The Early Education Of Women Was 'Slight' Says Dr. Messick

Dr. J. D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, discussed "Early Education of Women" at the Pilot Club dinner meeting Monday night.

"At the beginning of the 17th century, and prior to that time, women needed only enough education to run the household. Colonial girls of wealthy families attended boarding school," explained Messick.

He further noted that, "In 1742 Moravians opened a school for boys and girls, and in 1802 Salem, Winston-Salem, was the first academy to open in the South. In 1824 the first high school for girls was founded in Worcester, Mass."

Messick mentioned that credit was not given to the first women who entered colleges. "When instructors finished duties of the day, they gave girls slight instructions."

In conclusion he pointed out that the first college to open exclusively for women was at Macon, Ga. and Wesleyan College was the first to offer degrees to women. Oberlin College was the first to open their doors to men and women and Antioch College was the first college in the world to place women and men on an equal educational basis.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Mallory, president, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Sue Howell said the invocation. Miss Mary Eakes read "The Pilot Code of Ethics" at the close of the meeting.

It was announced that the June business meeting will be held on June 17 in the Directors Room of the Guaranty Bank & Trust Company. The Raleigh Pilot Club will present the Pilot's School of Instruction at this time.

Christian Dior's. And girls all over the country are going to look just like that next fall—well, almost like that, anyway."

Draddy heads the New York manufacturing firm founded in 1905 by David Crystal, turning out everything from sportswear, dresses, coats and suits to men's shirts. Having a college daughter of his own, he figured American girls deserved to have some Christian Dior clothes they could afford.

He started a two-year campaign of transatlantic trips and telephone calls which finally has resulted in a new hands-across-the-sea alliance between France's most famous couturier and America's oldest garment manufacturing firm.

"Dior is designing an entirely new line of junior fashions which we will manufacture and sell here," he said. They will carry the Dior label, will be designed in Paris and will be reproduced exactly, even to the imported fabrics. They are much younger in feeling than the regular Dior creations, and priced much closer to the average budget. We think it's the greatest idea since the wheel."

The new Dior junior fashions will be in stores throughout the country next September.

Solution Required A United Front

Unless there is an immediate and unexpected about face in the legislature in these closing days, no state supported school of nursing will be established in Eastern North Carolina.

Despite the pressing need for such a facility in the Eastern part of the state, and efforts by a number of Eastern legislators to gain approval for the proposed school, it apparently is a dead issue so far as this legislative session is concerned.

From the outset the proposition had the handicap of not being included in the recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission. This was further complicated by the tight financial condition legislators faced in seeking to balance appropriations with anticipated revenue. Probably the key point in the failure to gain approval for the school was the fact that efforts to bring Eastern legislators as well as nursing and medical organizations into a consolidated movement behind the one proposal did not succeed.

There were proposals from some groups of making the $170,000 proposed for the school of nursing available in scholarships to existing state supported schools of nursing. There were proposals for using the funds to supplement the budget of existing hospital schools of nursing throughout the state. There were also several other suggestions which complicated the situation and prevented a united front by those who recognize the desperate need for more nurses in Eastern North Carolina and conscientiously want to see the condition alleviated.

As The Reflector has previously stated, it is our considered opinion that the most practical answer to providing sufficient nurses for this section of the state is through the establishment and operation of a state-supported school of nursing in the area. Since this course of action has been denied by the legislature at least for the present, plans should be made to have such a program presented at the 1959 session of the General Assembly.

During the two-year interim period various groups and individuals who are anxious to increase the number of nurses in this part of the state should thrash out their differences and unite behind one program for the welfare of the section. Only in that manner can a united front be presented in behalf of supplying this part of the state will be nurses it so acutely needs now and will need even more desperately two years from now.

Though the legislature has discarded for this session the proposal for a state supported school of nursing for the East, the problem of a shortage of nurses is still with us. An answer can and must be found for the well being of the people of Eastern North Carolina.

More Realistic If His Prediction Reversed

Like millions of other people under Communist rule Mr. Khrushchev is going to be a disillusioned man if he really believes that grandchildren of Americans today will live under Communism.

Certainly those who have had the opportunity to live under both Communism and Democracy will dispute the Soviet Communist leader's contention that Communism is the "most healthy system." Though Communism has made tremendous gains in recent years, its pace of gain has slowed appreciably in the past few years. Many groups of people have thrown off the Communist yoke and others have demonstrated their desire to do so even though military might thwarted their efforts.

It is much more likely in our opinion that grandchildren of citizens of the Soviet Union today will be living under Democracy than it is that Americans of two generations from today will be living under Communism.

Polyethylene In Everyday USA

By ELMER ROESSNER

As everyone knows, new products make America great. The auto, the airplane, color television and the automatic furrier baster have helped us outstrip every other nation.

But sometimes it is new uses, rather than new products, that push us ahead. Take polyethylene. It isn't even a new product here. It was invented by Imperial Chemical scientists in England in 1933. They were experimenting with the behavior of gases under pressure and found that ethylene, under certain pressure, became a white, wax-like solid. Some was produced for experimental purposes, but not much else happened.

During World War II someone recalled that solidified ethylene, or polyethylene, had remarkable insulating qualities and Imperial licensed du Pont to make the stuff.

OUR WAR BABY
Meanwhile, working independently, some Linde Air Products engineers found a way of producing polyethylene, improving production methods and purity. The U.S. Navy backed new production facilities and American production rose. After the war the product was turned over to the Bakelite Co., which, like Linde, was a subsidiary of Union Carbide.

Polyethylene is produced in two forms: as a solid used in housewares, toys, squeeze bottles, pipe and tubing, insulation, paper and cloth coating, tubing, industrial components and other uses, and as a film.

The discovery of new uses for this film constitutes a saga of American ingenuity. It started out as a packaging material for wrapping food and apparel. The carrot had the distinction of being the first food item wrapped in polyethylene. Soon it was used around other produce, poultry and meats. To ease the printer's task, let's call it "p."

Then sales-engineers, a hybrid breed developed by Bakelite, went to work. They are engineers who spend part of their time selling, or salesmen who spend part of their time engineering.

LIMITLESS APPLICATIONS
An incredible number of uses were developed. Cleaning establishments now bag clean garments with automatic p. bagging machines. Shirts, dresses, pillows, sweaters and even furniture is now wrapped in p. It is used for small parts, keeping them separate, identifiable and moisture-proof.

Discovery of ways to imprint color on the film opened new markets. P. is now used to bag industrial hand cleaners, peat moss, seed, roses, shrubs, humus, dental goo, antibiotics, candy and countless other products.

In the food field, the use of p. was moving far beyond carrots. With a pound of franko one can get a p. bag of mustard, or smaller bags, each with enough for one frank or hamburger, can be purchased. Or you can get catsup bags if you prefer. Beans, oranges, soy sauce, peeled potatoes and a wide variety of frozen food now comes in p. wrappers.

IN OTHER FIELDS
Even more spectacular uses of p. film have been used in construction and agriculture. Whole houses have been wrapped in it to keep out cold and damp; temporary dining halls and greenhouses have been made of frames and p. film. Growing plants have been put under p. film tents or wrapped in protective casings.

P. film is successfully being used as a mulch to keep moisture near young plants and to inhibit weeds. It has been used to line farm ponds and ditches to prevent seepage of water. It has been used for shipment of live fish, as one-time shower caps for hotel guests, as bags for wet bathing suits, as protective coverings for records and book jackets, for the storage of grains in the field, for curing concrete roads, brooding chicks, lining silos, and for lining shallow depressions to convert them into skating ponds in winter. Even as you have been reading this some new use may have been devised. Sentational though the story of p. film is, it is characteristic of the American-free-enterprise economy.

MACHINE TIES KNOT PNEUMATICALLY

A German inventor has developed a machine that ties knots in any thread or yarn pneumatically. He wants to license his patent for use in the United States; for details write G.H. Sachsenroeder, 305 Fr. Engels-Allee, Wuppertal-Barmen, Germany, suggests the Department of Commerce.

Speculation On Political Effect

By LYNN NISBET

CANDIDATES — As the 1957 General Assembly nears its end there is a lot of talk about the probable effect of its actions on the political aspirations of various and sundry people. There are the usual threats, warnings and promises about which members can come back to the next session, about prospective Speakers of the 1959 House and such.

