A Familiar Scene At Teen-er Park

THE PITCH—Tonight, this scene will flash for the third time this season at Guy Smith Stadium's Teen-er Field, when the Home Builders and the Guaranty Bank teams clash. Above, Home Builders' Merrill Bynum delivers a fastball that was caught in mid-air by the camera. Despite a no-hitter, Bynum lost this game 6-1. The Guaranty Bank won their only game thus far, 15-4, Tuesday night. Gametime is set for 7:45. (Reflector Sports Photo by Billy Arnold).

Greenville P & M, Dairy Win Softball Contests

Last night at Guy Smith Stadium, Greenville Parts and Metals whipped the Graniters 5-3 and the Carolina Dairy downed Carolina Telephone and Telegraph, 10-4, in City Softball competition.

In the first game, Charlie Odom went the full distance for the Greenville P&M and received credit for the victory. The losing team tapped him for nine hits but were unable to stretch the hits into sufficient runs.

Dan Gordon was the losing pitcher. He was slammed for seven runs.

The winners tallied in the first, second, third, fourth and sixth innings to keep the game moving. The Graniters scored all three of their runs in the first inning.

Jack Huggins was the key hitter for Greenville P&M, with three for three. Mayo Allen and Charlie Allen collected two each. Harold Ingram cracked three for three for the losers.

In the second game, Carolina Dairy turned on the power in the third, sixth and seventh innings to blast the Carolina T&T, 10-4. The Dairy pushed across one run in the third, three in the sixth and six in the seventh.

Bill Brantley was the winning pitcher, giving up eight hits. His own team backed him up with nine. W. H. Phillips Jr. hurled for the Carolina T&T. He fanned three and issued three walks.

Mack Roebuck, Bob Dash and D. W. Walker smashed two hits each to pace the Dairy clubs. Bob Reid, Phillips and Buddy Lee cracked two each for the losers.

A doubleheader softball affair will take place tonight at Guy Smith Stadium between the four teams of the City Softball League beginning at 7:30.

Carolina Dairy will battle the Greenville Parts and Metals and the Graniters will face the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph crew.

In a non-City League game last week, the Carolina Dairy nine went to Roanoke Rapids to battle the highly-regarded Romanos in a doubleheader.

The first game ended 1-0 in favor of the Roanoke Rapids team. Dan Gordon was the losing hurler for the Dairy, despite a three-hit game of pitching. Carolina Dairy got only two hits, and made no errors.

The second contest ended in a 7-7 deadlock. Charlie Yates pitched for the Greenville outfit and was relieved in the final inning by home team. Dairy outbatted the Romanos, eight to six and committed two errors to the Romanos' three.

Catcher Ralph Heidenrich slammed a homerun early in the contest and manager Pete Caraway, pinch-hitting for Bob Dash in the fifth, slammed another to tie the game.

The rest of the CD lineup was as follows: Brantley, first base; Hall, second base; Tripp, shortstop; Dash, third base; Walker, left field; Moyle, centerfield; Riddick, right field.

Winston-Salem shaved another game off Durham's lead last night and moved within two games of the front-running Bulls in the Carolina League pennant scramble.

While Winston-Salem was blasting Greensboro 9-4 at Greensboro, Durham was dropping a 9-7 decision to Danville at Danville.

High Point-Thomasville defeated Wilson 8-3 at Thomasville to snap an eight-game losing streak. Jerry Kettle hurled an effective seven-hitter for the Hi-Toms and Bill Ford was the batting star with two home runs.

Experience Vs. Youth Today At Indianapolis

By DALE BURGESS
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Four crafty old men—as ages go in auto racing—pitted their years of experience against 29 hard-driving younger pilots today in the 41st running of the 500-mile auto race at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Track veterans called it the most wide-open race since the opener in 1911, with at least 10 drivers rated a chance to win.

Two of the toughest old timers, never able to win the big Memorial Day pot but always contenders, were Paul Russo of Canoga Park, Calif., who wrecked his Novi while leading last year's "500," and Fred Agabashian, Walnut Creek, Calif., driving one of 11 new style Kurtis-Krafts. Both are 43.

Sam Hanks, Pacific Palisades, Calif., 42, was starting in a new horizontal engine. Salih-Epperly car that could revolutionize race car design if it finishes well.

Seven Local Boys Sign For Soap Box Race

Seven Greenville youngsters have registered for the 13th Annual Kinston Soap Box Derby, which is slated to be held on June 30—or July 4, should rain mar the first date.

The Kinston derby, sponsored by the Kinston and the North Carolina Chevrolet Dealers, is one of several in the state. The winner of the Kinston race will receive an all-expense-paid trip to Akron, Ohio, for the All-American Derby, which will decide the National Derby winner.

Included in the festivities at Kinston are expected to be celebrities, a parade, prizes and possibly a banquet.

Winner of the Akron race will receive a $5,000 college scholarship. There are four other college scholarships awarded as runner-up prizes, as well as a complete encyclopedia set, motion picture projector and camera, a workshop unit, a Trans-Oceanic portable radio and trophies for best breaks and fastest heat.

Others May Join
The seven Greenville youngsters who have already signed up for the race are the first entrants from this area. Others who meet the requirements and are interested, are invited to contact White Chevrolet Company here.

The only requirements for signing up for the race are that a boy must be between the ages of 11 and 15 years old.

Greenville's seven entrants thus far are listed below: Tommy Brown of 1904 East 6th St., Larry Dunn of 1802 East 6th St., Bobby Helwig of 806½ James St., Jack Foley III of 121 North Woodlawn Ave., Cliff Fleming Jr. of 804 River Drive, Roy Johnson of 100 Rotary Ave., Robert Moore of 210 Manhattan Ave.

There is no charge for entering the race and boys from all over this end of the state are signing up through their local Chevrolet dealers. Wheels for the racers are furnished in this area by White Chevrolet Company and all other details, such as individual sponsors, are handled by White Chevrolet.

Cobb Talks To Milwaukee Club

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Ty Cobb, the old "Georgia Peach," visited the Milwaukee Braves' clubhouse yesterday before their game with the Chicago Cubs and answered more questions than a contestant going for broke on a quiz show.

Cobb, who was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame in 1936 as one of the game's greatest hitters and base stealers, sat on a folding chair firing back answers at a cluster of inquiring players.

Had he really leveled that bitter blast at modern-day ballplayers and how the game has changed? Bobby Thomson asked that one.

"Well," said the 70-year-old Cobb with a wry grin, "I criticized some, but nothing like they made out."

The conversation got around to the art of base stealing.

"Take a lead you know you can bet back with," Cobb said. "Watch the pitcher's foot. That oftentimes is the tipoff to what he's going to do. You know lots of pitchers rear away back with that foot. Sometimes they go so far you can easily steal on him."

How about stealing third? Isn't that a lot tougher than stealing second?

"No," said the old master. "It was easier. Don't depend on the third base coach to watch the infielders for you. Do it yourself and gauge your lead. Generally you can take a longer lead off second. And that throw to third sometimes is harder for the catcher to make."

MECKS CHOSEN FOR AAU HONOR

GREENSBORO (AP)—Frank Meeks of the Columbia, S.C., Lions Club is the Carolina AAU honor roll selection for May.

Meeks, an accounting professor at the University of South Carolina, was recognized for his part in planning the highly successful Teague Award banquet in Columbia at which the outstanding amateur athletes of the Carolinas were honored.

AAU President Joe Glynn said in making the announcement here yesterday:

"Such affairs are a vital part of the Carolinas AAU, and we want to help express our appreciation to Frank Meeks and the Columbia Lions Club in this manner. Many men took part in the planning of the Teague banquet, but it was Meeks who not only quarterbacked the job, but carried it out."

Ortiz Wins Out Over Another Foe

CHICAGO (AP)—Carlos Ortiz hopes today to win recognition as a contender for the lightweight championship after his unanimous decision over Felix Chiocca of Paris, France.

The victory last night in the 10-round bout at Chicago Stadium ran Ortiz's undefeated string through 24 bouts.

The 20-year-old Ortiz, a Puerto Rican who lives in New York, displayed aggressiveness and speed, but he couldn't find enough openings in the cage Chiocca's defense to win more impressively.

Referee Bill Doty saw it 47-43. Judge Frank McAdams 48-43 and Judge Howard Walsh 48-44. The Associated Press card had the fight even, 47 each.

Chiocca weighed 137, Ortiz 134.

Overcome Giant Lead To Post Important Win

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The National League met its first mile post today with the pennant race every bit as close as expected—but what are those Philadelphia Phillies doing up there with Cincinnati, Brooklyn and Milwaukee?

The Phils had been figured for a fourth-place fight with St. Louis, with the winner well behind the Big Three. Going into the Memorial Day double-headers, the Phils were in fourth place, all right, but only three games behind Cincinnati's first-place Redlegs and just a length behind third-place Milwaukee.

To do it, Manager Mayo Smith has blended a so-far-dandy rookie crop with a few old hands for a combination that hasn't done so well against the Redlegs, Dodgers or Braves (3-7), but has belted the second-division clubs at a .692 clip (18-8).

They were at it again yesterday, blowing a 5-1 lead but coming back to score twice in the 10th, with the help of an error, to defeat the New York Giants 7-5. It was Philadelphia's seventh success in the last 10 games.

With the victory, the Phils closed ground on the idle Redlegs, who also saw their lead trimmed to 1½ games over Brooklyn as the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 1-0 on an unearned run and Johnny Podres' three-hitter. The Braves also gained with a 6-2 job on the Chicago Cubs.

In the American League, Cleveland's Indians moved into a second-place tie, two games behind first-place Chicago, by defeating the White Sox 8-4 in 10 innings. The New York Yankees gave up a share of the second spot with a 6-2 defeat at Washington. Detroit moved into fourth place by defeating Kansas City for the first time this season 4-3.

The Boston Red Sox slipped to fifth, losing 3-1 to Baltimore. Veteran Gran Hamner drove in three of the Phillies' runs at New York as Robin Roberts, a sixth-inning loser, won his third with a perfect two-inning relief job. Marv Grissom lost it in relief, giving up a walk ahead of a two-base error by first baseman Gail Harris on rookie Ed Bouchee's grounder.

Willie Mays extended his hitting streak to 16 games with an RBI single that capped a four-run Giant eighth that tied it 5-4.

Bob Buhl won his third for the Braves, four-hitting the Cubs. Felix Mantilla had three of Milwaukee's 12 hits off loser Don Kaiser and two relievers.

The Dodgers wrapped up Podres' third shutout (tops in the NL) and fourth victory on a two-out, two-base error in the eighth by Frank Thomas and a follow-up single by Gino Cimoli. Winless Ron Kline lost his seventh despite a five-hitter.

Rookie Larry Raines was 4-for-4 for the Indians, delivering his second four times in the 10th after Vic Wertz's sixth home run had produced two runs to tie it 4-4 in the ninth. Raines also had his first home run and a single.

Old TV Comedians Are Seeing End Of The Line

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (P)—Sid Caesar left regular network television in the best show business tradition. He did not creep off like a dying swan Saturday evening.

Those who came to watch could literally say they were there to honor rather than to bury Caesar. For in his final appearance on NBC-TV he presented some of his finest satires.

Caesar ran into sponsor problems and NBC did not feel it could afford to pick up the weekly $120,000 tab for his program. The network believed he was suffering from over-exposure on TV. Caesar did not and terminated his long-term contract with NBC to join Sylvester M. (Pat) Weaver in a new theatrical production firm.

His departure added to other news about television comedians presents a surprising picture.

Jackie Gleason is dropping his regular weekly show on CBS-TV next season. Milton Berle has said he will not be back. Jimmy Durante has left us. Herb Shriner does not have a regular spot.

Now Ernie Kovacs, a genuine funny man who had a phenomenally rapid rise on TV in the past year, has indicated that he's had it in the medium; he is not expected to sign a new contract with NBC.

As of this writing, the well-known straight comedians who will be seen regularly on the home screen next season appear to be only three. Jack Benny will continue to appear on alternate weeks for a half hour on CBS-TV. George Gobel will be teamed with Eddie Fisher on a regular weekly hour on NBC-TV. And Bob Hope will be doing hour programs once a month for the same network.

What has happened here? Well, exactly what the funny men have warned us would happen. It is too difficult, most of them have said, to do an hour-long original comedy program once a week.

The seven weekly hour drama programs scheduled for next fall compare to 14 which were scheduled for last fall.

There emerges something of the shape of next season's evening programming: fewer comedians, fewer hour-length dramatic shows.

'Depression' For One By Bandits

PHILADELPHIA (P)—Three men walked into a tavern and ordered beers. They sat talking at the bar, discussing how tough it is to get along these days.

The trio tried to draw bartender Elwood Stolle into the conversation, asking him if he thought there would be a depression. Stolle was noncommittal.

One of the three suddenly put down his glass, vaulted the bar and said:

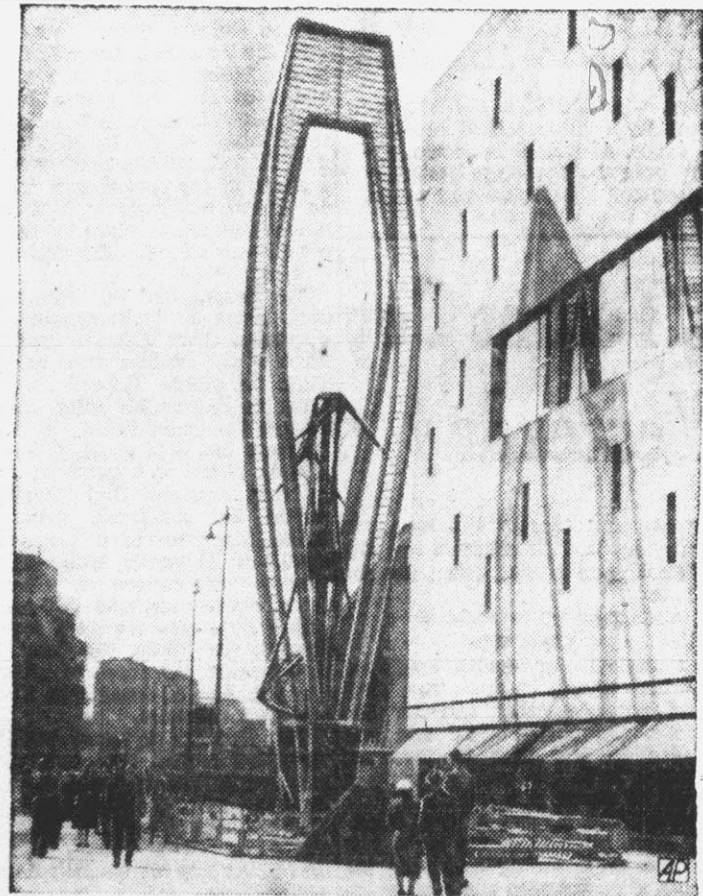

"This is your depression." With that he grabbed Stolle's wallet containing $50 and the three "customers" fled.

