Find Survivor Of Airplane Crash And 19-Day Ordeal

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP)—"It's certainly a blessing to be alive." Those were the first words Mrs. Dalton LeMasurier spoke to rescuers who found her beside the body of her husband last yesterday on a snow-shrouded mountainside.

The 45-year-old Duluth, Minn. housewife survived her ordeal for 19 days—more than a week longer than searchers sought the wreckage of the couple's plane.

His wife first told rescuers he died four days after the crash. Later that he died seven days ago. And before going to sleep in her hospital bed last night she said she knows he is still living.

Three Austrian tobacconists who have been instrumental in their country's cigarette and cigar industry were in town yesterday renewing old acquaintances.

Memorial Day Traffic Toll Below Predictions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Death stalked the nation's highways as usual over Memorial Day but the number of victims claimed was lower than expected.

The National Safety Council had expected at least 120 highway deaths in the 30 hours. Council President Ned H. Dearborn said that "we are grateful" for the lower toll but added: "It's nothing to crow about."

The 30-hour tabulation this year was just about the same as any similar nonholiday period, both in traffic and total fatalities.

Sample Liquor Allowance Is Halted By ABC Board

RALEIGH (AP)—The State ABC Board told Gov. Hodges today in a preliminary report on a probe of the free liquor for legislators scandal that it has stopped the practice of allowing liquor salesmen to draw three cases of liquor a month as samples.

The report from the board and the statement from the governor resulted from a preliminary investigation by the board yesterday into charges made by a Baptist minister that several cases of liquor are unloaded at Raleigh's Sir Walter Hotel each week for distribution as gifts to some legislators from liquor interests.

men to pool their sample allotments. State ABC Board Chairman Tom Allen said in his report to the governor that the board is in the process of investigating the charges made by the Rev. Gerald C. Primm and widely publicized. It said the report was partial and "the investigation is continuing."

asked Allen whether the board had completed its investigation in an all-day session behind closed doors. "No, by no means. . . . We just got started good. I'll let you know when we have our next meeting and I'll let you come in." Asked if he meant the next meeting would be an open session, Allen said that was his present intention.

Spring Calls For Throat Cream

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Your skin needs a spring cleaning and reconditioning too, something to keep in mind when you've finished refurbishing the house. At winter's end our skin often takes on a greyed appearance craving more sunlight. Throats and foreheads are likely to be particularly wrinkled and dry looking. If you are below 25, pomal applications of dry skin cream for a few nights should help get your throat line back into the smooth groove. The over-30 set and the over-40 set would do well to find a good rich lubricating throat cream. The throat area contains fewer fatty cells so that the skin is thinner there, requiring rich oil to seep down through pores to help restore firmness and resilience to the delicate skin area.

This is the one spot really where you want to make sure to have a good, rich, nourishing cream, one especially formulated with the throat in mind. Put it on gently rubbing it up from the collar bones towards the chin line. Do not pull or stretch the skin in this area as it may sag in a manner that can never be remedied. Women who are able to afford facials as they grow older have learned to their sorrow that massage carried on down the throat line in a heavy-handed manner contributed to their early sagging profile.

Mrs. Mitchell Demonstrates Arrangements

Mrs. Owen Marshburn entertained the Athenum Book Club at a luncheon Tuesday at her home, "Andalusia."

Arrangements done by Mrs. Marshburn and Mrs. Sam Mitchell were placed throughout the house. A mass arrangement of white magnolias and blue hydrangea in the hall matched the decor of the entrance hall.

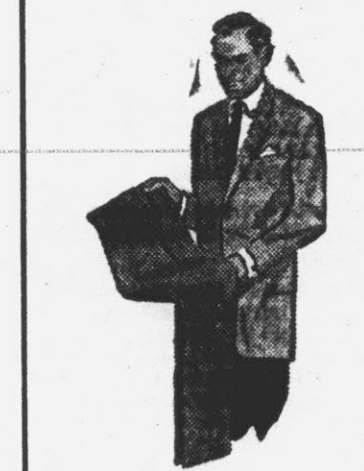

After the two-course luncheon, Mrs. Marshburn presented Mrs. Sam Mitchell, district president of the Garden Clubs of North Carolina, who gave a demonstration of three types of flower arrangements—mass, line, and symmetrical.

A short business meeting concluded the year's work of the club. Mrs. S. M. Crisp, retiring president, gave the gavel to Mrs. Lee Hannah, the incoming president.

All massage of the face should be on the gentle side or with a tapping motion to stimulate circulation, but there should be no push-pull motion. The over-30 woman needs to watch the skin of her face too, especially the eye area. One good cream has a velvety effect if used faithfully. It soothes and soothes roughened areas, is completely non-greasy, and its golden creaminess disappears on the skin, imparting a supple texture that is so admired in young girls.

Heavy creams of this type are good too on mid-forehead-thinking-lines, around the chin and corners of the mouth and used on the pump-bumps at the heels and flaky roughness of legs due to winter chapping. It's good too on elbows and forearms when dryness develops, and is especially good used just before wearing a short-sleeved dress.

There is a comforting thing about a rich cream when you know that your skin needs that treatment—you feel that you've nourished it at its own request, satisfying its craving for skin food.

THROAT CREAM . . . The over-thirty set especially needs the velvety smoothness of cream used at the chinline.

Not that we want to drive the question of atomic bombs into the ground, but we think everyone should know about the controversy that now is going on between the people who think further testing of atomic weapons should be immediately stopped and those who don't, particularly since a new series of tests is now going on out West. . . . Last week's Saturday Review carried a reply to Dr. Albert Schweitzer's condemnation of the tests, from Willard Libby of the Atomic Energy Commission. . . .

HIRSBERG

THE TREE OF LANGUAGE. By Helene and Charlton Laird, illustrated by Ervina Metz. Cleveland and New York: The World Publishing Co., 1957.

This is the story of the development of the family of languages known as Indo-European. It is a branch of what the authors call the Tree of Language. The Indo-European branch includes most modern European languages, the eastern languages spoken in India and Pakistan, and—what the authors are most concerned with—English.

First they describe the fascinating beginnings of languages—how and why people got started speaking them, and specifically the beginnings of English itself. Briefly but interestingly, Old English, Chaucerian English and modern English are described, then the formation of the alphabet, and finally an account of "English Spelling and How It Got That Way."

Printing and place and proper names come in for some intriguing historical treatment. The last half of the book is devoted to explanation and tracing of the history and meaning of many common and uncommon words, and here is where the book becomes fascinating for readers of any age.

For example, we learn that "Caterpillar" means literally "hairy cat," that "Cold" is originally related to "jelly," which has to get cold to jelly, and that "Lunch" comes either from an old Spanish word, "lonje," a slab of ham, or "lump," probably meaning a lump of bread—for many people, that meaning hasn't changed much.