In typical North Carolina tradition there is even more speculation about the 1960 contests for Governor and United States Senator. Sen. Kerr Scott has more or less formally announced his candidacy to succeed himself in the U. S. Senate. Governor Luther Hodges has consistently, insistently and repeatedly stated that he is concerned only with doing the job at hand and is not running for any other office. Despite that insistence on his part popular opinion is that he is already actively campaigning for the Senate seat now occupied by Kerr Scott.

Why, else, ask the political-minded, would he go to such efforts to keep himself before the people? The making of six or eight speeches a week at widely separate points in the state is not due entirely to his loyalty to the office of Governor, say the politicians. These commentators admit that Luther Hodges doesn't fit into any accepted pattern for political activity. They also recall that Clyde Hoey, Melville Broughton and Kerr Scott had their eyes on a seat in the United States Senate while they occupied the big chair in the southwest corner of the State capitol. And they have no idea that Hodges is ready to retire from Public Life at end of his term as Governor, despite the fact he will have held that office longer than any other person in more than 100 years.

GAMBLERS — Both Scott and Hodges gambled heavily in their play for political prestige. As of now it looks like both won. The way Scott has conducted himself in the Senate has gained for him large support among the so-called conservative element of the Democratic party, without apparent loss of prestige with the "branch head" boys.

Six or eight months ago Luther Hodges was perhaps the most popular Governor in more than half a century. That popularity was a blue chip in the political gambling game — and he unhesitatingly played it, win or lose. Three months ago it looked like he might have lost the wager, because his popularity was at very low point. But — the deal was not over, the wheel had not stopped turning, the analogy depending upon which game the spectators were watching. Hodges was in both.

With adjournment of the 1957 General Assembly at hand, the second Legislature for Governor Hodges but the first in an administration which he headed by absolute and direct authority of the electorate, it appears that he has recouped any apparent loss of prestige and he emerges as one of the most successful executives in history in achievement of his program in the Legislature.

There will be another session of the State Legislature and two more sessions of the Congress before the 1960 campaign. Events before and during these sessions may play hob with prospects for Hodges and-or Scott, and one or the other — or both — may decide not to run for the Senate. As of now and from this viewpoint, it looks like a humdrum of a race coming up between them, with more crossed up factional lines than occurred in the Bailey-Simmons race in 1930 or the Graham-Smith campaign in 1950. And when lines get more crossed than in those races there really is a tangle.

PRECEDENT — In recent years precedent has not counted for much in Senatorial elections. For the record it is noted that only one time since United States Senators were nominated and elected by popular vote has an elected Senator been defeated for re-election. There was in 1930 when J. W. Bailey unseated Senator F. M. Simmons, because of Simmons' defection from the national Democratic ticket in 1928. For the record, also, it is noted that while Governors Morrison, Hoey and Broughton were in the Senate after serving as Governor nobody since Zeb Vance has gone directly from the Governor's office to the Senate, either by appointment or election.

Incumbent Senators Cameron Morrison, William Umstead and Frank Graham were displaced by popular vote, but they held office by appointment, not by election. That is another interesting sidelight. Whereas only one elected Senator has been defeated, no appointed Senator has been elected to succeed himself in this century. North Carolinians like to elect their Senators, and by and large they like to re-elect them as long as they run.

Only time in the past 50 years an incumbent Senator failed to ask for re-election was in 1944, when Sen. Robert R. (Our Bob) Reynolds decided not to seek a third term and former Governor Clyde Hoey was nominated and elected to take his place. It may not be generally known but it is a fact that Clyde Hoey's came about an hour before William Umstead of Durham had planned to announce. Umstead later was appointed to the Senate by Governor Cherry upon the death of Senator Bailey, served with Hoey, subsequently was elected Governor and died in office late in 1954.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

EASY WAY NOT THE BEST
It is a striking fact of history — both ancient and modern — that nations which do not have to face up to hard things practically never achieve greatness. There are primitive peoples who eat the fruit that drops off trees and need to do nothing but live pleasant lives and indulge themselves. And these people remain primitive.

The same is true, of course, in the case of individuals. Occasionally a person born with a golden spoon in his mouth arrives at greatness and dies with a commendable list of helpful achievements behind him. But this is rare. The life of Abraham Lincoln makes such a tremendous appeal to people the world over because it embodies the important principle that difficulties and crises make men. What Lincoln would have had been born into a wealthy home and had had everything he wanted, no one, of course, can say, but it is hard to believe that he would have been the man whose memory is so universally revered.

Whom the Lord loveth. He chasteneth. Maybe you have wished at times that He would try improving you with less rigorous methods than He usually employs. But the principle that difficulties and crises produce character continues to operate as infallibly as the law of gravitation. Don't lose heart. Don't become bitter. There is meaning to life, to the whole of it.

Two Old Friends Retire

I saw in yesterday's paper that Miss Ruth Faison and Miss Ona Shindler, teachers in Greenville City Schools, are retiring this year.

They have meant much to me during my years. To them I, perhaps, was just one of those red-headed Taylor boys who popped up in their classes, probably all too often, during their teaching careers. But those two ladies made deep impressions upon my life. For, you see, Miss Faison was my first grade teacher. She introduced me to school life as she did my two brothers before me. And Miss Shindler, as orchestra instructor when I was back in the eighth grade brought new meaning to the music which I laboriously tried to saw out of a violin.

So, if other readers will excuse me, I'd like to talk over old times with a couple of Greenville City Schools' finest teachers. First Miss Faison, years dim the memories of my sixth year of life when I was a student in your first grade at Wahl-Coates School. Of course it was known as Training School then.

All my recollections of that first year are pleasant, so you must have done a good job of launching my formal schooling. I seem to recall a feeling of pleasure at being able to go to school for the first time. That, in spite of my older brothers' laments that my freedom was gone forever the day I stepped into Training School. I remember I was elated that you dismissed class at noon each day until Christmas. The joke was on my brothers. They had to stay all day.

There were those daily naps we children took every day. Each of us brought a blanket and during a set period we spread our blankets on the floor. You would pull the window shades and for one short period we were as quiet as six year olds can possibly be. There was also a time during the day when we paused to have Graham crackers and water. I looked forward to that with joy. That was a happy year for me, Miss Faison.

The years rolled by and I found myself in the eighth grade. The elementary music teacher had utterly failed to teach me to play the violin, and that year the chore went to Miss Shindler. It was a hopeless task. In spite of your tireless efforts, Miss Shindler, I just couldn't play the thing — not well, anyway. But, you know, I did learn a lot that year. The pieces we played in orchestra became familiar to me. My interest in music was stimulated. Today I often hear compositions we played then and I stop and listen because they have meaning to me. I'll never forget your "ground floor" classroom, Miss Shindler — or the days when a couple dozen fledgling musicians, competing with physical ed classes just outside, attempted to make music.

I see where Mr. Rose called you two ladies "great personalities in teaching." That's true. You've influenced the lives of hundreds of students through the years just as you did mine. All the doctors, lawyers, businessmen, nurses, teachers, engineers and newspapermen who've come through your classes owe a debt of gratitude to you and other teachers like you.

Fear Of Lobbyists Is Dwindling

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — If Congress succeeds in reducing the Eisenhower budget as a prelude to a sizable 1958 tax cut, it will be due largely to the fact that numerous once powerful lobbies on Capitol Hill have been smashed. The so-called "Third House of Congress" has lost the grip it once had on the legislative body.

This result did not derive from enactment of a weak and discredited Anti-lobby Law, or from the expose of the natural gas lobby, which tried to bribe several Senators with cold cash last year. It resulted from the realization that these special pleaders constitute a "gimme" group which the nation cannot afford.

Assuming that Congress will withstand their current attempts to recoup their losses, it is estimated that the saving for the taxpayers will exceed $5 billion. With an anticipated 1958 surplus of almost two billion, that would permit the second largest tax cut in 35 years. UNPOPULAR LOBBYISTS In repelling these selfish and outside interests, Congress showed no respect for the humblest or highest appellants. It gave no more consideration to the braided brass from the Pentagon and idealistic internationalists than it did to the farm and labor blocs.

Congress will undoubtedly wind up by slicing several billions from the national defense and foreign aid items, despite President Eisenhower's belated rescue operation. It will be the first largescale reduction in this field since the Marshall Plan was inaugurated in 1948.

The legislators performed a surgical operation on the costly soil bank. They refused to extend parity payments to crops other than those now listed as basic, causing a breakup of the once dominant farm bloc. Legislators from consumer areas were mainly responsible for this rebuff.

