Miss Parker, Mr. Whitehurst Vows Spoken

Miss Joan Carol Parker, daughter of Mrs. J. Robert Parker of Farmville, and Joseph Patrick Whitehurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Whitehurst of Greenville, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church May 26 at 4 p.m., the Rev. L. B. Manning officiating.

Baskets of white gladioli on either side of the altar against a background of ferns and with candelabra holding white tapers featured the church decorations. Ralph Bowen, pianist, offered a program of wedding music for 15 minutes prior to the ceremony. Tom Moore of Rocky Mount sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, J. C. Parker, wore a waltz length gown of white satin trimmed in lace with long pointed sleeves and with an overskirt of nylon tulle and a lace bodice. Veil, pearl earrings and pearl choker completed her bridal ensemble. She carried a Bible topped with a white orchid.

Attending her sister as matron of honor, Mrs. Alton Rouse of Wilmington wore a pink hand embroidered organdy dress, with high neck, and trimmed with pearl buttons down the front. White accessories were used and a nosegay of pink carnations with orchid ribbon.

Mrs. Cecil Moore, Walstonburg, and Mesdames J. C. Parker, Robert L. Parker, and Johnnie R. Parker, sisters-in-law of the bride, served as bridesmaids. Their ballerina length gowns were of hand embroidered organdy with beeline neck, matching chiffon sashes, with white accessories. They wore picture hats and carried nosegays of pink carnations tied with green ribbon. Mesdames J. C. Parker and Johnnie Parker wore green dresses and Mesdames Robert Parker and Cecil Moore wore orchid dresses.

Carol Rouse of Wilmington, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a pink hand embroidered organdy dress and a band of flowers in her hair. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations tied with orchid ribbon. L. B. Venters of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Johnnie Stokes, Greenville, brother-in-law of the groom. Mr. Robert Parker, Saratoga, brothers of the bride; Reuben Watson, Farmville, uncle of the groom; and Harry L.

Mrs. Joseph Patrick Whitehurst

corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace dress with white accessories and her corsage was also pink carnations.

Before leaving on a wedding trip to the western part of the state, Mrs. Whitehurst changed to a blue dress with lace bodice using white accessories and carrying a white orchid lifted from the prayer book. The bride is a graduate of Walstonburg High School and attended Atlantic Christian College. She is employed as secretary at the Duke Buick Company.

The groom is a graduate of Belvoir High School, attended East Carolina College and is now with the state highway patrol at Williamston.

The young couple will make their home at 108 N. Pitt Street, Farmville.

Out-of-town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. Mac Byrum, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Peele and Mrs. David Modin of Williamston, and Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Parker of Robersonville.

Cake Cutting
A cake cutting was held after rehearsal at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Parker, and was attended by the wedding party and other close friends of the couple. White gladioli arrangements were used.

The guests were greeted by the bride and groom, and were shown the many wedding gifts. They were served buffet style from a table covered with green and white lace cloth and centered with a wedding cake flanked by silver candelabra. Mrs. J. Robert Parker served punch and Mrs. J. C. Parker cut the cake.

Shower

A floating shower was given by Mesdames Clifton Whitehurst, Charles McLawhorn, and Harry Lee Stokes at the home of Mrs. Whitehurst. From a table centered with a bouquet of mixed summer flowers, delicious refreshments were served and consisted of bridal cakes, mints, mixed nuts and punch served by Mrs. McLawhorn. Memo To Brides

Here's How To Have A Happy Honeymoon

(Editor's Note: This is the final in a series of letters written for the world's darling—the bride.)

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Your honeymoon can be everything you dream it will be. But first you'll have to shed a few of the romantic notions most newlyweds pack along with the trousseau. Dr. Harold Greenwald, psychologist, says a happy honeymoon doesn't follow inevitably after saying "I do."

"The beginning of marriage is a difficult adjustment period for most people," he points out. "You've got to be realistic, understanding, and above all, kind. Putting the other person's happiness before your own is the best rule in the honeymoon as well as in the marriage."

As staff consultant for a resort hotel, Dr. Greenwald has listened to the woes of hundreds of honeymooners. He found that their surprisingly similar complaints arose chiefly from romantic, unreal ideas about love and marriage.

The Events Leading Up To This is what frequently leads,

he says, to their crying on his shoulder:

(1) They may have nothing to say to each other; communication is difficult or doesn't exist. They have discovered two people just being alone together isn't enough.

(2) The bride may be homesick for her mother. This is especially true of young, overprotected girls with doting parents.

(3) The bride may feel her husband is being inattentive because he will play tennis or golf occasionally. "He can't love me if he can think of something besides me on our honeymoon." Less frequently, the girl will play bridge and the man will feel neglected.

(4) Often the girl is upset because her husband is uninhibited about throwing his clothes around. "She shouldn't despair," says Dr. Greenwald. "The man eventually will be tamed. And if she's too successful at it, he may in time exceed her in neatness and demand the house be tidier than she keeps it."

Book Salesman Comes To Door; Call Library Before Buying

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

"When a salesman comes to your door selling reference books or encyclopedias, please call Shepard Memorial Library before you buy them," warns Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian.

"You do not need to depend on his sales talk, you can call the public library and find the exact value of the book or books before making a purchase," she suggests.

The library is able to inform the public of a good set of reference books, as well as caution them about inferior ones.

"We do not need to express our opinions, but rather we can give informative, authoritative advice which we receive through a service to protect the buying public," she explains.

This service gives unbiased critical reviews of encyclopedias, dictionaries, biographical works, atlases, collectibles, etc. It is prepared by a voluntary committee of librarians to help librarians and others in the selection of reference works.

The reviews are based on careful examination of the books and indication is given as to whether or not the work is recommended.

She mentions that "A reputable salesman will not mind you asking him to wait a moment while you call the public library."

Basic Sheath Has Many New Tricks

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Girls on a budget have to be smart about their clothes, and often achieve more effective fashions than women who have an unlimited clothes allowance.

These are the girls who learn to sew their own, who make one outfit do the work of three, who are clever about changing accessories and who make the most of every item in their wardrobes.

They can whip up a hat from a half-yard of veiling and a couple of flowers. They know that a clean pair of white cotton gloves looks better than slightly soiled ones of imported kid any day.

A favorite trick of these budget-wise girls is dressing up the basic sheath so that it leads multiple lives. Local sewing center experts say the book was worth. After he had sold quite a few of these books, someone did call Miss Copeland who referred to her authoritative source and then informed the buyer that she could have saved herself $2.00 by buying the identical book in a deluxe edition at her local bookstore.

offer a few new suggestions to the girl who likes to sew.

In this season of flying panels, the slim dress can take on a completely new look with two side panels attached to a belt. These are pleated panels, made quickly and easily with the aid of the multi-slotted binder attachment for your sewing machine. This is a remarkable little gadget that takes ready-made bias binding, folds it and stitches it in one slick operation.

Select double-fold, fine percale bias tape in pretty pastel colors—use stripes of pale blue, rose and yellow, for instance, to pep up the panels for a black or navy sheath. No need to worry about side hems—the binding takes care of the raw edges. The bottom hem may be done on the machine also, using the blind-stitch disc or an automatic swing-needle machine or the blind-stitch pattern on your automatic zigzag attachment.

Other quick tricks for basic sheaths are: collars, made practical and pretty by the use of ruffling or fancy decorative stitching; a tiny cape, trimmed with bias tape; a little bolero, an apron overskirt in a gay print, or a bright contrasting cummerbund.

'57 Marks 47th Father's Day Observance

Leave it to a woman to think up "Father's Day." That one word of faith thought can be credited to Mrs. John Bruce Dodd who originated the "Honor Thy Father's" Day back in 1909, in Spokane, Washington.

Inspired by her own father's unselfish sacrifices and devotion to his six motherless children, Mrs. Dodd chose her father's birthday in June as the day when all children should pay special tribute to Father.

When the idea came to Mrs. Dodd, she went immediately to her minister, and upon his wholehearted approval—to the Spokane Ministerial Association.

In the form of a letter to this association, Mrs. Dodd told of her love for her father, William Smart, a Civil War veteran, who had reared his motherless children on an eastern Washington farm.

William Jennings Bryan was one of the first to recognize the great depth in Mrs. Dodd's idea and gave full endorsement to the proposal saying, "Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the relation between parent and child."

The Young Men's Christian Association of Spokane put the Father's Day idea into active motion and Spokane, back in 1910, was the first city to set aside a day to pay tribute to Father.

This sacred and inspirational day grew into national prominence with President Woodrow Wilson having a Father's Day button pressed in the White House in 1916.