"The Tree of Language" is worth having in any library, and we recommend it as interesting reading, handy reference, and as a book to get your children into the habit of wondering about words—which are getting more important every day.

Ever heat canned pears and serve with a chocolate sauce and whipped cream? Drain the pears, of course.

On Television

In a recent speech about the future of literature, John Mason Brown had this to say about TV: "We are told daily that the written word is threatened by TV. I for one do not believe that TV is a super means of communication and, like sex, is here to stay. We had better adjust ourselves to it, remembering that the turning of the dial is only one more exercise of that selective taste that we employ in our reading." Mr. Brown, in case you didn't know, is the author of numerous books and an English professor, to boot. He made the above remark at a large meeting of the Author's League of America.

Today's Review

We picked this one to review ourselves because we're interested especially in what it's about. It's supposed to be a juvenile, but grown-ups certainly can learn a lot from it. . . .

Dior Designs In Bathtub

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—Christian Dior does most of his dress designing in the bath and in bed. He considers that he missed his real vocation as an architect, and hates and fears each new season's opening show. Extremely superstitious, he largely credits luck with putting him on top of the fashion world.

These are a few of the revelations in a new book, "Christian Dior and Me," by Christian Dior, to be published in the United States next September.

In his "split-personality" autobiography, Dior treats his professional self, now ten years old, as a separate individual. The distinction is sometimes a coy one, and Dior does not always succeed in convincing the reader that he is the modest man he loves to personify.

He subscribes to the old French critique that American women are so impeccable they tend to uniformity, but admits: "The constant care that American women take to be beautiful results in the fact that they really are beautiful."

The New Look dressmaker tells how timidly he embarked on his venture, with the backing of French textile king Marcel Boussac. Nothing, he declares, can ever surpass the happiness with which he heard the storm of applause which ended his first show. Dior says he has been told: "I have a terrible professional way of looking at women. Before my eyes, they feel undressed. But they are wrong. I content myself with dressing them differently."

Some 25,000 people, mostly women, sit through collections in the Dior salons every season. Those who come to "rinse their eyes" and not to buy are called "swallows" by the designer and his staff, and Dior claims he instructs his sales women not to harass them.

Mr. Edward Hart and Mrs. Mark Phillips compiled the highest scores among the club members and the guest award went to Mrs. Tom Gower.

Liability Bill Has Popular Appeal

In spite of opposition to the proposed compulsory auto liability insurance raised by insurance men in North Carolina the strength of the bill has gained since its doubtful beginning is indicative of the support it has among the rank and file citizens of the state.

Before the legislature met back in February Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville set up a "trial balloon" with the announcement of his intention to introduce a bill calling for compulsory liability insurance for every automobile registered in the State. Insurance companies and allied organizations immediately attacked the

N.C. House Offers Advice To Uncle Sam

It's a little unusual for a state government to try to tell the federal government how to run its business even though the federal government is trying constantly to force its will upon the states.

North Carolina's House of Representatives has adopted a resolution, which if followed by the federal government, will do away with the antiquated electoral college system of selecting a president. Under the proposal endorsed by the House, the electoral vote of each state would be divided among the presidential candidates on the basis of the popular vote each received.

Though such a plan probably would not affect the outcome of any presidential election, it would assure that the electoral vote of each candidate would more accurately reflect the popular vote.

The electoral college as now constituted has served its purpose in the United States. The time has come for it to be modernized to meet the present needs of the nation. Congress should give careful consideration to changing the constitutional provisions for the election of presidents.

Memories Still Affect Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
A residual effect of the great depression of the early 1930's lingers on. The operation of almost every business and the shape of every advertising campaign is still influenced, to an extent, by that bust, whether the management or the advertiser knows it.

Every promotion must naturally take the age of the prospects into consideration. The sales pitch for a bicycle must be different from one for an auto. And to be effective, the pitch must be refined with the answers to the question: "What was this group doing during the big depression?"

If the product is promoted among those who were tiny infants or not born then, the advertising can be pretty well unchained. The prospects are young and, furthermore, they bear no emotional scars.

DIFFERENT EFFECTS AND DIFFERENT AGES

If the prospects were fairly young during the depression years, the chances are that they were reasonably well sheltered from the emotional impact of the situation, and advertising themes need little restraint. But if the prospects were adolescents then, their memories still influence their decisions. In fact, there is reason to suspect that some carry on a feeling of guilt. The fall of family fortunes coincided with their growing up in such a way that there was an implied connection.

Perhaps the deepest impacts are in the memories of those who are now from 45 to 65. Many of them saw chances of careers and even good jobs fade; many struggled under great handicaps to keep their young families fed and sheltered; some were forced to take humiliating jobs, such as raking leaves and performing other made-work tasks.

Not everyone suffered during the depression but practically everyone was grimly aware of those close about him.

A recurring characteristic of those hurt by the depression is a feeling of guilt about spending money for luxuries. Buying nonessentials in those days was considered almost sinful, a fact that worsened the situation. Workers in furs and fine textiles, makers of expensive automobiles proposal using as their principal theme assertions that such a law would cause the cost of liability insurance to skyrocket.

Favorable reaction to the proposal, however, was sufficient for Rep. Jones to feel that introduction of the bill was justified even though few observers gave it much of a chance of being passed.

Progress made by the bill so far in this session is indicative of the growing support it has received from the people of the state in the past four months. It is indicative of the acute awareness that the financial responsibility law now ineffect does not afford the victims of automobile accidents the protection they need and should have.

Approximately 65 per cent of the automobiles now registered in the state carry liability insurance. The other 35 per cent are not covered by liability insurance and in many instances victims of accidents in which this latter group of vehicles are involved have no way of recovering damages. If North Carolina had a compulsory liability insurance law every person who travels on the highways of this state could do so with the assurance that his vehicle is protected by such insurance and so is the one driven by the other fellow.

The legislature should afford North Carolinians this additional protection. The legislature should pass the compulsory liability insurance bill.

CAVEAT EMPTOR — Literally translated, if not exactly literal, the Latin words "caveat emptor" mean "Let the buyer beware." A somewhat broader application is the warning to be alert for possible traps in dealings other than the purchase of merchandise. Often there is no tangible notice of danger. Other times signs are posted.

When Rep. Watts Hall of Durham realized that he had lost his first against non-par banking, he introduced a bill requiring banks engaging in non-par practices to imprint their checks and other stationery with notice that this is a non-par bank and that fees may be charged for collecting or cashing checks drawn on other banks.

The same idea was involved in the amendment which Rep. John Henley of Cumberland tacked on to the bill authorizing use of unmarked cars by the Highway Patrol. The Henley amendment requires signs to be posted at points where main highways enter North Carolina advising that unmarked cars are used in traffic policing. Another adaptation of the idea are the familiar roadside signs advising that speed is electrically timed or that radar equipment is in use.

