Chinese Anti-American Riot By Mobs On Formosa

By SPENCER MOOSA
TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese
mobs went on an anti-American rampage today, ravaging the U.S.
Embassy and U.S. Information Agency Office, besieging a military headquarters and chasing Americans on the street.

Nine Americans were injured.
The American flag was hauled down from the embassy flagpole
and torn to shreds.

Thousands of Chinese, worked up to a frenzy by the acquittal of a U.S. Army sergeant who killed a Chinese Peeping Tom, stormed
the embassy, and spent most of the afternoon tossing broken furniture and torn documents through the windows.

The disorders spread and the mobs tried to invade the U.S. military communications center housing about 100 Americans who closed the storm gate and were besieged inside.

Informed sources said Chinese authorities were preparing to proclaim a state of siege or a curfew
as a result of the worst anti-American disorders since Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek escaped here with the remnants of his Nationalist forces in 1949.

U.S. authorities advised all American personnel to stay indoors. The British consul issued similar advice to Britons.

Most Americans encountered

the mobs in the streets escaped,
but two airline employees were reported to have been beaten when they came out of a restaurant on Taipei's main street.

The riots started after Sgt. Robert R. Reynolds of Colona, Md., and Coatesville, Pa., the man whose acquittal stirred the trouble
— had left with his wife and 7-
year-old daughter by chartered plane for Manila.

A U.S. court-martial found the sergeant innocent yesterday of charges of voluntary manslaughter
of a Chinese caught looking through a bathroom window while his wife was taking a shower. A guard of 67 armed police escorted Reynolds and his family to the airport.

Taipei papers quickly seized on the prosecution argument that Reynolds should have tried only to cripple the intruder, and also the prosecution contention that the Chinese did not necessarily mean to attack Reynolds.

The court-martial board of five colonels and three master sergeants found the 42-year-old sergeant innocent after he testified
he shot the Chinese, Liu Tze-jan,
outside the American's home last March when Liu grabbed a stick and came at him.

Asks Veto Right To Cut Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today challenged the Democratic-controlled Congress to give him authority for selective veto of appropriation items. He said that with such power "I could easily do some serious cost cutting."

The President set forth the challenge in a telephoned message to a Republican party rally at Trenton, N.J.

In asking for power to veto individual items in appropriation bills, the President called it "one simple way to save a lot of money."

A present he can veto appropriation measures, or any other bill, only in its entirety. Eisenhower several times has asked Congress for selective veto power.

"This power—now held by the governors of many states—would let the president cut out of appropriation bills some expensive, and unnecessary, projects," he said.

"It would permit the president
to stop any new public works
project not approved by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. If the veto existed right now,
I could easily do some serious cost cutting."

In singling out rivers and harbors projects, Eisenhower struck
at a sensitive area so far as Congress members are concerned.
Many such projects are mainly local in nature and approval of them always means a great deal
to the lawmakers so far as favor
with constituents is concerned.

Combine Fishing And 'Inspection' Of Outer Banks

MANTEO, N.C. (AP)—A party of congressmen led by House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) were to fly to North Carolina today for a weekend of fishing and inspection
of physical improvements to Outer Banks areas.

The party, to be guests of Rep.
Bonner (D-N.C.) and Newspaper Publisher D. Victor Meekins, will include Rep. Kirwan (D-Ohio), Rep. Preston (D-Ga.) and others, will visit several points on Hatteras Island, where they will see dredging work being done in Oregon Inlet.

In between official inspections,
the party will fish with Coast Guardsmen Woodrow Edwards at Oregon Inlet and Sheldon O'Neal
at Kill Devil Hills.

Federal funds are being used to deepen and widen Oregon Inlet, and Congress has been asked for additional funds to carry forward the work.

The party also will be shown proposed hurricane disaster prevention plans being developed for the Outer Banks shoreline from Kitty Hawk southward.

Schoolboy Drowns In River During 'Afternoon Swim

Greenville High School Band
member Billy Ward Manning became a drowning victim in the treacherous Tar yesterday afternoon after returning from a band
trip to Wilson.

Fifteen-year-old Billy had gone
to Wilson with the band to appear in the Shriner's parade there. He and five other teen-agers returned to Greenville in an automobile
ahead of the band bus.

The group decided to take a swim in the Tar just above the new bridge after they arrived here.
Billy drowned shortly before 4 o'clock when he and several other boys in the group decided to swim
to a sand bar in the river.

Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews identified those along with him at the time of the tragedy as Arthur Andrews Jr., 16; Ormond Which-

ard, 17; Sammy Pollard, 16; Alton Flye, 18, and Bill Moore, 16.

Two of the group raced to a nearby service station to call the Fire Department. Rescue Squad members were summoned and a search for the body was begun
which continued through the remainder of the afternoon and, with the aid of floodlights, into the night.

Rescue squad members and others dragged the river from the new bridge site upstream to a bend
where the boys said they were swimming.

It remained for a boat operated by some of the teen-agers who were with the youth at the time
he drowned to finally locate the body.

They held the youth's body until other boats could reach the scene

to assist.

As night fell, the rescue squad sent back to the Fire Station for generators and floodlights so that the dragging operations could continue after dark. Two generators powered four floodlights which were set up along the bridge rail.

Hundreds of persons watched the dragging from the bridge and cars lined the new bypass, which is yet unopened, for some distance.

Sheriff's deputies finally had to block the road to keep cars off

the bridge.

The body was located around 9:30 and rescue squad members said it was in about 30 feet of water.

The drowning victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Earl Manning of 2112 Village Dr.
Coroner Griffin H. Rouse ruled
this morning that the drowning was accidental. He said no inquest is planned.

Tax Revision Bill Clears A Hurdle

RALEIGH (AP)—The administration-backed proposal to revise the state's corporate income tax allocation formula has cleared another hurdle in its legislative journey.

The Senate Finance Committee
gave it a wide margin of approval yesterday. Only three of the 23 members present voted against the new formula, designed to attract new industry. The formula already has been approved by the House and Senate Finance subcommittees.

Meanwhile, the House Finance
subcommittee, in a series of votes,
approved tax relief for bus companies, insurance companies, movie theatres and installment paper dealers. The relief would amount to about $824,000 a year. The closeness of the votes, however, indicated the relief bills face rough sledding in the full House committee which will meet Monday
at 10 a.m. to hear the subcommittee's report on the big tax bill.

The proposed revision in the corporate income tax would cost the state an estimated 14 million dollars in revenue over the next two years. Voting against it were
Sen. Avery Hightower of Anson, Adam Whitley of Johnston and Henry G. Shelton of Edgecombe.

Sen. J. Carlyle Rutledge of Cabarrus told the committee Gov.
Hodges "certainly has put himself on the spot" in leading "us to believe we're going to bring in new industry" with the tax change. Rutledge said he was willing to go along with the proposal,
although he said the revenue loss
"just doesn't look like real good business."

Sen. Robert Cowan of Martin said "if it will do what they say it will, I can't oppose it."

Hightower, who recently criticized the tax proposals as a "give away" to big business, wanted to know why the effective date of the formula couldn't be postponed a year to avoid immediate loss of revenue. The bill calls for the formula to go into effect July 1.

Republican Sen. William Cobb
of Burke said this would save upwards of 10 million dollars. He observed it would have no important bearing on new industry, since
a new plant could not be in operation within a year.

Chairman Nelson Woodson of Rowan explained, however, that industrial plant expansion is going on now. He added, "now is the time to make your effort" if the state is to gain new industry.

Whitley told the committee that based on information he had obtained from southeastern state on industrial development, he had come to the conclusion North Carolina was ahead of all states except Florida which has no income tax.

Rep. Henry Hall Wilson of Union served notice at the meeting of the House Finance subcommitee that he will offer an amendment to the tax bill that would postpone for a year the starting date of the proposed tax allocation formula.

The House Finance subcommitee recommended by 75 to 5 that the tax on insurance annuities be cut from 1.5 per cent to 1.25 per cent. This would cost $210,000 a year in state revenue.

The subcommittee granted license tax relief to theatres by a 6 to 4 vote. The relief would total about $90,000 annually.

Bus companies were granted relief totaling an estimated $324,000.
Most members were in agreement on this.

Titanium Plant Possible In N. C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The major
new industry which Gov. Luther Hodges said recently may locate in eastern North Carolina if the state's tax structure is revised reportedly would produce titanium.

This was reported today by the Raleigh News & Observer. Hodges
said he was not in position now either to confirm or deny the paper's report.

The titanium plant would be built by a new company, Allied Kennecott Titanium Corp., recently organized by Allied Chemical and Dye Corp., the newspaper said. The company has an initial investment of 40 million dollars.

While Wilmington was mentioned as a prominent possibility as the site for the plant, other eastern North Carolina locations would be considered, as well as sites in two other states, the paper reported. Hodges last week said the industry was interested in a Tarheel location, and said the state has a better than even chance to land it if the tax laws
are changed.

Titanium is a relatively new wonder metal principally derived from ilmenite and rutile ore. It is stronger than aluminum, lighter than stainless steel and resistant to salt water and sea air corrosion. Civilian uses for it are just now being explored.

Beer-Wine Election Say-So For Local Voters

RALEIGH (AP)—Under a new law enacted by the Legislature, voters
in municipal beer and wine elections in North Carolina will have a say-so on how beer and wine
sales are to be conducted.

The Senate yesterday completed legislative action on a bill which will provide three ways of submitting the question of beer and wine sales to voters in municipal elections.

Under the new act, voters could be asked to decide for or against
(1) on premises and off premises
sales, (2) off premises sales only,
or (3) for or against limiting on-premises sales to grade A restaurants and cafes with off premises
sales by all other dealers.

The wording of the petition calling for the election would determine which of the three questions

would be submitted to the voters.
Other legislative highlights yesterday included:

The House Roads Committee
killed by 17 to 9 an auto inspection measure. Gov. Hodges and Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed
Scheidt supported the bill.

The Senate enacted into law a bill to allow an election in Southport on the question of opening an ABC liquor store.

Senate Judiciary 1 Committee amended and then approved a measure to strengthen the state's law against the sale of obscene literature.

A bill to provide a system of family courts in the state was given an unfavorable report by Senate Judiciary 1. The same committee approved a bill calling on a committee of the State Bar Assn. to consider the family courts proposal.

House Conservation and Development Committee approved: (1)
a bill calling for a commission to study traffic regulation for power
boats on waterways of the state,
and (2) a resolution declaring it
state policy for the state to obtain a right-of-way for an eventual road down the state's Outer Banks.

The resolution would authorize the use of prison labor in developing the right-of-way. This would protect the right-of-way—and the Outer Banks—from ocean damage.

Reps. Joseph Hunt of Guilford and Ed Yarborough of Franklin

introduced a bill to add three members to the 15-member state Board of Conservation and Development. The three additional members would be concerned with the processing and packaging of agricultural products.

The Senate passed and sent to the House: 1) a resolution creating a commission to study the cause and control of cancer in the state, and (2) a bill to reduce the amount that municipalities have to pay for acquiring right-of-way
for highways built through towns.

The towns now pay one-third of the right-of-way costs. The bill would reduce it to 20 per cent for state highways and nothing for interstate highway projects since the federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost of interstate projects.

Meanwhile, reports available
here disclosed the following key points among provisions which the U. S. government would like to see in any such pact:

1. While the basic agreement would be worked out by the five countries meeting at London, provision should be made for other nations to adhere or join the pact.
The more countries adhering, the more effective the treaty would be.