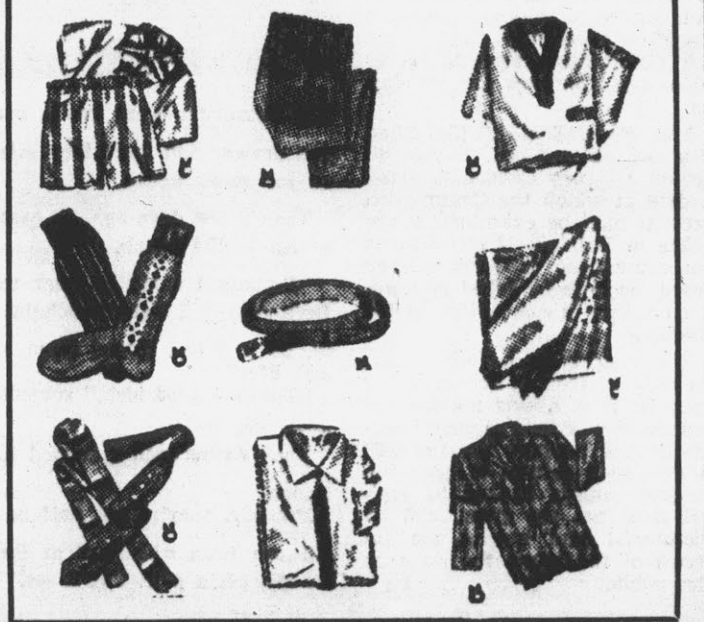

President Calvin Coolidge took up the banner of Father's Day observance by recommending this day be recognized nationally in 1924.

Mrs. Dodd had originally planned that Father's Day be celebrated on the 5th of June to coincide with her father's birthday; there wasn't enough time for the ministers to prepare sermons for the first Father's Day and so the third Sunday in June was chosen.

This year, 1957, marks the 47th anniversary of the first Father's Day... although times have changed and the customs and manner of honoring Fathers may vary a great deal, the spirit of love and gratitude to the number one man of our lives still remains the same.

An Indication The Gamble Is Safe

Announcement of the new titanium plant to be constructed near Wilmington is comforting news for North Carolinians just four days after the legislature wrote into law a new corporate tax formula that will cost the state some $14 millions in revenues unless new industries are attracted to North Carolina.

Whether the legislature's action last Friday in passing the new corporate tax formula played a key role in the location of the new multi-million dollar industry is a moot question. The sequence of events, however, would indicate it did. A short time ago Gov. Hodges announced a company was considering a site in North Carolina for a multi-million dollar plant. He asserted then that a company official said the plant would not come to North Carolina unless the state's corporate tax structure were altered.

Yesterday, Gov. Hodges announced the location of the new plant of Allied Kenecott Titanium Corp. In his statement he indicated the company's decision in favor of the North Carolina site was a direct result of the General Assembly's change in the state's corporate income taxes.

The cost of the plant has not been pinpointed in announcements, but here again Gov. Hodges has intimated it will be somewhere near $40 millions. It will employ some 500 people when it is in full operation.

It will take a good many industries, large and small, to make up the loss in tax revenues because of the change in the corporate formula. Yet it is encouraging when the state can land such a big new industry so soon after re-writing its tax laws. It adds weight to the assertions that the state can intensify its industrial development with the modern and equitable tax structure it now has.

This one new industry will not make up the tax loss created by the change in the laws. It is, however, a good start toward building North Carolina's industrial development to new heights. The state has embarked on a calculated risk in altering its tax structure. If the attraction of this one new industry is any indication, it is a good risk for North Carolina.

Psychological Effect May Do More Good

Maybe we're mistaken, but we see little hope in North Carolina's new "obscenity law" removing such "obscene" literature, plays or dances from public consumption in this state.

At best the law is a vague, generalized statute which affords only a broad outline of what might be considered "obscene" and then complicates even this broad outline by setting forth almost equally generalized exceptions.

Some legislators opine that obscenity, under the new law, is what the judge and jury says it is. Others say it will be up to police officers to act as censors. If the law is so vague to those who enacted it, there is little hope it will be less confusing to those who try to interpret it and use it.

There is strong support in North Carolina for a ban on the sale of "obscene" literature. But when one sets about writing a law to ban "obscenity" it is a difficult factor to pin down in words. We question whether North Carolina's new law is the answer to the problem.

When is a book, magazine, a play or a dance obscene? Twenty different people might give twenty different answers.

Who will be the judge? Writer, Baker, Lawmaker, Jurist, Churchman, Physician, Educator, Artist, Editor, Clerk, Farmer, Housewife?

Who? On different occasions as the new law is put to use perhaps all of these will sit in judgment in various cases. It is quite likely there will be as many different interpretations of the new law as there are cases tried under it.

Criminal prosecution may possibly remove some "obscene" material from public consumption, but we hold little hope for this avenue to pave the way for a wholesale clean-up of obscenity now offered for sale in North Carolina.

It is our frank opinion that the psychological effect of the new law—coupled with the existing laws on the subject—will contribute much more to the clean-up campaign than criminal prosecution under the new statute.

Undecided Over Trading Stamps

By ELMER ROESSNER
Although trading stamps have been in use for half a century and the United States Department of Agriculture has been studying their effects, it still hasn't made up its mind about them.

It can't decide whether the consumer gets something for nothing, or pays part, all or even more than the value of the premiums.

However, it offers some disquieting thoughts about them in its latest reports on the subject, Market Research Report No. 169, a dime from the Government Printing Office.

"Though it is difficult to show conclusively whether consumers are getting a bargain via trading stamps or are paying a premium for food, there are a number of things that can be considered in any attempt to evaluate a specific situation," it states.

"First maintaining a trading stamp plan is an expense to a food merchant. It has been estimated that, on the average, the merchant pays about 2 1/2 per cent of his gross sales to the stamp company for the right to issue stamps, and for stamps, stamp books and some advertising. In addition, dealers may incur other expenses, at least during the introductory stage." (The Department seems to skip lightly over the cost of extra employees at check-out counters and cost of theft prevention.) It continues:

"With the comparatively low mark-ups on most foods, an extra cost of this magnitude must be offset in some way.

"There are ways in which such costs may be partially or wholly offset without raising prices. These include, for example, reduction of unit costs by substantially increasing the quantity of merchandise sold, reduction of other forms of promotion, and stocking items other than food that have higher mark-ups.

NO SHARP PATTERN
"Though many retailers experience an increase in sales following the introduction of a stamp plan, the size of this increase can vary greatly."

The first dealer to introduce stamps in an area may have an increase in sales that more than offsets the cost of stamps, the Department observes, but the grocer already has most of the business, or if all competitors start using stamps, the grocer may have to choose between increasing prices or taking less profit.

"If any cost is passed on through increased prices, consumers may not share its equally," the report states. "Those who do not save stamps may be paying part of the bill for those who do. Or, if prices are raised only on luxury foods, the burden of cost may fall to a larger extent on those buying such products."

It is to be regretted that the Department has not resolved the question of whether stamps have increased the average cost of food and if so, how much. Such data would answer the question of whether the great increase in the use of stamps has played any part in the successive rises in the cost of living.

WHAT'S BOOK WORTH
The Agriculture researchers found stamp savers estimated the value of a typical book of 1,500 stamps to be worth anywhere from $1 to $8. The Department checked the purchasing power of books against seven popular premiums and found that in terms of manufacturers' list prices, stamp books have an average buying power of $3.74; in terms of department store prices, $2.98, and in terms of discount-house prices, $2.51. This indicates that stamps give customers who save them the equivalent of a discount ranging from 1.67 to 2.50 per cent.

Strength For Today

AN EVERLASTING COMMANDMENT

In the sixth chapter of Deuteronomy occurs the famous Shema. It is the commandment that we love God with all our hearts, souls, and might, that we teach God's commandments to our children, and that we bind them for a sign upon our hands and wear them as frontlets between our eyes. These later references have to do with the practice prevalent at the time Deuteronomy was written of binding on the arm during prayer a little box containing these precious verses, and wearing one of these little boxes suspended on a string bound about the forehead.

The meaning is clear, and very beautiful. No commandment of God means anything to us until we really make it a part of our inner lives. As long as it is spoken ink and paper or a printer word, it can definitely be classed in the realm of theory. It is only when we take it into our lives and make it the basis of our desires and decisions, that it really becomes God's law to us.

Dropping In Safe?

by ALVIN TAYLOR

Not Bad, Not Bad At All

If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. Bermuda shorts. I mean. So I do look like I got caught in the rain with a pair of $2.98 cotton cords. So what?