The non-par banks are expected to make a vigorous fight against the Hill measure. He insists that it is only courteous to advise customers of the practice, and if the banks are ashamed of the practice they ought to quit it.

Although his family operates one of the big banks in the State, young Hill has consistently championed the rights of the people as opposed to privileges for banks. He opposed the bill permitting the State to deposit money in banks at lower interest than could be obtained from other investments, and succeeded in reducing the spread of interest rates and requiring a higher loan ratio to deposits.

NAMES — State schools for the blind and deaf are sponsoring legislation authorizing the trustees to change the names so as to eliminate any reference to physical handicaps. Spokesmen for the schools said that the present designations give the people a sort of inferiority complex. They could not say what names be chosen and admitted it would be difficult to find words that would indicate the purpose of the schools without reference to blindness and deafness.

This attitude is in logical sequence with the trend to attempt to eliminate any reference to physical handicaps. Spokesmen for the schools said that the present designations give the people a sort of inferiority complex. They could not say what names be chosen and admitted it would be difficult to find words that would indicate the purpose of the schools without reference to blindness and deafness.

to legislate equality. Some years ago the East Carolina College at Greenville and Western Carolina College at Cullowhee secured legislative removal of the word "Teacher" from their corporate names.

(Dr. B. B. Daugherty, who died the other day after more than 60 years devoted to the cause of public education, refused to allow the word "Teacher" taken out of the college at Boone. He contended that the training of teachers is as noble purpose as any institution could achieve.)

Other instances of the effect of sensitiveness as to institutional names were removal of the designation "for Negroes" from the corporate title of the North Carolina College at Durham, and removal of "Indian" from the name of Pembroke State College. The hospitals for treatment of mental diseases have no indication of their purpose in their official names, and there is some sentiment for eliminating the word "Training" from title of the Caswell School.

So far there has been no movement to eliminate the purpose titles from the orthopedic hospital at Gastonia or the hospital for spastic children at Durham—although the field of the Durham institution has been broadened to permit treatment of adults and patients not clearly spastic.

POTPOURRI — The 1957 General Assembly has already run later in the summer than any regular session in modern history. That is due to the later convening date, rather than to length of the session. Electric fans have been placed at strategic points, and an extra water cooler has been installed in the rear lobby of the House. But the air conditioning units demanded by some members have not been and will not be installed. However desirable the air conditioning might be, majority of the legislators just do not have the nerve to vote for them in order to provide comfortable quarters for one to three hours a day, when they decline to appropriate funds for air conditioning offices where employees sweeter nine hours a day five days a week. . . .

There was a good bit of joshing about the extra water cooler in the House being installed the day after the News & Observer story (with pictures) on the delivery of free liquor to some legislators in their hotel rooms. . . .

Attendance is dwindling at regular legislative sessions. With 120 members in the House, a roll call that lists 100 votes now is regarded as very good. . . .

imperative that there be a momentary halt in the power buildup about the extra water cooler in change of heart on the part of the Moscow hierarchy. The Reds have not permanent coexistence in a world half free and half communist. They have not abandoned their atheism nor their paganistic doctrines. They have not relinquished their convictions that the state is all powerful and that the individual is of no consequence except to the extent he can be used to enhance and strengthen centralized authority to be exercised at the whim of those sitting in the driver's seat.

This is the colossal question mark and the seemingly insurmountable obstacle that lies across the path that could lead to disarmament, good will and world peace. Despite their burning desire to be relieved of the burden of building and maintaining armaments for their own defense, people of the free world look with misgivings upon the sweet talk that is emanating now from the secret confines of the Kremlin.

It may be easy enough to forget Hitler's Munich, but such a lapse of memory and its consequences could in the years directly ahead lead to misery beyond anything heaped upon an unsuspecting civilization by the madman of Potsdam, letting in an orgy of destruction the like of which humanity has never experienced and scarcely dreamed of.

The Things One Reads

In the Newspaper Business there are many enjoyable experiences that one might encounter.

By no means am I trying to act as a public relations man for the business but Man. . . I'm telling you you ought to be working for the press.

There are farmers who do not like farming, business men who don't like business, married men who don't like marriage; but you ain't ever going to find nobody working in the newspaper who does not like the work (that's what my boss told me) and love their wives (he told me that too). Incidentally I believe him.

Meeting interesting people and going to unusual places are more like fun, not work. But . . . the thing I like best is reading our exchange papers.

Today is my day for a certain amount of allotted column space. This morning I found two items in a neighboring newspaper, good ones I might add, that might be of interest to readers.

"They went something like this: "In one of our courts a man who had brought suit for damages in an automobile accident was on the witness stand and an attorney for the defendant took over. 'Did you, or did you not,' he asked the plaintiff, 'at the time of the accident when asked if you were hurt, reply that you wagon, and along comes this motorist and knocks us into the ditch. You never saw such a mess in all your life. There I was flat on my back with my legs in the air. There was my horse on his back, with his legs in the air. And there was my wagon, with its wheels in the air.

"The other story: "Taking a bath last Wednesday night at his home on the highway by-pass, James Smithwick leapt surely into the tub, drew some water and got out hurriedly when he found a snake swimming around with him in the tub.

"Two mysteries remain unsolved. One of them is how the snake got into the tub and how Mr. Smithwick got out so hurriedly without injuring himself.

"The snake, a water rattler, measured about eighteen inches in length and was about the size of a man's thumb. "It was explained that the snake was not in the tub when another member of the family took a bath forty-five minutes or an hour previously."

All I have got to say is . . . who says you can't do without a news service when you've got news like this going on.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
NEW LAND AND NEW LIFE
"Terah died in Haran." There is a whole complex of noble aspiration and stifling frustration expressed in those five words. Terah, father of Abraham, and left Ur of the Chaldees because he hated the idolatry of his fellow countrymen. He left this idolatry, but he still stayed on the same side of the river as the city of Ur. He settled down in Haran and there died. Abraham, his son, boldly crossed the river, putting final separation between himself and idolatry. This Abraham was the father of all the faithful — Jews and the Christians alike — who have lived from that day to this.

Terah is an example of how some people half relinquish their evil. They leave some idol which they worship — such as love of money, hypocrisy, weak indulgence of some base passion — and turn to a new and better day. But they never completely separate themselves from these weaknesses. Just as Terah stayed on the same side of the river as his delirious contemporaries, so people who half renounce their evils look back upon them with longing, stay in their vicinity, and never really break with them.

Abraham is the father of all faithful men because he broke with an idolatry from which his father Terah only half separated himself. Abraham crossed the river and struck out for a new land and a new life.

Therein lay glory for him, and in such an attitude abides glory for us.

Nuggets In The Mail

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never suspect if he didn't read his mail:

That one reason why business isn't even better may be the fault of executives. A management expert says the American economy would be 15 per cent more productive if executives would quit worrying and start thinking creatively.

