nice height for beginners, or older folks who want to reclaim their old ability. I was sorely tempted to join the little people, but there was some intangible force that comes with age that held me back.

I remember the old days when I never passed up a wall. There was a wild intoxication that came in being at least three-feet taller than everyone else, and in being able to drop acorns on the heads of third grade girls who dared walk beneath my lofty position.

I remember, too, the variations we incorporated into our game, particularly step-jumping. That is the maneuver employed when a true wall-walker encounters steps or other openings in the wall. No real wall-walker ever went around steps. He leaped them.

In my younger days, the supreme accomplishment was leaping the yawning chasm created by Dr. Eddie Bizzell's steps. I suppose the gap is about five feet, perhaps more, but it was (and is) a formidable barrier to any wall-walker.

Actually, Dr. Bizzell's steps were not as tough as they sound. His wall was built so that it matches the level of his yard. If a jumper lost his balance, he could always fall over into the yard.

There was a certain distasteful element to having to fall over in the yard, but it wasn't as bad as using steps or climbing down. One of the unwritten rules requires walkers to jump when they run out of wall to walk on.

The alternative to jumping was expulsion from exclusive wall-walking groups.

There are, I suppose, dangers in the game. There is always the risk of falling off high walls, step-jumping includes the risk of missing the other side and landing in an undignified (and uncomfortable) position on the steps.

Somehow, a real wall-walker never thinks of those things. He just has an infinite faith in his ability to handle all the obstacles.

I haven't done much wall-walking recently but I've been checking that wall at Sheppard Memorial Library. One of these days, I'm going to smack my dignity and romp on Miss Copeland's wall.

And when I do I'm going to have a pocketful of acorns to drop on people who walk by.

Other Editors Saying -- Their Children's Keepers

(Wall Street Journal)

"There is more to raising a good boy," said a Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency, "than housing him."

Or providing youngsters with playgrounds or a higher economic level.

The fact is, the members say, a housing project may provide a former slum neighborhood with "a ready-made gang." The "inability or failure of the schools to discover and secure aid for disturbed children provide little hope that the playground directors will do so."

And "for almost every case where you can demonstrate socioeconomic depression in an area where a delinquent child lives, you can find a comparable child surrounded by luxuries."

Now a great many people will take exception to this startling assault on their notions about curing juvenile delinquency. In fact, one of the great arguments offered in favor of the housing programs was that a nicer place to live would create nicer people. But the committee finds that "if poverty is the cause of delinquency, we should be singularly free from it in comparison with other nations. We are not."

The basic cause of delinquency was recognized by the Senators with no trouble at all. "Better children can come only from better parents." Any curtailment of law violation must come through the medium of the family "since it is there that attitudes of conduct are bred."

So far so good, and we couldn't agree more. But the committee goes on to suggest that "a really constructive approach" would be to provide delinquent youth with the services of "psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers" in and out of school. "Explorations of the child's totality of hopes, fears, ambitions, disappointments and the like would form the basis of therapy."

Perhaps. But it strikes us that there is an increasing need for some moral therapy, too. There was a time when the pastor, the priest and the rabbi were called on to help. And the opinion of neighbors was sometimes helpful in keeping delinquents in line. So we doubt that the new notions will do very much more good than the notions the committee says no longer hold.

If juvenile delinquency is caused by parental delinquency, any cure obviously must be applied at the source of the trouble.

And one way to a cure might well be to stop relieving parents of their own responsibilities to the community by making the community responsible for all the delinquent juveniles. And until that is done, our guess is that neither public housing and playgrounds nor psychiatrists and social workers will help very much. For there is much more to raising a good boy than allowing parents to let others become their children's keepers.

Indian Grads Hired

By HAL BOYLE
LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Industry today can't get enough trained Indians, and the paleface is bidding higher for the Red Man's skill.

Here at Haskell Institute, where 900 ambitious young Indians from 85 tribes study for careers in a modern America, authorities haven't been able to meet the employment demand for graduates since 1940.

"We no longer have to look for jobs for our graduates," said Dr. Solon G. Ayers, superintendent. "Our trouble is in filling the requests. We have to pick and choose."

"Last year every one of our 114 vocational students was hired by commencement day. The highest starting salary was $6,670 — the average was $3,100."

Haskell, the Red Man's Harvard since 1884, is proud of such famous graduates as athlete Jim Thorpe and the late Clarence L. Tinker, a flier who was the first American Indian to achieve the rate of brigadier general. He was killed in World War II.

But Haskell is even prouder of the fact it has become a symbol of educational opportunity for Indians who want to compete on equal terms with the white man in his own culture.

"We hardly ever have a student who goes back to his reservation to live," said Dr. Ayers. "They may return home for a visit, but after a few days they want to leave."

"Reservation life no longer appeals to them. There is nothing there for them to do, and they get restless. They want to get back to their jobs."

Students at Haskell range from 14 to 21. A few go on to college for professional study. But 80 per cent take an added two-year vocational course.

Discipline isn't as much of a problem as it is in most high schools. The teen-age Indians are a serious group.

The students come from 35 states and Alaska. They are motivated by a strong yearning to go beyond the pattern of their parents.

Thus Neva Running Wolf, 17, a Blackfoot from Browning, Mont., wants to become an office worker in a larger town. So do Jeanette Spotted Bear, 19, from the Crow reservation in Montana, and Pearl Bad Wound, 19, a Sioux from Ingham, S.D.

Miss Muriel Jack, 18, of the Tlingit tribe near Juneau, Alaska, aspires to be a secretary. Dorothy Osceola, 20, a Seminole from the Florida Everglades who is the fifth member of her tribe ever to graduate from high school, plans to become a costume designer. She is a descendant of Chief Osceola, who refused to make a treaty with the white men and whose tribal descendants technically still are at war with the United States.

Why don't the students want to go back to their reservations? All give the same answer: "It doesn't have the opportunities."

An exception is Willard Spotted Horse, 20-year-old student welder whose father, a Crow tribesman, operates an 1,800-acre ranch near Lodge Grass, Mont.

"I want to go home and in time take over my father's place," said Willard, who also is a prize-winning cowboy. "But my time here isn't being wasted. There is plenty of welding to do on a ranch."

There are, I suppose, dangers in the game. There is always the risk of falling off high walls, step-jumping includes the risk of missing the other side and landing in an undignified (and uncomfortable) position on the steps.

Somehow, a real wall-walker never thinks of those things. He just has an infinite faith in his ability to handle all the obstacles.

I haven't done much wall-walking recently but I've been checking that wall at Sheppard Memorial Library. One of these days, I'm going to smack my dignity and romp on Miss Copeland's wall.

And when I do I'm going to have a pocketful of acorns to drop on people who walk by.

ALTOONA, PA., MIRROR: "A nation where men once had freedom but did not use it is now described as a dictatorship nation."

TELL CITY, IND., NEWS: "We're happy to see that the Supreme Court has made a decision and still happier over the fact it decided that there was nothing illegal about the Federal Power Commission's permitting a private utility, using private capital and paying taxes to the public treasury, to build a series of dams in Hell's Canyon in Idaho."

When F.D.R. was told of the ruling, he exclaimed: "This is a pretty good day for all of us!"

It was this decision which evidenced Chief Justice Hughes' judicial statesmanship. He persuaded Roberts, a Pennsylvania corporation lawyer and conservative, that a pro-labor ruling was necessary in order to thwart Roosevelt's attack on what the late President had termed a "horse and buggy body."

This incident also serves to explain why Reuther, president of the Automobile Workers Union, hates Beck and demands that he be driven out of the union movement.

Beck, of course, knew of this background, for he was an important and blustering figure in the Teamsters Union during the

Story Behind Bid To Oust Beck

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Dave Beck will probably be forced out by his own Teamsters Union or by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee because he trampled upon the human decencies, and not because he misled union members' funds. He has shown himself to be a petty, shabby, selfish and grasping fellow, even if it meant selling out a friend's widow or collaborating with a viciously anti-labor corporation.

The McClellan Committee has revealed that Beck loaned $1,500,000 of Teamster funds to aid the Fruehauf Trailer interests in a proxy fight for control of that company. The Fruehauf people came to his rescue with a loan when he needed money to repay $300,000 he had taken from the union treasury and to beat an income tax rap, if possible.

In other ways, through collaboration with the Fruehaufs, the Teamster boss, some members of his family and some friends have enriched themselves at the expense of the dues-paying union members.

WASHINGTON — Dave Beck will probably be forced out by his own Teamsters Union or by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee because he trampled upon the human decencies, and not because he misled union members' funds. He has shown himself to be a petty, shabby, selfish and grasping fellow, even if it meant selling out a friend's widow or collaborating with a viciously anti-labor corporation.

The McClellan Committee has revealed that Beck loaned $1,500,000 of Teamster funds to aid the Fruehauf Trailer interests in a proxy fight for control of that company. The Fruehauf people came to his rescue with a loan when he needed money to repay $300,000 he had taken from the union treasury and to beat an income tax rap, if possible.

Fruehauf firm was involved because the National Labor Relations Board had ordered it to stop using illegal and violent methods to prevent Detroit employees from joining Reuther's United Automobile Workers' Union. NLRB held that Fruehauf practices violated the then untested Wagner Act.

It was brought out that the Fruehauf company hired outside detectives as workers so that they could join the embryo union and even become organizers and officers. Then, they turned over to the firm's officials the names of the organizers and members of the union.

The pro-union men were promptly fired or threatened with discharge, if they did not desert the union movement. In view of the truckers' and automobile workers' effective contribution to the unionization movement generally, the Fruehauf strategy would have been fatal, if it had not been outlawed by the Supreme Court.

Beck, of course, knew of this background, for he was an important and blustering figure in the Teamsters Union during the years of labor turmoil which led to the crucial decision.

F.D.R.'S COMMENT ON COURT'S DECISION The majority consisted of Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Stone, Cardozo, and Roberts. The minority opinion was written by Justice McReynolds, a fiery, Southern conservative Democrat, and agreed to by Justices Sutherland, Butler and Van Devanter. All are now dead.

Economy Forces Would Protect Their Own Pets

By JAMES B. SIBBISON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Many businessmen—speaking as a group—are telling Congress: "Cut President Eisenhower's budget."
But a number of individual businessmen, while agreeing with that general idea, say "No!" when anyone suggests trimming their own pet projects.