If other folks can wear them, so can I.

That comes from a man who a couple years ago literally rolled on the floor when friends succumbed to the trend toward Bermudas.

"They ain't shorts and they ain't long pants," I'd laugh. "What are they?"

So other folks lolled around in Bermudas. I stuck to my full length trousers.

As the summers rolled by, more and more people joined the trend to Bermudas but I, in my Ivory Tower, ignored the things.

Other Editors Saying-- Right To Know

(Goldboro News-Argus)
Maybe you recall an item that was in the papers three or four weeks ago. The North Carolina Federation of the Blind sought the right to examine records of the State Commission for the Blind. Though the law says that any citizen may examine public papers, the request was not granted.

The Federation of the Blind then sought through its attorney, Robert S. Cahoon, of Greensboro, a ruling on the matter from the office of the North Carolina Attorney General. The reply here was that the office did not have sufficient facts upon which to base an opinion.

Here is the law which the Federation attorney cited in making request of H.A. Wood, executive secretary of the commission, to examine the minutes: "Every person having custody of public records shall permit them to be inspected and examined at reasonable times and under his supervision by any person, and he shall furnish certified copies thereof on payment of fees as prescribed by law." This is Chapter 132, General Statutes of North Carolina, Section 6. The law provides that refusal to permit inspection of public records shall be a misdemeanor and punishable as such.

The North Carolina Federation of the Blind is the state unit of a National Federation. Mrs. Marie Boring, 113 E. Trinity Ave., Durham, is the president. Its principal purpose is to provide as nearly as possible that sightless people shall be independent in their own right, that they shall have encouragement to live normal lives and shall not be made second class citizens by attitudes which treat the blind as a class as objects of charity.

Examination of the records of the Commission for the Blind, the Federation holds, will provide information which will aid in the furthering of its program for the sightless.

The Federation emphasized it had no desire to study records of personal or individual cases on file with the Blind Commission. A special regulation prohibits revelation of individual cases and the Federation in its fight to open the Commission records recognizes and approves this regulation.

The Federation of the Blind has not surrendered. It has directed Attorney Cahoon to name a date at which the Commission records may be examined at the office in Raleigh. If this date is not convenient to Commissioner Wood, he is to be asked to name a date that is convenient to his schedule.

The Federation is fully within its right in seeking access to the records. It is asking nothing unreasonable. Public opinion generally will support the request. A continued refusal to open the records, unless backed by logical facts not yet given, will be dictatorial and not in the interest of the blind, the state or the public.

I stopped to look and that was my mistake. A clerk came over. "Guess the Bermuda fad is about over," I said.

He assured me they sell better than ever.

Then a devil possessed me. I think I blacked out. At any rate when I walked out of the store I owned a pair of blue cotton cord Bermudas.

Once home with them, the problem was what to do next. In the solitude of my room with locked doors, I tried the things on.

Not half bad, I told myself as I peered in the mirror. Not bad at all.

But that's as far as it went.

The Bermudas went into a bureau drawer and there they stayed for some weeks.

Then a few days ago, up came a trip to the beach.

"I guess I ought to wear my Bermudas," I said nonchalantly, as if I had owned them all my life.

"That's a good idea," someone said.

Thus encouraged I donned the things.

Frankly, they're not half bad. All you folks who scoff at Bermudas, get a pair. You'll see.

Graded Toys Emerge

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Many a kid, after losing interest in toys, has gone on to win success at investment banking.

Warren Gochenour Jr., is a man who reversed the field. He dropped the investment banking 10 years ago to take up toys.

Now after a number of years in which he thought he'd wind up the poorhouse he sells 80,000 toys a day. He owes much of his success to his daughter, Gail, now 16.

Back in 1947 Gochenour, a well-to-do young St. Paul investment banker, gave Gail two playthings — a toy bank and an expensive electric train.

"She played with them a few days, then would have nothing to do with them," he recalled. "That got me to thinking that maybe a lot of parents were like me — wasting money buying children toys in which they quickly lost interest.

"Why couldn't something be done to see that kids got reasonably priced toys suited to their age levels and play needs?"

After a survey of the field, Gochenour gave up investment banking and launched his World Toy House firm. He had three basic goals: to pre-test toys, plainly mark on them the age levels for which they were most suitable, and to distribute them through mass outlets, such as chain drug and grocery stores. "I met a lot of opposition," he said. "I ran through all my own money, and all the money I could borrow. I even borrowed on my home, my furniture and my life insurance.

"There were many mornings when I went to work not knowing whether I'd still be in business at nightfall. But every time I'd feel like quitting, I'd get enough encouragement from teacher and parent groups to keep trying a little longer."

The tide turned a couple of years ago with the development of lowpriced durable plastics.

Here's how Gochenour operates: "There are some 5,000 toy manufacturers in the United States, who turn out about 150,000 toys a year. We test about 10,000 of which we finally market some 1,500."

We pick them by having them tested by children in kid juries in 34 nursery schools, play centers and kindergartens. The teachers grade the toys on their durability, play value, safety and educational value.

"If the teachers reject a toy, we don't handle it. We think teachers are better judges than a child psychologist in picking toys, because they know their children better."

His toys range in price from a dime to $1.50, average 49 cents. The most popular items are balloons, squeeze toys, stickhorses, magic sets, plastic auto and airplanes, and household kits for little future mothers.

"One thing we learned," said Gochenour, "is that a small child doesn't really enjoy a mechanical toy until he breaks it and can move it around himself. He likes to be the motivating force.

"The play value must come first, the educational value second. There are too many so-called educational toys put out that are complete flops."

Gochenour, who now distributes his toys through 30,000 retail outlets, will do a multimillion-dollar business this year.

His advice to anyone who wants to go into the toy field: "It's nothing to toy with. Pleasing children takes a lot of hard work and hard thinking. They know what they want, and you'll lose your shirt if you can't find out what it is."

Jesse H. Jones' agency, BATTERY OF LEGAL ACTIONS MAY BE LAUNCHED In short, the high tribunal appears to have paved the way for a more comprehensive National Employment Practices Commission than F.D.R., or Harry S. Truman, or the inspiration of extreme New Dealers, ever dared to propose to Congress. Capitol Hill rejected far milder programs after the war.

It is understood that, as possibly in New Rochelle and Los Angeles, the N.A.A.C.P. will launch a nationwide battery of suits to extend the decision as outlined here.

Another body which will consider and probably assail the Supreme Court's action is the Governors' Conference at its meeting later this month. The State Executives have been denouncing persistent Federal encroachments for years, but many feel that the Girard extension of anti-discrimination philosophy is the "last straw" on their sovereign shoulders.

Girard Decision Opens A Door

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The legal possibilities opened up by the famous Girard decision represent a threat of almost complete Federal control of the nation's society and economy, in the opinion of expert lawyers and legislators here. The suits started or prepared under the Supreme Court's holding account for this conclusion.

The Girard ruling applied only to education on its face, but it is now believed that it can be projected into almost every human activity financed in full or in part by public money — Federal, State or Local — or even if a governmental agency merely handles the funds.

Numerous legal actions, from New York to California, have been undertaken in an attempt to apply the decision to other fields. A Negro in New Rochelle, N. Y., has brought action against an apartment house for its discrimination policy because its mortgages are insured by the Federal Housing and Veterans Administration. ADMINISTRIST'S PATIENT A Los Angeles Negro sued a dentist there for refusing to treat him because of his race. The basis for the action was that the dentist was a publicly licensed purveyor of an essential service, and, therefore, he was required to treat all comers.

Although the Court held against the complaint, it did so partly because of reluctance of the judiciary to intervene in the confidential relations between physician and patient. It apparently matters with the aid of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's legal aid.

Federal, State or municipal agencies have financial relations with almost every college in the country. They provide funds for the R. O. T. C., research, dormitory and hospital construction, extension courses in this country and to the armed forces abroad. Under the pending school construction program, the Administration will virtually rebuild our high school system. OTHER ANGLES Many private institutions of higher learning have certain discriminatory provisions, based on religion, sex, age, residence, married status, and intellectual attainments. Under the Girard ruling, which involves private rather than public funds, they may become subject to the same challenge — and outcome — as the Philadelphia college.

A large percentage of private construction today is financed or insured with Federal taxpayers' contributions, including millions who believe sincerely in segregation. Uncle Sam has invested billions in defense plants for contracts, plant construction, machinery and supplies. He finances farms, mines and shipbuilding.