That the average employee still will firmly believe most organizations require two bosses — one to fire people, and the other to build morale.

That a British doctor, after having 600 patients stick out their tongues, concluded fur on the tongue is usually due to smoking, a local infection or fever, but is no index to stomach or intestinal ailments.

That people who are going deaf seldom have the same degree of loss of hearing in both ears.

That 300 years ago a London advertisement recommended the drinking of coffee as a treatment, for eyecores, coughs, or colds, consumption, droopy, gout, scurvy, headaches and a democratic disease then known as the King's Evil.

That David Atkinson, the baritone, says "an optimist is a guy who thinks he can win a sweep-stake but can't get killed in a car crash."

That a century ago girls used to go through the ordeal of swallowing candle wax in the hope of achieving a pallid complexion, then in the height of fashion.

That the French claim the original mint juleps were animated with cognac before bourbon was born.

That whiskers of the sea lion are prized as toothpicks by the Chinese.

That actor Tom-Ewell defines women's girdles as "the difference between facts and figures."

That the best refuge during an electrical storm in open country is inside a car. But don't make the mistake of parking it under a tree.

That 10 million Americans are operated on every year . . . and the average person undergoes some kind of surgery four times during his life.

That America had to pay $6,000,000 to clear its main highways of debris left by Memorial Day travelers.

Thaticed tea was invented in St. Louis during its 1904 World Fair. Americans now drink 10 billion glasses of this beverage every summer.

Mr. Potter looked at his watch. Four o'clock. It would be hours before he could get back to the inn.

None the less, Mr. Potter called the inn and waited impatiently for Tom Kendrick to come on the line.

Tom set down the telephone and raced down to the parking lot. The trooper was already in the police car, talking to the barracks.

When the trooper had ended his report he turned to Tom. "Where would he be likely to take her?"

He waited. At length Tom said, "I was sure Young was guilty."

The trooper spoke briefly to the barracks and the two men ran back to the inn.

The trooper was coming out of the inn when Tom got back. "Not here," he said briefly.

It was dark as they came to the parking space on Lookout Point.

Footes issued low-voiced orders and the men began to spread out.

There was a moment of final horror when Nora believed that she and Stuart had been trapped in a forest fire.

ted interruption. Then he picked her up in his arms and started slowly down the hill.

"I never," he called heartily, "was so relieved in my life! What is this — a rescue party?"

Then Tom had caught her, was holding her close. Beyond him were Captain Footes and two men in the trim uniform of the State Police.

Tom carried Nora down to the car, cradling her against his chest, rocking her softly.

Nora was not aware of the ride back to the inn, or of Garry, white-faced, putting her to bed.

As though protesting at that invasion of his privacy he opened his eyes. "Well," he said cheerfully.

"Oh," Nora stretched out her hand. "Quick! Give me a mirror and a hairbrush and some powder and—"

Mr. Potter laughed. "He'll never know the difference," he assured her.

"You dumb little brat," Mr. Potter heard Tom shout.

Starting Second Year In A Coma

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Suzanne Payette has an anniversary today.

The 16-year-old starts her second year in a deep coma, unaware of the outside world.

Her father Lyle Payette, a furniture salesman, was able to keep her in hospitals for six months.

Payette yesterday looked at his daughter, her long hair flowing over the pillow.

"You can't stop hoping when it's your daughter," he said.

Town's Women Rise Up To Oppose Male Officials

By RICHARD K. ROYD BUFFALO, W.Va. (AP)—Buffalo housewives, aided by some—not all—of their husbands are on the warpath with a full slate of female nominees against perennial male officeholders.

"The weeds are over our heads, sidewalks all broken—things are terrible," says Mrs. Norma Warner, who heads the slate of nominees opposing the administration of Mayor Vernon D. Pigg.

"All we want to do is make Buffalo a better place to live," she said.

"Last time there was supposed to be an election they just got together and appointed each other."

She couldn't recall when that was, but Pigg admits candidly, "it's been about 10 years."

Pigg, a garage operator, stopped at this 120-year-old Kanawha Valley town (pop. 368) on a "fishin' vacation" 17 years ago.

Collins and state education forces contend the bill was unnecessary and the governor has strongly hinted he will veto it.

Bynum Leads Builders To Narrow Win Over Bankers

Home Builders 'notched their first Teen-er League victory of the young season last night, topping the Guaranty Bankers 3-1 at Guy Smith Stadium.

The largest crowd yet to witness a Teen-er League contest saw Home Builders' pitcher Merrill Bynum strike out 13 batters and limit the opposing team to only two hits, in securing the victory. It was Bynum's second appearance on the mound in two consecutive games and he has gone the full seven innings in both trials. He lost his first one 6-1, despite a no-hitter on his account.

The 6-1, 190 pound sophomore at Greenville high school, gave up one hit in the first inning and one in the seventh, but otherwise held the Guaranty Bank club in check.

Joe Moyer pitched for Guaranty Bank and was credited with the loss. The Bankers' record now is 1-1, as is the Home Builders'.

Play By Play At bat first, the Guaranty Bankers tapped Bynum for one hit and one score, to take a 1-0 lead. Moyer got on on a walk, stole second, and scored later on the single by Steve Noble.

Bynum clouted a two-run homer in Home Builders' half of the same inning, to take the lead away from his opponents, 2-1. From there on out, it was all a pitcher's duel.

The Home Builders tallied once more in the sixth inning to solidify their victory. Bynum got on base with a hit and scored on an error by the GB right fielder.

The pitchers for both teams turned out to be the leading hitters in last night's fray. Moyer collected one of his team's two hits. Bynum made two of his club's three hits. Buster Daniels, third baseman, got the other one.

Game Tonight On tap tonight at Guy Smith stadium, will be a contest between College View and State Bank. College View has a 0-1 record thus far, while the State Bankers have a 1-0 mark. Game time is 7:45. No admission is charged.

Johnson, Hinnant Meeting Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Harold Johnson, an experienced boxer on a comeback, and Clarence Hinnant, a young slugger on the way up, meet tonight in a heavyweight bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

The 10-round match, part of the usual Friday night radio-TV (NBC) series, will start at 9 p.m. (EST). Because Billy Graham's revival is filling Madison Square Garden, it was arranged to stage this show at St. Nick's.

Johnson, 28, whipped Burt Whitehurst last December in his first fight since May 6, 1955, when he was stopped by Julie Mederos in two rounds. The Mederos bout touched off an investigation that resulted in suspension of boxing in Pennsylvania for some time. It was testified that Johnson was drugged and the boxer claimed he had eaten a "bitter orange" before the bout.

Despite Johnson's inactivity he is rated among the leaders. The National Boxing Assn. ranks him No. 3 among the light heavies, and Ring magazine lists him No. 4 among the heavyweights. In his last start, a 10-round decision over Bob Satterfield March 12 at Miami Beach, Johnson weighed 180 pounds. His record is 53-8.