One of the most outspoken foes of heavy government spending is the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. A spokesman of that organization said "we feel the budget can and must be cut by a minimum of five billion dollars."

But the group's former president, John S. Coleman, has said the Chamber is not "against everything" proposed in Eisenhower's $71,900,000,000 spending budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

For example, he said, the National Chamber favors a 3 1/2 million dollar expenditure for the Commerce Department's Business and Defense Services Administration.

Here are other samples, picked at random, of statements to Congress by businessmen supporting various federal projects:

D. C. Dosker, Louisville wood parts manufacturer, testifying on $2,250,000 proposed for forest products research: "Frankly, gentlemen, I am somewhat agast at the smallness of the size of this request."
Howard Haycraft, book publisher, speaking of the rural library program: "... We would like to see a reduction in federal expenditures wherever possible (but) this is scarcely the place to begin."
Gordon W. Rule, counsel of the National Ass. of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, speaking on a $413,789 increase for the Coast Guard: "If there has to be a cut in operating expenses generally, we would hope that... you are not cutting out that item."
William F. Kirk, manager of economics department of General Petroleum Co., supporting $300,000 for petroleum statistical activities: "I seriously feel that inadequate funds for this purpose would be false economy."
Ernest R. Mitchell, president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, backing spending of some 70 million dollars on navigation improvement-flood control work in the Ohio Valley: "All the people of Kentucky have an important stake in the development of Ohio Valley water resources."

Private Care For His Mother

MILWAUKEE (AP)—There had been a siege of colds and flu in the Donald Laine home, so when Donnie, 4, went to bed he prayed thusly:
"And please, God, make my dad, dy better and my sister better and my mother — well, she went to the doctor today so you won't have to do much for her."

Fainted Before Judge Finished

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elizabeth Patton, 21, appeared in Municipal Court for sentencing on a petty larceny charge...
After lecturing her on the evils of crime, because it was a first offense, the judge said:
"My sentence is 180 days in jail and..."
At that point, Miss Patton fainted.
"Tell her I didn't finish," said the judge. "I'm suspending the sentence."

Hot Paint For Highway Stripes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—New highway striping equipment which applies hot paint to highways, is now being used by the Oregon State Highway Department.
The paint is heated right in the machine and reaches the road at approximately 160 degrees. The drying time of the paint is also speeded up in this machine.

Nightly Offering Couldn't Pay Graham Crusade Cost

NEW YORK (AP)—If it had to depend on the collection plate, Billy Graham's New York crusade would be running deep in the red.
The nightly offerings, the way they've been going, wouldn't half foot the bill.
Some well-to-do individual donors are filling in the gap. Even so, backers still have a financial problem.
"But I'm sure we'll be able to handle it," said Roger Hull, New York insurance executive and chairman of the crusade Executive Committee.

Altogether, counting television plans, the six-weeks crusade is expected to cost about $1,200,000. Graham and his team get nothing but their housing.

At the Madison Square Garden meetings, where no special appeals are made, the swift-paced collections have been bringing in around $7,000 a night. This means the New York audience have averaged chipping in less than 50 cents apiece.

This is about what planners expected. They count on about $300,000 in the six weeks.
That's $600,000 shy of the estimated costs of the crusade itself, including advertising and rental of the Garden and crusade offices.

Of this $600,000, private donations ranging from $100 up to one gift of $50,000 have brought in just over $400,000, leaving $200,000 to go.

This doesn't include plans for televising the crusade on Saturday nights, beginning June 1, which will cost another $300,000—of which $100,000 so far has been contributed.

"We've still got a financial problem," Hull said. "If everything goes by the book, we've got to raise another $400,000."
He said names of the donors were confidential. The amount of nightly collections also is not made public, he said, in order to avoid putting emphasis on this aspect of the crusade.

Graham preached to a capacity house last night — 18,500 people, and 587 of them came forward at his call to "accept Christ as Lord and Savior." Such decisions total 5,070 in eight nights.
In his sermon, Graham declared that the man who "pushes everything aside to make money" is "guilty of idolatry" — and that includes workers and employers. The workman in a factory who shirks his job or "cheats on his time" and the "businessman who does not pay honorable wages" are committing the sin of idolatry, Graham said, adding:

"The American who cheats on his income tax return is guilty of idolatry, and the Bible says God hates it."
Graham's text was 2 Kings 21, concerning the atrocities of ancient King Manasseh of Judah, whom Graham described as the "most wicked man who ever lived," piling even Hitler and other fiends of history.
He wrecked his beastiality and idol worship against "God Jehovah's chosen people" — the inhabitants of Judah, Graham said.

Homes Are Given Korean Veterans

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Eighty-three new two-family houses, built largely with American donations, were turned over today to 86 crippled South Korean veterans.
Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York, gave $10,000 toward the homes for veterans suffering from spinal disease. U. S. Soldiers in Korea and South Korean soldiers also contributed.

Refuse To Bar Mother-To-Be

LODI, Calif. (AP)—Freckle-faced and pregnant Mrs. Rosalie Sperling can take part in the June 8 graduation ceremonies at Lodi High School.
This was decided last night by the Board of Trustees after San Joaquin County Counsel Richard W. Dickenson said tersely "the board can not make restrictive provisions because of marriage or pregnancy."
The board had planned to discuss late today whether the 18-year-old, sandy-haired wife of another senior, Jerry Sperling, could get her diploma on the stage. The young couple was married last December.

Move To Return Property Title

RALEIGH—The General Assembly this week began a legislative process which would convey title to the old Ayden Elementary School property to the Town of Ayden.

Pitt Representatives Frank Wooten and Walter Jones introduced the bill. Their bill states that since a new elementary school has been built in the Town of Ayden and situated on other property, the old school property is no longer needed for any school purpose.

The bill also points out that the property was originally purchased by the Town of Ayden, the building was built by the Town of Ayden and title to the property was formerly held for the benefit of the Ayden Special Charter School District. The special district surrendered its charter in 1931 and became a part of the Pitt County Administrative School Unit.

If the bill is approved by the General Assembly, the Pitt County Board of Education would be "authorized, empowered and directed" to convey by deed title to the property to the Town of Ayden.

Influenza Takes Sixty Lives

MANILA (AP)—The death toll in the influenza epidemic sweeping the Philippines rose to 60 today but health authorities reported a decline in the number of cases in Manila.
Forty-nine of the deaths occurred in the capital and 11 in Health Department said the number of cases in the city dropped from 54,000 to 49,000.

Hopeful View Rises Over Disarmament Discussions

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials find it hard to believe, but they are beginning to think that Russia's bosses really may be prepared to give up some secrecy to get a limited disarmament pact.

This hopeful view will be put to the test in arms control negotiations being resumed in London next week.
It now seems certain that Harold E. Stassen, U. S. negotiator, will return to London over the weekend with a new set of American proposals designed to encourage Soviet agreement.

President Eisenhower laid down two broad guidelines for that policy at his news conference yesterday.
He said the United States "must make it possible for others, if they are reasonable, logical men, to meet us half way."
He also declared that in dealing with Russia and its history of "breaking of treaties" the United States "must be especially careful to obtain systems of disarmament inspection 'in which we can have confidence'."

Exactly what Stassen will propose for inspection systems for the partial arms control agreement now under consideration remains to be disclosed. However, at a minimum it would require the presence of international inspectors in whatever areas of disarmament were agreed on.

Very serious study has been given also to the possibility of creating zones for aerial inspection involving Russian and American territory and perhaps the territories of Communist and Western nations in Europe. The United States, it is said, would want rights of aerial photography, exchanges of military blueprints and probably inspectors on the ground in the zones decided on.

To the extent that such inspection systems would involve Soviet territory or positions held by Soviet forces in Eastern Europe, they would mean a breaking down of secrecy barriers which have protected all sorts of Soviet activities from foreign eyes since the early days of the regime of the late Joseph Stalin.

Experts on the Soviet system say there are several reasons why the men in the Kremlin now, four years after Stalin's death, may be willing to see these barriers lowered.
The first is that the system of rule in Russia is changing radically from Stalin's time. At the top it is a rule by committee, dominated by Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev. The committee rule has de-emphasized the secret police operation on which Stalin relied heavily. There is therefore less to hide from foreign eyes.

The second reason is that, according to this analysis, Khrushchev, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and the others in the ruling clique are genuinely afraid of the possibility of an atomic World War III and they see no profit in that for anyone.

As a third point the concern of the Soviet leaders with building up Russia's economy is cited. The experts note that if a genuine arms reduction can be agreed on the resources which now go into the arms race can be diverted to industrial development and the fulfillment of requirements for Soviet economic expansion.

Report Quints Born To Girl

CULICAN, Mexico (AP)—A report from the isolated mountain village of Cosala says a 14-year-old Mexican girl gave birth to quintuplets.
The mother was Juana Gomez Alfaro. Three of the premature babies were born dead and the other two died shortly after because they did not have proper medical care, the report said.

Soviet Mission To Visit Japan

YAWATA, Japan (AP)—A Soviet economic good will mission is to inspect one of east Asia's largest steel mills and a dye plant in northern Kyushu.
A director at the steel works said the firm regretted having to bar the Russians, but that a month or more advance notice is necessary before a schedule can be arranged.
"Our plants also employ some American classified patents," he added, "which means it is necessary to screen our visitors."

Rae Foley's new mystery novel RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 29

Not until Nora Pendleton was brought to the hospital and Garry nursed her did she begin to realize what she had done. Living in Boston, Garry had followed Nora's activities as reported by the society pages which she read assiduously. Nora Pendleton was rich. She had everything. But the nurse had not been prepared for heartbreak or for the inexorable machinery of the law which she had set in motion. She was not prepared for the long months of anxiety and the hideous strain of the trial.

"I tell you," she said to Mr. Potter, "the first happy breath I drew in a year was when Mr. Young was acquitted. I tried as hard as I could to make up to Miss Pendleton for what I'd done to her. No one could have tried harder."

"What about that picture of Candy?" Mr. Potter asked, "which was sent to Miss Pendleton?"

"I took it out of her room. She acted odd about it and with Mr. Young free I was afraid of what might happen now. I hunted until I found what she had hidden. And I tore up the picture because I hated Candy so much." After a long silence she added, "I told Howard Ives I sent the anonymous letter to protect him. But it makes no real difference. He's like most men. He'll go on loving the one who gave him nothing."