Were the Reconstruction Finance Corporation operating today, the Girard ruling would undoubtedly affect every large and small borrower, from great railroads to small retail outlets, that obtained funds from the late

Another Dacron Plant Possible

KINSTON — W. E. Gladding, manager of Du Pont operations here, said today that increasing demands for "Dacron" polyester fiber have not only led to production being increased at the local plant but have caused the Company to study the possibility of an additional plant to manufacture "Dacron" at Old Hickory, Tennessee.

He disclosed that the plant here already has expanded its original production by more than 25% in an effort to keep pace with demands for "Dacron." The plant began operations in 1953.

"The decision as to whether or not a plant will be built adjoining our rayon operations at Old Hickory will be made only after the project has been designed on paper so that all specifications and costs can be studied," Mr. Gladding said.

He emphasized that the final decision cannot be made before the first half of next year because of the vast amount of design and estimate work involved. He said another 18 months at least would pass before operations there would be started up even if the decision were favorable.

"Meantime," Mr. Gladding added, "our program to increase production here is continuing on schedule to meet the demands for

Overdriving Car Lights Is Easy

CHICAGO — If you drive 60 miles an hour at night, chances are you're over-driving your headlights.

That's the advice of Edward L. Smith, secretary of the National Safety Council's Committee on Speed.

Smith, a traffic engineer, pointed out that the Uniform Vehicle Code recommends that an auto's bright lights be capable of illuminating an object 350 feet away. But at 60 miles an hour, a passenger car's stopping distance is 366 feet.

"I'm sure that cars with properly adjusted sealed-beam units meet the requirement of being able to spot an object 350 feet away," Smith said. "And most modern-day cars have sealed-beam headlights.

But they are not always adjusted, the lenses or windshield may be dirty.

"A car's lower beam won't meet the requirement. With the low beam, you seldom can see more than 100 feet ahead, especially when the glare of an oncoming car's lights hits you."

Improper lights are probably a definite factor in one of every 100 fatal accidents, Smith said. Statistics indicate that, normally, chances of a motor-vehicle fatality at night are three times as great as during the day.

Motorist — whose ability to see at night may be lessened by strong daylight — were warned by the Council not to rely on "blind faith" in driving at night.

American Tours Are Offered To Britons

LONDON (AP)—Just how far can a foreign visitor go in the United States on $280? And for how long? Your English cousin is getting all kinds of advice—some of it admittedly scary.

Seldom has anything stirred the wanderlust of the Englishman—a peripatetic creature at heart—more than lifting of the Dollar Curtain which has virtually barred him from America for 15 years.

But how much has the curtain been lifted?

The government now allows 100 pounds sterling, the equivalent of $280, to be converted into dollars for a vacation abroad.

Since World War II, dollars, except for business purposes, have been frozen in Britain to pay for essential imports. With the relaxing of the restrictions the travel agencies have launched a major "see America" advertising campaign.

The agencies reported brisk bookings.

The Englishman's $280 is for spending money in the United States only; he can pay his fare over and back in pounds.

Here are a few of the tours being booked:

'Dragon' Resigns In Furore Over His Child Bride

ATLANTA (AP)—The grand dragon of the Alabama Ku Klux Klan, has resigned amid the "turmoil and uproar" caused by his marriage five weeks ago to a teenager.

Alvin Horn of Talladega, 45-year-old father of six children by a wife who died several years ago, said he felt it best for the Klan, himself and his family to resign and had done so to "get all this turmoil and uproar off himself and the organization."

Eldon Lee Edwards of Atlanta, imperial wizard, U. S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., announced Horn's resignation yesterday and said he is in the process of selecting a successor.

Begins Hunting A New Premier

ROME (AP)—President Giovanni Gronchi today started a search for a new Christian Democratic premier to lead Italy out of the most bewildering political jungle in its postwar history.

Gronchi scheduled a series of consultations with party leaders after the resignation last night of 69-year-old Adone Zoli, who refused to remain in office because his 22-day-old minority government was dependent on Fascist votes in Parliament.

There was no indication who might get the nod, but 55-year-old Giuseppe Pella, a former premier, was mentioned frequently.

Choice of a Christian Democrat appeared certain. It is the biggest party in Parliament although it is short of majorities in both houses.

The new government also will be little more than a caretaker regime until the next elections. These are scheduled next spring, but could come earlier if the recent lack of cooperation among the center parties continues.

The big question was whether the man Gronchi finally selects will try for a coalition or a one-party, minority government.

Former Premier Antonio Segni had a four-party coalition which lasted 20 months. It fell May 6 after the defection of his minor party allies.

Zoli tried a one-party, Christian Democrat government. It collapsed last night because Zoli learned that a recheck of a confidence vote in the Chamber of Deputies showed that Fascist votes had given him his victory margin.

Authoritative sources said Zoli fell one short of a required majority of 292 if he deducted the 24 Fascist votes he received.

Praises Results Of Highway Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. G. Mennen Williams says a "vigorous but reasonable and fair" traffic law enforcement can reduce the number of fatalities on highways.

Noting a reduction in traffic fatalities in Michigan in 1956, the governor credited "increased State Police patrols, better control of driver licensing and suspension of licenses of dangerous drivers, use of National Guard troops to reinforce State Police and sheriff's road patrols, and widespread publicity."

One Light Bulb Works 40 Years

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — It would be hard to convince Mrs. E. L. Ellison that modern production methods turn out better materials than the old ones did.

Mrs. Ellison says she has used one light bulb on her front porch the last 40 years — and it still works.

Don Iddon, who has viewed the American scene for the London Daily Mail for 20 years, warned his countrymen inflation was so rampant "the 100 pounds will have melted to about 95 pounds (meaning a loss of $14) before the British visitor gets off the ship."

"In fact," he said, "the British tourist will be down and out on 100 pounds."

Most of the alarmist reports reaching here center on New York prices as related by businessmen and others on expense accounts.

Richard Kilian of the Daily Express says the 100 pounds will go "not very far for not very long," but cheerfully adds that vacations always wind up with the remark "I wonder where all the money went."

Pirates Top Cincinnati; Milwaukee Trounces Bums

Buhl Spins 4-Hitter Over Brooklyn Outfit

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Milwaukee's Bob Buhl still has the Brooklyn Dodgers on a string...

Only two games were scheduled in the NL last night. Buhl, who beat the Dodgers eight times last year...

Pittsburgh and Vern Law took care of the Redlegs. 5-2. Law pitched a four-hitter that left the leaders only one game ahead of the Philadelphia Phillies.

The American League scrap saw Chicago's idle White Sox regain a five-length edge over the New York Yankees...

Boston's Red Sox, with Dick Gernert driving in six runs, walloped Kansas City 11-4 in the only other AL game.

Buhl, a 28-year-old right hander who was 3-5 against Brooklyn until he developed his whammy last season, walked six and gave up three of the Dodgers' hits to Gil Hodges.

A two-run homer by Ed Matthews, after an error, gave Buhl the edge he needed in the fourth inning against Don Newcombe. Nuxhall wound up with his fourth defeat in five decisions still wondering how he can shake a mechanical mixup...

His big trouble was letting go of the ball at all in the sixth inning last night when the Pirates smashed a 2-all tie with three runs. Frank Thomas singled home the clincher.

Law gave up a single and a Wally Post home run in the first inning, and two more hits in the fourth while winning his third.

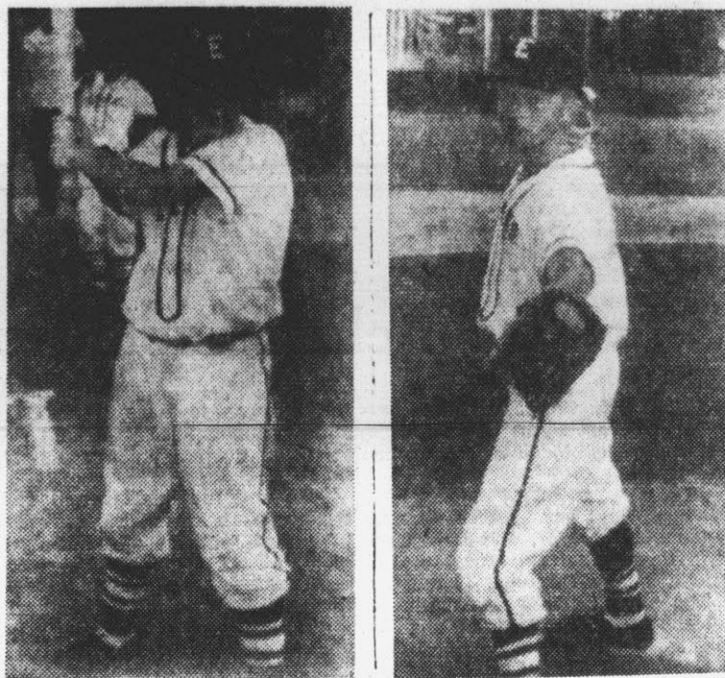

Charlie Maxwell drove in five runs on two homers for the Tigers, who also had home runs from Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn in taking three of four from the Yankees.