Two judges and a referee will score by rounds using a supplementary point system.

Winner Hanks Retiring, Won't Soon Be Forgotten

By DALE BURGESS INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The Indianapolis Motor Speedway will have to get along hereafter without "Dad" Sam Hanks, who won the 500-mile race yesterday on his 12th attempt, but it won't soon forget the 42-year-old driver.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS—James Brewington (left) and Joseph Tyson have been awarded four-year scholarships to North Carolina College in Durham, it was announced last night at Eppes High School's awards program.

His record of 135.601 miles an hour, compared with the late Bill Vukovich's 130.40 mark of 1954, could stand for a long time. Hanks and a splendid experimental auto which probably will revolutionize race car design were just too good for the rest of the field.

Jim Rathmann, 32-year-old Miami driver, tried desperately to catch Hanks for the last 64 laps but Hanks was pulling away when he finished 17 1/2 seconds in front. Rathmann, who also finished second in 1952, said something broke in the frame of his car and it "shimmied" so much on the turns that he couldn't match the front man from Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Hanks climbed off of his Belond Special, a horizontal engine dream by George Salih, and said, "That's it. I'm all done."

The lean, graying six-footer said he'll probably race in Italy's Monza Autodrome "500" June 29 and finish his contract this year with the Mercury stock car team. Then he'll quit racing.

Until yesterday, Sam often was a contender but never won the pot. This time, after some preliminary shuffling for first place by Pat O'Connor, North Vernon, Ind.; Troy Ruttman, the 1952 winner from Lynwood, Calif.; and Paul Russo of Canoga Park, Calif., Hanks took charge.

Sam led a total of 141 laps, good for $21,150 in lap prizes ($150 for each lap led). His total earnings for himself and Salih won't be announced until the victory dinner tonight. Their total take may reach $100,000 of an anticipated $300,000 purse.

There were only four mishaps during the actual race yesterday.

51 Schools Send Track Hopefuls

By ED CORRIGAN NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty-one colleges and universities sent hopefuls onto the track today in the annual ICAI Championships, oldest outdoor track and field meet in the country in an effort to collect enough points to win the coveted team title.

But for 49 of the schools, it appeared to be a lost cause because Manhattan and Villanova, the two powers of Eastern track, figured to fight it out to the end.

All the qualifying tests were set for today with the 16 finals to-morrow.

Villanova seems certain of winning half a dozen finals. No team ever has captured that many and failed to take the team crown.

Manhattan is sending four favorites to the mark, but the Jaspers, dethroned as indoor champions by Villanova, have loads of potential seconds and thirds.

The Wildcats are spread thin. It will be close, so close that probably not more than three points will separate the two at the end. But Manhattan should win it.

Coach Jumbo Jim Elliott of Villanova has one big "if." He is George Snyder, one of the finest sprinters in the country. Snyder has been bothered all spring by a pulled leg muscle.

If he can win either the 100 or 220, the Wildcats might break through and go home with the marbles. But most observers don't think he can do it.

Over 5,000 Students In Memorial Day Riot

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—More than 5,000 University of Illinois students staged a campuswide Memorial Day riot that was quelled after eight hours by more than 200 police officers who fired at least 150 volleys of tear-gas bombs.

At least two coeds were injured and 50 students were arrested and jailed overnight.

Students used wastebuckets as water jugs in the riot that apparently got its start as a friendly water fight between two neighboring fraternities.

The day had been designated a study day. Final examinations began Wednesday and are to be resumed today.

Some students will face more than final examinations.

Dr. David Dodds Henry, university president, said, "Everyone involved will be taken before the disciplinary committee."

He said expulsion probably lay in prospect for some.

"It apparently started out innocently enough, but what we are interested in learning is how it grew to such enormous proportions," Dr. Henry said. "A thorough investigation is being conducted and a full report will be made."

John T. Henry of the Illinois state police said the outbreak grew from a water fight between members of Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Delta Phi.

Soon, students used some of the girls from Sherwood Lodge, a women's dormitory, as targets.

Henry said it began some time after 4 p. m. and "by about 7 p. m. there were more than 5,000 students." He said university police called for help and police from surrounding cities, Champaign County and Illinois state police districts 10 and 12 responded.

"The students damaged a sheriff's police car and one of our squad cars," Henry said. "I was determined that they would not push me or any of my men or any police officers off the street. This situation is totally uncalled for. It has happened before, but never like this."

Henry said he had ordered police to use tear-gas bombs to break up roving groups of students.

Texas Again Is Battered With Violent Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More violent weather hammered areas in storm-battered Texas and other sections of the Southwest today but severe storms in the central and northern plains abated.

Tornado activity during the night was reported in eastern New Mexico and West Texas. Severe thunderstorms hit many parts of Texas — in the north central, the northwestern section of south central, and areas east of the Pecos River.

Heavy rain, with some hail, and strong winds hit the Southwest storm belt. The Weather Bureau reported hail the size of baseballs pelted the area of Hobbs, N. M., causing considerable property damage.

Wet and stormy weather was reported in wide areas of the country on Memorial Day. Several tornadoes skipped across areas in Texas, Oklahoma, central Iowa and northeastern Colorado. No casualties were reported.

A brief flash flood resulted from torrential rains that drenched Wichita Falls, Tex., last night. More than 3 inches of rain fell in about half an hour in a thunderstorm that followed a blinding dust storm.

The stormy weather in the central and northern plains tapered off considerably during the night and only light showers were reported in most sections.

On the East Coast, a local heavy rainstorm hit Hatteras, N. C., with a 2-inch downpour in less than six hours.

Marston said full-time teller service will be available at the new facility during banking hours.

Workshop Will Hear Lecturer

Mr. Jerry W. Robinson, noted author, lecturer, and demonstrator will arrive on the East Carolina College campus on June 5 to conduct a workshop in the improvement of instruction in typewriting. Mr. Robinson is an Associate Editor of South-Western Publishing Company in Cincinnati, Ohio. He will be assisted in the Workshop by Dr. James L. White of the Department of Business at East Carolina College.

The Two-Week Typewriting Workshop will be held June 3 through June 14. It is a graduate course in business and is designed to improve the instruction in typewriting in the high schools and colleges of North Carolina. Problems of teaching typewriting, motivating devices, instructional materials, and testing and grading will be discussed during the two-week period. Students will be given an opportunity to improve their own skill in typewriting while learning how to better prepare their own students for work in business.

The Typewriting Workshop is the second in a series of workshops offered by the Department in the past two summers. Approximately 40 business teachers are expected to attend.

Have To Wait To Learn Score

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lang may have to wait a while before they know how many pups their dog had.