2. All the countries joining which do not already have atomic weapons would pledge not to develop—or otherwise obtain them.
American officials believe that other countries would be willing to accept this restriction in the interest of ending the arms race
and devoting their resources to

2½ billion dollar cut recommended
by the House Appropriations Committee—"and more if they
just wanted to do it."

While-hatched Secretary of Defense Wilson joined yesterday in the fight to avoid major cuts in defense outlays.

He agreed the services could take more than a billion dollars
of the proposed cut, classifying
this portion a bookkeeping matter.
But he insisted repeatedly that more than a billion should be restored. Otherwise, he said, this country's missile, aircraft and

Wilson termed it wishful thinking to say "we can get ahead with a billion less now." He noted that labor and other costs have risen 12 or 13 per cent in three years.

There has been speculation that Wilson may resign after the defense money bill has cleared Congress.

At one point Wilson said tartly:
"Sooner or later the job is going to be open and all these peo-
le who want to save five billion dollars a year can step up and try it."

That came after a lengthy verbal duel with Sen. Symington (D-Mo.), former secretary of the Air Force, about a proposed revision of the military pay system designed to encourage the better
men to stay in service.

The pay overhaul plan was recommended by a commission headed by President Ralph J. Cordier of the General Electric Co.
Symington said the proposals would save five billions annually
by 1960, if put into full operation.
Only a small part of the Cordier recommendations have been adopted.

Wilson told Symington he had tried to win administration approval of a modified version of the pay plan but that "I didn't make the sale on that one."

Battle Over Slash In Defense Dollars Heard In House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The battle
over a proposed 2½ billion dollar slush in new defense funds was waged in both House and Senate
today.

House leaders opened debate on a $3.541,225,000 defense money
measure carrying some 2½ billion
less than President Eisenhower requested for the fiscal year starting July 1. No votes were expected until next week, perhaps Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Chairman Chavez
(D-NM) called top Army leaders
before his Senate Appropriations subcommittee. Secretary of the Army Brucker and Gen. Maxwell
D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, were lined up to present the Army's case for more money.

"We are not going to jeopardize the national defense," Chavez told newsmen in advance of the hearing.

"I'm rather partial to air power
but I'll have to be satisfied they need every penny," Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said in a separate interview he is convinced defense agencies could absorb the 2½ billion dollar cut recommended

by the House Appropriations Committee—"and more if they

Mrs. Rogers Installs Officers At Woman's Club Meeting

Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president of District 15 of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, was the guest speaker and the installing officer for the Woman's Club at a luncheon meeting Saturday.

The meeting was held at the Quaker House dining room in Woodland. Several arrangements of spring flowers were placed on the tables and throughout the room.

Mrs. Rogers was presented a corsage of pink carnations before the luncheon.

The speaker was introduced to the group by Mrs. Herbert Jenkins Jr., president of the club.

Mrs. Rogers complimented the club on its fine activities for the year and urged them to have greater goals for the coming year in their service to their community, district and state.

She commented on the "General Federation Convention" to be held in Asheville June 2-7 and asked that a representative be sent from the Greenville club. She also reminded them of the "President Institute" which she would call later in the summer.

At the conclusion of the program the new officers were installed by the district president.

BEAUTY HINTS

From . . . Harrell's Beauty Salon

Few women make their own hats—yet many attempt to style their own hair! This always surprises me. The way your hair looks is the most important part of your appearance. As one of my colleagues often says, you can remove a hat. But you can't very well remove your hair! When you snip away at your own tresses, you're flirting with trouble. It takes a skilled hairdresser to properly shape your hair, trim it, smooth it, and give it a professional look. And it stands to reason that it takes a professional beautician to give a truly fine, lasting permanent wave.

You see, only chemicals will curl the hair. A cosmetologist spends many months learning to use these chemicals properly. That's why your hairdresser times your wave so carefully, making certain the curling chemicals remain on the hair just the correct number of minutes.

Too little processing in a permanent wave produces no wave at all. Over-processing actually harms the hair—takes away its elasticity, leaves split ends and a frizzled look. Next time you want a permanent, consult an expert. You'll be thrilled with the difference a professional permanent makes! And isn't it nice to know it will last for months?

We've discussed curling straight hair—but what about hair that's too curly? This again is a problem handled best by a beautician. Too-curl hair can take on a new look of neatness with expert cutting and shaping. Come in—we'll show you.

Brushing can't hurt a good permanent—but it does lots to keep it pretty. Here's how to really benefit: Bend from the waist. Let your head dangle in the direction of the floor. Starting at the nape of your neck, brush every lock from scalp to end. Feel the tingle. Incidentally, this extra stimulation puts color in your cheeks—makes your skin bloom. Try it!

Year's Work Reviewed, Life Membership Pins Presented 30 Years Ago Today

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held their Harvest Day meeting Monday night in the Fellowship Hall of the church, which is the final meeting of the year when the work of the Woman's Society of Christian Service is reviewed.

A half hour of fellowship was planned before the Call to Worship was given by Mrs. Ralph Tucker, vice president.

Mrs. M. P. Hoot, president, in her report exemplified each member of the Society as having been "God's candle burning brightly all through this past year because their spiritual work of service has been deep in His Grace." She quoted Bishop Gore: "God does not want us to do extraordinary things; He wants us to do ordinary things extraordinarily well."

She pointed out that the mimeographed reports attached to the program was evidence of the many diversified and progressive services the Society had carried on this year in the community, church, and conference. The Book of Remembrance report gave both the names of the donors and those remembered.

All officers, secretaries, committee chairmen, building fund chairmen, who served the past year, and those incoming for this year were recognized by the president.

Mrs. E. H. Williford, local works activities chairman, recognized the circle chairmen for their spiritual leadership.

Mrs. W. P. Moore presented Life Membership Pins and Certificates to four members, selected from the entire Society, for their outstanding contribution in service. Those were: Mrs. M. P. Hoot, Mrs. Ralph Tucker, Mrs. Reynolds May and Mrs. W. M. Howard. Two Youth Honorary Life Memberships were awarded to Nancy Brown, president of the senior Methodist Youth Fellowship, and Charles Taft, president of the intermediate Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Grandmothers in the circles were presented honorary Baby Life Memberships and one Adult Life Membership was presented to Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr. by her circle.

Mrs. Sam Underwood gave a prayer in memoriam to two Society members deceased this past year. They are: Mrs. Annie Moore and Mrs. Mary May.

Mrs. A. W. Baker made the presentation of the 1957-58 Yearbooks to the Society that she gave in memory of three past members: Miss Lill Wilson, Mrs. Wiley Brown, Mrs. Milton H. White. Mrs. Hoot accepted the Yearbooks on behalf of the members of the Society.

Mrs. H. A. Hendrix and Mrs. J. A. Karsnak rendered a musical selection prior to Rev. W. M. Howard's message on "Time, Talent and Money."

At the close of the meeting, Rev. Howard conducted a communion service at which time each member placed his next year's pledge on the altar.

The meeting ended with the hymn "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

A bit of silly male propaganda making the rounds of junior dating circles is that there is an advantage in steady dating—for the female.

Name one. The fact that you have a boy at your beck and call for every occasion? That you can brag that you "go steady"? Are those reasons worth giving up so much time to one person during "the best years of your life?"

The fun of courtship used to be in competition, and intrigue. Nowadays Sally dates Lou, Betty dates Pete. They go out on dates with an air of resignation that married couples even find boring. Danger too exists in the fact that Sally and Lou may really marry, before either has had an opportunity to learn about other individuals.

Bachelor Cliff Robertson, movie and stage personality, told me recently that he believed this was one of the reasons so many of his married friends were restless, and bitten by the bug to escape from home. "They were never prepared emotionally to settle down," he says. "One day they wake with a thud and realize they just haven't been around. Then poor Sally is left home with Junior trying to figure out what happened."

It's a good idea not to steady date too soon:

1. If you or the boy haven't dated the opposite sex often.
2. If you are an only child.
3. If you or he have not attended co-educational schools.
4. If you have been spoiled by your family, used to getting your own way.
5. If you have an inferiority complex and always have grasped for friendship, affection, companionship hungrily.
6. If the boy has a bad character and you think you can make him over.

Officers Installed, Poppy Day Plans Made

The American Legion Auxiliary met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. H. Rose, with Mrs. L. L. Rives, Mrs. Charlie Flye, Mrs. Mattie Tucker and Mrs. H. R. Rogers as cohostesses.

There were 22 members present with Mrs. Mildred Kennedy, President, presiding. Mrs. B. C. McGee was a guest.

Mrs. W. C. Harris, chaplain, read Peter Marshall's prayer for Memorial Day and Mrs. C. A. Bowen reported that checks had been given to O. E. Dowd for presentation to Jennie Ruffin and Laura Behr, the winners of the Americanism Essay Contest.

Saturday being National Poppy Day, the program of the meeting was on that subject. Mrs. Kennedy and her committee reported that they had decorated windows with Poppy posters. She expressed appreciation for the cooperation of the Greenville merchants and other businessmen. Attention was called to the window display in the empty store belonging to Miss Hennie Long. Poppies were distributed to the different members present and plans made to cover by Legion.

Mrs. James R. Worsley, chairman of the nominating committee, read the slate of officers for the year which were elected and installed by Mrs. Worsley, past president, they are: President: Mrs. Mildred Kennedy, Jr.; First Vice President: Mrs. W. C. Eagles; Second Vice President: Mrs. Richard H. Briley; Secretary: Mrs. Sam Whitehurst; Treasurer: Mrs. Richard M. Briley; Chaplain: Mrs. W. C. Harris; Historian: Mrs. S. B. M. Tucker; Sgt. at Arms: Mrs. Edgar Barnhill; and First Vice Sergeant: Mrs. John Saieed.

Mrs. Kennedy announced that the American Legion was sponsoring a Memorial Service at 11 a.m. at the Christian Church on Sunday morning, May 26, at which Gold Star Mothers will be special guests and will be given corsages. Legion Auxiliary members were requested to cooperate in this service and also to assist in putting

Dance Recital
Marie's School of Dance will present its fifteenth annual dance recital in McGinnis Auditorium at East Carolina College at 8:00 o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings, May 30th and 31st. The recital this year is again under sponsorship of the Greenville Exchange Club with all proceeds going to its Youth Activities Fund which is administered for the sole purpose of assisting the youth of Greenville to have a better community in which to live. Tickets for the recital may be obtained from any member of the Exchange Club, from any student of the School of Dance, and at the door on the evening of performances. All children 12 years old and under will be admitted free.

Sometimes one goes into a steady dating arrangement without any serious intentions. It's just the idea of keeping up with the crowd. One girl complains that she would just never get to a party or dance unless she had a steady beau. "All the boys are taken," she says, "and if you don't have one you're just out of luck or you go out with a real drip."

What difference does it make if you do sit out a few dances on your front porch? Any girl with charm should get a beau sooner or later. If she has the opportunity to date all types of boys—meanwhile—fat and skinny, tall and short, dumb and bright, honest and dishonest—she will better evaluate the one-and-only when he does come along. It's awfully hard to sell caution, especially where romance and fun are concerned. But the effort to resist the propaganda that something is right because "everybody is doing it" will pay off some day.

Memo to Brides Colored Bridal Bouquet Sets Off Dress, Adds Nice Variety

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series of articles written for the world's darling—the bride.)

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Red roses in bridal bouquets may be too "high fashion" for Greenville, but some local brides are compromising this Spring by choosing pink, yellow, or pale blue flowers.

Others prefer lavender orchids, or white orchids with lavender lips in bouquets or on prayer books. The theory is that all-white bouquets go unnoticed, whereas a touch of color complements the gown and relieves monotony.