Frank Lary won for the first time since May 5, losing a shutout on Mickey Mantle's 15th home run in the sixth, and giving way to reliever Al Aber in the eighth.

Hank Bauer hit a two-run homer off Aber in the ninth. The Red Sox smashed 13 hits off loser Alex Kellner and two relievers, with Gernert doing the job with a pair of homers and a double.

Ted Williams was hitless in four trips. Willard Nixon won his fourth with a 10-hitter.

Elks, Exchange Win Little League Games

Yesterday's Little League games at Elm Street Park saw the Elks and the Exchange club triumph in a twin-bill.

The first game (which was the finish of a contest started earlier and called because of rain) brought a 3-1 victory for the Exchange outfit over Pepsi-Cola. Stummerlin started the game last week for the Exchangers and Johnson carried on from there yesterday.

Exchange batters hit Pepsi pitcher J. Harper for five baseknocks to tally their three runs. Pepsi-Cola collected nine hits but could not muster the needed runs to win.

The winning runs were tallied in the bottom of the fifth and gave the Exchange club a 3-0 lead. Pepsi-Cola got their only run in the top of the sixth, but failed to score enough to continue the tilt.

In the second game of the afternoon, a Tar Heel League game between the Elks and the Moose club, the Elks won, 5-2.

J. G. Proctor, Elks catcher, poled a homerun in the sixth inning with two men on base to break a 2-2 tie and ultimately clinch the game for the Elks.

The Elks took an early 2-0 lead in the first inning when Clark and Proctor came across. In the third frame, however, the Moose tied it on scores by Webb and Joyner. After that, it remained tied until Proctor's big blast.

Denny Hardee was the winning hurler. Ken Joyner went the full distance for the Moose and was credited with the loss.

Smith Hurls No-Hitter Against Durham Bulls

CAROLINA LEAGUE

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Chuck Smith, a 23-year-old left-hander for Greensboro, was the toast of the Carolina League to-day after pitching a 2-0 no-hit, no run victory over the top place Durham Bulls last night at Greensboro.

Smith employed a slider almost to perfection as he entered baseball's hall of fame. Although he walked six batters, Smith struck out eight and never was in trouble.

Smith, who hails from Conneaut, Ohio, is in his second year of pro ball. In pitching his no-hitter, he won a brilliant duel from the league's No. 1 pitcher, Al Pehanick, who gave up only three hits. It was Smith's eighth win against four losses.

Meanwhile, Danville erupted for three runs in the eighth, to break a 3-3 tie and defeat Winston-Salem 6-3 at Winston-Salem. Danville was out 11.9. A walk, three singles and an error accounted for the three runs in the big eighth inning.

Bynum Pitches Teen-er Triumph

Strong-armed Merrill Bynum turned in a two-hit performance last night for the Home Builders to blank the Guaranty Bankers 1-0, in Teen-er League ball at Guy Smith Stadium.

Bynum struck out 15 Guaranty batters and walked only two in chalking up his third victory of the season against one loss.

Losing pitcher Steve Noble also pitched a two-hitter. The 190-pound Bynum collected both hits for the winners. Noble fanned eight and walked seven. He was relieved in the seventh inning by Joe Moye. Moye struck out one and walked one.

The Home Builders turned in the only run of the game in the third inning when Bynum punched out a hit that scored first baseman Leo Starling. Starling had walked.

Yankees Set For Chicago Series

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Yankees, pre-season choices to win the American League pennant race, have a chance to regain some of their lost glitter in the next three days.

The Yankees move in for a three game series against the Chicago White Sox who hold a surprising but commanding five-game lead over the fading Bombers.

A Yankee sweep would justify White Sox critics who have said all along the speed boys will slow down when the hot weather sets in.

A Chicago sweep would cause jubilation among Yankee haters who say the Yanks have "had it" and are wishfully hoping to see an end to the champions' domination of the American League.

If the Yanks take two-of-three, they'll still be four games behind when they leave town. Of course, two-of-three for Chicago would boost the Sox lead to a big six games with the season one-third over.

Graniteers Pace Softball League For First Half

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L. Graniteers 8, Carolina Dairy 6, Greenville P&M 4, Carolina T&T 0.

Last night's games in the Greenville Industrial Softball League at Guy Smith Stadium, finished out play in the first half of the season.

The league-leading Graniteers walloped the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph team 25-4 in the first tilt of the evening. Carolina Dairy trounced the Greenville Parts and Metals outfit by a 14-9 score.

The games finished out the standings as shown above and called a halt to first-half action. Next game on tap for the softballers will be the annual All-Star game between the leading Graniteers and an All-Star team selected from the other three outfits. It will be played Monday night at Guy Smith Stadium, beginning at 7:30.

First Game In the first "contest" last night, the Graniteers pumped opposing pitchers Jones and Williford for 15 hits to rack up their stunning 25-4 victory. Hobgood slammed two homers and Ingram cracked another for the winners to back up pitcher Dan Gordon. Only two men on the entire Graniteer team failed to get a hit.

The winners went wild to score 14 tremendous runs in the first inning of play. They picked up five in the second, one in the third and five more in the fourth. The game was called after four innings.

Carolina T&T scored their four runs on only five hits. All four runs came in the final inning. It was their ninth straight loss.

Second Game Carolina Dairy was also in a wild-scoring mood last night, as they lashed out for 14 runs against Greenville P&M. They tallied 13 hits to account for most of their scores. Hall, Brantley and White hurled for the winners.

The P&M club could muster only four hits but managed to secure nine runs. Charlie Odum went the full six innings and was credited with the loss.

Conservatives Score Major Upset In Canada; Rule By Liberals Ended

By MAX HARRELSON
TORONTO (AP)—A smashing political upset today ended the 22-year rule of Canada's Liberal party and promised the country a minority Conservative cabinet headed by 61-year-old John Diefenbaker.

The Conservatives, campaigning on a "time for a change" platform, won the most seats in the House of Commons elections yesterday but fell short of a majority.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, the Liberal party chief, is expected to resign this week and recommend that Gov. Gen. Vincent Massey ask Diefenbaker to form a new cabinet.

The Tories will have to rule as a minority government, as the Liberals did after the 1945 election. Leaders of both minor parties said they would not join a coalition cabinet, although both indicated they would support the Conservatives if they put forward a satisfactory program.

It was considered likely, however, that Diefenbaker would not want to try governing for very long with the aid of other groups but would bring on another election soon in an effort to win a majority.

With 4 of the 265 Commons seats undecided, the Conservatives early today had won 110, the Liberals 103, the Socialist CCF (Cooperative Commonwealth Federation) 24, the Social Credit party 18 and independents 6.

In the popular vote, however, the Conservatives were trailing the Liberals, 2,239,086 to 2,396,080. This was the tabulation by the Canadian Press of 37,116 of the 43,100 precincts.

Diefenbaker promised plenty during his campaign that would appeal to both the CCF and Social Credit party, including increased social services, farm aid, tax reductions and increased foreign trade. He hit the Liberals also with charges that they encouraged inflation, curtailed parliamentary and personal liberties and threatened Canada with becoming a one-party state.

The Liberals not only lost the election, but 9 of their 17 Cabinet members were swept out of Parliament. The only top Liberal leaders to remain were the 75-year-old St. Laurent and Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson.

One of those defeated was Finance Minister Walter Harris, frequently mentioned along with Pearson as a possible successor to St. Laurent as Liberal leader. Another was veteran Trade Minister C. D. Howe, often credited with being the most powerful man in the government.

Other Cabinet ministers defeated were Defense Minister Ralph Campney, Associate Defense Minister Paul Hellyer, Revenue Minister James McCann, Works Minister Robert Winters, Labor Minister Milton Gregg, Justice Minister Stuart Garson and Veterans Minister Hughes Lapointe.

Diefenbaker declared that the election showed the Canadians had an abiding belief in the parliamentary system.

Most experts had given the Tories little chance for a victory, but had predicted they would make substantial inroads into the huge majority held by the Liberals in the last Parliament. In the 1953 election, the Liberals had won 170 seats to 51 for the Conservatives.

Five People Die As Oil Stove In Kitchen Explodes

MADISON, Conn. (AP)—Five persons died last night after a kerosene stove exploded in the kitchen of their home.