RELIEVING WORKMAN OF BURDEN Labor has been treated more roughly than at any time since P.D.R.'s first term, when it enjoyed a many legislative grants. There has been no sentiment for the AFL-CIO demand that the minimum hourly wage be increased from $1 to $1.25. Appropriations for stricter enforcement of pro-labor statutes have been hacked. Finally, thanks to Dave Beck, union funds and activities will be brought under rigid Federal regulation. In general, there is a desire to relieve the workman of the authority which compulsory unionization has exercised over him.

The public power enthusiasts of New Deal-Pair Deal days have not won a single victory at this session. The Federal Power Commission awarded the Hell's Canyon project to private interests, and the decision was upheld by the Supreme Court. Rate discrimination in favor of public power users has been checked on New York's two great ventures — the St. Lawrence and the Niagara Rivers.

The "China Lobby" will find it difficult to survive anti-American riots on Formosa. Even Senator William F. Knowland, Chiang Kai-shek's champion, is disheartened.

VICTIM OF NEW MOVE The most spectacular victim of anti-lobby sentiment has been Pan American World Airways, even though it retains prominent politicians — of both parties — on its payroll. In fact, its behavior accounted for the only increase in funds granted to the Commerce Department.

For years, the Civil Aeronautics Board, a Commerce Department agency, made no check of Pan American's complicated finances and non-aviation investments for lack of personnel. In 1956, Congress provided funds for 25 additional auditors and accountants.

BREAK FOR TAXPAYERS They promptly discovered that Pan Am had claimed and obtained millions in subsidies which it did not deserve, according to CAB, which has demanded repayment. It is estimated that the total may amount to more than $50,000,000.

As a result of these discrepancies, the economy-minded House Appropriations Committee approved funds for another 25 auditors. In its report, the committee noted that CAB was reviewing Pan Am's books for only the 1946-1953 period. It recommended strongly that CAB go back as far as 1938, when the basic commercial aviation law was passed. In that period, Pan Am has collected $1.5 billion in mail pay and subsidies from the U. S. treasury.

Thus, when all these mighty and politically powerful lobbies fall, the taxpayers get a needed break!

Future Movie Star?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — At 21, Lee Remick, who looks like a vanilla ice cream cone topped with taffy, is a real "fortune's darling."

Almost every season now director Elia Kazan taps a new unknown for stardom, and Lee is his discovery this year.

She has made her film debut in "A Face in the Crowd," and Kazan was so impressed with her work he took for him the unusual step of signing her up for five more pictures.

This lassie hasn't had a disaster since she lost her baby teeth. She is tall, memorably proportioned, and breathtakingly beautiful. She not only was born on the right side of the railroad tracks, but picked a father who owned a department store. She was educated at an exclusive Manhattan finishing school.

"Sure, I've been hungry in my life," she said, smiling. "But there was always plenty of food in the refrigerator."

She was sitting in Sari's restaurant when a playwright, drawn by her visible charm, asked her if she could act. "Sure," said Lee, who had studied ballet dancing but had never taken an acting lesson in her life.

The writer put her in his play. It lasted only two weeks, but long enough for television producers to notice her.

In her first movie role Lee plays a naive young Arkansas drum majorette who falls in love with an entertainment world idol (Andy Griffith) who lusts her little happy heart, the big heel. Having successfully launched her career as a professional actress, Lee now has only one big immediate problem. "I'm looking for a good teacher," she said frankly. "I want to learn how to act."

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That there are now more than 900 women commentators on radio and television in the United States.

That, speaking of talking, did you know this is "National Listen to Your Barber Week"?

That Chicago means "Wild Onion place" in the Paute Indian language. Funny, Chicago is one city that always left us breathless.

That Americans own 8 out of 10 autos in the world. We've got the cars, the other nations have the parking places!

That pin-up girls originated not in modern Hollywood but in ancient China. The emperors picked their boudoir buddy for the evening from paintings of courtisans hung on their palace walls.

That a kangaroo is only an inch long at birth, and a polar bear at birth weighs only a pound.

That some of the strongest men in the history of mankind have been between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 10 inches tall.

That Owen K. Murphy, president of the Niagara Therapy Corp., has set other industries an unusual philanthropic example. More than 75 handicapped children are treated at his Meadville, Pa., clinic each week. Each of his 1,000 dealers or salesmen has been given the challenge of providing one kid a free summer vacation in the firm's "Operation Holiday."

That it was author Logan Pearsall Smith who wrote, "You cannot be both fashionable and first-rate." Do you really believe this is true, or only the excuse some people give for being neither?

Trading Stamp Tax Bill Is Killed By Original Sponsor

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government inquiry into the prices of "wonder drugs" has been revived and broadened—and scheduled for completion in August.

The Federal Trade Commission, after meeting with drug manufacturers and sending economists into their plants, has mailed new questionnaires to 18 producers of antibiotics.

Government sources said the FTC wants to know what cost problems justify the price tags on many drugs, why some well-established antibiotics have not dropped in price since they came on the market, and why some bids on competitive government contracts have been identical.

An FTC spokesman told a reporter the investigation "is a disinterested one—we're not carrying a hatchet, at least at this point."

The FTC voted to investigate antibiotic prices in 1953, then delayed to pursue more urgent matters.

The inquiry was revived and questionnaires issued a year ago, after a prod from the Senate Commerce Committee. The end of this month was set then as a target date for completion.

"We found we needed more information," the spokesman said. "This is a billion-dollar industry which only really got started during World War II. It has grown so rapidly there is no comprehensive body of economic information on it."

FTC officials conceded that unusual problems complicate the pricing of wonder drugs. Large investments in exploration, research and development are necessary, with the returns highly uncertain.

Walter O'Keefe Remains A Bright Light Of Radio

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Radio is still very much alive—and so is Walter O'Keefe. This is demonstrable if you turn on NBC radio's "Nightline" on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday evening between 8:30 and 10 p.m. EDT.

The test of a true radio fan used to be one who recognized and enjoyed O'Keefe. It seemed he was all over the dial: "Magic Carpet," "The Rudy Vallee Show," "Town Hall Tonight," "Music Hall," "Double or Nothing." He's as good on "Nightline" as he was 25 years ago.

Over lunch the other day he presided at brief memorial rites for the demise of the true ad lib show which is extinct on television with the single exception of Groucho Marx, he was saying.

"It's the camera," said O'Keefe (who nevertheless has a TV show of his own up his sleeve). "People are terrified of it. They freeze."

Reminiscing about the days of

"Double or Nothing" on radio, O'Keefe said that such ad libs as these just never appear on television.

O'Keefe (to the audience, about a bright little boy): "Here's a young man who's going some place."

Boy: "I just went."

O'Keefe (commenting on the hat of a lady guest): "I wish you people at home could see this lady's beautiful hat. It looks like the pattern on the rug in Hedy Lamar's bedroom."

Lady: "Well, lucky you."

Name just about anything you wish and O'Keefe has done it. He has even appeared on television.

"His hobby now (says O'Keefe on O'Keefe) is learning how to be a father, and with one son 22 and another 19, he is only in the first grade of his problem."

His philosophy is aptly expressed, he believes, by the title of a song which he published last week: "Just One Day at a Time."

TULIPS AND TEARS—Scott Lubbers, despite the scented setting, is an unhappy boy at annual Tulip Time Festival in Holland, Mich. Offering consolation is Sheri Beketes.

Three Pitt County students graduated from Mars Hill College at commencement exercises Monday. They are Charles Thomas Bodkin of Greenville, Doris Annette Cole of Winterville, and Katherine Lynn Collins of Greenville.

Here's A Brief Primer On Battle Over Foreign Aid

By DAVID L. BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures

What is foreign aid?
The battle between the administration and some elements in Congress over where to draw the line between a reckless gamble with peace and inefficient over-spending has once more put a spotlight on this always controversial segment of the nation's budget.

The first point to keep in mind in assessing reports from Washington is that Congress has never been known to give the administration all the money it wants to spend overseas. Since 1949, the discrepancy between administration requests and congressional appropriations has ranged between slightly more than one-half billion dollars to nearly two billion.

Two Main Categories
There have always been two main categories of financial help to foreign countries in aid programs: military assistance and economic assistance. Unfortunately, the line between the two has not always been easy to draw. Military aid has had two forms: (1) direct help in the form of funds for purchase of weapons, material and services for allied armies, and (2) so-called "defense support" designed to enable allied countries to finance a larger military establishment than they could otherwise afford.