Hodges Pushes Flood Insurance

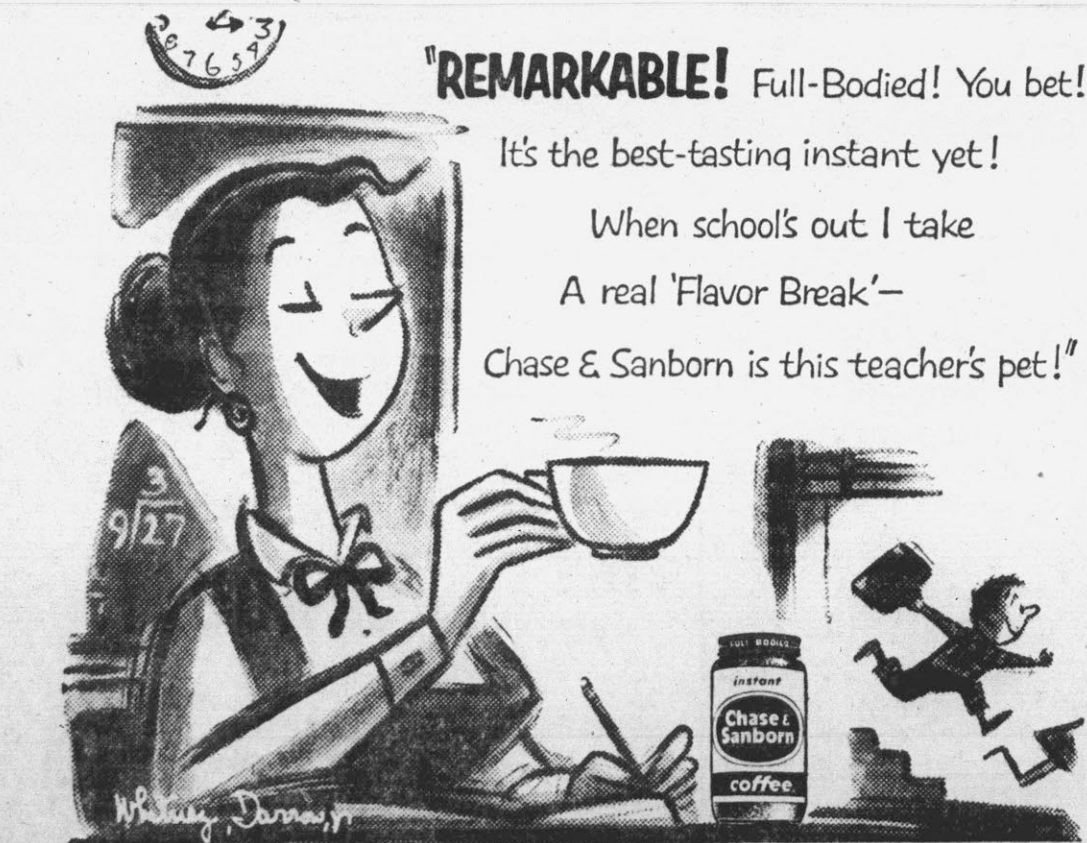

WASHINGTON (P)—Doubts that the House will go along with the Senate in approving about 14 million dollars to start a federal flood insurance program were expressed yesterday by some North Carolina congressmen.

Gov. Hodges of North Carolina sent a telegram to the Carolina legislators urging them to do all they can to get the money approved. The House has rejected it once this year.

Young German Native Charms His Customers

FRED BECK, singing salesman out of Germany.

By EVERETTE PARKER
Reflector Staff Writer

The singing salesman did his number. Fred Beck, who enjoys singing almost as much as he does his work of tinting women's hair, had been singing for more than 30 minutes before he finally decided to sit down and relax.

This unusual young native of southern Germany has found time to charm more than one customer in Eastern North Carolina. Greenville is his headquarters while he travels to neighboring towns with a guitar and an exceptional knowledge of hair coloration.

"You know," he said, "I like this part of the South. Greenville is a nice peaceful town with friendly people. This is one of the things I enjoy about your country — the wonderful people."

To exemplify this, Beck went on to tell about his first experience on the golf course out at the Greenville Gold and Country Club. "I have never played before but Roy (Roy Honeycutt of Honeycutt's Beauty Supply) insisted that I go out and hit a round with him," he laughingly said.

"I am afraid all this was a mistake because the first ball I hit almost killed several golfers nearby."

Before the day was over, Beck said he had hit an automobile with a ball and nearly broke a window in the club house.

Beck went on to say, "Despite this everyone was very nice to me, even the gentlemen whom I almost hit."

Taking another puff off his cigarette, the young man sincerely opined, "You don't find people like this everywhere."

Before coming to this country

two years ago, Beck gained considerable prominence in the European theatre as a singer. "This I did more as a sideline," he explained.

After taking private singing lessons in Munich for four years, he tried his hand on the stage. Listed among the cities he worked are Istanbul, Athens, and Munich.

Most of his singing was done in the semi-classical and popular vein. This work lasted for a little more than a year. Even during this time his primary interest lay in the field of hair styling and tinting.

"I can easily say I enjoyed my experiences in the field of entertainment," he went on.

Even after coming to this country, Beck did some entertainment work in New York night clubs. Most of his singing is done with a guitar which he plays with quite a bit of authority.

The talented German can sing in five languages, English, German, Spanish, Italian and French. "I do no Elvis Presley rock 'n' roll though," he was quick to state.

Asked about the type of music he sings, he said, "It depends on my mood and who I am working on."

Being 34-years-old, single and definitely eligible, he was asked about his plans concerning matrimony.

"No, no not yet," he explained, "but sometime before long."

"Right now I like to be free and stand on Peachtree Street in Atlanta and watch the pretty girls go by."

Beck lives in Atlanta at the present time, having been there since the first of the year. He represents a hair cosmetic corporation and travels throughout North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama.

He finished his cigarette and got up to play again. After a few words the hair coloring expert who plans to make America his home looked at this watch.

"I've got an appointment in 5 minutes."

He put down the musical instrument, bowed, left in a hurry saying "Auf Wiedersehen," on his way out the front door.

'Drone' Aircraft Crashes In Field

COLFA, Wash. (AP)—A runaway Navy drone plane crashed harmlessly in a farmer's wheat field west of here late yesterday after an erratic, pilotless flight over four states.

The converted P6F Hellcat fighter, which ran out of gas, would have been over the heavily populated Spokane area in another few minutes.

Two Idaho Air Guard jets had been sent up and were flying escorts as the drone neared the end of its journey and a Navy jet had been dispatched from Spokane with orders to try to deflect it from the city.

The propeller-driven drone, which broke its electronic controls about over the Death Valley Monument in California, went through weird aerial acrobatics at the end, according to witnesses who saw it dive into a small hill.

"It flopped around, teetered and dove down," said Mrs. Art Jensen.

A big flare in the sky came just before the crash," said Sherry Daubert, 19, on whose father's farm the drone hit. "Fire went up and the plane burst into flame."

The unmanned plane crashed about three hours after it had broken electronic contact with a mother ship and ground controls. It flew generally northward across parts of California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington at a speed of about 250 knots at an elevation of around 20,000 feet.

IT WORKED

NEW DELHI (AP)—Hundreds of cows were brought yesterday by government order to the drought-dried bed of the sacred Bagmati River at Katmandu. Farmers milked the cows onto the river bed, hoping to appease the Hindu river goddess. Last night it rained.

Memorial Day Takes New Meaning To Town

SIGOURNEY, Iowa (AP)—Memorial Day takes on new meaning today in this southeast Iowa community, touched only last fall by one of America's saddest auto tragedies.

In a quiet rural Catholic cemetery near here arises a monument commemorating the deaths of eight children in a car-train crash last Oct. 25.

It is a statue of Christ on the cross with the figures of the mother Mary and the apostle John standing nearby.

It rests on a curved altar of native stone from the fields surrounding this farming community. Some of the stones come from the rock garden of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hammes, parents of the eight children.

Some distance from the statue, in a common grave, sleep the eight youngsters—killed when the car in which their mother was driving the older children to school was struck by a train.

Eight heads of wheat adorn the base of the cross on which the statue of Christ hangs. They represent the eight Hammes children—Ronnie and Donnie, 9-year-old twins; Karen, 8; Linda, 7; Gary, 6; Rosemary, nearly 3; and 1-year-old twins, Ricky and Icky.

These words from the Bible (Jeremiah 31:15) are graven on a bronze plaque: "A voice was heard on high of lamentation, of mourning and weeping, of Rachel weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted because none is left."

"Thus saith the Lord: 'let thy voice cease from weeping and thine eyes from tears. The children shall return to their own borders.'"

"Thus did the eight Hammes children."

"Oct. 25, 1956"

Erection of the memorial has been a labor of love and sorrow to which friends, neighbors and relatives of the Hammes family contributed their money and efforts.

"We felt it offers the only way in which we could express appreciation for all the help we've had," said Mrs. Hammes, now recovered from injuries suffered in the accident.

The memorial was designed by Sister Mary Clarence of Marycrest College in Davenport, Iowa, and the figures were cast in aluminum at a Davenport foundry.

Cork Bottles Up Traffic Noises

DENVER (AP)—A two-inch blanket of cork was laid under a downtown Denver street to keep traffic noise out of the basement of a new hotel and department store.

After excavating under the street for the basement, workers placed a new surface on one block of Court Place, between 15th and 16th streets.

The cork was placed atop a concrete slab that makes up the ceiling of the fourth floor of the huge basement. Five layers of waterproofing were placed on the cork before a 10-inch concrete slab was poured to form the foundation for a two-inch asphalt street surface.

French Political Logjam Showing Signs Of Ending

PARIS (AP)—The French political logjam today showed signs of breaking as Pierre Pflimlin, 50-year-old Alsatian leader of the liberal Catholic MRP, agreed to try to form a government.

With several factors tilting the odds in his favor, Pflimlin, 50-year-old Alsatian leader of the liberal Catholic MRP, agreed to try to form a government.

Since Pflimlin is national chairman of the MRP (Popular Republican Movement), there was no doubt the convention would endorse his decision.

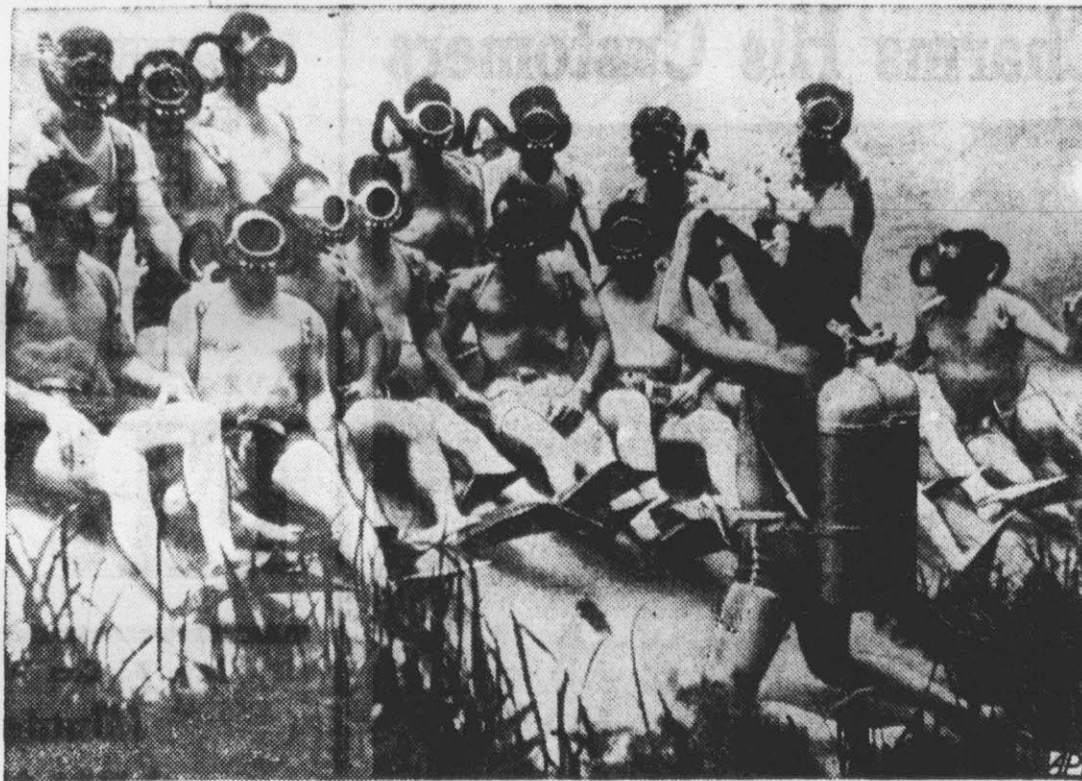

President Rene Coty asked Pflimlin to take on the Cabinet-forming task after ex-Premier Rene Pleven advised the President he had been unable to work out a platform agreeable to France's center parties.

Pflimlin told the President he would take on the job if his party agreed and if he could line up sufficient support from the other parties in the much-divided National Assembly.

He promised Coty a definite answer tomorrow night.

If Pflimlin can put together a government with majority backing, he probably will go before the Assembly Monday or Tuesday for its endorsement. Coty, meanwhile, would finally accept Socialist Premier Guy Mollet's resignation, which he has kept on ice for nine days.

The MRP is a slightly left-of-center party which came to post-war prominence under the leadership of former Premier Georges Bidault and Robert Schuman. The party is very close to the Socialists on all issues except state aid to church schools, which the Socialists bitterly oppose.

BUBBLING WITH ENTHUSIASM—State law enforcement officers begin at the bottom to learn use of underwater diving gear at Silver Springs, Fla. Technique will be used in rescue work and recovering illegal devices such as traps, nets and guns used by hunters.

Learned About It The Hard Way

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP)—Truck driver Robert Reed Welch learned about a bank robbery the hard way.

County Deputy Sheriff Arch Edwards for passing a car in a "double yellow line no passing zone."

When he paid his $14 fine in a Justice of the Peace Court, he was told that the car he passed was held up by a roadblock set up after a bank robbery at Campbell Hill.

Sentenced For Disobedience

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Marine Corps Pvt. Peter Green, who says his religious convictions won't let him bear arms, has been convicted of disobeying orders and sentenced to four months at hard labor.

The Evanston, Ill. youth's claim that he is a conscientious objector was disallowed yesterday by a four-man court-martial board. Green's attorney said he would appeal the decision.

Green was ordered to trial after refusing to draw a rifle and resume combat training March 18 after his release from sick bay.

The board took an hour and 34 minutes to find Green, 18, guilty and another 24 minutes to fix sentence. In addition to the term in the post brig, Green was ordered to forfeit $55 a month of his $93.20 private's pay while serving time.

The Rev. Eugene C. Wood, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Oceanside, called the verdict "a terrible miscarriage of justice."

Green, a Methodist, also had the support of Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles, who testified for the defense.

Prosecutor Gerald Gaffney, in his losing argument, called Green's objection to continuing his combat training "the confused meandering of an insincere adolescent."

Green was ordered to trial after refusing to draw a rifle and resume combat training March 18 after his release from sick bay.

'Hat' On An Artificial Moon Will Tell Outer Space Story

by ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the artificial moons speeding through space will wear a little hat.

And for a time it will be a three-car space train—composed of the satellite ball, a big inflated balloon, and part of the rocket that shoots it up. They'll whiz by, one-two-three, in the same orbit.

Such are the plans, coming along well, for the third group of experiments with man-made moons.

Like all others, this moon will be round and shining. But it will contain a magnetometer, a device to measure magnetic currents. Part of the equipment will stick up out of the top like a round pipe, resembling a hat.

When this moon separates from its rocket, a plastic balloon wrapped around the connecting stem will be released, and be inflated by a little cylinder of gas. The balloon — 2½ feet wide — will become another satellite.

This will probe the secret of how much air or gas there is in space.

Speeding 18,000 miles per hour, the little moons will bump into numerous air molecules, and this drag will slow them down.

How much the satellites will be slowed will tell scientists about the volume of gases in space. Every one of the little moons can be observed for this information.

But even more will be told by releasing the lightweight balloon, for it will be 200 times more sensitive to air drag than the metal ball.

The third-stage rocket becomes a satellite too, for a while, but is affected by air drag more than the moon itself, because of its weight. Only for a while will each "car" in this train keep the same orbit. Air drag will change their paths significantly.

Each one of the little moons will help answer another significant question: What is the exact shape of the earth, and its mass composition?

The earth is not a perfect sphere. Variations in its pull of gravity, due to differences in its mass, will affect the orbits of the satellites. By special computations, much can be learned about the shape of the earth, relative position of land masses, and even the composition of the earth's crust.

Once the orbit of moon is known, scientists can take sightings on it and more nearly pinpoint the exact location of any spot on earth. Right now, distances between continents, or points at opposite sides of our globe, are in error by a number of feet.

In a main task, the moon with a hat will report new data about the deep mystery of magnetism. Great magnetic currents appear to exist out in space. Are they really there? And what causes variations in the earth's magnetic field? What's the significance? This moon can get answers, will have batteries to radio reports for 50 days.

Projects being considered for later moons could produce vital information concerning weather and climate. One moon could plot the amount and motion of clouds over the earth. Another could measure how much radiation comes to and escapes from the earth. Decisions should be made shortly on just what the fourth and subsequent moons will do.

Finding the moon after it's launched could be difficult—an object the size of a bushel basket hung hundreds of miles into space. It might escape detection altogether.

But scientists are confident they can find it. Amateur observers, carefully trained and located, may see it first, and get data to learn its true orbit. Radio monitoring stations will hear its voice.

Twelve special telescopes, manned by professionals and strategically placed around the world, will focus on the moons and learn what air drag and gravity are doing to them.