Dead were 29-year-old Mrs. Mary Cooley, her brother, Charles VanderWarker, 37, and Mrs. Cooley's three children, Mary, 3; Patricia, 2, and Suzanne, 10 months.

Three other persons in the house at the time escaped without injury. They were Mrs. Cooley's father, Charles Sr., about 70; her other brother, William, 34, and her sister, Mrs. Leona Handy, 39.

Sgt. Charles Nilson of the Madison police said he pieced the following account together from survivors:

The grandfather, his two grown sons, and Mrs. Handy were in the kitchen. Mrs. Cooley was upstairs putting the children to bed.

Water for the laundry was heating in a washtub on top of the three burner kerosene stove, fed by a gallon jug of fuel.

When the water was hot the four people started to lift it off. The water slopped over, causing the burners to flare up and the stove caught fire.

Nilson quoted William as saying: "Me and my brother and sister tried to grab hold of the oil burner and tried to throw it out into the yard." They couldn't budge it.

Charles Jr. ran upstairs to help Mrs. Cooley with the children. The other three fled out the back door as the stove blew up.

Charles got the two oldest daughters and started down the stairs, where the rapidly-spreading fire trapped them. Firemen found their charred bodies there when the fire was put out.

Mrs. Cooley and the baby died in the upstairs bedroom.

Meantime William ran out and shouted to a neighbor, Mrs. John Pauk, who called the fire department.

She said later, "The house was burning like a bonfire. There was nothing anyone could do for them next door. No one could live in those flames."

U. S. Asks For Quick Decision By Allies

By JOHN SCALI
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has urged its European allies to be ready to decide quickly whether an "open skies" test zone in Europe should be included in any first-stage disarmament agreement with Russia.

Disarmament chief Harold Stassen is understood to have recommended that a high-level committee of experts be set up within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to handle this problem.

Diplomatic officials reported Stassen suggested this move because he thinks Russia will insist that a European as well as an arctic test zone be agreed upon in initial disarmament moves.

These back-stage Western maneuvers came to light as Stassen arranged to meet today with Secretary of State Dulles. They will review a disarmament counterproposal the United States will lay before the Soviets within a few days.

Stassen, who flew in from London Sunday, plans tentatively to return to London Wednesday to resume arms talks with Soviet, British, French and Canadian representatives.

Authorities familiar with developments said Stassen urged European allied governments last week to start thinking of the European zone problem.

The American plan is understood to omit any proposal for a European open skies zone even though the Soviets in a proposal April 30 made clear they favored such an area.

Stassen himself informally suggested a European zone in earlier talks with the Soviets, but this was described as "an illustrative proposal" and not a firm American offer.

Mainly because of West German elections, the American strategy now appears to be to concentrate on the arctic as a starting point until the Europeans themselves decide whether to favor a European counterpart and where it should be.

Roughhouse Left To Tribal Elders

EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP)—A roughhouse among five Osceola brothers in the wake of a Seminole "Green Corn Dance" was shunted out of Collier County Court by Judge S. S. Jolly, who said it was a case for tribal elders to decide.

Mike Osceola charged his four brothers, Dougals, Howard, William McKinley Jr. and John, with binding and beating him. Dougals accused Mike of hitting him with a broken pop bottle.

Tribal justice in some instances has been harsher on convicted defendants than the laws governing white men.

Urges Showing Flag On June 14

Harry M. Brown, exalted ruler of Greenville Elks Lodge, today called upon the citizens of Greenville to "demonstrate their patriotism and pride in our great country and its heritage of freedom on Flag Day, June 14."

Appealing for community-wide participation in the Elks' annual "Show Your Colors" campaign, Brown asked that citizens fly the flag from dawn to dusk in honor of the 180th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777.

The Elks' leader requested that all civic, fraternal and patriotic groups in the city urge their members to fly the Stars and Stripes on its birthday "in public tribute to the symbol of this land of freedom we hold so dear and in dedication to the cherished tradition of self-government which it represents."

Dr. Kenneth L. Quiggins was named chairman of a Flag Day committee to plan a patriotic program for June 14.

This year's "Show Your Colors" program by 1,800 Elks Lodges, marks a half century of observance of Flag Day by the Order of Elks.

Emotion Plays Large Role In Obscure Soldier's Case

By JAMES MARDOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Emotion, a dispute over the meaning of words and stumbling around by the government have made a national figure out of William S. Girard, an obscure, 21-year-old American soldier in Japan.

When this government decided last week to let the Japanese try him for killing a Japanese woman, veterans organizations protested, members of Congress demanded an investigation, and members of his family began a court fight.

But any question of the right of the Japanese government to try and jail American servicemen for offenses in Japan comes pretty late. The Japanese have been doing it for years, with American consent.

In 1953 this government signed an agreement with the Japanese covering offenses by American military personnel in Japan. It has similar agreements with other countries where United States Armed forces are stationed.

It was agreed with Japan that the United States would have jurisdiction over its military personnel for any act done "in the performance of official duty." Otherwise, the Japanese would have jurisdiction.

In Girard's case there was no question he was on duty when he killed the woman. The question was: Did he do it in performance of his duty? The Japanese said no. At first this country said yes and then changed to no.

Japanese men, women and children, looking for empty shell casings to sell for scrap, had become a nuisance — and a danger to themselves — by wandering around a maneuver area north of Tokyo. They even went onto the firing range.

This happened during maneuvers on Jan. 30. Girard's platoon leader ordered him to guard a machine gun. The Japanese had been warned away. But a woman, mother of five, got within 30 yards of Girard in her search for scrap. Japanese claim Girard encouraged her to look for scrap. He has denied it. But he put an empty cartridge in a grenade thrower and fired. She was hit and killed. He denied he intended to kill her. He said he just wanted to scare her away.

For five days the Army in Japan suppressed news of the incident. But the Japanese papers played it up. It was discussed in Parliament.

The Japanese claimed jurisdiction—the right to try him—on the grounds that what he did was no part of his official duty. His commanding officer said he was carrying out his duty and the United States claimed jurisdiction. Both sides argued for weeks.

But this was the first time in more than 14,000 incidents involving violations of Japanese laws that the Japanese claimed the right to be judges of whether an act was in performance of official duty.

They had turned back to American authorities all but about 400 of those involved in the 14,000 incidents. Of those tried by the Japanese, only 89 were convicted. Now about 40 American servicemen are in Japanese jails. Although their offenses range from rape to murder, only one is under death sentence.

On May 16 the American Far East Command announced it was yielding to the Japanese claim to try Girard. The next day, May 17, Secretary of Defense Wilson ordered Girard held in American custody, pending investigation.

The same day the Japanese indicted Girard on a charge of inflicting bodily injury causing death. It is similar to a charge of involuntary manslaughter in this country and carries a penalty of 2 to 15 years.

A week later another incident exploded in Formosa. Rioting Chinese smashed the American Embassy after a United States court-martial fired an Army sergeant who killed a Chinese he said had been peeping at his wife.

With two of this country's best friends in Asia incensed over killings by Americans, the State and Defense departments decided on June 3 to let the Japanese try Girard.

They said his firing on the woman was not "authorized." This meant that what he did was not considered to be in performance of his duty.

Tomorrow, government officials appear before a federal judge to argue the jurisdiction question. This case may well be fought up to the Supreme Court for a ruling on the constitutionality of the whole 1953 agreement.

Up To Taxpayers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—This country will be able to "send a pay load to the moon" and launch a manned satellite within five years after it fires its first inter-continental missile if the taxpayers will put up enough money, one of the Navy's top rocket experts said today.

"We will have the know-how and the material, and the whole space program could be ushered in with a contribution of $2 a year from each taxpayer," said Cmdr. Robert C. Truax.

Truax came here to address the American Rocket Society, of which he is president.

Asked when the first inter-continental ballistic missile firing could be expected, Truax said he couldn't talk about it. Reports were published recently that an ICBM launching had been planned in connection with President Eisenhower's visit to the Florida coast a few days ago. The report never was confirmed.

Vacation Bible School Finished

The Mt. Pleasant Christian Church completed its Vacation Bible School Sunday.

The Rev. Donald G. Weldon, pastor of the church, said 61 were enrolled in the Bible School this year. Mt. Pleasant is located about five miles from Greenville on the Belvoir Rd.

Beginners were under the direction of Gail Stancil, Wilma Hall and Barbara Jenkins. Primary group was led by Mrs. Nina Vainwright and Mrs. Leonard Briley. Junior Department directors were Mrs. Hagan, Mrs. Small and Mrs. Weldon. Directors of the teen-age group were Mrs. Linwood Harris and Mrs. Charlie Harris.