Since 1949, military aid has far outweighed economic aid except in 1950, 1955, and 1956 fiscal years. This year, the President asked for a total of $2,800,000,000 in military aid — $1,900,000,000 of it in direct military help and the remaining 900 million in defense support.

Economic assistance, the second major category in foreign aid, breaks down into several divisions. Among them:

DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE to raise the capital base and increase the financial investment in underdeveloped nations. In the long term, this is expected to raise standards of living and increase resistance to communism.

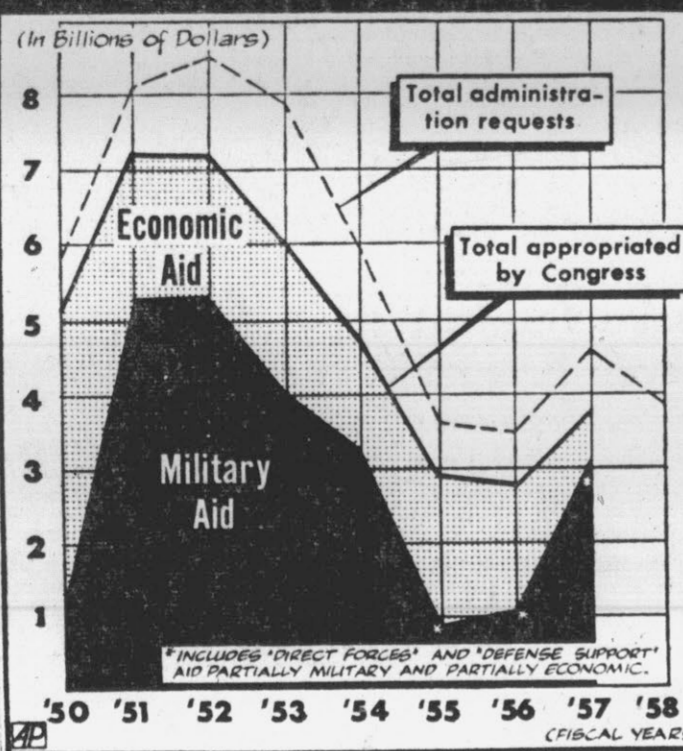

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE to supply educators, technicians and public health experts to underdeveloped nations with the same aim as above.

EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE to permit the President to meet special needs with a special fund to be used at his discretion.

OTHER NON-MILITARY ASSISTANCE, such as support for peaceful development of the atom, assistance to refugees, contributions to U. N. programs.

In his 1958 budget, President Eisenhower requested $1,065,000,000 for economic assistance. One-half billion of this was earmarked for a development assistance loan fund, 152 million for technical assistance, and 113 million for other non-military assistance.

She Lost 179 Pounds; Now Weighs Trim 118

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — "I think maybe God made it happen this way so I'll be able to help others," she commented. "I was 297 pounds, which is a lot of weight for a girl who is 5 feet 2 1/2 inches. My blood pressure was getting so high that the doctors gave me two months to live. They advocated a new kind of treatment—surgery that cause the food to bypass the digestive process. I figured my life was at stake, so I underwent the operation."

For a year afterward, she led a normal life. She continued eating normally, though she found her appetite was curtailed. The pounds melted away.

A week ago, she left the hospital after another operation to restore her digestive track to normal. At 118 pounds, her blood pressure and physical condition is as it should be, she reported.

Now 27, Lorraine intends to pursue an acting career. She is rehearsing for a local stage production of "Bell, Book and Candle." And in the fall, she'll become a regular on the Bendix "Life of Riley" show, enacting her father's niece.

Lorraine was always a fat girl. "It was due to hyper-tension and high blood pressure," she explained. "I didn't eat big meals—I never ate breakfast at all. But I was always consuming starches and sweets. I'd eat around the clock."

"All the diets and doctors couldn't do me any good. So I just ate and got fatter. My girlhood was filled with frustration. I couldn't enjoy clothes or do the things most girls do."

She grew up and married Dick Munro, NBC film editor, and they had a daughter, now 7. But Lorraine continued eating and gaining weight.

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation which would have added stiff taxes on trading stamp dealers in North Carolina was killed by the Senate yesterday at the request of the man who introduced it.

Sen. Edwin Lanier of Orange asked that his measure be tabled because a committee has "cut the heat out" of it.

Before the bill was laid to rest, Lanier had a few things to say about dealers who sell trading stamps to merchants to be given to their customers and redeemed for prizes.

Lanier declared the practice of giving out the stamps "is a cancer on the body of business in this state." One of the purposes of his bill, he said, was "to withhold from foreign parasites the money they've been sucking from the mercantile bloodstream of this state."

Lanier told the Senate the "trade stamp racket is gradually breaking many merchants." He said the heart of the bill was removed when the Senate Finance Committee knocked out a provision that monetary value of unredeemed stamps be turned over to the state for support of its public schools.

Other legislative highlights included:

A Senate committee voted 5 to 4 to reject a bill to change the state law on "split ticket" voting. The measure would have returned the state to the ballot marking procedure changed by the 1955 Legislature.

Chairman John D. Larkins of the State Democratic Executive Committee spoke against the bill, while Republican State Chairman Ray Jennings called for its passage.

Senate Judiciary 2 Committee approved bills to exempt certain agricultural products stored in five counties from property taxes. At least two members of the committee offered the opinion that the bills would be unconstitutional.

The House Finance Committee killed a bill which would have permitted the withholding of state income taxes from wages and salaries. It approved a measure to create a statewide firemen's pension fund. Under the bill, paid and voluntary firemen would be eligible to participate in the retirement plan. Participating firemen would pay $5 a month into the fund and insurance companies which sell fire and lightning insurance would pay $1 from each $100 in premiums collected. Insurance companies opposed the measure.

The Senate Committee on Manufacturing and Labor turned down a motion to reconsider its action of several weeks ago in tabling a Senate-passed bill requiring a 75 cents hourly minimum wage.

In his arguments against "split ticket" voting, Jennings told the Senate Elections Committee the present law is designed to make it more difficult for voters to "split" their tickets by voting for some candidates of one party and some of another. Larkins argued that the present law has simplified voting and the counting of ballots.

The present law requires that a voter must mark all individual candidates on the ballot if he wishes to split his ticket between parties. The old law allowed a voter to mark a party ticket and still vote for individual candidates of the other party.

Pitching Gives White Sox Five-Game League Lead

Billy Pierce Wins Ninth Of Season With 2-Hitter

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Just how much does pitching count these days in the majors? To the Chicago White Sox it means a five-game American League lead.

Democrats Top Republicans In Griffith Park

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER WASHINGTON (AP)—Baseball is safe again for another year. Congress has had its innings.

When the ordeal for the aching backs ended, the Democrats were on top, 10-9. And despite the absolute lack of political significance, the victory caused such gleam among the winners you'd have thought they'd just recaptured the White House.

There were spills, hard-to-make errors and some unkind fielding. But there also was a legitimate inside-the-park grand slam homer by Rep. Gerald Ford (R-Mich.), a former University of Michigan football player.

He has said he wants to be a doctor but that if the right kind of contract is offered, he would try baseball. A native of Fair Lawn, N.J., he has one more year at Duke.

Phillies' Staff Proves Baseball Is 75% Pitching

By RALPH BERNSTEIN PHILADELPHIA (AP)—If you're looking for proof that pitching is 75 per cent of baseball, go no further than the 1957 surprise team of the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies.

Here is a club which has made only 35 hits and 18 runs in the last 68 innings and won six of eight games.

Last night was typical - five hits and three runs. The second-place Phillies climbed to within 1 1/2 games of the league-leading Cincinnati Redlegs with a 3-1 decision over the pace-setters.

"A few more victories like that one," said the perspiring Harvey in the locker room, "and I'll forget all about that sinus."

Haddix had to call on all his stuff and cunning to halt a Redleg threat in the ninth inning.

RAY MARTINEZ

Martinez Didn't Go To Beaumont Because...

By BILLY ARNOLD In case you're wondering why Coach Raymond Martinez isn't in Beaumont, Texas, there's a good reason.

His wife gave birth to a healthy baby boy, Monday.

The strapping East Carolina tennis and swimming instructor sent Dr. Martin Goldsmith of the ECC math department to accompany the boys to the national NAIA tennis tournament.