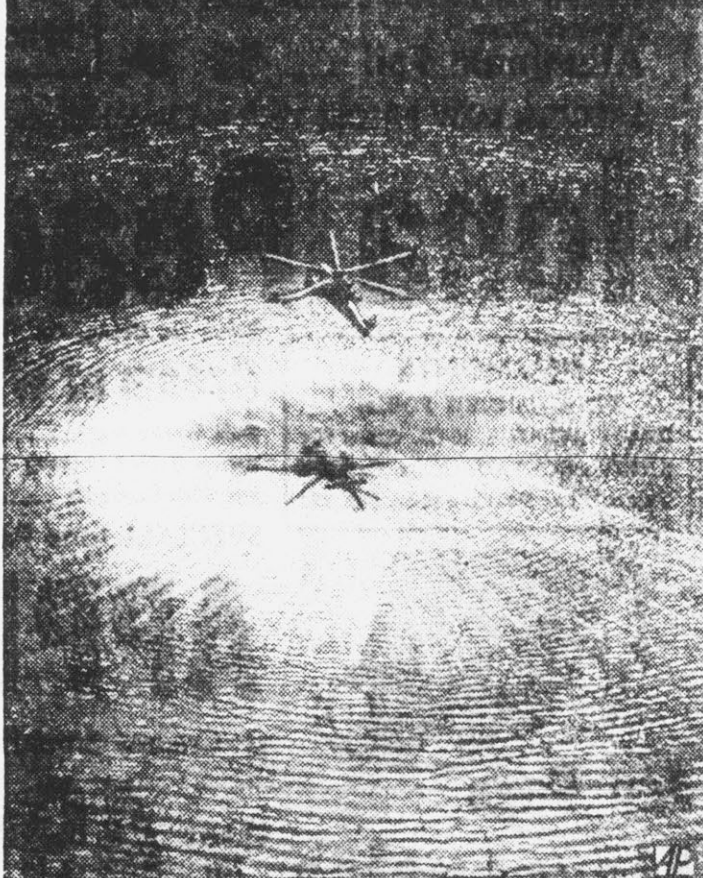

With luck, you may glimpse the moon yourself, just after sunset, or just before sunrise. You'll probably need binoculars.

Your daily newspaper very likely will carry timetables and maps showing you when and where to look.

Once in the void, a moon may live for days, weeks, or possibly even years, depending on altitude and speed, and what it meets.

But inevitably, this precious messenger must die. Air drag will bring it closer and closer to earth until it whips down into the earth's thick blanket of air. Friction will turn it into an incandescent torch, burning it like a shooting star.

IMPRESSION ON SOUND — Downdraft from rotors of giant S-56 helicopter creates eddy pattern on Long Island Sound near Stratford, Conn., as craft hovers near the surface.

Wants Science Take Over Late Television Hours

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A leading scientist proposed today that his colleagues take over the late late hours on television for informal round-table discussions.

As a start, Dr. I. M. Levitt, director of the Fels Planetarium of the Franklin Institute here, proposed that scientists hold such discussions to iron out problems arising in connection with the launching of the proposed earth satellite.

Dr. Levitt said his proposal was prompted by postponement of the satellite's launching date from September of this year until April 1958.

The delay, he said, is due largely to theoretical difficulties which could be resolved if sufficient scientists in the guided missile field were permitted to sit down in television studios throughout the nation and discuss the problems. He proposed that the networks pool one hour in the early morning-time normally devoted to "stupid movies" — for such coast-to-coast meetings.

No Gratitude By This Cabbie

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A visitor to Oklahoma City complained to police he was "taken for a ride" by a taxi-driver.

He said he took a taxi to a nightclub, then invited the driver to join him in a drink.

After they had finished drinking, the cab driver demanded $8.95. The driver claimed that was how much time had been run up on the meter while they were inside.

Reduced Defense Appropriation Bill Is Given To Senate On 394-1 Vote

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP)—In a major rebuff to President Eisenhower, the House has decided that the Defense Department can get along on $33,562,725,000 in new appropriations next year.

That's $2,565,275,000 less than the President had requested and $1,200,000,000 below what he pleaded with his House leaders to try to restore to the bill.

The House sent the biggest money bill of the year to the Senate yesterday by a roll call vote of 394-1. The lone dissenter was Rep. Carlisle (R-N.J.), who objected to the deep cut.

In doing so, the House ignored Eisenhower's warning that if the $1,200,000,000 cut stood, aircraft procurement and guided missile development would suffer. The President made no fight for $1,300,000,000 of the cut, describing it as a "bookkeeping operation."

With an economy drive in full swing in the Senate, as well as in the House, it appeared that Eisenhower's hopes for winning his battle there were none too bright.

However, Sen. Chavez (D-NM), chairman of a Senate Appropriations subcommittee which has been studying the defense money requests, said that "if it is necessary in the interest of national security to restore the House cuts, all or in part, I am confident that this committee will do it."

The House hurled back every attempt by Republicans to increase amounts recommended by the Appropriations Committee. The big test came on a move to add 313 million dollars which the House previously had denied in piecemeal fashion. It was beaten on a roll call vote 242-151.

Voting to add the 313 million dollars were 140 Republicans and 11 Democrats. Opposing it were 39 Republicans and 203 Democrats. The additional money would have been spread among all three branches of the service, with the Air Force getting the biggest allotment.

The House upset its Appropriations Committee on only one allotment, and the committee didn't oppose that. It gave the Air Force an extra 21½ million dollars to pay for its share of a new air navigation control system being set up by the Civil Aeronautics Administration to handle high-speed jet planes.

The funds voted by the house for the fiscal year starting July 1 included these for the three services: Army $7,239,425,000, a cut of $1,225,575,000; Navy $9,801,355,000, a cut of $685,645,000; and Air Force $15,823,220,000, a cut of $647,780,000. The balance of the money goes to the office of the secretary of defense and to inter-service activities.

Sparkman Has Kind Words For Omnibus Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) today called the Senate's 1957 omnibus housing bill "a very good one considering the climate we're in."

The Senate passed the $1,600,000,000 measure last night 69-1 after three days of debate. The bill was sent to conference with the House, which earlier had voted a $2,475,000,000 measure.

Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) cast the only negative vote.

Both Senate and House bills provide for lower down payments on housing loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

The Senate whacked 1¼ billion dollars in new authorizations out of the $2,850,000,000 total recommended by its Banking Committee.

But Sparkman, floor manager for the measure and chairman of the Senate Housing subcommittee, said in an interview the cuts were not crippling. He pointed out that some funds were made available to continue many key housing programs.

"We had many cross currents in the Senate," he said, "including a fear of inflation if housing is expanded, and the desire of many senators to vote for reductions." This is what he meant when he spoke of "the climate we're in."

The authorizations in the Senate bill still were about 450 millions above President Eisenhower's housing requests.

But Sparkman and other senators, including some Republicans, pointed out that many of these were loan items which will be repaid.

The authorizations will provide new funds for slum clearance, for a secondary market for home mortgages if private lenders do not provide enough money, and for loans for college housing, military housing, cooperative housing, and for such special groups as the elderly and minorities.

Lower down payments on FHA-insured loans are assured by Senate passage of the bill since both versions provide for this.

The Senate plan, slightly more liberal than the House, calls for a new scale of 3 per cent down on the first $10,000 of the cost of a house, 10 per cent on the next $6,000, and 30 per cent above that up to a ceiling of $20,000.

The House bill sets the same minimums except that the rate is 15 per cent on the $10,000-$16,000 portion.

Present law calls for 5 per cent on the first $9,000, and 25 per cent above that.

The chief difference in the two bills is that the House voted a far larger sum for the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Assn. The House allowed $1,625,000,000 in new funds for this; the Senate 400 million.

Fill'er Up, And Lose Some Gas

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Battalion Chief Wayne Gross of the Santa Ana Fire Department, says it may not be the best idea to "fill 'er up" when you pull into a service station.

He said calls to the fire department to check on leaking gasoline tanks have prompted a warning that a tank filled to the brim with cool gasoline may not be big enough for the expanding fuel when the temperature climbs at midday. In addition, he said, the car may be parked with the tank opening on the down-slanted side, and a leak may result.

Big Business Is Turning Rapidly To Aerial Travel

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—More and more planes are flying executives and technicians on corporate business. More corporations are buying their own planes and hiring their own pilots and maintenance men.

In 1946 business owned about 2,500 planes. Ten years later it had about 23,000.

The National Business Aircraft Assn. estimates investment in business flying, including maintenance, at 475 million dollars. The planes range from small personal types to huge million-dollar craft.

The Flight Safety Foundation, which started its business aircraft safety program in 1955, estimates that business-owned planes will be ticking off 5½ million flying hours by 1960. The more planes, the more flying, and therefore the greater the safety problem in crowded skies.

Civil Aeronautics Administration figures for 1954, latest available for all types of flying, puts the fatal accident rate for all business flying at 7.10 per 100 million miles. This is sharply higher than the rate of the U. S. domestic airlines, which was 0.50 per 100 million fatality rate for pleasure flying.

Incentive Plan For Statehood

HONOLULU (AP)—The Board of Supervisors has a problem — it is running out of Hawaiian words to use as street names in fast-growing Honolulu.

"The Hawaiian language has only 12 letters," a supervisor explained, "and we are scraping the barrel for suitable words, now."

A colleague came up with a suggestion:

"Let's promise to name a street for every senator who votes for statehood for Hawaii."

Top Grades By Non-Lung Girl

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C. (AP)—A 14-year-old girl who attends college in an iron lung yesterday received the freshman scholarship award in ceremonies at Gardner-Webb Junior College here.

She is Martha Mason, who has been confined to an iron lung since 1948. She hears class lectures and takes part in discussion by way of a two-way communications system between the classroom and the apartment where she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Mason of Lenoir.

Her 97.22 average for 17 semester hours was the highest achieved by any freshman.

New Army Mule Found In A Tree

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—The Army's mechanical mule, a successor to the jeep, is likely to be found anywhere. This one was found in a tree.

The mule, dropped by parachute from a plane, landed in a giant tree, 40 feet from the ground. Soldiers used a block and tackle to lower it to the ground.

JUMPING FOR JOY — Joey, a baby kangaroo born with a slipped tendon in its left leg, leaps into air after operation at Baltimore zoo. Apparently the operation was a success.

miles, but notably lower than the which was 95 per 100 million miles.

The foundation's safety program now serves 122 companies owning and operating aircraft for business. It issues business pilots safety bulletins and sponsors seminars to give business pilots a chance to share information in navigation, traffic control, communications and general operations. Company planes are mainly at the disposal of top corporate executives. But in these complicated times they are used increasingly by other employees. Sales officials, top technicians, purchasing agents and labor relations men are flown to spots needing attention.

Doctor Meets His Benefactors

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP)—Dr. Ricardo Fernando of the Philippine Islands, spent Christmas week here meeting members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship who helped him get his medical education.

For the past five years the teen aged members of the fellowship contributed $600 annually to help pay for the 28-year-old physician's schooling.

Dr. Fernando received his degree in the Philippines and is now taking postgraduate work in internal medicine at Harvard Medical School and serving at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Contractor Forfeited His Bond, Says F. D. Duncan

A Mount Pleasant electrical contractor who wants legislative permission to sue East Carolina College and the State of North Carolina for $1,500 has tried to get such permission before.

A bill similar to bills rejected by previous General Assemblies was introduced this week in an effort to permit G. D. Medlin to initiate legal proceedings against the College and the State. Medlin contends that he placed a certified check in the amount of $1,500 with the treasurer of the college as a bond on a sealed bid for an electrical improvements contract at the college. He also says the college cashed the check and retained the proceeds although he did not get the contract.

ECC Vice-President F. D. Duncan said this morning that Medlin's troubles with the college started in 1950. Duncan explained that Medlin was low bidder on a project for "considerable electrical renovating work" but refused the contract because of "personal objections to specifications for the project."

Duncan also said that state laws require contractors to post a five per cent bid bond on bids for state work. The bid bonds are posted with provision that if the low bidder does not accept the contract, the bid bond is forfeited.

Because Medlin was low bidder, and did not accept the contract, his bond was forfeited. Duncan said he deposited the check to the credit of the state treasurer on advice of the state Budget Bureau.

Since that time, according to Duncan, Medlin has been trying to get the $1,500 back. The ECC Vice-President said Medlin had been blocked thus far by refusal of the General Assembly to approve bills which would grant permission to start a suit.

The bill which was introduced this week was placed before the Assembly by representatives E. T. Bost Jr. of Cabarrus County and Clyde A. Shreve of Guilford County.

Questions Basic Policy On Chiang

WASHINGTON (A) — Rep. Zablocki (D-Wis) said today the recent severe anti-American riots on Formosa raise a question about basic U.S. policy toward the U.S.-backed Chiang Kai-shek government.

Zablocki, chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Far East, spoke in a statement for the Congressional Record after Secretary of State Dulles' declaration yesterday that the riots would not lead to any change in basic U.S. Far Eastern policies. Zablocki said there should be "a thorough re-examination of our position with respect to Formosa," where the Chiang regime has stayed and received heavy U.S. support since it was driven from the mainland by the Chinese Reds. "We have considered it fundamental to our own security that Formosa not fall into the hands of the Communists," Zablocki said.

"The riot in Taipei, particularly in view of its proportions, raises a question about the extent to which the population of Formosa approves the course charted by the Nationalist government, and its relationship to our country and to our basic foreign policy."

NEW YORK (AP) — Oils paced the stock market to a vigorous recovery early this afternoon.

Aircrafts and steels also showed good gains but the liveliest trading was in the oil group.

Key stocks showed plenty of gains running to a point or so while selected issues were up more than 2 points.

Prices of oil shares were spurred by the action of British Petroleum, the largest single oil producer in the Middle East, boosting the price of crude oil at Persian Gulf ports.

British Petroleum shares were heavily traded on the American Stock Exchange where they rose more than a point.

The stock market rise today surprised Wall Street observers who expected a timid performance on the eve of the memorial day

Superior Court Adjourns Early

Superior Court adjourned yesterday, ending a scheduled one-week civil term three days early.

Actions approved yesterday by Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn before adjournment included a compromise in a suit asking $1,000 for the death of a horse.

Ann Marshall Allen, through her next best friend, M. T. Allen, accepted a $300 settlement in the suit. Miss Allen's horse, a five-gaited saddle horse, was killed October 9, 1956, about two miles from Greenville on Highway 43. The suit had been entered against Jack Paris and Kenneth Leroy Johnson.

The suit was compromised after a jury had been empaneled to hear it Monday afternoon. Judge Burgwyn accepted the compromise and ordered the case dismissed yesterday.

In two other suits, brought by J. J. Perkins against Walter Garrett and Hosea Allen, Judge Burgwyn ordered continuances until a court review of the disputed real estate titles and property lines can be completed. J. M. Dresbach, registered surveyor, was appointed to make the survey for the court.

Awards Present To Three Den Mothers

Three Den Mothers received awards, the first presented in Pitt County, last night.

Recipients of the awards were Mrs. Wyatt Brown, Mrs. Hugo Williams and Mrs. Charles Cobb. The presentations were made by Scout Executive Carl Knott at the monthly meeting of Cub Scout Pack 330.

To receive this award, the Den Mothers have to serve two consecutive years in this capacity. In addition the women scouters are required to complete the basic training course for Cub Scout leadership, as well as numerous lesser requirements.

Knott stated this morning that several other Den Mothers in Cub Packs throughout the country are fulfilling requirements for the award. There are 46 Den Mothers in the Pitt Cub Scouting District.

Awards were presented to the following Cub Scouts:
Wolf: Greg Baxter, Bruce Baxter, Didi Holcombe and David Ginsberg; Golf Gold Arrow Point: Greg Baxter, Bruce Baxter, Didi Holcombe and David Ginsberg; Wolf Silver Arrow Points: David Ginsberg (2), Didi Holcombe, Jimmy Harris, Houston Tucker and Milton Hadley.

Bear: Barr Coleman; Bear Gold Arrow Point: Toby Cobb and Rex Roberts; Lion: Tom Irons and Jimmy Nethercutte; Lion Silver Arrow Point: Bill Proctor; Two Year Service Star: Kenneth Williams; Two Year Den Chief Service Star: Ronnie Williams.

Kenneth Williams won the Cub Scout Contest Medal in the Pinewood Derby race staged at last night's meeting. Runner-up in the race was Barr Coleman.

It was announced that the county-wide Pinewood Derby would be held Friday, June 7.

Peadar, Mrs. DeWitt Landing and Mrs. Carl McGowan of Greenville.

Benson Proposes Farm Price Support Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson laid before Congress yesterday specific legislative proposals for eliminating what he has called weaknesses in the administration - endorsed flexible price support system.