Bouquets are smaller this year than in the past, and more "streamlined," according to one florist. Rather than being big compact masses, they have more line and form. About half the brides forego formal bouquets for orchids on a prayer book, or Bible. For the best results, the florist should see the bride in her wedding dress in order to design a bouquet that will be flattering to her figure as well as the dress.

Some florists advise brides not to use the going away corsage from the center of the bouquet or off the prayer book. Hot weather and the excitement of the ceremony and reception often causes the flowers to wilt.

Another Viewpoint

Other florists disagree, and see no reason why the corsage cannot have a dual use. Many orchids are wrapped in small vials of water, which allows them to stay fresh for hours. Besides, these florists contend, the bride will probably wear her corsage only a few hours.

One suggestion is to use the mother's corsage for the going-away one—making sure when selecting it that it will blend with both dresses.

Some sentimental brides have family heirlooms placed unobtrusively in their bouquets. Pins, books of poetry, nursery rhyme books are common items to be carried down the aisle.

The bride's attendants generally carry mixed spring flowers in pastel colors. Honor attendants should have a slight variation from the other attendants' flowers. Some florists suggest that these bouquets be similar in style to the bride's. Here also the florists can do a more satisfactory job if he is familiar with the dresses and figures of the girls.

The one point that all florists agree upon is that no discrimination should be shown when selecting the mother's flowers. If the flowers aren't the same, they should be in the same price range. Cymbidium and standard orchids are the most popular flowers.

Flowers for men are unchanged. The bridegroom's boutonniere is generally fashioned from one of the small flowers in the bride's bouquet. The father or best man wears a small gardenia or white rosebud. White carnations are right for the ushers.

In decorating the church, it's wise first to discuss the customs or regulations with the clergyman. The trend is toward very simple white and green decorations. A few people choose pastel colors, but the old standbys are ferns, palms, and lilies.

Reception decorations are a matter of taste. Some florists recommend white and green, while others suggest a variety of pastel colors which will tie in with the bouquets of the attendants and bride.

Dr. Stokes Discusses World Problems

"New nations are rising, and old nations are passing away," Dr. Kathleen Stokes, one of the "ecofallists" in government at East Carolina College, told members of Altus at their meeting Tuesday evening at Quinley Manor.

Included in her talk on a few of the problems of the world today was a brief narrative by Sir Walter Raleigh whose insight still amazes the world.

A letter from Miss Ellen Miner, district governor and guest speaker at the preceding meeting, was read. The group voted to send a gift to its protégé at Crossmore School.

The hostesses, Miss Elizabeth Quinley and Mrs. Mary Moore Dunn, served refreshments after the business session over which Mrs. J. B. Spilman presided.

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland invited the club to meet with her at her cottage on the river Wednesday evening, June 19.

Art Of Rug Hooking Told

Mrs. Reynolds May was hostess to members of the Inter Se Book Club on Tuesday.

Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house. Mrs. David Evans, retiring president, turned the meeting over to the new president, Mrs. T. H. Henderson.

Mrs. Henderson welcomed the following guests: Mesdames N. O. VanNortwick Jr., Marvin Blount, Hoover Taft, J. B. Kittrell Sr., Kenneth Cuthbert, John Clark Sr. and L. B. Harris.

After a short business meeting Mrs. Plato Evans presented Mrs. N. O. VanNortwick Jr. as guest speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. VanNortwick conducted a discussion on the "Art of Rug Hooking." In an informal style she explained various steps in the process, such as, types of material to collect, method of dyeing them, and the art of blending them into the finished pattern. In conclusion, she showed some rugs hooked in this vicinity.

After the program, guests were invited into the dining room to a table centered with a unique arrangement of roses.

The hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. L. B. Harris, served a salad course with iced tea.

Book Club Hears Mrs. D. O. Spier

BETHEL—Mrs. W. J. Smith and Mrs. J. L. Brown were co-hostesses to their book club Tuesday night. Mrs. Sam Whitehurst, the retiring president, presided.

Mrs. D. O. Spier gave a talk on the opera "Aida" and Mrs. W. R. Hunnicutt played and sang selections based on the opera.

Present, other than the club members, was Mrs. Ralph Barker of Durham who was chosen by her city as one of the "Women of the Year." Mrs. Barker is Mrs. Carlos Womack's mother.

Strawberry shortcake was served by the hostesses.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Last week we told you about Dr. Albert Schweitzer's "Declaration of Conscience" in the Saturday Review, in which he protests strongly against the current rash of nuclear bomb tests being put on by U. S., Russia and Great Britain. His main point is that these tests are a menace to the health and safety of our own and future generations, and several people have commented favorably to us on our bringing it to their attention.

We strongly feel that everyone should know what is going on—and that our feelings should be expressed loudly and often. . . .

A new and authoritative book in this same subject is "Radiation: What It Is and How It Affects You," by Jack Schubert and Ralph E. Lapp, who cite scientific proof to conclude that atomic bomb tests produce "radiation sickness" to people in wide areas—symptoms are persistent bleeding, reduced resistance to infection and other diseases. In addition, atomic rays affect generations yet unborn by causing mutations—changes in human genetic cells, 99% of which, say scientists, will be harmful to our descendants. . . . This, we think, is something to write your Congressman about—or anyone else you can think of to write to. . . .

Faulkner Funfest

We got hold of the May 4 Saturday Evening Post by borrowing it from a generous friend, since we hadn't realized that an excerpt from William Faulkner's latest novel, "The Town," was in it. Headed whimsically "The Waifs," the story is about what happens in a Mississippi town when four halfbreed Indian children, relatives of the Snopes family, wreak their own special kind of havoc. It's Faulkner in his best comic vein—we've seen nothing to beat it since his "Spotted Horses," and we recommend it highly. . . .

Here and There

"Fear Strikes Out," based on a book by Al Hirschberg—who is this Column's brother, in case you didn't know—played recently at the local cinema, and we were thrilled and delighted with its delicate yet powerful portrayal of a ball player in deep trouble. . . . Just arrived from The Preside Theatre: "Arthur Miller's Collected Plays," the May selection. It will be reviewed here soon. Eloquent, we think, it is dedicated simply "To Marilyn" . . . And from The Literary Guild, "The Day Christ Died," by Jim Bishop, an attempt to write the same type of journalistic account of great events as he did in "The Day Lincoln Was Shot."

"While Ships Burned Off The Outer Banks"

The above heading starts off today's review, which, we're highly honored to tell you, is by Miss Emma L. Hooper, beloved and well known member of E.C.C.'s English Department. She writes her impressions of a new book by one of her former students, about adventures off the Outer Banks of eastern N. C. The book is available at the Sheppard Memorial Library and also can be bought locally. . . .

Taffy of Torpedo Junction. By Nell Wise Wechter. Illustrated by Mary Walker Sparks. 134 pp. Winston-Salem: John F. Blair, Publisher, 1957.

"I looked for years for a teenage book about World War II in North Carolina. There isn't any. So I decided to write one."

Thus does Nell Wise Wechter explain her authorship of "Taffy of Torpedo Junction." She needed a book on this period of American history to correlate with her teaching-teen-age pupils the American way of life, the specialty of this gifted author-teacher that has twice won her an American Freedom Award and also the Franklin McNutt Award in the Greensboro City Schools.

A stronger reason than this vocational need, however, was probably that the war and seaside experiences of Taffy, the 13-year-old heroine, and of Taffy's friends, relatives, and sixth grade teacher were really the experiences of Schoolteacher Nell Wise Wechter, her pupils, and their friends and relatives who, living on Hatteras Island, were in the very midst of Nazi submarine warfare in the treacherous shoals of Cape Hatteras. No doubt her memories became the inescapable urge of the writer to get them into a book—to make them a permanent part of the American heritage for the young folk who, like her own daughter, "never saw a burning ship" but whose Coast Guard and Navy fathers "saw many."

After the treachery of Pearl Harbor the people of Hatteras Island lived in the excitement and fear of day and night patrols, of Coast Guard and trained dogs, of blackouts and orders to stay off the beach that Taffy and her friends had known as their playground, of ear-blasting explosions of merchant ships and oil tankers, and of the sea swept by deadly sheets of flame. . . .

Fearless Taffy on her Outer Banks pony, her boxer puppy that she rescued from the wreckage-strewn ocean itself, Gramps Morgan—as real an old man of the sea as is Hemingway's Old Man of the Sea, and Big Jens of the Coast Guard, are the main characters of fiction by whom Mrs. Wechter recreates this period of danger and heroism; and any teen-ager, or adult, who likes an exciting tale in which fact and fiction "have only a thin line between them" will leave off play or duty television to read on to the climax that Taffy brings about. And in the absorbing tale they will learn history and develop appreciation of "those brave men and ships who offered their last devotion to their country off the Diamond Shoals—in Torpedo Junction." Mrs. Wechter has made an important contribution to librarians, parents, and teachers who are seeking authentic juvenile fiction that deserves to be called literature.

Hot Rolls Add Breakfast Zest

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

When Sunday morning rolls around, serve a hot bread breakfast treat to your family.

You don't have to get up real early to prepare these rolls if you sift and measure the dry ingredients the night before. Cut in the shortening then, too, to save time next day. While the oven preheats on Sunday morning, stir in the milk and orange juice and roll out.

This hot bread has a filling and you can get that ready ahead, too. Grate the orange rind called for and mix it with the brown sugar and chopped nuts; cover and store in the refrigerator. While you are rolling out the dough, the butter needed for the filling can be melted. When the rolls are in the oven you can mix up the frosting.

Let these rolls rest for about 5 minutes when you take them out of the oven so the filling ingredients have time to set, but do serve the rolls while they are still pretty warm. If there are any rolls leftover, try splitting and toasting them; we like them even better this way than first time around!

QUICK ORANGE SWIRLS

Ingredients: 1½ cups sifted flour, ½ cup enriched yellow or white cornmeal, 3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup granulated sugar, 1-3 cup shortening, 1-3 cup milk, 1-4 cup orange juice, 2 teaspoons butter or margarine (melted), grated rind of 1 orange, 1-3 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar, 1-4 cup chopped walnuts, Orange Frosting.

Method: Sift together the flour, cornmeal, baking powder, salt and 1-4 cup granulated sugar into a medium-sized mixing bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender until it is in tiny particles. Stir milk and orange juice together; gradually add to dry ingredients, tossing gently with a fork; mix only until dry ingredients are slightly dampened. Turn out on a lightly floured board or prepared pastry cloth and knead a few seconds. Roll out to form a rectangle 8 by 12 inches. Spread dough with melted butter. Mix grated orange rind, brown sugar and nuts; sprinkle over dough. Starting with 12-inch side, roll up as for jelly roll. Mark off 16 slices about 3-4 inch apart and cut. (A string or thread about 10 inches long placed under the roll, crossed on top and pulled in opposite directions, does a neat and quick job of slicing.) Place swirls in a greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in a hot (425 degrees) oven 20 to 25 minutes. Spoon Orange Frosting over hot rolls in pan. Let rest about 5 minutes, then serve at once.

Note: For Orange Frosting, mix together 1-4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and 2 teaspoons orange juice.

Luncheon Fetes Mrs. Jule Pollard

BETHEL—Honoring Mrs. Jule Pollard, recent bride, Mrs. D. O. Spier and Mrs. F. L. Blount Jr. gave a luncheon in Mrs. Blount's summer home on Broad Creek Thursday.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Barbara Wainwright from Charlotte and Mrs. Bob MacKenzie of Washington.