All Even In Their Collegiate Honors

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Robert B. Meyner, a Lafayette graduate, is now even with his opponent in the November gubernatorial election.

Princeton's Class of 1922 yesterday named him honorary member of the class because his father-in-law and Adlai E. Stevenson, a distant relative through marriage, are both Princeton men.

His opponent State Sen. Malcolm S. Forbes is also a Princeton grad.

Marriages in the United States increased in 1956 to 1,587,000 compared to 1,542,000 in 1955.

Asheville Now Battlefield For Segregation Cases

By CHARLES WEST
ASHEVILLE (AP)—This Southern mountain tourist resort, with a long record of peaceful race relations, today became the legal battlefield for school segregation cases of Southwide significance.

The U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting here, heard appeals from school integration orders in Norfolk and Newport News, Va., 400 miles away.

U. S. Dist. Judge Walter E. Hoffman of Norfolk last February ordered white public schools of the two cities to admit Negroes this fall.

But his ruling also set in motion a new Virginia law which cuts off funds to schools ordered integrated and closes the schools as state institutions.

That law, and Virginia's Pupil Placement Act, gave the cases an importance that stretched from the two tidewater Virginia cities throughout Dixie. Several Southern states have similar statutes on their law books.

Even as they appealed the case, attorneys for the school boards phrased a clear statement that an affirmation by the appellate court of the integration order would not resolve the issue of segregation.

"Virginia, Virginians and the government of Virginia do not like the idea of desegregation of the public schools. It would be idle to attempt to hide this fact for it has been made abundantly clear," the school attorneys said.

"If they (the Negro plaintiffs) win the battle, they will, of course, lose the war. Courts cannot force 99 per cent of the white people to do what they are convinced is wrong; there are not marshals enough nor jails enough to accomplish that result."

A "siren song" of delay, attorneys for the Negroes argued. They said state officials have "committed themselves to a policy of massive resistance to the (school integration) decision of the Supreme Court rather than to intelligent efforts to achieve desegregation."

Attorneys for the Negroes declared:

"In the meantime, with the passing of each school session, the rights of thousands of Negro school children are lost forever."

Norfolk school attorneys said that "to attempt integration upon the terms required by the (district) court decree by next September will bring inevitable disaster not only to the cause of education but to the betterment of relations between the races."

Big Production Of Small Fire

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The script called for a small fire in a grocery store, but special effects man Roland Chiniquy made it a colossal production.

He burned the joint down.

The fire yesterday on the set of the filmed television show State Trooper roared out of control.

Chiniquy, who has been producing controlled movie fires for 15 years, pointed a hose at the flames licking 30 feet high. He called for water, but—

"Just a trickle came out — no pressure," he said. "Was I embarrassed?"

Five fire units finally came to the rescue, but the simulated grocery store was destroyed.

The series' producer kept a stiff upper lip, however, and announced that the charred interior was just what the next scene called for.

Greatness Is Never Achieved Suddenly!

It has long been true, in the affairs of men, that only time can confirm the gift of greatness.

Artist, statesman, writer, craftsman—each must await the years for the maturity of his talent and for the verdict of his judges.

And as it is in the affairs of men, so it is in the world of commerce. Nothing great was ever created suddenly—whether the product be that of an individual or of an organization.

Here, most certainly, is the very genesis of the unique position which Cadillac currently occupies in the hearts and minds of the world's motorists.

Since the first Cadillac car made its appearance more than fifty-five years ago, it has always been created to a single objective: to make it as fine a motor car as it is possible to produce.

And, without question, the mission and the accomplishment have been one and the same.

The goodness of Cadillac has, in fact, been so apparent over that lengthy span that the Cadillac name stands today as an accepted synonym for quality wherever highways exist.

The pretenders have come—and they have gone. For time is an exacting taskmaster—and only the principles that have created the great Cadillac car and only the devotion that has given it being have been equal to the challenge.

Never has this fact been more deeply etched in the public consciousness than it is during the present automotive year.

If you have yet to take the wheel of a 1957 Cadillac, you should hesitate no longer to visit your authorized Cadillac dealer.

Waiting for you in his showroom is proof beyond doubt that Cadillac is—in fact as in reputation—the Standard of the World!

CHAPTER 9

Because I had business with Alec Dodson, I left the Box P before sunup. There were about three inches of snow on the ground, and the wind that howled across the valley was cold and penetrating. Maybe Mathers and Romig would decide the climate was too severe for them. In a steer's eye, I thought—probably Sarah had told them Easter Valley was just over the ridge from Paradise.

Sarah would probably welcome him if he settled in the valley, but what would she do if he began to threaten Box P range? Perhaps things would come to the point where I'd have to defy her. Then all of a sudden it came to me. Back of everything was the memory of Joe Pardee. He'd have killed anyone who tried to settle between Anchor and Carlton. If I didn't take the same stand, the ghost of Joe Pardee would haunt me for the rest of my life.

No, I didn't believe in ghosts, but that was what I amounted to. I was always conscious that everything I did as foreman of the Box P, every decision I made, would have been weighed in Joe Pardee's mind.

By the time I reached Anchor, I was in a turmoil. When I walked into Dodson's living room and stood in front of his fireplace to get warm, I knew I had to have this out with him, to find out how much I could expect from the association.

I'd come to buy a bull. As soon as we finished the dicker, I asked, "Have you met this man Mathers?"

Dodson nodded. "He spent a night here, him and another gent named Al Romig." He lighted his pipe, grinned at me as if he were enjoying a secret joke; then he said: "He wanted to know what the land was like along the creek between Carlton and the Box P. Fine for farming, I told him."

"It isn't funny, Alec," I said. "They were at our place last night, and Mathers was asking about the land between Anchor and Carlton."

My words wiped the grin off his face. He said, "You're bullying me, Will."

"No, I'm not. What's he after, Alec?"

Dodson was staring at me as if he didn't hear what I'd just asked. "My hay meadows are on the creek between here and Carlton. And my winter range. He'd ruin me if he settled there. You know what Joe always said: 'If one of 'em stays, more will come.' He began walking around the room, then wheeled to face me. "But maybe he decided he liked your side of the valley better. Maybe he'll go south of town and not touch either one of us. Or he might buy a ranch."

"What's the association going to do?" I demanded.

He wiped a hand across his forehead. "Let's face the truth, Will. When Joe was alive, we were more afraid of him than the SOB-busters were. It ain't like that now. I won't fight for the Box P and you won't fight for Anchor."

I put on my sheepskin and walked out of the room without a word. I mounted and headed down the creek toward Carlton. Dodson had said exactly what I'd expected him to. Still, I was surprised and shaken when I actually heard it. Everything that Joe had built in the valley had fallen in ruins the instant he died. Much of his strength had been due to the fact that he spoke for the valley. Dodson wouldn't speak at all.

Suppose I spoke up now? I was Sarah's partner. I could belong to the association. I could demand a meeting. I could lay it on the line. If Dodson wouldn't take the lead, we needed a new president.

Then I realized that wasn't the way. I was too young, too inexperienced. Joe Pardee would do it, but not Will Beeson.

Well, I could start with Mathers and Romig. I could tell them that if they ever returned to the valley, I'd kill them.

I was in front of Kathy Morgan's house when she stepped outside and called to me: "Put your horse in the shed, Will. Come in and eat. You're not going home yet."

I put the gelding in the shed and went into the house. The kitchen was warm and filled with the smell of frying ham and coffee. Kathy motioned for me to sit at the little kitchen table.

CALDERWOOD, Tenn. (AP)—The biggest conservation experiment ever undertaken in the Southeast was carried out yesterday in the Chilhowee Lake area.

The experiment—the poisoning of all fish between Chilhowee Dam and Calderwood—was carried out by state conservation officials to make room for 75,000 rainbow trout fingerlings.

The graduate's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Deike Jr., attended the ceremony. The father is a 1931 State graduate.

Missing was the graduate's wife, Ruth, who gave birth to a baby daughter a few hours earlier. Ruth received her degree from Penn State last year.

Dr. Erick Walker, president of the school, said the newborn "is already enrolled in the class of 1979."

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrift" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to 3-T-R-F-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAM, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAM's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONAM's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAM is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAM neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAM exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAM, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98¢ for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2¢ per tablet.

"You came by at the right time," she said. "I was hoping you would. I saw you ride past early this morning."

I took a chair, probably the same chair in which Joe had sat many times. During the last six months of his life he had made a habit of eating with Kathy every Saturday night.