He previously had told the Senate and House Agriculture Committees that he foresees new surpluses growing out of this system as it now stands. He referred to provisions requiring the department of raise supports for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts as present surpluses decline.

In a letter to Chairman Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee, Benson submitted what he called "suggested language" to carry out his recommendations. Cooley had requested such help.

The secretary said the flexible law could be amended to permit the department to set supports for these crops between zero and 90 per cent of parity or, if Congress preferred, between 60 and 90 per cent of parity. The range now is 75 to 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices charged them.

The suggested language also would eliminate provisions requiring supports to be increased as supplies decline. Instead, the department would be authorized to set supports - within whatever new range was specified by law - at levels it deemed advisable after taking market demands, prices of other farm products, the availability of funds and other factors into consideration.

Benson said he would prefer that the range be set between zero

Council Promises Study Question Of Naming Mayor

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

The City Council this morning promised the county's General Assembly members that it would "further study" the question of separately electing the city's mayor.

Councilmen approved by a 3-2 vote a motion which instructed City Attorney R. B. Lee to write the county's senator and representatives and to "set forth in his letter the various ways in which the charter may be amended." The city attorney was also instructed to tell the representatives that the council will take some action on the matter in time for the next city election and "on or before Jan. 1, 1959."

The action was taken after Mayor S. Eugene West read a letter from Rep. Frank M. Wooten requesting the opinion of the Council members on the question. City Attorney Lee had earlier pointed out in the meeting that legislative action is not necessary to amend the charter.

The General Statutes set up provisions for amending the city's charter, Lee told the group.

The council members split in their final action on Wooten's request for their opinion. Councilmen J. A. Collins and W. L. Whedbee voted against the motion and Mayor West and Councilmen Wesley Harvey and Lester Turnage favored the motion.

Earlier the vote was reversed on a motion by Whedbee that no action be taken on the matter.

"It looks like this petition was not addressed to this board," he declared.

The motion was seconded by Collins and failed to carry.

At the outset of this morning's special council meeting, City Attorney Lee explained that there are actually four methods for amending the city charter.

First, he said, the Legislature could pass an act which would make the change directly.

Second, the Legislature could pass an enabling act which would set up an election on the issue.

However, Lee said neither of these procedures is necessary because the State's General Statutes cover the situation.

He said one section provides that a change can be initiated by the city's governing body which can authorize a local election on the issue.

Or it can be initiated by petition signed by 25 per cent of the qualified voters to the governing board. If such a petition is received, the City Council would be required to submit the question to the voters, he said.

Lee indicated the first method—direct amendment by the Legislature—was improbable.

Wooten said in his letter to council members: "It is my suggestion that the present session of the Legislature direct the City Council to call a referendum on the issue which will be submitted to the people for their determination and that this referendum be held during October of 1957."

However, Wooten said: "I would like to know the opinion that you and the members of your Council have in regard to this suggestion."

Wooten's letter resulted from a petition signed by local voters asking for the change in the method of electing the mayor.

Wooten said in his letter: "This morning there was presented to me a petition with 664 names, which is addressed to the three members of the Legislature from Pitt County. The petition asks that the manner of the selection of the Mayor of Greenville be changed so that the voters in the Town would designate the Mayor."

The petition was presented to Wooten last Monday morning.

The councilmen approved unanimously a motion to request the representatives of Pitt to see that the city charter now before the Legislature is approved before adjournment.

The charter was sent to the Legislature earlier this year. It is a revision of the old Board of Aldermen charter to bring the document up to date under the present Plan D form of government.

The action was taken after City Manager Leonard Bloxam reported that the charter was being held up pending action on the proposed changes in the method of electing a mayor.

He urged that the charter be approved before this session of the General Assembly adjourns.

Third Reading For Liability Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill calling for compulsory auto liability insurance was scheduled to come up for third and final reading in the Senate today.

The measure passed the Senate on second reading yesterday after a flurry of debate. Sen. Roy Rowe of Pender told the Senate "There is a tremendous cry among the public at large" for protection against damages caused by motorists unable to pay claims.

Rowe, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee, broke a tie vote in committee to send the bill to the floor.

Opposition was led by Sen. James Stikeleather of Buncombe, an insurance man. He expressed "serious doubts that the bill will accomplish its purpose."

He contended the bill would cause auto liability insurance rates to increase and that the cost to administer the measure would be heavy. He also argued it would bring a public reaction "reminiscent of mechanical inspection."

He was referring to a motor vehicle inspection program that proved so unpopular among citizens it was killed in 1949 after a short trial.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt and other House members, would require motorists to furnish proof of ability to pay damage claims before they could purchase auto license plates.

Stikeleather estimated it would take upwards of $800,000 to administer the bill. Rowe said he thought it could be done for about $120,000.

Stikeleather noted that the bill made no provisions for meeting the administrative costs to the state. This could be accomplished, Rowe said, by a separate bill if the proposal is enacted. Rowe also said that some $400,000 per year would be realized in premium taxes under the bill.

If enacted, the provisions would become effective Jan. 1, 1958, and would expire May 15, 1961.

Eppes Class, Awards Night Slated Tonight

Eppes High School's annual Class and Awards Night, scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock, will open the Negro high school's closing exercises.

Tonight's program, and the school's baccalaureate sermon Sunday, will be held in the school's old auditorium. Graduation exercises Tuesday night will be held in the new gymnasium-auditorium and will mark the first time the new structure has been used.

The Rev. W. L. Jones, pastor of the Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Music for the program will be delivered by the high school choir.

Fifth-grade Seniors, largest graduating class in the history of Eppes School, will receive diplomas Tuesday night. Two members of the graduating class, Dorothy Jones and Mary Smith, will deliver the commencement addresses and diplomas will be awarded by J. B. James, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools, and Principal W. H. Davenport.

A brief exercise has been planned for Monday morning at 10 o'clock when pupils being promoted to the ninth grade will be welcomed into the high school.

Parents and friends of students are invited to each of the phases of the closing exercises.

Will Discipline Young Bomber

SUMTER, S. C. (AP)—Disciplinary action is planned by Sumter school officials against a ninth grade student who reportedly set off a home-made bomb in the Alice Drive Junior High School here yesterday, slightly injuring nine pupils and a teacher.

The injured children, all sixth graders, and their teacher, Mrs. L. D. Patterson, suffered cuts where flying fragments of copper wire struck them. One youngster was cut near the eye.

Supt. John L. Southwell of Sumter, School District 17 said the ninth grader had made the bomb at home out of a fire cracker, a candle and the copper wire.

Hits Residence

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Two Navy Jet planes flying in a Memorial Day formation collided over northeast Minneapolis at 11 a.m. One plane plunged into a residence setting it and three others on fire.

The other plane was reported missing. There was no immediate report on the number of fatalities. The pilot of one plane was reported killed when he attempted to bail out.

The two other planes in the formation returned to their Minneapolis base safely. The four planes had gone aloft to fly in formation over Sunset Memorial Cemetery, a short distance from where the collision occurred.

Before striking the house, the plane plowed into a parked car and shoved it onto the lawn. Fuel was sprayed over the houses.

The pilot apparently bailed out too late. The parachute became entangled in a tree across the street from the burning houses.

Crusade Is Extended One Week

The Greenville Ministerial Association voted yesterday afternoon to extend the United Crusade services for an additional week.

Public response to the campaign in the past five days prompted the group to extend the services, originally scheduled to run here for two weeks. Capacity or near-capacity crowds have been attending the Crusade meetings since Sunday night.

Dr. Jimmie Johnson stated today, "Since the beginning of the Crusade there has been a constant gain and increasing spiritual interest culminating in an almost unanimous demand of the people to continue the services for another week."

Due to the beginning of the summer school session at the college and previous Austin Auditorium bookings, the Crusade services will be held at another site next week to be announced at a later date, a Ministerial Association official reported this morning.

Sunday's services will be held in the afternoon and no service will be held Monday night due to conflicts with high school graduation exercises.

It has been tentatively scheduled by TV station WNCT and radio station WGTC to carry morning messages conducted by the Johnson evangelistic team.

Last night 25 people came forward to register decisions for Christ. Dr. Johnson said, "I am very much pleased with the progress of the campaign and this service and the response to the invitation is well above the average for congregations the size of which we have been having here."

Johnson spoke to the inmates at the State prison camp last night under the auspices of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Sunday School. Mr. Junius Rose coordinated the service.

The entire Johnson team is scheduled to appear at the Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting tonight at 6:30. Tomorrow night the team will meet with the Kiwanis Club, also at 6:30.

Tonight special Memorial Day music is planned. The Rev. Merrill Dunlop will render musical selections appropriate to the occasion.

Ship Explosion Kills One Man

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An explosion in the hold of a tanker moored for repairs in Los Angeles harbor killed one worker and injured five others.

Acetylene torches set off a pocket of gas last night in the hull of the Liberty vessel Albert G. Brown. There was no fire.

The dead man was identified as Frank N. Stallings, 36, of Long Beach. He died at St. Mary's Hospital several hours after the explosion.

State ABC Board In Secret Meet Today

RALEIGH (AP)—The State ABC Board met behind closed doors today to study widely-publicized charges by a Baptist minister that liquor lobbyists had distributed free liquor to some legislators.

The object of the session was to determine if any ABC laws or regulations had been violated.

Chairman Tom Allen told newsmen they would not be admitted, saying, the board is "going to sit down and try to get to the bottom of this thing."

Meeting with the board as it went into session was Asst. Atty. Gen. T. Wade Bruton.

Meantime, ministerial pressure for a grand jury or State Bureau of Investigation probe extended from Chicago, where the Southern Baptist Convention is holding its meeting.

A resolution reached the floor of the convention last night urging delegates to the convention to "be on the alert" for similar conditions in their own states.

Dr. Casper C. Warren, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Charlotte and outgoing president of the convention, said the resolution was almost certain to be passed today.

The resolution, sent forward by the Rev. Wendell G. Davis of Statesville, president of the Allied Church League of North Carolina, commended the Raleigh News and Observer for breaking the story. It also lauded the Rev. Gerald C. Primm, pastor of Raleigh's Calvary Baptist Church, for providing information which led to the story.

The Rev. Mr. Primm charged that liquor is delivered every Monday morning at the Sir Walter Hotel for distribution as gifts from liquor lobbyists to some legislators.

The ABC Board moved into the investigation quickly after Gov. Hodges stepped in and discussed the matter with State ABC Chairman Tom Allen.

Hodges issued a brief statement yesterday saying Allen had begun an investigation.

On Tuesday, Allen had said his board would consider it at a meeting June 11. But he reported last night he had called a special board meeting for today to "question several people."

The meeting, he said, would be closed to the public. He added he would probably have a statement after the board had finished questioning witnesses.

The governor's office reported it had received telegrams from Baptist ministers requesting a probe by the grand jury or SBI. The telegrams came from Chicago. One was sent by the Baptist ministers of Raleigh. Another was signed by North Carolina Baptist ministers. Individual ministers signed another.

The resolution presented to the convention by the Rev. Mr. Davis commended The News and Observer, saying its story "has revealed shameful and deplorable conditions regarding the distribution of free liquor to state legislators... by the liquor corruptive influences at work on members of the governing body of the state of North Carolina."

House Finance Committee Kills Return Of Dog Tracks

RALEIGH (AP)—The dog race tracks at Morehead City and Moxock—closed two years ago under a State Supreme Court ruling—won't be reopening.

The House Finance Committee yesterday turned down by an 18 to 10 vote a bill which would have allowed North Carolina counties to vote on legalizing horse and dog racing and parimutuel betting.

The bill, drawn up to meet constitutional flaws which closed the tracks at Moxock and Morehead City, was sponsored by legislators from Currituck and Carteret counties. The measure would have created a state commission to supervise tracks set by county elections.

Officials and citizens from Currituck and Carteret appeared at a hearing Tuesday in behalf of the bill. A big delegation of ministers spoke out strongly against the measure.

Meanwhile, other legislative developments included:

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would empower the governor and Council of State to deposit surplus state funds in North Carolina banks even though a higher interest rate could be obtained by investing it in federal securities. The vote was 57 to 46.

Under the measure, the money could be kept in state banks as long as the difference in the interest rate was not more than one-half of 1 per cent. An amendment was adopted to prohibit banks which have less than 39 per cent of their deposits loaned out from obtaining the funds. An amendment tacked on last week had set the figure at 50 per cent.

The House Education Committee put its approval on a joint resolution to create a commission to study problems of public school finances.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to allow marriages to be performed in a county other than the one in which the marriage license was issued. It also passed and sent to the Senate bills to change the elections law. One would prohibit the use of titles such as "judge" or "colonel" in connection with the names of candidates on ballots. Another would require a "write in" candidate in an election to get 5 per cent of the total vote cast in order to be elected.

The House completed legislative action on a bill calling for an amendment to the state constitution. Under it, voters will decide in the next general election whether to give justices of the peace jurisdiction in civil actions involving up to $200. The present limit is $50.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a resolution urging Congress to call a national convention to change provisions in the federal constitution on election of presidents. The proposal calls for elimination of the electoral college. The electoral votes of states would be divided between candidates on the basis of the popular vote they receive. Under the present provisions, the entire electoral vote of a state goes to the candidate receiving a majority of the state's popular vote.

Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan withdrew a resolution which would have directed the House Committee on Manufacturing and Labor to report to the full House on minimum wage legislation bottled up in the committee.

Lebanon's Army Seizes Capital

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Backed by tanks and armored cars, the Lebanese army seized control of this capital today amid bloody pre-election riots. Reliable informants said at least six persons were slain and 60 wounded.

Earlier, troops attacked political demonstrators with their rifle butts. Former Premier Saeb Salam was among those injured in this way.

Salam, leader of the Moslem opposition, was heading a group marching to join other opposition parliamentary candidates and their supporters assembling in defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

Troops and police blocked their way and fired in the air in an effort to force them to retreat. When this failed, the soldiers attacked with the butts of their rifles.

Salam was smashed in the face.

A number of others with him were injured, and ambulances rushed between the area and hospitals.

Tanks blocked off streets leading to the park near Beirut race track where demonstrators were assembling. Troops and police were rushed to the area, completely sealing it off. Other troops and police were stationed at strategic spots throughout the city.

The government of President Camille Chamoun and Prime Minister Sami Solh appeared determined to stop any demonstrations. Nearly 90 per cent of the city's shops were closed. Some of them, whose owners are supporters of opposition leaders Salam and former Premier Abdullah Yaffi, had not opened at all in defiance of a government order banning a general strike.

As soon as the demonstrations got under way, most other shops pulled down their shutters.

Elected Head Of Tobacco Board

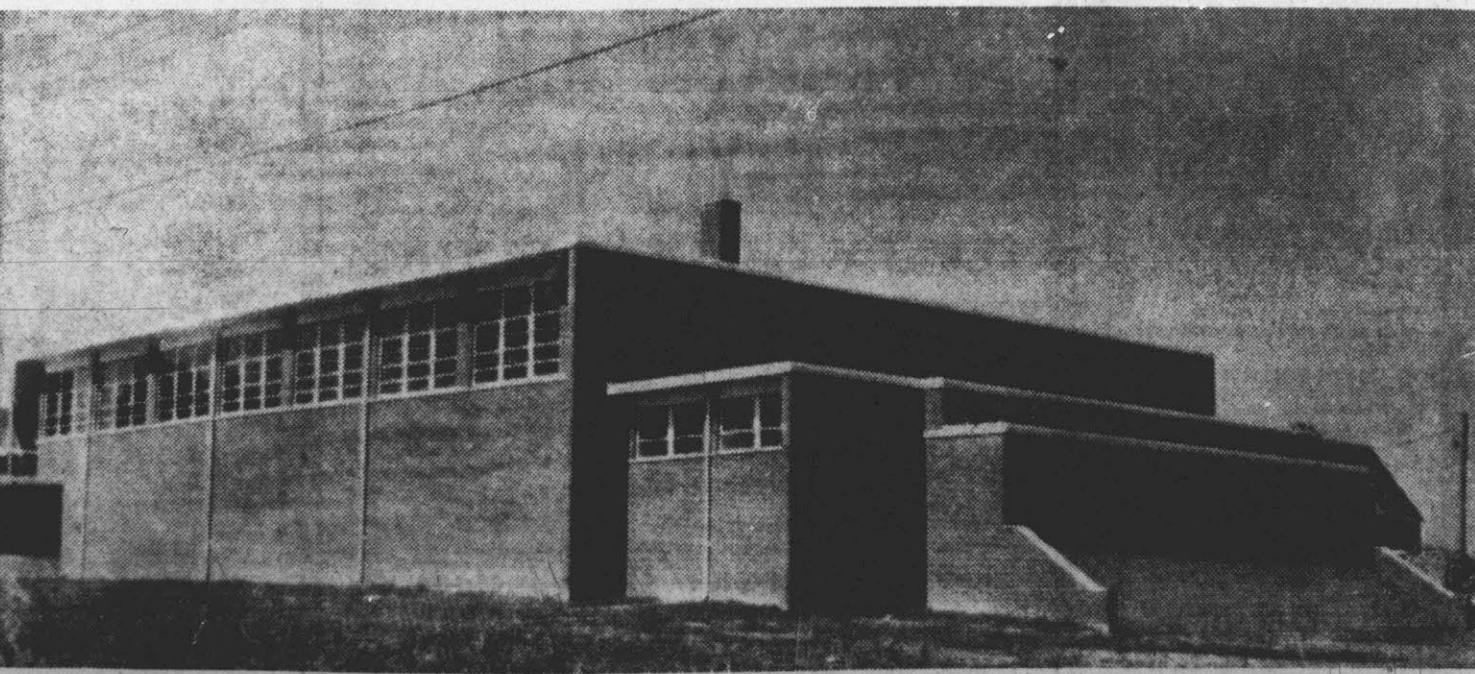

James S. Ficklen Jr., vice president and treasurer of E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, yesterday was elected president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

He succeeds Richard H. Evans as head of the organization.