On arrival, the guests were served Coca-Colas, cheese straws and party sandwiches.

The honoree was presented a gift of hostess trays.

Christian Science Services

The spiritual basis of true grace and beauty will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Bible passages to be read in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul and Body" (90:16,17): "Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following. (247:19-24): "Comeliness and grace are independent of matter. Being possesses its qualities before they are perceived humanly. Beauty is a thing of life, which dwells forever in the eternal Mind and reflects the charms of His goodness in expression, form, outline, and color."

Real Surprise If Measure Passed

The unfavorable committee report on proposed mechanical inspection for motor vehicles in this state comes as no surprise. Indeed, it would have been surprising if the committee had given approval to the plan.

And, Psychiatric Care Is Now Available

Not even a child could conceive a hoax "bomb warning" . . . it takes a twisted sort of mind. Airlines occasionally get such telephone calls, which result in grounding a flight "just to play safe". Then, a few months ago when New York had its "mad bomber", authorities were flooded with false bomb scare-warnings. By good fortune the "mad bomber" was captured, and he was truly insane. The sanity of the scare-mongers was undetermined, but there are grounds for doubt.

Most towns have their share of people who like to turn in false fire alarms, false accident reports and even an infrequent false bomb warning. Perhaps this represents a psychological compulsion to create a bit of ersatz excitement; perhaps it is considered humorous.

Trend Follows Inflation Spiral

By ELMER ROESSNER
Many questions are left unanswered by the Department of Labor's new study showing that wages and salaries as a whole have risen faster than productivity in the past decade. The big question is: Does that mean labor is responsible for the spiral of inflation? The answer in this space is: No. The study found that payments to labor have risen 61 per cent over the last 10 years, while output per hour of work has risen 26 per cent. Researchers calculated that the wage increase, after being partially offset by the rise in productivity, has made the "real" labor costs for each unit of output to go up 28 per cent. During this period the rise in prices was almost exactly 28 per cent.

WHENCE THE MONEY?
At first blush, it looks as if labor is the villain of the tragedy of inflation. Some employees are already shouting this theory. But before you return a verdict, ask, "Where does the money come from?" Obviously, there can't be higher wages and higher prices unless there is money to pay them.

Let's see what some experts say. Dr. Winifred Reifler, chief Federal Reserve economist, previously had declared that a wage-price spiral "simply cannot happen without increasing supplies of money. As prices and wages and costs mount, more and more money is needed to finance transactions. Some of this financing can be effected by drawing down working capital and making more intense use of money already in existence, but there are limits to these expedients. A mounting spiral of inflation . . . can never go far without additions to the money supply."

THE SOURCE
George G. Hagedorn, associate director of research for the National Association of Manufacturers, last week told the National Industrial Conference Board that "the background for the past excess in wage growth over productivity is the inflationary monetary and fiscal policy of the war years. If it had not been for the great expansion in the money supply from these policies, cost increases would have caused demands to dry up and the process of raising wages faster than productivity would either have been brought to a halt or else have resulted in unemployment."

There you have it. In 1933, the United States went off the gold standard, thereby making inflation easy. During the depression, World War II and the Korean War, the government increased its debt by $24 billion. Much of the debt can be used as money; an obligation can be paid off with government bonds or other inspection law eight years ago most people have conceded it will be a long time before the state has conceded it. Apparently eight years is not long enough. It should be long enough, however, for the people of the state and legislators alike to realize that North Carolina needs a modernized, common sense program for making sure that vehicles that are not mechanically sound are not allowed on the highways.

It is true, as a member of the committee pointed out, that speed, not mechanical defects in cars, cause most accidents on the state's highways. It is also true that mechanical defects, coupled with speed contribute to North Carolina's appalling annual highway death and injury toll.

If North Carolina is to cope with its highway safety problem, it must approach the problem in its various aspects. It must provide safe highways from a construction standpoint. It must exert every effort to keep the number of speeders, drunken drivers and habitually careless drivers off the highways. Sooner or later the state must also come to grips with the problem of the mechanical condition of vehicles on the highways. The sooner it does, the safer the highways of the state can be for North Carolina's four and one-half million people.

A Bad Odor In Wake Of That 'Dead Issue'

Ten Madison County people have been acquitted of federal conspiracy charges connected with election-rigging.

They were acquitted of the charges, but in the minds of those who have followed the trial, there remains belief there was dirty work afoot.

Original investigation of the complaint was ordered in 1954; nothing concrete in the way of pinning down those responsible, and punishing them, has been accomplished.

The point federal prosecutors sought to prove was conspiracy among the accused group to violate election laws. There appears to have been evidence of election-rigging, but not enough evidence of actual conspiracy among the group to convince the jurors.

Judge Zeb V. Nettles doubts the state could do anything about the case now. District Attorney J. M. Bailey, Jr. says the government could not appeal the court's decision of this week.

To all intents and purposes, the whole affair has become a dead issue. So dead, it reeks.

Pressure Is On Hoges To Act

By LYNN NISBET
APPOINTMENTS — With the General Assembly likely to run to within two weeks of July 1 Governor Hodges is going to be hard pressed to complete important policy boards by the beginning of the next fiscal year. The time element is not nearly so important for administrative officers as for the policy maker.

Five vacancies occur on the Board of Conservation and Development. Usually at the July meeting plans are laid for the following year, often for the appropriation-covered biennium. It is therefore important that a full board sit at the policy session. Governor Hodges has written retiring members requesting them to hold on until after that meeting. Furthermore, as chairman of the board he set this year's meeting for June 30 — before the terms of incumbents expire. For that reason it is generally believed about political observers that he will make no change in the C&D board membership this time.

The Governor obtained consent of incumbent highway commissioners to serve, until July 1, although their terms expired the first of May. Major changes in the basic organization structure of the highway commission under an act of the current General Assembly makes it necessary for the seven new commissioners and a director of highways to be named before July 1.

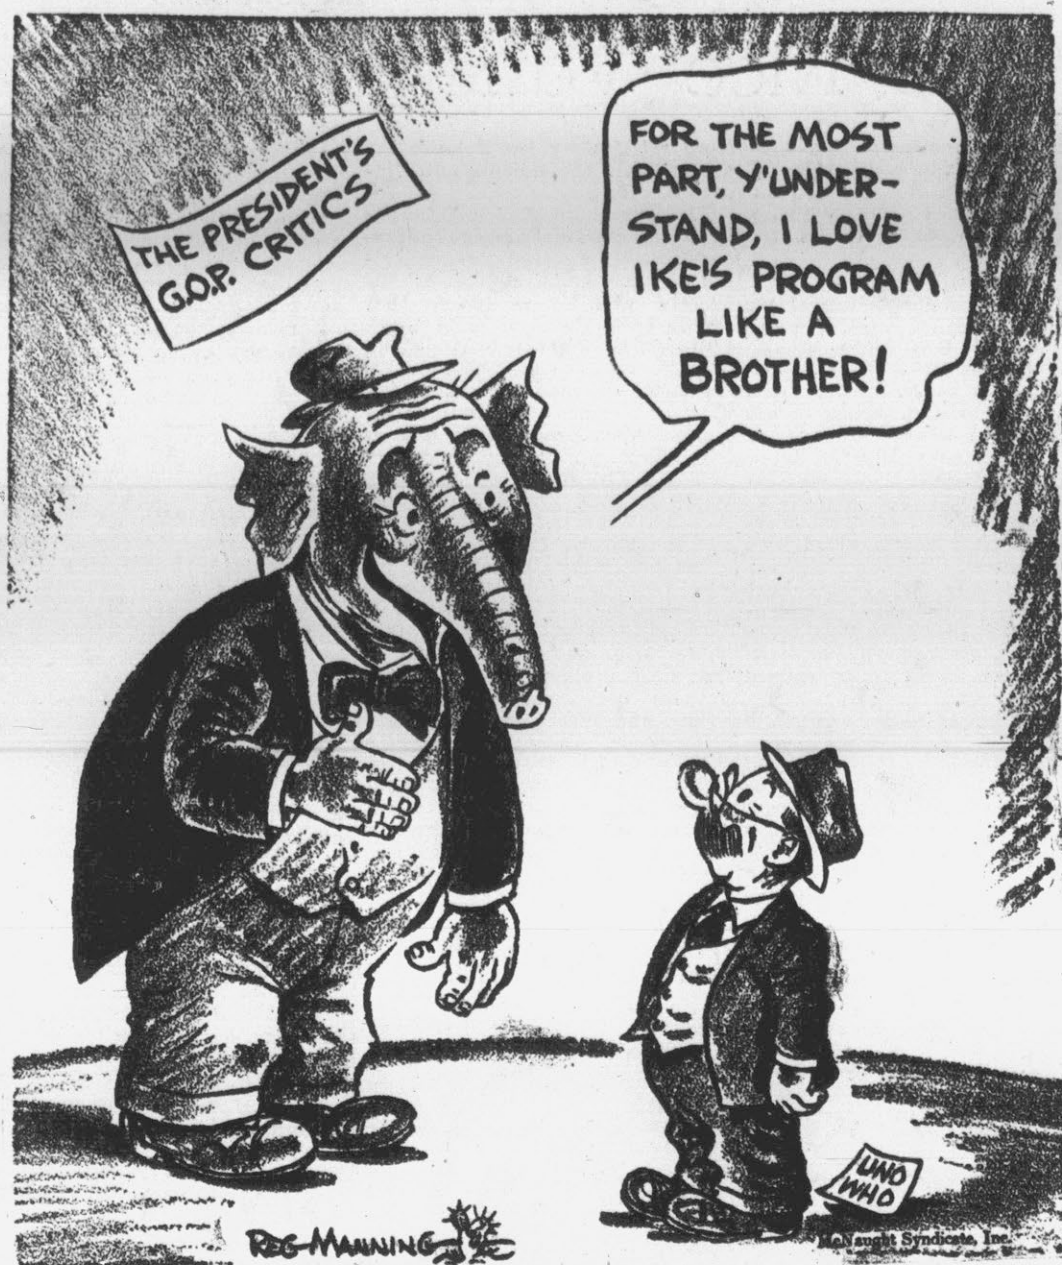

Opinion prevails that none of the 14 incumbent commissioners will be named on the condensed board, and there has been much less speculation about who will be chosen than usual for such important places. One of the present members said it is his opinion that the new plan will require more of the commissioner's time than at present, although in administrative matters he will have less authority. That makes the position less attractive than under the old system.

ADMINISTRATION — There is one big exception to the unimportance of administrative officers. Perhaps the most powerful official to be named by the Governor will be the director of the new Department of Administration. The recent act establishing that department did not

GOLD AND BRASS
There is an interesting story in the 12th chapter of Second Chronicles which relates how Rehoboam, king of Judah, was overcome by the king of Egypt. This Rehoboam had inherited a mighty empire from his father Solomon, but he had refused to redress certain evils and his kingdom had been divided. Then when the king of Egypt came against him, he was easy prey. The conqueror carried off the treasures of the king's house and among these, "the shields of gold which Solomon had made." But Rehoboam made shields of brass to take their place. The wise father had shields of gold — the foolish son had shields of brass. Here is a picture of

Yeah, But Which Brother?

by ALVIN TAYLOR

Widely-Traveled Citizen

The other day I got to thinking about all the places I had visited. The list is impressive. I'll have you know I'm quite a traveler. If you been to Chicago, San Francisco, Oakland, Seattle, Alameda, we've got something in common. My travels haven't been limited to the United States either. In Japan there was Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagasaki and in Korea I visited Pusan, Seoul and Uijongbu. For good measure there was Hawaii also.