Though the combinations have not been made definite, it was expected that Everett and Savage would represent the school as a doubles team.

Everette, a svelte junior from Robersonville, was the No. 1 man on the ECC ladder this season and paced his club to a North State Conference championship.

Incidentally, the newest addition to the Martinez family is named Linus Ray, and is the coach's first child.

Moose Whip Exchange 7-5 In Eight Innings

The league-leading Moose Club whipped the Exchangers, 7-5, in Tar Heel Little League ball yesterday afternoon at Elm Street park.

It boosted their won-loss mark to 4-1 for this third week of the season and places them far ahead of the fold in the Tar Heel circle.

Exchange club came from behind in the sixth inning to tie the game at 5-5. Robby Ange, Exchange hurler, had the Moose offensive tied in knots until the final explosion in the eighth and final inning.

Anger struck out three, walked one, and scattered the Moose hits. Only in the third and eighth frames did the winners collect more than one hit.

It was the pitching of Steve Partridge, however, that finally paid off. Partridge went the full distance for the Moose and received credit for the win. He turned on the pressure in the two extra innings, after his team had tied the score, and didn't allow a single hit.

Neither team scored in the fourth, but the Moose moved into the lead with one run in the fifth frame. The Exchangers knotted the score in the same inning.

In the eighth, after one scoreless extra inning, the Moose brought in Kenny Joyner and Mike Cavendish on two hits, to wrap up the game 7-5.

Lineups Are Ready For 11th NCAA World Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The lineup for the 11th National Collegiate Baseball world series was complete today after former NCAA champions won their district playoffs.

Texas, the Southwest Conference champion, walloped Arizona 7-1 yesterday to win the right to represent District 6 in the series which opens Saturday in Omaha, Neb.

The California Bears, Pacific Coast Conference winner, split a doubleheader yesterday against Pepperdine but took the District 8 playoff 2-1.

Texas will meet the University of Connecticut, Yankee Conference titlist and District 1 representative, in the first round at Omaha. California opposes Colorado State College, Rocky Mountain Conference and District 7 champion.

Other pairings pit Penn State, District 2, against Florida State, District 3; Notre Dame, District 4, against Iowa State, District 5. Iowa State is Big Seven champion. The other teams were at large choices to the regional playoffs.

Wake Forest To Lose Carpenter

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Wake Forest's football team will have to do without the services next season of Charlie Carpenter, the Deacons' only experienced quarterback.

Carpenter, a senior from Canton and No. 2 passer in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year, underwent surgery yesterday for a ruptured spinal disc.

That leaves the quarterbacking chores on Paul Amen's ball to sophomore (Charlie (Preacher) Parker of New Bern, and two converted halfbacks, Jim Dalrymple and Bruce Nunnally.

Amen called Carpenter's loss a "terrific blow to us." Last season Carpenter completed 34 of 91 passes for 495 yards and two touchdowns.

Parker was a top passer on last year's frosh squad. Dalrymple was regular left halfback on the varsity last season. Amen's experiments with Dalrymple and Nunnally were partly the result of Carpenter's back pains and partly because Pete Barham, No. 2 quarterback behind Carpenter last fall, was being switched to halfback.

State Bank Club Claims Third Consecutive Teen-er Victory

State Bank Teen-er League baseballers punched out a 2-0 victory over the Guaranty Bankers, paced last night at Guy Smith Stadium, to rack up their third consecutive win of the season.

The triumph—coming hard on a muddy field—places the State Bankers in sole possession of the Teen-er League's first place and establishes them as the only undefeated team in the loop.

Guaranty Bank fell to third position after last night's loss.

Randy Bass, the chunky right-hander who guided his club to their first win of the season last week, pitched the State Bank out-of into another last night. Bass went the full seven innings, fanning 12 Guaranty batters, walking 2 none, and giving up only three hits.

Sharp Hitting Alan McArthur, peppery shortstop for the State Bankers, paced his club at the plate, as they unleashed six hits. McArthur cracked out two singles and was the only man on his team to hit more than once.

The other State Bankers collecting hits were Jeff Fountain, Aubrey Harrison, Charles Gray, and Burt Aycock.

First baseman Joe Moya grabbed two of the Guaranty Bank's three hits. Steve Noble got the other.

State Bank scored both of their runs in the first inning and that concluded all the runs for the night. Neither team could muster the strength to score again, although the winners threatened again in the fourth and fifth frames. The runs came on hits by Fountain, McArthur and Gray and two pass balls.

Lonnie Staton was the losing hurler. He went for four innings and was relieved by Steve Noble. Between them, they struck out seven batters, walked six and gave up the six hits.

Reports U. S. Youth Show Effects Of Little Exercise

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—America's children, reared on television, the family car and the school bus, are showing up badly in physical fitness tests, a physical education expert reported today.

Bonnie Prudden, White Plains, N. Y., newly appointed to the President's Citizen Advisory Committee on Youth Fitness, said there is "a level to which we can't go without getting into danger, both physically and emotionally." The Russians are spending billions for physical education — not sports, but gymnastics, "and they're not doing this for fun. They need a strong nation because they have plans for it," said Miss Prudden.

She urged America "to take a leaf out of their book's and get to work on our own youngsters." Miss Prudden, a trim, dark-haired 43-year-old, who looks more like a college girl though she is the mother of two teenagers, operates an institute for physical fitness in White Plains. She came here to address the General Federation of Women's Clubs and urged the women to get busy to trim themselves and their families.

She said in an interview American children need more gym work and running games that build endurance, but less ball playing. Schools aren't handling the problem, she said. Ninety per cent of the elementary schools have no gym at all and other schools are emphasizing recreation rather than physical education.

There is too much stress on baseball, volleyball and basketball, she said. "Take the ball away and you have no program," she said, pointing out that gym apparatus has virtually disappeared from the schools. Children need at least an hour a day in actual physical training or sports that build endurance, she said. Miss Prudden said she has conducted muscle fitness tests among 4,800 U. S. children and more than 3,000 Europeans and found 59 per cent of the youngsters here failed, compared with 8 per cent in the European group.

In the past 10 years, she explained, there has been a change in attitude toward sports, a tendency to play indoors and watch television rather than participate in outdoor sports.

Miss Prudden thinks compulsory physical education is needed in the schools to overcome the bad habits that have grown up in the past 10 years.

The film has also been obtained for showings in Britain, Canada, Australia, Cuba, Sweden and Mexico.

Experts Predict Continued Rise In U.S. Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of experts told a Senate-House Economic subcommittee yesterday that the prospects in the next few years were for steadily increasing federal spending, with no margin for tax cuts.

One expert estimate: the federal spending budget would reach $75,300,000,000 in fiscal 1959, or 3½ billions more than President Eisenhower's 1958 prediction for the year ahead.

The estimate came from Dr. Gerhard Colm, chief economist for the National Planning Assn., who said it was prepared after "fullest cooperation of the Budget Bureau." He took sole responsibility for it, however.

The figure was a shock to economy-minded lawmakers. For 1958, Colm forecast spending of $72,800,000,000, exactly a billion more than the President's estimate in his January budget message.

He said he would raise his prediction to 73½ billions unless Congress passes a postal rate increase bill.

Edwin B. George, director of the economic department of Dun and Bradstreet, said his own calculations on fiscal 1958 reached about the same conclusions as Colm.

The economists also said that they could see nothing at this time in the five-year period ahead to indicate any downturn in federal outlays.

All members of the panel cited defense spending as the main reason for the steady upward pressure on the federal budget.

At another hearing yesterday, before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, Asst. Secretary of Defense Wilfred J. McNeil confirmed the economists' views on that point. He said military spending for the current fiscal year was running more than two billion dollars above the original estimates, and that the same trend was likely in 1958.

Ervin Probes Decision To Let Japan Try American

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. decision to let Japan try an American soldier on homicide charges brought on a Senate investigation today along with promise of more to come.

Chairman Ervin (D-NC) summoned the Defense Department counsel, Robert Dechert, before a closed meeting of an Armed Services subcommittee to determine "if the facts justified the action taken."

And Sen. Flanders (R-Vt), his colleague on the two-member subcommittee, said that "we propose to find out who is responsible for this blunder."

Specialist 3.C. William C. Girard, of Ottawa-LaSalle, Ill., faces a Japanese trial on a charge of killing a Japanese woman, Mrs. Naka Sakai, 46, last Jan. 30. Girard was charged with shooting her while attempting to chase scavengers away from an Army firing range.