At last she went up to her room to sleep and Mr. Potter sat alone in his car, wondering how deeply the nurse had hated Candy Kendrick, who had taken from her the only admirer she was ever likely to have.

He was still sitting at the wheel when a State Police car pulled up beside him in the parking lot. There were two troopers in the front seat and Frank Deming was alone in back. After a few words, Frank went up to the inn, white and drawn from the night's questioning. Captain Foote gave low-voiced instructions to the trooper at the wheel, who nodded and sauntered slowly after Frank. Then the Captain called across to Mr. Potter and came to sit beside him.

"Well," he said, "tell me about this attack on Miss Pendleton last night. It was a break for young Deming, being with us at the time."

Mr. Potter described finding Nora and the battle to keep her awake until the doctor came.

"The trooper listened, frowning. 'Have you come to any conclusions about the shenanigans going on around here?'"

He'd been thinking, Mr. Potter said, about their first talk at Martha's Kitchen when Foote had remarked that the trouble with the case was that there wasn't any real evidence against anyone but Young. Now there seemed to be evidence against everyone but Young.

He began with the Hegers. Bert had no alibi for the murder of Candy Kendrick. He was supposed to have been with his wife all afternoon, painting and renovating the garden furniture, until Ives' horse came back and he set out to look for him. Actually, according to Ives, Huger had been drunk at the time.

Mr. Potter repeated the conversation he had overheard between the Hegers. "Wherever Bert was that afternoon, he wasn't at the inn. And he was attracted to Candy."

So far as Mrs. Riddle's murder was concerned, Bert had obviously lied. He had not spent the evening in the Annex with his wife as he claimed. He had gone off, drunk, in his station wagon. But the Hegers had not killed Olive Riddle. That afternoon they had attempted to blackmail Nora, claiming that she was the only person with a motive for killing her aunt.

"You really get around, don't you?" Captain Foote remarked in some amusement.

Mr. Potter went on to say that Miss Garrison had sent the anonymous letter accusing Stuart Young. "She was trying to protect Ives, of course, who is now engaged to her. So far as I know, there is no way of determining how long Ives lay helpless after his horse threw him. If he is telling the truth about being thrown at four o'clock, he is in the clear. If Huger is telling the truth, and the horse didn't return to the stables until long after five, Ives could easily have killed the girl before wrenching his knee. Personally, I'm inclined to believe Ives because Huger is a congenital liar."

"I don't know," Foote said in disgust, "why we have a police force when you can pick up all this in a couple of days."

"Things have been happening and that makes people talk where they'd ordinarily clam up."

"Nothing makes Frank Deming talk," the officer said in disgust, "or else he hasn't anything to talk about. We've been at him for hours. You know, I believe his old man on the witness stand. Deming struck me as being completely truthful. As for Frank, he admits now he has no alibi for Candy's murder but we couldn't get any other damaging admission out of him. He swears he had nothing to do with Mrs. Riddle's death, that he believes she tripped and fell. He wasn't interested in Nora changing her will. He had assumed it was done when her father testified against Young. There was no reason on earth why she should leave him any money."

The Captain stretched. "Well, it was a suicide attempt."

"Suicide! Nora Pendleton? But why?" The trooper looked at Mr. Potter. "But, dear God," he said softly, "that's not possible."

"Oh, yes," Mr. Potter said, "it is quite possible that Nora Pendleton is the murderer. I've been aware of that from the beginning, but I doubt whether we'd be able to prove it. The only person in a position to be fairly sure is Stuart Young. If a year under false arrest and trial for his life wouldn't make him betray her I don't know what would."

Foote asked at length, "Do you think her lawyer knows?"

"I think he suspects," Mr. Potter eased himself out from under the wheel. "That reminds me, he's up in Nora's room now, standing guard. I'll replace him for a while."

"I guess you had better know about me," Nora said to Mr. Potter. "Perhaps the real trouble is not that I am in danger, it's that I am dangerous." Continue the story here tomorrow.

"We've been up with young Deming all night. I'm leaving a man on guard here and I'll go catch some sleep. Then I'll take a fresh look at all these people."

"There are two other possibilities you might consider," Mr. Potter said. "First, there is Tom, who now claims to be Tom Kendrick, Candy's uncle. He was right on my tail when I found that photograph of Candy but at that time he wasn't talking. Said only that he was getting a free lesson in how not to be an amateur snoot."

But later he let me get the impression that he had come to track down her killer himself."

Foote's jaw dropped and Mr. Potter explained how he had run down Kendrick's identity. "I'm not sure what I think of the man. He could be tough. Very tough."

"Could he have pushed Mrs. Riddle, thinking she was the Pendleton girl and that she had killed Candy? No," the trooper answered his own question, "that is ridiculous. And where, would Jones, or whoever he is, get morphine?"

"The Stanleyville doctor believed it was a suicide attempt."

"I guess you had better know about me," Nora said to Mr. Potter. "Perhaps the real trouble is not that I am in danger, it's that I am dangerous." Continue the story here tomorrow.

No Retreat By Governor Over Minimum Wage Bill

By JEAN REILLY
(The Reflector Bureau)

RALEIGH—A forceful governor reiterated a firm stand on the minimum wage law while legislative hi-jinks upstairs attempted the resurrection of an apparently dead measure.

"There is one thing I want to get straight," Gov. Luther Hodges said. "In view of the allocation program, I could not possibly give corporations a break without wacking a strong minimum wage bill to insure equitable relief to the average man.

"I want it clearly understood," he said, "that I have backed the minimum wage principle from the beginning and I still intend to do what I can to help those who need it."

Gubernatorial lights have been burning brightly all week as interested persons, both in and out of the legislature conferred on last Thursday's interment of the bill.

"Two senators visited me Friday," Hodges said, "and asked my advice on a course of action."

Some of the senators were reportedly "furious" at the committee action and rumors were heavy that a new bill, attended also with the governor's blessing, would be forthcoming.

The resolution by Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan calling for a committee report on the measure came as a surprise to most, however. Since the measure was tabled, it was almost impossible to get it to the floor of the House for debate. Uzzell's resolution requesting a committee report would give the bill's proponents a chance to get it on the floor with a minority report.

Uzzell, seconded by Reps. Thomas White of Lenoir, Cloyd Philpott of Davidson and Radford Powell of Rockingham, requested a vote on his measure Wednesday but was overruled by Speaker Kemp Doughton.

Despite eloquence and pleas from the four legislators and an abortive attempt by Rep. Tom Turner of Guilford to have the rules suspended Speaker Doughton refused to budge from a prior decision.

"The chair rules that according to the House rule book a notice of one day must be given and a two-thirds vote is necessary for passage. It is so ruled." The gavel struck and debate was ended.

Coty Plans Quickly Name New Premier

PARIS (AP)—President Rene Coty sent out word today he intends to nominate a successor for Premier Guy Mollet within 48 hours in an effort to keep his own date with President Eisenhower early next month.

Persons who spoke with the president said Coty hoped for swift solution of France's political crises so he could arrive on schedule in Washington June 3 for a state visit.

But unless Parliament confirms a new premier soon, Coty will be unable to make the trip. He was forced to cancel his sailing on the Ile de France. He ordered a special plane to stand by to fly him to America.

International courtesy requires that Coty let the U. S. government know sometime in advance if his constitutional duties will force him to cancel the trip. For this reason he is pressing the warring French political leaders to give him an answer one way or another in the next few days.

Officially, Coty still has not accepted the resignation of Mollet's Socialist government, submitted Tuesday after 16 months in office—a postwar record. But the Socialist premier said he was definitely through.

Mollet resigned when the National Assembly voted 250-213 against his belt-tightening program to finance the campaign against the Algerian nationalists. He and his Cabinet remain on a caretaker basis until a successor government is chosen.

Speculation on the premier-designate center on politicians of the center parties—somewhere between the Socialists and the right-center Independent Republicans whose negative votes helped defeat Mollet.

Men most frequently mentioned were former Premier Rene Pleven, who heads a splinter group which participated in Mollet's coalition, and Pierre Pflimlin, chairman of the Popular Republicans.

Win Awards At Grifton School

GRIFTON—Jo Anne Hardison and Floyd Smith were principal award winners at Grifton High School's graduation exercises here Monday night.

Jo Anne, valedictorian, received the Dawson Scholarship and a Reader's Digest award. In addition to making the Valedictory Address at the exercises, Floyd, salutatorian, delivered the Salutatory Address and received the ECC Scholarship Award and a Reader's Digest Award.

Other awards included the Grifton Book Club Scholarship to Joyce Dudley; home economics award, Lou Raye Mewburn; agriculture award, Jimmie McLawhorn; English award, Emily Nelson; bus driver awards, Billy Reeves, Walter Craft, Wayne Ervin, Bobby Rouse and Roy Garris; and athletic awards, Ardath Vandiford and Jimmie McLawhorn.

Participating in the awards presentations were Principal E. B. Bright, W. I. Bissette, E. W. Fleming and John H. Coward. Diplomas were presented by Coward.

23 Year Wait For Phone Call

RIVERHEAD, N. Y. (AP)—Mrs. Florence English, 48, says her husband, Maurice, when he went to jail in 1934 for drunkenness, told her he'd phone as soon as he got out.

Mrs. English, in state Supreme Court said Maurice still hasn't called and petitioned to have her husband declared legally dead.

ON THE HOUSE By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

AP Newsfeatures

There is often too much inclination to regard insulation as something to cut heating costs. Actually, insulation is highly important to the proper conditioning of homes. This fact is borne out by the results of a research study conducted by a group headed by John R. Watt, associate professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Texas.

The study was made in eight houses in Austin, Tex. The houses are single-story, one-family dwellings of approximately 1,250 square feet area priced between $12,000 and $16,000. Five have combined frame and brick veneer construction; one is all wood, another is all-brick veneer and one is solid masonry with a small frame alcove. One is built over a crawl space; the others have concrete slabs.

The house with the thickest insulation — 3 inches of mineral wool in the walls and 6½ inches in the ceiling — was equipped with an air conditioner at a net savings of $511.17 because use of a smaller cooling plant was possible. And the annual operating savings were $82.26. Current FHA minimum insulating requirements for such a house are 1½ inches in ceilings and none in the walls. It cost $308.08 more to install the thicker mineral wool. Yet the extra insulation made it possible for a two-ton air conditioning unit to handle the cooling load system that would have been required without the extra insulation.