Well, of course I didn't actually visit Hawaii, to be truthful, I just saw it from the distance as the troop ship sailed by. But I did go to Chicago. I was at the airport for a full hour as I changed planes. It was all at government expense, too.

Then, there was Seattle. That was a place—spent four or five hours there before the army called time on me and made me enter the gates of Ft. Lawton. I got a good view of the city from the distance, for a week or so.

I took a bus tour of Yokohama and Tokyo on the way to Camp Drake nearby, and famous Nagasaki I saw from a train window

Other Editors Saying-- The Subversive Wizard

(Richmond Times-Dispatch)
The Wizard of Oz and all the other 37 Oz books are not listed any longer by the Detroit public library because—hold on to your hat—the librarian feels that the books are stories without any elevating influence or uplift. How about Alice in Wonderland? Is Detroit going to put it on the black list? It hasn't got an ounce of uplift in it. Alice is merely one of the most brilliant pieces of imaginative nonsense in the English language. It would be hard to get any uplift out of the oafish Caterpillar, the timid Dormouse, the Red Queen, or Alice herself.

Consider the verses of A.A. Milne. Are we inspired to rush out and make a million dollars, write an epic poem, or knock a home run on reading about Christopher Robin, about Kangaroo, or about Tigger who was too bouncy? Not at all. But we are vastly amused and entertained.

And what's wrong with that? In the Oz books, so dear to the heart of childhood, the Cowardly Lion, the Tin Woodsman, the Wicked Witch and the other memorable characters who move about the Emerald City of Oz are creatures of the fancy of Frank L. Baum. There's no more uplift in them than there is in hundreds of delightful stories of fairies and goblins. Or in the epic tale of the Three Little Pigs, the doings of Mighty Mouse, works banned in Detroit too?

There was a time when it wasn't deemed necessary for works of the imagination to point a moral. Sufficient that they afforded a few hours of entertainment to children or grownups. But now the notion is getting 'round, it appears, that all books for young people have to be elevating and inspiring. In other words we are asked to swap the Oz books, Uncle Remus, and Alice in Wonderland for Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm and such Horatio Alger masterpieces as Luck and Pluck and Tattered Tom. Include us out!

New Twist To Parking Problem (Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times)
Not just a parking space, but one that is roomy enough to maneuver the elongated newer models into, is giving the trans engineers a headache. It has been accepted practice to allow 22 feet for parallel to the curb parking. As late as 1937, that gave the driver up to 7 feet in which to twist and turn until his vehicle was lodged close enough to the curb.

Improved turning ease and power steering have made the newer cars much less difficult to park, but the longer distance between bumpers has offset the improvement in fingertip handling. The free space in a 22-foot parking slot is now down to within 3 1/2 feet and not more than 5 feet.

Instead of shaving more off the height of the modern automobile, Detroit ought to be concentrating on cutting down on the length. If it doesn't, street parking, commercial and private garages and residence carports will soon be the most outdated part of America's transportation facilities.

Pretty Ancient Stuff

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP)—Here we are in the silly season, with the youth of the nation erupting in seemingly senseless panty raids, brawls and co-fighting.

This week for example, several hundred male Columbia University students marched on a dormitory housing students of Barnard, its women's college, shouting "panty raid," but retreated before a platoon of police squad cars. Two hundred boys at Southern Methodist University, near Dallas, milled and chanted around seven sorority houses.

"Senseless?" asked psychiatrist Marynia Farnham. "Sure, it's senseless. But here it is: the saturnalia. It's as old as mankind and all societies have recognized that this will happen when there comes a release from tension, when the sun comes back."

Peoples through history, Dr. Farnham continued, have coped with the annual end-of-winter explosion by turning springtime into formal periods of feast, celebration and ritual. The word saturnalia—meaning a period of occasion of general license—comes from the ancient roman feast of Saturn, a sort of carnival.

"Now here we are again, with the sun over the equator and everyone loosed from the bondage of ice and snow," continued Dr. Farnham, "and—at the back of our mind—freed from the fear that when everything turned brown the sun might never come back to us."

"Older females buy new hats. Older men get out their golf clubs. The young are beside themselves. People even dye eggs—certainly a symbol of fertility. Everything, at this time, is a symbol of sex and birth. Naturally: Man—and of course woman—is a cyclic animal."

Spring seems to hit the college crowd hardest — naturally, says Dr. Farnham. Every year from Connecticut to California there are spring-time rampages among students which frequently require police action. There are general melees, outside pranks, firecrackers, rock- and egg-tossing. There are real and threatened panty raids, during which co-eds usually stay inside and bolt the doors.

At Barnard, this week, the locked-in girls participated to the extent of jeering at the milling mob below, tossing some undergarments to the lads and later tossing water-filled paper bags at the police who were trying to control the high spirits. The Dallas co-eds, however, were unreasonably obdurate to the raiders. Last year they not only donated undergarments, but some enthusiastic lassies unlocked the sorority doors.

"Usually," said Dr. Farnham, "the girls get into this nonsense just as much as the boys do. It's quite clear that everybody involved recognizes the sexual symbols mixed up in all this. What is a panty raid except another expression of the older ones of receiving a lady's glove or handkerchief as a token of favor. You know, tournaments, jousting and all that sort of thing. . ."

What to do about it? "I don't know," said Dr. Farnham. "It's pretty primitive stuff."

Story Behind Billy Mitchell Trial

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The late Billy Mitchell, father of military aviation, was not court-martialed solely for his violent expressions of his views on air power in war, but for his general spirit of insubordination. His denunciation of the blindness and incompetency of his superiors simply furnished a basis for disciplinary action.

For this reason, it is considered extremely doubtful that the Air Force Review Board will expunge the record of his conviction, as formally requested by his friends and sympathizers. He has already been acclaimed for his courage and vision by the United States Senate, the American people generally and by history.

DETAILS OF BILLY MITCHELL
STORY The hitherto untold story of Billy Mitchell was related to the writer many years ago by the late Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, and by the late John W. Weeks.

Wadsworth was then Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and Weeks was Secretary of War.

Both were personal friends of Mitchell, and, although not so enthusiastic as he in his belief in aerial power, they privately shared many of his ideas. However, in a private talk with Wadsworth, Weeks explained that Mitchell had become upset, nervous, restless and difficult because of emotional pressures.

Weeks thought that it would be beneficial to Mitchell and release some of his tensions, if he were sent abroad to study and report on American military installations. Mitchell concentrated on the Pacific outposts with an uncanny prediction that the Japanese would bombard Pearl Harbor "some fine Sunday morning."

CRITICIZED U. S. DEFENSES
Mitchell found our overseas defenses in a deplorable state at a time when we were having diplomatic difficulties with Japan

over immigration problems. He was even more shocked when he perceived that our overseas garrisons had no conception of the value of air power on our far-flung frontiers — The Philippines and Hawaii.

He quarreled in particular with Major General C. P. Summerall, then in command of The Philippines. Their relations became so embittered that Mitchell challenged his qualifications and impartiality when his old foe was named to the court-martial board. Summerall strode from the chamber in a red-faced rage that justified Mitchell's charge in the minds of his reporters.

WHAT LED TO COURT-MARTIAL
TIAL Mitchell delayed for months in submitting his official report, despite frequent requests from the impatient Secretary Weeks. But what angered the Secretary of War and President Coolidge, and led to the court-martial proceedings, was the fact that Mitchell gave his scathing document to the press before turning it over to the War Department. To discipline him, Coolidge removed him as Assistant Chief of the Air Service, and his rank dropped from Brigadier General to Colonel. He was also assigned to a minor post at San Antonio, Tex.

Burning over his treatment and official neglect of his views, Mitchell eventually accused the War and Navy Departments of "incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national defense." The court-martial became inevitable. F. D. R. WAS CAUSTIC CRITIC OF AIR GENERAL Ironically, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, F.D.R. was a caustic critic of Mitchell's theories. Admiral William D. Leahy, F.D.R.'s personal military adviser in World War II, said that he saw "nothing significant" in Mitchell's proposals. Josephus Daniels, then Secretary of the Navy, offered to stand at the wheel of any battleship while Mitchell bombed it from the air.

Foster Parents Win Fight To Retain Adopted Child

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—"Simple right and justice require that Hildy McCoy's present home life

should not be disturbed."

With those words, Gov. LeRoy Collins yesterday granted sanctuary in Florida to Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ellis, the Jewish foster parents of 6-year-old Hildy, born of an unwed Catholic mother.

Massachusetts—which has tried for four years to take the child away from the Ellises under a law requiring adoptions within religious faiths where possible—charged the Ellises with kidnapping Hildy.

Collins called the charge "synthetic" and said "the real issue is simply whether or not the custody of Hildy McCoy should continue with the Ellises or be placed under institutional control and direction."

The governor said that while he respected the right of the natural mother to have the child reared in her faith "it must yield to more fundamental rights."

"God . . . grants to every child . . . first the right to be wanted and secondly the right to be loved. 'Hildy's mother has denied both of these rights to her. Admittedly she did not want Hildy in the first place . . . the mother claims that she now loves the child, but . . . love can only result from the giving of one's self to another."

"It was the Ellises in truth and in fact who have been the persons through whom God has assured to Hildy these first two rights as one of his children. It was the Ellises who wanted Hildy to be born . . . It was the Ellises also who have given of themselves to Hildy, as only parents can understand."

Collins, a Protestant and the father of four children, concluded: "I sincerely hope that this child can now be allowed to continue to grow and develop in the only home and with the only mother and father she has ever known."

A crowded hearing room applauded. There were tears in many eyes. One of Ellis' attorneys, Ben Cohen, wiped a handkerchief across his face.

With joy shining through tears of relief, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis thanked the governor, the men and women of newspapers, radio and television who helped tell their story and the many thousands who wrote letters of encouragement.

The ordeal has cost the Ellises a home and a successful dry cleaning business in Massachusetts.

"But when I weigh it all against having Hildy safe and secure, I don't feel sorry," he said.

They rushed from the hearing directly to an airplane taking them back to Miami Beach and a reunion with Hildy. Today the child graduates from the first grade at Lear School there. Her mother announced proudly she is first in her class.

Police Hunting Stolen Grenades

BALTIMORE (AP)—Weary police searched today for seven live hand grenades they said were still missing from a batch of 20 stolen Tuesday from a railroad car.

Lt. Thomas L. McKenna said investigators had found where two of the grenades had been buried in East Baltimore's Patterson Park, but "some kid must have found them first and taken them home."

"If he pulls the ring on one of them it's going to be an awfully sad story," he said.

The search began yesterday with discovery of the theft from a South Baltimore siding.

McKenna said four boys, 15 and 16 years old, admitted the theft and tried to help police track down the explosives.

Police broadcast hourly radio and television pleas in an attempt to locate those still missing.

One was found in a locker at Mergenthaler Vocational High School, McKenna said, three in the home of one of the boys, three in an automobile glove compartment, two buried near the railroad tracks, one lying nearby, and one in the park. The boys said they had detonated two.

The boys were released in the custody of their parents without being charged, McKenna said.

They Can All Doze At Bulldozer School

By EDWARD KITCH

BRAIDWOOD, Ill. (AP)—Everybody dozes at this school—but then that's what they're taught—bulldozing in fact.

Some 40 young men are enrolled in the Greer Earth Moving School—the world's first bulldozer college. The class area includes some 600 acres of battered and scarred ground where students rumble along in crawler tractors, payloaders, scrapers, motor graders and huge trucks.