B. B. Sugg Sr. was re-elected vice president of the Board of Trade and W. L. Whedbee was re-elected supervisor.

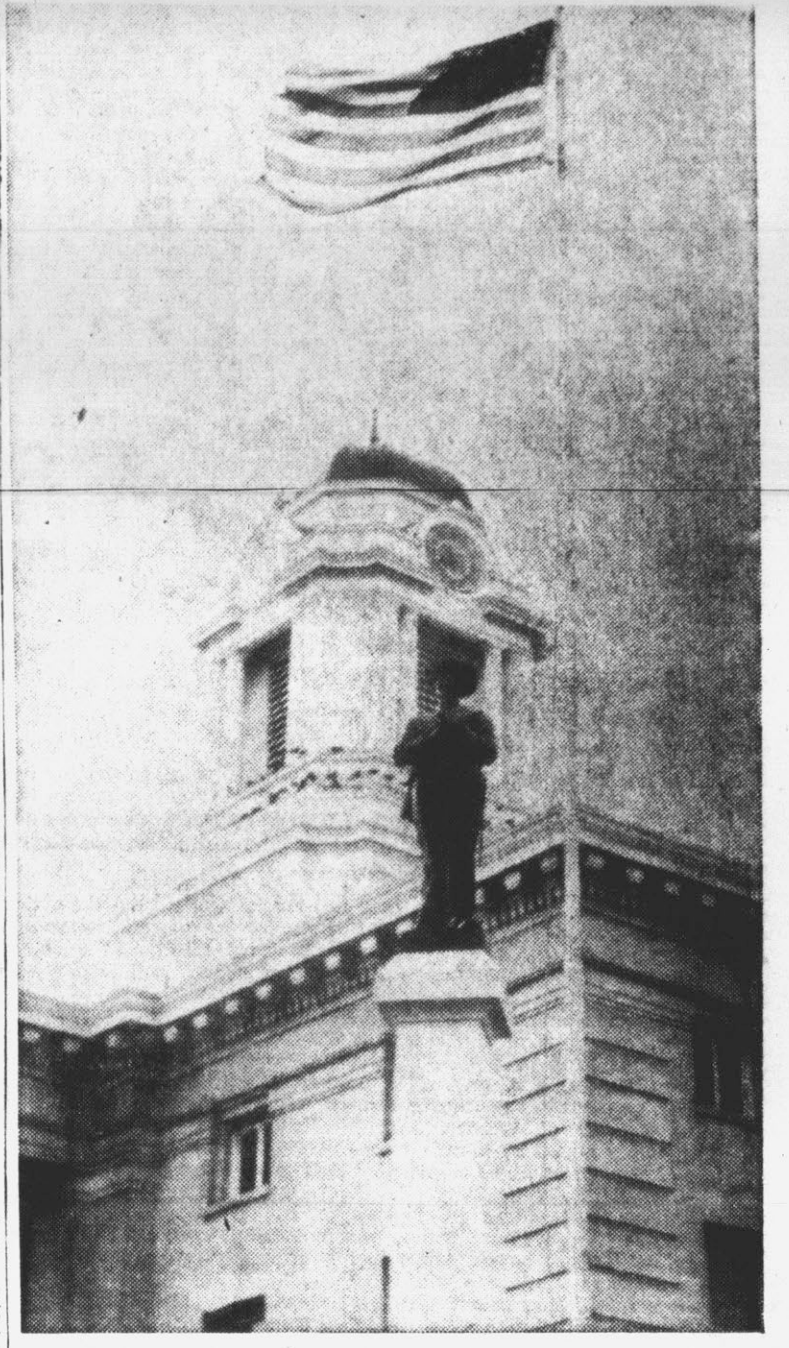

Plans for operating the Greenville Tobacco Market during the coming season were discussed as were affairs of the Board of Trade.

New Gymnasium-Auditorium Will See First Use

NEW BUILDING TO BE USED—The new C. M. Eppes gymnasium-auditorium will be used for the first time Tuesday night. Fifty-three Seniors at the Negro high school will receive diplomas in commencement exercises which will be held in the new building. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Memorial Day, 1957

In Greenville, as all over America, there was a pause today to honor the nation's military dead. With flag at half-mast, brief services were held on the Court House lawn, under sponsorship of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Honor War Dead In Services Today

Tribute was paid this morning to Pitt County men who died in World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

Memorial Day services, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, were held on the Court House lawn, at the site of a memorial stone to the war dead. A wreath was placed on the stone by Mrs. J. A. Joyner, president of the VFW Auxiliary.

Larry Averette, first commander of the Greenville VFW Post, told the small group which attended the services that Memorial Day started three years after the Civil War at the request of the commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

"We think now of Memorial Day as a day to honor all war dead and it is a fitting tribute," he added.

Prior to Averette's talk, the Court House flag was lowered to half-mast by W. G. Leggett, superintendent of Pitt County buildings and grounds. Miss Rachel Steinbeck sang the national anthem.

The Rev. R. B. Crawford, president of the Greenville Ministerial Association, opened the services with prayer and Donald McArthur of the Greenville High School Band closed them with "Taps."

GHS Commencement To Begin Tomorrow

Closing exercises for Greenville High School will begin tomorrow. Ninth grade commencement will be held at 10:30 a.m., and the annual Class and Awards Night will be observed at 8 p.m. Both programs will be in the high school auditorium and open to the general public.

One of the features of the ninth grade commencement will be comments of "Living In A Dynamic World" by six members of the class. Clark Brewer will make the introduction to the general topic. Other speakers will be Billy Goodwin, Jane Reynolds, Anne Briedley, Alice Walters and Anne Allen.

GHS Principal O. E. Dowd will conduct the roll call of graduates and City Superintendent of Schools J. H. Rose will formally accept them for high school work.

Also on the program for the ninth grade commencement are the devotional by Mary Alice Gibbs, readings by Carol Riddle and Ronnie Dail, and presentation of the National Honor Society Award. The NHS award is given annually to the freshman who best exemplifies the ideals of the society.

Freshman class officers who will participate in the program are Clark Brewer, president; Brenda Harris, vice president; Jeanette Taylor, secretary; and Susan Willis, treasurer.

At least 15 awards will be presented to Seniors at the Class and Awards night program. Included in the group of awards will be music awards, GHS awards, East Carolina College scholarships, Spanish and French awards, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association awards, Readers Digest Scholarship Award, the Dixon Athletic Trophy, Woolfolk Memorial Scholarship, the Keech Distinguished Service Cup, the Lions Club Scholarship, the Naval Academy Scholarship Prize.

Prior to the awards presentations by Principal Dowd and Superintendent Rose, the Class of 1957 will present the Senior skit. Built around a theme of "American Youth Sing", the skit will include musical numbers by members of the class.

Bids Accepted On New Building

Low bids for the S. Greenville Recreation Building were accepted by the City Council this morning.

Upon recommendation of City Manager Leonard Bloxam the low bid submitted by Leo Hawkins for construction of the building was accepted. His base bid was $16,990.70.

Other general construction bids were: W. G. Dunn, $17,894; C. A. Construction Co., $18,985; Griffin Builders, $19,120; Hughes Construction Co., $18,147.

Low bid for electrical work was submitted by King Electric Co. The bid was $1,580. The next low bid — $1,750 — was submitted by Shuck's Electric Co.

Councilmen also approved investigation of Social Security benefits for Police Department employees. Members of the department recently voted 18 to 2 in favor of the program which, Bloxam said, will give them added retirement benefits.

FINED FOR KISSING
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Bertie Edward Northcutt, 26, was fined $6 for kissing his wife while driving. After he explained to Municipal Judge Mike Foster that he was just celebrating his fifth wedding anniversary, Foster suspended the fine.

Democratic Responsibility Was Discussed For League Members

Democratic responsibility and the need for citizens' participation in community activities were discussed for the Greenville League of Women Voters last night.

Speakers were Mrs. Newton L. Pierce, organization head of the League of Women Voters of the United States, and Mrs. Max I. Miller, president of the North Carolina League of Women Voters. They were guests at a unit meeting of the Greenville League.

Mrs. Pierce, comparing U. S. standards with those in foreign countries, said, "These things we have don't 'just happen.' We live in a democracy and are willing to take responsibility for improving our way of life."

She commented particularly on work of the League of Women

Voters in health projects and also discussed the League's work in international affairs. As a continuing responsibility of League members everywhere, Mrs. Pierce said the League was interested in the United States foreign aid program.

"Foreign aid," she said, "is not complete insurance for peace, but it is the second engine in our efforts. The technical assistance program has no lobby in Washington and there is much pressure on an economy-minded Congress to cut it out. League members should, however, let their senators and representatives know how they feel."

Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Miller also discussed publications available to local Leagues from both National and State offices. They also participated in a question-answer period to clarify points in operating the Greenville League.

After the short talks by Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Miller, Greenville League members voted to sponsor the nomination of Mrs. John Gilman of Chapel Hill for appointment to the National Board of Directors. State workshops and other local activities were also discussed.

Prior to the unit meeting, Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Miller were guests of the Board of Directors of the local League at a dinner.

Both women appeared on television programs during their visit. They discussed the national agenda, which includes studies of Water Resources, and the Loyalty and Security Program, on the TV shows.

Local Women Plan To Attend International Women's Club Meet

Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Mrs. J. H. Moore, Mrs. Clara Shackell and Mrs. Vance Perkins plan to attend the 66th annual meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at the Municipal Auditorium, Asheville, June 3-7, with Mrs. R. I. C. Prout of Wakefield, Mich. presiding.

More than 3,000 delegates are expected to attend and probably 1,000 additional visitors will fill the auditorium when sessions are open to the public.

An international organization with 11,000,000 members, half of whom are in clubs abroad, the General Federation anticipates delegations from Egypt, Japan, Germany, South America, the Philippines, France, Korea, Hawaii and Norway.

The North Carolina banquet, open to all attending the convention, will be held Monday evening, June 3, at the Municipal Auditorium. The program to follow is entitled "A June Evening in North Carolina," with Miss Patricia Cowden, North Carolina Maid of Cotton, as the mistress of ceremonies. Special music, dancing and folk songs will be featured during the evening. A reception honoring Mrs. Prout, the General Federation president, will close the program.

"Knowledge is Power," the theme of the convention, will be the president's address when Mrs. Prout speaks to the convention on Tuesday morning, June 4.

The highlight of the program will be Wednesday evening when Vice President Richard M. Nixon addresses the convention. Igor Gorin, opera, radio and television star, will sing. That evening as well as all evening sessions will be open to visitors and to the citizens of Asheville.

The convention will conclude on June 7. The next morning there will be a Conservation Tour through Pisgah National Forest.

According to Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president of District 15 of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, "there will be a large delegation" from her district attending. Mrs. Rogers further stated that her 23 clubs have been very busy making and collecting favors for this convention.

Mrs. Rogers plans to leave Sunday for Asheville. She will meet with other district presidents Wednesday morning for a business session.

Miscellaneous

Shower Honors Miss June Bullock

STOKES—Mrs. D. R. Moore and Miss Rosalee Moore honored Miss June Bullock, bride-elect, by giving her a miscellaneous shower Friday night in the Sweet Gum Grove Community Club House.

Spring flowers were used throughout the club house. After several games were played, punch, bridal cakes and nuts were served from an appropriately decorated table.

About fifty guests attended.

Picnic Dinner

ROBERSONVILLE — Sunday Mrs. Claude L. Greene Sr. served dinner to her out-of-town relatives who attended the memorial service for her late brother-in-law, the Rev. James M. Perry, who was the minister of the Robersonville Christian Church for 33 years until his death in May, 1952.

She and Mr. Greene also invited those who participated in the program and a few church members.

The dinner was served picnic style on the back lawn.

Baptist Student Union Choir Will Present Concert Sunday

The Baptist Student Union Feuring Choir of North Carolina will present a concert of sacred music at Immanuel Baptist Church Sunday, June 2, at 11 a.m.

The 37-voice group is composed of students from approximately twelve North Carolina colleges. Included in the hour-long concert will be "Holy, Holy, Holy" (Sanctus), adapted from the Requiem by Gabriel Faure, "Psalm 150" by Caesar Franck, "The Lord's Prayer" by Biggs, and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand," arranged by Roy Ringwald.

The choir is under the direction of Mr. Ivey Heath, a student at the University of North Carolina.

In addition to its local appearance in Greenville, the group will sing at the First Baptist Church, Winston; Station WNCT-TV, Greenville; and at the First Baptist churches of Enfield, Siler City, Hickory, and Lenoir. The tour will end at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly where the choir will sing at the opening service of the South-wide Student Week program.

This tour is sponsored each year by the Department of Student Work of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. The public is cordially invited.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Marriage and a family is the status most American women prefer although many now in that position find they need to work because of economic pressure, or choose to work for personal reasons. This was the majority answer of more than 8,000 girls and young women, twelve years of age and over, in a sampling poll conducted in 29 states by the Young Women's Christian Association of the U.S.A. The YWCA serves women and girls in 1,600 communities in the United States with an emphasis on women, 18 to 35 years old. Of the total individuals in the sampling checked by national headquarters, more than 68 per cent of 5,460 said "Yes" to the basic question: "Are you satisfied with your present role as a woman in today's world?" A very small minority of the total wished they had been born a man. The survey with its resulting answers and comments of individual participants shows, on the whole, according to Mrs. Helen Southard, family life consultant for the National YWCA, that there is "really no rebellion against being women. To need to justify being women, only a terrific urge to grow as people in order to be better mothers or workers or both, as the case may be."

Teachers Like They Used To Be?

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

"Goodby pencils, goodby books, goodby teacher's dirty looks. . . . That used to be the national juvenile theme song along about this time of year.

Today's students are less outspoken, but more bitter, says Sally Carriagar, in an article entitled "Murder in the Schoolroom" in the current issue of Harper's magazine. She holds that modern teachers don't measure up to the old-fashioned variety, and that they use phony techniques which don't fool the children for a minute.

Teachers have always been open targets for barbed criticism. But almost everybody I know remembers at least one great teacher who helped change the course of his life.

I remember my English teacher in Webb City, Mo., High School. By today's standards she probably would never have been able to land a job. She didn't bother much about hairdos, cosmetics or grooming. She walked with a stoop, and wore shapeless dresses. Teachers have always been open targets for barbed criticism. But almost everybody I know remembers at least one great teacher who helped change the course of his life.

I remember my English teacher in Webb City, Mo., High School. By today's standards she probably would never have been able to land a job. She didn't bother much about hairdos, cosmetics or grooming. She walked with a stoop, and wore shapeless dresses. Teachers have always been open targets for barbed criticism. But almost everybody I know remembers at least one great teacher who helped change the course of his life.

Toward the end of my senior year she inquired tentatively of me what I planned to study in college. I said I guessed I'd take education and be a teacher. Most of the women in my family had been teachers at one time or another. There weren't many occupations open to women.