The jalousie window did not make its bow in the United States until 1935, but its basic idea is so old that it is lost in antiquity.

Spanish countries have used wooden louvers for centuries, calling them "Persianas." The Italians called them "Romanillos." Marco Polo brought gold-plated louvers from China to the Queen of Venice. And the French have used them, especially in North Africa, for many hundreds of years.

When jalousies were first introduced into this country in Florida, they were made of wooden slats set in brass clips. Improvements were rapid, with the biggest development coming in 1945, when glass jalousies won immediate acceptance because they gave added visibility as well as extra ventilation. Jalousies are still made with wooden or aluminum louvers, but the most popular is the glass-louvered jalousie with aluminum frames and screens.

A backyard swimming pool has always seemed to be pretty much a luxury item. Yet more and more homes in the moderate-priced class are being built with them.

New manufacturing, distribution and installation techniques have brought the costs down. Even a reinforced, all-concrete pool can now be bought, completely installed and equipped, for about the price of a family car.

Curiosity prompted us to do a little more checking with the International Swimming Pool Corp. We learned that more than 50 per cent of the backyard pools being sold were going to families with an annual income between $7,000 and $12,000. A far cry from a few years ago, when most pools were sold to families with incomes over $25,000 — and, in many cases, over $100,000.

No Regrets

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Missing a question on a television quiz program cost aircraft worker Al Einfrank a small fortune, his wife and even—for a time—his health. But Einfrank says he has no tears, no regrets.

"Being on the $64,000 question was the greatest thrill of my life," said Einfrank, 57, who is back at his $83-a-week truck-driving job at Douglas Aircraft Co.

After he missed a question on geography at the $32,000 level last January, Einfrank said, his wife, Pauline, left him to live with their daughter, Mrs. Robert Gelman of Adelphi, Md.

"You darn fool, she told me," Einfrank said. "Why didn't you stop at 32?"

Einfrank sold the car given him as a consolation prize for $6,000, bought a cheaper one and drove west.

"I had a breakdown in Tucson, Ariz.," he said. "I guess it was nerves. I spent six days in a hospital there. But I'm okay now."

Einfrank said he has been promised an appearance on the $64,000 challenge program "as soon as they get an authority on geography."

Tough Month For Service Station

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—It's been a tough month for Roy C. Ingle, operator of a service station.

Two weeks ago a bandit robbed Ingle of $731. Two days later, burglars wrecked the station's safe and Ingle had to replace it.

This week an employe backed a car without brakes out of the station's garage. It crashed into a gasoline pump, and the fuel exploded, setting off a fire which did considerable damage.

Driver Claims Her Age Is 103

EUREKA, Calif. (AP)—Highway Patrolman James Greenlaw, investigating a report of a minor accident, asked Mrs. Bertha Orcutt for her driver's license.

"Oh, I left that at home," she said, "but I can get it for you."

He said that wasn't necessary right now, but asked when she was born.

"1854," said the short, gray-haired lady.

"But that would make you 103. You don't look more than 70 or 75."

"If I were only 75, I'd be delighted to say so young man," Mrs. Orcutt said. "It's still nice to hear it."

Her car had a bent fender from a two-foot drop down an embankment.

loves to cut loose and cover the miles!

If you're looking for a real "escape artist," a car that loves to step out and get away from it all—well, it just happens that Chevy was born with that urge.

If there ever was a car that loved to cut loose and cover the miles, it's this one. Yet it's so easy to handle that it even makes city traffic seem a bit lighter and parking places a bit bigger.

Chevy's pretty easygoing out on the highway too. Not pokey. Far from it. You find, for example, there isn't a hill around that can make it breathe hard —not with Chevrolet's high-performance V8 on the pulling end. You've got up to 245* horsepower here for the biggest helping of driving pleasure found in the low-price field!

Chevy's new Positraction rear axle (optional at extra cost) adds still more pleasure. It delivers greater power to the wheel that grips, not the wheel that slips. You have surer control and better traction on any road surface.

Stop by your Chevrolet dealer's before another good driving day goes by.

Building Report For N.C. Down

RALEIGH — Building permits totaling $46,077,437 were issued by public officials in 30 North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population during the first four months of this year, the State Department of Labor reported yesterday. The four-month total was approximately $4 million less than the $50,371,531 total reported for the same period last year, said Labor Commissioner Frank Crane.

Permits totaling $14,989,517 were issued by building inspectors of the 30 cities during April, Crane said. This represented a gain of more than $2 million over the $12,777,157 reported for April, 1956. Individual city building permit totals reported for April, 1957, were as follows:

- Albemarle $48,100, Asheville $370,960, Burlington $2,423,324, Charlotte $1,403,808, Concord $186,100, Durham $656,638, Elizabeth City $55,375, Fayetteville $467,338, Gastonia $727,600, Goldsboro $489,000, Greensboro $1,138,198, Greenville $406,700, Henderson $44,200, Hickory $57,800, High Point $335,371, Kinston $79,300, Lexington $135,750, Monroe $84,900, New Bern $38,300, Raleigh $1,359,981, Ridesville $62,980, Rocky Mount $177,816, Salisbury $106,675, Sanford $62,000, Shelby $159,425, Statesville $58,852, Thomasville $63,375, Wilmington $225,111, Wilson $291,000, Winston-Salem $3,275,120.

Rare Whooping Crane Captured

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The San Antonio zoo has acquired a rare whooping crane captured on a ranch near Lometa, Tex. They named it Rosie.

Zoo Director Fred Stark hopes he can get a mate for Rosie from the Austwell refuge on the Texas gulf where crippled males are sometimes spotted.

Less than 30 of the 6-foot white birds, once plentiful in North America, returned from their winter nesting grounds in Canada. They were within 15 birds of extinction at one time in recent years.

The only others in captivity are Crip and Jo in the New Orleans zoo.

To Graduate

SALEMURG — Cadet Sergeant Phillip Ray Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, 2710 Sunset Avenue, Greenville, will graduate from the high school department of Edwards Military Institute Monday.

Graduation exercises, open to the public, will be held in Jones Memorial Auditorium on the EMI campus. The exercises will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Cadet Davis entered EMI in 1954 after completing the eighth grade at Greenville High School. During his three years at the military school he has received ribbons for being a member of the best-drilled company, best-drilled platoon, best-drilled squad, crack platoon, crack squad, bugler, good conduct, honor cadet, honor school, band and cadet staff. He has received medals for marksmanship and runner-up in the contest for best-drilled cadet.

At EMI's annual Mother's Day Review, Cadet Davis received a medal for being the most outstanding squad leader of the year. The medal was pinned on him by his mother.

Prior to entering EMI, Cadet Davis was a Star Scout in Greenville Troop 33 and a member of Eighth Street Christian Church.

Tar Heel To Aid Korean Tobacco

RALEIGH — J.B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associates, Inc., reporting from Tokyo, Japan, said that arrangements have been completed for James C. Richardson, Winston-Salem, N.C. to spend two to three weeks in Seoul, Korea to assist the Korean Tobacco Monopoly with its cigarette blending problems.

Hutson made arrangements for Richardson's services at the request of Tobacco Associates and other tobacco trade associations engaged in promoting the overseas sales of U.S. tobaccos.

Korea purchased last year about 5 million dollars worth of U.S. flue-cured tobacco — its first purchase of U.S. tobacco in 20 years.

Last year Jong Shick Yoo, chief of the Korean Tobacco Monopoly visited the United States as guest of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Tobacco Associates and other tobacco trade groups. At that time he requested the U.S. trade to help him improve the quality of cigarettes made in Korea by supplying the services of an expert in making blends for American-Type cigarettes.

Sox Increase Lead To 3 Games

He's Pitched Five No-Hitters

GAYLORD PERRY, sensational 18-year-old righthander from Williamston, has hurled five no-hit ballgames this season, including one perfect contest. His last three performances in the Class A Eastern playoffs have been hitless games for his opponents. A 6-4, 200-pound Junior at Williamston, he has already attracted a flock of major league scouts. (Reflector Sports Photos).

Perry Out To Win, Not To Pitch No-Hitters

Gaylord Perry, young righthander for the Williamston high school Green Waves, has pitched five no-hitters this season.

Three of the no-hit games have been consecutively thrown in his last three appearances on the mound. All three have been against teams that stood in the way of a state Class A championship for the Williamston nine.

This Friday night, Perry will go again at Wilson in the second game of the Eastern Class A division. Williamston will meet Rock Ridge in the second of a best-two-out-of-three series. In the first meeting of the two teams, Perry cleaned up with a 7-0, no-hit job.

Perry, a 6'4" 200-pound Junior at Williamston, is also leading his club at the plate with a batting average well over the .400 mark. He's hitting in the cleanup slot.

The highlight of the season for the slender righthander was a perfect game hurled against the Aho-skie Indians in the campaign's opener. Perry faced 21 batters, struck out 14 and didn't allow a ball out of the infield.

Thus far this season, the Williamston hurler has won 11 of his team's 14 victories and has not been defeated. He has compiled a phenomenal earned-run average of 0.00.

Only two runs have been scored by his opponents, both of which came on errors. His strikeout average is even more astounding; he has fanned an average of 2.30 batters per inning. He has pitched 84 innings this year.

As many as five major league clubs have had scouts watching the youngster perform. Talent hunters flocked to his last two no-hit games, which Perry tossed with apparent ease.

During the regular season, Perry threw no-hitters against Aho-skie and Edenton in Conference play. The last three hitless games were recorded against Oak City, West Edgecombe and Rock Ridge, a previously unbeaten team in 16 games.

His record for the past two seasons to date is 23-2.

From a baseball-loving family, the lanky brown-haired pitcher is striving to follow in the footsteps of his father and a brother who is now pitching for a class C team in North Dakota.

Williamston Coach Lynn Manass has called Perry "the best boy I have ever coached." And he added, "If I coached for another 50 years, I don't believe I would find a better coordinated athlete."

Perry's dedication to the sport has been exemplified several times this season. His second no-hitter of the year was pitched against doctor's orders. Perry was suffering from a virus infection that was so bad that he could hardly speak.