Three road building machinery manufacturers loaned the school's 17 pieces of heavy equipment cost free. Run by Greer Shop Training, Inc., of Chicago, the school turns out trained road construction men, ready for the huge $3-billion-dollar federal highway program when it gets started.

During Greer's 55-year history, it has taught some 80,000 men everything from auto mechanics to piano tuning. With 41,000 miles of roadway to be built in the next 10 years, Greer decided to add roadbuilding to the program.

Keith Hutchinson, the 32-year-old manager of the school, explained that the work is not dangerous if safety rules and common sense are followed.

"Unsafe practice is one thing we will not tolerate," Hutchinson said. "We'll toss a student out of school if we see he lacks the ability to complete the course."

Monopolies Squeezing Mexico Movie Makers

By BOB THOMAS

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Though film quality is better and markets are expanding, the Mexican movie industry faces a rocky future.

This was the report of Luis Sanchez Tello, veteran producer here and coordinator for Hollywood locations. He blamed government-induced monopolies for the sad plight of the movie makers.

There are no big, powerful studios in Mexico—and indeed they are withering away in Hollywood, with a few exceptions. All producers are independents, and they must hustle to put together deals.

"The monopolies are squeezing us," said Tello. "Some producers are favored for money-lending, while others find it more difficult. And the exhibition of pictures in Mexico is virtually monopolized, so we must accept the monopoly's terms."

As a result of the monopolies and rising labor costs, Tello said, Churubusco studios, largest and most modern in Mexico, is slated to shut down.

Tello, a big, friendly man, started in the film business as a young man. He ran away from his Mexican home to work in Hollywood for six years in the '20s. He returned here in 1930 to make the first Mexican sound picture.

Most Mexican productions take two years to return their investment. The exceptions are those with Cantinflas, who is in a class by himself. He has a financing deal with Columbia, which gives him half the profits. Ten-year-old Cantinflas films still draw crowds in Mexico City.

Mexicans make about 100 films a year. Average cost: $100,000.

Cuba is about the best foreign market for Mexican films. The United States has become increasingly important. Los Angeles (largest city of Mexican population next to Mexico City) and New York (big Puerto Rican and Spanish elements) offer good playdates. Revenue also comes from Texas, Arizona and New Mexico.

Because of low labor costs, sets can be built for a third the Hollywood cost. Extras can be had for $2 a day, compared with $21 in Hollywood.

Jet Age Taken To Court Over Damage To Home

DALLAS (AP)—The jet age went to court yesterday when a woman claimed an airplane damaged her house and caused her to be injured.

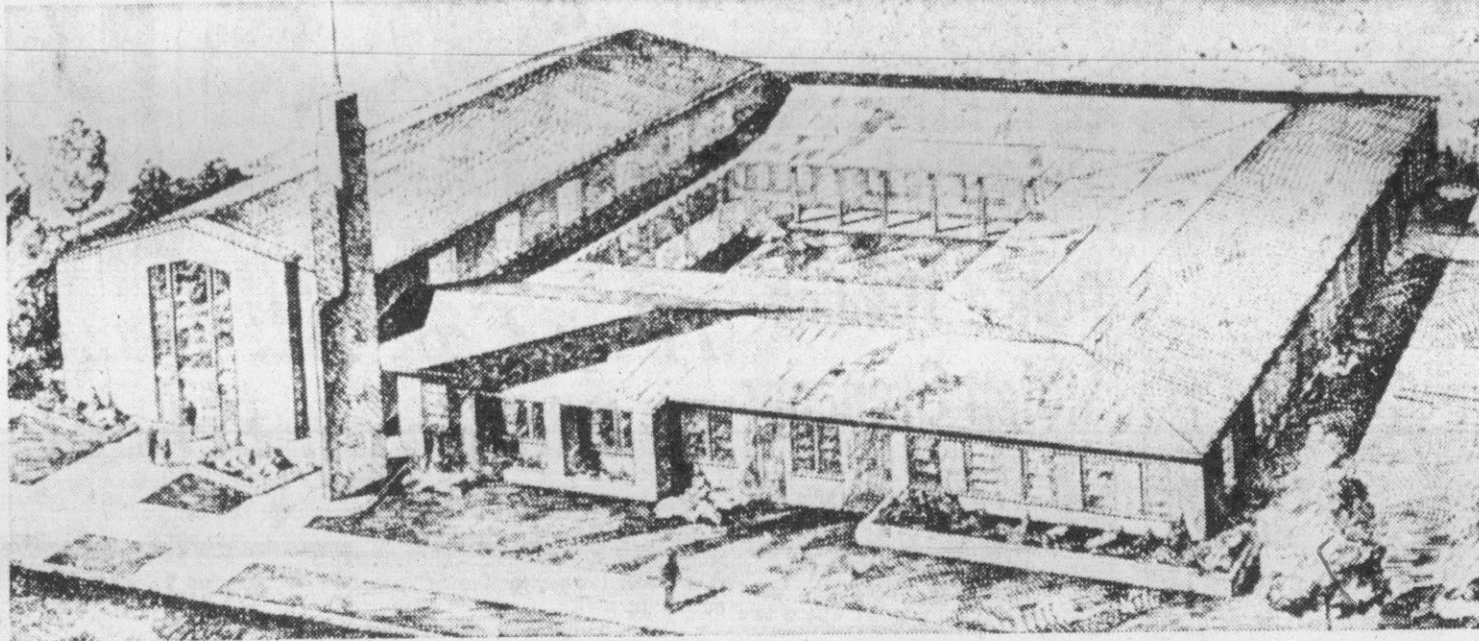

Mrs. Donovan Winslow, formerly of Mabank, Tex., who now lives in Dallas, filed a $12,500 damage suit in U. S. District Court against Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc. She claimed her home was damaged in December.

She said in her petition a jet plane was "propelled too close to earth . . . or propelled so high it pierced the sound barrier . . . causing a rush of wind of tornadic force."

"The plaster on the ceiling and walls cracked and was shaken loose. There was a loosening of joints and beams," the petition said she was thrown to the floor and injured.

A spokesman for the aircraft company said attorneys for the firm were not available for comment.

Ground-Breaking Sunday For Church

On Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, the Hillsdale Baptist Church will conduct a tract dedication and ground breaking service.

The Church was organized on June 3, 1956 with a total of forty-two charter members. Since that time the place of meeting has been in a residence on the Ayden Highway. The house was made available to the Church without cost. The Church has grown steadily since its organization a year ago. Shortly after the organization it was decided by the group that an adequate place for worship should be provided as soon as possible, and by the first of January sufficient funds to purchase the tract on which the Church would build were in hand. The site for building is located on the corners of Arlington and Dunn Streets in the Hillsdale section, and the size of the tract is approximately 300 x 175. Presently, the entire building will not be completed. The Church has voted to build the first two units of its educational building with a temporary sanctuary to be arranged for in one of the units.

When the first two units are completed, the Church will be able to adequately accommodate three hundred in its Sunday School and three hundred in the temporary sanctuary for worship. When the group occupies the new building, the name of the Church will be changed from Hillsdale Baptist to Arlington Street Baptist Church. The plan for the building is one of the many plans made available by the Southern Baptist Department of Church Architecture, Nashville, Tennessee.

The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

The program Sunday afternoon will begin promptly at three o'clock on the Church tract. The Pastor, the Rev. Mark Owens will pronounce the Invocation and extend a word of welcome to those present. J. G. Gibbs, Chairman of the Building Committee, will give a brief history of the Church. The ceremony of the dedication of the lots will be led by H. J. Justice, Jr., chairman of the Lot Purchasing Committee. The Rev. E. G. Cole, pastor of the Winter-ville Baptist Church will lead the dedicatory prayer. The Rev. P. B. Upchurch, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, will give a brief address to the group. After the ground-breaking ceremony, the Rev. I. B. Jackson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church will lead in prayer, dedicating the building to be erected. J. H. Boyd, Chairman of the Primary Missions Committee of the South Roanoke Baptist Association, will pronounce the benediction.

Little Effect On Spending By Economy Drive

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—About this time every year the ordinary citizen can get pretty confused as to just what is happening to the tax money he sends to Washington.

The big economy drive now on in Congress makes it still harder today to tell.

The President's budget requests are for one figure. Authorizations for spending now being made by the Congress appear to be adding up to another figure. Appropriations of money to back these authorizations add up to still another.

What the U. S. Treasury actually takes in and puts out is something else again.

It takes a trained accountant to understand the government's books.

In this complicated scene steps the staff of tax experts for the House of Representatives. They say that even if the economy drive sticks, what actually is spent is going to be about 600 million dollars more than budgeted for the fiscal year ending in some five weeks, and about 1/4 billion dollars more than the president asks for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The experts say higher prices will account for some of the rise. Some spending can't be charted—such as farm price support outlays. Also a federal highway program isn't in the budget. Nor is the money the Treasury will put out for old-age pensions, which are financed outside the budget.

There is also a lot of money appropriated by former congresses, which the Treasury can be called upon to spend. If interest rates go higher, and the Treasury must borrow more to meet its bills, the higher interest costs will be another drag.

If this isn't confusing enough, there are also guesses as to what the U. S. Treasury will take in as taxes.

The House tax experts think the Treasury should take in a little more than 74 1/4 billion dollars in the next fiscal year, or 700 million dollars more than the earlier administration estimate.

But if the House experts are right and spending rises to 73 billion dollars, instead of the 71 1/2 billion the President has asked, the Treasury surplus would fall 500 million dollars short of his budget estimate.

Cincinnati Back In First By Two Games

Don Gross Hurls A 6-2 Win Over Cards

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press
One thing about Don Gross, the young Cincinnati left-hander may not win 'em all, but he hasn't lost one for the Redlegs since 1955.

The 25-year-old southpaw has been the pitcher of record only eight times in his last 29 appearances in the majors—and each decision was a victory. He last lost one Sept. 8, 1955, to Philadelphia.

Gross was in 19 games last season and wound up with a 3-0 record.

Last night, he made it 4-0 for '57 in his eighth appearance of the year, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2. It was the only game scheduled in the majors and pushed the Redlegs back into a two-game lead over Milwaukee in the National League.

Wally Post, with three runs batted in on three hits—one a two-run homer—and Don Hoak, with a two-run single, did the job for Gross, who gained his fourth victory over the Cards in his 8-0 streak.

A five-run third inning, with only one run earned, carried the Redlegs to their 19th victory in 22 games and dumped the Cardinals into sixth place. Manager Fred Hutchinson shook up his lineup—shifting third baseman Ken Boyer to centerfield, replacing rookie Bobby Gene Smith, and putting rookie Eddie Kasko at third—in a try to avoid St. Louis' fifth straight defeat.

Gross gave up only Stan Musial's home run and two singles until the ninth, when three singles brought the Cards their other run and Tom Aker came in on relief to get the final out.

The majors get back into the swing today with the Chicago White Sox carrying their three-game American League lead and 10-game unbeaten streak into Cleveland against the second place Indians under the lights. The New York Yankees, who beat

Brooklyn 10-7 in an exhibition game last night, were in third place, four games behind after long two in a row, as they met Washington in Yankee Stadium this afternoon.

Elsewhere in the American, it's Boston at Baltimore and Detroit at Kansas City, both night games.

In the National, St. Louis stays at Cincinnati, Milwaukee goes to Chicago for an afternoon game, New York is at Brooklyn at night and Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia, also under the lights.

Ace's Belief Is Upheld By Facts

NEW YORK (AP)—Ace Parker's contention that pitching is 75 per cent of college baseball is borne out by the statistics of teams that have qualified or are in the running for the 1957 National Collegiate baseball championship.