The decision to let Japanese courts try Girard was announced jointly yesterday by Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Defense Wilson.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said that "certainly" President Eisenhower had approved of the decision.

In addition to the two-man Senate subcommittee, the House Foreign Affairs Committee set a June 13 meeting to look into the Girard case. And a Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee under Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) let it be known that it has been looking quietly at the whole matter of the rights of servicemen. It has called no hearings, however.

Involved in the squabble is the general policy of "status of forces" treaties under which this government has granted many foreign nations the right to try U. S. servicemen for offenses committed while off duty, or not "done in the performance of official duty."

Such treaties in Europe as well as the Far East have come under frequent attack in Congress on the ground that members of the armed forces stationed abroad should be assured the right of trial under U. S. law.

The Japanese contended that Girard was off duty at the time of the incident and said that gave them jurisdiction over the case.

But senators pointed to a Defense Department statement that Girard and another soldier "were ordered" by a platoon leader to guard a machine gun and other equipment as evidence he was on duty status.

Ervin told a reporter today that newspaper accounts of the shooting "indicate to my mind that Girard was on duty at the time of this unfortunate occurrence."

"If that is the case, American jurisdiction should be exercised," he added. "Our subcommittee will try to determine whether the facts justify the action taken."

And Flanders said, "This decision could have serious repercussions from the standpoint of the continuance of the status of forces agreement. There should be strong representations to the Japanese."

The decision came as a surprise to many. Sen. Bridges (R-NH), chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said it was "exactly the opposite" of what Secretary of the Army Brucker said would be done.

Bridges said Brucker had declared the Army would assert jurisdiction over Girard on the ground that he was on duty at the time of the shooting. But the senator added the Army secretary was overridden because of a prior commitment by someone in the Defense Department. He said he assumed the subcommittee would look into this.

Girard, 21, re-enlisted in 1955 after a two-year army hitch which had included service in Japan. He is engaged to marry a Japanese girl.

The Girard case is the first in more than 14,000 alleged law violations in which Japan has invoked a provision which gives its courts the right to decide whether the offender was on or off duty at the time. Japan has claimed jurisdiction in about 460 cases and tried about 435, of whom 89 were convicted.

Would Block Frivolous Use Of 5th Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said today he will propose a "corrective" constitutional amendment if the courts uphold the right of witnesses to make frivolous use of the Fifth Amendment.

McClellan said he doubts the Senate will hesitate about ordering contempt of Congress prosecution of Dave Beck Jr., son of the Teamsters Union president.

That would be a test case seeking a court definition of just when a witness gets off base in invoking his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.

McClellan, presiding at a Senate Rackets Committee hearing yesterday, ordered steps to cite Beck and Joseph McEvoy, another witness, for contempt. He said a formal citation should be ready within 10 days.

He said they had made "frivolous and capricious" use of the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer many questions about their alleged profits from dealings with the Teamsters Union. McEvoy married a niece of the senior Mrs. Beck.

The younger Beck invoked the Fifth Amendment 130 times in 40 minutes yesterday. He refused even to acknowledge kinship to his father, who previously had declined to tell the committee whether he misappropriated union funds. McClellan said the committee may cite the elder Beck too.

The committee starts hearings tomorrow on allegations of misuse of funds raised by some officials of the 160-member Bakers Union.

Teen-Age Nippon Star To America

TOKYO (AP)—A teen-age Japanese girl who has parlayed an off-key version of "Banana Boat Song" and a feline come-hither look into fame and fortune is considering taking her talents to the United States next fall.

A spokesman for Nippon Victor Recording says Miss Hamamura has been invited to appear on a U. S. television show in September and has accepted.

Honor Marshall Today For Historic Address

WASHINGTON (AP)—The organization for European Economic Cooperation honored former Secretary of State George C. Marshall today on the anniversary of a 1947 Marshall speech pledging U. S. aid to war-torn Europe. The chairman of the OEEC Council—Britain's Peter Thorneycroft—said in a letter to Marshall that the speech "gave sudden hope and encouragement to the peoples of Europe." The speech, which foreshadowed this country's Marshall Plan of aid to Europe, was delivered 10 years ago at Harvard University. "You made this speech as secretary of state on behalf of your government but we in Europe have always thought of it as representing not only the generous sentiments of the American people as a whole but of the great human qualities which you personally brought to your task at that time," Thorneycroft said. Britain's ambassador to the United States, Sir Harold Caccia, arranged to present a silver medal to Marshall today on behalf of the OEEC. In prepared remarks, the ambassador said Marshall's Harvard address led to establishment of the economic organization. "Your speech," the ambassador said to Marshall, "came at a moment when the leaders of Western Europe were anxiously seeking for means of restoring their war-shattered economies. It was just what they so sorely needed. You made it clear that, if the nations of Europe got together and worked together for their own salvation, American aid would be forthcoming. Your inspired speech was designed to set in train an unforeseeably rapid recovery in Europe."

Delay Talks On Charter Revision

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The conference to discuss revision of the U. N. Charter has been delayed for two years. A U. N. Assembly committee recommended the delay yesterday by a 67-5 vote, making approval by the General Assembly certain. The Soviet bloc, which opposes revision of the charter, abstained. The United States favors at least a review of the charter but voted for the delay.

Just Waiting

PARIS (AP)—The morning newspaper Figaro today published a cartoon showing a group of Russian children staring at a vacant television screen as their father enters the room. "What are you waiting for?" the father asks the children. The reply: "For Eisenhower to come on the screen to promise us that our children will all be capitalists."

According to U. S. Census Reports, 2 1/2 million children in the United States belong to families who earn less than $10 a week.

'Here We Come'

LONDON (AP)—Big headlines in London newspapers today welcomed the lifting of the dollar curtain which has blocked British tourist travel to America since 1947. "New York Here We Come!" was the Daily Sketch's banner line on its story of the treasury decision to let Britons take $280 a year each out of the country to spend in the United States or Canada. The ban on dollars for tourists had been imposed to conserve the hard currency needed to buy vital imports. Concessions were made only to persons traveling on business and visiting close relatives. The Sketch said it would run a competition offering a free holiday in New York to two British couples. The Daily Express announced a similar competition with a free trip for a whole family as the prize. The Express and the Daily Mail warned their readers, however, that a tourist can't have much of a ball in New York on $280. "There is rampant inflation in America and the cost of living goes higher and higher each week," wrote Don Iddon, the Mail's New York correspondent.

President Plans Send A Message

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower plans to send a message to be read at the July 6 dedication of the Harry Truman Library at Independence, Mo. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said in response to inquiries yesterday that Eisenhower's message "undoubtedly will be read" by Franklin G. Floete, head of the General Services Administration. Floete will attend the ceremony to accept the library on behalf of the government. Hagerty added that Floete would be there in his GSA capacity and not as a personal representative of Eisenhower. The 14-million-dollar library, financed by private contributions, will house Truman's collection of presidential papers, said to be valued at 17 million dollars. Hagerty said in reply to a question that so far as he knew Eisenhower was not invited by Truman to attend the ceremonies. Relations between the two men have not been cordial since the 1952 campaign. Although it is sometimes called the "prairie wolf," the coyote is much smaller than the true wolf and more closely resembles the jackal.

Twins To Chart Separate Course In Navy Careers

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—The McManes family is adding a pair of new ensigns Friday, and shipmates aboard the USS Toledo and the USS Hancock can be just as glad they're going separate ways. The twin brothers, Spencer and Kenmore, are sons of Rear Adm. Kenmore M. McManes, commander, Battleship-Cruiser Division, Atlantic Fleet. After 21 years together, four of them puzzling academy authorities, they're ready to start charting separate courses as naval officers. Spence will report to the cruiser Toledo operating out of Long Beach, Calif., and Ken to the carrier Hancock at Alameda, Calif. "We have no regrets about going to different assignments," Spence says. "We don't feel inseparable, as you might imagine twins would, and we realize it's time to assume individual responsibility." The McManes twins will be among a class of 848 midshipmen graduating from the Naval Academy Friday. Their father will be there to help Mrs. McManes pin on their new shoulder boards. Each is 6 feet 3 1/2 inches and weighs 175 pounds, and midshipmen who don't know them too well are continually mixing them up—as are officers and faculty members. Spence recalls that he got socked with three hours of extra duty, acquired by brother Ken for some minor infraction soon after they came to the academy. "I didn't mind working it off the first time," he says. "But when they tried to give me five hours Kenmore should have had, we had an agreement. Each would take his own lumps."