Primarily a fastball pitcher, he also relies upon a sharp-breaking curve and a change of pace. His batter-mate, Gerald Robertson, is forced to use a sponge because of Perry's terrific delivery.

Gaylord (folks around Williamston pronounce it Gay-lord) has displayed excellent control in his 11 victories. His pin-point pitching prompted one umpire to remark, "That boy has the best control of any high school pitcher in the state."

Although most of his wins have been exceptional mound performances, Perry is quick to assert that, "It takes nine men to win a ball game."

Perry is backed up well by the Green Wave. Coach Manass has pointed out that the team plays behind their star pitcher to the hilt. "They'd do anything for him," he has said. "And it works both ways. Perry spends a lot of time working with his mates and especially with the younger pitchers. There's no trouble here, because every one of the boys realized that it takes a team to win a game. Gaylord is the first to admit it."

What manager Al Lopez was able to accomplish only once in six years at Cleveland, he may achieve in his first year at Chicago. That would be beating the Yankees.

The White Sox' early whirlwind pace no longer is to be snickered at. Even the experts who predicted a New York runaway are beginning to take the White Sox seriously.

How can you ignore a team which owns a comfortable three-game lead after five weeks of play? A team that was won 20 out of 27? A team that rebounded from three straight defeats by the Yankees to win nine in succession, the last two from the Yankees in their own back yard?

No wonder Lopez' merry men were in a jovial mood today as they roared west after cleaning up everything in the east. The Chicagoans capped their best road trip in history yesterday by winning their second straight from New York 6-4 to increase their first place American League margin to three games over Cleveland and four over the third place Yankees.

The Boston Red Sox tied a league record with four home runs in one inning as they routed the Indians 11-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Tom Brewer. Baltimore nipped Detroit 4-3 in 10 innings and Kansas City outsluged Washington 8-6.

Cincinnati protected its one and a half game National League lead over Milwaukee, walloping Brooklyn 8-1 while the Braves were struggling to beat Philadelphia 4-3 in 13 innings. The New York Giants edged Chicago's Cubs 4-3. Pittsburgh and St. Louis were rained out.

Jim Wilson scattered 10 Yankee hits to register his fifth victory against one defeat as the White Sox clubbed starter Johnny Kucks and two relievers for 11 hits. Nellie Fox, who had hit only 19 home runs in 10 seasons in the majors, slammed his second of the year for the White Sox. He also drove a 400-foot fly that Mickey Mantle muffed after a long run in center field, scoring two.

A tight battle between 35-year-old Wilson and young Kucks was broken up in the sixth inning when Chicago scored five unearned runs on four hits and two Yankee errors. Errors by Mantle and Billy Martin and Minnie Mino's double were the key plays.

Total cost of all accidents in the U.S. in 1956 would build a new merchant fleet with 200 ships the size of the Queen Mary.

Stock Car Race Opening Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A number of stock car races are on tap in the Carolinas this weekend, beginning tonight at Columbia.

Forty cars are expected for an inaugural four-event card at Columbia Speedway.

Action shifts to Charlotte Fairgrounds Friday night. Banjo Mathews of Asheville and Bunk Moore of Indian Trail will resume their rivalry in a race for modifieds. Moore nosed out Mathews by less than a car length at Lancaster, S.C. last week.

Between 20 and 30 cars are expected for a 100-mile event at Piedmont Interstate Fairgrounds track at Spartanburg, S.C. Saturday night.

Durham Defeats Greenville To Nab ECGA Title

RALEIGH — Durham captured the Eastern Carolina Golf Association's team championship with an 85-53 victory over Greenville here yesterday at the Raleigh Country Club.

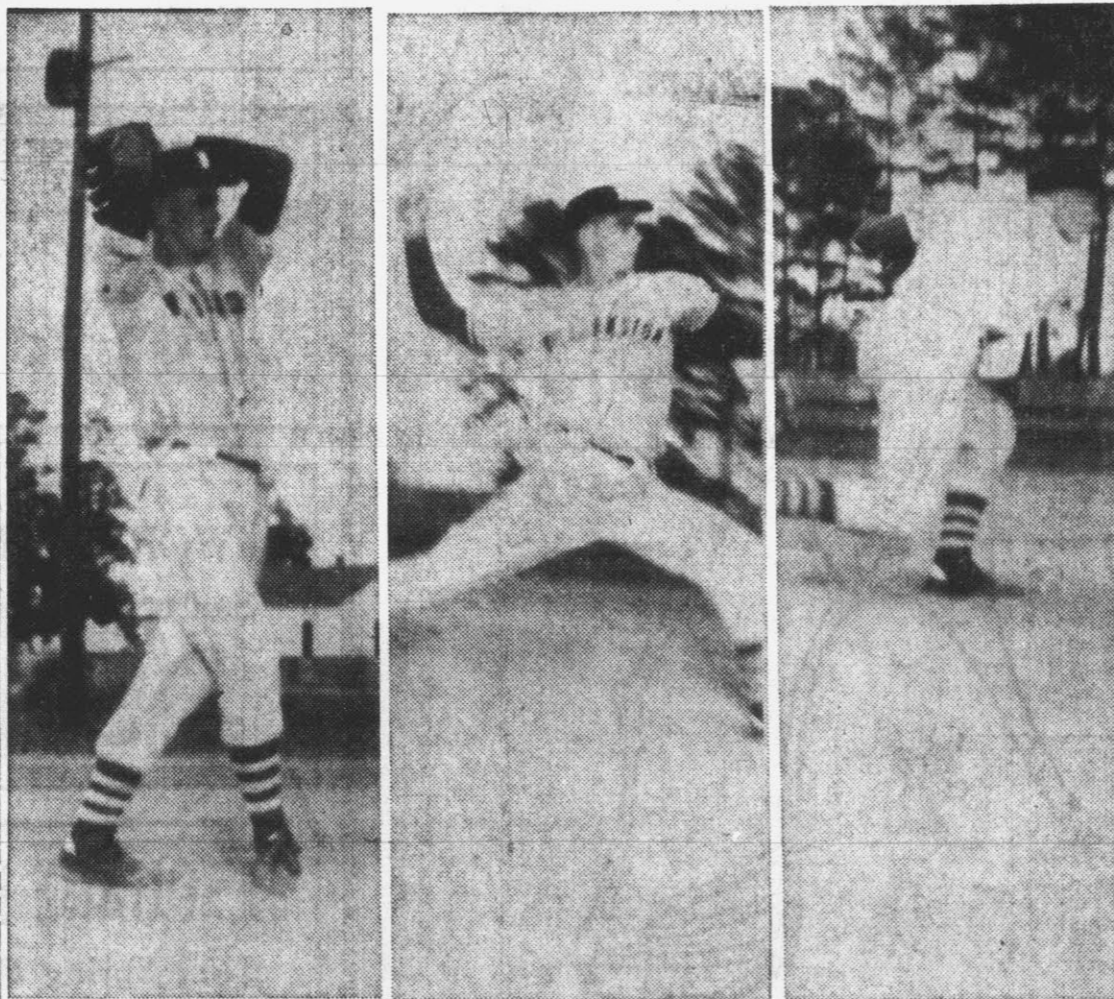

Webb-Conley Tilt Will Be Delayed

The Greenville Match Play championship, which was to be decided this weekend, has been postponed until the following weekend, June 1 and 2.

Donald Conley Jr., who was to meet Erroll Webb this Saturday and Sunday for the 36-hole championship match, has announced that he will be completing final examinations at N. C. State College and will not be able to make an appearance.

As plans now stand, the title match will be delayed for a week. Any further developments concerning the time of the contest will be carried in the Daily Reflector.

Gaylord Perry: This Is How The Big Boy Does It

PRIMARILY a fastball pitcher, Perry also relies upon a fast-breaking curve ball and a change of pace to startle his opponents. This season, the lanky pitcher ace has won 11 of his team's 14 victories and is slated to go again Friday night when the Green Wave faces Rock Ridge in Williamston. The game will be the second in a best-two-out-of-three series for the Eastern title. In the first game, Perry downed them with a no-hitter, 7-0, for their first loss in 16 games.

GREENSBORO, N.C. — A former all-state halfback from Reidsville yesterday was declared eligible for varsity football next fall at the University of North Carolina.

Don Coker, a freshman, who declared ineligible last summer for receiving aid not in conformity with Atlantic Coast Conference regulations.

ACC Commissioner Jim Weaver ruled that Coker, a standout in the East-West All-Star game in Greensboro last year, would be eligible next fall.

When Coker was declared ineligible, the conference by-laws contained no limitation to the tenure of ineligibility.

The commissioner was empowered at the recent ACC meeting to determine the length of penalty. Although the conference said the rule was not retroactive, it did instruct Weaver to rule on the length of Coker's ineligibility.

IBC Gets Backing In Boxing Battle

NEW YORK — Two influential organizations were lined up behind the International Boxing Club today in its stand against a government proposal the IBC says could mean an end to boxing as television has made it.

In this corner: Julius Helfand, chairman of the powerful New York State Athletic Commission. In the same corner: Tom Gallery, sports director of the National Broadcasting Company, which telecasts the weekly Friday night fights.

Jaycees Win In Extra Innings

A double-header was scheduled for yesterday at Little League park, but the VFW-Jaycees game (the starter) lasted 10 innings, postponing the second tilt.

The North State encounter saw the Jaycees post a tight 3-2 win, finally pushing across the winning score in the final frame. The game was originally set for only six innings.

Clapp was the winning pitcher, having come into the game in the 7th for the Jaycees. The VFW used Johnston and Allen, with Allen being charged with the loss.

The VFW outfit scored first. They chalked up one run in the second inning and added another in the third to grab a quick 2-0 lead. The Jaycees went scoreless until the fifth inning.

In the fifth, Watt and Blount walked for the Jaycees and later scored to tie the game. From there, it went five more innings before the winning run was scored.

In the 10th, Hardee was hit by a pitched ball and later came across on a sharp single by Clapp. It gave the Jaycees the 3-2 win.

VFW 011 000 000 0-2 8 4
Jaycees ... 000 020 000 1-3 3 4

Both struck key blows for the IBC while testifying yesterday before Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan in the government's monopoly suit against the IBC, its subsidiaries, and club officials James D. Norris and Arthur M. Wirtz. Judge Ryan, who has declared the IBC guilty of anti-trust regulations in conspiring to monopolize promotion of fights, is conducting hearings to determine the extent of penalties to be fixed.