She said, rather timidly, that teaching was a hard life, and why didn't I try to write? This was a new idea, and I examined it curiously. From that day, my favorite teacher turned into a slave-driver. She slashed at my theme papers like a dyspeptic copyreader. She made me write reports over and over until they won her grudging approval.

After graduation, she compelled me to apply for a scholarship at the State University.

When the scholarship came through her face shone like a full moon. She patted my shoulder and said: "We did it!"

I never saw her again, but I hope she's still teaching somewhere. I'm sure it wouldn't be Heaven to her if she couldn't teach.

Bethel—Mrs. Tom Andrews entertained the members of her bridge club yesterday afternoon. The hostess met the guests, who found their places by matching attractive tallies. Upon arrival, the guests were served Coca-Colas and salted nuts. The living room and parlor were decorated profusely with sweetpeas and Dorothy Perkins roses, carrying out the color scheme of pink and green. After several progressions, an elaborate salad course was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Vance Bunting. Top score prize was won by Mrs. W. J. Bundy. Mrs. Andrews also remembered Miss Frances Smith, bride-elect of June, with a lovely trousseau gift.

Paris Milliner Crowns Queen

By NADEANE WALKER
PARIS (AP)—The only French designer who helps to dress the Queen of England is hatmaker Claude Saint-Cyr. She probably owes the honor to being what the French call "sage," or sensible. But Madame Saint-Cyr, a tall, statuesque brunette of 45, thinks that a new hat should be worn for a month and then discarded, even her hats, which cost an average of $60 each.

"Some hats," she says, "the eccentric ones, are finished after an hour."

She admits, however, that her most prized client does not agree with this theory.

"The Queen still remembers and likes the first hat I ever made for her. It was of white stitched satin, a rolled-back model. She wore it many times."

Among other Saint-Cyr clients are the Duchess of Windsor, the Begum Aga Khan, Mrs. Averell Harriman, French movie queen Martine Carol, Hollywood's Eleanor Parker, Queen Soroya of Iran, the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, in addition to numerous American tourists.

In her Faubourg St. Honore salons, where she has been installed for 20 years, Madame Saint-Cyr was busy one day recently with a middle-aged American client.

"Madame," she said firmly, "every year I make you the same 'at. Really it is too much. Everyones must change sometime."

"But this hat makes my nose look too long," complained the customer.

"Now, madame, you are only fishing for compliments. You want me to say your nose is not too long," the royal hatmaker replied tartly.

The chastened customer muttered feebly, "I don't want to look different, I just want to look lovely." And Madame Saint-Cyr turned away.

"The present trend is towards bigger, more feminine, more fluffy hats," she said. "No, American customers are not more difficult than any others."

"Princess Margaret follows the 'ashions more than the Queen. I have been making 'ats for Queen Elizabeth for four years, but I am not allowed to say 'ow many."

Madame Saint-Cyr is the wife of interior decorator Georges Martin, and mother of an 11-year-old daughter, Christine. She likes art and exhibitions, collects paintings, and loves cooking and gardening at her country home. A Parisienne by birth, daughter of a casino worker, she did a two-year unpaid stint as an apprentice milliner, starting at 18. Later she worked for several noted Paris hatters, among them Patou and Rose Descat, before setting up on her own.

Royal dressmaker Norman Hartnell chose her to do his hats just before the coronation. She has no ambitions to branch out to New York, explaining:

"I have already enough to do with shops in Paris and London."

'Proof Of The Pudding' Awaited

It is a foregone conclusion now that legislature will write into law Gov. Hodges' new plan to equalize the tax load on out-of-state corporations doing business in North Carolina.

The big question now is not whether the new allocation formula for figuring corporate tax will be passed, but whether it will result in the industrial development of the state predicted by proponents of the measure.

The big question is whether North Carolina, by attracting new industries with a modern tax structure, will be able to overcome the $14 tax reduction to corporations which the new structure will mean during the next two years.

Though the change in the state's tax structure has been attacked as a gigantic give-away to corporations; though it has been pictured as a folly in this time when more revenue is needed to carry on work of the state, the program obviously has a great deal of merit.

If North Carolina is to meet its financial needs during the years ahead, the state must produce more taxable wealth in the form of higher per capita income, more and better paying jobs for its people, more industries, more business, more homes and so on. The state cannot possibly meet its own needs for services by increasing the tax rates on what we have now. Indeed, we are rapidly reaching the point of diminishing returns so far as individual tax rates are concerned.

The answer to the problem lies in bringing in more industry, to create more jobs and produce more products. This in turn will spread the tax load over more shoulders and enable the state to pay for those things which it must have.

The new allocation formula for figuring corporate taxes is not an answer in itself. It is merely a tool to help with the development of North Carolina. Adoption of the new formula will not cause long lines of industries to form along the boundaries of North Carolina impatient to gain plant sites in this state. The formula is, however, an important new tool to be used in attracting new industries to this state.

Adoption of the new tax formula will be the signal for Gov. Hodges and other leaders throughout the state to begin intensive use of this new tool to attract industry into North Carolina, and thereby make the net loss of tax revenue as small as possible during the coming biennium.

The real test of the administration, the real test of the new tax proposal will not come during the legislative session and be culminated with passage of the tax revision. The real test of its merit will be putting it to use for the betterment of North Carolina.

Minimum Wage Bill Is Worth An Effort

As the legislature rushes through bill after bill in these closing days of the 1957 session, it should not fail to make a last, sincere effort to pry loose the 75-cent minimum wage bill which was so neatly bottled up by the unusual tabling action of the House Committee on Manufacturers and Labor.

For a matter of such importance to North Carolina and its people, this minimum wage legislation in our opinion has been passed over much too easily by a large number of legislators. It is also our impression that the administration has failed to exert the effort toward the passage of this particular bill that it has pointed toward other pieces of legislation.

To be sure the minimum wage issue is highly controversial. But what important legislation is not controversial?

The merits of the bill, and what the minimum wage would do for North Carolina and its people, far outweigh the arguments in opposition to the bill. If the minimum wage proposal is written into law it will provide one means toward bridging the staggering gap between the per capita income of this state and that of other states in the union. It will be a major step toward raising the income of the families in the lowest income brackets in North Carolina. It will afford a more reasonable wage for many workers than they are now receiving.

At the same time the minimum wage will not be detrimental to businesses as a whole throughout North Carolina.

Tabling of the bill by the House committee should not be the final action on it by the 1957 session of the General Assembly.

Depression, If Cars Are Safe?

By ELMER ROESSNER
I can see it all now; the great depression of 1962.

In 1960, some inventor will perfect radar brakes. A little gadget, no bigger than a do-it-yourself haircut kit, will apply the brakes of an auto as soon as the car gets within hitting distance of a telephone pole, a bridge abutment, a tree or another car. It will not be affected by cars in other lanes or cars moving away; it will brake the car only when there is danger of a crash.

In 1961, the legislatures of most states will make radar brakes mandatory equipment on all cars. Later that year President Nixon (that's Cuthbert Nixon, a Democrat) will ask Congress to make the gadget compulsory equipment on all cars in interstate travel, or on all interstate highways, or on all streets, alleys and driveways connecting with interstate highways, or with streets that connect with other roadways that connect with interstate highways.

In 1962, bust. Natch.

OUR GRUESOME ECONOMY

The automobile industry will be the first to feel the effects of the end of smash-ups. With radar brakes, it will still be possible to drive cars off piers and cliffs, and to blow out thin tires, but the device will eliminate the wrecking of two or three hundred thousand cars a year. This will slow the replacement market by that much, cutting into new car sales.

In turn, this will lead to layoffs in Detroit, Cleveland and other manufacturing centers. Dealers will let salesmen go and in many cases banks will have to move in and take over dealerships.

Manufacturers will lose a big share of their replacement-parts on surplus fenders; the General Services Administration will be urged to stockpile them.

Hit even harder will be the auto repair businesses, the garage mechanics and those little elves who hammer their lives away restoring fenders to their original shapes. Sales of touch-up enamel will drop by a million gallons a year.

CAREERS RUINED

Meanwhile, many hospitals will sink below the break-even point. Dozens of towing services will become Dun & Bradstreet statistics.

Over America, fine men and women will be shoved into the pool of unemployed; highway patrolmen, ambulance drivers, nurses, anaesthetists, orderlies, doctors, blood donors, and craftsmen who make artificial teeth and silver plates for skulls.

The insurance companies will be especially hard hit. They will be forced to fire hundreds of lawyers, thousands of investigators and adjusters, and countless stenographers and record keepers. "Another big insurance merger!" will be an almost daily headline in your paper. Merge or go under for lack of business; that will be the fate of the auto liability and damage firms.

Undertakers will feel it, for a while at least. During the first year they will lose about 44,000 funerals. They will get them in the end, of course, but perhaps not for five, 10 or 50 years later. The lag will impoverish many small, marginal morticians, adding to the miseries of the depression. Even manufacturers of embalming fluid may suffer a slump in sales.

There is still time to act. There's a big traffic week end ahead; there will be more before 1961. Get in there and drive! Shoot on the gas—Pass them all! Shoot on ahead!

Keep America prosperous! A LITTLE NOTE OF EXPLANATION

The preceding, of course, is satire and it may not be very well done at that. But if it will prevent just one fatal accident this weekend, it will be well worth the space it takes.

Actually, auto accidents are a drain on the economy. They cause waste, as fires and floods do. If it were not for the costs of repairs and high insurance rates, every auto owner could afford a car in a $500 higher price bracket. And every death in an auto accident is a customer lost forever.

Big Rumors In The Background

By LYNN NISBET

RUMORS — "It must be just a rumor," said Governor Hodges in response to a reporter's statement he had heard that Charlie Parker was "on the way out" as director of State advertising. The rumor also had it that some of the industrial-minded members of the C&D board were displeased with the ratio of State advertising money devoted to promoting travel and tourism as contrasted with that spent for industrial advertising.

Originally the ratio was 75-25. For several years it has been fairly stable at 60-40. Industrialists are said to want a 50-50 split. Meantime, the entire division of commerce and industry is devoted to industrial promotion.

Governor Hodges added that he is greatly interested in developing travel business in North Carolina. He thought the recent air cruise by out of state editors was a very fine and profitable venture, and expressed the hope the Travel Council would become very active in promoting more travel in the state.

Other rumors are floating around with respect to appointments to high level offices. The grapevine has it that William P. Sanders may move to another post, probably chairman of the highway commission, and will be succeeded as Director of Conservation and Development by Ed Kirk, assistant director for the past 18 months.

Terms of five C&D board members expire June 30, and a bill is pending to add three members. The eight new or reappointed members will constitute a "working minority" of the board and some other personnel changes may be in the offing.

APPOINTMENTS — Most important post to be filled by July 1 is Director of Administration, a new office created by the current General Assembly. The new department will take over supervision of the Budget Bureau, the Division of Purchase and Contract, the functions heretofore performed by the Board of Public Buildings and Grounds, and perhaps others. The director will be the most powerful officer in the State except the Governor.

Governor Hodges has given no indication of the person, or even the type of person, he has in mind for that job. Capitol Square gossip is that it will go to Paul Johnston, presently administrative assistant to the Governor. Another rumor would have Dave Coltrane, assistant director of the budget, moving up to the top place. Other prospects include Robert G. Dayton, former chief budgeteer and presently business manager of Wake Forest College, and Capus M. Waynick, former highway chairman and ambassador to Nicaragua and Colombia.

Waynick is also in the talk about director of highways, a post for which the Governor says he wants a career highway man. Favored prospect for that job is W.H. Rogers, presently chief highway engineer whose entire life has been devoted to planning and building roads. One popular complaint about operations of the highway commission has been that it was dominated by cold blooded engineers. If this appointment does not go to Rogers, chances are it will go to someone now connected with State government.

Next most important job opening is Commissioner of Revenue. Incumbent Eugene Shaw's term ran out January 1, but at request of Governor Hodges he agreed to stay on until July. Meantime he is paying rent on an office in Greensboro and wants to get back to practicing law.

Gossip hereabouts is that this post will go to someone not connected with State government probably a corporation executive with tax experience, or to someone trained in the Institute of Government.

Major problem is finding men qualified for these positions who will come to the State for the salaries offered. Most of the men who can do the jobs are drawing considerably more than the State can pay, even with the provision that the Governor and the Advisory Budget Commission can fix the salaries. Opinion prevails that Governor Hodges will be very reluctant to pay anybody more than his own $15,000 salary.

It is common knowledge that Governor shows partiality to textile executives in selecting his aides. He explained to newsmen some weeks ago that it was a natural tendency. He recalled that most chief executives appointed a lot of lawyers, that Scott leaned toward farmers, because those were the professions in which they knew most about the men. His lifelong experience in textiles and his activity in Rotary resulted in most of his trusted friends being in these groups.

COMMISSIONS — Besides the administrative officers listed the Governor must name at least three members of the Utilities Board and a whole flock of commission and advisory committees for tax supported institutions. Although many of them are past due, these appointments can wait until after July 1.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A WORD TO LADS AND LASSIES

This is a message directed exclusively to young people. Robert Freeman, in a wise and witty verse, gives this good counsel:

"Here's to you, my lad, as forward you start,
With a light in your eye, and a song in your heart;

With your plans and your powers! But take it from me;
Be good to the old man you're going to be!"

For a man you are certainly going to be if you live but a few years longer, or if you have passed 21, then a middle-aged man you will be before you know it, and gray hair and retirement will be upon you in no time.

Discouraging? Not at all. Your years of greatest achievement should be between 50 and 65. That is the time of harvest, but your later life will be almost certainly conditioned, to an important degree by the way you think and act before you are 25. Hardened old sinners have been converted when they were well past 80, but such cases of reform are one in a million. Almost all of us had our 25th birthday. We hope we have improved. But still we are very much the same as we were 25 or 40 or 50 years ago. All these years we have had to live with the kind of person we have made ourselves before we were 25.

So be good, my lad, to the old man you are going to be — or to the old woman you are going to be, lassie, which is equally, if not more important.

If They Could Testify

by ALVIN TAYLOR

When Seconds Do Count

Fire Chief George Gardner has a word for those who in the future might pull a box alarm when a fire breaks out.

He urges them to stay by the box until firemen arrive at the scene. Occasionally the fire trucks will roll in answer to an alarm. When they arrive at the box, there's no one around and no fire to be seen.

Just that happened a few days ago. Firemen pulled up to an alarm box and no one was there. They were on the verge of returning to the station when someone a block away called them to a garage fire.

Every second counts when it comes to fighting fire. The person who pulls the alarm is most valuable if he stands by to direct firemen to the blaze.

People joke about reading the dictionary. They say there's no plot to it. However, I maintain that for pure unadulterated enjoyment there is absolutely nothing like curling up with a good dictionary.

You intellectuals can have your "Gone with the Wind" and you young'uns can stick with your "Huckleberry Finn."

Give me a good dictionary. There's my book.

For instance on a rainy night a couple of weeks ago I settled down with a limburger cheese sandwich and a pitcher of pink lemonade to discover from my favorite book that Lincoln Green is a bright green cloth made at Lincoln, England.

Puffery, if you don't know, is the act or practice of puffing, also defined as fulsome public praise or commendation.

Xerophthalmia — I just write it, I don't pronounce it — is an inflammation with thickening of the lining membrane of the eye, but without liquid discharge.

Probably those who habitually ignore the dictionary when they reach for a good book don't know that fesspalma means partially web-footed. That's not to be confused with fistulous which refers to cylindrical and hollow like a reed.

Then there's grumose which every botanist knows, means consisting of clustered grains.

G-String means... Well, everybody knows what G-String means.

What's Johnny Grindle? Why, it's the bowfin of Mississippi Valley.

Subalpine is lower than alpine, naturally and subdiacornate is of, or pertaining to the office, rank or order of subdeacon.

Tarlatan is a thin, open-mesh transparent muslin, slightly stiffened and often rather coarse and a tarn is a mountain lake.

Wanta read? Man, grab up a good dictionary.

"Drivers who wonder why law enforcement officials crack down so hard on speeders should remember that speeding is responsible for more fatal accidents than any other traffic violation. Three reasons why high speed makes a car especially vulnerable to accidents: (1) Time and distance required to stop increases greatly; (2) a driver's reaction time and physical ability to stop remains constant; (3) mechanical failure at high speed means a car out of control." —Institute for Safer Living.

Family reading, the chancellor is saying, ought to be a family obligation to the future of the children. He is right. But books can be fun, too, and they are a sure antidote to placidity, complacency and the stultifying kind of peace of mind.