An entrance foyer that is beginning to look rundown at the heel can be given a luxury touch with the installation of real marble. This is possible with a thin marble tile now on the market... half the thickness half the weight of a regular marble slab.

Over the floor, lay strips of the desired color hardwood, two inches wide and half-an-inch thick. The strips are laid so that square are formed into which the tile will be set in place with mastic. How large the squares are will depend on what size marble tile you buy. They come in three sizes—8 inches by 8 inches, 8 inches by 12 inches, and 12 inches by 12 inches.

For the best effects, contrast the tone of the wood with one of the 18 different marble colorings, a dark wood-light marble or light wood-dark marble being the most interesting combinations.

In January, 1951, approximately 250 sliding glass doors per month were being manufactured by less than a dozen manufacturers, all located in southern California. What little sale they had was confined mostly to their own area and to expensive homes.

Today, these same manufacturers... now the nucleus of a booming business on a national basis... are producing and selling 30,000 sliding glass doors and windows every month. Although 80 per cent of all these products are still manufactured in California, sliding glass doors are now in common use in every state in the union in all climates.

The Sliding Glass Door and Window Institute points out that only one home in every 12,000 had sliding glass doors or windows in 1951, whereas today one in every 10 new homes is equipped with them.

Originally used only to integrate the living room to the patio the doors and windows now are being used to integrate kitchens, dens, dining rooms, hallways, bedrooms and even living rooms with the outdoors. Newer, lighter and stronger materials have permitted the use of double-paneled glass in cold climates and the consequent elimination of drafts and heat losses.

DEPARTMENT OF INQUIRY QUESTION: I have some wiring to do in the basement of our home and planned on using BX cable, but a neighbor tells me it is permissible to use fabric cable in our area. Since this is cheaper, I would like to use it, but do not know whether it is practical. Can you advise me? ANSWER: BX cable is rubber-covered wire encased in a flexible steel covering. What you call fabric cable is non-metallic sheathed cable. Either is satisfactory, but it is important to check with local authorities on what may or may not be used rather than accept the word of a neighbor. It is equally important to know whether the work you plan on doing can be done by anyone except a licensed electrician. You may be voiding the fire insurance on your home without knowing it.

QUESTION: I recently inspected the outside of our house, as I am getting ready to paint it soon. I was dismayed to find evidences of dry mold in many places. Can this be removed effectively? ANSWER: Dry mold on the outside of a house can be taken off easily by washing the affected area with either household ammonia or a solution of trisodium phosphate. When the mold is off, rinse with clear water. However, the presence of dry mold indicates excessive moisture, and this condition should be corrected before repainting, otherwise you'll have the same trouble all over again in a few months.

Says Communist Party Now Aims At Local Govm't

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell says the Communist party now appears to be concentrating its efforts on state and local organizations instead of on national front organizations as in the past. In a report to President Eisenhower and the Congress yesterday, Brownell said Red aims include "the infiltration of legitimate organizations, including fraternal, charitable and civic."

The attorney general said his department is delaying cases against some organizations not registered as Communist fronts to avoid disclosing too much about the penetration of government agents into Communist party affairs. But efforts to develop evidence against these groups are continuing, he said, and action against them will be taken "in the coming fiscal year," beginning July 1.

Woman Plunges From 38th Floor

CHICAGO (AP)—An estranged wife plunged to her death last night from a 38th-floor office window of the Board of Trade building, one of Chicago's tallest skyscrapers.

Police identified the woman as Mrs. Marie Devaney, 29, a secretary for a barge company with offices in the building. They said Mrs. Devaney, mother of a 7-year-old son, had been separated from her husband John for two years.

CHAPTER 4

Everyone in the valley came to Joe's funeral, even Kathy Morgan. She stood by herself, away from the others, crying all through the service. Sarah, sitting in her wheelchair, shed a tear. I couldn't tell by looking at her whether she felt sorrow or not.

Dillingham looked stunned. I suppose I did, too. I was surprised to find I didn't feel intense grief, although I'm sure my emotions were not like Sarah's. I had loved Joe Pardee. I had respected him, yet he wasn't a man whose death brought piercing sorrow.

I thought about that as the preacher talked, searching my heart and feeling a little guilty. Joe couldn't have been censured for any of his killings. The men who had come here had known the risks they were taking. Unlike the farmers who hired Al Beam, Joe had never dodged an obligation by hiring someone else to take his place.

I kept turning over in my mind the discovery I'd made about Joe. With all of his virtues, he lacked one important quality: pity. I'd never given it a thought while he was alive, but now I realized he'd been a hard, driving man suffering from an overweening sense of duty. Looking back across the years I'd lived here and worked with him, I couldn't remember a time when he had shown genuine sympathy for another man's trouble.

I was aware that the service was over when Gene Dillingham came to me and said, "Tell the ranchers I want to see them before they go, Will."

I told them, eleven men ranging from Alec Dodson, whose Anchor was the biggest spread in the county, on down to the little ten-cow poverty outfits in the air south half of the valley. As I walked beside Dodson toward the corral, I saw that Dillingham had escorted Kathy to her rig.

I glanced toward the house just as Dogbone was pushing Sarah's chair up the ramp beside the steps. She had completely ignored Kathy, but that, I told myself, was exactly what Kathy must have expected.

Dodson walked along, his head down, and presently he said: "I'll be real bad now. There ain't a man in the valley who can do what Joe done."

"That's right," I said.

We walked across the dusty yard to where the other ranchers stood, the air still and hot, the sun swinging down toward the Sangre de Cristo range. Then Dillingham came striding toward us with his rolling, bowlegged walk.

"I won't take more'n a minute boys," he said. "Just seemed to me we'd best decide something while we're together. It ain't no secret that Joe was responsible for this valley being what it is. Soon as the farmers hear they don't have to buck him no more, they'll be back here by the hundreds."

"I don't think so," Dodson said. "Not till spring, anyhow."

Dillingham glowered at him. Though Dodson wasn't an aggressive man, the fact that he owned the Anchor made him important, and Dillingham couldn't very well ignore him. Gene said: "I figger we can't take no chances. I ain't a owner, but I reckon the world'll ask me to rod this outfit, seeing as I've been here a long time and know the way Joe operated; but that ain't the point. Joe done a job. The least we can do is to go on doing it. He was president of the Easter Valley Cattlemen's Association as long as I've been around here. Well, we'd better get another one before something happens."

He looked at the men in front of him, but none of them said what he expected to hear, that he would make a good president. There was an awkward silence. Finally Dodson said: "Looks to me like you're out of line, Gene. The constitution and by-laws says the president has got to be an owner. Maybe you'd better buy the Box P from Mrs. Pardee." He cleared his throat, and then added, "We'll meet the first Saturday night of October in the schoolhouse."

He walked toward his rig, calling to his wife. The rest of them scattered in a matter of seconds. Dillingham and I were the only ones left. He was red in the face, and hurt.

"They'll need me before they're done! They'll find out." He swung around and walked toward the house.

I went into the bunkhouse and sat down. I rolled and smoked a cigarette, and stared at the log walls and the potbellied stove. Then I wondered if I would stay on. I didn't want to leave Sarah, but I didn't think I could work for Dillingham. He'd be overbearing as well as stubborn; he'd make a show if he had to kill me and Dogbone to do it. I'd wait a few days and see how it went.

Someone came in and I glanced up. It was Ben Sawhill, the Canon City lawyer who handled Joe's legal work, a big, rawboned man who looked more like a farmer than a lawyer. He was smart and honest, and Joe had always trust-

Russian Chiefs To Visit Finland Writes Himself Idea Letters

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—B and K are rolling in tomorrow for what the Finns expect to develop into a Soviet show of sweetness and light toward a Western neighbor. They are bringing a first-rank delegation.

Those old globetrotters—Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev—have as their official announced purpose discussions of Finnish-Soviet trade and relations. But Soviet Ambassador Victor Z. Lebedev has this comment: "No outstanding problems at all exist between Finland and the Soviet Union. What we are going to discuss with the Finns is in no way unpleasant. We just look forward to a pleasant week with our Finnish friends."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Every Monday morning, City Engineer W.W. Sanders asks his secretary: "Did you get any mail from me today?"