The government wants the IBC dissolved and Norris and Wirtz compelled to sever connections with the club's two main bases of operation, Madison Square Garden and Chicago Stadium.

The IBC contends such steps would damage boxing and yesterday Helfand and Gallery agreed.

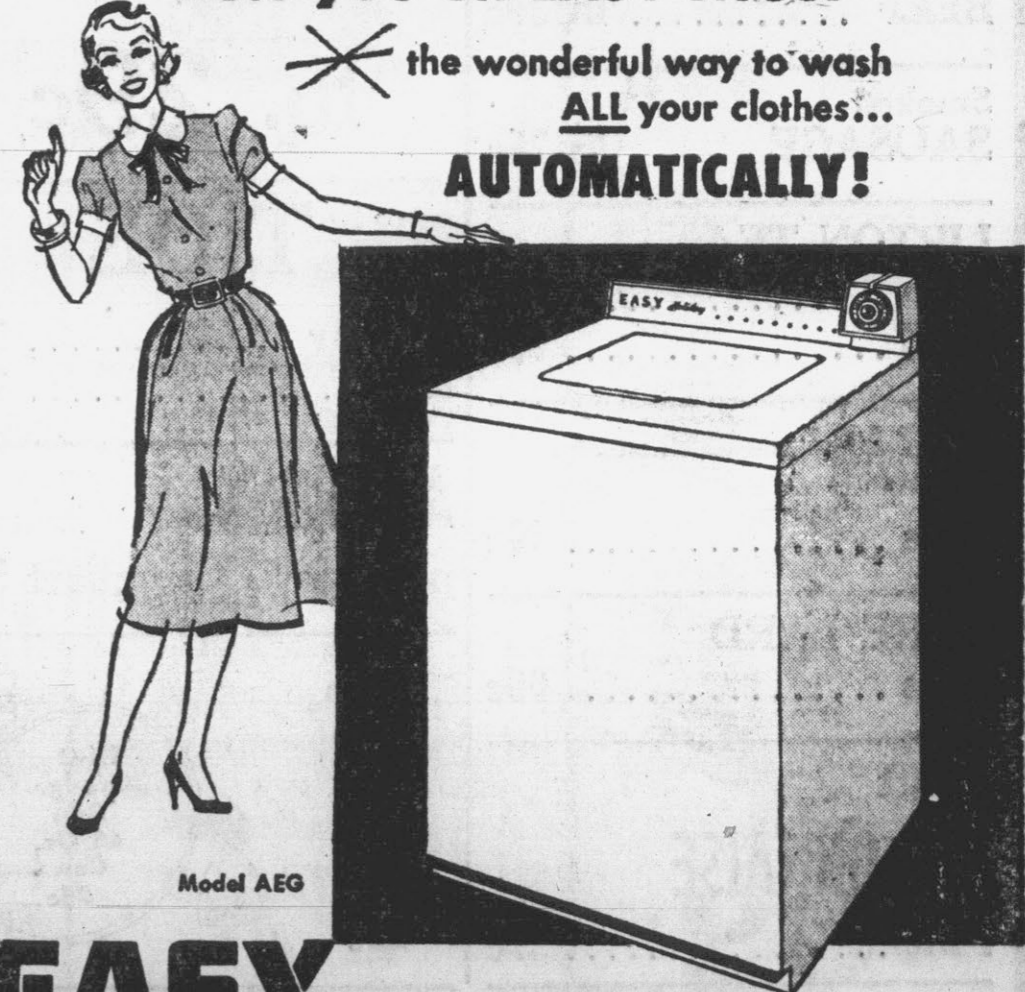

Under questioning by defense attorney Kenneth Royall, Helfand said sponsors of the Friday night TV fights probably would withdraw their support if the Garden was not permitted to continue the series.

Asked what effect it would have on boxing, the commissioner said bluntly: "I don't think you would have any boxing."

Kansas City Open Getting Underway

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The 130 professionals who gathered here for the $22,000 Kansas City Open golf tournament apparently placed a premium on recent vacations in predicting who'll be the winner. Doug Ford, the season's leading money winner, Ed Furgol, 1954 U.S. Open champion, and consistent contender Dow Finsterwald were the names mentioned most often by fellow pros as likely to take the money.

Orioles, Braves Play Overtime

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1957 major league baseball season has been replete with extra-inning games. The Baltimore Orioles and Milwaukee Braves have played most of them. In last night's overtime games, Milwaukee beat Philadelphia 4-3 in 13 innings and Baltimore edged Detroit 4-3 in 10 frames. This brought the total of extra-inning tilts to 33, 20 in the National League and 13 in the American. At this rate, last year's aggregate of 121 for both circuits will be surpassed by 50 per cent.

off eight days and Furgol took a short vacation at his Florida home. Finsterwald hasn't played in a tournament since the last week of April. Furgol and Finsterwald yesterday turned in practice scores which seem to justify their selection among the favorites. Furgol shot a 6-under-par 66, playing the front nine in 32 and the back side in 34.

One Chance For Speedway Entry

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Owners of 43 unqualified cars at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway relaxed a little today with assurance they will get at least one chance to try for a place in the starting lineup for the 500-mile race May 30. Anton Hulman Jr., Speedway owner, eased the fear of weather somewhat last night by announcing each car will get a chance to qualify if it takes until 7 p.m. (CDT) Tuesday.

Southpaw Business Confusing Brown

DETROIT (AP)—"This southpaw business is confusing," said the little man they call Toothpick Brown. "He was always coming at me from the wrong side." Toothpick had recovered sufficiently from his sixth-round knockout by Kenny Lane to ramble on about how difficult it is to "figure" a southpaw. "Someone said he couldn't punch," said Toothpick, a 24-year-old Philadelphian. "Whoever said it hasn't ever been in the right with him, that's for sure."

him it'll be great for the kid's confidence. So, look what happened. Brown was counted out at the 1:14 mark. For the Muskegon, Mich., 137 for the scheduled 10-rounder fighter, it was his 13th straight victory, his third straight knockout paid a gross gate of $2,855.95.

Gabby Jim Right At Home As White Sox 1st Sacker

NEW YORK (AP)—Gabby Jim Rivera finds himself right at home in his new job as first baseman for the Chicago White Sox. Sometimes it used to be lonely out in right field. "Jim likes the idea," said Manager Al Lopez while discussing the switch. "He likes to talk to everybody."

"About a week before we left Florida, Lopez asked me to try first. I like it fine. Every ball that is hit you've got to be in on the play." Lopez said he saw Rivera play first base at Atlanta and knew he could do the job. "I used Jim Landis in all fields in spring training so I knew he could play right," said Lopez. "Also, he's a righthanded batter which we needed. After I looked at our other first basemen I decided to move Rivera."

Little Surprise, But Disappointed Over Resignation Of Sec. Humphrey

By G. K. HODENFIELD
WASHINGTON (AP)—In West Berlin, in 1948, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor for Germany, glowered across a huge desk at the civilian just arrived from the United States.

In New York, in 1952, President-elect Dwight Eisenhower told that same Gen. Clay, by then a civilian, "I need a man used to doing BIG things, handling BIG amounts of money."

"I've got just the man for you," he said. "George M. Humphrey. He'll make you a fine secretary of the treasury."

Today, in Washington, Humphrey is packing his bags after a little more than four years as one of the most important men in the administration.

The announcement of his resignation will come as a surprise to almost no one. It will come as a disappointment to many.

Unless most Washington prophets are looking into clouded crystal balls, Humphrey will be succeeded by Robert B. Anderson, former deputy secretary of defense.

Anderson, a native of Texas, is an "Eisenhower Democrat." He also is a close associate of Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader.

When and if he does take over the Treasury post, Anderson will be faced with the same tight money problem that has plagued Humphrey. The increasing demand for money has the government scurrying in its efforts to refinance the national debt. That debt stands at about 273 billion dollars, and about 70 billion of it comes due every year.

The government has had to offer higher and higher interest rates on the money it needs to keep the debt "turning over."

Tight money or not, Humphrey has maintained that the government must seek its money at the going rates.

Critics claim this raises the interest rates all around and makes rich bankers richer. Defenders insist this is better than cranking up the printing presses every time the government needs money.

Whatever the solution, Humphrey will be glad to be out of it. When he took the job he planned to stay for two years. He is two years beyond that self-imposed limit already.

When the Ohio industrialist accepted the Berlin post on a government mission nine years ago, U. S. policy in Germany was at a crossroads. There were demands that Germany's war potential — what was left of it — be destroyed. There were equally urgent demands that Germany's peacetime economy be restored.

Clay was doing the best he could to make sense of an almost senseless proposition. When Humphrey's group showed up Clay expected criticism—and more problems. But, he admitted later, he liked the way Humphrey tackled the problem.

Clay retired from the Army and became board chairman of Continental Can Co. When Eisenhower asked his advice after the 1952 election, Clay plumped for Humphrey without reservation.

Who was Humphrey? The head of a vast industrial empire with assets of some 230 million dollars. A Taft Republican who threw his support to Eisenhower after the 1952 Republican convention. A man of wealth who restricted his politicking to fund raising.

As far as his present post is concerned, he's a man who preaches government economy. He created a furor last January by declaring that government was going to have to put the brakes on its spending.

When Humphrey came into the government he was board chairman of the M. A. Hanna Co., shippers of coal and iron ore, and board chairman of director of a host of other corporations in a giant industrial complex.

When he leaves the government, it will very likely be to become board chairman of National Steel Corp., the nation's fifth largest steel company which Humphrey helped found years ago.

Friends say that when Humphrey took the Cabinet post he made one stipulation: He wanted in on all discussions about any government project that had a dollar sign on it.

He got his way, and his influence on government has reached far beyond that of an ordinary cabinet member.

Pose Goal As Study Of Man

CLEVELAND (AP) — For some Americans, "the highest spiritual values are to be found in man's relation to man."

That's the viewpoint of the American Ethical Union. The movement, founded in 1876 by Felix Adler, has no specific doctrines regarding God, but stresses "faith in the dignity, worth and perfectability of man, both individually and socially," through "every increasing knowledge, love and practice of the right."