The dog—Sallie—was sitting in their car when someone stole it. Police are still looking for it.

Mrs. Lang said Sallie was "expecting most any time. But she was crazy about that car, and as long as she's riding she doesn't care who's driving."

Australia Building 3,500-Mile Fence To Hold Back Wild Dogs

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—A wire mesh fence 3,500 miles long is being built in Queensland to keep out wild dogs.

The fence, now nearing completion, will hold back the hordes of dingoes, or wild dogs, that cost the state about 64 million dollars a year in dead sheep and cattle.

Inside the barrier will be about 300,000 of Queensland's 670,100 square miles. It will enclose some 18 million sheep and more than 640,000 cattle.

The giant project will cost over a million dollars—pin money compared with the state's estimated annual loss of almost 500,000 sheep and uncounted thousands of cattle.

Next to droughts, dingoes are the greatest menace to sheep and cattle raising in Australia. One dingo can create losses of thousands of pounds.

Australia's present dingo population is estimated at tens of thousands. This animal infests all states except Tasmania. He does not kill just for food—he kills for the sake of killing.

He may attack a flock of sheep at night, killing one to eat and tearing down 20 or 30 others that eventually die of blood poisoning.

Dingoes will combine and muster sheep with the ability of well-trained sheep dogs. A pack has been known to drive a flock to some spot where escape is impossible, then turn on a wholesale slaughter.

Some archaeologists believe the dingo is the original ancestor of dogs.

Regarded by scientists as the world's most perfect dog, the dingo is about two feet tall and five feet long from muzzle to tail. He varies in color from fawn and black to brindle.

The new, monster cage is taking shape in Queensland. Starting six inches below the ground, it rises 6 feet 3 inches high. A similar dog-proof fence is

Jury Acquits Two Men Accused In Bombings

By HENRY S. BRADSHER MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Despite a prosecutor's warning that further racial violence in Montgomery might result from acquittal, a white male jury yesterday cleared two white men of charges of dynamiting a Negro church.

To the cheering approval of a packed courtroom, the jury came in after 95 minutes' deliberation with a verdict of acquittal for Raymond C. Britt Jr. and Sonny Kyle Livingston Jr.

The prosecutor said an acquittal would say "it's all right" to bomb Negro churches and homes—and might lead to retaliation. The defense countered that it would serve notice "that we are not going to yield another inch in fighting for our way of life."

Prosecutor William F. Thetford announced that two other charges against Britt would not be tried for two months.

Also postponed from scheduled trial now was a capital case against two other white men charged with participating in the bombing of four Negro churches and the homes of two pro-integration ministers Jan. 10.

Britt, 27, and Livingston, 19, were tried only for the bombing of the Hutchinson St. Baptist Church. The charge carried from 2 to 10 years' imprisonment on conviction. James D. York, 52, and Henry Alexander, 27, face possible death sentences on a charge of dynamiting a Negro minister's home.

The bombing came a few hours after shots were fired for the sixth time at city buses since they were racially integrated Dec. 21 by a U. S. Supreme Court ruling.

Thetford told the jury in closing argument that "we were on the very edge of racial rioting" before police arrested the four white men in the last few days of January.

"If you turn these men loose under the evidence the state has presented," Thetford said, "you say to the Ku Klux Klan, 'if you bomb a Negro church or home it's all right.'"

John Blue Hill, chief defense attorney, accused Negroes of bombing their own churches to arouse sympathy and win outside financial support. Negro leader Martin Luther King denied the charge.

The verdict must "go down in history as saying to the Negroes that you shall not pass" Southern segregation barriers, Hill told the jury. "We have got to say to these Negro agitators that we are not going to yield another inch in fighting for our way of life."

Hill put on the stand witnesses who said both defendants were somewhere else at the time of the

Consul's Son Has No Regrets Over Running Away

CHICAGO (AP)—The teen-age son of an Italian diplomat, object of a nationwide search for six weeks, says he's not sorry he ran away from home and doesn't believe he'll be punished.

But the boy, Vittorio Barattieri, 14, said he's sorry that he caused his parents so much distress because of his absence for 44 days.

The tall, blonde youth returned home with his parents from New York City last night, some 24 hours after he had been picked up by the FBI.

He had been in New York since he disappeared from home April 16. During the police search for him, his parents, Count and Countess Ludovico Barattieri, had made appeals in newspapers and on the radio and television for him to return.

His father, Italian consul general in Chicago, at one time had expressed fear his son had been slain.

Vittorio said he enjoyed the experience of living alone — "I got a kick out of being on my own."

He said he once saw his picture in a New York newspaper and a story about the search for him and said he thought it was "silly."

Vittorio told reporters at Midway Airport last night, he was "glad" he ran away and said he didn't believe he deserved punishment. Asked if he planned to run away again, he said, without a smile, "No, not for a while." He added, "I didn't think I would be missed."

Reporters asked his parents whether he should be punished.

The countess said Vittorio, whom she called "Toto," is too big to spank.

Barattieri, said by police to have been strict with the boy, replied: "I don't believe in punishment. I believe in a gradual process of getting people accustomed to discipline." He said he did not consider himself too strict with his son.

The boy said he had two jobs in New York. He worked five days as a messenger boy and one day as a bus boy in a restaurant.

When picked up by the FBI he said he had $1.04 and had planned to go to work again to get some more money. He said he planned to spend some of the money at the race tracks. He had $120 when he ran away.

"I was at Belmont race track once and lost $8, but I sure liked horseplay," he said.

The countess said, "I do not plan to handle him any differently now that he has returned," and added that she was unable to understand the boy's action.

Red China Trade Issue To Further Strain Allies' Ties

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—A new strain on relations between the United States and Britain was foreseen today as a result of the British decision to reduce controls on trade with Red China.

U. S. officials said the impact would be determined largely by the degree of criticism in Congress.

The British action — reducing China trade controls to the level of those applied to Russia and her European satellites — came while many members of Congress were away for Memorial Day.

Strong opposition was anticipated from some members.

Sen. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, has been outspoken against any trade with the Chinese Communists, contending this would increase their war-making capacity. He declined comment last night on the British action.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, aimed his criticism at Eisenhower administration foreign policy, saying the British move — despite American urgings to the contrary — is "further evidence of our rather sterile policy toward China, with no prospects of it leading anywhere."

This country does not recognize the Communist Chinese government, although the British do. The United States also has no trade relations with the Red Chinese.

In its statement on the British action, the State Department announced that the United States intends to hold firmly to its policy of "total embargo" on all American trade with Communist China.

The department also described the U. S. government as being "most disappointed" by the British action, which marked a heavy defeat for American diplomacy.

The mid language of the American rebuke to Britain underscored the hope of department officials that whatever damage may be done to British-American relations will be temporary, and can be held to a minimum.

For months, the United States has been trying hard to persuade its allies to continue tighter controls on trade with Red China than with the Soviet Union and its European satellites.