The majority of students who get into academic difficulties go there because they are not habituated in reading. I firmly believe that until the homes become more literary the schools will not become more so. I think the chief call in raising the intellectual atmosphere of our state and nation is in the matter of the enjoyment and use of books in the home so as to encourage more habituation of them in the schools. I do not believe that colleges and universities can advance very far in general unless these weak spots are straightened in the home and school.

When prodded by angry Republicans, he denied, albeit mildly, that the 80 were in open rebellion against the Rayburn-Johnson rule. Speaker Rayburn listened grimly to the exchange of recriminations.

Thompson raked the Republican ranks for what he termed their desertion of the President in slashing his budget by several billions, and their demands for even larger cuts. He criticized them particularly for reducing appropriations for national defense, foreign aid and social services.

Family reading, the chancellor is saying, ought to be a family obligation to the future of the children. He is right. But books can be fun, too, and they are a sure antidote to placidity, complacency and the stultifying kind of peace of mind.

The majority of students who get into academic difficulties go there because they are not habituated in reading. I firmly believe that until the homes become more literary the schools will not become more so. I think the chief call in raising the intellectual atmosphere of our state and nation is in the matter of the enjoyment and use of books in the home so as to encourage more habituation of them in the schools. I do not believe that colleges and universities can advance very far in general unless these weak spots are straightened in the home and school.

Thompson raked the Republican ranks for what he termed their desertion of the President in slashing his budget by several billions, and their demands for even larger cuts. He criticized them particularly for reducing appropriations for national defense, foreign aid and social services.

The prevailing tendency appears to be toward laws that recognize and define the obligations of the parents of youngsters who indulge in vandalism for destruction's sake. Opposition to such statutes ordinarily stems from the contention that youthful personalities will be "scarred" if society hits back, but there is a chance that the knowledge of parents that their offspring's shenanigans will cost them will produce the ounce of prevention so superior to a pound of cure. —Memphis Commercial Appeal.

On the contrary, he needed, his bloc of 80 "Roosevelt Democrats" had backed Ike to the extent of 77.3 per cent. Last Leaf On A Tree

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

The pruning knife of time seems to have gone blunt in trying to whittle down German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, the last leaf on the swiftly withering tree of postwar political leaders.

Imposingly erect, keen of eye and mind, and amazingly spry at 81, the tall, leathery-faced Rhinelander has outlived or politically outlasted most of his contemporaries: Stalin of Russia, De Gasperi of Italy, Churchill of England, Truman of the United States, and a dozen or more French premiers, all of whom attempted to pick up the pieces after a disastrous second World War.

Still trying to pick up the pieces, especially the large piece of eastern Germany that fell to the Soviet bloc after the war, Adenauer arrives in the United States May 24 with his foreign minister, Heinrich von Brentano, for a series of talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

After that, he returns to Germany to campaign for another four-year term in the Sept. 15 elections and to once again baffle his 50 million countrymen with the American phenomenon known as the whistle stop tour, an election device that wore down his younger Socialist opponents and won him a landslide reelection in the 1953 race.

Greatest Since Bismarck

Regarded by many historians, Churchill included, as the greatest German statesman since Bismarck, Der Alte (the old one), as he is called fondly by friends and sarcastically by foes, has made an incredible record for a man who would have been remembered only as an efficient, if somewhat cantankerous, mayor of his native Cologne, had he died at the age of 70.

American military government officials restored him to his mayorship after the war, which he had spent first in a monastery then in three successive concentration camps for denying the Nazis. But the British, when the four-power occupation began, made him a national figure by booting him out for failing to see eye-to-eye with them on the restoration of Cologne.

Political Dividend

The incident established his reputation as a hard-headed, independent thinker and boosted him to the chancellor's office when Germany held its first free elections in 1949.

In the past eight years, under Adenauer's impassive, iron-willed leadership, Germany has steered a straight western course in Cold War diplomacy, joined the European coal and steel community and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, thrown off the shackles of massive unemployment, lived successfully but dangerously as an occupied country on the very door sill of the Iron Curtain, and emerged once again as the greatest industrial power in Western Europe.

Where the Americans, British and French are concerned, Adenauer has never forgotten which side won the war. In dealing — and often refusing to deal — with the Russians, he has never let his people forget which side won the peace.

A devout Roman Catholic with one son a priest, Adenauer is convinced that "a Christian civilization must hold together politically or perish before communism."

Moral Approach

With German reunification a key election issue, this ideological, moral approach to foreign relations has provided ammunition for his Socialist opponents, who charge that Adenauer is too closely tied to the West to negotiate effectively with the Soviet rulers.

Like a Teutonic Al Smith, whom he resembles somewhat in his rare smiling moments, Adenauer answers by pointing to the record — the concessions he won from the Russians on the return of German war prisoners on his last Moscow visit.

Hassle Over Who's Backing Ike

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The strangest political hassle in recent memory has broken out on Capitol Hill over the question of which Party is giving greater support to President Eisenhower's legislative program, especially his overgrown budget — the Republicans or the Democrats.

As evidence of their excessive loyalty, the liberal bloc of Democrats flourish in reddish Republican faces an effusive thank-you note from Sherman Adams, White House Chief of Staff, and obviously written with the knowledge and approval of Ike himself.

An acrimonious House debate on this subject was recently provoked by one of this writer's columns. The article said that "80 Roosevelt Democrats" were rallying behind the President's budget requests because, in their opinion, they simply carried out New Deal-Fair Deal reforms. It pointed out that they frequently opposed the Rayburn-Cannon-Johnson economy drive.

"FAIR" PRESENTATION OF SITUATION Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., Trenton Democrat, conceded that the column was a "fair" presentation of the politico-legislative situation, although he modestly claimed the role of leader of the bloc. Sao Paulo: The Chicago Of South America

By JULIUS GOLDEN

SAO PAULO, Brazil, (AP) — The New World's new melting pot — Sao Paulo — today is Brazil's cradle of industrialization.

Paulistas, the proud and diverse people who inhabit this city, call it "the fastest growing city in the world; the Chicago of South America."

The city is dramatic evidence that a community, left far behind by the industrial revolution of the last century, can overcome the handicap in a rush toward the future.

Paulistas, referring to the state as well as the city, say "Sao Paulo is a locomotive pulling 20 empty cars (the other Brazilian states)."

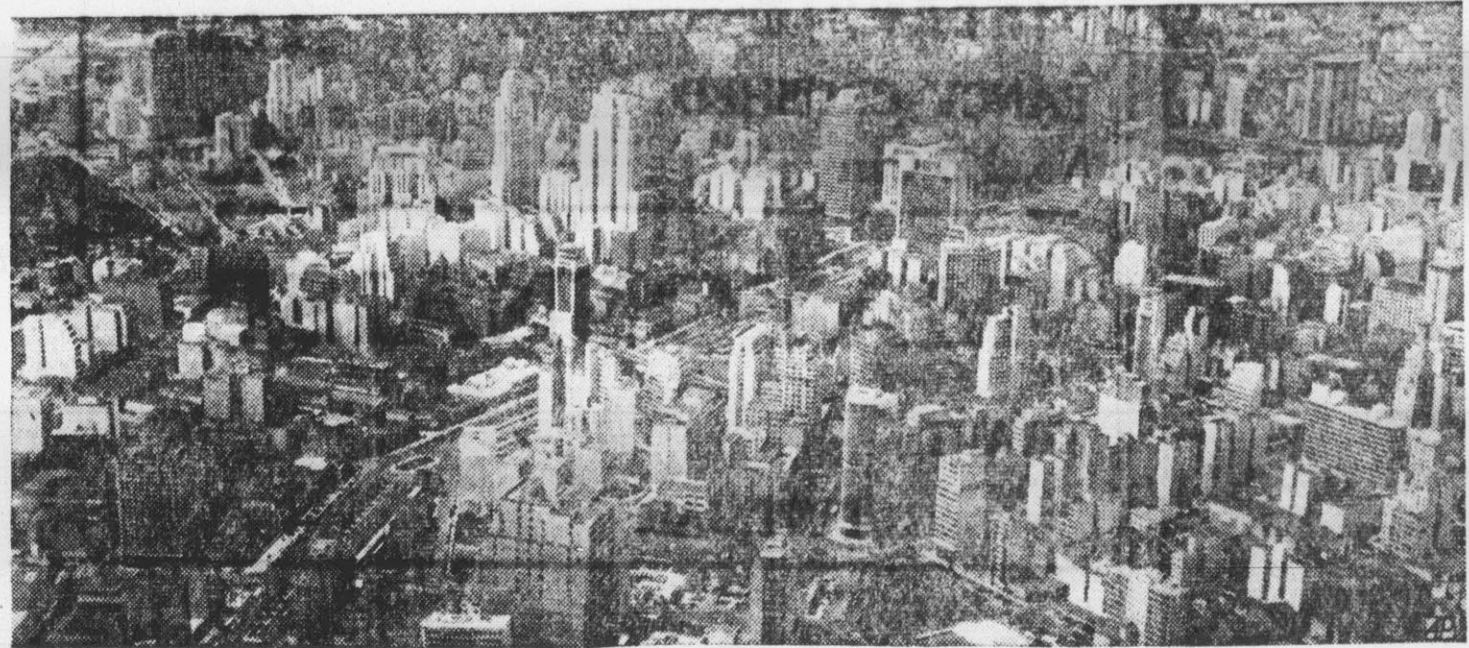

Built over rolling hills and shallow valleys, Sao Paulo is a melting pot of three million. On its wide modern boulevards walk Germans, Japanese, Italians, Hungarians and even descendants of proud Confederates who left the United States after the Civil War.

And the immigrants keep coming. Some bring money, others technical know-how. Still others come with empty pockets and big dreams. But all add to Sao Paulo's dynamic personality.

In this nation of vast lands and untapped resources, Sao Paulo has a niche of its own. It has taken long strides ahead of the rest of Brazil.

From its soaring skyscrapers, its modern factories, come more than half of the country's textile products, chemicals and medicines. It produces 80 per cent of all Brazilian electrical materials, 78 per cent of manufactured rubber goods and 88 per cent of the machinery and finished metal.

Sao Paulo's industrial growth far outshadows its population increase, which in itself is amazing. This city has grown by one million in six years and last year became Brazil's most populous city.

Industrial growth in Sao Paulo, best shown by the increase in value of basic industries, borders on the fantastic. The value of metallurgical industries has grown from less than one million dollars in 1940 to 18 million in 1955. The automotive industry was valued at two million dollars in 1950 and five million in 1955. The value of the chemical industry grew from eight million dollars in 1950 to 21 million in 1955.

There is an estimated one billion dollars invested in and around Sao Paulo by U. S. companies. General Motors has announced a 10 million dollar expansion plan here. Ford Motor Co. is expected to follow suit. In the chemical up about 60 per cent of the total field, money has been invested by foreign investments in Sao Paulo. W. R. Grace and Co., Celanese, other nations are moving in rapidly. Union Carbide and others. Union Carbide has invested 72 million dollars in Brazil since 1952 — more than any other nation — and is making formaldehyde and other chemicals in a four million dollar plant.

The heavy immigration to Sao Paulo has solved one major problem of industrialization that the rest of Brazil faces. In Sao Paulo, there is no lack of technicians for the factories.

"We have our own technical schools now," said one industrialist. "Actually, Sao Paulo needs agricultural experts for the fields. But for the factories, we're training our own."

Agreed-Upon Fallout Menace May Spur International Body

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP) — Rep. Durham (D-N.C.) said today a "breakthrough" of scientific agreement on nuclear bomb test dangers may help President Eisenhower win United States participation in an international atomic energy agency.

Scientific witnesses before a Senate-House Atomic Energy subcommittee yesterday agreed in principle there is some level at which bomb tests, which produce radioactive fallout, must be restricted for the safety of mankind. But they differed on when the danger point might be reached.

Durham, chairman of the full Atomic Energy Committee, hailed the development and said "we broke through the wall there," adding that "this will help get the atomic agency treaty through the Senate."

He noted that Atomic Energy Commission scientists were among those who joined in the general agreement on ultimate bomb test dangers. Durham said this marked the first approach by that agency to endorsement of weapons test controls.

In general, the AEC has contended that nuclear weapons testing can continue without endangering the public.

The proposed world agency is designed to promote peaceful applications of atomic energy. It results from Eisenhower's "Atoms for Peace" proposal.

Durham said that while the agency was not intended directly to seek international agreement on cutting down atomic fallout, its charter is broad enough to allow it to undertake such a task.

Japan has taken the lead among the nations in seeking an end to atomic tests. Yesterday, Takeshi Shimoda, the Japanese minister here, handed the State Department a second formal request for suspension of current U. S. tests in Nevada.

Shimoda told newsmen afterward that United States officials told him that until some international agreement can be reached on limiting further nuclear tests, the U. S. feels it has a duty to the free world to continue its test operations.

Today the time has come to seek international agreement on limiting nuclear weapons tests.

Dr. Merrill Eisenbud, manager of AEC's New York operations office, said he thought the world might have "decades" in which to work out its arrangements.

Dr. William F. Neuman, bone specialist at the University of Rochester medical school, said it seemed possible to him that the danger point might be reached in a few years.

More Lakes Than They Suspected

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It may be the end of a slogan, but Minnesota, the land of 10,000 lakes, may have as many as 16,000. The state division of waters has a new aerial survey underway to count the lakes and it is using a slightly different system.

Now all bodies of water 10 acres or more are being counted as lakes, whereas prior surveys counted only those of 25 acres or more.

RELIEF GIFT

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The U. S. Embassy today delivered $3,066 to the governor of Tripolitania for relief of victims of the January flood of the Maghira River. The money was collected from the American community in Libya.

Ex-Bombardier Well On Way In Ministerial Role

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — The lead bombardier in the first B29 raid against the Japanese home islands in 1944 was well embarked today on a different mission — that of religion.

The Rev. Herbert C. Hirschfeld, 35, associate pastor of the Concord Methodist Church, was graduated recently from the Pacific School of Religion in nearby Berkeley.

The 1944 air attack against Japan, first since the 1942 Doolittle raid, was a turning point in World War II.

Hirschfeld, then a captain, and his 12-man crew subsequently flew 35 missions unscathed. His unit ferried its own gasoline, bombloads and supplies "over the hump" from India to Chinese forward bases, then refueled for the flight to Japan.

An incident in the Korean War led him to enter the seminary, a step he had contemplated in his high school days before the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

His squadron was short of chaplains, and Hirschfeld found himself called upon repeatedly to lead the men in informal religious services.

At Kimpo airfield near Seoul in 1952, after he was recalled as a major in the Korean action, he found a serviceman sitting on a cot in his tent, holding a gun.

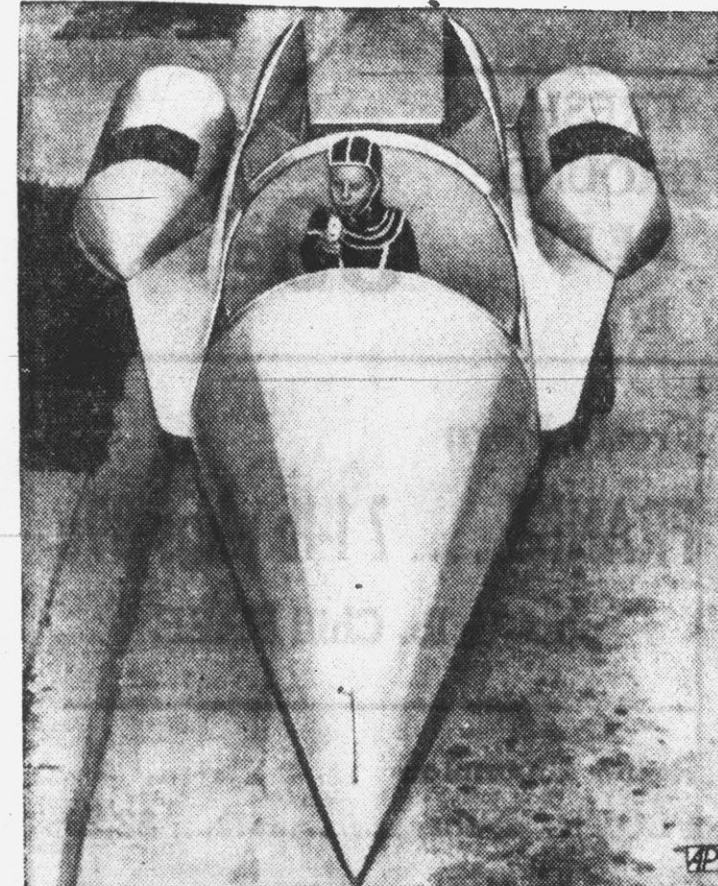

Hirschfeld said the man was suffering from war nerves and had a letter from his wife saying she was leaving him. He talked to the man for an hour.