Sing Sing, the noted New York prison, was named for the Sin Suck Indians.

Battle Of 'Public Record' Shapes Up

By ROBERT T. REGISTER (City Editor, The Greensboro Record)

GREENSBORO (AP)—Confronted by the young but determined North Carolina Federation of the Blind, the State Blind Commission is battling over the issue of whether its minutes are matters of public record and subject to public scrutiny on demand.

Such a demand has been lodged by Robert S. Cahoon of Greensboro, attorney for the federation, which is headed by Mrs. Marie Boring of Durham.

It is being resisted by Henry A. Wood of Raleigh, executive secretary of the State Blind Commission. The office of Atty. Gen. George B. Patton has now been drawn into the dispute.

The federation, Mrs. Boring says, wants access to commission minutes because "it feels that blind persons are entitled to know how decisions affecting them are made."

Cahoon has written Wood: "These are public records. In my opinion, public records, with such exception as may be dictated by law, are available to the public for inspection. I rely upon that principle."

The dispute came to light when Cahoon recently released copies of his correspondence with Wood. Between Feb. 11 and March 25, the attorney wrote four letters asking Wood to co-operate with him in making available to the federation unrestricted portions of commission minutes. In each letter, Cahoon stressed that the federation did not want to see case records which the commission is forbidden by law to divulge.

On March 25, when no agreement had been reached with Wood, Cahoon sent copies of the correspondence to Atty. Gen. Patton.

He asked the cooperation of the attorney general's office "in clearing the way for me to have access to the minutes, with the limitations indicated in my correspondence to insure no improper material will be divulged." Questioned last week, Wood referred to statutes forbidding the commission to publicize records of individual cases and declined further comment on the controversy until the attorney general's office had ruled.

Claude L. Love, assistant attorney general, wrote a reply to Cahoon on May 17, attributing the delay to the press of General Assembly business in the office.

In it, Love emphasized statutes which forbid the release of case records. He acknowledged that "the legal question presented seems to be whether the minutes of the State Commission for the Blind constitutes public records" within the meaning of the statutes. "Without more information," Love wrote Cahoon, "this office is not in a position to express an opinion as to whether you are entitled to access to the minutes of the meetings of the State Commission For the Blind."

The federation was formed in North Carolina two years ago and later affiliated with the National Federation of the Blind which has branches in many states. Federation members, according to Cahoon, seek to make blind persons self-supporting citizens with emphasis on self-help rather than public aid.

French Suspend Aid To Tunisia

PARIS (AP)—France has suspended all financial aid to Tunisia because of the open support in that former French protectorate for the rebellion in Algeria.

A government announcement last night said Deputy Foreign Minister Maurice Faure had notified the Tunisian ambassador two days ago the promised aid would be blocked.

France had planned to extend $34,500,000 in credit to Tunisia for 1956-57. The first installment was to have been furnished this week.

Popular backing for the Algerian nationalists is so widespread in Tunisia that Premier Bourguiba would have difficulty suppressing it if he wanted to. The Tunisians, Arab blood brothers of the Algerians, gained their independence from France only little more than a year ago.

The Algerians have found "unofficial" refuge and medical aid across the Tunisian frontier. High-placed figures in the Algerian National Liberation Front (FLN) operate freely in Tunisia.

The FLN issued a communique in Tunis yesterday saying 52 French troops have been killed in a battle in the Bou-Zegza Mountains in central Algeria. It said two Algerian rebels had been killed.

French headquarters in Algiers issued a communique referring to an engagement in the same region. It said 70 rebels had been killed and gave French losses as 5 dead and 19 wounded.

Band Boosters Elect Officers

R.C. Fields was elected President of the Greenville High School Boosters Club for the 1957-58 school

Tuesday night. Other officers elected were: Mrs. James Brewer, Vice President; Mrs. L.W. Herring, Secretary; and Mrs. D.L. Moore, Treasurer.

The incoming President appointed the following chairman: Ways and Means, Franklin Stelbeck; Publicity, Mrs. Percy Cox; Membership, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson; Chaperones, Mrs. Michael Luskin; and Entertainment, Joe Dudley.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the tour of the Band-rooms in the new school building. The Club members went through the large music room for rehearsal, three small practice rooms, the music library, a storage room for instruments and uniforms, two dressing rooms and a small office for the band director.

New equipment including a new piano, chairs, podium, cabinets, a desk and chair for the office are to be added to the rooms upon their completion. An official stated that the old GHS Bandroom and equipment are to be bequeathed to the Junior GHS Band.

It was reported that the Fine Arts Club has taken supporting the band as a club project.

During the course of the meeting it was brought out that parents of both the Junior and Senior Greenville High School Band students and all other interested persons could be a member of the local Band Boosters Club. According to one report there had been some question on the matter in the past.

Make Up Your Own Television Program

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes, when you can't find a new television program that pleases you, it's fun to make one up.

Let's start a weekly half-hour program on the dance. We're a dancing people and we know some fascinating dances — even us middle-aged characters.

There's much nostalgia in this proposed television program that any smart network can launch at any time it wishes. It may be significant that the Charleston is popular again. But the Charleston of today has less shimmy than the Charleston of the 1920's. Maybe that's significant too.

Does anybody remember the grapevine? All right, call it the Peabody. It's the same thing. It's quite a dance, children. With that break and cut and dip you can dance to absolutely any music — even the music of Lawrence Welk.

Then there's the glide. Why a group of college students should have been so astonished to watch a couple doing the glide a few weeks ago is truly astonishing.

Some people used to call it the Harvard glide and some the Princeton glide. Harvard men used to plant their chins on their partners' foreheads and look bored. A Princeton man would plant his chin in the same way — and smile faintly.

Dancing is less of a group sport than it was in the 1930's when poverty united everyone. What ever happened to the Big Apple? And what ever became of the Lambeth Walk? Gone with the conga line apparently. Lost with the shag.

This TV program of ours, by the way, could bring back the shag. If you did the shag you wouldn't need to diet. It will shake the pounds off.

Have any of you younger dancers ever seen George Raft do the tango? That was something. Raft did as much for Latin American music as Xavier Cugat, and there are a few old hands around who still insist the tango is more graceful than the rumba or the samba.

Let's not forget the polka, which is merely a fast schottische. Above all, let's not forget the waltz, which has one wonderful characteristic: the older you are the better you waltz — provided you've learned to control that old arm pump-handle.

This proposed TV program we wish some one would start would teach many of us to stop using the pump-handle.

Take it away, Madison Avenue.

Publisher Added To UNC Faculty

CHAPEL HILL — A newspaper publisher who once taught geography on the University of North Carolina campus is returning to Chapel Hill in September to teach community journalism on the campus where he earned an M. A. degree in 1932.

Kenneth R. Byerly, publisher until May 1 of the Levison Daily News, the Glendive Ranger, and the Argus Farmer, a weekly, all in Montana, will join the staff of the School of Journalism September 1 as Lecturer.

"The School of Journalism is extremely fortunate in obtaining the services of a man who has published daily and weekly newspapers and who is interested in returning to his first love — teaching —," Dr. Norval Neil Luxon, Dean of the School of Journalism, said in announcing the appointment. "We are looking forward to a strengthening of our offerings in the important community journalism area under Mr. Byerly's direction," he said.

Issue Resolved During Argument

CENTREACH, N. Y. (AP) — A blackbird dipped his beak into a milk bottle and flew off with a $5 bill to feather his nest.

That touched off an argument between Mrs. John Walsh and her milkman. She knew she had left the money in the bottle. He knew the bottle was empty when he arrived.

While they were arguing, the bill floated to earth. It had slipped out of the bird's beak when he tried to add it to his nest on Mrs. Walsh's roof.

Councilmen Paid Up Themselves

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Never did the old maxim about putting money where your mouth is come closer to a direct hit than upon the Janesville city fathers after they adopted a resolution to issue licenses fee to the city's guide dogs for the blind.

The action taken, the councilmen were informed that the licenses were outside their jurisdiction. Strictly county business.

Faced with the emergency, the councilman took the only course left open — they passed the hat and collected $15 to buy the license.

Brothers Meet After Long Time

HONOLULU (AP) — The Swinson brothers enlisted in the Navy together as apprentice seamen in 1929. In 1932 they married sisters. They had never served a tour of duty together until Cmdr. Walter H. M. Swinson reported to Airborne Early Warning Squadron 2, stationed here.

Cmdr. Bruce Q. Swinson was already with the squadron. The brothers will finish out their Navy tours together, and retire in 1959.

Economic Advisers Don't Share Business Doubts

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The economists who advise the President apparently don't share all the doubts that beset businessmen today.

Studying conflicting indicators, many businessmen aren't quite sure which way the cat is going to jump.

But President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers sees almost all phases of the nation's economy climbing to new heights this year.

It finds business getting more profitable. More companies appear to be licking the profit squeeze—the rising operation costs that have lowered profit margins uncomfortably for many firms.

The Council has revised its estimate of corporate profits after taxes for the final quarter of 1956 to bring them to an annual rate just above 23 billion dollars, a record. In the immediately preceding quarters the profit rate had been declining.

The Council further estimates that in the first three months of this year the annual rate held just 100 million dollars below the record. Since fourth quarters are often the best of the year, the slight dip in this year's first quarter was expected.

In fact many businessmen had expected a considerable drop. Stock market traders bid down prices until mid-February, appearing to believe that the profit squeeze might trigger a recession.

The Council reports, however, that the 1957 first quarter figures were 6 1/2 per cent higher than those in the like period in 1956.

Also on the sunny side of the economic street is the report that the dollar value of all goods and services in the first months of this year set a record annual rate of 427 billion dollars.

This takes considerable of the chill off the fact that the steel and other metal output figures have been falling, that auto production is a bit under earlier hopes, that the pickup in home building this spring has been slight, that gains in dollar volume of retail trade appear to be mostly due to higher prices.

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices drifted lower early this afternoon as the stock market continued to relax after its recent surge to new 1957 highs.

Pivotal issues were off from fractions to 2 points. There was a scattering of selected gainers.

Volume slipped from yesterday's rate as prices eased. Wall Street observers said this was a favorable sign for an eventual rebound.

Losses among the major steels, motors, rails and chemicals were mainly fractional.