She probably did. Sanders writes letters to himself. He explains that when he gets an idea over the weekends, he puts it down on paper. On Sunday, he bundles up all the ideas and mails them to himself at City Hall.

Will Dispose Of Housing Project

PT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Pt. Bragg authorities said today that on July 1 they will turn over to the Army Corps of Engineers the 475-unit housing project in Fayetteville known as Honeycutt Place.

The engineers will determine what disposition will be made of the frame dwellings which were built in 1940 as an emergency when Army expansion caused a housing shortage in this area. The approximately 125 families now residing in the Honeycutt Place buildings will be absorbed in dwelling quarters which recently have been erected on this reservation.

NEW YORK (AP)—Tobacco took losses while oils gained in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was slow. Gains and losses of fractions to a point or so among pivotal stocks were the general rule. The tobacco shares underwent some selling in a delayed reaction to the new report yesterday by the American Cancer Society linking cigarette smoking with lung cancer, heart disease and premature death from other causes.

The tobacco paid scant heed to this when the news was fresh yesterday but wider publication today apparently had its effect. Du Pont continued to retreat as Wall Street pondered the possible implementation of the Supreme Court decision on the firm's holding of General Motors stock.

The averages were depressed by the drop in this stock as well as heavily weighted American Telephone which was selling ex-dividend and off a fraction. The tobacco stocks lost ground in an unusual turnover of sizeable opening blocks. American Tobacco deepened an early fractional loss in a later trade, selling off 1 1/2 at 71 on 2,000 shares. Liggett & Myers was off close to a point but only fractional losses hit Reynolds Tobacco "B" and Philip Morris.

Getty Oil and Amerada were each ahead a point or better while Gulf Oil rose a major fraction. Texas Co. rose around a point and Sinclair was firm while Royal Dutch dropped a fraction.

Du Pont deepened an early fractional loss to more than 2. General Motors was off fractionally in a generally easy motor group. U.S. Steel rose a fraction and Bethlehem was about unchanged, both erasing early fractional losses.

Leading rails were mostly either unchanged or slightly off. New York Central dropped a fraction. Santa Fe and Illinois Central eased. Chesapeake & Ohio was firm.

Aircrafts were irregular with Boeing and United Aircraft leaning to the upside and Douglas easy. Johns-Manville, Anaconda and Kennecott gained slightly. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 50 cents to $183.10 with the industrials down 70 cents, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities down 30 cents.

Long Fight Over Pay Issue Looms

RALEIGH (AP)—The possibility of a drawn-out fight on the issue of a pay raise for school teachers loomed today as the Senate Appropriations chairman prepared to report the Senate floor June 17 and 18. Also competing in the event will be finalists from 30 other State Highway Patrol districts. In the boys' division Joseph Edward Pridden of the Kennedy Memorial High in Kinston was declared winner, amassing 387 points. Carlton Gray of Greenville Rt. 2, also representing Chicod School was first place winner among Pitt County boy entries with a total of 350 points. Both Miss Smith and Gray were presented with wrist watches by Governor Percy Cox of the Greenville Moose Lodge 885. Prizes were also awarded to runners-up in each the boys and girls division. William Earl Tripp of Greenville Rt. 5 representing Pactolus School and Lois Ann Briley of 200 E. Mumford Rd. in Greenville also representing the Pactolus School were runners-up in the county. Both received pen and pencil sets from the local Moose Lodge. Participating in the district eliminations were student school bus drivers from Pitt, Greene and Lenoir counties. Roy Thomas Carraway of Hookerton Rt. 1 representing Maury School was high among the Greene County contestants. He received a gift from the Kinston Moose Lodge. There were no female entries from the county. In the state finals the contest, written and skill, will be more advanced than the district contest. Each contestant are to be given an equal chance to demonstrate his or her ability in the following categories: manipulating a school bus in skill tests; knowledge of traffic laws and regulations as they apply to the safe operation of a school bus and personal attitude of traffic safety. The $1,400 in scholarships and expenses for the championship road is being presented to the Governor's Traffic Safety Council by the North Carolina State Automobile Association and the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association, Incorporated. Scholarships may be used at any recognized school of the winner's choice, it has been announced. In yesterday's eliminations 22 of the 41 student bus drivers invited competed. Russell Rogerson, Driver Improvement Representative for the State Highway Patrol's Safety Division stated this morning, "We were extremely pleased with the overall results of the district eliminations yesterday." "The comparative scores this year averaged higher than last year with several more drivers participating," Rogerson added.

Four Greenville youths left this morning for a ten-day camping trip into wilderness areas in the Great Smokies National Park in Western North Carolina. Jerry Howell, Billy Barbre, Franklin Steinbeck and David Wade will go to Franklin where they will begin a four-day hike along the Appalachian Trail. The hike will carry them into Nantahala National Forest from where they will make a six-day trip into Raven Fork Wilderness area in the national park. Raven Fork was closed to the general public when the Great Smokies National Park was opened in the 1930's. There are no roads or trails into the area except fire trails and the area has been permitted to remain a complete wilderness. The four campers were given special permission to make the trip into the area by the National Park Service. They were cautioned that Raven Fork is thought to be the wildest area in the Eastern United States.

Four Embark On Trip To Smokies

Both House and Senate Appropriations chairmen read a letter from Gov. Hodges cautioning against spending above revenue estimates. The House and Senate committees met jointly to hear the report of the joint subcommittee and then divided to vote on the bill. In proposing the 16.09 figure for a teacher pay boost, Rep. R. Frank Everett of Martin said it represented a "good compromise" between the 15 per cent figure and the 19.31 recommended by the Board of Education and teacher organizations. Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow, House Appropriations chairman reminded the committee that increasing teacher pay would mean studying the entire budget "to find the money." Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange, a subcommittee member urged the group to adopt the 25 per cent figure. He said: "We must be realistic." The fiscal situation, he said, poses the prospect that the 1959 Legislature "will have to collect additional taxes or cut teacher salaries." Rep. Clyde Shreve of Guilford, urging adoption of the 16.09 figure, declared past estimates of tax collections always have been low. The Senate committee turned down an amendment by Sen. Luther Hamilton of Carteret for a 16.09 per cent raise. Sen. Jule McMichael of Rockingham proposed a 19.3 figure.

Wooten Offers Bill To Amend

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee probably will complete action this weekend on a new foreign aid bill. Pitt Representative Frank Wooten introduced the measure which is being studied by House Judiciary II Committee. The bill, which seeks to amend General Statute 15-177.1, provides that "pending the appeal (to superior court), all fines and costs paid into the lower court shall be refunded to the defendant and until time for giving notice to appear to the superior court has expired, no fine shall be paid over to the county school fund."

body was found in a large pool of blood in a middle room of Taylor's house. Rogerson quoted the accused as saying that "he (Carmen) was coming at me with his hands in his pockets and I hit him with the ax before he could get to me." "I was sick to have happened after Carmen told Taylor 'I don't have to go anywhere' when asked to leave his house. The officer stated that Katie Mae said she didn't know of any hard feeling between the two. He added no weapon was found on Carmen's body or in the room and there was no evidence of a fight since nothing was upset. No other marks were found on the dead man by investigating officers. The ax struck Carmen across the left ear and temple, severing several veins and a main artery. Rogerson said there was a large amount of blood on the floor around and near the body. The bloody death weapon was found nearby. After Rogerson, Set. Warren was called upon to testify. He was at the police station when Taylor came in to report the incident. Howard Hardison of 103 Reads St. told officers that he saw Carmen go into the Taylor house and thought he was drinking. He added, "I was across the street but in my opinion he appeared to be drinking." Taylor, calm but somewhat nervous throughout the inquest, did not take the stand in his behalf.

ships would be announced this summer. He listed conditions which the winners must meet and said that consideration of every member of the graduating class was continuing. Rose introduced Mrs. James S. Picklen and James S. Picklen, Jr., donors of the scholarships which are being established in memory of the late James S. Picklen, Sr. The superintendent also announced that formal dedication ceremonies of the new Eppes gymnasium would be held in September. He added that there was work yet to be done before the building is completed but pointed out that the movable platform used last night was made by Greenville High School shop students and presented as a gift to Eppes students. Music for last night's program included the professional, the "William Tell Overture", and the "Star Spangled Banner" by the Eppes Band under the direction of J. W. Wooten; and "Let Not Your Song End" and "Bless This House", by the mixed chorus under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Davenport.