Finally she sat down and handed a platter of fried ham to me. She asked, "You know these two pilgrims who are in the valley?"

"Mathers and Romig?"

She nodded. "Mathers is the head of a colony of settlers. Next spring he's bringing fifty families to live in the valley."

That was the way she let me have it. Both barrels!

"How do you know?" I asked.

"Go on and eat," she said irritably. "I'll tell you while you're eating."

So I ate, forcing the food down while she talked. Mathers and Romig had ridden past Kathy's house toward town not long after I'd gone by on my way to Anchor. Mathers had been around town for several days, staying at the hotel when he wasn't visiting at one of the ranches. Because Kathy had heard enough about him to be curious, she had walked to the store. Mathers was talking to Art Delaney, and although she hadn't caught all of it she had heard enough to be sure she had it straight.

"Fifty families, Will," she said. "Joe never had more than six or seven to buck at a time."

"He'd have figured out a way to stop them," I said. "Trouble is, it's different now in more ways than one," and I told her about Dodson. "I knew all the time there wasn't any use, but I had to ask him."

"Sure, I knew too," she said.

School Vacation—Coming Right Up

Turning the calendar leaf to June reminded us that there'll soon be a lot of boisterous young spirits bursting out of their school bonds. For those who are graduating, we would like to recommend a camera as a graduation gift, one that is matched to their age and the way they will use it. Here are some ideas.

For the grammar school graduate who has a summer of fun ahead of him, the new Brownie Starflash Camera is perfect. It's as easy to use as any Brownie, but it's the first Brownie Camera designed to take color slides as well as color and black-and-white snaps. And the flash unit is built right in.

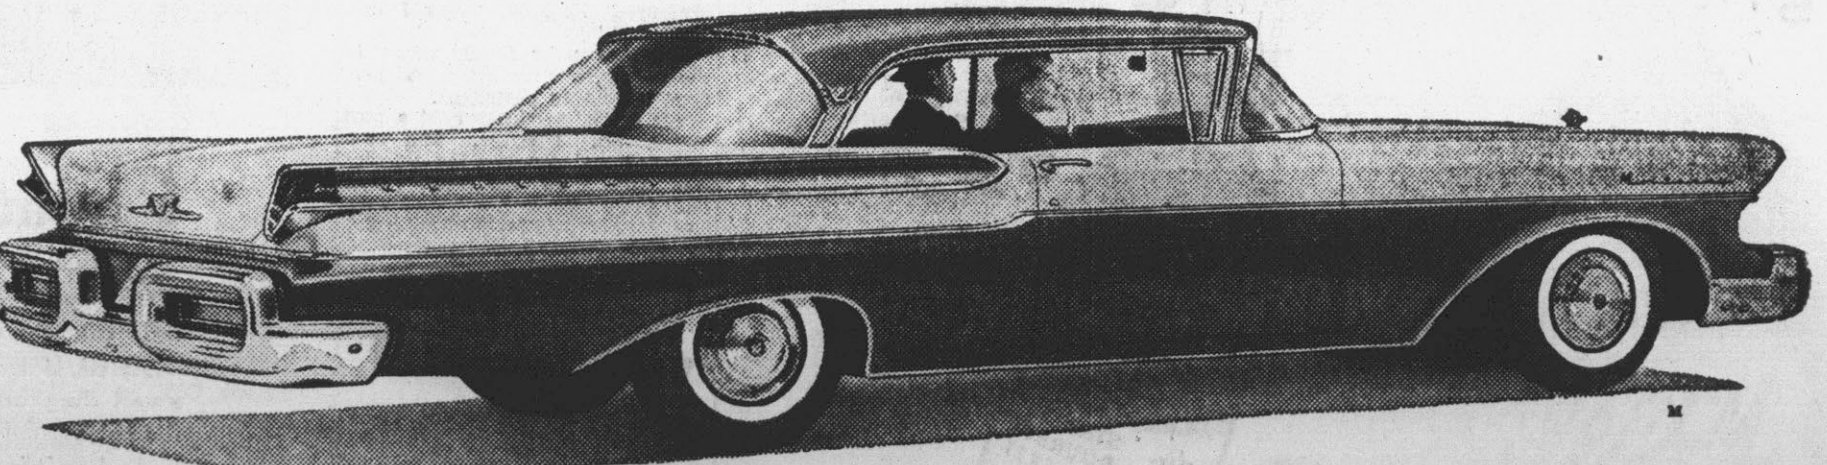

For the high school graduate, we suggest a Brownie Movie Camera. It's a camera he will treasure and use for years . . . and best of all the low cost 8mm film will fit right into a starting-work budget.

For the college graduate, the Kodak Signet 40 Camera would be an excellent choice. He can use it to take color slides for business or pleasure. And it has all the precision controls that can lead him into a lifelong hobby.

While we're talking gifts, here's a reminder that Father's Day is coming up. Although he may protest modestly that he doesn't need a "special day," he deserves a fine new camera. Stop in soon and we'll help you solve your gift problem with a "just-right" camera.

- YOU HAVE TO PAY OVER $150 MORE to match Mercury's standard 255 horsepower in any competitive car. And the Monterey's power options offer you either 290 horsepower or a blazing 335 horsepower!
- YOU HAVE TO PAY OVER $200 MORE to get any other car with real dual headlamps. No other car at Monterey's price even offers duals. You can get Quadri-Beam headlamps on all 19 Mercury models.
- YOU HAVE TO PAY OVER $500 MORE to match the Monterey's standard compression in any competitive car. Its compression ratio of 9.75 to 1 is close to the highest you can get in any car.
- YOU HAVE TO PAY OVER $1,000 MORE to match the Monterey's hip room and rear seat leg room. Mercury has the biggest size increase in the industry—bigger in every important dimension!
- YOU HAVE TO PAY OVER $2,000 MORE to match Mercury's width in any other car. You can match it only in America's three costliest cars!

BIGGEST VALUE INCREASE IN THE INDUSTRY! The Big M is up in size, in power, in luxury, in everything that counts in a car. But the price is still low—just an easy step up from the low-priced three.

NEW YORK — The stock market advanced vigorously early this afternoon, more than erasing the losses taken yesterday of news of President Eisenhower's stomach upset.

Leading issues rose from fractions to around 2 points. Some selected issues made bigger gains.

The rise was general, but steels, oils, rubbers and nonferrous metals moved ahead on a broad front. Motors and chemicals also were mainly on the upside. Leading rails were ahead on average.

Wall Street observers said the market was continuing its recovery drive of yesterday as the initial shock of the news from the White House wore off and the word was that the President's indisposition was mild.

The news that the president was back at his desk added further momentum to the recovery today as the market was reported virtually ignoring business reports.

Gains of 2 points or better were made by Youngstown Sheet, Goodrich and Kennecott.

Advances of a point or more were made by U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Zenith, American Telephone, A n a c o n d a, American Smelting, Allied Chemical, Gulf Oil and Texas Co.

Schering scammed ahead around 4; high-priced International Business Machines rose about 7. Filtrol backed away from an early 2-point gain, keeping a fraction down.

Square "D" was up around 4 on a big block early in the session but reduced its gain to 2-plus. It had the benefit of a bullish market letter.

The defeat on the Liberal Party in Canada after 22 years carried no implications of change in Wall Street, according to informed financial sources.

International Nickel was up a fraction, Aluminum Ltd. eased.

Fractional gains were scored by Santa Fe, New York Central and Southern Pacific. U. S. Gypsum dropped around a point.

Douglas Aircraft was off a fraction.

The Dow-Jones industrial average was up 4.96 to 508.72 at noon, well ahead of its previous closing high for 1957.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was still a bit below its 1957 closing high. The average was up $1.40 to $184.70 with the industrials up $2.50, the rails up 60 cents and the utilities up 30 cents.

OLDSMOBILE

"He sure knows how to pick 'em!"

Bridesmaid: You mean Lucille... or are you talking about their Oldsmobile?

Best Man: Both! But I was really looking at their car. What a beauty!

Bridesmaid: They sure are a lucky couple.

Best Man: And smart, too. That Olds costs less than you'd think. It has style that will stay in style. They get real comfort... a wonderful ride... and the big Rocket Engine...

Bridesmaid: She looked so lovely...

Best Man: They'll really find out how smart they are to own an Olds at trade-in time. Why, an Olds brings a better price than lots of the most expensive cars, even after a couple of years of use.

Bridesmaid: You know what I wish? I wish that someday...

Best Man: That you can own an Olds? Don't waste your wishes. Let's take a ride in my Golden Rocket 88. Maybe your dreams'll come true sooner than you expect.