"Then suddenly he relaxed and handed me the gun," Hirschfeld recalled. "We sent him to Japan for hospitalization, where he ultimately recovered and returned home. Most heartening, he and his wife have reconciled."

Hirschfeld and his wife Ivy have two children, Janaan, 10, and Cathy, 7.

Safe Water Issued By CD In Milk Cartons

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. — The humble milk carton became an instrument for saving lives in the recently hard-hit flood disaster areas of eastern Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

When the record-breaking floods of January 29 rolled over 31 counties in three States, more than 10,000 families were cut off from pure drinking water. Polluted wells and reservoirs posed special problems in hard hit towns such as Hazard and Pikeville, Ky. Logan, W. Va., and Pound, Hays, St. Paul and Clinchport, Va.

In such a situation, typhoid fever and other diseases can run rampant unless extraordinary precautions are taken.

Stepping into the emergency were four dairy firms with eight plants in areas near the flood. Altogether, they supplied some 60,000 gallons of drinking water in cartons of milk tank trucks in the first major test of a Federal Civil Defense Administration emergency water plan.

The idea of using milk cartons for water containers originated in August 1955 during the widespread floods in the eastern United States following Hurricane Diane.

Stroudsburg, Pa., at the time hard-hit by the rising Delaware River, had sent out an urgent appeal to the Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers Dairy at nearby Allentown for milk cartons to be used as water containers. The dairy not only furnished the cartons, but filled them with water, then trucked them into the flood area.

The Stroudsburg story, widely publicized by FCDA and the dairy industry, resulted in a nationwide program to supply water by this method for emergency use.

PURE WATER is distributed in a typical scene duplicated many times in the flood-ravaged areas of eastern Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. To meet the recent flood situation which had cut off 10,000 families from drinking water supplies, four dairy firms put their eight plants to work preparing 60,000 gallons of safe water in cardboard milk cartons and milk tank trucks. It was the first time the Federal Civil Defense Administration's plan for emergency water distribution had been put to practical use in a disaster.

Rae Foley's new mystery novel RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 35

Nora knocked the mirror out of Stuart's hand, scrambled to her feet, and ran. She had no time to think. Her body was doing the thinking for her. Some animal instinct, some elementary will for survival, sent her racing along the woods path, made her run for her life. If she went down the paved road he could easily overtake her; he could run so much faster. She turned, plunged into the underbrush, working her way toward the deep woods, stumbled into a gully, lost her balance, sprawled head-long.

Stuart shouted, "Nora! Nora!" She heard his thudding feet. Ahead of her in the woods a startled deer darted out of sight. The sound and the movement caught Stuart's attention and he leaped the gully only a few feet from where she lay and ran into the woods.

She lay still for a moment. When he saw the deer he'd come back. He'd come back, anyhow. He knew she wasn't strong enough to run far, that he must have passed her. She got to her hands and knees, listening to his noisy progress, hearing his frantic voice calling, "Nora! Nora! What's wrong? Come back, darling! What frightened you? Come back!"

Then, cautiously, she crawled along the gully on hands and knees. Beyond it and across a cleared space, boulders were massed as though the glacier had simply sat down there. If she could reach them she could hide behind them. Stuart was still trashing around in the woods. She got to her feet, ran across the cleared space, climbed up among the boulders, and crawled between two of them, crouching behind a third. She listened but there was no sound. Stuart wasn't running now. He wasn't calling to her. He was listening as she was listening. Somewhere he was waiting for her to betray her hiding place.

Stuart! All the time it had been Stuart. The whole story was clear now. It had been clear from that flashing moment of realization when she had looked into the bright mirror. Somehow Stuart had hypnotized her, had made her believe that he had been with her that afternoon while he went to kill Candy. It was only two miles from the Point to the lake. He could have come and gone on foot while she slept. I should have known, she thought, that Cousin Charles wouldn't lie under oath.

He did see Stuart with Candy. She tried to superimpose the picture of this new Stuart, this enemy, on the one she knew. Stuart the understanding, the gentle, the considerate. He had gone down to bash Candy's head in and throw her body in the lake. And he had come back to awaken her, to kiss her, to fondle her with hands that had just killed.

But how had he dared take the risk? How could he be sure he'd succeed in hypnotizing her? Oh, of course — that mad thing she had done the day before, walking fully clothed into the icy lake. He had played with the bright mirror then, too. It had been a rehearsal, a kind of test.

If the fire had not died down while he was gone she would never have known that anything was wrong. But the nightmares, the sense of guilt, the uneasy fear that something didn't fit would have continued. Because Stuart had fired the fire that had died and it did not fit the story she had been told, she had not been able to reconcile them.

Inch by inch, she shifted her position, her heart in her mouth. Suppose a twig snapped! Where was he? What was he doing? Sooner or later he was bound to find her. He was going to kill her. She had seen that in his face. Even since he had come back he had tried three times to kill her and had so nearly succeeded.

But why? What had she done? Even if she remembered, he could not be punished for Candy's murder. He was safe. But if she remembered he would lose the money. The Pendleton money. It was queer to think that Aunt Olive, who had always seemed to be so rattle brained, was right about Stuart as she had been right about the Huguers.

There was only one thing she had been wrong about and it no longer mattered. Because Nora had been asleep on the blanket she had not seen her; she had believed it was Stuart who had remained behind, and a jealous Nora who had gone to meet Candy that afternoon.

A stone rolled and she caught her breath. Stuart spoke, only a few feet away.

"Come out, Nora. I know you are hiding in here somewhere. What are you afraid of, dear? Come out and let me take you home. Nora — Nora —" The warm pleading in his voice almost made her doubt for a moment. She held her breath. Waited.

"Nora," he said, his voice louder, "come out and end this nightmare."

He was so near that she could have touched him. Then, to her incredulous relief, he moved away, still talking. "I'm going down to the car for the big flashlight. I'll find you. I'm bound to find you. Come out, Nora."

She heard him moving away then, going down the hill toward the car. The air was cold and she was grateful for the warmth of the sweater Tom's sweater. Tom! She wanted him so terribly, needed him so desperately, and he did not know she was in danger. Tomorrow, next day, perhaps, she would be found elsewhere. Suicide while of unsound mind.

She began to climb again. Above the boulders came the woods and the underbrush. She heard the car door slam, saw the gleam of the flashlight and forced her way in among the bushes, scratched her face, pulled her hair, tore at her clothes. She pulled the bushes over her.

Lying prone, she could hear Stuart's footsteps above the heavy pounding of her heart, which seemed to shake her whole body. It was completely dark now. All at once, as though on a signal, the night noises of the woods began like an orchestra tuning up, drowning out the sounds of Stuart's approach.

The woods seemed to be filled with small, anxious animals, scurrying around. She heard surreptitious movements through the underbrush. Something small, a chipmunk or squirrel, ran over her arm.

A finger of light probed through the undergrowth, reached toward her. She watched helplessly. It fastened on an opossum hanging by its tail from a branch over her head and moved on. Came back. Shone in her eyes, blinding her.

"Nora!" Stuart reached down and pulled her, unresisting, to her feet. "Where are you taking me?" she asked dully.

He did not look at her. He was still keeping up the ghastly pretense that everything was all right.

Back to the car, of course.

She thought about it. You're going to push me over the Point so they'll think I jumped. I'll fall — and fall —

"Nora!" he said hoarsely. He began to drag her down the side of the hill.

She screamed then, her voice wild, mad with panic.

Nora is trapped. How can she escape? Read the stirring conclusion to "Run for Your Life" in this paper tomorrow.

A Familiar Scene At Teen-er Park

THE PITCH—Tonight, this scene will flash for the third time this season at Guy Smith Stadium's Teen-er Field, when the Home Builders and the Guaranty Bank teams clash. Above, Home Builders' Merrill Bynum delivers a fastball that was caught in mid-air by the camera. Despite a no-hitter, Bynum lost this game 6-1. The Guaranty Bank won their only game thus far, 15-4, Tuesday night. Gametime is set for 7:45. (Reflector Sports Photo by Billy Arnold.)

Greenville P & M, Dairy Win Softball Contests

Last night at Guy Smith Stadium, Greenville Parts and Metals whipped the Graniters 5-3 and the Carolina Dairy downed Carolina Telephone and Telegraph, 10-4, in City Softball competition.

In the first game, Charlie Odom went the full distance for the Greenville P&M and received credit for the victory. The losing team tapped him for nine hits but were unable to stretch the hits into sufficient runs.

Dan Gordon was the losing pitcher. He was slammed for seven runs.

The winners tallied in the first, second, third, fourth and sixth innings to keep the game moving. The Graniters scored all three of their runs in the first inning.

Jack Huggins was the key hitter for Greenville P&M, with three for three. Mayo Allen and Charlie Allen collected two each. Harold Ingram cracked three for three for the losers.

In the second game, Carolina Dairy turned on the power in the third, sixth and seventh innings to blast the Carolina T&T, 10-4. The Dairy pushed across one run in the third, three in the sixth and six in the seventh.

Bill Brantley was the winning pitcher, giving up eight hits. His own team backed him up with nine. W. H. Phillips Jr. hurled for the Carolina T&T. He fanned three and issued three walks.

Mack Ruebeck, Bob Dash and D. W. Walker smashed two hits each to pace the Dairy clubs. Bob Reid, Phillips and Buddy Lee cracked two each for the losers.

A doubleheader softball affair will take place tonight at Guy Smith Stadium between the four teams of the City Softball League beginning at 7:30.

Carolina Dairy will battle the Greenville Parts and Metals and the Graniters will face the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph crew.

In a non-city League game last week, the Carolina Dairy nine went to Roanoke Rapids to battle the highly-regarded Romanos in a doubleheader.

The first game ended 1-0 in favor of the Roanoke Rapids team. Dan Gordon was the losing hurler for the Dairy, despite a three-hit game of pitching. Carolina Dairy got only two hits, and made no errors.

The second contest ended in a 7-7 deadlock. Charlie Yates pitched for the Greenville outfit and was relieved in the final inning by Gordon. The Dairy outthit the home team, eight to six and committed two errors to the Romanos' three.

Catcher Ralph Heidenrich slammed a homerun early in the contest and manager Pete Caraway pinch-hitting for Bob Dash in the fifth, slammed another to tie the game.

The rest of the CD lineup was as follows: Brantley, first base; Hall, second base; Tripp, shortstop; Dash, third base; Walker, left field; Moye, centerfield; Riddick, right field.

Winston-Salem Is Getting Closer

CAROLINA LEAGUE
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Winston-Salem shaved another game off Durham's lead last night and moved within two games of the front-running Bulls in the Carolina League pennant scramble.

While Winston-Salem was blasting Greensboro 9-4 at Greensboro, Durham was dropping a 9-7 decision to Danville at Danville.

High Point-Thomasville defeated Wilson 8-3 at Thomasville to snap an eight-game losing streak. Jerry Kettle hurled an effective seven-hitter for the Hi-Toms and Bill Ford was the batting star with two home runs.

Seven Local Boys Sign For Soap Box Race

Seven Greenville youngsters have registered for the 13th Annual Kinston Soap Box Derby, which is slated to be held on June 30 or July 4, should rain mar the first date.

The Kinston derby, sponsored by the Kinston and the North Carolina Chevrolet Dealers, is one of several in the state. The winner of the Kinston race will receive an all-expense-paid trip to Akron, Ohio, for the All-American Derby, which will decide the National Derby winner.

Included in the festivities at Kinston are expected to be celebrities, a parade, prizes and possibly a banquet.

Winner of the Akron race will receive a $5,000 college scholarship. There are four other college scholarships awarded as runner-up prizes, as well as a complete encyclopedia set, motion picture projector and camera, a workshop unit, a Trans-Oceanic portable radio and trophies for best breaks and fastest heat.

Others May Join
The seven Greenville youngsters who have already signed up for the race are the first entrants from this area. Others who meet the requirements and are interested, are invited to contact White Chevrolet Company here.

The only requirements for signing up for the race are that a boy must be between the ages of 11 and 15 years old.

Greenville's seven entrants thus far are listed below: Tommy Brown of 1904 East 6th St., Larry Dunn of 1802 East 6th St., Bobby Helwig of 806 1/2 James St., Jack Foley III of 121 North Woodlawn Ave., Cliff Fleming Jr. of 804 River Drive, Roy Johnson of 100 Rotary Ave., Robert Moore of 210 Manhattan Ave.

There is no charge for entering the race and boys from all over this end of the state are signing up through their local Chevrolet dealers. Wheels for the racers are furnished in this area by White Chevrolet Company and all other details, such as individual sponsors, are handled by White Chevrolet.

Cobb Talks To Milwaukee Club

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Ty Cobb, the old "Georgia Peach," visited the Milwaukee Braves clubhouse yesterday before their game with the Chicago Cubs and answered more questions than a contestant going for broke on a quiz show.

Cobb, who was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame in 1939, was one of the game's greatest hitters and base stealers, sat on a folding chair firing back answers at a cluster of inquiring players.

Had he really leveled that bitter blast at modern-day ballplayers and how the game has changed? Bobby Thomson asked that one.

"Well," said the 70-year-old Cobb with a wry grin, "I criticized some, but nothing like they made out."

The conversation got around to the art of base stealing. "Take a lead you know you can bet back with," Cobb said. "Watch the pitcher's foot. That oftentimes is the tipoff to what he's going to do. You know lots of pitchers rear away back with that foot. Sometimes they go so high you can easily steal on him."

How about stealing third? Isn't that a lot tougher than stealing second?

"No," said the old master. "I think it was easier. Don't depend on the third base coach to watch the infielders for you. Do it yourself and gauge your lead. Generally you can take a longer lead off second. And that throw to third sometimes is harder for the catcher to make."

Meeks Chosen For AAU Honor

GREENSBORO (AP)—Frank Meeks of the Columbia, S.C., Lions Club is the Carolina AAU honor roll selection for May.

Meeks, an accounting professor at the University of South Carolina, was recognized for his part in planning the highly successful Teague Award banquet in Columbia at which the outstanding amateur athletes of the Carolinas were honored.

AAU President Joe Glynn said in making the announcement here yesterday:

"Such affairs are a vital part of the Carolina AAU, and we want to help express our appreciation to Frank Meeks and the Columbia Lions Club in this manner. Many men took part in the planning of the Teague banquet, but it was Meeks who not only quarterbacked the job, but carried it out."

Ortiz Wins Out Over Another Foe

CHICAGO (AP)—Carlos Ortiz hopes today to win recognition as a contender for the lightweight championship after his unanimous decision over Felix Chiocca of Paris, France.

The victory last night in the 10-round bout at Chicago Stadium ran Ortiz's undefeated string through 24 bouts.

The 20-year-old Ortiz, a Puerto Rican who lives in New York, displayed aggressiveness and speed, but he couldn't find enough openings in the cage Chiocca's defense to win more impressively.

Referee Bill Doty saw it 47-43. Judge Frank McAdams 48-43. The Associated Press card had the fight even, 47 each.

Chiocca weighed 137, Ortiz 134.

Laying Down A Bunt

JOYNER HITS—Kenny Joyner, who hurled a 6-4 win for the Moose yesterday at Elm Street Park, also cracked two hits and scored twice to help his own cause. Above, he is shown laying down a neat bunt. The victory over the Exchange yesterday notched the third win of the season for the Moose and places them in first place in the league.

Editor's Note: Yesterday's Reflector carried an erroneous listing of the Tar Heel standings, stating that the Moose club was on bottom with a 1-2 record. Actually, the Moose now heads the loop.

Coach Charlie Bland's Moose Club turned on the power in the fifth inning yesterday at Elm Street Park, to down the Exchange Club 6-4 and notch their third win of the season.

In the North State game of the doubleheader, the Lions blasted their VFW opponents, 13-7, in a high-scoring affair that also marked their third victory of the young year.

Grand Slam
Robby Ange, pitcher for the Exchange outfit, blasted a grand slam homerun in the third inning of the Tar Heel game, to put his team in a 4-3 lead. That lead was erased in the fifth frame when Forbes and Partridge tallied for the Moose.

Kenny Joyner pitched for the Moose.