Figures from the NCAA Service Bureau indicate that three of the nine teams already qualified, including Parker's own Duke team, made it mainly on their pitching strength. One, Arizona, did it on some of the dandiest hitting ever seen in college baseball.

Furthermore, the teams with good hurling appear to have the edge over the hitting teams in the races for the 15 tournament berths still open. For instance, Missouri, with four over .350 batters in its line-up, has only an outside chance of beating out Iowa State this weekend for the Big Seven title and a place in the District 5 play-off against Bradley.

In addition to a stellar pitching staff of Dick Burton, Dick Smallwood and Harleigh Fatzinger, Duke's Atlantic Coast champions have the three top hitters in the league and probably the fastest outfield in college ball. Dave Sime (.395) is a world record sprinter; Bernie Blaney was a scabcat in football, and Pete Maynard (.389) is another svelte.

Durham Bulls Add Another To Their Carolina Streak

CAROLINA LEAGUE
The redhot Durham Bulls scored another victory last night in their terrific win streak, but they had to take advantage of an error by a Hi-Toms pitcher to turn the trick.

A throwing error by pitcher Jack Taylor on a grounder to the mound gave the Bulls two unearned runs in the fourth inning and they went on to edge the Hi-Toms 3-2 at Thomasville.

Winston-Salem's Red Birds, 3½ games back of the top place Durham club, scored seven runs in the second inning and swept to an 8-3 win over Greensboro at Winston-Salem. The Red Birds sent 11 batters to the plate in the second inning uprising.

In the other league action, the Danville Leafs broke a five-game losing streak by defeating Wilson in a doubleheader at Danville 6-5 and 8-2.

The Giants put across three runs in the fourth inning of the seven-inning opener to go ahead for keeps. In the nightcap, pitcher Willie DeJesus limited Wilson to seven hits, one of which was a first inning homer by Dan Porter with one aboard.

Tiny Bystanders Enjoy Little League Ball Game

ALL WRAPPED UP in the balgame, these two youngsters were unaware of the photographer at Elm Street Park. The young man at the right is evidently an aspiring baseballer who may be visualizing himself on that same field in the future. Note the glove under his arm. The young lady could be his girlfriend, his sister, or just another admirer of Little League baseball.

Teen-er Meeting Set For Tonight

W. C. James, official of the Greenville Recreation Department, has issued a bulletin announcing that a meeting will be held tonight at the city hall at 8:00, for the Teen-er League.

James stated emphatically that "every boy who desires to play Teen-er League must be at this meeting (or have a good excuse for not being there) and have at least one of his parents with him."

Teen-er ball is for youngsters whose ages are 13, 14, and 15 and is played on a regulation-sized diamond. It is sponsored by the National Veterans of Foreign Wars Organization. Teen-er baseball is a rapidly-spreading league of play and is played on a national scale.

James commented that "there has been no parent interest shown in this program, or at least, such a small amount that it appears that unless there are more people willing to exert some effort, the program will fail. A program like this takes money and time."

He pointed out further that the coaches of the Teen-er teams are donating their time and effort to the program and that the league is "completely a non-profit thing."

The purpose of the league, James said, is to provide an outlet and a pastime for the youngsters of these ages.

James, in a statement aimed at those youngsters who wish to play, said, "We have more boys than we have room for, so that there will perhaps be some who will not make a team. This is unavoidable, but due to lack of money, help and other causes, this is the way it will have to be. If you wish to play, be at the meeting."

Play Monday Night

The league will begin play Monday night, May 27, at Guy Smith Stadium, at 7:45. The teams who will clash in the opener will be the State Bank and the Home Builders. Two other teams fill out the league and will play the second game at a later time. They are the Guaranty Bank and College View Cleaners and Laundry.

There will be no charge for the contests.

Still Talking Of Title Bout With Hurricane, Floyd

NEW YORK (AP)—A title defense by Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson against Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson at the Polo Grounds in late July again was in the talking stage today.

Lippe Breidbart, Jackson's manager, said he was willing to accept 20 per cent of the overall gate, including an estimated $170,000 for television with a local blackout.

However, Breidbart said his attorney had been informed by Emanuel Lence, independent promoter named by Patterson's manager, that the show, that Jackson would have to agree to a rematch if he should win the title. This latest demand and a request that part of Jackson's purse be held in escrow for a possible return was holding up the show pending further conferences.

Judge Ryan May Open Door Of Boxing To Independents

NEW YORK (AP)—Independent boxing promoters today saw a crack of light in what for years had been a very black world.

The crack was opened by Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan during yesterday's hearings in the government's case against the International Boxing Club and Madison Square Garden.

He indicated during testimony by IBC Secretary Truman Gibson that he may direct New York's famous Eighth Avenue Sports arena to "open its doors" to independent fight promoters at a fixed reasonable fee.

The government, in a civil action, is seeking to dissolve the boxing empire of James D. Norris and his associates. Norris, who heads both the Garden and the IBC, his partner Arthur Wirtz, the Garden and the International Boxing Clubs of New York and Chicago are the defendants.

The last time an independent promoter took his show into the Garden was 20 years ago when the late Mike Jacobs staged a Joe Louis-Bob Pastor fight. Subsequently Jacobs and the Garden became partners.

Judge Ryan hinted he is close to a decision before he adjourned proceedings until Wednesday.

Ruling Cancels Carolinas Meet

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A ruling by state school officials limiting participation to senior boys has caused cancellation of a Carolinas high school track meet scheduled here Saturday.

Meet director Tom Braaten said the ruling that the meet was a post-season affair—thereby limiting competition to seniors—eliminated more than half the entries.

Braaten said: "We felt that since there would not be enough North Carolina boys to participate in each event it would be better to call the program off this year."

He said the meet sponsors plan to organize next year's meet "so as to get the finest seniors from the entire state in competition with the finest talent from South Carolina."

Akins Is 7-5 Favorite Over Jimmy Beecham

WASHINGTON (AP)—Virgil Akins, the St. Louis veteran, was an early 7-5 favorite to defeat Jimmy Beecham of Miami in their 10-round welterweight bout at Capitol Arena tonight.

Support for the 22-year-old Beecham rested on conquests of the once highly regarded Hector Constance and on recent creditable performances. But it wasn't enough to offset the liking for Akins' experience and punching ability.

Akins, 29, is fourth or fifth-ranked challenger for Carmen Basilio's welter crown, depending on whom you consult—Ring Magazine or the National Boxing Assn. Beecham is unranked. A craving for recognition prompted him to take the Akins fight on short notice.

Promoter Goldie Ahearn and the International Boxing Club looked up Beecham after Randy Sandy, previously matched with Akins, reported a cut eye would make him unavailable.

As it finally takes shape, the nationally broadcast and televised (NBC, 10 p.m. EDT)—fight is a complete replacement for the originally scheduled Paolo Rosi-Joey Lopes lightweight battle. That was wiped out when Rosi hurt a hand several weeks ago. Akins has won his last four in a row, including a knockout of Al Andrews during the winter. He has 41 victories in a career dating back to 1948, the most recent a decision over Franz Szuzina of Germany.

Two Senate Democrats Predict More Control Over Foreign Aid Spending

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Senate Democrats predicted today President Eisenhower's foreign aid program will undergo "drastic revision" to give Congress more control over spending abroad.

That view came from senators Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Humphrey (D-Minn.) as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of which both are members continued public hearings on the $3,865,000,000 program.

The group called Asst. Secretary of Defense Mansfield D. Sprague to learn details of the administration's requests for $1,900,000,000 of military aid and 900 millions of economic support for countries with which the United States has defense pacts.

Both Mansfield and Humphrey spoke favorably of the over-all program, but Mansfield said "there will be changes to assure Congress retains its annual review of the whole program."

Humphrey, referring specifically to a proposed development loan fund, said "the bill must be changed in some way so that Congress will know in advance to what countries and for what purposes the loans are to be made. I know it's a problem," he added, "but we can't give unlimited authority and keep Congress in the dark."

Under Eisenhower's plan, much of the program would be authorized this year on a continuing basis, rather than for a set time.

Testifying yesterday, Director John B. Hollister of the International Cooperation Administration urged the committee to approve making future appropriations for military and economic assistance available for "obligation indefinitely."

This ran into a storm of opposition from Sen. Morse (D-Ore.) as well as criticism from Humphrey and Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

Hollister also supported the proposed development loan fund, with a $500 million dollar appropriation for the fiscal year starting July 1, and 750 millions in Treasury borrowing authority for each of the succeeding two years.

Both Morse and Kennedy protested that under the continuing authority Congress would lose all control over where the loans as well as the military assistance money would go.

Hollister contended that under current restrictions, with authority certain only on a yearly basis, "we can give no assurance to a country beyond the current fiscal year that a particular project can go forward."

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) agreed that the fund must have some long-range authority to prevent what he said is the waste that accompanies "pressure to obligate funds immediately for the entire cost of a project without adequate advance study."

Humphrey said he, too, is for the revolving fund, with the long-range authority, but "not without some safeguards."

"Congress is going to insist on knowing in advance at least in general terms how much is going to be lent to Egypt, or for Iran, or for Turkey or other countries, so that it can determine how the program is functioning," Humphrey said.

Some administration supporters were said to be considering, as a compromise, an amendment under which key congressional committees would be notified 15 days in advance of any loan that would be made from the fund.

Humphrey said he wasn't sure such an amendment would meet the demands.

Though some senators have called for much sharper cuts in funds, there was a growing belief among the program's supporters that the Senate would approve a total perhaps 500 million dollars below what Eisenhower asked.

Vice President Nixon, opposing any crippling cuts in the program, said in a New York speech last night that Congress "must assume its share of responsibility in the event world developments prove those cuts to have been unwise."

Nixon said "this is no time to announce to the Communists and the world that we are tired of the struggle" against Red efforts to dominate other nations.

Weather-Weary Natives Prefer To Live In Texas

By IRWIN FRANK

DALLAS (AP)—Texans still love Texas—although they've been battered by tornadoes and just about drowned by flash floods.

"Leave Texas because of the weather?" asked Ed Jolesch, a rancher near Midlothian, southwest of Dallas. "Why the weather would never get so bad that I'd leave. This is the best place in the world, there's no doubt about it."

He agreed that the more than 70 tornadoes in Texas since April had caused considerable property damage and deaths.

But, he said, "I haven't seen any place else in the country like better than Texas."

At least 33 persons died in tornadoes in Texas since April and property damage has mounted to millions. More than 250 persons were injured. About 10,000 families were forced from their homes by flood water.

Other Texans agree with Jolesch.

Glenn Berry summed it up: "I still like Texas better than any other state and I've lived in a lot of them. They have had weather in other places also."

Texas have seen enough flash floods and tornadoes to know that ground hogs and grandmas' corns have nothing to do with either. But they're at a loss to explain the recent violent weather.

"It's those silly old atom bombs they've got," said 16-year-old Nina Sharp. "Everytime they test one of those bombs something happens."

Mrs. Alta Guinn disagreed. She said "I imagine the Lord sends it as he sees fit. You can pray, but if it's God's will we have to accept it."

In a front page column in the Baylor County Banner, a Texan wrote that "no matter what kind of weather we have in this country, we have too much of it."

J. W. Zimmerman, Dallas meteorologist, said "people have drifted away from their old superstitions about the weather. Years ago they wanted to know about groundhogs. Now they want to know where the front is and how the pressure systems are doing."

Formality Bows To The Heat In Texas Assembly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—It got so hot on the last day of the Texas Legislature's 55th session that House Speaker Waggoner Carr abandoned a long-standing rule of attire.