The British move was viewed here as signaling the general collapse of this policy. Diplomatic officials said the other major trading nations — mainly Japan, West Germany, France and Italy — now have no choice but to follow the British lead.

The British estimated about 200 items, previously banned for sale to Red China, are coming off the control list. No breakdown was immediately available.

However, these items were described here as falling generally into the category of capital goods such as locomotives, machine tools, farm tractors, trucks and iron and steel sheets too soft to make military weapons. Consumer goods never were on the China control list.

State Department officials said that in their view Britain did not risk penalties under the Battle Act. This is a six-year old law barring American aid to countries which fail to cooperate with the United States in barring or limiting the shipment of strategic bloc.

The reason for this view, they said, is that Britain will continue to cooperate in applying to Red China the same controls applied to Russia, and that Battle Act enforcement is based on the Russian embargo list.

The British position, as reported here, was that the trade control differential was impractical and ineffective. British officials argued that Red China could get through Russia the items which the Western nations were prevented from selling to the Peiping regime.

American officials contend Red China has not been able to obtain from the Soviet Union the volume of goods it needs for its industrialization. They argue further that such Western-made supplies as the Soviet Union has transported to Red China have placed an extra burden on transport facilities.

Bankers Seeking More Recruits, Try All Angles

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—Your son and daughter trying to make up their minds what to be when they get out of school? They can get all kinds of advice—even from your banker.

To meet a growing need for more personnel banks today are trying all the recruiting angles—even to paying the going rate for clerical workers rather than holding to the old idea that "prestige" should make up for about half of it.

It may have been competition for clerical workers that first led banks to raise starting pay scales. But it is the growth of the banking system's operations that has led to more top-level jobs.

The American Bankers Assn. says that each year the nation's 15,000 banks have about 1,000 bank presidencies and 4,000 other officer positions to fill. Since 1940 the banks employ rolls have swelled by more than 250,000.

The association says this is because in the last 17 years the number of commercial banking accounts has doubled, the volume of bank loans and investments has tripled, and banking services have been greatly expanded.

To help the ambitious young man or woman to move up the ladder, the American Institute of Banking offers courses to prepare employees for jobs ahead. These are open to all bank employees, men or women, high school or college graduates.

Bank officers have another program to help them keep climbing. The American Bankers Assn. has a graduate school of banking, offering advanced studies. State bankers associations also sponsor special courses at some universities and individual banks provide on the job training for new employees and executive development courses for the ambitious.

Stressing the better pay lure, the ABA says that in the larger towns and cities now, a young person entering the business can look forward to earning from $3,000 to $15,000 a year—when he works up to an officer's post.

Plenty Of Reaction To Anti-American Rioting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The blaze of anti-American rioting last week on Formosa has brought round-the-world editorial reaction ranging from fresh Communist propaganda onslaughts to expressions of sympathy for the lot of the "do-gooder."

Some papers saw the Formosa violence as concrete proof that dollars do not buy friends. Others warned that the free world would be endangered if the incident served to encourage a withdrawal into a "fortress America."

In some Asian areas where U. S. troops are stationed, the outburst was seized on for local comparisons and used to stir age-old color prejudices. Other similarly situated writers said it should serve as an example to spur attempts to ease friction.

The Taipei riots erupted after a U. S. Army court-martial acquitted an American sergeant accused of slaying a Chinese. The American said he acted in self-defense after he found the Chinese window-peeping at his home.

The acquittal brought out angry Taipei mobs that attacked the U. S. Embassy, other installations and American personnel.

Communist China moved quickly to exploit the incident, building up its attacks on the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek and renewing its demands for American forces to quit Formosa. Moscow's press and radio joined in, declaring the Taipei case was a demonstration of American contempt for Asians.

Communist East Germany got in line with an attack in the East Berlin newspaper Neue Zeit. It declared the riots "show that the majority of the island's population no longer is willing to live under the yoke of the American oppressors and their stooges . . ."

In New Delhi, the independent Times of India said the Formosa incident was "one more illustration of the truth that dollars and military aid can insure neither appreciation nor loyalty . . . The anti-Americanism of the Formosan people is only an aspect of their hostility toward the Kuomintang (Chiang Kai-shek's ruling party)."

British newspapers raised the warning that the Taipei troubles might heighten the problems facing the free world if they encouraged isolationist elements in the United States.

PUTTING TEETH INTO IT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Too many armen shirked their dental appointments so Brig. Gen. Paul S. Emrick, commander of the Sixth Air Division at Macdill AFB, hinted strongly in a gaudyhouse remedy in a letter which pointed out that missing a dental appointment "is tantamount to failure to report for a scheduled military formation."

MISSILEMEN, FIRST CLASS

A glamorous new rating has been added to the United States Navy — Aviation Guided Missileman.

Sixteen young men attended the Navy's first class in aviation guided missiles at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Memphis, Tenn.

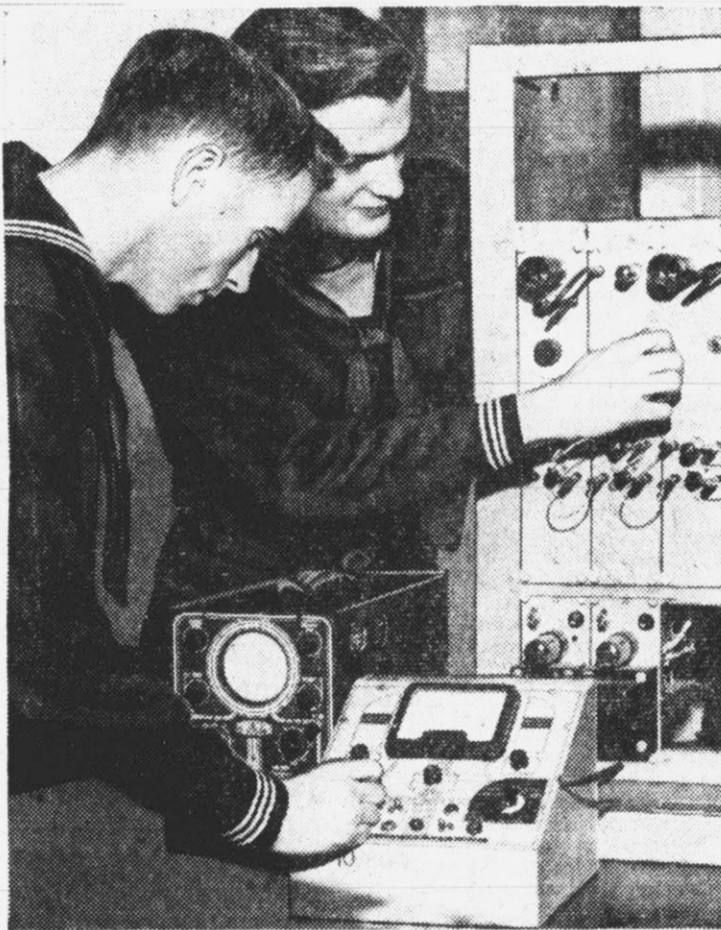

Like other boys entering the Navy, these lads took boot training. Then they survived 26 weeks crammed with such brain-twisting courses as electronics fundamentals, transmitter theory, radar fundamentals, and a course so secret it was held in a group of buildings in the shadow of a high-wire-mesh fence under the protective eye of a guard.