Lukens Steel jumped ahead more than a point as did Eastman Kodak. Du Pont was off around 2 for a while but cut its loss to a fraction.

Inspiration Copper fell more than 2 on news of a lower dividend.

Most of the major oils sagged slightly but Getty Oil rose about 2 and Amerada a fraction. Gulf Oil took a loss of more than a point.

There was a scattering of gains among nonferrous metals, Anaconda was up a fraction as dividend news was awaited. Kennecott was steady. Phelps Dodge added a major fraction.

Losses of a point or so were taken by Goodrich and General Electric. Airlines eased. The aircrafts were lower with Douglas off more than a point while Boeing and United Aircraft dropped major fractions.

Southern Natural Gas, American Cyanamid, Philco and U.S. Rubber made small gains. Chrysler rose about a point. General Motors, American Telephone, New York Central and Southern Pacific were off. Atlantic Coast Line rose a good fraction.

Where To Go, On A Warm Afternoon

BOATING—All kinds of boats appear on the river in the summer. Above Jessie Lee Willis paddles along the shore line.

FISHING—Pete Nichols fishes along the river, bank as summer comes to this area.

Comes summer time and the Tar River becomes the favorite spot for relaxation around these parts on a hot, slow afternoon.

As the sunny afternoons become more frequent, the number of boats which are tied along the banks decrease. They are all out on the water as their owners take advantage of the good boating and fishing weather.

And along the south side pole fishermen dot the river bank. After all, for the merchant or store employe who finds himself with a free afternoon, the river bank is only a couple of blocks from Greenville's business district.

But the short distance means a considerable change in scenery for one who slips away from the hustle and bustle of Evans St.

The river bank is quiet. The pole fisherman concentrates on his work. They don't bother one another and they don't care to be bothered while they fish.

Fishermen are plagued by eels, turtles and crabs in the river. However, carp and catfish often bite their lines. They are not considered good eating fish by most but they offer a good battle.

There are hopes for better fishing days on the Tar. The stream is being stocked from time to time by the state. Only a couple of weeks ago, Wildlife Protectors dumped six million tiny recently-hatched Rock fish into the river. Stocking of past years has begun to pay off and Rock and other game fish are now being caught in the river in the Port Terminal area.

Fishermen, both those in boats and those on the bank of the river are not waiting for the game fish, however. They now turn out in numbers on warm afternoons.

Something Else Than Splendour

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A song written by Sammy Fain proclaims that "Love is a many Splendored Thing." But Jane Fischer proclaims that being married to Sammy is something else again.

She won a divorce from the 54-year-old Academy award-winning song-writer yesterday, claiming he was "insanely jealous without provocation."

Miss Fischer, 26, is in New York City appearing in a Broadway show.

Under a property settlement, Fain will pay her $13,200 over a two-year period. The couple married Sept. 11, 1954.

Tornado Sweeps Rural Area; 4 People Injured

DALLAS (AP)—A tornado ripped through a rural area three miles north of the central Texas town of Malone last night, injuring four persons and destroying or damaging 10 houses, barns and other outbuildings.

The twister skipped along a four mile path northward from five miles west of Malone, a town of 352 population some 70 miles south of Dallas.

The Herbert Sonnenberg family narrowly escaped death when they fled from their home after seeing the twister bearing down on them, said George Worley of Malone. Worley said the family ran along Highway 171 and were slightly injured by a rain of debris when the tornado destroyed their six-room frame house.

The twister also smashed the nearby home of Earl Powers, 53. Powers was hospitalized at Hillsboro with a broken left leg. Sonnenberg, his wife, and son, Leon, 12, were treated for minor injuries and released.

Seasonal Upswing Evident In Issue Of Marriage Licenses In County age licenses has hit the Pitt County Register of Deeds office in full force.

The office has issued seven licenses this week to run its total since May 13 to 15. The total is the largest for a comparable period of time since early in the year.

Licenses issued this week to white couples: Grady Davis Haddock and Thelma Ruth Godley, both of Greenville; William Benjamin Wilson Jr. and Mary Elizabeth Suggs, both of Greenville; John Wiggins, Kinston, and Ellen Marie Galloway, Route 1, Grimesland; and Cecil Riddick and Ann Briley, both of Bethel; and to Negro couples Elbert Moye, Route 2, Farmville, and Bettie Lou Newton, Fountain; Robert James Gay, Route 1, Greenville, and Mary Louise Spain, Greenville; and William Lee Davis and Mary Louise Elizabeth Davis, both of Route 4, Greenville.

Licenses issued last week to white couples went to Robert L. Hall, Route 1, Hope Mills, and Elsie L. Phipps, Route 4, Fayetteville; Sam Winchester Jr., Route 2, Greenville, and Sylvia Weeks, Greenville; Marvin Roland Pridden, Stallings Air Force Base, Kinston, and Jane Winchester, Greenville; Lawrence A. Watts Jr. and Mary Ann Waldrop, both of Greenville; Russell Eldridge Willis Jr., Morehead City, and Robbie Jeannette Hinton, Kenly; James E. Henderson, Portsmouth, Va., and Joy Lee Lewis, Bath; and Clarence Howell Elks, Grimesland, and Lillian Christine James, Greenville. The only Negro couple getting a license last week was Ernest Alexander Brown and Ella Mae Braswell, both of Route 6, Greenville.

Set County 4-H Vesper Service

County 4-H Vesper Services will be held at Elm St. Park beginning at 8:30 Sunday afternoon.

The Vespers are being held in observance of National 4-H Sunday.

Assistant Home Demonstration Agent Margaret Stevens encouraged all 4-H members, their parents and friends to attend the services and bring a picnic supper. The Vesper services will follow the supper. Members of the 4-H County Council will have parts on the program.

Approximately 200 million people in the world today depend largely on the ocean for their everyday food, says a Twentieth Century Fund report.

Colored News

Our home and belongings, 102 Williams St., were burned out and our many friends, white and colored, came to us with open arms and we do thank everybody from the bottom of our hearts for the clothes and food. We thank all the people. May God bless all of you.

Mrs. Rena Davis and Mrs. Pearl Harper, 1611 Pitt Street.

Miss Wilhelmina Jones, daughter of Rev. W. L. Jones and Mrs. Jones of Greenville, was recently crowned "Miss Debutante" at the annual Debutante's Ball in Greenville, sponsored by the Ten Plus Three Club.

She is a 1957 graduate of South Ayden School. In high school, she participated in the Dramatics Club, Student Council, Library Club, New Homemakers of America, Cheering Squad, Science Club, and Choral Club. She was chosen as one of the Junior chief marshals for commencement. Miss Jones was an honor student throughout her school years and graduated as salutatorian of her class.

She plans to enter Elizabeth City Teachers' College in September to take a special course in interior decorating.

The debutantes were selected on the basis of moral character, scholarship and reputation.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank my friends, both white and colored, for the beautiful flowers, lovely cards, money and all of the nice things done for me. And greatest of all was the prayers for my recovery while a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital and after my return home. God bless you all.

Mrs. Bertha Wooten.

KINSTON—Willie Blount, 1405 Desmond street, Kinston, died at Duke Hospital, Durham, Tuesday evening. He was a nephew of L. B. Blount of Greenville.

The Bachelorettes Social Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Jessie May Brown, on 14th street.

The Junior Choir of Corner Stone Baptist Church will have rehearsal at the Church Friday night at 7:30.

The Sunrise Usher Board of Corner Stone Baptist Church will meet in the educational building Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

Elder Nixon of Goldsboro and Elder Artis of Kinston will begin a week's revival Sunday night 7:30 at the House of Prayer Church, 307 Fleming street. Pastor W. M. H. Highsmith invites the public to attend these services.

There will be a "Christian Aid Furrow" at Cedar Grove Church, Bell Fork, Sunday at 11 a.m. Rev. Clarence Dixon will preach. Dinner will be spread at 2 p.m. At 3

Judge Frizzelle Gives Youth 'Another Chance'

A Rocky Mount youth, who is an Army veteran and a former student at the University of North Carolina, got another chance yesterday to continue his college education.

Prayer for judgment against Lee Joyner, 23, was continued by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle on condition that Joyner "set about to complete his college education" or remain employed. The continuance period was set at two years by Judge Frizzelle, presiding over a one-week criminal term of Superior Court.

Joyner had pleaded guilty on January 28 to temporary larceny of an automobile after being charged with stealing a car he admittedly took on November 15, 1956. Judge Frizzelle continued prayer for judgment in January after attorneys for the owner of the car, E. Graham Flanagan Jr., told the court he did not desire to prosecute the case.

At the January trial, testimony showed that Joyner took the car in Greenville and carried it to Chapel Hill. He was involved in a minor accident, investigation of which showed that he was not the owner.

The January testimony also disclosed that Joyner had been in a "highly nervous condition" immediately prior to the accident and had been under the care of a physician. Judge Frizzelle continued the case on condition that Joyner would continue to seek medical assistance and would attempt to resolve his problems. The judge also directed Joyner to return to the court during the May term and the case was called yesterday.

Other judgments returned yesterday included:

Naomi Teel, Negro, 112 East First Street, Greenville, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, jury verdict of guilty to possession and not guilty to possession for the purpose of sale, three months suspended upon payment of $50 and costs, and on condition that the defendant remains of good behavior for two years.

Bill Wilson, Route 3, Ayden, worthless check, no pros with leave; Hilton Congleton, Negro, Robersonville, improper use of dealer's tags, no pros with leave; Perry Cannon, Route 2, Ayden, driving under the influence, 30 days suspended upon payment of $100 and costs before May 24.

Willie James Barfield, Negro, Route 2, Farmville, hit-and-run, driving under the influence (cases consolidated for purpose of trial), defendant entered a plea of guilty to driving under the influence, $100 and costs.

Nab 13 People In Lottery Raid

CHARLOTTE (AP) — City detectives hid in a house described as headquarters for lottery ticket writers and arrested 13 Negroes last night.

It, Coy Sikes said a large pile of duplicate numbers tickets, a quantity of money paid to the writers by those playing the lottery, and one pistol were seized.

One of the raiding police, Detective Jack Porter, said, "We just walked in and took over."

"As fast as the writers came in to pay off on the day's collections, we arrested them," he remarked.

Officers said the lottery was a "butter and egg" operation, market reports on butter and eggs published daily being used in making the payoffs.