With the temperature reading 90 degrees yesterday, Carr shrugged his suit coat and said, "there's such a thing as being foolish in decorum. I'll recognize anyone who removes his coat."

Without such permission, a member seeking recognition would be subject to a point of order that he was not properly attired.

Carr ruled out a request that page boys, mostly 9 to 12 years old, be allowed to take off their ties and unbutton their shirts in addition to removing their coats.

"These things have a habit of going from one extreme to another," Carr explained. "I know boys." He has a seven-year-old son.

Mixed Motives Bring Out Folks To Graham Crusade

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Mixed motives today are bringing thousands of New Yorkers to hear the gospel preached—many of whom haven't been inside a church in years.

The man behind the pulpit is Billy Graham, but he himself says his only message is the Bible, and every minister has one. So what is it that brings these who usually aren't interested in the subject?

You get all kinds of answers from the assorted people flocking to Madison Square Garden tonight—10,000 of them last night.

Diann Cyre, a Manhattan striptease dancer: "I'm in show business, and I just wanted to find out why so many people come to hear about a story that's 2,000 years old. Is it showmanship or what he says?"

Harry Roskojenko, of Manhattan, a novelist: "I'm spiritually interested. I have my own private sort of religion, and I'm wondering what this man's appeal is. Is it a personality thing, or are the people starved inwardly and trying to find out what's what?"

Mrs. Edythe Hammel, a church-going Brooklyn housewife: "I came because I think it's going to do me some good. I think this

Loaned Money, Had Stamps, Too

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A money lender who gave trading stamps must serve six months in prison. He was fined $2,500.

David Fogel, 41, pleaded no defense to charges of violations of the Small Loans Act. Judge Leo H. McKay imposed the sentence in city court and ordered Fogel to refund to his clients all interest in excess of 6 per cent.

It was testified that Fogel gave trading stamps, cigarette lighters and "luck badges" to his clients. If the number on the badge came up in a weekly drawing the customer was given credit on his loan. Judge Fogel said testimony had brought out that Fogel charged interest rates from 50 to 75 per cent.

A Man of Peace in a World of Strife

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 26:1-5, 12-33.

Isaac, son of Abraham, sowed in the land and the Lord gave him and became very rich. Abimelech, king of the Philistines, grew jealous and told Isaac to go away because he was mightier than the Philistines.

Isaac departed and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar. There he dug again the wells of water dug by his father that the Philistines had stopped up, and he called them by the names Abraham had given them.

The herdsmen of Gerar fought Isaac's herdsmen over the well, saying it was theirs. They also fought over a second well. Then Isaac dug a third well, and over that the Philistine herdsmen did not fight.

Abimelech went to Isaac. Isaac asked him why he came? Abimelech said because he saw that the Lord was with Isaac. So the two made a covenant of peace.

A Man of Peace

ISAAC, SON OF ABRAHAM, SET A GREAT EXAMPLE

Scripture—Genesis 26:1-5, 12-33.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. OUR LESSON begins with a famine in the land where Isaac, son of Abraham, dwelt. Isaac went to the land of King Abimelech of the Philistines in Gerar. The Lord had told Isaac not to go to Egypt as his father had, but to stay where he was and he would prosper him greatly, for his father Abraham's sake.

Isaac sowed in this land and his harvests were plentiful as the Lord blessed him. He grew so rich in possessions—flocks, herds, many servants, that the people became jealous, and the king, Abimelech told him to go away as he was "much mightier than we."

Isaac was a man of peace, and without disputing Abimelech's order, he went to the valley of Gerar, pitched his tent and dwelt there. After Abraham's death, the Philistines had stopped up the wells he had dug, and Isaac dug new ones. Even in our time the wells are of prime importance, especially in parts of a country where there are deserts.

Then Isaac went to Bethsheba, and the Lord appeared to him there, saying, "I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for My servant Abraham's sake."

There Isaac built an altar, called upon the name of the Lord, pitched his tent and his servants dug another well.

King Abimelech came to Isaac there with a friend, Ahuzzath, and Phicol, the chief captain of his army. He had not come to complain this time or to drive Isaac away. Isaac asked "Wherefore come ye to me, seeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you?"

And the king answered: "We saw certainly that the Lord was with thee; and we said, let there

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 30

"The third time," Nora said in a tone of wonder. "First the pillow, then a push down the stairs, and now morphine." She added quietly, "I can't take much more of this. Something inside me is cracking up. I feel — strange to myself."

"How do you mean — strange?" Mr. Potter spoke for the first time since he had entered Nora's room. For the past quarter of an hour he had listened, noticing her pallor, her shaking hands, her haunted eyes whose pupils still reflected the drug she had taken.

She turned her head on the pillow so that she could face him. "I guess you had better know about me. I've been trying to hide it for a long time but it seems to get worse. Perhaps the real trouble is not that I am in danger, it's that I am — dangerous. You see, I'm not sure about myself. I may be going mad. I do queer things."

Mr. Potter seemed unperturbed. "What kind of queer things?" His voice was so normal that it gave her courage.

"The first time was last year, the day before Candy was murdered. Stuart and I had gone for a walk. The day was lovely with warm sunshine, but the air was crisp and cool. Everything was just as I expected it to be. I was strolling for words, 'perfectly normal and commonplace. And then the next thing I knew I was terribly cold and I — seemed to come to. I don't know how to describe it. There I was in the lake. I'd waded out into that icy water, clear up to my waist, with all my clothes on. That's what gave me pneumonia, of course. All of a sudden I just seemed to wake up and Stuart was standing on the beach, staring at me, so horrified, so alarmed."

He had waded into the lake, brought her out and taken her back to the inn. He had told her she was just over-tired and she wasn't to worry about it. They would forget it had ever happened. But he had been troubled, however much he tried to reassure her. And that night he had asked her to marry him, to let him take care of her.

Tears of weakness rolled down Nora's cheeks. "He was trying to protect me from myself. And I've been so awful to him."

"Somehow, I can't believe you are very awful," Mr. Potter smiled but there was no response in the girl's stricken face.

"You don't know. Oh, Hiram, I'm so glad you are here. I can tell you things!" But she found it hard to tell them. Slowly, with a number of gaps, she described the canoe ride with Tom Jones, the discovery that she had fallen in love with him, and then his unexpected attack on her.

She pushed the hair back from her forehead. "It was so real, so vivid, so — joyous and liberating — that feeling I had for him. And you can see how wrong I was, because, instead of loving me, he called me a liar. He said he knew why I lied. What is wrong with me, Hiram?"

"I don't know," he admitted, "but we're going to find out. Tell me more about those dreams, Nora."

ra.

"They had started, she said, during her illness the year before. Sometimes they weren't too bad, dreams in which she was anxious about something, dreams when she felt guilty but did not know her crime. Then there were the fear dreams, which were the worst of all."

Mr. Potter went to stand at the window looking out on the broad green lawn with its dappled sunshine. Without turning around he said, "Suppose we find out what is wrong and it — shouldn't be pleasant. Have you courage enough for that?"

"I haven't much courage," Nora said, "but it would be better that way, much better. I can't endure the dreams that torment me at night. I don't like forgetting things the way I do. I don't — trust myself."

He turned around to smile at her. "Good girl," he said approvingly. "Now tell me one more thing. How does the situation stand between you and Jones and Young?"

"I don't know."

"Don't make your decision yet. Don't see Jones for a day or so; don't break with Young. Wait."

"What for?"

He grinned at her. "I'm going into action. It may take me a couple of days. You sit tight until then."

"What are you going to do?" she asked anxiously.

"Look for the answer to some questions," he put out a gentle hand and ruffled her hair. "Meanwhile, don't take any medicine. Eat and drink only what other people do. And if anything looks even mildly wrong, yell bloody murder. Captain Foote has a good man on guard downstairs."

"All right," Nora said, "but I can't take much more. You hurry."

Late the night Mr. Potter stepped out of a chartered plane at Boston. "I'll want you again tomorrow," he told the pilot.

A taxi took him to Dr. Ruysdahl's office, where the doctor was waiting for him. He was a stocky man with a confident manner and keen eyes. He waved Mr. Potter to a chair. "I was expecting you. Dr. Evans called me from New York. This is highly irregular, as I suppose you know. Ordinarily, I would not discuss a patient but in this case I am aware that these murders have altered the situation. What do you want to know?"

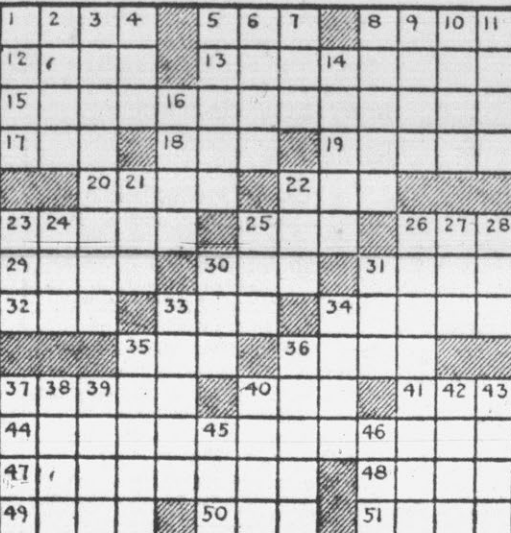

What he wanted, Mr. Potter said, was to know something about Nora Pendleton's mental condition. "Obviously, there was a reason for her lawyer shielding her from police questioning, for your flying down the other night to make sure she was kept out of the way."

Dr. Ruysdahl watched Mr. Potter while he spoke with the alert analysis of a good diagnostician, his face unchanging. He sat thoughtful for a moment, working at a rather smelly pipe. From the time of her illness last year, he said, Nora had been highly disturbed. Of course, the fact that her fiancé had been arrested for murder was enough to account for that. And yet there was something he

Roberto Report Concerns Nehru

BOMBAY, India (AP) — The reported love affair of Roberto Rossellini and Mrs. Sonali Das Gupta, 27-year-old Bengali film script writer, has become a matter of official concern for Prime Minister Nehru.

Rossellini has dismissed as "fantastic nonsense" reports that he plans to divorce Ingrid Bergman and marry Mrs. Das Gupta, mother of two children. Ingrid, who is in Paris, also says there is no truth in the reports.

Mrs. Das Gupta, who is separated from her movie director husband and has occupied a hotel room near Rossellini's in Bombay's Taj Mahal Hotel, says her connection with Rossellini is only of a business nature. She won't talk about her domestic difficulties.

Nehru enters the picture because Rossellini has a contract with the Indian government for making documentary films.

A close friend of Mrs. Das Gupta said Mrs. Sucheta Kripalani, who is a member of Parliament and a relative of Mrs. Das Gupta, had placed the situation before Nehru.

Members of the family are concerned that Mrs. Das Gupta might try to leave India with Rossellini. The Italian film director's visa has already expired. He will have tended. Rossellini left Bombay to quit the country if it is not ex-last night for New Delhi.

Dish-Washing Is Part Of Terms

ANDERSON, S. C. (AP) — The defendant in a non-support case told Circuit Judge J. B. Pruitt yesterday that his wife nagged him about doing housework.

"I didn't marry her to wash dishes," protested Andrew McAbee.

"I didn't marry to wash dishes either," retorted the judge, "but I do sometimes." He ordered McAbee to pay $60 monthly toward support of his wife and child.

Owner Robert Mathias explained he was trying to asphyxiate an elusive cricket whose chirping had annoyed him for a week. Mathias now reports his car is cricket-less.