Near the end of the course, the class split into three groups. Two of the young men studied aviation bomb director systems; five took up the firing and control of bombs and rockets, and the third group, with nine boys, became aviation guided missilemen, dealing with guided missile history, theory and actual experience. From Memphis the boys went on to other bases to continue study and get more actual experience.

Instructor Charles Cater delivers lecture on Servo mechanism, dealing with hydraulics, electronics and pneumatic pressure.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK (AP)—Oils and steels extended their gains early this afternoon as the stock market moved higher.

Key stocks were ahead fractions to a point or more but there was scattering of small losers.

The rise was concentrated in the industrials. Utilities were mixed and leading rails were irregularly lower.

Trading slackened a bit following the Memorial Day holiday. Many Wall Steeters left Wednesday for a four-day weekend. The effects of the surprising pre holiday rally, however, were still being felt.

Oils continued to ride ahead on Wednesday's news of the higher prices for crude at Persian Gulf ports.

Aircrafts recovered partially after a lower opening. Motors were narrowly mixed. Anaconda was up about a point but Kennecott was down a major fraction following news that copper production was reduced at two big African properties.

A feature of trading on the American exchange was a leap of more than 19 points by Todd Shipyards, which had a delayed opening on news of its huge increase in earnings to $18.46 a share from $7.07 a share for 12 months ended March 31. The gain was shaded in later dealings.

As the oils continued higher on the big board, Amerada added around 2 and Anderson Fritchard and Gulf Oil more than a point each. Standard Oil (New Jersey)

Some Delay In Selections

Winners of two new $800 Ficklen family scholarships established this year at Eppes High School will not be announced until after the school year is completed.

An announcement that that effect was made last night at the school's annual awards program. City Superintendent of Schools J. H. Rose and Eppes Principal W. H. Davenport made the announcement.

They explained that since the selection committee has had less than a month to work on selection of the winners that the committee would be unable to make its report at graduation exercises Tuesday. Rose said, however, that every member of the 53-member class was being considered.

The two scholarships, which will provide $200 per year for four years of work were donated May 9. One is provided by the Ficklen Foundation and the other is provided by Mrs. Ficklen and James S. Ficklen. Both have been established in memory of the late James S. Ficklen.

Evangelist Talks To Local Jaycees

The Rev. Jimmie Johnson, who is conducting the United Crusade services locally, used the Jaycee Creed as the basis for his talk to the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night.

He pointed to the first line of the Creed: "That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to life."

"That's where you begin," he declared.

The minister told the Jaycees that he once "looked at the heavens and decided there must be a Supreme mind that designed that Heaven."

"That brotherhood of Man transcends the sovereignty of nations," the Rev. Johnson read from a Jaycee banner.

He told of meeting a South American Indian from the mountains of that continent. The two were unable to speak one another's language but the Indian placed his hand on his heart, pointed to the heavens and made a cross with two fingers, he said. That indicated to the evangelist that the man was a Christian.

"That economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise."

"That government should be of laws rather than of men," the Rev. Johnson read.

He told the Jaycees that the United States is about the last stronghold of Democracy on earth.

In the Class Night portion of last night's program, Class Historian Beulah Weeks compared the present situation of the Seniors with that of the men who made the voyage to Jamestown 350 years ago.

Southern Baptist Convention Calls For End Of Integration Resistance

CHICAGO (AP)—An end of resistance to integration of races has been urged by the Southern Baptist Convention, which has demanded that those who perpetrate violence against members in the cause of segregation be brought "to legal justice."

A report by the Christian Life Commission which urged protection for Negroes "or any other individual or group who seeks to live in a chosen community as free citizens engaged in peaceful pursuits, according to their own conventions and conscience," was unanimously adopted by the convention yesterday.

The report warned that those who persist in discriminatory laws, and suppression of freedom will soon lose their own freedom. It called for the end of Jim Crow laws, discriminatory law enforcement and suppression of freedom of conscience and expression in religion.

The report also offered a plan to solve the racial problem. It read that "the road toward solution will be found when we find the reasons why they (discriminatory practices) are enacted and tackle those reasons."

Officers were elected at the convention yesterday and Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark) of Little Rock became the first layman to head the group in 12 years.

Dr. W. Douglas Hudgins of the First Baptist Church of Jackson, Miss., was elected first vice president and Dr. Noel Taylor, Carbondale, Ill., was named second vice president.

of these United States we call upon the law enforcement agencies of local, state and national governments to protect him, irrespective of his position or culture, from lawless attacks upon his person or property.

"We believe our nation cannot long endure these lawless attacks in content of the law and the courts of justice."

Opposing suppression of freedom of conscience and expression in religion, the report read:

"We are witnessing today the betrayal of these freedoms by vocal minorities in some communities and churches who are able to enforce the resignation of pas-ports and incite retaliations against peaceful citizens who speak or act according to their convictions of racial justice and interracial goodwill.

"Both the voice of God and the verdict of history warn us that those who deny these freedoms to others do not long retain them for themselves."

In routine action, the convention re-elected as secretaries James White Merritt, Gainsville, Ga., and Joe Wright Burton, Nashville, Tenn., and as treasurer, Porter W. Routh of Nashville.

At the final sessions today, the officers will be presented and several committees will make their reports.

shore of life. Tonight, our real history has just begun."

Miss Weeks traced the history of the class, from its beginnings in September 1953 with 85 members, to the present. In her talk, she paid tribute to the members of the class who have been outstanding in their high school work and to faculty members who have assisted the group.

Valgene Gibbs, in a short discussion of "If We Go No Farther," told the audience that for many of the class's members "this high school is the terminal of formal education." She added, however, that those who do not go any further in their formal education can still make considerable contributions to the community because of skills acquired in Eppes High School.

"We have learned in this school," she said, "cooperation, responsibility and the ability to make right choices. We have learned that the values of an activity are equal to or more important than the activity itself."

Musical portions of the Class Night program included a solo, "Little Mother of Mine" by Mary Lou Fortbridge; a duet, "At Parting," by Annie Fories and Dora Stocks; a solo, "One Alone," by Wista Adams; and the class song, sung by the entire class.

Senior Class President Herbert Harper presented the Senior Gift, three marble benches for the front campus. The gift was accepted by Principal Davenport.
